YES, sir, showmen all over the country are proving for themselves that we were right when we said that Elmo Lincoln's marvelously mysterious double role in this burning serial was going to prove one of the biggest drawing cards ever put into a chapter play. They say that serial fans are just eating it up—and hollering for more. You can't blame 'em when you stop to consider that the serial is cram-jam full of scenes showing Elmo Lincoln in both characters—even the illustration of this notice, showing Jim Gray about to strike Elmo Gray (both played by Elmo Lincoln) was made from a single still! And there's lots of stuff just as good in the film itself!

Story by ARTHUR
HENRY GOODEN

E IS A KNOCKOUT

nding Elmo's oving Powerful s Exhibitor

ELMO'S double role is making an especial hit with the younger serial lovers. While they know that both men—the good and the bad—are played by their idol, they cannot convince themselves fully of this at all times. This is because the characters are so unlike each other, and because the fans are fairly swept away with the rush of the action and the cataract of pounding thrills. Man! this is a ticket-selling serial if ever there was one. Book it NOW—while the money's flowing freely!

ELMO LINCOLN

DISK" DIRECTED BY ROB'T. HILL

Get Aboard!

for Close-up Thrills in Far-off Lands

HERE'S your chance to book passage for your crowd on a swift journey of never-ending thrills, romance, adventure and mystery in China, Japan, The Philippines and the United States. It will mean extra money to you if you let your folks accompany Marie Walcamp o'er continents and raging seas in search of the fatal Seventh Petal of the Sacred Lao Tze. Show them the mysteries and beauty of the Orient; show them the ways of the Yellow Men; show them a picturized story that startles with surprises—show them the only serial ever filmed in China, Japan, The Philippines and the United States. Do it NOW.

The Serial that Travels as it Thrills

MARIE WALCAMP in

"The DRAGON'S NET"

DIRECTED BY HENRY McRAE

PUTTING COLOR IN THE SERIAL

REAL ORIENTAL BACKGROUND FOR HIGH-POWER DRAMA

Story of McRae's Invasion of the Far East—Strange Lands Visited by the "U" Players.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Reprinted from The Los Angeles Sunday Times

AVAUNT the yellow age of film literature, particularly the wild, wild serial! In fact, it is even now avaunting to make way for a better sort, the sort which Henry McRae has just brought back from the Orient for Universal, and which seems destined to set a new pace.

Serials for the most part belong to what might be called the "early Universal" period of pictures. They aren't being used at all this season in our best theatres. But do you remember how you used to sit and bulge out your eyes at the wild adventures of the brave hero and the beautiful heroine in "The Poisoned Claw" or "The Mystery of the Haunted Tin Armor?" Why, it didn't seem, when you looked at thse pictures, as if there could possibly be a single police department on the job in the whole, wide world, those crooked bands of solemn masked murderers did carry on so! And, oh, that shivery mysterious thing in armor who went around looking like an animated cookstove! Wasn't he the boy for your money, though?

Then there was the hero, who didn't think he had enough for a mess unless he killed at least five crooks at a throw! As for the heroine, what a trustful girl she was, to be sure! No matter how often she got caught by the villains and thrown into dark wells and crocodile dens and amidst crowds of villains, the sweet young thing would get up at any time in the middle of the night at the call of a total stranger's voice, and hike out to be caught again! That girl never did seem to learn any sense!

But now there's a new order of things in the serial world. It has just been invented by Henry McRae.

The new serial is a combination story and travelogue, and you have no idea of the zest in those fresh and inherently interesting backgrounds!

"The Dragon's Net" is the name of the serial, and there are 90,000 feet of it. I watched some fifteen reels run off the other day, and never wearied for a moment, so adroitly has the historical and travelogue feature ben worked into the thrilling story.

Mr. McRae and his company, in which Marie Walcamp and Harland Tucker play the leading roles, spent nearly a year in the Orient. They visited Japan, China, the Philippine Islands and the South Sea Islands, gathering the most interesting material imaginable, and while, at present, it is intended to show the serial in episodes of two reels, with twenty episodes, it is possible a change may be made so as to show a fewer number of episodes with four or five reels included in each. Universal heads are to determine this.

Native Concerns

During his travels Mr. McRae found one motion picture company in China and one in Japan. Their methods are archaic, and, while the Orientals would vastly prefer their own stories and their own actors, if pictures could be properly made for them, yet, as the Orental producers seem to have no idea of picture production, the natives are compelled to depend on the American output. However, it is possible Mr. McRae may accept an offer made him by Chinese capital to return next year and start a company.

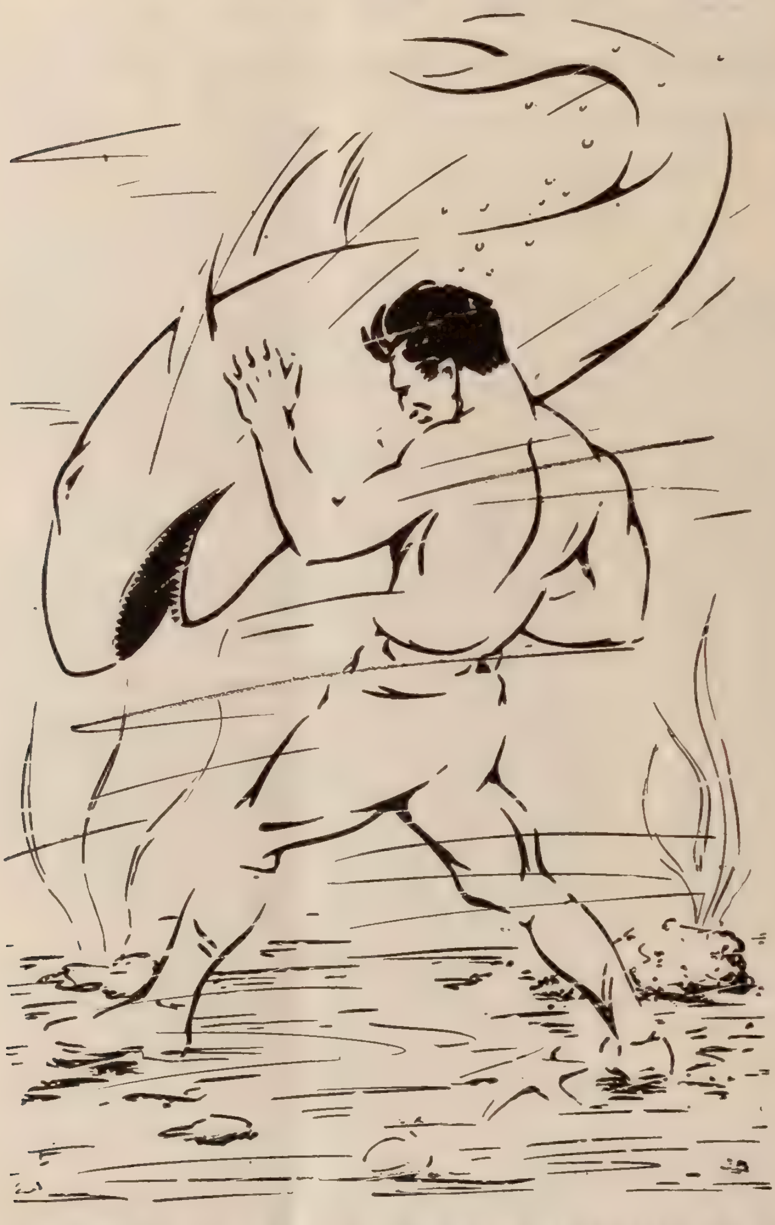
At present the Orientals are especially fond of bloodcurdling thrillers. Next to these, odd to say, they like Charlie Chaplin, whom they laugh at uproariously and imitate, and little Mary Pickford.

One thing about our pictures, however, the Chinese cannot understand, says Mr. McRae, and that is the relationships of the people in the plays. I mean they believe that the picture father or mother, brother or sister, is the real relative of the star, and they get confused when they see different relatives with the same star in another picture. So the exhibitors have a hard time explaining. Both Chinese and Japanese have interpreters in their picture houses, who, unseen, speak lines and explain action in the film. They are very dramatic, their voices rising to a shriek in the exciting parts.

In making his picture, McRae has done a wonderful work in the carefully casual manner, so to speak, in which he has introduced titles showing where the locations are that are used as backgrounds, and also giving a hint of their history. Included in the high spots used as these backgrounds are the Ming tombs, the long lane of carved animals leading to the tombs, the great Chinese Wall, the Empress Dowager's $100,000,000 summer palace at Peking, in which views of the interior are for the first time in history allowed to be shown; Kamakura, the old capital of Japan, in which McRae was allowed to take pictures whenever he chose, including private residences, both interior and exterior, strange temples, bits of wonderfully picturesque old gardens; and in the Philippines, pictures of the various industries as well as of historic and government buildings, and remote spots on the smaller islands.

In China the picture makers went into the northern part of the country, in Mongolia, where the natives never before had seen films taken. This was also true of portions of Japan. Here the natives worked in the pictures, and were childishly overawed at seeing themselves on the screen.

Unbelievable!



YOU can hardly believe what your own eyes see in this mighty chapter play. Imagine it—a fight under the surface of the sea with a man-eating shark. And the more surprising part of it is that every stunt is real and shows up as such on the screen. No wonder this whirlwind of action is cleaning up for exhibitors wherever there is a projection machine. Are you getting your share of the money that's being made on this? If not—why not?

EDDIE POLO

in

the Sensational Sea-To-Sea Serial

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

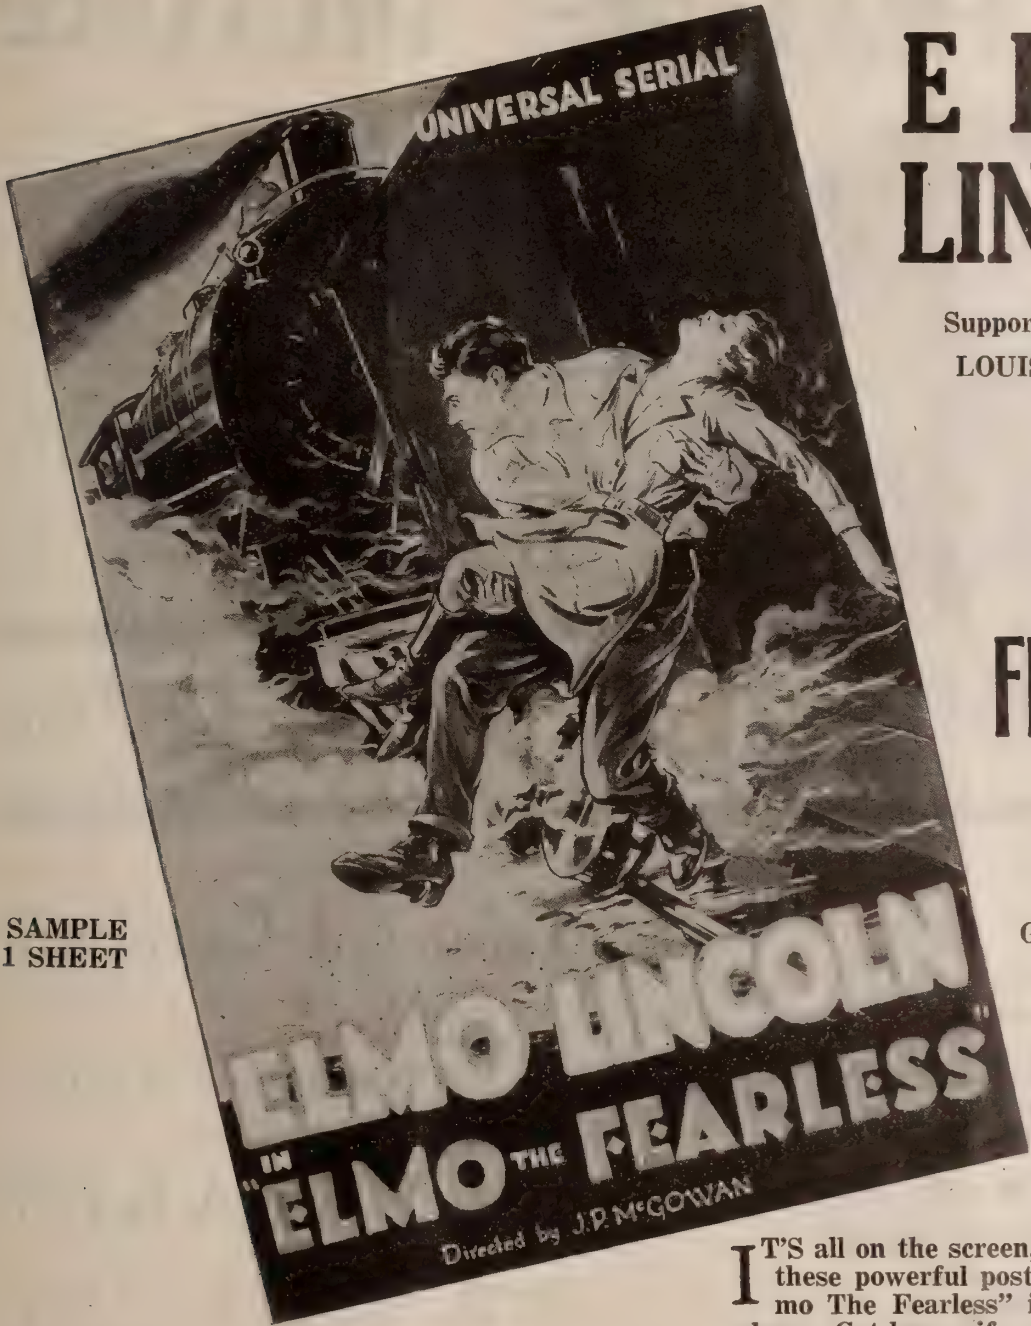
Produced by

POLO

HIMSELF

"UNIVERSAL MADE AND UNBEATABLE!"

IT'S ALL ON THE SCREEN



UNIVERSAL SERIAL
ELMO LINCOLN
IN
"ELMO THE FEARLESS"
Directed by J.P. McGOWAN

SAMPLE
1 SHEET

MIGHTY

ELMO LINCOLN

Supported by charming
LOUISE LORRAINE
IN

"ELMO THE FEARLESS"

Directed by
J. P. McGOWAN

Made by GREAT WESTERN
PRODUCING CO.

IT'S all on the screen, just as you see it on these powerful posters—and more. "Elmo The Fearless" is cleaning up everywhere. Get hep;—if you haven't booked this worldbeater of a serial starring the mighty ELMO LINCOLN and beautiful Louise Lorraine, you're cheating your box-office out of one of the biggest money making serials of all times. Ask your Universal Exchange manager about it—to-day!

RELEASED THROUGH UNIVERSAL

COMPARE THEM WITH ANY FEATURE PICTURE

IF you could get two good five-reel features just as cheaply as you could get one you'd grab them in a hurry, wouldn't you? Well, here's your chance to get feature stuff in two-reel lengths. These rugged, rapid stories of the Great Outdoors are the highest quality short subjects available. You'll do both your patrons and your box-office a good turn by booking all of these Romances of the Northwest Mounted Police.

SIX Two-Reel features
Weekly releases

The New

"RED RIDER" Series

Featuring

Leonard Clapham

and

Virginia Faire

Current release

"BIG STAKES"

"Universal always did make the best short stuff."

THIS number is typical of the quality of the other five. Here you get as much action, mystery, romance, adventure, humor, love interest and all the rest in two reels as usually is padded out to five. This is the sort of stuff that builds a reputation for a house. Try one and be guided by the comment of your crowd.

Written and directed by Jacques Jaccard

International News

No. 67

Fort Meyer, Va.—General Pershing awarded France's most prized war honor. (The cannon booms a salute.) (Omit from N. Y. prints.)

Sub-Titles.—General Fayolle, famous French Commander, presents the Medaille Militaire in the presence of Secretary Baker, General March and other notables. At Cleveland, O., Supreme Knight Flatherty of the K. of C. presents American Legion officials with a stone from Chateau Thierry bridge. F. W. Galbraith, the new National Commander of the American Legion.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—World's Series opening game. (For N. Y. only.)

Clearmont, Va.—Uncle Sam offers nearly two hundred wooden ships—which cost millions—for sale cheap, (photographed from an airplane.)

Atlantic City, N. J.—Knights Templars in spectacular parade. New Jersey contingents in glittering array.

New York City.—Beach styles for 1921. These fashion experts are always two jumps ahead of us ordinary folks.

European Glimpses.—This is not Ypres—it is an Irish town after a "visit" by Militory police . . . Balbriggan, Ireland.

Sub-Titles. — Alexandre Millerand, new president of France, visits the liberated provinces.—Alsace, France. Unusual glimpses of Paris from the giant ferris wheel near Eiffef Tower.

San Diego, Cal.—Open-air clinic helps California cut baby death rate.

Sub-Titles.—Expert data on baby's condition is furnished free to mothers. English police women open a home for foundling babies.—London, England.

Rome, Italy.—Italy celebrates 60th Anniversary of Independence Day.

Sub-Titles.—Garibaldi's heroes are the idols of the day. The ceremonies at Porta Pia. Orphans from Fiume. While at Torino, Italy's industrial center, workmen guard an automobile plant they have seized.

Mitchell Field, N. Y.—New Curtiss Eagle 10-passenger airplane makes test flight.

Tad Cartoon.

"A Scream In Society"

One Reel Star Comedy

YURAH Dream loves Lit. L. Kasino, janitor of the building which Yurah mops industriously each day. Between mops, Yurah dreams and dreams and dreams of her darling Kasino.

Kasino picks up a note from the floor signed by Miss Aver D. Poise, a prominent society woman, extending an invitation to a hop. He and his little Yurah decide to go. They rig up in grand style, and looking like the long and short of it, they "break into society." At the hop they are cordially welcomed. They have a gay old time of it, dancing about and getting everybody and everything entangled in Yurah's train. And Yurah does some shimmy when a gold fish is accidentaly slipped down her back.

It looks as if they had broken into society for "good," when lo and behold, there enter a man and woman, clients of a lawyer who occupies an office in the building where Yurah mops and Kasino keeps the furnaces going. There is an awful exposure, after which Yurah and Kasino, pursued by cops and the guests run for their lives, make a getaway on the fender of a street car and decide to spend the rest of their days happily busied with mops and furnaces.

"'In Wrong' Wright"

CAST

Jack Wright	Hoot Gibson
Mary Brown	Dorothy Woods
Foreman	Harry Jackson
Father	C. W. Herzinger
Sheriff	Leonard Clapham
Deputy	Jim Corey

ALTHOUGH "In Wrong" Wright and Bob Hall are friendly rivals in everything they undertake to do, yet they are inseparable pals until the more deadly of the sex, Mary by name, the niece of the boss, arrives for a visit to the ranch. Wright and Hall pick cards to see who will be the lucky one to meet her at the station and Hall wins. On the way back to the ranch he tries to make Wright appear as a villain to Mary and when she arrives at the ranch and is greeted by Wright, "In Wrong" is greeted with a rebuff.

Wright determines right then to prove to her that he is not so bad as painted but in every endeavor to justify his claim of being a gentle-themselves when Mary happens along and get Wright in worse.

Mary decides to take a ride one morning and wanders away alone. She soon loses her way in the mountains and finally decides to rest in a cabin nearby. The boys in the meantime learning of her absence become alarmed and start out on a hunt. Wright again "gets in wrong" with Mary when after being found, she locates him sound asleep near the ranch and accuses him of showing no interest whatsoever in helping find her.

Wright learns that Hall was the one that located Mary and remained with her at the cabin. Thinking Hall has betrayed her confidence, Wright starts after Hall, who has left the ranch for parts unknown. When Wright finds that Hall is missing, he is firmly convinced that his convictions were true. He finds Hall and forces him back to the ranch at the point of a gun to marry Mary, thinking he has wronged the girl. He then learns that no harm was done and that Hall left because Mary had refused him her hand in marriage. Again Wright sees that he has "gummed" the deal and is about disgusted until Mary tells him that he is not so bad after all and that she has always understood his intentions.

human
Harry Carey
says

YOU can fool some of the people all the time and all the people some of the time but it ain't worth while to fool your wife—none of the time.

Watch for "Sundown Slim."

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

Episode No. 10

"The Train of Death"

CAST

Marie Carlton	Marie Walcamp
Harlan Keelr	Hrland Tucker
Dr. Redding	Wadsworth Harris
King Carson	Otto Lederer

MARIE and Harlan rescue themselves. While Harlan waits on the banks for the thugs to keep them from pursuing Marie, she steps into a waiting canoe, paddled by some natives and they float down the rapids. Harlan is atacked by Carson and his gang who follow up Marie. In order to save herself from them, Marie swings herself along a monkey vine, hanging from a tree on the banks of the river near its center, and hidden in the heavy foliage of the tree, she watches Carson pass. Keeler follows somewhat later in a canoe, after he has revived, and Marie makes a dive from the tree into his boat. They land and hide in a deserted shack where Marie tells Keeler her story and offers him the lotus petal. He refuses it, saying he has found something far more precious. They are attacked in the shack by Carson and Marie flees horrified, directly in the path of some wild caraboas. She is rescued and taken to the home of some Philippine women who lend her fresh clothes and she sets out for the hotel.

On the way she meets with Keeler. They ride back in the automobile of one of Marie's friends whom she has met on the road. One of the Carson henchmen hangs on the back of the automobile and finds out that Marie and Keeler are next bound for Jolo.

Keeler and a party set out for Jolo but Marie decides to postpone her trip temporarily in order to take care of some business. She falls into Carson's clutches and when she refuses to give him the petal, he binds her to the railroad tracks in the path of an approaching train. Keeler, who is on this train, and who is riding in the engine car, having feared possible trouble, sees her struggling on the tracks. He tries to stop the train. Will be succeed?

"When The Devil Laughed"

Red Rider Series No. 4

Featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM and VIRGINIA FAIRE

KIRK MAC LEAN, of the Royal Northwest mounted police, loves Jean Codrae, whose father, Baptiste, owns the White Fox tavern. A stranger enters, Nigel Durant by name, and claims Jean as his daughter. She sorrowfully departs with him, but not before Kirk has made mental note of a scar on Durant's hand and identified him as a criminal for whom there is a warrant out.

Jake and his friends had seen Nigel flash a roll of bills and start in pursuit of him and Jean, but Abner, Kirk's man of all work, overhears the plan, and a little later informs Kirk of it. Kirk goes after them.

Jake comes upon Nigel and Jean and sends Jean away to the woods. He asks Durant for money and mortally wounds hm. He makes his getaway just as Kirk arrives on the scene. Kirk starts after Jake.

In the meantime Abner has had his troubles with some of the thieves. They elude him when he endeavors to make captives of them and they start out after Jean.

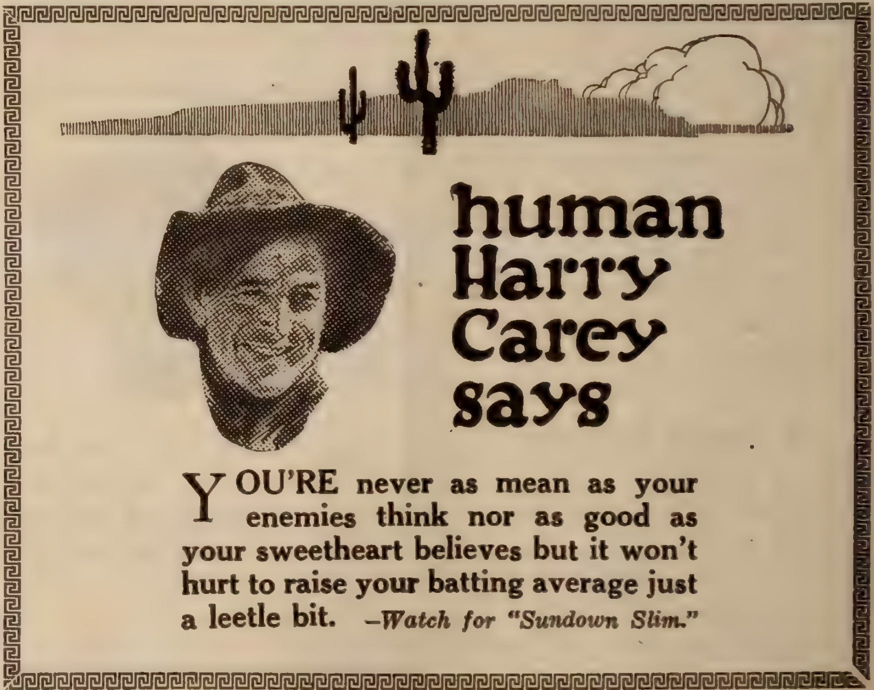
Kirk captures Jake and brings him to Abner. He then starts out after Jean. When the men see him coming, they throw Jean from a cliff. She falls into a lake below where she is rescued by Kirk, but the gangsters manage to escape.

"A Wild Night"

Featuring Joe Martin

JOE and McGinis, his pal, hang out in an Apache dive. They read that a certain Congo Prince who is always accompanied by his pet monkey, has arrived in Paris and will be entertained by "The Upper Three" or "Four Hundred Of Paris." Joe and McGinis decide to make a haul as do two other crooks who hang out in the dive and who commission one of their number to hold up the prince at Monte Carlo.

McGinis disguises himself as the prince, and accompanied by Joe attends the dazzling reception where they both make a clean-up of pearls, diamonds, etc. Things are going pretty easily for them, when the two other crooks (a man and a woman) arrive. One of them is dressed as the prince. The monkey is impersonated by a little boy attached to the zoo. McGinis and Joe have some job keeping the other crooks out of the way. Finally the litle boy who is dressed as a monkey gets sore at Joe and his impudence and plans revenge. He returns to the zoo, scaling first the outside of the building in a perilous descent, and leads the lions to the mansion where the ball is taking place. The lions arrive at a period of great excitement for the hostess has discovered that Joe and McGinis are impostors. A mad chase from the lions follows, during the course of which all the Paris police are called in but prove helpless. The four crooks and Joe finally get together in making an effort to get out of the house, inasmuch as they are locked in a room. They tear the bed sheets, making a line of them and descend from the window only to land right in the wagon of the police. Their plunge into society is over and the four and Joe find themselves in jail.



human Harry Carey says

YOU'RE never as mean as your enemies think nor as good as your sweetheart believes but it won't hurt to raise your batting average just a leetle bit. —Watch for "Sundown Slim."

EDITH ROBERTS

as the Beautiful Tigress of Fiji in "The Adorable Savage"

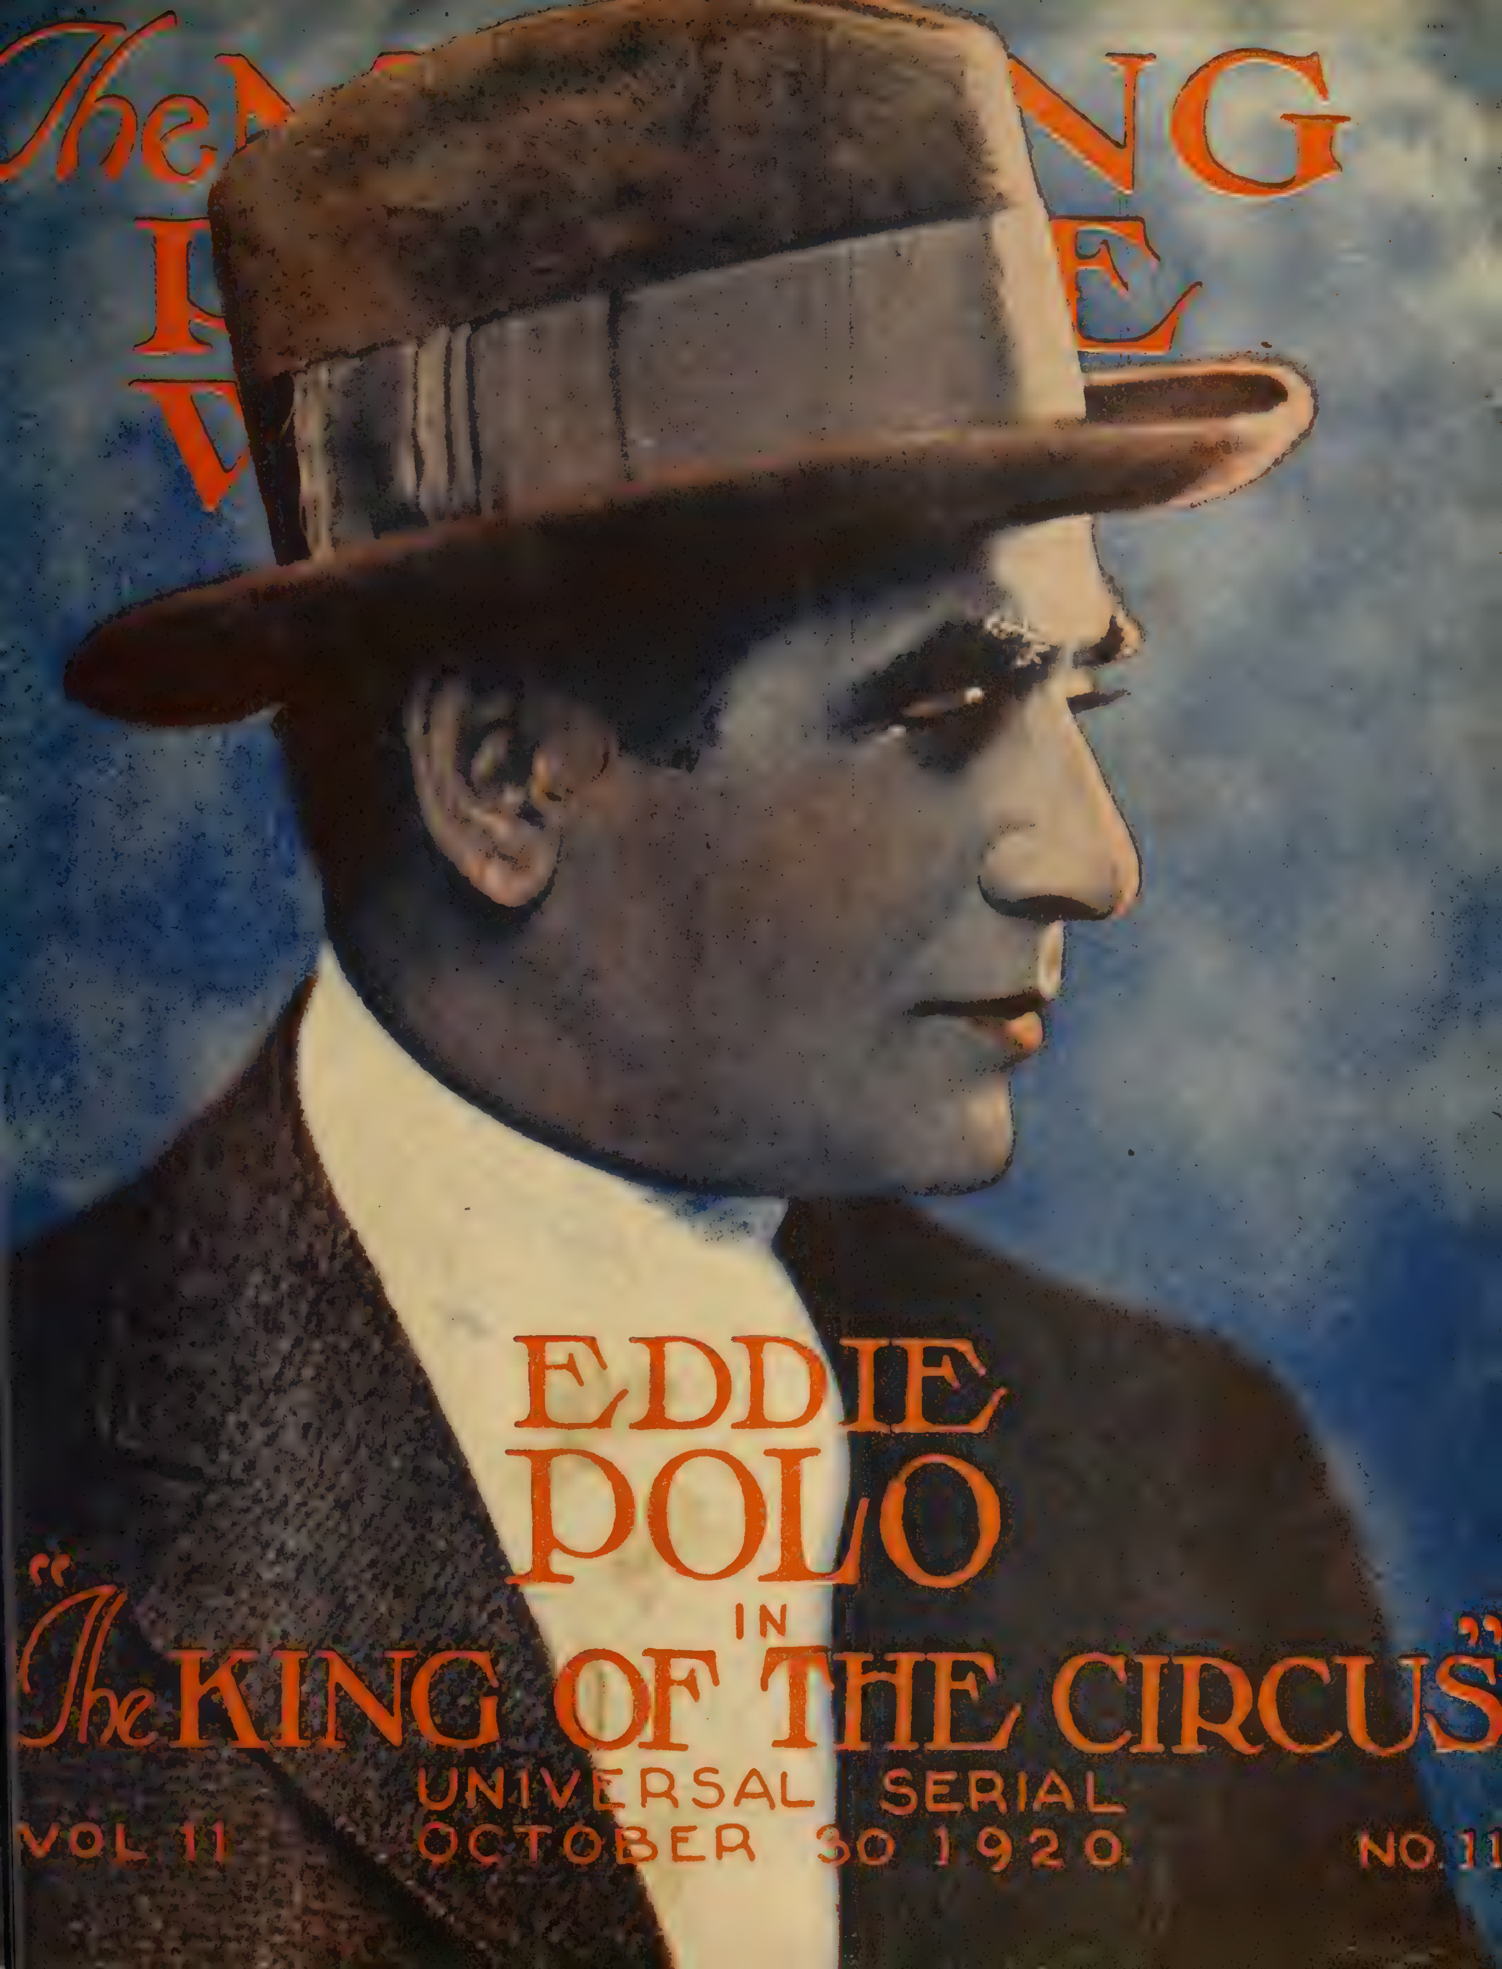
Directed by Norman Dawn
From "Marama", by Ralph Stock

He's going to make you hate him even if it takes a million dollars of our money to do it!

VON STROHEIM—AGAIN!

"FOOLISH WIVES"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL



The M NG
P E
W

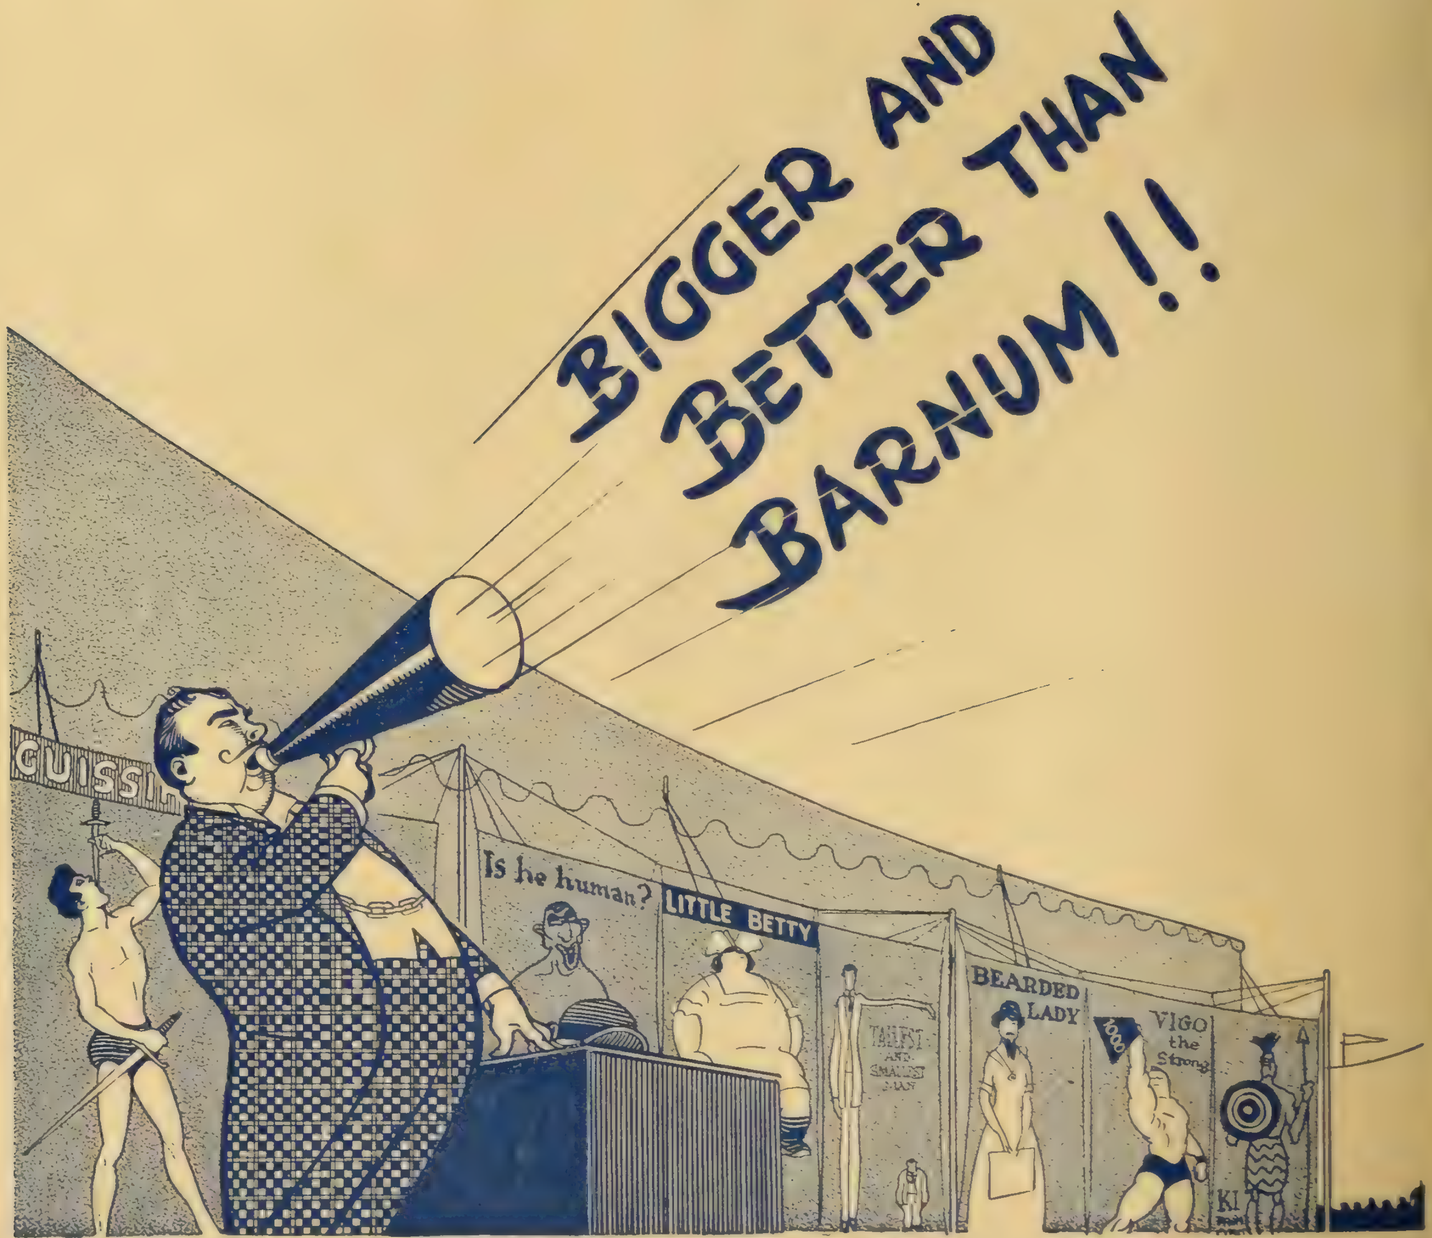
EDDIE POLO

IN

"The KING OF THE CIRCUS"

UNIVERSAL SERIAL

VOL. 11 OCTOBER 30 1920 NO. 11



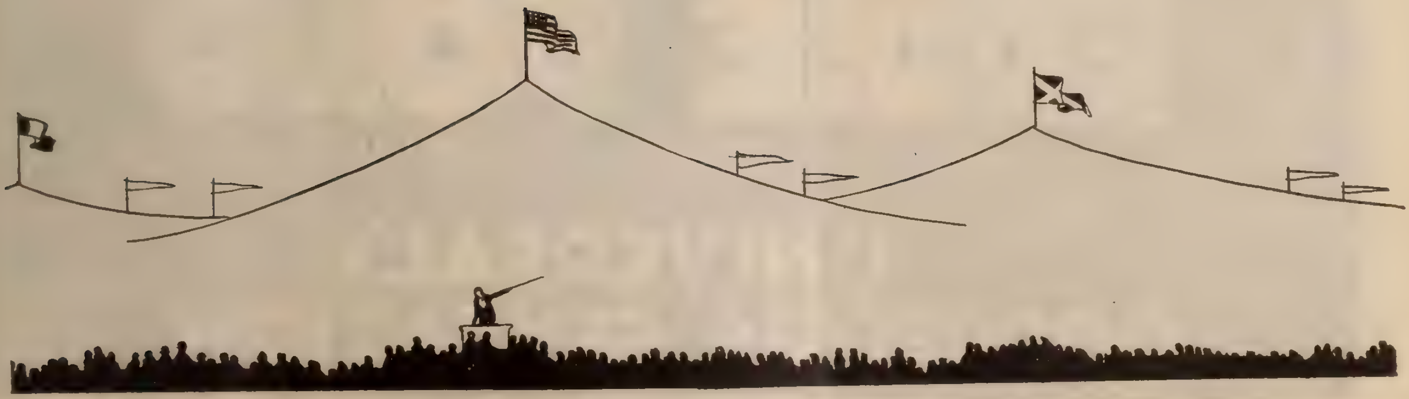
BIGGER AND BETTER THAN BARNUM !!
GUISSI
Is he human?
LITTLE BETTY
TALLEST AND SMALLEST MAN
BEARDED LADY
1000
VIGO the Strong
KI

EDDIE POLO

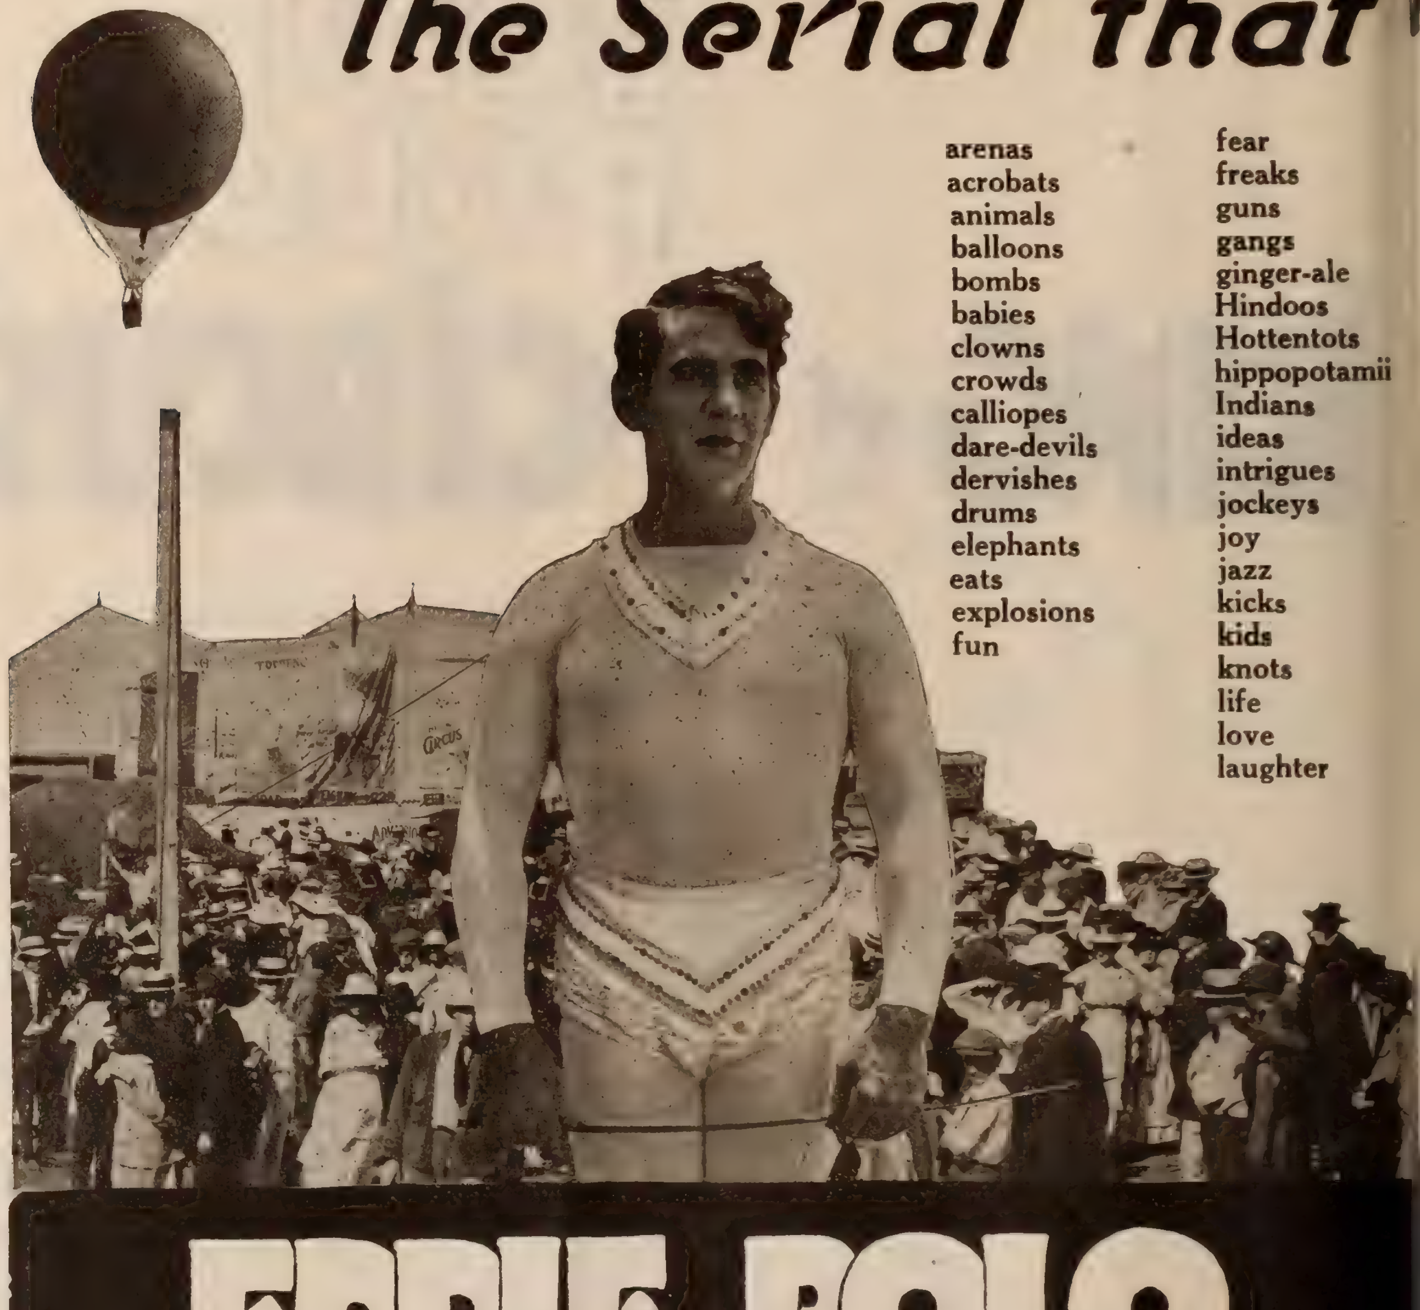
IN

"KING of the CIRCUS"

UNIVERSAL takes great satisfaction in being able to offer the supreme serial for picture showmen — Eddie Polo, in "King of the Circus." Here, gentlemen, is indeed a chapter-play that will prove a source of profit for you. For, first of all, the serial depends for its pull not only on the best known puller in the whole show business (the circus), but it gives you the Peerless Polo in such thrilling action and mystery as seldom before have been screened—and it gives you eighteen weeks of it! That sounds as if it might be worth looking into, doesn't it? Read the following pages and learn more about this newest sensation.



The Serial that



arenas
acrobats animals balloons bombs babies
clowns crowds calliopes dare-devils dervishes drums elephants eats explosions
fun fear freaks guns gangs ginger-ale Hindoos

Hottentots hippopotamii Indians ideas intrigues jockeys
joy jazz kicks kids knots life love laughter

EDDIE POLO

The World's Serial Idol

IN

UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SENSATION

has Everything monkeys men movement nets nooses nights olios overalls ordeals perils peanuts puzzles quivers questions quarrels rides ropes rivers smiles stunts sawdust tumblers tricks thrilss uniforms umbrellas ukeleles vandals ventures vibrations women whiskers water youth yells yelps zebras zebus zizzes.

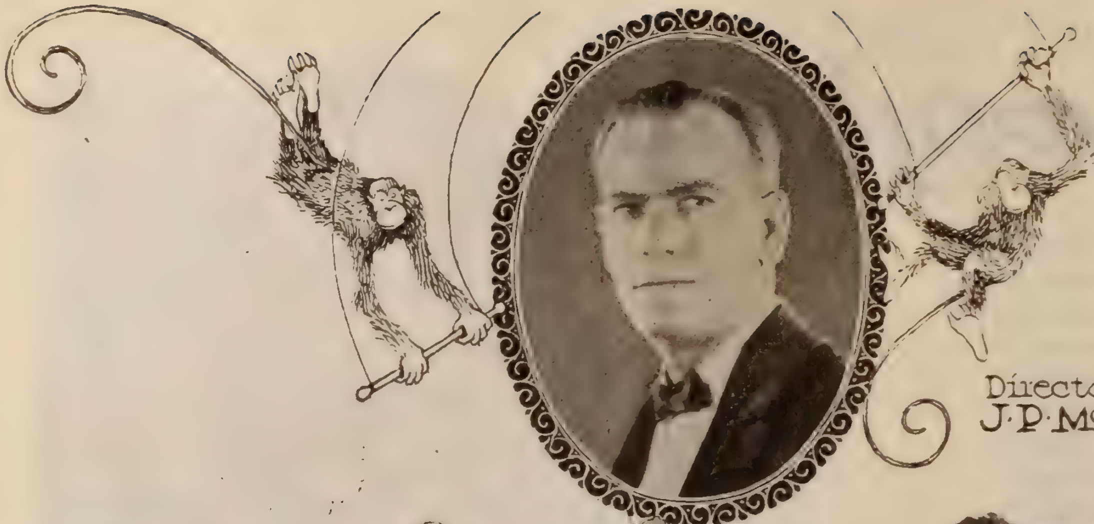
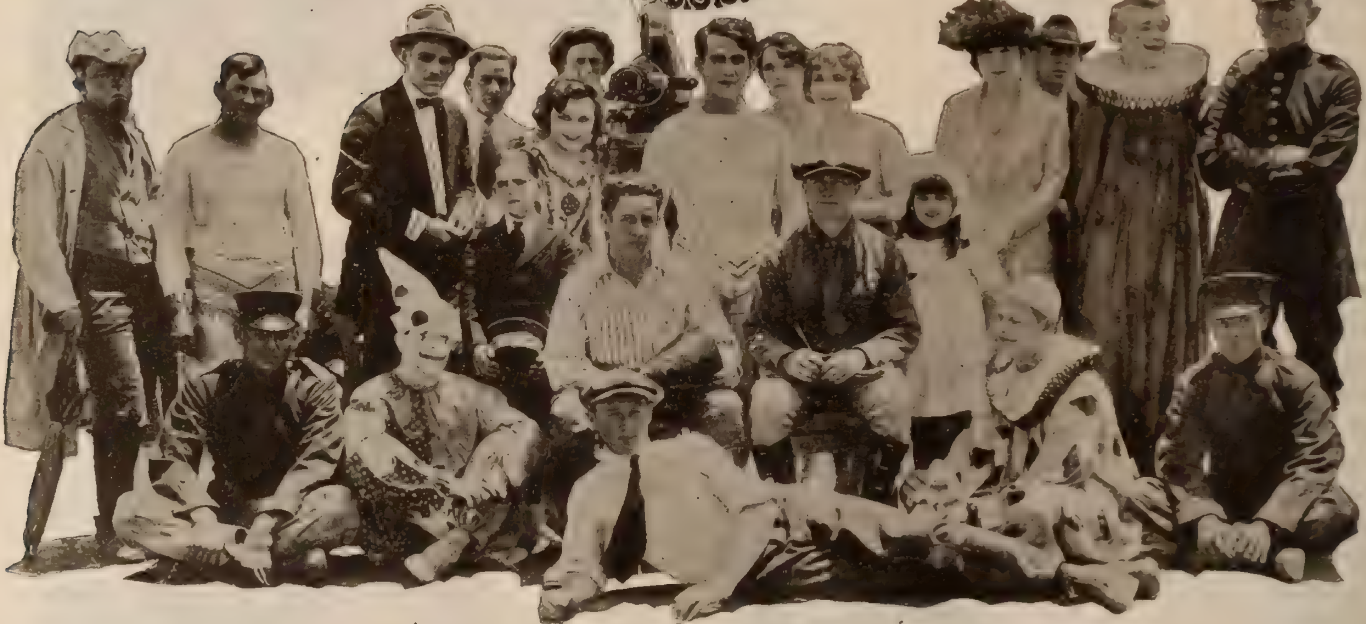
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Directed by J.P. McGOWAN



Director
J·P·McGOWAN



Some of the Company

HERE you see Director J. P. McGowan and a few members of the cast supporting Eddie Polo. McGowan's record at serial-making speaks for itself, and you can bank on his judgement in selecting just the right man, woman or child for any given part. In this amazing serial he has assembled a group of crackerjacks.

EVERY player in this thrilling serial spectacle is a specialist. This aids the whole immeasurably, inasmuch as whole troupes of trained acrobats were needed at times. McGowan got them—got everything he needed, in fact—and the result is worth every bit of care the selection required.

"This is the REAL CIRCUS STUFF —Believe me, I know!"

—Eddie Polo

"THERE'S no fake about the circus stuff in 'King of the Circus,' says Eddie Polo. "Believe me, I know what I'm talking about, for the smell of the sawdust is the same to me as the clang of a gong to a fire-horse—it makes me feel right at home.

"You probably have heard that a circus performer has traditions that live with him even after he quits the circus life. One of the things that sticks is a love of the world he once lived in. And you can bet that no real circus performer is ever going to allow anything to be shown as a circus unless it is a circus.

"And that's me all over, boys. You can take my word for it that every bit of action behind the scenes as well as the stuff out under the Big Top is the real goods—all wool and a yard wide."

"Here they are!"

See The Dauntless
Dashing
Dare-Devils
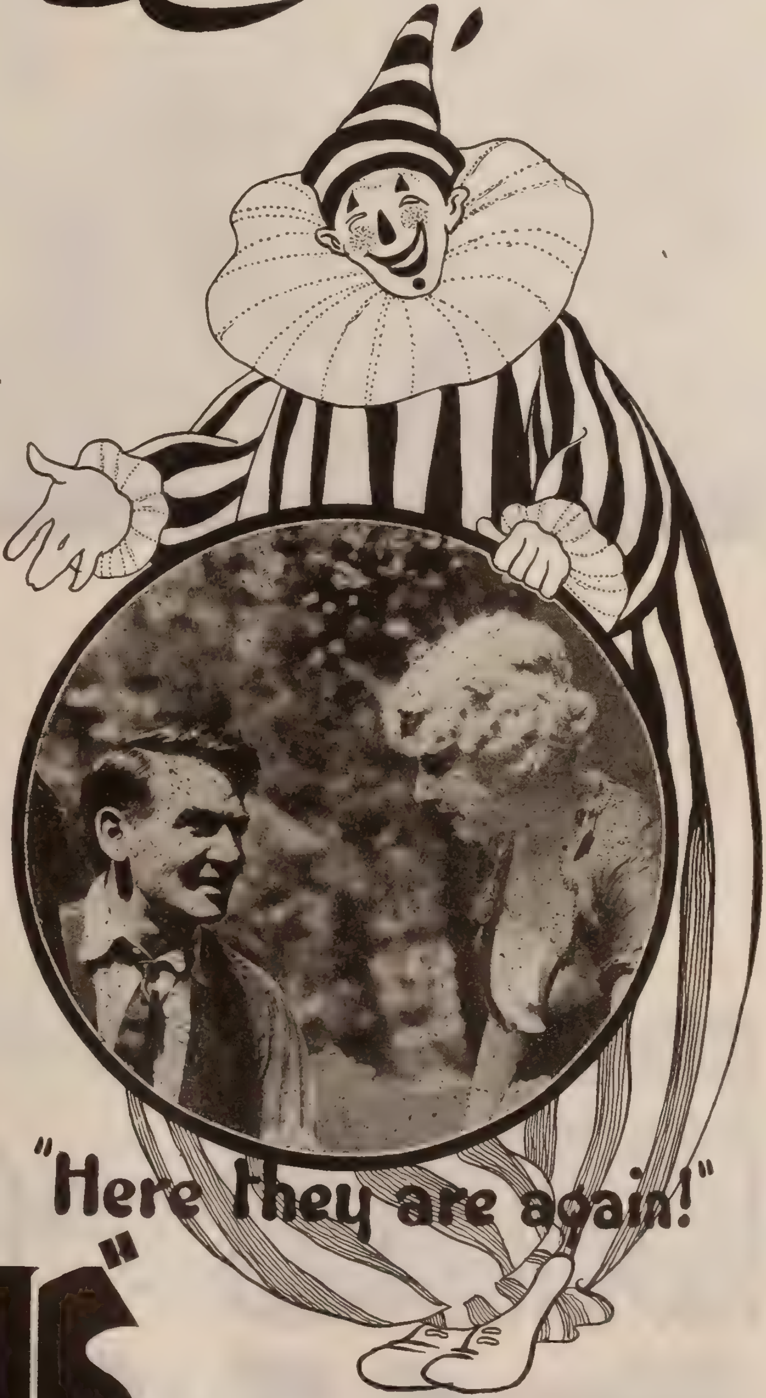
In Their
Sweeping
Swing
ForLife!

"There they go!"

e-e-e-!

THIS is just a sample of the thousand and one speedy thrills in this gorgeous serial spectacle. But you ought to see it on the screen! Whe-e-e-e! — Wow! — Whoop-e-e-e! Oh, Boy, will the kids and the grownups eat up this sort of action and the circus stuff that goes with it? Oh, no—Barnum was all wrong—folks just stayed away from his show and he didn't make a nickel, did he? Oh, no! And here's the chance for you to be a Barnum for yourself—bring a circus to your town and keep it there for eighteen weeks.



"Here they are again!"

EDDIE POLO in "KING OF THE CIRCUS"

BARE-FIST BATTLES WITH BEASTS AND MEN

Eddie Polo is a veritable gyroscope of whirling action and steady balance. His utter fearlessness as shown in his many screen combats make folks eager to see him again and again.

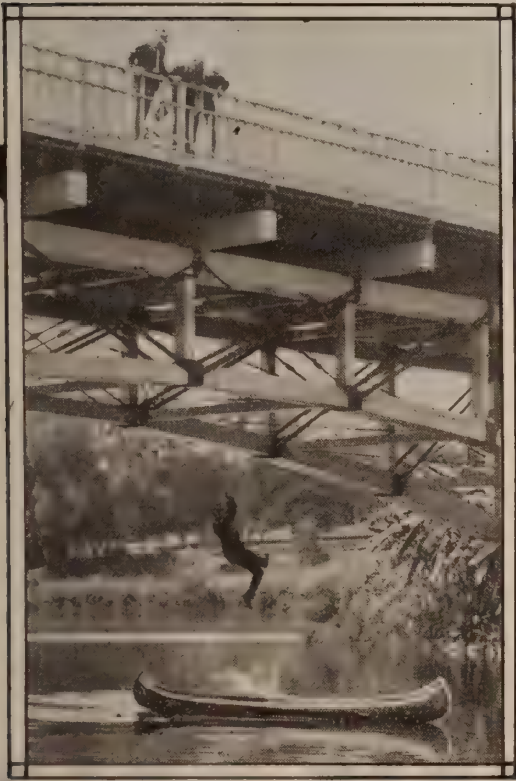
You can't get away from the evidence of photographs, and the photographs used in illustrating this and the other pages were taken right during the filming of this cyclonic chapter-play. Do the stills look as if there were any action in the film? We'll say so—and so will you and the packed houses that this will bring.

EDDIE POLO

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

BREAKNECK LEAPS FROM CLIFFS AND BRIDGES

Courage always is admired. But it takes more than mere courage to win the world-wide popularity that the dauntless Eddie Polo enjoys. There are lots of Polo fans in your town—satisfy them.



When a serial is chock full of such stuff as is shown here, that fact of itself makes it worth booking. But besides having a proved serial star and its full quota of action, thrills and mystery, this newest wonder has circus stuff in it that alone is worth the price of admission—and that's a promise you can safely make to your patrons.

EDDIE POLO

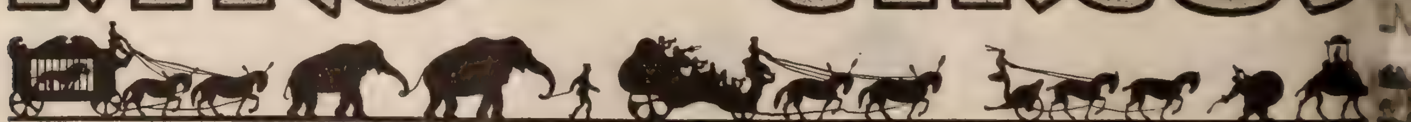
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

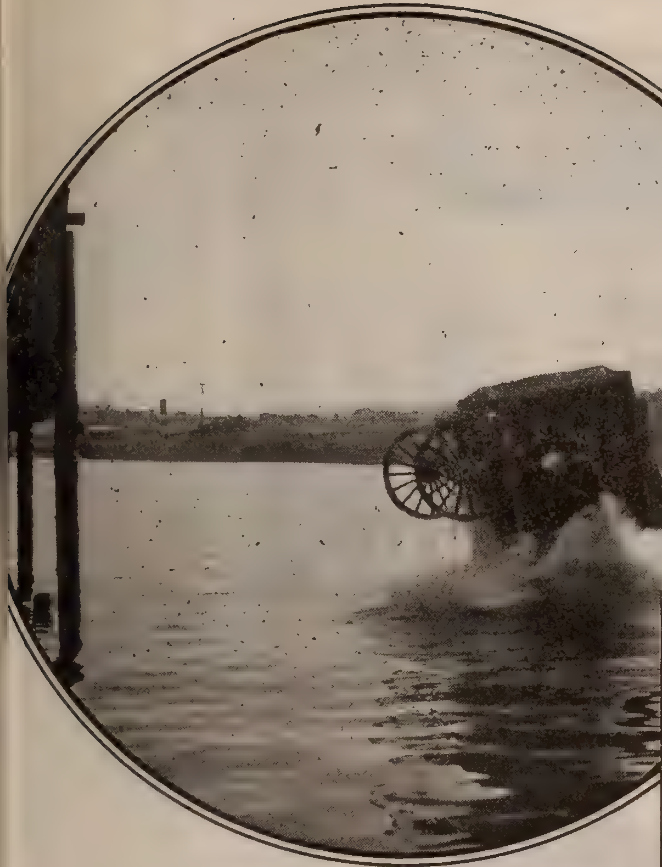
THRILLS! PERILS! STUNTS!

Such exciting occurrences as automobile smashes and suspensions on cables high above city streets are only incidents in this speedy serial sensation. And you'll always find the Peerless Polo the centre of the exciting doings. He's the dare-devil star who never needs a double.

EDDIE POLO

"KING OF THE CIRCU



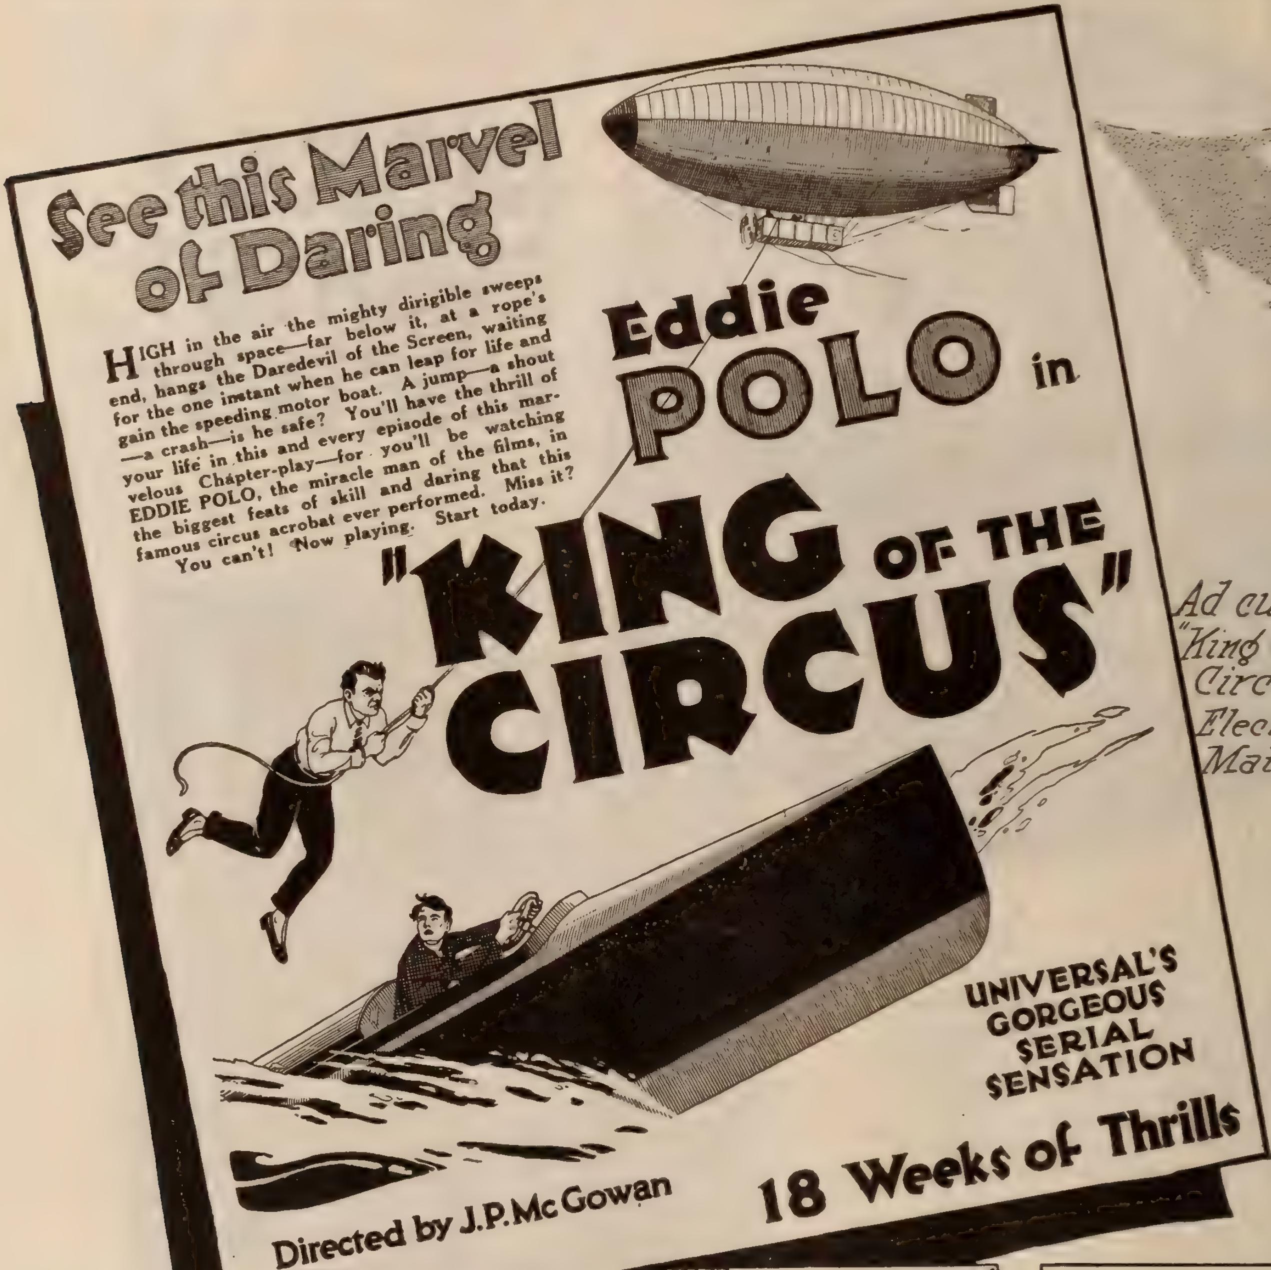


RISKS! RUSHES! RESCUES!

If there's anything that thrills kids from six to sixty it's excitement of the sort they would like to participate in themselves. This serial gives them a triple dose of every sort of healthy excitement that the master minds of the serial world could devise.

EDDIE POLO

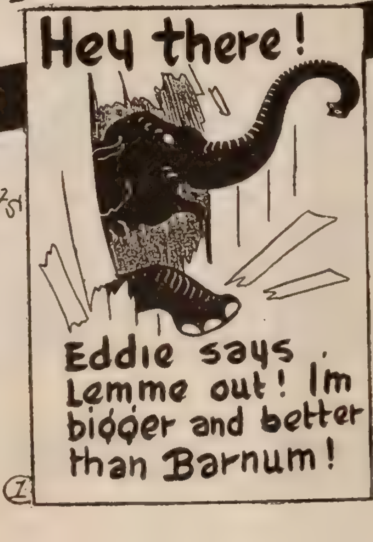
KING OF THE CIRCUS"



See this Marvel of Daring
Eddie POLO in
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION
18 Weeks of Thrills
Directed by J.P.McGowan

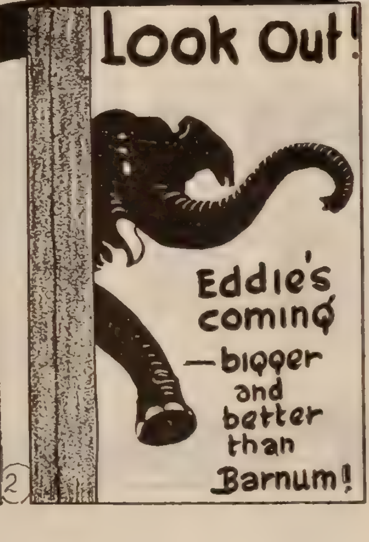
HIGH in the air the mighty dirigible sweeps through space—far below it, at a rope's end, hangs the Daredevil of the Screen, waiting for the one instant when he can leap for life and gain the speeding motor boat. A jump—a shout—a crash—is he safe? You'll have the thrill of your life in this and every episode of this marvelous Chapter-play—for you'll be watching EDDIE POLO, the miracle man of the films, in the biggest feats of skill and daring that this famous circus acrobat ever performed. Miss it? You can't! Now playing. Start today.

Ad cut No.7
"King of the Circus"
Electro $1.35
Mat 25¢



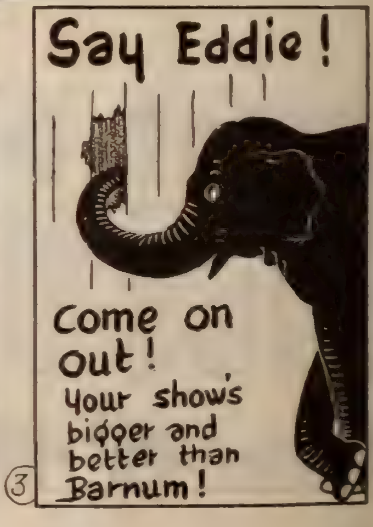
Hey there!
Eddie says Lemme out! I'm bigger and better than Barnum!

(1)



Look Out!
Eddie's coming—bigger and better than Barnum!

(2)



Say Eddie!
Come on out! Your show's bigger and better than Barnum!

(3)

Teaser Ad cuts
No 1,2,3,4,5,6
Electro 25¢
Mat 10¢

Ad cut No.4
"King of the Circus"
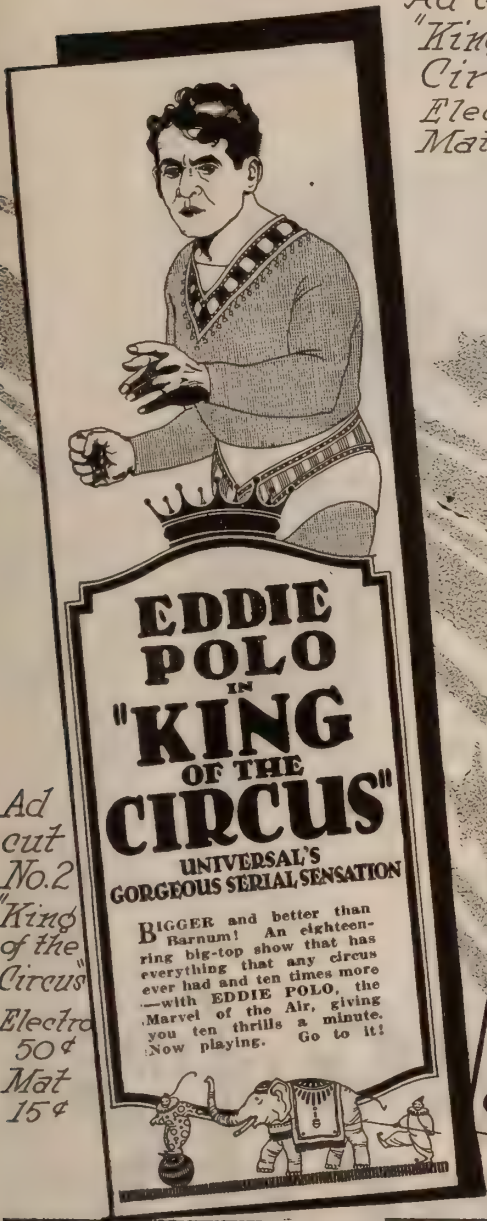
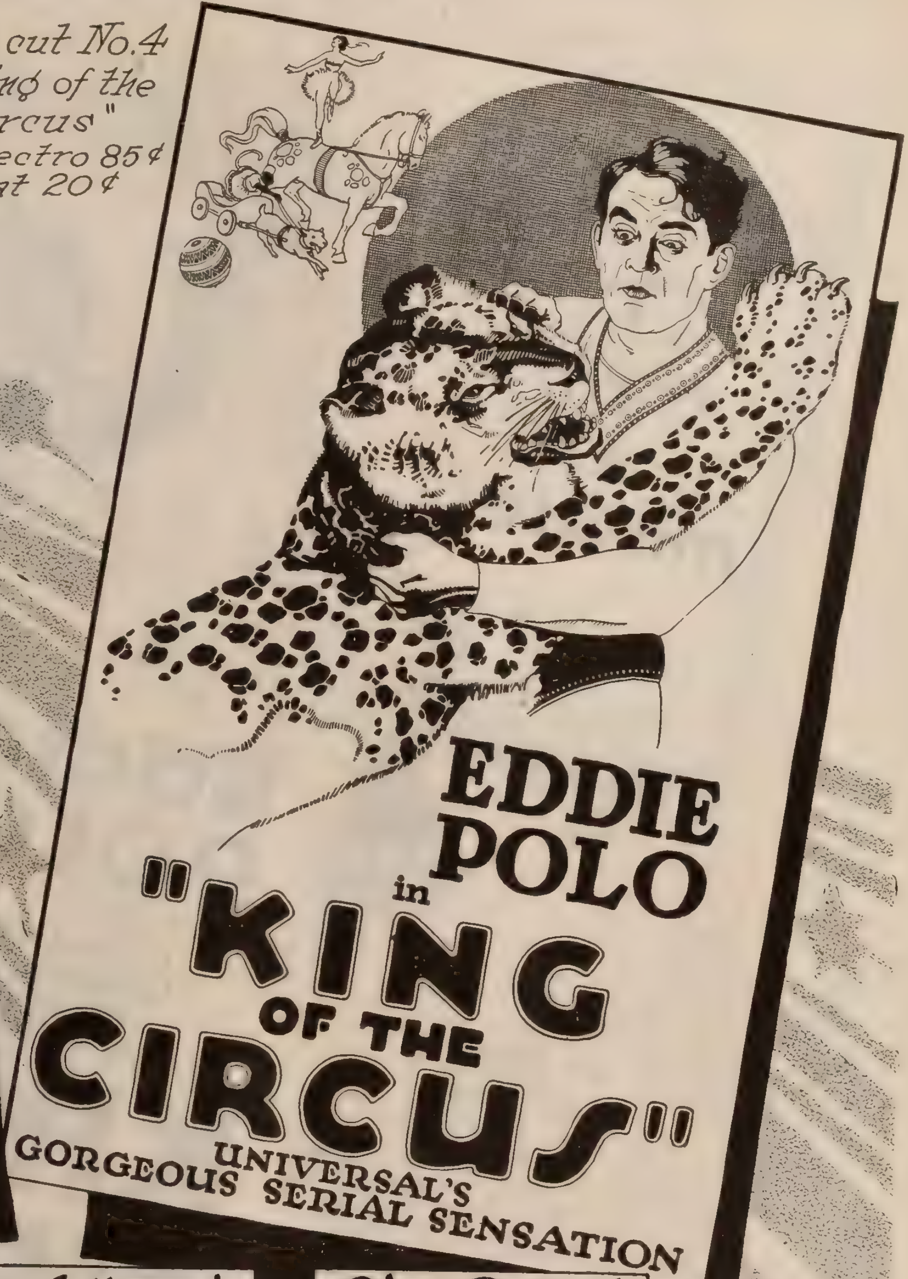
Electro 85¢
Mat 20¢

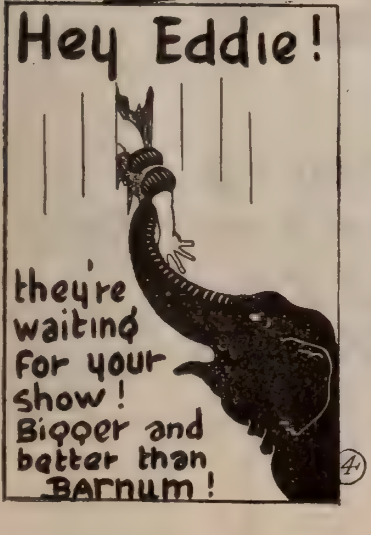


EDDIE
POLO
IN
"KING
OF THE
CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL'S
GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION
BIGGER and better than Barnum! An eighteen-ring big-top show that has everything that any circus ever had and ten times more—with EDDIE POLO, the Marvel of the Air, giving you ten thrills a minute. Now playing. Go to it!

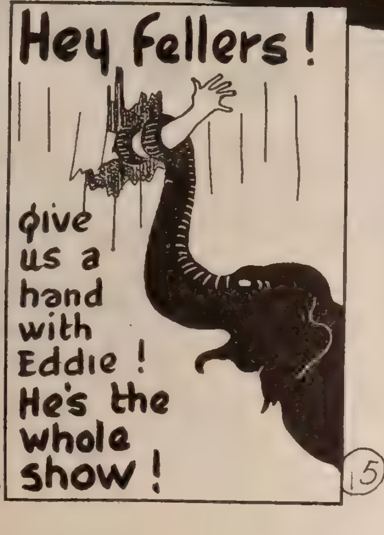
Ad cut No.2
"King of the Circus"
Electro 50¢
Mat 15¢



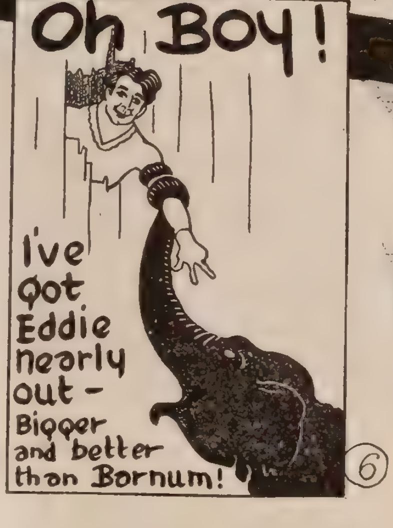
EDDIE
POLO
in
"KING
OF THE
CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL'S
GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION



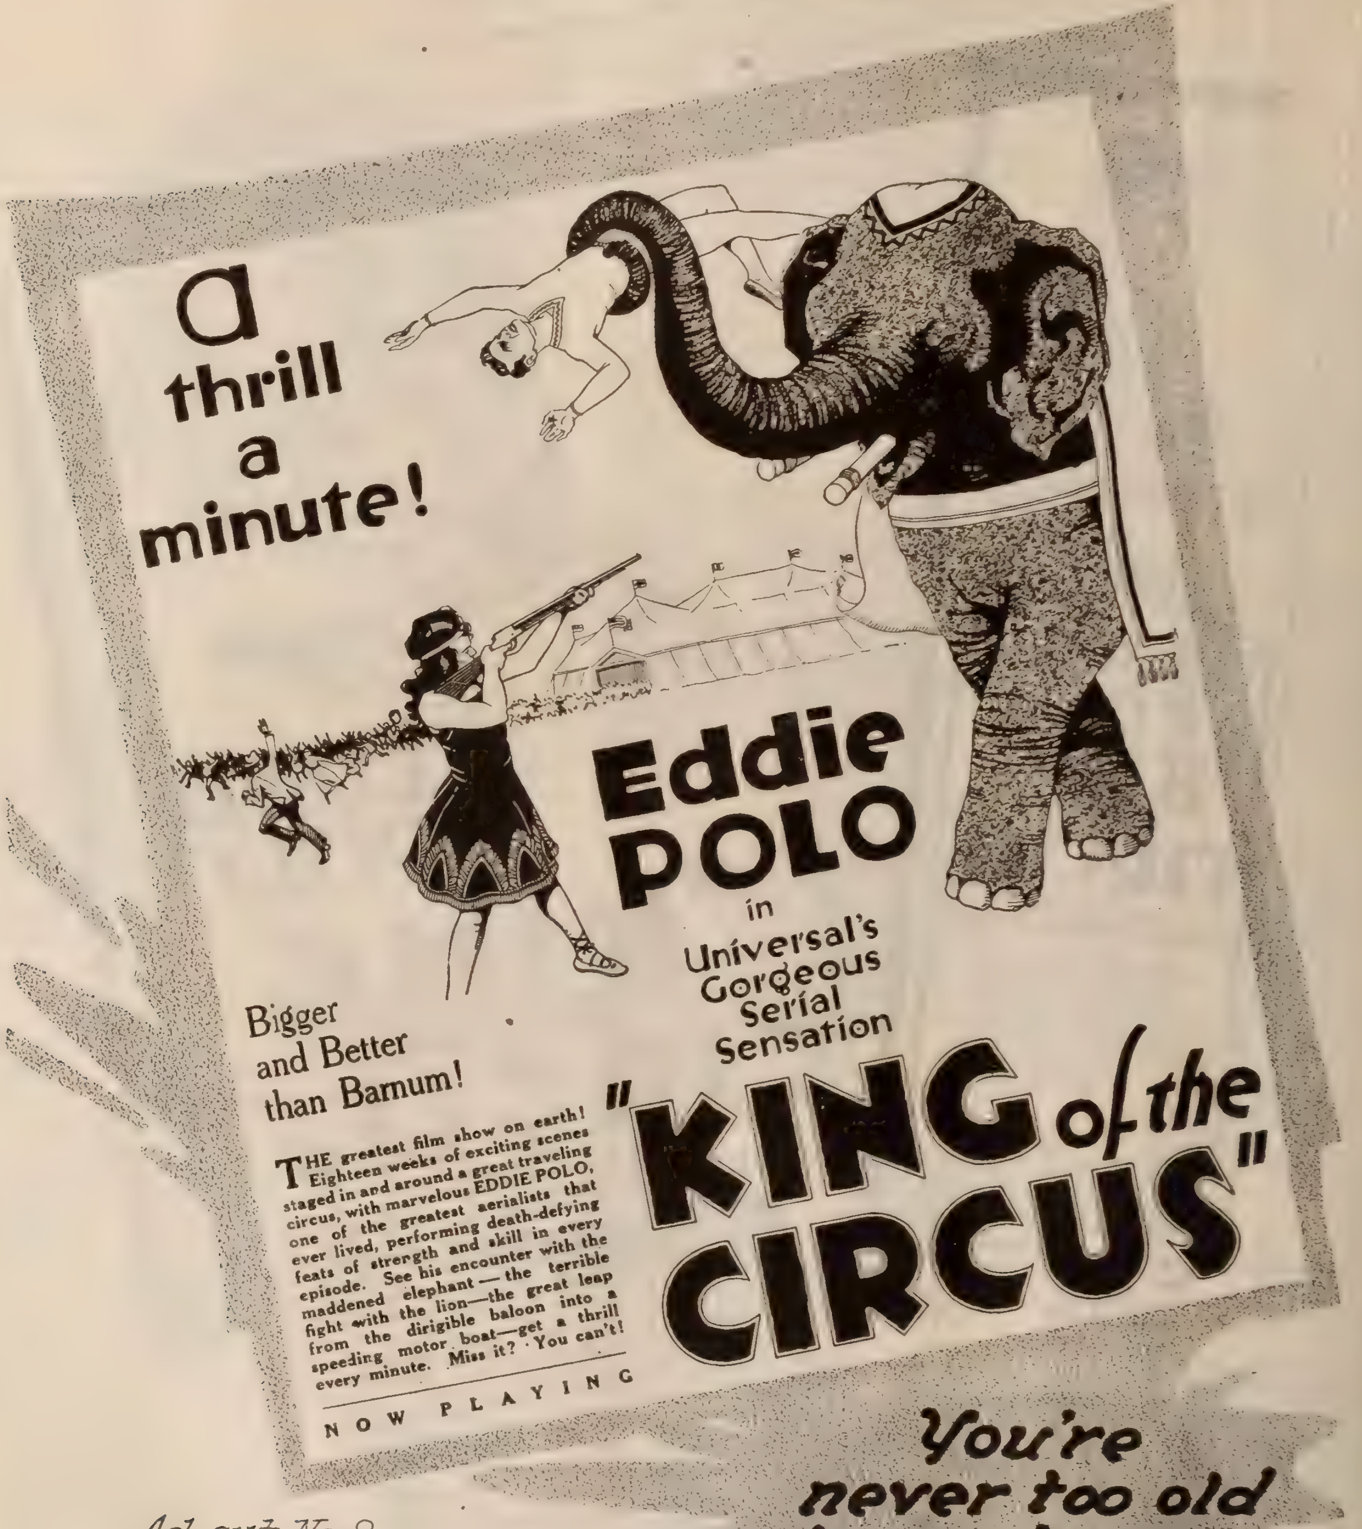
Hey Eddie!
they're waiting for your show! Bigger and better than Barnum!
4



Hey Fellers!
give us a hand with Eddie! He's the whole show!
5



Oh Boy!
I've got Eddie nearly out - Bigger and better than Barnum!
6



a thrill a minute!

Eddie POLO in Universal's Gorgeous Serial Sensation

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Bigger and Better than Barnum!

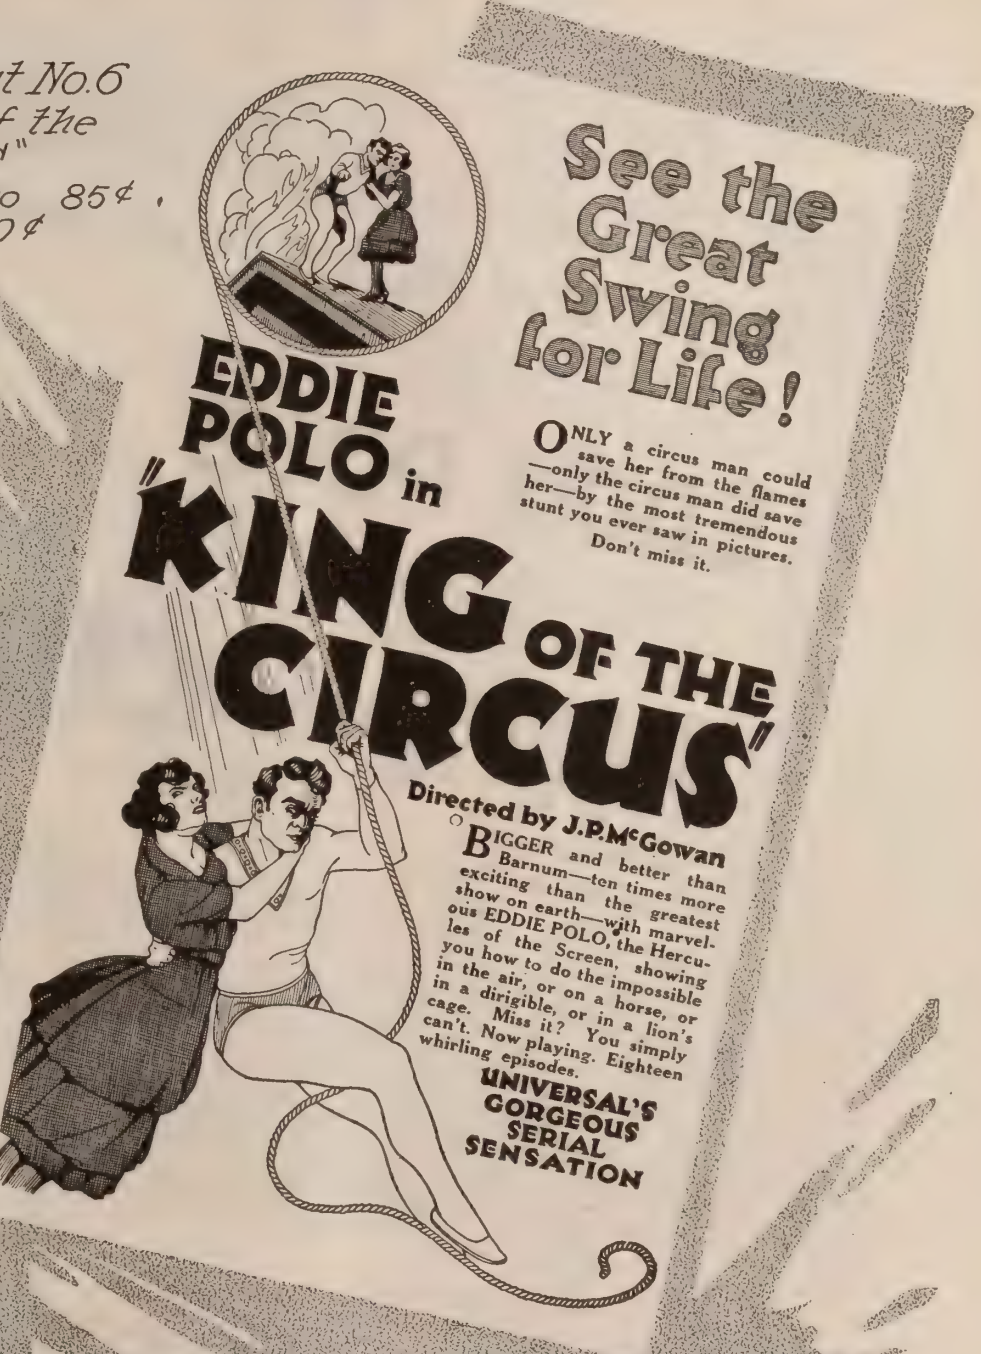
THE greatest film show on earth! Eighteen weeks of exciting scenes staged in and around a great traveling circus, with marvelous EDDIE POLO, one of the greatest aerialists that ever lived, performing death-defying feats of strength and skill in every episode. See his encounter with the terrible maddened elephant — the terrible fight with the lion—the great leap from the dirigible baloon into a speeding motor boat—get a thrill every minute. Miss it? You can't!

NOW PLAYING

You're never too old to go to a Circus!

Ad cut No. 8
"King of the Circus"
Electro $1.35
Mat 25¢

Ad cut No.6
"King of the Circus"
Electro 85¢ ,
Mat 20¢



See the Great Swing for Life!

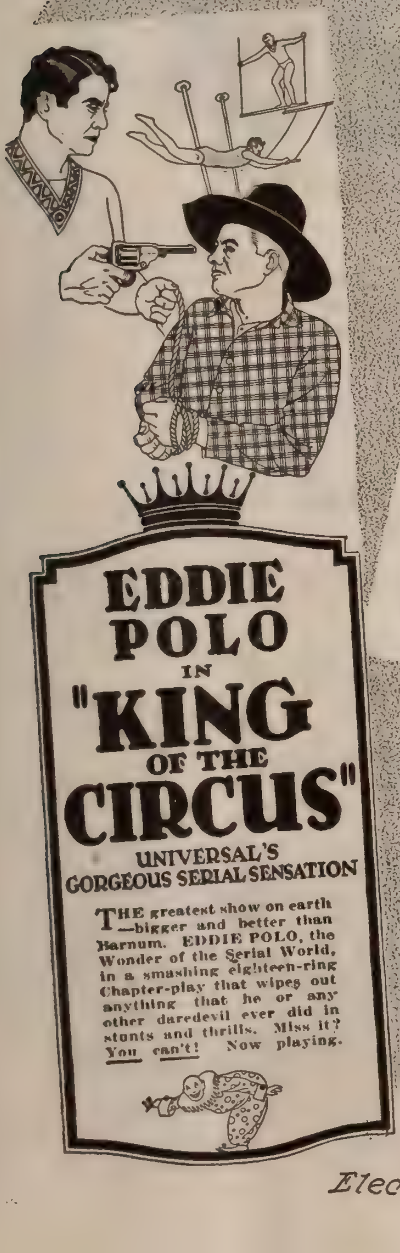
ONLY a circus man could save her from the flames—only the circus man did save her—by the most tremendous stunt you ever saw in pictures. Don't miss it.

EDDIE POLO in "KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Directed by J.P.McGowan

BIGGER and better than Barnum—ten times more exciting than the greatest show on earth—with marvelous EDDIE POLO, the Hercules of the Screen, showing you how to do the impossible in the air, or on a horse, or in a dirigible, or in a lion's cage. Miss it? You simply can't. Now playing. Eighteen whirling episodes.

UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION



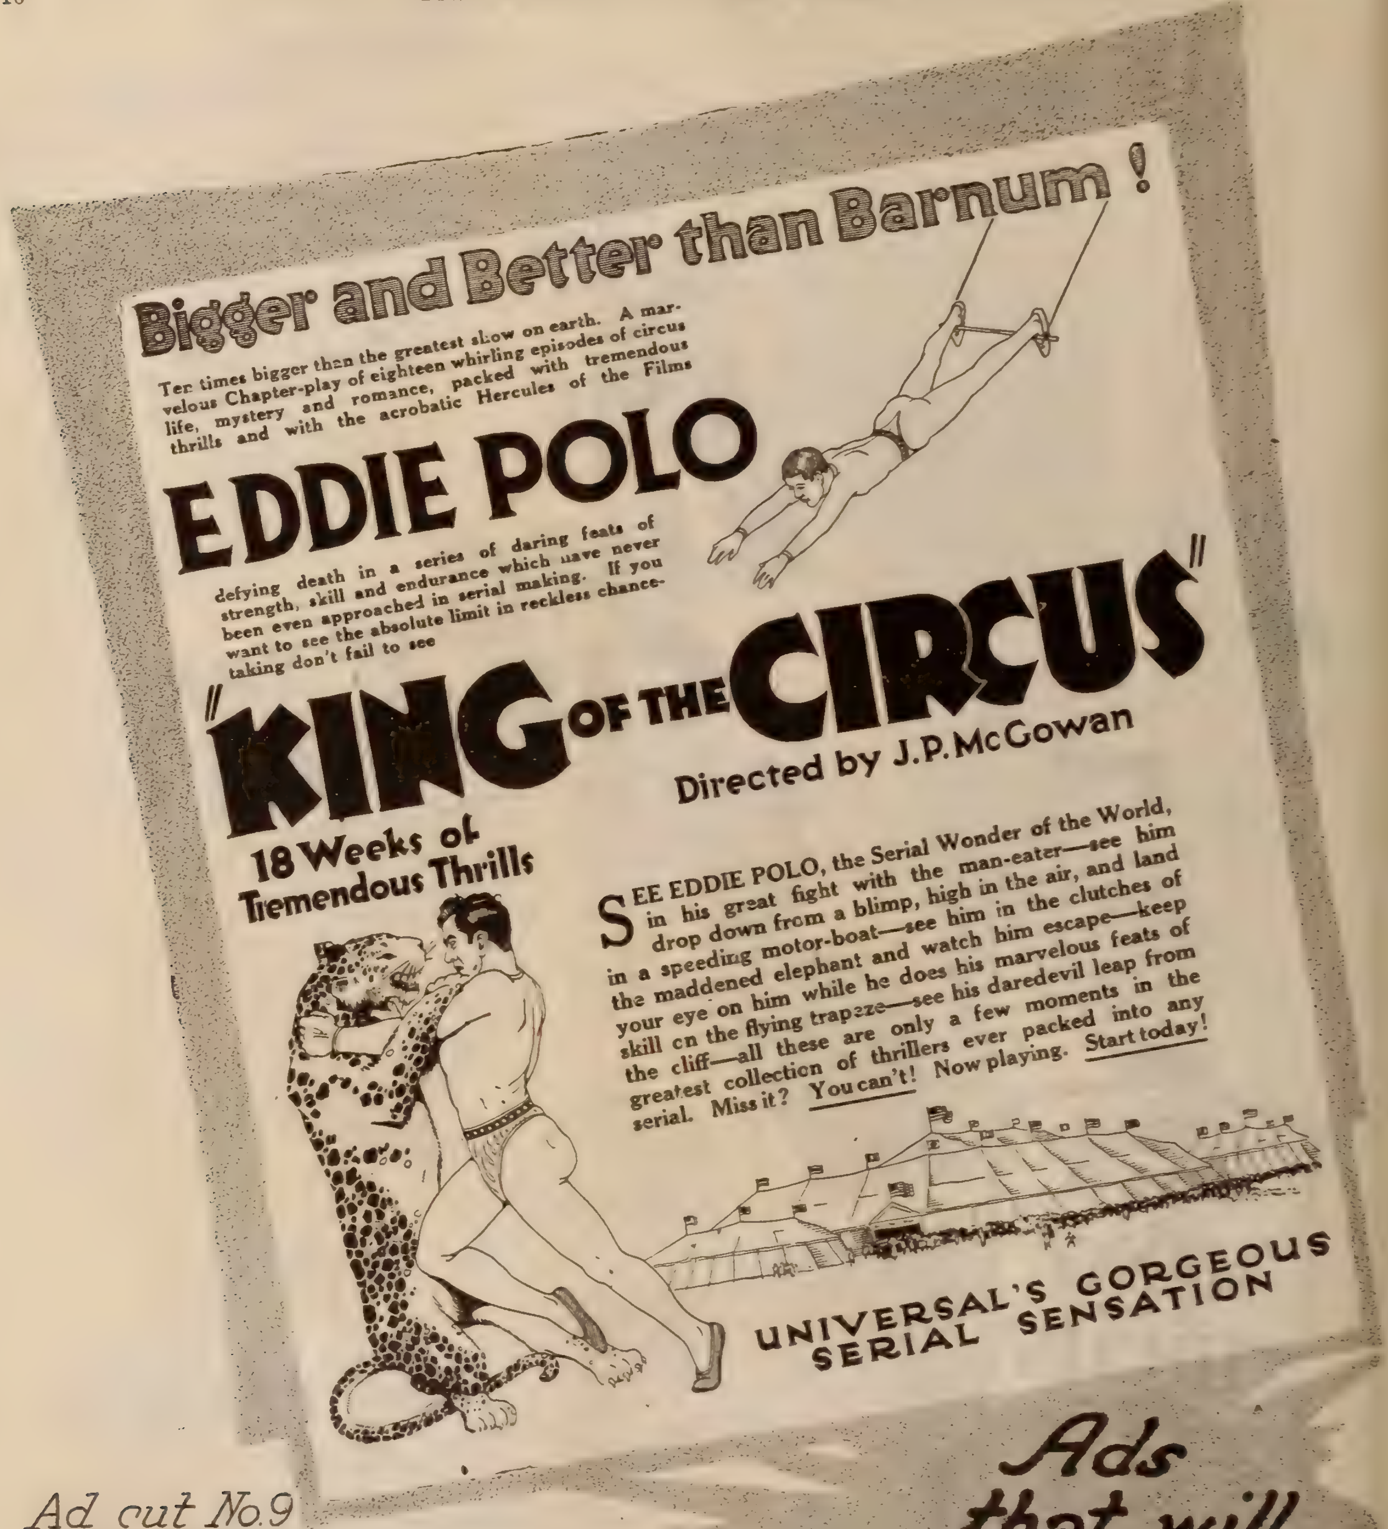
EDDIE POLO IN "KING OF THE CIRCUS"

UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION

THE greatest show on earth—bigger and better than Barnum. EDDIE POLO, the Wonder of the Serial World, in a smashing eighteen-ring Chapter-play that wipes out anything that he or any other daredevil ever did in stunts and thrills. Miss it? You can't! Now playing.

"Ad cut No.3
King of the Circus"
Electro 50¢ Mat 15¢

Use these Ads. They'll give your B.O. something to add up.



Bigger and Better than Barnum!

Ten times bigger than the greatest show on earth. A marvelous Chapter-play of eighteen whirling episodes of circus life, mystery and romance, packed with tremendous thrills and with the acrobatic Hercules of the Films defying death in a series of daring feats of strength, skill and endurance which have never been even approached in serial making. If you want to see the absolute limit in reckless chance-taking don't fail to see

EDDIE POLO

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGowan

18 Weeks of Tremendous Thrills

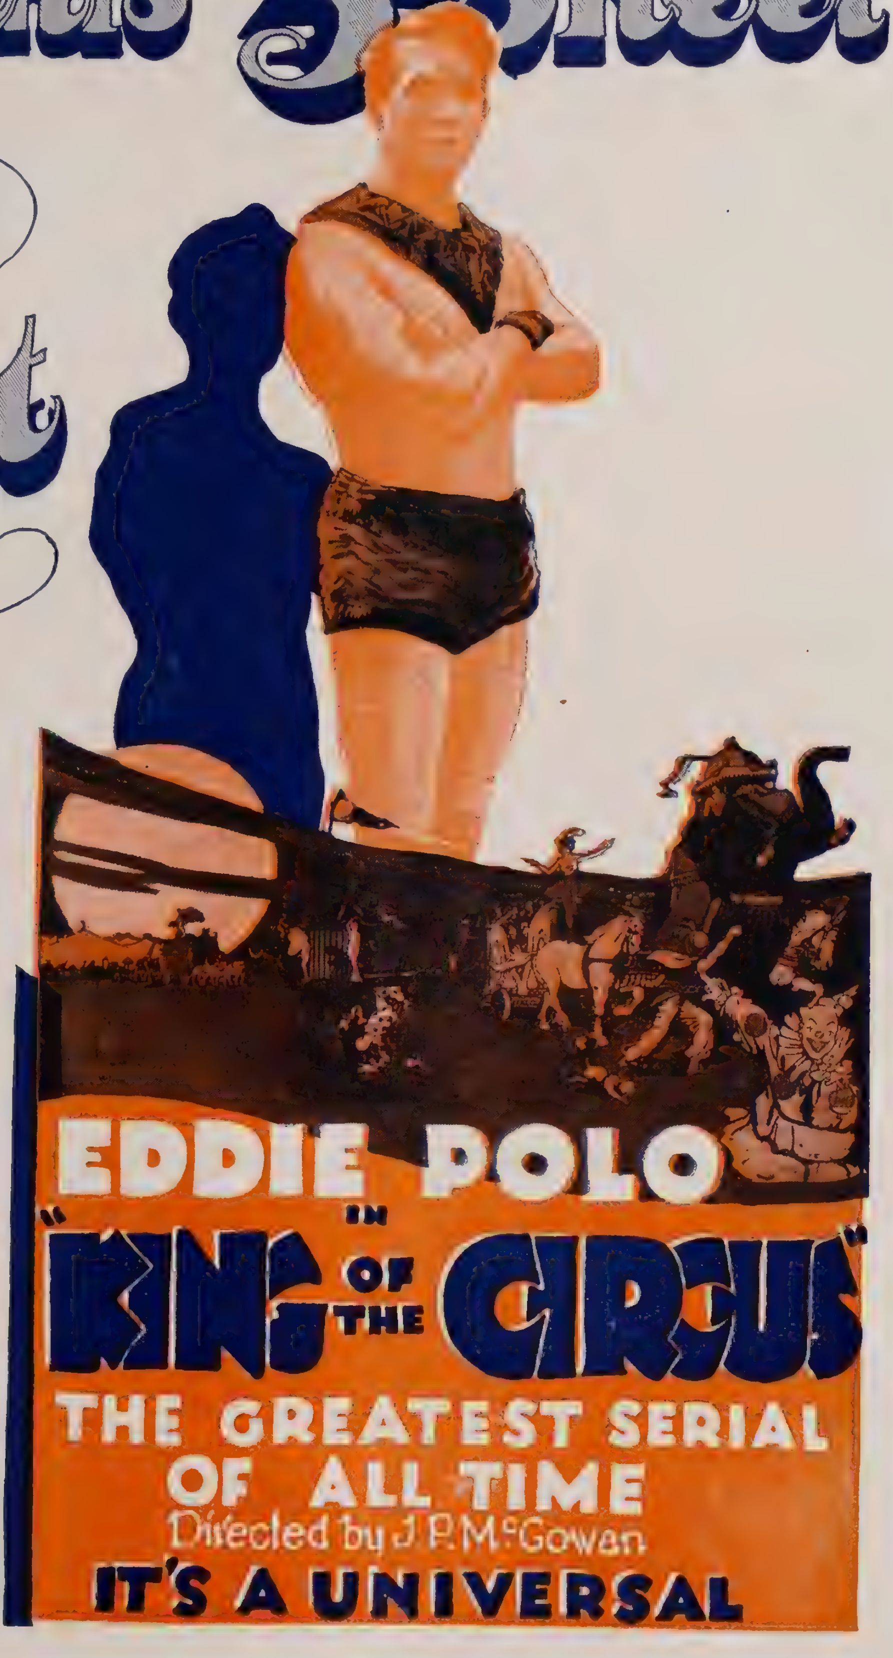
SEE EDDIE POLO, the Serial Wonder of the World, in his great fight with the man-eater—see him drop down from a blimp, high in the air, and land in a speeding motor-boat—see him in the clutches of the maddened elephant and watch him escape—keep your eye on him while he does his marvelous feats of skill on the flying trapeze—see his daredevil leap from the cliff—all these are only a few moments in the greatest collection of thrillers ever packed into any serial. Miss it? You can't! Now playing. Start today!

UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION

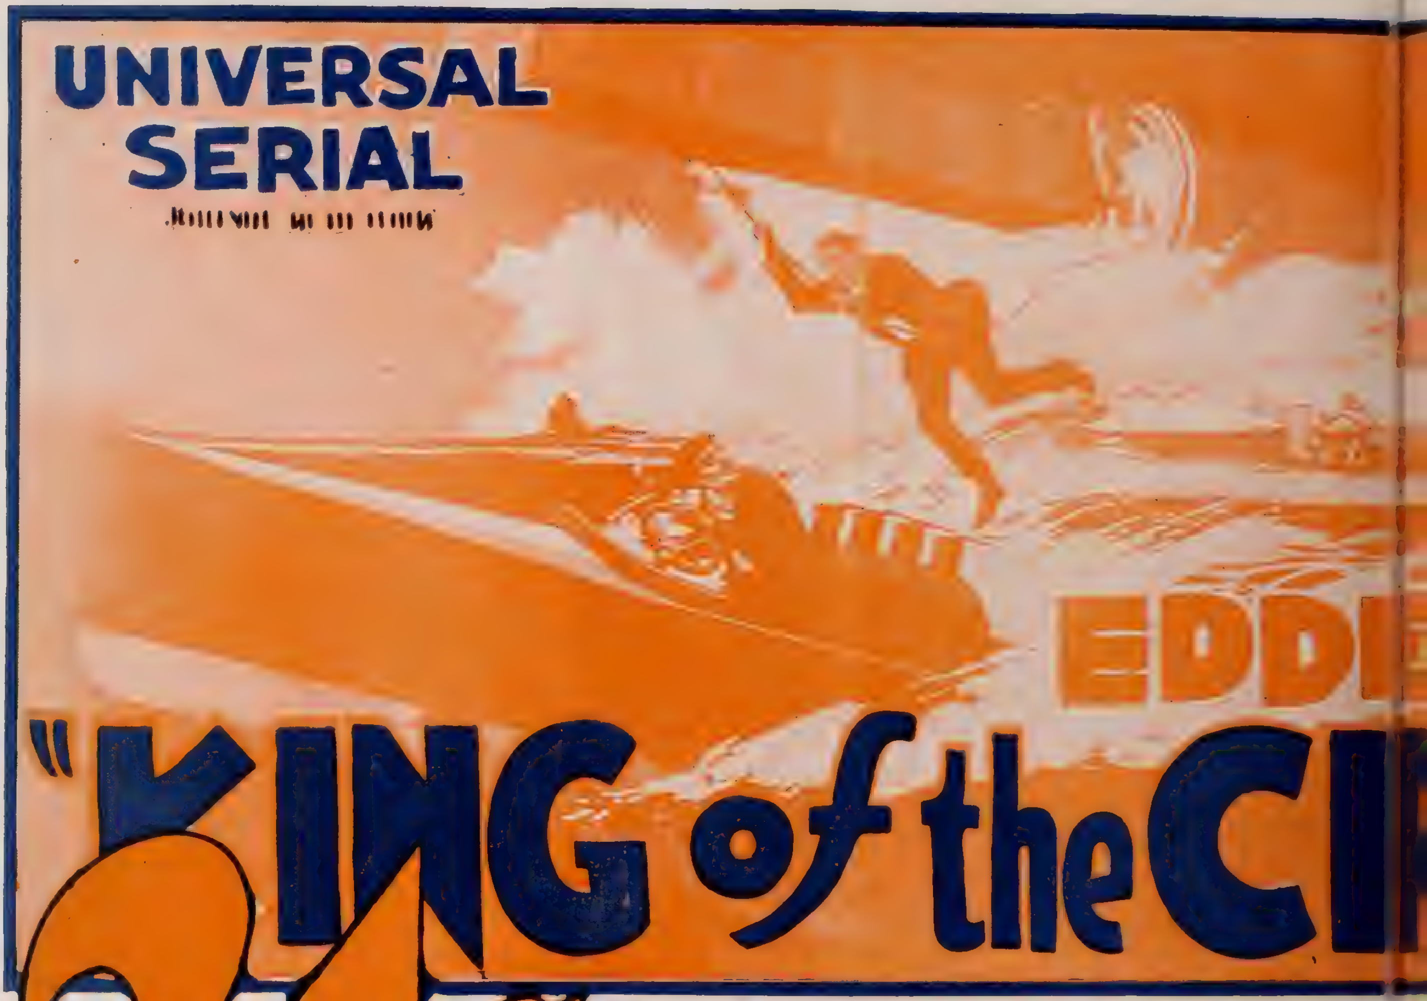
Ad cut No. 9
"King of the Circus"
Electro $1.35 Mat 25¢

Ads that will Dominate

Use this 3-Sheet for your Cut-Out



EDDIE POLO
IN
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"
THE GREATEST SERIAL OF ALL TIME
Directed by J. P. McGowan
IT'S A UNIVERSAL



UNIVERSAL
SERIAL
EDDI
"KING of the CI

24 Sheet

E. POLO IN RCUS"

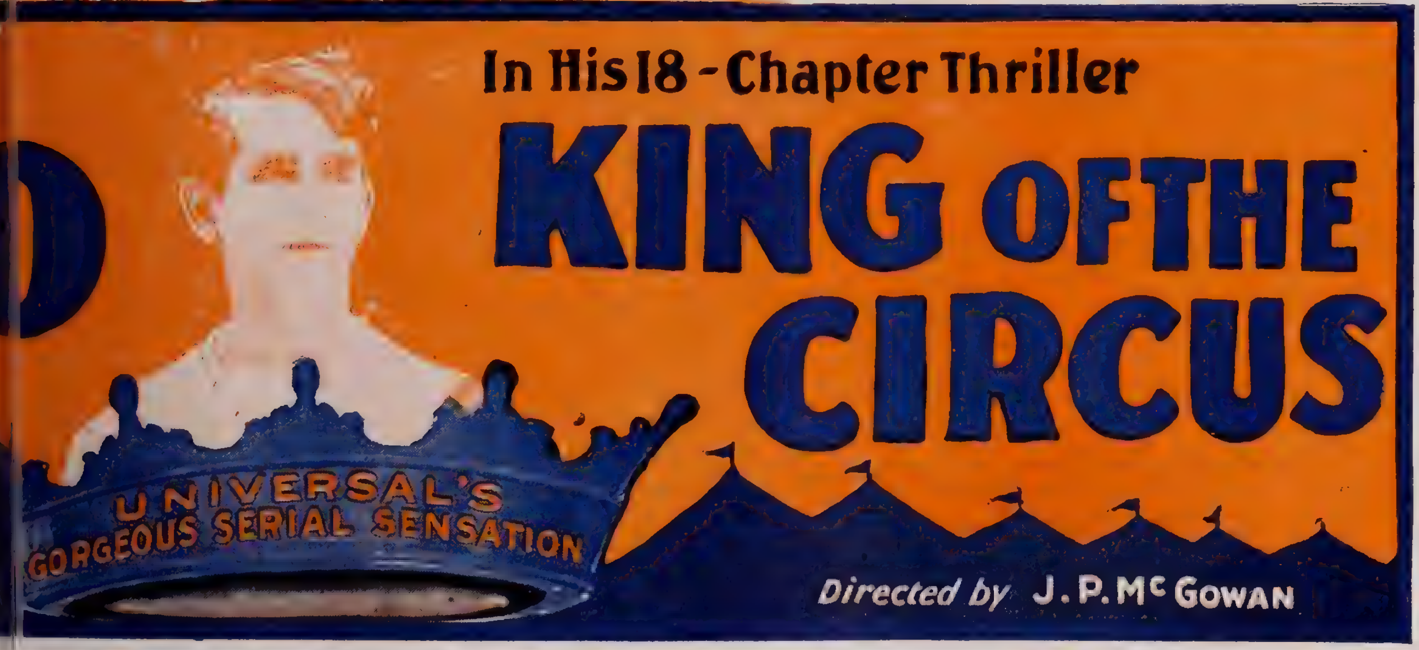
The Banner



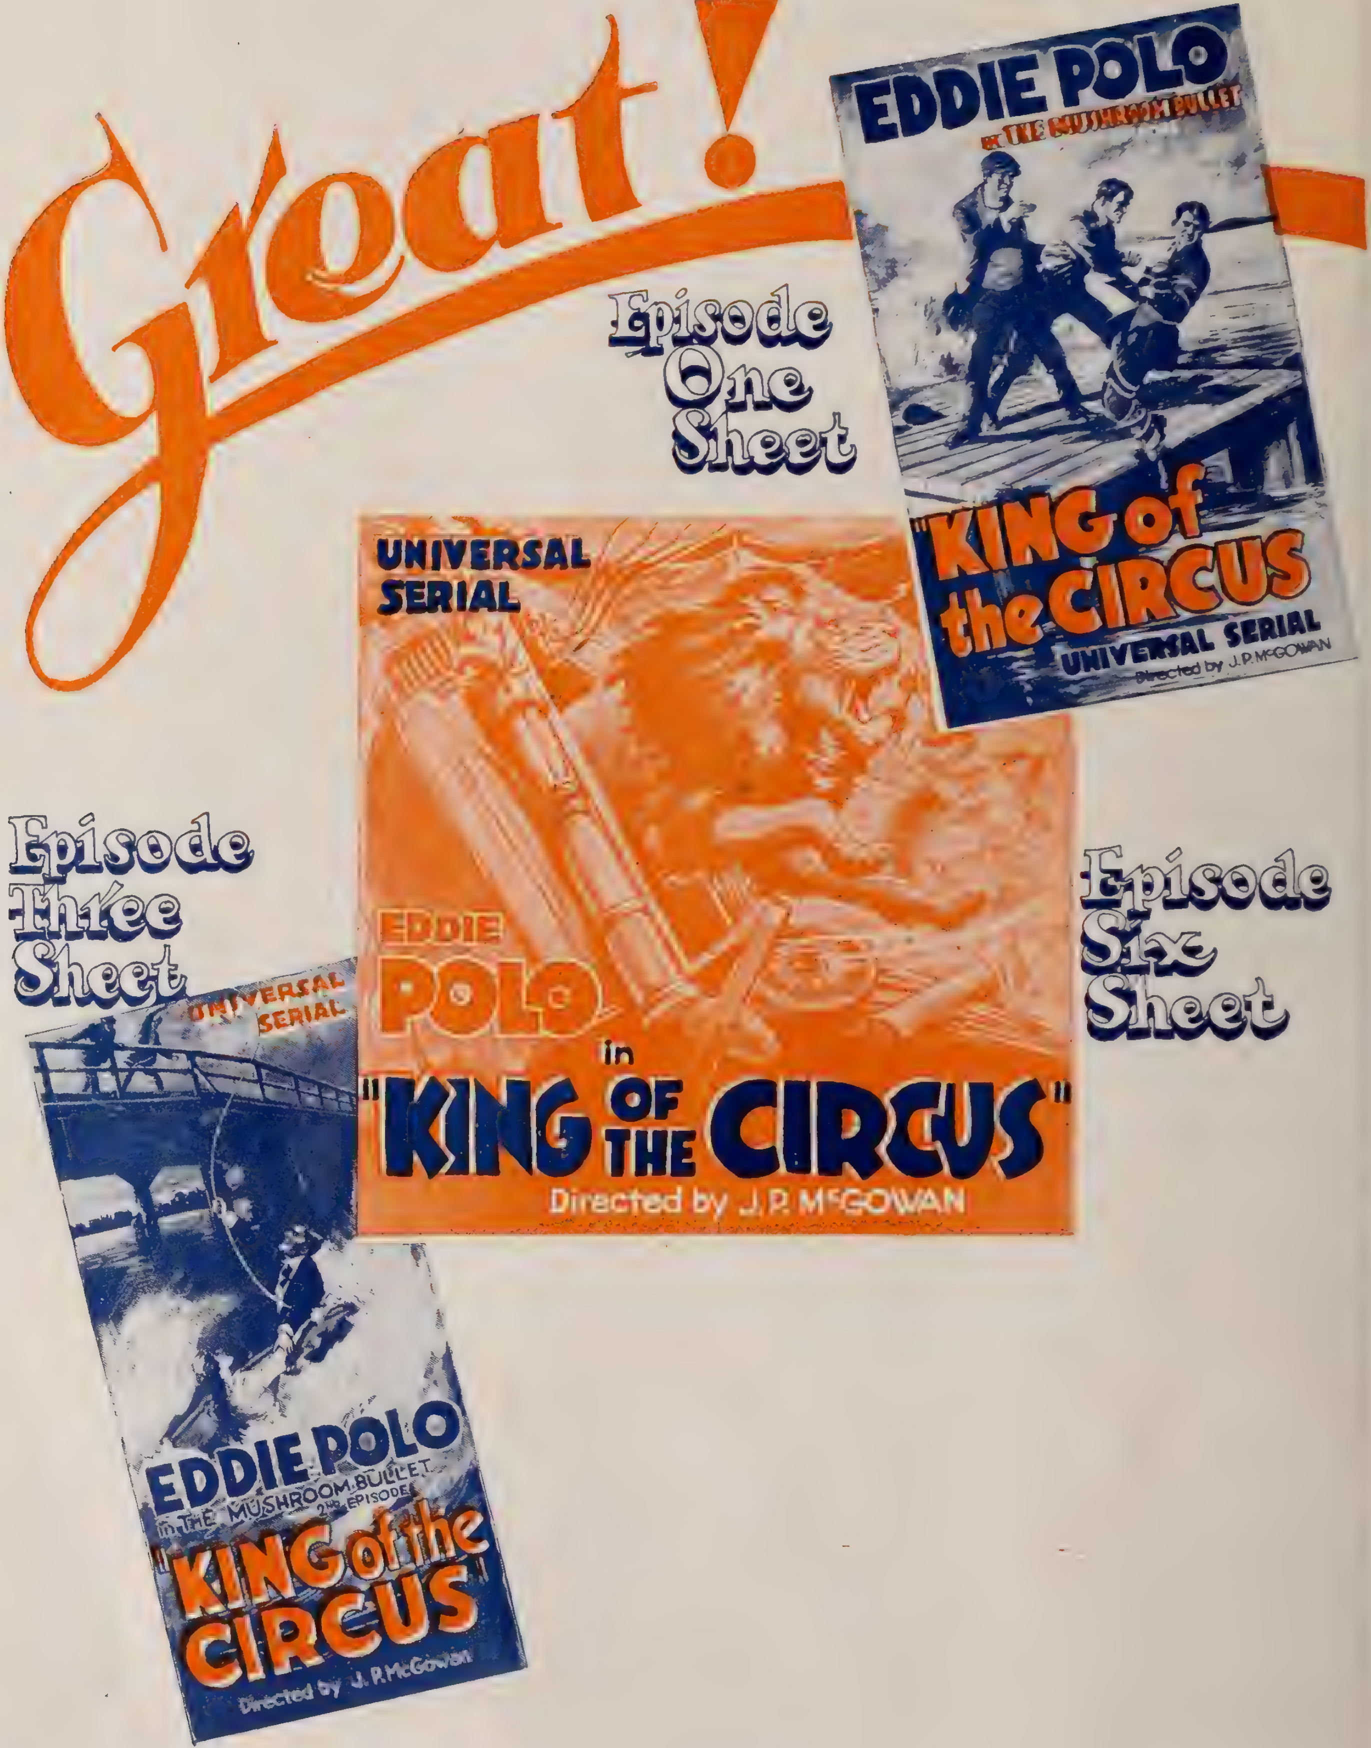
D
UNIVERSAL'S
GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION

In His 18-Chapter Thriller

KING OF THE CIRCUS

Directed by J. P. M^C GOWAN

Great!



Episode One Sheet

Episode Three Sheet

Episode Six Sheet

EDDIE POLO
in THE MUSHROOM BULLET
"KING of the CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
EDDIE POLO
in
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
EDDIE POLO
in THE MUSHROOM BULLET
2ND EPISODE
"KING of the CIRCUS"
Directed by J. P. McGowan

Ad cut No 5
"King of the Circus"
Electro 85¢
Mat 20¢

18 Weeks of Tremendous Thrills

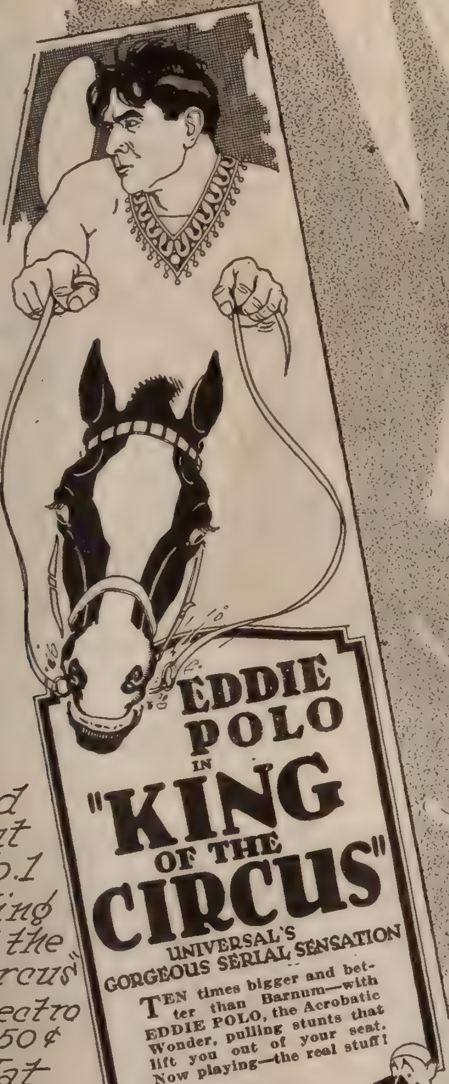
EDDIE
POLO
in

"KING
OF THE
CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGowan
BIGGER and BETTER THAN BARNUM

UNIVERSAL'S
GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION



EDDIE
POLO
IN
"KING
OF THE
CIRCUS"

UNIVERSAL'S
GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION

TEN times bigger and better than Barnum—with EDDIE POLO, the Acrobatic Wonder, pulling stunts that lift you out of your seat. Now playing—the real stuff!

Ad
cut
No. 1
"King
of the Circus"
Electro
50¢
Mat
15¢

You can't bury this Stuff!

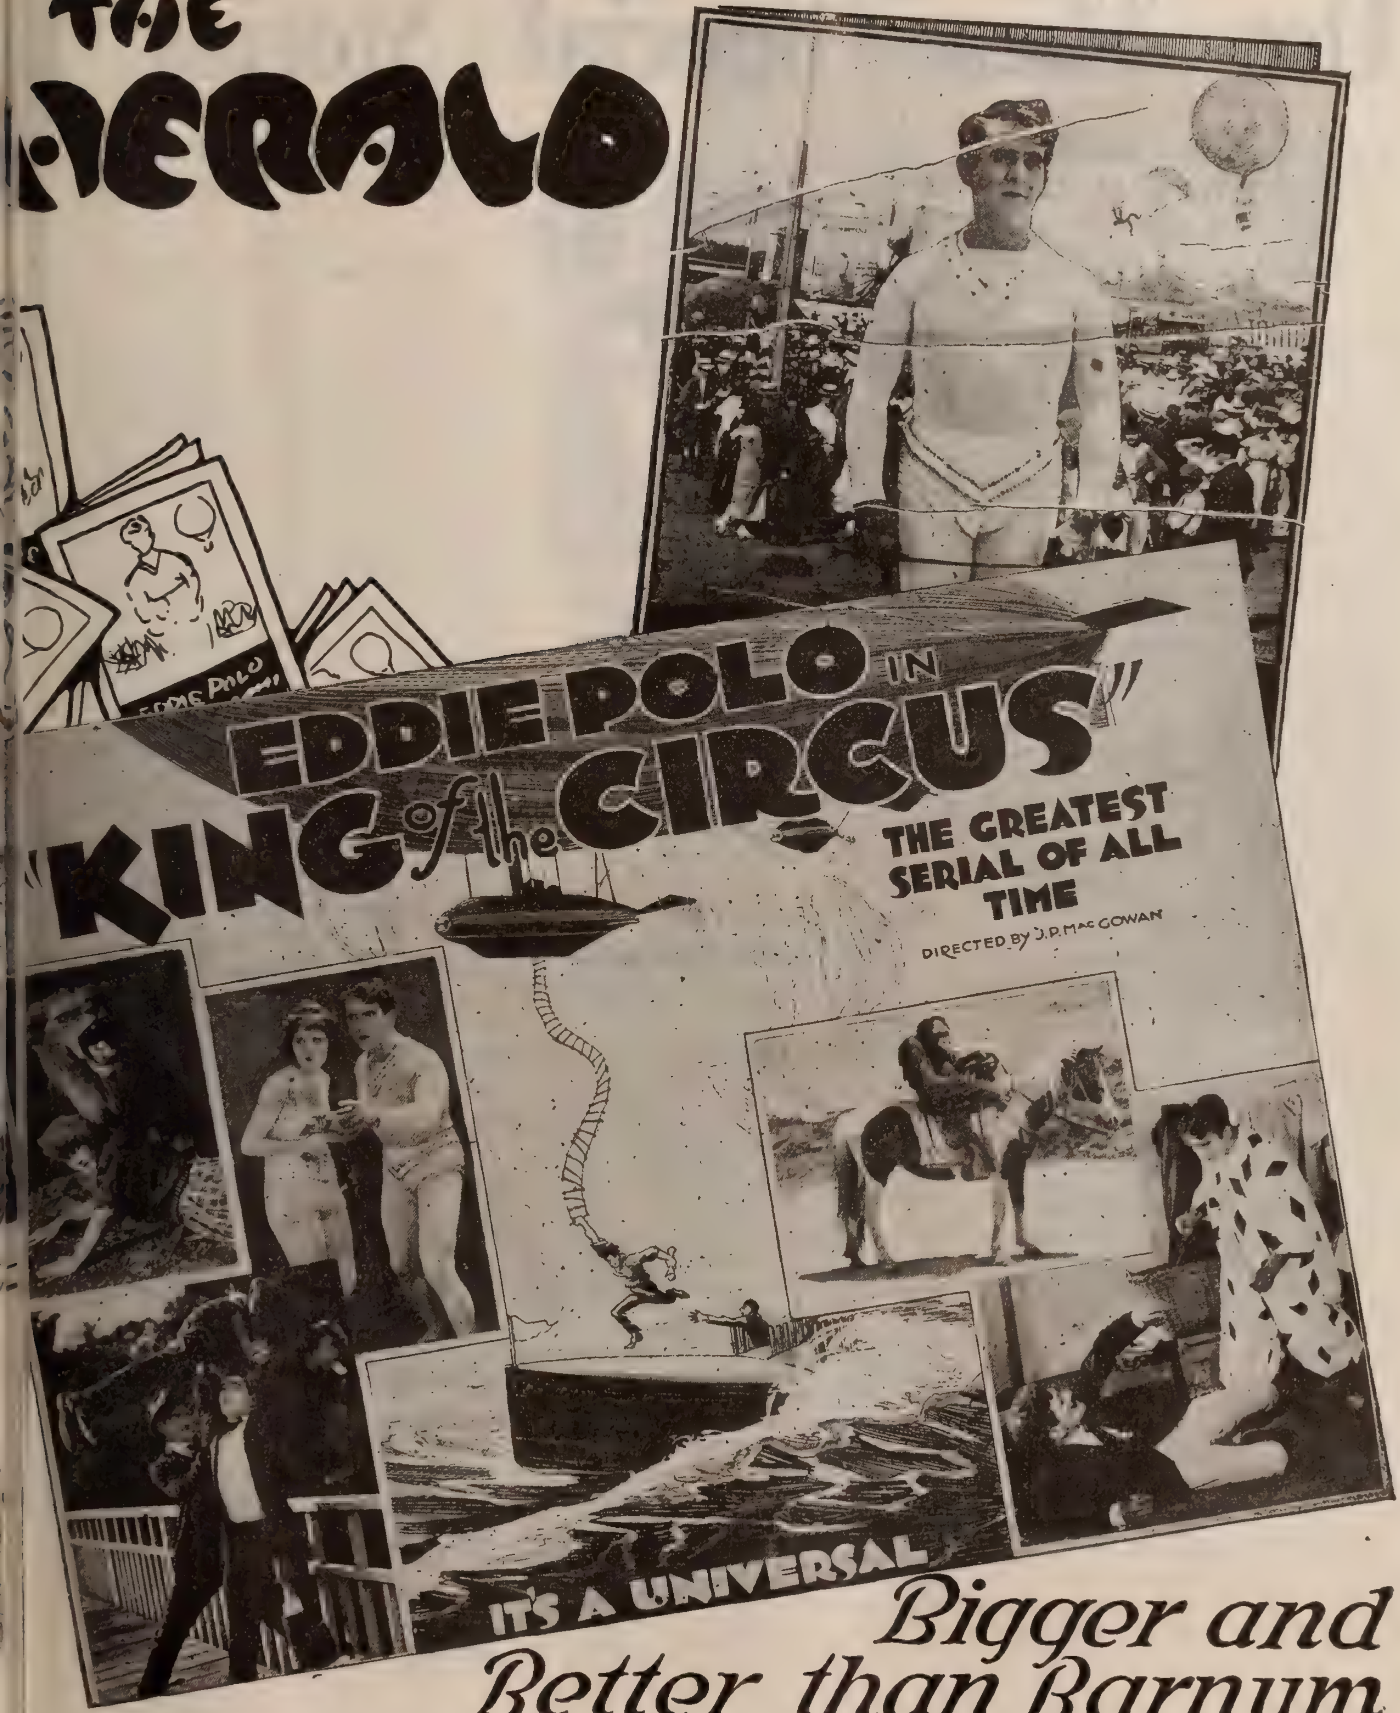
THE SLIDE
EDDIE POLO IN King of the Circus
GREATEST SERIAL OF ALL TIMES
DIRECTED BY J.P. McGOWAN
It's a Universal
SATURDAY
EDDIE POLO KING of the CIRCUS

THE HERALD



EDDIE POLO
EDDIE POLO IN
"KING of the CIRCUS"
THE GREATEST SERIAL OF ALL TIME
DIRECTED BY J.P. MacGOWAN
IT'S A UNIVERSAL

Bigger and Better than Barnum

Use These Special Stories B

KING OF THE CIRCUS PRAISED BY REAL KINGS

Polo A Royal Favorite

EDDIE POLO, Universal serial star, who has scenarized his own life in "King of the Circus," a chaptered drama he now is producing, has the distinction of having played before three of the crowned heads of Europe. Just three months before the war began, Polo was playing a vaudeville engagement at the Winter Garden in Berlin, and was commanded to appear before the Kaiser and give his trapeze performance. Polo was known as the "classiest" of athletes, graceful in every movement and lacking the bulging muscles of the European gymnasts. The former ruler of Germany admired athletic perfection, and presented Eddie with a gold cigarette case at the end of his exhibition.

Eleven years ago, when Polo was touring England with an American circus, he was one of three acts that appeared at Buckingham Palace to entertain the late King Edward and his suite at the royal command. The prince of thrills now treasures a signet ring as a memento of the occasion.

Polo also appeared before the King and Queen of Italy some years ago while on a vaudeville tour of Europe. This added much to his prestige in Rome, and his engagement in that city was extended four weeks beyond his original booking. He also has appeared before the ruler of Spain.

During Eddie's trip to England a year ago to film some scenes for his recent serial, "The Vanishing Dagger," King George was reminded that the popular gymnast who had entertained his father was then in London. Before a command appearance at the palace could be arranged, Polo left for France; so the next best thing was done. The Universal Exchange in London had on hand a number of films in which Eddie Polo appeared, and these were sent over and shown at the palace. It is said that the royal party greatly enjoyed the thrills provided by the Universal star.

"King of the Circus" is being shown every —— at the —— Theatre.

EDDIE POLO
UNIVERSAL

Portrait cut, No. 1

UNIVERSAL STAR HAS MANY THRILLS AS FILM STUNTSTER

LIFE is just one succession of thrills for Eddie Polo, Universal serial star, who recently filmed "King of the Circus," an autobiographical melodrama in eighteen chapters, under the direction of J. P. McGowan.

On a Sunday morning not long ago, while staging a thrilling escape in downtown Los Angeles, Polo had a very close call. Crossing hand over hand from one skyscraper to another, on a wire cable stretched 150 feet above the street, his hands were so badly cut and burned that it seemed almost imposisble for him to finish the last fifteen feet of the journey. By superhuman effort, however, he was enabled to reach the opposite building in safety.

The very next day the Goodyear Company's pony blimp, a small dirigible, landed on the back ranch at Universal City, not far from where Eddie Polo's circus set was erected. With his usual recklessness, Eddie ran over to where the airship had landed, secured a half Nelson and toe hold on the rigging underneath the car, and signalled the pilot to "let 'er go." In this manner they flew all over the Universal lot, with Isadore Bernstein, producing manager, and the vivacious Priscilla Dean in the regular passenger compartment of the blimp.

Polo's new serial, which film experts say is the best serial ever produced, will be shown at the —— Theatre beginning ——.

FORMER CIRCUS PAL SAVES POLO'S LIFE

Film Star's Risky Stunt.

EDDIE POLO never forgets his old friends of the circus. Many of them find their way out to Universal City during the year, make themselves known to the former favorite of the big tops, and they are invariably aided if they require help, or given some sort of work in the movies, where their skill or athletic prowess may be utilized.

But of all his former circus friends, he prizes none more highly than Eddie Silbon, who was his casting partner in the last flying trapeze act he performed with the Barnum and Bailey Circus. The two Eddies are inseparable. Silbon never has a regular part in any of the film stories in which Polo appears, but he is always on the job. Wherever there is a hazardous stunt to be performed in which Polo requires the assistance of some one in whom he can place absolute dependence, Silbon is that man. The two have saved each other's lives and limbs on numerous occasions.

Just recently, during the filming of "King of the Circus," a steel cable on which Eddie Polo crossed the street, hand over hand, twelve stories above the pavement, became mixed up with an electric wire, burning Polo's hands. It seemed as if Eddie would drop to the ground. But Silbon swung himself out on the same wire, and, grasping the cable with one hand, assisted Polo with the other in reaching the ledge of the office building, where outstretched hands drew them both to safety.

The stunt is clearly shown, as are hundreds of others, in the various episodes of "King of the Circus," now appearing every —— at the —— Theatre.

ore and During the Showing

STAR NEAR DEATH DOING SERIAL STUNT

EDDIE POLO, Universal serial star, who has given the millions of theatregoers throughout the world hundreds of staged thrills, recently gave a crowd of several thousand people a taste of the real thing.

Polo arranged for some scenes in downtown Los Angeles. A wire cable was stretched across Fifth Street between the Security Building and the Title Insurance Building, twelve stories above the street. The scene was to depict an escape in one of the early episodes of his current serial, "King of the Circus," and three cameras were trained on Polo as he started to cross the rope hand over hand.

Just as the actor was within fifteen feet of the end of his journey he was seen to go slower and slower and finally stop. There he swung, and it appeared to the thousands of spectators as if it might be part of the scene. But it soon became apparent, from the activities of those on the roof, that something had gone wrong.

Had the strength of the man suspended in mid-air given out? Would he be able to hold on, or could it be possible that before thousands of upturned eyes he was going to be crushed on the pavement?

Then from the roof of the Title Building another man appeared, and with legs and arms around the stretched rope he was seen slowly to make his way to where the other was hanging. When he reached him he got his arm around him, then worked his way to the roof, where J. P. McGowan, the director, and others speedily dragged them both to safety.

The second man was Eddie Silbon, an ex-circus performer who had appeared in many an Eddie Polo screen production. This time he was a star performer. He saved the life of his friend, whose hand had been cut to the bone by the strands of wire, thus temporarily paralyzing his arm. Eddie recovered from his experience in a few weeks and continued work on his serial. It will be shown here beginning —— at the —— Theatre.

EDDIE POLO
and CORINNE PORTER
in "KING of THE CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Scene cut, No. 1

CIRCUS LANGUAGE

EVERY trade and profession has its own technical terms and slang phrases, and none is more colorful than the idioms used by circus folks.

Eddie Polo, starring in the Universal serial, "King of the Circus," was in a reminiscent mood the other day and told about his early days, when he toured through Europe with a dozen different shows, and later when he appeared with the Barnum Show throughout America. In the conversation he mentioned a few of the expressions and superstitions that are current on the circus lot.

"Circus folks never refer to canvas as tents. The tent in which the main show is given is the 'big top'; the side show is the 'kid top,' and the menagerie is the 'animal top.' The town where an exhibition is given is known as a 'jump.' The performer who rests on his back and juggles objects with his feet does a 'barrel act,' and those acrobats who juggle each other on their feet do a 'Risley.' The laborers around a circus are called 'razorbacks,' and the ring-master is the 'big gun.' A trunk is a 'keester,' food is 'chuck,' and the boy who sells popcorn and lemonade is a 'butcher.'

"There are many superstitions among circus people, and one of the oldest is the fatality attending the presence of a yellow clarinet in the band. Whistling in the dressing-tent is considered a bad omen, and a round-top trunk would not be carried by any show that was not courting disaster. In case of trouble of any sort the battle cry is 'Hey Rube.' When these words are uttered every worker grabs a stake, club or any other weapon, and woe betide the enemy against whom their anger is directed."

Intimate scenes of circus life, both under the "big top" and in the living quarters, are shown in "King of the Circus," to be seen at the —— Theatre.

Charles Fortune, Prince of Jesters, Now In Pictures.

OLD Winters, the clown in Eddie Polo's Universal serial, "King of the Circus," is not played by a mere actor in the garb of a Merry Andrew. The rôle is in the hands of Charles Fortune, of the famous Fortune Trio, who have made more people laugh than any other buffoons in the world.

Charles Fortune was born in Paris, France, and he is the son of a famous Pierot of the French pantomimic stage. He applied the white paint to his cheeks as soon as he could walk, and in the fifty years of his career has clowned with every big circus in Europe, Asia and America. With his two brothers, he appeared in every vaudeville palace in the metropolitan cities from the Winter Garden in Berlin, the Hippodrome in Berlin, to the Ice Palace in Montreal and Hammerstein's Olympia in New York.

It was while appearing in New York about ten years ago that Eddie Polo and Charles Fortune organized a comedy acrobatic act that was a big feature in all the principal vaudeville houses in America.

The two had not met in about eight years until last summer, when Fortune, happening to be playing a vaudeville date in Los Angeles, looked Polo up at Universal City. Eddie was just about to start work on his serial, "King of the Circus," and he induced his old partner to remain and play the clown in his screen story. "King of the Circus" will be shown at the —— Theatre next ——.

AIDS TO THE EXHIBITORS

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The dare-deviltry of Eddie Polo, the screen's most fearless "stuntster."

2—The gaudy circus scenes, with all the thrill of "big ring" show, its animals, its acrobats and its clowns.

3—The charm and daring of pretty Corinne Porter, a newcomer in the serial field who proves that a brave girl really can and will take desperate chances.

4—Faithful "shots" showing circus life behind the scenes—that appealing mystery to thousands of young hearts.

5—Acrobatic and flying trapeze work never before seen outside of a big tent, actualy done by Polo and his beautiful leading woman.

6—An artistry in setting never before obtained in any serial production.

7—A story of circus life as fascinating as any drama and as replete with stirring action and startling thrills as any melodrama.

8—Unusual pictures of wild animals actually acting before the camera in scenes danger-fraught to their human co-players.

9—The smell of the tan-bark, the crack of the whip, the blare of music, the cries of the ballyhoos, the bellowings of the caged beasts, and the shrill whistle of the peanut-roaster.

10—A succession of death-defying stunts performed for the picture actually escaped death by a hair's by Polo in which the "stuntster" breadth.

PRINCIPAL PLAYERS

EDDIE KING	EDDIE POLO
HELEN HOWARD	Corinne Porter
MARY WARREN	Kittoria Beveridge
JAMES GRAY	Harry Madison
JOHN WINTERS	Charles Fortune

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"KING OF THE CIRCUS."

LENGTH—Serial—18 episodes.

STAR—EDDIE POLO.

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Broken Coin," "The Bull's Eye," "Cyclone Smith," "The Lure of the Circus," "The Vanishing Dagger," etc.

DIRECT BY—EDDIE POLO himself, assisted by J. P. McGowan.

STORY BY—EDDIE POLO—autobiographical.

SCENARIO BY—Anthony W. Coldewey.

SUPPORTING CAST—Corinne Porter, Kittoria Beveridge, Harry Madison, Charles Fortune, and others.

LOCALE—The suburbs of an American City, the circus lot, the main tent, the dressing tent, a palatial home.

TIME—The present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—A young circus performer, whose parentage is a mystery, strives against great odds to solve the mystery and win his rightful heritage. He is assisted by a beautiful and wealthy young girl, and finally brings to a just punishment an unscrupulous circus manager, the cause of all the trouble.

The Story of "King of The Circus"

POLO'S STIRRING CAREER PICTURED IN NEW FILM

Every Phase of Circus Life Shown

"Blood Money"

EDDIE POLO, admittedly the greatest performer in the circus world, is cared for by old John Winters, a half wit, whose memory has been dimmed by some unknown injury in the past. To winters, Eddie owes all the success he has achieved, for Winters has trained him from childhood. Also with the show is Mary Warren, the adopted daughter of the show's owner, James Gray, who has been absent for some months—traveling abroad and engaging foreign talent. Mary acts as Eddie's partner in the feature act.

At the opening of the story we find the circus in a large city. It is the day of Gray's return after his foreign trip. Winters, lounging about the outside of the tent, becomes interested in some of the animals and steals some water from a group of canvasmen—who attack the old fellow just as Eddie finishes his act and comes upon the scene. Eddie goes to Winter's rescue, but before he can intervene a blow from a water bucket knocks Winters unconscious. Gray, arriving at the same moment, sees Eddie as he picks Winters up and carries him to his dressing tent.

THE SILENCER

Something familiar causes Gray to follow, and he overhears Winters talking to Eddie. The blow has cleared the old man's mind and he tells of the little one ring show with which he traveled many years before—and of which Eddie's father, Paul King, and little Eddie himself, were also members. Eddie's past has always been a mystery, and this is the first he has ever heard of his family or his childhood days. As Gray listens he hears Winters tell of King's death at the hands of the manager of this show—and Eddie asks Winters the name of the man who killed his father. Before Winter can answer Gray whips out a revolver and fires—Winters falls back dangerously wounded, and Gray escapes.

Eddie hurries Winters into a car and starts for a hospital while Gray sends several canvasmen after them with orders to get Winters out of the way at any cost. Eddie's car is wrecked by a roadster driven by Helen Howard, a young society girl, and Helen cares for Winters as Gray's men overtake them and attack. The episode ends with Helen and Winters trapped in a burning hotel and Eddie searching for them.

"The Mushroom Bullet"

HELEN is trapped in the burning hotel and Gray's men carry Winters out as Eddie arrives. He drives the canvasmen off and climbs the building, rescuing Helen—while a mysterious unknown picks up Winters and carries him to a hospital. Gray's men watch until the building collapses and are led to believe that both Eddie and Winters perished. They return to the circus and report to Gray accordingly, while Helen and Eddie go to her home nearby.

In the hospital the unknown examines the bullet extracted from Winter's wound and finds it to be of a calibre used only in guns of foreign make. With this clue he starts out to locate the gun which fired it. At Helen's home Eddie recovers and wires Gray that he will soon rejoin the show.

Gray is surprised to hear that Eddie escaped the fire and angrily upbraids the men who reported that he was lost—then sends them to the Howard home with orders to get Eddie out of the way at any cost. They arrive during a dance given in Eddie's honor and surprise Eddie with Helen as they are canoeing upon the lake. Eddie is tied and thrown into the water, while Helen, in escaping, falls under the wheels of a huge truck.

"STOLEN EVIDENCE"

EDDIE succeeds in loosening his bonds and strikes out for shore, while Helen, who has been knocked down by the truck while trying to escape Gray's men, returns to the lake shore in time to meet Eddie as he crawls out. She takes him to her home again. Meanwhile, Gray's men go back to the circus and report that Eddie is out of the way for good.

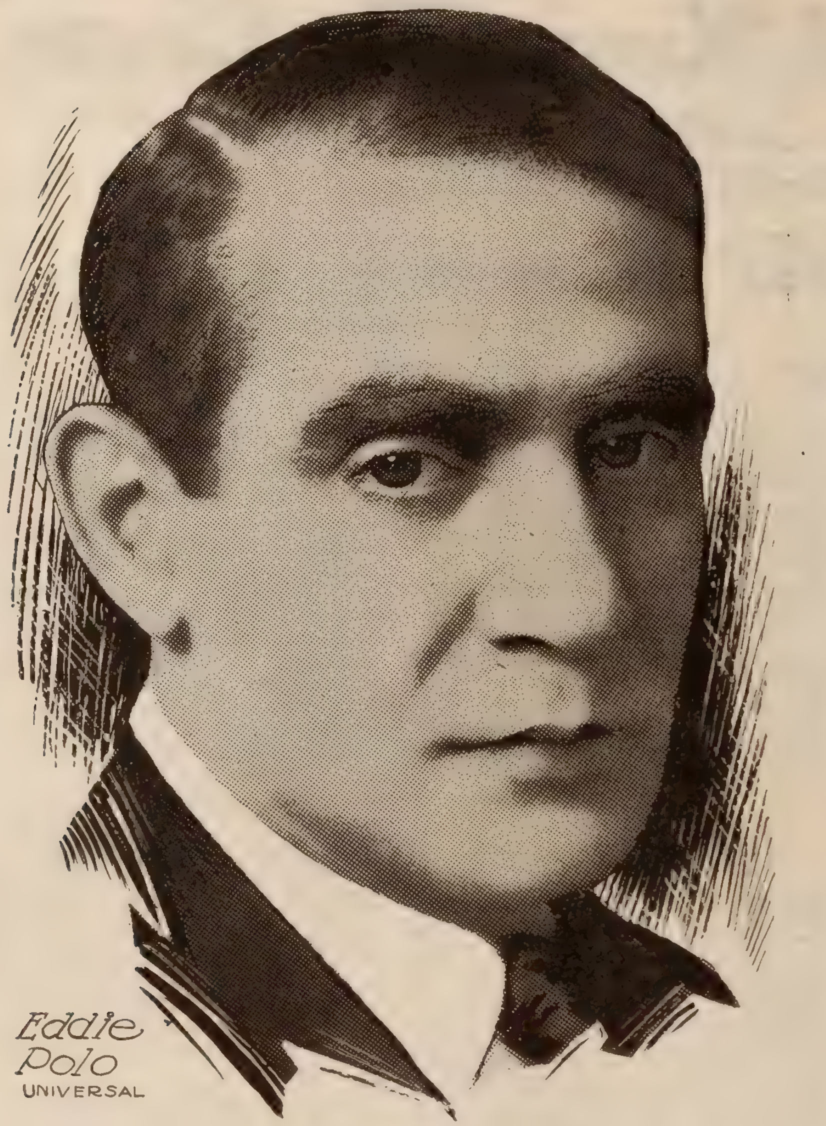
The Unknown now appears at the circus in the guise of a laundry man. He has the bullet with which Winters was shot, and he is in search of a gun that compares with its unusual calibre. While Gray is in the cook tent at lunch, the Unknown delivers a parcel to his office and succeeds in getting into his trunk. He finds the gun, but is discovered as he starts to leave. Swinging on to his laundry wagon, he drives away while two of Gray's men mount circus horses and start in pursuit.

The chase leads towards the Howard home just as Eddie and Helen are going out horseback riding. They are attracted by the sound of shooting and Eddie sees the Unknown with his pursuers—and also sees the Unknown is wounded. Eddie gallops up beside the wagon and jumps on to the driver's seat. The Unknown musters sufficient strength to give him the stolen revolver and tells him it is the same gun with which Winters was shot—then he collapses.

OVER THE CLIFF

Helen has a narrow escape from the hands of one of the ruffians pursuing the Unknown. She takes refuge in a deserted hut and climbs upon the roof, making a flying leap to her horse in order to get away. She rides after Eddie and arrives in time to see him in the wagon go over an embankment—and man, horse and wagon roll down together, a hundred feet to the river below.

How Eddie gets out of this scrape, how he frustrates the vicious circus owner at every turn, how he finally learns the secret of his strange parentage, how he comes into his own as a circus magnate, and wins the beautiful girl who has shared his dangers, is told in the series of thrilling and colorful episodes that conclude this latest serial marvel, "King of the Circus," which Eddie Polo thinks is the pinnacle of his screen career.



Portrait cut, No. 2

EDDIE POLO, the star in "King of the Circus," the Universal serial which starts at the ——— Theatre next ——— is one of the most picturesque figures on the screen. He was raised in a circus and has appeared as an acrobat in almost every country on the globe.

He made his first appearance in public as a baby clown, when only two years old. At nine, he was a clever acrobat. Later he became an expert aerialist, or flying trapeze man. He has to his credit the famous triple somersault.

Later be became a parachute jumper and high diver. He was the first man to jump from the Eiffel Tower in Paris by parachute. He has dived into shallow water from a height of 110 feet. Under water he can make 325 feet without breathing.

For many years with Barnum & Bailey's and with the Ringling Brothers Circus, he became noted as the man who first looped-the-loop on a bicycle and later with a motorcycle. He also did this perilous stunt standing on horse-back, in a small car.

He entered pictures about six years ago, and immediately jumped to the forefront as a "stuntser." No feat is too daring for him. He actually performs all the stunts seen in his films. He has barely escaped with his life countless times, but he will not "fake" a scene or use a double.

His latest serial, "King of the Circus," contains many incidents which actually happened to him during his life with the circus.

Picture Public Very Exacting

Serial Stuntster No Longer Can Fake Scenes or Use Doubles.

SATISFYING the public appetite for moving picture thrills is becoming increasingly difficult, according to Eddie Polo, the Universal serial star, who has probably slapped death on the wrist before a camera more times than any man living.

"The public is becoming so 'moviewise,'" Polo declares, "that fakes and camera trickery are almost always readily seen, that is why the star and the director come in for a great deal of criticism when such things are attempted.

"Another thing that an audience resents is having the star represented by a double in some particularly hazardous feat. When a certain screen favorite's admirers go to see him in a picture, they like to know that he has the nerve to do everything the script of the film calls for."

"The star may be able to fool them with a double for a while, but when they find it out, as they do eventually, he has lost a lot of followers."

It has been Eddy Polo's business to risk his neck before the camera for several years. He has been the star of a number of Universal serials, the latest of which, "King of the Circus," is to a great extent a story of Polo's early career as a circus performer.

He got his start in pictures by doing things for the camera that no one else would even attempt. He has survived the most dangerous exploits the imaginative Universal writers could conjure up for him, and always called for more. The thing that he prides himself on the most is that he has never had a double.

"But a man must have more than just nerve to make successful serials," Polo says. "He must have imagination as well, for every picture must contain entirely new stuff. A star's admirers don't want to see him jump off the same building in every episode."

Where it is going to end Polo doesn't know, for he has now done about everything a man shouldn't if he wants to remain intact until a ripe old age. But as long as the public keeps demanding more thrills, the Universal serial star expects to continue furnishing them.

The new Polo serial, "King of the Circus," will commence at the ——— Theatre ———.

Polo's Life a Maze of Adventure

RAISED AS CIRCUS CHILD EDDIE POLO FED ON THRILLS

Master of Every Stunt Known To Pageant World.

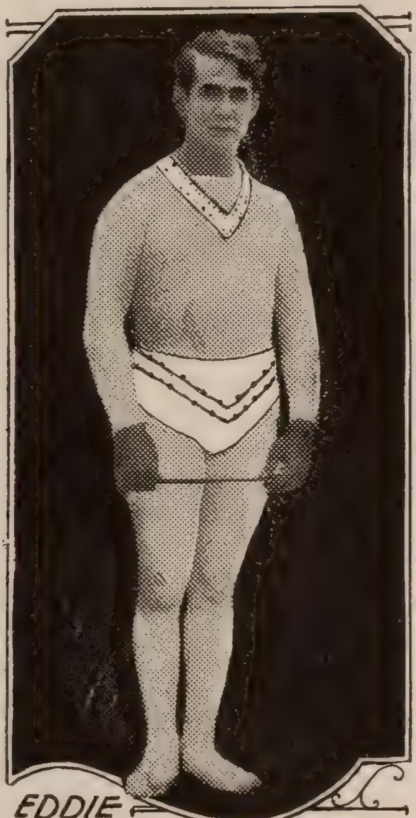
ALL the romance and glamour with which the youthful mind invests the life of a circus performer, actually has been a part of the career of Eddie Polo, the fearless star of Universal serials, who was recruited by the moving picture world from the world of big tents and gilded caravans. Raised in the sawdust ring from the time he was able to toddle, Polo has appeared as a favorite of the flying trapeze all over America, in every country of Europe, and in other parts of the globe. His latest picture is "King of the Circus," a serial based on his own life under the "big top."

It was natural that Polo should grow up a hero of the tan-bark. His father and mother were circus favorites before him. Before Eddie was two years old he was being taught to stand on his head and hands. His first appearance in public was as a diminutive clown. He gradually grew adept as an acrobat, however, and at the age of nine, was so good, his father left him in Europe with a company of famous tumblers.

MASTERS TRIPLE TURN

Eddie's circus career was not limited to tumbling, however. He took a fling at animal training as soon as he grew up, and mastered it before he finally turned to the most difficult of all circus work—aerial acrobatics, including bar and trapeze work. At one time in his circus life he specialized in catching a fellow acrobat after a triple somersault in the air. The feat has been duplicated since that time by only a couple of venturesome aerialists.

Polo also acquired skill in parachute jumping and high diving. He was the first man to jump from the Eiffel Tower, in Paris, with a parachute. He later established a new record by leaping from an aeroplane by parachute, 4280 feet in the air. This was at the Panama-California Exposition in San Diego, Cal., in 1915. The feat was under government supervision, and proved to the Army fliers that parachute jumping from disabled aeroplanes is feasible at any height.



EDDIE POLO in "KING of THE CIRCUS" UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Scene cut, No. 2

EXPERT HIGH DIVER

As a high diver Polo thinks nothing of dropping from seventy-five to a hundred feet into shallow water. In almost every serial in which he acts, he duplicates this stunt. He also is an expert long distance and under water swimmer. He has accomplished the feat of swimming 325 feet under water without coming to the surface.

Polo appeared for many years with Barnum & Bailey, and later with the Ringling Brothers Circus. Besides his regular acrobatic work he tried many "stunts." He was the first man to loop-the-loop standing on a bicycle. Then he did the same stunt on a motorcycle. He made himself famous by jumping a gap in an automobile. He even looped-the-loop standing on horse-back.

A CLEVER TUMBLER AT NINE, POLO WORLD FAMED AT 20.

His Six Years In Pictures A Succession Of Daring Stunts.

He appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe while still in his 'teens. Returning to Europe about eight years ago, he was called upon to give four special performances before the King of Spain. He received a medal for his unusual work at this series of performances as an aerial acrobat.

WORKED IN VAUDEVILLE

After leaving the tan-bark ring behind him, Polo went into vaudeville. He appeared for a long time at the old Olympic Theatre in New York, sponsored by Oscar Hammerstein.

Polo first appeared before the moving picture camera about six years ago. Since that time he has been constantly in screen work, mostly in the production of Universal serials.

Outstanding among his screen successes are the recent serials made under the Universal banner and a series of short western pictures featuring a fearless character known as "Cyclone Smith." Among his most famous Universal serials have been "Liberty," "The Lure of the Circus," "The Bull's Eye," and "The Vanishing Dagger." "The Vanishing Dagger" was an international serial in which the action was carried from continent to continent. Polo and his company travelled many thousand miles to obtain the correct settings for that serial.

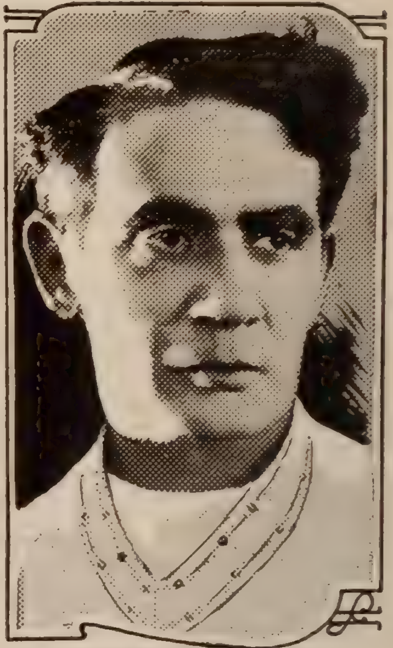
HIS LIFE'S PICTURE

Polo long has cherished to produce a picture based on his early circus life. His present serial, "King of the Circus," is filled with thrilling incidents that Polo actually remembers. Great care has been taken to give the serial true circus atmosphere. Charles Fortune, a famous old clown whom Polo has known all his life, is one of the principal actors in the serial. There is hardly a scene in the episodic thriller into which Polo and Fortune have not injected countless touches of the many phased life of the spangled knights and ladies of the tan-bark arena.

"The Story of My Life"---Polo

Serial Star Tells Stirring Tale of Life as Circus Favorite

I WAS born on the desert in the northern part of California—the youngest member of Polo & Family, circus artists. My four sisters and one brother and father and mother all performed. (One of my sisters still does—in Europe.) When I was about two years old I started my professional career by appearing in a tiny clown suit. I was gradually taught other stunts, starting with rudimentary kinds of ground tumbling. My father took his show to Italy, and when I was four years old he was hurt in a fall. The show wasn't paying very well, so he distributed his family among a number of other shows. I went to Henry Wolf, small circus proprietor, and did my baby acrobatic stunts with him.



EDDIE POLO
UNIVERSAL
Portrait cut, No. 3

The first thrill I have recollection of occurred in Vienna when I was a little over five years old. I made a balloon ascension and a parachute drop with Wolf. I remember I didn't laugh or cry, I just held my breath during that terrifying drop before the parachute opened. When it opens the descent is breath-taking enough the first time.

When I was six years old I was bound to Wolf to be his apprentice until I was sixteen. He taught me contortion, trap work, wire walking, horseback stunts—everything, and not one at a time, but all at once. I could put on a whole performance—and sometimes when we had only the wagon show I did, with the clown coming out to entertain the crowd while I changed my costume for the next act.

I RUN AWAY

When I was eleven I ran away. Why not? The work was hard; I got no money; no breakfast even until I had worked around the ring for an hour. I don't think Wolf really blamed me, for I met him eight years ago. He and his wife came back to Barnum & Bailey's and I was sorry for them—they once had been well-to-do. He died four years ago.

Well, I ran away from Hamburg, where we were playing then, and put on little shows of my own at taverns and inns in Germany, France, Italy, Spain, Turkey, and all the Balkan States. After about four years of that I stowed away in the hold of a cattle boat and for three days stayed there in the dark with the trampling of hoofs over my head. That's how I got to England. I started saving money then and when I had enough I came to America. I joined the show of Walter Main, then I was with Forepaugh and Sells and then with the Wallace Shows. I did an aerial trapeze act in company with Charlie Siegrist, who is still with Barnum & Bailey, Toto Siegrist, who now runs a carnival show playing the South, and Eddie Silbon, who is working with me to-day.

A BAD FALL

For a number of years I worked in the Barnum & Bailey show "catching" in an aerial act. I got my teeth knocked out once and my mind knocked out a hundred times when my partner threw too hard. I've been hit that way on the knees so that I'd lose my grip and fall. Of all the fallls I've taken, though, the worst was when I was with Wolf. I was ten years old. It was at the Winter Garden, Berlin. I fell 60 feet. Sure, there was a net to catch me. But a man can break his neck falling in a net as well as anywhere. An acrobat knows how to fall; he turns in the air and lands relaxed. I've fallen 50 feet on the bare ground without injury. But in this fall to the net I broke both ankles and it was seven weeks before I worked again.

Any fights? No. Circus people get along very well together. The only fights they have are with outsiders who insult them because they think they're a lower caste. Then circus folk always stand together.

I only played with animals once, but I was in no danger from them. Twenty years ago I joined a circus in the City of Mexico to do leaps (from a springboard over the back of elephants and other animals, you know.) Then I was promoted to strong man, and finally to equestrian director. The circus had four lions, two tigers, and an elephant. But I never got hurt.

MOVIES MORE DANGEROUS

But in the movies—that's where you can get hurt. A couple of weeks ago my arm was nicely scratched up by a lion we're using in this picture.

By the way, did you know I was the first to change from an airplane to a boat? I did the stunt four years ago at Venice for the Universal thriller, "The Broken Coin." It was one of Curtis's planes. I do a stunt just as thrilling in "King of the Circus" when I change from a speeding motor boat to a dirigible balloon. I sincerely believe that my present serial contains more dangerous stunts than anything I ever before attempted. Sometimes all I could do was to hope I would last until the eighteenth episode had been completed.

ADVANCE NOTES

The star part in "King of the Circus" the new serial which begins at the ——— Theatre next ——— is taken by Eddie Polo, who formerly was one of the most noted acrobats in the circus world. He was raised under canvas. He made personal appearance before every crowned head in Europe. "King of the Circus" portrays many incidents that actually happened to him.

What boy would not swap his birthright for the privilege of entering that alluring door through which the clowns, acrobats and other circus performers enter and leave the big tents. The new Eddie Polo serial "King of the Circus," takes you right through that door, into the intimate land of make-believe beyond. This serial is an epic of circus life. There is not a bit of circus atmosphere that Polo has not caught for the screen. Polo knows, for he spent thirty years of his life in the tan-bark arena as a noted trapeze worker and stuntster. His new serial will be seen at the ———Theatre commencing———

The circus is coming to town! Bigger and better than Barnum! Eddie Polo's new serial, "King of the Circus," contains all the thrills of a regular circus, all the clowns, all the animals, all the spangles and all beautiful ladies and fearless acrobats. Polo, the star, was a circus star for many years. The leading clown in the serial, Charles Fortune, was one of the famous Fortune troupe, noted clowns and acrobats with the Ringling Brothers. The first episode of "King of the Circus" will be seen at the ——— Theatre next ———.

When Eddie Polo was in Europe as a circus acrobat several years ago, he became noted. The King of Spain liked his aerial and flying trapeze work so much, Polo was invited to appear four times in one month before the royal party. He was decorated for his daring performances. Polo's circus career has been reproduced in pictures—a serial filled with breath-taking thrills. It is called "King of the Circus," and is coming to the ——— Theatre next ———.

During the six years that Eddie Polo has been producing serials for Universal, he has broken 38 bones and lost 14 teeth. Despite these drawbacks he continues to think up and perform hazarduous "stunts" for his serials. He is at home in dangerous activities. His past record includes looping-the-loop, parachute jumping, high diving and many other circus thrillers. He travelled with leading circuses for thirty years. His latest serial, "King of the Circus" was written around his circus career. It will be seen here beginning ——— at the ——— Theatre.

Eddie Polo, Universal's serial star, has found a new leading woman. She is Corinne Porter, a striking beauty of the blonde persuasion. She is as daring as she is pretty and does not hesitate to take desperate chances of make her acting thrilling. She will be seen with Polo in "King of the Circus," which comes to the ——— Theatre beginning ———. The serial is a picturization of Polo's own life with a circus. It was directed by the star himself, assisted by J. P. McGowan.

Joe Martin, Universal's almost human orang outang, plays an important part in Eddie Polo's new circus serial, "King of the Circus." The quaint man-monkey acts with a zeal and reserve worthy of his many months experience before the camera. The serial was written around the many stirring incidents of Polo's own life under the big tent, while he was an expert acrobat. The first episode of the new chaptered thriller will be seen at the ——— Theatre next ———.

Eddie Polo has two beautiful girls playing with him in his latest serial, "King of the Circus." His leading woman, Corinne Porter, is a striking blonde with haunting blue eyes and a ready smile. She also is a dare-devil. Polo has not been able to think up a stunt she will not attempt. The other girl, Kittoria Beveridge, is a charming brunette. She is credited with possessing the most perfect form in moving pictures. In her role as a queen of the circus, she makes an alluring picture in tights and spangles.

In the first episode of his new serial, "King of the Circus," Eddie Polo, the Universal star, engages in three spirited fist-fights, is in an automobile smash-up, jumps from a cliff, rescues a girl from a burning house and takes a desperate chance on a swinging wire. These stunts are all logically developed and hold the interest with stirring sequence. Polo promises more and riskier stunts for the succeeding episodes. "King of the Circus," will be shown at the ———Theatre commencing———.

A READY-WRITTEN REVIEW

A NEW standard of serial excellence has been set by Universal. No longer does the villain, the hero and the heroine clash in monotonous scenes, in the same settings, and with the same wild slugging, the same abductions, the same miraculous escapes and the same old "horrors" for eighteen episodes.

"King of the Circus," the new Eddie Polo serial which had its premier showing last night in the ——— Theatre, has struck a new chord in serial interest. It is built around an engaging story, but above all it is laid in a new kind of setting—a setting that holds the interest throughout every foot of film.

Circus! A magic word that opens the way to every youngster's heart, be he six or sixty. It is this delight in the smell of the tanbark arena, in the spangled tights and frolicking clowns, from which Universal has coined reel after reel of gripping, impelling pictures.

Universal announces that "King of the Circus" was written from incidents that actually occured in Polo's own life, who was a celebrated acrobat before appearing in moving pictures. At any rate, the serial is crowded with real circus atmosphere, the fanfare of the grand parade, the medley of side-show activities, the lure of the big tent, and most marvelous of all, the homely drama of the dressing tent and the mysterious "behind the scenes" of a big show.

Polo is in his element as a circus performer and acts his part with unstudied realism. His new leading woman, Corinne Porter, also seems at home amid circus surroundings. She is as daring as she is pretty.

The story is laid around the adventures of a young acrobat, raised with the circus, who does not know the secret of his parentage, and the unscrupulous attempts of the circus manager to keep the secret from him. Interesting developments are promised in the plot as a result of this revelation.

All in all, "King of the Circus' is without doubt the most appealing serial ever seen here. It was directed by Polo himself, aided by J. P. McGowan.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the success you have with a picture depends upon the extent to which you familiarize your public with the picture before you show it.

Start early with "notes" and the "advance stories." Then follow with the special short stories. Make your public want to see the picture.

DO YOU REALIZE?

That a simple advertising campaign started early will get your public impatient to see this picture.

Use the ad punches and display lines and awaken interest. Follow up with display "ads" and exploitation.

FOR THE HERALD

Eddie King, the marvel-acrobat of Gray's Circus, had no time to wonder why Grays' hirelings, the three burly circus helpers, had attacked him and why they now were trying to abduct old John Winters, the aged clown. King only knew that Winters, at the point of death because of a mysterious bullet wound, was the only man in the world who knew the secret of King's parentage. The mysterious bullet had halted the story on his lips.

With super-human effort young King threw himself at the ruffians and routed them, regaining the possession of the old clown, fast sinking. His automobile was a wreck but he could use the fast racer which had collided with him a few minutes ago. He must get old John to a hospital and save his life—otherwise he might never learn about his life prior to the time he was adopted by evil-countenanced Gray.

On the point of speeding away in the unhurt racer, King glanced towards the old hotel nearby. He saw smoke pouring from its windows. A sudden shifting of the smoke and he saw the owner of the racer, the most beautiful girl in the world, half overcome by fumes at one of the upper windows. In an instant he was climbing up the side of the building. Another moment and he had the girl's limp form in his arms.

Then, with a crash, the entire front of the building burst into flames. As he fought his way to the roof, sections of the lower floors caved in. Finally he found himself trapped with his lovely burden, far above the street. One chance was his for gaining safety as the flames swept nearer and nearer. A slender wire stretched across to a building many feet away.

Seizing his beautiful companion in one arm he entrusted himself to the fateful wire, hoping to work his way, inch by inch over the interminable distance that separated him from the other building.

Suddenly, without warning, the wire tore loose from its fastening a few feet behind him. With a sickening lurch he felt himself swinging downward. Far below him the ground came up towards him with that incredible swiftness that he often had marked during the first few hundred feet of a parachute jump. But this time there was no friendly canvas to catch the air and ease him to safety.

Down — down — for an eternity! The girl, revived by the rush of air, opened her eyes to the awful situation. She shrieked as King closed his eyes to the terible certainty of their fate. Another fraction of a second and they would hit!

What a thrill! Pages have been written describing situations less tense by far. To have seen it would be to live its harrowing seconds over again a thousand times. Yet, it can be seen with heart-gripping reality in the first episode of Eddie Polo's new serial, "King of the Circus" which will be shown at this theatre next ———.

Advertising Display Lines

The elephant now goes 'round—the band begins to play the boys around the monkey's cage had better keep away! See the Mammoth Circus with Eddie Polo in "King of the Circus."

Roaring Lions — Laughing Hyenas — Blaring Brass Bands—Red Lemonade—Toy Ballons—Cracking Whips—and the shrill whistle of the Peanut Roaster. You'll find them all in "King of the Circus." With Eddie Polo.

Barnum's was never like this! Every reel a three-ring circus! See "King of the Circus" with Eddie Polo.

Gray's Mammoth Circus is coming to town! 40—count 'em—40 clowns. Dozens of dainty girls in spangled splendor. Don't miss "King of the Circus" with Eddie Polo.

Stupendous selection of scintillating stars—Awe-inspiring array of aerial artists—Countless clowns in clever comic. Eddie Polo—Himself—in "King of the Circus."

EDDIE POLO
and CORINNE PORTER
in "KING of THE CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
Scene cut, No. 3

IT is doubtful if any other cinema star is quite as popular with as many people as Eddie Polo, who provides thrills by way of serials, and whose latest melodrama is being issued in chapter form by Universal under the title of "King of the Circus." For where the majority of successful motion picture stars are popular in America only, Eddie Polo has his admirers in every country that boasts a screen and a projection machine.

If there were no other star at Universal City besides Eddie Polo, then Uncle Sam would have sufficient excuse for having established a post office in this film city. Eddie's mail comes in sacks. He keeps two stenographers busy answering his letters, and the technical directors of various nationalities decipher the missives he receives from far corners of the globe. If Eddie were to read half the letters he receives he would be obliged to cut out work, food, rest and recreation.

In South America, in Cuba, in Porto Rico, in Japan and in Italy, Eddie Polo has won dozens of popularity contests. There are a hundred Eddie Polo clubs in various parts of America, and an untold number of babies born the past few years have been named after the serial star.

There is something clean and hearty about an athlete, and Eddie Polo typifies all the qualities that are usually associated with a perfect physique. The person who does not lead a clean life cannot long retain the qualifications for an expert athlete, and Eddie has been practicing his art ever since he was an infant. Polo's latest serial is a chronicle of his early life as a circus performer. It is filled with thrills. The —— Theatre is showing it weekly.

Entire Circus Assembled At Universal City For Atmosphere In "King of The Circus"

EDDIE POLO knows too much about circus life to have any detail enter into the making of his latest Universal serial, "King of the Circus," that is not absolutely correct. This chaptered romance was written by Eddie himself and is based on incidents either in his own life or which have come under his observation while touring the world as featured performer with a dozen different tented organizations.

On the vast acreage at Universal City a complete circus was erected. All the canvas from the main show tent to the kitchen was stretched in real circus formation. The interiors of the tents were fitted up to accommodate a real audience, and all the paraphernalia of the acrobats, leapers, gymnasts and riders were placed and hung and actually used in the filming of many scenes.

Real freaks were used in the sideshow, real parades were staged, and the resources of the Universal City zoo were used to stock the circus menagerie. It is doubtful if any circus in the world, outside of the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers' shows, has as fine a collection of highly trained animals as Universal City, the lion house containing over thirty magnificent beasts.

In order to secure certain scenes which could not be obtained on a set, no matter how true to life, Eddie Polo, accompanied by Director J. P. McGowan and members of the company, journeyed to far-away cities where certain shows were exhibiting, and Eddie easily secured permission to film the scenes on the spot. In Denver, with the Robinson Shows, Eddie Polo substituted for the star performers in several acts at a matinee, and pictures were made with the vast audience looking on and applauding. "King of the Circus" is scheduled for the —— Theatre next ——.

Scene from "KING of the CIRCUS"
Universal Serial with Eddie POLO
Scene cut, No. 4

Eddie Polo and Kittoria Beveridge
in "KING of THE CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
Scene cut, No. 5

EDDIE POLO
and CORINNE PORTER
in "KING of THE CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Scene cut, No. 6

UNIVERSAL INVITED PUBLIC TO ACT IN SERIAL

Sunday Visitors Fill Big Tent and See Real Circus For New Polo Serial.

EIGHT thousand visitors thronged Universal City one Sunday several weeks ago when for the first time in thirty months the big film studio plant was thrown open to the public. The most interesting activity on the lot was the starting by Eddie Polo of his eighteen-serial, "King of the Circus." Several hundred of the visitors volunteered to take part in scenes showing the crowds at the circus.

More than 2,000 automobiles passed through the gates of the great film city, according to a report made to Isadore Bernstein, producing manager, by the gateman in charge. Visiting Shriners, on their way to a convention in Portland, as well as Los Angeles business men and merchants, were among those who inspected the activities "behind the screen."

The unusual concession of permitting visitors in the studio was obtained by Eddie Polo, who has a superstitious belief that to begin an undertaking in the presence of many betokens an auspicious completion.

Those who crowded into the circus tent saw as good a performance as any ever offered in the tanbark ring. A number of riding acts, several acrobatic and ring stunts, Charles Fortune, one of the most famous circus clowns in America, and Eddie Polo himself, participated in the performance under the brilliant lights of the Cooper Hewitts while the camera clicked.

Eddie Polo was practically born in a circus, and his current serial is a dramatized story of his life. Besides being filled with thrills, it contains remarkable scenes of circus life. Polo has the support of two charming actresses, Corinne Porter and Kittoria Beveridge.

The first episode of "King of the Circus" is scheduled for the ——— Theatre ———.

Current Notes

Episode 2.

Eddie Polo, star of the new Universal serial, "King of the Circus," now being shown at the —— Theatre every ——, formerly was a circus acrobat and high diver before deserting the tan-bark to appear before the camera. In the second episode of his current serial, to be seen here ——, he was called upon to demonstrate his prowess at high diving. He leaped from a bridge eighty-five feet high into water scarcely five feet deep. He came up smiling.

Episode 3.

A moving picture serial star not only has to be fearless, he also has to have a cool head and a quiet wit. No matter how unafraid an actor may be, he cannot hope to blunder his way through every stunt. A keen mind was all that saved Eddie Polo from being killed while making the third episode of his serial, "King of the Circus." He rolled over a cliff seated in a small wagon. He had to jump so as to land on a small ledge a few feet below the brow of the cliff. A fraction of a second in making the decision to jump meant life or death. Polo did it, but it gave him a cold sweat. The stunt can be seen at the —— Theatre next ——.

Episode 4.

Eddie Polo, Universal serial star, had to pay a special bonus to the actors who played with him in his current serial, "King of the Circus." This was blood money. Polo demands that the actors with whom he fights before the camera stand up and take real blows, just as he is willing to endure slugging himself. Bloody noses are the general rule during the filming of a Polo serial. The fights, when seen on the screen, however, are realistic enough for the most hardened ring fan.

The fourth episode of "King of the Circus," in which some of the most spirited fighting of the serial is to be seen, will be shown at the —— Theatre next ——.

Episode 5.

When he was a gymnast with Barnum and Bailey's Circus, Eddie Polo, Universal serial star, fell sixty feet from a flying trapeze. He was laid up in the hospital for many weeks. He later learned how to take a fall with comparative safety, landing in a relaxed position. He duplicates just such a fall in the fifth episode of his serial, "King of the Circus," to be seen at the —— Theatre ——.

Goodbye and —thank you!

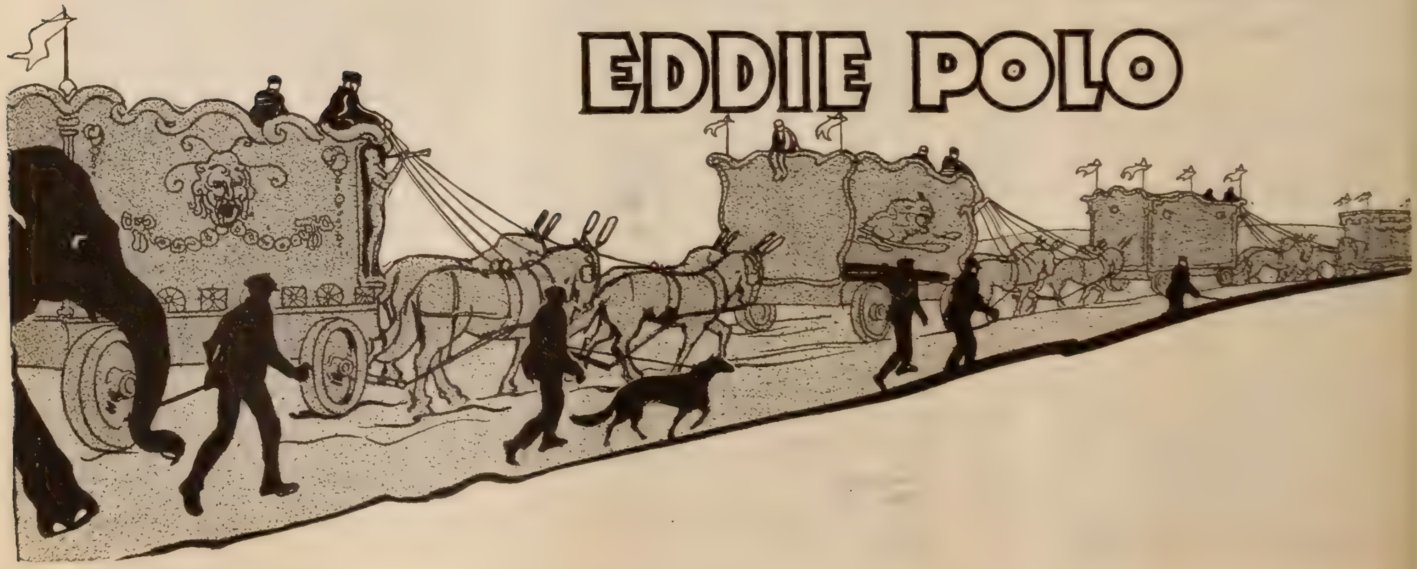
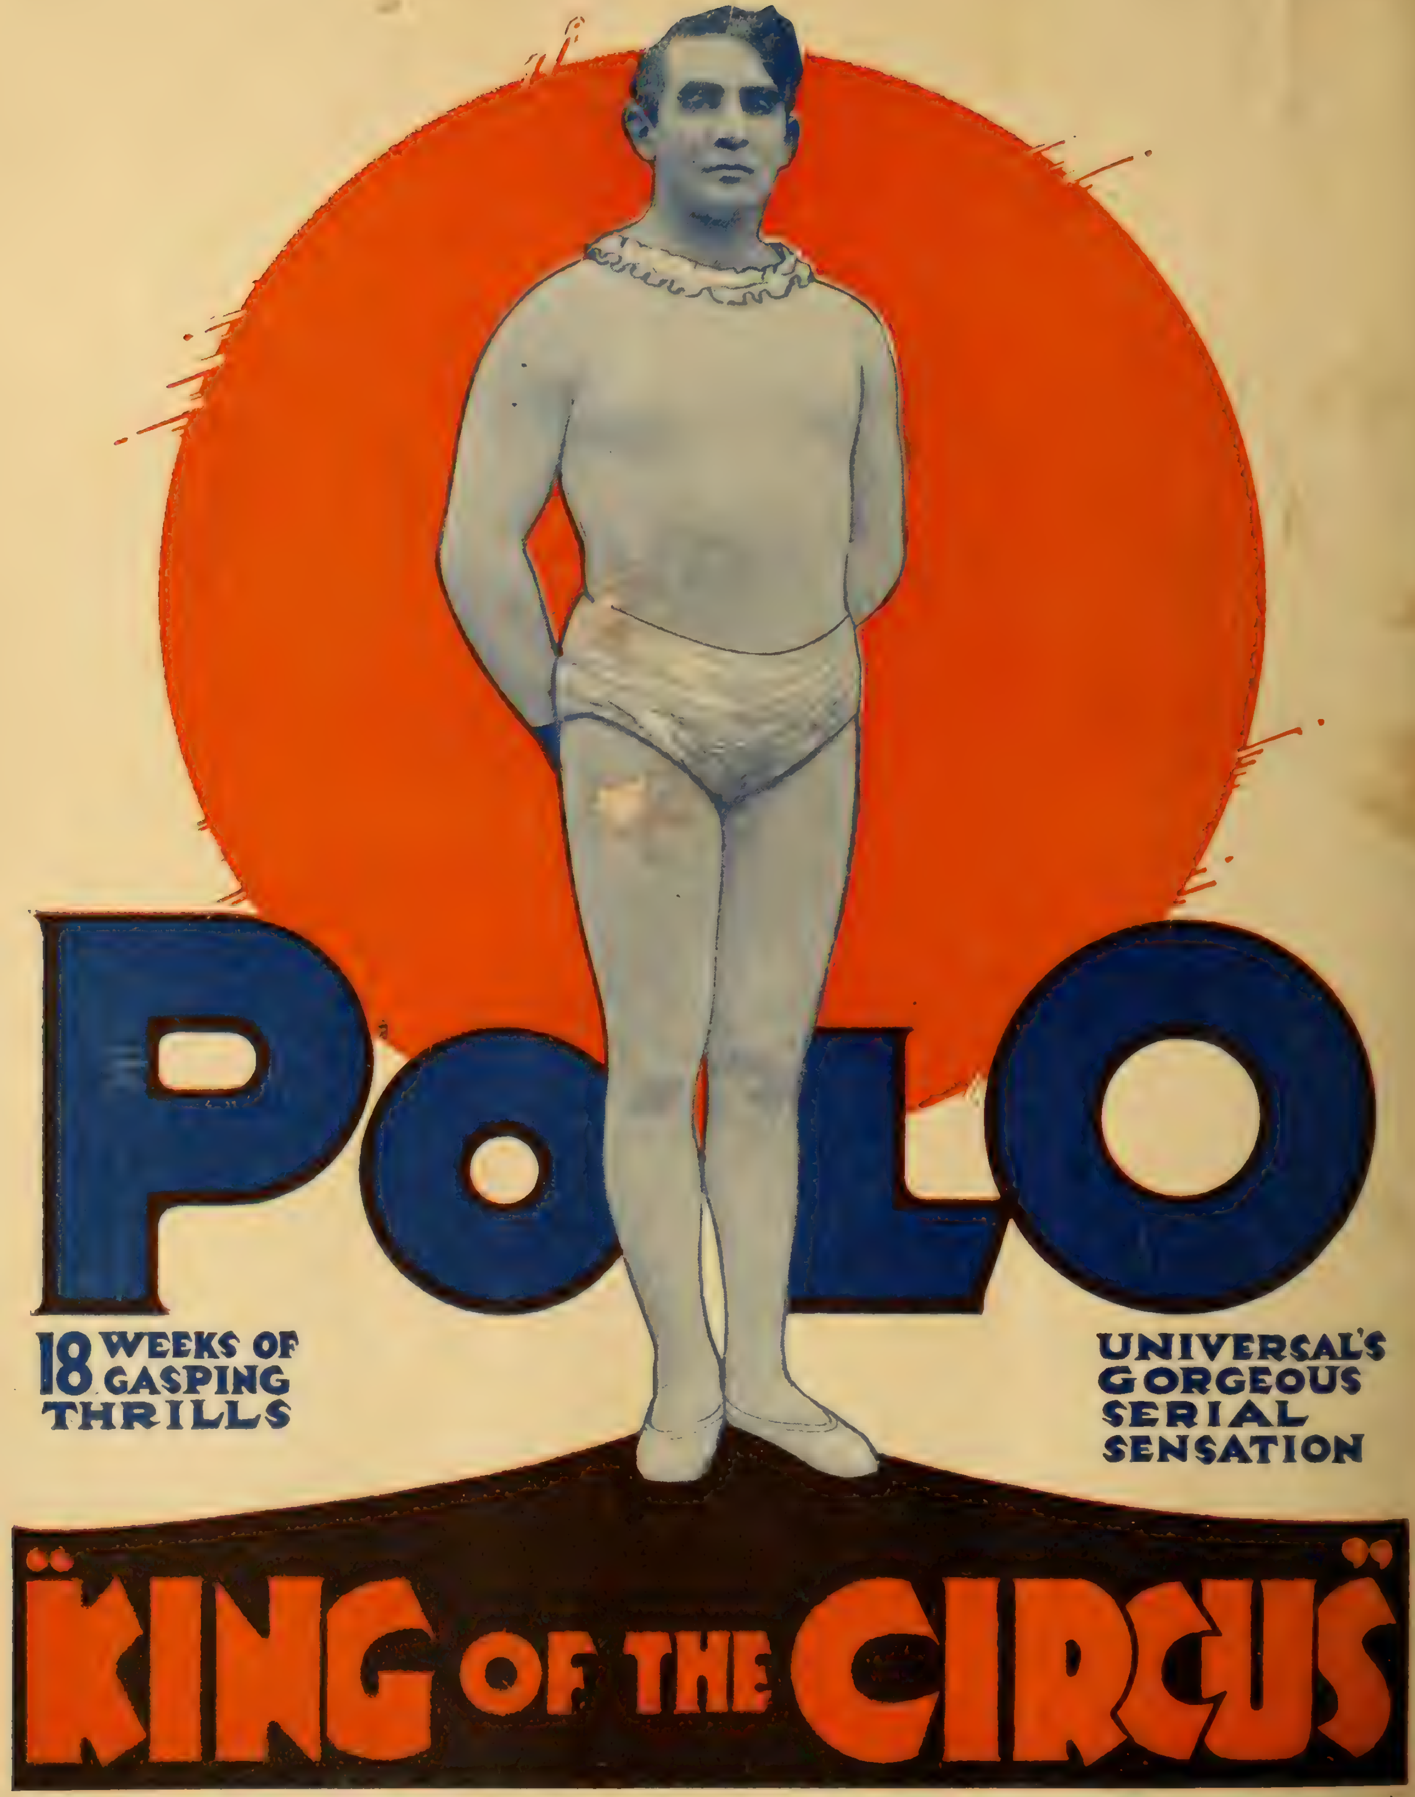
‘‘GENTLEMEN—whatever kind of an actor I may or may not be, I'm a keen business man. I can hear the tinkle of a nickel miles and miles away. And I know just how good this serial is—how many nickels and dimes and quarters and halves and dollars it's going to coax over the little glass plate into your box-office.

"I've seen every scene of this serial in the making, and I've also viewed it on the screen. I'm a showman, and when I see even the hard-boiled reviewers sitting up and taking notice I know that a serial must not only be a good serial—it must be a knockout.

"So—take a tip from your good friend Eddie—arrange with the nearest Universal Exchange at once for earliest possible dates on "King of the Circus.' Remember, it's the early exhibitor who catches the kale, and this is a serial that will pyramid your profits week after week for eighteen weeks. That's all."

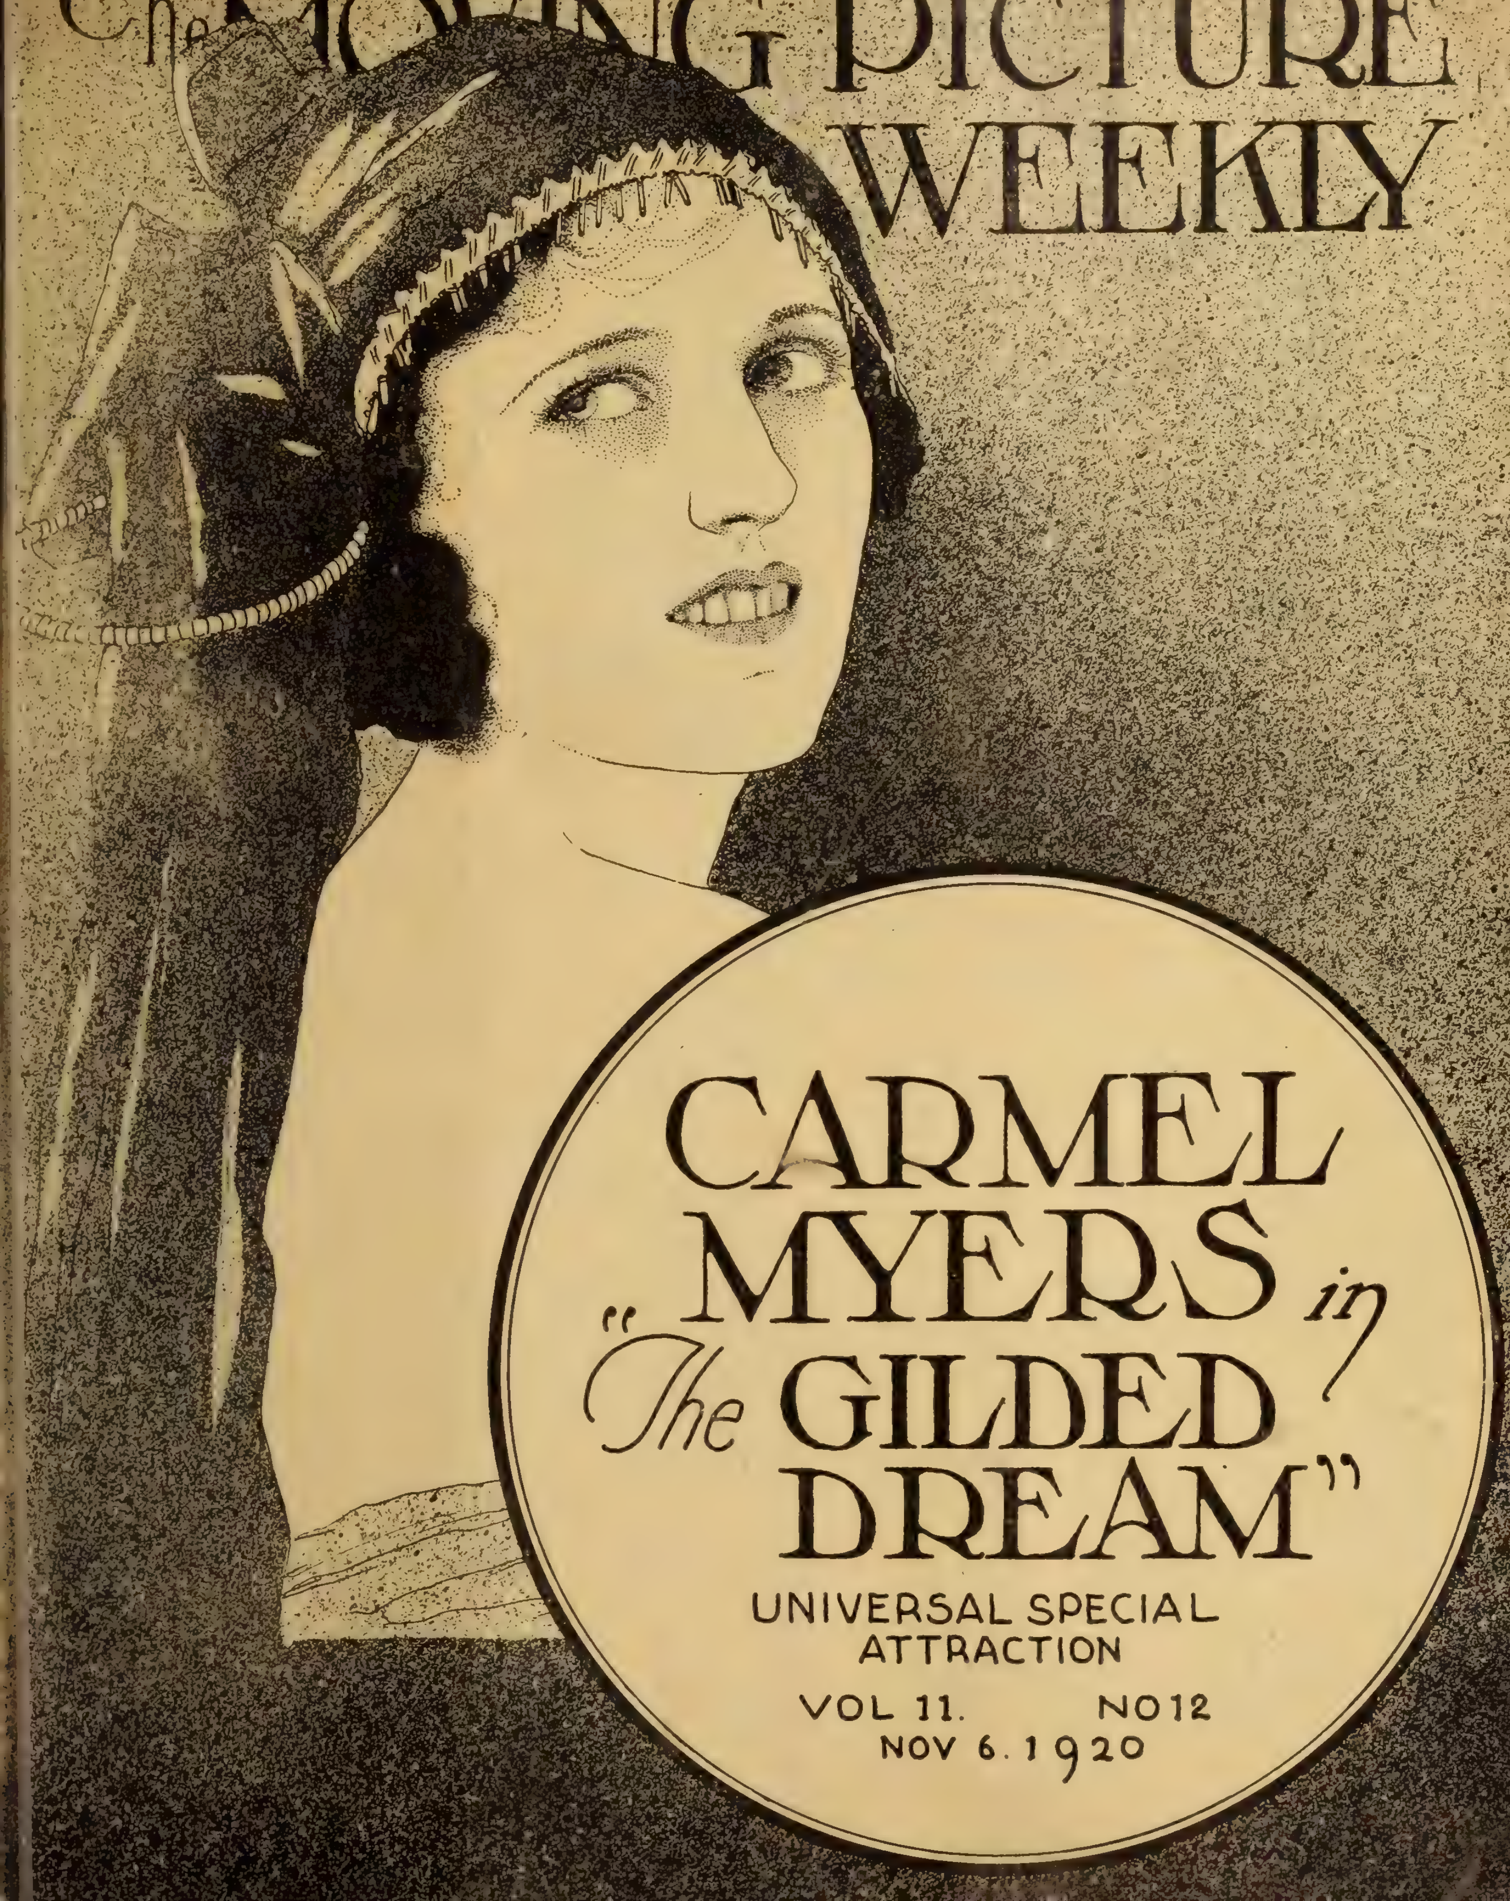
EDDIE POLO





POLO
18 WEEKS OF GASPING THRILLS
UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY



CARMEL
MYERS in
"The GILDED DREAM"

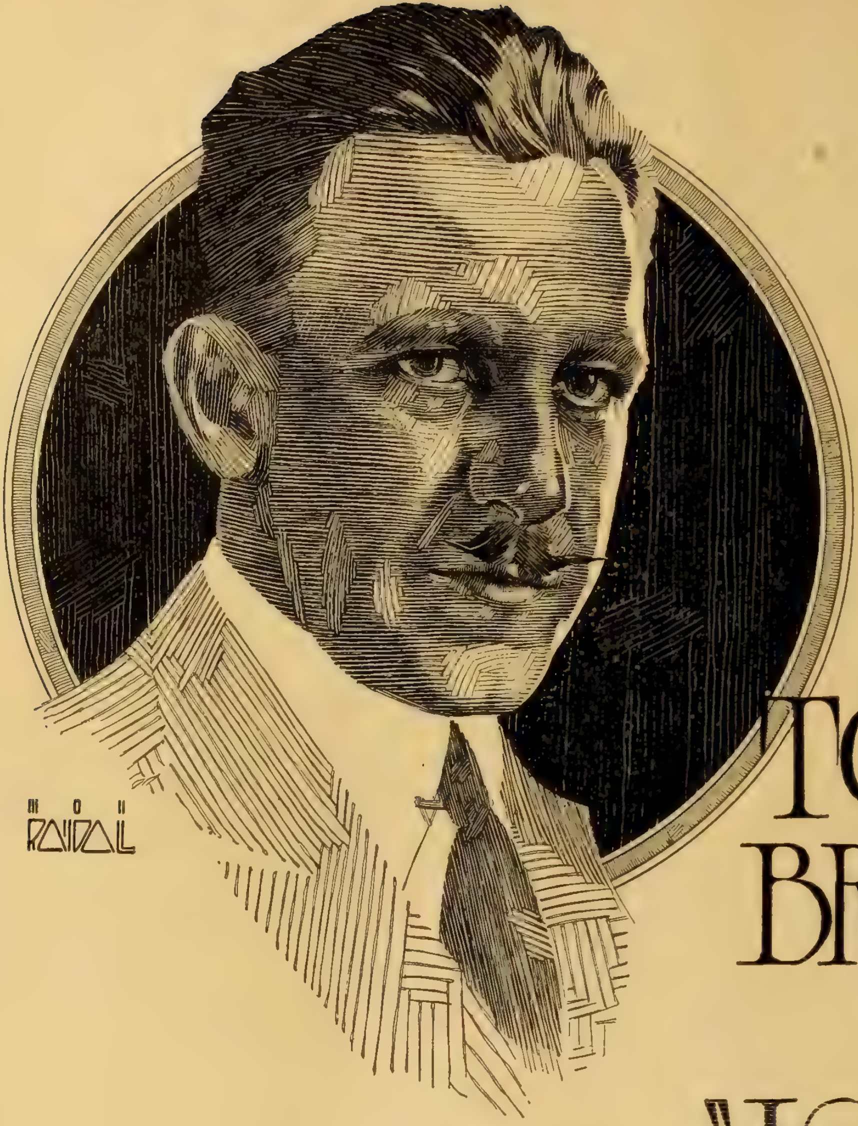
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL
ATTRACTION

VOL 11. NO 12
NOV 6. 1920



TOD BROWNING

says :

"If you liked Priscilla Dean in The Virgin of Stamboul you can get ready for something even better in

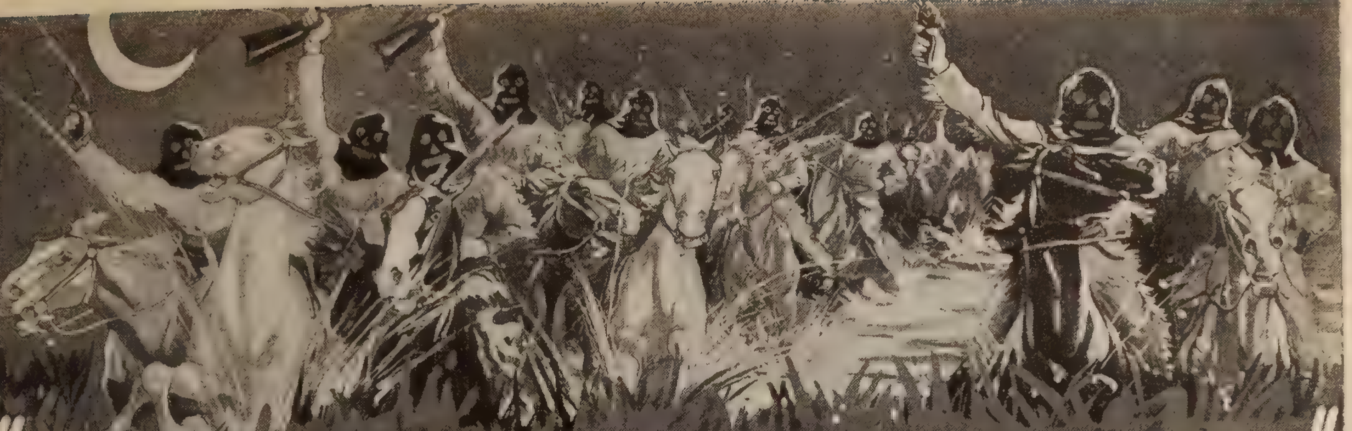
'OUTSIDE THE LAW"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE



"The MOONRIDERS"

The above is a reproduction of the 24 Sheet

Directed by AL RUSSELL

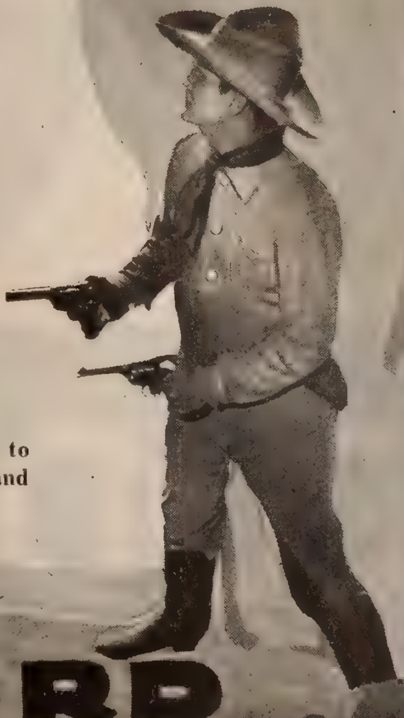
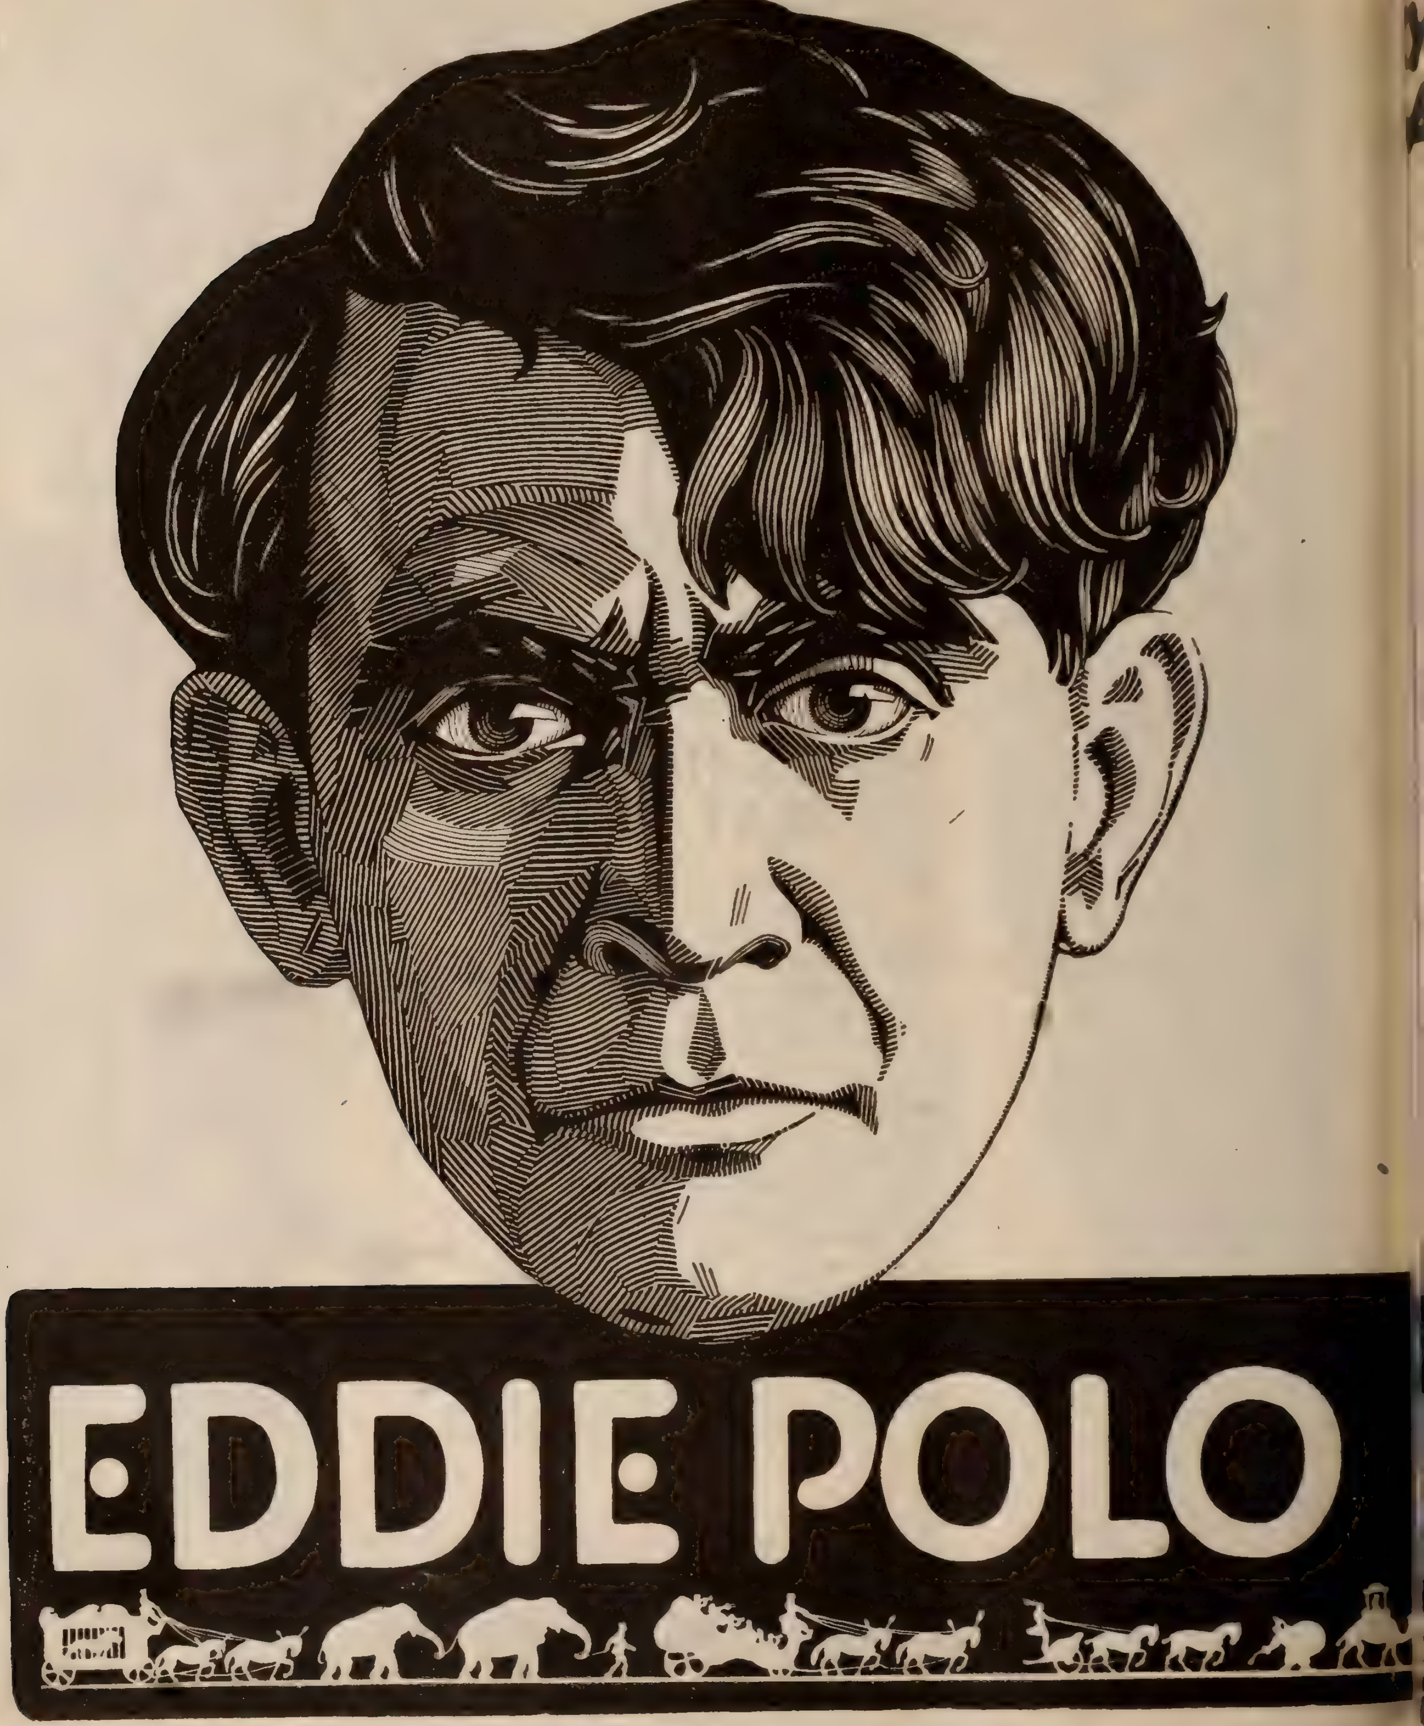
SINGLE-HANDED HE BEAT THEM!

THE Devilmen were riding again that night! Brave men trembled; women wept and held their little ones close. So soul-harrowing were their deeds that none dared even offer them resistance. None but Art Acord, that ice-cool cowpuncher with the double punch; that death-defying man with the courage of a lion and the heart of a superman! How he fought—and won, singlehanded—against the overwhelming odds of this marauding, ghoulish band is but one of the thrills with a choke-and-a-clutch in 'em that run riot throughout this smash-bang-crash serial.

Thousands of exhibitors are playing this serial to capacity houses week after week. Get busy and nail it down today.



ART ACORD



EDDIE POLO

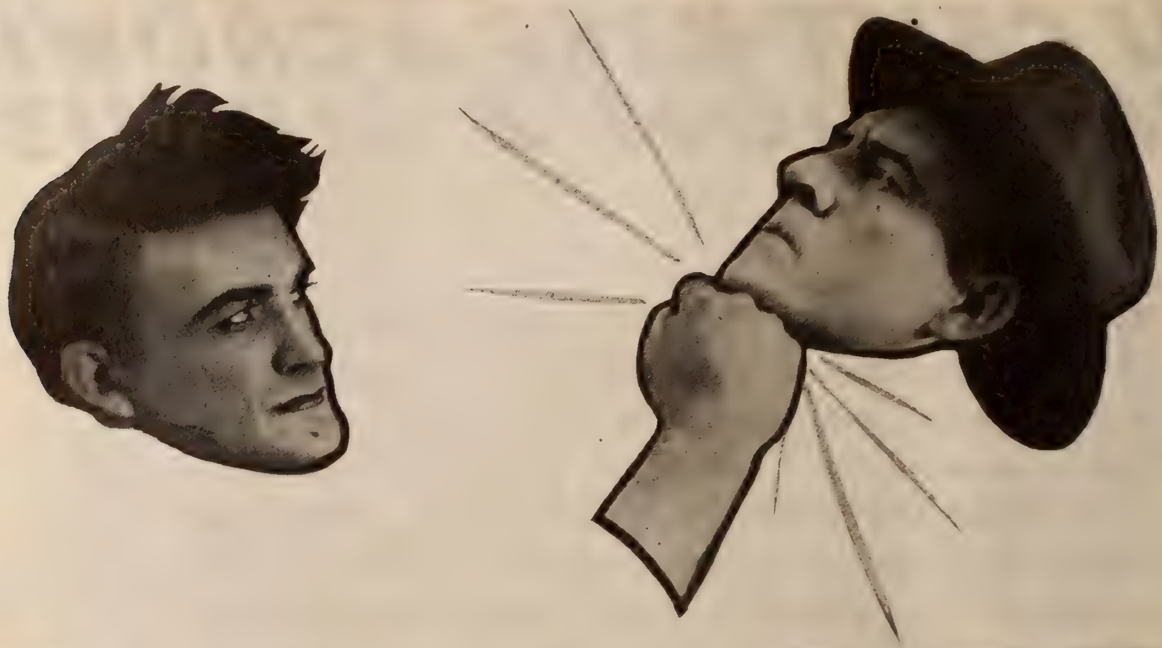
YOU CAN'T KEEP A CROWD AWAY FROM A CIRCUS

YOU know that a circus is the biggest puller in the amusement business; you know, too, that a good serial is a big puller in the picture end of the business—and here you get BOTH A CIRCUS AND A GOOD SERIAL IN ONE. Does that sound like ready money—regular money—BIG money? You know it does—you know with all your good showman's brains that such a combination will stand the acid test of any kind of competition — that it will make money for the exhibitor showing it, and help build up a clientele such as nothing else would. And if for one minute you think that your crowd wouldn't like any serial, no matter how good it was, just ask your boy or anybody's else boy whether or not you ought to run serials—THIS serial, especially. There's something for you to think about!

N THE GORGEOUS 18-RING SERIAL SENSATION

KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN



SMASH!

YES, sir, this crashing serial packs the wallop that wins—the smash that gets the cash and keeps it coming your way for eighteen weeks. This fact is being proved further every day in the hundreds of theatres now presenting this record-breaking, profit-making chapter play. You can bank on this as one of the safest investments of your career—and an investment that gives you immediate and lasting returns. Book it.

ELMO LINCOLN

in the Record Breaking Serial

"ELMO THE FEARLESS"

directed by J.P. Mc Gowan

CASH!

MARIE WALCAMP

The Woman who knows no fear

in
The Only
Serial ever Filmed in CHINA
JAPAN
The PHILIPP-INES
and the
UNITED STATES

The Serial That Travels as It Thrills

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

Directed by HENRY McRAE

The Darling Queen of the Chapter-Play

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Supported by Cleo Madison and Bob Reeves in the Vibrating Serial Sensation

"THE GREAT RADIUM MYSTERY"

Directed by Robert Hill
Made by Pacific Producing Co.
Released thru UNIVERSAL

A SURE 'NUFF KNOCKOUT!

HERE'S a bell-ringer if ever there was one—it's the serial with the punch that pulls and pleases patrons. And if you want to lengthen the line in front of your box office, as hundreds of other exhibitors are doing, there is no better bait to put on the receiving end of the line than—

EDDIE POLO

in the mighty Sea to Sea Serial

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

produced by
POLO
himself

A DOUBLE ROLE for

THE mighty Elmo's mystifying dual role in this blazing serial sensation is proving one of the biggest "come-back" kicks ever put into a chapter play. The younger serial enthusiasts, especially, have become so engrossed in the actionful working out of their favorite's contrasting parts that they can hardly wait for the next episode. In simple language this means that exhibitors are cashing in in a big way on "The Flaming Disk." Have you started running it yet? Now is a good time to go after double profits.

As Elmo Gray,
Cyclonic Secret Service Agent and mighty Champion of Right . . . .

ELMO LINCOLN in

Supported by LOUISE LORRAINE

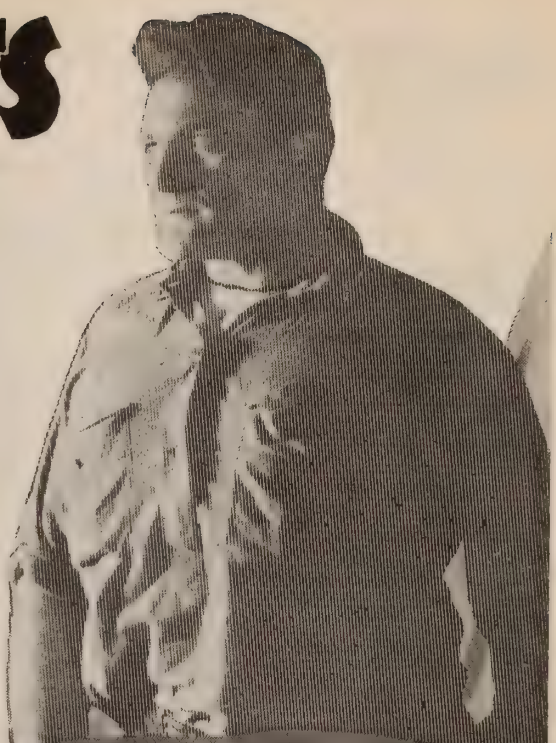
DOUBLE PROFITS



THE prime purpose of a serial from your point of view is, first, to attract a big crowd and then to keep increasingly bigger crowds coming week after week. And when a serial gets under way and "takes" the way this one does you can stake your rent money that it will keep increasingly bigger crowds coming to your house regularly. So—whether or not you ever ran a serial before—it's up to you to consider whether you can afford to pass up a chance for assured profits for eighteen weeks. Don't decide against yourself. Book "The Flaming Disk" right now—today.

As Jim Gray
Elmo's Twin
Brother—hypnotically influenced Tool of a Master-Criminal......

"The FLAMING DISK"

Directed by ROBERT HILL..... Story by ARTHUR HENRY GOODEN

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 11 NOVEMBER 6, 1920. No. 12

EDITORIALS

A SERIAL schedule, including six new episodic thrillers arranged for release so as to extend from October 4, 1920 to November 21, 1921, has recently been announced by Harry M. Berman, general manager of exchanges for Universal. The new serials, three of which are in production, are the most pretentious heretofore projected by the Company. Three stars are being used, Eddie Polo, Eileen Sedgwick and Elmo Lincoln. Each is to make two serials of eighteen episodes each. This schedule follows the "Full House Five" series of Universal serials.

The first chaptered photoplay under the 1920-1921 plan is "The Flaming Disk" starring Elmo Lincoln, known as the strong man of the films. It is now being released with Louise Lorraine playing the feminine lead and with Robert F. Hill as director.

The second serial will be Eddie Polo in "King of the Circus," the story of which is written around Polo's own childhood and early life with the circus. No expense has been spared in creating circus atmosphere for this serial and many of the shots included therein are pictures of actual circuses in various parts of the country with Polo and other members of his company substituting for the performers. Corrine Porter, a daring and beautiful actress, a newcomer to Universal, supports Eddie Polo as leading lady and J. P. McGowan is co-operating with Polo in the direction.

The third offering in Universal's coming serial program is "The Diamond Queen" an adventuresome story of many thrills adapted from the famous novel by Jacques Futrelle entitled "The Diamond Master." The plot has been adapted so that the leading role can be allotted to Eileen Sedgwick, Universal's blonde-haired serial star, last seen in "The Great Radium Mystery." Edward Kull is handling the megaphone.

"Our 1920-1921 schedule of serials is planned to be the biggest collection of box-office winners ever turned out," said Mr. Berman, discussing the serial situation. "The growth in popular demand for serial pictures has surprised us in the last twelve months, but it has not caught us napping. Spurred to the highest efficiency by the making of the "Full House Five," our serial experts were in a position to throw themselves vigorously into the struggle for better serials for the new year."

"Drawn by the unusual types of adventure stories incorporated in Universal serials, and by the actual foreign scenes and foreign people shown, as exemplified particularly in "The Dragon's Net," an educated class of photoplay patrons is coming to recognize in the better class of serials a screen substitute for the serial adventure story found in magazines or the often-read novel of travel and adventure. And it is to this movement and readjustment of the serial-loving public that Universal is catering."

IT is seldom that a disinterested photoplay fan takes the trouble to write directly to a moving picture producer, either panning or praising a production, but once in a while some voluntary letter finds its way into the office of a film company and gives added inspiration to the makers of pictures by its sincerity.

Just such a letter recently was received by Mr. R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. It was written by Mr. William V. Saxe, a prominent New York lawyer. He wrote as follows:

"In one respect this letter is virginal; it is the first testimonial I have ever written. Years ago I became so fed up with the 'I-had-a-wart-on-the-back-of-my-neck-that-I-used -for-a-collarbutton,- but-after-three-ounces-of- your-marvelous -medicine-I-am -able-to-use-it-for-a- coathanger style of advertising, that I made a mental reservation never to sling praise that stood a chance of being reprinted with my picture on the top of it. But this is different."

"'The Devil's Pass Key' has made me do two things I never expected to do; go three times to the same photoplay, and drag out my Corona and 'strictly personal' stationery to tell you that it is the finest all-around motion picture I have ever witnessed."

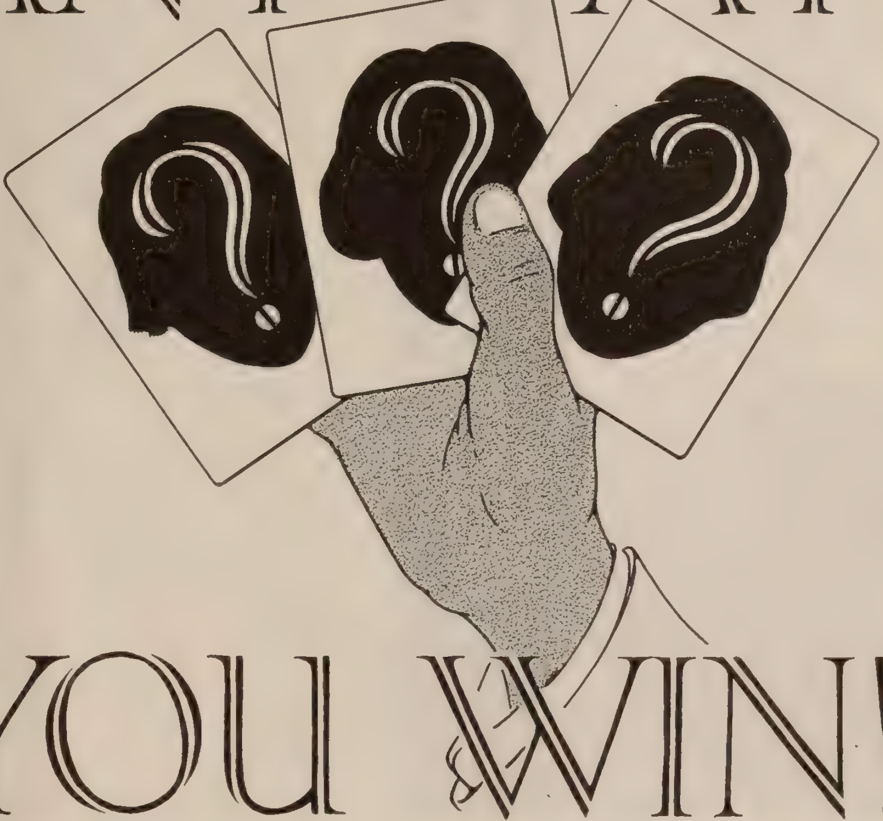
MR. ABE STERN, treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and Mrs. Stern, his brother, Mr. Julius Stern of the L-Ko Company, and others of their family, returned to this country from Europe last Saturday, aboard the liner, Mauretania. The Stern brothers went abroad with Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, four months ago. Mr. Laemmle is still in Europe.

The Universal treasurer came back enthusiastic over the continued good outlook for American films in Europe.

"Despite reports I have seen and heard to the contrary," he said, "the film producers in Europe are far behind the status of the industry in the United States. I would not want to say that they ever will catch up to us. I have been in six European countries recently, and nowhere did I find the general opinion in favor of the home-production compared to American photoplays."

Mr. Stern and his party spent many days going over the battlefields in Northern France. Assisted by European representatives of the Universal, they looked up the graves of several former Universal employes who were killed in action in the vicinity of Soissons and Rheims, decorating them, and arranging with near-by villagers to care for them continually.

ANY WAY



YOU WIN!

WHAT'S WHAT

In conjunction with the "Dramatic Mirror," the nationally known screen and stage weekly, Universal has opened a great country-wide contest. It is intended that three girls selected from among the contestants shall be engaged at a generous salary to appear in Universal Pictures. In addition, there will be presented to each girl putting forth a certain degree of effort, a beautiful strand of Nataline Pearls plus her commission.

HERE'S HOW

The only thing required is that each contestant secure subscriptions for this justly famous publication. With what ease and simplicity this can be done is too self-apparent to need further comment here. Of course, a good deal will depend upon the publicity and the follow-up methods employed by the local theatre.

WHAT THE GIRLS WIN

Deep down in every girl's heart there is a rooted desire to appear upon the screen. Here is her opportunity! Explain to the girls in your town what this may mean to them; also, that there are the consolation prizes mentioned in the other column.

WHAT YOU WIN

For YOURSELF—publicity and prominence worth many thousands of dollars.

For your THEATRE—Consistent, steady, large audiences.

For your BOX OFFICE—receipts that will equal and surpass any in the past.

AND THIS—the possible fulfillment of a long-cherished desire to assume the rank of the "leading house in town" and the certain prestige that goes with it.

Take advantage of this contest and write for particulars to the "Dramatic Mirror," 133 West 44th Street, N. Y. C.

Novelties Promised In Coming Special Attractions

Eva Novak in Universal Special Attractions.

WITH the recent release of Gladys Walton in "Pink Tights," Harry Carey in "Sundown Slim" and Frank Mayo in "The Marriage Pit," three productions are open for the exhibitor which are full of charm, excitement and interest; three productions the making of which consumed months of tireless energy on the part of the stars, the director and the companies. The "tireless energy" is not being diminished in the least, however, and there is some mighty hard work being done right now at Universal City on coming special attractions.

Three of them are practically completed. They are "Wanted At Headquarters," directed by Stuart Paton and introducing as a star a dazzling blonde beauty, Eva Novak, sister to the famous Jane, and dealing with the life of crimesters and their deeds of skill and cunning; Carmel Myers in the second of those delightful society dramas of which she is to make eight, entitled "The Gilded Dream," again directed by Rollin Sturgeon and Lyons-Moran in the fourth of their five-reel "knockouts." "Fixed By George," again directed and edited by themselves, in which they will be supported by four charming girls.

There have been few stars more active than Harry Carey in the past few weeks. He has had his entire company down at Jerome, Arizona, shooting scenes in and around the famous copper mines there for his next picture, "West Is West," by that famous author of rugged western tales. Eugene Manlove Rhodes. "West Is West" will again be directed by Val Paul, will include the petite Mignonne in the cast, Carey's recent "Find," and will be released about the middle of November. Following close on its heels will come Frank Mayo's next special attraction "Honor Bound." This is a story by Jacques Jaccard and is directed by him. It has a most unusual setting in the big rubber country in South America, and it is a fascinating tale of a man's ideals, his love of a woman and the adventure and excitement that is usually connected with a wild country unhampered by the laws of civilization.

When Carmel Myers returned to the screen, her reappearance on the silver sheet was awaited with the keenest interest, for movie-goers wanted to see what a successful year in musical comedy had done for Carmel. They were not disappointed in any of their high hopes of her, for "In Folly's Trail" was a delight and Carmel was a marvel. Now comes "The Gilded Dream," and following upon that another picture of society folk and their doings, tentatively entitled "The Orchid" which will probably be released late in November. "The Orchid" has an added novadded novelty in the person of its director, Marcel de Sano, a newcomer, still in his twenties, who is said to be in a class all by himself.

Eva Novak follows up the thrilling "Wanted At Headquarters" with a totally different kind of a picture, entitled "The Torrent," which tells the story of a loveless marriage, a life almost wrecked, a lot of adventure and final happiness. This picture will again be directed by Stuart Paton and will give Eva an opportunity to portray a woman from many different angles, which Eva can do quite deftly.

When Gladys Walton first appeared as a star in "Pink Tights" the critics were so loud in their praises of her charm and talents that Universal went right out on a hunting trip to find something really good for her next appearance. It has been found and is known as "Risky Business" and some litle flapper Gladys will portray in this picture!

Edith Roberts, who enchanted everyone with her portrayal of the half-breed in "The Adorable Savage," is back at Universal City now, after her first vacation in years, which she spent in New York City, where she delighted all the members of Universal's Eastern center with her vivacity and spontaneity. Edith will have another adorable role in "White Youth," a beautiful story of love and girlhood written by those well-known playwrights, Clara Beranger and Forrest Halsey. She will again be directed by Norman Dawn, who was responsible for "The Adorable Savage."

It is a large order that Universal has in hand on the special attractions, but the efforts being expended are huge, and the forthcoming productions of this class should be looked forward to with interest by every exhibitor.

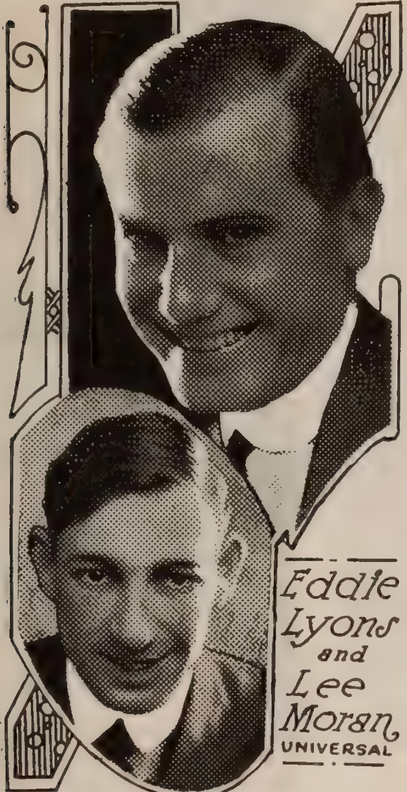
Here's How He Likes The Special Attractions

"I just finished playing 'Blue Streak McCoy,' and I liked it so well that I want to tell you about it. That is certainly a regular picture. I wish that a Fox man had been there; I know that Tom Mix never made anything in a class with it."

"I did a nice business to-night, and people were more than pleased with the picture."

J. H. EBERSOLE, Manager,
Majestic Theatre,
Avoca, Iowa.

Service Page For Lyons-Moran In "Fixed By George"



Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran
UNIVERSAL

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Fixed By George."

STARS—Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Everything But the Truth," "La La Lucille," "Once a Plumber," etc.

STORY BY—Edgar Franklin.

SCENARIO BY—C. B. Hoadley.

SUPPORTING CAST—Beatrice La Plante, Hazel Howell, Daisy Robinson, Maude Wayne, Frank Gamble, Earl Martin, Jack Bryon.

LOCALE—A large city—a mountain lodge.

TIME—The present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a young physician whose success in treating feminine patients with "nerves" arouses his young wife's jealousy; of a meddlesome friend whose efforts to "fix" the domestic break entangles everyone concerned in a series of ludicrous situations from which they are finally saved by the doctor's ingenuity.

CAST

George	Lee Moran
Geraldine (his wife)	Hazel Howell
Dr. Poole	Eddie Lyons
Margery (his wife),	Beatrice La Plante
Father Starr	Fred Gamble
Angelica Starr	Daisy Robinson
Sam Sorley	Earl Martin
Harry Starr	Jack Byron
Helen	Maude Wayne

GEORGE DARE, married and frequently miserable, has an unhappy faculty of interesting himself in matters which ought not to concern him.

Dr. Arthur Poole is a rising young physician, and specializes in nervous diseases. Doc has for a patient Angelica Starr, the pampered daughter of millionaire Starr. Angelica has nerves and Starr is not averse to having them eradicated at the greatest possible cost by an expensive specialist. Doc Poole makes the treatment so pleasant that Angelica forms an attachment for the handsome physician.

Poole is married and his wife, Margery, is jealous of the doctor and his handsome patients. Doc is nothing if not thorough, and he escorts Angelica to places of amusement—to divert her mind from her shattered nerves. This professional solicitude does not meet with the wife's approval.

George has had a quarrel with his wife, Geraldine, and she has gone to her sister's house. Margery comes to visit her during her absence. George is home and Margery—keen to divide her secret—tells him of her domestic affairs. George has a brilliant idea.

He will assist Margery and they will expose Doc. They will decoy Doc and his fair patient to a vacant house owned by George's aunt and then bring on the climax that will restore domestic happiness to Margery.

George writes Poole a letter and the doctor is keen for the adventure.

Starr's son wishes to marry Helen, but she is a business woman and his father objects. Helen writes old Starr a note making an appointment with him at a designated place, and he "falls for it."

The stage is all set. George and Margery go to the vacant house up in the country. Unknown to them Helen has rented the house to entertain old Starr. She expects to compromise him and force him to consent to her marrying his son. George and Margery arrive and have their car stolen, as planned by Helen, who only expects Starr.

Doc and Angelica arrive and have their car stolen and are forced to meet George. Margery has seen her husband and hides in a bedroom. Doc berates George. And to make matters worse it is raining.

Geraldine, George's wife, has returned home and the cook, having listened, tells her all about it. Geraldine starts for the vacant house to take matters into her own hands.

Helen, made up like a movie vamp, deceives all who come in contact with her. Angelica develops a case of hysteria and insists that the doctor, who has represented himself to the Starr family as a bachelor, should marry her.

The complications come thick and fast. Geraldine arrives and starts something. Both wives are in hiding. Helen is having guests galore.

Old Starr appears and is vamped by Helen. Young Starr, the fiance of Helen, arrives, accompanied by Sorley, the intended husband of Angelica, and excitement reaches fever heat.

Finally, by the aid of some plain and fancy lying, George straightens out matters, and the story ends in a gale of laughter.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Your joy carburetor on the blink? Never mind—it'll be "Fixed by George."

Whose wife are you? Don't answer until you see how a marital mix-up was "Fixed by George."

For once George failed to argue. "George," the doctor had said, "Make Love To My Wife!" See Lyons and Moran in "Fixed by George."

He was the doctor but he let George do it—and things certainly were "Fixed by George."

A wild party for four was "Fixed by George." George took the doctor's wife and the doctor took his pretty patient. But in came the pretty patient's impatient parent. Also his son and his son's vamp fiancee and his daughter's promised fiance and even George's wife. It was a vicious circle—especially for George. See Lyons and Moran in "Fixed by George."

You'll Meet Them Pretty Soon

FROM left to right they are Maude Wayne, Daisy Robinson, Beatrice La Plante and Hazel Howell, and they are as pretty and charming a collection of girls as can be found anywhere. And they are all four of them going to appear in one picture. And that picture is "Fixed By George," in which Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran will next be flashed on the screen. Eddie and Lee know that the first requisite for a comedy is laughter, but they haven't forgotten that the second is attractive femininity, and they have got a quartette this time that is beautiful and that can act in addition.

Two years ago Hazel Howell, who plays the wife to Lee Moran in the picture, was delighting New York theatregoers with her singing and dancing in "Flo Flo," a musical show which enjoyed a season's run on Broadway. Notwithstanding the fact that Miss Howell was born in Pomona, California, just a few miles from Los Angeles, in the days when motion picture dramas were in their infancy, it was not till after she had gone to New York and won success on the stage that she was able to return to her native state and gain recognition on the screen.

Beatrice La Plante, who plays the wife to Eddie Lyons, is a vivacious little French comedienne, who has all the charm and spontaneity of the women of her race. She, too, has appeared in pictures with numerous other celebrities. And Maude Wayne, who plays the gorgeous vamp once enhanced the Mack Sennett comedies with her enticing beauty.

One of the most difficult roles in "Fixed By George" has been entrusted to Daisy Robinson, who plays the part of the fashionable young invalid whose temperamental nerves cause most of the complications in the story. Miss Robinson has been an actress all her life, and is by experience and natural ability well fitted to undertake any role, however difficult. She was one of the children in "Peter Pan" with the famous Maude Adams; she has played in stock in several large cities; she has had a part in a recent revival of that famous classic "Ben Hur" and New York has seen her in a number of roles in dramatic successes.

"Fixed By George" has all the esential qualities of a big comedy picture. It has two capable and popular stars, Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, four charming young leading ladies, plenty of good, clean and wholesome fun, and a big dose of animated action.

They've Done It Again

A STRIKING victory for news reel producers in their fight to put the news reel camera-reporters on a par with straight news reporters in the right of entry to news events developed at the recent race between Man o' War and Sir Barton.

When arrangements for covering the race by news reel were being made, it was found that the racing association had sold exclusive rights to take moving pictures inside the enclosure to an independent film company.

Led by International, the various news reel companies put up a lively fight, but were unsuccessful in gaining admission to the race course. News instincts admit of no defeat, however. Representatives of the several news reels put their heads together and then hired carpenters to construct a platform outside the enclosure.

The race pictures obtained in this manner by International were released in International News No. 70. They were shown on Broadway in the Capitol Theatre beginning Sunday, October 17.

Publicity Stories For Lyons-Moran In "Fixed By George"

Eddie Lyons
and Lee Moran
in "FIXED BY GEORGE"
UNIVERSAL

GOOD TASTE EVIDENT IN LYONS-MORAN PICTURES

EDDIE LYONS and Lee Moran are here to refute the assertion that the English people are deficient in their sense of humor. The comedies made for a number of years by these popular Universal stars have a wide circulation in England, Australia, New Zealand, India and other British possessions, and they have received some of the most appreciative letters from motion picture fans in those countries. And Lyons and Moran have never gone in for the obvious sort of comedy—the slapstick variety which will get a laugh from an Eskimo or Fiji Islander because of its very crudeness. Their fun films have always been characterized by good taste and a certain degree of subtlety which appeals to the intelligent lover of laughter.

"I don't know how the impression has spread that the English are dull when it comes to seeing the humorous angle of a situation," recently remarked Eddie Lyons. "A country that has produced such humorists as James M. Barrie and George Bernard Shaw is certainly not to be accused of lacking a fine perception of wit. Some will say that Barrie is a Scotchman and Shaw an Irishman; but they have written for the English public, and it is London that set the seal of approval on their literary and dramatic efforts."

"We have had hundreds of letters from movie goers in England," added Lee Moran, "that prove clearly that as a nation their sense of humor is very keen.

Lyons and Moran's latest comedy feature, "Fixed By George," will be shown at the ——— Theatre next ———.

NEW COMEDY SURPASSES STARS' EARLIER SUCCESSES

"FIXED BY GEORGE," the latest Universal comedy feature, starring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, represents one of the most perfect combinations for screen success to be found anywhere. First, there are Lyons and Moran, whose record of successful comedies stands alone in the world of the motion picture. Over two hundred comedies have been produced by these prolific mirth creators, and every one of them has been a hit in its class. They started with the unpretentious single reelers six years ago, and though lacking the "class" and perfection of their later productions, they were characterized by good taste, wholesome humor, smart clothes and an utter lack for the horseplay and crude wit which passed for comedy in those days. They improved their productions as the screen progressed in importance, and their two-reel comedies were the leaders in their particular class. A year ago the demand came from all over the country for more pretentious productions for Lyons and Moran, and Universal decided to have them produce five-reel features of stage successes and the best humorous stories of the magazines. The success they have scored with their first three features is well known to everyone, and "Fixed By George," their latest effort, is said to surpass its predecessors.

Another factor in the combination is Edgar Franklin, well known dramatist and magazine writer, who has furnished Lyons and Moran much humorous material in the past. "Everything but the Truth" and "Once a Plumber," two of their biggest hits, were from Edgar Franklin's pen, and he is also the author of "Fixed By George," to be seen next week at the ——— Theatre.

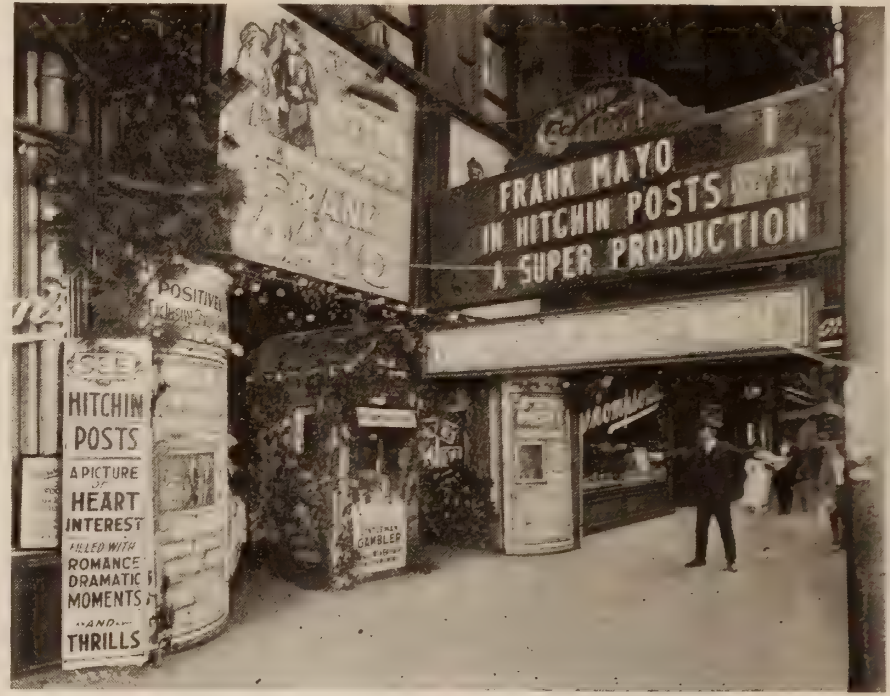
LYONS-MORAN INNOVATED NEW IDEA IN FILM COMEDY

YEARS ago, when screen comedies were in their infancy, audiences were led to believe that a battered derby, a ragged coat and over-size shoes were the chief articles of a comedian's wardrobe. The impression was also current that scraggly whiskers, a fantastic moustache and a putty nose proclaimed the screen humorist. As for the "props" of the laugh-maker's trade, they consisted principally of stuffed clubs, inflated bladders, plaster bottles and over-ripe custard pies.

About six years ago two young men who had been making audiences laugh in musical comedy and in vaudeville, using legitimate methods and dressing in the height of fashion, decided that if audiences in a legitimate theatre, could be amused by such methods, there was no reason on earth why patrons of motion picture theatres could not be made to laugh in a similar manner. Universal thought the idea worth trying, and the Lyons and Moran comedies were launched. They were a success from the start. Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran proved that it was not necessary to make up and dress like a scarecrow to be funny, or to hurl edibles at each other to provoke the audience to laughter. Bright situations cleverly presented, smart clothes, attractive settings and locations and clever titles proved just as funny, much more wholesome, and brought audiences back instead of disgusting them.

"Fixed By George," the latest of the Lyon-Moran five-reelers will be seen next week at the ———Theatre.

Woman Exhibitor Devises Interesting Display



FRANK MAYO
IN HITCHIN POSTS
A SUPER PRODUCTION
HITCHIN POSTS
A PICTURE OF HEART INTEREST
FILLED WITH ROMANCE DRAMATIC MOMENTS AND THRILLS POSITIVE
GAMBLER

Lobby display of Casino Theatre, Chicago, Ill., for Frank Mayo in the special attraction, "Hitchin' Posts."

THE manager of the Casino Theatre out in the Windy City, is a very enterprising lady who is always on the job as far as publicity for her pictures is concerned. Mrs. Emma Cohen is her name and Mrs. Cohen knows a good picture when she sees one. She knew that Frank Mayo in "Hitchin' Posts" was a great production and she backed it up by an emphatic and taking lobby display. And she drew the crowds and made big money on her picture. Mrs. Cohen is keen on using lobby displays in connection with the productions and she attributes a considerable portion of her financial success with the productions to the efforts she expends in arousing interest by decorating the available conspicuous space which her theatre has.

Mayo has made another picture since "Hitchin' Posts," called "The Marriage Pit," and although it is a vastly interesting one, and much in demand, it is in no way detracting from the popularity of "Hitchin' Posts," his earlier release. This story of post war days on the great Mississippi and in the adjoining country, is full of romance, adventure and quick action, and is just the role for Mayo, virile, romantic and versatile actor that he is. Mayo is now working on his next production, "Honor Bound," from the pen of Jacques Jaccard, who is also directing the production. It is a picture of the big rubber country in South America, and it has a big role in it for the star, who, as usual, will be surrounded by a capable cast.

Frank Mayo is worth any added publicity that the exhibitor backs him up with, for he has made his own niche in the movie hall of fame, and his popularity is something stable and lasting. Other exhibitors can "cash in" on him just as did the enterprising manager of the Casino Theatre.

HERE'S A SPECIAL ATTRACTION WITH A SERIAL THRILL!

CLINGING for four hours to the front of a speeding Southern Pacific locomotive while filming night stuff for "Wanted At Headquarters" on the main tracks in the Newhall tunnel near Los Angeles, didn't phase plucky Eva Novak nor her director, Stuart Paton.

Although they were almost suffocated by smoke and gases from the engine when it sped through the long tunnel, the Universal star and producer stuck sturdily with the cameraman. Sixty members of the cast and producing staff were used in the scenes, which show the kidnapping of an armored express training containing a $10,000,000 shipment of gold bars by a gang of super-crooks.

One of the enormous lights used for long shots at night was mounted on the locomotive to light the track for half a mile ahead. The electricity to feed the light was supplied by a special equipment of motor-generators carried on a flatcar trailer. A day coach was also provided as a lounging and rest room for those of the company not actively appearing in the scenes.

The train operated on the main track, and the crew kept in touch with the division dispatcher at Los Angeles and moved it to a siding when the regular passenger trains headed for points north and east thundered through.

The company worked four days with the locomotives, the rent for which approached the $6,000 mark. Other scenes were made on a siding at Pacoima, Cal., and about a rock quarry there.

"Wanted At Headquarters" is from the story by Edgar Wallace, picturized by Wallace Clifton.

LYONS-MORAN MAKE THEIR BOW IN SOCIETY

WHEN David Robbins, chief of the projection department of Universal's New York office, recently celebrated in honor of his young son Morton's birthday, he arranged a private showing in the living room of his home of "Once A Plumber," featuring Lyons-Moran. Using a small home projector, he ran the picture off in great style. The neighborhood had gotten wind of the affair beforehand and as Lyons-Moran were as popular there as everywhere else, Dave had a lot of unbidden guests, whom he good-naturedly welcomed. "Once A Plumber" proved a "knockout" and this private showing helped the neighborhood theatres when they offered this attraction, for the stories of its super-qualities got around in double-quick time.

Service Page For

Carmel Myers in "The Gilded Dream"

Carmel Myers
UNIVERSAL

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Gilded Dream."

STAR—Carmel Myers.

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Dream Lady," "His Unmarried Wife," "The Little White Savage," "In Folly's Trail."

DIRECTED BY—Rollin Sturgeon.

STORY BY—Katherine Leiser Robbins.

SCENARIO BY—Doris Schroeder.

SUPPORTING CAST—Thomas Chatterton, Elsa Lorimer, Boyd Irwin, Edward Tilton, Edwin Dennis.

LOCALE—A small town; New York City.

TIME—The present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a girl who cherishes through a drab existence the dream of a rosy future, and the results which follow her plans to make that dream a reality.

CAST

Leona	Carmel Myers
Jasper	Thomas Chatterton
Geraldine	Elsa Lorimer
The Attorney	Edward Tilton
Frazer Boynton	Boyd Irwin
Alex	Eddie Dennis

THE STORY

LEONA is a dreamer of dreams—in whose small town there is no opportunity for the finer things of life—the things which her mother, an ex-society woman, has often told her of. Now an orphan, Leona lives in dreams of a golden future—a future which seems long distant if even possible. Then, into the sordid present, with its hard work at the millinery shop, comes the good news of the legacy which makes possible the realization of the first step toward her golden goal.

Leona goes to New York City and is taken under the wing of her godmother, Geraldine de Forest, an old chum of her mother's. There she starts an intensive campaign to achieve a gilded marriage. She has youth and beauty and undeniable charm—and her way seems smooth. Frazer Boynton, a millionaire, falls in love with her and proposes. This seems the goal of her dreams—although by now she has met another man, a lovable idler, Jap Holroyd. At his meeting with Leona all is changed, for from then on he is devoted solely to her. She finds herself inclining more and more toward Jap, and is repeatedly warned by Geraldine, who is jealous.

Leona accepts Boynton after a bitter disillusionment concerning Jasper Holroyd, and tries to forget Holroyd in the glamor of the gilded dream. She seems succeeding, when other influences threaten the barque of her dreams. An obnoxious country lover visits her and has to be disposed of.

Leona is becoming more and more disillusioned with life and more miserable each day. Then Jap comes to the country place where she and Geraldine have gone for vacation—he is on his way to San Francisco to engage in big work there. An accident occurs—and Leona, rescued by Jap, finds the truth out about herself at last. She finds that she loves Jap, worthy or unworthy—and that in pursuing her gilded dream she has become as the people with whom she has associated in New York. She determines to leave them, and go to work—to find her dreams by her own effort and work. She breaks her engagement with Boynton, which so enrages Geraldine because of the scandal it will create, that Geraldine orders her from the house and declines to have any more to do with her. Geraldine admits her accusation against Jap was a lie.

Penniless, but with renewed self-respect, she starts off to the city, but Jap is waiting—and they have mutual explanations.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

You can't sell your love and keep it too. This is the lesson Carmel Myers learns in "The Gilded Dream."

Leona the girl loved money; but Leona the woman loved love. See Carmel Myers in "The Gilded Dream."

"If I ever marry, it will be for money—the only thing that brings real happiness" said Leona. But women change their minds. See Carmel Myers in "The Gilded Dream."

In a fantastic boudoir two designing Daughters of Eve planned their amazing conspiracy against the well-being of the state of bachelorhood. See "The Gilded Dream" with Carmel Myers.

High brows and low necks, cold baths and hot intrigues—that was the life Leona longed for in the circles in which dull husbands and frivolous wives let each other severely alone. How she fared is told in "The Gilded Dream" with Carmel Myers.

Usable Publicity Stories for Carmel Myers in "The Gilded Dream"

CARMEL MYERS MEANS YOUTH AND VIVACITY

CARMEL MYERS is the Peter Pan of the screen. Although this fascinating young California girl has won success as a star on the silver sheet and on the Broadway stage, she has never quite grown up. The unquenchable spirit of youth is just as vital to Miss Myers to-day as it was a few years ago when she was attending school. She is a rare combination of dignified star and mischievous youngster, and neither phase of Carmel is a pose.

One moment she will be discussing with her director, Rollin Sturgeon, the technical points of a scenario, and five minutes later she may be found in her dressing room busy on a wardrobe for a row of kewpies. You may find her between scenes poring over a draft of the League of Nations or deeply interested in a volume of history or philosophy, and an hour later she will be reading a book of fairy tales or getting a kick out of the colored supplement of a Sunday newspaper. She amuses herself at times by writing detailed criticisms of books she has read or plays or pictures she has seen, and then again she may be composing a series of frivolous limericks compared to which the rhymes of Mother Goose are deep and serious.

It is this unconquerable fire of youth that adds zest and charm to every character Miss Myers portrays on the screen. It is this spirit which urged her to go to New York and win a name on the stage after she had starred in the films for two years. After her conquest of Broadway she returned to Universal City and appeared in "In Folly's Trail," which scored such a huge success that she was immediately starred in "The Gilded Dream," by the same author and with the same director. This picture is soon to be seen at the ———— Theatre.

"The Gilded Dream" is a notable production in that its cast includes in addition to the youthful and vivacious star ,an actor of the charm and finish of Thomas Chatterton, who marries the lovely Miss Myers in the picture's close, an actress as adept as Elsa Lorimer, who portrays a difficult role with the most convincing reality, and Boyd Irwin, who, as the "genteel heavy," almost marries the lovely heroine to himself and his millions, but is disappointed at the eleventh hour. Mr. Irwin is an English actor who did considerable screen service in a big film produced in Australia.

LEADING MAN PURSUES NUMEROUS ACTIVITIES

THOMAS CHATTERTON, who plays opposite Carmel Myers in her newest photdrama, "The Gilded Dream," which is to be seen at the ——— Theatre on ————, has won success on the stage, on the screen, as a director, in the world of business and as an inventor.

Carmel Myers in "THE GILDED DREAM" UNIVERSAL

On the stage he has played parts since he was a youngster. He played in "The Man of the Hour," "What Happened To Jones," "Lovers Lane" and other successes. He played stock engagements in various cities, and on four different occasions played juveniles and leading roles at the Alcazar in San Francisco. He first became associated with the screen when Thos. Ince engaged him to direct for him about six years ago. He was with Ince in that capacity for two years, playing leading roles and heavies in many of the stories he directed. Then he occupied a similar position with the American company, after which he returned to the spoken drama for a time. He has recently played leading roles with Enid Bennett and Peggy Hyland.

Thomas Chatterton is the originator of the Chatterton System of Bakeries, a million and a half dollar corporation with stores in every large city west of the Rockies. His system of baking bread under ideally sanitary conditions is patented, and he draws a royalty from the companies using his process.

He is now employing his spare time in perfecting a stereoscopic lens which will give depth and definition to a motion picture as it is thrown on the screen. He reports that he has worked up the idea, which only needs simplifying and refining.

ACTRESS' GOWNS CREATE A SENSATION ON SCREEN

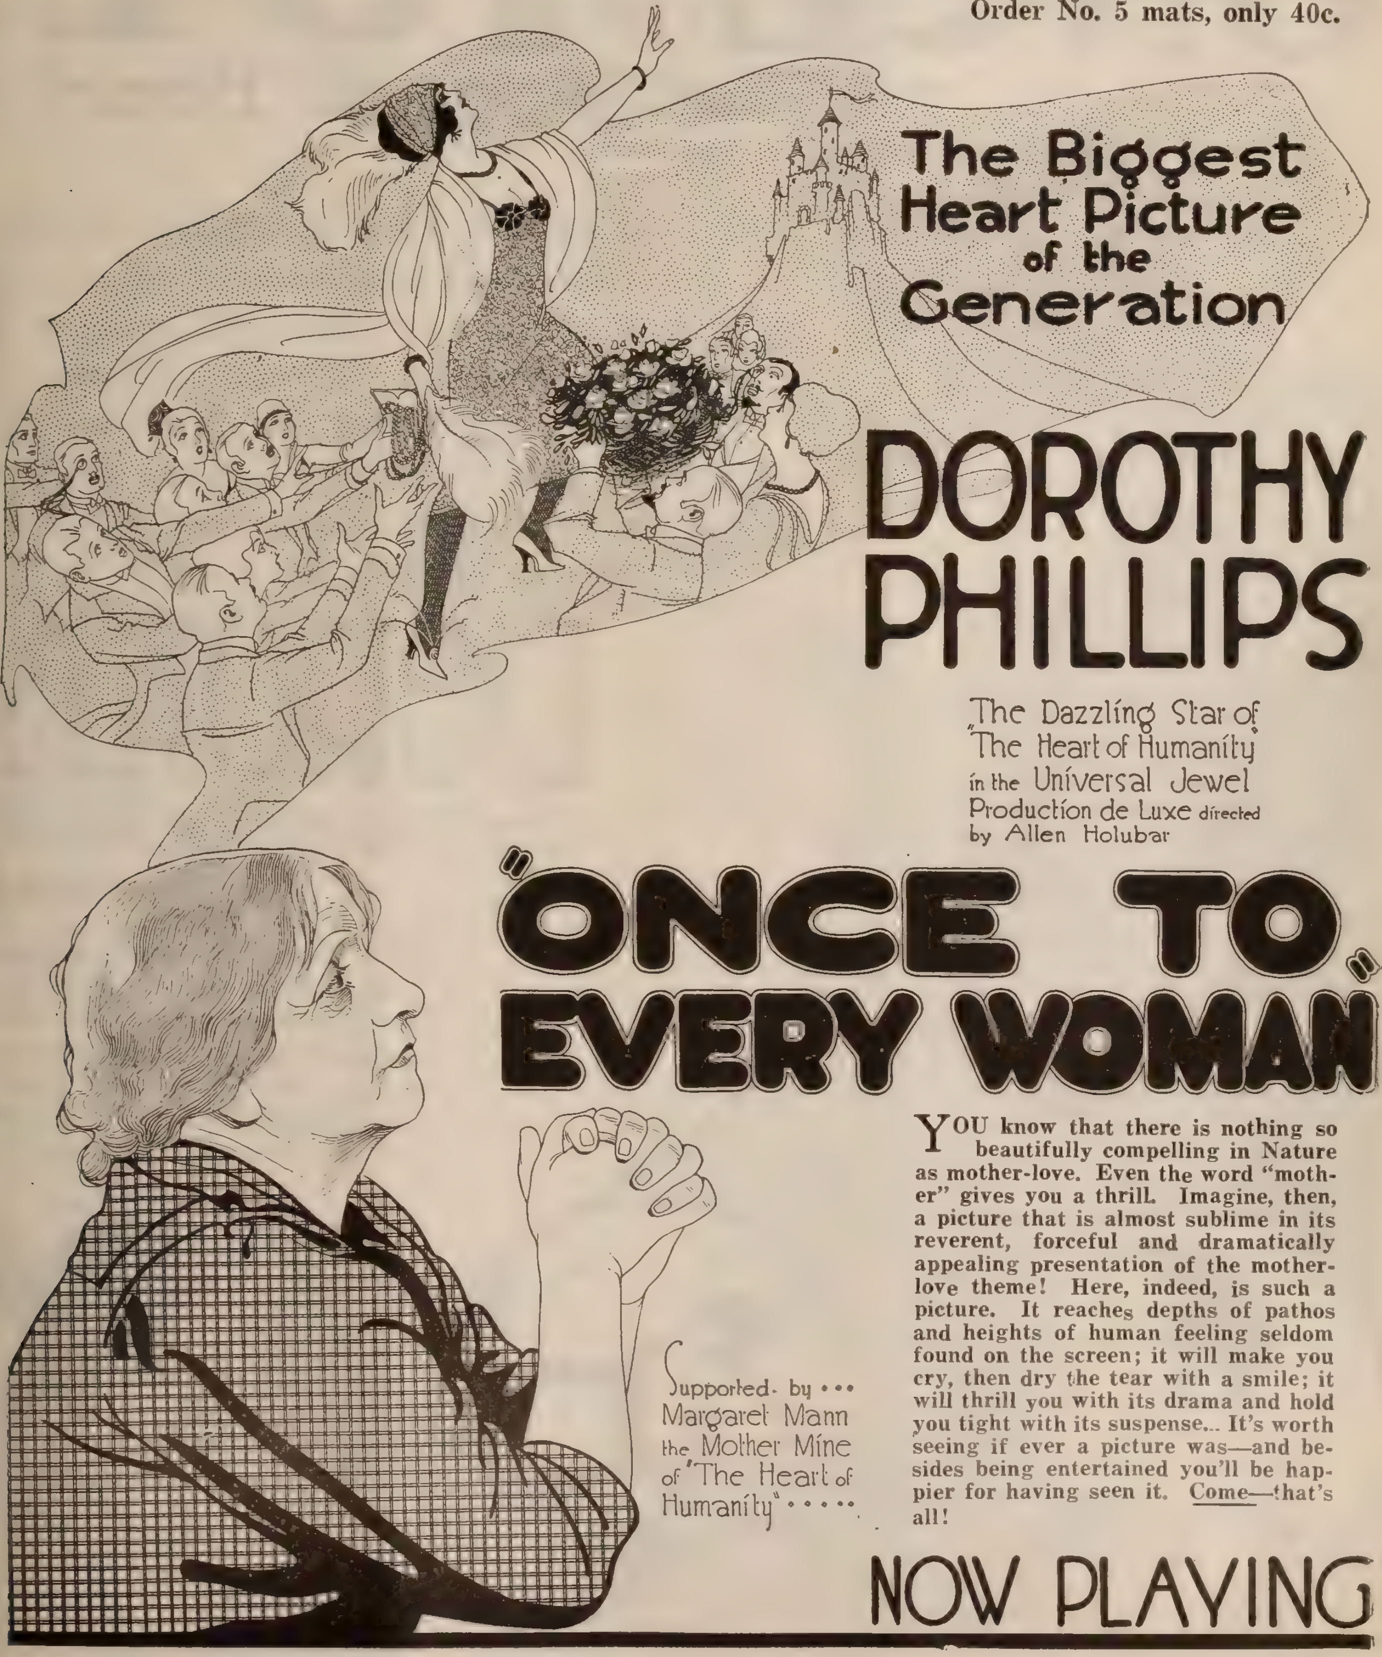
IN "The Gilded Dream," the Universal photodrama in which Carmel Myers is to be seen at the ——— Theatre on ————, many of the scenes are laid in the exclusive social and Bohemian circles in New York and its suburbs, and there is a veritable fashion show in the garments worn not only by the winsome star, but by several other members of the company.

Elsa Lorimer, who plays the role of the ultra-modern Geraldine De Forrest in "The Gilded Dream," is recognized as one of the best dressed women on the screen. She spends a small fortune in keeping her wardrobe up to the minute and is often several months ahead of the calendar. She has appeared in a number of recent film productions in which her beautiful gowns were as attractive a feature as her splendid acting.

Miss Lorimer brought to the animated sheet the experience of six years on the New York dramatic stage, appearing under the management of such well-known figures as Daniel Frohman, Henry B. Harris, William Brady and Oliver Morosco. She played a number of society roles at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, supporting Robert Edeson, Walter Jones, Hedwig Reicher and Marjorie Rambeau, and played leading roles in stock companies both in the East and in California.

Her entrance into the silent drama was brought about by the fact that she was playing in a Broadway production owned by Daniel Frohman, who is also greatly interested in the Famous Players Film Company. A screen drama was being cast requiring an actress of the same type as Miss Lorimer, and Mr. Frohman suggested that she enact the role in the studio during the day while she was appearing in the stage play at night. Since then she has devoted her efforts to the screen almost entirely.

This is one of the new Quarter-page Newspaper Ads. for this remarkable picture.
Order No. 5 mats, only 40c.



The Biggest Heart Picture of the Generation

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

"The Dazzling Star of "The Heart of Humanity" in the Universal Jewel Production de Luxe directed by Allen Holubar

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

YOU know that there is nothing so beautifully compelling in Nature as mother-love. Even the word "mother" gives you a thrill. Imagine, then, a picture that is almost sublime in its reverent, forceful and dramatically appealing presentation of the mother-love theme! Here, indeed, is such a picture. It reaches depths of pathos and heights of human feeling seldom found on the screen; it will make you cry, then dry the tear with a smile; it will thrill you with its drama and hold you tight with its suspense... It's worth seeing if ever a picture was—and besides being entertained you'll be happier for having seen it. Come—that's all!

Supported by • • • Margaret Mann
the Mother Mine of "The Heart of Humanity" • • • • .

NOW PLAYING

"ONCE TO EV

The Biggest Heart

Here's the picture that throbbing cadences of silent son mother-love—mother-love in all and burning intensity of emotio right down to the innermost re forth a glowing response that ma power of the force that rules the having seen it.

The Lover who waited.
The Girl who dreamed.
The Source of the money.

DOROTHY

The Dazzling Star of

UNIVERSA

This is an exact-size reproductio paper Advertisement which is no for this great picture. In the ad contains copy calling attention t acting. Order your mat from yo the Universal Supply Dept., 1600 to Every Woman," Mat No. 6, Pri

ERY WOMAN"

ture of the Generation

ns on the screen in e very breath and soul of boundless, loving sacrifice
It's a picture that reaches s of your heart and brings you recognize and feel the
ld. You'll be happier for

PHILLIPS

e Heart of Humanity"

EWEL

he new Half-page News-ilable (in mat form only) you will run, this space othy Phillips' remarkable iversal Exchange or from way, N. Y. Specify "Once

RJS.
The Man who didn't want to marry.
The One who had to be paid
The Woman who came home.

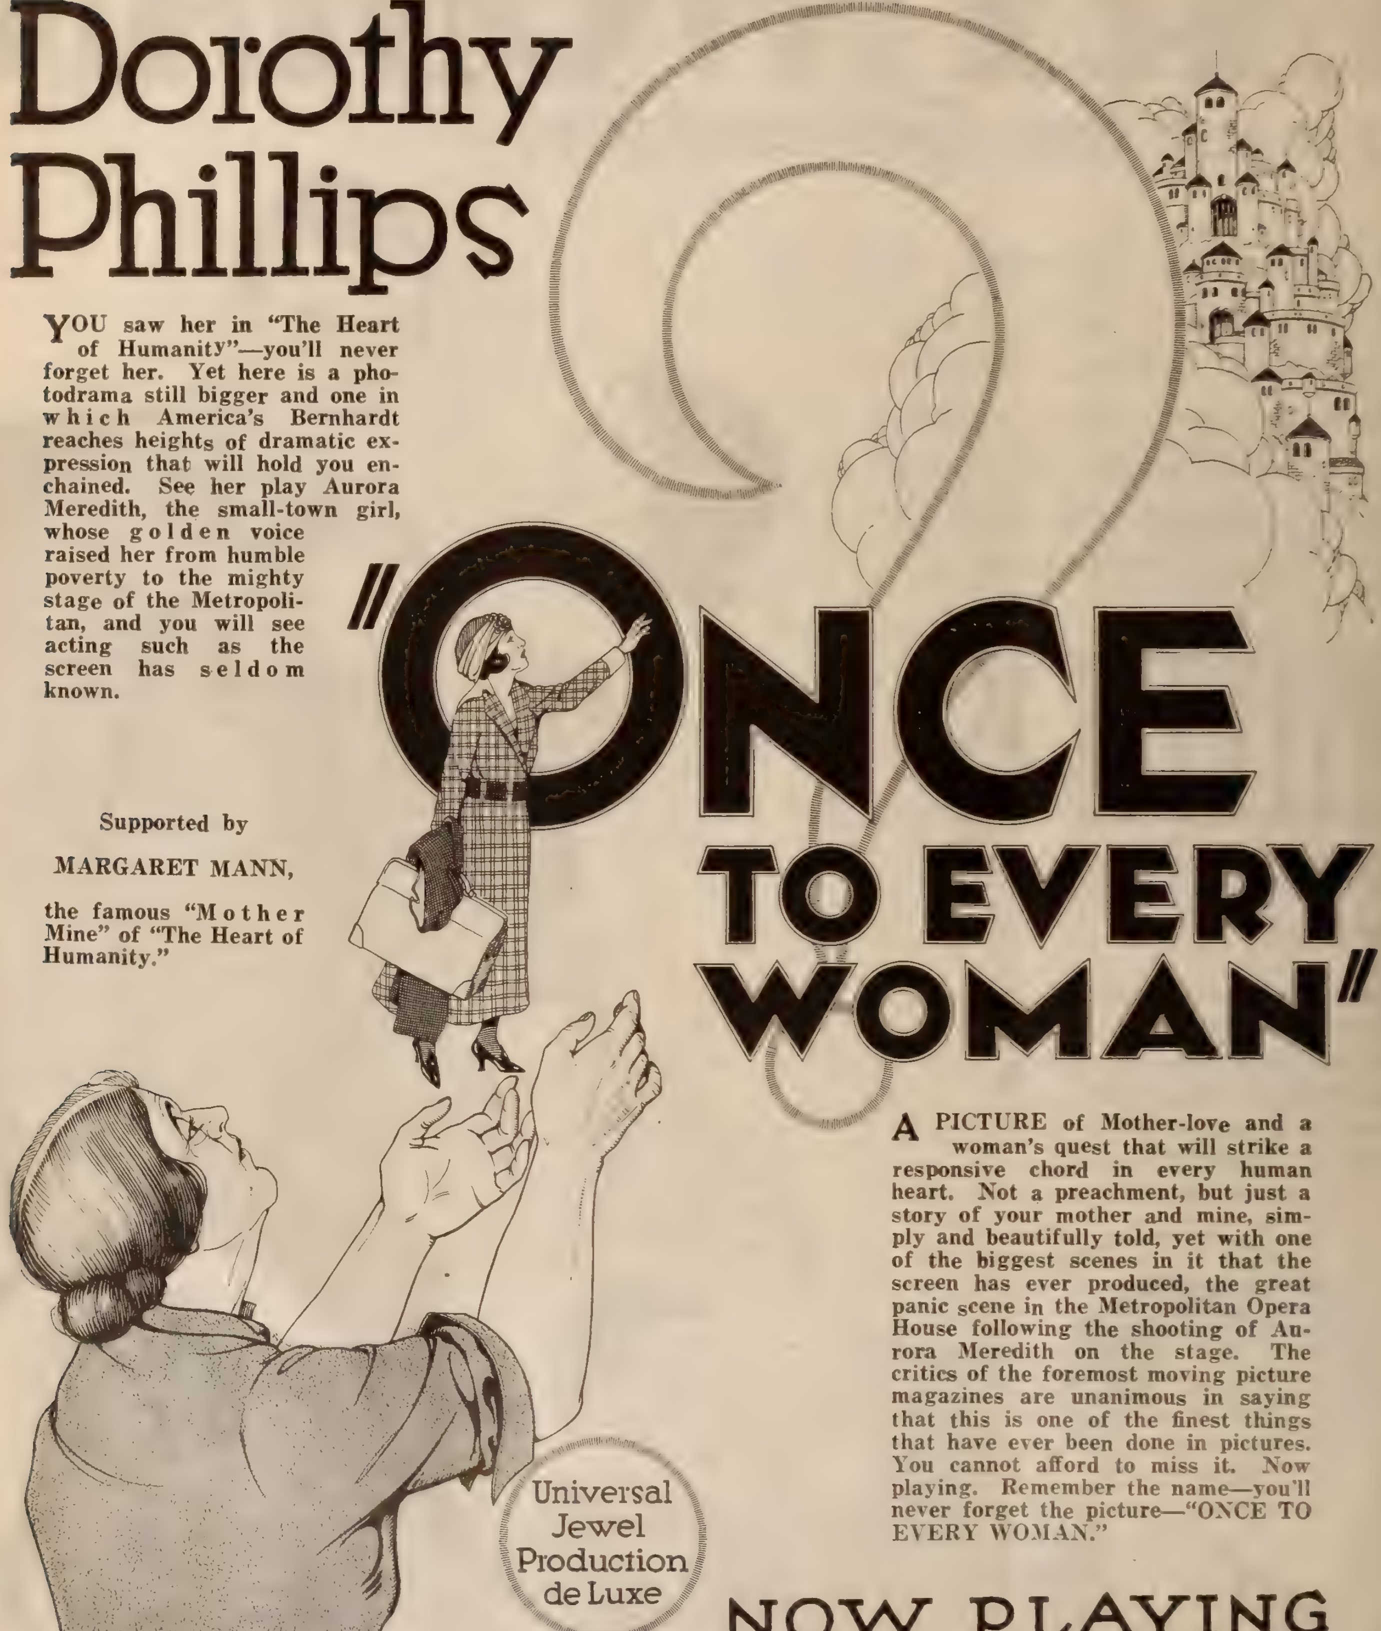
Dorothy Phillips

YOU saw her in "The Heart of Humanity"—you'll never forget her. Yet here is a photodrama still bigger and one in which America's Bernhardt reaches heights of dramatic expression that will hold you enchained. See her play Aurora Meredith, the small-town girl, whose golden voice raised her from humble poverty to the mighty stage of the Metropolitan, and you will see acting such as the screen has seldom known.

Supported by

MARGARET MANN,

the famous "Mother Mine" of "The Heart of Humanity."



"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

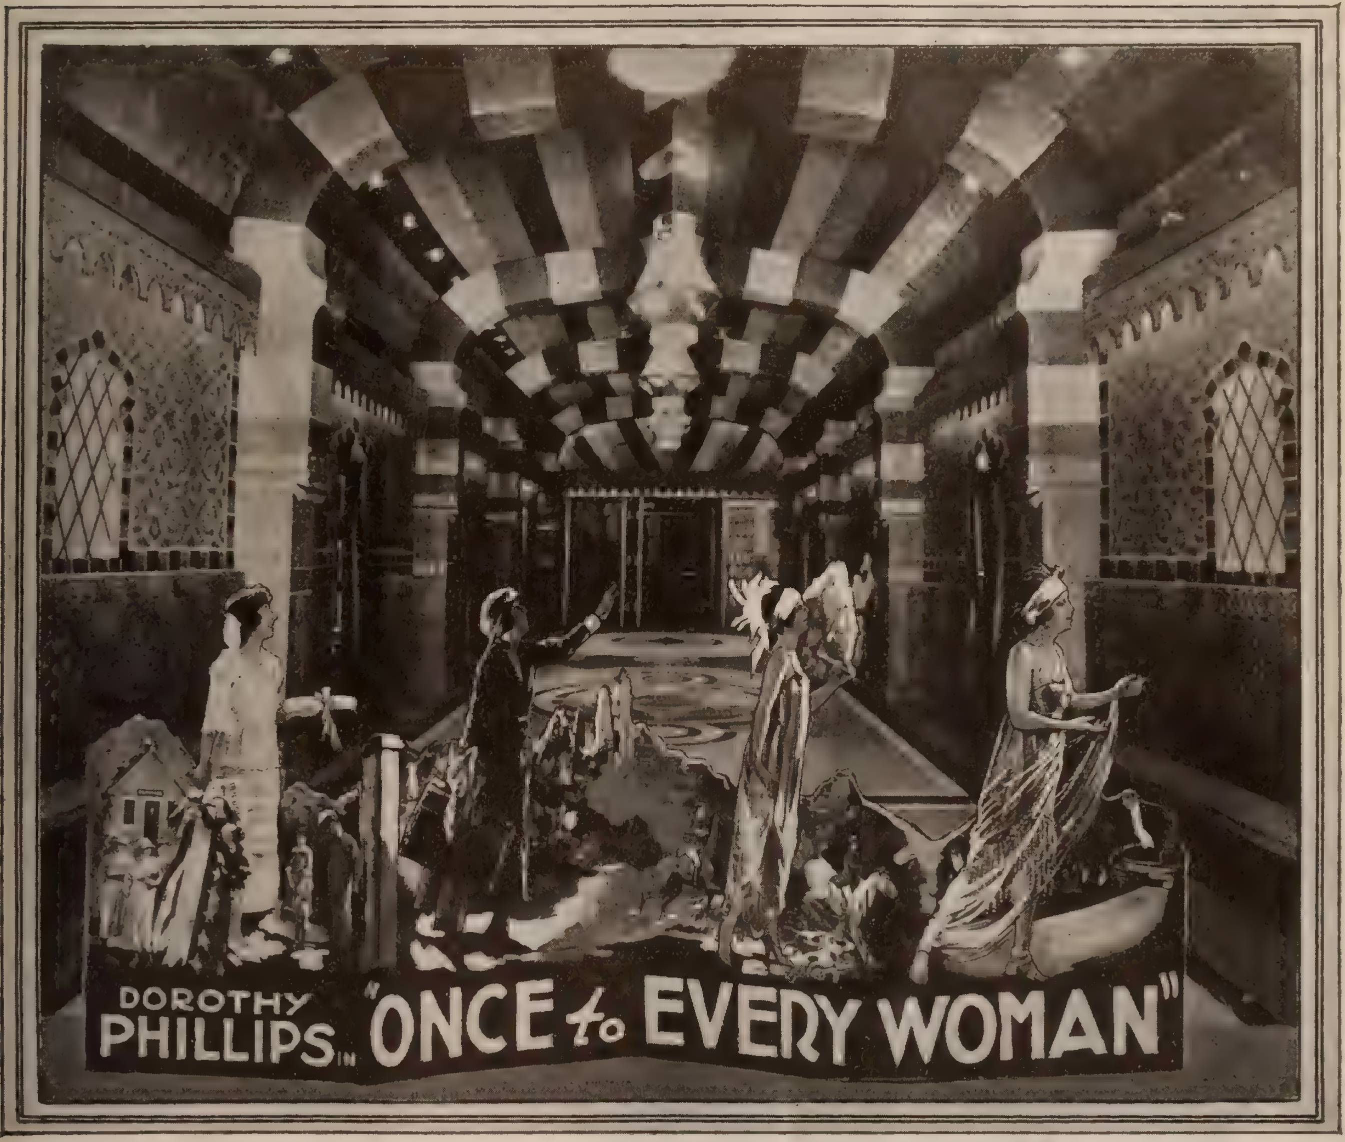
A PICTURE of Mother-love and a woman's quest that will strike a responsive chord in every human heart. Not a preachment, but just a story of your mother and mine, simply and beautifully told, yet with one of the biggest scenes in it that the screen has ever produced, the great panic scene in the Metropolitan Opera House following the shooting of Aurora Meredith on the stage. The critics of the foremost moving picture magazines are unanimous in saying that this is one of the finest things that have ever been done in pictures. You cannot afford to miss it. Now playing. Remember the name—you'll never forget the picture—"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN."

Universal
Jewel
Production
de Luxe

NOW PLAYING

This is one of the new Quarter-page Newspaper Ads. for this remarkable picture. Order No. 4 mats, only 40c.

Here's A Wonderful Idea For A Cut-Out

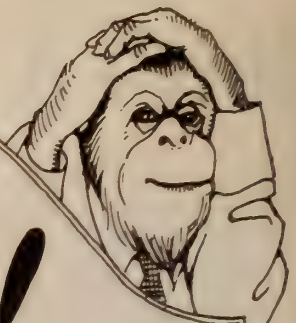


THE attractive twenty-four sheet posters issued by Universal for "Once To Every Woman," the big Jewel starring Dorothy Phillips, are ready at all the exchanges now and a wonderful cut-out can be made from one of these.

The making of this cut-out does not involve any intricate processes—it is quite simple, in fact. Take four strips of compo board, seven feet high and twenty-eight feet wide, lay them side by side and mount on them the twenty-four sheet poster cut out in the manner shown by the illustration. Connect the four pieces with hinges so that the cut-out is in reality a folding screen. How attractively this shows off in front of a lobby can well be seen from the reproduction on this page of the cut-out in front of a theatre.

The poster features emphatically the dazzling star of the production—Dorothy Phillips—showing her first as a school girl graduating from the little village school; second, leaving home and mother and all the loved ones to conquer the world and reach to golden heights of fame; third, on the brink of her career, and fourth, as the woman with society at her feet. It is a delightful progression that is illustrated in this poster.

All sorts of inspiring letters are coming to the Universal offices daily from exhibitors and persons who have already shown or witnessed "Once To Every Woman," meting out to it the very highest of praise and predicting for it the most glorious of successes. Dorothy Phillips has done the best work of her career in this heart drama, and Allen Holubar has directed it with the skill of a master. Margaret Mann gives a noble and notable characterization of "mother," and Robert Andersen and Rudolph Valentino give flawless impersonations.



Look out! he's wild!

AND is he FUNNY? Oh. Boy! Listen to the crowds that come a-flocking way beyond your wildest dreams, and judge for yourself. Show him in his latest two-reel monkeyshine and know why Universal claims to have discovered the Missing Link for an unbroken chain of laughs; learn why a never-ending roar of guffaws greets this living storehouse of unlaughed laughs. Here's a rib-tickler that has 'em rockin' in their seats like a storm-tossed catboat. Book this robber of the blues that is linin' 'em up four deep from the box office to the post 'round the corner.

JOE MARTIN

In his latest chin chuckler directed by Al. Santell

"A WILD NIGHT"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

ADVANCED PRICES AND THEN-

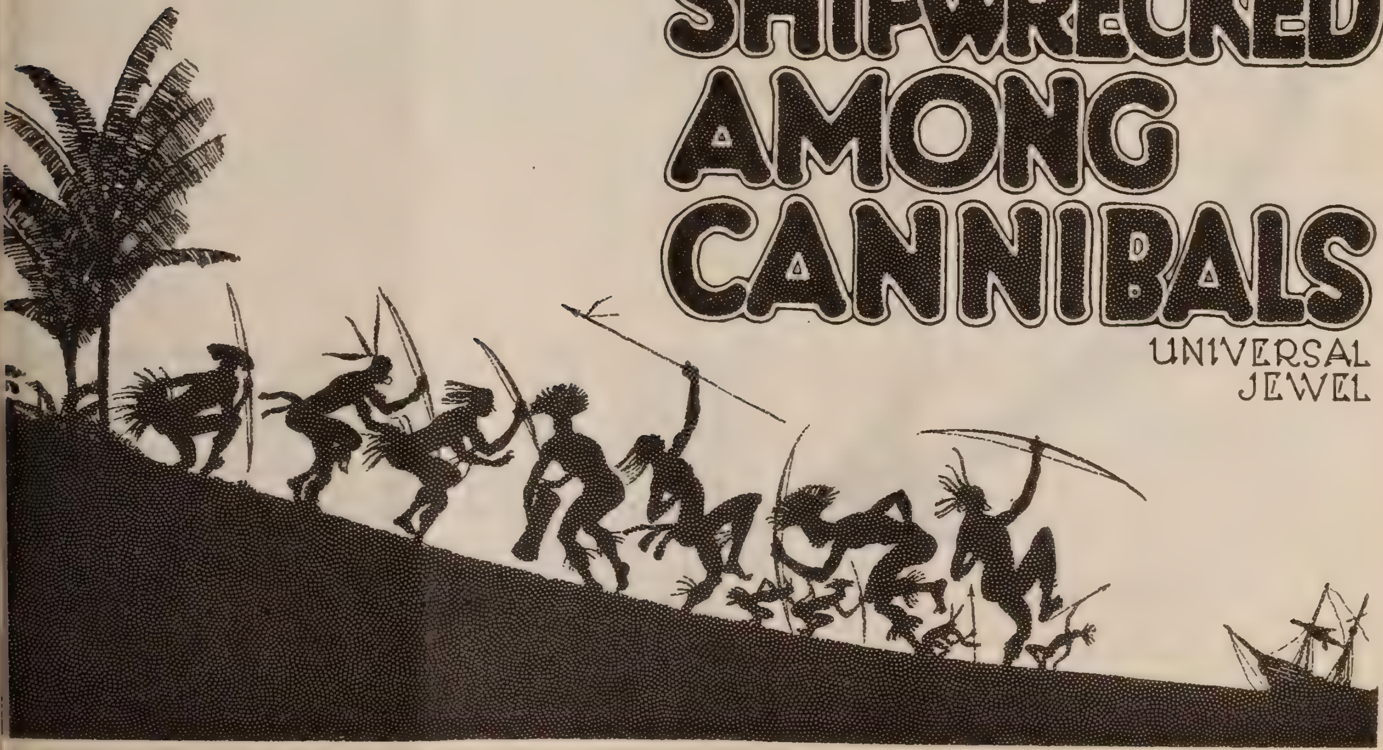
FIVE TIMES HIS CAPACITY-AND TURNED 'EM AWAY

JACOB MOELK, of the Majestic Theatre, Janesville, Wis., wires: "Opened with 'Shipwrecked Among Cannibals' at advanced prices. Unable to handle crowds. Turned hundreds away. Seating capacity 300. Paid admissions 1,537. This picture will break all house records, for my patrons came out commending picture. Give me more of these money-getters."

Carl Laemmle presents

SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS

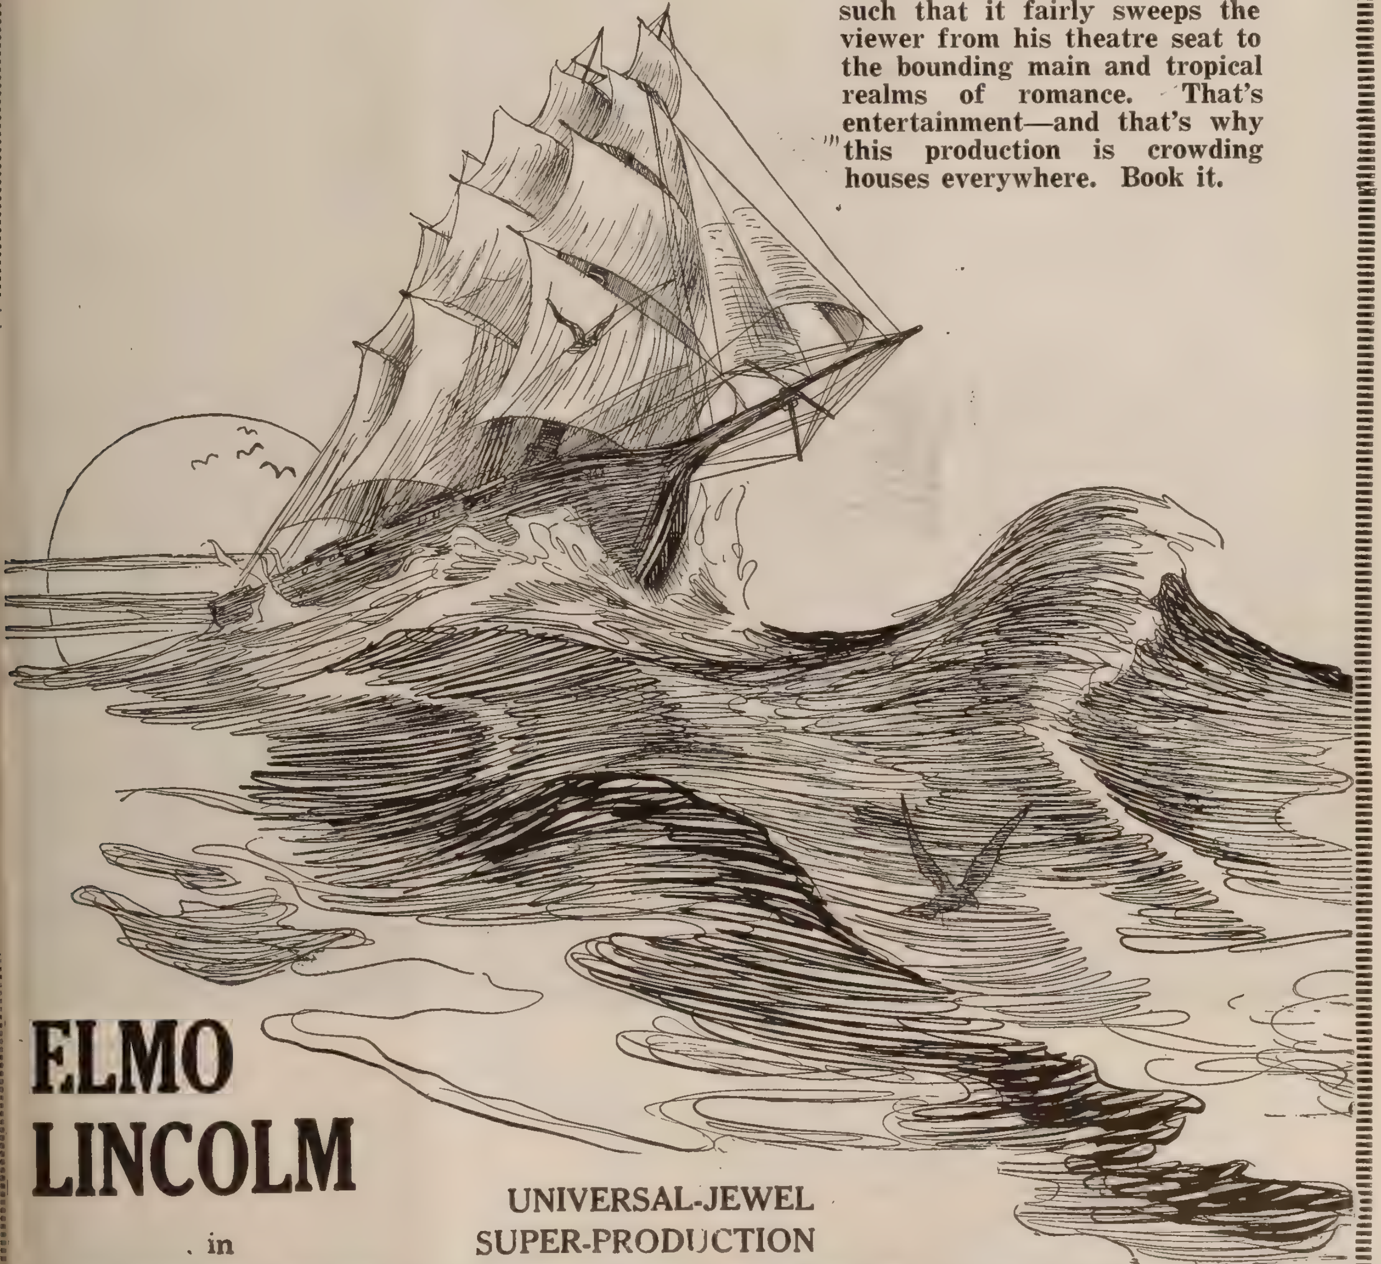
UNIVERSAL
JEWEL



WHEN?

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

The lash of the spray and the sting of the salt are in this stirring picture. And its actionful verve and adventurous swing are such that it fairly sweeps the viewer from his theatre seat to the bounding main and tropical realms of romance. That's entertainment—and that's why this production is crowding houses everywhere. Book it.



ELMO
LINCOLM

in

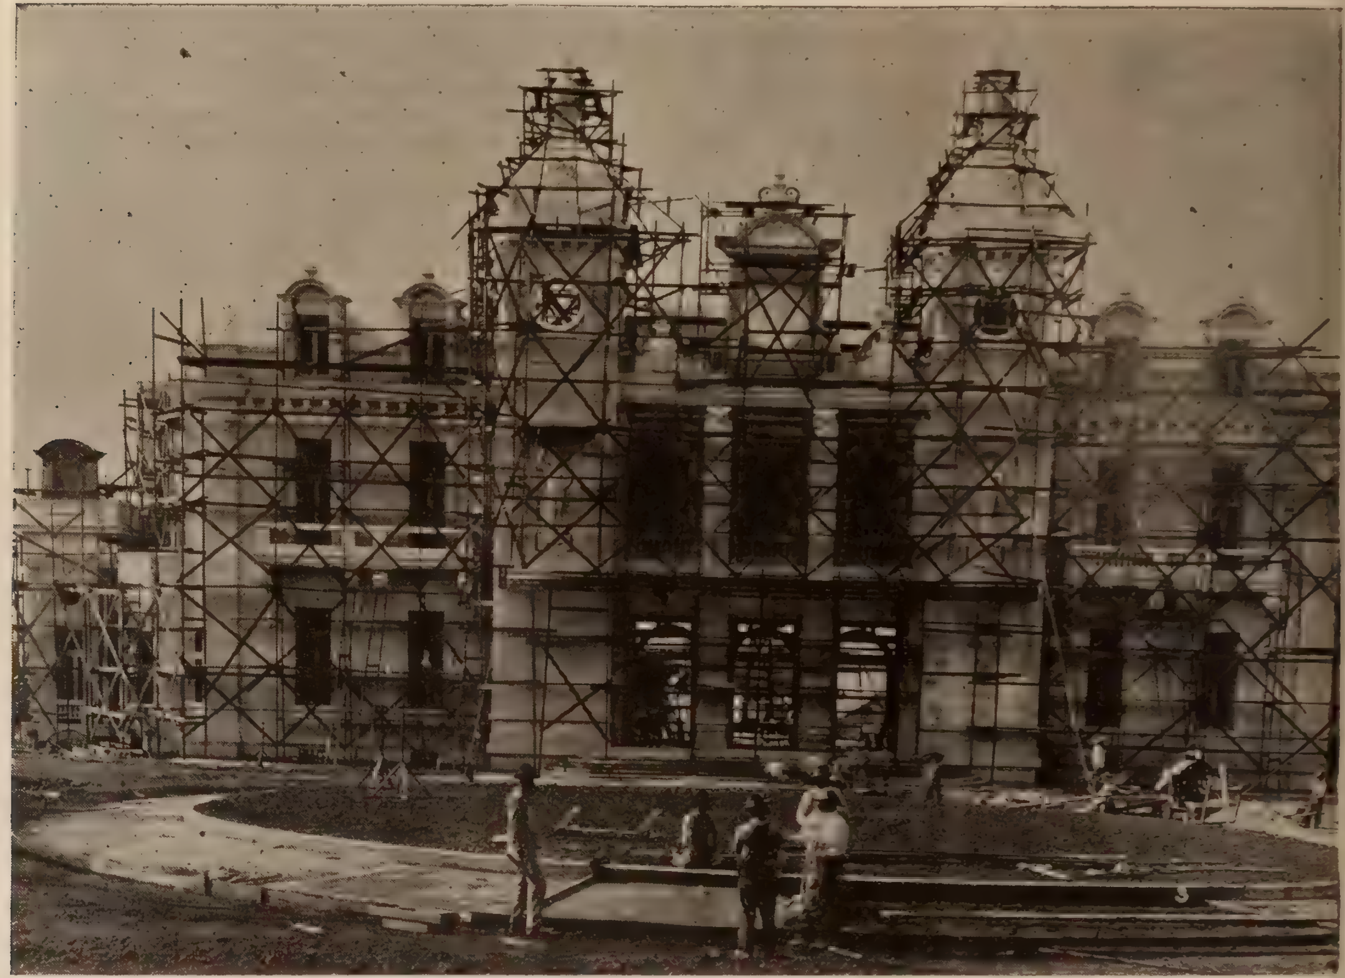
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER-PRODUCTION

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by REX INGRAM

Story by J. G. HAWKS

Another Huge Set Being Erected For "Foolish Wives" Production

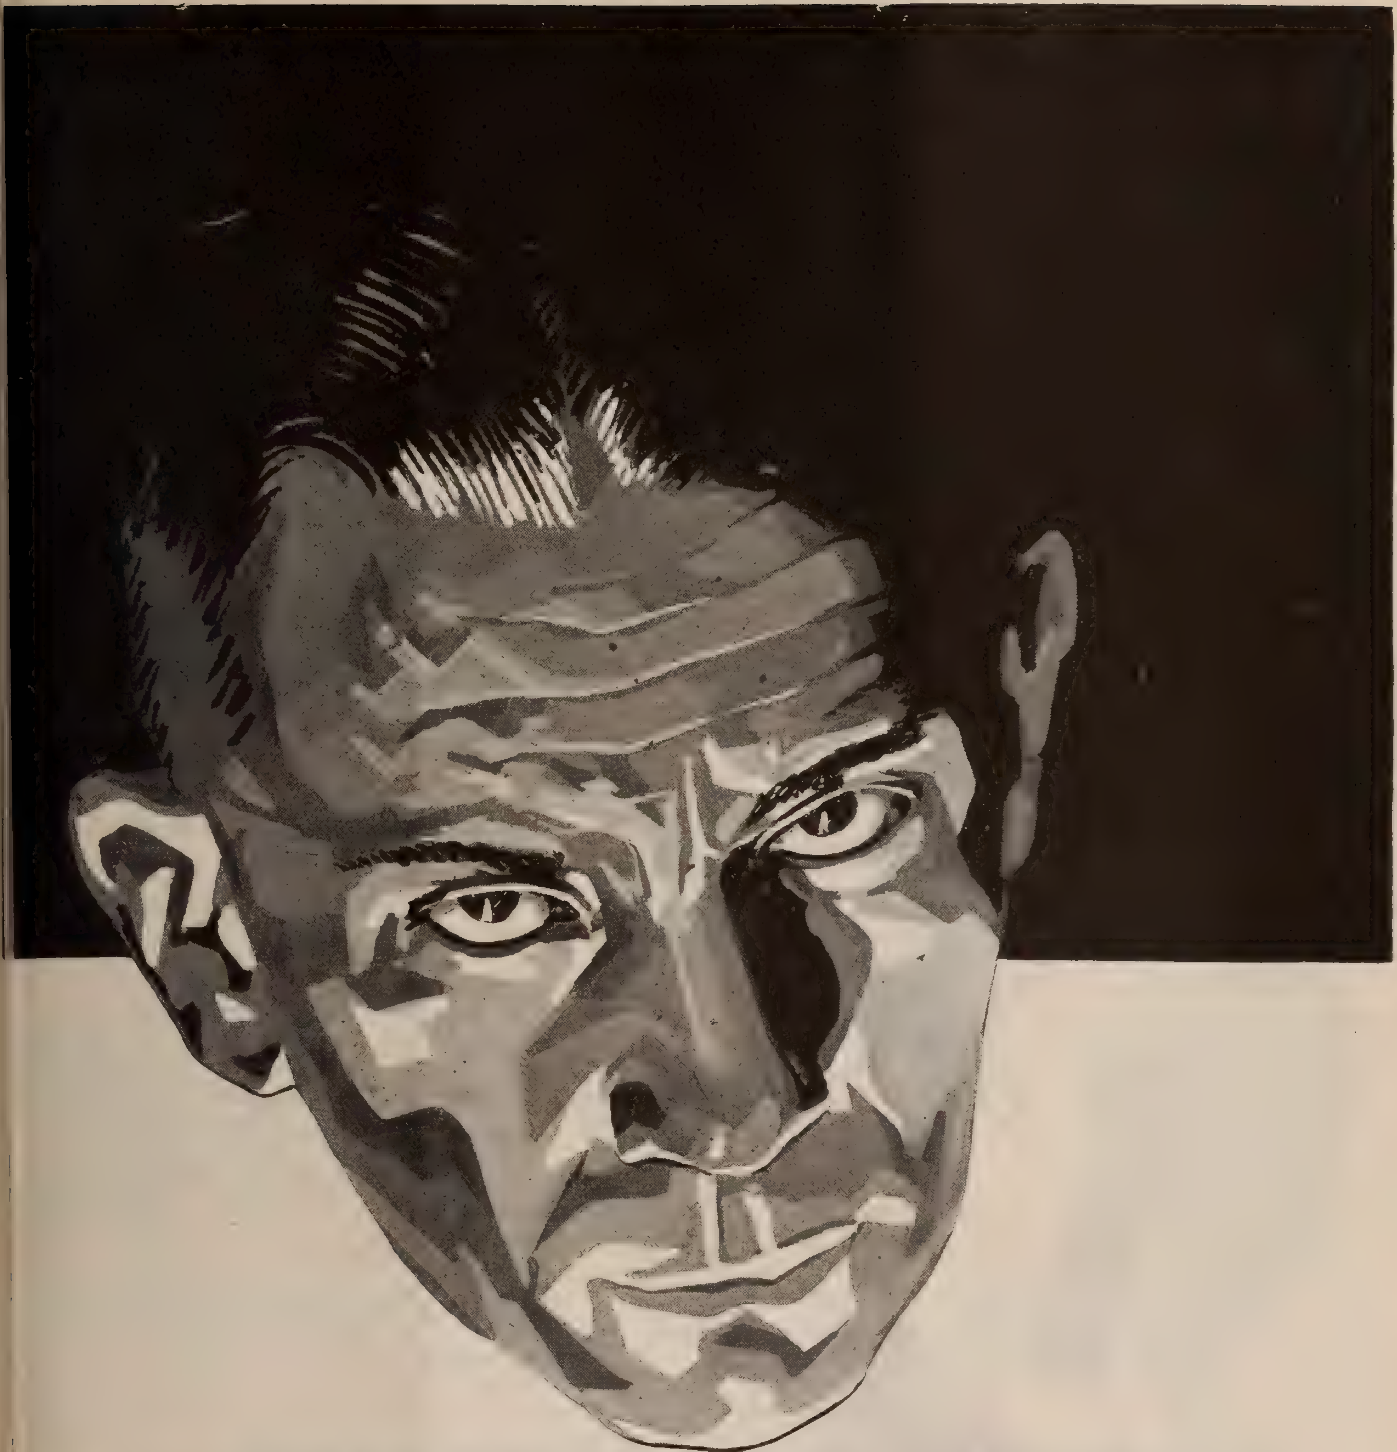


HERE is a picturization of the huge set that is being constructed in Universal City to represent the Casino at Monte Carlo. All the sets that are being constructed under the supervision of Erich Von Stroheim for his production of "Foolish Wives" are of huge dimensions and involve an outlay of thousands of dollars and the employment of hundreds of men.

It will be a source of much delight to numerous movie lovers throughout the world that Von Stroheim himself will play the principal part in this picture. His acting was a constant source of enjoyment in "Blind Husbands," which he also directed, and it was no little disappointment to his admirers when he decided not to take part in his second production, "The Devil's Passkey," and devote his entire energies to shaping the tremendous undertaking of the picturization. But in "Foolish Wives" he will have a role that will keep him almost constantly on the screen and bring into use those rare histrionic talents of his which can fascinate an audience so keenly and make everyone hate him so thoroughly. He will play the role of the seducing count, who conquers the hearts of countless women without being conquered by them; who lives in a whirl of intrigue and scandal and goes undisturbed on his supremely selfish way at last to meet the doom he so richly deserves.

Maude George and Mae Busch again play the roles of continental women—sophisticated and vivacious ladies of fashion, who live to love, who have no scruples and who idle away their time in the gambling resorts of the place, seeking ever the favor of such gallant and unholy fascinators as the Count Sergius Aprazin (Erich Von Stroheim).

The cast of "Foolish Wives" will also be enriched by Marguerite Armstrong, a startlingly beautiful blonde "find" of the director's, Rudolphe Christians, famous international actor, Cesare Gravina, one-time famous opera singer, Malveen Polo, enchanting daughter of the famous Eddie, and Dale Fuller.



THIS is the man who directed the picture which has made more talk since its release than any other production of its kind during the year 1920. Take our advice and play this masterpiece at your earliest opportunity. Genius doesn't show every day.

CARL LAEMMLE
presents
Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

Universal-Jewel Production De Luxe

Something Worth "Piping" About

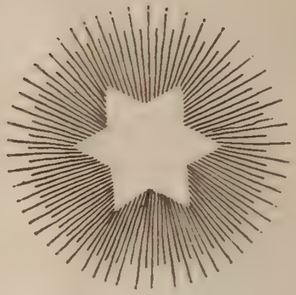
PRISCILLA DEAN

in Tod Browning's Production

"The VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

Story by H. H. Van Loan

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

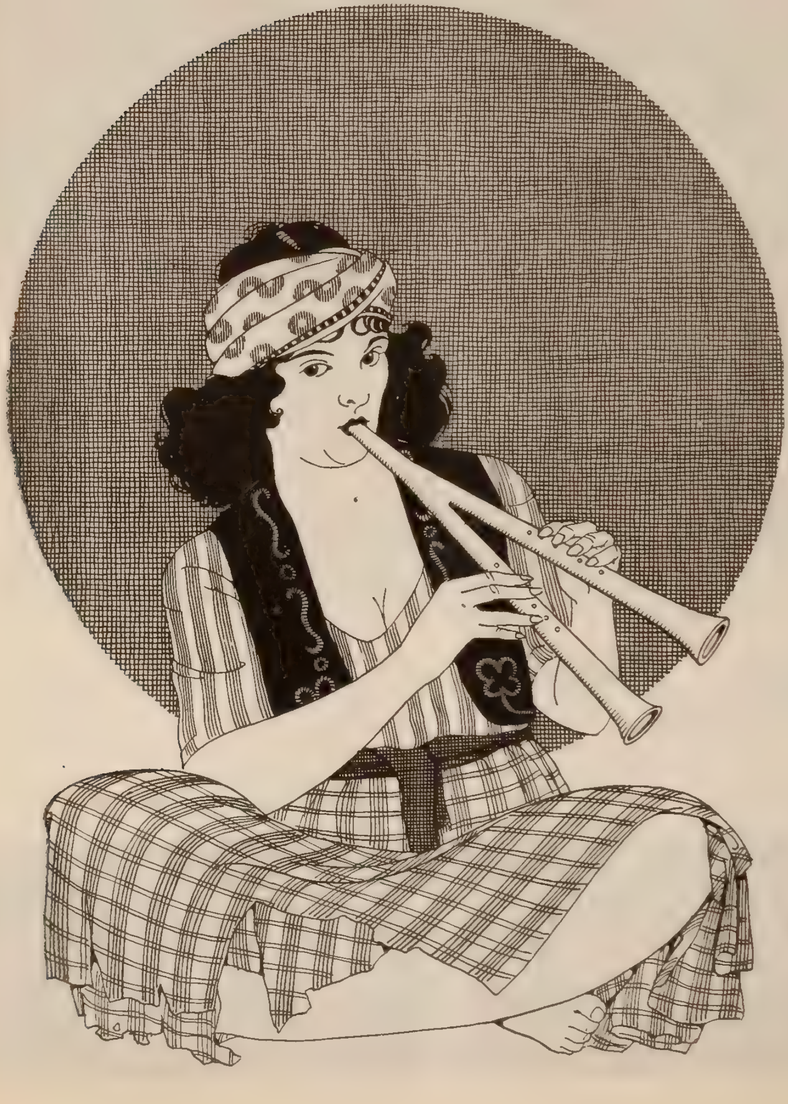


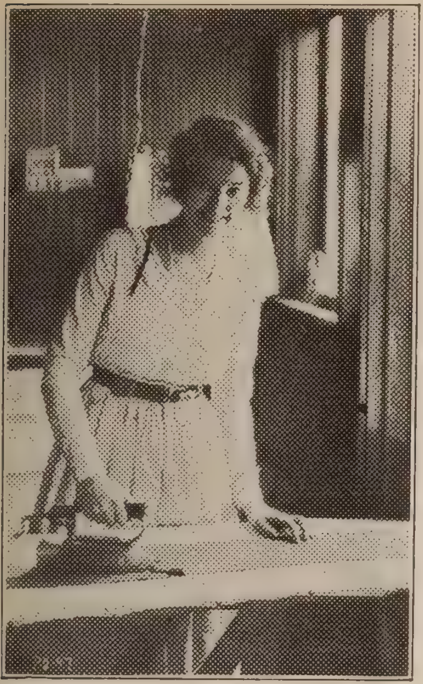
Thousands of exhibitors have heard the call of this big-as-life wonder feature and are the richer for having answered it.

Millions of people have wept and laughed with alluring, seductive Priscilla Dean and are the happier for having seen her.

All the oriental grandeur of the land made famous in song by Omar is here depicted with a fidelity and lavishness that fascinate the eye while it thrills and enthralls with its big, pulsating, wondrously human story.

P. S. Mr. Exhibitor, have YOU booked it?





Priscilla Dean ironing in her home.

She's A Home-Maker Too

THIS is none other than Priscilla Dean, star of many splendid picture plays, who lives in a world of glamour and romance during most of her waking hours, doing just what you and innumerable other women all over the globe do most every day—IRONING. And the place where Priscilla is performing this housewifely duty is none other than her home, in one of the prettiest of bungalows in Hollywood, California. And it is a real home, too, with a real husband in it, for in private life Priscilla is the wife of Wheeler Oakman, her handsome leading man. Priscilla's joy in her home-life is a keen one indeed, and she finds no greater delight than in the performance of the thousand and one little homely duties attached to the care of a house, and in working in her garden and orchard.

It will be many a moon before the fame of "The Virgin of Stamboul," in which Priscilla Dean starred, dies down. An exquisite production, both from the acting and directorial end, it met with instantaneous and popular favor wherever it was shown. And now, many months after its release, this romantic production of the mysterious East is still being industriously booked and is playing to crowded houses.

"Outside the Law," the next big Jewel starring Priscilla Dean, is being awaited with keen anticipation. Directed by Tod Browning, who made "The Virgin of Stamboul," every detail of its stupendous sets was carefully supervised and its scenes are said to be the mot realistic ones ever filmed. The members of its cast are names to be reckoned with in the world of pictures, and include Lon Chaney, E. A. Warrern and Wheeler Oakman, in addition to Miss Dean. It will be released within the next few months.

Here's No. 3 From Betty

Dear Betty: Last night the Nightingale awoke me—this is about the ninety-first time it's happened, and every time I phone the janitor he says he's off black cats and opals. Nightingale belongs to an X-Lieutenant—a Bachelor (I mean the Lieutenant) and he lives directly over me—all alone with his cat. You know my bedroom opens on the fireescape, and they tell me Nightingale is a booze fighter, acquired the habit in the trenches as he's a war veteran. You remember that bottle of Kentucky Rye you hid in my hat box—well the cork worked loose and that's why Nightingale is so attentive. The fumes have penetrated through the walls. The Bachelor came down the fireescape the other night to apologize for the cat's indiscretions and now I understand why the Janitor included Opals with black cats. The Bachelor has opal eyes Betty. Say, what sort of a gown did Juliet wear when Romeo scaled her fireescape? Don't overlook this question as you occasionally do when I ask you something important.

By the way, the Piano is installed in our Luncheon Club Room. It's a peach and you ought to see it shimmy with one of our jazz players. I really believe by Spring we'll be signing contracts with exhibitors for the use of our orchestra—we've only got about 26 players on various instruments. We haven't fixed up our rest room yet—we're postponing it until we pull off our Halloween racket. Who wants to rest, nobody, we're all too busy scrapping over the entertainment we're going to give. There'll be toe dancers, singers, performing monkeys, and I believe one of the girls invited the Salvation Army.

Betty I'm economizing to such an extent that I don't even buy a paper any more. I'm trying to demonstrate to the subway crowd that we can get along without papers as well as restaurants. Of course, one can always look over the other fellows shoulder. Between the two economies—the lunch and paper, I've bought a peach of a new blouse. It must be becoming because none of the girls like it.

By the way, I forgot to write you that George Kann is back from Europe. He's the same old George, with exception of a few acquired expressions. We're all Deah Girruls now, and everything we do is topping. He's donated seventy-fuve books to our library. I asked him to throw in a set of Balzac, but instead he gave me a copy of the old testament. However, one's as interesting as the other.

The General Manager of Exchanges, Mr. Berman, is wearing a most benignant expression. He's just returned from an extended visit of one day in Chicago where he held a meeting with "His Boys." I wish he'd go to meeting oftener for it always puts him in a dandy humor to hear all "His Boys" tell how they're going to smash H—— out of all previous records. I can swear occasionally Betty in my letters—that's a privilege that goes with voting. Well, to get back to the meeting, I don't see why we girruls can't attend these meetings, do you? Think of what WE could put over. Of course, maybe the General Managers figures it wouldn't be a good idea as far as the concern is concerned, as married managers need higher salaries.

P. S. Claude Macgowan has resigned, and Olga Hadel is examining Aluminum wear. Why do pretty girls suddenly get interested in Aluminum, Betty? PEGGY.

International News

No. 69

Fresno, Cal.—$250,000 auto track completed and opened with thrilling races. (Driving the last golden stake). (To be omitted from Boston, New England, Chicago, Baltimore and Southern prints.)

Boston, Mass.—Boston celebrates Fire Prevention Day. Old timers join modern flame fighters in parade. (For Boston and New England prints only).

Jamestown, Va. — British "Pilgrims" at American Shrine. Lord Rathcreedan's party visits "cradle of Republic". (For Baltimore, and all southern prints only.

Chicago, Ill.—Host of children take part in great play festival. (For Chicago only.)

New York City.—King Football reigns. Contests like this between Columbia and New York University attract thousands all over the country.

San Pedro, Cal.—Extra! Extra! Enemy fleet routed in "fierce battle" off the Pacific Coast. (Don't be alarmed—it's just practice).

Langley Field, Va.—This U. S. Airplane shows efficiency in long training flight.

St. Augustine, Fla.—A flourishing colony. Sunny skies and free board keep the 'gator clan happy.

Huntington, Ind.—Senator Harding quits front porch and crowds turn out for his rear-platform talks.

Cleveland, O. — International presents Cleveland's victory in the greatest game in world's series history.

Tad cartoon.

New Screen Magazine

No. 90

IF the eye were a telescope, it would see strange things. It would perceive the flat plains and bright mountains of the moon. It would see that the planet Mars is more like the earth in appearance than any other world of the solar system. It has snow caps at its poles, which melt in summer and freeze in winter. All the planets would be hugely magnified.

There are games and games, but some of them ought to be played more often by children who want to be sturdy. "Snatch the Handkerchief," for example and "Chicken Fight."

For the lady who wants to be beautiful, the neck, arms and elbows should be given especial care. If the elbows are not creamed properly, dirt collects that makes the arm appear coarse and ugly.

The magazine closes with "Toyland Mystery" in which a number of dolls carry out an entertaining little plot.

International News

No. 70.

In the political spotlight. — Big crowds hear Governor Cox on his tour of the Mid-West, Bloomington, Ind.

New York City.—Enter the fur chapeau. Keep your head warm and your shoulders cool seems to be fashion's latest dictum.

Boston, Mass.—The finest on parade. Governor reviews a Law and Order force that replaced strikers.

Berlin, Germany. — Disasters in Germany. Fire destroys nation's greatest tar products plant. Photographed from an airplane.)

New York City.—A mosquito flivver. This midget laughs at Manhattan's traffic jam.

Mecheria, Algeria.—The racing season opens in Algeria. Camel and horse show lures desert tribesmen.

Cleveland, O.—Cleveland team wins basebal title in whirlwind finish. (Home-Run Smith gets a diamond pin.

Washington, D. C.—Biggest U. S. airship in picturesque flight over the Capitol. (Col. Hemsley of the air services take "Junior" along.)

Windsor, Canada. — International presents Man O' War's triumph over his only rival in $75,000 purse classic.

"Uncle Tom's Caboose"

Two Reel Century Comedy
Featuring
CHARLES DORETY, PEGGY PREVOST and ZIP MONTY

A one hoss town show plant their stakes in a tiny village. The boss of the show is a real villain; his assistant, Charlie, is the handy man around the circus, and Chow Mein, the chinky cook, can cook a real decent breakfast for all the freaks.

Chow Mein is a sly little fellow, who tries to make a donkey look like a zebra and sell it to the boss. He gets in trouble with the boss. Charlie, who is just as sly as Chow Mein, gets in trouble playing a game of cards, is chased by his fellow-players, and lands in the brawl between the boss and the Chinaman. He and Chow lock the boss up, decide to run the show themselves, and take all the money. They put on a burlesque of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and while the girls are keeping the show going, the boys ransack the homes of the villagers. The sheriff gets wise, rushes to the theatre, and meets the manager, who has managed to get out of the freight car in which Chow and Charlie have locked him. The sheriff accuses the manager; a chase follows; the three comedians who did the mischief try to get away with it, but without avail. They land behind prison bars.

New Screen Magazine

No. 91

THERE is no such sport as a saw log joy ride, where one glides swiftly along with the current, seated on a log.

The gyroscope compass, a recent invention, is used on ships extensively. All of Uncle Sam's battleships are equipped with it. It was invented by Mr. A. Sperry.

The proper use of tableware (knives, spoons, forks) is demonstrated in this issue of the magazine.

Sulphuric Acid Gas or Oil of Vitriol, is one of chemistry's most dangerous fluids. It burns sugar to charcoal and chars wood quickly.

There is an amusing animated by Pat Sullivan entitled "Sammie White Sleeps Not."

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 5.

"The Vanishing Floor"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Professor Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

HELEN cuts the cable with the flaming disk and thus rescues Elmo from death. A fight starts, however, between Elmo and the gang, and things look pretty bad for Elmo and Helen, but they are rescued by "the man of mystery."

Elmo has had Jim confined to an institution to save him from Stanton's evil hypnotic influence. Jim escapes and the guards, on the watchout for him, mistake Elmo for Jim and confine Elmo. He remains in the institution until Barrows comes to identify him.

Helen brings the lens to Barrow's office. Elmo had instructed her to deliver it to Barrows personally. Stella is in charge of the office and she deceives Helen into believing that she is taking her to Barrows. Instead, she pretends to be her friend and takes her to the house of Hans Kolp, acting as a curio dealer to cover his business of guarding Stanton's palace of tortures. They plan to torture her, but her screams prevent them.

Elmo, in search of Helen, comes to Kolp's place. He is overpowered and placed in a room, a prisoner. Suddenly the floor begins to lower, and he is in a den of raging lions. Will they tear him to pieces?

Star and Director Have Made Two Notable Productions

Rollin Sturgeon teaching Cormel Myers how to be truly domestic in a scene from "In Folly's Trail."

FOR the past few months there has been a notable association in Universal City — Carmel Myers and Rollin Sturgeon.

When Carmel returned to the coast fresh from her musical comedy honors in New York City "In Folly's Trail," a society drama of an unusual order was provided for her as her first starring vehicle. And Rollin Sturgeon was commissioned to undertake all the details of the direction. Carmel did her share all right in that picture—she was a HIT, and Rollin never forgot one single detail. Some of the sets were almost unbelievably exquisite and particular ones were sorted out by the critics and given especial mention. The revelry scenes were among the most successful scenes ever devised by a moving picture director.

The combination of Rollin Sturgeon and Carmel Myers plus a society drama was such a success that the former was again selected to direct the scintillating young actress in her second production, "The Gilded Dream," also dealing with the high and gay life of the smart set. And again there has resulted a production which is charm in itself, which is flawless in every detail, which is harmonious, spontaneous and constantly interesting, and in which the star has every opportunity to display her enchanting personality and talents.

A new note in interior architecture and decoration has been struck in the settings in "The Gilded Dream." Sturgeon had the competent co-operation of Harry Weston, an architect of original ideas, much of whose professional career was spent in Buenos Ayres and other South American capitals. The settings represent the mansion of Geraldine De Forrest, a member of the ultra-Bohemian set, who plays the leading feminine role opposite Carmel Myers in the picture. About eighteen different apartments in the De Forrest home are shown on the ground floor to the bedrooms and boudoirs on the upper floors. Weston imbibed many of the modern Spanish motifs which he uses in these settings from his long residence in the South American cities. The settings are exquisite indeed, and as far as they are concerned, "The Gilded Dream" will hold its own with "In Folly's Trail."

It is to be hoped that the future will bring an occasional renewal of the association of Carmel Myers and Rolling Sturgeon, for that combination has been productive of real achievement in "In Folly's Trail" and "The Gilded Dream," two of the most entertaining modern society dramas the year has offered to the public.

She Has Beauty And Knows How To Keep It

CARMEL MYERS, Universal's youthful star, who recently completed "The Gilded Dream" under Rollin Sturgeon's direction, possesses a skin of velvet softness and finest texture. She recently was asked by an interviewer to tell the secret of her perfect complexion and quite disappointed the listener when she failed to tell her of lotions, creams and other beautifiers.

"The best beautifier in the world," Miss Carmel announced, "is hot water and soap, followed by a rinsing in cold water. I got that beauty hint from my mother when I was a wee kiddie, and I have followed it rigorously ever since. I do this the first thing in the morning, and then again when I take my make-up off after the day at the studio. I have the water just as hot as I can stand it, and follow with a rinsing in icy cold water. That's one hint. And the other is: Keep away from powder and cosmetics. There is nothing more injurious to the skin, and if beauty is only skin deep, the skin is very important. I have to use make-up for the camera, of course, but I take very particular care to get every grain and particle of it out of my skin afterwards.

"I find it far easier to keep my skin fit while I'm working in motion pictures than I did on the stage in New York. It's so confining, theatre work. I had to exercise regularly and take long walks. But here I get enough exercise just going to and from Universal City; and so much of the work is outdoors—or at least in the big airy stages—that it's quite wonderful."

"Double Danger"

Two Reel Western Drama

Jim Marvin	Hoot Gibson
Jerry Marvin	Hoot Gibson
Peggy Dawson	Dorothy Wood
Mary Dawson	Georgia Davey
Mr. Dawson	Chas. Newton
"Bull" Condon	Jim Corey

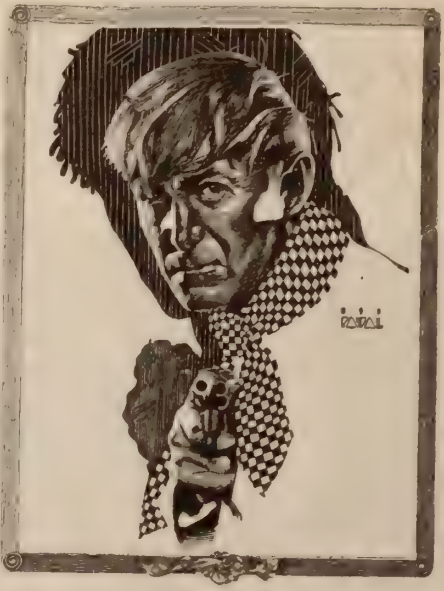
JIM and Jerry Marvin were twins, whose resemblance was so remarkable that when folks owed Jim money they would be likely to pay it to Jerry, who would then give it to Jim and explain. But as years rolled on, Jim and Jerry separated. Jerry secured a position as foreman on the Circle-Bar ranch, while Jim wandered about simlessly from one job to another.

An old fire-eater was Dawson, Jerry's boss—but that did not deter his daughter, Peggy, from issuing instructions and seeing that they were carried out by her dad as well as the foreman, even though she was in love with Jerry.

"Bull" Condon, Dawson's neighboring rancher was in love with Peggy, but the feeling was not mutual and when he arrived at the ranch to see Dawson relative to meeting the note which he held on the farm, he suggested to Dawson that if Peggy said the word, the note could take care of itself. But Dawson showed his true spirit by ordering Condon off the ranch, saying that he would have the money that afternoon to liquidate the obligation.

Jerry goes to the bank to secure the money for Dawson and Condon follows with the intention of holding him up on his way back and securing the money. Jim, who wanders into this part of the country, unaware that his brother Jerry is in the vicinity, is mistaken for Jerry by Condon and knocked unconscious. Condon searches him for the money, but is unsuccessful. Jim's horse races away to Dawson's ranch and when Peggy and Dawson see the riderless horse, they start out on a hunt for Jerry, thinking he has been hurt. They find Jim and mistake him for Jerry. Peggy's sister administers aid and Jim starts making love to her, she thinking it is Jerry. Peggy enters just as Jim is embracing her sister and give Jim back the engagement ring, thinking Jim is Jerry. Jim is astonished, but takes it and hands it to Peggy's sister. Dawson questions Jim about the money and the note and he protests his innocence.

Later, however, in an effort to finally outwit Condon, the both brothers, the two girls and the father are all brought together They do put it over finally on Condon, and then Jerry turns to Peggy and Jim turns to Mary and Dawson turns to the four of them and peace seems to have settled at last.



Harry Carey, who is endearing himself to thousands as the tramp in "Sundown Slim" and whose next special attraction will be "West Is West," a winner from all pre-reports.

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

Episode 12

"The Unmasking"

CAST

Marie Carlton	Marie Walcamp
King Carson	Otto Lederer
Dr. Redding	Wadsworth Harris
Harlan Keeler	Harland Tucker

MARIE and Keeler make their escape and several weeks later are en route to America. On the same boat are Carson and Redding, who instruct their agents to seize Marie and Keeler on their arrival in Los Angeles.

Marie meets her old butler as she is riding with Keeler in Los Angeles. When she leaves him to change her costume, he is seized by the gang, but the capture is witnessed by the butler, who informs the police.

Keeler is taken to an outpost of the gang, where he is robbed of one of the petals which he had concealed in his shoe, and cast in a cellar full of deadly poison gas.

In the meantime, Marie, the butler and the police head for the direction of the outpost, chasing an automobile in which Redding is riding with the lotus petal which he has taken from Keeler. The automobile falls down a huge cliff and Redding is killed, but before he dies he gives Marie the petal and tells her of Keeler's whereabouts and danger. Marie goes to the outpost, where she is seized by the gang and cast in the cellar with Keeler, but the police, according to her instructions, follow close on her heels and the two are rescued.

While this has been going on, the mysterious Foo calls on Professor McVay in an effort to find out something about the whereabouts of the remaining petals on his premises. He holds McVay up with a revolver, but he is finally seized by the police and when his disguise is partly lost during the fight, he is disclosed as none other than King Carson, Redding's crony.

Marie and Harlan are married and receive from Professor McVay a goodly reward for their efforts in locating the missing petals.

"A Lyin' Hunter"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring
CLIFF BOWES, DIXIE LAMONT and CHARLES INSLEE

A CLERK in a dynamite factory is in love with the daughter of the warden of a nearby prison. In a fit of jealous desperation he gets mixed up with some explosives and lands in jail. He gets out and in the course of his escape finds himself in a baggage car, safely tucked away in a hamper.

Professor Holme Brewer is on the train, going to New Ralgia to present the park committee with some lions he had caught in Africa. A crook makes for the professor's baggage; the clerk sees him at work on the trunk; he pushes him in and attires himself in the professor's clothes, thus getting rid of his prison garb.

The professor sleeps on and the clerk alights at New Ralgia and is greeted with acclaim. They prepare a banquet for him and he has to get no end of ideas spontaneously out of his head in order to satisfy the curious ladies of New Ralgia. It wouldn't have been so bad only the lions get loose and an awful chase and mix-up follow.

The warden and his daughter arrive just in time to be chased by a mad lion. The guards who accompanied the warden recognize the clerk and he is taken away to prison. The girl cries and tells him she will wait for him forever.

Two years later we find the clerk coming out of prison only to find the girl married to an old man. She is the proud mother of twins. He is desperate all over again and this time decides to end it all. He does so by jumping into a well head first.

a hit!
-and clean!

There's no hit or miss about this Red Rider series of six two-reel romances of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Rarely, if ever, has there been crowded into two reels such crisp action—such zest and vim—with all the tang and gusto of the great Canadian timberlands. There's a snap and a pithy "let's go" that carries these brisk, impelling pictures with their big-hearted, rough, raw-boned fellows straight into the heart.

Clean and virile as the very air of the woods idolized by these devil-may-care fellows; men rough as a nutmeg grater and as fine beneath.

Just released
No. 4
"WHEN THE DEVIL LAUGHED"

featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM and
VIRGINIA FAIRE
Written and directed by
JACQUES JACCARD

The REDRIDER SERIES

"A Blue Ribbon Mutt"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

CHARLES DORETY, LILLIAN BYRON, BUD JAMISON, AND BROWNIE, THE WONDER DOG

LILLIAN, who owns a cat and dog store, "cans" Charlie, her clerk, when in an altercation with a street sweeper, a brick breaks the front window of the shop. Charlie then gets a job to post bills announcing a "Dog Show" in the Auditorium with $10,000 in cash prizes. While posting the bills, he notices Brownie and a pup and decides to enter pup for a prize.

The dog show is a gala event. Lillian also enters a dog, her favorite poodle. She snubs Charlie when she sees him. Lillian's poodle is picked as a blue ribbon winner. Brownie grabs hold of him and hides him, substituting the pup in his stall. Villains enter to steal the prize dog and steal the pup. When Lillian comes to the dog's stall she finds him gone and is frantic Brownie produces the poodle for her and Lillian is overjoyed with Brownie and Charlie, his owner. Thus Charlie and Lillian are brought together again. The directors of the show decide that Brownie is a clever dog and award him first prize. Then Charlie and Lillian, being on an equal footing, get married and all seems to be well with them.

"My Lady's Ankle"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring ROBERT ANDERSON

M. COUPERINE, an artist, had married adorable Suzette for love, but alas, it did not buy them the necessities of life. They were pretty much down and out when Couperine got an inspiration and painted a beautiful design on Suzette's ankles and legs, prettier than silk stockings could ever be. The lack of silk stockings was the only thing which kept Suzette from getting a dancing engagement at the Café des Arts, but now—with her painted legs, she was the rage of Paris.

The new fad brought Couperine dozens of customers to his studio; long ones and short ones and lean ones and fat ones. And they all fell in love with him and left their husbands for him. Naturally it began to look pretty black for Couperine, especially when the husbands came in brandishing guns and he had to hide the wives. However, he got away with it nicely and then produced Suzette, introducing her as his wife. Everybody made up then, and things seemed to go on in great style, with plenty of money for Couperine and Suzette.

Carmel Myers, fascinating star of "In Folly's Trail," and "The Gilded Dream" who will soon be seen in a novel role, in a new story of the gay smart set

"The Timber Wolf"

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM and VIRGINIA FAIRE

Red Rider Series, No. 6

TO be in love meant quite a lot to Kirk MacLean of the Royal Northwest Mounted, but when he received word from headquarters that the father of the girl of his heart was breaking the law, duty of his position actuated him to write and inform her of what her father was doing, thereby intimating that there was pressure from higher authority. But life was not all roseate for Jean, even tho the hand of law was destined to be her benefactor through life, for her father, a cruel and heartless man, kept close watch over her and made no attempt to keep from her the fact that he was producing illicit whiskey. Jean finally decides to get word to Kirk MacLean of her ill-treatment so that he can come and rescue her. She bribes a half-breed, who is a tool of Nigel Durant, her father, to take a note to MacLean. The father discovers her ruse, but it is too late to prevent the half-breed's escape. His unceasing attempts to force Jean to divulge the destination of the half-breed prove futile.

Kirk dispatches Abner Lee (his colored "jack-of-all-trades") with the note to Jean and expectantly awaits a reply. In the meantime, Jake Williams is in jail awaiting transfer to the Headquarters at Regina for trial for various offenses. He is set free by some of his conspirators while MacLean is away, in answer to the message from Jean. Abner, although tortured by Jake and his gang, refuses to tell which way MacLean went. Durant sees Kirk coming and awaits his opportunity, when he fells him with a club, fleeing with the thought that he has killed MacLean. MacLean revives and starts after Durant. He overtakes him and in a battle under water overcomes his resistance and kills him. Jake and his gang, who have arrived at the camp, watch the fight from land, where they have bound Jean with a rope and when they see Kirk come up alone, start a fussilade of bullets at him. Jean escapes while the fighting is going on and joins Kirk in time to make a getaway.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 6.

"The Pool of Mystery"

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Professor Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

THE gang takes Helen to Aw-Wong's, fearing that her screams will attract the attention of the police. Aw-Wong is the head of a Chinese band in league with Stanton. Their quarters in Chinatown are extensive.

At Aw-Wong's, Stella still pretends to be Helen's friend and searches her for The Flaming Disk, which the gang takes from her.

The gang get in a quarrel with one of the Chinamen. Below the house is a dark, mysterious pool, inhabited by a man-eating alligator. Before Helen's eyes the Chinaman is hurled into the pool and consumed by the terrible beast.

Elmo, in the meantime, has swung himself on to a chandelier and out of the fearful lion trap into an adjoining room, thus making his escape. He discovers that Helen has been taken to Chinatown and trails her there. Entering the house, he gets into a fight with the gang, and they gain the upper hand. They hurl him down the cellar stairs; he is thrown from a rebounding plank at the foot into the gloomy depths of the mysterious pool. Will the fearful alligator consume him too?

Sophia Kerr, well-known writer.

Do Your Hands Tell Tales?

DR. ALON BEMENT, head of the Maryland Institute of Fine Arts, has a hundred and one educational problems to keep him busy, but he has nevertheless found time to cultivate a very interesting and fine art—that of outlining a person's character by the general mould and movements of his hand. In New Screen Magazine No. 89 the hands of several prominent persons are exposed, together with Dr. Bement's deductions therefrom.

First of all, this issue of the magazine shows the hands of Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, whom Dr. Bement figures out to be gentle, cautious, sensitive, the very essence of honesty, and a home lover. Anyone closely associated with Mr. Laemmle could affirm the correctness of these deductions. Then the hands of Maurice Dambos, the famous French cellist, are shown, and Dr. Bement called particular attention to the fact that Dambois' hands were those of a prize fighter, since much strength is needed to ply the slender strings of the cellist.

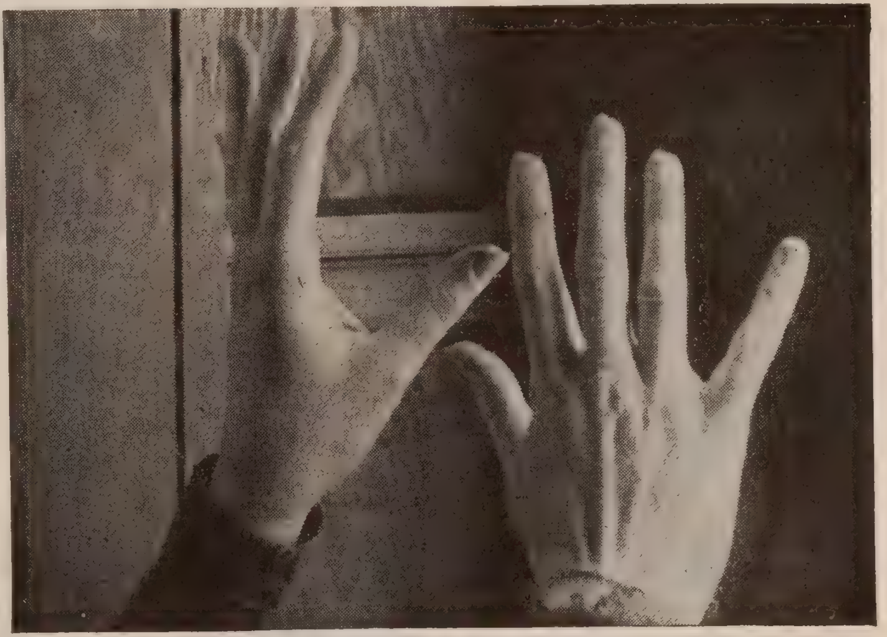
The hands pictured below are those belonging to Sophia Kerr, the famous novelist. Dr. Bement found these slim and lovely fingered hands a delight to read. Between stories, Sophia Kerr finds time to be editor of a woman's magazine and to "tear off" three or four books a year.

This "shot" on character as exposed by the hands is but another example of the interesting material which Universal collects to make up the New Screen Magazine each week. Unusual scenic effects, unusual games and tricks, unusual inventions and unusual hobbies, not to mention views of lovely gowns and all sorts of "animateds" and funny sayings form part of this weekly issue.

In addition to the exposition of character reading from hands, New Screen Magazine No. 89 contains some trick photography which is a treat for the eye, showing a rolling cloud effect, some pictures of an unusual animal, "the eared vulture," and a story in pictures showing the development of the dollar ($) sign, which should be of interest to everyone, particularly nowadays.

WHEN Dr. Alon Bement was making character studies of hands for the New Screen Magazine issued weekly by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, he wanted to feature the hands of some well-known woman. After consideration, he decided that few hands were more interesting from the viewpoint of character deduction than those belonging to Sophia Kerr, the famous writer. Miss Kerr was particularly gracious about consenting to have her hands featured in the New Screen Magazine.

Sophia Kerr is one if the most interesting figures in the modern literary world. She is the author of one of the most entertaining novels of recent years, entitled "See-Saw." She also wrote a serial story for one of the magazines entitled "The Blue Envelope," which later was made into a serial for the movies, and in which Lillian Walker was featured. Her short stories appear constantly in all of the fiction magazines and one entitled "Sweetie Peach" will soon be filmed by a prominent motion picture company.



Hands of Sophia Kerr, famous womanwriter, as they appear in New Screen Magazine No. 89.

"You'll Be Seeing More of Me—"

YES, siree, you and your folks are going to see lots more of me, for I'm the little bright-eyed ray of smileshine that's going to hand out tons and tons of good-natured fun. Oh, yes, I know that's a large order to fill, what with Bathing Beauty competition 'n everything, but I have my own little laugh—specialty—my stuff will get the laughs that will make exhibitors glad to have me in their houses. And if you think I'm handing myself too much credit take a look at my first offering. If that doesn't make a hit with you I might as well quit flirting. So long—till next time.

Yours for a thousand feet

"Dotty" Wolbert

Featured in

"A Scream in Society"

Directed by Vin Moore

and other forthcoming one reel

STAR COMEDIES

EVERY ONE A TWINKLER

"CINDERS"

Some Eye-full

this Breezy, Speedy Present-Day Two Reel
Western. Directed by Edward Laemmle.
Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

Episode 11.

"The Shanghai Peril"

CAST

Marie Carlton	Marie Walcamp
Harlan Keeler	Harland Tucker
Dr. Redding	Wadsworth Harris
King Carson	Otto Lederer

HARLAN jumps to the fender of the train, picks up Marie from the tracks while the train is in motion and thus rescues her. Marie then goes to the sacred temple, and producing a letter gives it to the Chinaman in charge, thus getting from him the last petal which she promptly hides in her hair. Carson and his gang, however, are waiting for her, seize her and take her to one of their hiding places, where they rob her of the petal and then place her in a burning tower to die. She is rescued by Harlan, however.

They proceed back to the hotel. Redding has made an enemy of Jose, the Filippino, who has been instrumental in giving the gang much help and Jose turns on them and warns Marie and Harlan of the gang's movements. Redding and Carson plan to take the same boat as Marie and Harlan back to Shanghai, but when one of their gang is captured by the Secret Service, due to Joe's warnings, they make a getaway in a private boat.

They all land in Shanghai about the same time and proceed to the same hotel. Redding is seized with a mad desire for the other petal which Marie has. He starts out one day and is followed by Marie and Harlan, but he has taken precautions to have his henchmen ready and to have the chauffeur of Harlan's car in his service so that Harlan is taken captive and dumped into the river while he almost chokes Marie to death. Will he procure from her the last petal which he so madly desires to possess?

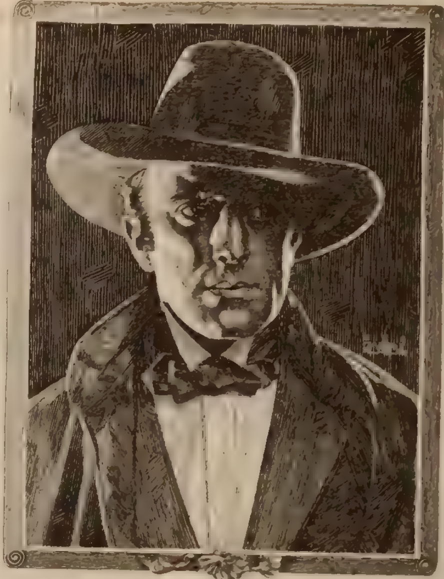
"The Forest Runners"

Red Rider Series No. 5

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM and VIRGINIA FAIRE

ALMOST all the Royal Northwest Mounted Police who occasionally loitered about Baptiste Codrae's tavern were in love with Jean, his pretty daughter, but Jean preferred Kirk MacLean, bravest of the dauntless riders of the law.



Frank Mayo, now appearing in "The Marriage Pit" whose next special attraction will be "Honor Bound," a virile drama of ideals, women, and the great southern rubber country

The sergeant, Kirk, and one other rider, invite her to Dominion Day, and as all three invitations occur at once, Jean decides that the only way for her to give a fair decision is by a contest. So she hangs three chains of beads on a tree stump at a considerable distance from the tavern, across the river, and bids the three gallants to race for them on the following day, the one returning first to be chosen as her escort for Dominion Day.

Jake Williams, an escaped convict, has it "in for" Kirk and the sergeant, a secret enemy of Kirk, advises Jake that the day of the race is the time for him to get his revenge on Kirk. The race begins and Kirk, by a daring jump from a cliff into the river, reaches the tree stump first. He swims back to the foot of the cliff, about to climb up to his horse above, when Jake cuts the rope on which he had planned to make the ascent. He also hurls a burning fuse at Kirk, who ducks and escapes, and when Jake hurls a second, he hurls it back at him, thus mortally wounding him. Then he takes him prisoner to the tavern, where Jean is waiting impatiently, sorely disappointed that the other two had preceded Kirk, the sergeant coming in first.

The sergeant receives a letter from headquarters that for the capture of Jake Williams, dead or alive, a six months' furlough is to be granted, and Kirk is given his leave. He rides away, leaving a saddened Jean behind.

The sergeant is in panic lest Jake disclose his part in the plot against Kirk before he dies. Jake does give it away, and then Jean turns on the sergeant, snaps at him that she will not accompany him Dominion Day, rides in mad haste after Kirk, and promises to accompany him as his wife.

"Cinders"

Two Reel Western Drama.

CAST

"Bing" Davidson	Hoot Gibson
Joyce Raymond	Dorothy Woods
"Wearie" Willie	Jim Corey

"BING" fondly adores Joyce, but Joyce, who really loves "Bing," isn't over much on encouraging him any. One day "Bing" flirts with Stella who is riding in a private car of inspection with her father, a railroad manager and her mother. Joyce, of course, gets angry and "Bing" gets wise, but "Bing" also gets in bad with Joyce.

Now Stella has a zest for daredevil stunts so that when the train on which she is riding stops at the next station, she sends a message to town stating that it has been held up. "Bing" receives the message from the station agent and races to the scene.

In the meantime, "Wearie" Willie was actually putting over a real holdup and "Bing" arrives in time to get the draw on him. The conductor, however, misconstrues the meaning of "Bing's" actions and fells him, thus allowing the real bandit to escape.

Stella relents her actions and after learning of "Bing's" whereabouts, trails him. "Bing" catches the bandit just as Stella arrives and after suitable explanations, everything is amicably settled between all concerned.

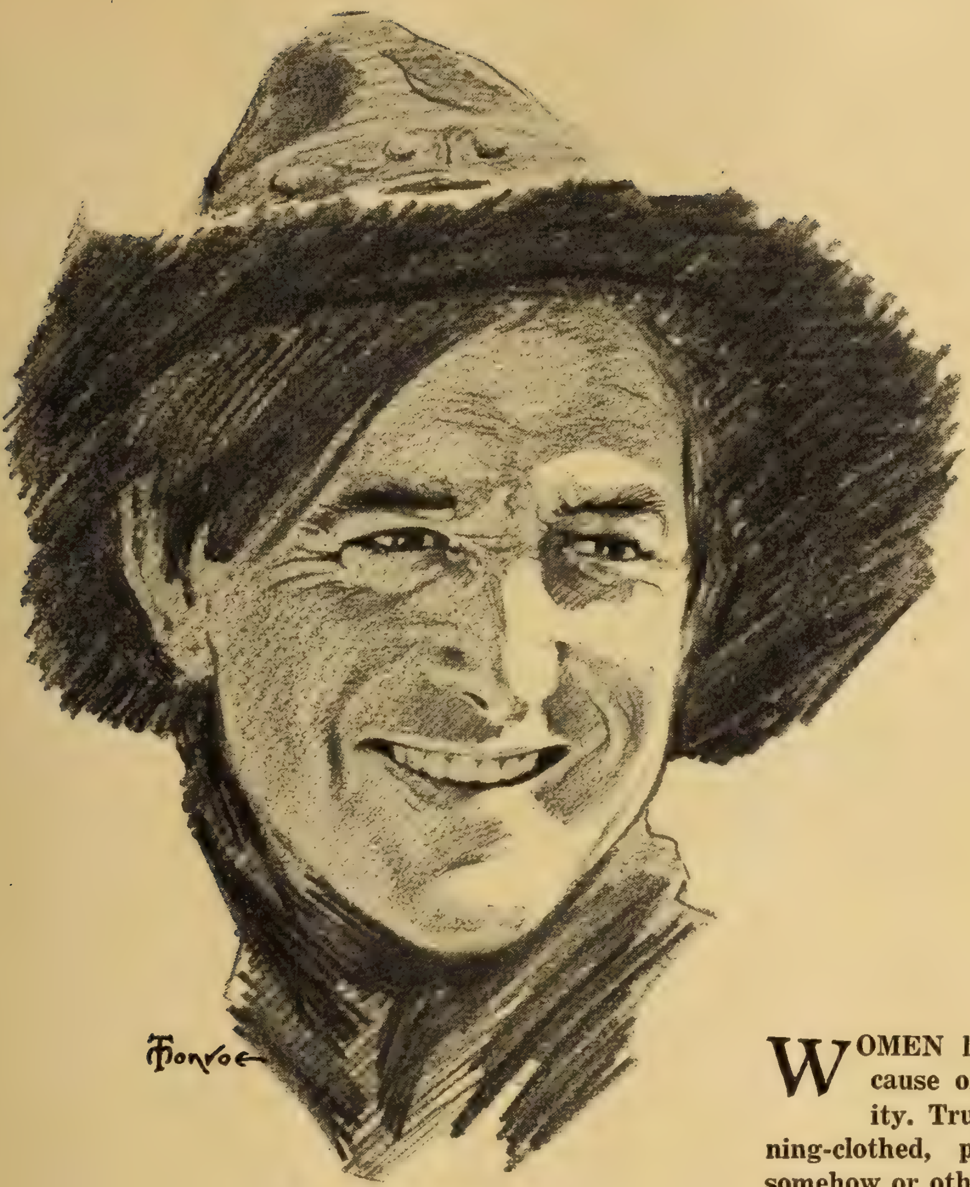
"Hearts and Clubs"

One Reel Star Comedy

JACK and Jim both love Tillie and bring her gifts, flowers, a monkey, etc. Mother prefers Jack but Tillie prefers Jim and some mix-up follows, in which the monkey, the family dog, the lovers, mother and Tillie take part.

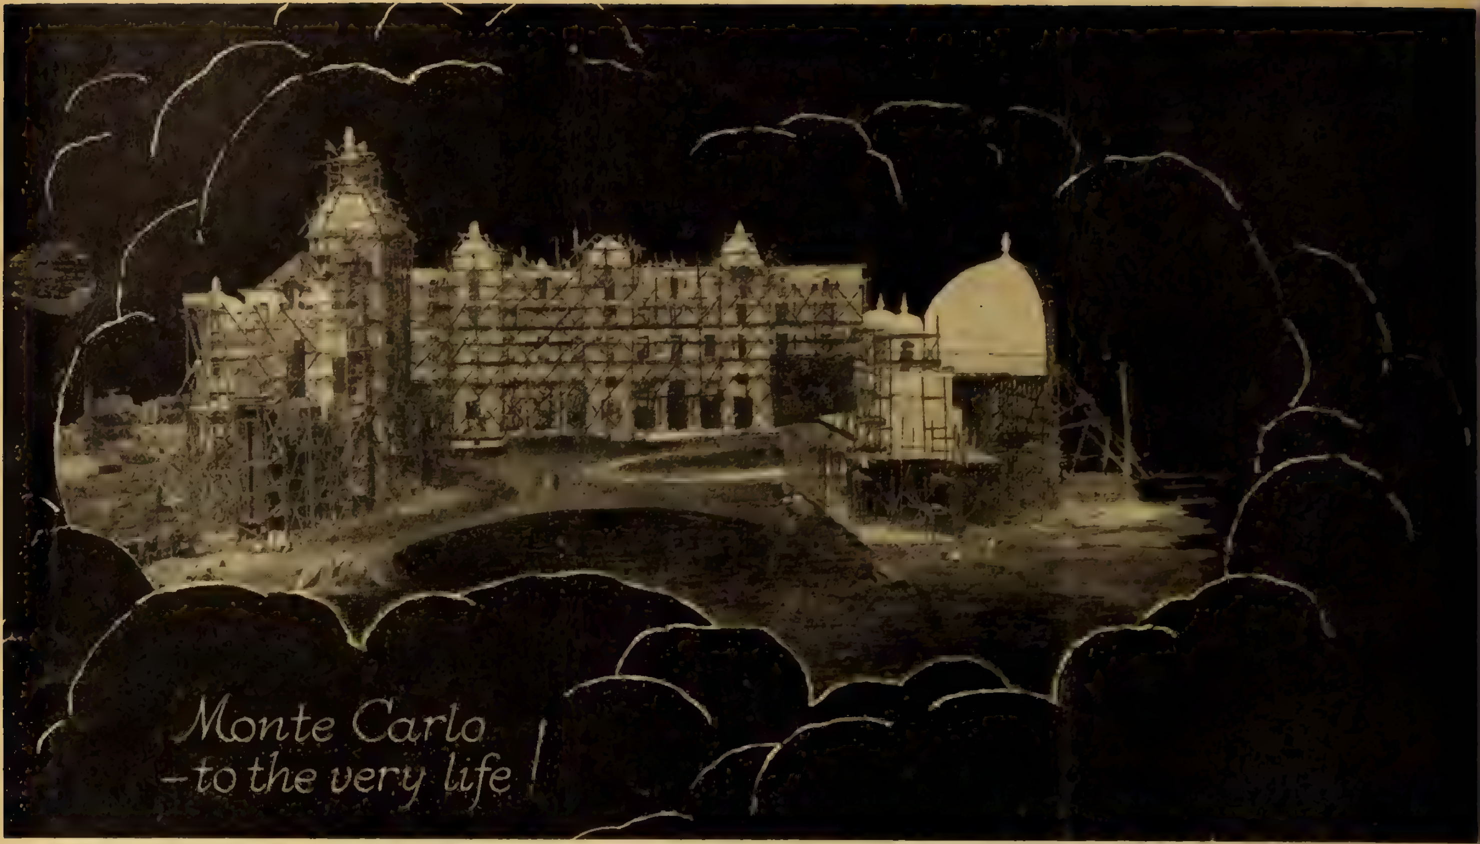
Jack invents a stunt whereby the winner is to win Tillie. Part of it is to be blindfolded. Jim is blindfolded and holds his own balance successfully but Jack manages to fall into a fountain. Tillie and Jim try to elope while mother is extricating Jack from the fountain but without success.

Jim tries to get revenge on Jack by painting a sign, reading, $25.00 Fine for going in Water." An officer appears on the scene and demands that Jack pay the fine. Jim takes a hand in the argument and he too falls in the water. The officer demands a fine of him. Not getting it, he "takes in" both Jack and Jim and poor Tillie is left to sit in solitary state with only her mother for company.



human HARRY CAREY

WOMEN like Harry Carey because of his utter masculinity. True, they have their evening-clothed, polished heroes, but somehow or other they seem to have an especially warm place in their hearts for the rugged virility that is Carey's. And it's that Carey grin that gets them, too, for in it they seem to find that touch of humanness that they'd like to find in every man. Women want Carey—give them what they want.



Monte Carlo
-to the very life!

THOSE THEATRES that paid $4,000 for "The Devil's Passkey" will pay $10,000 for "FOOLISH WIVES"

VON STROHEIM-AGAIN

Universal-Jewel

"FOOLISH WIVES"

Two and one-half times as much

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

FRANK MAYO
IN
"HONOR BOUND"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VOL 11 NOV 13 1920 NO 13

A picture with some real thrills in it and marvelous photography

directed by the same man who made "20,000 Leagues under the Sea"

STUART PATON

"WANTED AT HEADQUARTERS"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Universally Liked

AS the calico girl, who tried to live in the dream-land of silks, Carmel Myers, the bewitching, is creating new attendance and box office records.

Regardless of sex or age, all the world loves a love story. When you present this charming actress, with her wealth of beauty and youth, in a love tale of such rare appeal as "The Gilded Dream," you cater to the likes and desires of everyone in your town.

CARMEL MYERS

in a delightful love story

directed by

ROLLIN STURGEON

on a story by Katherine Leiser Robbins

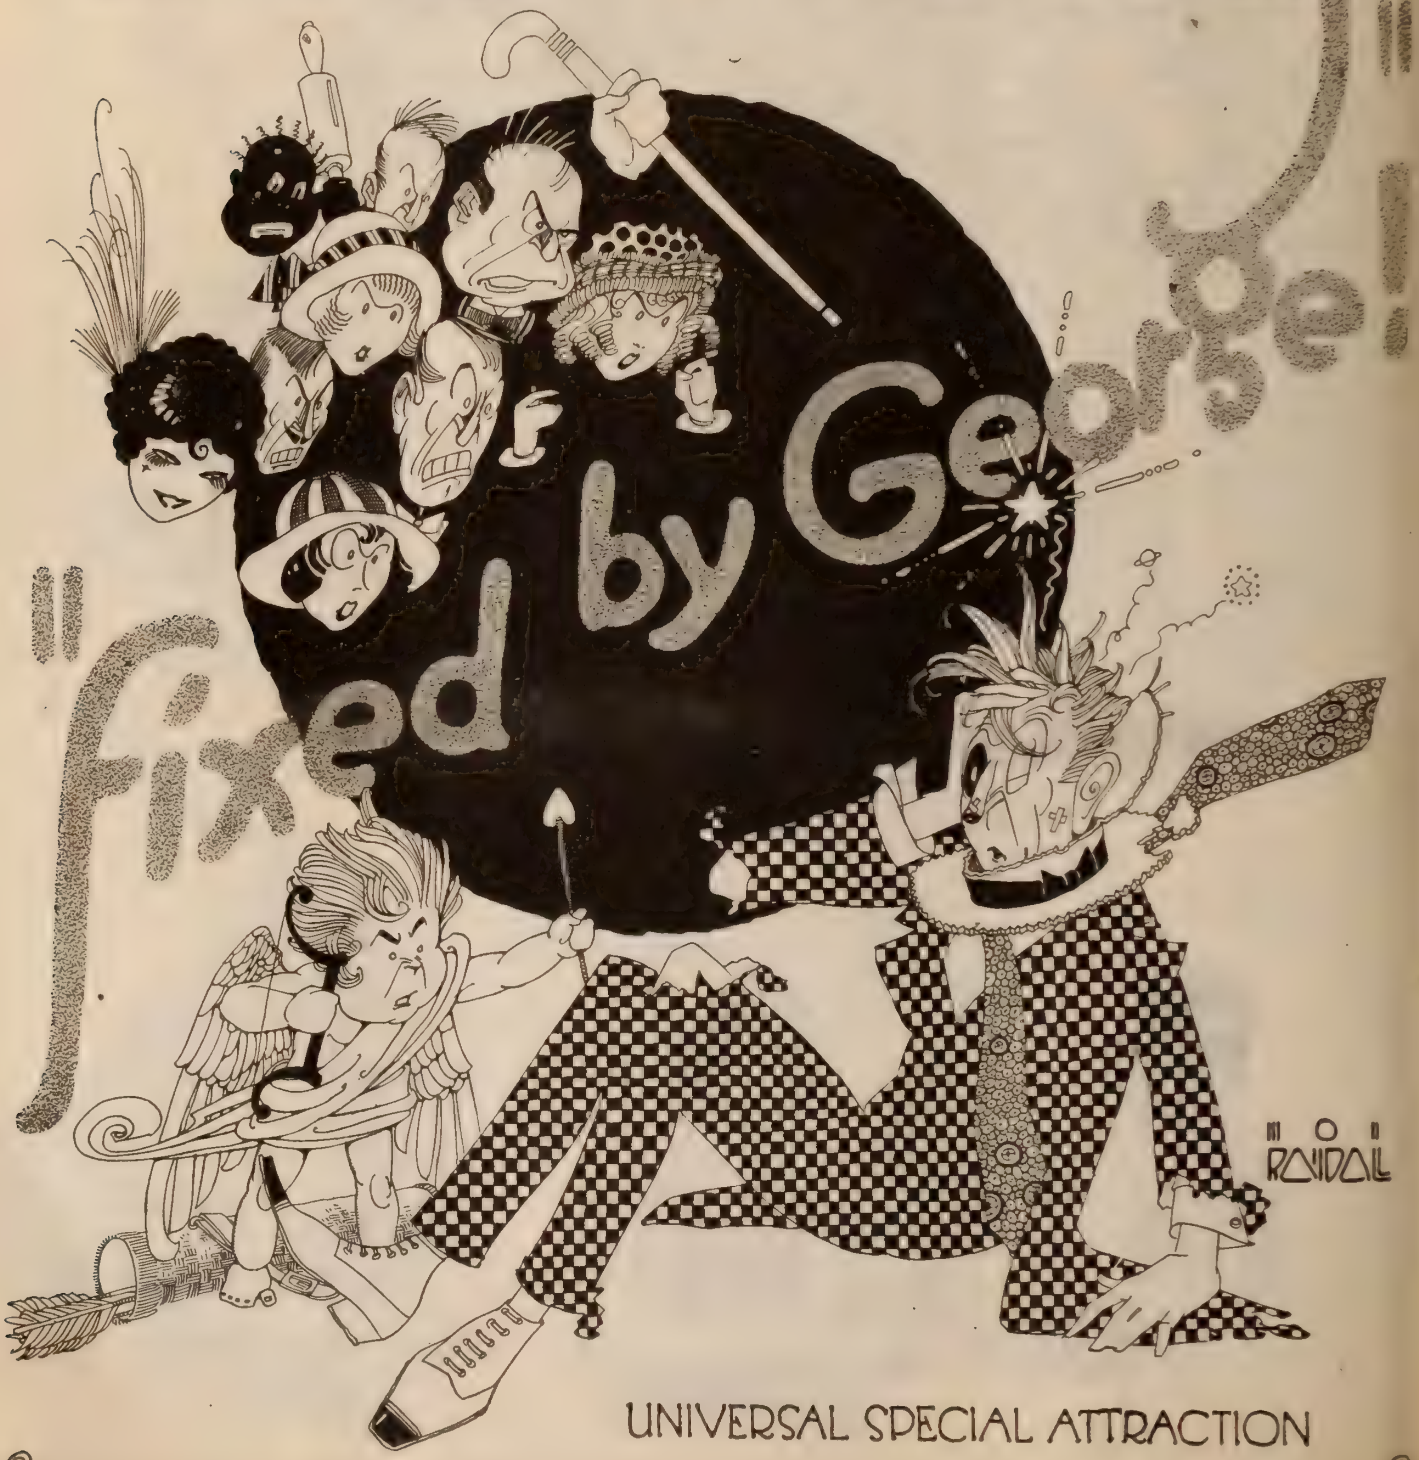
"THE GILDED DREAM"

Universal Special Attraction

LYONS-MORAN



"fixed by George!"
RANDALL

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL FARCE-COMEDY"—

MOTION Picture News says: "Lyons and Moran have produced another successful farce-comedy in 'Fixed by George' . . . it boasts a good plot with a reason for every bit of action and a well-constructed continuity.

"When the comedy moments arrive they are spontaneous because they are well-planted and in between times the story runs along smoothly, carrying interest in each successive sequence.

"The production builds well to its farcical climax in the last reel. In these latter scenes four or five couples are used to straighten out the tangle and credit must be given to the stars for the splendid way they have handled the situations.

"Lyons and Moran give a good, up-to-date performance of the roles they characterize, injecting action where it is needed and adding many comedy touches.

"In the cast are four pretty ingenues—Hazel Howell, Beatrice La Plante, Daisy Robinson and Maud Wayne."

Service Page For Frank Mayo In "Honor Bound"

FRANK MAYO
UNIVERSAL

AT A GLANCE

—-—

SUBJECT—"Honor Bound."

LENGTH—Five reels.

STAR—Frank Mayo.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Lasca," "The Brute Breaker," "The Girl in Number 29," "The Red Lane," "Hitchin' Posts," "The Marriage Pit," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Jacques Jaccard.

STORY BY—Jacques Jaccard.

SCENARIO BY—Jacques Jaccard.

SUPPORTING CAST—Edward Coxen, Helen Lynch, Dagmar Godowsky, Nick de Ruiz, Irene Blackwell, Gordon Sackville, Max Willink, C. W. Herzinger.

LOCALE—New York, On Board a Yacht, and in the South American Rubber Country.

TIME—The present.

THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of a society ne'er-do-well who loses his friends and his fiancee through his weakness and who is given a last chance to redeem himself in a new country. Face to face with the primitive, he develops latent powers and qualities which not only reinstate him in the eyes of the world, but which finally win back for him the love he had lost.

CAST

Billy Thorpe	Frank Mayo
James Ellison	Edward Coxen
Koree	Dagmar Godowsky
Santos Cordero	Nick De Ruiz
Mary Ellison	Irene Blackwell
Claire Vincent	Helen Lynch
Geo. K. Vincent	Gordon Sackville
Lord Stanlaw Maitland	Max Willink
Capt. Barnett	C. W. Herzinger

THE STORY

BECAUSE of a wild escapade on the eve of his marriage to the daughter of the Rubber King, Billy Thorpe, a careless ne'er-do-well, finds himself on trial before a jury of his own people. His fiancee, Claire, wants to return the ring. She is dissuaded by his sister Mary, who knows that would spoil his life. Claire's father says, "I'm going to send you to assist your brother-in-law on my biggest South American plantation."

Three months later it is evident that Thorpe is in the right place. Gratified by increased shipments and lowered costs, the Rubber King takes Claire and Mary on a cruise to visit the men.

Ellison, before he left his wife to come to the tropics a year before, was well-groomed, a gentleman, with strength and standing under the protection of civilization. In the poisonous tropics he has degenerated to a whisky-soaked wreck. In exact antithesis, Thorpe, a scapegrace in an effete environment is doing the work for which Ellison receives credit.

In Espiritu is unmoral, beautiful Koree, who lives as simply and unashamed as an animal of the forest. In return for gin the bestial brute called Santos Cordero, her lord and master, temporarily turns her over to Ellison.

On the wings of dawn comes the Albatross, the yacht. Thorpe drags Ellison from Koree's hut and makes him brace up to go on board. Ellison excuses his dissipation as the haggardness of overwork That evening strains of syncopation float to the beach and bring to Koree faint urgings and memories of the campfires and tomtoms. She swims to the yacht, where Ellison is talking to the gay party gathered below deck.

"It isn't the work that makes living so hard here, it's the lack of pretty women——"

Crash! Through the hatch drops a startled beauty like a naked forest nymph. Ellison dodges from view and she runs to Thorpe. Next day when Thorpe declines Claire's invitation to accompany them down the coast, she suspects that it's not work that keeps him.

Mary stops off with her husband, who explains to Koree that she is Thorpe's sweetheart. He tells Mary that Koree is Thorpe's friend. Thorpe is astounded when Koree refers to "your sweetheart," and begins to understand why his sister is so cold to him.

Koree sees Ellison embracing Mary, and Thorpe interferes. At the same time his last chance to make good in the eyes of Claire is ruined. He resolves to attempt no defence, so that Mary will be happy, but privately he thrashes Ellison. His reversion to type is complete.

In revenge Ellison brings Cordero to Mary. Thorpe hears the half-breed's lies in silence at first, then attacks him furiously. They have a terrible fight with army sabres and Thorpe runs the brute through just as the Albatross sails back into the harbor. Ellison reports that Thorpe lost his head over a woman, and Thorpe keeps silent to save his sister from the truth. When even Claire refuses to take his word for what happened, Thorpe leaps overboard in spite of his wounds, and swims ashore. Koree nurses him in her hut; he has fallen to the bottom of the social scale.

Claire questions Koree and learns the true circumstances. She and Thorpe are reconciled and decide to make their home there. Ellison returns to civilization, where he regains his former status as a gentleman.

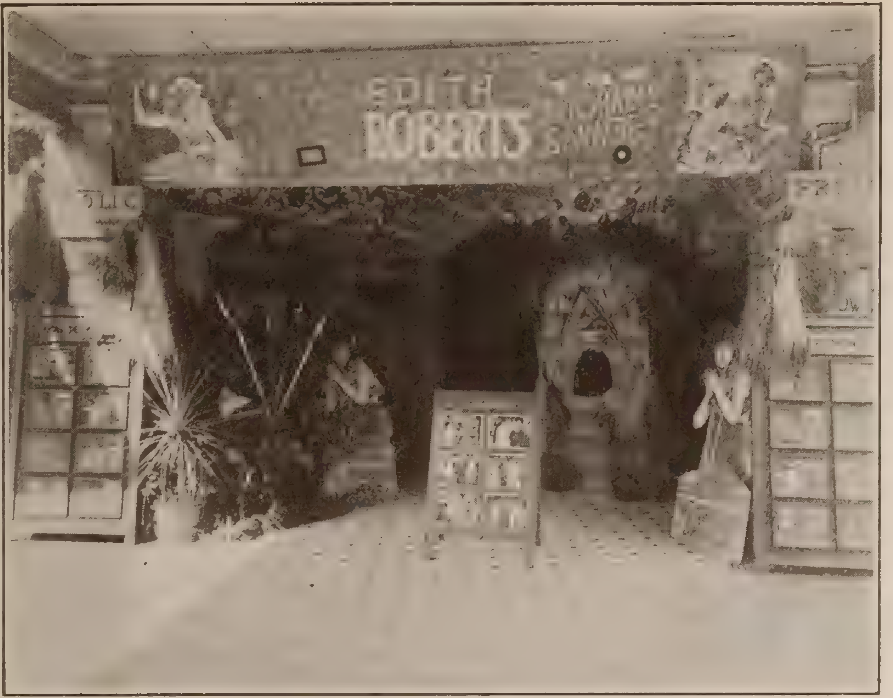
ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Is morality a matter of geography? If you're naughty maybe you ought to move. See "Honor Bound."

In a part of the world where society is quite unmoral, strange things happen to men who stray from civilization. See "Honor Bound" with Frank Mayo.

The strangest triangle ever thought of is that of a man who is moral, a man who is immoral and a woman who is simply unmoral—in "Honor Bound."

THIS ONE MEANS S.R.O.



Lobby display of Frolic Theatre, San Francisco, for Edith Roberts in "The Adorable Savage."

IF you want to hang out your "Standing Room Only" sign, book "The Adorable Savage." This special attraction, featuring Edith Roberts, daintiest of stars, is making a hit everywhere it is shown.

When the Frolic Theatre, out in San Francisco, Cal., ran "The Adorable Savage," the management decorated the lobby of the theatre so attractively that it caused considerable comment. It is here reproduced. This feature, "The Adorable Savage," lends itself easily to lobby decoration, for the atmosphere of the story is woven around the South Sea Isles, and South Sea Isle settings can always be made attractive.

Universal is exceedingly gratified by the number of exhibitors who have been so encouraged by their success with "The Adorable Savage" that they have found time to sit down to write the company letters of thanks and praise. After playing the picture with tremendously successful results, the management of the Frolic Theatre sent the following letter:

"It is with great pleasure that I write you this letter commending 'The Adorable Savage,' which closed at the Frolic Theatre Saturday night. Although this was the second run in San Francisco, and only six weeks after its first showing at the Portola Theatre, it gave us one of the biggest weeks that the Frolic has had since I have been in charge. Naturally, I am more than pleased with results, and only hope that your product will continue to do as well for me as this picture did."

R. F. ABRAHAM, Manager, The Frolic Theatre.

And from another part of the country comes this sort of a letter:

"I wish to congratulate you on 'The Adorable Savage,' starring Edith Roberts. It is absolutely the best picture I have shown here this year, and the film was in A1 shape. Will stand a repeat."

E. E. HOLMQUIST, Prop., The Broadway Theatre,
Centerville, S. Dak.

Edith Roberts, plus "The Adorable Savage," is a safe bet anywhere and at any time. It is one of those pictures that will take with any class of audience, and the little star is at her most winsome best in it.

Hats Spell Happiness For Carmel

IN her current production, "The Gilded Dream," Carmel Myers is supremely happy. This charming Universal star has been brightening the life of her director, Rollin Sturgeon, with a perpetual smile and spreading cheer right and left since work was started on her latest picture.

The reason why Miss Myers is so happy over "The Gilded Dream" is not because she is called upon to wear some gorgeous frocks in many of its scenes, nor because the scenario calls for a few trips to the seashore and mountains. The cause of her gladness is the fact that many of the opening scenes occur in a small-town millinery shop, and Carmel is not only the head saleswoman, but chief trimmer, buyer, seller, model and window dresser.

Ever since Miss Myers can remember she had one besetting hobby, and that was to fuss with hats. She has always designed her own hats, and often made them when she had time. When she attended school she insisted on making her own bonnets, and even as a child her mother recalls Carmel sneaking into the closet, pulling out several hats, changing feathers and ribbons, and once in a while evolving quite a creation, though more often she would spoil a perfectly good piece of headgear.

In her current scenes in "The Gilded Dream" she can fuss and fret over hats and trimmings to her heart's content. Between scenes she retrimmed the various hats used as props and noted their effect on the heads of various members of the company.

GOOD PUBLICITY STORIES FOR

Frank Mayo in "Honor Bound"

Frank Mayo and Dagmar Godowsky in "Honor Bound."

NEW ROLE WELL-FITTED TO VERSATILITY OF STAR

"THERE'S one peculiar thing about Frank Mayo" recently remarked Jacques Jaccard, the author-producer who directed that Universal star in his most recent feature, "Honor Bound," which is coming to the ——— Theatre soon. "He is at the same time the easiest and hardest star to fit with a story. He is the easiest to fit, because being one of the best actors who ever faced a camera, he can play any sort of a role that is given him, from a modern character part to a Shakespearean knight.

"And this very versatility makes Mayo a hard star to fit with a story. When the public sees him in a dressy part, the producers are besieged with letters asking that he always appear in similar roles; and when he appears in a rough or primitive character the exhibitors are told by their audiences that is just the sort of a part he should always play."

And so Jacques Jaccard solved the problem in "Honor Bound." In this story Mayo appears in three distinct characterizations, although playing the same part. He is first seen as a well-dressed, care-free ne'er-do-well, utterly irresponsible and thoroughly unreliable. Next he is seen face to face with primitive conditions, developing undreamed of powers and unsuspected qualities; and then we see him revert to type—to the manners and passions of by-gone generations.

Frank Mayo comes from one of the most distinguished families of players on the American stage and began his acting career as a lad of five under the guidance of his grandfather, who bore the same name and who was considered one of the eminent stars of his day.

TWO CHARMING GIRLS PLAY OPPOSITE ROLES

A VAMPIRE from Russia and a flapper from Montana add feminine zest to "Honor Bound," in which Frank Mayo may now be seen at the ——— Theatre.

Dagmar Godowsky, the impetuous, black-haired daughter of the world renowned musician and composer, Leopold Godowsky, enacts the physically lovely and unashamed girl of the jungle in this South American story by Jacques Jaccard. She is the beautiful half-breed whose liason with one man nearly wrecks the happiness of another in "Honor Bound." She was born in Petrograd nineteen years ago, when it was still called St. Petersburg, and she has appeared on the stage under the management of David Belasco and in screen productions with Nazimova, Sessue Hawakaya, and Frank Mayo.

Helen Lynch is the fiancee of Frank Mayo in "Honor Bound." She is the girl who banishes her ne'er-do-well lover to South America and who later goes to him in spite of his apparent unworthiness. Miss Lynch is blonde, and first "Irised in" in Billings, Montana, eighteen years ago. She is blue-eyed and no one is blue when she's about. She professes to liking "thrilly" stories like those of Poe, but she looks as though Little Red Riding Hood would still frighten her.

"Honor Bound," which was written by Jacques Jaccarrd and also produced by him, is said to be one of the most novel and picturesque film subjects turned out by the man who made "The Great Air Robbery" and "Under Northern Lights."

EXPERIENCED ACTOR APPEARS IN NEW FRANK MAYO PICTURE

EDWARD COXEN, who plays opposite Frank Mayo in his latest Universal feature, "Honor Bound," announced for next ——— at the ——— Theatre, is one of the most accomplished leading men in the films. Versatility is his middle name, and he can play a juvenile or an old man, a hero or a villain, with equal skill.

Born in San Francisco, he went on the stage when in his teens, playing light comedy roles with the Alcazar Stock Company in his native city until the catastrophe of 1906. Then he went East and played in a number of New York stage productions, among them "The Little Brother of the Rich" and "The Fourth Estate." In connection with this it is quite a coincidence that Frank Mayo, with whom he is now appearing, starred in the screen version of "The Little Brother of the Rich" for Universal not long ago.

Coxen then did his turn in vaudeville, playing a sketch on the Keith and Orpheum circuits for two years. And then came the movies. And it looks as if the movies will keep him.

FAMOUS NAME APPEARS IN CAST OF MAYO FILM

IRENE BLACKWELL was named for Blackwell's Island, New York. Or rather, the island was named for her family. That was, of course, before New York built its prison there.

Irene Blackwell plays the part of Mary Ellison, Frank Mayo's sister, in "Honor Bound," Jacques Jaccard's story which is showing at the ——— Theatre on ———.

Her grandmother, Anna Blackwell, was the last heir of Blackwell's Island —and in fact the deeds to this property are still in the family possessions although they have not been upheld legally. The Blackwell family lived on the island for generations before New York established the prison there.

During the four years she has been in motion pictures the parts that have fallen to Irene Blackwell's lot have almost invariably been "heavy." Her present characterization in "Honor Bound" is one of the few exceptions. Miss Blackwell hopes to continue in sympathetic parts, however.

This Stunt Brought In The Cash

Enterprising Western Manager Devises Unusual Exploitation for "PINK TIGHTS" Production

W. E. JONES, manager of the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, is right out in front when it comes to unusual exploitation. When he starts in to exploit a picture, he goes at it in a big way. Result: The Superba is filled with eager patrons.

A good example of his exploitation methods occurred recently when he booked "Pink Tights," the Universal special attraction feature starring Gladys Walton, for his down-town theatre. As the picture is a "circus" picture, he determined to circus it.

His main stunt was a grand "peerade" right up and down the busy streets of Los Angeles. It was a regular parade, too, with equestriennes, bands, animal wagons, clowns and everything. Prominent in the procession was a charming miss in pink tights.

To say that the parade was a success would be putting it mildly. The crowd that followed it to the Superba was as big and as enthusiastic as that which follows a real circus parade to the circus lot.

In this case, it seemed as if the parade ended right at a real circus lot, for Jones had fixed up his lobby to resemble the entrance to a big tent show. A marquise effect was used over the entrance bearing the words, "MAIN ENTRANCE—BIG SHOW." Inside the foyer, and visible from the street, was a flat, painted to resemble the long rows of animal cages under the "animal top" of a big show.

From the marquise to the edge of the sidewalk were strung red, white and blue pennants. Over the sidewalk was a large cut-out of Gladys Walton in pink tights, taken from a six-sheet. The box-office was fixed up to look like the ticket wagon of a circus. The entire effect of the lobby was exceptionally like a circus lot ,with the tent in the background.

Jones did not stop there. Inside the theatre the walls were covered with canvas to represent the walls of a tent. A pink color scheme was used throughout, including pink lights. The ushers were dressed as clowns, with peaked caps and big ruffles.

Wait a minute. Jones is still on the job. Here is the prologue he arranged.

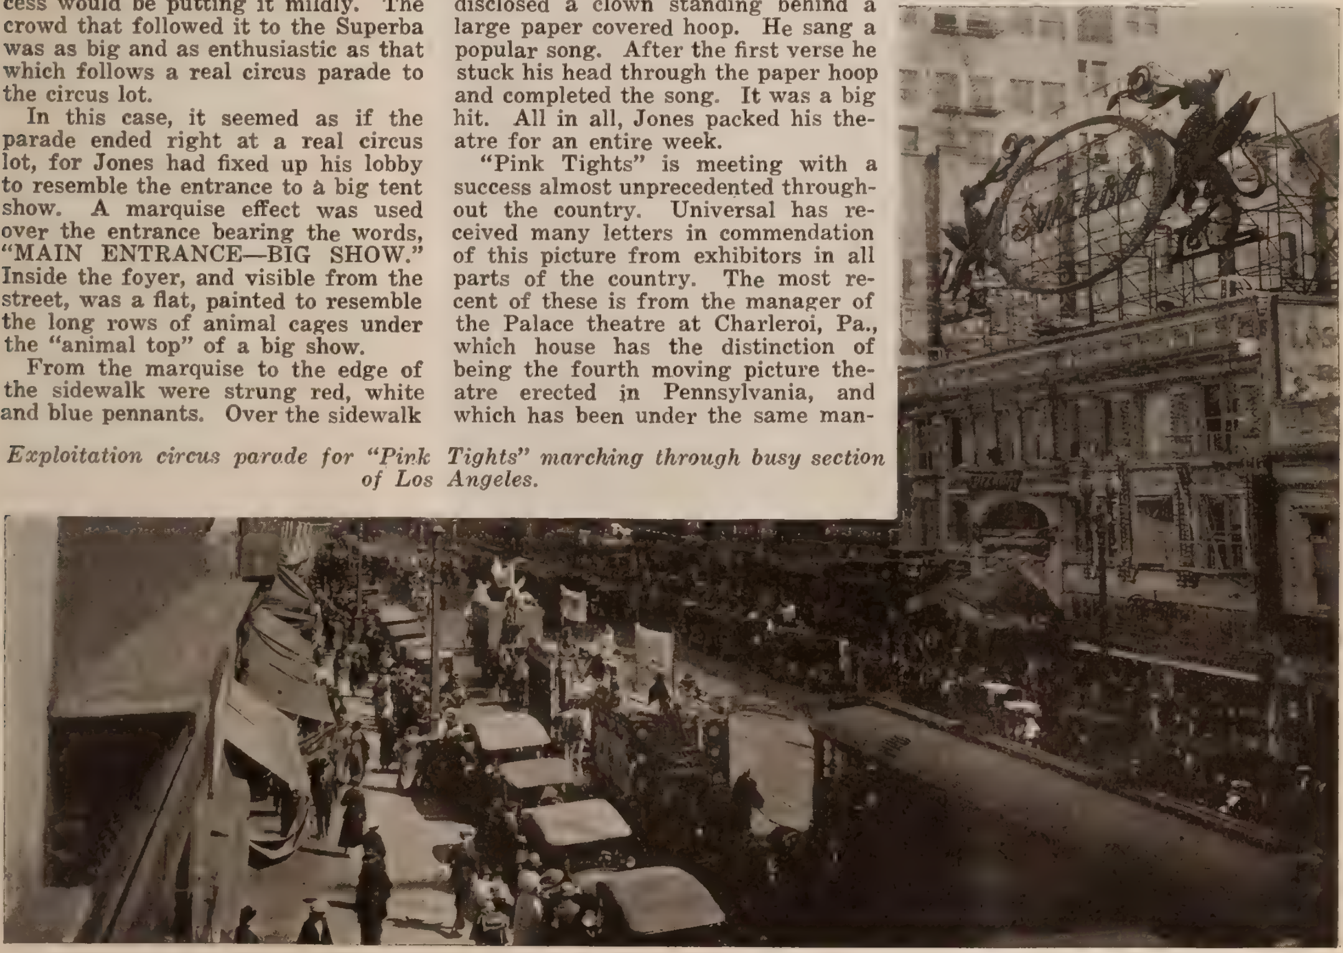
A drop was painted to represent a complete circus lot, with the big tent in the background and the side-show tents and banners in the foreground. Even the sandwich stands were prominently in view. The rising curtain disclosed a clown standing behind a large paper covered hoop. He sang a popular song. After the first verse he stuck his head through the paper hoop and completed the song. It was a big hit. All in all, Jones packed his theatre for an entire week.

"Pink Tights" is meeting with a success almost unprecedented throughout the country. Universal has received many letters in commendation of this picture from exhibitors in all parts of the country. The most recent of these is from the manager of the Palace theatre at Charleroi, Pa., which house has the distinction of being the fourth moving picture theatre erected in Pennsylvania, and which has been under the same management for fifteen years. It reads as follows:

"Universal Film Manufacturing Company is surely deserving of praise in placing upon the market such an exceptional picture as 'PINK TIGHTS.' I consider this as one of the very finest features that I have had in my house for a long time—cast, story, directing and photography have seldom been excelled. This is truly a grand pciture."

HARRY L. BARNHART,
Mgr., Palace Theatre.

Such letters as these are indeed a source of inspiration to the makers of the picture. And they further serve to prove in this particular instance that "Pink Tights" is worthy of the best exploitation efforts of the manager.



Exploitation circus parade for "Pink Tights" marching through busy section of Los Angeles.

A King And A Cameraman Exchange Greetings

U. K. Whipple, cameraman, shaking hands with King Albert of Belgium.

UPON the recent return to this country of the Olympic athletes, it became known that U. K. Whipple, an International News cameraman, received unusual honors and attention at the hands of King Albert of Belgium.

The incident occurred while the 500 athletes were assembled before the royal box in the stadium at Antwerp. While twenty cameras clicked the King called the various contest winners before him and decorated them with the prize medals of the seventh Olympiad.

Suddenly the King paused and stared intently towards the group of cameramen. He had recognized Whipple, who had accompanied President Wilson on his tour through Belgium, and who later had accompanied King Albert on his tour of the United States.

The King halted the ceremonies while he called the International News cameraman over to the box and shook hands with him. The Belgium ruler, talking with Whipple and Ambassador Brand Whitlock, expressed his pleasant memories of his enjoyable trip to the United States, and thanked Whipple for the photographs he had taken during the tour. He then invited the cameraman to accompany the royal party on their projected trip to South America.

Whipple is the holder of the Gold Medal of the Order of the Crown of Belgium, presented to him by King Albert during that monarch's sojourn in America.

International News did not send him to South America to accompany King Albert, but recalled him to New York, as there was important work for which he was especially commissioned there.

Mr. Whippple is considered unequalled in the camera-news game. When Universal released the Animated News, the first news weekly, it was U. K. Whipple who did most to make it a success. He is a pioneer in the film news world and few camera-men can equal his record.

This has been an auspicious year for International. First there were the "shots" of the German raider Moewe in action, shots which set the whole world a-talking. Then came the pictures of Pope Benedict, an astounding feat indeed, since this marked the first occasion of a pope appearing in moving pictures. Then there were the "shots" of the Wall Street explosion, remarkable not only because they were completed within an hour after the dreadful event had occurred, but because they were shipped West to the Denver Post in Denver, Colo., in fifty-three hours, or nineteen hours less than the fastest time by the usual fast mail. An aeroplane or two helped International to set this record.

And now comes a member of the International staff who is personally greeted by one of the best beloved of modern monarchs, and to whom the King extends a personal invitation to accompany him to South America. This certainly is honor accorded to International and recognition of the efficiency and capability for which it stands, as exemplified in this particular instance by U. K. Whipple, who stands among the "first" in the realm of the news cameramen.

International is a "real" news film in that it makes a special point of up-to-the-minute news. Its cameramen are scattered all over the globe and have never failed to be on hand when there was anything of interest and importance happening. Nothing daunts them, and for them it is "where there is a will there is a way." This was never better exemplified than in the taking of the recent shots of the race between Sir Barton and the wonder horse of the age, Man o' War, where, until the eleventh hour, it looked as if some others would beat International to it. BUT THEY DIDN'T.

WITH APOLOGIES TO K. C. B.

The dictionary defines.
* * *
The word "contest."
* * *
As a "struggle.
* * *
For something.
* * *
AGAINST active
* * *
Opposition."
* * *
Our own meaning
* * *
Of this word.
* * *
Is "co-operation.
* * *
To build profits.
* * *
For the Exhibitor."
* * *
From past experience.
* * *
You know.
* * *
Universal does more.
* * *
Than just talk.
* * *
IT ACTS.
* * *
So here are.
* * *
The "reel" facts.
* * *
And you can judge.
* * *
For yourself.
* * *
In conjunction.
* * *
With the Dramatic Mirror.
* * *
The famous weekly.
* * *
Of the screen and stage.
* * *
A real contest.
* * *
Has been opened.
* * *
Designed to give.
* * *
The three girls.
* * *
Who win.
* * *
A chance to play.
* * *
In Universal Pictures.

And receive in return.
* * *
A generous salary.
* * *
And offers too.
* * *
To those who fail.
* * *
A beautiful strand.
* * *
Of Nataline Pearls.
* * *
Plus their commissions.
* * *
But why tell you.
* * *
A clever showman.
* * *
What this means.
* * *
In receipts.
* * *
If tried.
* * *
In your town.
* * *
But—if you'll write.
* * *
Now—to-day.
* * *
For full particulars.
* * *
To Dramatic Mirror.
* * *
133 West 44 Street, N. Y. C.
* * *
You will learn.
* * *
Why we say.
* * *
That "contest."
* * *
In Universal language.
* * *
Means co-operation.
* * *
And profits.
* * *
To exhibitors.
* * *
In every town.
* * *
No matter.
* * *
Whether they be.
* * *
Large or small.
* * *
We thank you.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS
Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY
PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 11 NOVEMBER 13, 1920. No. 13

Carl Laemmle Welcomed Home

CARL LAEMMLE, the big chief of Universal, arrived in New York aboard the Aquitania last Saturday after a four months' tour in Europe. He was royally welcomed home by a large delegation of Universal employees, who had assembled at the Cunard pier, from the Universal home office, the Fort Lee factory and from other nearby Universal branches.

Armed with pennants, banners, confetti, horns and other noise-making devices, and headed by a large band, the Universalites stormed the Cunard Line pier and almost raised the roof when the returning film magnate walked down the gangway. They surrounded him with a rush and literally carried him on their shoulders to the street.

Here the Universal head found another surprise awaiting him. He saw a long line of automobiles and sight-seeing buses drawn up bearing Universal banners and placards reading: "Welcome—Carl Laemmle." Mr. Laemmle was escorted to the leading automobile, his employees dashed for the others, a cordon of mounted policemen wheeled into place at the head of the column, and there began one of the most novel and noisy demonstrations on record in the film industry.

It is unlikely that a film official ever was the recipient of such a spontaneous demonstration in New York City. It was arranged by the employees at the last minute. Police permission to parade Mr. Laemmle, from the pier to his office was being obtained even while the Aquitania warped into her berth. Chief Inspector Thore of the New York Police Department assigned Sergeant Day and a detail of mounted men from Traffic Squad B to steer the parade through the crowded streets.

Across Fourteenth street to Union Square and up Broadway to the Mecca Building at Forty-eighth street, the procession speeded. It resembled the reception to a popular political candidate. The 71st Regiment Band in the leading bus regaled Broadway with "Hail! Hail! The Gang's All Here," and other lively tunes. Broadway craned its neck. "Carl Laemmle presents" many spectacles, but here was something new.

The home-coming official received another ovation from his employees when he arrived at 1600 Broadway. They piled out of their buses and held him up at the door of the Mecca Building until they could give him a final round of cheers. The head of the film company tried to express his feelings at his welcome, but the situation got the better of him, and after hesitating over a few words he was forced to turn away to hide his emotions.

The "welcome home" gathering proved to Mr. Laemmle, he later said, that his attempts to create a personal relationship between employer and employees in the Universal organization had borne fruit. The same idea was expressed somewhat differently by one of the hurrahing employees, a young woman stenographer, when she said: "We are trying to thank him for all he is doing for us—our Home Office Lunch Club and other things," and by one of the factory employees in the following words: "He's behind our Universal Mutual Welfare Association, and he's dividing profits with us under the Industrial Democracy plan. We not only work for him, we work FOR him."

Mr. Laemmle was accompanied from Europe by his children, Rosabelle and Julius; by his brother, Louis Laemmle of Chicago and family; by a nephew, Julius Bernstein of Kansas City, and by Mrs. Maurice Fleckles, wife of the well-known Chicago film man. Others in the party were Harry H. Zehner, Mr. Laemmle's secretary; Joseph Kramer and Margarethe Kramer, chauffeur and maid to the Laemmle family.

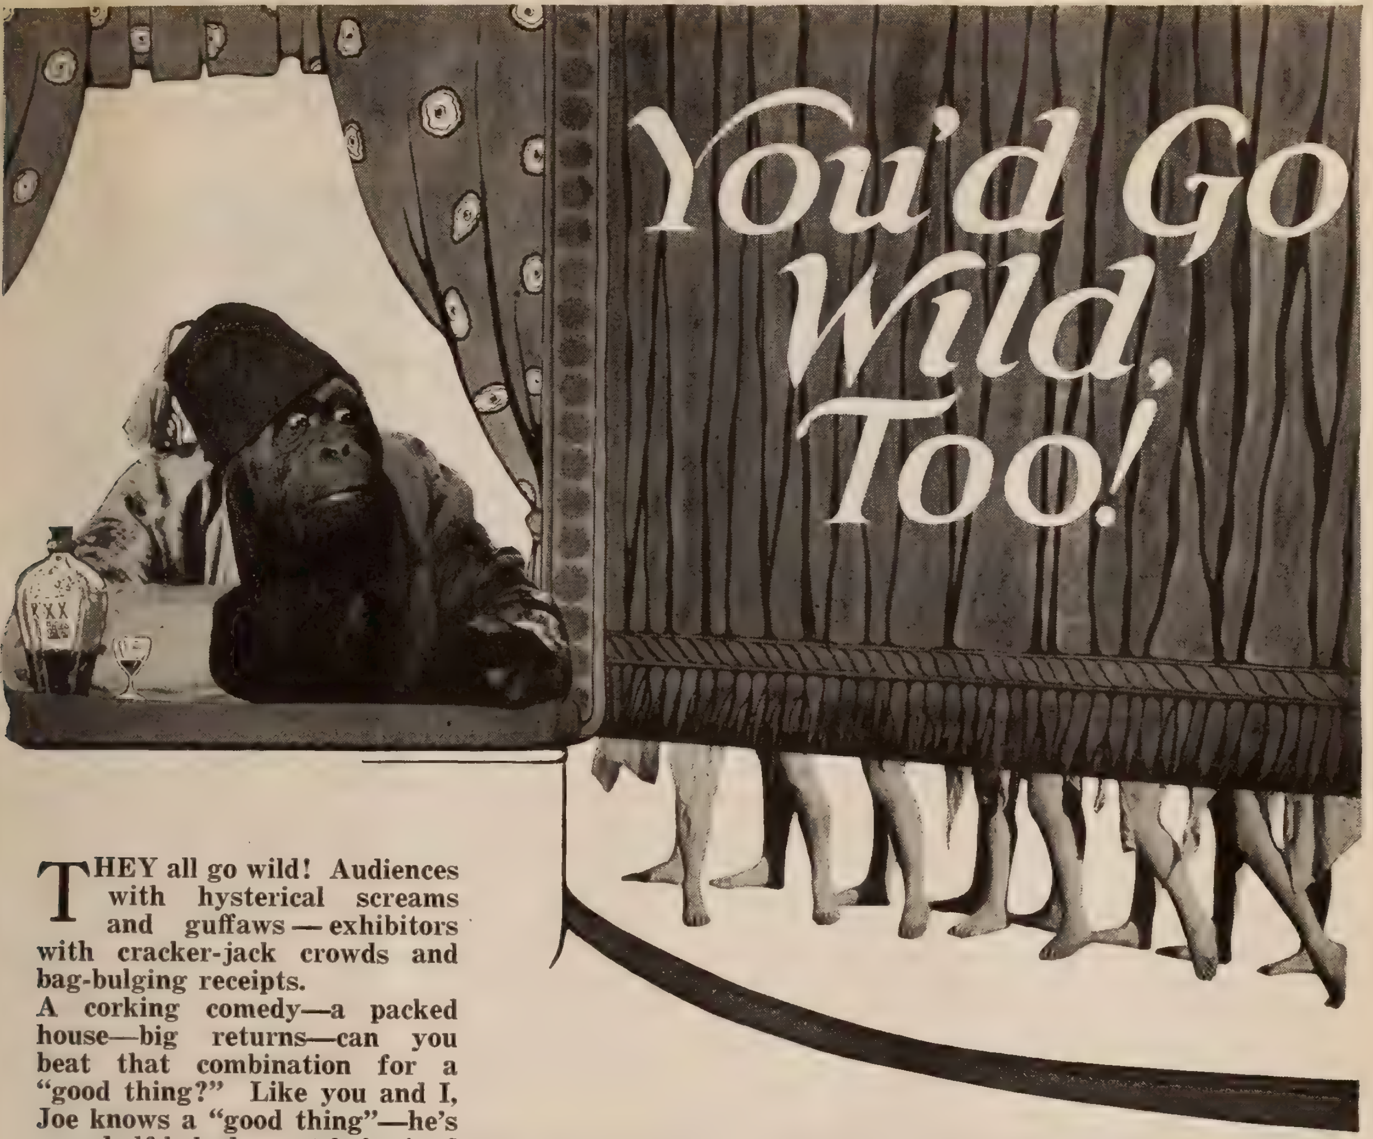
Mr. Laemmle was met at Quarantine by Mr. R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, who made a special trip down New York Bay in the revenue cutter to meet his returning chief. Waiting at the pier with the five hundred employees were other Universal officials and department heads, including Abe Stern, treasurer; H. M. Berman, general manager of exchanges; P. D. Cochrane, exploitation chief; George Kann, export manager; Paul Gulick, publicity chief; E. H. Goldstein, assistant to the president; E. J. Smith, division sales manager; Charles Rosenzweig, sales manager of the Big U Exchange, and George Uffner of the Universal Industrial Department. Maurice Fleckles and James C. Bradford also joined the group at the pier.

Mr. Laemmle's European trip was largely a pleasure jaunt, although he put through several big deals while abroad, and took much time to study the foreign film situation. He left New York July 8 and arrived in London in time to sign a big contract with the Film Booking Offices, Ltd., of London, providing for the distribution in Great Britain of the entire Universal output. Abe Stern and his brother, Julius Stern, of the L-Ko Company, and others of their family, accompanied Mr. Laemmle to Europe, returning last week.

From London Mr. Laemmle proceeded to Paris, thence to Germany, where he visited his birthplace, Laupheim, Wurttemberg. After several weeks in this locality, he went to Carlsbad, in the new Czecho-Slovakian republic, where he took the "cure" for several weeks. He later spent a month in Laupheim, and also visited other German cities and points in Switzerland before returning to America by way of Paris and London.

A few days after Mr. Laemmle arrive in London, in July, on his way to the Continent, he was the guest of honor at a large dinner given by the officials of the F. B. O. and attended by leading British film and newspaper men. Just before sailing for home, he was the recipient of a similar dinner given in his honor by Sir Edward Hulton, a prominent British journalist and moving picture magnate. More than two hundred persons attended this affair.

Despite his large party, at times fourteen persons, Mr. Laemmle experienced little difficulty in traveling over the Continent, other than the usual passport delays and inconveniences. He visited seven countries.



THEY all go wild! Audiences with hysterical screams and guffaws — exhibitors with cracker-jack crowds and bag-bulging receipts.

A corking comedy—a packed house—big returns—can you beat that combination for a "good thing?" Like you and I, Joe knows a "good thing"—he's no half-baked, rattle-brained lunkhead, and he's not selfish. Likes to pass a tip along once in a while—here's his latest—almost in his own words:

"See this picture—when you stop laughing,—Book it!"

Play this picture—then book "A Prohibition Monkey." They say it has some of the best laugh stuff spilled in ages.

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

JOE Martin

Directed by
AL SANTELL

IN

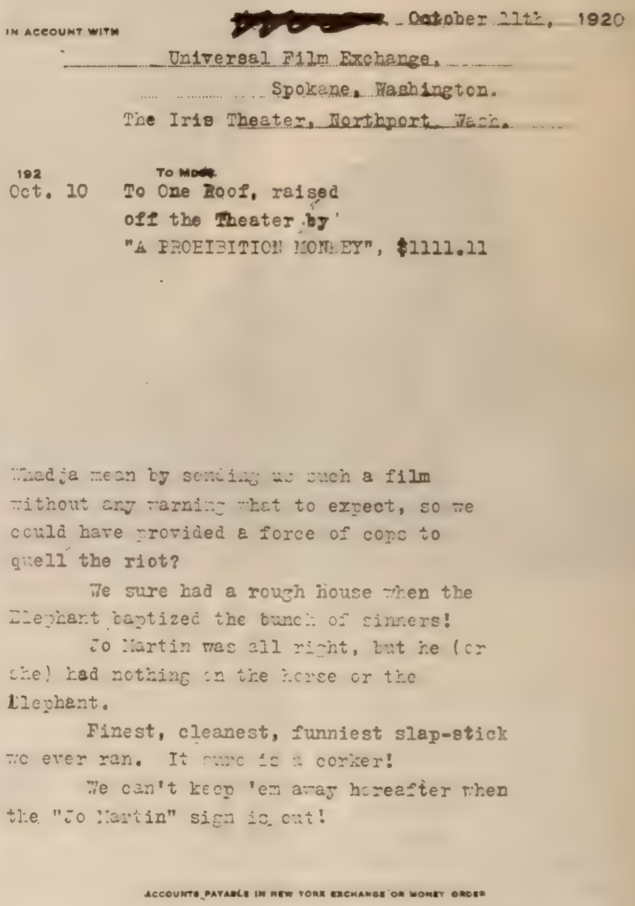
"A WILD NIGHT"

Here's What The Postman Brought Us

MOVING PICTURE companies get hundreds of letters daily from persons who are sure they will make another Mary Pickford or another Priscilla Dean or "Hoot" Gibson; from persons who have this or that suggestion to make concerning photography, direction or lighting effects in pictures and from persons who, having seen a picture made by the particular company, sit down and tell them how good, they think the picture is. Of the latter type of letters, Universal receives legion, and readers of "The Moving Picture Weekly" have read in its pages scores of these commendations which have been reprinted. And nothing gives more gratification to those who have spent tireless months in the making of a picture than to receive from reviewers words of satisfaction and praise.

Joe Martin is only a Monk, and as such he is just one level removed from you and your neighbor and your neighbor's child. But Joe knows how to put over the funny stuff and although he has been doing it for quite a while, it as as funny and original as ever. And none of Joe's funny stuff has been as funnw as that which is part and parcel of "A Prohibition Monkey" and "A Wild Night," the Simian star's two current Jewel releases.

At any rate, in a theatre, in a town, in the big state of Washington in the U. S. A., Joe caused such an uproar that the management of the house sent Universal a token of praise and delight but in such a novel fashion that it is herewith reprinted for the relish and enjoyment of other Universal exhibitors:



[redacted] October 11th, 1920

IN ACCOUNT WITH

Universal Film Exchange,
Spokane, Washington.
The Iris Theater, Northport, Wash.

192	TO MDSE.
Oct. 10	To One Roof, raised off the Theater by "A PROHIBITION MONKEY", $1111.11

Whadja mean by sending us such a film without any warning what to expect, so we could have provided a force of cops to quell the riot?

We sure had a rough house when the Elephant baptized the bunch of sinners!

Jo Martin was all right, but he (or she) had nothing on the horse or the Elephant.

Finest, cleanest, funniest slap-stick we ever ran. It sure is a corker!

We can't keep 'em away hereafter when the "Jo Martin" sign is out!

ACCOUNTS PAYABLE IN NEW YORK EXCHANGE OR MONEY ORDER

Here Are Some More Boosts For The "Jewels"

"I showed 'Under Crimson Skies' last night and it was well liked by my patrons. I will also show it to-night and expect to do a good business with it.

I wish to express myself and say that I am well pleased with UNIVERSAL PICTURES and that your service is the BEST.

"Your salesman was here to-day and I contracted for 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN' and 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY," also JOE MARTIN'S COMEDIES."

J. M. REYNOLDS, Manager,
The Elwood Opera House,
Elwood, Nebraska.

"I want to congratulate you on the production 'UNDER CRIMSON SKIES.' A wonderful picture—the best fight ever put on the screen. I want to tell you it's a knockout."

W. W. COOLEY,
The Gem Theatre,
Silverton, Oregon.

"I take great pleasure in telling you 'The Breath of the Gods' is one of the highest class pictures that has been on my screen since 'Broken Blossoms.' The lady from Japan is extra good. Here is a picture should go over big, especially in high class, cultured audiences, where acting and not 'beauty' is expected."

WM. C. McINTIRE, Manager,
The Rose Theatre,
Fayetteville, N. C.

"You were right and I was wrong. I did not believe 'Shipwrecked Among Cannibals' would be a pulling attraction for my high grade clientele. It not only pulled good crowds with very satisfactory box office results, but the picture thoroughly pleased every man, woman and child who saw it. I am very glad I let you persuade me to play it. Shall be glad to trust Universal's judgment in the future.

D. H. SCHUHMANN, President,
Florence Theatre Corp.,
Pasadena, Cal.

They Are Still Building Sets for "Foolish Wives"

PICTURED above is the Cafe De Paris which is being reproduced in the sets constructed by Eric von Stroheim for his forthcoming stupendous production "Foolish Wives" which he wrote himself, which he is directing and in which he will play the leading role. Maude George and Mae Busch, who played their roles so successfully in "The Devil's Passkey" will again appear in "Foolish Wives," and Marguerite Armstrong, Rudolphe Christians, Cesare Gravina, Malveen Polo and Dale Fuller are also prominently case in the production.

Von Stroheim is a master of reproduction. When "The Devil's Passkey" was first shown, critics would not be convinced that none of its realistic scenes were actually filmed in Paris. Their wonder will be considerably intensified when "Foolish Wives" is presented.

The picture already has cost Universal several hundred thousands of dollars and is about half completed. It already has run many thousands of dollars above the estimated cost. Stroheim promises, however, that he is producing a picture so accurate in local color, in setting and in characterization that the Prince of Monaco himself will swear it was filmed in the little Mediterranean monarchy.

It is the story of an unscrupulous Russian Count, with his clever aids, a Russian adventuress and her sister, who become intrigued with the wife of the American consul from Nice, France. The action is filmed amid the gayety of the famous gambling resort, Monte Carlo, and shows intimate views of the revelry and hectic existence of that place.

Stroheim spent six months after completing his second big picture, "The Devil's Pass Key," preparing for "Foolish Wives." He spent many days in the Public Library in New York looking up references to Monacan customs, architecture and styles.

"Foolish Wives" is expected to be ready for cutting in the next six weeks. It probably will be released in January.

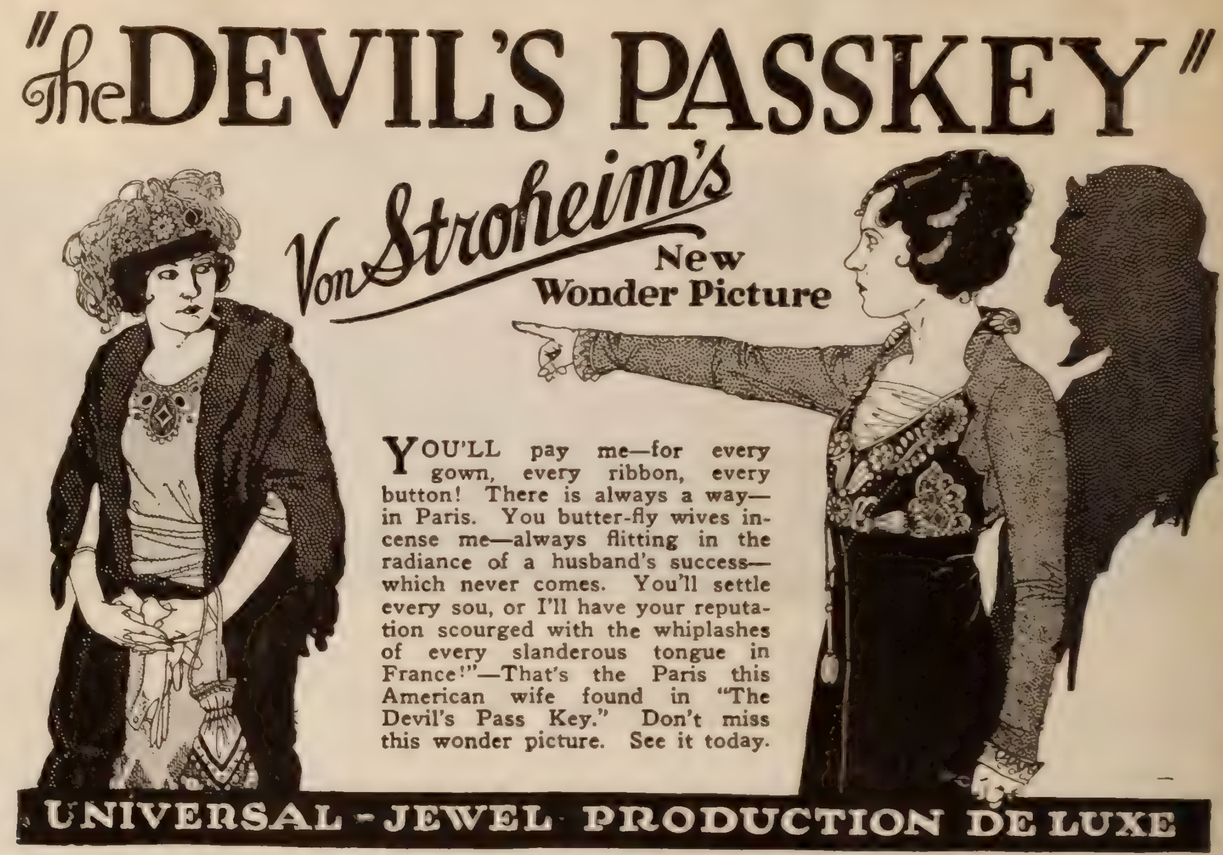
Malveen Comes By Her Talents Naturally

EDDIE POLO has had some proud moments in his life. As a lad he won the athletic championship of his class. For several years he was the principal performer with the Barnum and Bailey Circus. He appeared by special command before the King of Italy. He has won popularity contests in England and South America. There are scores of Eddie Polo clubs in all parts of the country, and his mail comes by the basketful. Yes, the Universal serial star has had a few proud moments, but he never felt quite as proud as he did a few days ago when Erich von Stroheim took him aside and whispered: "Mr. Polo, that little girl of yours possesses genius. I shall always feel proud to know I was the first to direct her."

Von Stroheim was referring to Malveen Polo, Eddie's fourteen-year-old daughter, who has just made her debut before the camera, playing the role of the half-witted girl in his Universal-Jewel feature, "Foolish Wives." The young girl inherits the talent of her father, who has been before the public since childhood, and of her mother, Alice Finch, who was a popular comic opera artist. Malveen is a piano virtuoso and has appeared in concerts, but her father had delayed her eventual screen appearance. A few weeks ago, however, when she was visiting at Universal City, Von Stroheim noticed that she was just the type he desired for the appealing figure of the simple village girl in his production. He proposed to Polo that she be permitted to play the part and the serial star finally consented.

According to Von Stroheim Malveen is a rare discovery. She takes to acting naturally and plays the part will all the subtle artistry one would expect from a veteran of the drama.

This is three-column ad. cut No. 12. Electro $1.25—Mat. 25c. Order of your Exchange or Supply Dept., Universal, 1600 Broadway N. Y.



"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

Von Stroheim's New Wonder Picture

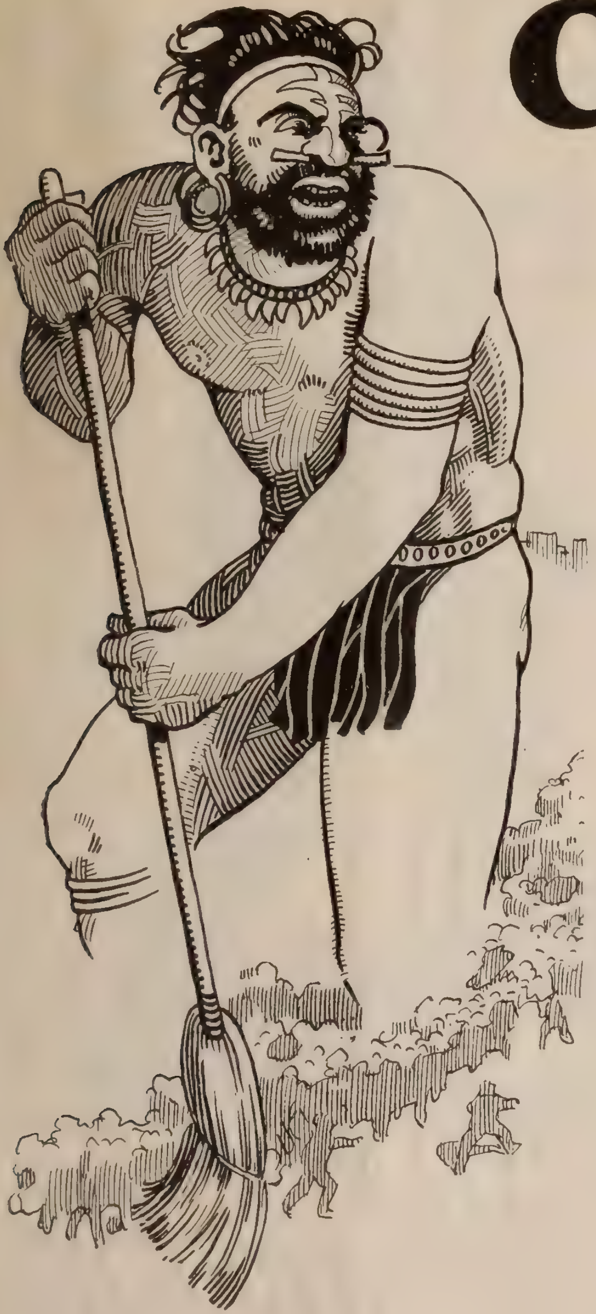
YOU'LL pay me—for every gown, every ribbon, every button! There is always a way—in Paris. You butter-fly wives incense me—always flitting in the radiance of a husband's success—which never comes. You'll settle every sou, or I'll have your reputation scourged with the whiplashes of every slanderous tongue in France!"—That's the Paris this American wife found in "The Devil's Pass Key." Don't miss this wonder picture. See it today.

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

ABOVE is a reproduction of one of the twenty-three newspaper ad. cuts available with this photodramatic masterpiece. Read the copy in the ad. and give your imagination just a little exercise. Think of the drama behind that thought! Can you visualize such sheer drama worked out by that genius Von Stroheim? Think what it would mean to you to have such a picture in your theatre; think what it would profit you to be able to advertise such a picture. Think—and ACT.

Ask your Exchange for a copy of the Press Sheet containing all the advertisements and press matter.

"'The Devil's Passkey' will open the doors of any theatre to a H---- of a business."----W. H. Stephens, Manager Baugh Theatre, Shoshone, Idaho.

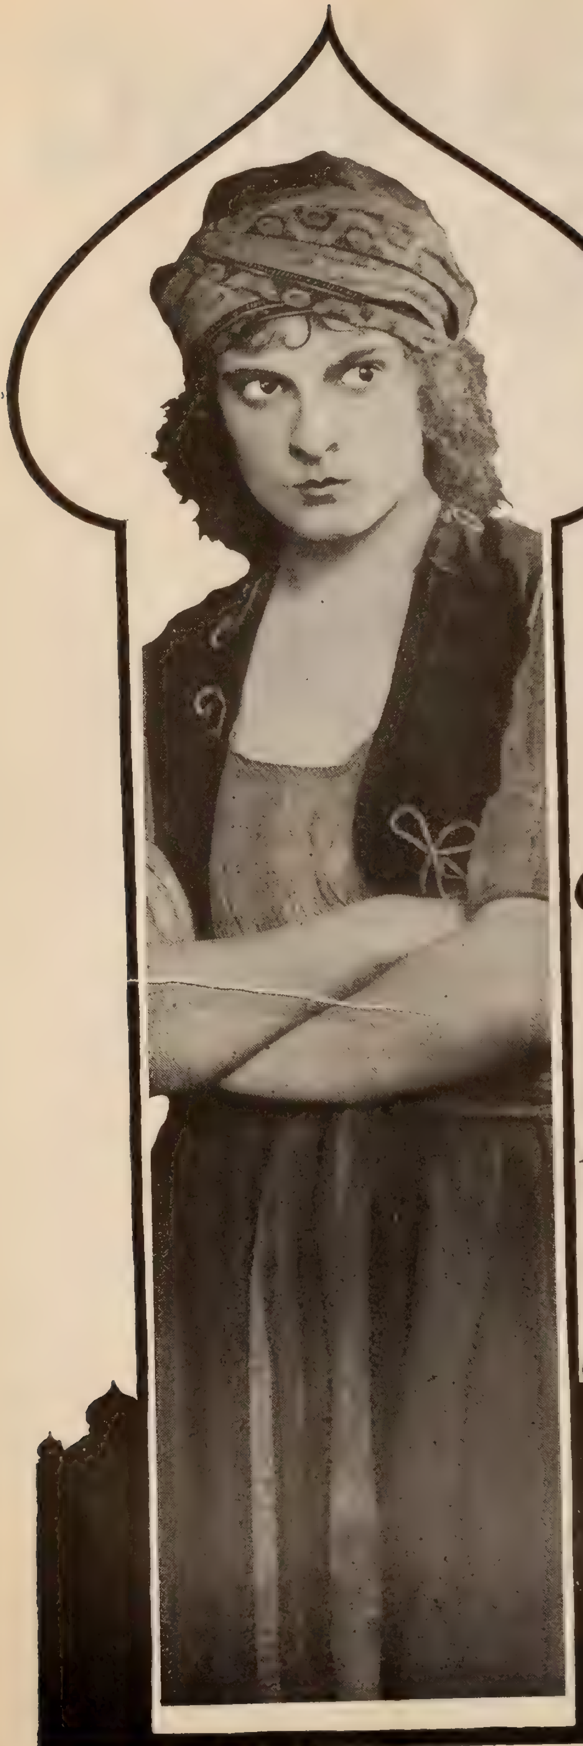


CLEANING UP!

From great, big, cosmopolitan New York, west to tiny rural, little Needles, California—from busy, bustling Detroit, south to quiet, peaceful Marlin, Texas—in every city—in every town and hamlet—regardless of size or population — this great feature is cleaning up—sweeping aside all opposition and riding rough shod over all established box-office records. The picture of pictures attracting the crowd of crowds! To see it is to book it—to book it is to profit.

"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"

The UNIVERSAL JEWEL SENSATION



Let Its Record Be Your Guide

THE safest and most profitable way for the smaller exhibitor to book a picture is not on what it might do for him, but on what it already has done for other exhibitors in his class. And, no matter what sort of a theatre yours is, the record of this unusual attraction shows that it made big money in every one of the houses of your class—and every other class—in which it played. Let its record be your guide—BOOK IT NOW.

PRISCILLA DEAN

In "The

VIRGIN of STAMBOUL"

Directed by TOD BROWNING

Story by H.H. VAN LOAN

UNIVERSAL-
JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE

A powerful, compelling romance of adventure and love. A tale of the salt sea and strange, mystic lands that because of its human qualities makes this a super-production not soon forgotten. Book it and create added patronage and higher prestige.

Elmo Lincoln

in the Great Universal-Jewel Superproduction

"Under Crimson Skies"

Directed by
REX INGRAM

Story by
J·G·Hawks

Better Be Right Than Sorry!

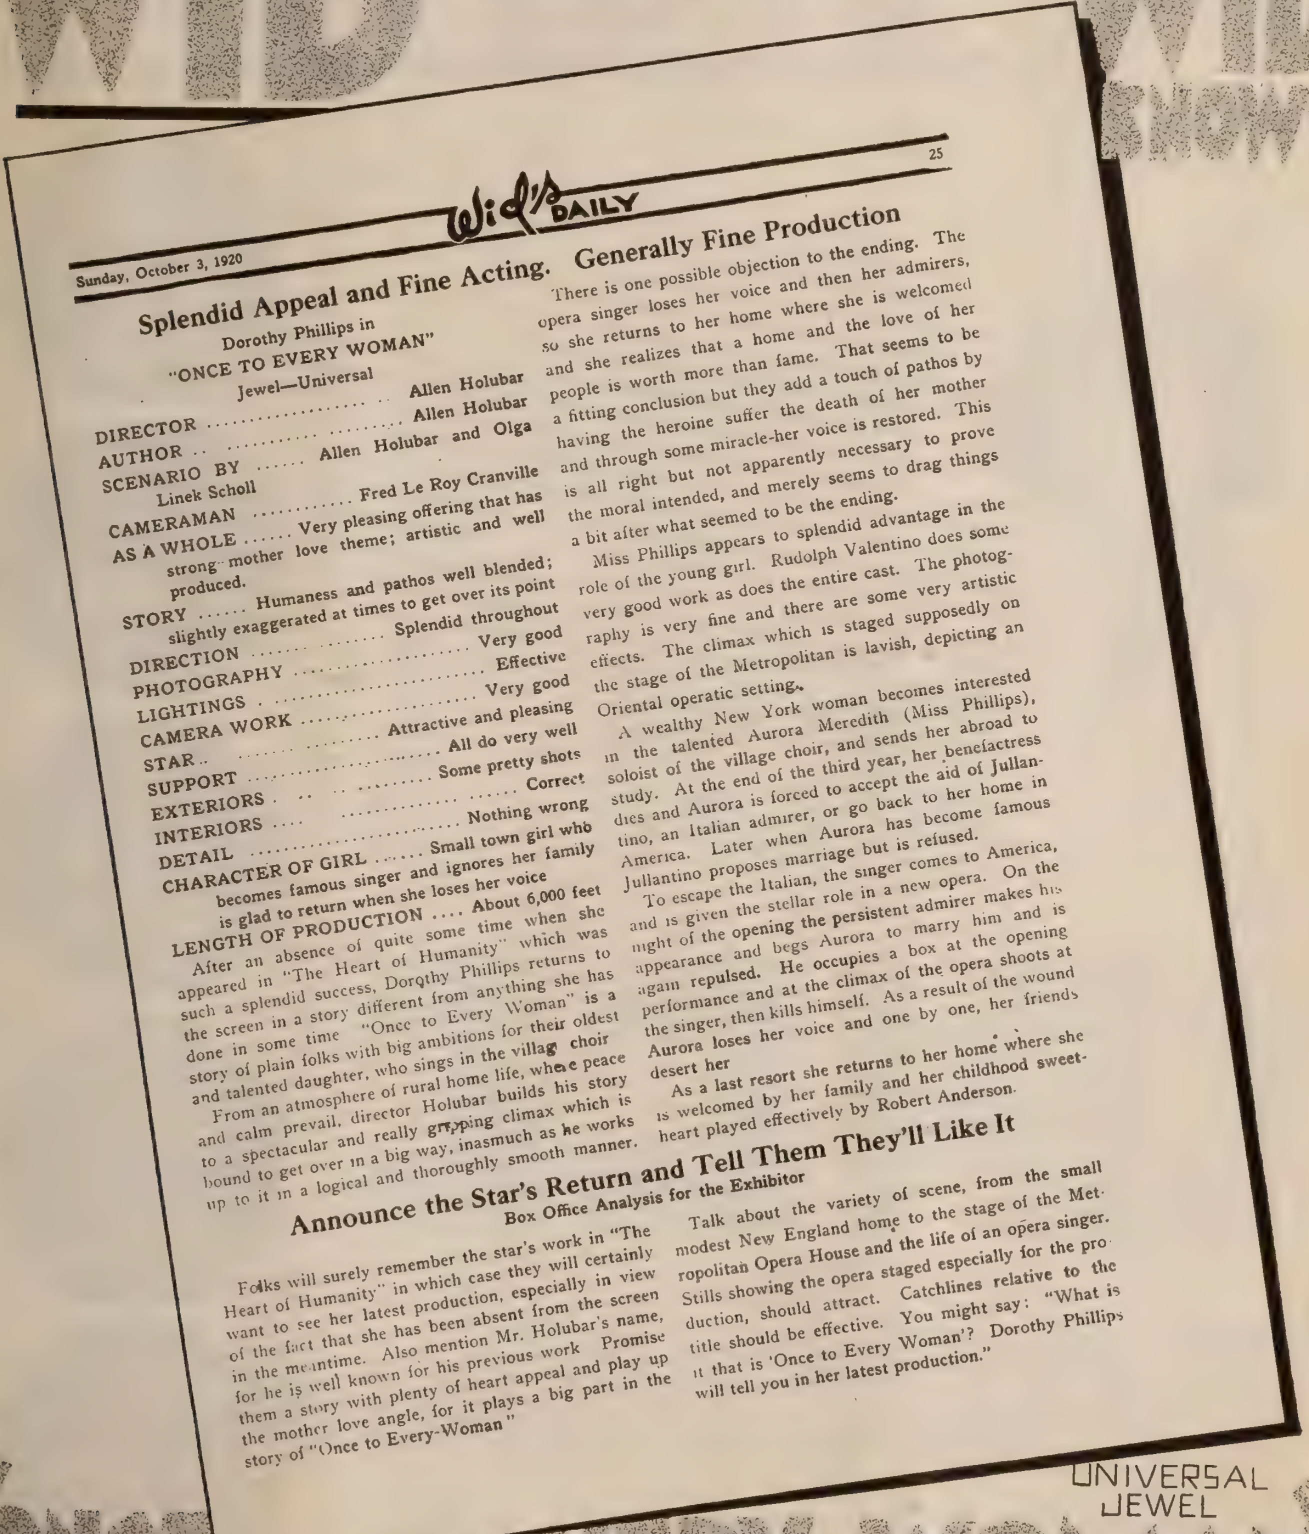
Profit by the experience of others. A proven success such as Von Stroheim's astounding, sensational super-production, "Blind Husbands," is the safest, surest attraction to draw the crowds in any town. The prestige and reputation this dynamic, dramatic photoplay has attained makes of it a tremendous magnet for your theatre. Everywhere it has thrilled and enthralled. The name of Von Stroheim is upon the tongue of every movie fan. Critics and public have acclaimed it one of the master productions of the age.

To-day—NOW—book it! Remember: better be right than sorry!

Carl Laemmle
Presents Von Stroheim's
Wonder Play

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

WID SAYS THIS AND WID KNOWS



25

Wid's DAILY

Sunday, October 3, 1920

Splendid Appeal and Fine Acting. Generally Fine Production

Dorothy Phillips in
"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"
Jewel—Universal

DIRECTOR .... Allen Holubar
AUTHOR .... Allen Holubar
SCENARIO BY ...... Allen Holubar and Olga Linek Scholl
CAMERAMAN .... Fred Le Roy Cranville
AS A WHOLE ...... Very pleasing offering that has strong mother love theme; artistic and well produced.
STORY ...... Humaness and pathos well blended; slightly exaggerated at times to get over its point DIRECTION .... Splendid throughout PHOTOGRAPHY .... Very good
LIGHTINGS .... Effective
CAMERA WORK .... Very good
STAR .... Attractive and pleasing
SUPPORT .... All do very well
EXTERIORS .... Some pretty shots
INTERIORS .... Correct
DETAIL .... Nothing wrong
CHARACTER OF GIRL ...... Small town girl who becomes famous singer and ignores her family is glad to return when she loses her voice
LENGTH OF PRODUCTION .... About 6,000 feet

After an absence of quite some time when she appeared in "The Heart of Humanity" which was such a splendid success, Dorothy Phillips returns to the screen in a story different from anything she has done in some time "Once to Every Woman" is a story of plain folks with big ambitions for their oldest and talented daughter, who sings in the village choir.

From an atmosphere of rural home life, where peace and calm prevail, director Holubar builds his story to a spectacular and really gripping climax which is bound to get over in a big way, inasmuch as he works up to it in a logical and thoroughly smooth manner.

There is one possible objection to the ending. The opera singer loses her voice and then her admirers, so she returns to her home where she is welcomed and she realizes that a home and the love of her people is worth more than fame. That seems to be a fitting conclusion but they add a touch of pathos by having the heroine suffer the death of her mother and through some miracle-her voice is restored. This is all right but not apparently necessary to prove the moral intended, and merely seems to drag things a bit after what seemed to be the ending.

Miss Phillips appears to splendid advantage in the role of the young girl. Rudolph Valentino does some very good work as does the entire cast. The photography is very fine and there are some very artistic effects. The climax which is staged supposedly on the stage of the Metropolitan is lavish, depicting an Oriental operatic setting.

A wealthy New York woman becomes interested in the talented Aurora Meredith (Miss Phillips), soloist of the village choir, and sends her abroad to study. At the end of the third year, her benefactress dies and Aurora is forced to accept the aid of Jullantino, an Italian admirer, or go back to her home in America. Later when Aurora has become famous Jullantino proposes marriage but is refused.

To escape the Italian, the singer comes to America, and is given the stellar role in a new opera. On the night of the opening the persistent admirer makes his appearance and begs Aurora to marry him and is again repulsed. He occupies a box at the opening performance and at the climax of the opera shoots at the singer, then kills himself. As a result of the wound Aurora loses her voice and one by one, her friends desert her

As a last resort she returns to her home where she is welcomed by her family and her childhood sweetheart played effectively by Robert Anderson.

Announce the Star's Return and Tell Them They'll Like It

Box Office Analysis for the Exhibitor

Folks will surely remember the star's work in "The Heart of Humanity" in which case they will certainly want to see her latest production, especially in view of the fact that she has been absent from the screen in the meantime. Also mention Mr. Holubar's name, for he is well known for his previous work Promise them a story with plenty of heart appeal and play up the mother love angle, for it plays a big part in the story of "Once to Every-Woman"

Talk about the variety of scene, from the small modest New England home to the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House and the life of an opera singer. Stills showing the opera staged especially for the production, should attract. Catchlines relative to the title should be effective. You might say: "What is it that is 'Once to Every Woman'? Dorothy Phillips will tell you in her latest production."

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

HARRISON SAYS

awakens warm sympathy wins admiration deeply touching

title is catchy

should give Universal satisfaction

CARL LAEMMLE presents

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

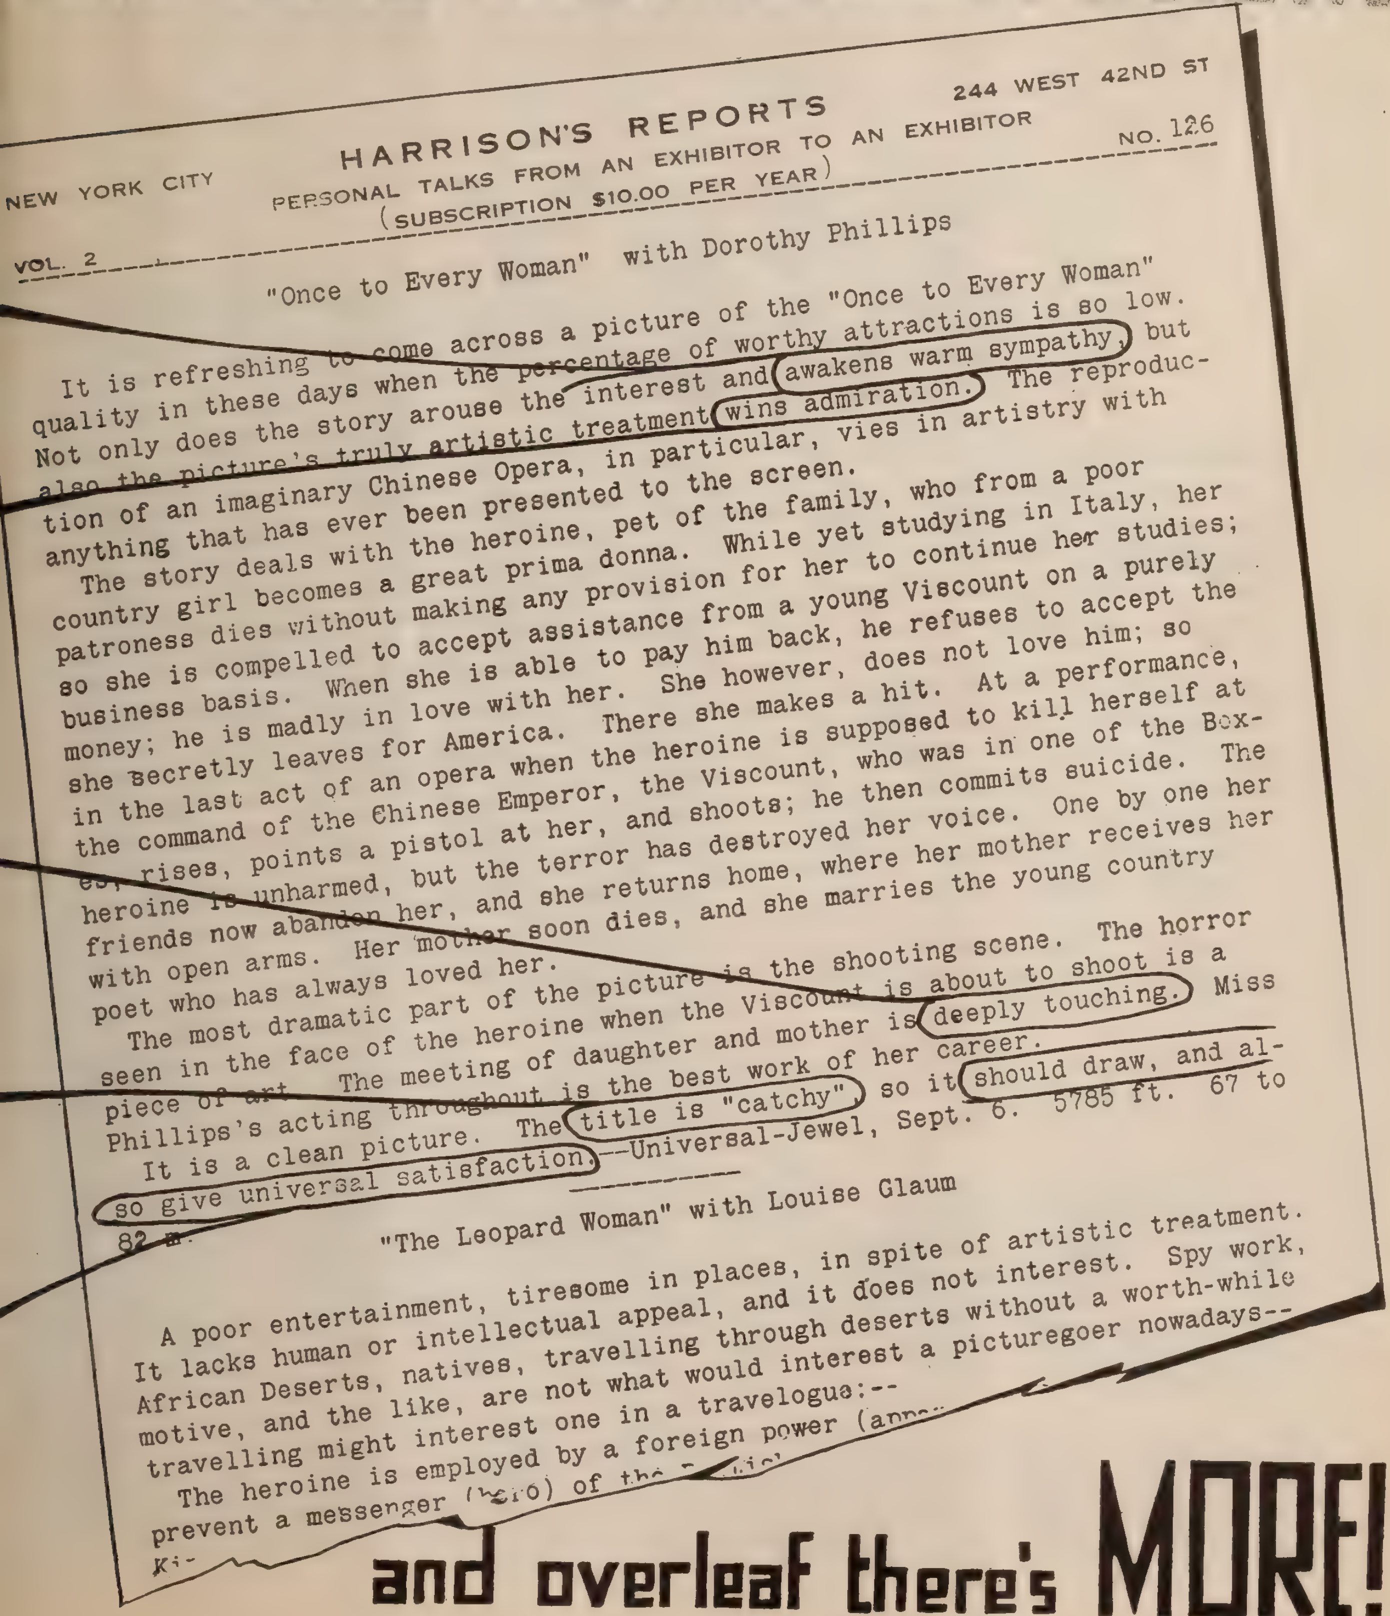
in

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

The Biggest Heart Picture of the Generation

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

THIS AND HARRISON KNOWS



NEW YORK CITY
HARRISON'S REPORTS
244 WEST 42ND ST
PERSONAL TALKS FROM AN EXHIBITOR TO AN EXHIBITOR (SUBSCRIPTION $10.00 PER YEAR)
VOL. 2
NO. 126

"Once to Every Woman" with Dorothy Phillips

It is refreshing to come across a picture of the "Once to Every Woman" quality in these days when the percentage of worthy attractions is so low. Not only does the story arouse the interest and awakens warm sympathy, but also the picture's truly artistic treatment wins admiration. The reproduction of an imaginary Chinese Opera, in particular, vies in artistry with anything that has ever been presented to the screen.

The story deals with the heroine, pet of the family, who from a poor country girl becomes a great prima donna. While yet studying in Italy, her patroness dies without making any provision for her to continue her studies; so she is compelled to accept assistance from a young Viscount on a purely business basis. When she is able to pay him back, he refuses to accept the money; he is madly in love with her. She however, does not love him; so she secretly leaves for America. There she makes a hit. At a performance, in the last act of an opera when the heroine is supposed to kill herself at the command of the Chinese Emperor, the Viscount, who was in one of the Boxes, rises, points a pistol at her, and shoots; he then commits suicide. The heroine is unharmed, but the terror has destroyed her voice. One by one her friends now abandon her, and she returns home, where her mother receives her with open arms. Her mother soon dies, and she marries the young country poet who has always loved her.

The most dramatic part of the picture is the shooting scene. The horror seen in the face of the heroine when the Viscount is about to shoot is a piece of art. The meeting of daughter and mother is deeply touching. Miss Phillips's acting throughout is the best work of her career.

It is a clean picture. The title is "catchy", so it should draw, and also give universal satisfaction.--Universal-Jewel, Sept. 6. 5785 ft. 67 to 82 m.

"The Leopard Woman" with Louise Glaum

A poor entertainment, tiresome in places, in spite of artistic treatment. It lacks human or intellectual appeal, and it does not interest. Spy work, African Deserts, natives, travelling through deserts without a worth-while motive, and the like, are not what would interest a picturegoer nowadays--travelling might interest one in a travelogue:--

The heroine is employed by a foreign power (a prevent a messenger (hero) of the Ki-

and overleaf there's MORE!

THE NEWS AND THE HERALD SAY THIS AND THEY KNOW

"Allen Holubar knows how to write stories and present them in interesting screen drama. 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN'—there isn't a moment when it doesn't focus the attention.

"The picture is strongest in its human touches—its intimate details. Yet it carries a vigor and sweep in the dramatic scenes which is certainly caught by the spectator. It certainly carries a box-office value.

"Dorothy Phillips enacts the central figure with keen understanding."

—M. P. NEWS.

" 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN' is a success. 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN' is human through and through. 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN' is a better picture than either 'The Heart of Humanity' or 'The Right to Happiness,' because it is so true to life.

"Miss Phillips has a difficult part; one that carries little sympathy at this point and to have held it securely at the end is to her credit."

—EXHIBITORS HERALD.

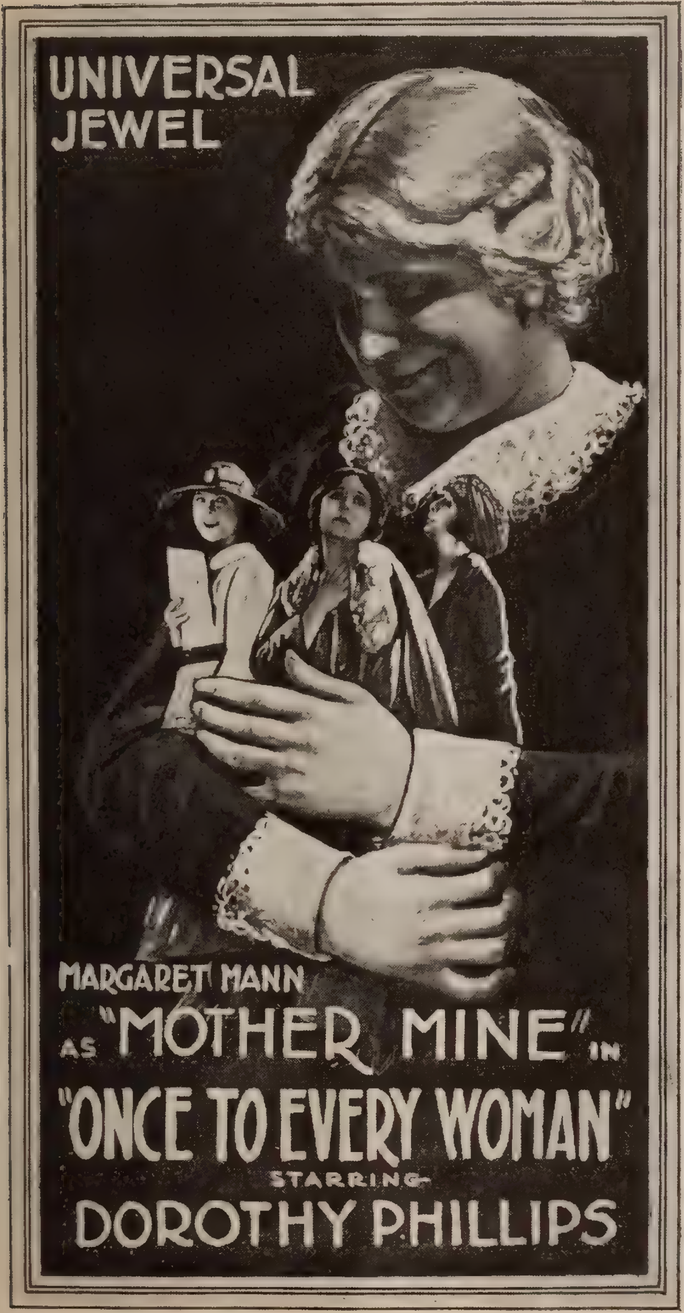
DOROTHY PHILLIPS IN ALLEN HOLUBAR'S GREAT UNIVERSAL JEWEL

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

This Is Another Effective Poster

REPRODUCED below is a three-sheet poster which can be effectually used in connection with the showing of 'Once to Every Woman." It is a three-sheet that can be used for a cut-out.

This poster features prominently the theme of mother-love, and there is no better theme to feature, no theme that has more drawing power with each and every kind of audience than mother-love. It can be secured at any Universal exchange.



"Once to Every Woman" is certainly giving promise of being the screen sensation of the year. At a large private showing arranged by Universal at the Hotel Astor in New York City, at which most of the prominent publicity men, critics and writers were present, there was nothing but praise for this Jewel featuring Dorothy Phillips. From the management of the Universal exchange in Dallas, Tex., comes the following letter:

> "We screened the Jewel production, 'Once to Every Woman,' to-day, and were carried away with this wonderful production. It is a magnificent picture, and its heart interest affected us deeply. We are confident that it will be a big success."

And likewise from the bigger houses which have run this picture, come glowing reports of its reception and the rich promise of the feature.

Here's Once Where A Mere Man Wins

Universal received a letter the other day, and it raises an interesting bit of discussion. So here it is:

409 West 129th Street,
New York City, Oct. 18th.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.,
1600 Broadway, New York.

Gentlemen:

On Friday evening last I saw that film, "The Devil's Passkey," at the West End Theatre, 125th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

I want to say that I think it is the most wonderful picture Universal has yet made, and incidentally one of the pictures of the decade.

The cast was fine, acting was fine, photography and sets were unexcelled. I wish you would let me know if those pictures showing streets in Paris were taken there or built.

Some one in my family declares that they are the real thing, as she has seen it, but I declare it is a "set" and a masterpiece of construction. Will you please let me know who is right?

Hoping that "The Devil's Passkey" will not lock the door to future Universal successes, I remain

Very truly yours,
IRA A. ROSENTHAL.

The lady member of Mr. Rosenthal's family will have to bow down to the male judgment in this instance. None of the sets showing streets in Paris were taken in that famous city; they were all worked out in the studio, under the guiding genius of the director. All of which is a very pretty compliment and a very pretty tribute to Mr. Eric Von Stroheim, the director of the picture. For it was his genius which was responsible for reproducing in the studio and around its environs the streets and the life of Paris with an exactitude that is not only masterly but amazing as well.

In connection with the above, it is interesting to note that not only exhibitors of pictures write to Universal praising its products. Private persons from all parts of the globe have been sending in personal comments on the pictures, and "The Devil's Passkey" has been receiving considerable attention of this nature. Editor.

Mostly Mother

By Adele D. Topper

THE story of "Mother" never grows old. It has been told a million and one times, and it can be told a million and one times more, and it will thrill with the same old fervor and the same old intensity. For it is the one big and vital emotion which all of us can appreciate, for "Mother" has signified a vital something to each and every one of us.

"Once To Every Woman" is the story of a "will-o'-the-wisp" which a girl with a glorious voice chased until she caught, the story of the spectacular leap to fame of an unknown country girl. But though it pictures wealth and fashion and the gay and merry life of the rich and idle, it is the spirit of mother and her gentle influence which is felt throughout the picture all the time, even when the scenes take the spectator far away from her and the little dwelling illuminated by the beauty of her character and the tenderness of her love. And so, "Once To Every Woman" can be justly called a "Mostly Mother" picture. But fathers will enjoy it, too, for fathers know a good deal about mothers, and brother John and sister Mary and all the aunts, cousins, uncles and friends will enjoy it, for mother is a friend of them all.

Margaret Mann, who plays the role of Mother Meredith in this big Universal Jewel production, has, by the depth, the beauty and the lovableness of her portrayal, made for herself a niche in the movies that will stay rooted, firm and immovable. It is one of the most wonderful portrayals of mother love ever executed, and that is saying a lot, when recently there have been so many excellent pictures and plays of Mother. It is a performance that without effort brings a tender smile one moment and a tear the next, to the eyes of the spellbound spectator. And it is all the more wonderful when one takes into consideration that Margaret Mann has not made a specialty of mother roles, although she was the mother in "The Heart of Humanity." This is really the first big mother role she has essayed, but it can never be the last, for the consummate quality of her art and the understanding with which she portrayed so feelingly the emotions which are mostly mother's emotions, have made a tremendous impression, and everybody will be asking for more.

Above—The Mother who gave all. Left—The Dream about to be realized.

Mother cooks and scrubs and sews for the family, but it is mostly for Aurora, the petted and talented daughter of the house, that she slaves, but Aurora takes it all for granted, and when the rich lady from the city whispers to her words of golden encouragement and comes to take her away, to make of her the songbird that Aurora had dreamed of being, she goes, overjoyed, as is youth's and talent's privilege, but without a thought of sorrow at leaving mother, who is heartbroken, but who will not stand between her daughter and the joy that she seeks. It is mother who revels the most in the enthusiastic letters that daughter writes home of her progress, and it is mother who dreams the most of the glorious creature that daughter has become, a radiant vision in furs, in velvets and in jewels. And it is mother whom the daughter disregards most, for mother will be mother, whether daughter writes to her or not. And it is not really home that Aurora goes to when misfortune overtakes her and the world looks on with disdain, but to mother's shielding, tender arms, where suddenly the woes of the world drop from her and a haven of peace and rest enfolds her.

The Realization.

It is difficult for a star to play up her talents against so strong and almost overpowering a role as this mother role in "Once To Every Woman," but Dorothy Phillips, who plays the role of the unthinking daughter, Aurora, in this Jewel production, once more demonstrates the sincerity and depth of her talents and ability. For she lives up to her designation of "star" in every way and makes you feel with her and love her, in spite of all the unhappiness her selfishness causes in the picture. She portrays with equal excellence the role of a girl, a growing woman, and a woman who has realized her every ambition, and with dignified restraint she makes you sad with her and makes you love her, when her glory has left her, and she comes home almost a wreck, only to have death take from her her guardian angel. Dorothy Phillips has starred in some big pictures—"The Heart of Humanity," "Destiny," "The Right To Happiness," but it is in "Once To Every Woman" that she reaches the heights and surpasses the best that she has ever done.

This picture, written by Allen Holubar, was also directed by him, and his deft hand is everywhere seen in the big scenes, where the whole interior of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City is reproduced, and an entire opera staged for the film, and in the homely and little touches, where mother and dad figure up the family exchequer, apportioning out so much for Aurora, and so much for John, and so much for everybody else, while they look at their own ragged shoes, and manage still to SMILE. Its scenario was prepared by Olga Linek Scholl, who has a number of noteworthy scenarios to her credit, with Mr. Holubar lending a helping hand.

In addition to the star, Dorothy Phillips, and her noteworthy support, Margaret Mann, the cast includes Rudolph Valentino, accomplished continental actor; Robert Andersen, whom Denmark sent to these shores, and whom the American moviegoer will not so soon permit to depart; William Ellingford, Emily Chichester, Elinor Field, Mary Wise, Dan Crimmins, Rosa Gore, Frank Elliott, Katherine Griffith and Emma Gerdes, all of whom achieve distinction in their parts, and all of whom have added their "bit" previously to the artistic progress of the movies.

Surely "Once To Every Woman" is a picture eagerly to be sought by the exhibitor of pictures. What more can one want than a picture that has a scintillating star, a masterly director and a fascinating story with the interest sustained throughout, and which has for its principal theme the tenderest, the deepest and the strongest of all human emotions—MOTHER LOVE. Pictures are made around strange adventures, about feats of daring, about wondrous romances and about the entrancing life of the rich and the leisured, but it is the picture that takes vital, homely emotion, that everybody can understand and appreciate, and that weaves its tale about that emotion, that "hits home" and registers with the stronges appeal. Such a picture is "Once To Every Woman," a "Mostly Mother" picture, a glorious combination of Margaret Mann-Dorothy Phillips-Allen Holubar, three names to be reckoned with, aided and abetted by the best that the movies have to offer in the way of support. It is a UNIVERSAL-JEWEL, and it more than lives up to the best traditions of those pictures—in fact, it sets a new standard in picture-making, and it gives promise of being classed by all critics as one of the notable pictures of the year.

It is a long stride the movies have made since the days of "Broncho Billy" and the desperate gleaming-eyed villain with his shiny white teeth who always harassed the innocent, guileless heroine. Then the pictures shouted for all kinds of thrills, shootings, murders, and innumerable twists in action, but to-day the "real" picture takes a deep human emotion and allows the tale to spin itself out from that. And thus from the "mostly mother" theme in "Once To Every Woman," there unravels a story as interesting as enchanting and as full of heightening suspense, as has yet been given to the screen.

The Refuge.

YOU CAN'T BOOST THIS

Scene from "KING of the CIRCUS"
Universal Serial with Eddie Polo

(Scene cut, No. 7.)

THE illustrations on these two pages are reproductions of two of the many publicity scene cuts furnished to help you put over in a big way this greatest serial of all times. Liberal use of all of the advertising, publicity and exploitation aids will make this gigantic chapter-play one of your biggest financial successes. Book it, boost it, and bank on it!

EDDIE POLO

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

"KING OF THE CIRCUS

WINNER TOO STRONGLY

HERE'S the serial that will back up the strongest bally-hoo you can devise. You know as well as we do that while hokum sometimes draws a crowd, unbacked bunk won't keep a crowd. However, with this marvelous continued attraction you can go the limit and still be sincere—you can spread yourself and use up all the red ink your town and still know it's not bunk. And what's more, by so doing you'll be keeping your pocketbook full. Go to it—NOW!

Scene from "KING OF THE CIRCUS" UNIVERSAL SERIAL

(Scene cut, No. 8.)

EDDIE POLO

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Let Your Crowd Go Wild With Excitement When The Fearless King of Cowboys Fights the Skull-Faced Demons — Play

ART ACORD

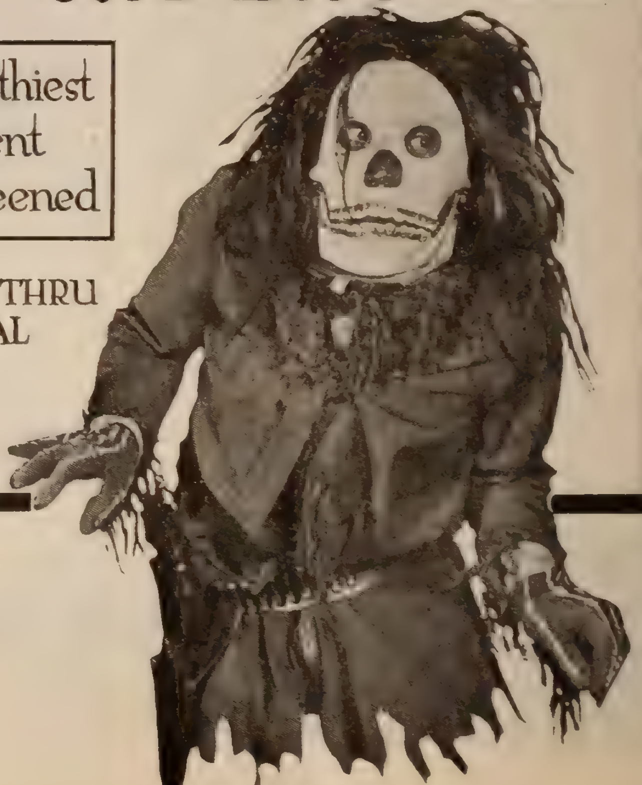
Supported by Mildred Moore, Beatrice Dominguez and George Field in the Startling Serial

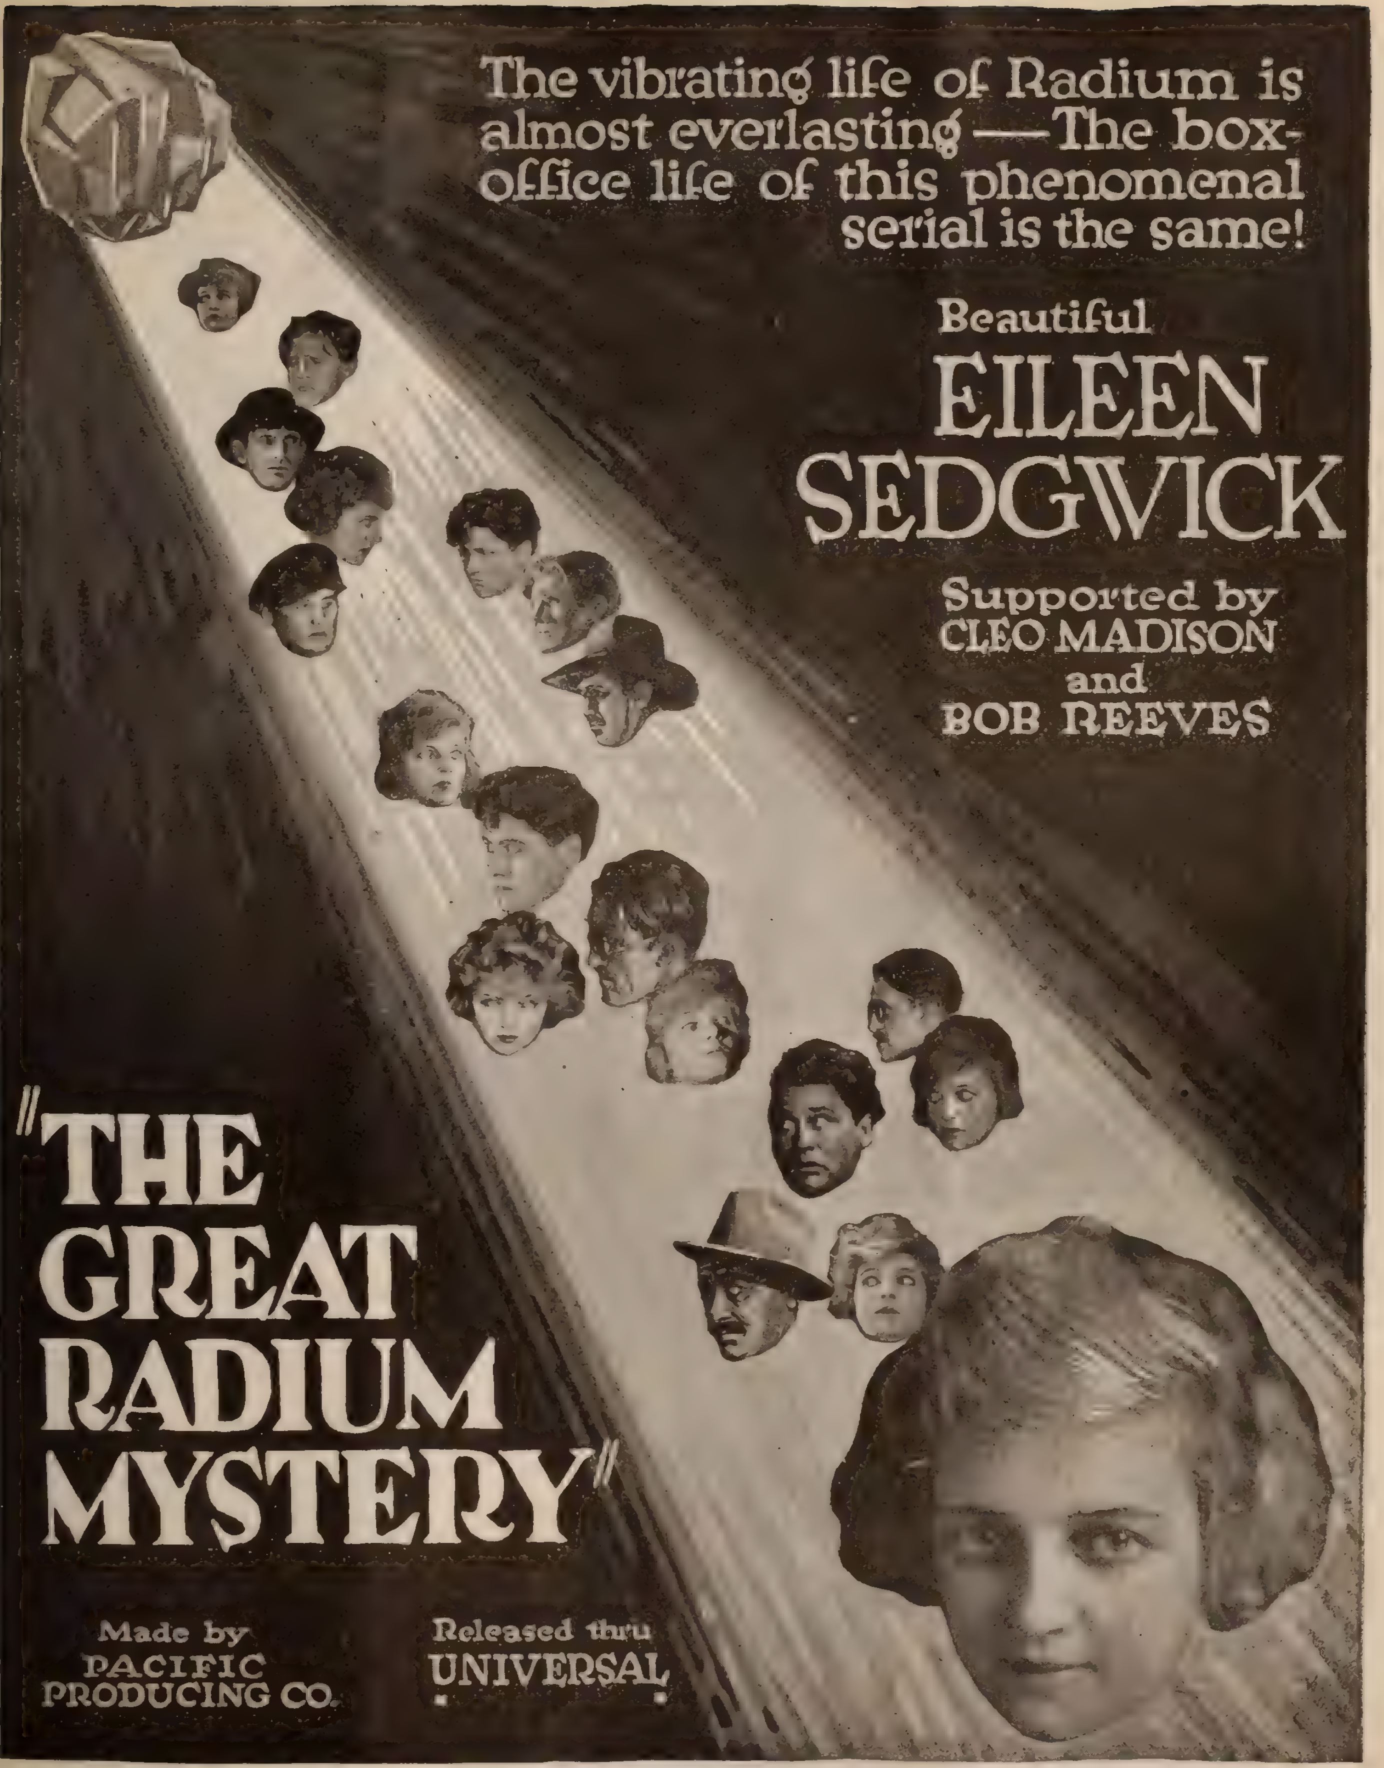
"THE MOON RIDERS"

Directed by
AL. RUSSELL

The Healthiest
Excitement
Ever Screened

RELEASED THRU
UNIVERSAL





The vibrating life of Radium is almost everlasting — The box-office life of this phenomenal serial is the same!

Beautiful

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Supported by CLEO MADISON
and
BOB REEVES

"THE GREAT RADIUM MYSTERY"

Made by PACIFIC
PRODUCING CO.

Released thru
UNIVERSAL

When A Serial Like This Has 'Em All

UP IN THE AIR

You Cash In!

NO "ifs"—no "may-bes"—no "perhaps." You will—you must—you DO cash in! Here are but a few of the reasons: A stupendous serial that contains these magnetic elements—Love—Mystery—Adventure—Intrigue—Suspense. Death-daring feats that make faster heart-beats; scenes that stir the sluggish blood to fever heat one instant and run ice-cold the next—breathless thrills and startling deeds; a masterful serial that knows no bounds for gripping intensity of interest.

To all these add EDDIE POLO—and your last doubts go up in smoke! Book this great, big serial and help mount your receipts to undreamed-of heights!

EDDIE POLO

In "The

VANISHING DAGGER"

Universal Made – Produced by POLO himself.

ANY
POLO SERIAL
IS ENOUGH EXCITEMENT
FOR ONE EVENING

GET HIM!

for Action!

Thrills!

Romance!

Mystery!

Crowds-- PROFITS!

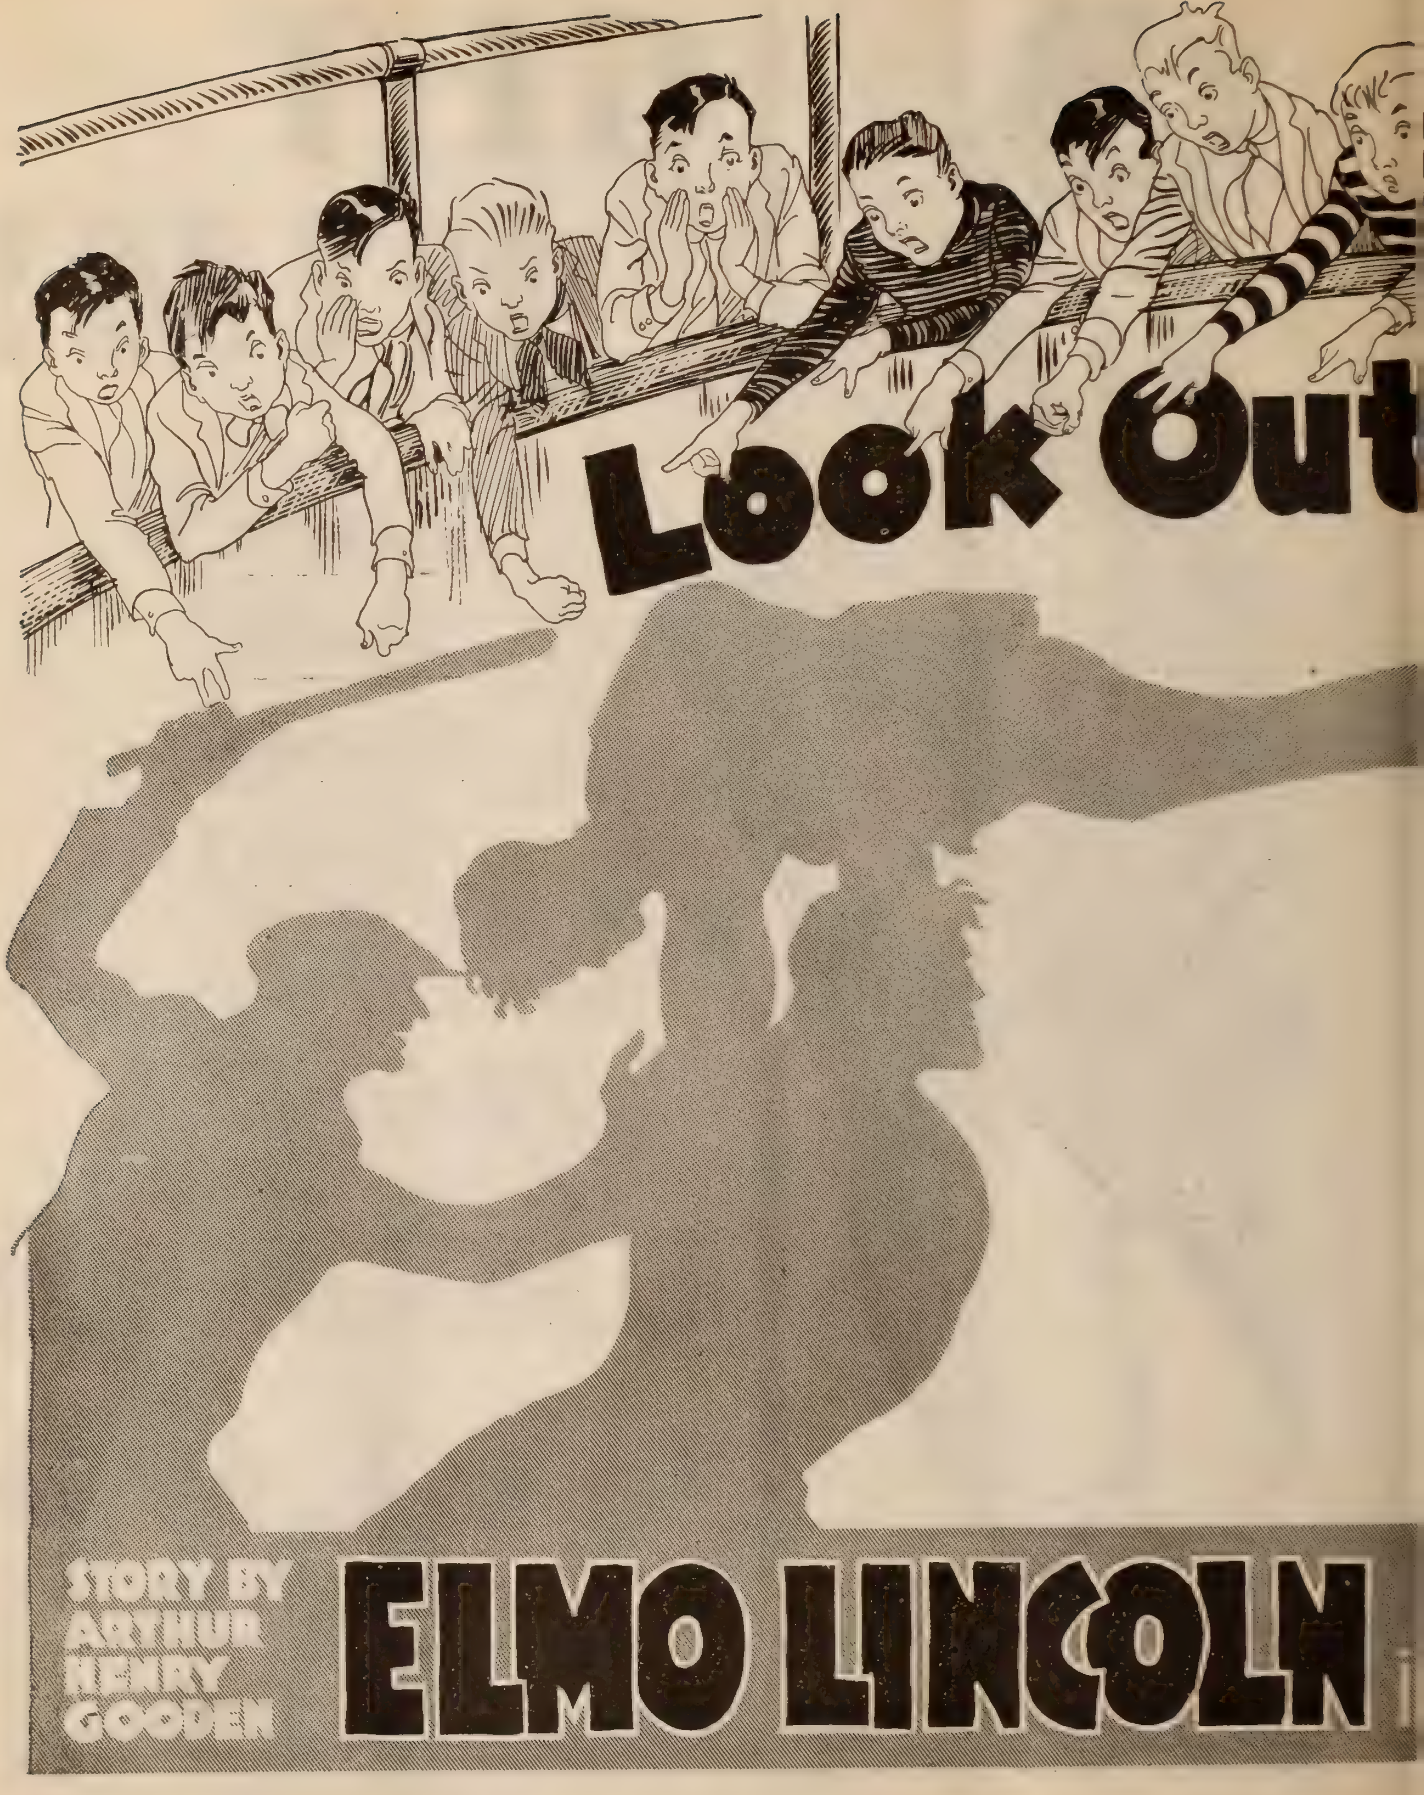
ELMO LINCOLN

in

"ELMO The Fearless"

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN



Look Out

STORY BY ARTHUR
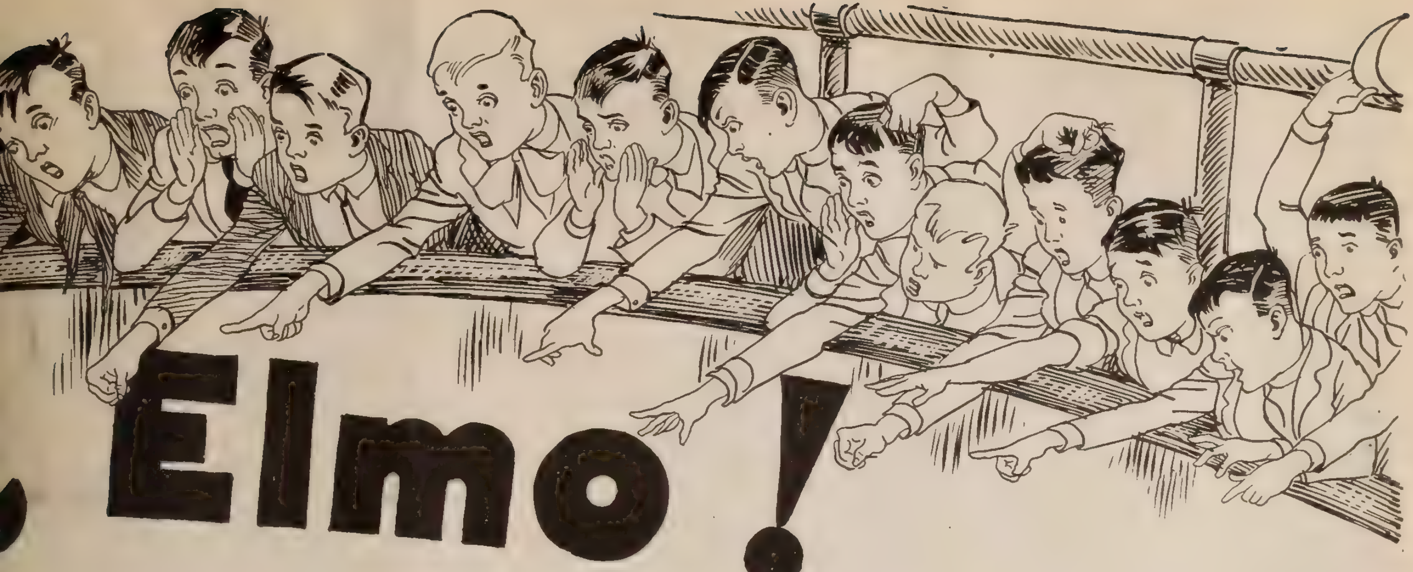
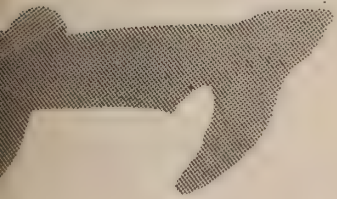
HENRY
GOODEN

ELMO LINCOLN i

Elmo !





That's all they can say! They're spellbound! Eyes agape—tongues cleaving to the roofs of their mouths---hair standing on end---bodies bubbling over with excitement—heaving with breathless anxiety. Elmo—their Elmo—is in danger! When . . . quicker'n a flash . . . Wow! . . . Zowie! . . . Whoopie! . . . Hear 'em let loose!

He's turned the tables on the gang! And in a manner so lightning-like and surprising that it leaves 'em all gasping for breath and as bewildered as a flock of ducks in thunder. That's Elmo Lincoln in his latest and most thrilling serial. Book it NOW and see a turnout of the folks like "Old Home Week."

The FLAMING DISK

DIRECTED
BY ROBERT HILL

"The Two Fisted Lover"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Scot McHale	Hoot Gibson
School Teacher	Dorothy Wood
Samuel Griggs	Jim Corey
Doc Wells	Chas. Newton
Mr. Brown	Walter Crowley
Mrs. Brown	Katherine Bates
Emily Stebbins	Nancy Caswell

CLARA STEBBINS is the wife of Sam Griggs, and her five-year-old daughter Emily is their child, but in Twin Springs these facts are not known, and Clara and Emily are treated as outcasts. Sick and without funds, Clara writes Griggs a letter for aid.

A new school teacher arrives, but due to the fact that one child is missing to make the quota demanded by the law, the school will not open. Scot McHale, a bashful young rancher, sympathizing with the young teacher in her distress, decides to go back to school, and thus her position is saved.

Clara dies and the teacher volunteers to adopt the child. Griggs is in love with the teacher, and realizing what McHale does not, that she is in love with him, he determines to poison her mind against him and shows her an unfinished note found in the dead Clara's hand which named her husband as "S——." He makes the inference that had the note finished "S——" would have been Scot. He further tells her that Scot is really educated and is making a fool of her by going to school. Though resenting Griggs' actions, the teacher becomes suspicious, especially since Scot is so attached to Emily.

She determines to leave town with Emily and as they are in the stage, Griggs again attempts to make love to her, and when she repulses him he grabs the reins during the driver's absence, intending to drive them to an old shack of his in the hills. McHale sees the stage driving like mad over the road; he takes in the situation at a glance and rescues the pretty teacher and her charge. Griggs is thrown out during the fight, and Clara's letter found on him, thus establishing his identity as the husband and clearing Scot of suspicion.

A reconciliation follows, and Emily now has a new father as well as mother.

The Future Looks Big For The News Reel

INTERESTING facts constituting a general survey of the present news reel situation throughout the United States are to be found in a recent report made to the Universal Film Manufacturing Company by R. V. Anderson, news sales manager of the International News reels published by the latter company.

Anderson has recently returned from a two months' tour of the key cities of the United States in which he studied the news reel situation from every angle, and particularly as regards to the value and position of news subjects on the theatre programme.

"The news reel no longer is a 'filler,' but is a valued feature on the average theatre programme," reported Anderson. "Experience seeems to have taught the exhibitor to play up news reel items in his advertising, and in the manner of screen presentation. One of the country's leading exhibitors told me that the International News reel was worth 30 per cent of his entire programme. He consistently plays the news reel in his advertising and accompanies its presentation with music and other effects. Other prominent exhibitors assured me our news reel varied from 20 per cent upwards.

"Years ago on the old General Film 'look reel' programme, news reels were accepted only because they were a part of the 'system.' At that time the exhibitors asserted that the women in their audiences did not like the news reels. It is vastly different today. The most staunch admirers of the news reels are feminine fans.

"I have heard the claim made that news reels have not been as good since the war as they were during hostilities. This is a fallacy. During the war a news reel did not have to be good. All that was necessary to create a furore of applause was to show pictures of Allied soldiers. No news reel manufacturer had to exert himself in making up his reels.

"However, the great demand for news reels because of the war, set a standard, which we have had to extend ourselves to attain. No longer able to depend upon patriotism to carry a news reel over, it now is necessary to obtain subjects of unusual interest. This has resulted in making the news reel much better to-day than it ever has been in the past.

"Although most of the leading picture houses are playing up their news reels as they should, yet there are thousands of theatre owners who use news reels largely as a matter of course. They do not stop to figure that the survival of the news reel in this ever-changing business is the greatest possible reason why it should receive consideration.

"No other class of film service could have survived the treatment which was accorded to news reels up to a year ago. The fact that they have grown in favor is a sure sign that the public wants them. Those theatres who now are playing news reels without giving them programme mention will find that if these subjects are given second place in advertising and exploitation, the public will respond whole-heartedly and immediately. It has been done, time and time again.

"It is well to remind exhibitors that the news reel is perhaps the only service for which the price scale has remained the same during the past two or three years.

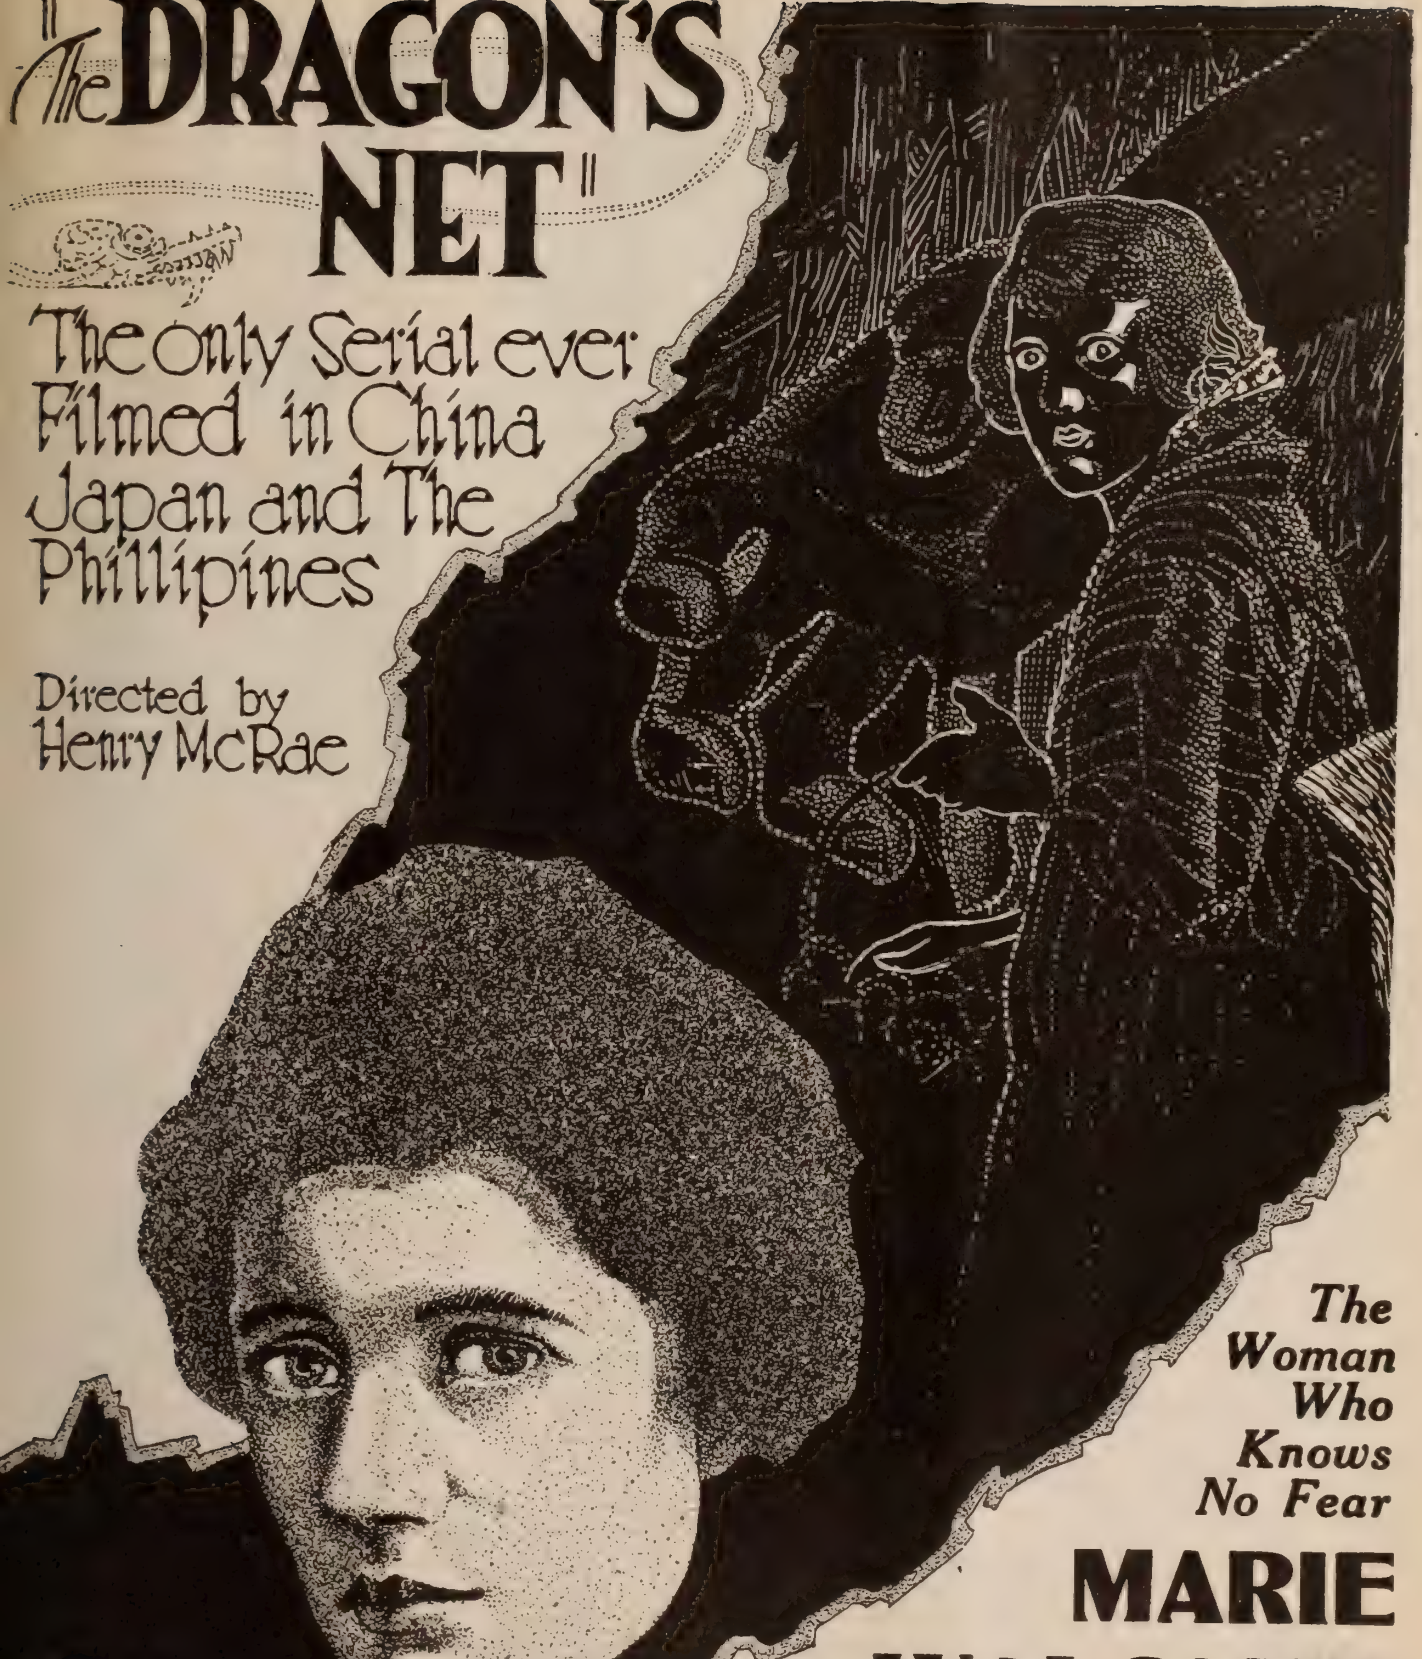
"I find that the International News is generally liked because of its connection with more than four hundred newspapers throughout the land. The International Film Service Company, through its "still" department, supplies a regular service of still pictures to these newspapers, which use the photos at the same time the news events are appearing on the screen. This is a connection which no other news reel company possesses, and of course it is of inestimable value to the exhibitor. This phase of the International News reel situation is augmented by the situation in many cities where Hearst newspapers are published, which give unusual publicity to the International News reel showings.

"International, because of its newspaper connections, has always been in a position to obtain the biggest and best news items. International is working now on a big idea which will register with film fans far better than anything ever attempted in the news reel field. Details of this plan will be announced very soon."

"The DRAGON'S NET"

The only Serial ever Filmed in China Japan and The Phillipines

Directed by
Henry McRae



The Woman Who Knows No Fear

MARIE WALCAMP

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 7

"The Circle of Fire"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

IT was a horrifying experience to combat with the brute alligator, but with his great strength, Elmo choked the fearful beast and thus freed himself from the danger of being consumed by it. Fighting off the gang who were lined up around the pool, he staggered up the stairs to find Helen being tortured into signing an agreement, under coercion from Stanton, in which she gave "The Flaming Disk" with all its rights and royalties and control of the Wade mine near Thundrer Creek over to him. Helen insists that she will not sign it and Stanton threatens her with death. Desperate, she appeals to Jim's manhood, and she is almost successful in enlisting his sympathies when Stanton's hypnotic eyes again make of him a cringing coward.

Stanton promises both Elmo and Helen freedom if Helen will sign the agreement, but refusing, he binds them both, tightening the rope about Elmo's neck as Helen persistently refuses to sign the agreement at insistent bidding from her lover.

The gang then resort to treachery. They tell the Chinamen that it was Elmo who killed their comrade, and they all rush toward the room where he and Helen are held captive. Swearing vengeance, they scatter the space around them with a deadly powder, to which they apply a burning flame. Great drifts of fire rise about the two unfortunates, and it looks as if they will go to their doom.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 4

"Facing Death"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Henel	Corinne Porter
Gray	Harry Madison

WHEN the wagon driven by Eddie goes over the embankment into the river below, the gun with which Winters was shot is thrown on to the opposite bank. Eddie gets out of the wreckage in time to see one of Gray's men ford the stream and pick it up—and at the same time Helen slides down the bank and joins Eddie, leaving the other of Gray's ruffians up above.

Eddie rushes after the first man and a fight follows, during which Eddie succeeds in getting the gun. The ruffian, Tom Jenks, joins his pal and the two return to the circus—but they are afraid to tell Gray that they let Eddie get away with the gun. Accordingly, they frame a story and tell him it was lost in the river, but even at that Gray is furious to know that Polo has once more interfered.

Eddie now takes leave of the Howards and goes back to work. So far, he knows nothing of Gray's part in the various attempts against his life. It is not until he shows Gray the gun and notices his expression that he suspects it was Gray himself who shot Winters. As soon as Eddie leaves, Gray sends for Jenks and accuses him of deliberately lying when he said the gun was lost. He and some canvasmen start beating Tom and Eddie is attracted by the fight. He rushes back and saves Tom from Gray's wrath—knocking Gray down as he does so. While Eddie turns and goes after the canvasmen, Gray draws another gun from his pocket and sneaks up behind Eddie. He covers Eddie with the gun and tells him that this time he cannot escape—he has only one minute to live.

International News

No. 71.

New York City.—75,000 war veterans in tremendous parade for service bonus.

Marion, O.—Governor Cox in his rival's home town. Democratic candidate talks to big crowd in Senator Harding's "back yard." (Omit from New York City prints.)

Chicago, Ill. — Spectacular blaze sweeps terminus; million dollar loss.

New York City.—Grateful children pay tribute of love to Nathan Strauss. (New York City only.)

Houston, Texas.—Confederate "Vets" great re-union. Nov.1; the sons of Uncle Sam, they march in memory of old-timers. Texas and Southern prints only).

Boston, Mass.—Odd fellows parade marks end of mose prosperous year. (New England prints only).

West Point, N. Y.—West Point stages big athletic carnival and gridiron battle.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Early welcome for 1921 Bathing Girls. Those Californians just can't wait—can you blame 'em?

Mitchell Field, N. Y.—Army Air Service successfully tries out new sky ambulance.

Richmond, Va.—Whirlwind speedsters seek new record on perilous dirt track.

Tad cartoon.

"Maids A-Courting"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LOTTA JAGS sat in an employment agency sipping wine through a straw and waiting for a job. At last a wealthy lady enters and chooses Lotta as a maid and she is driven to a palatial home, where she falls in love with the butler. After a time, she decides to quit her job, but when her mistress promises to see that she marries the butler, she decides to stay.

Unfortunately for Lotta, however, the daughter of the house, also named Lotta, is in love with the butler and is loved by him in return. When the mistress of the house tells him that he is to marry Lotta, he gladly consents, believing it to be her daughter whom he is to marry. He discovers the mistake in time during the ceremony and manages to marry the right Lotta, much to the disgust of her parents and the despair of poor Lotta Jags. However, Lotta wakes up (she had had a dream in the employment agency, due to too much wine) to find that there is some joy left in life.

New Screen Magazine

No. 92

THE architecture of Old Ceylon is very beautiful. Most of the inhabitants of this part of India are Buddhist followers. Their sacred images, carved out of solid stone, are still intact to-day. There are many of these monuments and a few notable temples still remaining.

"Save the Babies for the U. S. A.," says Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York City's Health Commissioner, and his office is a mecca for anxious mothers with ailing babies. Help is given regardless of sex or creed.

This issue of the magazine contains some interesting "shots" of animals under the heading "Birds, Beasts and Fowl in Captivity," showing particularly deer, zebras, musk-ox, penguins and monkeys.

The magazine closes with a Pat Sullivan animated entitled "Sammie White's Love Affair."

The
"RED RIDER"
Series

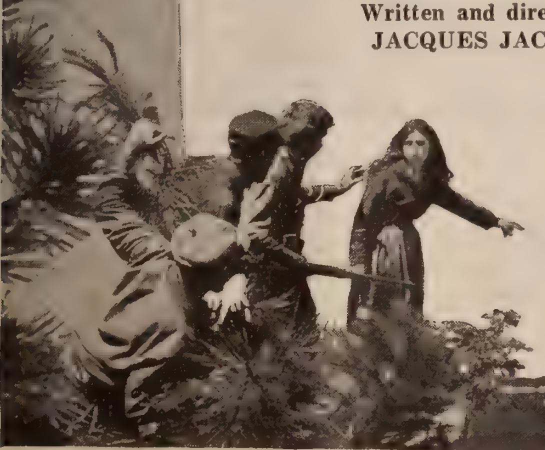
Current Release:
"THE FOREST RUNNERS"
featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM
and
Virginia Faire

Written and directed by
JACQUES JACCARD

IN vivid, vibrant stories of the Canadian forests, the courage and daring of the Royal North West Mounted Police, long famous, are here immortalized on the screen in romances that are creating nothing short of a sensation; and setting a brand-new standard in productions of this character.

To you, Mr. Exhibitor, will come a justified pride in knowing that you are pleasing your audiences with these action-filled tales and are creating a good will of that peculiarly lasting kind that builds for sure success.

There are six of these pictures. Play everyone. You can see them all right now at your Universal Exchange.



"The Smile that Wins"

SMILING HOOT GIBSON

IN

Two New Western Whirlwinds—

"DOUBLE DANGER"

Directed by Edward Laemmle

The inimitable, "Smiling" Hoot Gibson in this picture appears in a double role that but adds to our contention of the past few months: that here is a rising star coming into his own—a boy with "the smile that wins" destined to be the greatest attraction in westerns ever offered. In this picture, Hoot Gibson does some of his best work and you all know what that means. Here is a crowd-getter and patronage-builder of the first water.

"TIPPED OFF"

Directed by Al. Russell

A prohibition sufferer.
Lovers eloping.
A drink in an alleyway.
A Marshal after the bottle.
A bottle hidden in the grips of the elopers.
An escaped convict disguised in preacher's clothes.

Imagine the laughable complications before the situation is finally cleared up! Then multiply by one hundred and add "smiling" Hoot Gibson—book the picture—count the receipts—and Oh Boy! what a gra-a-nd and glorious feeling is yours!

UNIVERSAL MADE AND UNBEATABLE

"Here I Are!"

ALL the folks think I'm so funny that they are asking for me to come again soon. Sooner than that, if possible. But all joshing aside: for a one-reel mirth-provoker, this is one of the funniest pictures that I have ever heard exhibitors rave about. A gurgling, gushing geyser of giggles that brings out a continuous roar of guffaws and turns your house into a jubilee of rejoicing. And that's not all; it brings out the crowd of joyseekers and turns your box office into a young mint of greenbacks.

See it. Book it. Prof-it.

Yours for a thousand feet

"Dotty" Wolbert

featured in

"A Scream in Society"

Directed by VIN. MOORE

one reel
STAR COMEDIES
EVERY ONE'S A TWINKLER

International News

No. 72.

Mitchell Field, N. Y.—New giant of the skies. Army Air Service gives ten-ton bombing plane successful test.

New York City.—New York now has own "Eiffel Tower." Huge shaft erected for new courthouse work affords odd views of Manhattan. (Omit from New England, California and Texas prints.)

New York City.—New England mayors visit New York. Mayor Hyland extends cordial welcome to brother executives. (For New England only.)

Oakland, Cal.—No mollycoddles here. Girl athletes in desperate tug of war at Mills College. (For California prints only.)

Dallas, Tex.—General Obregon, Mexico's President-elect, visits Texas fair. (Texas only.)

Glimpses at the News in Europe.—King Alfonso reviews his private honor guard. Madrid Spain.

New Orleans, La.—Fishing sloop race. Gingery contest for trophy given by Sir Thomas Lipton.

Taranto, Italy.—Sunken dreadnaught raised upside down by Italian engineers.

On the last lap in Presidential race.—Greatest crowd of campaign hears Senator Harding in his front porch farewell; Marion, O

Buffalo Basin, Wyoming.—Explosion fires biggest gas well. Flames shoot high in air, visible for miles around.

Fort Andrews, Mass.—The battle of Boston Harbor. Phantom army repelled by giant guns. First the old style mortars.

"Twin Crooks"

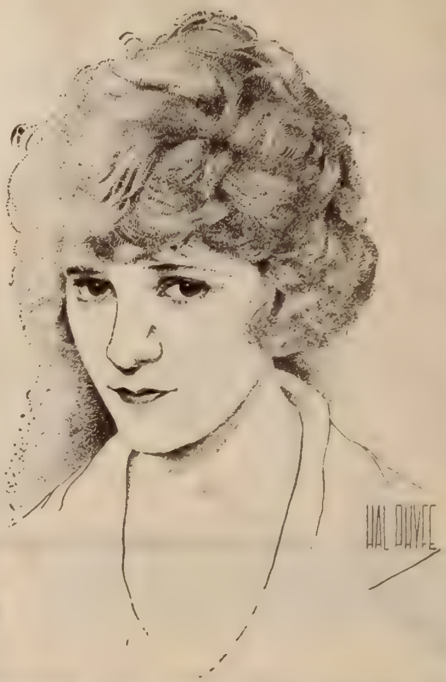
Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

LILLIAN BYRON, CHARLES DORETY and BUD JAMISON

CHARLES has an animal act which upon its first appearance is turned down. As he is out of work, he takes a job as janitor.

The employer is a burly brute and owns a pretty wife. Complications ensue when Charlie begins work. Their baby is mysteriously stolen by twin crooks and Charlie seeks to get it back involving many misunderstandings as to his true purposes and intents, until he finally produces the child and between forgivings and blessings everything ends happily for all concerned, except the villains.



Edith Roberts, Winsome Charmer of "The Adorable Savage," soon to be featured in a picture of Girlhood, Romance and Old Louisiana Days, now in production, "White Youth."

International News

No. 73.

New York City.—Blaze on Broadway imperils theatres. Fire in heart of White Way does $500,000 damage. (Omit from Portland, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Spokane, Seattle, Butte Denver, Detroit, Salt Lake City, Cleveland, Cincinnati & New York prints—appears in New York City prints, however.)

Sub-Title.—A fireman's life is not a merry one.

Larchmont, N. Y.—Grace and health for your kiddies. Outdoor dancing banishes many of childhood ills.

Sub-Titles.—Miss Helen Adams who instructs these graceful children. The balloon dance. How to get healthy appetities.

In the Public Eye.—Governor Cox invades New York.—Greets Public School Boys.—New York City.

Sub-Titles.—Lord Mayor Clarence MacSwiney (on left)—the Irish patriot who died after a 74-day hunger strike.—Cork, Ireland. Picketing the British Consulate after the Lord Mayor's death, New York City.

Fort MacArthur, Cal.—Keeping the big guns in fighting trim. Imaginary fleet suffers heavy "casualties" off the Pacific Coast. (Omit from Cleveland & Cincinnati prints.)

Sub-Title.—At the Aberdeen, Maryland Proving Grounds, army men tryout new railway guns.

Off the Massachusetts Coast.—Busy days for the fishermen. Gill net experts make huge catches as high meat prices increase demand for sea food.

Sub-Titles.—They get one cent a pound for these fish—you get—? Coming into Gloucester after a hard day's work.

Portsmouth, England.—Prince of Wales ends 45,000 mile trip around the world. (Aboard the Renown.)

Sub-Title.—Huge crowds welcome the Prince at London.

Cambridge, Mass.—Dixie's Wonder team from Centre, Kentucky, lose to Harvard warriors. (50,000 saw the game). (Omit from Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Spokane.)

Sub-Titles.—Harvard scores first in a series of rushes. But plucky Centre comes back. The Crimsons—not be denied—forge ahead—score 31-14.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Stamford loses in hard fought game. University of Southern California wins by 10 to 0. (For Portland, Seattle, Can Francisco, Los Angeles and Spokane, only.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Porr John Barleycorn every once in a while he nearly comes to life—and then this happens.

..Sub-Title.—Many a slip twixt cup and the lip.

San Pedro, Cal.—Admiral Rodman reviews the "gobs." Boys of the Pacific fleet make a brilliant showing. (For Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Spokane only.)

Cleveland, O.—Fatal railroad wreck—many injured, two killed in head-on collision. (For Cleveland and Cincinnati only.)

Columbus, O.—Athletes parade. Great procession boosts the cause of physical training. (For Cleveland and Cincinnati only.)

Sub-Title.—A unique glimpse of the calisthenics class.

Warwick, New York—Picturesque scenes at pageant in honor of famous writer. "Frank Forester" arrives. (For New York State—but not New York City.

Sub-Titles.—An old time welcome. No 18th amendment then. Churchgoing was an event in those days. The memorial tablet to Henry William Herbert, better known as Frank Forester.

Tad Cartoon.

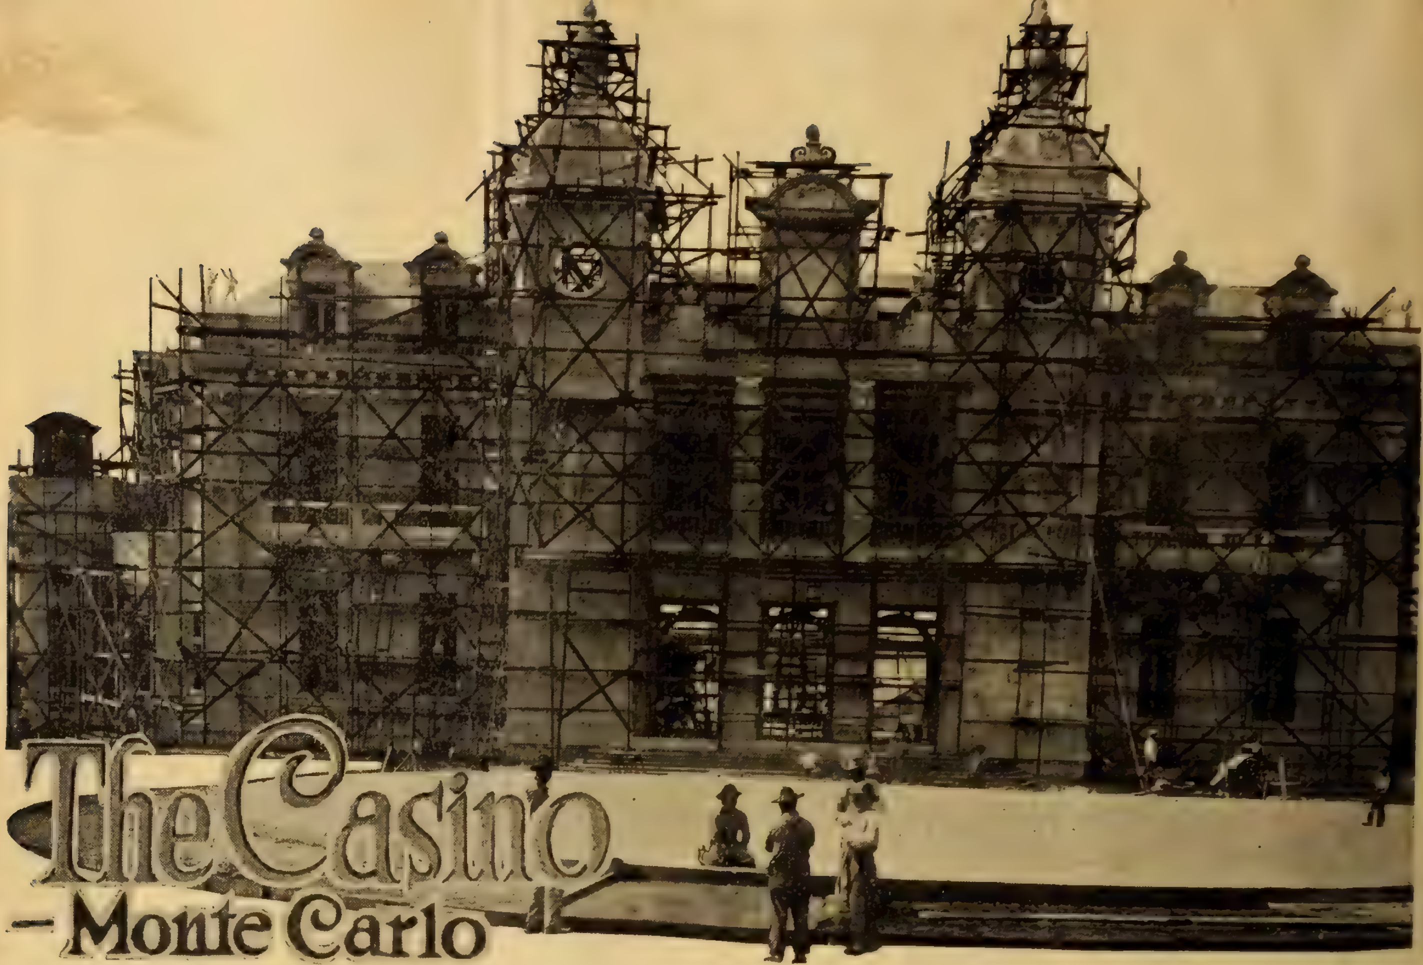
PRISCILLA

DEAN

Soon to appear in a great Universal-Jewel Production de Luxe Directed by

TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"



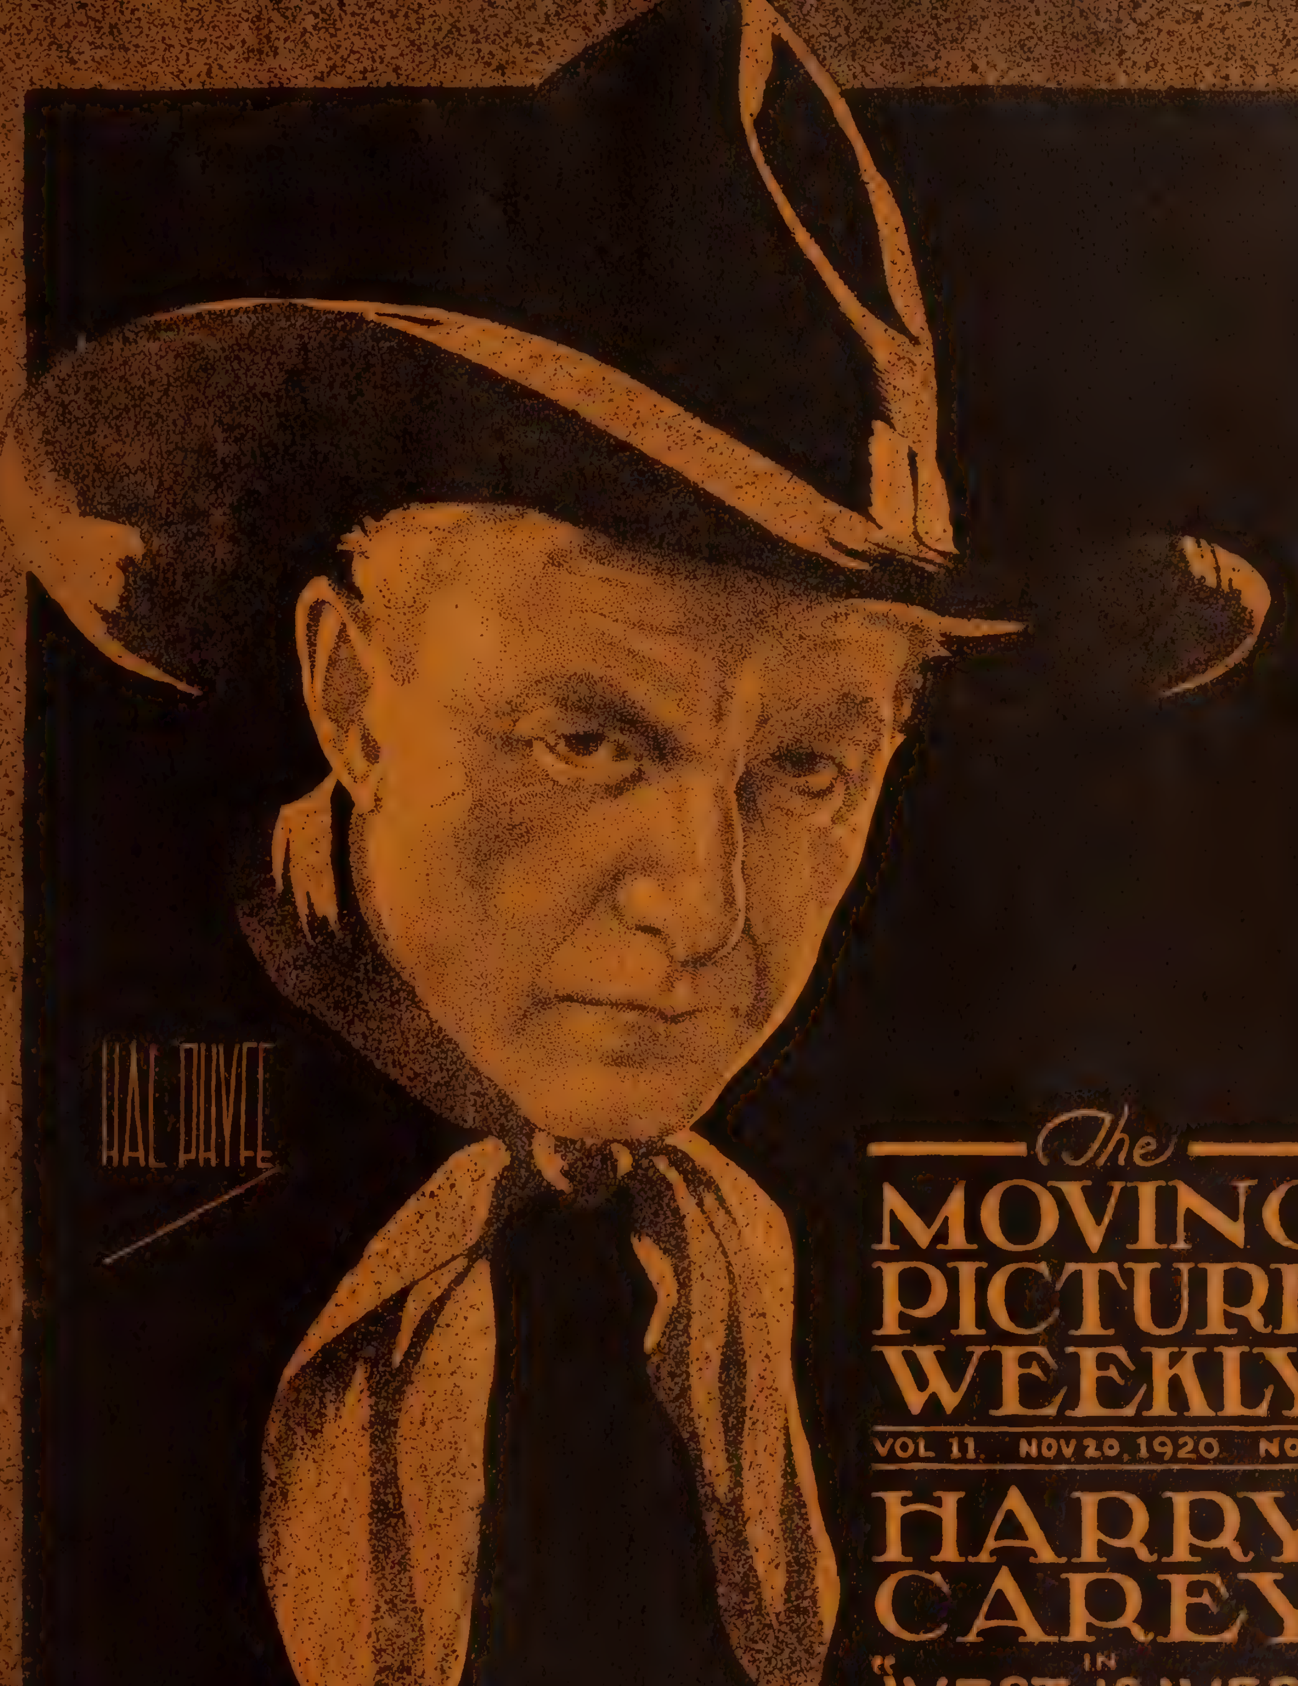
HERE is a "progress-picture" of the left side of the Plaza at Monte Carlo, reproduced in every minutest detail by Von Stroheim for "FOOLISH WIVES," the other two sides being formed by the Hotel de Paris and the Cafe de Paris. This building—the world-famous Casino—is 174 feet long, its towers rising 74 feet above the little park with its specially grown lawn. At Point Lobus, near Monterey, the back of this same building has been erected in a setting which is a city block-and-a-half long, rising magnificently from a 100-foot cliff on the sea and having in front a promenade 305 feet long and 60 feet wide.

Of such marvelous settings—of such amazing fidelity in detail is this newest Universal-Jewel Master-play constructed. Dramatically, "FOOLISH WIVES" will be found just as fascinating in revelations of certain phases of European life which none but Von Stroheim might ever dare to screen.

"FOOLISH WIVES"
Universal Jewel

VON STROHEIM AGAIN!

Two and one-half times as much



The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

VOL 11 NOV 20, 1920 NO. 14

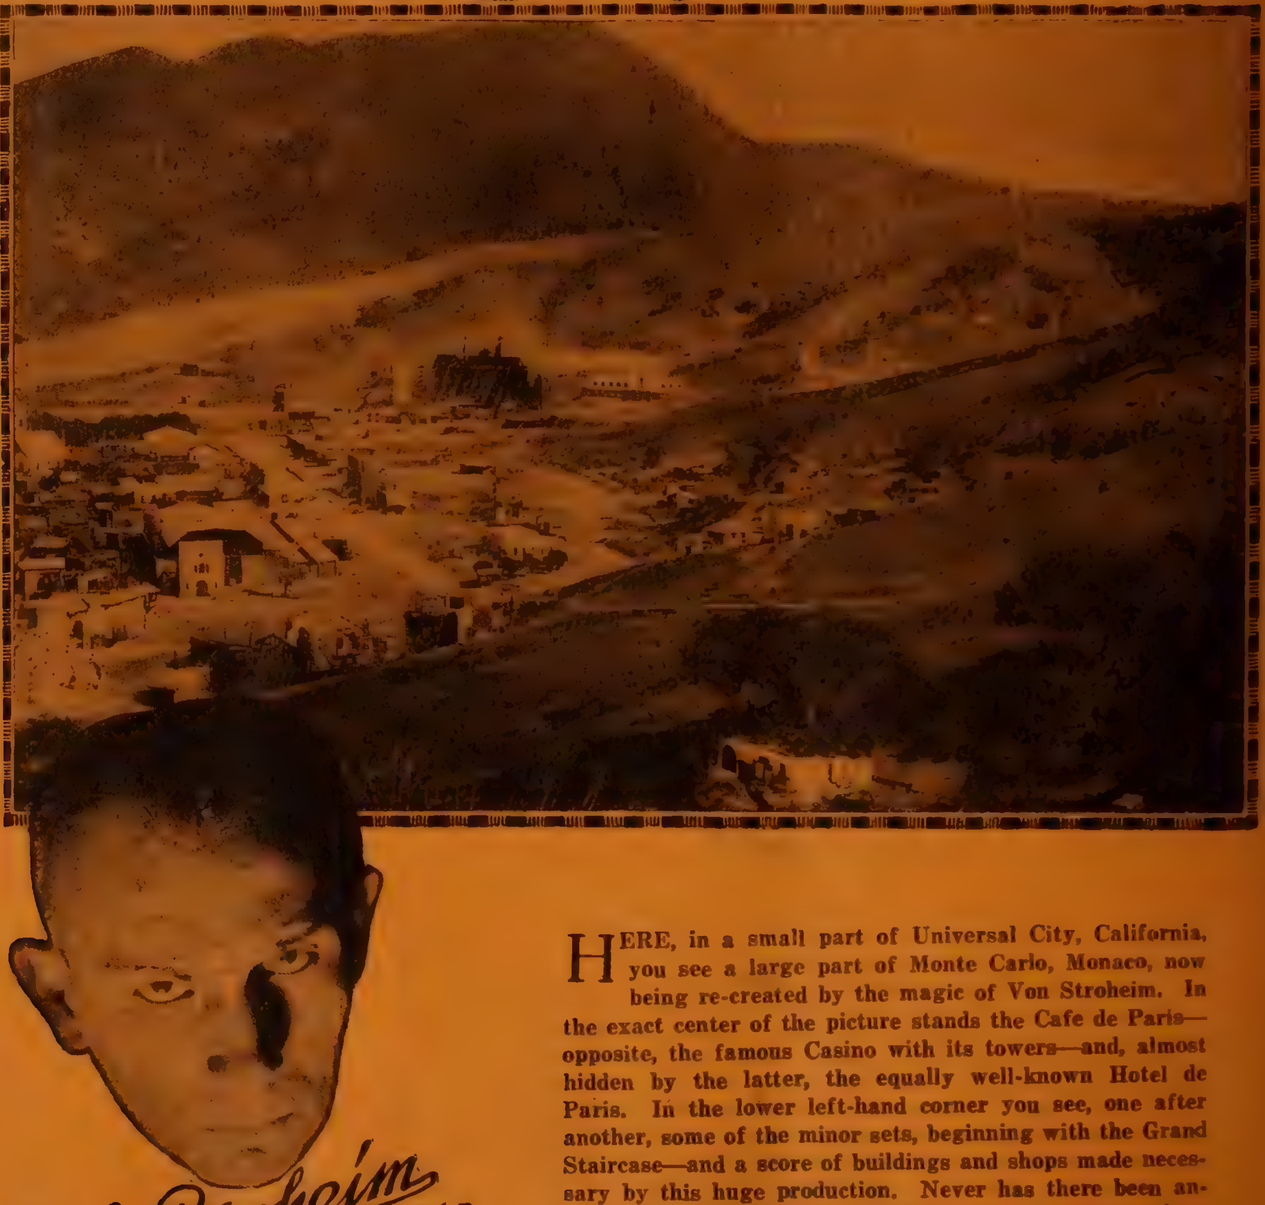
HARRY CAREY

in

"WEST IS WEST"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIO

Monte Carlo in California



HERE, in a small part of Universal City, California, you see a large part of Monte Carlo, Monaco, now being re-created by the magic of Von Stroheim. In the exact center of the picture stands the Cafe de Paris—opposite, the famous Casino with its towers—and, almost hidden by the latter, the equally well-known Hotel de Paris. In the lower left-hand corner you see, one after another, some of the minor sets, beginning with the Grand Staircase—and a score of buildings and shops made necessary by this huge production. Never has there been another photoplay with such amazing detail, nor has the difference between European and American morals been half so dramatically portrayed. Such a picture will cost you more than usual, but it will also net you more. And your theatre will be the better for it.

Von Stroheim again!

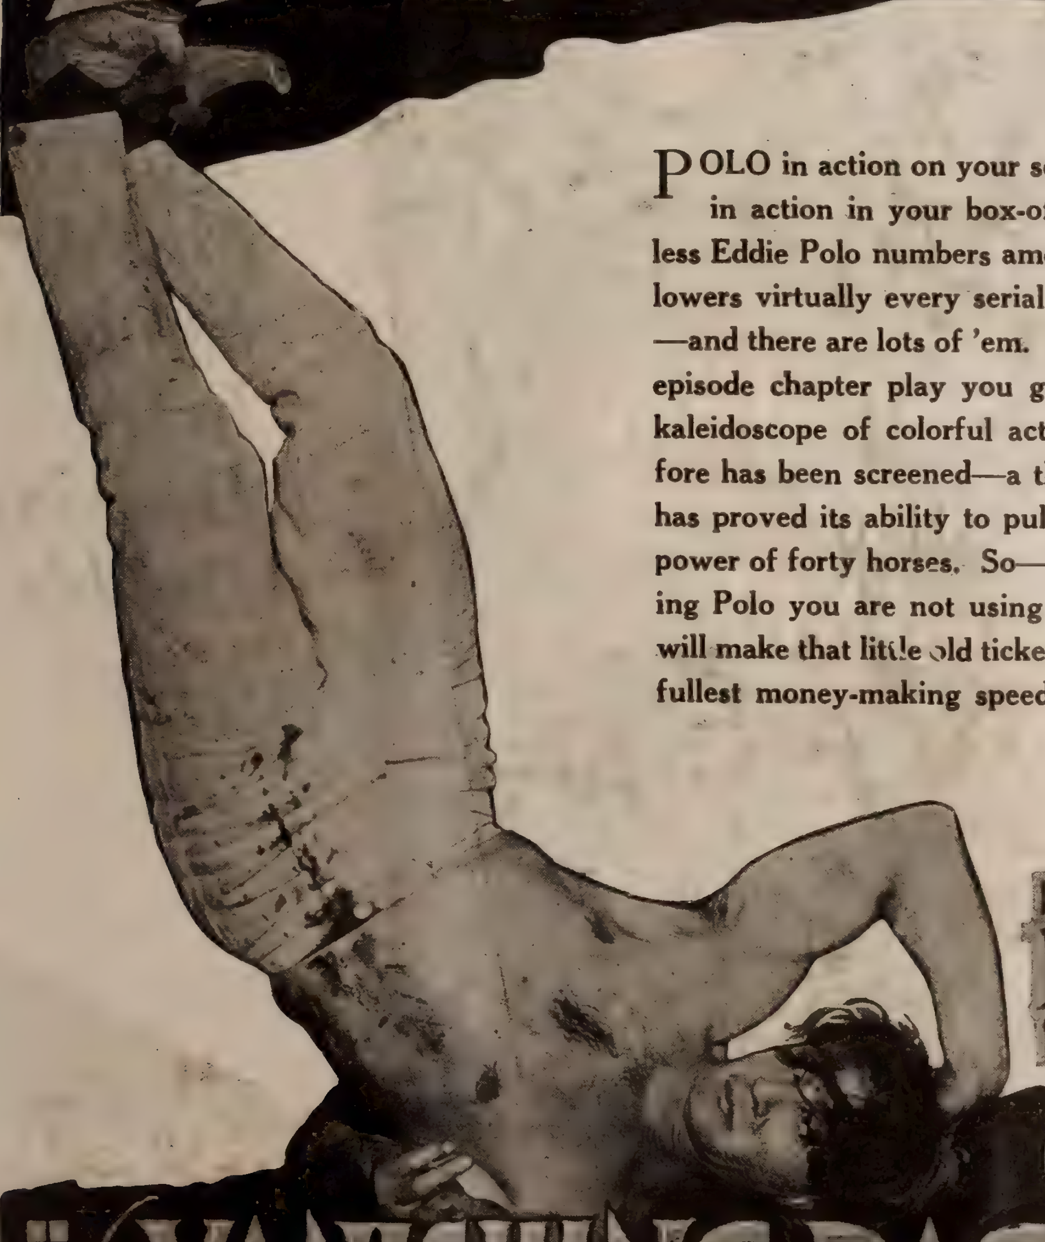
2½ times as much—

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

"FOOLISH WIVES"

He Packs the Patron-Pulling Punch

EDDIE POLO



POLO in action on your screen means profit in action in your box-office, for the peerless Eddie Polo numbers among his ardent followers virtually every serial fan in your town—and there are lots of 'em. In this rushing 18-episode chapter play you get Polo in such a kaleidoscope of colorful action as seldom before has been screened—a thriller that already has proved its ability to pull patrons with the power of forty horses. So—if you're not playing Polo you are not using the lubricant that will make that little old ticket-reel unwind at its fullest money-making speed. Do it TODAY.

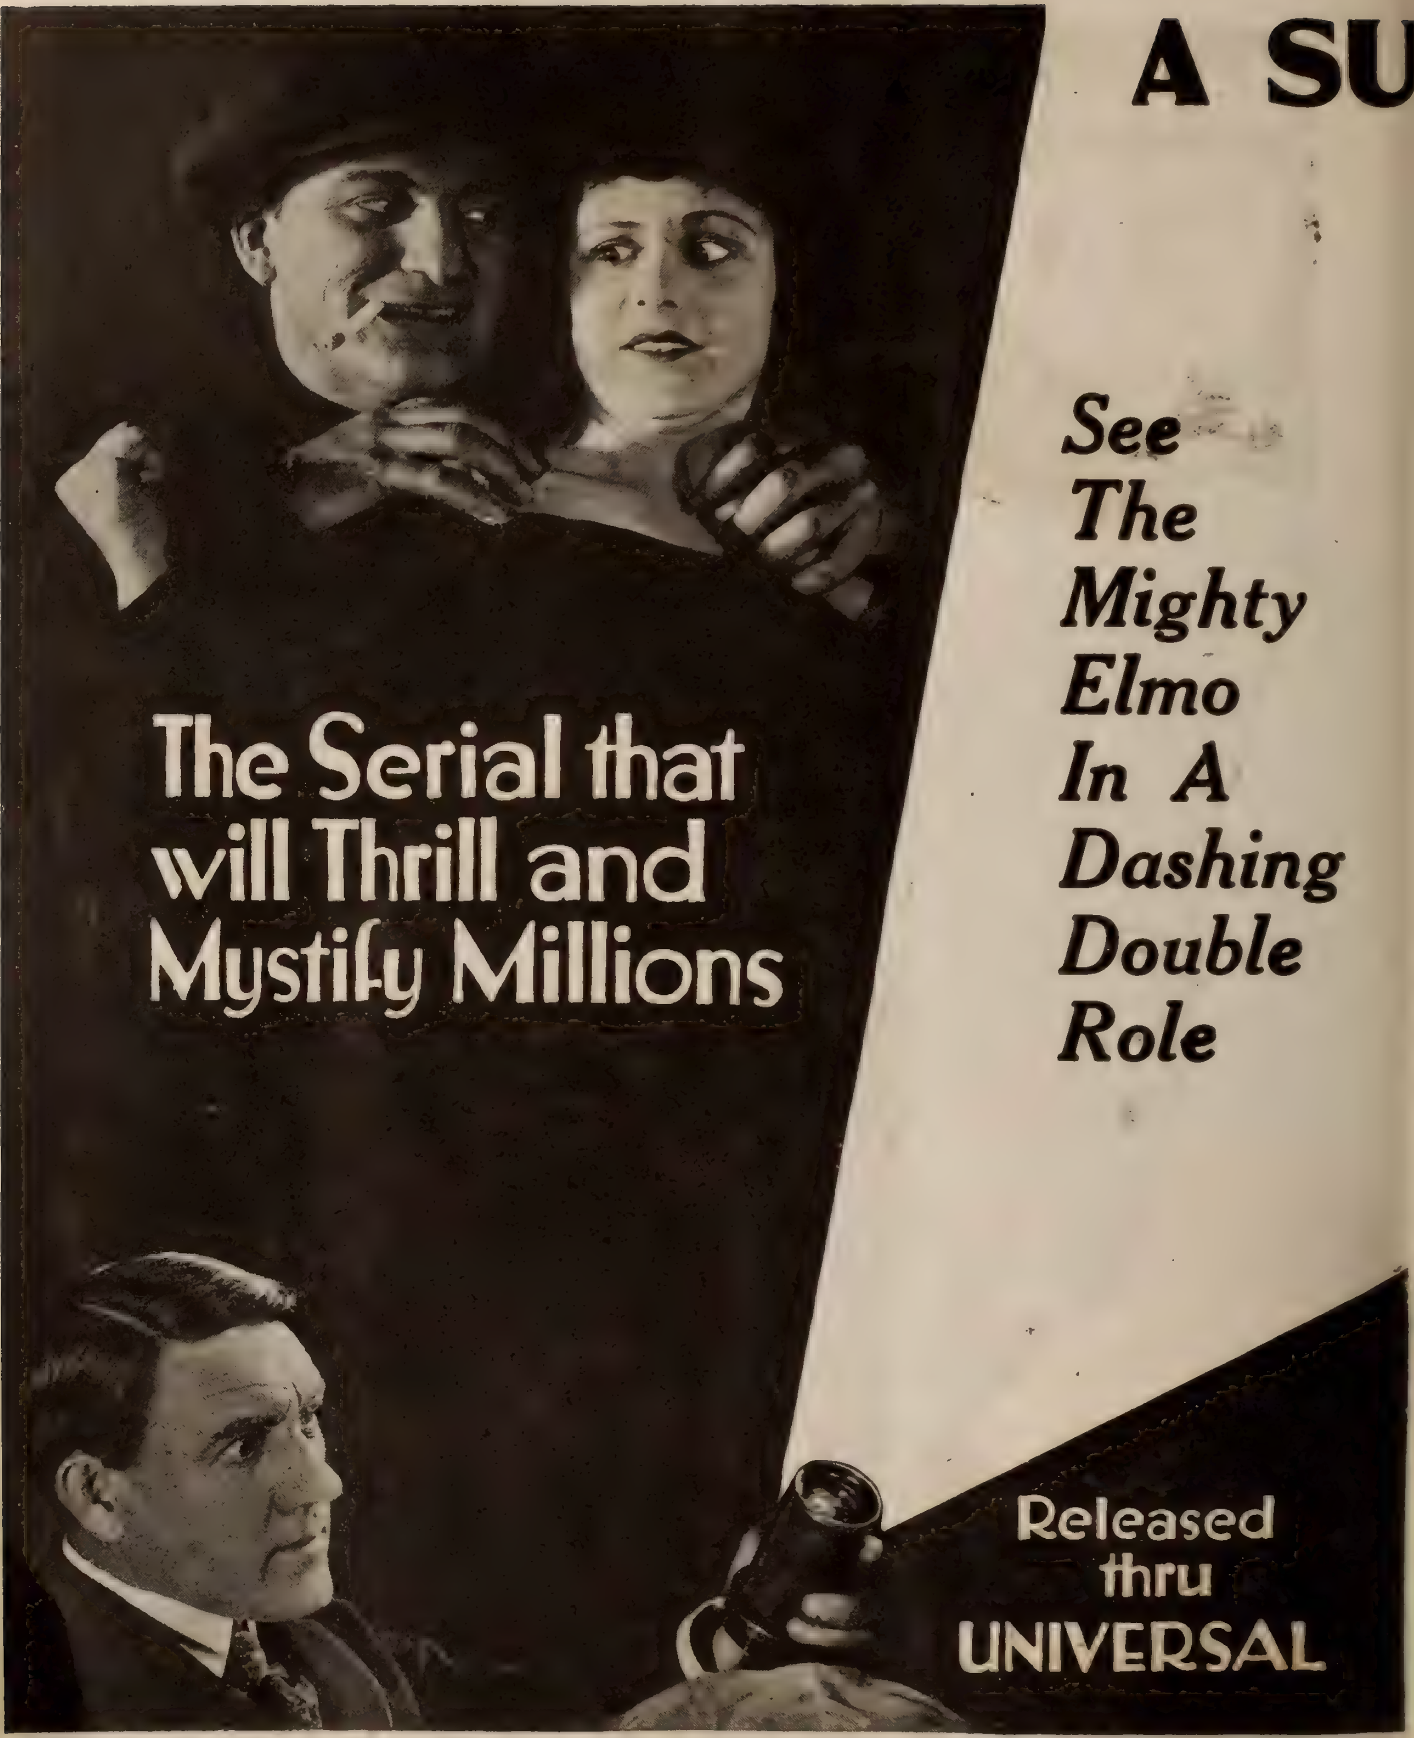
Produced by
POLO
himself

Released thru
UNIVERSAL

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

THE MIGHTY SEA-TO-SEA SERIAL

A SU



The Serial that will Thrill and Mystify Millions
Released thru UNIVERSAL

See
The Mighty
Elmo
In A Dashing
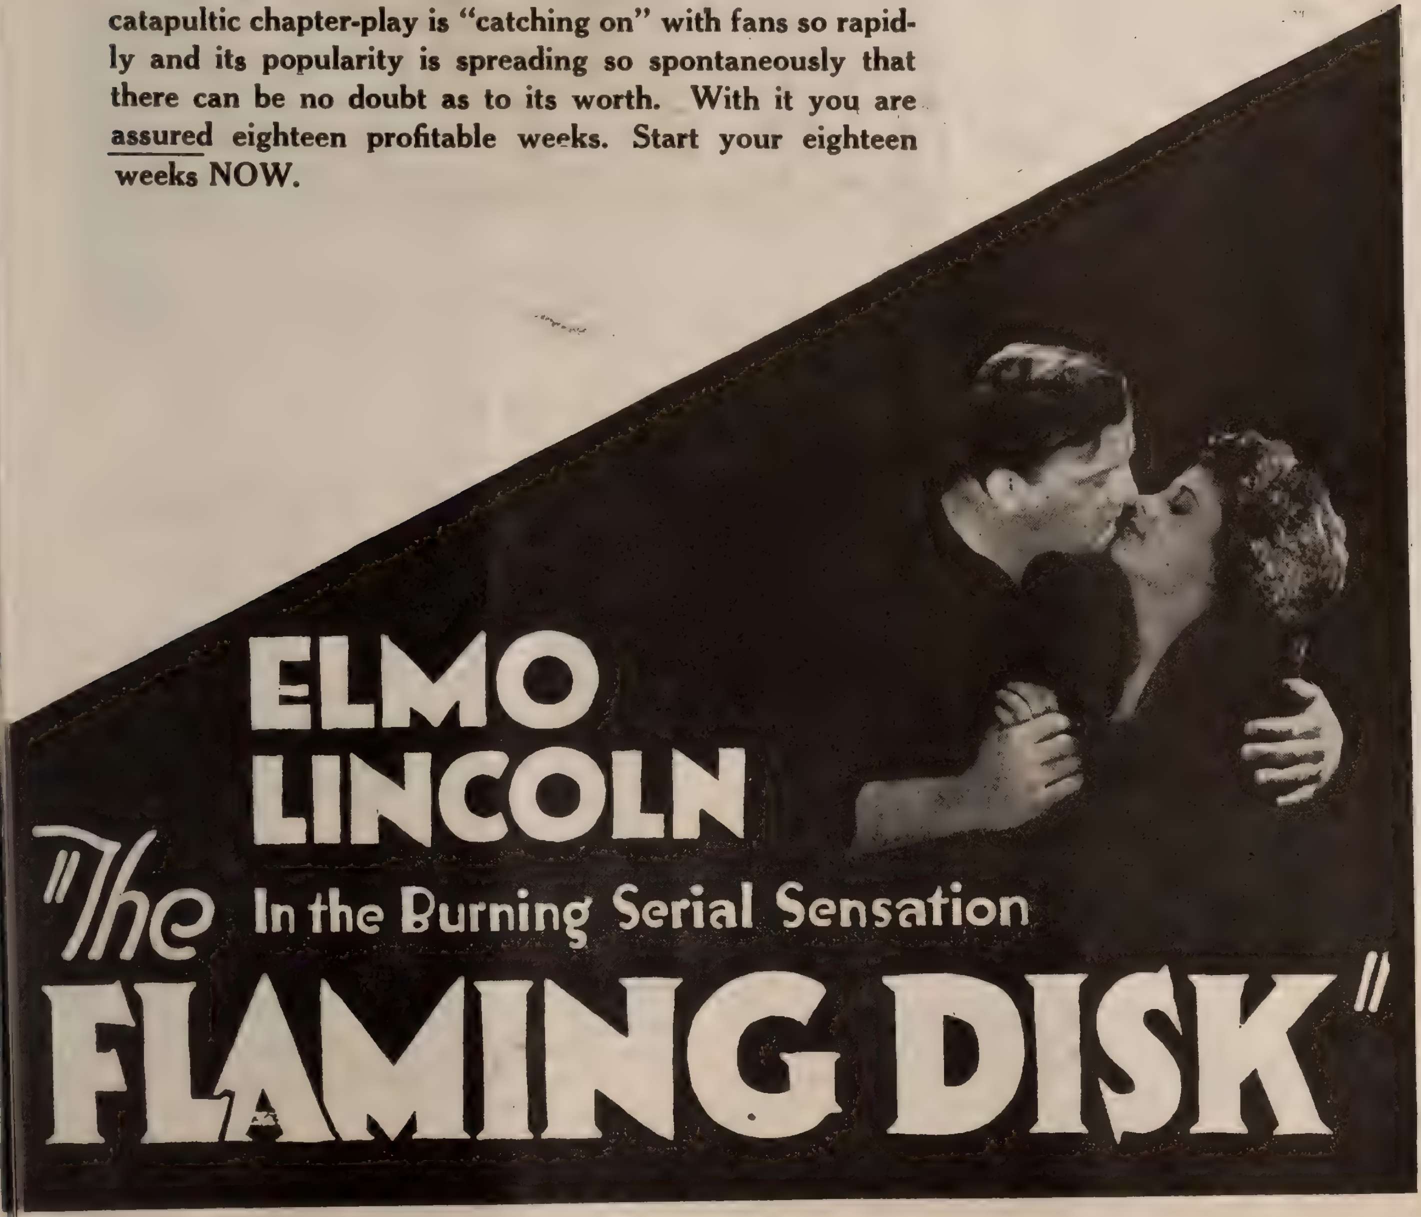
Double
Role

RE-FIRE MONEY-MAKER

THE very first episode of this red-hot serial sensation is a spark that immediately starts a sweeping conflagration of success for the exhibitor who shows it. This fact is being proved every day to the profit and satisfaction of additional showmen. And it is emphatically up to you, if you are looking for a sure-fire money-maker, to benefit by the experience of these men—just as much as it is up to you to consider Universal's sincere word that this catapultic chapter-play is "catching on" with fans so rapidly and its popularity is spreading so spontaneously that there can be no doubt as to its worth. With it you are assured eighteen profitable weeks. Start your eighteen weeks NOW.



ELMO LINCOLN
In the Burning Serial Sensation
"The FLAMING DISK"

Last of "The Full House Five" Is An Ace

THIS is a picture of the crowd of eager youngsters gathered in front of the Harrison Avenue Theatre of Butte Montana, of which Mr. Wm. Woolpill is manager, anxiously waiting for the theatre to open its doors to the showing of the first episode of "The Dragon's Net," the serial "that travels as it thrills." This is the last serial of "The Full House Five" issue and it is an ace of a chapter play in every respect, more particularly because most of its scenes were filmed in foreign countries, China, Japan and the Philippines, the Universal having fitted up an expedition of actors, directors, cameramen and business executives for the specific purpose of making this serial in the Orient. The other four serials in this series are "The Lion Man," "Elmo the Fearless," "The Moon Riders," and "The Vanishing Dagger," all of which have gone on record as splendid serials full of suspense and thrills. "The Dragon's Net," the last of the series, features the daring blonde actress, Marie Walcamp and she has for her leading man the handsome Harlan Tucker.

Children patrons of Harrison Ave. Theatre, Butte Montana, waiting for episode one of "The Dragon's Net."

Much Attention Paid To Serial Production

FOR the year 1921 Universal is planning a series of serials which will outrival anything that the company has produced heretofore in the way of chapter plays. So great has been the success of "The Full House Five" that the serial issue for the forthcoming year will be a bigger and better one yet. Eddie Polo, Elmo Lincoln and Eileen Sedgwick are the three stars who will be featured, and each of these is now at work on the first of their big chapter plays. Polo is starring in the gorgeous and suspenseful serial of circus life entitled "King of the Circus," the mighty Elmo is astounding thousands with his herculean stunts in his new serial, "The Flaming Disk," and the dauntless, adorable Eileen will dazzle moviegoers in "The Diamond Queen." Each of these stars will probably make two serials for the forthcoming schedule.

The serial movie is leaping steadily ahead. It is no longer merely "the schoolboy's thriller." It has developed into a consistent, interesting depiction, and is to the screen fan what the serial adventure story is to the magazine fan.

An interesting letter came to the Universal Exchange in Kansas City some time ago, so interesting a letter, in fact, that it is worthy of reproduction. Excerpts of it read as follows:

> "It is seldom, indeed, that any film company delivers the goods up to the standard indicated by the avance advertising. Universal has not only accomplished the rare but also the so-called impossible in the case of 'THE FULL HOUSE FIVE SERIALS.'
>
> "I am running 'Elmo the Fearless,' 'The Moon Riders' and 'The Vanishing Dagger' now. Have already booked 'The Lion Man' and 'The Dragon's Net,' thus handling the entire lot of 'The Full House Five.'
>
> "Every one of the above named serials has increased my business from 30 to 50 per cent. Why? Because each and every one is different in nature, yet contains all the essential points required in a successful serial.
>
> "I believe that eventually there will be no house or theatre too large or exclusive to run two or three serials.
>
> "If I can ever recommend any serial you have to any one in this vicinity I will glady do so; and what's more, if they are from Missouri, I can show 'em."
>
> WILLIAM PARSONS, Pershing Theatre,
> Joplin, Mo.

If Mr. Parsons can write so feelingly of his success with "The Full House Five," he will certainly rejoice with what Universal has to offer him in the way of serials for the forthcoming year.

BRING HALF THE WORLD TO YOUR TOWN

YOU can do it—profitably—by booking the only serial ever filmed in China, Japan, the Philipines and the United States. And what's more, when you start your folks on this gigantic overseas trip you start yourself on twelve weekly trips to the bank. Now is the time to begin.

MARIE WALCAMP

in the Serial that Travels as it Thrills

"the DRAGON'S NET"

Directed by
Henry McRae

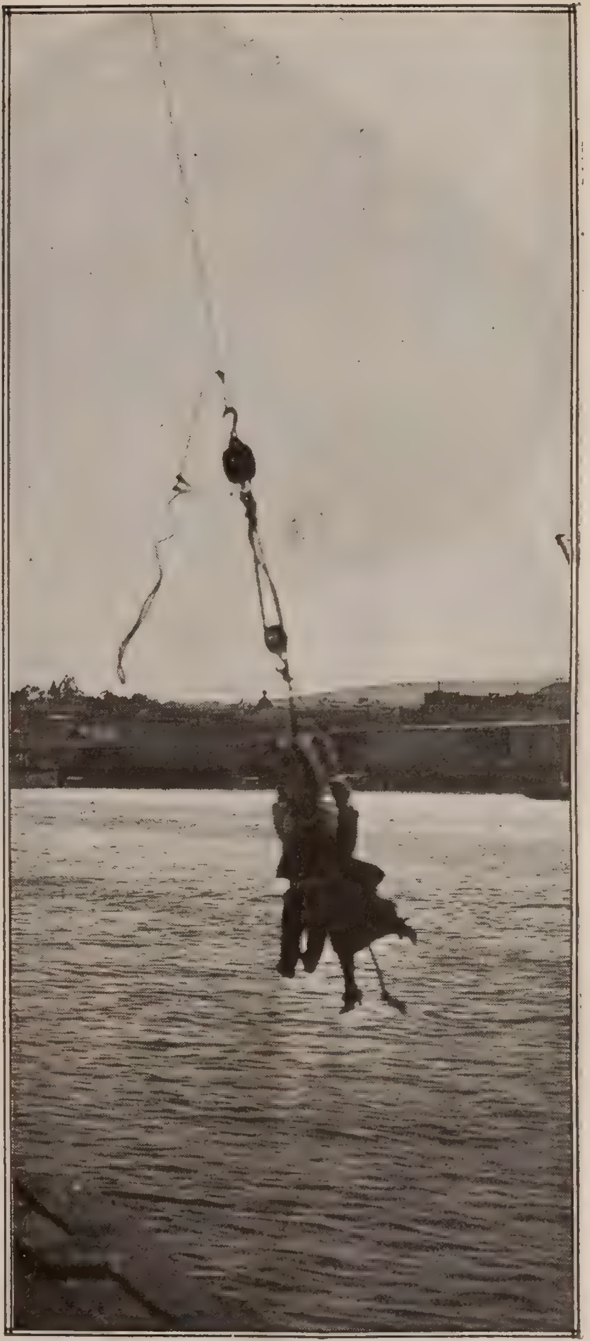
Released thru
Universal

“I thought
over

Said Eddie Polo, as he was getting ready for the next scene. “It couldn’t have been longer than a minute but it seemed more like a life-time. You’ll see it on the screen in an exceptionally fine piece of photography. It’s when the heroiné, played by Miss Corinne Porter, and I leap from the tug to escape from the gang. A rope suspended several hundred feet from a derrick on the dock is swinging over our heads; in this scene we were supposed to grab this rope and swing out together to the dock: a sure thriller as planned. But—somehow—there was a breeze blowing and each time as we tried to grab the rope

EDDIE POLO
„KING OF THE CIRCUS”

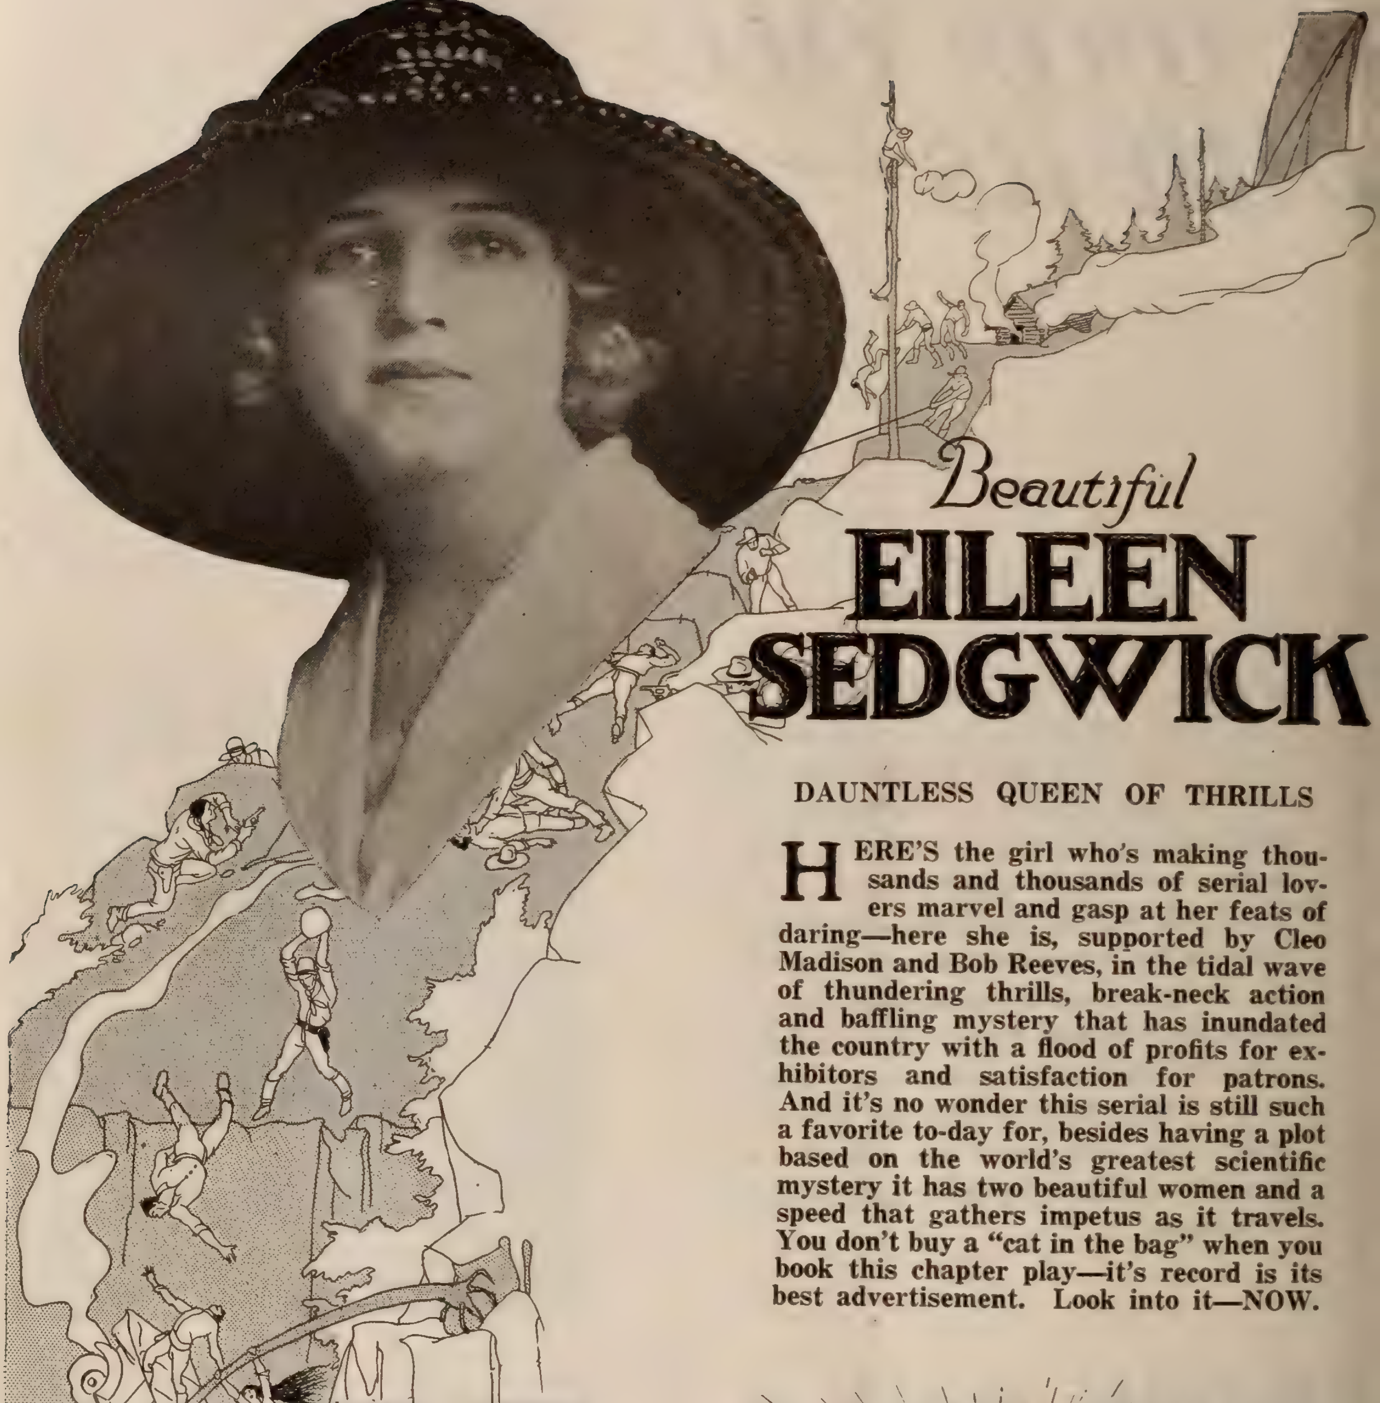
it was all with us"



it swung out of our reach. Rather than "kill" the whole scene, I grabbed Miss Porter and went thro the air after that rope in what seemed a never-ending leap. Don't ask me how I ever did it—all I know is that we both breathed somewhat easier when our feet hit the dock. You'll know how we felt when that scene is flashed on the screen for you'll hear a gasp from your audience followed by a sigh of relief, as they sink back into their seats. True, it was a bigger thriller than we planned—but if the fans want and like it, why there's only one thing to do: smile and give it to them."

EDDIE POLO

KING OF THE CIRCUS"



Beautiful

EILEEN SEDGWICK

DAUNTLESS QUEEN OF THRILLS

HERE'S the girl who's making thousands and thousands of serial lovers marvel and gasp at her feats of daring—here she is, supported by Cleo Madison and Bob Reeves, in the tidal wave of thundering thrills, break-neck action and baffling mystery that has inundated the country with a flood of profits for exhibitors and satisfaction for patrons. And it's no wonder this serial is still such a favorite to-day for, besides having a plot based on the world's greatest scientific mystery it has two beautiful women and a speed that gathers impetus as it travels. You don't buy a "cat in the bag" when you book this chapter play—it's record is its best advertisement. Look into it—NOW.

THE SERIAL THAT HAS EVERYTHING

Directed by ROBERT HILL

"The GREAT RADIUM MYSTERY"

Made by Pacific Producing Co

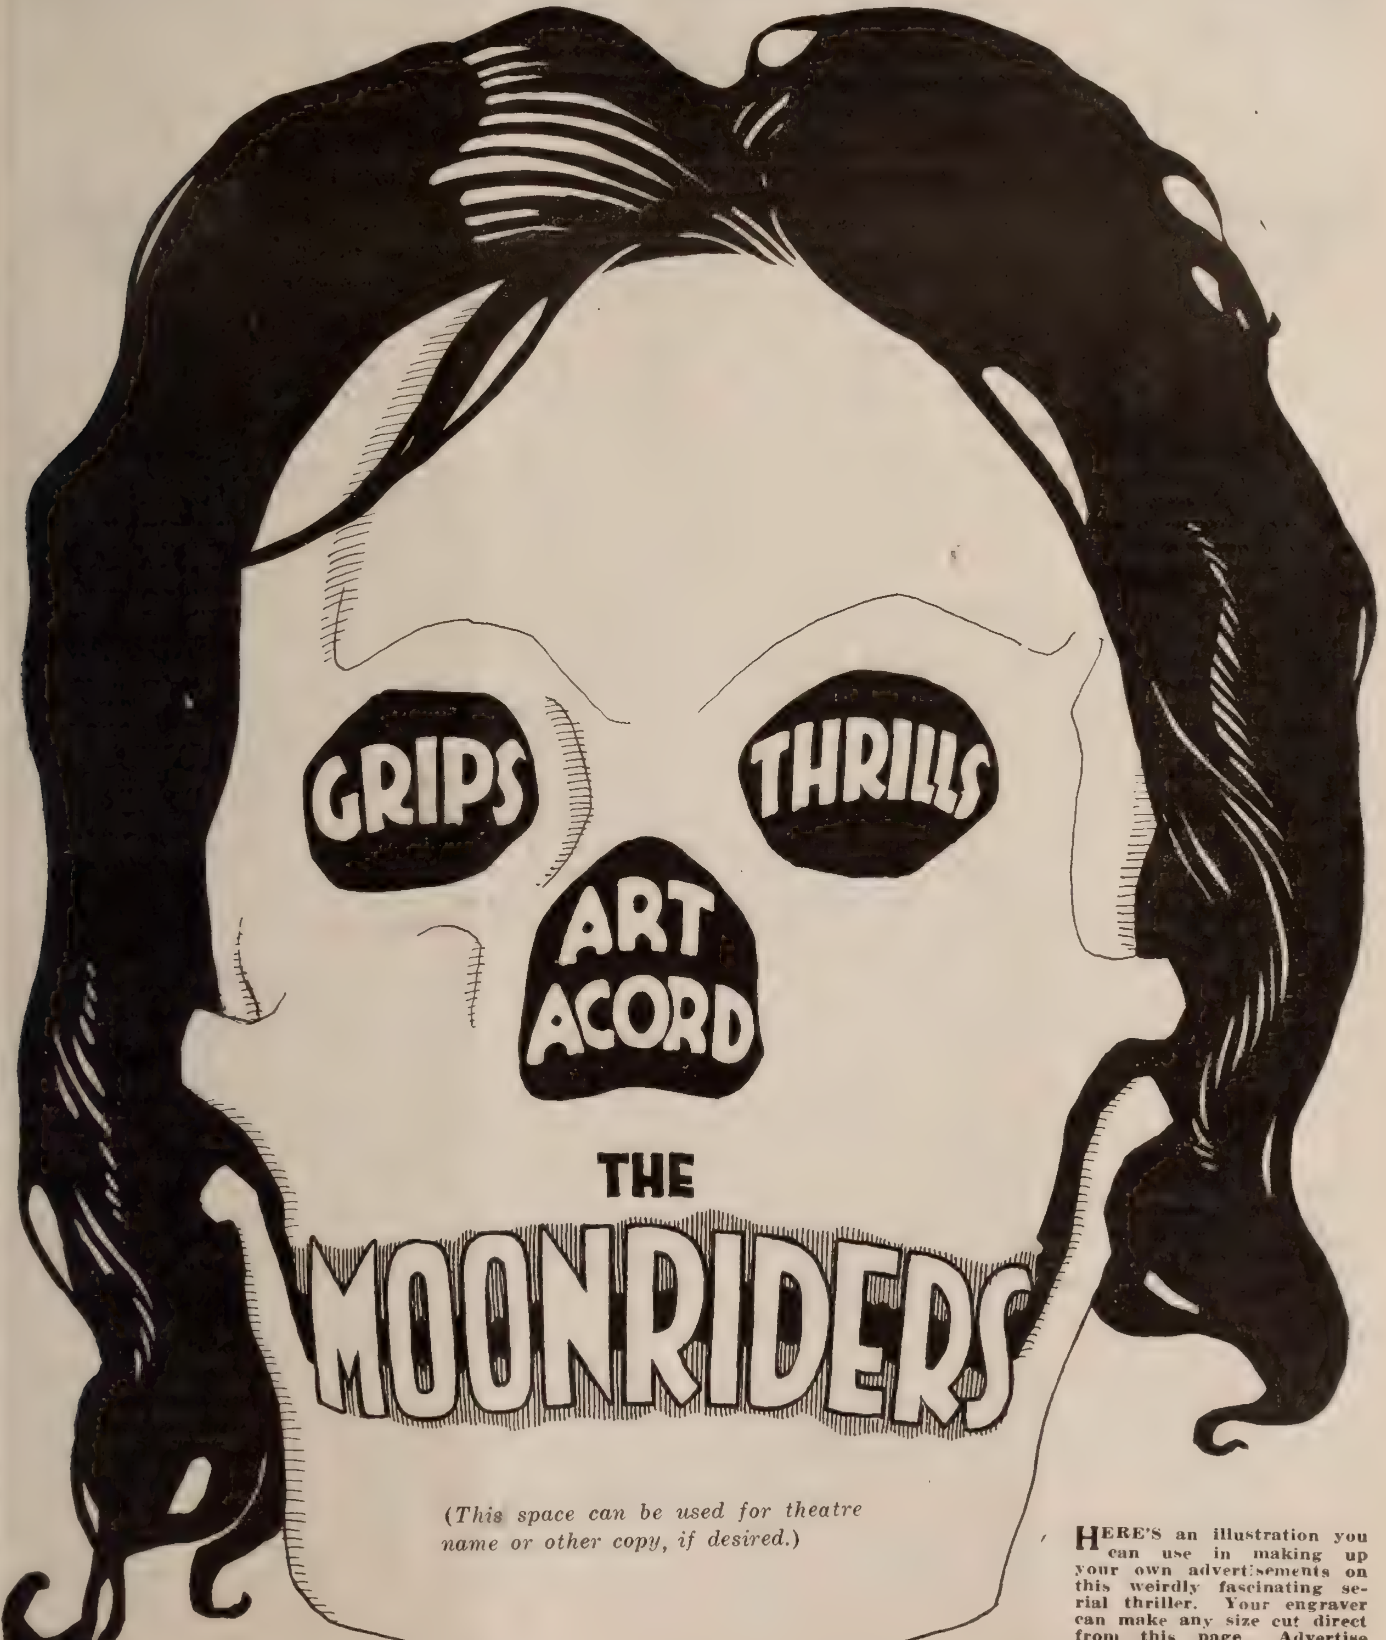
Released thru
UNIVERSAL



GRIPS
THRILLS
ART ACORD
THE MOONRIDERS

(This space can be used for theatre name or other copy, if desired.)

HERE'S an illustration you can use in making up your own advertisements on this weirdly fascinating serial thriller. Your engraver can make any size cut direct from this page. Advertise regularly and increase the profits this sterling chapterplay is bound to bring.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 11 NOVEMBER 20, 1920. No. 14

EDITORIALS

THAT Universal officials recognized the present trend towards all-star productions is well evidenced by several recent Universal productions in which no attempt has been made to star any one player, and in which the story interest and excellence in production have been held paramount.

Among these pictures have been "The Secret Gift," a homely tale of lowly hearts in well-recognizable situations, and "Pink Tights," a circus picture of universal appeal. These two pictures have attained remarkable success.

The latest non-star picture undertaken by Universal is called "Gold and the Woman." It was written by John Colton and Douglas Z. Doty of the Universal scenario staff. Colton is well known as a popular author. Doty has been editor of several of America's largest publications.

"Gold and the Woman" is being directed by Reaves Eason, who piloted many Harry Carey productions to success. Eason not only is directing the feature, but is playing the heavy role in it. One of the principal roles in the story is taken by his talented youngster, Reaves Eason, Jr., or "Breezy" Eason, as he is better known. Mrs. Eason also takes part in the production. Among the others in the cast is George McDaniels.

The picture now is being completed at Universal City. Eason and his company passed three weeks in the heart of San Gabriel Canyon, Cal., taking the bulk of the scenes called for by the story.

THE technical heads at Universal City have just completed the most elaborate series of sets ever used in a Universal picture, word comes from the Coast. They were constructed for use in Erich von Stroheim's new feature, "Foolish Wives," and represent in faithful detail an exterior at Monte Carlo, the Mediterranean gambling resort, showing the famous Casino, the Grand Cafe and the Hotel de Paris.

The buildings are built to exact scale and tower many feet in the air in white splendor. Thousands of feet of lumber and many tons of cement and plaster were used by Von Stroheim. They are making "Foolish Wives" the costliest picture by more than two and one-half times ever made by Universal.

At Monterey, Cal., additional costly sets have been constructed for this picture, representing the back view of the several large structures, and showing the terraces down to the sea, in exact replica of the magnificent view to be had at Monte Carlo. Von Stroheim has just taken a company, including 200 extras, to this location to film a series of scenes to be used in the picture, his third super-production for Universal, and in which he himself takes a leading role.

The actor-director has just completed a series of scenes at Universal City depicting action in and around a small lake. Stroheim had a special lake built for this picture. It took a corps of fire engines and water-pumps several days to fill it. The engines later were used to aid in a gigantic storm effect which Universal officials who saw its filming say rivals the elements in violence and verisimilitude. Von Stroheim's company had to work knee-deep in water for more than a week.

Von Stroheim promises some unusual lighting and photographic effects in "Foolish Wives." For the past month he has spent much time closeted with S. M. Tompkins, Universal laboratory chief, and with Frank Lawrence, film editor, working out effects heretofore not seen on the screen. Those who remember his first great photoplay, "Blind Husbands," and his more recent film epic, "The Devil's Pass Key," are confident that his new picture will be all that he claims in the way of novelty, photoplay advancement and directorial excellence.

ONE of the many actors going from East to the West Coast is William Welsh, who now is on his way back to Universal City, after having been out of the Universal employ for several seasons.

Welsh is one of the best known character actors on the screen. Until recently he has been appearing in Fox pictures. He formerly was well known on the Universal lot, having appeared in character parts in many "Blue Bird" productions.

He will be remembered as the villain in Universal's super-feature, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," directed by Stuart Paton. Welsh worked in many other Paton pictures.

Since he severed his former connections with Universal and came East he has done much serial work.

Welsh was personally re-engaged by Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, several days after that executive returned from Europe. He will do character leads in some of the forthcoming Universal features. It has not yet been determined what his first picture will be.

He is the second Universal old-timer recently reporting back to Universal City. Stuart Paton is directing again for that company. The first picture under his new contract, "Wanted at Headquarters," has just been released. He is now directing the same star, Eva Novak, in "The Torrent," from the pen of George Rix, newspaper man and war correspondent.

NOTE---The following was published by a Los Angeles weekly called "IT" as an editorial. There is food for thought in it for Stars, Producers and Exhibitors. For that reason we reproduce it.

FALLING STARS

To the Tinsel-draped Motion Picture Stars;
In care of their secretaries and "Yes Men"
(Personal)

Wake up! Your tinsel is unraveling!

The handwriting is on the wall—your temperamental days are numbered!

Your whims and your arrogance are droning a dirge for your dying pretenses—

Motion picture dramatic art is finding itself and in doing so is losing you—UNLESS YOU FORGET YOUR GOOD LOOKS, YOUR GOLDEN CURLS AND LEARN HOW TO ACT—

Screen progress during the past year should have told you that you can never be the head of a safe and sane screen drama—that you are but the "cubs" of a great profession—

You were safe just so long as the novelty of a pretty moving photograph satisfied the public—but both the patron of pictures and the price of pictures have gone beyond that—every new outstanding picture success emphasizes this fact more and more—

In "Humoresque" two talented middle-aged artists carried the burden and the glory—the featured star was merely among those present—

In "Earthbound" a cast of capable mature players gave a dramatic gem to the screen—

In "The Penalty" an actor with neither youth nor beauty, no, not even a lip-smudging mustache, revealed what the screen can achieve when the ingenue and the juvenile are pushed into their proper places—

Some of you have profited by the lesson these pictures and others have taught—but most of you are beyond learning—

Wally Reid wallowed in the oblivion of "pretty" roles until he forgot his good looks and insisted that he be given an opportunity to act— One or two others have done likewise—

Every worth while picture of the past year is a rebuke to you and the whole male and female cutey star system—

Authors have grown weary of bastardizing their masterpieces in order to create impossible situations that may revolve about you—

The public is sick of seeing its beloved characters of fiction slaughtered to furnish you with a smile or a happy ending for your piffle—

The producer is exhausted with scouring the land to find stories that satisfy you—He is fast coming to the conclusion that you are a hindrance instead of a help—That the well-produced picture with an evenly-balanced cast—a real reflection of the world of men and women as it is—is what brings him profit—

And the exhibitor, the mainstay of the industry, is discovering that it is a costly thing to spend his good money trying to bring patrons to look at a pretty though plastic face, for he has tried it and lost—

The industry is becoming sane—and you had better join the procession—

Yours,

EDWARD ROBERTS.

Do You Want A Crowd Like This?

DEVILS PASSK

Crowd gathered in front of Stone Theatre, B'klyn, for "The Devil's Passkey"

WHEN they played "The Devil's Passskey" out in Brooklyn, New York City, in the theatre on Stone Avenue, called the Stone Theatre, they almost had to call out the reserves, so great were the crowds collecting in front of the house eagerly waiting to get in. And those crowds were not disappointed in what they witnessed once the performance started, and incidentally the management benefitted considerably from a financial standpoint.

The postman hasn't stopped yet bringing in letters singing the praises of this big Jewel feature. And the telegraph wires are kept pretty busy, too. When Mr. M. A. Chase, manager of the Universal exchange at Buffalo, New York, booked "The Devil's Passkey" for the big Palace Theatre there, he expected big results, but what transpired almost overwhelmed him. He wired the following into the home office:

"Passkey opened Palace, Buffalo; biggest business history house, in spite opposition Nazimova in Peacock, and Ray in 'Forty-five Minutes From Broadway.' Stopped sale of tickets twice. Thousands turned away. This is not press stuff but actual truth. Had to cut short subjects to accommodate crowds with extra show. House records broken."

From the Middle West comes a pretty tribute to Von Stroheim:

"Have just completed our run on Von Stroheim's 'The Devil's Passkey,' and can conscientiously say that it has more than lived up to our expectations.

"This is two successes to Mr. Von Stroheim's credit, and we are anxiously awaiting the chance of screening his next production, 'Foolish Wives,' which we understand is nearly completed.

"Pictures like 'Blind Husbands' and 'The Devil's Passkey' will go a long ways towards making both Universal and Mr. Von Stroheim known in the movie world, and we have no hesitancy in recommending 'The Devil's Passkey' to any exhibitor who is desirous of obtaining a passkey to better business."

Signed H. L. GOLDBERG, Mgr.
Sun Theatre, Omaha, Neb.

Pictures may come and pictues may go, but, judging from actual results, it looks as if "The Devil's Passkey" will go on forever.

You Can Do It Too

"It is highly gratifying to me and I feel sure that it will interest you to know that we shattered all house records for one day's business on 'THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL.'

"This attraction was played at advanced admission rates and I consider it one of the most successful photoplays of the season, both from a financial and artistics standpoint."

W. W. O. FENETY, Gen'l Mgr.,
The Gaiety Theatre,
550 Queen Street,
Fredericton, N. B., Canada.

"Capacity houses every day

and our fifth Day as big as our Opening"

Ansonia
Amusement Co.
Butte, Montana

FROM Butte, Montana—a long way from Paris—comes this testimonial as to the pulling power of "THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY." Paul de Mordaunt, Manager of the Ansonia, writes:

"I am taking this opportunity of advising you as to the successful run we enjoyed with your attraction, 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY.'

"We opened with this feature on Saturday, September 25th for a four-day engagement —and played to capacity houses every day against very strong competition.

"In fact, our fourth day's business was so great that we deemed it advisable to hold it for another day—and found that our fifth day's business was practically as big as our Opening.

"It is only upon rare occasions that we think it necessary to write an exchange regarding a production, but we found that 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY' was such an extraordinary attraction both from a box-office standpoint and in pleasing qualities, that we feel it is no more than right that you should know about the record-smashing run it enjoyed in our theatre."

Universal
Jewel

Carl Laemmle presents
Von Stroheim's
"The
MASTER PICTURE
DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

Here's How Far They Travel

AND now new fields are being conquered. Far across the sea went "The Virgin of Stamboul"—far away to merry Amsterdam, Holland, where it was received with the greatest enthusiasm and loudly acclaimed by all critics, when it played at the Rembrandt Theatre there.

It is some record that "The Virgin of Stamboul" is building up for itself. In every big city in the United States where it was given a showing it went over in great style. In every town, in every village and now in every hamlet that has a picture house, it is being gradually booked, and from all sides comes nothing but words of appreciation.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" is a picture which lends itself easily to the most interesting and entertaining kind of publicity because of its romantic setting and the glamor of its story. Hence it is a showman's picture, an easy picture for the exhibitor to handle from the viewpoint of exploitation. Then, too, it has a star, Priscilla Dean, than whom there are few more vivacious and spirited on the screen and who is popular wherever pictures are shown.

Rembrandt Theatre, Amsterdam, Holland, where "The Virgin of Stamboul" went over "big."

PRISCILLA SPEAKS HER MIND

"IT has never been my habit to poke fun at the screen-struck girl," recently remarked Priscilla Dean, the twinkling Universal star, "because I have learned to take her seriously, and many of the present day stars of the motion picture world were at one time screen-struck girls. I was not one myself because my mother was a prominent actress before I was born, and I went on the stage when I was four years old, playing little Gretchen in 'Rip Van Winkle' with the late Joseph Jefferson. The screen naturally followed.

"Producers and directors are not concerned with what a girl was before she joined the motion picture profession; it's what she does afterwards that counts.

"All belief to the contrary notwithstanding, the screen to-day is sadly in need of girls with ability and intelligence. A pretty face is an asset, but it will not carry a girl to real success unless supported by gray matter, ambition and common sense. Given ordinary good features, a good carriage, the ability to wear smart clothes and quantities of gray matter, and I'll back any girl for success against the merely pretty face which lasts for a year or two in the lightest of screen comedies.

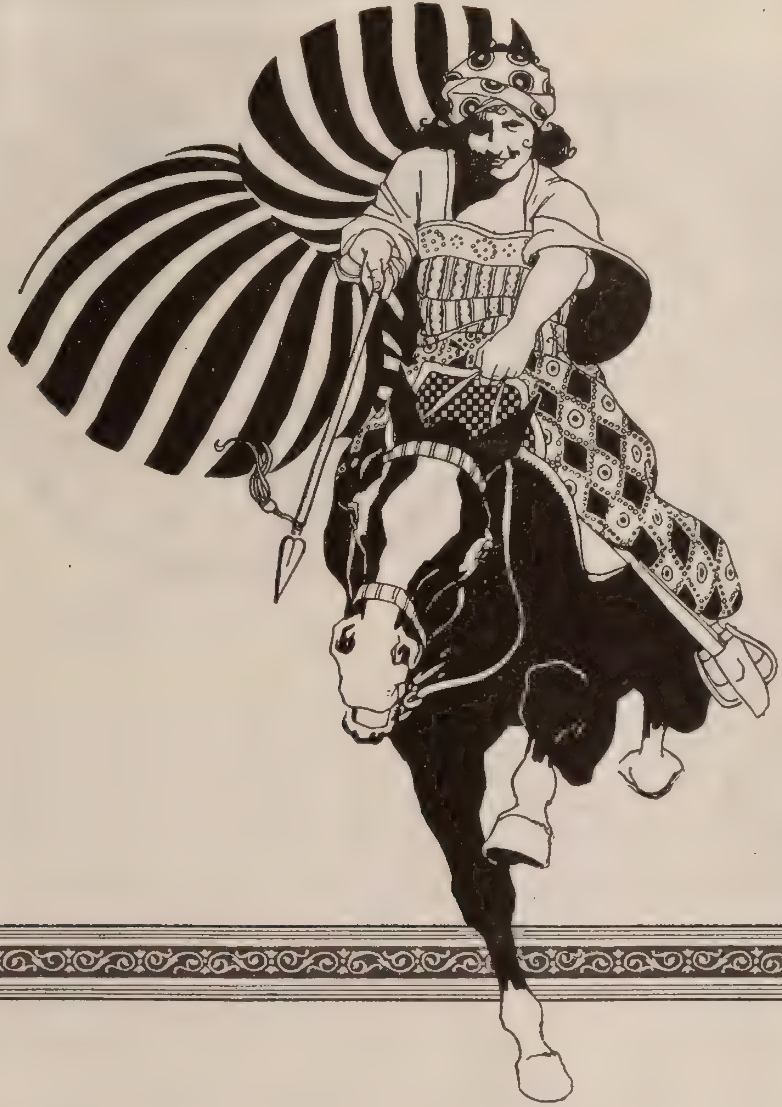
"The chief trouble with the majority of screen-struck girls is that they do not regard the films as a serious profession. They only see the glitter of the arc lights, and do not appreciate the hard work, bitter disappointments and constant worry that lies behind them. They do not realize that those who have won success have done so by years of constant endeavor and closest application.

"Success on the screen is won not through any one characteristic, but through a curious combination of many. She must possess good health, for the work is ofttimes hard and trying. She must possess an enormous capacity for work, and she must have a certain amount of personal charm and magnetism. The scenario writer can supply an interesting story, the director can give her the most carefully thought-out 'business,' and the producer can garb her in the most attractive raiment, but unless the screen actress has that quality called magnetism, which makes itself felt by the audience, she cannot hope for success. Magnetism usually has its basis in sincerity; sincerity is built on brains—the gray matter which is really more important an asset than a Cupid's bow mouth or a dimpled cheek."

While Miss Dean's success on the Universal screen has been considered meteoric, one must not forget that she has been acting under the very finest masters of the drama since she first learned to speak. She has appeared in "The Wildcat of Paris," "The Wicked Darling," "Kiss or Kill," "A Silk Lined Burglar," "The Exquisite Thief" and "Pretty Smooth," on the screen.

She is now taking the country and lots of other countries by storm in the current Jewel release, "The Virgin of Stamboul." And she has been working steadily for the past few months on a new picture called "Outside the Law," which was written for her by Tod Browning, the director, and for which he is handling the megaphone. Miss Dean will again be supported by Wheeler Oakman, who was her leading man in "The Virgin of Stamboul," and by such superb artists as E. A. Warren and Lon Chaney.

If there is any one who is qualified to give advice to the screen-struck girl it is Priscilla Dean. She started in at the bottom and went through all sorts of hard work and even drudgery until she reached the heights.



THE maddest, most fascinating siren of the screen to-day is the sensation of the hour in a super-production of an exotic present-day Arabian Nights' Tale. Everywhere—in largest cities and smallest hamlets—record-breaking crowds have paid remarkable tribute to the "Wicked Darling" of the screen in the year's biggest and most sensational picture-spectacle. If you are the showman we believe you to be, you cannot fail to book this picture.

PRISCILLA DEAN

in Tod Browning's Triumph

"THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

Universal-Jewel

"Foolish Wives" Will Have In Its Cast Some Remarkably Attractive Women

Two poses of Marguerite Armstrong, Von Stroheim's leading lady in "Foolish Wives."

THERE is not a detail of production that Eric Von Stroheim, the gifted director of "Blind Husbands" and "The Devil's Passkey," is neglecting in his new big feature, "Foolish Wives." There are marvelous sets, beautiful interiors, capable actors, an interesting story, and last, but certainly not least, a galaxy of attractive women, who are not only good to look upon but talented to the very highest degree.

It took Mr. Von Stroheim some time before he could decide upon a leading lady for "Foolish Wives." In the midst of his perplexity, however, Fate was kind to him and sent him a real "find," a comparative newcomer to the screen, Marguerite Armstrong. Miss Armstrong is a blonde, and possessed of an exquisite beauty—masses of wavy golden hair, a faultless profile and eyes of an appealing quality. She is slender and lithe of figure, and possesses that quality so eagerly and earnestly desired by all screen actors, male and female alike—the ability to wear clothes well. Her gowns are the last word in "chicness," and her general style will be the envy of every woman who watches her.

She will play in "Foolish Wives" the role of Helen Hughes, wife of the American envoy, a girl of twenty-one, newly married and frivolous. She is a real "Foolish Wife," who falls easily under the sway of the vicious fascinator impersonated by Von Stroheim, but the fates are kind to her in the end. The role fits Miss Armstrong's appealing and winsome blonde beauty admirably.

Marguerite Armstrong is only one of the attractive galaxy of actresses Von Stroheim has gathered about him in "Foolish Wives." There are in addition the smart-looking Maude George, the vixenish Mae Busch and the beautiful Malveen Polo, daughter of the famous serial king, Eddie Polo. Assuredly there will be sufficient feminine charms in "Foolish Wives."

WHAT EXHIBITORS THINK OF THE "JEWELS"

"Kindly be advised that 'The Devil's Pass Key' completed a very successful run at this Theatre. Despite the inclemency of the weather we showed to a capacity audience each evening during its stay. The play certainly gives evidence of the master touch of Von Stroheim."

C. W. GODARD,
Godard's J Street Theatre,
Sacramento, California.

"It is seldom that I comment to an Exchange about a picture, but since we have received so many personal endorsements from our patrons, I feel that a few words of comment are really due on 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN.'

"The picture has proved more profitable to us than I had anticipated, or even expected. What pleases us very much, in addition to the financial results, is that the story and the star met with such great applause among the audience, which is excellent evidence of their satisfaction.

"You may rest assured that we will not hesitate in booking future JEWELS that appear as promising as 'ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN.'"

D. FEINBERG, Mgr.,
State Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.

"I ran 'THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL' Friday and Saturday nights. Personally I consider it the biggest picture I have ever run and it pleased everybody that saw it. It is simply great."

E. W. HODGIN,
Electric Theatre,
Courtland, Kan.

"It is quite unusual for me to comment on comedies playing at our theatre—but I simply cannot refrain from voicing my opinion of 'A PROHIBITION MONKEY,' the Joe Martin comedy which we played Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

"To say that it's a scream would be putting it mildly. I have known comedies to create a great deal of amusement, but 'A PROHIBITION MONKEY' caused such an abundance of hearty laughter and applause, that I was really surprised to think that a mere comedy would be capable of ushering in this enjoyment.

"We surely appreciate the booking."

O. L. MIRSTEN, Mgr.
Whitehouse Theatre,
Milwaukee, Wis.

The Longer the Record the BIGGER the HIT!

IF you are a small-town exhibitor, don't ever get the notion that you are taking any kind of a gamble with "Blind Husbands." The big city exhibitor, whom, at times, you may envy, took all such chance and risk as there may have been. HE took all the gamble six months ago! For YOU, there is none!

When you book this super-production, remember that it is a sure-fire success that you are bringing to your house. You can bank your receipts before you play it. Think of this and play the sensation of the year. You'll never do any better.

"Safely I brought you to the summit of this peak. Only God, in His mercy, can take you safely down!"

Carl Laemmle
presents
Von Stroheim's
Wonder Play

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

UNIVERSAL-
JEWEL

This is Old Man Opportunity Calling You!

HE'S one of the fellows that beckoned to that little shipwrecked band that risked their lives to secure these epoch-making pictures. But for you, Mr. Exhibitor, there is no risk in booking this sensational, record-making, photo-marvel. Wherever and whenever shown, crowds have heard the call of opportunity to witness a picture, the like of which may never be seen again for generations. Here is a crowd-getter that is as different from the ordinary film-play as are these wild, harum-scarum men and women from the intelligent, civilized folk who will flock to see it in your house. He who hesitates—well, book it—book it to-day.

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS

"SHIPWRECKED among CANNIBALS"

UNIVERSAL-
JEWEL

Mother

It's a wonderful thing, A Mother,
Other folks can love you, but only your mother understands.
She works for you, looks after you, loves you, forgives you anything you may do, understands you.
And then the only thing bad she ever does to you is to die and leave you.

SEE DOROTHY PHILLIPS &
"MOTHER" MARGARET MANN
"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

WHEN A PICTURE
SOUL IT IS GREAT,
MOTHER'S SOUL IT

HERE is the picture that bares with a burning intensity of emotion the souls of two women. It is great because it makes vivid on the screen the innermost feelings of a woman to whom Ambition was a God until events proved it an idol of clay; it is tremendous because it pierces straight to the depths a pure-gold heart—a mother heart, whose benign love spreads itself from the screen in a living stream of life that floods with responsive emotion the breast of every man, woman and child who sees it.

Carl Laemmle presents

Dorothy

America's Foremost supported by Margaret Mine" of "The Heart of Greatest Heart appeal

"ONCE To EV

Universal—Jewel Production de Luxe

BARES A WOMAN'S
WHEN IT BARES A IS TREMENDOUS

THINK of the biggest crowd you ever saw. . . . Consider the fact that every individual in that crowd—and every other one of the millions and millions which inhabit this earth, has or has had a mother. . . . Is it any wonder that mother-love is the greatest thing in the world?

Now, visualize on your screen a photodrama whose theme is Mother-love. Think of that theme carried out forcefully, reverently, beautifully, dramatically. Doesn't your knowledge of human nature make you realize that such a picture must be a big attraction?

This is such a picture.

Phillips

motional Actress lann, the "Mother lumanity" in the icture of the Generation

RY WOMAN"

irected by Allen Holubar

Don't Do Anything Else

FIRST love? Puppy love? Is it the beautiful simplicity of the first awakening of her young heart to a realization of what life may hold in store for her that is the great moment that comes "Once to Every Woman?"

THE kiss of passion? Is it that first primeval instinct aroused in her being as she is held captive in the tightening arms of the man who wants her body that is the trembling thunder of life-aroused that comes "Once to Every Woman?"

THE hour of contrition? Is it that first overwhelming flood of full-hearted yearning mixed with regret that engulfs her soul with deep and elemental pathos that makes her fear, yet invite, that which comes "Once to Every Woman?"

Until You See

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

America's Foremost Emotional Actress, Supported by Margaret Mann, the "Mother Mine" of the "Heart of Humanity," in

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

Universal-Jewel Production De Luxe

Directed by Allen Holubar

A Gripping Appeal for Every Man, Woman and Child

Romance, adventure and love intermingle in a manner so engaging as to appeal to the likes and desires of everyone. In justice to your patrons and yourself you should show it as soon as you can.

ELMO LINCOLN
in

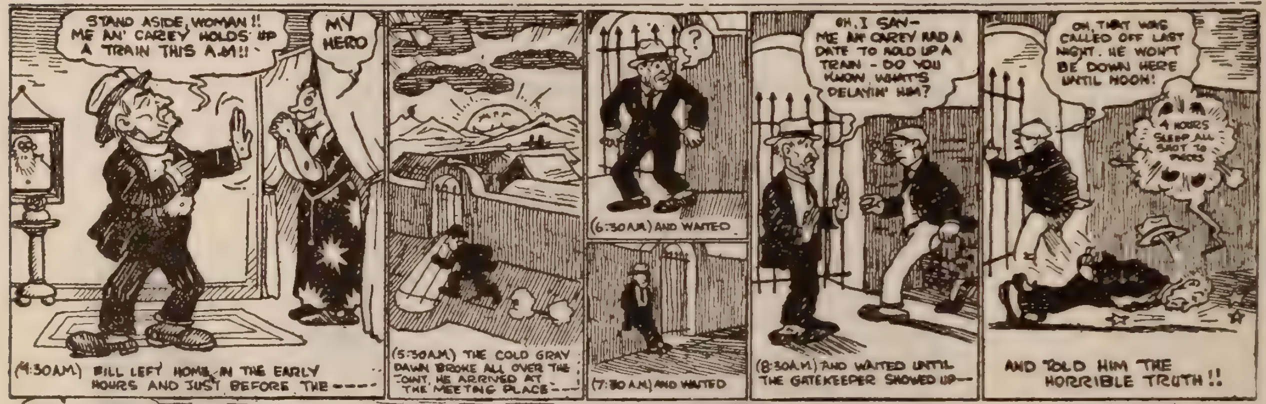
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL SUPER PRODUCTION

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

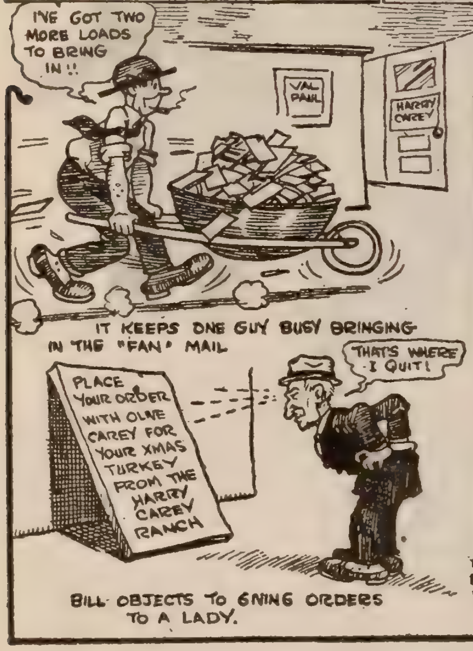
Los Angeles Evening Express

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1920

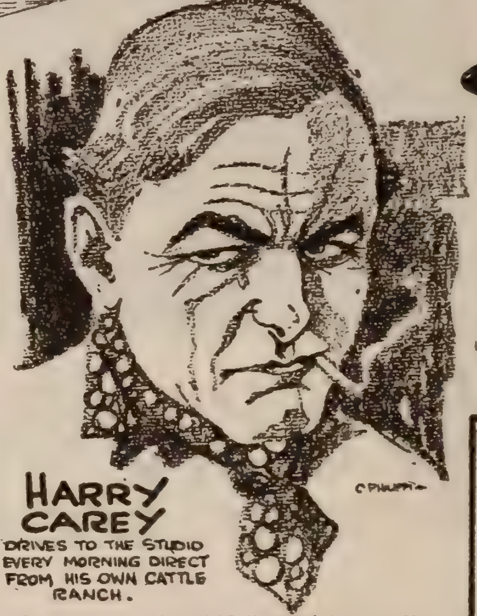
Bill Enjoys Happy Day at Lynching, Train Robbing, Yarn Spinning With Harry Carey



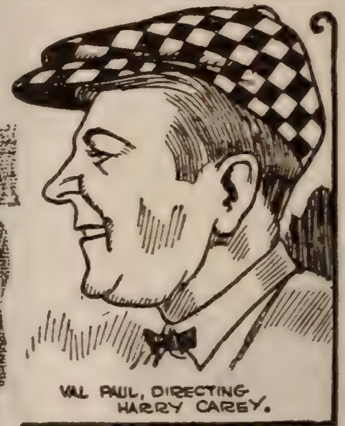
STAND ASIDE, WOMAN!! ME AN' CAREY HOLDS UP A TRAIN THIS A.M!!
MY HERO
(4:30 A.M.) BILL LEFT HOME IN THE EARLY HOURS AND JUST BEFORE THE----
(5:30 A.M.) THE COLD GRAY DAWN BROKE ALL OVER THE JOINT, HE ARRIVED AT THE MEETING PLACE---
?
(6:30 A.M.) AND WAITED
(7:30 A.M.) AND WAITED
OH, I SAY— ME AN' CAREY HAD A DATE TO HOLD UP A TRAIN - DO YOU KNOW WHAT'S DELAYIN' HIM?
(8:30 A.M.) AND WAITED UNTIL THE GATEKEEPER SHOWED UP—
OH, THAT WAS CALLED OFF LAST NIGHT. HE WON'T BE DOWN HERE UNTIL NOON!
4 HOURS SLEEP ALL SHOT TO PIECES
AND TOLD HIM THE HORRIBLE TRUTH!!



I'VE GOT TWO MORE LOADS TO BRING IN!!
VAL PAUL
HARRY CAREY
IT KEEPS ONE GUY BUSY BRINGING IN THE "FAN" MAIL
PLACE YOUR ORDER WITH OLIVE CAREY FOR YOUR XMAS TURKEY FROM THE HARRY CAREY RANCH
THAT'S WHERE I QUIT!
BILL OBJECTS TO GIVING ORDERS TO A LADY.



C PHILLIPS
HARRY CAREY
DRIVES TO THE STUDIO EVERY MORNING DIRECT FROM HIS OWN CATTLE RANCH.



VAL PAUL, DIRECTING HARRY CAREY.

By "BILL"

THE Salt Lake road had a narrow escape yesterday. Harry Carey and me had a date. To hold it up or ditch it or something. I don't know just what the layout was. As I left all details to Carey. Who is a past master. When it comes to doing things to trains. Being a train-robber of repute.

Carey rang me up the day before. And said he was gonna do a little job. Out on the Salt Lake line. And if I wanted to sit in. It would be all right with him. I asked him if I better strap on my artillery. And he says he'd have a cartload of weapons. From the National City armory. And I could take my pick. And he says to get up early. And beat the birds to the worms.

No Worms In Sight

And I set my alarm clock. Because I always like to be on hand prompt. When I participate in a train hold-up. And when I climbed out of the hay. As the saying is. The cold gray dawn had hardly started to function. And I didnt know. There were so many milkmen in the world. And they wasnt a worm in sight. And I don't blame 'em. And when I got

Here's "Bill" Again with a Date

Bill's right name is William Davis, and he is a well-known newspaper man attached to the "Los Angeles Express." Bill has any number of friends in Universal City and he visits there frequently. Bill likes to tell folks about the big cinema capital and the fun he has with those that ply their art within its gates, and he does so occasionally in the "Los Angeles Express," with the aid of his good friend Charles Philippi, carttoonist of the paper.

down to the Evening Express. To let 'em know I'd be busy. Helping Harry Carey rob a train. The janitor wanted to know. Whether it was a boy or a girl. Or was somebody dead or something. And I told him to go to Tiajuana or somewheres.

And when I got out to National City. Which was the rendezvous. For this here train robbery. Carey never showed up till nearly noon. And I asked him what in the Sam Hill he meant. By getting me outa bed. At that dad-busted hour. To go train-robbing. And then not showing up. And me losing my beauty sleep and everything. I don't care if he is a two-gun man. I roasted him to a fair thee well. These here two-gun men don't scare me. None whatsoever. They're just pastime for me. When I'm roused.

Substituted Lynching

Well, he felt awful sorry. And apologized for spoiling my day. And said if he'd of knowed. I was such a hound for train-robbing. He wouldn't of postponed the hold-up. But he thought mebbe I'd like a lynching better. And he was all fixed for one. Right on the lot. Of course, I'm fond of lynchings. In a way. But they ain't got the class of a train robbery. They lack all the elements of personal risk. Like what a train hold-up has. I just revel in personal risk. They ain't no thrill to a lynching. I never did like pulling on a rope. It's too much like menial labor. You can't get no rise outa me with a lynching.

Anyhow, I seen how Carey felt. With the panning I give him. Right before his wife. And I guessed mebby I'd been too severe. And I told him to let bygones be bygones. And we shook hands cordial. I'm a tender-hearted guy.

And I was hoping for a chance. So I could show Harry that I had forgive him. And as good luck would have it. The chance came like a thunder clap Right out of a clear sky. You know Carey has a regular ranch. Up above Saugus. And recently he acquired a herd or a drove. Or whatever it is, of turkeys. He took 'em off the hands of some fellers. And he says they're a regular pest.

And he's got a sign up. Hinting he wents to get rid of 'em. And to leave orders with his wife. But me, I wouldn't give no orders to a lady. I was brung up different. I may be rough in my ways with men. But with the fair sex I'm polite and considerate. And so I told Harry if it would relieve him any. I'd go as far as anybody. He said it would relieve him a lot. And he winked at his wife. And I guess it's all settled.

And we started talking about his latest fillum. Which he calls "Sundown Slim." He's kind of nervous over it. As it's different from anything he ever done. He just takes the part of a tramp. He don't wear any artillery. And don't shoot up the town. And isn't a bad man or anything. He thinks it's his best piece of work. But fears the public won't like it. Because they won't get what they expect of him. He says to me:

"I wanta get away from this two-gun business. I wanta do the west as it is to-day. I mean the barbed-wire west. The cowboy is all right. But I want him with a mission in life. I want him to fit into a story. With a lotta human interest. And stories like that are darn hard to get."

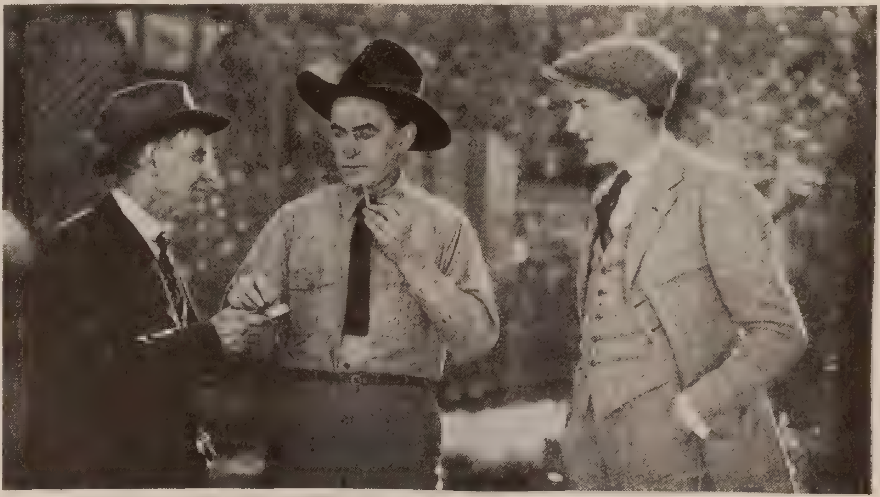
Counted Four Times

And while he was talking. Val Paul, his director, kept interrupting. And talking about lunch. Every few minutes he'd come in. And count the crowd. And tell us he was having a coupla tables set. And he counted us four times. And I finally told him he'd better put it down. And I hadn't et since 6. And it was nearly 1 o'clock. Before he took the last census. And he finally directed us into a food foundry. And it was O. K.

Right now Carey's shooting on a new fillum. The working title is "Burning Embers." But it'll probably be changed. Before the fire goes plumb out. In this story he's a sort of western "Daddy-Llong-Legs." And I guess he's a lot that sort of a guy. Because he's always rounding up. Homeless and unfortunate animals. And taking care of 'em. He found a fellow the other day. With three coyotes he had trapped. And he bought 'em for $2 each. And took 'em to his ranch.

Like Jap Suicide

And another thing about Harry Carey. (I wish he'd change that name. So it won't sound like a Jap suicide.) He says he'll never be kicked out of pictures. He's gonna retire undefeated. The minute it looks like he's getting passe. He's gonna buy a sloop. He has sailed the raging main. And knows how to splice the main brace and everything. And he's studying navigation now. And it'll be the South Sea islands for him. Only they won't be no schedule. And no sailing orders. He'll just go till he gets tired. And come back when he gets ready.



Left To Right—"Bill Himself," Harry Carey and Charles Philippi, Cartoonist.

Service Page for Harry Carey in "West Is West"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"West is West."

STAR—Harry Carey.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Marked Men," "Overland Red," "Human Stuff," "Bullet Proof," "Blue Streak McCoy," "Sundown Slim," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Val Paul.

STORY BY—Eugene Manlove Rhodes.

SCENARIO BY—George Hull.

SUPPORTING CAST—Chas. LeMoyne, Jos. Harris, Ted Brooks, Edw. Latell, Otto Nelson, Jack Dill, Sue Mason, Mignonne. William Wickersham, Arthur Millett, Adelaide Halleck.

LOCALE—The western mining country.

TIME—The present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a cowboy with brains—a natural free-lance who uses his head as well as his horse; of how he settles a miners' strike by shirt-sleeve diplomacy, wins a fortune for his friends as well as for himself, and makes a certain young lady realize she is not too good for him.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The extreme popularity of the star.

2—The fact that Harry Carey is now recognized as the foremost western star on the screen.

3—The fact that the novel upon which the scenario is based was one of the best sellers of recent years.

4—Eugene Manlove Rhodes, the author of the story, is not only famous as a writer, but was for 20 years a cowboy and range rider.

5—The United Verde and the Daisy mines, the two richest copper producers in the world, were used as locations.

6—Many of the scenes were taken on the 2,000-foot level, more than a third of a mile below the surface of the earth.

7—The entire population of Jerome, Arizona, appeared as "extras" in several scenes.

8—The novelty of the story; Harry Carey appears as a two-gunman, yet never fires a shot.

9—A new angle on the labor and capital situation, and an original method of settling a strike employed by the star.

10—The presence of the three "bad men" of many a Carey feature—Joseph Harris, Charles LeMoyne and Ted Brooks.

CAST

Dick Rainboldt	Harry Carey
Connors	Chas. Le Moyne
Spencer	Jos. Harris
Kirby	Ted Brooks
Herman Mendenhall	Ed Latell
Sim Wigfall	Otto Nelson
Benjy	Jack Dill
Judith Elliott	Sue Mason
Katie Wigfall	Mignonne
Billy Armstrong	Frank Braidwood
J. C. Armstrong	Arthur Millett
Mrs. Armstrong	Adelaide Halleck
Black Beard	Jim O'Neill
Nagle	Scott McKee

THE STORY

IN San Clemente men toil night and day wresting golden treasure from the Great Torpedo mine. The principal owner is old J. C. Armstrong, but the superintendent and the general manager, Spencer and Mendenhall, own some stock. They discover a very rich vein and plan to make their fortunes by keeping their secret until they can gather in Armstrong's controlling interest. To do this they refuse the miners proper timbering and engage a crook to blow up a rotten prop and cause a cave-in which brings on a strike. They plan to bring in a gang of strikers.

Their plans work out and Dick Rainboldt, a cowboy, who has been hanging arround El Paso, broke, signs up to work in the mine, not knowing that he is to be a strikebreaker. He had given up his last dollar to help a girl in distress. Her name was Katie Wigfall and he sends her home to her grandfather, who was none other than the leader of the striking miners. Naturally, when Katie sees Dick in the ranks of the strikebreakers, she will and can have nothing to do with him.

Old man Armstrong is really a big man at heart, but his superintendent and his manager have poisoned his mind against the strikers to gain their own ends and he does not give a just ear to their cause. His son Billy is an idler but a big hearted chap who is in love with Judith Elliott, an heiress from the East visiting the Armstrong family. Dick saves Judith when she is lost on a mountain trail, and she falls in love with the rough westerner, but it is a case of "East is East and West is West, and Never the Twain Shall Meet."

Spencer offers Dick $2,000 to blow up a tunnel in the mine in such a way that blame will rest on the strikers. Dick takes the money and blows up the tunnel, but does not try to escape. When old Armstrong demands an explanation, Dick shows him the money and tells him that he did this horrible thing to convince Armstrong of his folly and the criminal purposes of his head employees. Armstrrong does realize his mistake. He allows Spencer and Mendenhall to make a getaway, takes all the miners back, and hands the managership over to Dick.

Everyone congratulates modest Dick. Judith does so sadly and then turns to Billy. As for Dick, he does not accept the big job until he goes to Katie's house and reads in her eyes her promise to stand by him through thick and thin as his wife.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

In dark narrow passages a quarter of a mile down in the bowels of the earth a tense drama was enacted—the mining scenes are a feature of "West Is West" in which Harry Carey stars.

He smiled at fate's rebuff when he'd staked all he had on a full house and the other guy held four aces. But when he got a "Job In A Mine" and found he was strikebreaking against friends—then he bamboozled fate. He double-crossed his friends and so got them back their jobs. "West Is West," and Harry Carey is the star.

It was a case of arms and the man. Unarmed he rescues a girl from a gang of thugs—unarmed he prevents a barroom battle between bloodthirsty factions—unarmed he faces spitting rifles and silences their fire—but . . . when the girl of girls came to him you can bet . . . he—used—his—arms!!! See Harry Carey in "West Is West."

LYONS AND MORAN

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL
ATTRACTION

Fixer, [Butt-in-ski] One who tries to fix. A meddler. A know-it-all. One who fixes everybody's business but his own. An undesirable. Popular as a stalled flivver at a busy corner.

In one of the fastest farces ever filmed-five reels of fashionable fun that is sure to get the laughs that linger-----

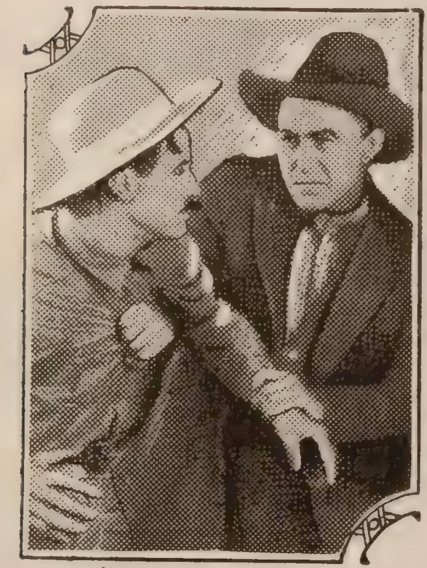
"FIXED BY GEORGE"

Story by Edgar Franklin

Special Publicity Stories For "West Is West"



Harry Carey
in "WEST IS WEST"
UNIVERSAL

ACTOR AND AUTHOR HAVE FORMED FIRM AND LASTING FRIENDSHIP

EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES, the well-known writer of Western tales, and Harry Carey, the popular star who is so well liked in his portrayals of virile and elemental types, are great friends. When Rhodes pays a visit to Southern California he usually spends a few days on Harry Carey's ranch, where they swop yarns and exchange material. Harry Carey's stories give the author many an idea for his plots, while Rhodes tells of incidents in his many years on the ranch and range which suggest new types and new bits of "business" for the film star.

Eugene Manlove Rhodes is a product of the West. He was born in Nebraska, educated in California and prepared for a literary career. Failing health, however, made an open-air life advisable, and he went to New Mexico, where he punched cattle and rode the range for about twenty years. During that time he contributed to periodicals and magazines, gaining a reputation for his faithful depiction of the life beyond the Rockies. Among his best-known recent novels are "Good Men and True," "Bransford in Arcadia," "The Desire of the Moth" and "West Is West."

Harry Carey will appear in "West Is West" at the —— Theatre next ——.

FORMER EXPERIENCES PROVE VALUABLE TO DIRECTOR PAUL

SO vast are the ramifications of the Universal Film Company and so many directors produce pictures for this concern that among its ranks may be found men and women who have a first hand knowledge of the requirements of any story that may enter into production. Thus it happened that when it was decided to produce "West Is West," the stirring story of the Arizona mining country, with Harry Carey as the star, the producing manager at Universal City considered all the available directors and selected Val Paul to supervise the filming of the picture.

As soon as Director Paul went over the scenario with Harry Carey and the author, he took a trip to Arizona and secured permission from Charles Clark, son of the Montana Senator and general manager of the United Verde and Daisy mines, to use these famous copper producers as the location for a number of scenes in the picture. Permission was not only granted, but the mine officials co-operated in every way, and Paul's intimate knowledge of mines and mining enabled Harry Carey to secure some scenes never before shown in a photoplay. The entire company journeyed to Arizona, and for many days worked from a quarter to a third of a mile below the earth's surface, securing some wonderful effects.

Harry Carey will appear in "West Is West" next —— at the —— Theatre.

CAREY ACTUALLY LIVES LIFE HE PORTRAYS IN HIS PICTURES

HARRY CAREY is not a "Western actor" in the accepted sense of the phrase, nor is he a "movie cowboy." He is an actor of the finest type, having been a star on the legitimate stage before the birth of the motion picture as a popular form of entertainment. He was also one of those actors who helped develop the silent drama to its present position among the arts. That much for his acting.

Carey for years has been living the sort of life he depicts on the screen. When not acting before the camera he can always be found at his vast ranch in San Francisquito Canyon, where he lives the typical life of the West. Harry did not buy a "ready-made" ranch, with its up-to-date house and modern conveniences, as do so many so-called "gentleman ranchers." He bought wild acreage and developed it to a high point of cultivation, stocked the land with fine horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens, built an old-fashioned ranch house, with comfortable accommodations for his flying squadron of rough riders. He has turned his canyon property into one of the best kept ranches in Southern California, and there is probably no other estate in that section where the old spirit of the West is so faithfully maintained.

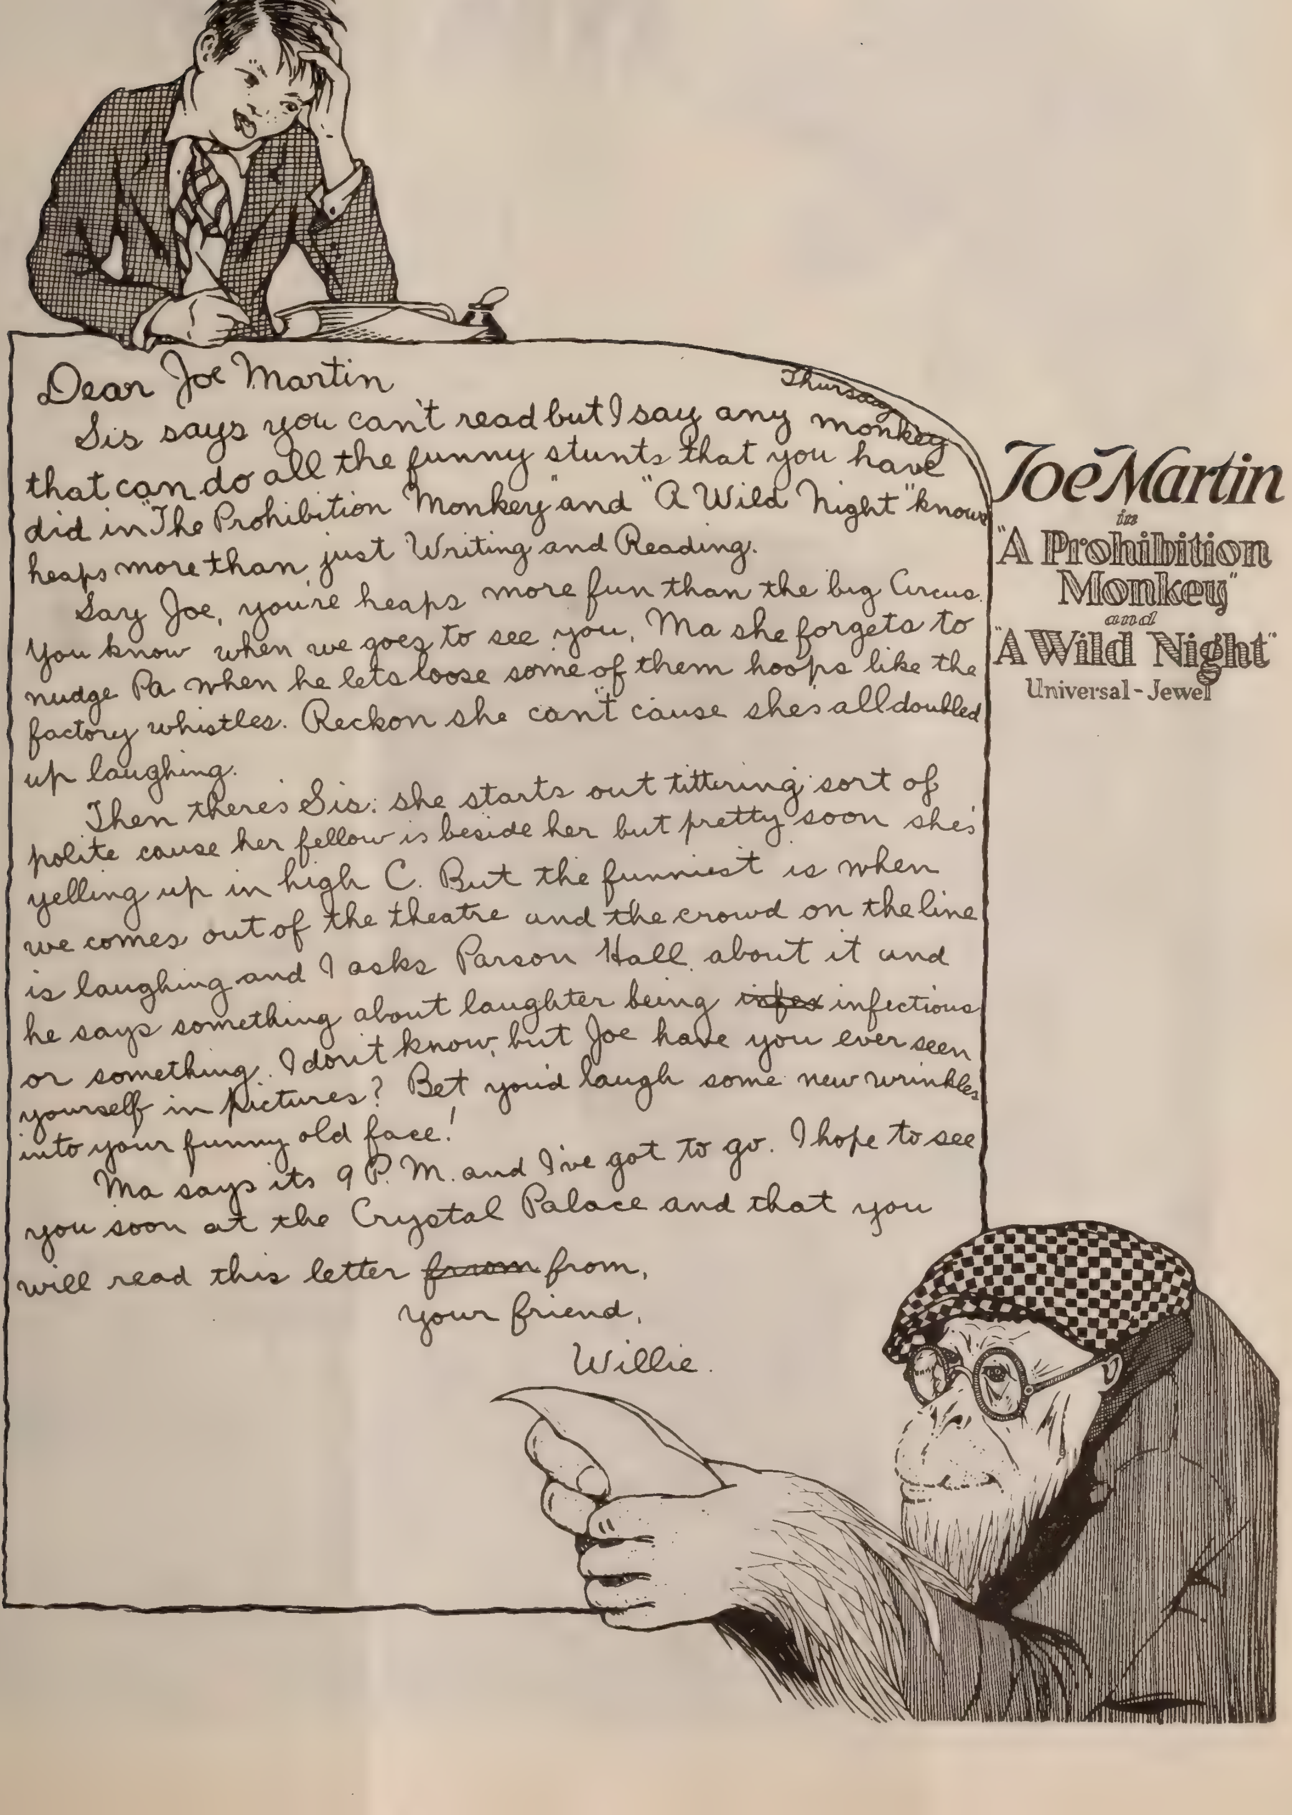
It was at Carey's ranch that the Universal star entertained Eugene Manlove Rhodes for a week, and the well-known author helped Harry arrange the scenario of his popular novel, "West Is West," which served him as his latest screen vehicle. "West Is West" has its scenes laid in the ranching and mining country in Arizona, and the actual locations were used in filming the story. The mining scenes were taken at the United Verde and Daisy mines, the richest copper producers in the world.

CONSIDERABLE DANGER ENTAILED IN MAKING OF NEWEST CAREY FILM

MANY thousands of dollars were added to the cost of producing "West Is West," starring Harry Carey, coming to the —— Theatre on ——, which Universal must charge up to the account of pioneering. About 12,000 feet of film were "shot" a quarter of a mile and more below the earth's surface, and there atmospheric conditions hitherto unknown were met with. As a result, when the company of forty people returned to Universal City after a three weeks' stay in Jerome, Arizona, it was discovered that part of the company must return to the mining district to retake many of the underground scenes. For owing to certain static conditions in the mine, the negative, when developed, showed quite a number of "star spots" and "rain stripes."

"Which is all very well if you're filming a patriotic story—these stars and stripes," said Harry Carey, "but darned if they'll do in this stuff." Only a dozen of the company made the return trip to Jerome, however, as the film spoiled happened to be just that taken underground, and only part of the company worked in the actual mines.

The first time that motion picture cameras and lights had ever been permitted below the surface in the United Verde mine and in its extension, the Daisy, was when Harry Carey, by special arrangement with the owners, filmed scenes there for "West Is West." The story is by Eugene Manlove Rhodes, scenarized by George Hull and directed by Val Paul.



Dear Joe Martin

Thursday

Sis says you can't read but I say any monkey that can do all the funny stunts that you have did in "The Prohibition Monkey" and "A Wild Night" knows heaps more than just Writing and Reading.

Say Joe, you're heaps more fun than the big Circus. You know when we goes to see you, Ma she forgets to nudge Pa when he lets loose some of them hoops like the factory whistles. Reckon she can't cause she's all doubled up laughing.

Then there's Sis: she starts out tittering sort of polite cause her fellow is beside her but pretty soon she's yelling up in high C. But the funniest is when we comes out of the theatre and the crowd on the line is laughing and I asks Parson Hall about it and he says something about laughter being ~~infex~~ infectious or something. I don't know; but Joe have you ever seen yourself in Pictures? Bet you'd laugh some new wrinkles into your funny old face!

Ma says its 9 P.M. and I've got to go. I hope to see you soon at the Crystal Palace and that you will read this letter ~~from~~ from, your friend,

Willie.

Joe Martin

in

"A Prohibition Monkey"

and

"A Wild Night"

Universal - Jewel

HIS HONOR

FRANK MAYO'S performance in this stirring drama of society and South American rubber plantations is splendid. His role gives him full opportunity to display both polish and vigor. He typifies American young-manhood. Incidentaly, in this picture Mayo and Nick De Ruiz engage in one of the most thrilling and most suspenseful sword duels ever screened.

"HONOR BOUND" abounds in such scenes as you see pictured here. You, as a showman, know what it means to your box-office to have a picture that carries into your theatre the red-blooded and universal appeal of adventure and conquest. Here you have it.

BOUND HIM NOT TO TELL

ENGAGED to wed the beautiful society girl; accused by her of having an affair with the dusky South American savage; innocent—yet unable to say a word in his own behalf because his sister's faith in and love of the guilty man seals his lips. . . .

There's drama—tense, absorbing drama based on emotions that are understood and felt by every one of us. And surround such drama—in which this situation is only one of many—with the lure of the tropics and the call of adventure, and you begin to grasp the worth of this picture as entertainment.

Truly, it is a picture that can be relied upon absolutely to please any audience—anywhere. Book it.

FRANK MAYO

IN A VIRILE STORY OF A MAN'S FIGHT FOR RESPECT AND LOVE

"HONOR BOUND"

Written and directed by Jacques Jaccard

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

How Do You Like My Shoes?

Gladys Walton, new Universal star, demonstrating "class" in footwear.

GLADYS WALTON might well be illustrating the old children's nursery song-game "How Do You Like My Shoes" in this pretty picture of her shown at the left. The dainty star of "Pink Tights," most adorable of pictures, has some pretty firm convictions on fashions, for one so young as she, but more particularly she has some pretty firm convictions on SHOES.

"The screen actress," said Miss Walton, "must be particular about her shoes above any other article of her apparel. Have you ever stopped to think that the foot is the nearest to the auditor's line of vision in a theatre and to the spectator's eye in a motion picture playhouse? Though we may not be conscious of it, our eye will stray instinctively to a person's foot, and on the way in which it is shod will depend our verdict of his or her conception of style.

"The well-dressed woman, and this includes most screen players, should have a special pair of shoes for each costume. The shoe must harmonize with the suit or gown in texture, design, and color. One must not accept unquestioningly the various styles of footwear offered in the shops. Shoes should express individuality and certain fashions which set off the foot of one person may detract from the appearance of that of another. Any woman, however, who displays good taste in the selection of her frocks and millinery is safe in choosing her own footwear. If, however, she depends on her modiste as arbiter of her personal style, then she should consult a similar authority in the selection of her shoes."

Miss Walton's screen career has been meteoric and in the short time that she has been delighting the fans of the silver-sheet she has won a reputation for taste in dress.

Don't Fail To Book "Pink Tights"

IT is now some weeks since "Pink Tights" burst upon the movie firmament and became the talk of every exhibitor who showed it. It is being booked now to a greater extent than ever and its popularity increases with every showing. And yet there is nothing wonderful about "Pink Tights." It is just a human little story adorably portrayed by an adorable little star, Gladys Walton, by the most engaging of leading men, Jack Perrin, and by the most huggable little boy on the screen, Breezy Eason, Jr., son of the famous director Reaves Eason, who held the megaphone for this picture also. And if the acting of the production is superb, the direction is even more so. The circus atmosphere is enchanting and the deft little human touches here and there are the work of a splendid directorial mind. An exhibitor can safely play "Pink Tights" to male and female, young and old, rich and poor, cultured or uncultured, and it will get across and get across big for most of all it is a picture that is HUMAN, and what person can fail to understand that.

"Pink Tights" has all sorts of clever exploitation angles for the exhibitor of pictures. It has an attractive and taking title—its circus atmosphere is one of glamour—it features a fine cast—it is the work of a well-known director, and best of all for exploitation purposes, it has a new star, a young and pretty star, with a personality that is individual, that is winning, that is lovable.

Gladys Walton is a shining example of a girl who rose in double quick time from the very bottom to stellar heights in the movies. She was given her first considerable part in "La La Lucille" with Lyons-Moran. She got more of a chance in "The Secret Gift," and she almost walked away with the show in "Pink Tights." She is busy now on another picture in which she will portray that most enticing of all the female species—a flapper—and as Gladys is young and pretty and vivacious and spirited she ought to do that real well. She will have to go some, however, to beat the winsome little circus girl she was in "Pink Tights."

"Pink Tights" is one sure bet for any exhibitor of motion pictures.

Gertrude Makes Her Bow

GERTRUDE OLMSTEAD

IT has HAPPENED! After several months of arduous practice and the most severe training, Gertruds Olmstead makes her bow to the movie-going public in "Tipped Off," a breezy, actionful two-reel western drama, with "Hoot" Gibson as its star.

Nobody was disappointed. In fact, everybody was DEE-lighted, for Gertrude justified every promise that was prophesied of her when the good folk out in Universal City took her in hand, some few months ago.

Gertrude Olmstead is the seventeen-year-old miss from La Salle, Illinois, who won the Fame and Fortune beauty contest conducted by the Chicago Herald-Examiner in connection with the Elks association. Carl Laemmle awarded her with a contract to appear in Universal City and Gertrude journeyed out there accompanied by her dearest friend and constant adviser—her mother. It is characteristic of Gertrude, however, that she refused to make any preparations for her new life last spring until she had graduated from high school. And she kept to her word, faithfully attending to all her school affairs to the very last minute. For Gertrude is an unusual combination of beauty and good common-sense, and she realized the value of an education in connection with her future picture career.

Out in Universal City the best that was to be had in the way of teachers was assigned to Gertrude. And many of the stars with whom she so quickly made friends, due to her winsome popularity, added a friendly bit of suggestion here and there. "Hoot" took her riding and gave her some good pointers she didn't know before about horses; others taught her such western accomplishments as lariat throwing, and so on. And Gertrude absorbed it all with a rapidity that was astounding. But then Gertrude wasn't really only beginning. She was just proceeding, for she had begun long ago to learn bits here and there about acting and all the things that went with a dramatic career. She had always been interested in dramatics, and if the fates had not sent her good fortune in the way of the beauty contest, she was all prepared to enter a dramatic school in Chicago upon her graduation from high school.

Gertrude is tall, dark and slender, with eyes that are large and round. Her beauty is of a quiet, refined type and lends itself admirably to photography, judging from the beautiful photographs of her which are appearing in considerable quantity. As to her screen appearance—it is pretty indeed. She registers remarkably well, and movie fans are going to like her, that is sure. What her future will be depends on Gertrude herself. She has lots of beauty, lots of brains, lots of personality, and the best that the movies have to offer in the way of training and opportunities, and as Gertrude has lots of ambition and was brought up to consider hard work man's greatest blessing, it looks as if the future spells B-I-G for the youthful Miss Olmstead.

This beauty contest of the Chicago Herald Examiner and the B. P. O. E., which resulted in the shaping of a new career headed for stardom is in line with the general broad and progressive policy of Universal. Universal, always on the lookout for new screen talent even though it is UNKNOWN, developed Virginia Faire, charming co-star of the Red Rider Series with Leonard Clapham, and one time winner of a Fame and Fortune Contest. It is developing the lovely Miss Olmstead now and giving her decided talents every opportunity, and it is also conducting a contest with the stage and screen weekly, the Dramatic Mirror. from which not one but T-H-R-E-E girls will be given Universal contracts.

Gertrude Olmstead will bear watching. Beauty plus brains always bears watching, and in this case the promises held forth are rich.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 5
"The Black Wallet"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
Helen	Corinne Porter

AS Gray presses the trigger and Eddie stands facing the muzzle of the gun, Mary Warren—Gray's adopted daughter—rushes in and knocks up his arm. The bullet goes harmlessly to one side and Eddie quickly disposes of the canvasmen. He thanks Mary for what she did and at the same time Tom Jenks comes forward and thanks Eddie for saving his life. Meanwhile, Helen Howard arrives to attend the afternoon performance, for this is to be Eddie's first appearance since the accident. Eddie makes his change and goes in for his act.

While Eddie is up on the traps another canvasman, the one who received a beating at Gray's hands because of his failure to dispose of Eddie during the hotel fire, sees a chance to get even. He loosens the ropes that hold the trapeze and Eddie falls. As he is carried out Helen comes in and cares for him—and at the same time a telegram arrives from the Unknown for Eddie. Gray gets it and reads it. It is to the effect that there is a black wallet in Winters trunk that contains information of great value to Eddie. This wallet has lain in Winters trunk for years; the old fellow having forgotten it entirely until the accidental blow that restored his memory.

Mary Warren gets a look at this telegram as Gray is sending his men to the trunk wagon to break open Winters trunk and search it. Mary tries to warn Eddie but Gray gets her and locks her in a compartment on the circus special, and places his pet lioness, Jezebel, to guard her. He then leaves to join his men but Mary gets a note to Helen and she warns Eddie. Eddie rushes to the docks, arrives as the trunk is being opened and jumps inside the wagon to get the wallet. Gray's men lock the door of the wagon and then, at Gray's order, they start it rolling down the docks to the end of the pier. The wagon, with Eddie imprisoned within, goes into the ocean and sinks to the bottom.

Peggy Writes Again

Dear Betty:

"THREE WEEKS!" Say, kid, Eleanor Glynn may think she cornered the market for excitement in a specified time, but the Home Office could show her cards and spades when it comes to speed. It would take me three years to tell you all that's transpired in the last three weeks at 1600 Broadway.

October the something Manny Goldstein returned from the Coast, where he's been for the past five weeks watching Von Stroheim rebuilding California. You know Von is unearthing another masterpiece called "FOOLISH WIVES," and I'll tell the world it's costing us a pretty penny to convince the public there are such things. Why, Betty, it would only cost about half the money to convince us there are Foolish Husbands. Please don't file my letters in your husband's collar-box, dear.

October the something else, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Stern and Julius Stern arrived from Europe. They are the darlingest couple, Betty—Mrs. Stern all smiles, dimples and the most fetching eyes; and Mr. Stern—well, you'd have fallen for him with both feet if you could have heard him say: "Well, girls, how are you?" He included ME in the bunch, of course, for you know when I have my war paint on I still look gurrelish and always cling to my giggle.

October's finish—Hallowe'en party. Oh, say, to use your pet expression, it was DELICIOUS! It was a buuutiful night, and they say that the habitues of the Palais Royal and Cafe de Paris turned green (I'm sure they said green) with envy when OUR band struck up the Grand March. It began at eight and ended in time for us to go home to listen to the alarm clock yell for breakfast. The old building certainly had a treat, and it was still swaying to the tune of Miami when we left—that is, a few of us thought it swayed. No inference, dear; we had nothing stronger to drink than ice cream.

I'll just give you an idea of who was there, and you can supply the details yourself: Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cochrane, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip D. Cochrane, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Berman, Mr. E. H. Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Gulick and several prominent people from other concerns. There were no reserved seats, and every one helped to make it a most enjoyable affair. Of course, Betty, the employees were there also.

Joe Finklestein deserves a lot of credit for his selection of talent, and Miss Schack is also entitled to thanks for a delicious midnight spread, and atmosphere of good cheer. She even had a little corner of the hall laid aside for me to smoke my cigarette in.

Before I say Amen, Betty, I must tell you what happened the next morning. As I said before, we rushed home, then rushed back to 1600, then rushed into busses provided to take us to the pier to welcome Mr. Laemmle home.

Not since Armistice Day have I seen such a crowd on Broadway, drawn from the four corners of the metropolis to inquire what the racket was about. Our parade was headed by six mounted police—and the band played, and the trumpets blared, and the banners waved, and every one in the busses was primed full of excitement and enthusiasm.

We reached the pier just in time to see the giant of the sea, the Aquitania, coaxed into its dock by the tugs—the band struck up "Home Sweet Home"; we held our breath and waited.

Then there was a roar—and the first thing I knew I was struggling with the bunch to shake Mr. Laemmle's hand and trying hard to keep my Adam's Apple from choking me, for, Betty, it brought the tears to many an eye to see the genuine affection and sincere delight displayed by the employees when OUR PRESIDENT walked into view. Bless his heart, he had a word for everybody, called us all by name, and it took the combined efforts of all the executives of the company that met him to keep us from kidnapping him.

Mr. Laemmle was accompanied by his son and daughter, and they, too, came in for a generous share of the welcome.

Rosabelle Laemmle looked stunning. In the excitement and fuss I didn't get a chance to talk to her, but she left an impression of black satin, white chenille and (to a woman) the bewitching touch of Paris.

I'll have to ring off now, as Mr. Berman is getting ready for a trip through the Middle West exchanges, and I've heaps of letters to write.

PEGGY.

Deep down in every girl's heart is a desire to star on the screen. This is as true of your town as of any other place in the country.

To give impetus to these surpressed desires, Universal, in conjunction with the Dramatic Mirror, the national screen and stage publication, opens this contest to the girls in your town.

There are no complicated terms—no drawbacks—no outlay of money. Three girls selected from among the contestants will be engaged at a generous salary to appear in Universal Pictures.

As consolation prizes to those who fail to gain a place among the coveted three, there will be presented in addition to the regular commissions, a beautiful strand of Nataline Pearls provided of course, they put forth a certain degree of effort.

All this is offered to girls who will secure subscriptions for this famous publication. What all this means to you in money and publicity, Mr. Exhibitor, is too obvious to need explanation here. Take advantage of this contest and write for full particulars to the Dramatic Mirror, 133 West 44th Street, N. Y. C.

UNIVERSAL DRAMATIC-MIRROR CONTEST

"Tipped Off."

Two Reel Western Drama

Billy Steele	Hoot Gibson
Marion Ross	Gertrude Olmstead
John Carnes	Jim Corey
100 Proof Ross	Chas. Newton
Rev. Sommers	Jack Walters

"HUNDRED PROOF" Ross, a prohibition sufferer, fires his foreman, Billy Steele, for making love to his daughter, Marion. Ross leaves for town to receive a mysterious package and Billy and Marion decide to elope. They drive to town, intending to catch the first train.

Ross secures his express package and invites two friends to an alleyway for a drink. The town marshall starts to investigate and Ross saunters down the street with the officer in pursuit.

At the station Billy leaves Marion with the grips while he secures the tickets. Marion sees her father coming, and wishing to evade him steps outside, leaving the grips unguarded. Ross looks in vain for a place to hide his bottle, spies the grip and slips in the bottle, intending to rescue it after he has placated the marshall.

Discovering that the next train is not due for several hours, Billy sends Marion to the hotel to secure a room. He walks by Ross and the marshall, carrying the grips, his former employer being unable to stop him on account of the officer's presence. Ross is released when no liquor is found on his person, and he follows Billy to the hotel, trying to explain about the contents of the grip. Billy knows nothing of the bottle and refuses to talk to the man who had fired him.

In the meanwhile an escaped convict, in need of a change of clothes, waylays a circuit-riding preacher and forces him to trade. He also takes the preacher's horse and rides into town. The marshall has been notified to be on the lookout for the escaped convict and has a posse gathered. The convict scents trouble and, looking for a safe place to hide, finds his way to a hotel room adjoining Marion's quarters.

Ross, still on the trail of the bottle, enters the room occupied by Marion, where he saw Billy deposit the grips. Marion hides in the closet and is not discovered by her father. When Billy returns and learns of Ross's visit, he thinks he is being pursued by the father on account of a mistaken impression of his intentions towards Marion. He decides to find a minister at once to perform the marriage ceremony. In the hall he discovers the convict, who is trying to escape as soon as the posse has passed, and believing him to be a minister, Billy insists that he accompany him to the adjoining room and tie the knot.

Many laughable complications occur before the situation is finally cleared up, the convict recaptured, the real minister rescued from his embarassing position and Biily and Marion married with her father's blessings.

International News

No. 75.

Cork, Ireland.—Remarkable scenes in Irish streets at burial of hunger striker.

Sub-Titles. — Armored cars and military lorries in the wake of the funeral cortege to prevent demonstrations. While throngs pray outside the Cork jail where Michael Fitzgerald, after 68 days of fasting, died a few days before the heroic Lord Mayor MacSwiney passed away in a London prison.

Atlantic, Ga.—Speeders go south. Like the birds, they hie to Dixie as the cold approaches and find the going fine.

Freak Election Bets.—These fair ones wagered their favorites would win—and here they are, paying off.—New York City.

Sub-Titles.—And this chap thought no woman could outguess him—so she gets the ride. But hand it to the cop! He made two bets—watch him collect.

New York City.—Football thrills. It's plays like these at Columbia Williams' game, that lure thousands to college boys' games.

Sub-Title.—Columbia's crashing play overcomes Williams' lead.—Score 20 to 14. (To be omitted from Atlanta, Baltimore, Charlotte, Chicage, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Des Moines Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City, Memphis, Minneapolis, New Haven, New Orleans, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and St. Louis prints).

Front Royal, Va.—Army thoroughbreds. 5,000 acres set aside for breeding fine mounts for U. S. Cavalrymen.

Sub-Titles.—Prize stallions—Ganadore and Crakenthrope. Their first jumping stunts. A real trick. (To be omitted from Boston, Buffalo and New York City prints).

Rome, Italy.—International presents first and exclusive air pictures of the Shrines at Rome. Photographed by Ariel Varges.

Sub-Titles.—St. Peter's, with the Vatican and its famous gardens. The shrine of 300,000,000 Christians. On the right—The Pope's living quarters.

Boston, Mass.—Mine practice in Boston Harbor. Major General Shanks and staff show how the port of culture is protected.

Sub-Titles. — The mine planter starts out. 100 pounds of T. N. T. for each mine. Showing death in the sea. Note the floating target—the mines explode near enough to be considered a hit. The explosions brings up a fish dinner for General Shanks.

London, England.—Lloyd George's home stormed in England's great labor riot. (50,000 unemployed parade)

Sub-Titles.—While fifteen Mayors of English cities call on the Premier, demanding relief for the workers. Thousands attempt to break the police cordon about Lloyd George's residence—many being injured in the tumultuous scenes that follow. Latest picture of Lloyd George opening the fall campaign for vindication at the polls.

. . Tad Cartoons.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode No. 8.

"Through Walls Of Steel"

ELMO and Helen are saved by the agents of the Secret Service. Helen is taken to a hospital where Elmo instructs them to put her to bed and keep her there while he rushes off to the Wade mine at Thunder Creek, where the gang have gone to make good their claim, signed over to them by Helen. Helen gets away from the nurse, however, and follows up Elmo whom she overtakes. Some of the gang get wise to Elmo's coming, and block the road with a tree, but Elmo manages to overcome this difficulty.

Ed Mondcrief, the Wade superintendent, is overpowered by the gang and they burn open the safe with the disk and take out the valuable papers hidden therein. Then they hide on a balcony above the living room, behind a curtain and wait for Elmo and Helen of whose escape they have been informed.

The two revive Mondcrief, and in the midst of his narration, Stanton, Jim and the other members of the gang make known their presence. They are about to fall on them when Elmo seizes a bottle of deadly nitroglycerine and prepare to hurl it at the crimesters.

In the meantime, the mysterious motorcyclist, ever on duty to safeguard the rights and well-being of Elmo and his friends, is waylaid by Picos Kid, member of the gang, who renders him unconscious and leaves him bound to a tree.

Mr. Exhibitor:

Here's a Fortune in many Figures for You!

It pays to make People Laugh

"A Fishy Story"
"Twin Crooks"
"A Lion Tamer"
} JUST RELEASED

The best register of anybody's good will is the laughometer. Ring up the limit in capacity for your house by showing these chin-chuckling, laughfest pictures that demonstrate anew what can be accomplished with a rolls royce bevy of girls, trained animal comedians, and the finest and best in direction. Before you show these Century Comedies, dust off the S. R. O. sign. You'll need it!

A Hundred Laughs—That's a "CENTURY"

“Her Secret Still”

(One Reel Universal Comedy Featuring Dorothea Wolbert)

DOROTHY WALBERT will certainly amuse an audience when they see her in this one-reeler.

Her droll ways and her ability to put over a comedy situation are a novelty to witness, especially in these days when “slapstick” and bathing girl comedies hold the screen.

As the designing maid who tries to inviegle the butler into a marriage, only to be rebuffed in her efforts, she gives a pleasing performance.

The opening scenes, depicting an employment bureau with its various characters, are funny indeed.—FRANK LEONARD.

Says
Frank Leonard
of the
MOTION PICTURE NEWS

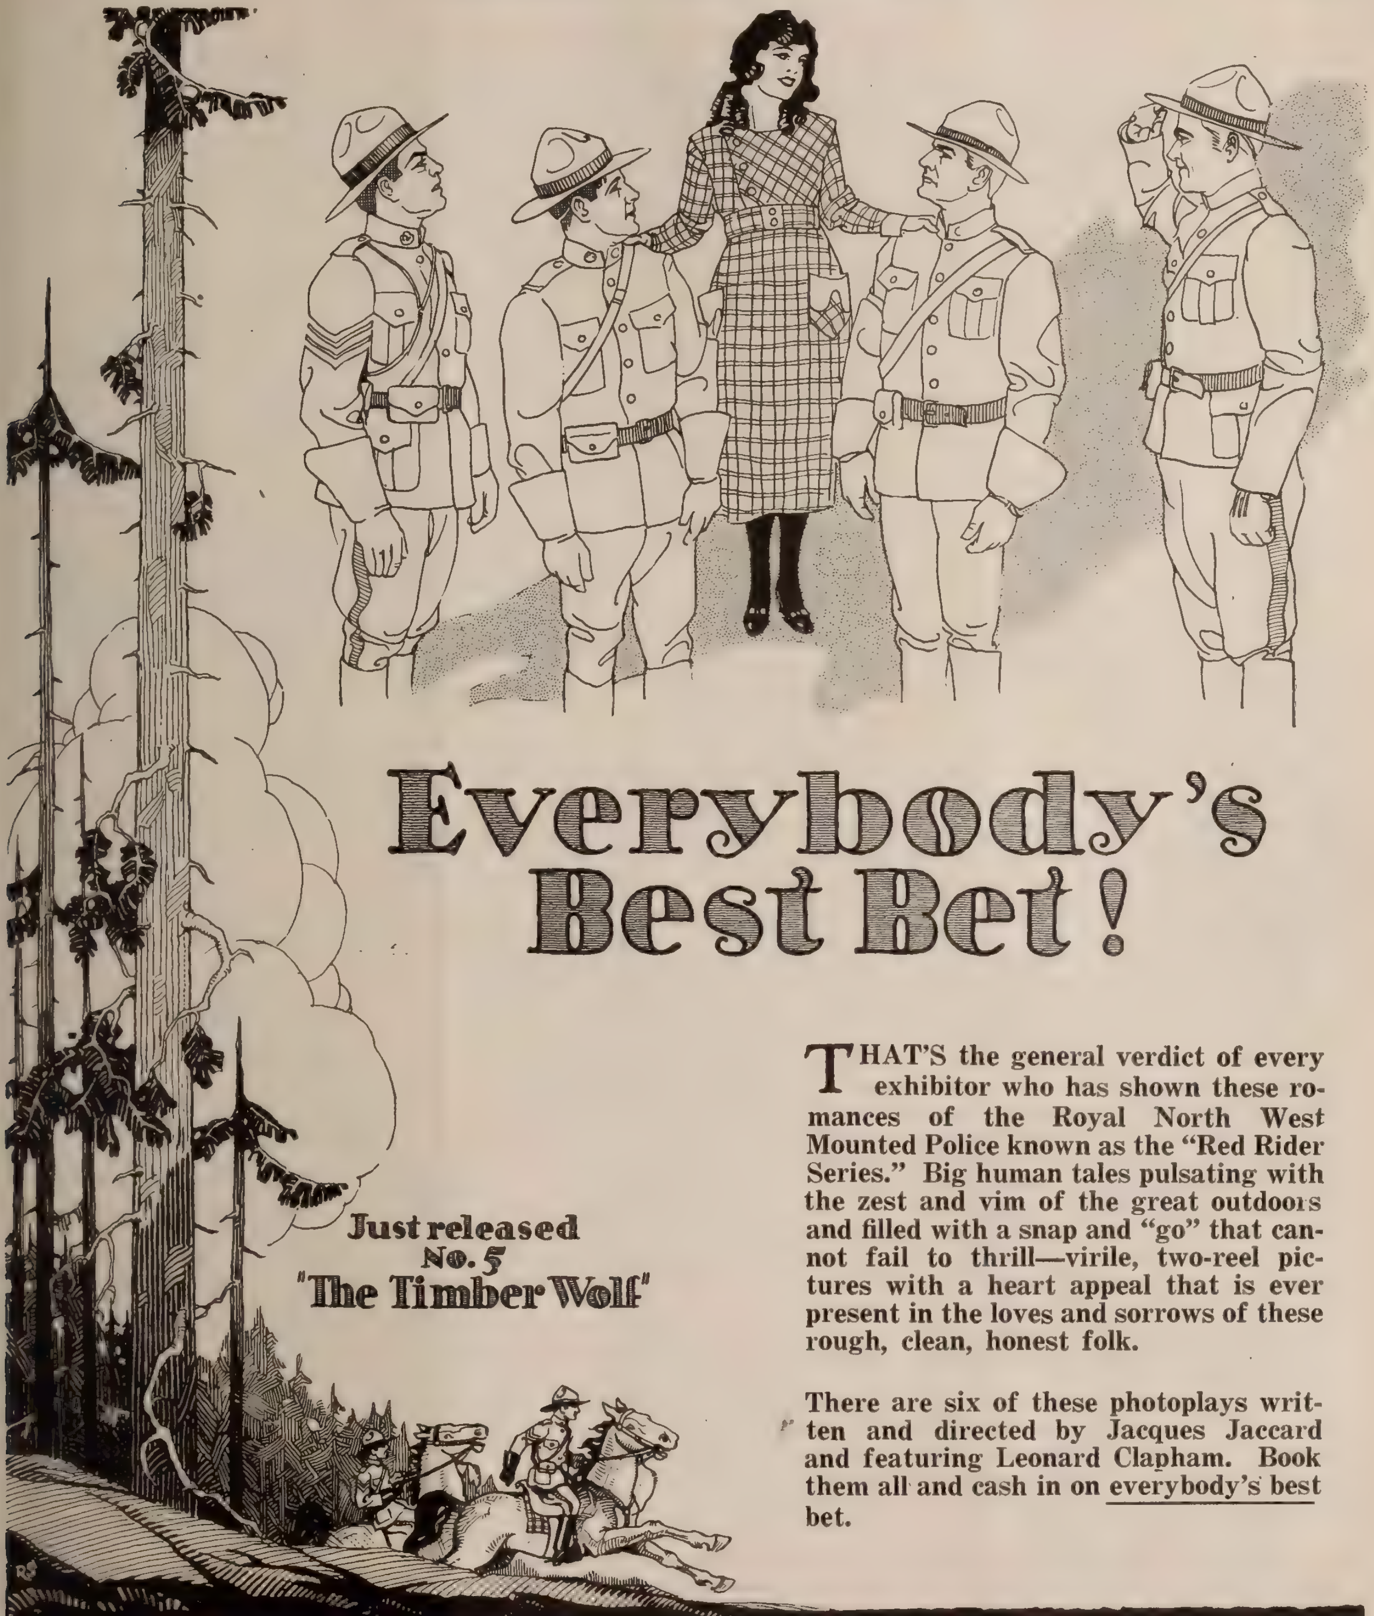
Dotty Wolbert

in her latest one reel rib-tickler

"HER SECRET STILL"

Directed by Vin Moore

STAR Every One's a Twinkler COMEDIES



Everybody's Best Bet!

Just released
No. 5
"The Timber Wolf"

THAT'S the general verdict of every exhibitor who has shown these romances of the Royal North West Mounted Police known as the "Red Rider Series." Big human tales pulsating with the zest and vim of the great outdoors and filled with a snap and "go" that cannot fail to thrill—virile, two-reel pictures with a heart appeal that is ever present in the loves and sorrows of these rough, clean, honest folk.

There are six of these photoplays written and directed by Jacques Jaccard and featuring Leonard Clapham. Book them all and cash in on everybody's best bet.

REDRIDER SERIES

International News

No. 76

Ostia, Italy.—Flight over a dead city. First moving pictures ever made of the world-famous ruins at Ostia, Italy. (Photographed by Captain Ariel Varges.)

Sub-Titles. — Ground views—the main street of Ostia—Rome's great seaport in 3000 B. C. The mosaic floors of the ancient palace. Earthenware which once contained the ashes of Roman notables.

New York City.—With the Hudson Air Patrol. Sky inspections of Hell Gate are part of the U. S. Army Air Service routine.

Sub-Title.—A glimpse of the warcraft in the river.

New York City.—Nathan L. Miller, elected Governor of New York.

Sub-Titles.—Governor-elect Miller's family, at their home in Syracuse. Governor Alfred E. Smith, who ran a million votes ahead of his ticket—but lost, got a great reception at the polls. New city. (For New York City and New York State prints only).

Cleveland, O.—Harry L. Davis, Ohio's new Governor.

Sub-Title. — Governor-elect Davis and his family. (For Cincinnati and Cleveland prints only.)

Sutter County, Cal.—If you are hungry, look the other way. No dispectic allowed at Elk's annual duck feast. (For Los Angeles and San Francisco prints only.)

New Orleans, La.—Children campaign. Southern youngsters emulate their elders in crusade for better schools. (For New Orleans only.)

..Boston, Mass.—One Mr. Cox who won. Channing L. is the next Governor of Massachusetts.

Sub-Titles. — Governor-elect Cox's family. The Boston City Club parades in honor of Governor Coolidge's election to the vice-Presidency. (For Boston only.)

Oakland, Cal.—A "puffed brick" ship. Queer looking cement craft of 7500 tons is launched at Oakland, Cal. (To be omitted from Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago prints.)

Chicago, Ill.—Ohio's eleven wins hotly contested game from Chicago team.

State 7, Chicago 6. (For Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago prints only.)

Chicago Ill.—Swift polo steeds in hurdling contest. Many spills as champion mounts race for honors.

Providence, R. I. — Crippled ship brings in wreck survivors. Liner Atlanta limps into port with demolished bow, after sinking concrete steamer in collision.

Sub-Title.—Captain Biggins, whose ship, the Cape Fear, sank with 19 of her crew.

Dublin, Ireland.—"Cold steel" rules Erin, while patriots' deaths arouse populace.

Sub-Titles.—Searching for hidden weapons. While in Cork, "Black and Tan" continue their "reprisals." And hundreds of refugees wander the roads, homeless. In New York, thousands pay tribute to the Irish martyr, Lord Mayor MacSwiney. (For New York State and New York City prints). Govetrnor Alfred E. Smith and President De Valera of Ireland (For New York State and New York City prints only). In Washington, thousands pay tribute to the Irish martyr, Lord Mayor MacSwiney (For Washington prints only). In Boston, thousands pay tribute to the Irish martyr, Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

Halifax, N. S.—Yankee schooner beats Canadian rival in fisherman's race.

Sub-Titles. — Esperanto, representing America, on the heels of Canada's entry, the Delawanna. Overtakes the Delawanna at the turn. The American schooner forges ahead. Esperanto wins by a comfortable margin. Captain Tommy Himmelman, the defeated skipper, and his crew.

Highlights of the Great Republican Election Triumph.

Sub-Titles. — President-elect Warren G. Harding and the next First Lady of the Land cast their votes early, Marion O. (Wonder who they voted for?) Reading congratulatory telegrams on his overwhelming victory; first picture of the next president made since his election. A little bird tells us, Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge and his wife helped along that Republican landslide, Northampton, Mass. On New York's East Side, mothers took their families to the polls, New York City. Swirling rain spoiled the ardor of Manhattan's election night crowd. Photographed in Columbus Circle—the heart of New York—with the aid of sunlight arcs.

"A Fishy Story"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

ZIP MONTY and ESTHER JACKSON

A RETIRED fisherman has a pretty daughter. Three men love her and three men pursue her. The lovers are put to a difficult fishing test in order to win the girl and all sorts of acquatic difficulties follow on this.

In order for the chief of the police (one of the wooers) to have something on the other two, he keeps a close watch on them. He catches them robbing the safe, proves to the father that he is the hero for his daughter, and the father consents.

In the meantime Esther, the daughter, is arrested along with a number of other pretty girls, for wearing improper bathing suits on the beach. But the young detective who arrests the girl gets her mixed up in the arrest so that he can marry her, and he succeeds, much to the disgust of father and the love-stricken chief of the police.

New Screen Magazine

No. 93.

IN traveling from Madrid to Barcelona, Spain, by rail, the eye is treated to some lovely views. Barcelona has a charming and romantic aspect.

Firemen undergo very rigorous training but "the boys" at the New York City training school do get a bit of fun out of scaling a tall building on a rope and jumping to a net from a window far above the ground.

"Every woman should have a hairress suited to her face." These are the wise words of Lillian Russell, queen of all beautiful women, and the New Screen Magazine illustrates this maxin for women with some beautiful styles of dressing the hair, posed by a charming model.

New York City's health department is always on the watchout for dishonest milk and employs skilled chemists to detect impurities in the beverage.

The magazine closes with an animated by Pat Sullivan entitled "Beware of the Bear."

"Romeo and Juliet"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring

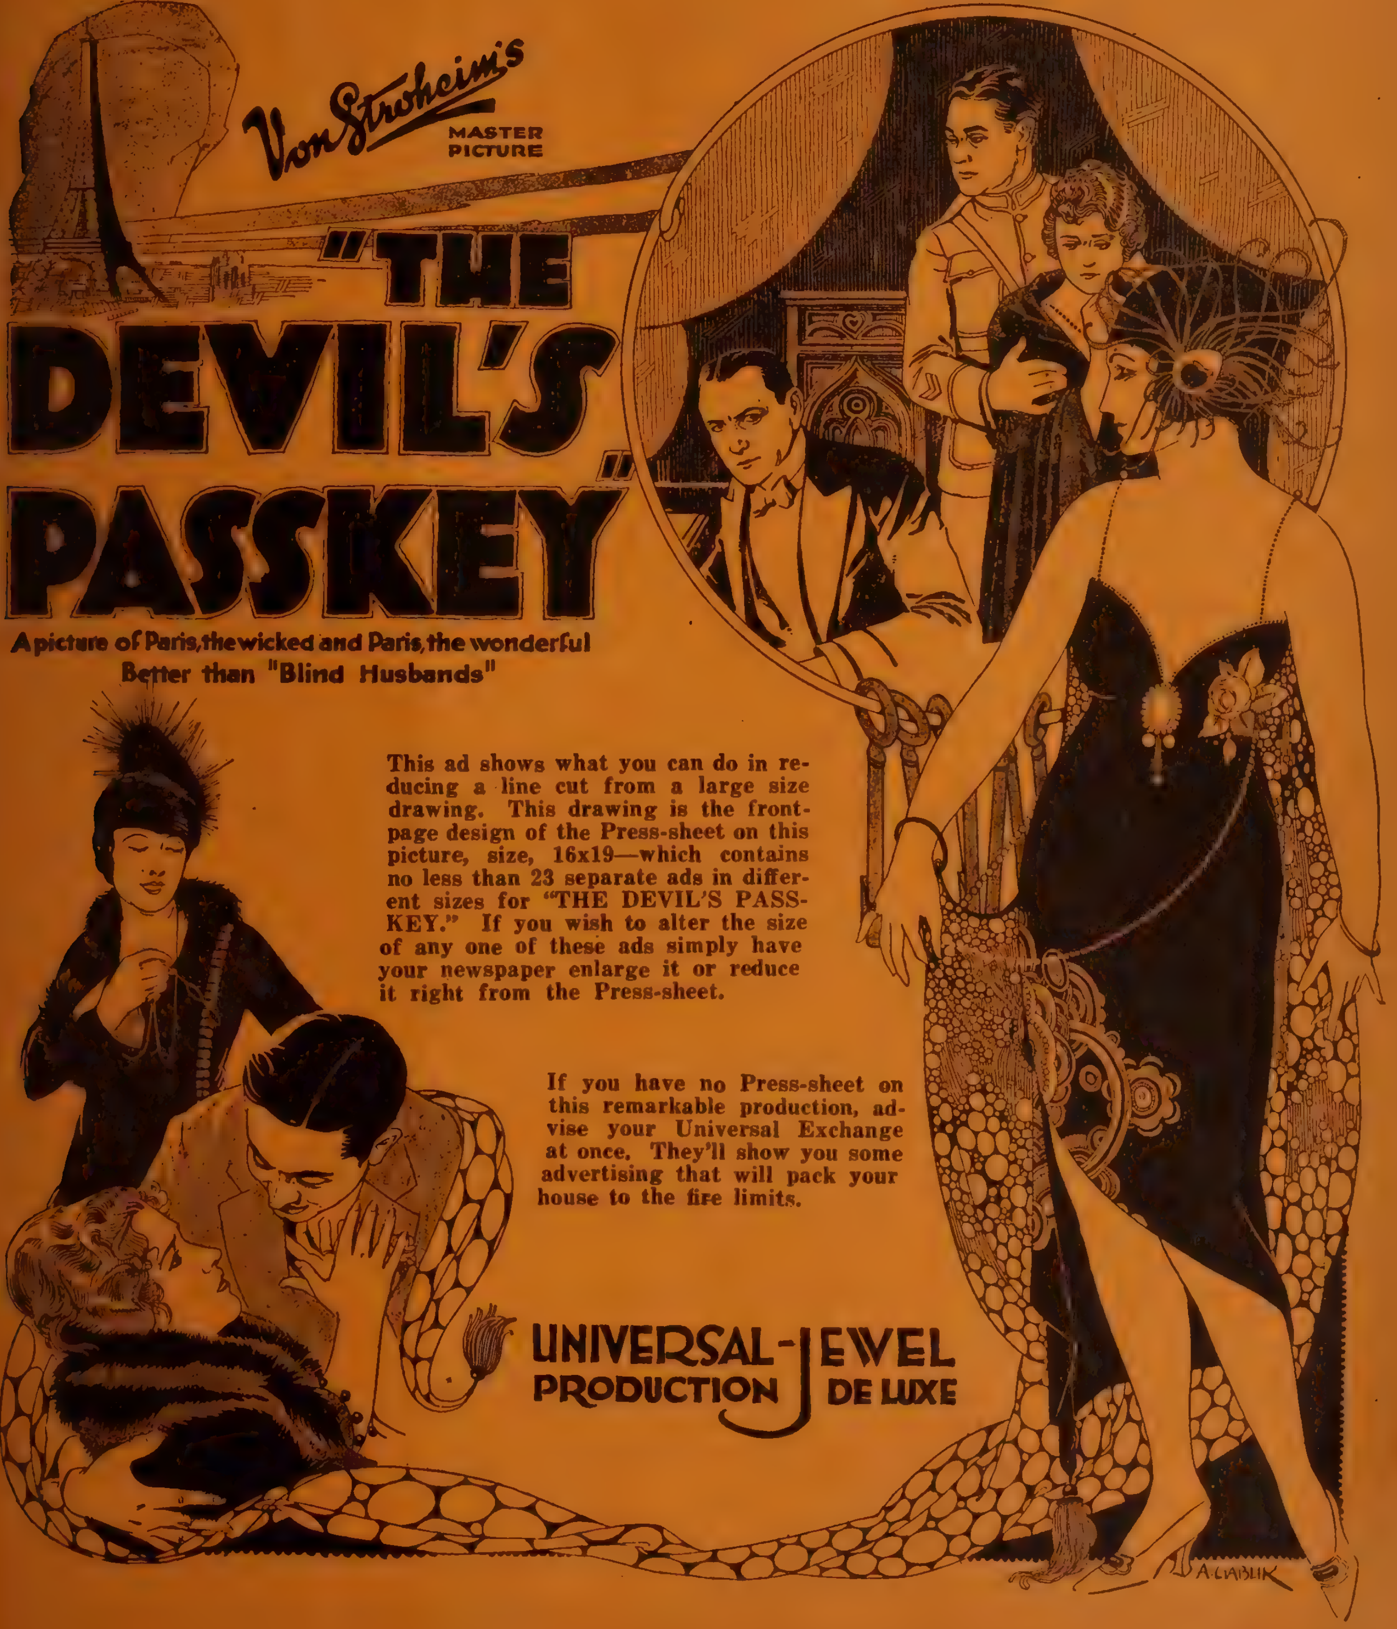
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE SUDS was only a scrubwoman who drove to work in a Ford driven by her youngster, hardly more than a babe, but she had Pierce Arrow dreams. She scrubbed in a theatre, and when the leading lady went on strike, due to temperament, Lizzie said she could do the Juliet act as well, having studied acting in a correspondence school.

The manager takes her up on it, and Lizzie's dream of dreams is about to be realized. She goes on, and is put into an ecstacy of bliss by the lovemaking of the handsome young leading man. But all kinds of mishaps in the way of falls and bumps happen to Lizzie, and she gets the whole cast a-tumbling and a-bumping with her. The audience is in an uproar and finally walks out on her.

Poor Lizzie goes back to her broom and her suds.

Read the Copy set in the Center of this Ad.



Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE
"THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY"
A picture of Paris, the wicked and Paris, the wonderful
Better than "Blind Husbands"
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE
A. LABLIK

This ad shows what you can do in reducing a line cut from a large size drawing. This drawing is the front-page design of the Press-sheet on this picture, size, 16x19—which contains no less than 23 separate ads in different sizes for "THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY." If you wish to alter the size of any one of these ads simply have your newspaper enlarge it or reduce it right from the Press-sheet.

If you have no Press-sheet on this remarkable production, advise your Universal Exchange at once. They'll show you some advertising that will pack your house to the fire limits.

Carl Laemmle
presents
Outside the Law

Starring

Priscilla Dean

in Tod Browning's Greatest Universal-Jewel Production.

WE are not given to boosting a picture before you, the exhibitor, have passed on it—but we will say, for once, that in "OUTSIDE THE LAW" you can expect the finest modern melodrama you have ever shown. PRISCILLA DEAN, the electrifying, supported by Wheeler Oakman, Lon Chaney, E. A. Warren, Ralph Lewis and a host of talent. Watch for announcement of its release.

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

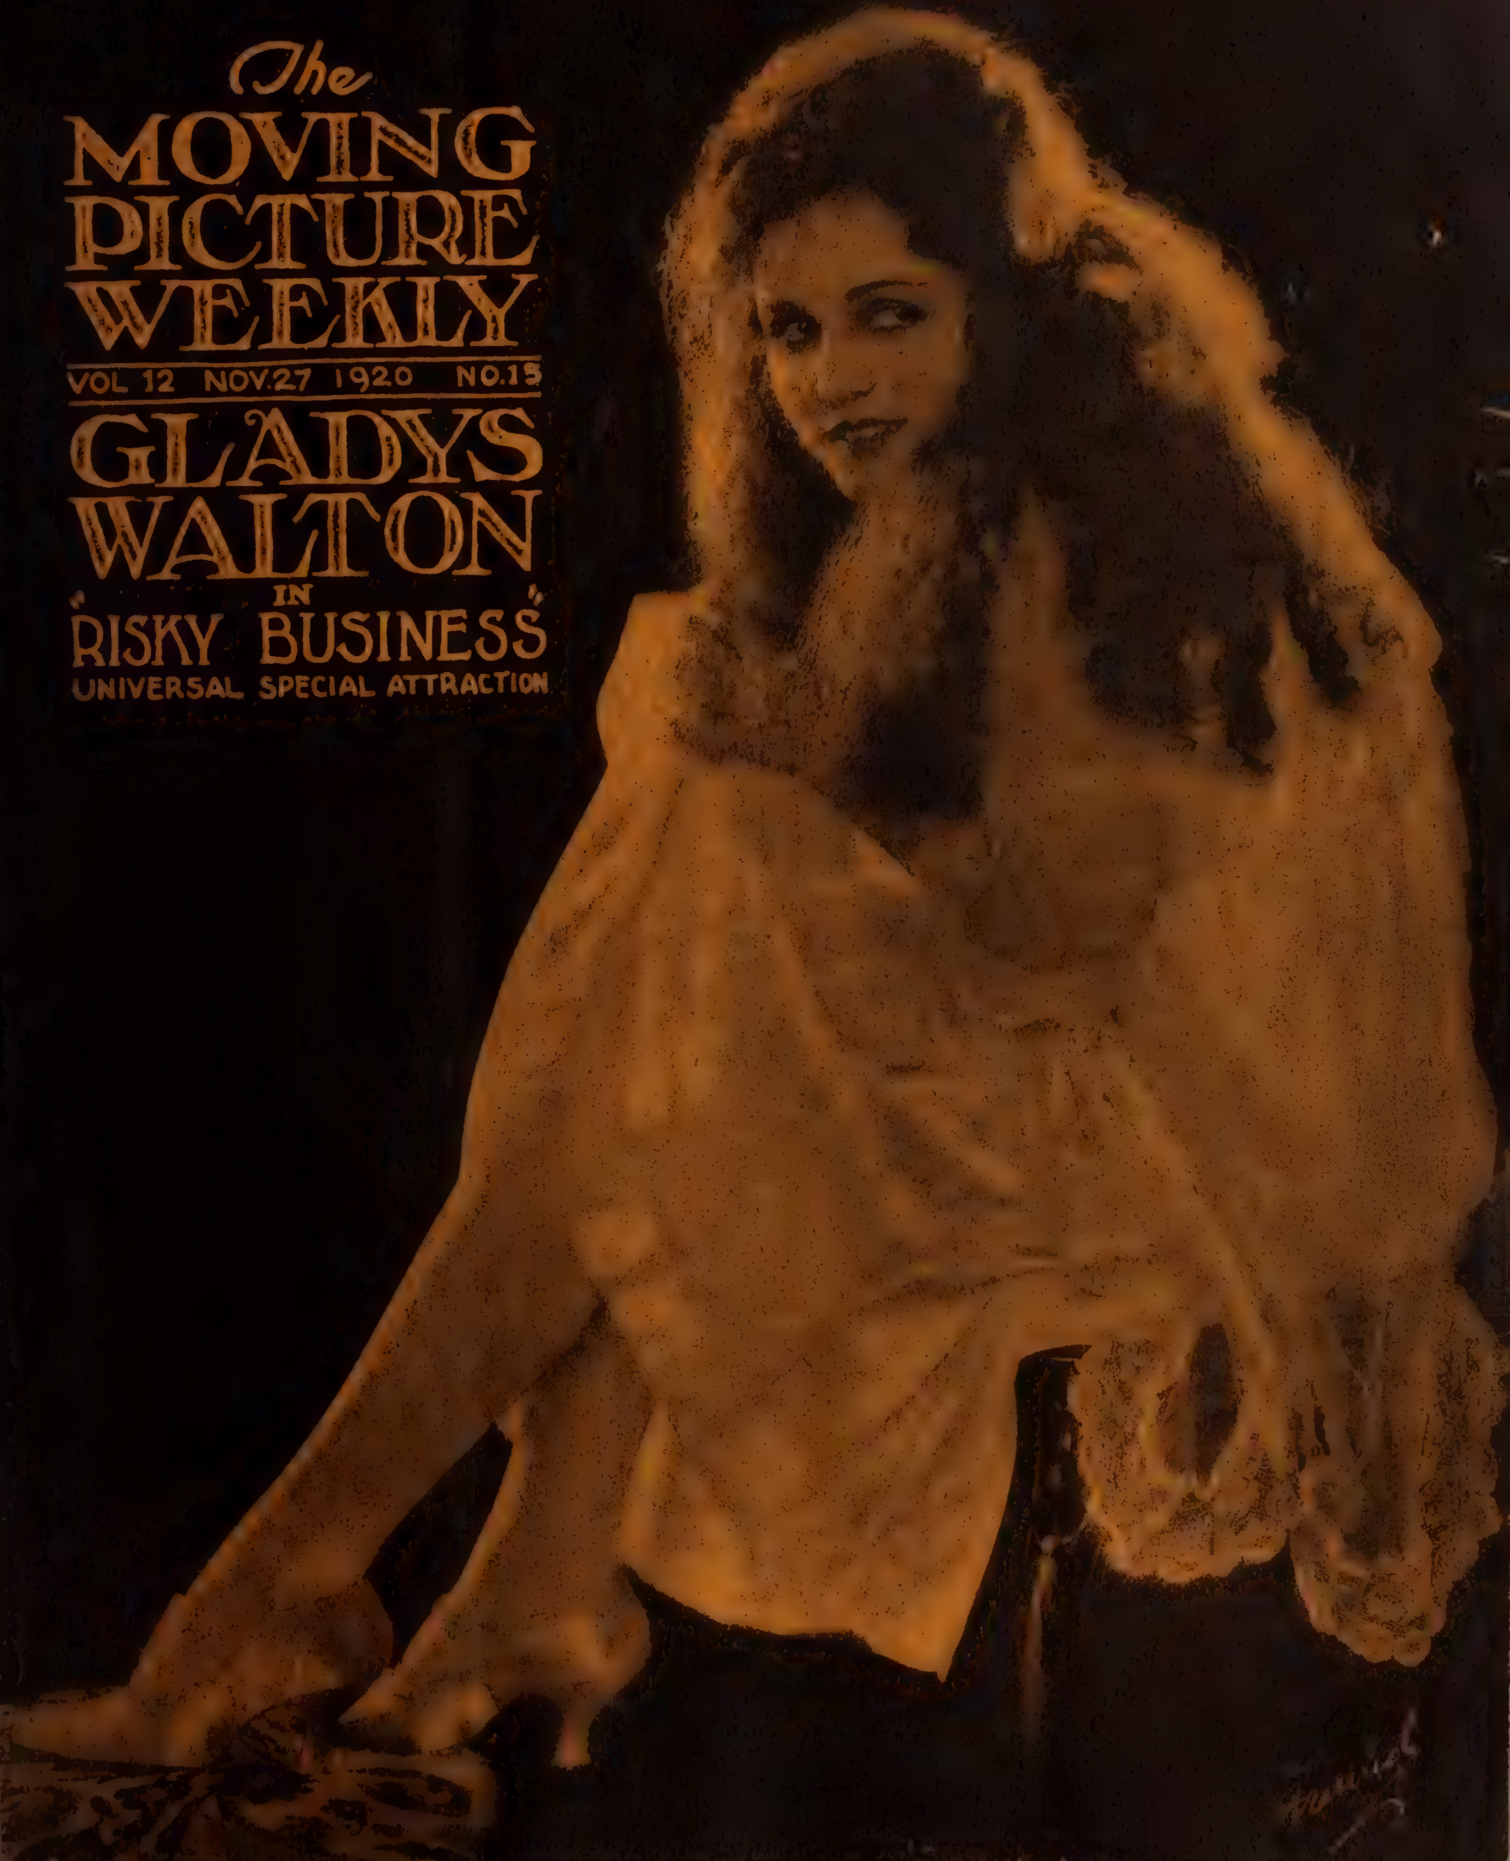
VOL 12 NOV. 27 1920 NO. 15

GLADYS WALTON

IN

"RISKY BUSINESS"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION



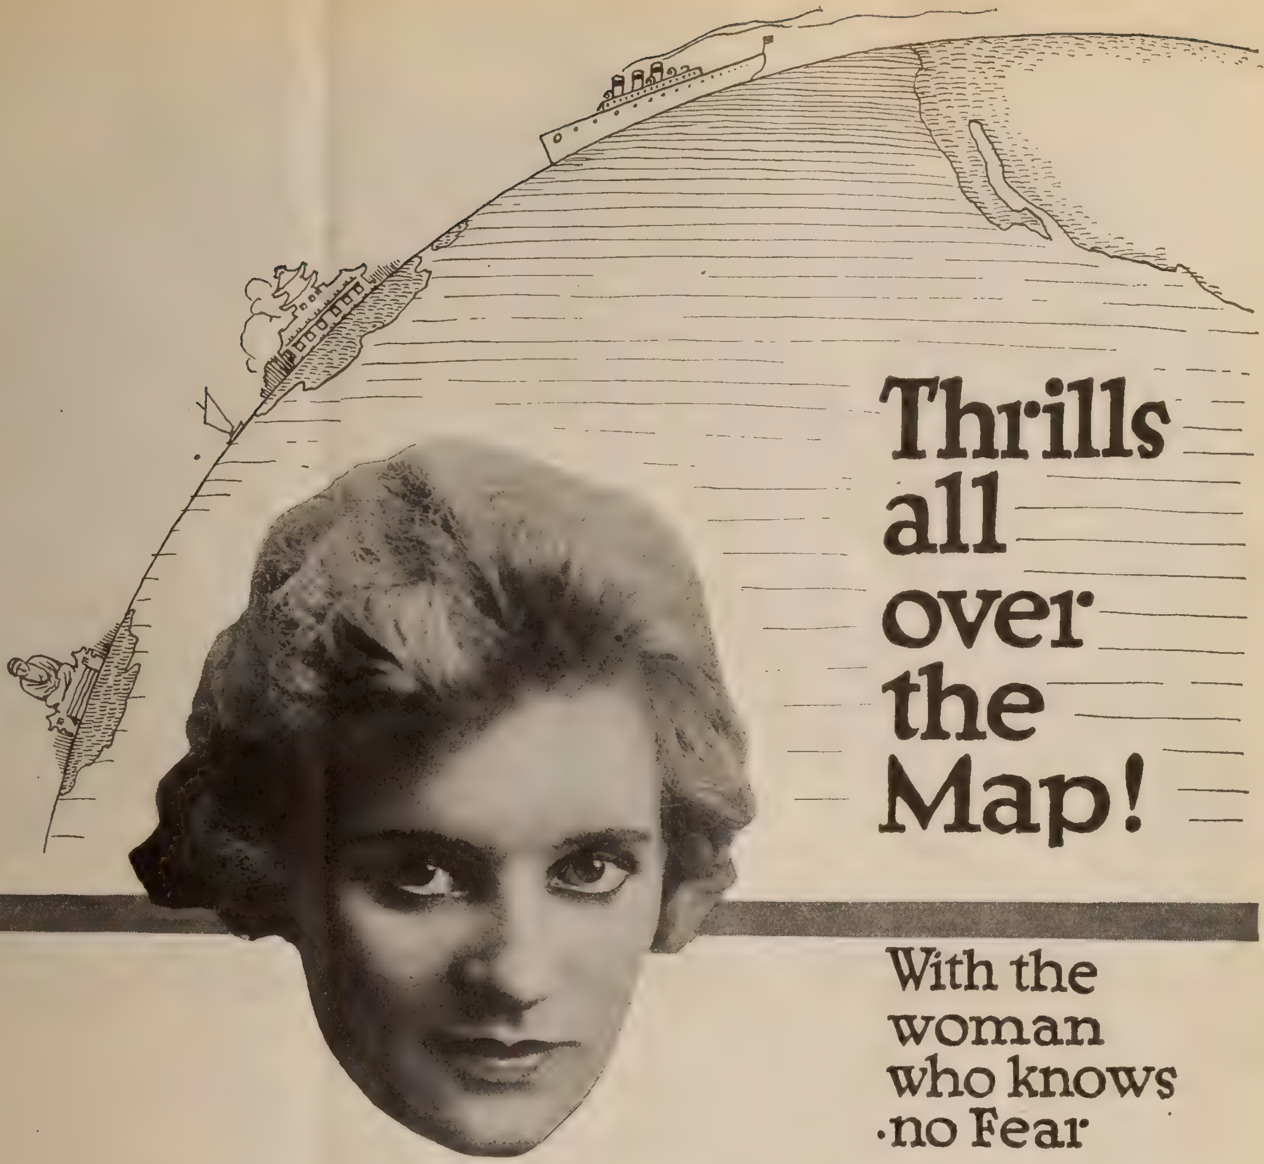
The Café de Paris
Monte Carlo
Now Building

Von Stroheim again 2½ times as much

Every American visitor to Monte Carlo—and there have been MILLIONS—knows his Cafe de Paris—its thousand flashing reflections of life a la mode, its little tables with their gay parties, its shining dome 36 feet in diameter, its long line of plate glass windows—48 in all—each 12 feet high and 4 feet wide. Well, gentlemen—it's all here—reproduced by Von Stroheim in exact replica down to the last button on the portier's waistcoat. And in this same Cafe, which every good American hopes to revisit some day, takes place a sequence of dramatic action which our good American's wife will not soon forget.

"FOOLISH WIVES"

Universal-Jewel



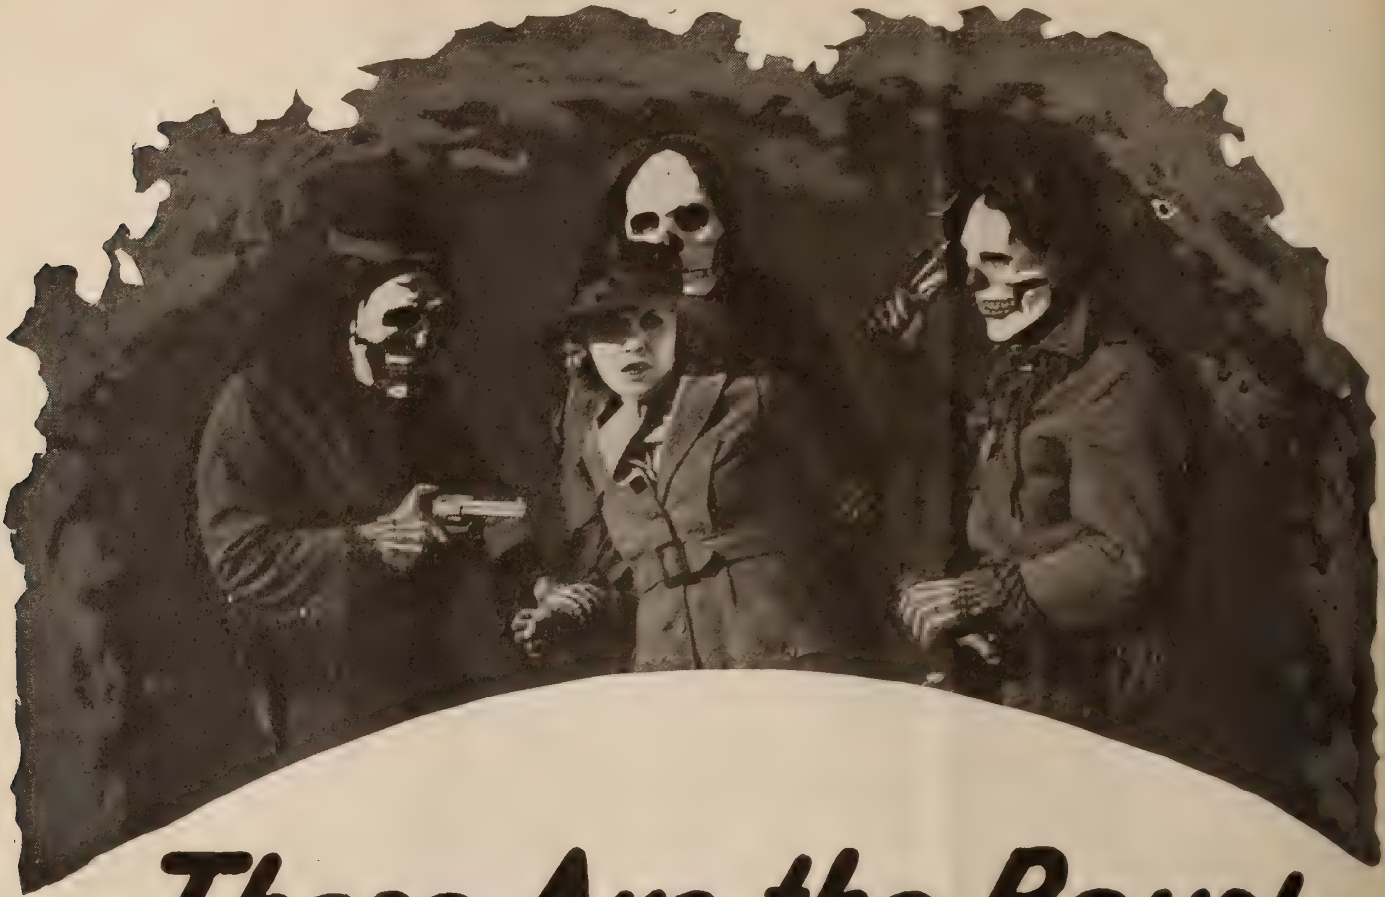
Thrills all over the Map!

With the woman who knows no Fear

THE scenario called for scenes in China, Japan, the Philippines and at home, in the good, old U. S. A. Did we stage painted sets and let it go at that? You just bet we didn't! We filmed the picture in those oriental, mystic lands and the result is a box office attraction that holds its own every time with the feature picture! Here's a big, whirlwind, action-crammed mystery serial that you can't afford to miss. And a star that never fails to pack 'em in! Don't wait—book it now!

Marie Walcamp

"The DRAGON'S NET"



These Are the Boys!

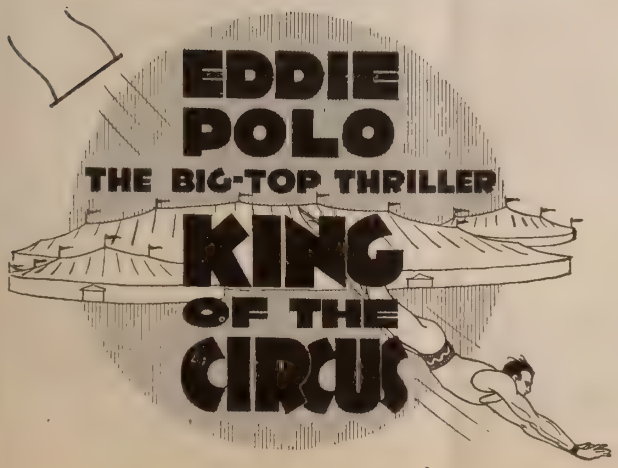
Yep, that's 'em! That' those weird, wild-riding, hair-raising Devilmen that tear off more in the way of blood-curdling stunts than ever "Old Nick" knew. There's a smash! bing! up-and-away! about these fellows that only a cool, peppery cuss like Art Acord can handle. Here's a serial that has everything: action-pep-thrills-go-zip-smash-bang! This is the picture that gets 'em in and keeps 'em coming back each week. Just the picture for you. Don't hesitate--book it!

ART ACORD IN

"The MOONRIDERS"

Directed by Al. Russell

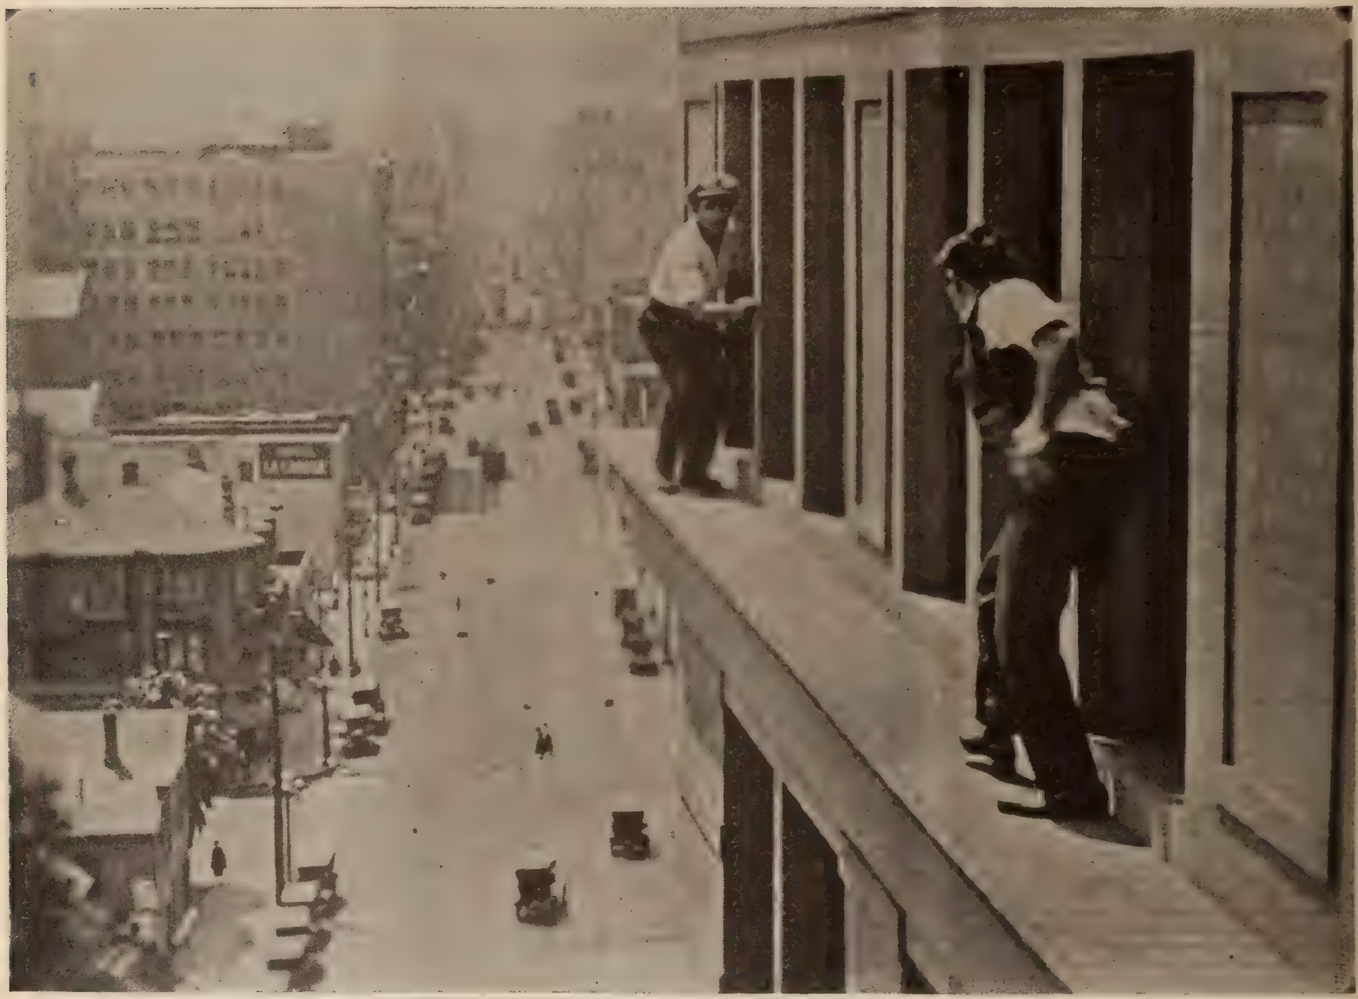
RIGHT OUT OF THE FILM!

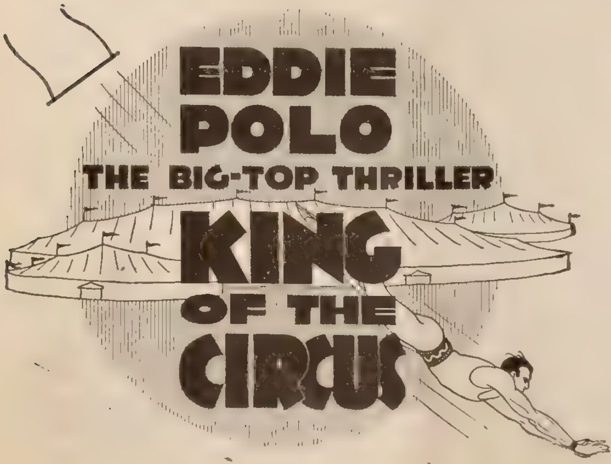


THE illustration on this page and those on the five succeeding pages are reproductions of unretouched enlargements made directly from the film of the seventh smashing episode of this colossal 18-ring chapter play. Universal offers these stills as mere indications of the thousand and one thundering thrills in this greatest serial of all time. See the next page and follow Eddie in his sky-scraping scrap on the perilous ledge.

GET UP IN THE AIR WITH EDDIE AND JUMP ON YOUR COMPETITION

"GO TO IT!"

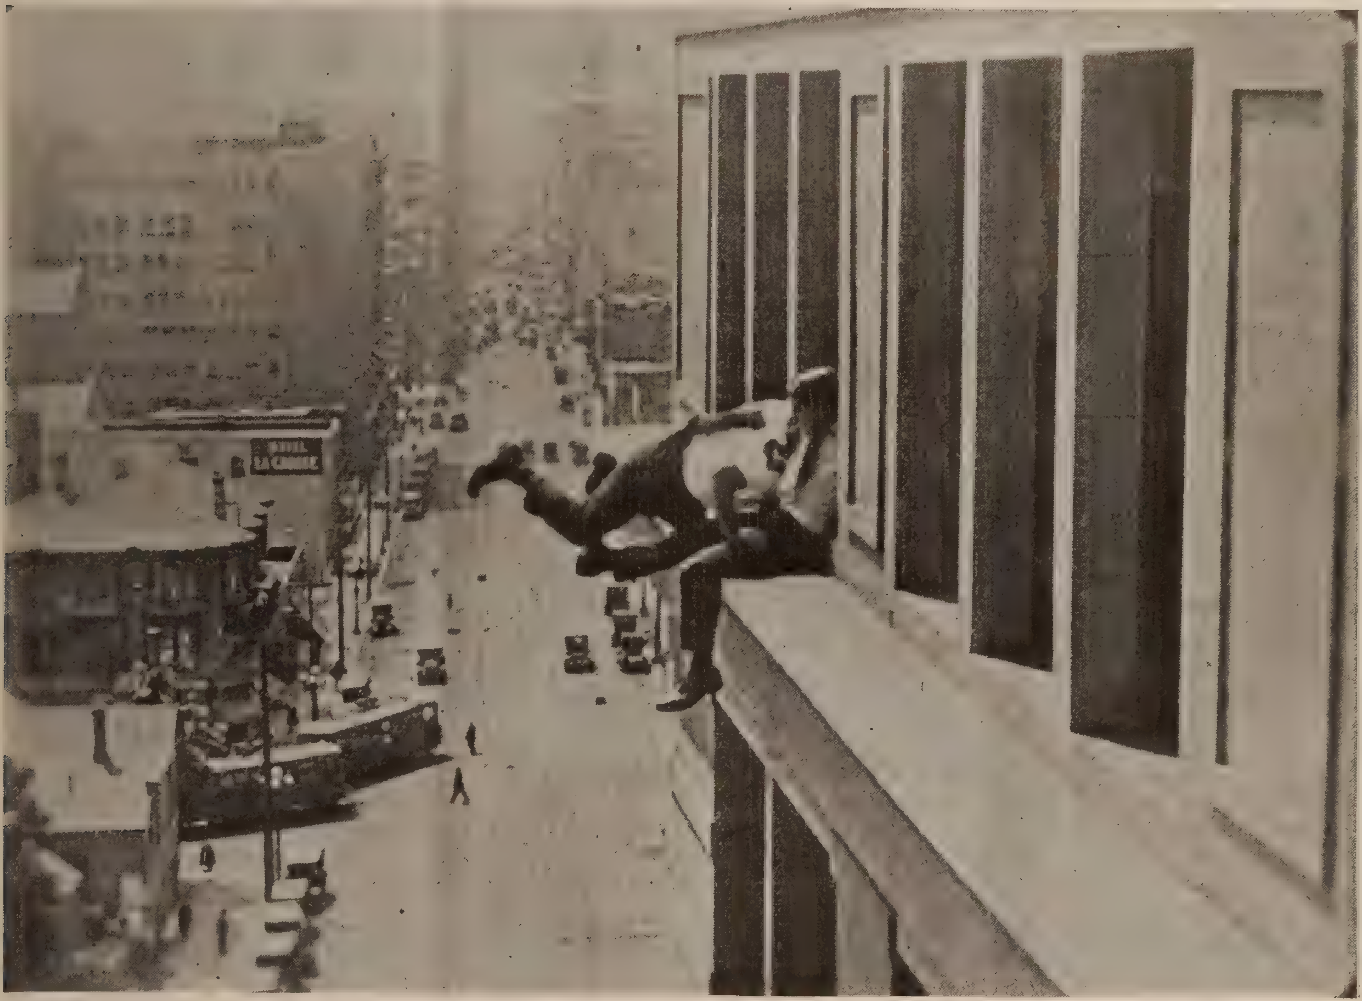




GET the drama in this scene. Can't you just feel that there's going to be one heck of a battle in about two seconds? Talk about Zero Hours on the battlefield—doesn't this scene fairly make you shiver even to imagine that either Eddie or his adversary may be dashed down to the pavement, ten stories below? You bet—and when your crowd sees this in motion on your screen they're going to get all the excitement they want.

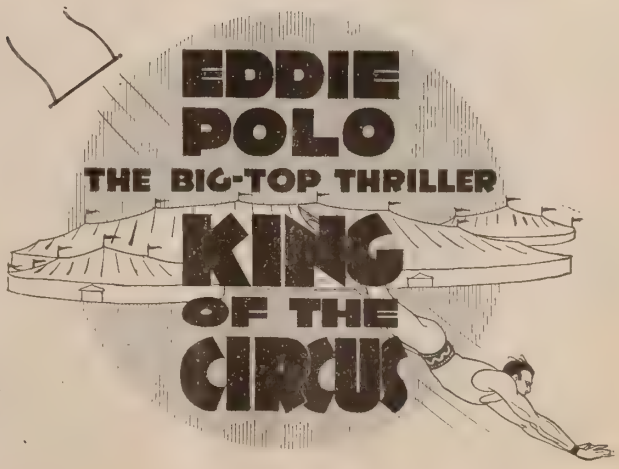
HERE'S A DIZZY GASPER THAT WILL STAND THEIR HAIR ON END

"GOSHAMIGHTY!"

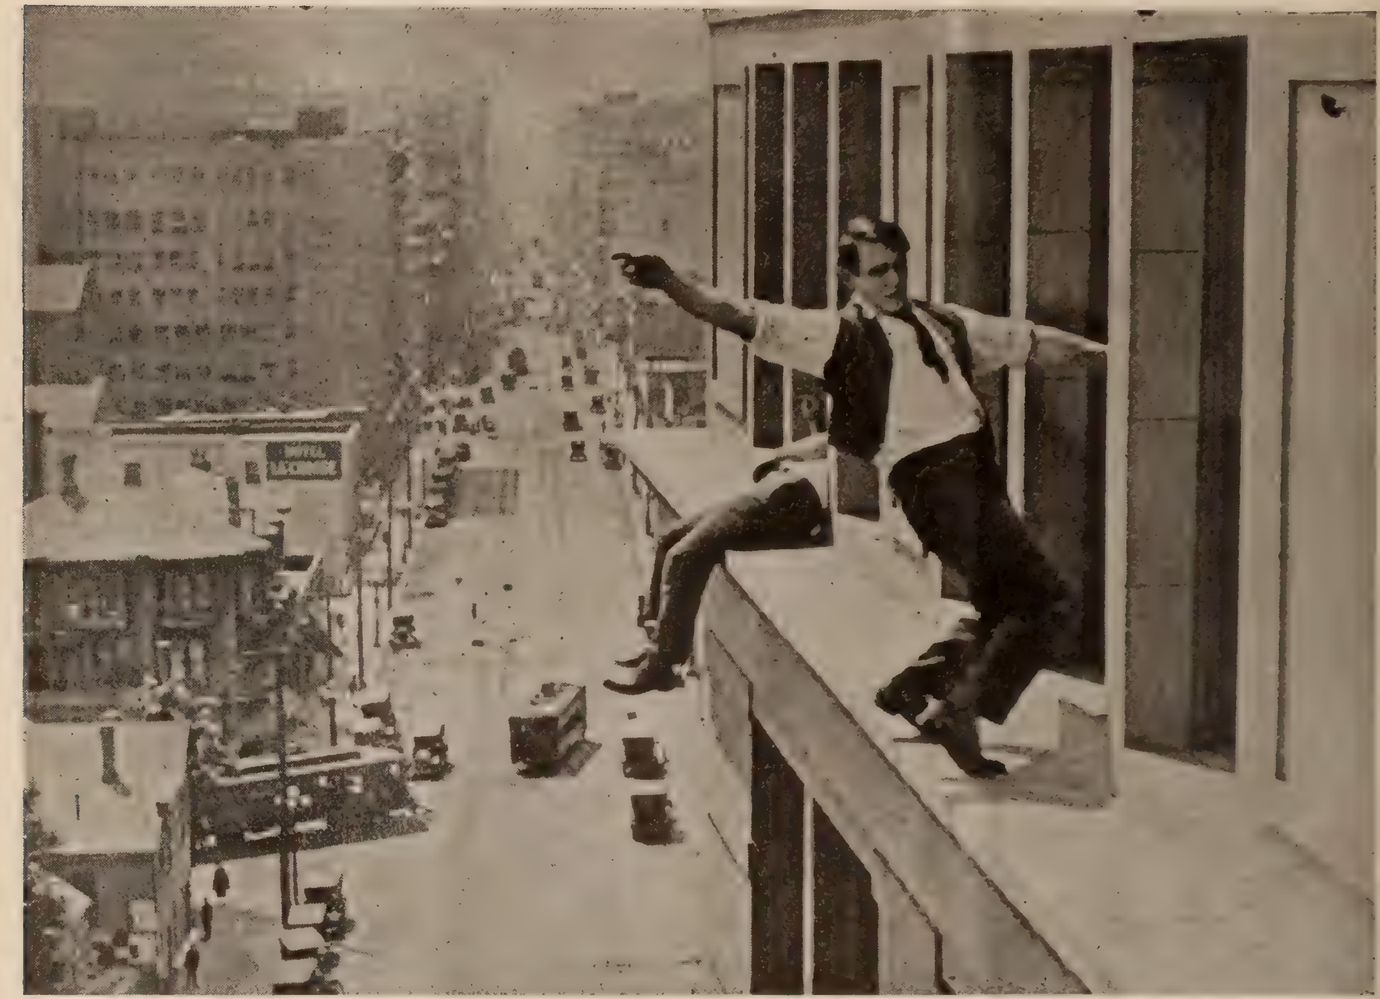


"ATTA boy, Eddie—bust him on the nose—throw him down . . . . o-o-o-o-oh!—look out, Eddie, you might slip yourself . . ." You can fairly hear the kids rooting wildly for their idol when they see this. And even you, no matter how hard-boiled a spectator you might be, will get a real thrill out of this episode. For without a doubt it's one of the most shivery and suspenseful fights ever staged.

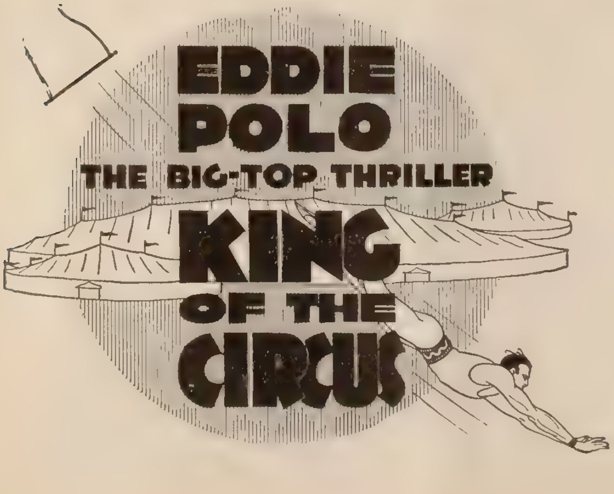
HERE'S A RED-HOT THRILL THAT GETS RIGHT UNDER YOUR SHIRT



"WHOA-BOY!"

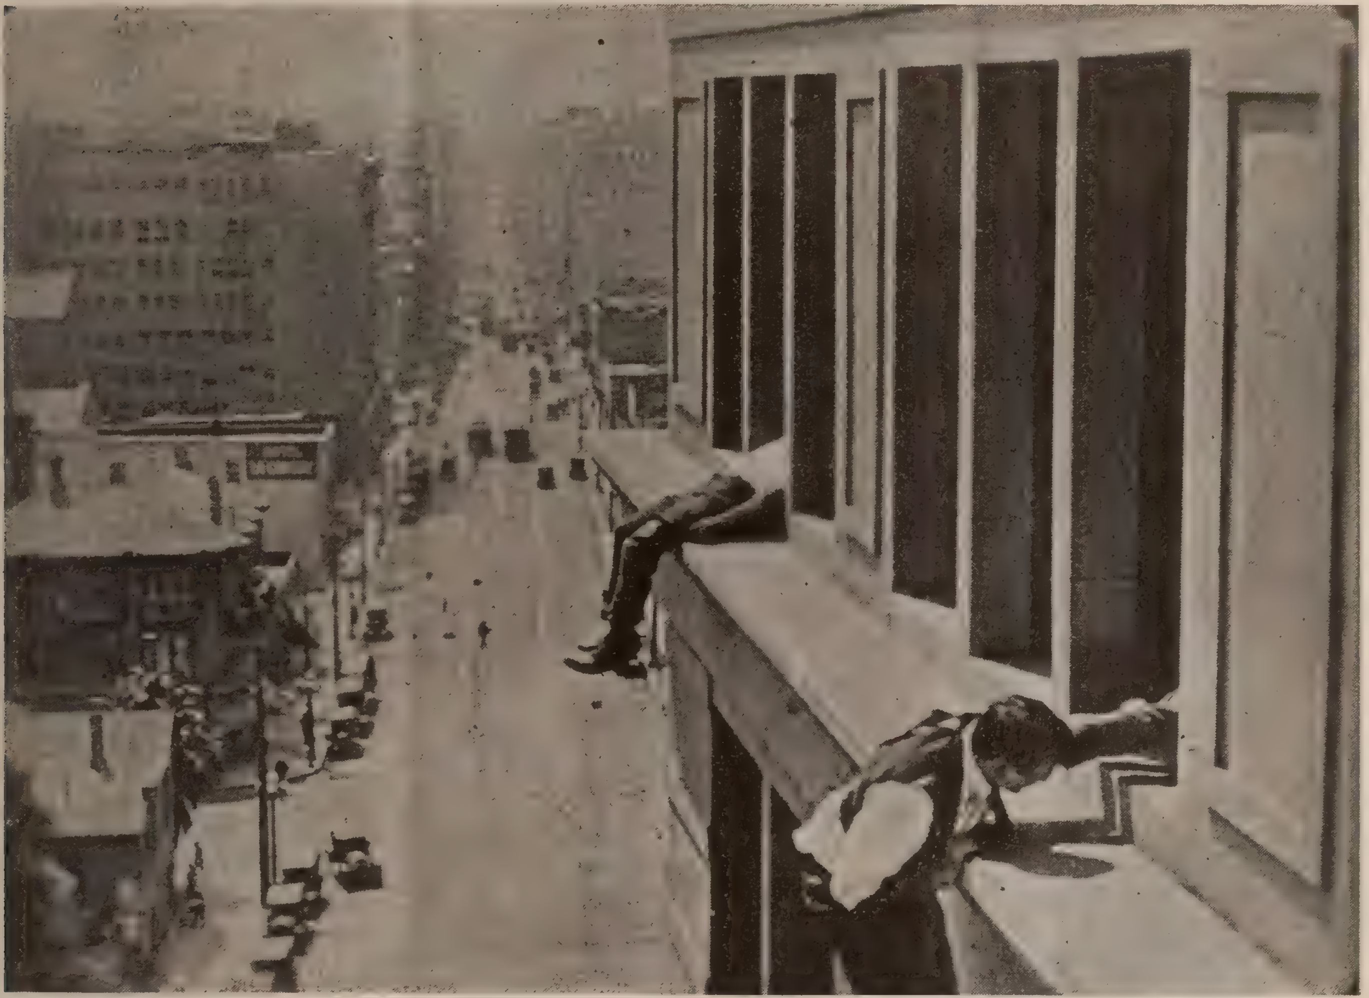


PHEW!—that was a close one! Just about one more millionth of an inch and our good friend Eddie would have been tuning up the G-string on a nice new harp—just a hair-breadth out of balance and the Coroner would have been sweeping up the pieces. For this stuff is not faked—it's so darned real that you are scared yourself by Eddie's perilous progress along that tenth-story ledge—you actually shiver every trembling inch of that shivery trip.

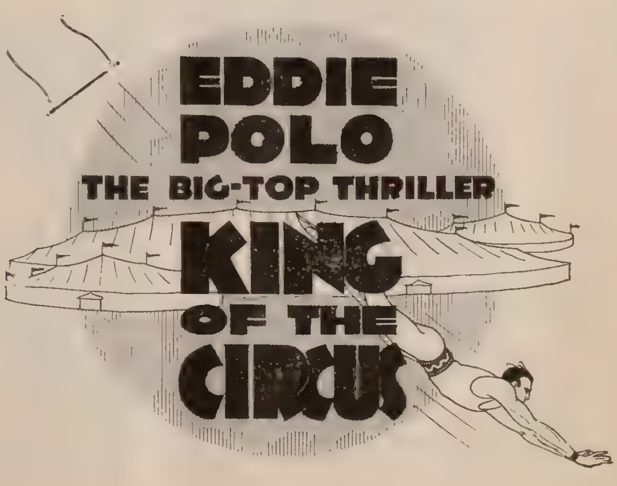


HAIR-RAISERS LIKE THIS ARE WHAT PACK 'EM IN FOR YOU

"JIMINY CRICKETS!"

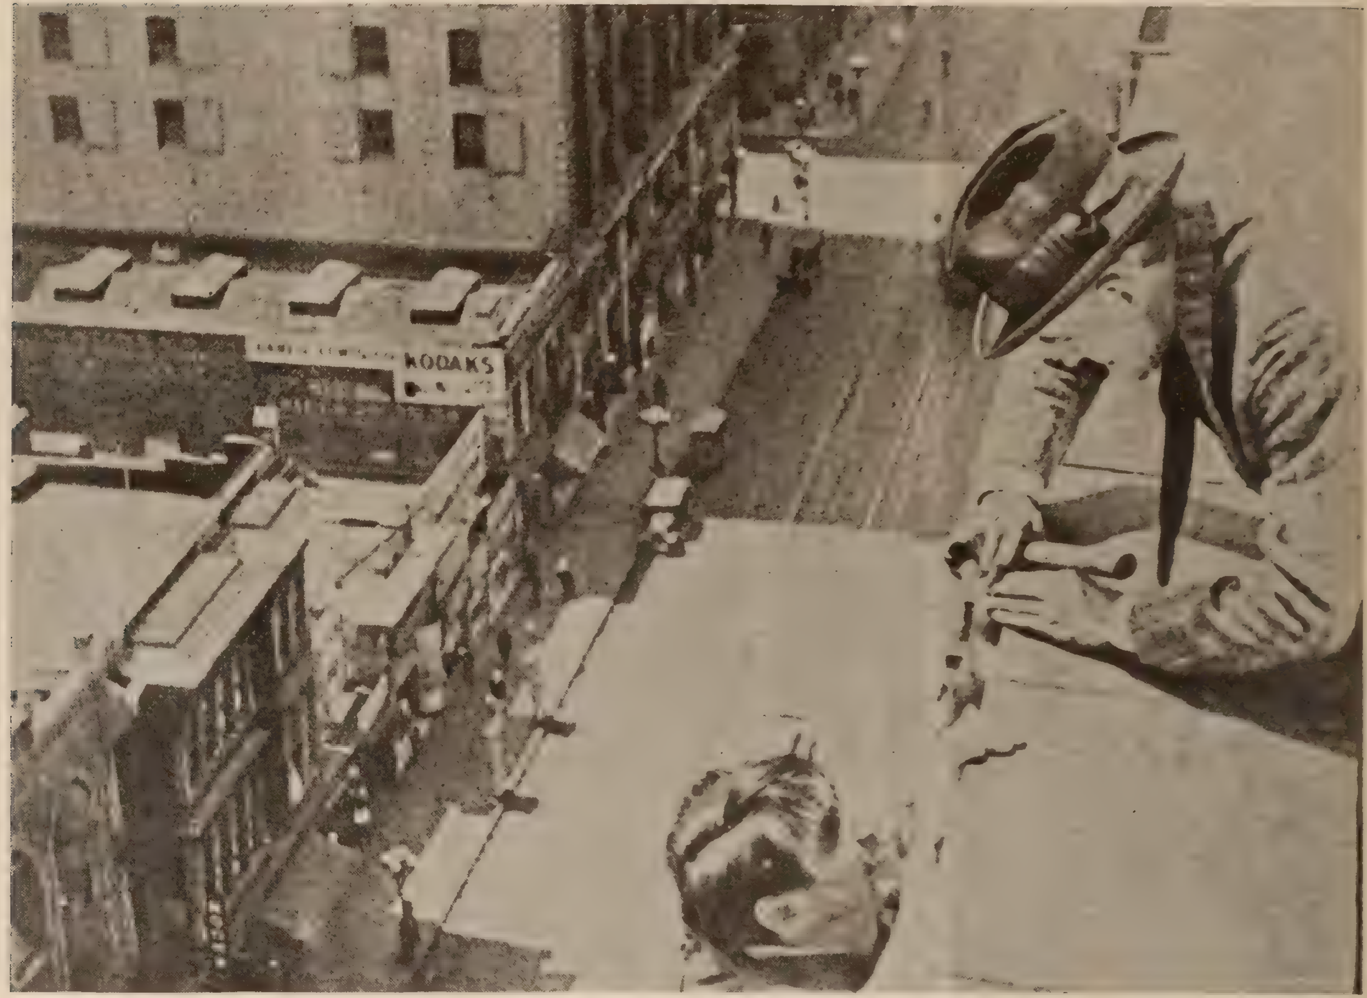


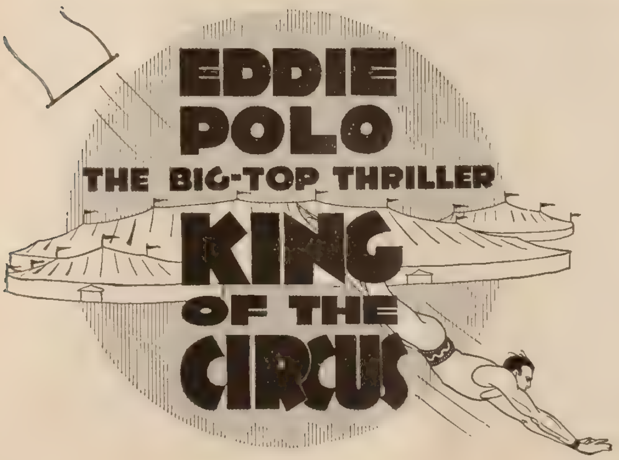
WHAT'S that—the villian's arm pushing Eddie to certain death? Yes, sir, it is—meaning more thrills, more suspense, more excitement, more crashing melodrama piling moment on moment in this shivery sequence. You can't get away from it. Each moment you are hoping for the safe return of Eddie, yet you are gripped into wanting more by the irresistible fascination of its daredeviltry.



IF THEY DON'T GO WILD OVER THIS THEY'LL BE TAME FOREVER

"GOOD NIGHT!"





EDDIE
POLO
THE BIG-TOP THRILLER
KING
OF THE
CIRCUS

AND now the villian is hammering Eddie's fingers! Suspense? Say, Mr. Exhibitor, when your crowds see Eddie suspended by his fingers high above the street they're absolutely going to fight to come and see what happens in the next chapter. And this episode is only one of the eighteen most emphatic reasons why you will make money by booking at once the greatest serial of all time.

THINK OF ALL THESE THRILLS IN JUST ONE OF EIGHTEEN EPISODES

The New Queen of the Serials

The Serial Girl of Your Dreams. Sweet, Tender, Charming. An entrancing delight. Fresh as a rose after an April shower. Gloriously beautiful. A bewitching, alluring girl of persuasive personality with a simplicity and effectiveness captivating beyond words. And with it all that dauntless daring and courageous spirit that have won the admiration of millions. Plucky. Confident. Self-reliant. That's the new Queen of the Serials. Beautiful Eileen Sedgwick.

Do you wonder, then, why the crowds pack the theatres whenever her pictures are shown?

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Coming Soon in "The Diamond Queen". Now Starring in "The Great Radium Mystery"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.

(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)

Vol. 11 NOVEMBER 27, 1920. No. 15

Asks Exhibitors To Help Themselves

Carl Laemmle already assured that new report system is in favor with many Exhibitors.

THIS may sound like an invitation to partake of the fatted calf at the Thanksgiving dinner, but it is merely a concise statement of what Carl Laemmle is doing in the way of direct co-operation with the exhibitor of moving pictures.

In other words, Mr. Laemmle is asking the exhibitor his opinions and the opinions of his patrons on the various pictures which Universal is selling to him, and asking him, not for a general statement of how much his audiences liked the pictures, but for their opinions on all the things that go into the making of a picture, accessories included. The exhibitor, also, is asked to express his individual preference as to the type and kind of pictures that best fit his needs, and the drawing power of the stars that appear in them.

..............................1920.

Theatre .... City .... Exchange ....

Attraction..............................

1—Did your patrons like the picture?..............

2—How did they like—

(a) The story? ....

(b) Photography? ....

(c) Settings? ....

(d) Costumes? ....

(e) Star? ....

(f) Rest of cast? ....

(g) Posters? ....

3—Do you want more pictures of this kind?..............

4—What kind do you want?

Remarks ....

....

....

....

....

Manager

Note:—We want to give you the kind of pictures you can exhibit profitably. Answer the above questions carefully and it will help us—and you.

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES, INC.,

CARL LAEMMLE.

To carry out this plan, a form such as is reproduced on this page has been devised, and numbers of these are being sent to the various exchanges and distributed to the exhibitors of Universal pictures with the features they are to run. If this new system is faithfully adhered to, the exhibitor will as a consequence render to himself very valuable assistance, and will increase his profits materially, for the producer will know what specific types of his product meet with the greatest favor and will as a result strive to make that kind of pictures in greater number.

In the short time that this report system has been in practise, it has already met with marked success. Exhibitors have been quick to grasp the advantage of the plan to themselves and have faithfully sent in reports to their respective Universal exchanges, not only on the big Jewel and special attraction productions which they feature principally, but on the short stuff too—Century Comedies, Star Comedies, Westerns, news reels, serials, screen magazine and special subjects. And that is exactly what Universal wants, for the shorter stuff is no longer regarded as merely a "filler," but is looked upon as an important part of the program of the day in the moving picture theatre. Mr. Laemmle is most anxious that each exhibitor of Universal pictures give this new report system his earnest consideration and adhere to its execution faithfully, for it is an advantageous addition to the scheme of co-operation between exhibitor and producer and because it will immeasurably accrue to the benefit of both of them. It is another step forward in Universal's policy of progressiveness, and no exhibitor can afford to overlook its significance.

A HIT!

HERE'S the mighty sea-to-sea serial that's getting the coin for exhibitors everywhere. The reason? Mostly Eddie Polo—Eddie Polo in eighteen episodes of the speediest stuff ever filmed—the same Eddie Polo that cleaned up in "The Lure of the Circus," and "The Bull's Eye." And this whirling chapter play is so good it has even Polo's former successes beaten to the frazziest kind of a frazzle. Book it now as the week in and week out profit-maker.

EDDIE
Polo

In the Smashing Sea-to-Sea Serial

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

Produced by POLO Himself

MILLIONS are being thrilled and mystified by the cyclonic champion of the chapter play, ELMO LINCOLN, in his latest and speediest serial, "The Flaming Disk"—an 18-episode sensation with a choke-and-clutch thrill in every one of its action-full scenes. Lightning is plumb slow compared to this smashing, whirlwind melodrama that glues the attention of everyone upon each episode and then lines 'em up early the following week, impatient to see the next hair-raising installment. If ever you expect to see the most stupendous serial of the age, it will be when you flash "The Flaming Disk" upon your screen and play it to crowds that will make past attendance records look like that at a baseball game on Christmas Morn. In justice to yourself, book it to-day.

ELMO LINCOLN

Supported by Louise Lorraine
in the Smashing Serial Sensation

"THE FLAMING DISK."

DIRECTED BY ROBERT HILL

Released thru UNIVERSAL

P

RISCILLA PORTRAYS

MOODS—that is what Priscilla can portray—with a force, a realism and an artistry that is consummate; moods of gaiety, of sorrow, of anger; pensive moods and ecstatic moods; moods of contempt and moods of terror, as she depicts so strikingly on these pages. That is the wonder of Priscilla Dean—the way she reproduces with a faithfulness that is astounding each and every shade of the human emotions.

That is the reason why everybody is waiting so impatiently for "Outside the Law," the Universal-Jewel, soon to be released with Priscilla Dean at the head of a cast that helped make screen history. For there are ingenues and there are vamps and there are leading ladies galore, but there is only one Priscilla Dean—a girl who by the vividness and punch of her personality has made for herself an individual place in the world of the cinema. And that is the reason why the year yields but two pictures from Priscilla Dean—because hers is an artistry so exquisite that it is difficult to find vehicles worthy of it.

Priscilla Dean has appeared frequently in "crook" roles because to portray a woman of the underworld, usually superior to her every-day sisters in personality, brains and ability to cope with difficult situations, required a dynamic personality, and Priscilla Dean is dynamic. But she took the world by storm when she flashed on the screen as Sari in "The Virgin of Stamboul"—Sari, the naughtiest, wildest, most adorable scamp of a beggar-girl who ever flourished in a story—a spitfire, a coquette, a hoyden, but most of all a woman, a real woman, tender, loving and heroic.

"Outside the Law" will bring back Priscilla Dean in a "crook" role. She plays the part of Silky Moll, daughter of a criminal, a girl born and bred in the underworld, who knows and understands only the code and the morals of the lawless. How the better nature in her is finally stirred until she sees the real things in life with a truer sense of values is beautifully told in this intensely moving, vividly emotional drama by Tod Browning, who is also directing this, his own masterpiece. Introduced into the picture is a strange and fascinating character, who is cryptic and mysterious, who is kind and far-seeing and as wise as the ages. It is he who gives the title to the picture, "Outside the Law," for it is he who deals with the blackguard who is in his power as he sees justly fit, thus bringing about the happiness of two young persons who would otherwise have gone down to their doom.

Months have been spent in the preparation of this picture. Scenes of the Oriental quarters of a big far western city have been so realistically shot that their like has never been flashed on the screen before. Sets of exquisiteness and gorgeousness have been framed, and no detail has been too small to be given the most careful of attention. Tod Browning is promising the biggest work of his career as a director in this Jewel production, bigger yet than "The Virgin of Stamboul," which in the directorial world was an achievement—was epoch-making.

In the cast, beside the spirited star, will be Wheeler Oakman, one of the most handsome and engaging of leading men; Lon Chaney, incomparable "character" actor; E. A. Warren, Ralph Lewis, Melbourne MacDowell, Wilton Taylor, and an adorable youngster, little Stanley Goethals, who will make his screen debut in this production.

Priscilla Dean will be given a wide scope indeed for her emotional talents in this role of Silky Moll. She will be cruel and cold and cutting and contemptuous, and she will be tender and tearful—"just a woman." It will be a role of roles for her, big enough to fit the range of her vivid and striking personality. It is "Pretty Smooth" and "The Wildcat of Paris" and "The Virgin of Stamboul" all in one—the largest order that Priscilla Dean has ever been called upon to fill. It is a role of "moods"—of gray ones and gay ones, of cheer moods and fear moods, one set off against the other, and finally Love—with all the wealth of divine tenderness that it brings with it—consummately portrayed.

"Outside the Law," in which "Priscilla Portrays," will be one of the big things of the artistic year.

You Book Ready-Made Audiences With This

IT'S a fact that in booking "The Virgin of Stamboul" you contract really for capacity audiences rather than merely book the picture. For, no matter where you may be, you can be sure that the fame of this sterling attraction has reached your town and your locality. That means that all you have to do to fill your house is to let it be known that you are presenting the picture that made 1920 famous. Present it NOW.

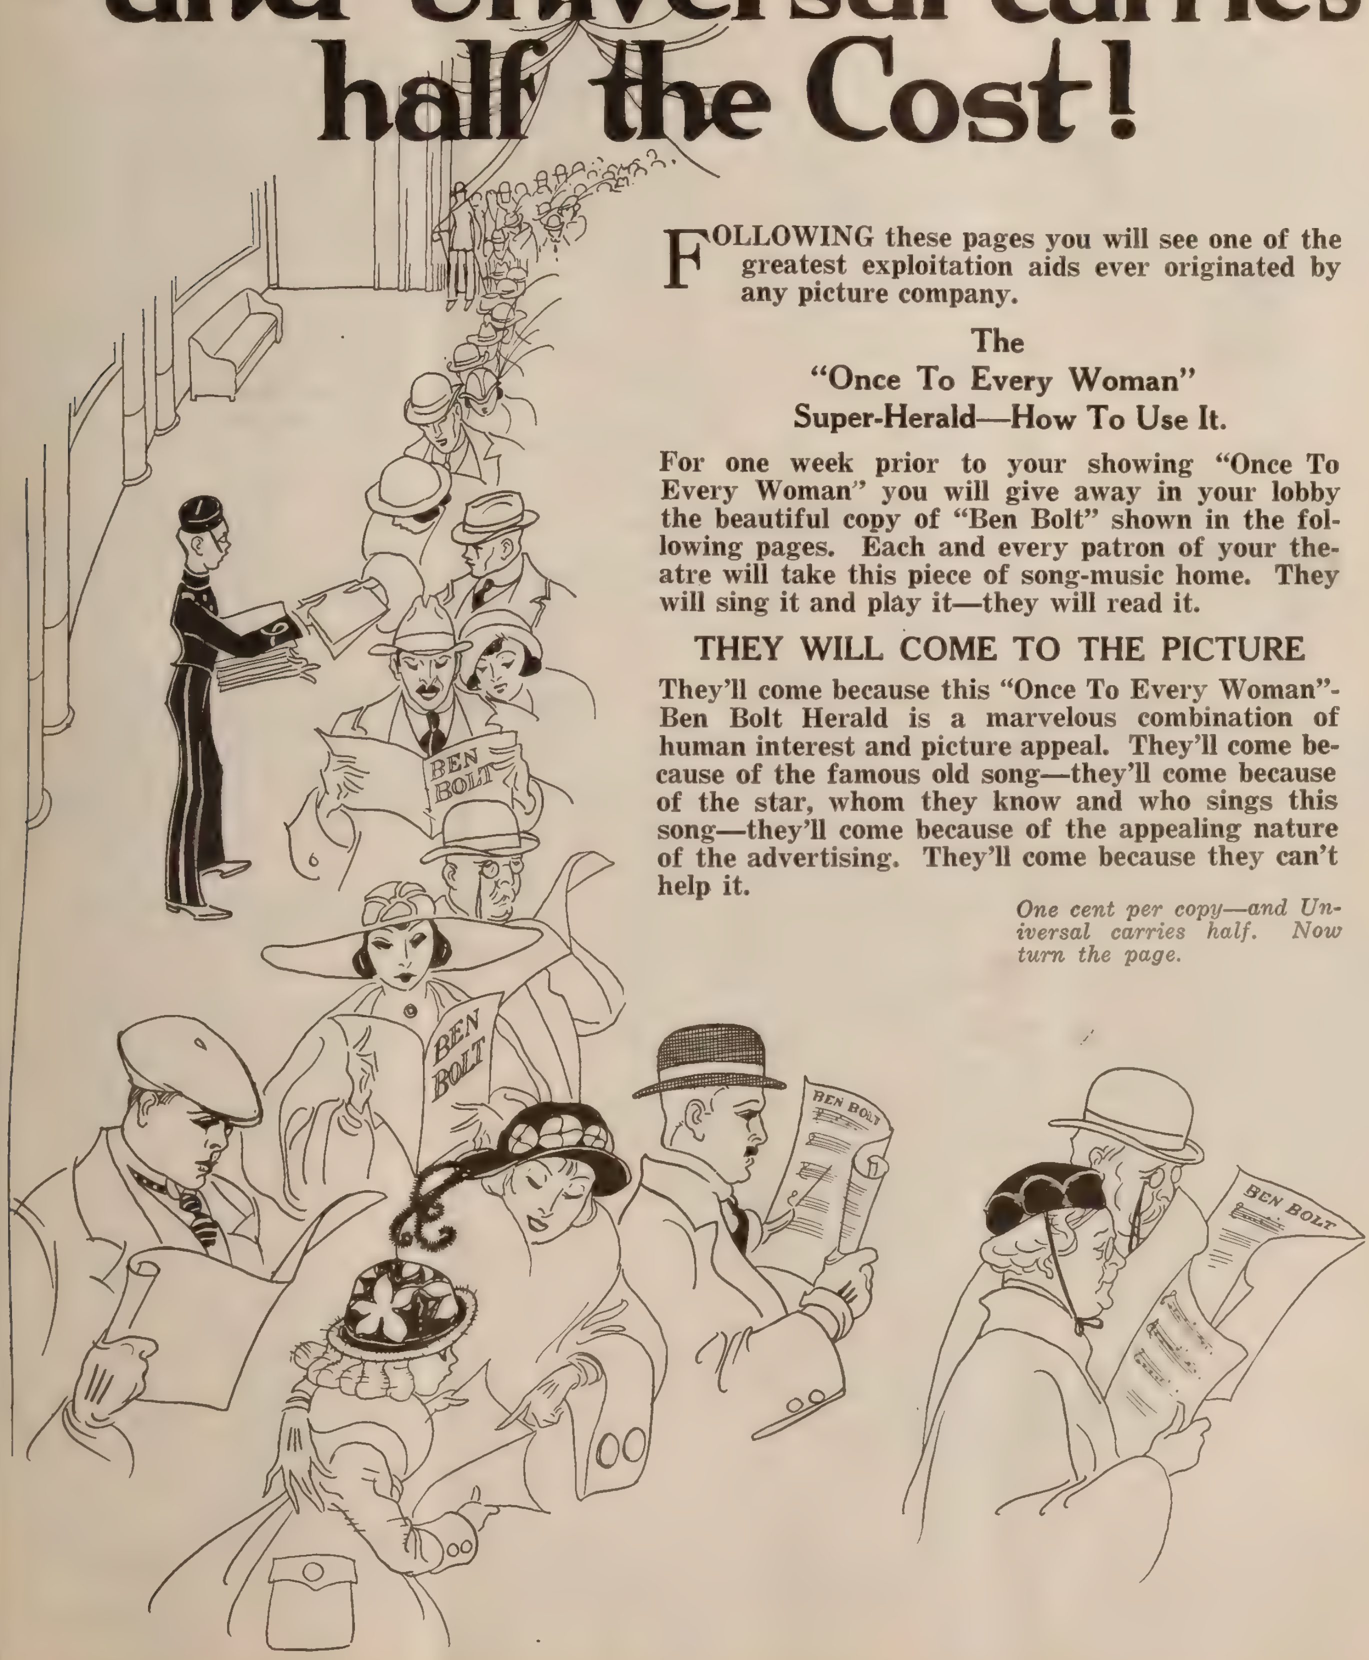
PRISCILLA
DEAN in

"The VIRGIN of STAMBOUL"

DIRECTED BY TOD BROWNING
STORY BY
H.H. VAN LOAN

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE

–and Universal carries half the Cost!



FOLLOWING these pages you will see one of the greatest exploitation aids ever originated by any picture company.

The "Once To Every Woman" Super-Herald—How To Use It.

For one week prior to your showing "Once To Every Woman" you will give away in your lobby the beautiful copy of "Ben Bolt" shown in the following pages. Each and every patron of your theatre will take this piece of song-music home. They will sing it and play it—they will read it.

THEY WILL COME TO THE PICTURE

They'll come because this "Once To Every Woman"-Ben Bolt Herald is a marvelous combination of human interest and picture appeal. They'll come because of the famous old song—they'll come because of the star, whom they know and who sings this song—they'll come because of the appealing nature of the advertising. They'll come because they can't help it.

One cent per copy—and Universal carries half. Now turn the page.

MUSIC STORE
BEN BOLT
5¢
5¢
Get this easy Tie-up and Big Publicity

GO TO YOUR BIGGEST MUSIC STORE

ARRANGE to have these song sheets displayed in a smashing good window display for at least ten days prior to the showing of "Once To Every Woman." The price to you for this super-herald is one cent. Five cents should be the utmost your music dealer should ask for it. By all means see that he asks no more. The cheaper the price the wider the distribution. See that the price is rock bottom.

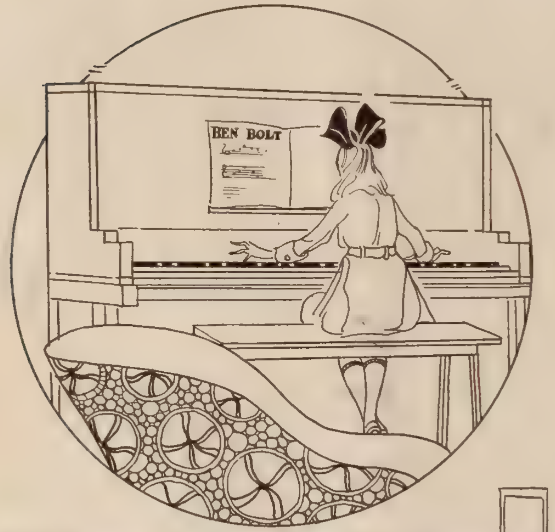
IT'LL BE THE TALK OF THE TOWN

THEY'LL all want a copy of this song—they'll all be singing it—they'll be reading it. And when you show the picture, they'll be jamming your house during the entire run. You can help make it the biggest thing ever pulled in your town.

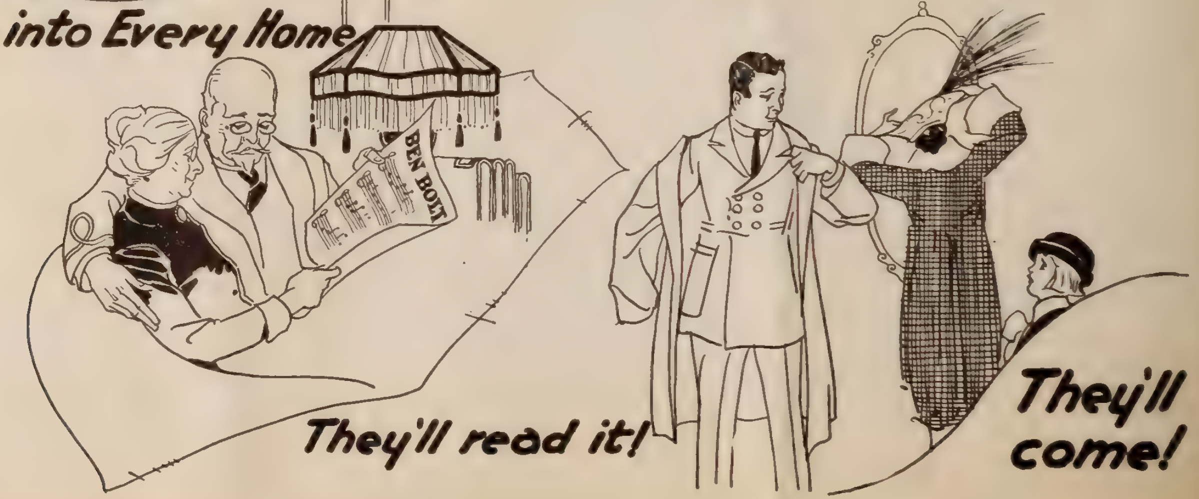
AND UNIVERSAL IS HELPING YOU

SO confident are we that this super-herald will bring you the greatest crowds in the history of your house that we are doing what has seldom been done before: we are duplicating FREE of any COST, any quantity that you buy. Hitch your wagon to this star exploitation stunt when you book "Once To Every Woman" and play to S. R. O. every day.

Now look across at this great crowd-getter—4 pages of it!



BEN BOLT
Will go into Every Home



BEN BOLT
They'll read it!
They'll come!

THE OLD, OLD SONG THAT GAVE BACK TO THE WORLD A GOLDEN VOICE

Ben Bolt

As sung by DOROTHY
PHILLIPS

In the Picture of your Dreams

ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

Ben Bolt

The famous love-so
by Thomas Dunn Eng
1839—which Trilby
De Maurier's story a Dorothy Phillips si an overflowing hear great drama of mothe
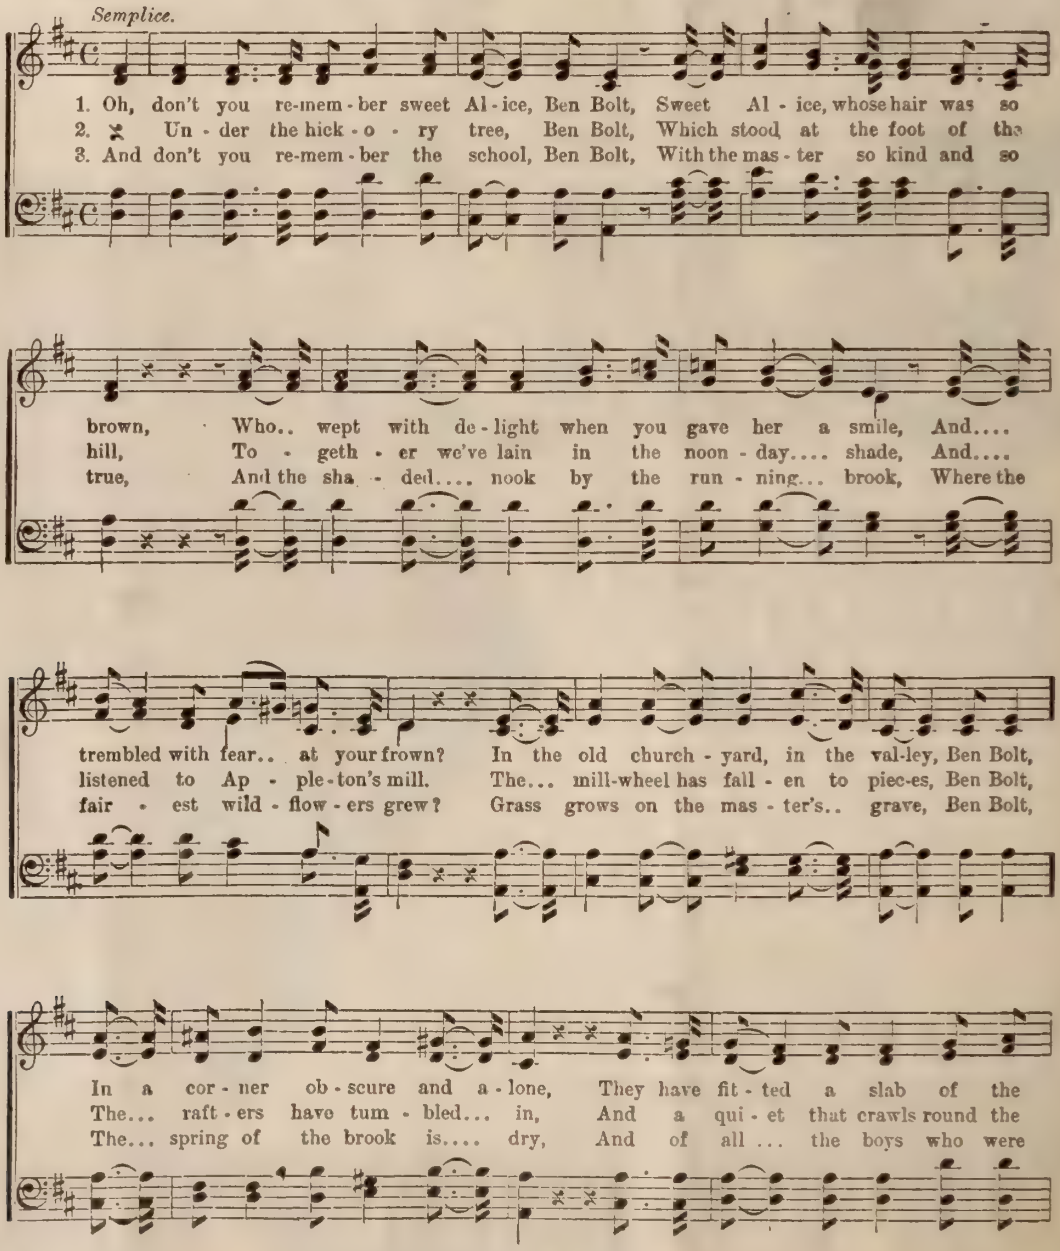
"ONCE TO EVERY W



Semplice.
1. Oh, don't you re-mem-ber sweet Al-ice, Ben Bolt, Sweet Al-ice, whose hair was so
2. Un-der the hick-o-ry tree, Ben Bolt, Which stood at the foot of the
3. And don't you re-mem-ber the school, Ben Bolt, With the mas-ter so kind and so brown, Who.. wept with de-light when you gave her a smile, And.... hill, To-geth-er we've lain in the noon-day.... shade, And.... true, And the sha-ded.... nook by the run-ning... brook, Where the trembled with fear.. at your frown? In the old church-yard, in the val-ley, Ben Bolt, listened to Ap-ple-ton's mill. The... mill-wheel has fall-en to piec-es, Ben Bolt, fair-est wild-flow-ers grew? Grass grows on the mas-ter's.. grave, Ben Bolt,
In a cor-ner ob-scure and a-lone, They have fit-ted a slab of the
The... raft-ers have tum-bled... in, And a qui-et that crawls round the
The... spring of the brook is.... dry, And of all ... the boys who were gran - ite so gray, And sweet Al - ice lies un - der the stone; They have walls as you gaze Has..... fol - lowed the old - - en din; And a school - mates then, There are on - - ly you....... and I; And of ad lib.

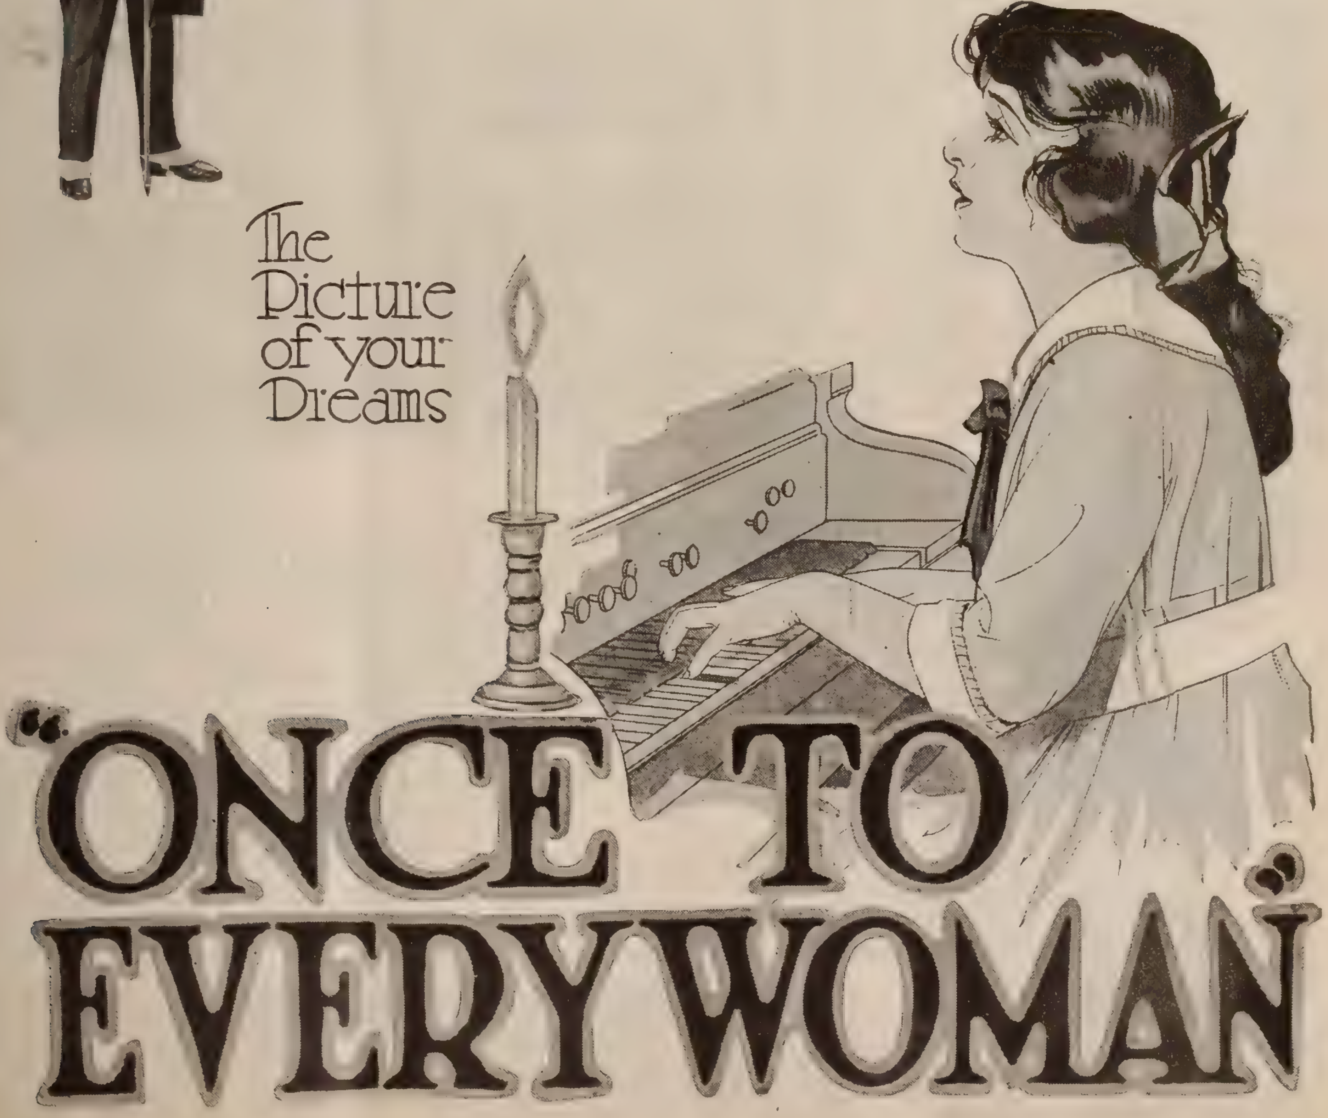
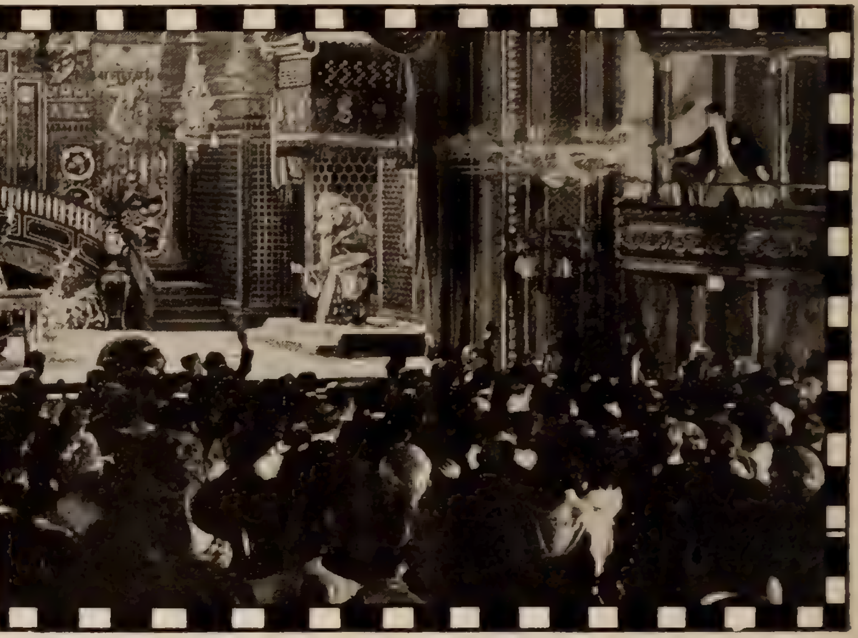
fit - ted a slab of the gran-ite so gray, And sweet Al - ice lies un - der the stone.
qui - et that crawls round the walls as you gaze Has.... fol-lowed the old - - en din.
all.... the boys who were school - mates then, There are on - ly you..... and I.



The Picture of your Dreams
"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

NOTE.- This is the back page of the Ben Bolt Super-Herald for "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

Something told her that a dreadful thing had happened —



MARGARET MANN

The Mother Mine of the "Heart of Humanity"

Supporting

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

In the Greatest Heart Picture of the Generation

CARL
LAEMMLE
presents the
UNIVERSAL JEWEL
Production de Luxe
directed by Allen Holubar

"ONCE to EVERY WOMAN"

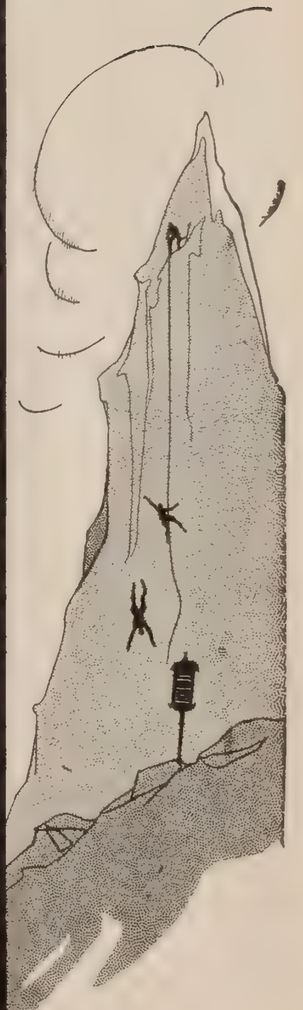
Think of the Profits This Picture Has Made

AND think of the profits it will surely make for you, Mr. Smaller Exhibitor. For this photodramatic masterpiece has delivered the goods everywhere and every time it has been presented. Remember, the longer a picture's record the bigger a hit it is—any time. Here is the golden opportunity for the smaller exhibitor who cannot afford to pay first-run prices on big pictures, but who wants to give his folks the best there is. Grab this for a certain business-getter—NOW



CARL
LAEMMLE
Presents

Von Stroheim's

WONDER
PLAY

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

Universal Jewel Production de Luxe

She's In "Foolish Wives" Too

Mae Busch, the vivacious, an attractive personality in "Foolish Wives."

THE "vixen of screen," Mae Busch, is another one of the attractive feminine personalities who will grace the cast of Eric Von Stroheim's forthcoming gigantic production "Foolish Wives." This should be welcome news indeed for the moviegoer, for Mae Busch's performance of the deliciously naughty dancer, Odera, in "The Devil's Passkey," was an astonishing bit of histrionic art and ever since then they have been wanting more.

Previous to her movie debut, Mae Busch was on the musical comedy stage for several years, playing with some of the well known New York stars. While appearing in the role of a madcap in a musical comedy act in a vaudeville theatre in Los Angeles, her work was observed by a famous producer of screen comedies, who immediately offered her a contract. That was the beginning, and for two years Mae Busch capered to her heart's content in fun-making films. She might have kept on, only a dive from a 40-foot pier caused her to injure herself and she was forced to retire temporarily. It was during this period of recuperation that the spirited comedienne decided that she was through with "the slapstick" forever and when Eric Von Stroheim offered her the role of the Spanish dancer in "The Devil's Passkey," she eagerly accepted the opportunity to develop her talents from a new angle. How successful she was in drama, her splendid performance in "The Devil's Passkey" exemplifies.

In "Foolish Wives," Mae Busch will play the role of the Princess Vera Petchnikoff, naughty idler of the world of sport and fashion, who is also deeply infatuated with the wicked count, portrayed by Von Stroheim. It is another vixenish role for Mae Busch.

A search of the entire field of cinema endeavor fails to reveal an actress better suited for this vixenish type of role than Mae Busch. A daughter of Australia, her native country can well be proud of her achievements. She is young and possessed of great ambitions, and big things are to be looked for from this capable young woman.

Costly Villa Reproduced For Feature

EACH rivaling the other in magnificence, the ninth pretentious outdoor set has been built at Universal City for the use of Erich Von Stroheim in filming "Foolish Wives."

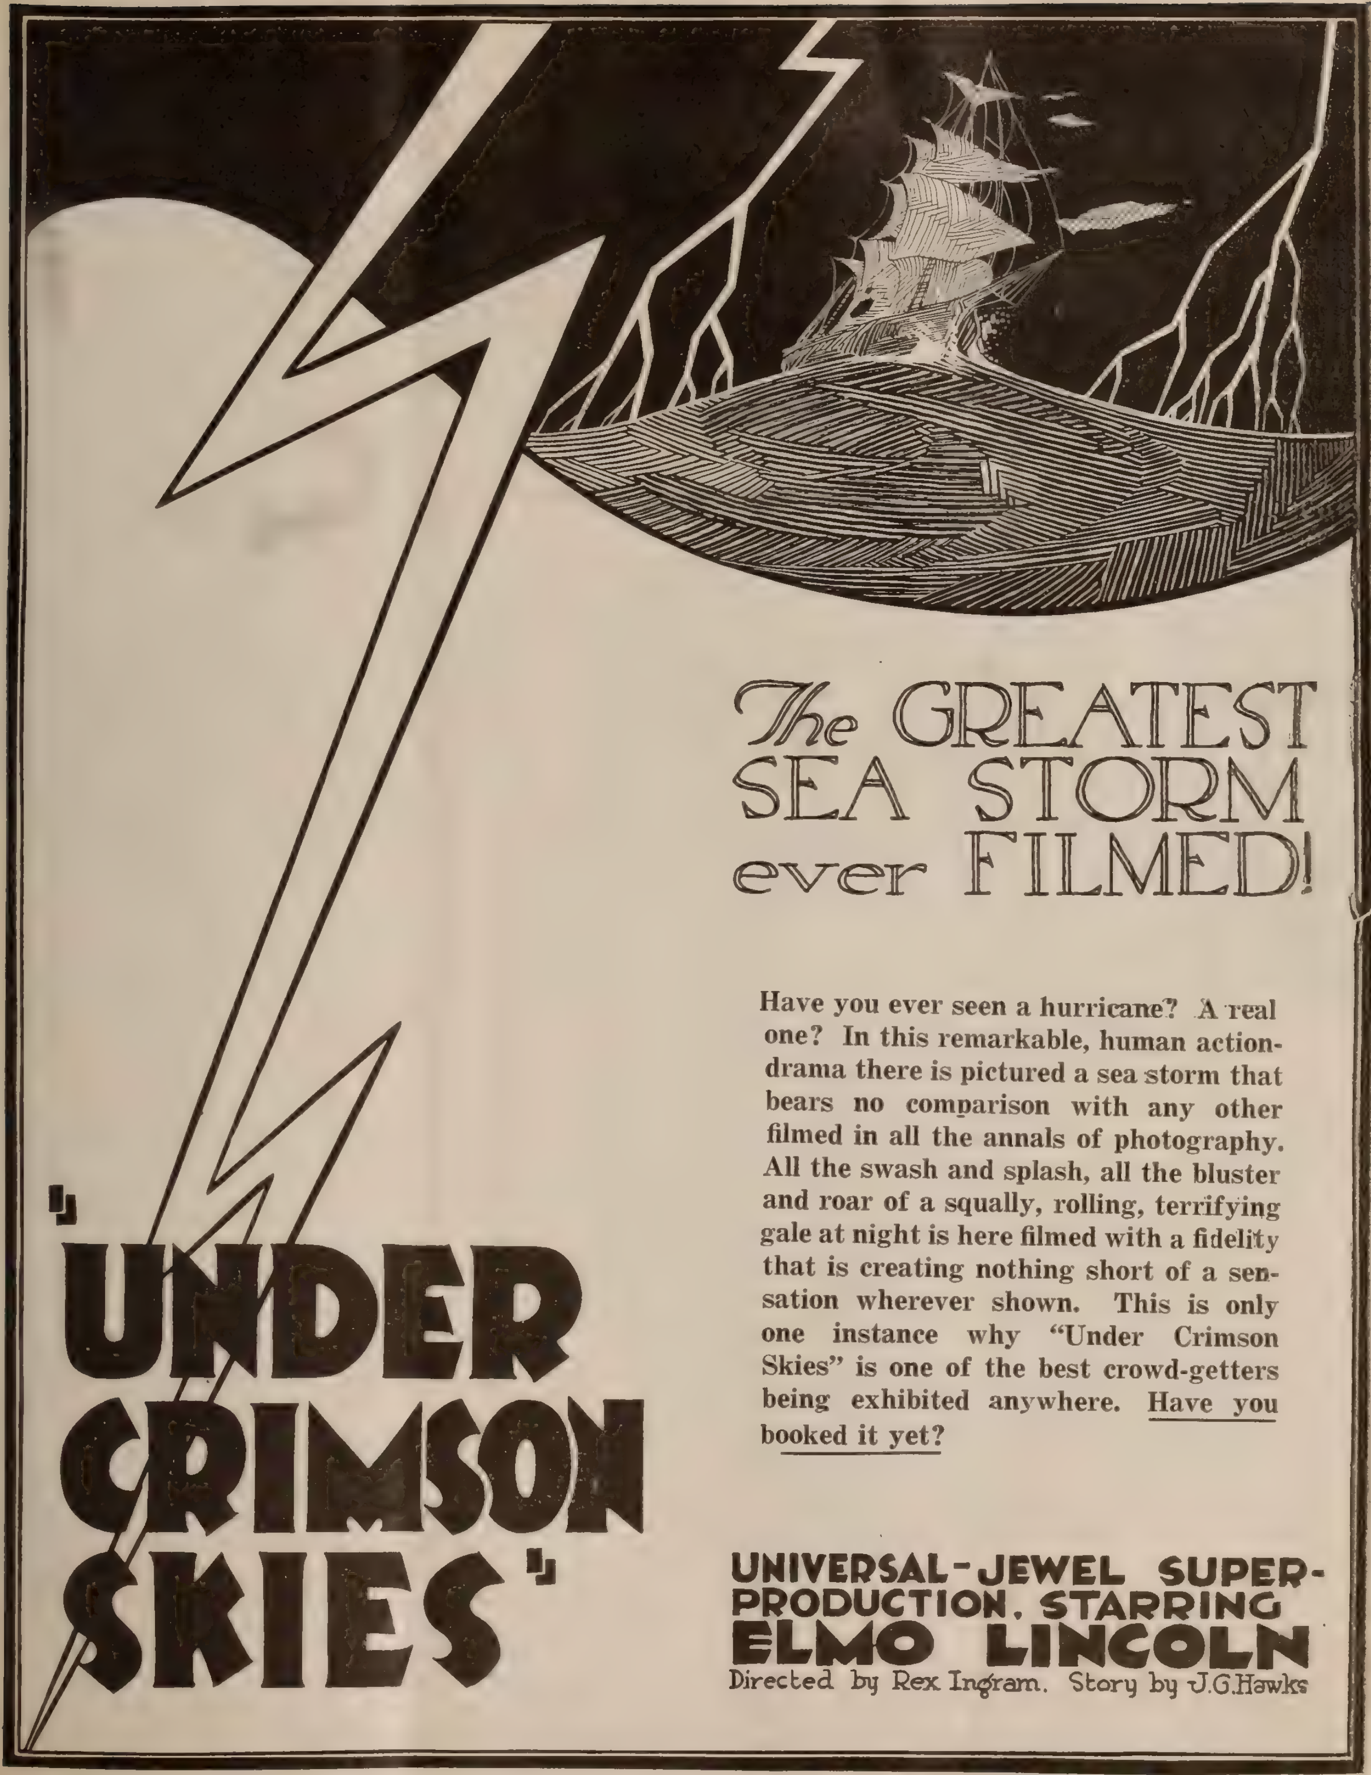
The latest is a French villa which, in the story, is occupied by the Russian count and the women associated with him in his intrigues.

Lending itself admirably to geographical camouflage, Universal City has a beautifully terraced slope upon which the villa was built. To assure realism, the Moorish type edifice was built of a glistening white stone. Its approach is a broad carriageway, flanked with marble steps. Before the house has been constructed a spacious fountain, surmounted by a life-sized statue in the nude and throwing a plume of water high into the air. Rolling away from the house is a spacious terraced lawn. The whole is surrounded by an ornate fence, costing in itself more than the usual motion picture setting.

The natural scenery in which Universal City abounds gives the effect of a splendid estate stretching back from the house to almost unlimited boundaries. In the rear of the house a natural stream has been diverted into a series of decorative lagoons.

The structure was designed by R. H. Day, of the Universal technical staff. A landscape gardner who has established a reputation on the estates of money Californians, designed the terrain surrounding.

Each day brings fresh tales of the wonder of "Foolish Wives." Now it is some gorgeously sculptured fountain which is being reproduced, now some striking landscape gardening effects that are being devised, now some interior decorations that will be the last word in originality and attractiveness. Shrubs and trees ar being imported to Universal City to reproduce faithfully the gardens of Monte Carlo, and the most expert advice in every direction is being sought for and amply paid for to make the whole as real as the original. There is no getting away from it, "Foolish Wives" is going to gather fame, and fame of a substantial and lasting quality. It is one of the biggest things that has ever been attempted in moviedom, and it is giving every promise of living more than up to all the wonderful stories told of it.



The GREATEST SEA STORM ever FILMED!

Have you ever seen a hurricane? A real one? In this remarkable, human action-drama there is pictured a sea storm that bears no comparison with any other filmed in all the annals of photography. All the swash and splash, all the bluster and roar of a squally, rolling, terrifying gale at night is here filmed with a fidelity that is creating nothing short of a sensation wherever shown. This is only one instance why "Under Crimson Skies" is one of the best crowd-getters being exhibited anywhere. Have you booked it yet?

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL SUPER-PRODUCTION, STARRING
ELMO LINCOLN
Directed by Rex Ingram. Story by J.G.Hawks

Service Page for Gladys Walton in "Risky Business"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Risky Business."

STAR—Gladys Walton.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Pink Tights," "The Secret Gift," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Harry Harris.

STORY BY—Douglas Doty and John Colton.

SCENARIO BY—Douglas Doty and John Colton.

SUPPORTING CAST—Lillian Lawrence, Maude Wayne, Nanine Wright, Grant McKay, Fred Malatesta, John Gough, Louis Willoughby, Fred Andrews.

LOCALE—Santa Barbara, California.

TIME—The present.

THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of a mischievous young "flapper" who unwittingly acts as confederate to a modern society Raffles; how her trust in his honor later saves her from a scoundrel's clutches, and how, after several incipient love affairs, she decides she "likes young men best after all."

ADVERTISING PUNCH LINES

1—The youth, beauty and charm of the star.

2—The hit scored by Gladys Walton in her last feature, "Pink Tights."

3—The fact that the story is the combined work of two such brilliant scenarists as John Colton and Douglas Doty.

4—The fact that the scenes of the story are laid in Santa Barbara, permitting the use of picturesque locations and effective settings.

5—The gowns worn by the feminine members of the company comprise a veritable fashion show.

6—The dazzling masquerade ball of the Santa Barbara smart set.

7—The flapper's impromptu shimmie dance which startles the society colony.

8—The excellence of the supporting cast, including Lillian Lawrence, Maude Wayne, Fred Malatesta and Louis Willoughby.

9—A subtle satire on the evolution of social standards in three generations.

10—A spectacular three-cornered fight on board a wave-tossed yacht.

CAST

Philippa	Gladys Walton
Mrs. Fanshaw Renwick,	Lillian Lawrence
Errica	Maude Wayne
Grandma	Nanine Wright
Roger	Grant McKay
Ralli	Fred Malatesta
Valet	John Gough
Capt. Chantry	Louis Willoughby
Dr. Houghton	Fred Andrews

THE STORY

MRS. FANSHAW RENWICK, of New York, Newport and Santa Barbara, famous for her poise, parties and pearls, receives a letter from a friend in England introducing a Captain George Chantry, who soon after arrives. The letter is straight but the captain is crooked.

Philippa Renwick is 18 but as wise as 80. Tiring of the Sunday sport of shooting craps with the fellows and flappers of her set, she starts a rough house with her adoring but boisterous pal, Roger Sherman, and is tipped into the fountain.

Just then her sister Errica, a young matron slightly bored with her business-centered husband, strolls by with Roual Ralli, a dashing, fabulously rich South American. Philippa mischievously throws her dripping person into his immaculate arms. Then she runs into the house just in time to greet Captain Chantry with the sangfroid of a grande dame. "Lovely weather," she says. "A bit damp under foot," he replies smiling.

Piqued because she is not invited to the masque ball her mother is giving the married set at the Casino, she enlists Chantry's aid in a plan to go any way and leave before the unmasking. Chantry seizes the opportunity to further his own scheme.

In fulfillment of their plans, Philippa and Chantry both pretend to retire, then sneak out the window and speed to the Casino in her roadster. Just before the unmasking Philippa dashes on to the ball floor and does a wild dance ending in a series of flip-flops. Chantry, unnoticed, has taken a position behind Mrs. Renwick.

As the dance ends every light goes out and laughter changes to confusion and dismay. Two hands remove the necklace from Mrs. Renwick's shoulders and a silhouetted figure leaps over the balcony and escapes. Philippa overhears Ralli making an appointment with her sister to spend the week-end on his yacht; almost in tears she returns to the roadster to find Chantry apparently just waking up, waiting for her.

The next day the household is upset over the daring robbery, but Philippa is more upset over her sister. She wants to confide in Chantry, but doesn't. "You are so straight and honest you wouldn't understand . . . to-night I have to save a woman's honor." She locks Errica in her room and goes to meet Ralli in her place.

Chantry has already announced that he must leave. Errica appeals to him to follow Philippa and save her from Ralli, but a cable has arrived denouncing him as an impostor and he must make a quick getaway. However, he remembers the flapper's confidence in his squareness and changes his mind.

Ralli is furious when he discovers that the woman on his yacht is not Errica. His fury changes to admiration at the spirit shown by Philipa and he decides she will do very well instead. Chantry comes to her rescue and they leap from the boat together. "I'm afraid you'll lose your train," she murmurs, opening her eyes. "I'm afraid I'm losing more than my train," he replies, meaning his liberty. Philippa thinks he means his heart.

On their return Philippa discovers that Chantry is the man who stole her mother's necklce. Errica saves Chantry from the law, and he leaves, firm in his desire to go straight, leaving behind him a forlorn little flapper with the "I'll-wait-for-you" look in her eyes.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

It was the Sabbath. "Dear Philippa" was shooting craps when the rector called. See "Risky Business" with Gladys Walton.

The flip flapper "fell" for the society raffles—he was a man after her heart, she felt. Instead he was after her mother's pearls.

Innocent as a kitten, mischievous as a monkey, the flip flapper could chatter like a chipmonk, fight like a tiger cat, and dance like the devil.

This pure girl of the innocent heart believed in him—a hardened criminal! To give her happiness, he staked his chance of liberty. It was a liberty stake, well done. See "Risky Business" with Gladys Walton.

Without Question

one of the greatest Artistic and Commercial Successes of the past six months ---

EVERYWHERE — in the box offices of the theatres as well as in the hearts of its record-breaking audiences—this powerful photodrama is registering an unprecedented success. The true measure of success is gained by playing to crowded houses, pleased patrons and large profits. These have been the share of every exhibitor showing this masterdrama and will be yours if you book this,—the feature picture of the year.

Carl Laemmle offers your Box Office Von Stroheim's Universal-Jewel Masterpicture

"The Devil's Passkey"

They're So Human You Can Almost Hear 'Em Yell!

"Hey there! What're you doing with my wife in that position?"

"Well-what position do you want me to hold her in?"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

LYONS AND MORAN

FIXED by GEORGE!

FROM THE STORY by EDGAR FRANKLIN

How to Put Over "FIXED BY GEORGE"

"FIXED BY GEORGE," the latest Lyons-Moran five reel comedy feature has many possibilities in the way of exploitation and the Universal publicity and advertising departments make the following suggestions as aids to the enterprising exhibitor:

In and about the halls of the various schools and colleges and on the notice boards of these institutions, the exhibitor could have attractive card-board signs hung, bearing the following inscription

Fail To Graduate From The University Of Trouble?

You'll Pass With High Marks When You Learn How Such Things Are

"FIXED BY GEORGE"

To Be Shown..........................

At ....

In hotels (particularly where salesmen stop or congregate), in men's clubs, restaurants, etc., a sign such as this would assuredly attract the attention:

Want To Join A Wild Party?

A Cinch—You'll Have The Inside Track If You'll Have It

"FIXED BY GEORGE"

At ....

On ....

The drug stores should not object to having some signs reading

Feeling On The Blink?

Sure Cure Guarantee If You Have It

"FIXED BY GEORGE"

Presented at ....

On ....

In the windows of the real estate offices at this time when their windows are being watched for signs of rooms to let, this sort of sign would register well:

It's in the VACANT HOUSE That All Things Are

"FIXED BY GEORGE"

Coming ....

Beginning ....

With such window display cards as these, scattered about in the various stores in their cities or towns, there is no reason why the curious multitude should not collect before the box-office of the exhibitor showing "Fixed By George."

Should the exhibitor wish to advertise in his local papers, he would assuredly draw the crowd if he would play up the society angle of the picture. On the society page of the particular paper, he could arrange to have an ad in single column reader style worded along these lines:

> SOCIETY SHOCKED TO LEARN OF BIG SCANDAL
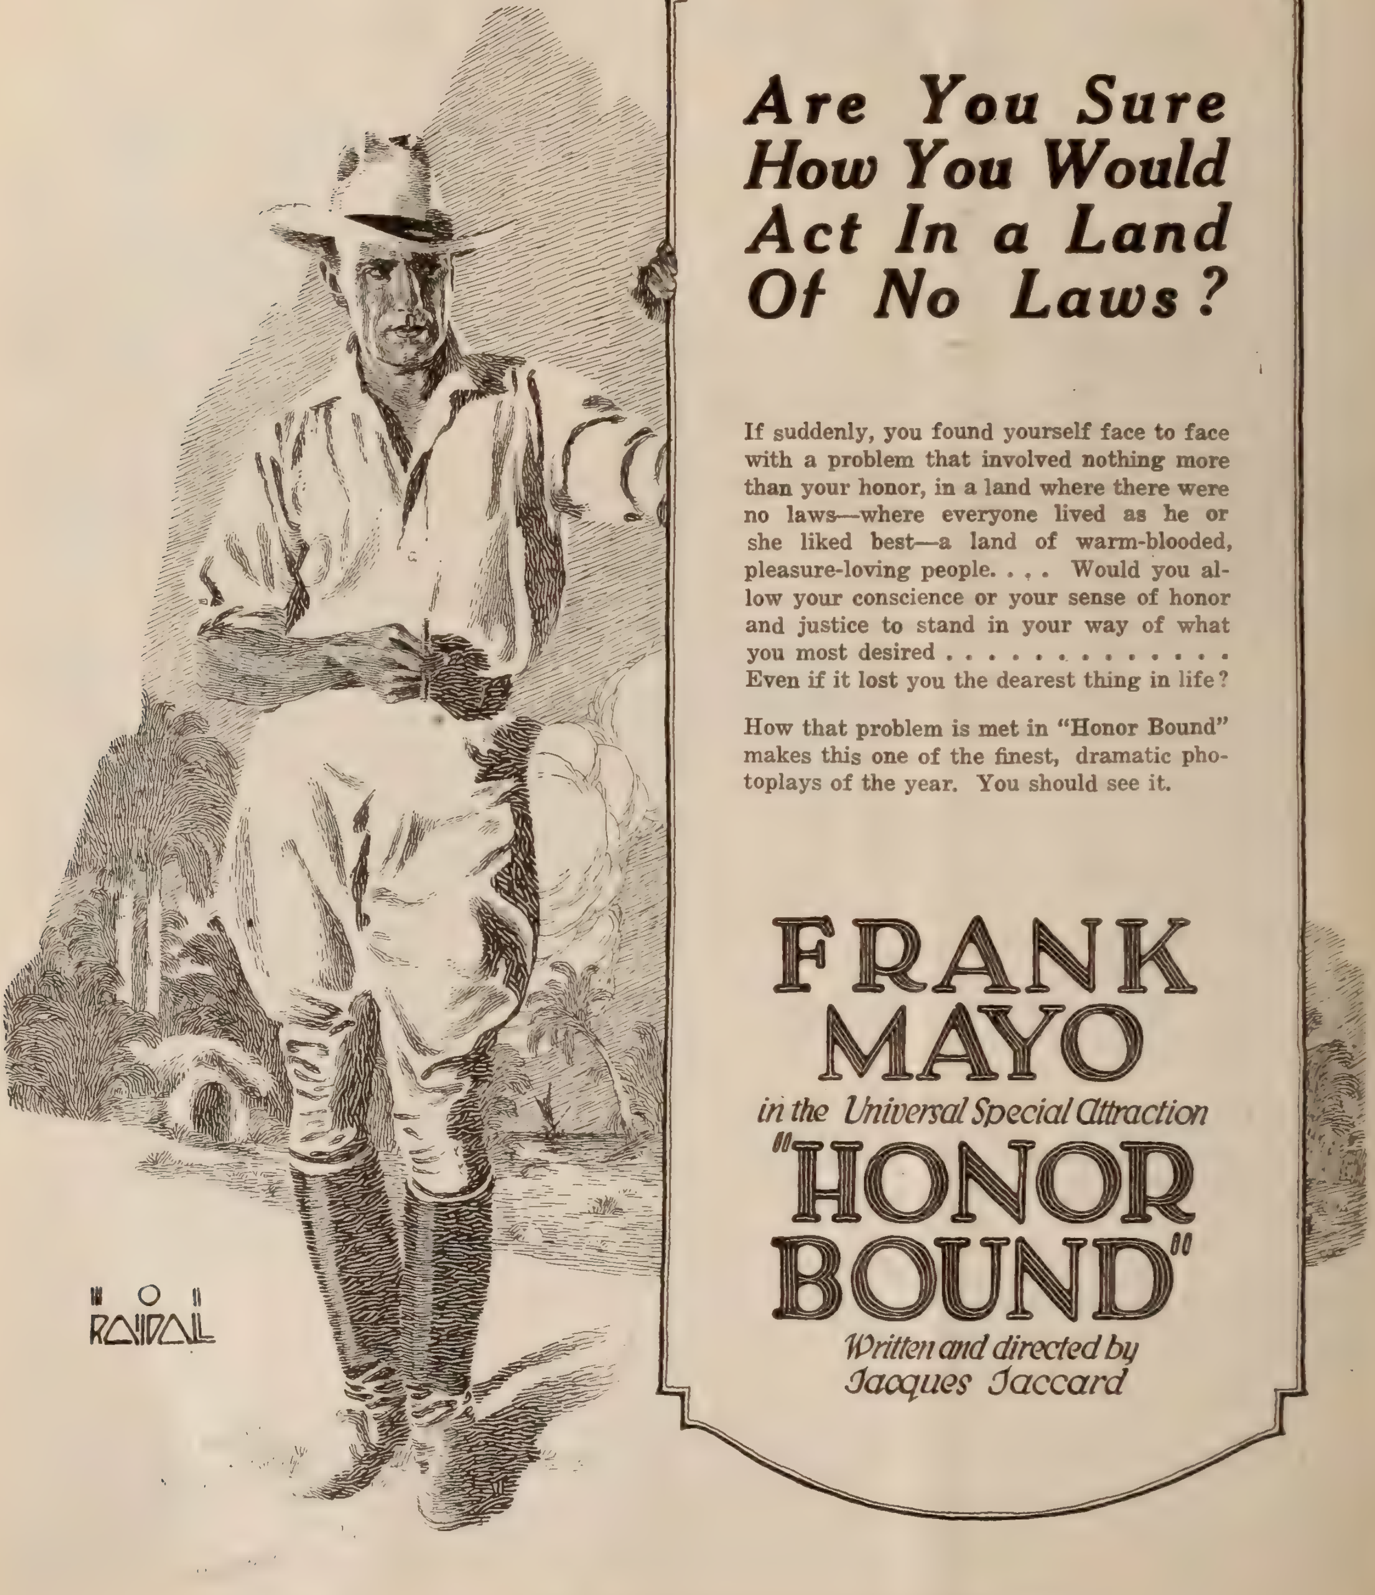
>
> Society will be shocked to hear that the popular debutante, Angelica Starr, was found under rather compromising conditions at a mountain lodge with Doctor Poole by her father. How the doctor and Mr. Starr straightened matters out to the entire satisfaction of all concerned, goes to make the hilariously funny farce "FIXED BY GEORGE" featuring Lyons & Moran now playing at..........................

If your city or town has a number of doctors, insert an ad in the papers, addressed to medical students and doctors, calling attention to the fact that while their wives may not get jealous of their patients, such a situation might arise at a future time. Then play up the fact that this phase of the question is treated in a broad humorous manner in "FIXED BY GEORGE" now being presented at..........................with Lyons & Moran. Call it "Doctor's Night" and if you care to do so, tell them that you expect to see every member of the profession there with his family that evening.



Are You Sure How You Would Act In a Land Of No Laws?

If suddenly, you found yourself face to face with a problem that involved nothing more than your honor, in a land where there were no laws—where everyone lived as he or she liked best—a land of warm-blooded, pleasure-loving people. . . . Would you allow your conscience or your sense of honor and justice to stand in your way of what you most desired . . . . Even if it lost you the dearest thing in life?

How that problem is met in "Honor Bound" makes this one of the finest, dramatic photoplays of the year. You should see it.

FRANK MAYO

in the Universal Special Attraction

"HONOR BOUND"

Written and directed by
Jacques Jaccard

You can get a mat of this cut from your nearest Universal Exchange.

Eva Is One Little Person Who Is A Big "Booster" For Clothes"

Two photographs of Eva Novak, starring in Universal special attractions.

EVA believes in clothes. And believes in them firmly in spite of all the thrift talk and "save-your-money" lectures that have been floating about on the atmosphere lately. For Eva finds that, at least as far as she is concerned, attractive clothes mean thrift in the long run, for she feels far happier mentally when she is well gowned and is consequently able to put forth a much greater effort in the things in which she is engaged in doing. Most of us can appreciate that feeling, for most everyone does feel much more capable when he or she is well dressed.

As a consequence, Eva is the envy of many a woman, for her smartness in dress is distinctive to say the least. But with it all, the beautiful star is not extravagant, but she possesses that sense of fitness in clothes and that originality in sartorial combinations and effects for which every woman who cares particularly about her appearance so earnestly strives.

Eva Novak is now starring in a cinema drama entitled "Wanted At Headquarters," which not only gives her an opportunity to really act, but also to dress in several entirely different styles. And Eva is one of those fortunate individuals who looks just as nifty in evening clothes as she does in sport togs, as the photographs herewith reproduced disclose. She is hard at work at the present time on her next special attraction release entitled "The Torrent," in which she will be called upon to portray a fashionable society woman, and naturally some startling creative effects in the way of costumes are to be looked for from Eva in a role of this sort.

Eva Novak is by no means attempting to rest on the laurels of her sister, the famous Jane Novak. She is not alone an individual in dress but in everything that she does, and she stands squarely upon her own two feet. Her portrayal of "the crime queen" in "Wanted At Headquarters" was a distinctly individual one and gave proof that Eva Novak was more than a dazzling blonde beauty—she was a mighty capable little actress. And she is a versatile little actress, too, for before she attempted more serious roles, she captivated moviegoers by her clever acting in a number of light comedy features.

Don't You Wish They Would Come Your Way?

JEROME, Arizona, is the richest mining town in the west, but all the same life is not unusually exciting there. But for nearly three weeks Jerome was the envy of all the neighboring towns, for Harry Carey and his Universal company of forty people located there for the filming of certain scenes in "West Is West." Jerome is a sun-baked community of some six thousand inhabitants, and it is the locale of the United Verde mines, the richest copper mines in the world.

As soon as the citizens of Jerome discovered that a motion picture company would be in their midst for several weeks, plans were made to entertain the actors, and a program of social events was laid out, in most of which the company was unable to participate owing to the fact that they were working about sixteen hours out of every twenty-four.

Harry Carey and his players were met at the station by the entire juvenile population and many of the grown-ups, and a band accompanied them to the hotel One entertainment was arranged at the town's leading motion picture theatre, where Carey made a personal appearance. During their stay the star and his principal players, as well as Val Paul, the director, were entertained at the home of Charles Clark, son of the Senator, who is in charge of the United Verde and the Daisy mines, probably the richest copper cavity in existence at the present time.

A carload of electrical equipment was sent from Universal City to Arizona to properly illuminate the underground chambers for the making of the scenes. Two miles of cable were used in carrying the current to the required depths.

Jerome, Arizona, will never forget the Carey visit. It will be a source of conversation for many weeks to come. Jerome never harbored more welcome guests, and the inhabitants of many another town wished that the entertaining movie company would have "come their way."

"West Is West" is a real western picture, and as such excellently suited to the individual talents of Harry Carey. It is from the pen of Eugene Manlove Rhodes, that creator of excellent "western stuff." Rhodes knows his West thoroughly, for he lived the life of a ranchman and cowboy for some twenty years and his stories are filled with "atmosphere" that is authentic. Carey has surrounded himself with the three bad men again in his picture, namely, Ted Brooks, Jos. Harris and Charles Le Moyne, and in addition he has two attractive girls with him in the persons of Sue Mason and the petite Mignonne.

PO
PA
PO-ICE
PAROL

DO YOU LIKE THEM?

IF you do, you can see them easily enough in Century Comedies, for they are the adorable, beautiful little comediennes who caper so gracefully through these entertaining two-reel mirth-provokers. These scenes are taken from two recent Century releases, "Twin Crooks" and "A Fishy Story," and they are among the best entertainment that Century Comedies has produced.

But Century Comedies have more besides beautiful girls to their credit. They have real honest-to-goodness funny comedians, and Bud Jamison, the fat man, and Charles Dorothy, the thin man, are a team that can scarce be excelled.

No expense is spared in the making of Century Comedies. The best that is to be had in the way of directors is utilized and the directorial staff includes such well-known names as Fred Fishback, Chuck Reisner, William Watson and Jimmy Davis. Large and expensive sets are often demolished in the acting-out of the capers and the cost of costumes does not seem to worry the feminine contingent.

"A Hundred Laughs—That's a 'Century' " are the truest words ever spoken. Every Century Comedy has faithfully lived up to them.

"I'm Glad I'm In"

Charming Leading Lady Of "Two Reel Westerns" Constantly Happy Over Her New Work In Films

Dorothy Wood, petite and blonde, who plays leading lady to the spirited "Hoot" Gibson

IT isn't always easy to talk to Dorothy Wood, because Dorothy has a pretty big job on her hands that keeps her busy as a bee. For Dorothy Wood is THE Dorothy who supports the dashing cowboy "Hoot" Gibson in his actionful two-reel western comedy dramas, and whenever you want her she is out on location or working up this scene or that to keep the movie fans constantly supplied with the brand of picture of which they are so fond.

But once some one was lucky enough to get Dorothy in, as she was resting in her cosy dressing room, and when Dorothy was asked the whys and wherefores and yeas and nays of her movie life she simply answered, "I'M GLAD I'M IN." Which wasn't very much to say, but which said a great deal.

Dorothy Wood is a comparative newcomer to the screen, her entire career on the silver-sheet not comprising more than two years at the most. Vaudeville patrons will recollect the dancing act which she performed in "the two-a-day" with her twin sister from the time they were children. Later Dorothy did a turn with Bobby Heath, the well-known song writer in vaudeville, and then drifted for a successful season to straight comedy on the legitimate.

One fine day Dorothy went home to Philadelphia to rest, but producers are always after talented and pretty young girls, more particularly when their beauty is the type of Dorothy's, and before she realized it, Dorothy was tied up to play ingenue leads in a new film producing company. She accordingly packed up bag and baggage and betook herself to California, where two weeks later she was informed that the company had gone "smash." Nothing daunted, Dorothy decided that she would get into those movies anyway and "in" she did get, though only in a minor way in Century Comedies, which Fred Fishback was producing. After a season in comedies, Dorothy got a job playing opposite Bob Reeves, the cowboy actor, in a western picture called "Finger Prints." And Dorothy has been playing in "Westerns" ever since.

"Hoot" Gibson saw Dorothy in the studio one day and asked her if she would like to be his leading lady in one of his two-reel western comedy dramas. Dorothy was eager for the chance, and as a result there is to-day the "Hoot" Gibson—Dorothy Wood—Western Combination, and the pictures that the breezy cowboy and the adorable little blonde girl are in are as entertaining as any the movies have to offer.

Dorothy Wood has never regretted deserting the stage for the movies. She finds far more interest in the films and far greater opportunity to develop her talents. And she thinks that educationally the movies have a great deal to offer the ambitious girl.

To look at the blonde-haired, dark-eyed little lady as she is pictured on this page, one would scarcely believe that this daintily gowned bit of femininity is the same "be-trousered" Dorothy who rides a horse in real western style, who shoots with all the ease of a real cowgirl, who throws a lariat with undisturbed poise, and whose "Sunday-go-meeting-gown" in the pictures is usually a striped sport blouse and a short corduroy skirt. But that is just the wonderful part about Dorothy. She can wear an evening gown with the same ease and effectiveness that she can wear the mannish togs of the western girl. And in her "most western" moments, when she is tearing down a hill on her horse at red hot speed, she is still the distinctively dainty, distinctly feminine Dorothy Wood.

Universal was among the first to recognize the value of "short stuff"—to provide for the one and two reelers as good stories as were given the bigger features, as careful direction and as competent players. The two reel westerns have "Hoot" Gibson, a star with lots of personality—the stories around which they revolve are full of "go" and "punch" and the directors are the most competent that can be procured. And then there is Dorothy Wood, as leading lady, to further prove that "short stuff," like these two reel westerns, is not hastily thrown together to round out a program. For Dorothy Wood is a personality to be reckoned with—pretty, graceful, clever and vivacious.

Carmel Myers, Universal star, in her new Kissel Kar

This Helps To Keep Carmel Fit

CARMEL MYERS is young and pretty and vivacious, and her dancing is the envy of all the girls who know her, and yet Carmel has never succumbed to a round of balls, cabarets and indoor parties. Of course, she does that occasionally like every other girl, but Carmel believes principally in the out-of-doors and spends most of her leisure time there. Which may account in a great degree for Carmel's animation and good looks.

Carmel swims well and plays tennis and golf, but principally she likes to speed across the beautiful California country, far from the populated highways, in her automobile. She has recently purchased for herself a new Kissel car, and that car is doing some considerable mileage nowadays. The photographer snapped Carmel in her car one day; and, judging from the wind-shield, she must have been out on quite a journey. At any rate, it is the opinion of auto experts and enthusiasts in the neighborhood of Universal City that Carmel Myers, although a mere slip of a girl, can handle a car a great deal better than most members of her sex, and in many instances as capably as a man.

Moviegoers have witnessed two excellent productions from Carmel Myers since she deserted the Broadway footlights for her first love, the movies, some six months ago. The first was "In Folly's Trail," the second "The Gilded Dream," both of which were directd by Rollin Sturgeon. Her next release will be called "Beautifully Trimmed," and it is already in the hands of the cutter. In this she was directed by a newcomer, the young Marcel de Sano, and the new combination of a young and gifted str with a young and gifted director is being awaited with considerable anticipation.

The scenario department of Universal is keenly aware of the talents and attractiveness of Carmel Myers, and much care is taken in the selection of vehicles for her, as her first two pictures, "In Folly's Trail" and "The Gilded Dream," give proof. Some splendid stories have already been selected for her forthcoming releases, and experts are hard at work getting these in shape for her.

Stuart Paton Directs Eva Novak For Universal

AFTER an absence of over two years from the Universal City studios, where he first established a reputation as one of the foremost directors in motion pictures, Stuart Paton has returned to the film capital as director for Universal's newest star, Eva Novak.

Paton has recently completed Miss Novak's first photoplay, "Wanted at Headquarters," and is now at work on her next starring vehicle, "The Torrent," from the story by George Ricks.

Stuart Paton's attention was directed towards the silent drama ten years ago, when he began writing scenarios. His success was so marked that he came to Universal City a few years ago as scenario editor. When a certain director failed to grasp his meaning in a certain story, he took the megaphone and showed how the scene should be played. Gradually he turned his talents towards direction. A number of successful features were made on his supervision, the biggest hit of them all being "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

The Universal director was born in Glasgow, Scotland, began life as an artist and gravitated towards the stage. He was for six years a member of the famous stock company at Kings Way Theatre, London.

ASK ANY GIRL

Ask any girl if she'd like to be in the movies. Let her answer be your guide in deciding whether or not you would benefit in a big way by tying up your theatre with the great subscription contest now being conducted by the Dramatic Mirror, famous stage and screen weekly, in conjunction with Universal.

Through this contest three girls—perhaps one or all three from your town—will be given contracts to appear in Universal pictures. Every girl who puts forth a certain degree of effort will receive a beautiful string of the famous Nataline Pearls, plus a commission on every subscription.

Think of the publicity and word-of-mouth advertising your house will get if you make it the theatre around which the efforts of the women revolve; think of the extra admissions—now and in future—it will mean to you.

So, as a sure way of building prestige for your house, it's certainly up to you to write to-day for particulars to the Dramatic Mirror, 133 West 44th Street, New York, N. Y.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 6

"The Lion's Claws"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
Helen	Pansy Porter

THE trunk wagon, with Eddie a prisoner within, settles at the bottom of the harbor just off the end of the dock. As the water pours in and Eddie is about to drown, a steamer slides into the dock and its keel scrapes the top off the wagon, releasing Eddie. He rises to the surface with the wallet in his hand and Gray and his men see him.

Helen too has been watching. She starts out in a launch which is piloted by the Unknown, and goes to Eddie's rescue. Gray and his men get another launch and go in pursuit. When Helen picks up Eddie he opens the wallet and they find a deed from Gray to Paul Polo, Eddie's father, giving him Gray's Circus. This deed convinces Eddie of Gray's crookedness—he sees now the reason Winters was shot and also the reason for the various attempts upon his own life. He places the deed on the canvas covered top of the cabin to dry.

Gray's boat now runs alongside and Gray and his men jump aboard. A spirited fight follows, in which Gray succeeds in getting the deed—and he gets ashore with it, while Eddie and Helen follow in a vain effort to prevent his destroying it. They arrive in time to see Gray burn it up—but as he does so Gray notices the name of the town in which the deed was recorded, as well as the number of the book and the page. He is interrupted before he has finished his work and Eddie gets the last piece of paper and also makes note of the number of the page and book. Both men determine to go at once to the Hall of Records in San Luis—Gray for the purpose of destroying the records and Eddie to prove his claim. Meanwhile, the Unknown, who is on the launch, discovers that the sun made a clear print of the deed on the canvas on top of the cabin, where Eddie had placed it to dry. He cuts this piece of canvas out and puts it away.

Gray goes back to the circus first, and Eddie follows in order to see what has become of Mary, who has been locked in Gray's compartment on the circus special and is guarded by Gray's pet lioness Jezebel. They arrive at night as the circus is being loaded and Eddie enters the compartment of the train in which Mary is confined, while Helen waits near the freight cars behind. As Eddie enters the compartment the lioness attacks him, and at the same moment a big parade wagon topples off a flat car and knocks Helen down.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 9

"The Floating Mine"

THE gang, however, get the draw on Elmo and Helen and take from them part of the flaming disk. They burn up the shack but Elmo and his sweetheart escape.

The crimesters discover a pit in the vicinity of the shack when one of their members accidentally falls into it. They dress one of the men as the mysterious motorcyclist and tell him to get Elmo to the place as Jim, his brother, is dying and wants him. Elmo is lured there and falls into the pit. Helen is taken by some of the others, who proceed with her to Stanton's shack in Snake Canyon.

Stanton, believing Elmo dead, lowers himself into the pit in order to procure the other half of the lens. But Elmo had in the interim regained his senses and strength, and overpowers Stanton, making his escape from the pit on the rope which Stanton had left swinging from above.

He follows in hot pursuit of Helen, and in taking a desperate chance, rescues her. He heads for the river with her, but is observed by the gang. Elmo resorts to an old Indian trick, that of floating across the river under a hastily constructed raft. The gang get wise, and procuring some dynamite from the Wade cache, they float a mine across the narrows, which meets the raft in the center, exploding it with terrific force. Where are Elmo and Helen?

New Screen Magazine

No. 94

THE past glory of the Indian Empire is well exemplified in the Great Temple of Rameswarem, filled with rich corridors of magnificent statues of men and gods. The carvings in the temple are unique.

In a quaint little Cape Cod town lives an old toy maker who makes the most wonderful play contrivances, and particularly portrays here the making of a hat out of shavings.

The Metropolitan Museum of New York City has assembled the remains of a gigantic animal which once terrorized the world.

In this issue of the magazine there is a Pat Sullivan cartoon entitled "Sammie White Presents Hisself in 'Perils of de Jungle.'"

"Superstition"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Dave Bodie	Hoot Gibson
Mr. Moss	Chas. Newton
Joe Fields	Jim Corey
Hallie Moss	Dorothy Wood
Sadie Moore	Betty Keller

DAVE BODIE, homesteader, is superstitious to a great degree. He believes in evil omens and to a certain extent they govern his every move. This despite the fact that otherwise he is a courageous young man.

Dave is engaged to marry the local school teacher. He meets her on the road home from school and together they sit by a stream talking. The conversation is interrupted by Dave's finding a horseshoe which elates him because he assumes that it means the speedy arrival of good luck. Hallie, the teacher, is above superstition and a quarrel grows out of their opposing ideas on the subject, Hallie ending by throwing away the shoe and returning Dave's engagement ring.

He has not yet reached home when angry at the turn of events, he kicks a can from his path, which frightens a team down below which is being driven townwards by Sadie, the sweetheart of Joe Fields, ranch foreman. Realizing that he is to blame for the runaway. Dave rides after the team and performs a rescue. He drives the team to town for the girl, which action is misunderstood by both Hallie and Joe. Joe is about to take a shot at Dave, but is prevented from it by his friends, who suggest a less dangerous means of revenge.

A few days later Dave receives notice that a contest has been filed against his claim. He is disheartened at this bit of bad luck. He tosses away a cigarette and goes in his shack. The cigarette sets fire to grass and the shack takes fire. Dave goes to the water bucket and finds it empty. He starts to pump water and in his excitement breaks off the pump handle. The house burns. He is accused by Fields of setting it afire deliberately. A fight follows, in which Dave is victor. Hallie, hearing of the contest, is remorseful at her action in throwing away the horseshoe and in sorrow goes to the scene of the quarrel, where she finds the shoe and also the engagement ring which Dave has thrown away in anger.

After whipping Joe. Dave advises him to ask Sadie for the explanation. Fields does so and learns the true state of affairs of how he happened to be driving her. He tears up the contest notice and the two men become friends. Hallie returns to town with the shoe and ring, which she uses to patch up their quarrel.

Bubbles of Life,
Love and
Laughter
Century Comedies

International News

No. 77

New York City.—Make way for the Girl Scouts. Thousands march just like doughboy veterans in great Fifth Avenue parade.

Sub-Titles.—And all in step. While the Boy Scouts greet General George Nivelle, famous French commander and hero of Verdun.

South Hatfield, Pa.—Getting ready for Thanksgiving feast. These gobblers do not realize their approaching doom.

Sub-Titles.—If Turkey's too high, try mutton chops—and they're as cheap as Kohinoor diamonds this year. For the old reliable pork chop—a whole one for only a week's salary.

In the Public Eye.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon goes back to the House on the Republican tidal wave—Washington, D. C.

Sub-Titles.—But Champ Clark, veteran Democratic leader, loses out after many years of valiant service. Lloyd George, survivor of many a ballot battle, is once again the central figure in Britian's political struggle, Carnarvon, Wales. Ambassador Hugh Wallace, representing the United States, decorates Admiral Lacase of the French Navy, with the Distinguished Service Medal—Paris, France.

Boston, Mass.—First Corps Chiefs hold conference. Major-General Shanks assembles Adjutant-Generals to discuss important army problems (For Boston only.)

Sub-Titles.—Left to right—Adjutant-Generals Abbot, Cole, Stevens, General Shanks, Colonel Presson and Adjutant-General Johnson. General Shanks commander of the First Corps Area.

Yokohama, Japan.—Jap "doll houses" destroyed by fire. Tinder-box homes easy prey for flames.

Sub-Titles.—Primitive methods save little from flames. The blaze makes speedy headway in the absence of modern fire-fighting apparatus.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard and Princeton battle to a tie in great gridiron classic.

Marion, O.—With the President-elect. Senator Harding escorted by Girl Scouts, leaves for a much needed rest.

Washington, D. C.—Washington upside-down. U. S. Army Air Service daredevils show how the Capitol may have looked to Mr. Wilson the morning after election.

Sub-titles.—That's the Capitol in its normal state November 2nd—and here's how it looked to some folks November 3rd. After the returns kept coming in—whe-e-e! Hold your seat—we're off again. Mr. Washington's monument seems to be there—substantial as ever. But this is all certain parties on Cabinet Avenue could see the morning after.

"Shapes and Scrapes"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE is a sweeper in a modiste shop and working with dummies, her brains are naturally affected. Her little boy is always with her and gives poor Lizzie additional trouble, particularly when he takes it upon himself to climb out of the window and sit on the ledge surrounding the fourth story.

Two crooks enter, a man and a woman, and the woman, in pretending to purchase a gown, gets some "dope" on the boss and his safe. At the opportune moment, she tips off her pal and he battles with the proprietor behind a curtain. Lizzie comes in and notices the struggling behind the curtain. She climbs into the safe for safety, locking the door behind her.

The crook, in his mad efforts to open the safe, blows off the door, and out walks Lizzie, covered with the molten metal of the exploded door, and facing the crook with a gun in her hand. Her youngster, in the meantime, has rung the burglar alarm, and the cops arrive in time to help Lizzie maintain her new role of "crook catcher" and heroine.

"Hot Dog"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring
BROWNIE, THE WONDER DOG

LILLIAN'S uncle dies, leaving her his fortune and appointing Duffy as her guardian. Duffy is anxious for his son Zip to marry Lillian because of her money, but, unfortunately, Zip has a wife and child. He has Zip's wife locked up, hides the child, and then endeavors to have Lillian marry Zip.

Harry is Lillian's lover. Duffy tries to keep him from seeing Lillian, but love will find a way, and the two manage to see each other in spite of all. After many chases, Harry finally wins Lillian for his bride.

In the meantime, all would not have been well for the baby, but Brownie keeps a watchful eye, safeguards the child and in the end proves to be the hero of the day.

International News

No. 78

Annapolis, Md. — Naval Cadets march before General Nivelle, the hero of Verdun.

Sub-title.—They'll almost eat out of a child's hand.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—French heroes who died here, honored. Monument unveiled to twenty sons of France.

Peoria, Ill.—King Turkey's rivals. Huge flocks of geese raised for the holiday feasts.

London, England.—In heart of London, vast throngs honor dead Lord Mayor MacSwiney. (Outside the St. George Cathedral where the body lay in state.)

Sub-titles.—Count Plunkett (bearded) and the Lord Mayor of Dublin. Sinn Fein pipers lead the procession. Archbishop Mannix, barred from Ireland, blesses the coffin of the martyr-patriot. All London looked on amazed as thousands of Sinn Fein adherents joined in the imposing procession.

New York City.—Steamer ablaze. Liner "El Hundo" towed into midstream with holds afire.

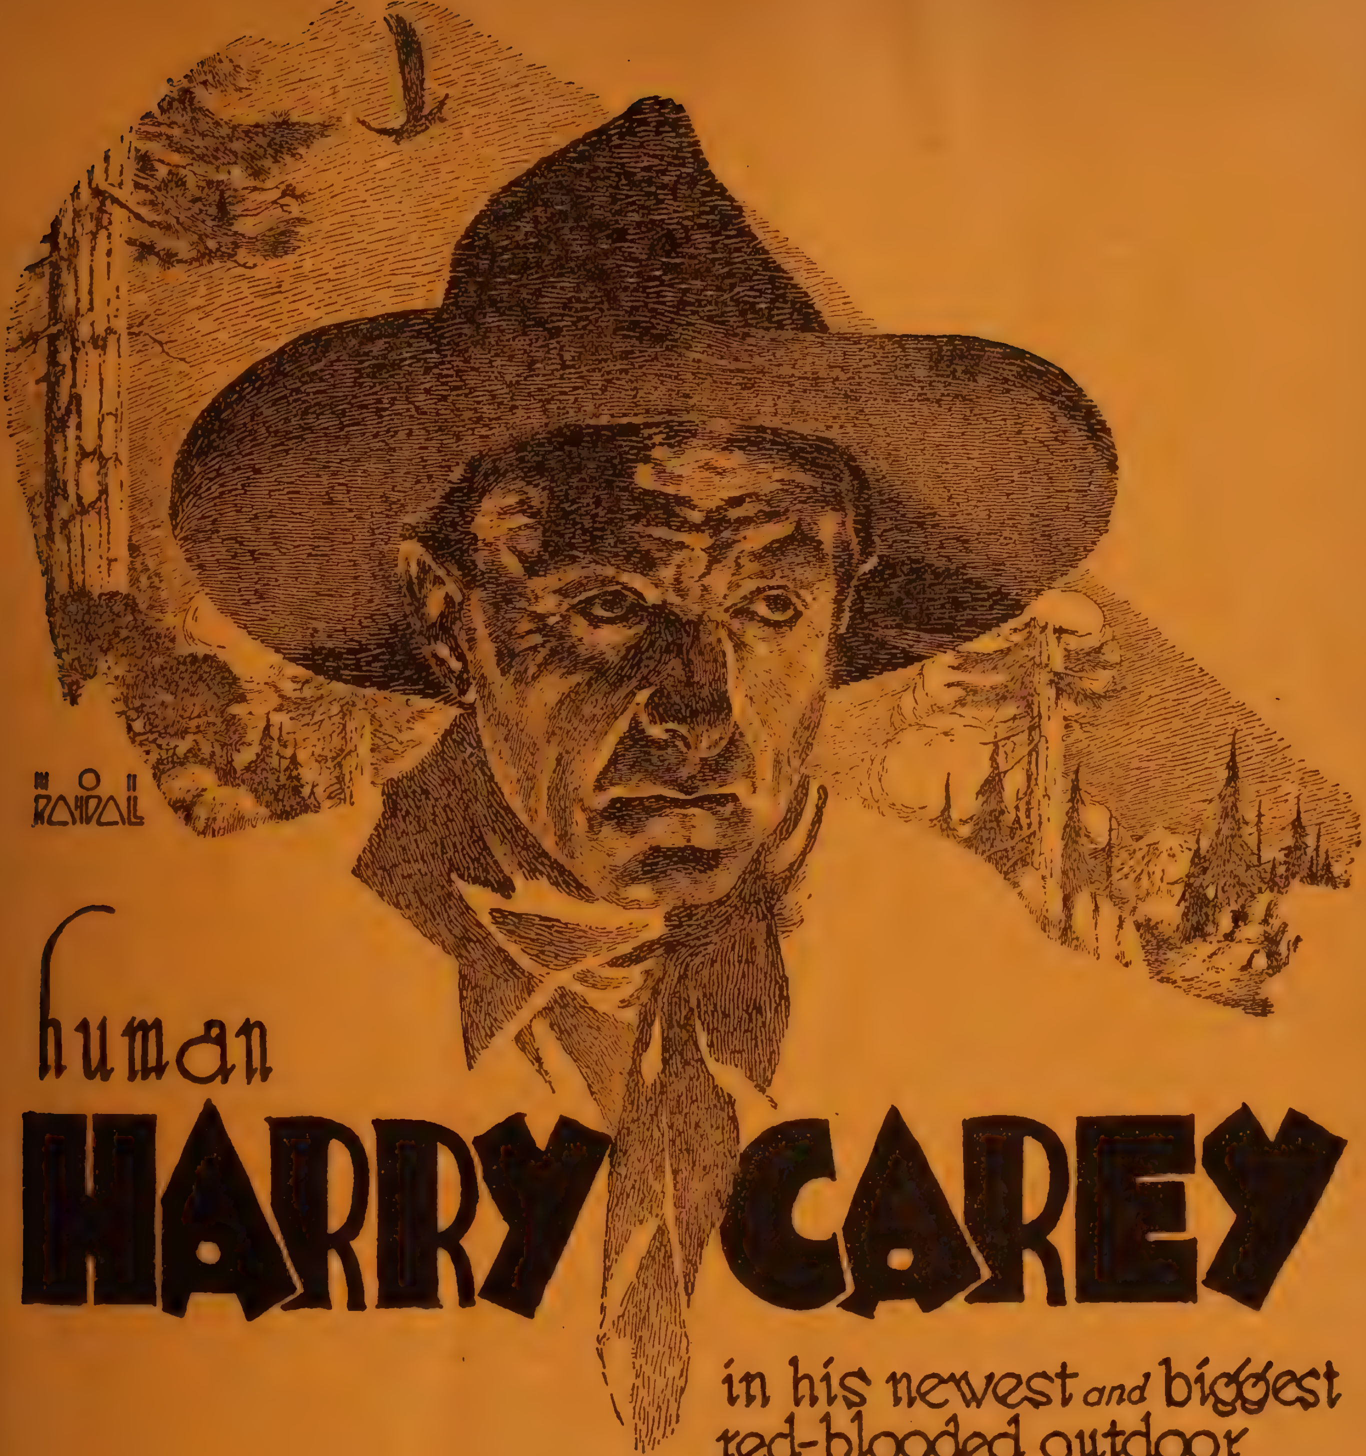
Marshall, Texas.—Boyhood dream realized by President-elect Harding as he drives locomotive. (Great crowds greet him on his vacation trip.)

New York City.—Brushing up for the President-elect—United Fruit Liner "Pastores" gets finishing touches for Mr. Harding's trip to Panama.

Washington, D. C.—International presents America's greatest air men in spectacular and thrilling flight over the Capitol. (Photographed by John A. Bockhorst, of International's staff.)

Sub-titles.—In sixteen planes, the largest flying formation ever assembled over the Capitol, U. S. Army Air Service experts demonstrate Uncle Sam's alertness to the vital importance of our air defenses. Combat formation—team work as perfect as a college football team's. Pilots on the 90th and 91st Pursuit companies, in two German Fokker planes, illustrate the daredevil flying that every air man must master for modern combat. "The next war," says Marshal Foch, "if there is one, will be fought in the air." Perfect control. The soaring spirit of America—visualized. Star pilots of the Army Air Service—Captain Hartney, Lieutenants St. Clair, Street, Haynes, Post and Moseley.

Note.—In the Moving Picture Weekly of November 6, 1920, the synopsis of the two-reel Century comedy was erroneously titled "A Lyin' Hunter." The correct title of this comedy is "A Lyin' Tamer."



human

HARRY CAREY

in his newest and biggest red-blooded outdoor drama made from the story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes

"WEST IS WEST"

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

Carl Laemmle presents
TOD BROWNING'S
Greatest Universal-Jewel, featuring

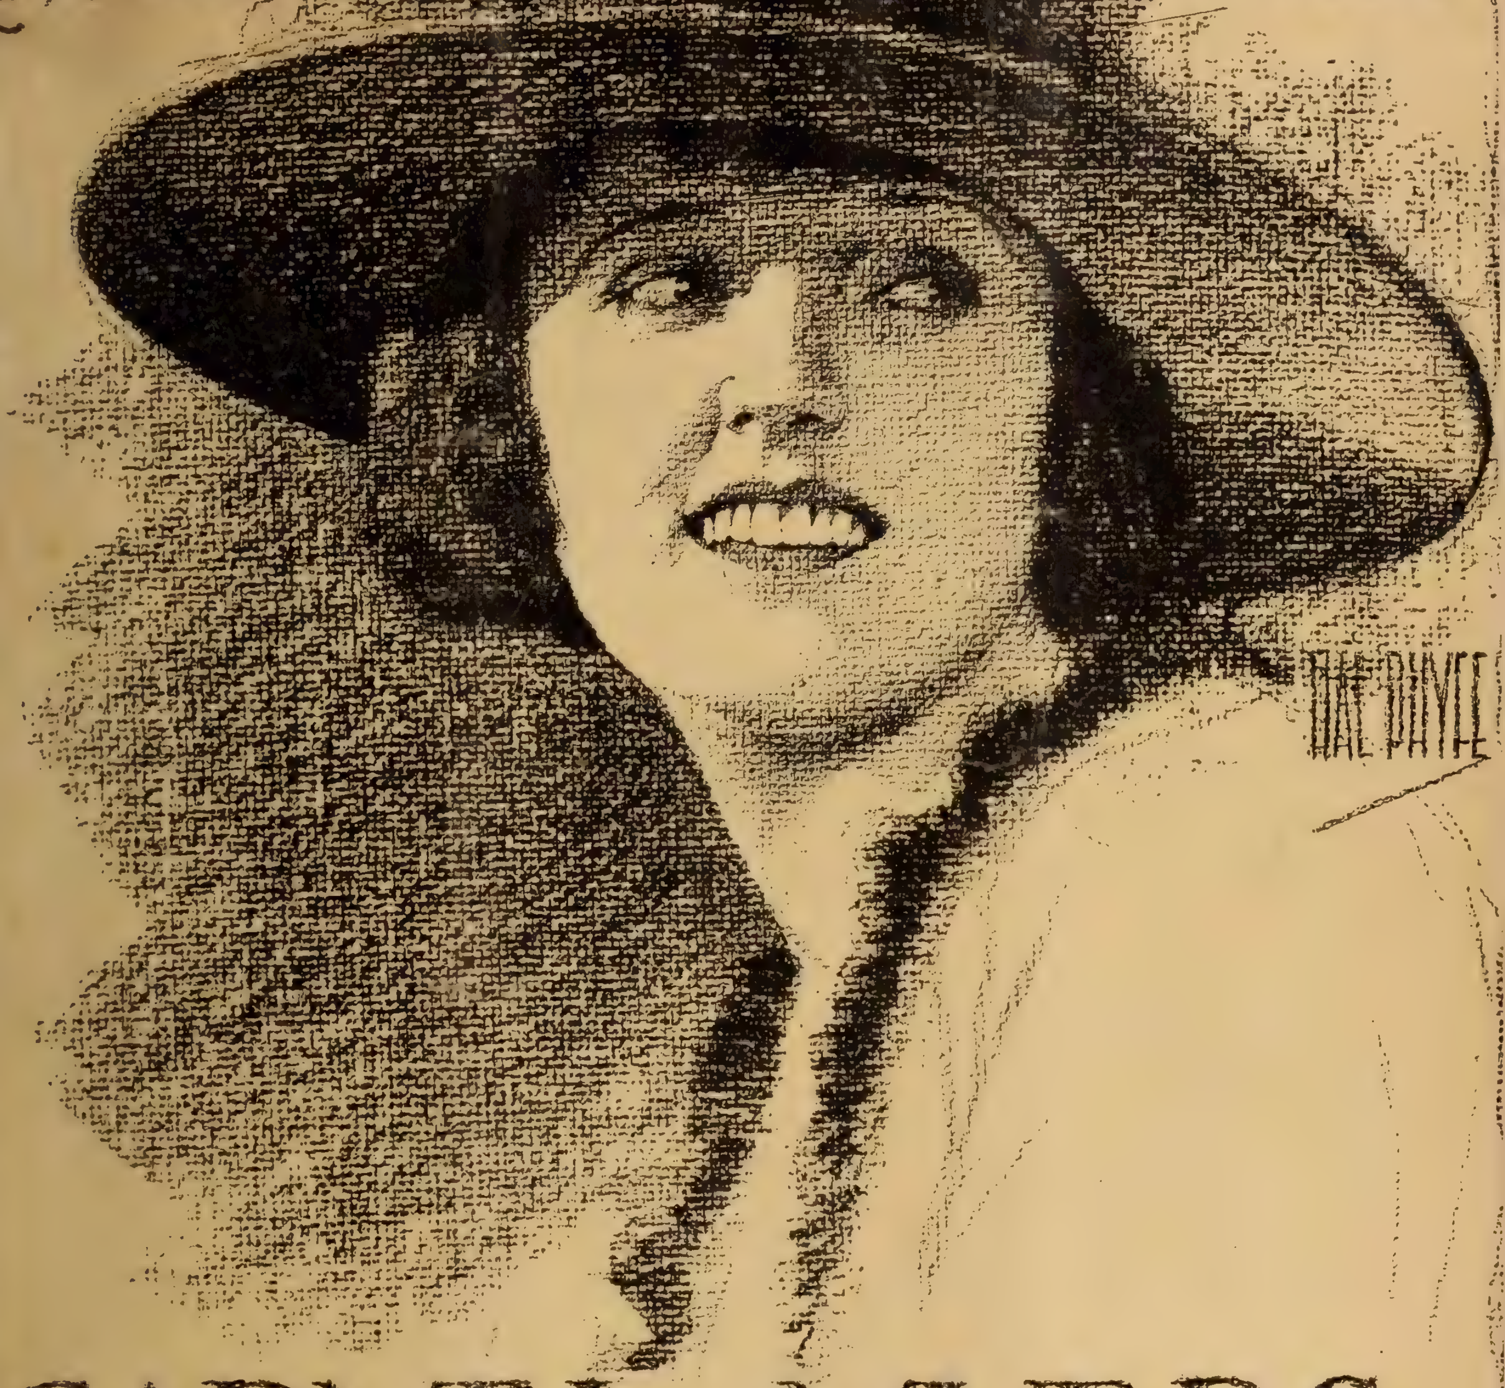
PRISCILLA DEAN

DESPERATE is the word for her blazing eyes. Trapped—you read it in her racing thoughts. But Never give up is in every cat-like move as she leaps from her bed at the ominous rap on the door. Some thriller? You said it! "OUTSIDE THE LAW" is "The Wildcat of Paris"—"Pretty Smooth"—and "The Virgin of Stamboul" all rolled into one—a whirling, rushing drama of desperate work after dark, with a crook's fortune for the prize—exactly the kind of amazing picture that electrifying PRISCILLA DEAN can play better than any other actress in the whole wide world. Supported by Wheeler Oakman, Lon Chaney, the best "bad man" ever seen on the screen, E. A. Warren, Ralph Lewis, and a great company of talented players.

WATCH AND WAIT FOR THIS SURGING DRAMA, SOON TO BE RELEASED. IT WILL BE WORTH YOUR WHILE.

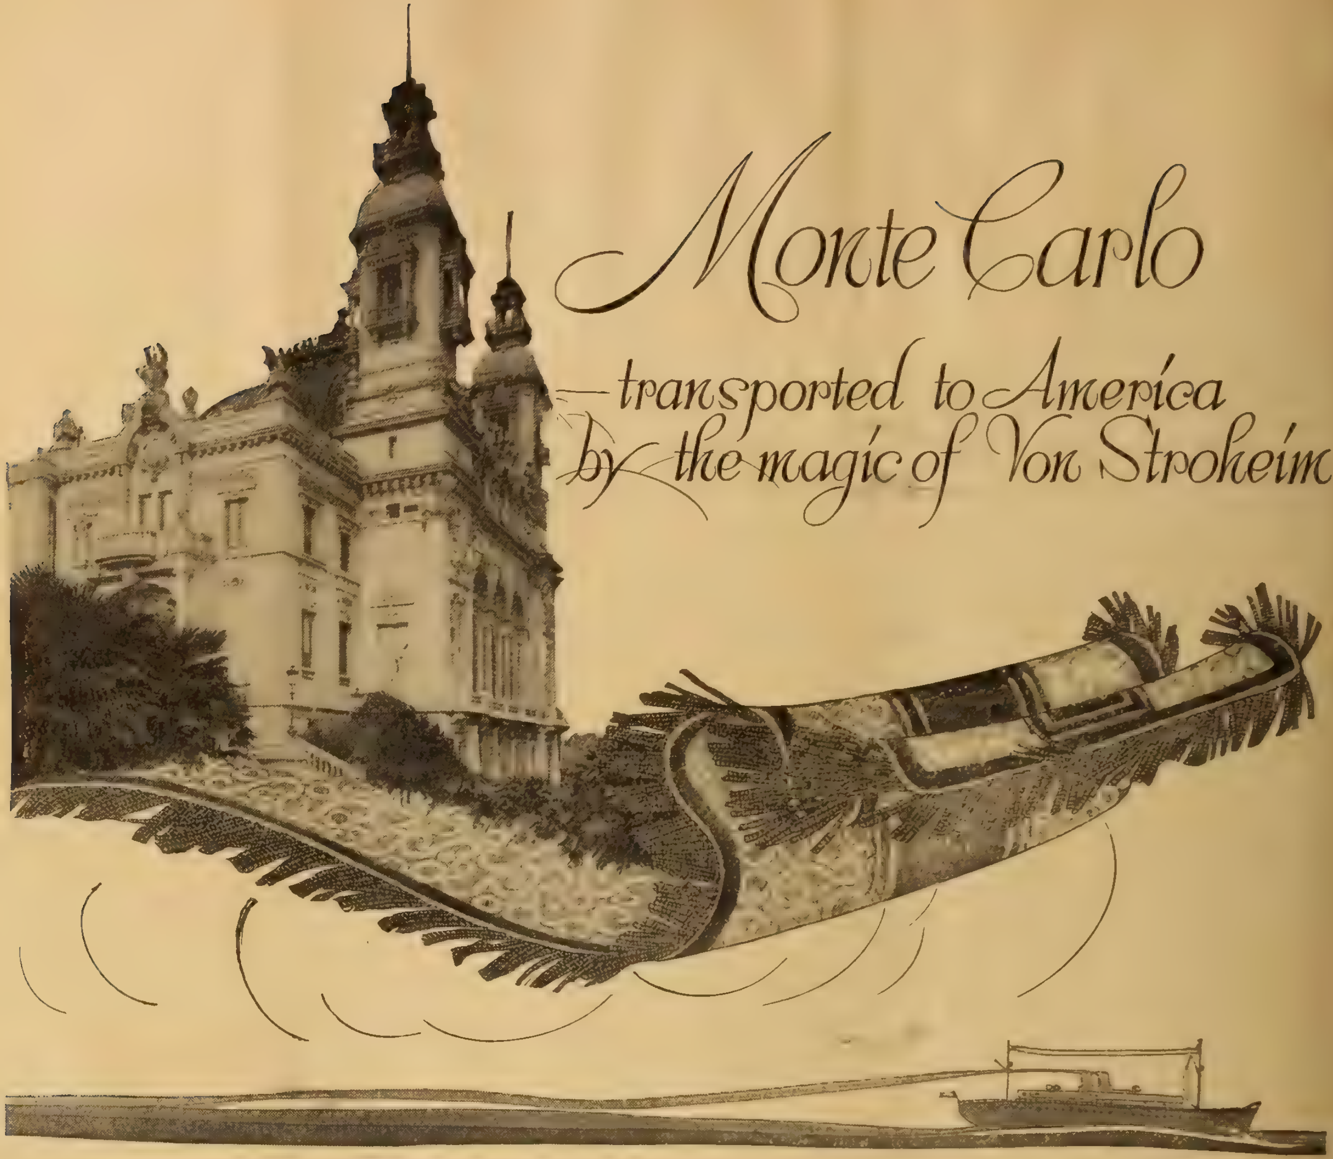
The MOV[illegible] WEEKLY



CARMEL MYERS in "BEAUTIFULLY TRIMMED"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VOL 12 DEC 4, 1920. NO 16



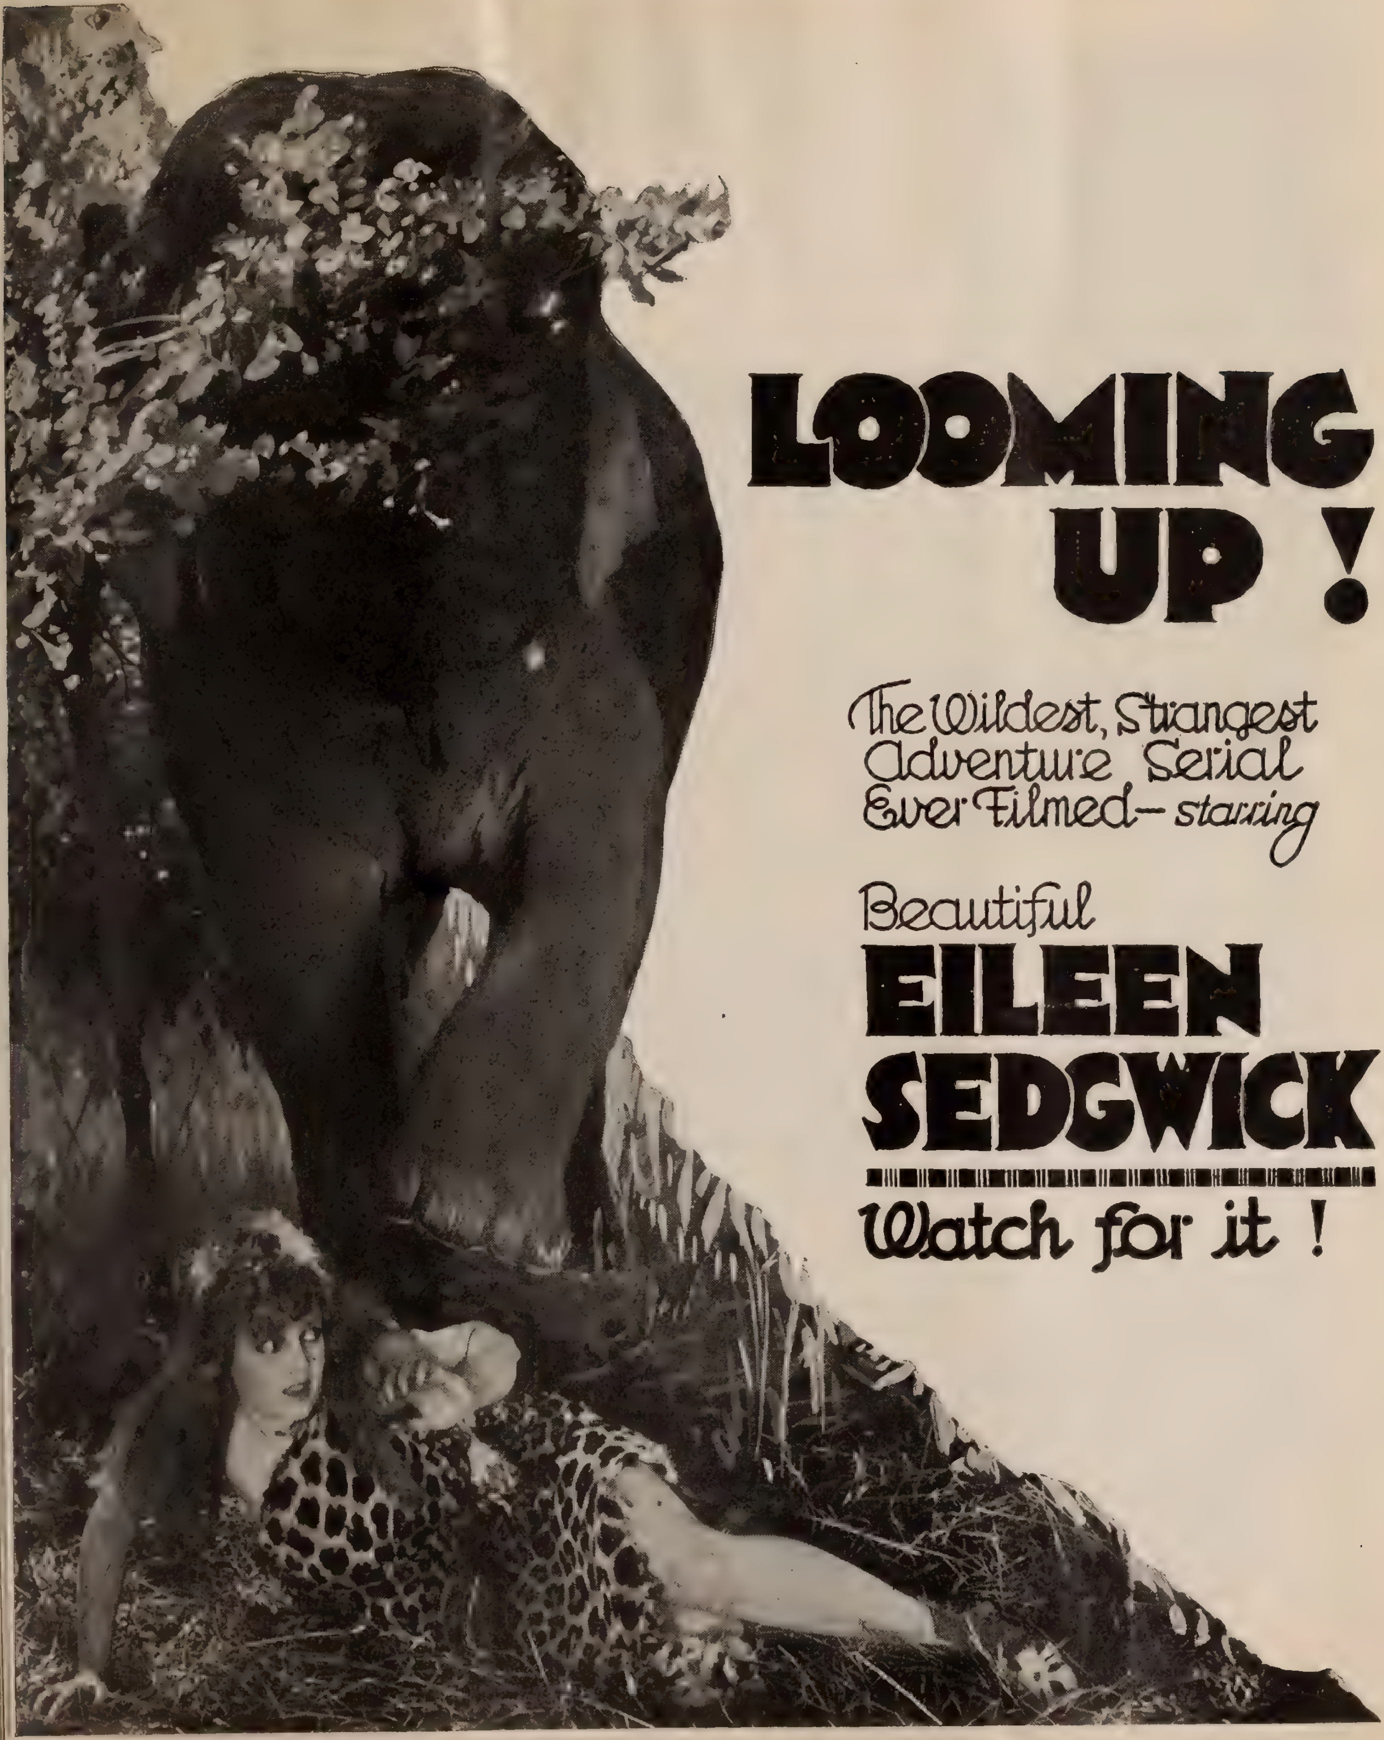
Monte Carlo

—transported to America by the magic of Von Stroheim

THE most famous—and some say, infamous—spot in the whole world duplicated, not imitated, at Universal City, California. Duplicated, as to its exteriors no less than its interiors. Duplicated to such an extent, in the views of the great Plaza, that two shots of 600 feet from right-angle positions have been made possible. Ten thousand cubic yards of earth were removed in preparing this single site, with its two circular parks, one 90 feet in diameter and the other, 112. More than 100 palms, semi-tropical plants and shrubs were placed here—and 20,000 feet of specially-grown lawn. There is not lacking one single thing to give your audiences an exact replica of the gloriously beautiful place where so many of them have been—while the drama of the picture will give them a blinding revelation of something they did not see while there—but have always suspected.

Carl Laemmle
announces
Von Stroheim again!
2½ times as much—
Universal-Jewel

"FOOLISH WIVES"



LOOMING UP!

The Wildest, Strangest Adventure Serial Ever Filmed—starring

Beautiful

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Watch for it!

EDDIE POLO

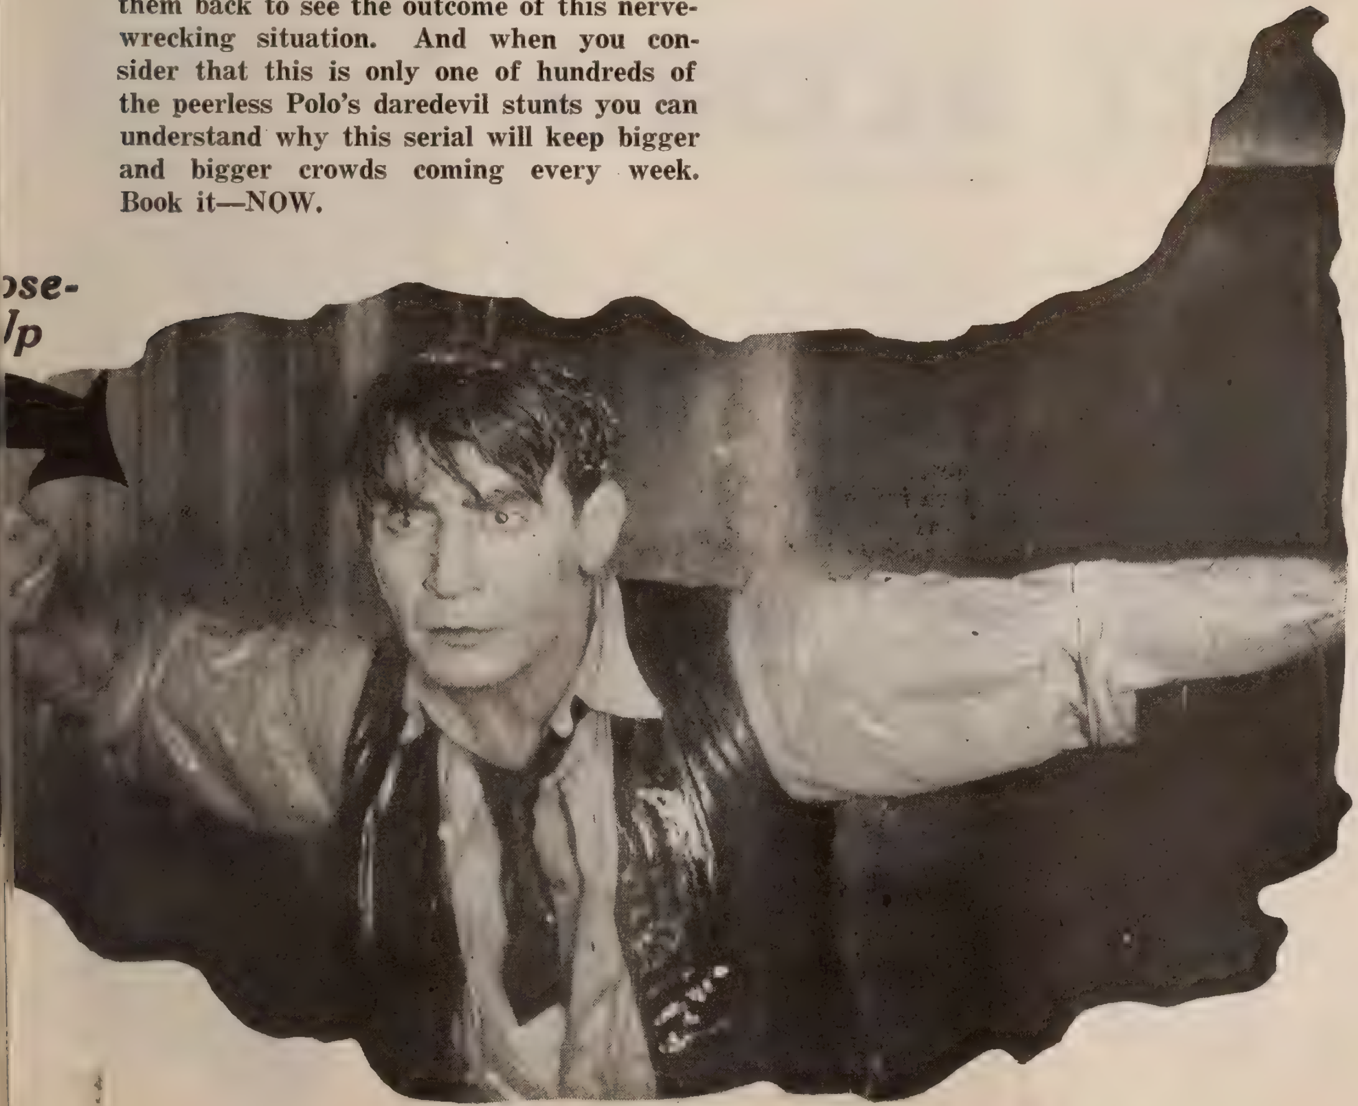
In the Gorgeous
18 Ring Serial Success

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGowan

Down went Eddie to the bottom of the drink—

WHEN this thrill flashes on your screen, Mr. Exhibitor, your crowd is just going to whoop and gasp with excitement, for every inch of film in this sequence helps tighten suspense and builds up to a sustained climax that is going to pull them back to see the outcome of this nerve-wrecking situation. And when you consider that this is only one of hundreds of the peerless Polo's daredevil stunts you can understand why this serial will keep bigger and bigger crowds coming every week. Book it—NOW.



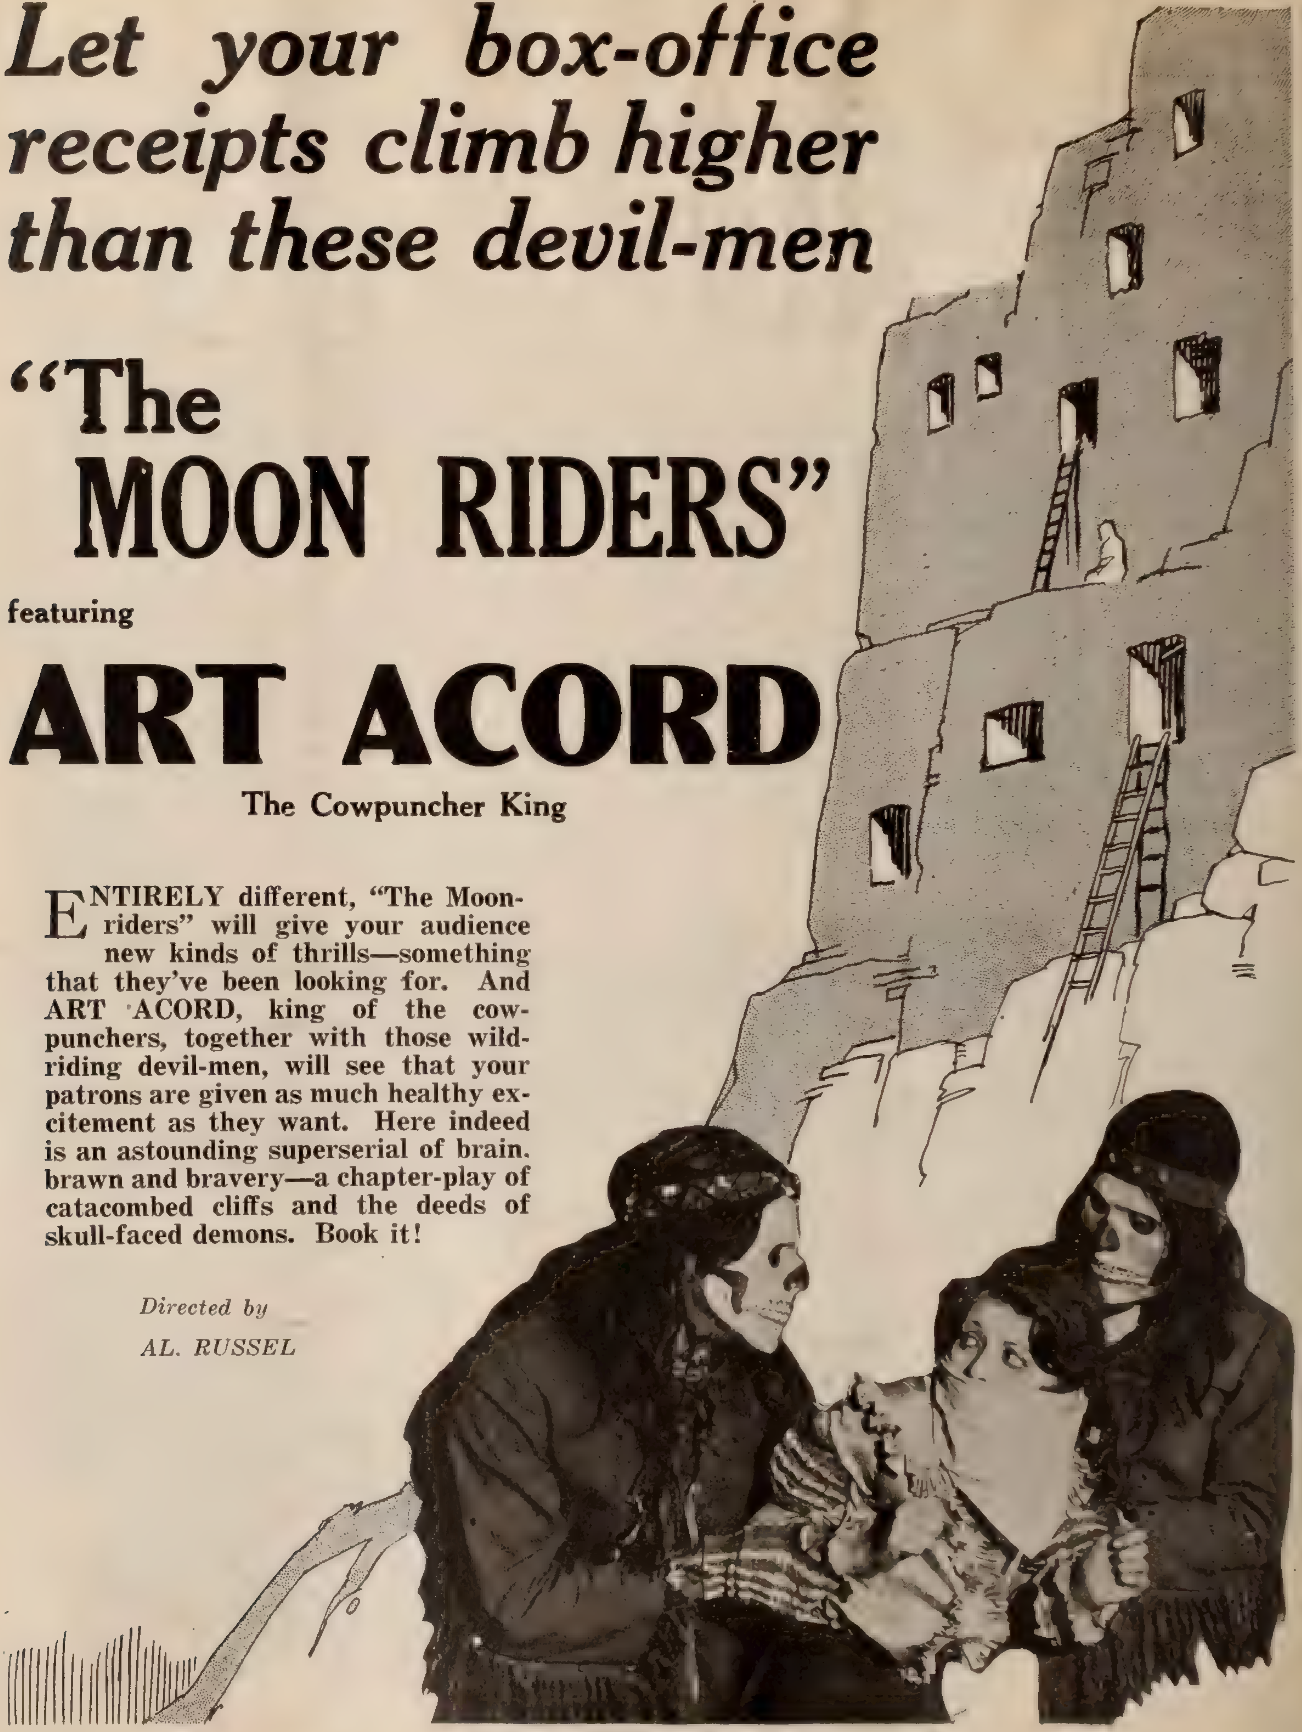
Let your box-office receipts climb higher than these devil-men

"The MOON RIDERS"

featuring

ART ACORD

The Cowpuncher King



ENTIRELY different, "The Moonriders" will give your audience new kinds of thrills—something that they've been looking for. And ART ACORD, king of the cowpunchers, together with those wild-riding devil-men, will see that your patrons are given as much healthy excitement as they want. Here indeed is an astounding superserial of brain. brawn and bravery—a chapter-play of catacombed cliffs and the deeds of skull-faced demons. Book it!

Directed by
AL. RUSSEL

THE SPEED OF AMERICA PLUS THE MYSTERY OF THE ORIENT

WHEN you get a serial that has the speed and pep of the good old U. S. A. plus the pulling value of having been filmed in the realms of never-ending Oriental mystery you can be sure that you have a powerful attraction. And that's exactly what you get with this, the only serial ever filmed in China, Japan, the Philippines and the United States. Book it and you'll know that it's just what you need for twelve profitable weeks.

MARIE WALCAMP

"THE WOMAN WHO KNOWS NO FEAR," In

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

The Serial That Travels as it Thrills

Directed by
HENRY McRAE

WHY THIS SERIAL DOUBLES PROFIT

A REAL BIG MONEY-MAKER

IN this blazing serial sensation, Elmo Lincoln is proving to thousands of exhibitors the truth of our contention that his mystifying double role would make "The Flaming Disk" a big money-maker. Playing the double role of Elmo Gray of the U. S. Secret Service and his twin brother, crooked catspaw under the hypnotic influence of a scheming blackguard Elmo Lincoln creates thrills that fairly leap from the screen to creep up the shivering spines of your audiences.

HERE'S THE REASON—BOILED DOWN

MOVING picture fans like nothing so well as Suspense and Mystery. Into this picture have been built sure-fire, value-known, capacity crowd-creators, possessing action, thrills, comedy, drama and love interest. Week after week, millions try to solve the mystery. Week after week they come back to see Elmo in hair-raising stunts that enthrall and thrill and entertain.

IT NEVER FAILS TO GET 'EM

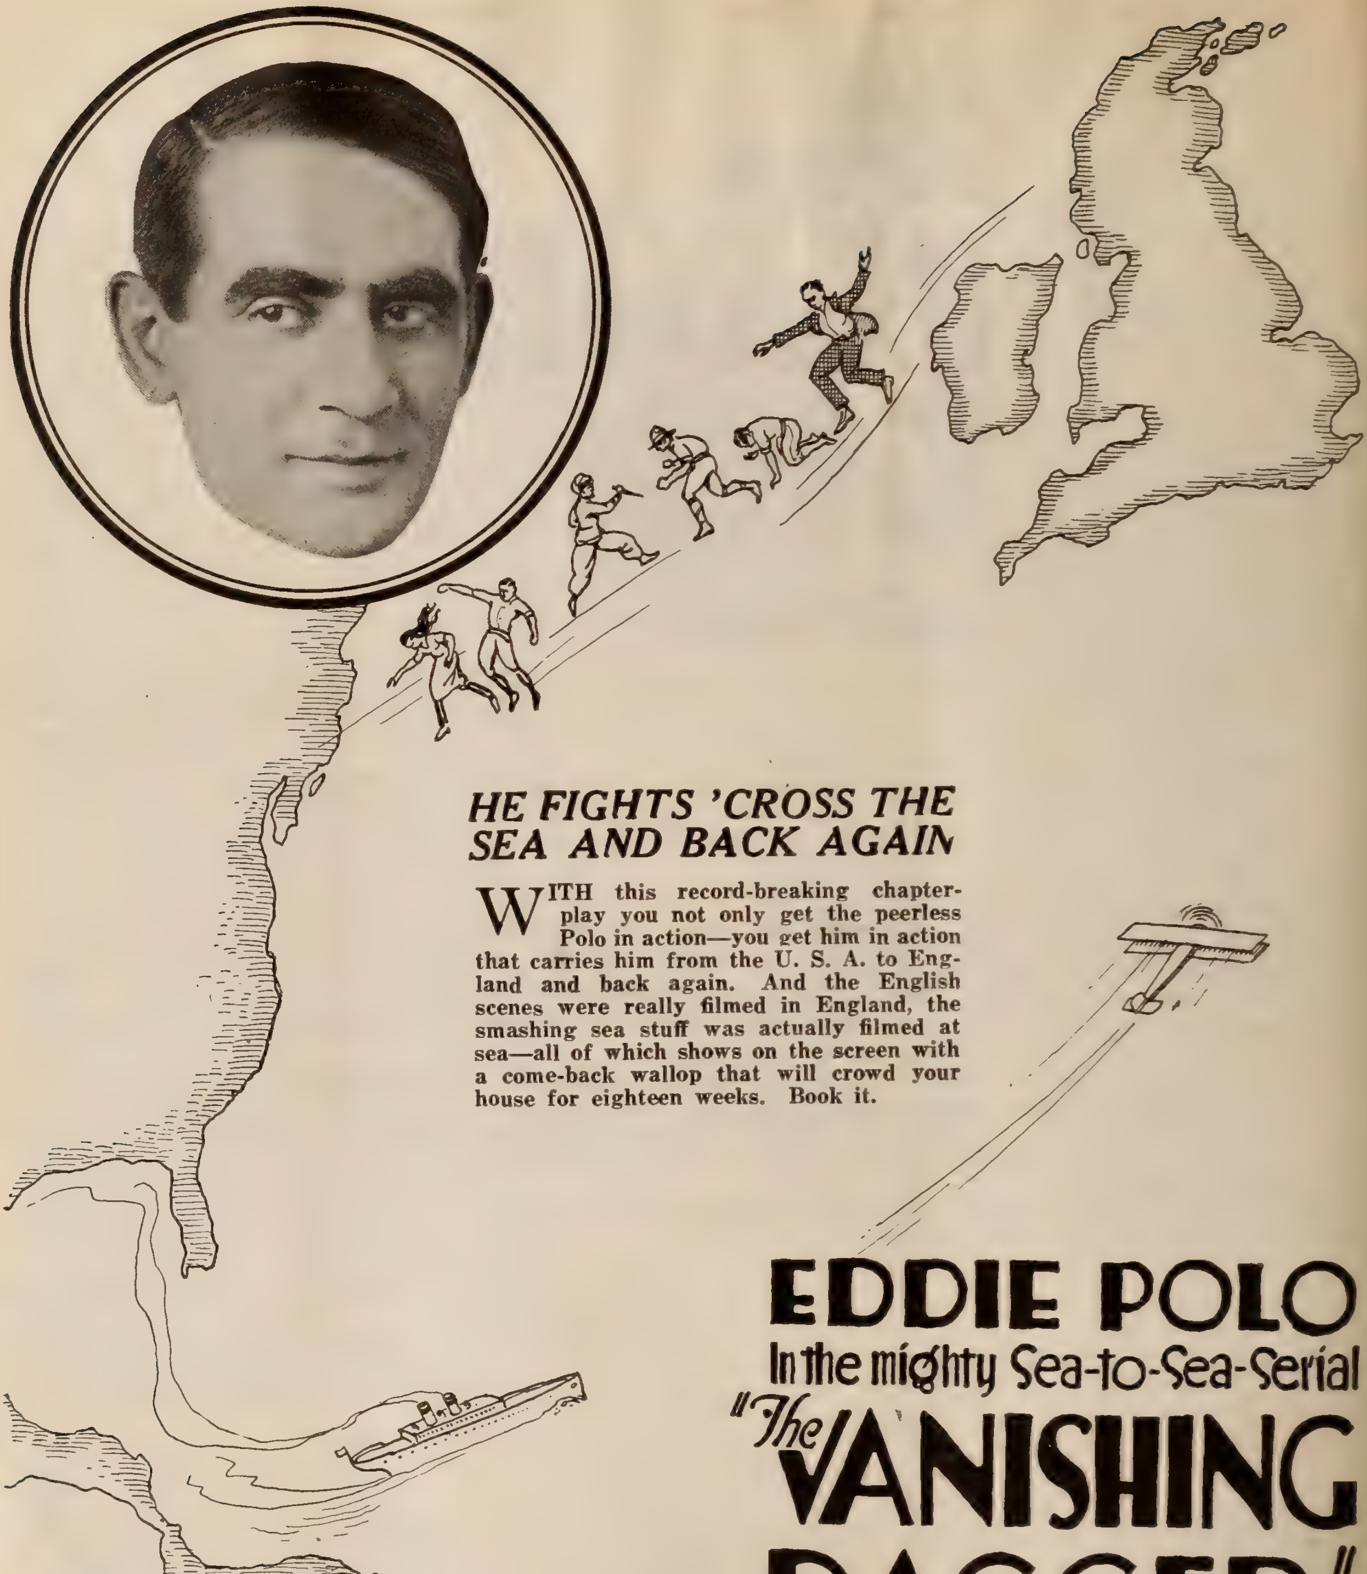
REMEMBER, Mystery is pulling power. It means big receipts. "The Flaming Disk" is brimful of mystery. It means eighteen weeks of big receipts. Think it over—then book this mighty wonder serial. Do it to-day!

"The FLAMING DISK"

DIRECTED BY
ROBT. F. HILL

ELMO LINCOLN

IN THE MYSTERIOUS DOUBLE ROLE



HE FIGHTS 'CROSS THE SEA AND BACK AGAIN

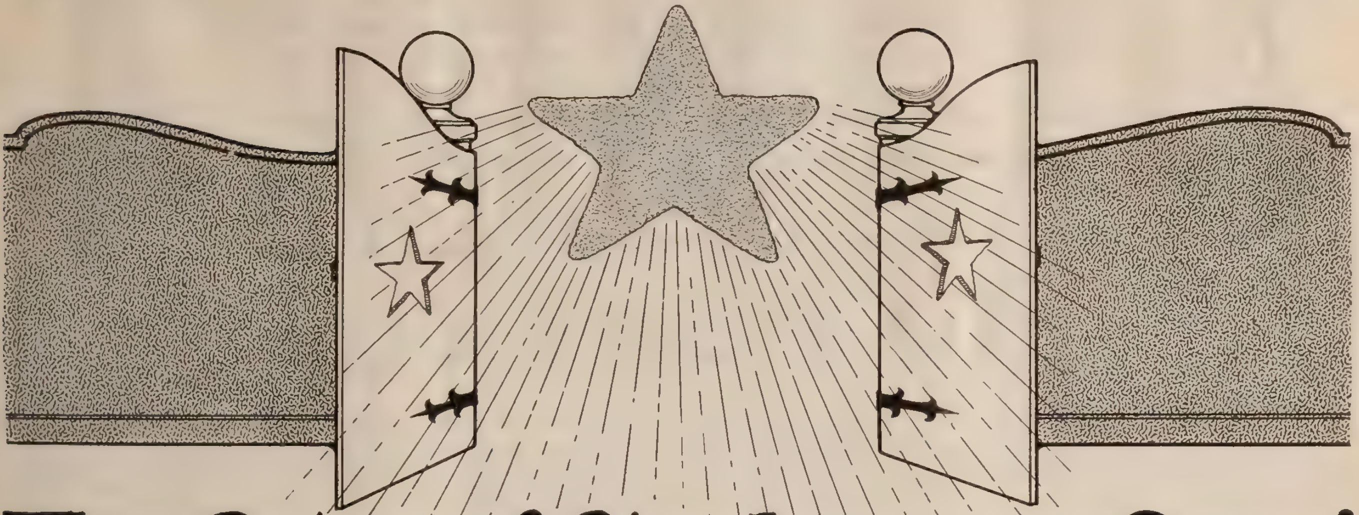
WITH this record-breaking chapter-play you not only get the peerless Polo in action—you get him in action that carries him from the U. S. A. to England and back again. And the English scenes were really filmed in England, the smashing sea stuff was actually filmed at sea—all of which shows on the screen with a come-back wallop that will crowd your house for eighteen weeks. Book it.

EDDIE POLO

In the mighty Sea-to-Sea-Serial

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

Produced by Polo himself.



The Gates of Stardom are Open!

To Every Girl in Your Town

UNIVERSAL has thrown open the gates of stardom to every girl in your town! Here is a truly wonderful chance for them to get into movies. Deep down in her heart every little miss harbors a yearning to appear in pictures. To grant an opportunity to these girls to prove their possibilities as future stars, Universal in conjunction with the Dramatic Mirror, the national screen and stage publication, has opened this contest.

THREE girls selected from among the contestants will be engaged at a generous salary to appear in Universal Pictures. To those failing to gain a place among the coveted three, there will be given as consolation prizes a beautiful strand of Nataline Pearls, provided of course, that a certain degree of effort is put forth. This will be in addition to the regular commissions that they will receive.

THE only thing required of the contestants is that they secure subscriptions for the Dramatic Mirror. With what apparent ease and simplicity this can be accomplished is too self-apparent to need further comment here.

THE publicity and prominence this contest will bring you and your theatre, the consistently large audiences that will pack your house and the swelled receipts that your box office will show, are only a few of the things that you will gain by getting behind this contest in your town. Take advantage of this offer and write to-day for full particulars to the Dramatic Mirror, 133 West 44th Street, New York City.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)

Vol. 12 DECEMBER 4, 1920. No. 16

EDITORIALS

THIS issue of the Moving Picture Weekly contains, among other interesting material, two stories to which we wish to call your particular attention. The first is a request of the Editor for photographs of lobby displays and for stories of exploitation stunts which have been found effective in putting over Universal Pictures. This request appears on page fourteen. Read it.

* * * * * *

THE second article is the two-page exploitation story on "Once to Every Woman." It appears on pages twelve and thirteen. Every exhibitor of moving pictures should read these two pages, because they give an effective and very easily arranged method of insuring big returns on the Jewel picture, "Once to Every Woman," starring Dorothp Phillips. Results which have been obtained on the idea of having a singer appearing with the picture have been so wonderful that we cannot help calling attention to them editorially. Here's an extract from a letter from I. L. Leserman, manager of the Chicago Exchange, which will be extremely illuminating in this connection:

Universal Film Exchange, Inc.,
New York City, New York.
Attention Mr. E. S. Moffat, Advertising Manager.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your letter of November 18th, in regard to the vocal accompaniment of "Ben Bolt" during the showing of "Once to Every Woman," beg to say that all the Ascher houses in Chicago have engaged singers to put over this picture, and, for the information of every one, they have had wonderful success with it.

Their singer appears where the sub-title reads: "My daughter is making her debut to-night—may God be kind to her," and sings the aria from Faust with spotlight, and then reel six, where she leaves for home and appears at the gate, the singer sings (behind the curtain) "Home Sweet Home," and follows up with "Ben Bolt" at the death bed scene, also behind the curtain. It has a wonderful effect, and everybody leaves the theatre talking about the wonderful picture and showing.

At the Century Theatre, on 12th Street, in the face of tremendous opposition, the attendance increased every night, and I personally stood at the door while the people were leaving, listening to the comments ,and it was indeed a pleasure to feel that I was instrumental in handling this picture. Yours very truly, (Signed) I. L. LESERMAN, Manager.

This is the way the exchanges stand behind a Universal Picture with exploitation ideas and material. The four-page herald containing the full score of the song, "Ben Bolt," beautifully illustrated, may have been shown to you by your exchange manager, but if it hasn't ask your exchange to show you this wonderful accessory to the exploitation of "Once to Every Woman." The exchange will undoubtedly tell you of a plan whereby this can not only be tied up with the music store publisher in your town, but for getting copies of the herald at a greatly reduced figure.

* * * * * *

EVERY exhibitor who played "The Virgin of Stamboul" has been waiting anxiously for the next picture in which Priscilla Dean appears. While we cannot give you the definite release date, it isnt' probable that "Outside the Law," written and directed by Tod Browning, will make its appearance much before the beginning of the year. We don't mind telling exhibitors, however, at this early date that "Outside the Law" is the most wonderful picture that Miss Dean ever played in. She is supported by a wonderfully strong cast, headed by Lon Chaney, whose recent appearance in "The Penalty" and "The Miracle Man" have stamped this actor, who was developed at Universal City, as the leading character portrayer of the screen; Wheeler Oakman, E. A. Warren, Ralph Lewis, Melbourne MacDowell, Wilton Taylor and little Stanley Goethals. It has taken Browning six months to produce this picture, and he acknowledges that he is better satisfied with this than he was with "The Virgin of Stamboul." One of the exploitation adjuncts to "Outside the Law" will be a novelization of the picture, which will be ready for release to newspapers in a very short time . The novelization will be in twelve chapters of two thousand words each, and if the newspaper in your town wants to run it, notify the publicity manager of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company immediately, and he will make arrangements for him to have exclusive use of the story in his town. Do not delay in this matter if you are going to run "Outside the Law" in your theatre. You want to have this serial story run for two weeks sometime prior to the film's release in your town; so get busy.

HOME AND HUSBAND

PRISCILLA DEAN SPENDS HAPPIEST HOURS IN HER NEW HOME WITH HER HUSBAND

A STAR as successful, as brilliant, as scintillating as Priscilla Dean usually brings to one's mind visions of automobiles and yachts and mansions and gay parties, with wealth and luxury all about. One can easily imagine a big screen luminary in settings like those. But Priscilla Dean is different in spite of all the phenomenal success which has come to her in the past few years. She clings to the simple and finds her real happiness in the joys which everyday life brings naturally with it.

One of the most enchanting of screen romances culminated when Priscilla Dean was married to Wheeler Oakman, almost a year ago. He was her leading man in "The Virgin of Stamboul," and the two as lovers in this picture gave to the screen a bit of romantic acting that was consummate in its beauty, and that has yet to be excelled.

Priscilla Dean is happiest when she is with her husband in the shelter of their lovely bungalow in Hollywood, Cal. There in a garden as gay and as pretty as ever was pictured in any story-book, the two spend happy hours, reading, or weeding, or clipping their gorgeous rose bushes. These hours are far too few for Priscilla Dean, for Hollywood's bungalows are filled with movie celebrities, and Priscilla and Wheeler are far too good company to be left much alone. It is this dinner invitation and that luncheon invitation, but whenever they can the lovers (for Priscilla and Wheeler are still lovers) manage to evade them and find a nook somewhere around their place where they are happy and "comfy." For there is plenty of companionship of the genuine sort between Priscilla and her handsome and engaging husband. He, too, is a real artist—not just a good-looking leading man—and he, like his vivacious wife, has all sorts of artistic ambitions and aspirations. He, too, regrets the demands that society makes on celebrities, for he is an honest-to-goodness he-man, and would rather sit on his front porch, smoke his pipe and wait for Priscilla to brew up a mess of supper than attend the gayest, most luxurious of parties. Now that "Outside The Law" is finished, at least as far as the acting of Priscilla and Wheeler is concerned, there is a prospect of several weeks of rest for the talented couple, and they have adjusted their schedule on a more domestic basis. Wheeler plans to rush the lawn-mower, shave the rose bushes, clean the windows and spray the trees—while Priscilla—she has visions of bread boards, doughnuts and pies galore.

Priscilla Dean, Universal-Jewel star, and her husband, Wheeler Oakman, spend most of their spare time in the garden of their Hollywood bungalow.

Tod Browning, who wrote "Outside The Law," and who also directed it, believes that this production is his masterpiece, and he declares that he has excelled all his former efforts in the execution of the picture. Browning's directorial effort just previous to "Outside The Law" was the marvelous "The Virgin of Stamboul," and if he claims that "Outside The Law" is better, it must be a masterpiece, a striking masterpiece, in every sense of the word. Browning spent many hours at the Oakman bungalow talking over the picture with the star and her husband and they are just as enthusiastic about it as he is.

It is quite a jump from a home-loving young couple to a pair of notorious crooks, but that is how Priscilla and Wheeler are transformed when "Outside The Law" claims their talents. Few folks who have seen them in their home and who will witness their escapades in this big Jewel dramatic feature will be able to realize that Silky Moll and Big Bill are the "very-much-in-love young Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Oakman" who love to stay home and fuss around the house.

"Outside The Law" will be the second picture that Priscilla Dean has appeared in during the year 1920. Her vehicles, however, are such large undertakings that they are many months in the making. "Outside The Law" was started over six months ago, and even now, when the star and her associates have long completed their duties, weeks will be required in the cutting and pruning and general shaping of the final edition.

There are probably hundreds of young couples envious of Priscilla and Wheeler—envious of their fame, their fortune and their good times. But on the other side, Priscilla and Wheeler are just as envious of hundreds of other young couples, who, unlike themselves, can call their spare ne their own and can spend as many happy hours as they want in the peace and comfort of the best of all places—HOME.

Aids To The Proper Exploitatio

A number of suggestions, some of which have already been used by exhibitors, some of which are suggested by the Exploitation Department of Jewel Pictures for the purpose of assisting exhibitors to put over "Once To Every Woman."

THE demand for "Once To Every Woman," great as it has been, is growing greater every day. Every exhibitor who runs it tells his friends about it, and it is all that the exchanges can do to find prints enough to satisfy the demand.

It may be of interest to those exhibitors whose dates have been necessarily put off, owing to this demand, to know some of the methods of exploitation which have been used by other exhibitors. One of the greatest proven stunts is the use of a singer at the point in the picture where Dorothy Phillips recovers her voice at the bedside of her mother. The favorite way of doing this is to have the singer in the dark sing the exact words as Dorothy Phillips expresses them with her lips, with nothing but an organ accompaniment, the singer's voice growing stronger until the scene changes. Then, if the manager likes, he can have the singer sing the entire song of "Ben Bolt" either at the beginning or at the end, with full orchestra.

At the showing in New York City in the grand ballroom of the Astor Hotel, the services of Miss Mabelle Nash were secured to sing in this way. Miss Nash had never done anything of this kind, but Mr. Rosenzweig, in the Big U Exchange, was so entranced with the effect that he immediately secured solid booking for her with the houses in and around New York City, insisting that she perform the same services for these exhibitors that she had done for the picture at the Astor. The result has been that this singer has built up a great deal bigger business singing with "Once To Every Woman" than a great many concert artists have. Every exhibitor should take advantage of this stunt, which is very easily done, very inexpensive, and marvelously effective.

One very fine variation is to engage a soprano of a prominent church in your locality, and advertise the fact that she is to appear with the picture. She inevitably will have a number of friends, and it will be a novelty in a picture house to have a church soprano sing there.

So impressed has the Exploitation Department been with the song "Ben Bolt," used in connection with this picture, that it has issued a marvelously illustrated herald of the song, details of which can be obtained from any Universal Exchange.

For The Manager Who Does Not Use Posters

FOR the manager who does not use posters, a striking card display bringing out by picture and words the story of "Once To Every Woman" can be attractively devised.

Show first a picture of Dorothy Phillips, the star, then a card bearing the attractive title, "Once To Every Woman," and any one of the teaser questions, such as "Is It Temptation?" etc. The next card should begin the synopsis proper. Show a picture of Dorothy Phillips at the piano singing Ben Bolt and write the following on this card, which is No. 1:

AURORA MEREDITH

Is the eldest daughter of a blacksmith's family whose home is the village of Pleasanton. Because of her good looks and sweet voice, Aurora is the family pet.

The cards are arranged in progression and should appear something like this:

The other children gave way to her in everything. If any other member of the family is in sore need of new shoes, it is Aurora who gets a pair of high laced boots to match her new suit, while her sisters and her parents make their own battered footgear do for a while longer. Phineas Scudder is a village boy for whom the sun rises and sets according to Aurora's moods. Aurora's attitude toward him in that he is good enough to buy her soda until someone more presentable comes along.

PHOTO

THE GRADUATION OF HER HIGH SCHOOL

PHOTO

is a triumph for Aurora. She is the unchallenged star of the occasion. She is the bright particular luminary of the church choir.

A wealthy New York woman, realizing the promise of a great future in Aurora's vocal performance, offers to send her abroad to have her voice trained. Aurora's jubilant acceptance of the offer is contrasted with the sadness of her folks at parting. Aurora comes to Milan. Her patroness dies without having made provision for the completion of Aurora's musical education. Her family has strained its financial resources to the breaking point and can help her no further. Intending to repay him with money, Aurora accepts the financial aid of a young Italian. Her first important trial is successful. Juillantimo announces that the time has arrived for the settlement of the debt and he doesn't desire money. Aurora flees from him and the country.

PHOTO

No. 5 — PHOTO

In New York her voice proves a sensation. She is taken up by society. Recollections of the home folks, including the faithful Phineas, never disturb her.

No. 6 — PHOTO

A British nobleman, the Duke of Devonshire, is anxious to marry her. She postpones her consent until after her initial performance of the leading role of a new opera.

Of "Once To Every Woman"

Juillantimo has followed her to America to collect the debt. She again offers him his money... Juillantimo secretes himself in a box, and as her performance nears its climax, shoots her. He misses, and turning the revolver on himself, commits suicide. The shock deprives Aurora of her voice. Soon she learns that without it she is unwelcome in the gatherings of her erstwhile friends in society. The Duke wiggles his way out of their engagement and offers to soothe her wounded feelings with money.

No. 7—PHOTO

No. 8—PHOTO

Financially and spiritually broken, she returns to her home in Pleasanton. The home folks still regard her as a most wonderful person. Aurora experiences remorse which becomes too great to be borne when her dying mother beseeches her to quiet her last moments by singing a favorite old song.

No. 9—PHOTO

Aurora, in anguish because of her inability to gratify her mother's last wish, attempts to sing and does; the long rest, the tranquil life have effected a cure.

News of her recovery reaches New York. Her former manager comes to Pleasanton, bringing with him a most advantageous contract for her to sign, but

No. 10—PHOTO

Aurora, whose understanding of values has undergone a radical change, tears up the offered contract, and, turning, gives her hand to Scudder.

"Mother Poems" Can Be Cleverly Used

INASMUCH as "Once To Every Woman" is principally a story of mother love, and inasmuch as mother love is a theme popular everywhere with everybody, two compelling verses can be incorporated in your advertising or lobby exploitation. They are as follows:

> It is a wonderful thing, a Mother! Other folks can love you, but only your mother understands.
>
> She works for you, looks after you, loves you, forgives you anything you may do, understands you.
>
> And then the only thing bad she ever does to you is to die and leave you.
>
> —Baroness Von Hutton.

Mabelle Nash, who has had great success singing "Ben Bolt" with the picture around New York.

MOTHER

Some have wealth and high degree,
Have palaces and lands;
I've but the roof which shelters me
And one who understands.

And, O, my wealth is more than gold,
Than palaces or lands,
While I've the roof which shelters me
And one who understands.

Here's A Good Tie-Up Idea

A CLEVER local exploitation stunt for putting over "Once To Every Woman" is to get in touch with the advertising man of the biggest stores in town dealing in women's apparel and have him use a headline something like the following in some of his newspaper ads:

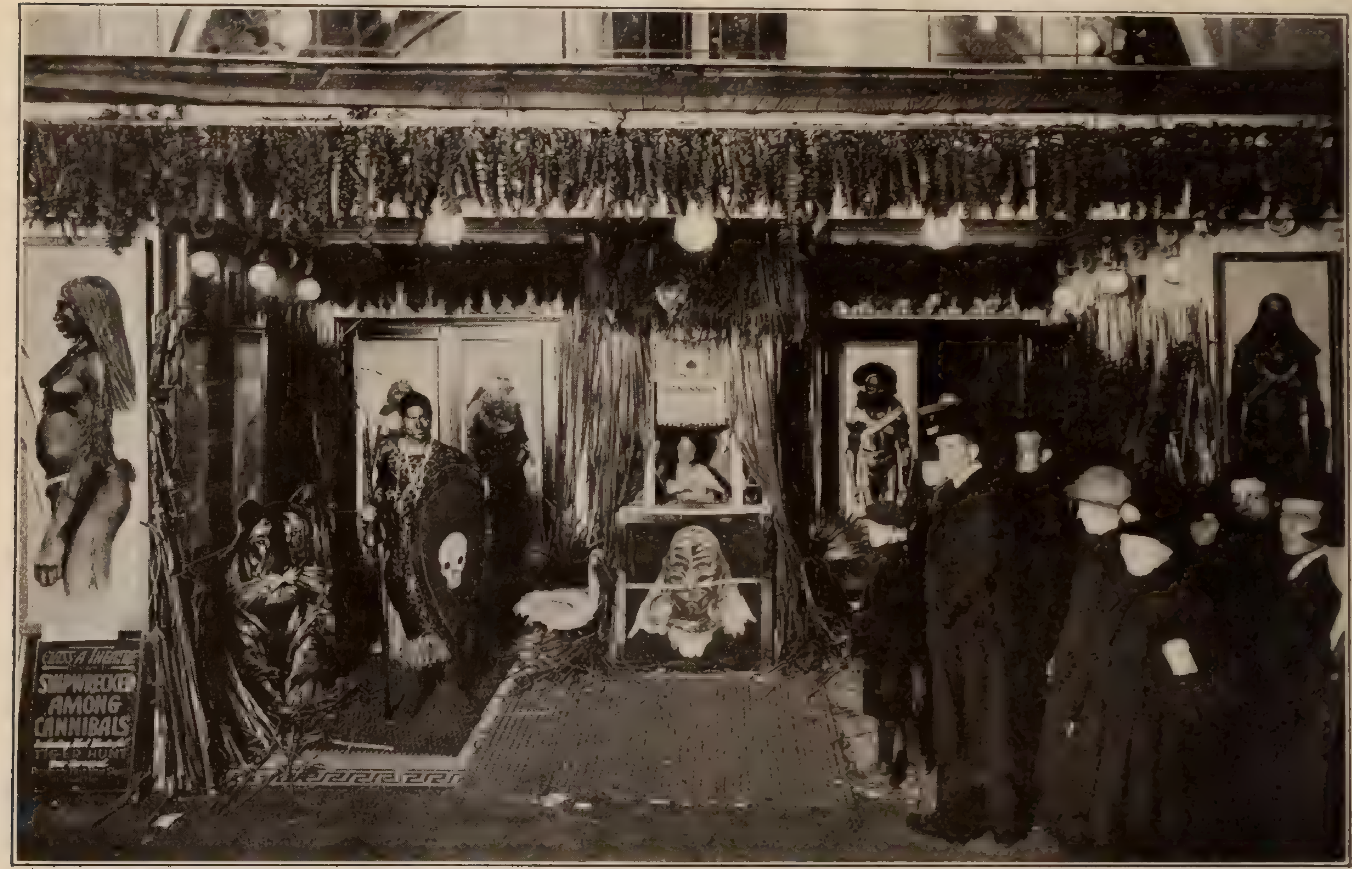
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

comes the opportunity to buy suits of this quality and distinction for $..........

To reciprocate, run a lantern slide on the screen, advertising the store and using the same headline.

This exploitation idea can be carried over to any kind of business.

Can You Beat This Lobby Display?



Lobby display for "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" at the Class A Theatre of Seattle, Washington.

THE Moving Picture Weekly is very much interested in lobby displays, and its interest is aroused because it wishes other exhibitors to receive the benefit from the fine type of lobby displays which some theatre managers are creating just now.

In the illustration above we have given publicity to a display made by the Class A Theatre in Seattle, Washington. This is a first-run house, and its week's showing of "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" was the first sight that Seattle had had of this highly advertised and extremely picturesque film. We are very glad to show this as an example of the kind of lobby displays which we regard as being extremely effective, and we are showing this example to stimulate interest and arouse the competitive instinct of eevry theatre manager who believes that he can duplicate or excel the lobby displays created by other exhibitors.

We will be only to glad to receive any lobby displays in which an exhibitor takes pride, and if they meet with the approbation of the exploitation force in the Moving Picture Weekly office, we will give them all of the space to which their ingenuity and effectiveness entitle them. In addition to the photograph of the lobby display, the editor would appreciate in each case a story telling in as much detail as possible the ideas which are illustrated in the lobby display, and in addition to that the supplementary campaigns with which the picture was exploited in posters, in the newspapers and through any other media which the manager found effective.

In our endeavor to make the columns of the Moving Picture Weekly the effective exploitation force which we have declared to be our intention, this department of the paper will receive in the future a great deal of attention, and we expect great results from the examples of lobby displays which we will be able to show to our readers. Address all photographs and stories to the Editor of the Moving Picture Weekly, 1600 Broadway, New York City.

EXPLOITATION

for

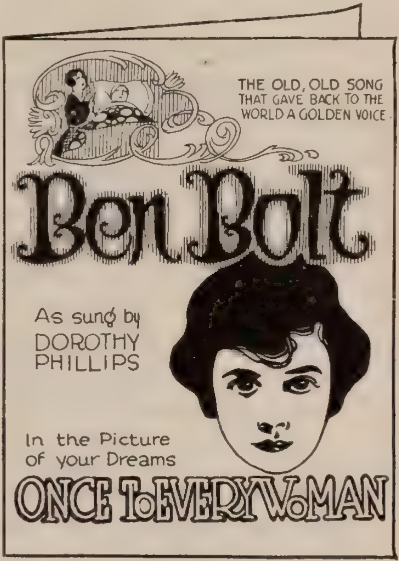
"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

The "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald

What It Is

IN this "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald of which our Universal salesman has told you, and of which you will find more in future issues of the "Weekly," you see one of those big, practical, crowd-getting ideas that are a common-sense outgrowth of actual experience.

At the premier of "Once to Every Woman" at the Hotel Astor the heart appeal of the world-famous song, "Ben Bolt," which Dorothy Phillips sings during the action of the photo-drama, was tried out before a large, cosmopolitan audience. It was there the idea came to us of making a Song-Sheet Herald, illustrated with enough advertising matter to create a big desire to see this picture. In this fine Super-Herald we have embodied human interest and heart appeal that make it a wonderful crowd-getter.



THE OLD, OLD SONG THAT GAVE BACK TO THE WORLD A GOLDEN VOICE
Ben Bolt
As sung by DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In the Picture of your Dreams
ONCE To EVERY WoMAN

—And remember, Universal carries half the cost.

FURTHER, the idea developed into a splendid plan, which, when tested, proved a huge success. It is this—that if given away to your patrons this "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald is sure to be an enormous patron-puller. People take it home; they play it, sing it, and they read the advertising on it, thus definitely fixing in their minds the picture and the date of your showing.

Used as a tie-up with local music stores, this Super-Herald again demonstrates its wonderful possibilities as a crowd-getter by packing houses to the fire limits.

Wherever and whenever tried, this has proven itself a success of such magnitude that Universal is now printing this Super-Herald by the million.

Now turn the page and get all the details. Don't miss this big, sure, practical exploitation help.

EXPLOITATION

for

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

The "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald

---how to put it over

HERE is one of the greatest promotion aids ever pulled by any moving picture company. Work it in a thorough manner and sure-fire success is yours. Your nearest Universal exchange is now ready to furnish you with these remarkable Super-Heralds at the cost of one cent each. So absolutely confident are we, that this will make an extraordinary number of patrons for your theatre, that we are giving you FREE OF CHARGE the same number that you buy.

First, give away in your lobby, copies of the song for at least one week prior to the showing of the picture.

THE BIG PUBLICITY TIE-UP WITH YOUR MUSIC STORE.

Get your largest music store to take from you a supply of songs at one cent each and give them prominent window display for one week prior to, and during, the run of the picture. Your music dealer will make a neat profit selling them at five cents each. See that he asks no more. The cheaper the price, the wider the distribution, and the larger your crowds and profits. By all means see that he keeps his price DOWN!

IT WILL GO INTO EVERY HOME

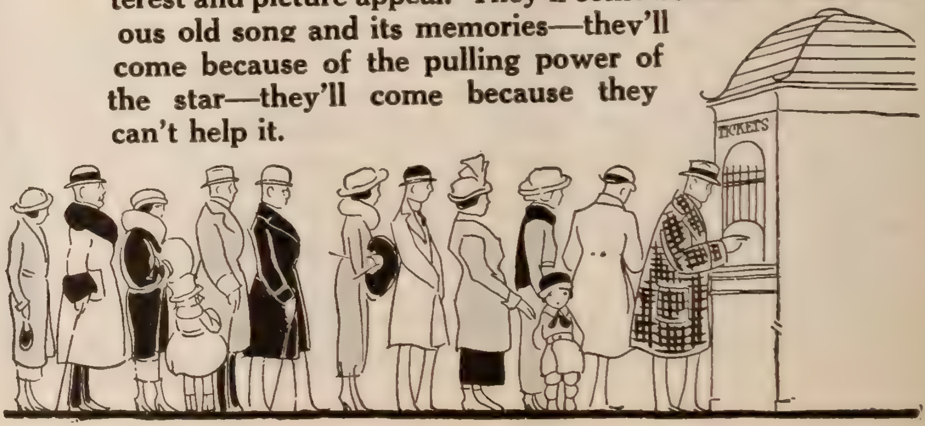
Every one will take a copy home. They will sing it—play it—read it. They will come to see the picture because this Super-Herald is a unique combination of human interest and picture appeal. They'll come because of the famous old song and its memories—they'll come because of the pulling power of the star—they'll come because they can't help it.

MUSIC STORE
5¢
5¢

Use this big tie-up for publicity that will bring 'em!

They'll take it home— read it— sing it— and——

They'll Come!



EXPLOITATION

for

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

In the Theatre--what to do with the "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald

HAVE "Ben Bolt" sung when you show "Once to Every Woman." At the premiere of this master drama at the Hotel Astor, the first verse was sung as an introduction to the picture, and the second verse was given while Dorothy Phillips sang it at the bedside in the final scene.

The effect upon that audience of hardened showmen was instantaneous. It was their unanimous opinion that the singing so heightened the picture's heart appeal as to be virtually indispensable. All of which is fully corroborated by Exhibitor Ed. L. Wegener of Valley Junction, Iowa. He tried it and he knows. (See next page.)

It's a New Idea--They'll Talk About It

People who hear the singer in conjunction with the picture will talk about it to others, who in turn will tell others. In this way the news will rapidly make the rounds of your town, creating for you larger audiences at your final showing than at the first—if that is possible.

Mr. Exhibitor, we are not trying to tell you, a shrewd showman, how to put over this remarkable photodrama. We are simply giving you the benefit of our experience as your possible guide and aid to bigger and better business than you have enjoyed in years.

They're on their way

"Not a Dry Eye in the House when the Girl Sang "'Ben Bolt'"

"IMPOSSIBLE to say enough good words for this feature. Had a number of our patrons stop and shake hands and thank us for putting on a picture like this. We had a high school girl sing "Ben Bolt," and there was not a dry eye in the house. Get the singer and you will be as enthused as I am. Rained all day but had big business." So writes Ed. L. Wegener of the Lyric Theatre, Valley Junction, Ia.

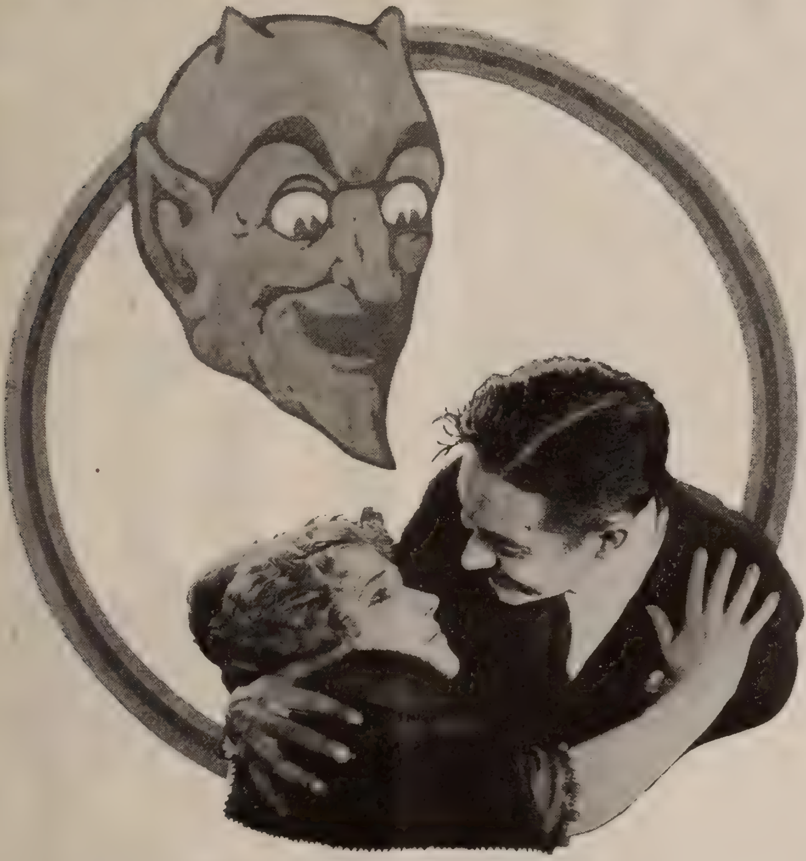
Naturally we are proud; but we are not surprised at this proof of all we have said in the foregoing pages. For we know from actual experience that if you will secure the "Ben Bolt"-Super Heralds and give them away to patrons—get the great publicity tie-up with the largest music store in your town—engage a singer to give "Ben Bolt" at every performance as outlined in the previous pages and do these simple things thoroughly and whole-heartedly, you will not only be enthused but the richer for the crowded houses you will be playing to at every performance.

DOROTHY PHILLIPS
Supported by Margaret Mann

"Once to Every Woman"

Directed by Allen Holubar
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

Ask any Exhibitor from New York to 'Frisco-



CAPITOL THEATRE.
S. L. Rothapfel, New York City.
"Worthy of a place on any program in any theatre."

PALACE THEATRE, Buffalo, New York
"Turned thousands away. Biggest business in history of this house."

CRANDALL THEATRES,
Washington, D. C.
"Broke all records."

ALLEN THEATRE, Akron, Ohio.
"Broke all records. Seventh day bigger than first."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Canton, Ohio.
"Breaks all records."

LA SALLE THEATRE, Chicago, Ill.
"Wonderful picture. Turned hundreds away."

ALHAMBRA THEATRE,
Milwaukee, Wis.
"A real clean-up. Cannot recall any week to equal this."

AMERICAN THEATRE, Laramie, Wyo.
"Master picture of all past and recent pictures."

MAJESTIC THEATRE,
Sheboygan, Wis.
"Sold 460 seats twelve minutes after box office opened. Capacity business during entire run."

SUN THEATRE, OMAHA, NEBR.
"A sure pass key to better business."

BAUGH THEATRE, Shoshone, Idaho.
"Will open the doors of any theatre to a h—— of a busines."

ANSONIA AMUSEMENT CO.,
Butte, Mont.
"Capacity houses five days against very strong competition."

GODARD'S J. ST. THEATRE,
Sacramento, Cal.
"Despite inclemency of weather we showed to capacity audiences."

What this picture has done for hundreds of exhibitors, it will do for you. Book it.

CARL LAEMMLE
presents
Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE

The DEVIL'S PASSKEY

COMING!

Carl
an

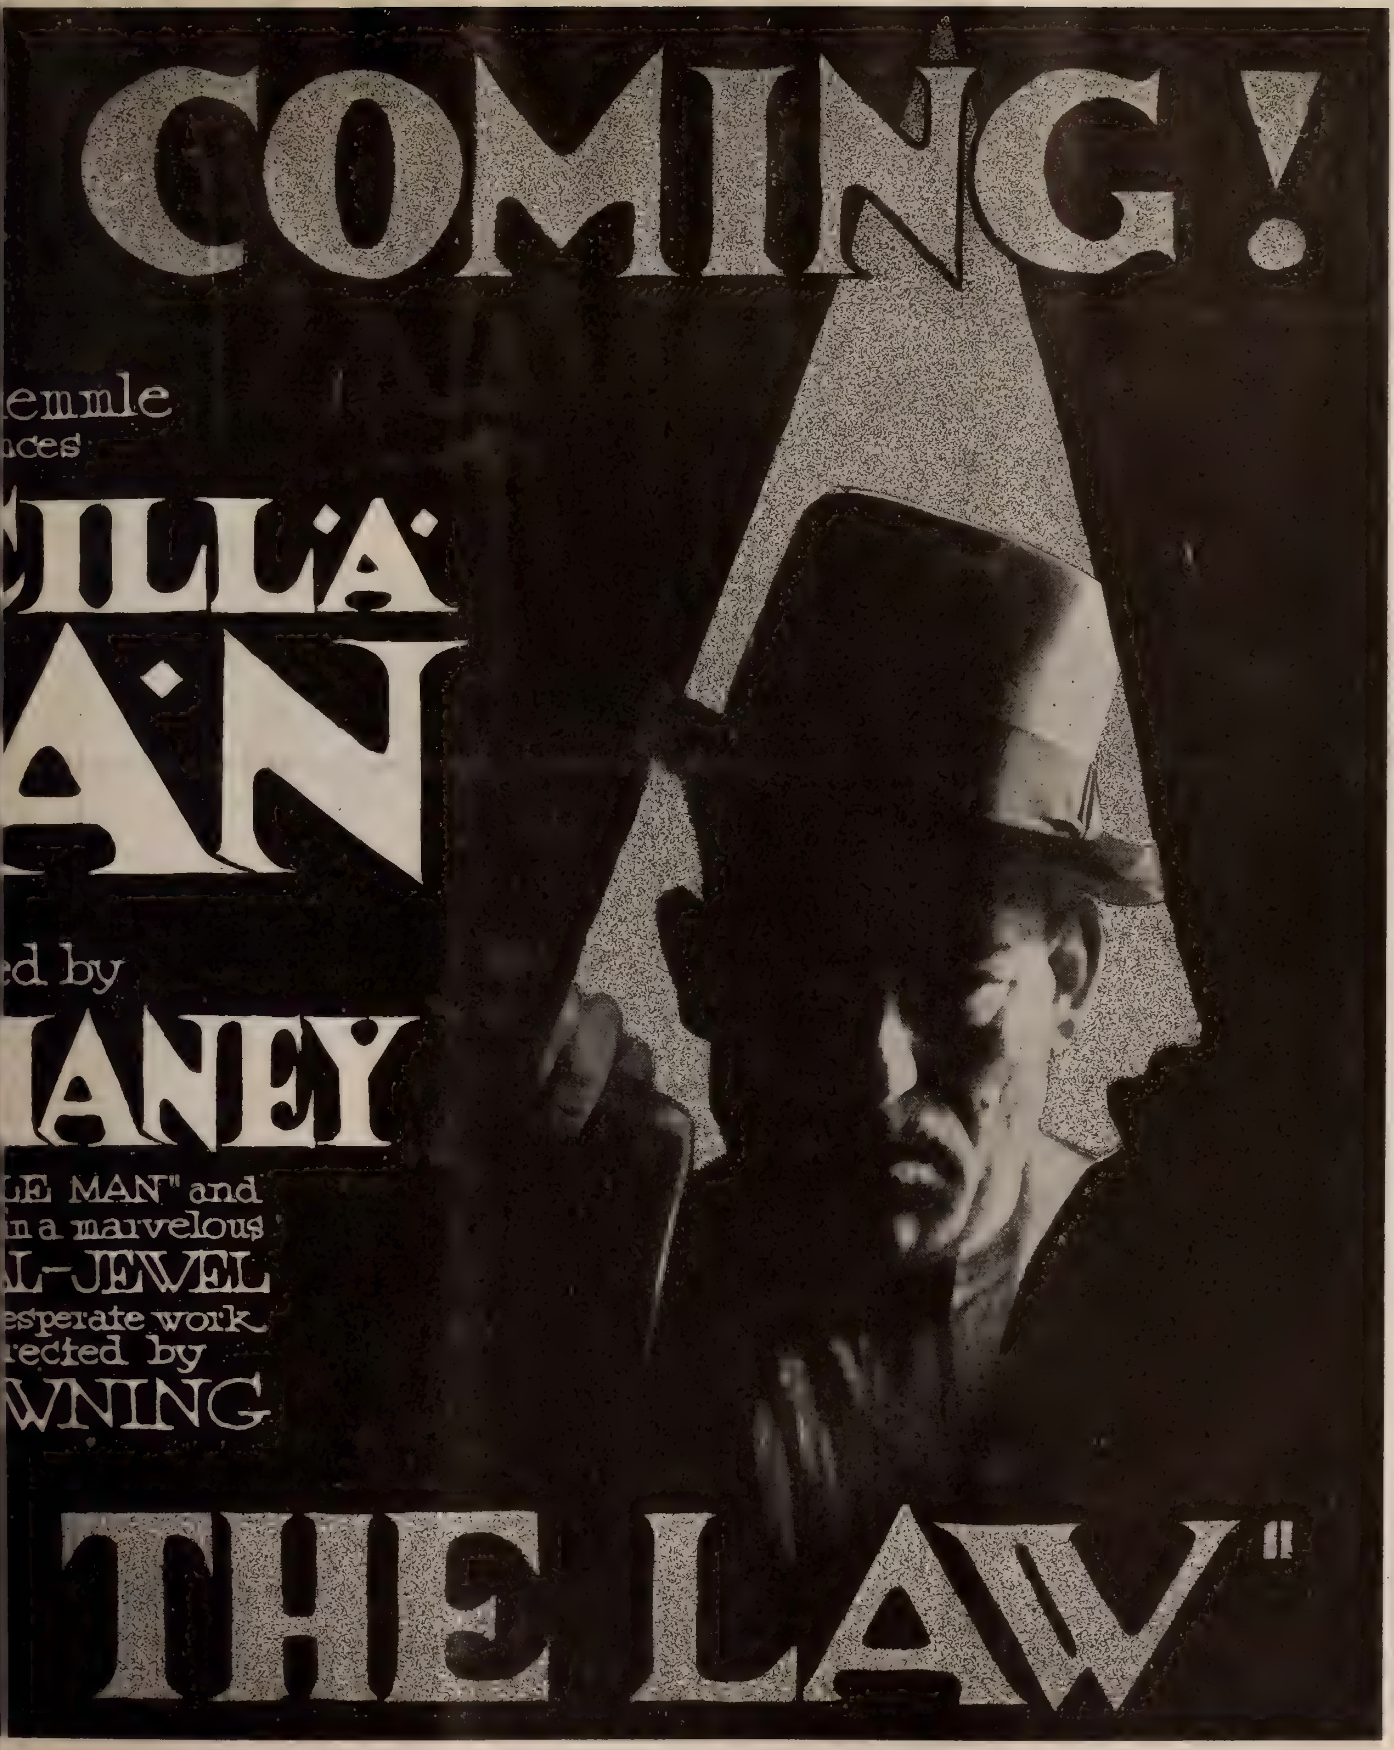
PRISC
DE

supp

LON C

of "THE MIR
"THE PENAL
UNIVER
Melodrama
after dark
TOD BR

"OUTSIDE



COMING!

emmle nces

ILLA
AN

ed by ANEY

LE MAN" and n a marvelous
L-JEWEL
esperate work rected by WNING

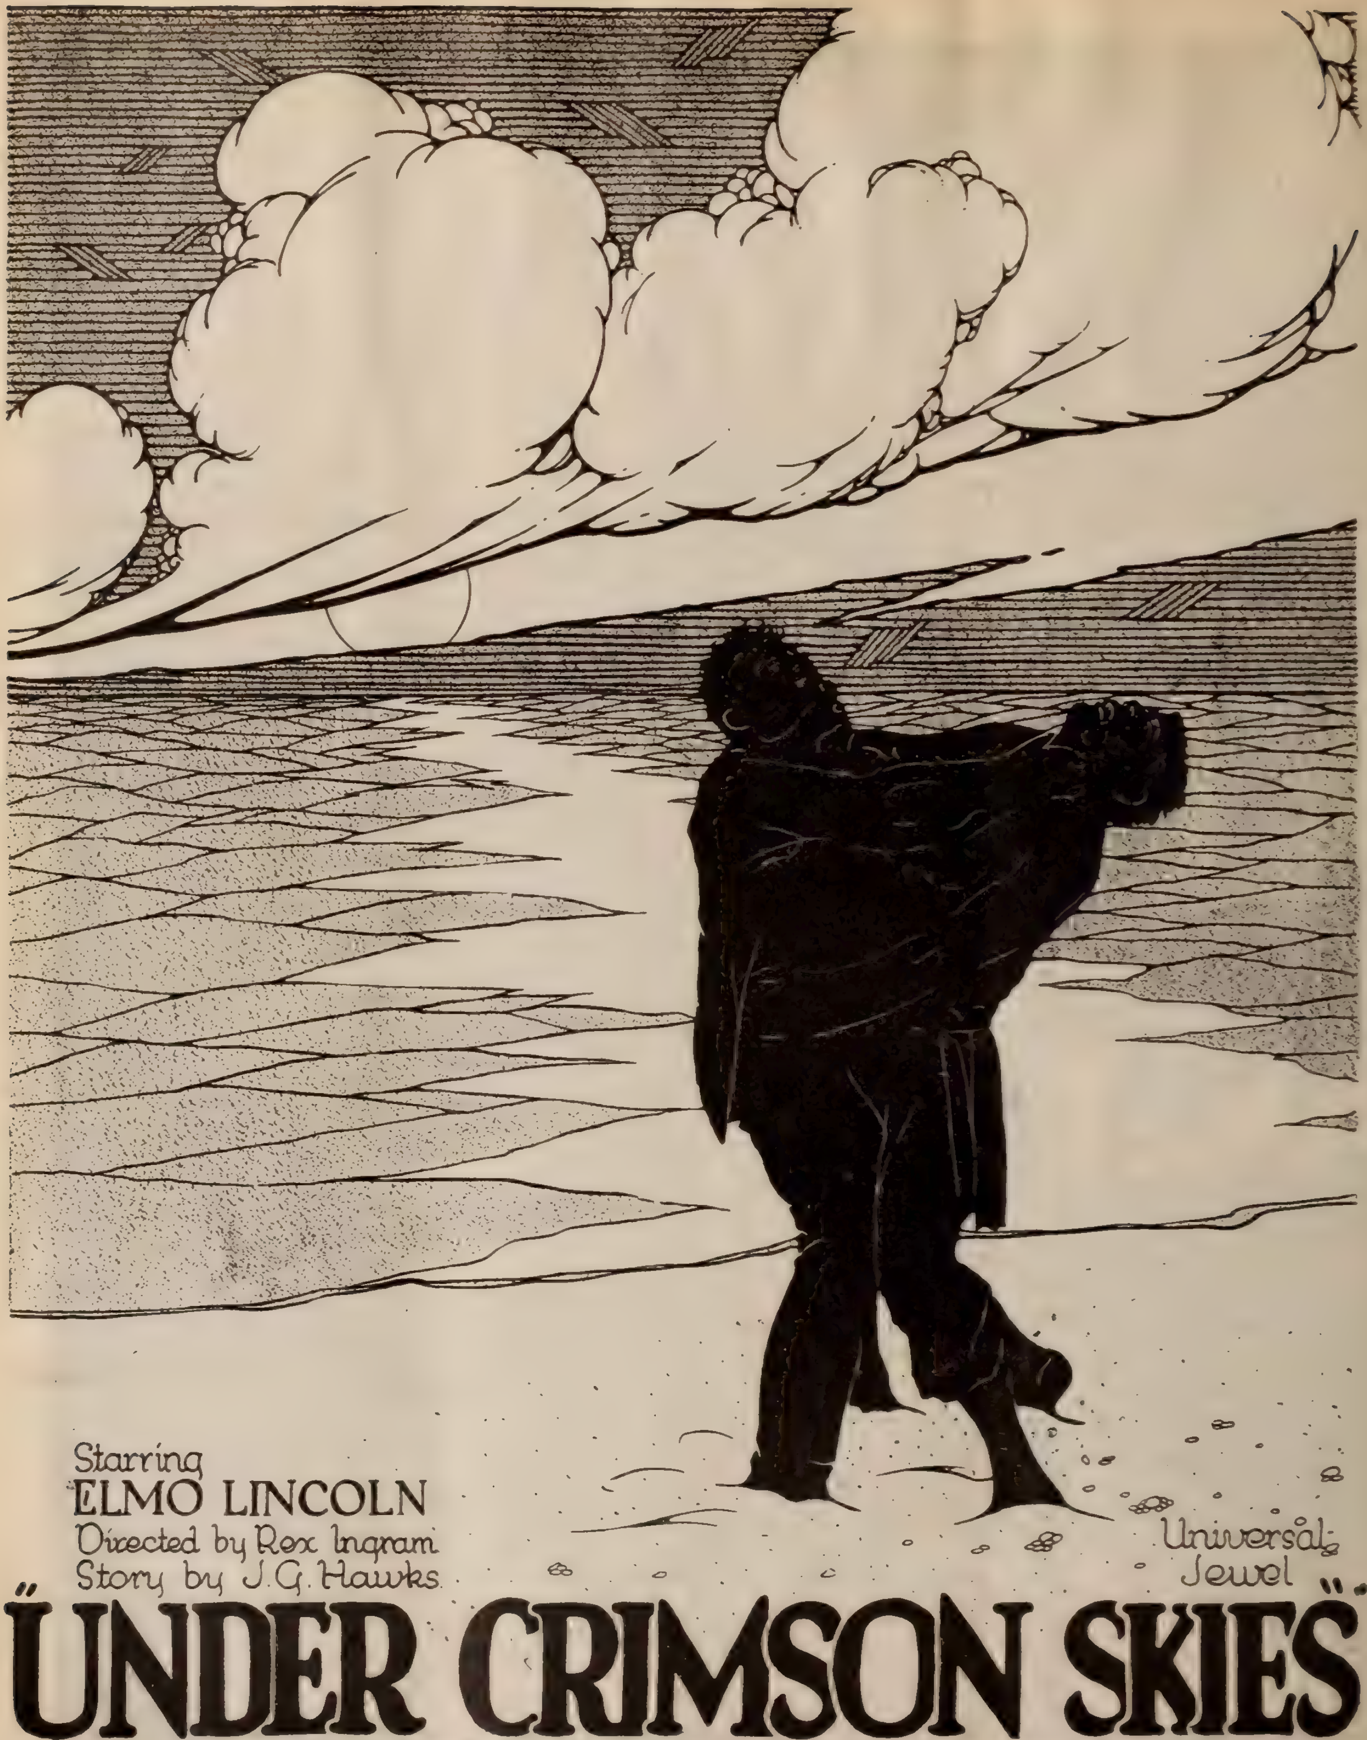
THE LAW"



Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
Directed by Rex Ingram
Story by J. G. Hawks
Universal
Jewel
"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Try this in your local papers. Your newspaper engraver will make a cut of it in any size you desire. It's a sure crowd-puller.

Take your cue from the Bigger Fellows!

THE reputation and prestige attained by this dynamic success at the risk—if there was any—of the bigger fellows, is your surest guide to a patron-pleasing production and big box-office receipts. Profit by the experience of others and book Von Stroheim's absorbing wonder play.

Von Stroheim's
Wonder Play

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

Universal-Jewel
Production de Luxe

PRISCILLA DEAN in

"The VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"I ran 'The Virgin of Stamboul' Friday and Saturday. Personally I consider it the biggest picture I have ever run and it pleased everybody that saw it. It is simply great."

E. E. HODGIN,
Electric Theatre,
Courtland, Kan.

"We shattered all house records for one day's business on 'The Virgin of Stamboul.' This attraction was played at advanced admission rates and I consider it one of the most successful photoplays of the season, both from a financial and artistic standpoint."

W. W. O. FENETY, Mgr.,
Gaiety Theatre,
Fredericton, N. B., Canada.

Some day you'll play it—
Why not now?

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

A Daughter of The West Appears In "Foolish Wives"

MAUDE GEORGE IS PROUD OF FACT THAT SHE CAN JUSTLY CLAIM CALIFORNIA AS HER NATIVE HEATH

Maude George, appearing in Von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives," is a stunning woman in every sense of the word. She designs all her own creations, and they are not only beautiful and attractive, but strikingly original as well. She is one of the best-dressed actresses on the screen.

Moviegoers will not easily forget this attractive actress' striking performance as the modiste in "The Devil's Passkey."

"TO be or not to be"—that signifies a great deal in California. To be a native son, born on the sunny heath of the California country, means that one is considered among "the elect," and not to be born in California means that one is to consider onself privileged that one can dwell in America's paradise. At least that is the way opinions run way out California way.

Maude George comes in the "to be" class, for she was born not so very long ago in Riverside, California. And the sunniness of the climate must have had its imprint on her disposition, for she is a gracious and lovely lady indeed.

If one asks Maude George why she is in the movies she will answer: "I just drifted in." For Maude George started life as a dramatic actress on the "legitimate," and was so distinctly successful in that field of the players' art that it looked as if that would be her career. For two years she had been supporting that excellent actor, the late Nat Goodwin, touring the country with him and playing in New York in some of his well-known plays. Nat Goodwin betook himself to California one fine day to make a picture, and Maude George went home to Riverside to rest. Meeting Mr. Goodwin in Los Angeles accidentally one day, he told her she was just the person he wanted to see, and before Maude realized it she was "in." Her appearance on the silversheet was so striking, and she transformed her histrionic talents from the spoken to the silent drama so naturally and easily, that the demand for her art was great, and Maude George became a cinema actress. She has appeared with some notable actors on the screen, and played an important part in Lois Weber's notable production of several years ago entitled "Idle Wives."

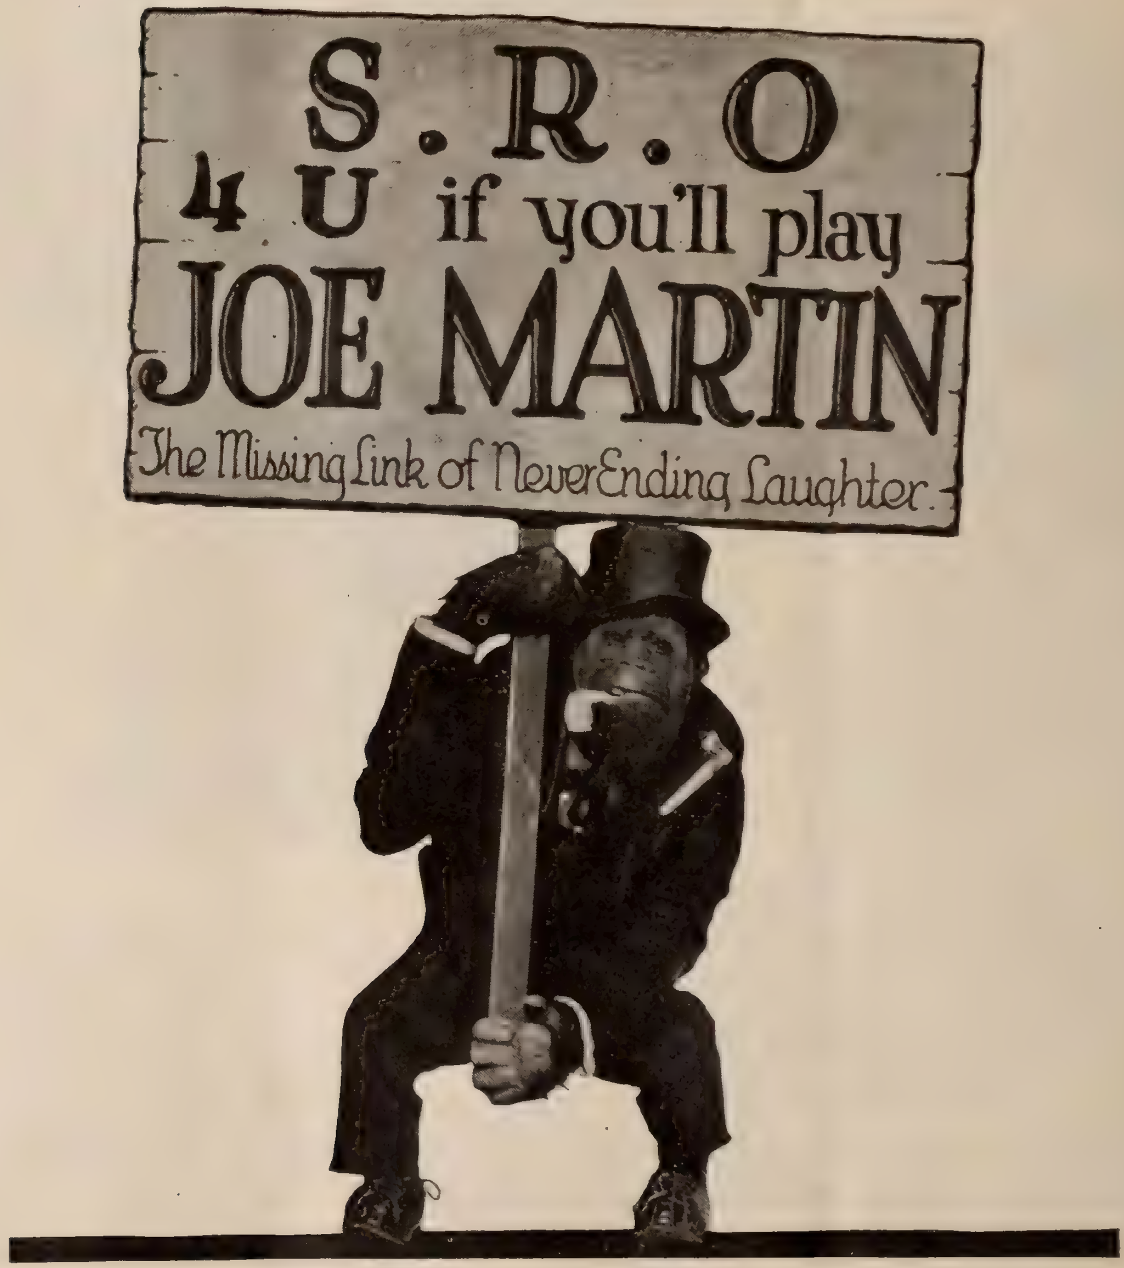
But Maude George did not really get "her moment" in the movies until Eric Von Stroheim offered her the important and difficult role of the modiste in "The Devil's Passkey." With what exquisite deftness of touch and nicety of imagination she portrayed the part, moviegoers are quite familier. Her acting was sheer art from beginning to end, and every nuance of feeling and emotion she depicted realistically, naturally, with consummate intelligence. And not only that—her appearance was the last word in "chicness" and attractiveness. For Maude George is more than a capable actress—she is a stunning woman—beautiful of feature and capable of wearing her original costumes in a manner the envy of all womanhood.

Erie Von Stroheim understands all these things about Maude George well. He wouldn't let her go. He offered her one of the choicest roles in a production the magnitude and splendor of which will startle the world—"Foolish Wives." And Maude George accepted it, and in a few months hence moviegoers will have the delightful privilege of gazing upon Maude George in the role of the Princess Olga, intriguing, scheming, calculating, hypocritical, cruel and cautious. Just the sort of difficult role that Maude George can so faultlessly portray.

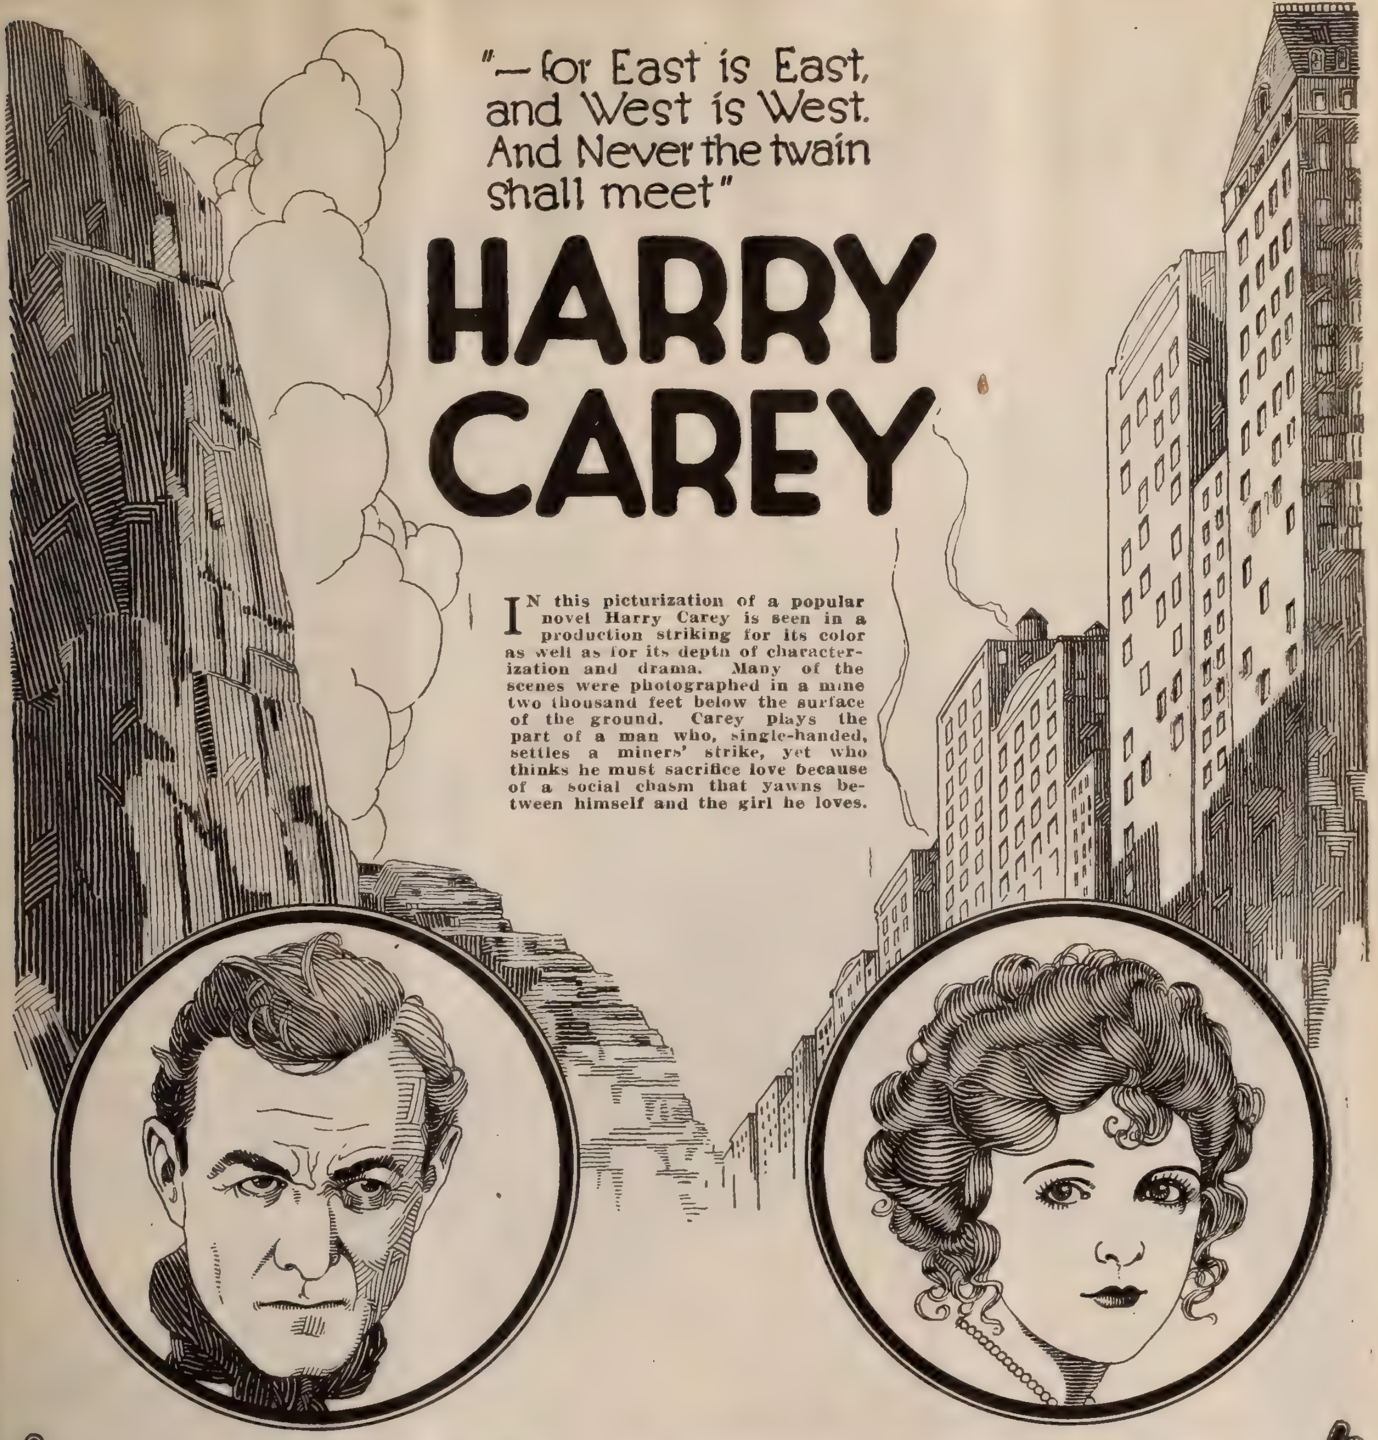
"Foolish Wives" will certainly be enriched by the presence of Maude George in its cast.

Believe in Signs?

"A WILD NIGHT"
"A PROHIBITION MONKEY"
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL



S. R. O
4 U if you'll play
JOE MARTIN
The Missing Link of Never Ending Laughter.



"—for East is East,
and West is West.
And Never the twain shall meet"

HARRY CAREY

IN this picturization of a popular novel Harry Carey is seen in a production striking for its color as well as for its depth of characterization and drama. Many of the scenes were photographed in a mine two thousand feet below the surface of the ground. Carey plays the part of a man who, single-handed, settles a miners' strike, yet who thinks he must sacrifice love because of a social chasm that yawns between himself and the girl he loves.

"WEST IS WEST"

Directed by Val Paul—Story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Mats of this cut are available at your Universal exchange. Price 40c.

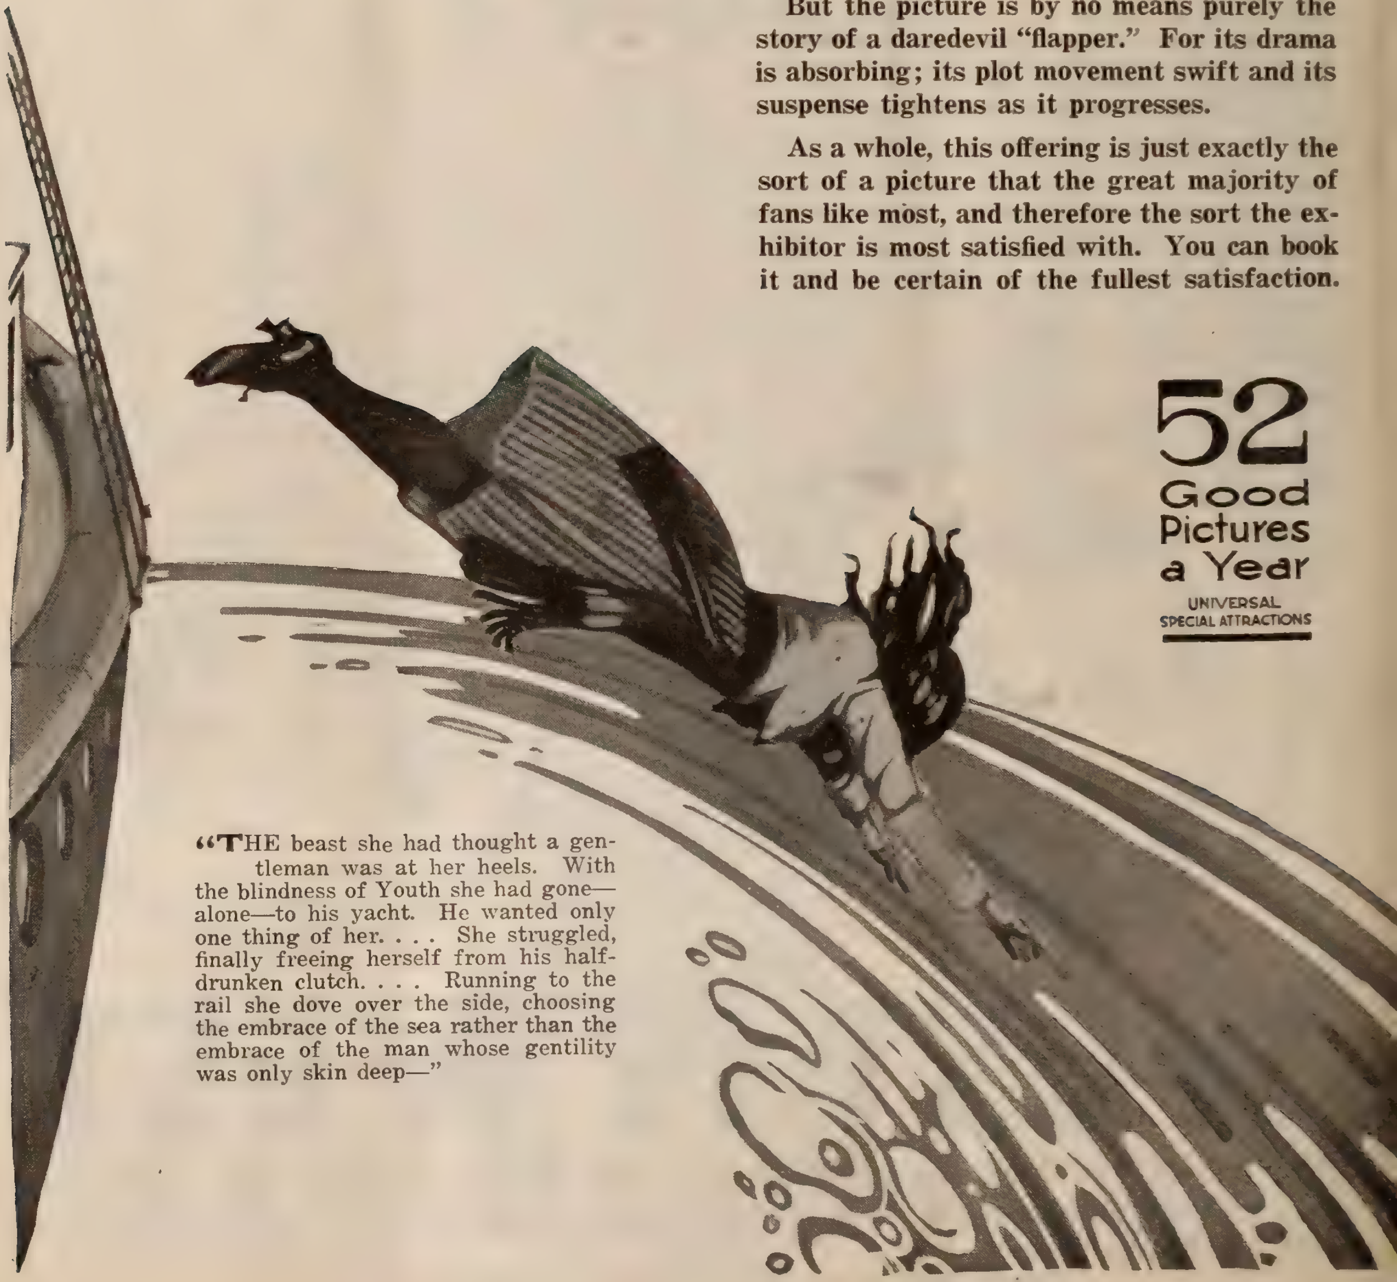
She was only Sweet

FEW things in this world are more appealing than a young girl standing on the brink of womanhood. And the heroine of this picture is such a figure—with the added charm of irrepressible good spirits which bubble to the surface in a never-ending stream of michievous pranks.

But the picture is by no means purely the story of a daredevil "flapper." For its drama is absorbing; its plot movement swift and its suspense tightens as it progresses.

As a whole, this offering is just exactly the sort of a picture that the great majority of fans like most, and therefore the sort the exhibitor is most satisfied with. You can book it and be certain of the fullest satisfaction.

52
Good
Pictures
a Year
UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS



"THE beast she had thought a gentleman was at her heels. With the blindness of Youth she had gone—alone—to his yacht. He wanted only one thing of her. . . . She struggled, finally freeing herself from his half-drunken clutch. . . . Running to the rail she dove over the side, choosing the embrace of the sea rather than the embrace of the man whose gentility was only skin deep—"

Sixteen—But oh, my!

SAY! You just ought to see this "flapper" shoot craps! She sure wields a wicked wing when it comes to making those trembling dotted caramels speak their prettiest.

And if you think you love her then, just wait until the picture progresses and see how much more you love her when real drama begins to revolve about her and the impish "flapper" becomes a woman. Then you'll begin to realize just how entertaining a picture can be when it's human and when its drama is developed naturally and with sympathetic force.

LADYS WALTON

In a peppery picture of a pretty little daredevil "flapper"

RISKY BUSINESS"

Directed by Harry Harris
om the Story by Douglas Doty and John Colton

Service Page For Carmel Myers In "Beautifully Trimmed"

Carmel Myers in "BEAUTIFULLY TRIMMED" UNIVERSAL

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Beautiful Trimmed."

STAR—Carmel Myers.

PREVIOUS HITS—"In Folly's Trail," "The Gilded Dream," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Marcel de Sano.

STORY BY—Marguerite C. Storrs.

SCENARIO BY—Douglas Doty and Marcel de Sano.

SUPPORTING CAST—Irving Cummings, Pell Trenton, George B. Williams, Lee Kohlmar, Victory Bateman, Alfred Fisher, etc.

LOCALE—New York City.

TIME—The Present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of an impoverished society girl who becomes the accomplice of an unscrupulous artist; of an insatiable desire for luxury which stifles the voice of conscience; of a great love which gradually awakens her innate nobility and points a new path to happiness.

CAST

Norine Lawton	Carmel Myers
Christopher Gibbons	Pell Trenton
Count Bonzi	Irving Cummings
Henry Calkins	Alfred Fisher
Mrs. Calkins	Victory Bateman
Sims	George B. Williams
Drake	Lee Kohlmar
Horton	Herbert Bethew
Margery Drake	Myrtle Reeves

THE STORY

IN Washington Square, where artistic bohemia separates the aristocracy of Fifth Avenue and the slums—Count Gabriel Bonzi separates the newly rich from their wealth—and makes 'em like it.

Norine Lawton, a girl with real social prestige, is his companion in a bunko game that depends on the artistic ignorance of its victims for its success. Her father died a ruined man from the crooked manipulations of professional business gamblers, and Norine thinks she is evening her score with the wicked world.

Bonzi, a clever artist, counterfeits famous masters. These Norine hangs in her apartment and, under pressure of sustained coaxing on the part of social climbers with money, who desire to acquire "culture," she will part with her treasure for a price say of $30,000 or $40,000 or so.

A childhood friend, Christopher Gibbons, returns from overseas an aviation captain, an ace and a hero, and she works the picture trick on him. Seeing bigger game in him, she introduces him to Bonzi and his friend Sims, who have a pet oil swindle they're working.

In the meantime Norine hears Gibbons talk on his war experiences, and realizes the sordidness of the world in which she now lives. She realizes also that she is too deep in the mire to get out and promises Bonzi that they'll "go to the devil together."

Bonzi and Sims plan to use a fake report that the well is producing heavily if Gibbons proves skeptical. Gibbons has investigated the oil, learns that it is non-producing, and determines to trap the men.

Norine goes on a picnic in the country with Gibbons and realizes to the full the gulf that is between them. She tells Bonzi she'll marry him if he'll give up the swindle, and he joyfully agrees. But Bonzi disregards his promise at the prospect of easy wealth. At a wild bohemian party Norine purposely exaggerates her wildness to disillusion Gibbons, and he knowing she is not herself, turns out the lights and dashes away with her. He takes her home and tells her he will see her next ay.

Learning that Bonzi has lied to her Norine resolves to play fair with Gibbons. She tells him he is swindled; he laughs and proceeds with his plans to arrest the rogues when they cash his check. In the meantime the unexpected happens—oil flows on the Mercer. A long distance call comes to Norine and she rushes to the bank and notifies Gibbons before he has the men arrested. Instead, Gibbons buys the rest of their stock, and then reveals to them how they've been caught in their own trap.

Bonzi goes to the home of Norine to take her away with him, and she resists. In a murderous rage the artist attacks her, but Gibbons enters in time to save her and punish the scoundrel. He then takes Norine in his arms and tells her the past doesn't matter—"It's the woman you really are I want."

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

He came to be fleeced—and stayed to be loved—by the orchid of Washington Square. Carmel Myers in "Beautifully Trimmed."

She was a Mona Lisa Vampire—wise as time, with a passionate poise of innocence—this orchid of Washington Square.

In the hothouse of Bohemia flourished the orchid—a flower of Fifth Avenue who scorned the aristocracy she had left and who feared the poverty that threatened.

She loved luxury. She hated the luxurious world that had brought her father to ruin. Caught in this maelstrom of conflicting desire she took refuge in wild, carefree, unconventional Bohemia. Carmel Myers in "Beautifully Trimmed."

One thing only could stop his love—disillusionment. She invited him to a revel in Bohemia and assumed a wanton wildness. He was horrified. He turned out the lights and rushed away . . . But—he carried her with him. See "Beautifully Trimmed," with Carmel Myers.

What Motion Picture News Says Concerning "Honor Bound"

A FRANK MAYO picture is always awaited with eager anticipation because Frank Mayo is a distinct personality, and new things are always to be looked for from his constantly progressing art. There had been copious pre-reports of his latest picture, "Honor Bound"—stories that this one was "different," and how Frank Mayo would portray a double sort of role, and how the atmosphere of the picture would be striking and arresting in every sense of the word. And when "Honor Bound" did finally arrive it lived up to all the wonderful stories that were spread broadcast about it while it was in the making, and Frank Mayo scored a real personal triumph.

The critics were generous in their praises of "Honor Bound," and reproduced on this page is the opinion of Frank Leonard, critic of "Motion Picture News," which appeared on page 3819 of the issue of November 13, 1920.

"HONOR BOUND"

(Universal)

FRANK MAYO HAS GOOD MATERIAL IN THIS ONE

"HONOR BOUND" is one of the best productions Frank Mayo has ever produced for Universal.

The story, which was written by Jacques Jaccard, who also acted as director, has romance, heart interest, and dramatic moments and these ingredients are proportioned in such a way that interest is aroused from start to finish.

Attention to detail, both in the arrangement of sets and the selection of exteriors, is another important factor in the production of this feature for which Jaccard should be given credit.

This is especially true when the scenes shift to the tropical regions where naturalness abounds.

In the latter scenes Frank Mayo does some of the best acting of his career, injecting plenty of action into a duel with swords which he has with a native.

The duel is well worth witnessing and shows that the participants know how to handle these weapons and build up the action to a strong dramatic climax.

The star is supported by a strong cast, Edward Coxen giving a splendid portrayal of the "heavy," and Dagmar Godowsky as a wild native girl.

The story pictures the primitive passions as they flourish in the tropics and points out the fact that the white man who goes there with a weak will is bound to succumb to its temptations.—Length, 5 reels.—Frank Leonard.

Frank Mayo plays equally well the role of the cultured society man and the "strong man." Some of his admirers clamor for him in roles of the first kind, while others want him in parts of the second kind. In "Honor Bound" the role of Billy Thorpe is a combination of both, and Frank Mayo carries it off in splendid style. Incidentally, "Honor Bound" contains one of the best duel and sword scenes that the movies have seen in many a day, a scene intensely dramatic and suspenseful and fought out as only Frank Mayo can fight it out.

"Honor Bound" was both written and directed by Jacques Jaccard of "The Great Air Robbery" fame. Frank Mayo is supported in this, his latest vehicle, by an especially strong cast. Excellent assistance is rendered by Dagmar Godowsky in the role of an untamed native girl. She acts with fire and yet restraint, and her scenes with Mayo are interesting and entertaining throughout.

They've Got "Go" Out in the Philippines

MANILA, P. I., may be a long way from Broadway, but when it comes to exploiting moving pictures, our little brown brothers know a thing or two themselves, judging from reports just received from the Empire Theatre, Manila.

"The Great Air Robbery," the spectacular melodrama of the air starring Lieut. O. L. Locklear, and directed for Universal by Jacques Jaccard, was booked at the Empire this fall for a week's run. The manager made up his mind to put the picture over in a big way.

Evidently the residents of Manila have much the same views on postal efficiency as do some people in the United States, since the Empire Theatre stunt was the laugh of the town and created great interest in "The Great Air Robbery."

A tie-up was made with the local Curtiss Aeroplane agency, which supplied a plane for the stunt. This plane soared over Manila and distributed thousands of pamphlets descriptive of the picture. On each circular was a bold-face inscription reading as follows:

"This notice is being delivered to you by aeroplane, not because we distrust the mail service, but to make sure that you get it by next Monday, when 'The Great Air Robbery' opens at the Empire Theatre."

Publicity Stories for Carmel Myers in "Beautifully Trimmed"

CARMEL MYERS SUGGESTS TWO TYPES OF GIRLHOOD

CARMEL MYERS is a queer combination of the old-fashioned and the ultra-modern. There are times when she suggests a daguerreotype of one's great-grandmother when she was sixteen, and on other occasions she gives one the impression of having been born a generation or two ahead of time. For one scene in a photodrama she will design a gown that would have been quite the thing at a Dolly Madison reception, and for another scene she will introduce a creation that looks like a 1930 hint from Paris. And the strange part of it all is that she looks equally stunning in both frocks.

When Miss Myers left Universal City a year and a half ago to go on the Broadway stage the reviewers received her as a quaint personality. She reminded them of a Priscilla or an Evangeline. Then she began startling Broadway with new innovations. She introduced a few advanced notes in her stage and street costumes which were widely copied. And just when she had become a Broadway favorite and her position on the stage seemed secure she decided that she liked the motion pictures best after all and returned to Universal City.

Since the arrival of Miss Myers at the film capital she has appeared in three elaborate photoplays. The first was "In Folly's Trail," a story of New York's Bohemian set. The next was "The Gilded Dream," a tale of a small town girl who cherishes visions of wealth and happiness, and her latest picture, to be shown at the ——— Theatre on ———, is called "Beautifully Trimmed," and is said to show Miss Myers at her very best. The story is by Marguerite C. Storrs and was directed by Marcel de Sano.

A NEW DIRECTOR IS INTRODUCED WITH RELEASE OF NEW MYERS FILM

THE showing here next ——— at the ——— Theatre of Carmel Myers' latest photodrama, "Beautifully Trimmed," will introduce a new director to local moviegoers in the person of Marcel de Sano. Although Mr. de Sano's name is at present comparatively unknown to the patrons of the silent drama, he is destined to write his name high on the American screen.

De Sano has the distinction of being the youngest motion picture director in America. He has been in America a little over a year, coming here on a diplomatic mission for France shortly after the war. He is a Roumanian by birth, the son of a famous European artist, and at the time the war began he was finishing his studies at the University of Paris and specializing in dramatic literature. When hostilities began he enlisted in the French army and served in the aviation corps throughout the war.

On the completion of his mission to America he came to California to engage in the direction of motion pictures. After giving his views on the art to several of the foremost producers he was immediately engaged by Winchell Smith, famous playwright and director, to co-direct two features. He next co-directed with Herbert Blache, and then with Rex Ingram.

Mr. de Sano has original and brilliant ideas regarding direction and seems to view the production of motion pictures from a fresh angle. Much of this will be evident to those who see "Beautifully Trimmed." His staging of a Bohemian revel in Greenwich Village, his Parisian episode during the war, his theatre scenes and his atmospheric scenes all indicate a new genius in filmdom.

POPULAR LEADING MAN SUCCUMBS TO THE FASCINATION OF BRUNETTE BEAUTY

NO more blonde leading ladies for Pell Trenton. This popular actor of the stage and screen has supported more golden haired stars and leading ladies than any other player in the films; but after playing opposite Carmel Myers in her latest photodrama, "Beautifully Trimmed," he has undergone a complete change of taste. He says that if the other dark haired stars are half as charming as Miss Myers he is "off the blondes" forever.

According to friends who knew him some years ago, a good architect was spoiled when Trenton, after graduating from the Columbia University, New York, fell victim to the charms of Julia Marlowe and sought an engagement in her company, even though in a most humble capacity. He remained with that star for several seasons, finally playing important Shakespearean roles. He also supported such brilliant stars of the stage as Maxine Elliott, Laurette Taylor, Marie Doro and Sir Herbert Tree, and played King Love in the original New York production of "Everywoman."

In "Beautifully Trimmed" Mr. Trenton plays the role of a wealthy young man who goes to war, becomes an ace, and returns home a hero and with a changed view of life. It is his new attitude which brings Carmel Myers to a realization of the unworthiness of the part she is playing in the general scheme of things.

WELL-KNOWN ACTOR PORTRAYS BIG ROLE IN FILM "BEAUTIFULLY TRIMMED"

PROMINENT in Carmel Myers' support in her latest photodrama, which will be seen at the ——— Theatre next ———, is Irving Cummings, who is probably better known to the patrons of the screen than any other actor to-day.

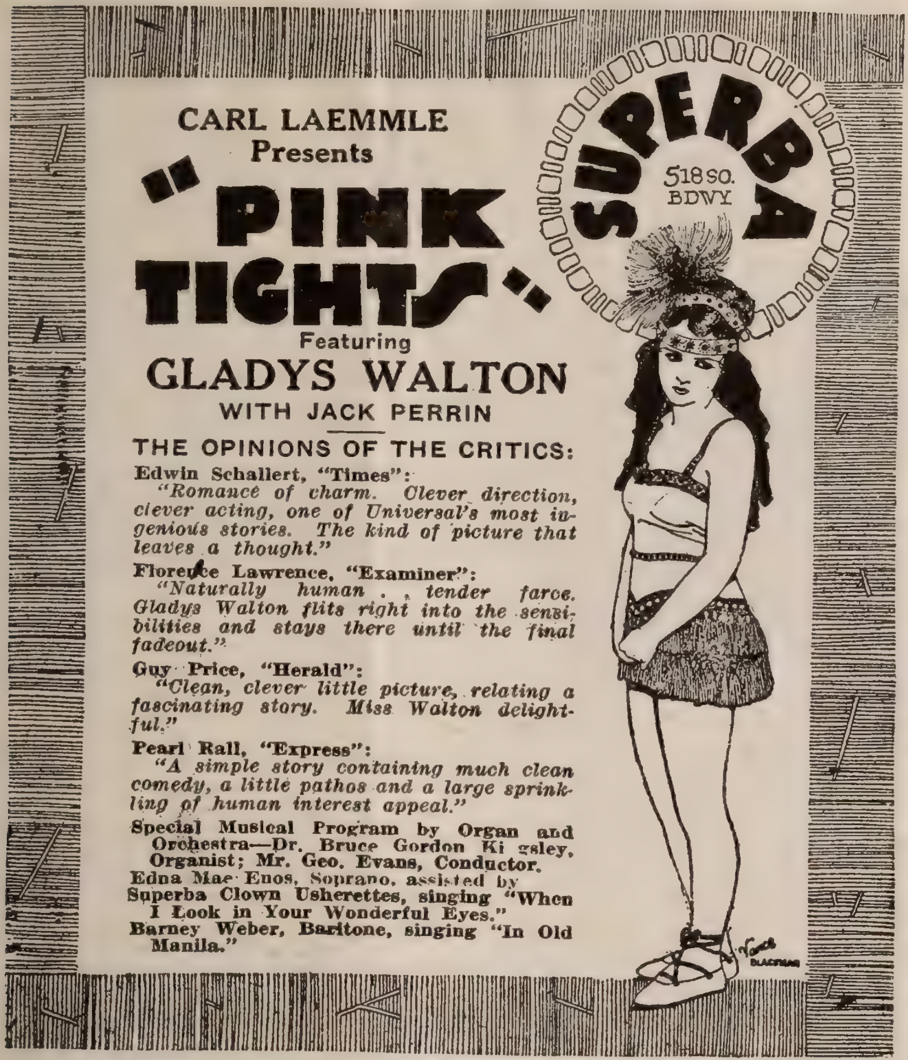
Irving Cummings was one of the first popular leading men to go into motion pictures, and he has been playing star and leading roles for over ten years. There is hardly a star of any note in the films to-day who has not played opposite Irving Cummings at some time of his or her career.

And yet Cummings is a young man. Born and educated in New York City, he went on the stage before he finished his high school course, and at nineteen was the youngest leading man in any American stock company. That was at the Columbia Theatre, Washington. From there he went to play in stock in Cleveland, and from there to the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee. In 1910 he became associated with the silent drama as featured player with the Mutual concern, and he has been before the camera almost continuously ever since. On two occasions he deserted the screen for the stage—once to play the leading role with Lillian Russell in "In Search of a Sinner," and again to appear with Henry Miller in a revival of "The Great Divide."

To name the stars Cummings has supported or the productions in which he has been featured would be to give a list of the outstanding successes of the past decade.

In "Beautifully Trimmed" he has one of the most interesting roles of his career—an unscrupulous artist posing asa foreign nobleman and palming off clever copies under the guise of genuine masters. He is splendid foil for the ingenuous charm of Carmel Myers.

Here's "Class" in Ad for "Pink Tights"



CARL LAEMMLE
Presents
"PINK TIGHTS"
Featuring
GLADYS WALTON
WITH JACK PERRIN

SUPERBA
518 SO. BDWY

THE OPINIONS OF THE CRITICS:

Edwin Schallert, "Times":
"Romance of charm. Clever direction, clever acting, one of Universal's most ingenious stories. The kind of picture that leaves a thought."

Florence Lawrence, "Examiner":
"Naturally human . . tender farce. Gladys Walton flits right into the sensibilities and stays there until the final fadeout."

Guy Price, "Herald":
"Clean, clever little picture, relating a fascinating story. Miss Walton delightful."

Pearl Rall, "Express":
"A simple story containing much clean comedy, a little pathos and a large sprinkling of human interest appeal."

Special Musical Program by Organ and Orchestra—Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley, Organist; Mr. Geo. Evans, Conductor.
Edna Mae Enos, Soprano, assisted by Superba Clown Usherettes, singing "When I Look in Your Wonderful Eyes."
Barney Weber, Baritone, singing "In Old Manila."

Advertisement used by Superba The atre, Los Angeles, for "Pink Tights."

WHEN "Pink Tights" was running at the Superba Theatre in Los Angeles, Cal., the management ran an advertisement for the entire week that the production was playing in the Los Angeles daily newspaper known as the "Examiner." The advertisement is reproduced to the left, and clearly brings out the opinions of the leading newspaper critics of Los Angeles on the attractive feature.

The Superba ran to crowded houses every night. The management of the theatre praised the picture strongly, and the patrons of the Superba were delighted with the winning little star.

It is the same story over and over again. Everybody that sees "Pink Tights"—rich and poor, young and old, educated or uneducated—finds pleasure and joy in it, for it is a picture for everybody, beautifully told and beautifully acted. No exhibitor can go astray with it. It lends itself beautifully to exploitation, too, and many are the novel stunts which exhibitors have devised to help "put it over" big. One theatre devised a whole circus parade and marched it through the middle of the city's busiest streets, while others fitted out their theatres to give them a circus effect. Then, too, the picture features a new star, Gladys Walton, who is a "find," and everybody is always anxious to see a new actress who has suddenly risen from obscurity to stardom.

Best Talent Assembled for Universal Scenario Staff

PRODUCERS of motion pictures have finally discovered that after all Bill Shakespeare may have been right when he penned that line—"the play's the thing."

You can take the best actors, the finest directors, give them the most elaborate settings and most wonderful scenic surroundings. But lacking a realgood story the picture will not be a real success. A good story is the foundation and the substance of a photodrama, without which the structure is a failure.

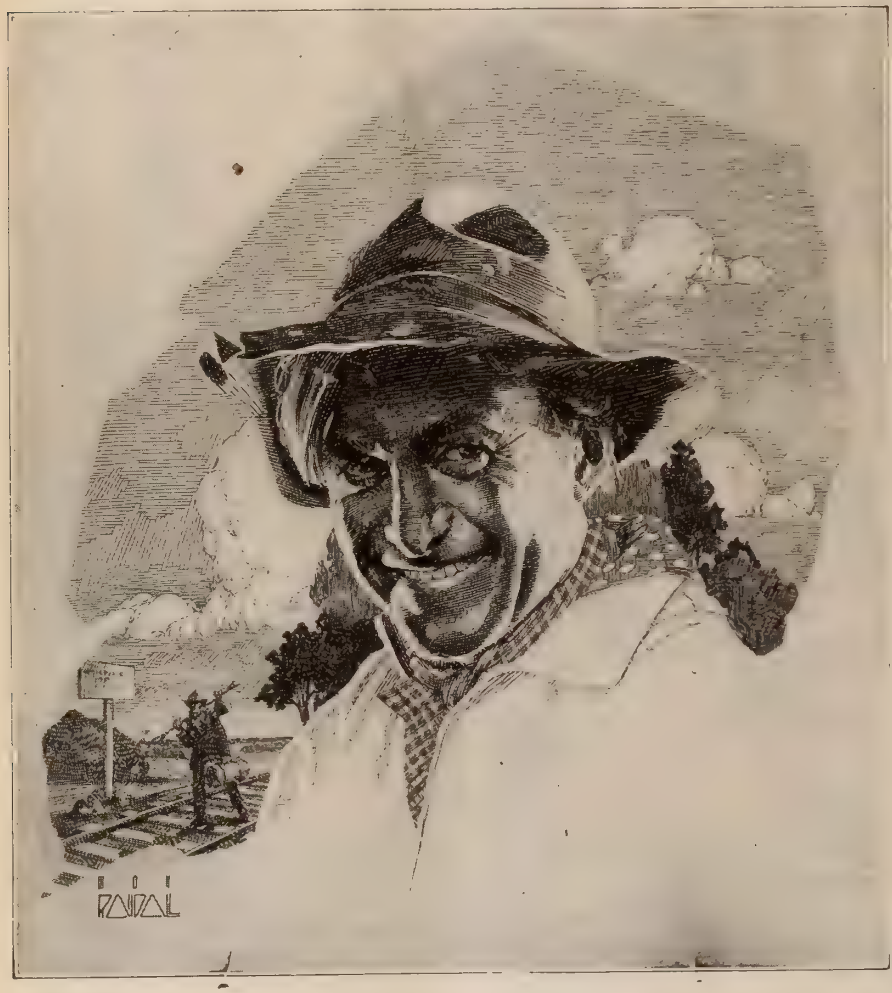
Universal was one of the first producing companies to realize the value of a story, and some of the best writers have given their pen creations for Universal screening. Recently they have acquired two brilliant writers on their scenario staff, and the two of them have collaborated on the authorship of "Risky Business," in which Gladys Walton is starring.

The authors of "Risky Business" are John Colton and Douglas Doty. Mr. Colton is a writer of considerable reputation, his stories having appeared in the leading magazines and novels from his pen having achieved wide circulation. One of his plays, "Princesses Must Live," was recently produced on the London stage, and another is about to be presented on Broadway by one of the foremost dramatic producers.

Douglas Doty began his literary career as a writer of fiction, became a critic and then became editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Later he held the same position on the Century Magazine, but was induced to join Universal's staff of scenario writers.

Though each has done excellent individual work, "Risky Business" is the first result of their joint efforts.

When Dreams Come True



That Carey smile.

WHEN dreams come true, Harry Carey is going to settle down on his ranch near Los Angeles in the beautiful San Francisquito canyon and be a rancher, a real rancher, for the rest of his days. Not that Harry Carey doesn't love his screen work—he couldn't be the great artist that he is if he didn't—but there is so much to do and so many plans to carry out on that ranch that he loves so well, that Harry Carey often longs for the time when he can give it his entire attention.

For the ranch is not one of those "fixed-up" places that rich men buy and casually refer to as "my place out West." Harry Carey bought it when it was undeveloped and put not only his money but his heart into its development. It has taken several years of the sincerest effort and concentration to make the ranch the real ranch that it is to-day and it is small wonder, then, that it is the apple of the popular actor's eye.

Harry Carey has a real cowboy outfit on the ranch and to the "boys" he is known as "Cheyenne." They love him and respect him and are never happier than when they are given an opportunity to appear with him in a picture, which has occurred several times of late. There are spirited horses on the Carey ranch, and numerous breeds of sheep; there are chickens galore, and, best of all, there is Carey's beautiful Scotch collie, who is firmly entrenched in the actor's affections, and is treated as though he were a member of the family. Carey's favorite horse is kept as carefully as a millionaire's child. There is a reason for this besides Carey's natural love for animals. He is called upon to do many hazardous feats on horseback in the making of his Western pictures, and in some of these stunts the rider's safety depends largely upon the horse. Consequently Carey wants his mount to be in the best physical condition and able to "stand the gaff" in the roughest riding. The stables on the Carey ranch are the last word in modernism and the envy of all the neighboring countryside.

But what the Carey ranch is most renowned for is hospitality, such hospitality as one reads about in the tales of the good days of the roaring fireplace and the crackling venison and the good cheer everywhere. Carey sometimes takes his whole company to the ranch for days at a time to film pictures there. There the authors of the Carey stories, Eugene Manlove Rhodes and H. H. Knibbs and others, have been entertained in the generous, open-hearted manner of the West, and there many of California's best known sons have spent some of the pleasantest hours of their lives.

Harry Carey is now appearing in a delightful Western drama entitled "West Is West" from the pen of Eugene Manlove Rhodes. During the filming of this picture, the Carey company headed by Val Paul, the director, had to betake themselves to Arizona for the taking of some scenes. In spite of all the work to be done, Harry managed to take a few days off and ran up into the Navajo country, where he bought five hundred sheep from the Indians at a price running into four figures. These he transported to his ranch, where, from the latest dispatches, they are happy and thriving.

Carey is hard at work now on his next release, which he wrote himself, and which will again be directed by the industrious Val Paul. But just as soon as he has finished this feature, Carey will head straight for the dear old ranch to take a much needed rest and to bring happiness to the hearts of the cowboy squadron. He will revel in his horses, his sheep, his dogs and his chickens, and he will as usual find a hundred and one improvements to make, all of which will go to make the Carey ranch one of the best equipped places in the California country.

Before and After

"BREEZY" GOT TOO SMART AND HAD TO BE TAKEN DOWN A PEG BY SMILING "HOOT" GIBSON HIMSELF

ONE day not so very long ago little "Breezy" Eason woke up feeling particularly gay, so gay, in fact, that he did all the mischief he could around the house, and when he arrived at Universal City he brought with him a much bewildered dad and ma. "Breezy" was undaunted, however, and feeling gayer than ever, he offered to "fight" "Hoot" Gibson a couple of rounds. "Hoot" wasn't afraid and took him right up on it, and after a little while—a very little while—he just picked "Breezy" up and walked off with him and deposited him somewheres around the big studio where he couldn't get into mischief any more. But "Breezy" isn't through by any means. He promises to get back at "Hoot" good and proper, and he's training for it now.

For "Breezy" Eason is a regular little boy in spite of the fact that he is one of the most talented child actors on the screen—a little boy with real sporting blood. Everybody in the big studio city loves him, and he has friends, young and old, by the legion.

"Breezy" has been playing parts in Universal pictures for many months, but it was not until "Pink Tights" that he got his first real chance. And he took advantage of it. Wherever this adorable comedy-drama is shown folks are asking: "Who's the kid?" And folks are saying: "He sure can act some." "Breezy" was just himself in "Pink Tights"—a real boy, full of fun and mischief and unconcern for everything and everybody.

"Breezy" is going to have another big chance real soon. It will be in an all-star dramatic feature production, in which not only "Breezy" will appear, but Pa Eason and Ma Eason, and even Mickey, the Eason dog. And Pa Eason is directing it in addition. It will be a real role for the youngster, and no one doubts but what he will make the most of it.

Most of the child actors are merely cute. Some of them register hits merely because of this quality of adorable youthfulness. But "Breezy" is different. He is young—very young; he is cute—very cute; but he is an actor in every sense of the word. It will be years and years before he is even grown up, so that he will have ample time for all sorts of education—ample opportunities to show folks the wonder of "Breezy" Eason.

New Screen Magazine

No. 95

NATURE has some marvelously beautiful hot water springs and geysers scattered in various parts of America, which should be the envy of every flat-dweller who has to perpetually complain because of a lack of hot water.

A young society girl, after a breakdown in health, recuperated by taking physical culture exercises on two rings suspended in the air from a frame. She became so dexterous and original in her stunts that she received a number of circus contracts which she turned down.

Max Greenberg, sixteen years of age, a New York high school student, displays a remarkable talent in clay modeling, the more wonderful since he has received no instruction at all. Celebrated sculptors have praised his work and claim he will be a future Michael Angelo.

There are some interesting slow motion pictures of diving and a strikingly original and entertaining animated in this issue of the magazine, entitled "A Pig In A Pen," by Pat Sullivan.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 7

"Over the City"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Helen	Corinne Porter
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Mary	Kittoria Beveridge
Gray	Harry Madison

SYNOPSIS

EDDIE enters Gray's private compartment on the circus special where Mary is a prisoner and is attacked by Gray's pet lioness that has been placed on guard over Mary. At the same time Helen, waiting beside a flat car that is being loaded, is struck by a circus wagon which overturns and falls off the flat. She is rushed to a hospital.

Eddie throttles the lioness as the train starts. He and Mary escape out the window and wait for the midnight express to take them to San Luis, where the records proving Eddie's claim are filed. The circus special, with Gray aboard, also heads for San Luis.

At the hospital Helen's injuries are found to be slight, but as she leaves she sees Winters, who has been placed in the hospital by the mystery man. Winters' recovery has brought to his mind certain events connected with Eddie's past which he had forgotten for many years, among them the fact that Eddie's baby sister was carried away the night of the big storm at the same time Gray attacked Eddie's father. Helen realizes that Eddie should know of this and takes Winters and starts for San Luis.

Morning finds all factions in San Luis. It is Sunday and the Hall of Records is closed. Eddie and Mary take rooms in a hotel opposite the Hall, while Gray and one of his men force an entrance and open the safe containing the files. Mary sees them at work from her room, calls Eddie and he crosses from the hotel to the Hall of Records on a cable strung high above the street. Gray sees him coming and there is a thrilling battle on the ledge outside the recorder's office. Will Eddie be hurled to the street ten stories below?

International News

No. 74

Rome, Italy.—International presents exclusive pictures of a flight over Rome, by special permission of the Italian government.

..Sub-Titles.—The famous Pantheon—now the tomb of Roman kings—photographed by Aerial Varges, one of the International's European staff. The historic Tiber—with a glimpse of the Palace of Justice. The glory that was Rome's—the Coliseum. Impressive and exclusive air pictures of the holy places in the Eternal City in the next issue of International News. Shown in this theatre.

..Chicago, Ill.—The 1920 girl a real climber. Miss Frances Smith takes up steeple jacking for a living—and likes it.

Sub-Title.—Her teacher's an expert—watch him. (To be omitted from Philadellphia and Washington prints.)

Philadelphia, Pa.—Hosts of children greet Mrs. Roosevelt in tribute to "Teddy."

Sub-Title.—Mayor Moore of Philadelphia, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. J. W. White and Captain Kermit Roosevelt. (For Philadelphia only.)

Washington, D. C.—Uncle Sam's prize floral beauties. Agricultural Department displays finest "Mums."

Sub-Title.—The prize winner—General Pershing. (For Washington only.)

New York City.—Speediest "typewriter." George B. Hossfeld beats the fair ones at their own game at Annual Business Show.

Sub-Title.—This is George, writing 131 words a minute. Miss Margaret Owen—champion four years—lost this time by one word.

Paris, France.—President Millerand sees aerial progress depicted at big fair. (To be omitted from Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Butte, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Des Moines, Detroit, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City Memphis, Minneapolis, New Haven, New Orleans, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, St. Louis, Salt Lake, Seattle and Spokane.

New York City.—Latest in chapeaux. Fifth Avenue's "last word" in new head-gear fashions. (To be omitted from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, Denver and Butte prints only.)

Tacoma, Washington.—"Kidnapped" child returned to mother. Bobby Stagg home again after wanderings covering thousands of miles. (For Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, Denver and Butte.)

Lake Merritt, Cal.—Wily ducks flock to lake refuge as hunting season opens.

Sub-Titles.—Away from the hunters' guns with the State furnishing free board. The day the hunting season closes they leave—can a duck think?

In the Public Eye.—Prince Paul, 19 years old, called to be King of Greece. Lucerne, Switzerland. (The prince—in the background—and the exiled royal family.)

Sub-Titles.—Mrs. Eleanor Glyn, famous author of "Three Weeks," and other romances, arrives to give us the "once over." New York City. Rivals for New York State's governorship talk it over. (With a bit of help from the cameraman. Alfred E. Smith—Nathan L. Miller. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, the former president's widow, attends a celebration in honor of the colonel, Philadellphia, Pa. (Omitted from Philadelphia prints.)

Maisons Lafitte, France.—Breakneck riding in big steeplechase thrills French turf fans.

Gloucester, Mass.—America's entry in fishermen's title race leaves for Halifax.

Sub-Titles.—Captain Marty Welch, who will sail the Reperanto in the Continental Championship race. A. B. P. O. E. emblem for the crew—mostly Elks. Last minute work in the rigging. The Reperanto gets a great send-off. A sample of the speed the Canadians must beat.

New York City.—Republican hosts march in old-fashioned torchlight parade.

Sub - Titles. — Governor Coolidge lead the procession. Governor Coolidge reviews the big parade. Passing the reviewing stand. Like old-times. (For New York City only.)

CAGE THIS ONE!

SAYS WID'S

MORE commendable material than is usually to be found in a single reeler is offered the spectator in this offering, directed by Vin Moore and written by Maynard Laswell. Every fan, as a rule feels a desire to be taken "behind the scenes" at a studio, even if the action there be burlesqued. And it is for this reason that this hits the spot. Most of the footage in it shows the manner in which the principal comedienne helps ruin a few scenes that are being shot for a feature. Of course, all of the action is horribly burlesqued, the director who smashed innumerable straws being exceptionally funny. Throughout, this keeps the onlooker on edge and is certain to register favorably with the great majority of fans.

EVERY ONE'S A TWINKLER

STAR
COMEDIES

Dotty Wolbert

In a gushing geyser of giggles

"A MOVIE BUG"

Directed by Vin Moore

"A Movie Bug"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE THE BUG loved the movie stars, but she never got a chance to see them, so she packed up bag and baggage and betook herself to a movie studio where she managed somehow to slip in by crawling inside a dress one of the stage hands is carrying on a hanger. She enters the star's dressing room and interrupts her billing and cooing with a famous movie hero. She is put out and next interrupts a scene that is being directed by a frantic director. She is thrown out and pursued around the exterior of the building, but escapes on a scene that is being moved. She sees a roll of film, examines part of it, likes it, puts it in her purse and walks away dragging the rest of the film with her. A cowboy throws a lighted cigarette on the film and sets it afire, the flame running along the piece of film toward Lizzie the Bug as she drags it with her. The movie hero grabs the film from her; she attempts to make love to him; he runs from her and she follows him over a railing. He locks her up in the lion cage and poor Lizzie weeps as the lions calmly pace back and forth.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode No. 10

"Spiked Death"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brrother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

BUT Elmo and Helen had slipped from under the dug-out canoe in a secluded spot in the river and thus escaped death from the floating mine. Stanton and the gang, thinking Elmo dead, decide to procure the flaming disk from his body, but when they fail to find this, they realize that Elmo has eluded them again.

Elmo and Helen search for a telephone so that they can 'phone Barrows for help. In this way they come to Stanton's cabin across the river from Wade's, and not knowing that this is the enemy, Elmo leaves Helen in care of the housekeeper there and proceeds to the field telephone, which is at a short distance from the house. In the meantime, Stanton and some of his henchmen reach the cabin, take Helen prisoner, and prepare to get more men to offset Barrows.

Elmo's message is taken by Stella, and she uses it to the advantage of the gang. Elmo, realizing that Stanton will fight to recover the flaming disk, determines to make it useless by hiding one-half, and does hide half of it under a setting hen.

All this time Jim was feeling pangs of remorse, since he believed Elmo to be dead. Stanton had informed him that he was now to impersonate Elmo, but Jim in fear and remorse hides and begs his cronies not to tell Stanton.

Elmo returns to the cabin only to see Helen bound, a captive. When he refuses to tell the whereabouts of the half of the disk, the gang seize him, bind him to a board, which slowly raises itself horizontally toward a spiked ceiling. Doom seems certain—a horrible doom, and Helen is compelled to witness her sweetheart's horrible ascent to death.

International News

No. 79

New York City.—National Guard honors its heroes. Veterans parade in memory of comrades who died in France. (For New York State and city prints only.)

Sub-Titles.—Memorial ceremonies in Central Park. Father Duffy, "the fighting chaplain," extolls the boys who gave all for freedom.

Andover, Mass.—General Pershing sees a football battle. Exeter and Andover boys stage a hard-fought game.

Sub-Titles.—The A. E. F. chief likes a good scrap. Andover wins, 6 to 3.

New York City.—Tribute to first Red Cross nurse. Camp Fire Girls place wreath in honor of Florence Nightingale at foot of Statue of Liberty. (Omit from Chicago prints.)

Sub-Title.—Red Cross trailer.

Chicago, Ill.—A tribute of silence. Impressive scenes from the heart of Chicago as thousands halt in memory of America's hero. (For Chicago only.)

Portsmouth, R. I.—New kind of launching. This time it's a fifth section of a huge pontoon drydock for disabled ships.

Cork, Ireland.—Erin's great tribute to her martyr patriot, Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

Sub-Titles.—Irish volunteers control the enormous crowds at the City Hall where the body lay in state. The funeral procession—men carrying the casket. The two men in front are brothers of the dead Lord Mayor. At the cathedral in Cork. As usual—British troops in armored cars add a menacing touch to the solemn procession. At the cemetery. The death mask of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, who died for Irish freedom. While in London, Premier Lloyd George reviews the Royal Irish Constabulary and the Black and Tans.

Chicago, Ills.—The dance of the Flowers. An example of the terpsichorean art as taught in Chicago's public schools. (To be omitted from Philadelphia prints.)

Roxboro, Philadelphia, Pa.—A grateful home town. Roxboro pays a impressive tribute to its heroes who died overseas.

In the Public Eye.—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the new ruler of the baseball world, Chicago, Ill.

Sub-Title.—Major General Shanks decorates Col. F. W. Galbraith, new commander of the American Legion, with a five-bar Victory medal, Boston, Mass. (To be omitted from New York City and State prints.)

On the Atlantic.—Giant guns batter a battleship to a pulp in target practice. (Loading the guns aboard the Oklahoma.)

Sub-Titles.—The out-of-date Indiana furnishes a fine target. Some speedy work by Uncle Sam's experts. Photographed from the Destroyer Semmes. Bang! Right on the spot. Aboard the Indiana—showing the results of the big guns' destructive efficiency.

International Presents Vacation Adventures of President-elect Harding.

Sub-Titles.—At San Benito, Texas. All the kids from miles around greet America's next chief and his wife. A stroll at Brownsville. Hundreds of Mexican youngsters join the welcoming throngs at Point Isabel. Twenty-four hours later—the President-elect goes fishin' for tarpon. And oh, boy! A six foot silver king takes the hook. And gives the next president a much harder fight than the Democrats did. Young Mr. Tarpon, safe in tow, but still full of life. Full of life is right, for (as usual) the line breaks at the last minute and the silver king darts away—tough luck, Mr. President! Senator Elkins has better luck—look at this beauty. The "fishin' face" of the next President.

"LAUGHING GAS"

LISTEN TO WID'S

SEVERAL clever bits of business included in this production are sufficient to insure its success. One in which the lengthy comedian who is seen in a very minor role is suddenly lulled to sleep with a mallot after ether is poured over his visage and laughing gas fails to turn the trick, is sure to elicit laughter. The subsequent passage of his soul to regions above as displayed in a double exposure will undoubtedly have the desired effect. Another really original bit is the one in which the colored fellow, who incientally gives a performance of more than average merit, and had swallowed a pair of dice, partakes in a game of craps. When Bud Jamison and Charles Dorety shake him, gazing at him with an X-ray to determine the result, another really laughable scene is sprung.

Directed by Tom Buckingham

100 LAUGHS—THAT'S A "CENTURY"

"Fight It Out"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Sandy Adams	Hoot Gibson
Duncan McKenna	Chas. Newton
Slim Allen	Jim Corey
Rose McKenna	Dorothy Wood

DUNCAN McKENNA, owner of the single X ranch, refused to get off the range for "Slim" Allen, owner of the IXL ranch, and would have been killed by him but for the intervention of happy-hearted Sandy Adams. And when one of Allen's henchmen kills one of the sheriff's calves and hangs the skin on the McKenna fence so as to implicate that honest Scotchman, Sandy again helps him out, routing the mischief-maker and making him go back to his chief wearing the skin on his own person.

Allen and his men, however, decide that they will be avenged and plan to brand one of the sheriff's calves with the McKenna brand, X, thus making it appear that McKenna is a cattle rustler. Sandy gets wise to this plot and quietly comes upon the two henchmen when they are branding the X on the forehead of the animal. He gets the upper hand on them and compels them to add an I and an L to the brand, thus making it the Allen brand. Then he helps start a fight between the two henchmen and stands laughingly by watching them.

In the meantime, Allen had informed the sheriff that McKenna was attempting to rustle his cattle. The sheriff takes McKenna in custody and the two, accompanied by Rose, McKenna's pretty daughter, and Allen, ride towards the spot where Allen informed the sheriff the newly branded calf lay. Allen was thunderstruck to see Sandy laughing at the two fighting hencemen, and when he saw his own branding-mark stamped on the forehead of the animal, his discomfort was complete. McKenna goes home a free man, and Rose and Sandy slip away to walk home by themselves and plight their troth.

"Laughing Gas"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring
CHARLES DORETY and BUD JAMISON

CHARLEY, in mourning the death of "booze," gets wind of a certain doctor who hands the stuff out liberally to supposed sick patients. He manages to become the doctor's assistant.

Charley decides to relieve the doctor of some of his money, but on opening the safe finds a burglar concealed therein. The burglar swallows the money and they set out to operate him. Ether fails to put him to sleep, and laughing gas is administered. He immediately falls into a laughing fit and it takes five doctors to operate him with saws, hammers and all plumber's utensils. His spirit flies away and all that remains on the operating table is the money.

A colored patient enters—he claims he has something rattling inside of him. They put the X-ray on him and discover dice. A great deal of fun follows when they shake the fellow and watch the dice through the X-ray.

Charley gets the police on the trail of the doctor's still. The policeman by mistake hits Charley on the head. He begins to dream of fairyland and pretty girls. He hits the policeman again so that he can continue dreaming about the pretty girls. He is accused of being in league with the doctor and is only saved from prison by the pretty nurse who decides he needs to be nursed for his wounded heart.

International News

No. 80

Athens, Greece.—Exiled King's party wins Greek election; nation faces crisis. (Demonstrations in the capitol as election neared.)

Sub-titles.—Premier Venizelos (facing camera) who resigned after its overwhelming defeat. Constantine, exiled King of Greece, whose supporters won the election by a huge majority, but who may be prevented from returning to the throne by the Allies. . . . Lucerne, Switzerland.

Delafield, Wis.—Parade in storm for General Wood. St. John's boys in big review at laying of cornerstone for Victory Memorial Chapel.

New York City.—Join the Red Cross! Your membership makes for better babies through Red Cross Health Centers.

Sub-titles.—This baby has had a mother's care. These in lands across the sea, have not. Help them through the American Red Cross.

ANSWER THE FOURTH CALL.

Springfield, Vt. — A Governor-astronomer. James D. Hartnett, Vermont's new chief executive, invents a pill-box telescope. (Omitted from New Orleans, Atlanta, Dollas and Chicago prints.)

Sub-titles.—The Governor studies the stars. The Hartness constellation.

Montgomery, Ala. — Legion men join Shriners in parade. Dixie veterans take part in great celebration. (For New Orleans and Atlanta prints only.)

Sub-title.—The Army doesn't teach these.

Dallas, Texas.—Noted Mason honored. Great throng sees statue unveiled in honor of Sam P. Cochran, Scottish Rite Grand Inspector General for Texas. (Dallas only.)

Sub-titles. — Grand Commander Hoore embrasses Mr. Cochran. Miss Elizabeth Cochran unveils the statue of her uncle.

Chicago, Ill.—Air hero returns. Col. Cedric Fauntleroy, commander of Polish flying forces gets a great welcome. (For Chicago only.)

Chicago, Ill.—A masque ball on horse-back. Chicago's society folk abandoned dancing for this latest of fads.

Munich, Germany. — Millions of Germans join in demonstration against socialism.

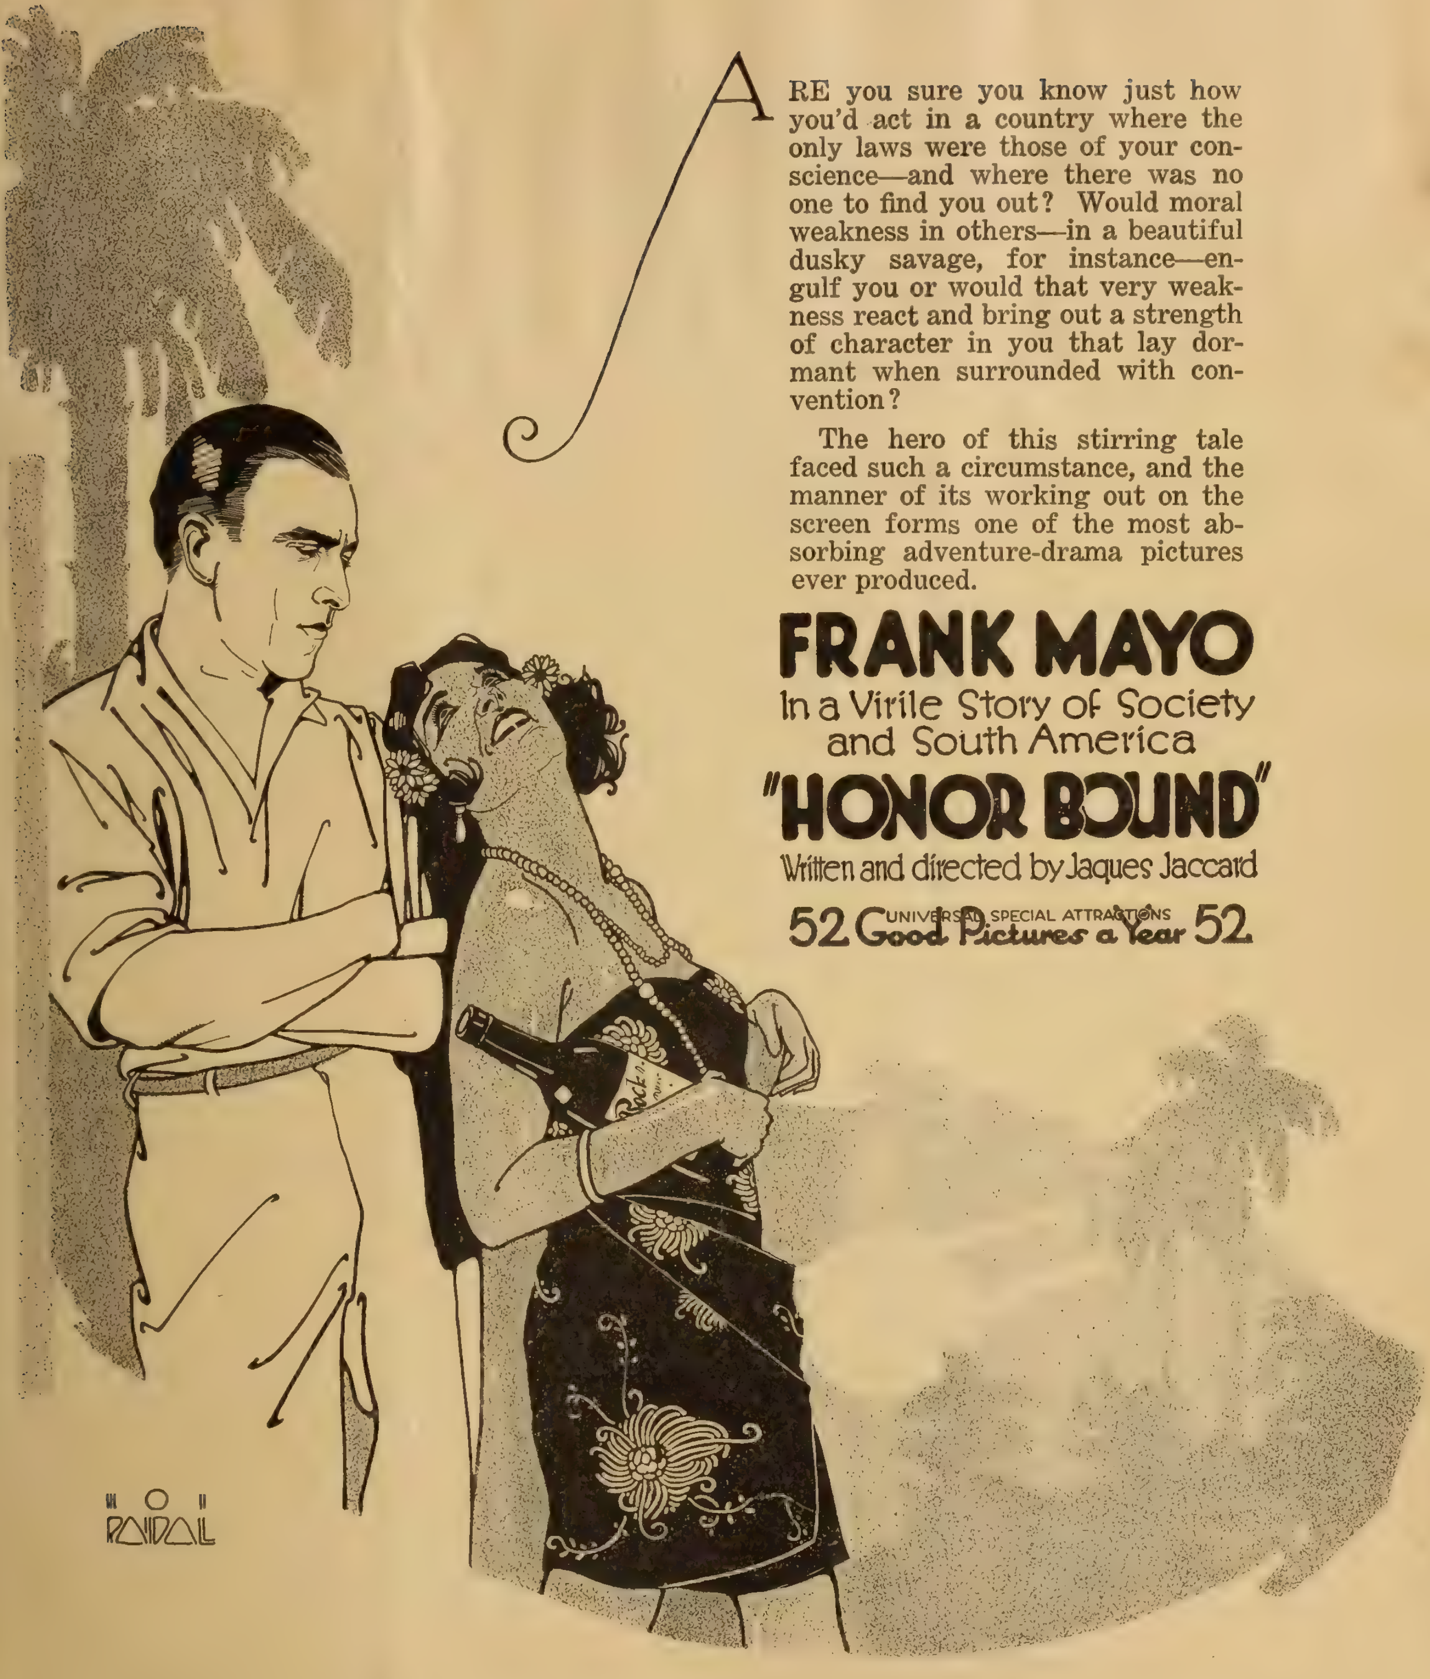
..Brownsville, Texas.—Mr. and Mrs. Harding review war veterans. Texas Legion stages big parade for President-elect.

Sub-titles.—The United Fruit Liner Pastores, which will take the President-elect to Panama, sails for New York. Captain C. R. Glenn, the Pastores' skipper.

..Barcelona, Spain. — Strange pageant marks religious revival. Spanish church dignitaries appear in mystic garb in solemn procession.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—International presents the Ace of Air-devils in new jests with death. (Introducing Jersey Ringel, greatest aerial acrobat.)

Sub-titles.—One of the stunts that gives insurance agents heart failure. The most daring of all aerial acrobatic feats—looping the loop while standing on top of the plane. How it looked to the man below. If you have a weak heart don't look at this. The dauntless three—Jersey Ringel (in center and his pilots, Billie Brock and Jimmy Faulkner.



ARE you sure you know just how you'd act in a country where the only laws were those of your conscience—and where there was no one to find you out? Would moral weakness in others—in a beautiful dusky savage, for instance—engulf you or would that very weakness react and bring out a strength of character in you that lay dormant when surrounded with convention?

The hero of this stirring tale faced such a circumstance, and the manner of its working out on the screen forms one of the most absorbing adventure-drama pictures ever produced.

FRANK MAYO

In a Virile Story of Society and South America

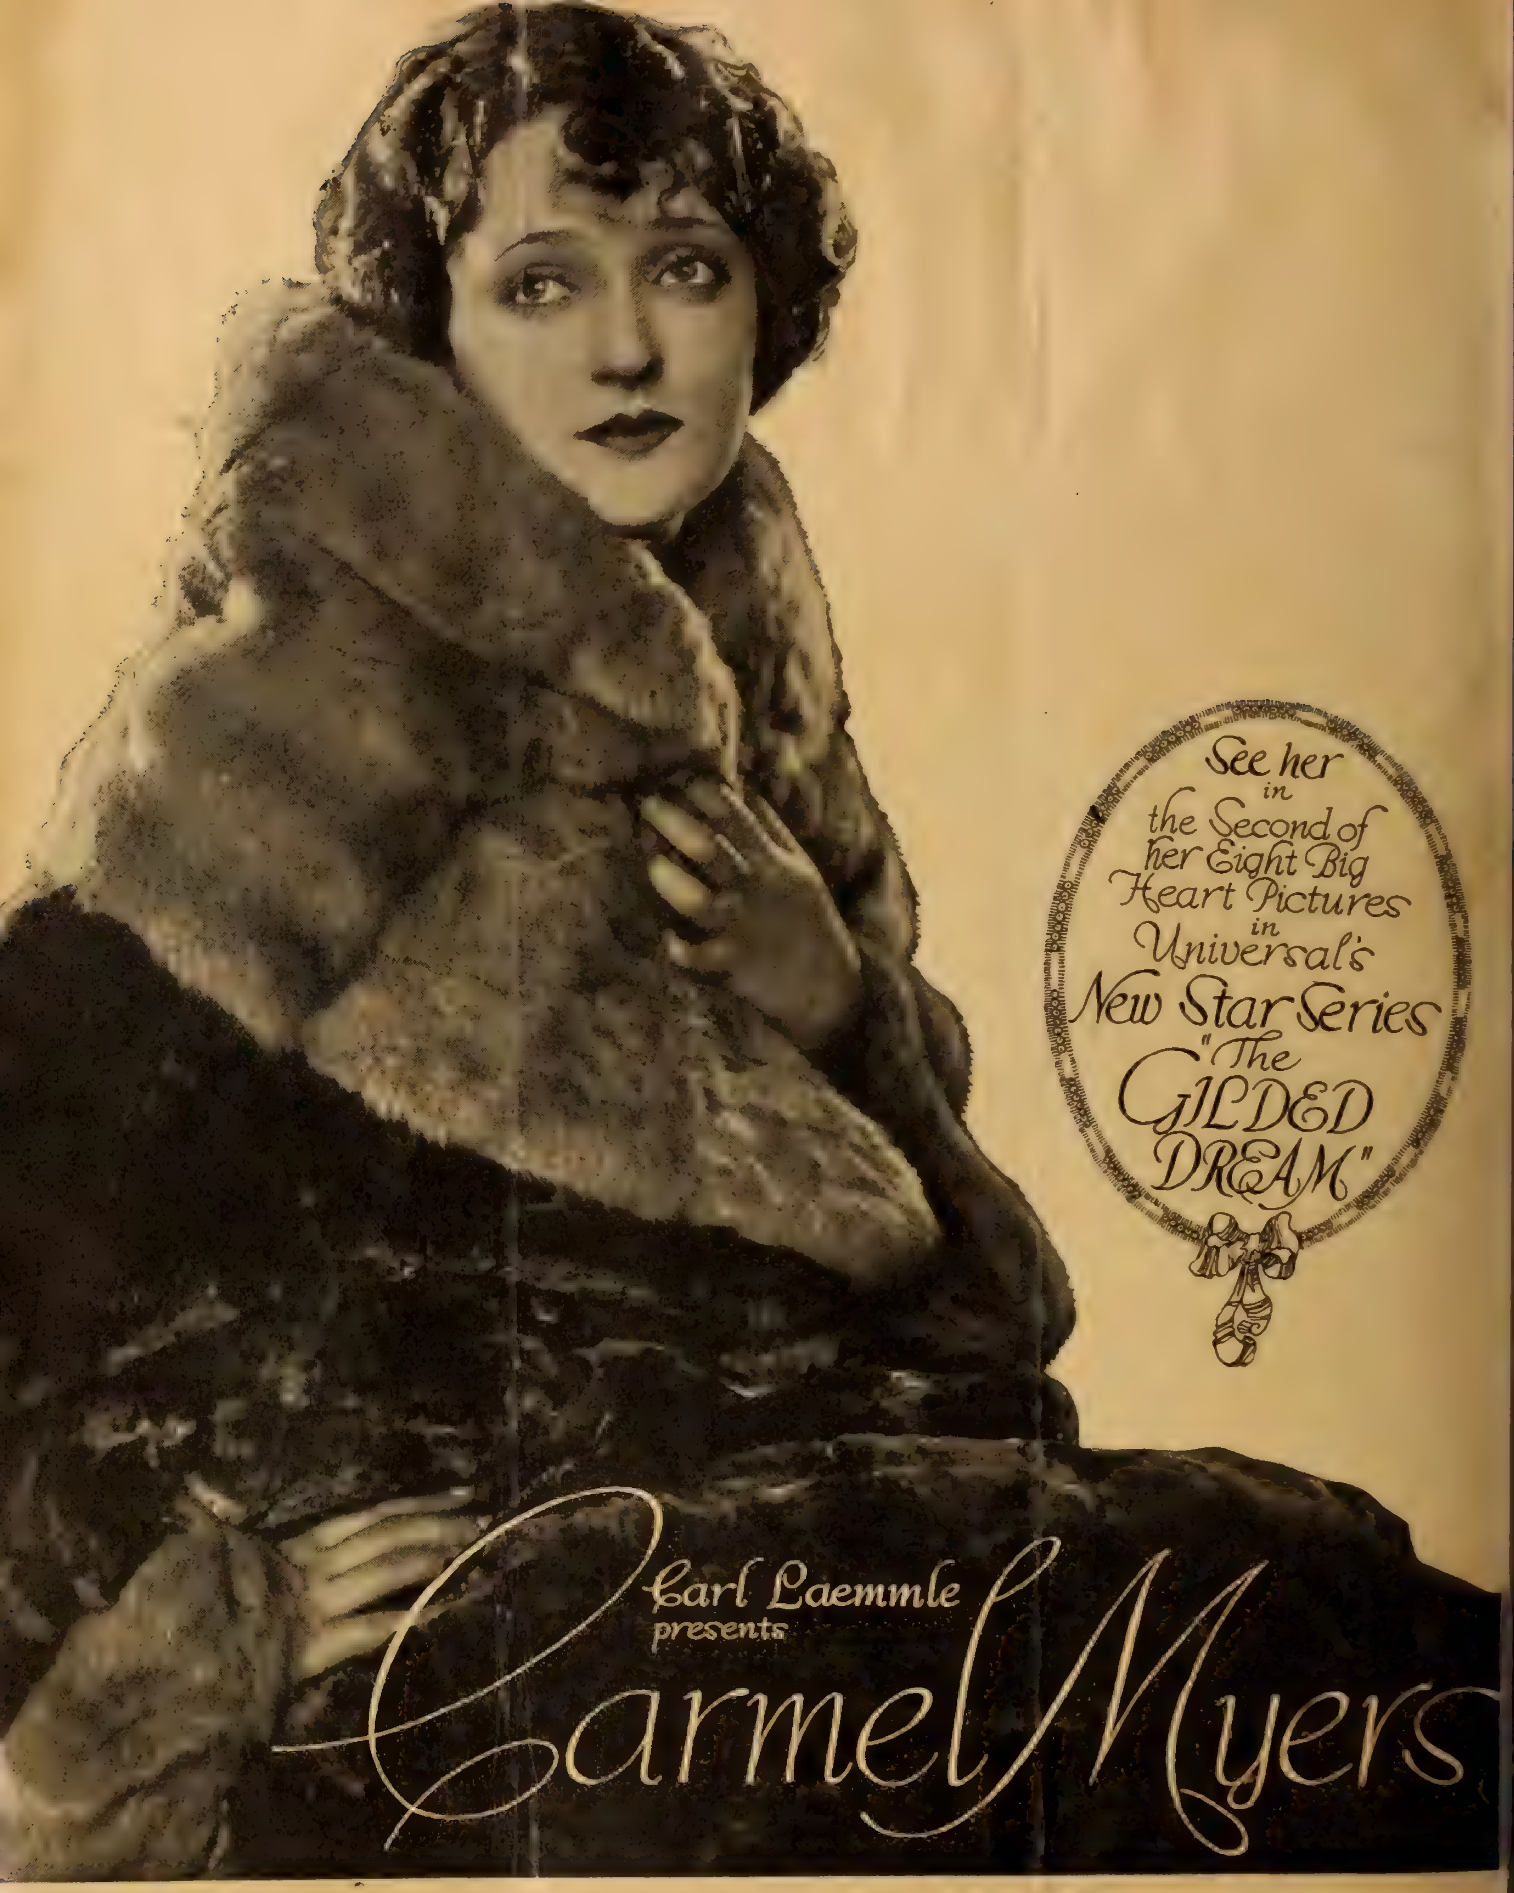
"HONOR BOUND"

Written and directed by Jaques Jaccard

52 UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS Good Pictures a Year 52



See her
in the Second of her Eight Big Heart Pictures
in Universal's
New Star Series
"The GILDED DREAM"
Carl Laemmle
presents
Carmel Myers

The DIAMOND QUEEN

Campaign Book

Starring
beautiful
Eileen
Sedgwick

DIRECTED BY EDWARD KULL

The MOVING PICTURE
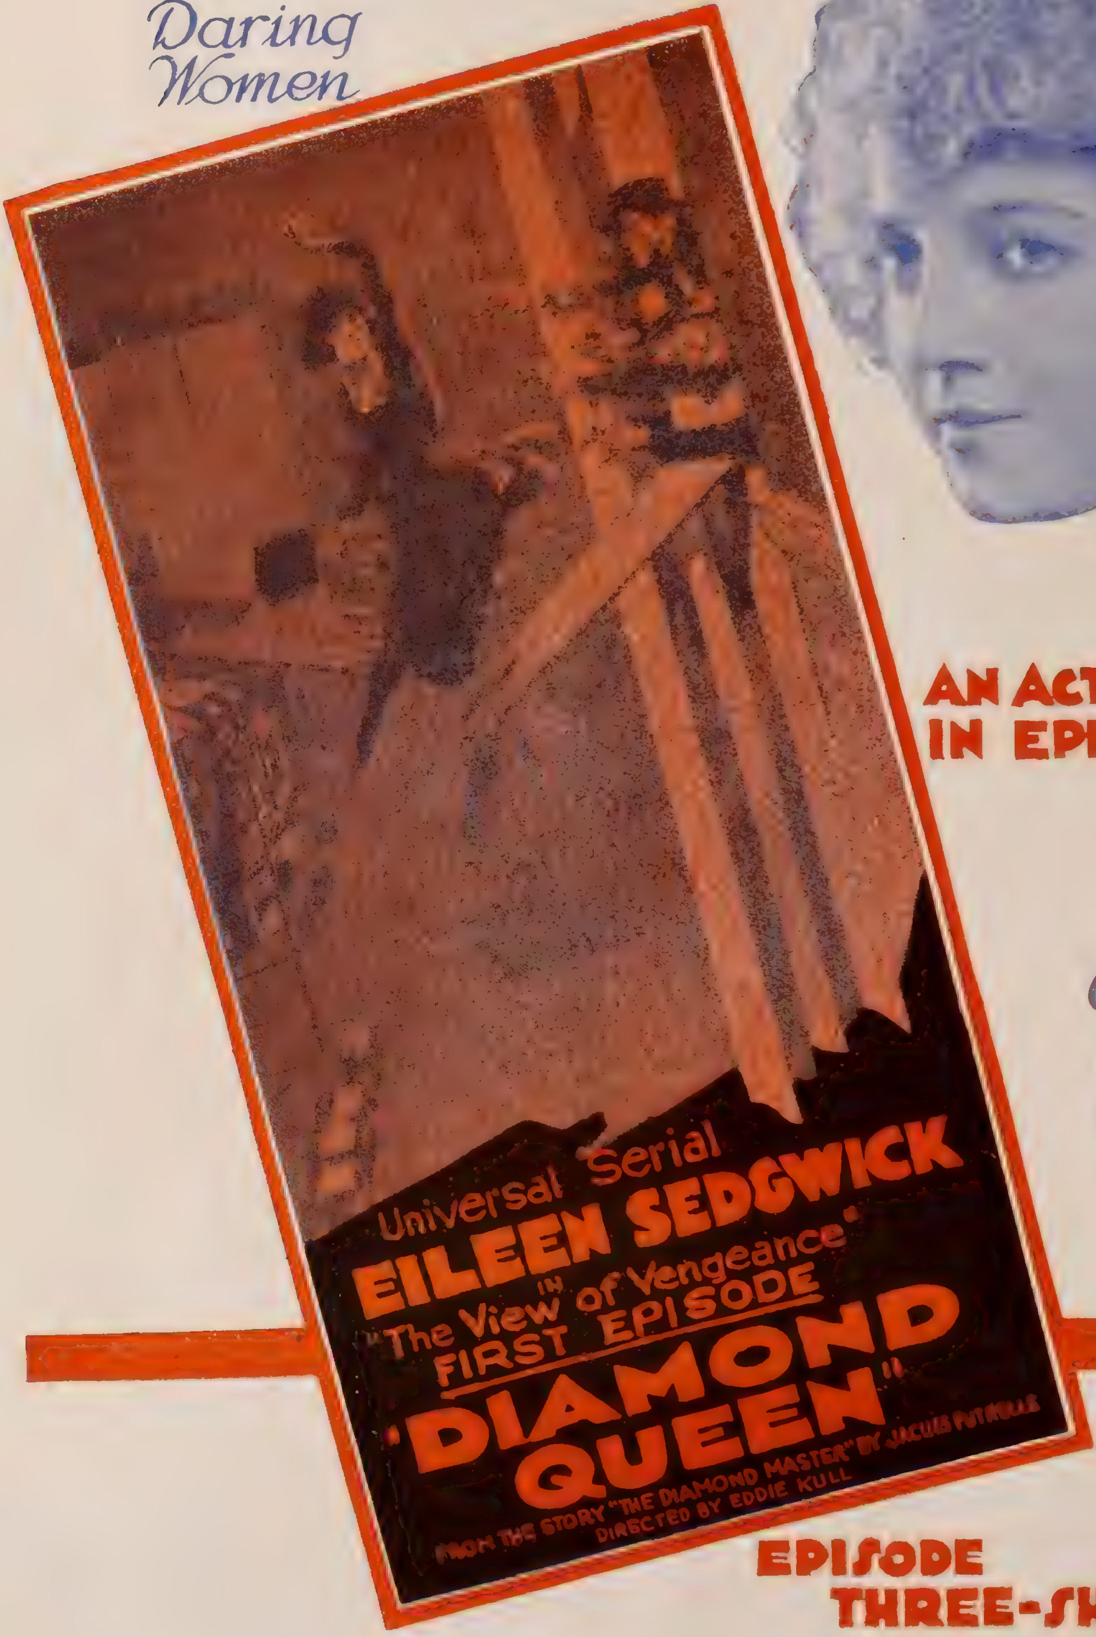
WEEKLY

VOL. 12
JAN. 1ST 1921
NO. 20

The Most Beautiful of all the Screen's Daring Women



Universal Serial
EILEEN SEDGWICK
IN
"The View of Vengeance"
FIRST EPISODE
"DIAMOND QUEEN"
FROM THE STORY "THE DIAMOND MASTER" BY
DIRECTED BY EDDIE KULL

AN ACTUAL SCENE IN EPISODE 1

After this they just can't stay away!

EPISODE THREE-SHEET

CANNIBALS
ACTRESSES
FIRES
SHARKS
JUNGLES
LIONS TRAPS
TIGERS
AIRPLANES
MINES
EXPLOSIONS
ELEPHANTS LEAPS
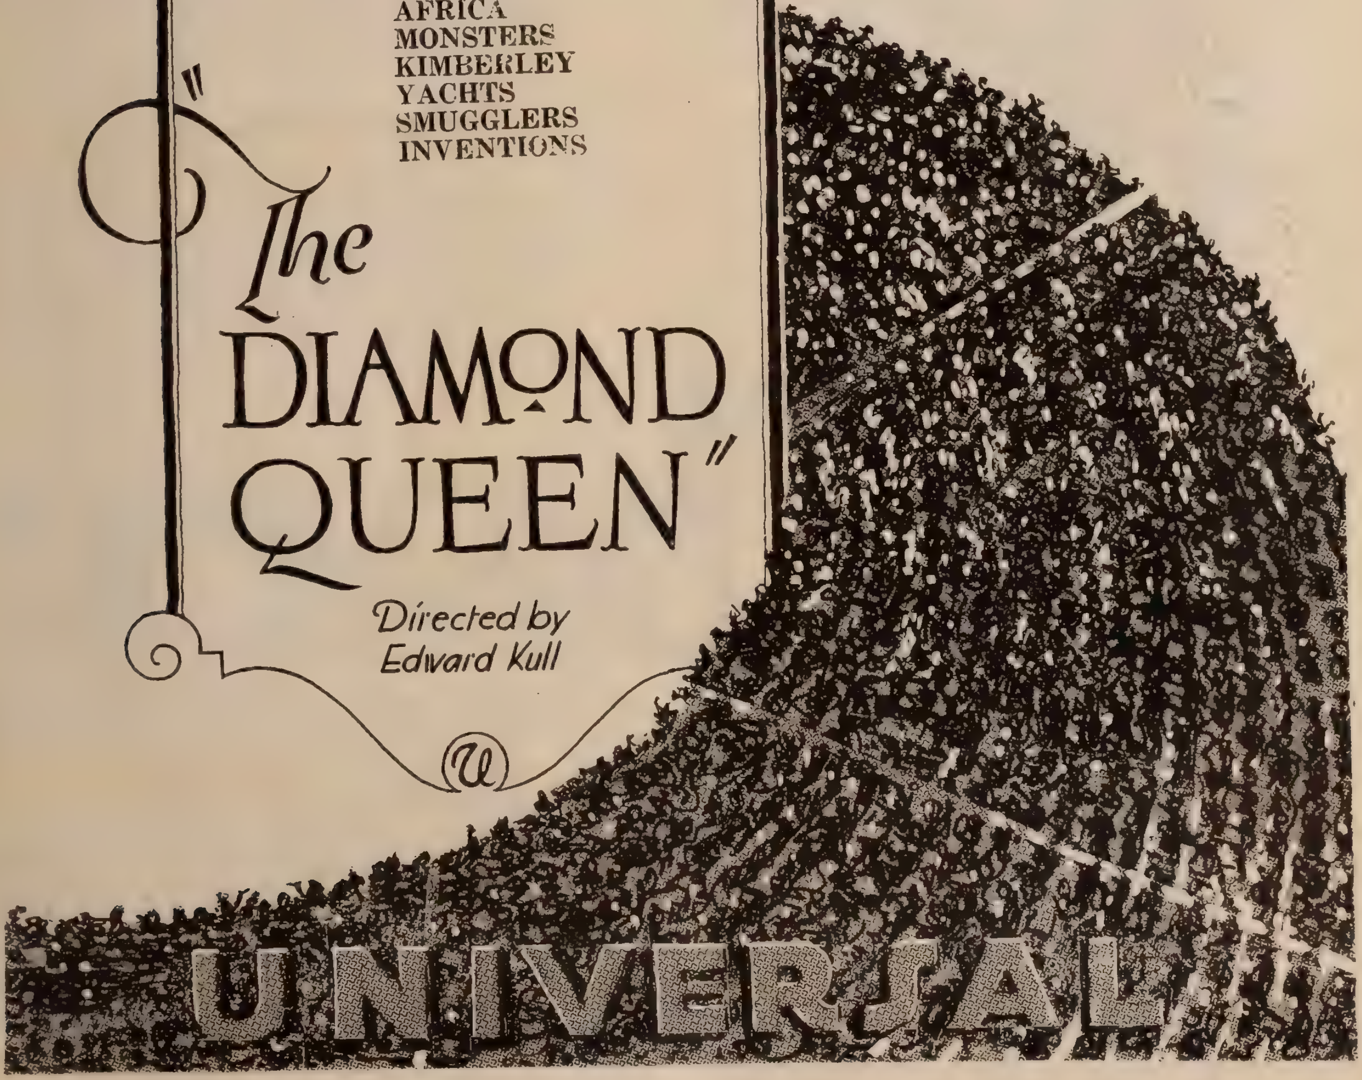
DENS
FALLS
RACES
THEATRES
DIAMONDS
FIGHTS
MYSTERY
AFRICA
MONSTERS
KIMBERLEY
YACHTS
SMUGGLERS
INVENTIONS

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Directed by
Edward Kull



Universal's most Startling

SAYS M. P. WORLD

"A SUSPENSEFUL adventure serial, filled with highly-colored melodramatic incidents, is found in "The Diamond Queen," a new Universal serial based on a story written by the late Jacques Futrelle. Eileen Sedgwick heads a well-balanced cast with George Cheseboro playing opposite her as the hero. Edward Kull, who directed, must be given credit for developing the opening chapters with a strong sense of what makes for suspense and a good eye for sure-fire thrills. If the serial keeps up the pace set for itself at the beginning it should prove very popular.

"Fast Running"

'THE opening scenes are laid in and near New York City. Later the scene shifts to the diamond country of Africa and its surrounding jungle land. The melodramatic incidents themselves, as well as the intermediate stretches of the story, are better than common."

The DIAMOND

Starring EILEEN SEDGWICK

Adventure Serial

SAYS WID'S

"THE first episode starts off with a bang, it's fast, and there is an abundance of thrills throughout the first two episodes reviewed, which give promise of more to come. The story is a good one and the picture has been well made. Suspense is sustained admirably."

"A Red Hot Thriller"

"THE cast includes Eileen Sedgwick, George Cheseboro, Burton Wilson, Frank M. Clark and Alfred Fisher. If your patrons like red hot thrillers, this one looks as though it will fill the bill excellently. It is a good one."

QUEEN"

Directed by EDWARD KULL

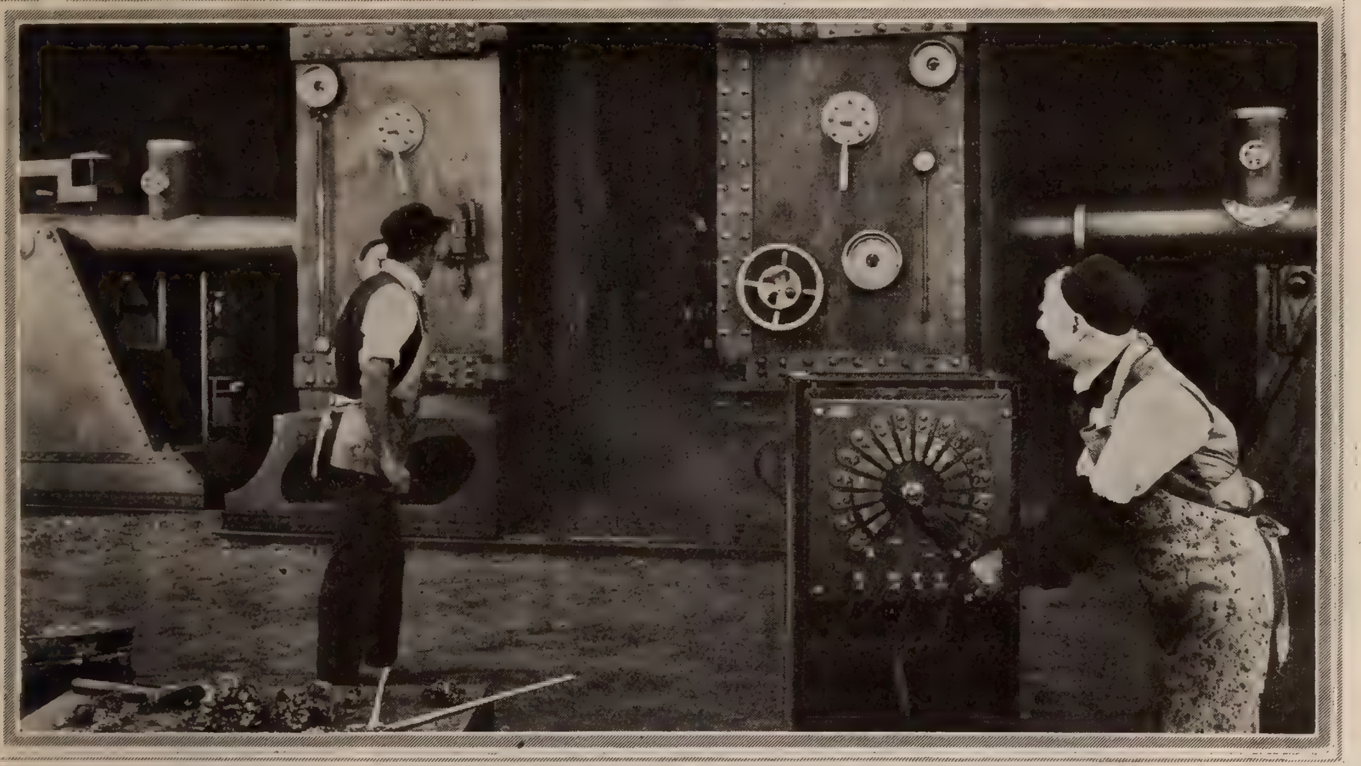
Eileen Sedgwick
directed by Edward Kull

HATS off to Eddie Kull, for he's succeeded in writing a new chapter in serial history with "The Diamon Queen." New in treatment, new in thrills, new in its form of screen narration, "The Diamond Queen" is profitably different from anything else hitherto produced. So absorbing, so vivid, so swift, and so well produced is every scene of this marvelous continued melodrama that it is more than a serial—it is truly a feature chapter-play.



Strange Scenes That Will Hold Millions Spellbound

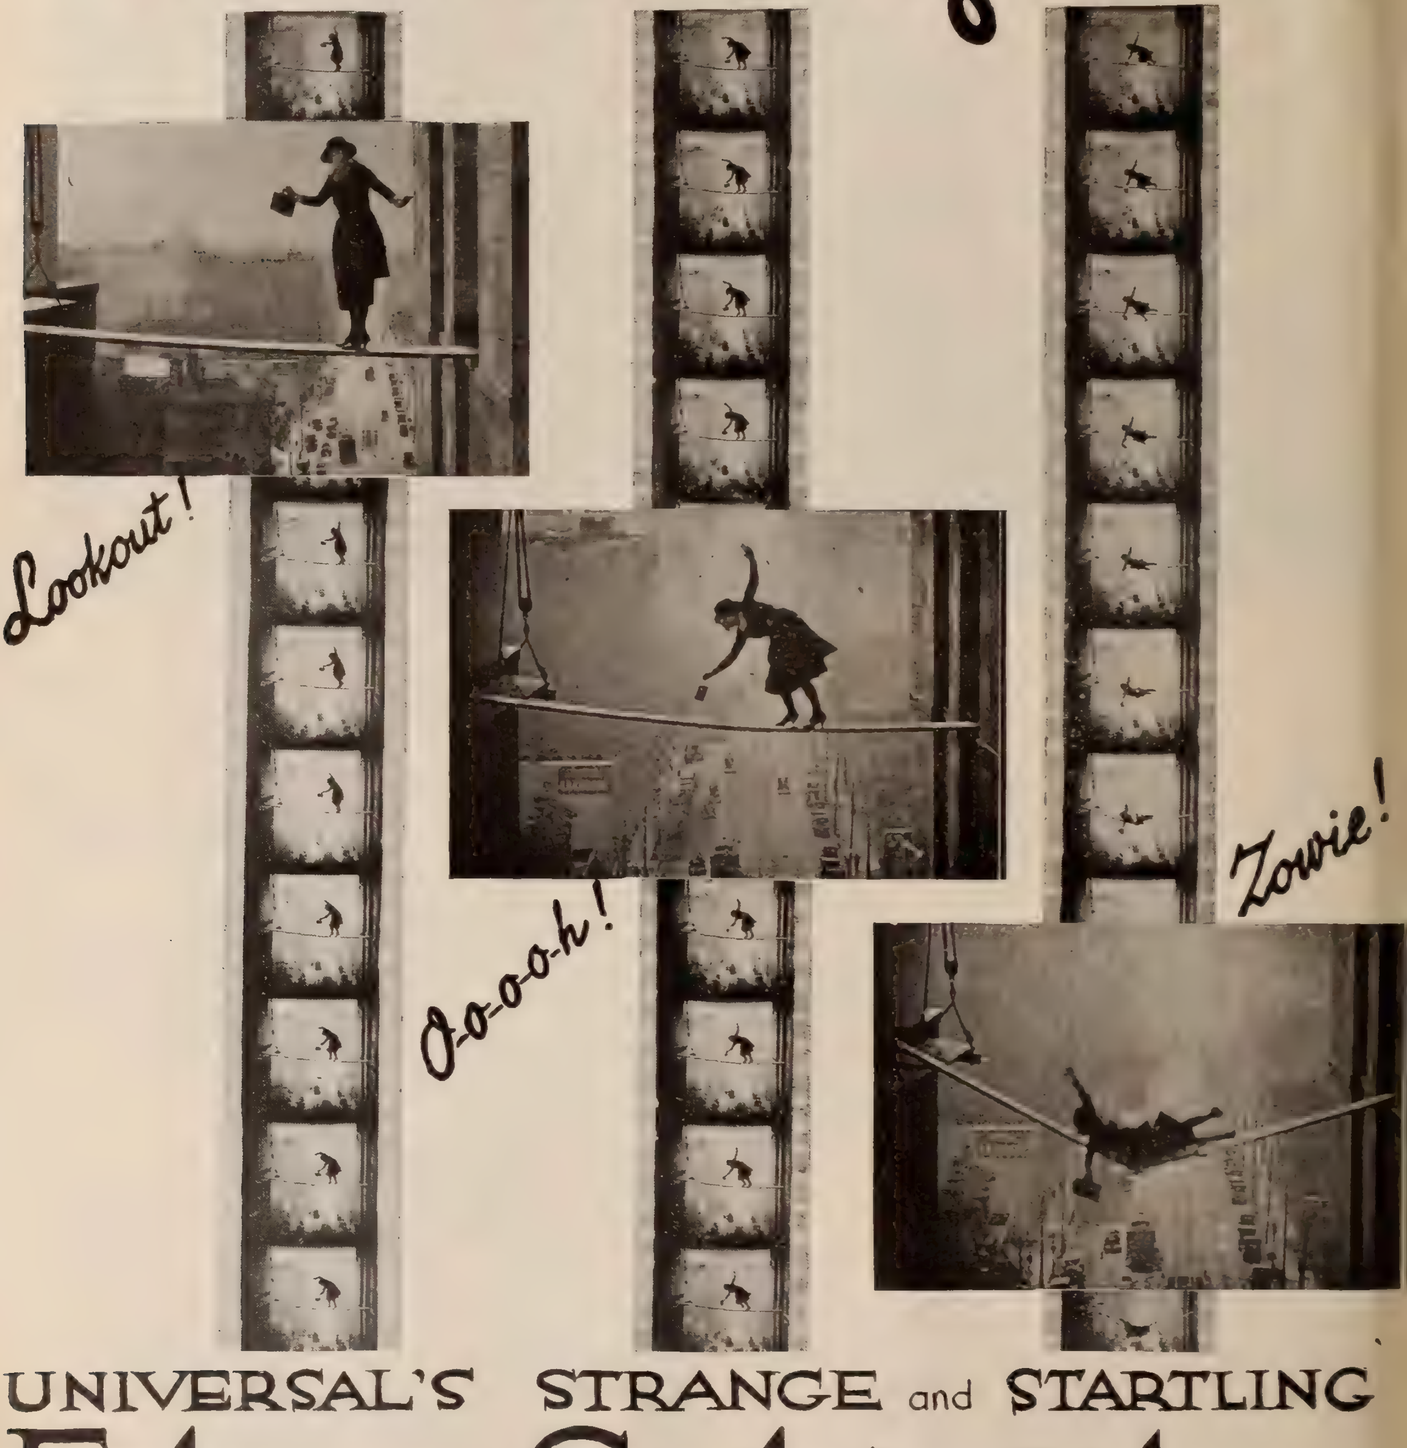
IMAGINE an eighteen-episode feature whose line of action crosses the world from the heart of New York to the depths of the African jungles, yet which travels straight, and powerfully to a smashing climax in every episode. Imagine this, gentlemen, and you merely get the smallest germ of an idea as to the box-office value of "The Diamond Queen."

FOR instance, think of how the mystery of the manufacture of real diamonds in an underground laboratory appeals to men and boys—think of the spur to their inventive imagination. Now picture what an appeal to women there is in a beautiful young American girl who becomes queen of a tribe of man-eating savages—fighting her way through the beast-filled jungle to the Diamond mines of Kimberley—beating the ruthless Diamond Trust at their own game.

THIS offering has all this and more—scores of other features and incidents that will make men, women and children alike want to see every last inch of the eighteen episodes.

ATMOSPHERE is a big feature of this new film wonder, and Eddie Kull has outdone himself on that score. Whether the locale be a city apartment, African swamp, Chinatown den, ocean steamship or back-stage in a theatre the scene is always convincing and real. Also, the director has injected incident and detail of surprising effectiveness—touches that add immeasurabtly to the worth of the whole—bits that add just one more reason for our claim that this is more than a serial—that it is a continued feature.

Death-defying Feats



Lookout!
O-o-o-o-h!
Zowie!

UNIVERSAL'S STRANGE and STARTLING

Eileen Sedgwick in

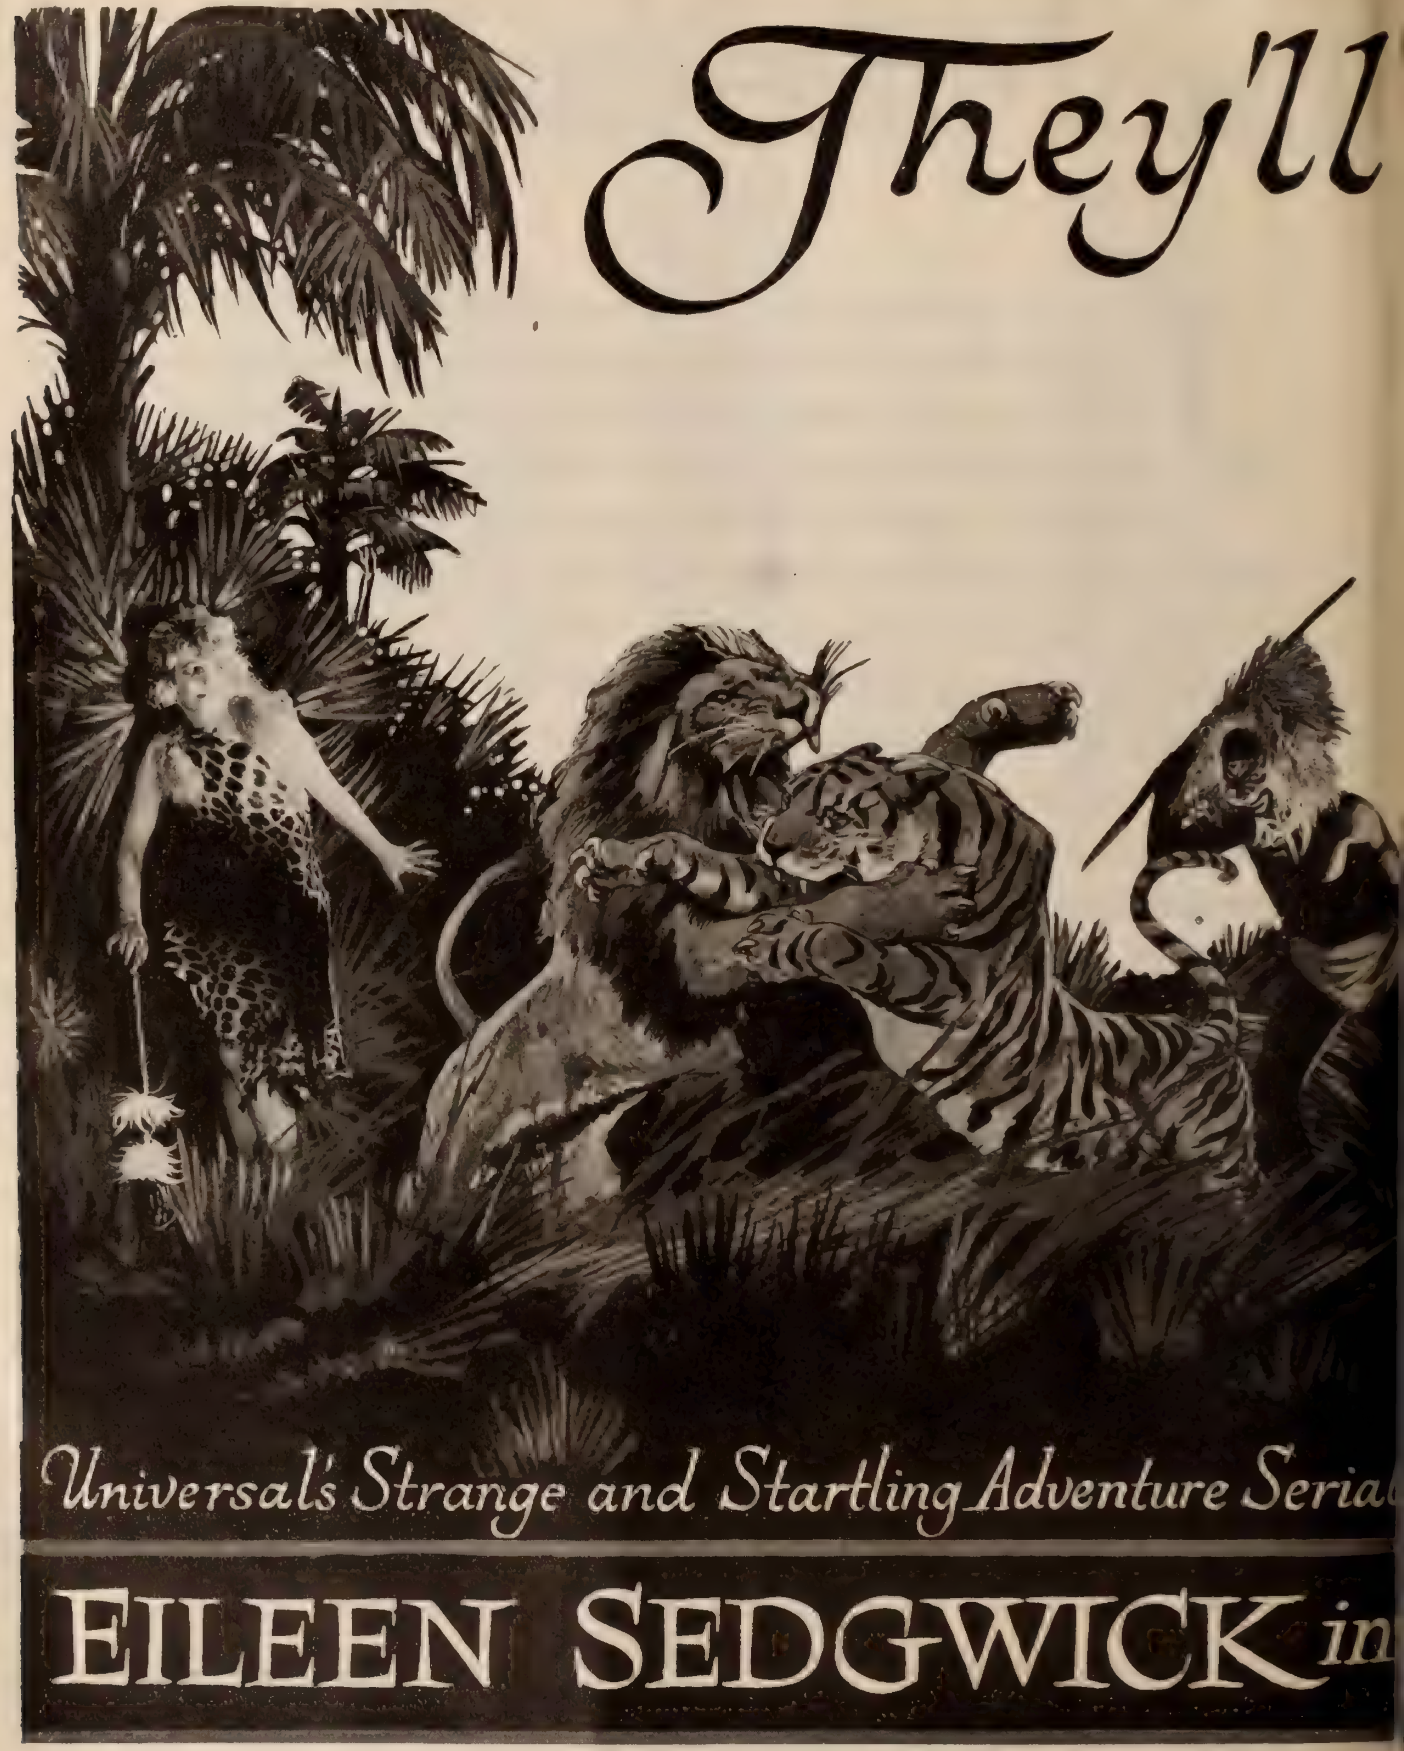
That Make You Shiver!

JUST as a sample of the overwhelming, blood-stirring thrills in this sensational serial, lamp this one—you see a girl, chased by thugs, reach a window of the eleventh story—she shoves a plank across to the building opposite—she steps out—you see at least three stories under her—you see the street and nothing to catch her—you begin to feel a wriggly, shivering thrill crawling up your spine. You know that even for a serial you are in for the sensation of your life. She starts to cross and—my heavens!–gosh!-it can't be! . . no! . . NO! But it is! . . . for there, before your very eyes, you see the board creak and strain and then—c-c-c-r-r-ash . . . it has broken in the middle and down, down she goes. . . .

BUT as we said before, this is merely a sample of the thousand-and-one nerve-racking stunts that give this smashing serial a mighty thrill a minute! Start the New Year right! Insure yourself a big start on a prosperous year by booking this astounding chapter-play!

ADVENTURE SERIAL directed by EDWARD KULL

"The Diamond Queen"



They'll

Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Seria

EILEEN SEDGWICK in

Eat This Alive!

HAVE you ever seen a scene like this before?

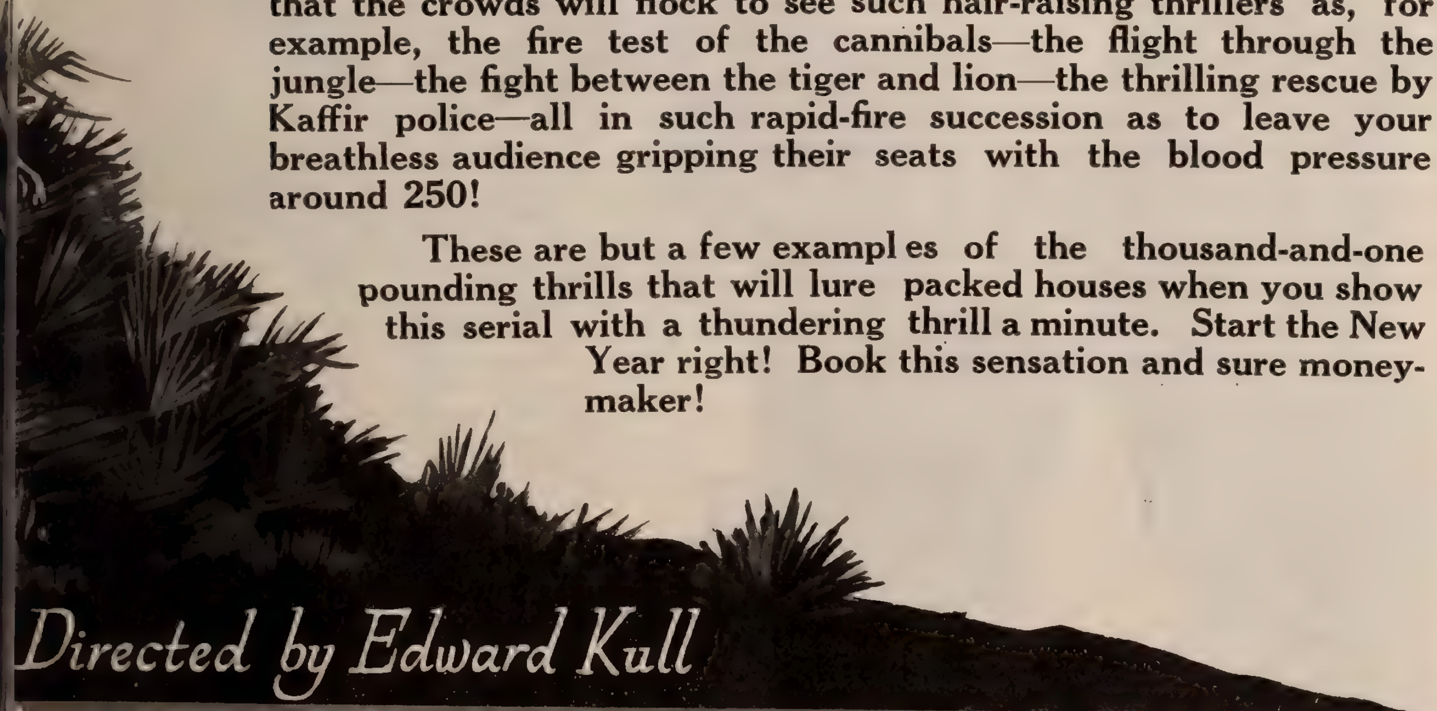
No! You know you haven't!

Exhibitors, here is a chapter-play that is bigger and better in a good many respects than the average feature production. Here is a serial that will crowd the feature of the bill for stellar honors and will be thoroughly enjoyed by your regular patrons.

It's all New and all Different!

From thrilling adventures in the big cities of the east, the action takes you into wild jungles of Africa with its cannibals, headhunters, tigers, elephants and lions. Better than any one else you know that the crowds will flock to see such hair-raising thrillers as, for example, the fire test of the cannibals—the flight through the jungle—the fight between the tiger and lion—the thrilling rescue by Kaffir police—all in such rapid-fire succession as to leave your breathless audience gripping their seats with the blood pressure around 250!

These are but a few examples of the thousand-and-one pounding thrills that will lure packed houses when you show this serial with a thundering thrill a minute. Start the New Year right! Book this sensation and sure money-maker!



"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

FASCINATING!

is the marvelous invention by which Doris Harvey beats the Trust that controls the world's output of diamonds!

NECESSITY knows no law—which Doris Harvey proved when she decided to beat the Diamond Trust that had ruined her father and cornered the world's market by applying herself to the making of diamonds in her remarkable workshop. All of which offers your patrons scenes of such tense, stirring moments as will hold them fascinated and spellbound. Gratify that wish for a prosperous New Year by immediately booking this strange and most startling serial.

THE THRILL-A-MINUTE SERIAL
DIRECTED BY
EDWARD KULL

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

An Actual Scene
in this Tremendous
Chapter-Play.
A THRILL A MINUTE
Beautiful
EILEEN SEDGWICK
IN UNIVERSAL'S STRANGE
AND STARTLING
ADVENTURE SERIAL
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"
Directed by Edward Kull
Beautiful
EILEEN
SEDGWICK
In Universal's
Strange and Startling
Adventure
Serial
"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
The Bigger
the FIRST day
the bigger
the
LAST

Ad cut No. 1
"The Diamond
Queen"
Electro 85¢
Mat 20¢

Ad
cut No. 2
"The Diamond
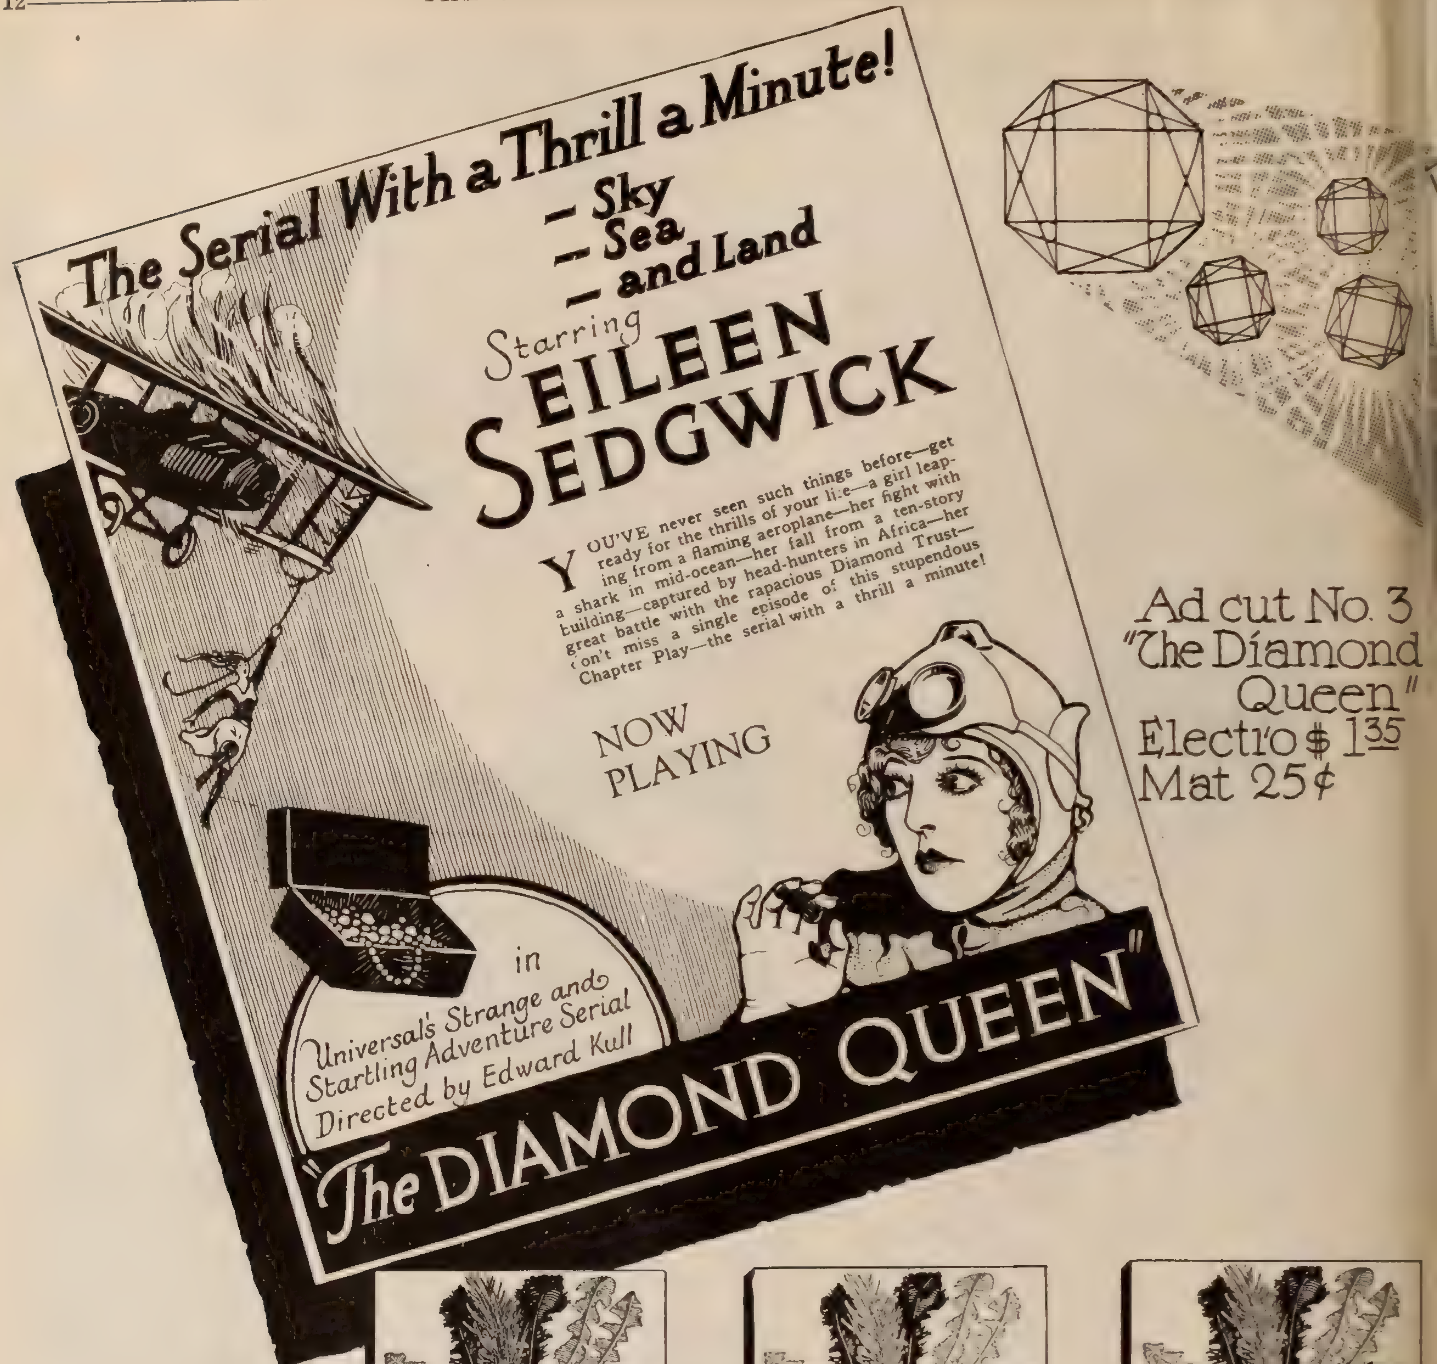
Queen"
Electro 50¢
Mat 15¢



The Serial With a Thrill a Minute!

— Sky
— Sea
— and Land

Starring
EILEEN
SEDGWICK

YOU'VE never seen such things before—get ready for the thrills of your life—a girl leaping from a flaming aeroplane—her fight with a shark in mid-ocean—her fall from a ten-story building—captured by head-hunters in Africa—her great battle with the rapacious Diamond Trust—don't miss a single episode of this stupendous Chapter Play—the serial with a thrill a minute!

NOW PLAYING

in Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial
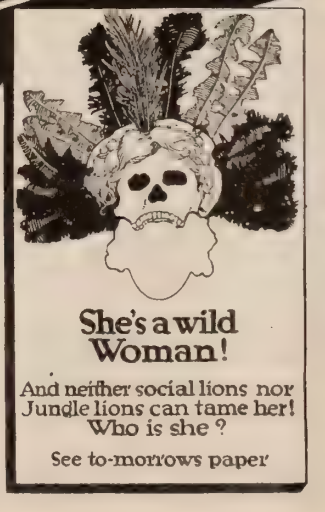
Directed by Edward Kull

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Ad cut No. 3
"The Diamond
Queen"
Electro $ 1.35
Mat 25¢

Teaser Ad cuts
Nos. 1-2-3-4-5-6
Electro 25¢
Mat 10¢ each



She's a wild
Woman!

And neither social lions nor
Jungle lions can tame her!
Who is she ?

See to-morrows paper

1

She wears a Leopard Skin

And that's about all—but it's enough! If you don't believe it
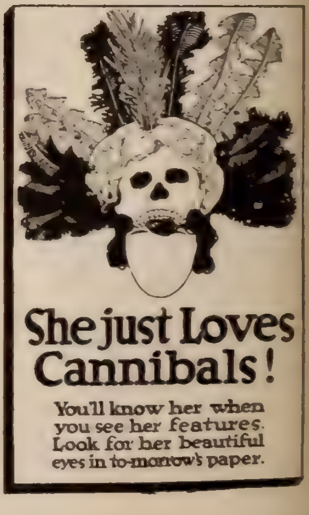
See to-morrow's paper

2



She just Loves
Cannibals!

You'll know her when you see her features.
Look for her beautiful eyes in to-morrow's paper.

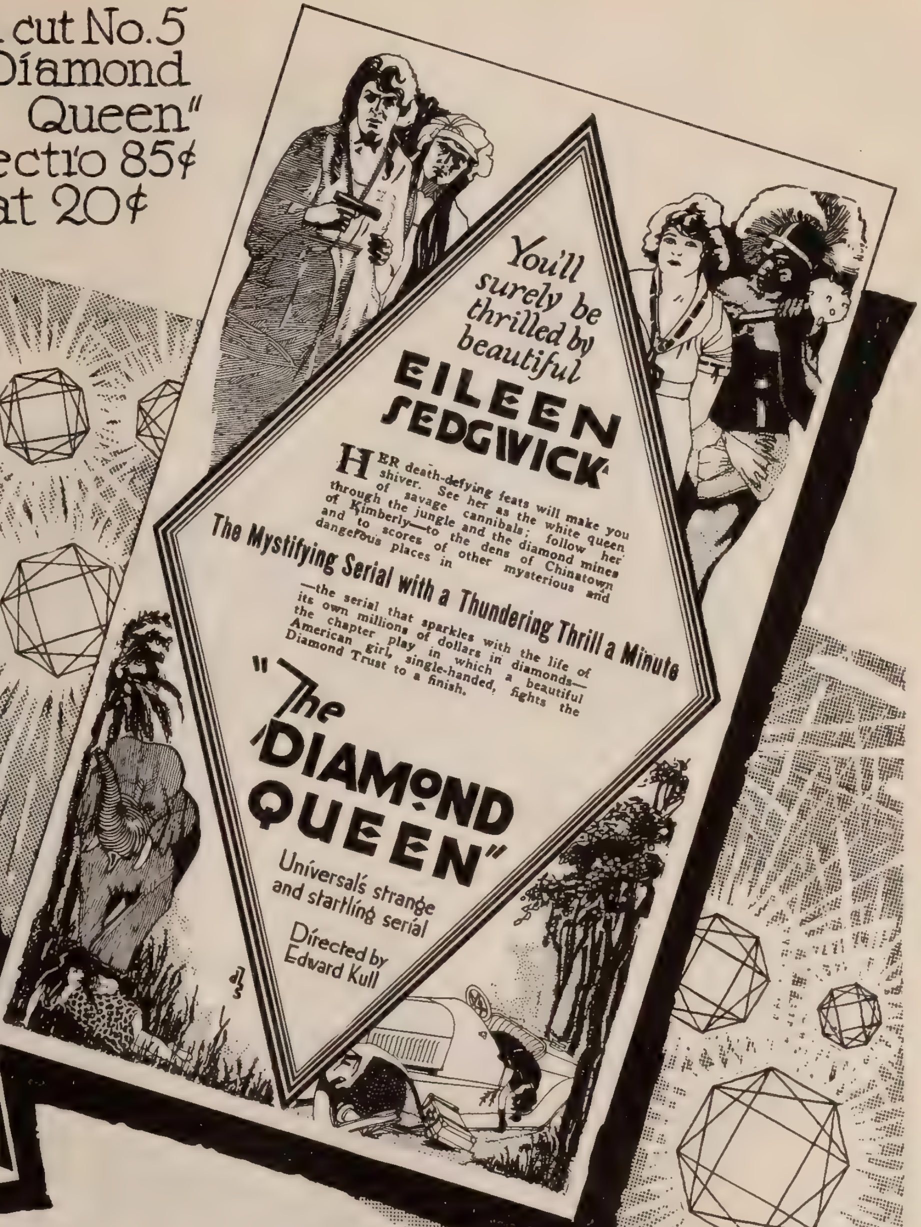
3

Ad cut No. 5
"The Diamond Queen"
Electro 85¢
Mat 20¢



You'll surely be thrilled by beautiful

EILEEN SEDGWICK

HER death-defying feats will make you shiver. See her as the white queen of savage cannibals; follow her through the jungle and the diamond mines of Kimberly—to the dens of Chinatown and to scores of other mysterious and dangerous places in

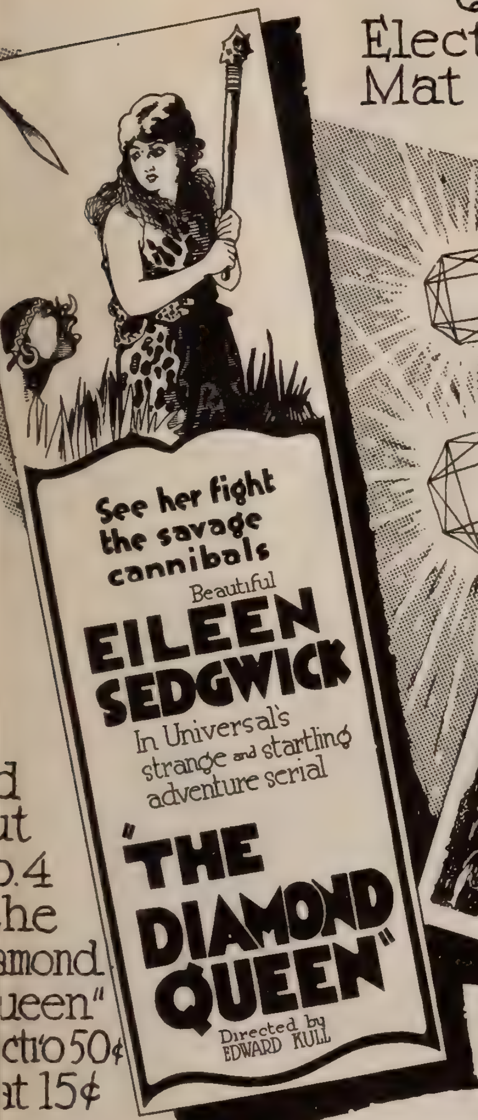
The Mystifying Serial with a Thundering Thrill a Minute

—the serial that sparkles with the life of its own millions of dollars in diamonds—the chapter play in which a beautiful American girl, single-handed, fights the Diamond Trust to a finish.

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Universal's strange and startling serial

Directed by Edward Kull



See her fight the savage cannibals

Beautiful

EILEEN SEDGWICK

In Universal's strange and startling adventure serial

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Directed by EDWARD KULL

d ut o.4
he amond ueen" ctro 50¢
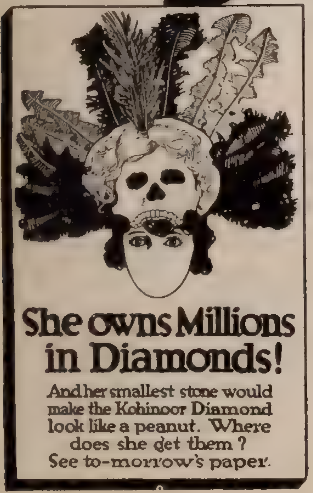
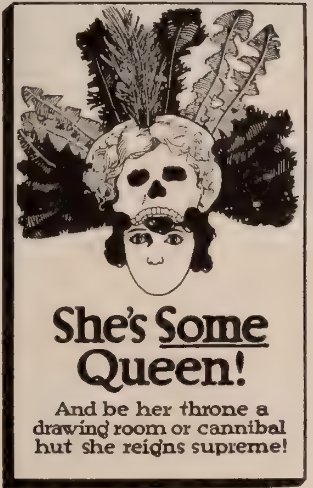
at 15¢



She owns Millions in Diamonds!

And her smallest stone would make the Kohinoor Diamond look like a peanut. Where does she get them? See to-morrow's paper.

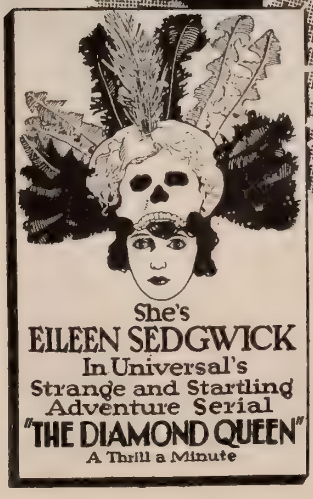
5



She's Some Queen!

And be her throne a drawing room or cannibal hut she reigns supreme!

6



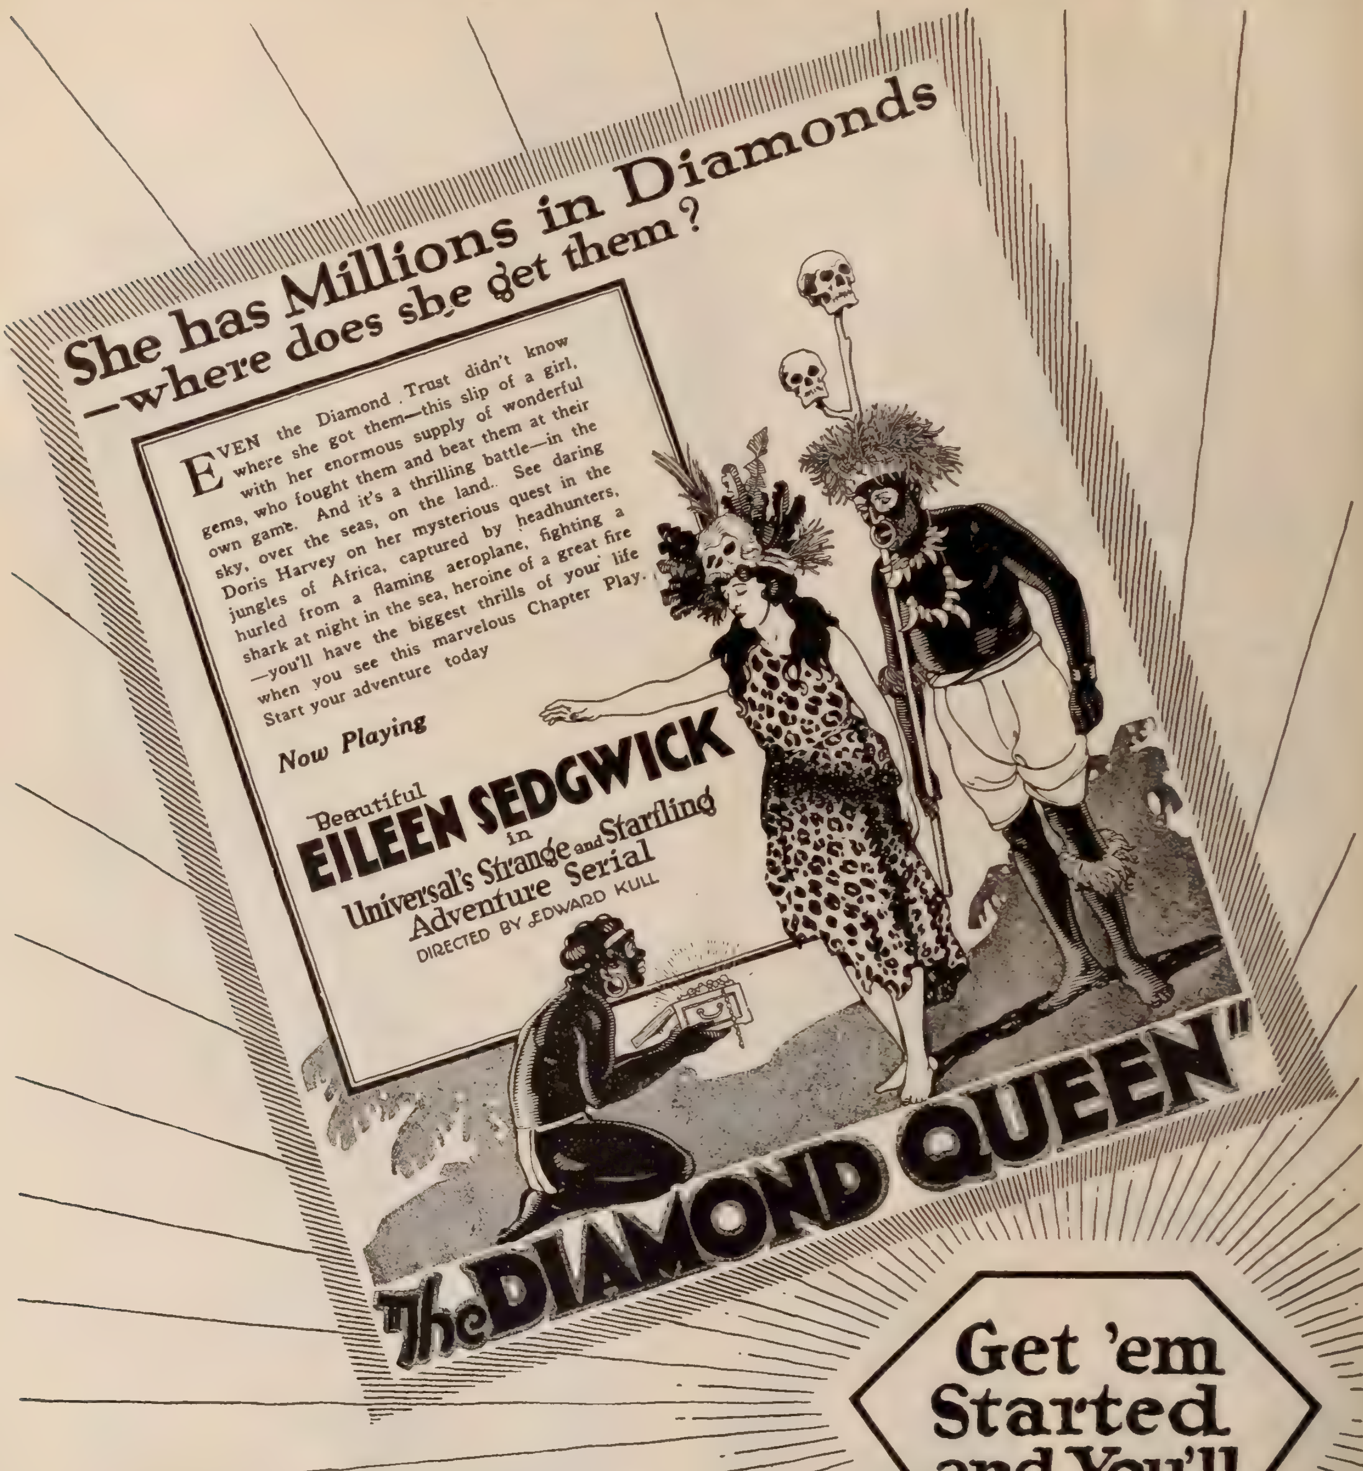
She's

EILEEN SEDGWICK

In Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

A Thrill a Minute



She has Millions in Diamonds —where does she get them?

EVEN the Diamond Trust didn't know where she got them—this slip of a girl, with her enormous supply of wonderful gems, who fought them and beat them at their own game. And it's a thrilling battle—in the sky, over the seas, on the land. See daring Doris Harvey on her mysterious quest in the jungles of Africa, captured by headhunters, hurled from a flaming aeroplane, fighting a shark at night in the sea, heroine of a great fire—you'll have the biggest thrills of your life when you see this marvelous Chapter Play. Start your adventure today

Now Playing

Beautiful
EILEEN SEDGWICK
in Universal's Strange and Startling
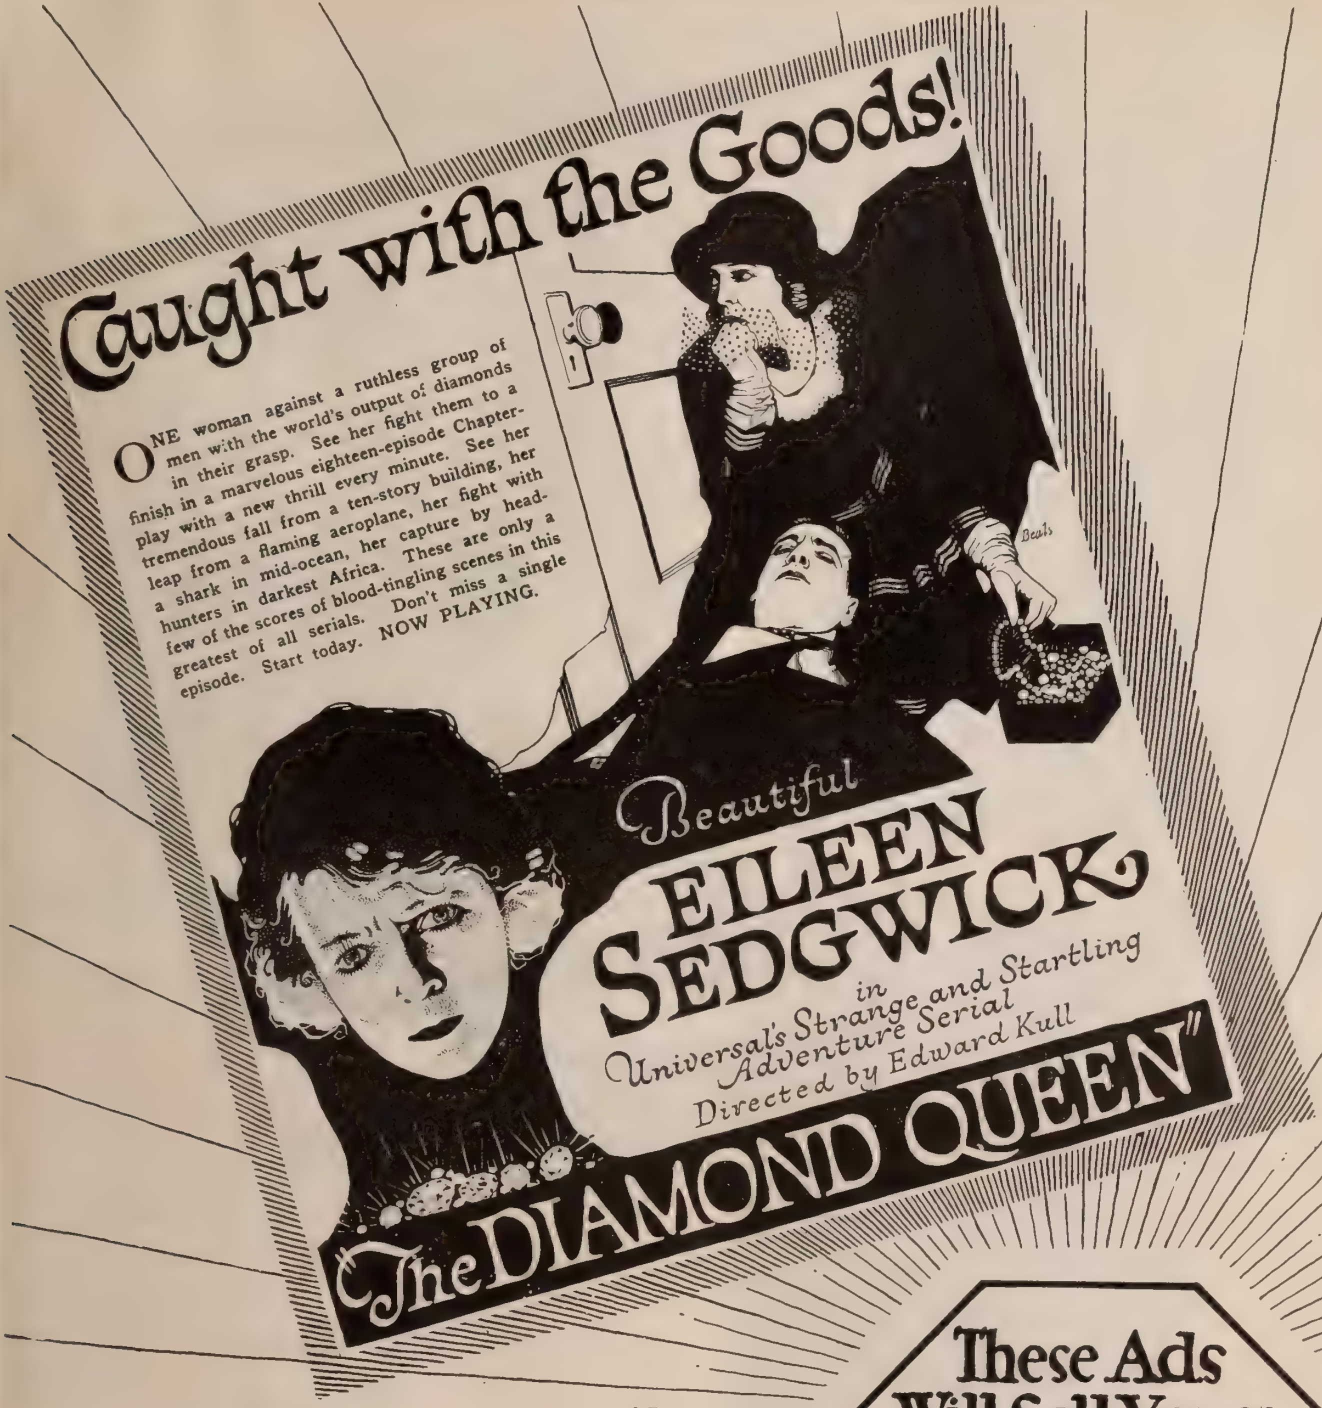
Adventure Serial
DIRECTED BY EDWARD KULL

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Get 'em Started and You'll keep 'em

Ad cut No. 6
"The Diamond
Queen"
Electro $1.35
Mat 25¢



Caught with the Goods!

ONE woman against a ruthless group of men with the world's output of diamonds in their grasp. See her fight them to a finish in a marvelous eighteen-episode Chapter-play with a new thrill every minute. See her tremendous fall from a ten-story building, her leap from a flaming aeroplane, her fight with a shark in mid-ocean, her capture by head-hunters in darkest Africa. These are only a few of the scores of blood-tingling scenes in this greatest of all serials. Don't miss a single episode. Start today. NOW PLAYING.

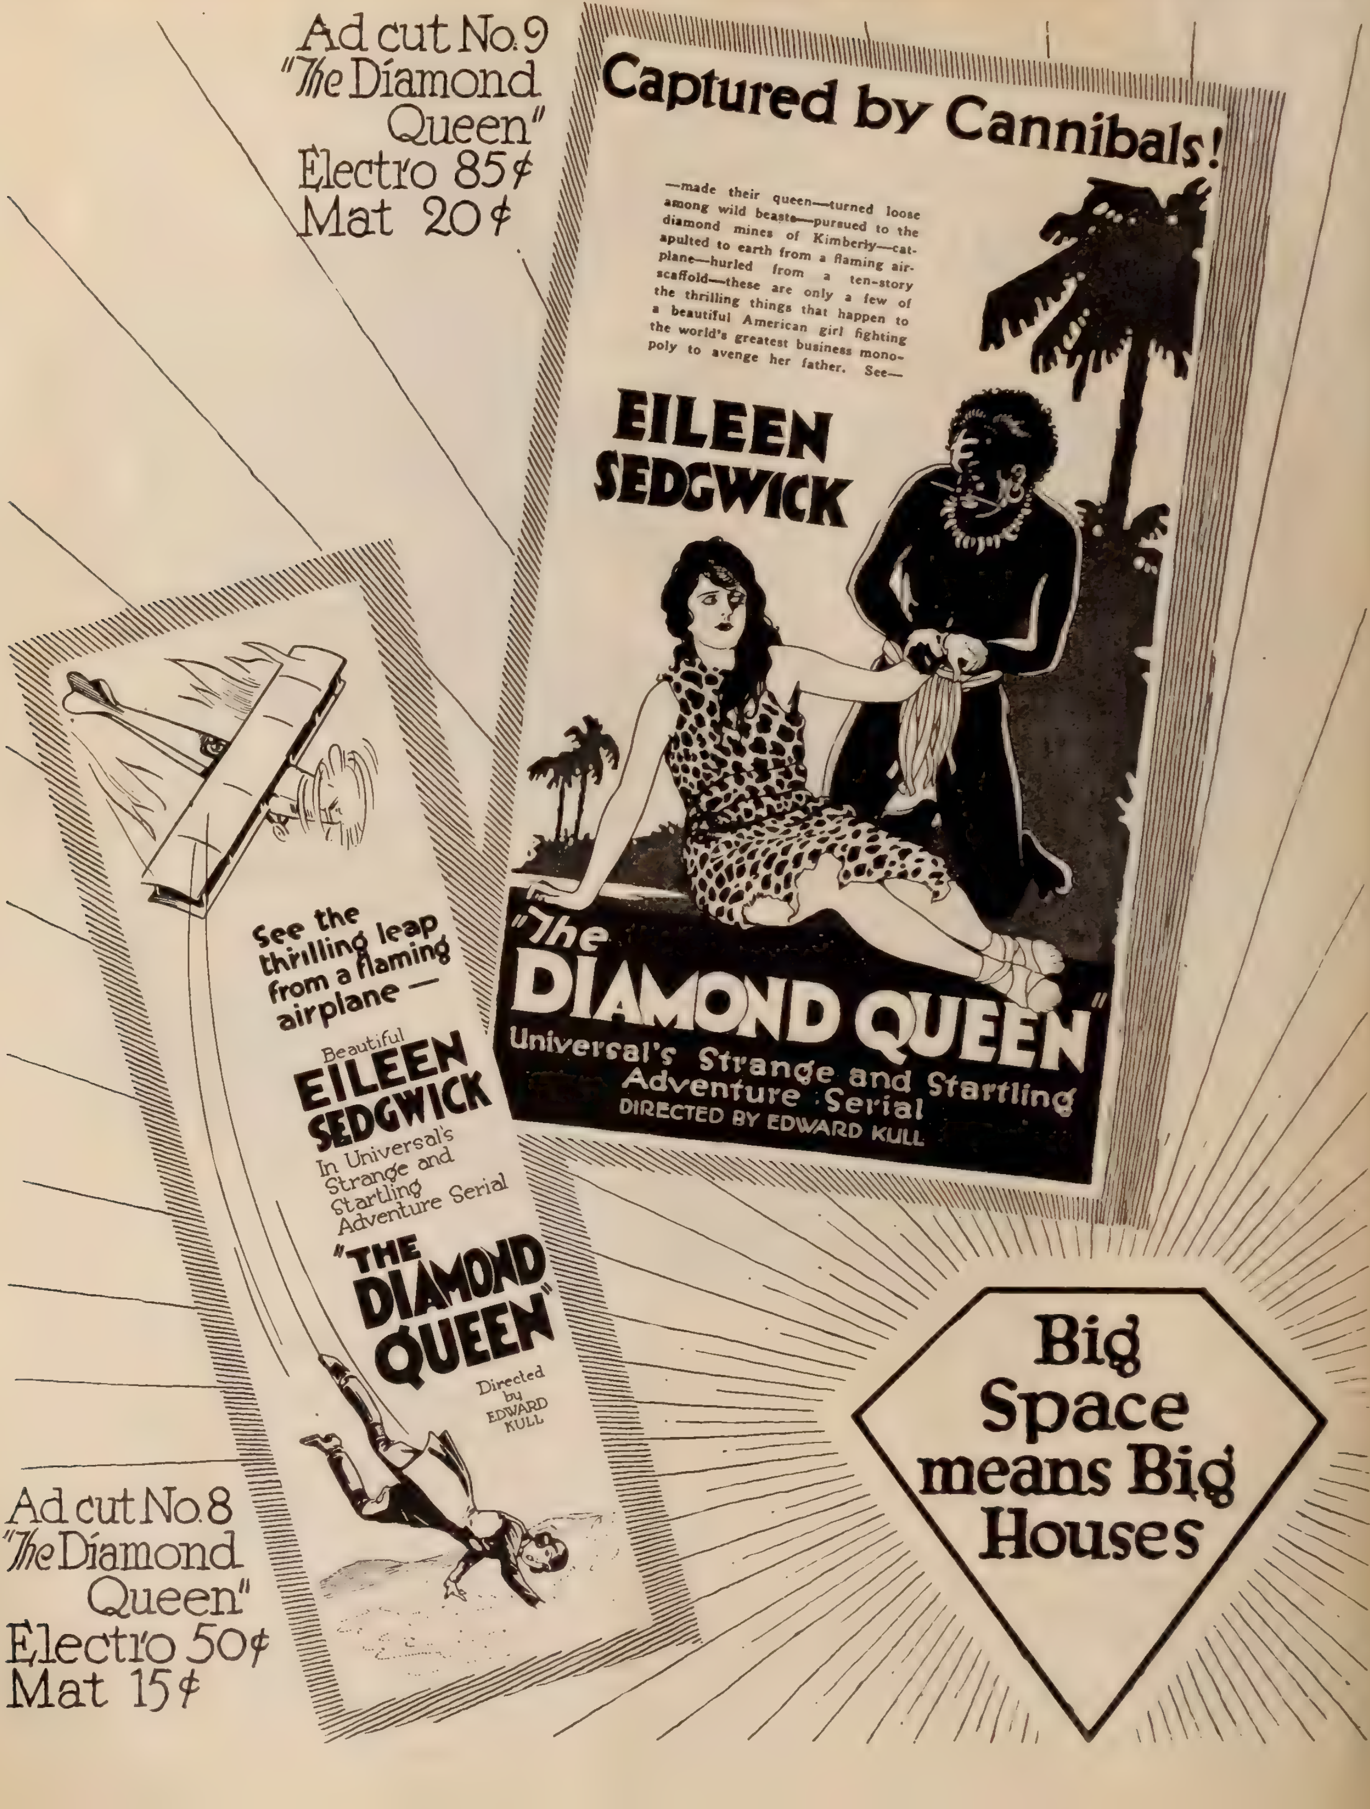
Beautiful
EILEEN SEDGWICK
in
Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial
Directed by Edward Kull

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Ad cut No. 7
"The Diamond Queen"
Electro $ 1.35
Mat 25¢

These Ads Will Sell Your House to S.R.O.

Ad cut No. 9
"The Diamond Queen"
Electro 85¢
Mat 20¢



Captured by Cannibals!

—made their queen—turned loose among wild beasts—pursued to the diamond mines of Kimberly—catapulted to earth from a flaming airplane—hurled from a ten-story scaffold—these are only a few of the thrilling things that happen to a beautiful American girl fighting the world's greatest business monopoly to avenge her father. See—

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial
DIRECTED BY EDWARD KULL

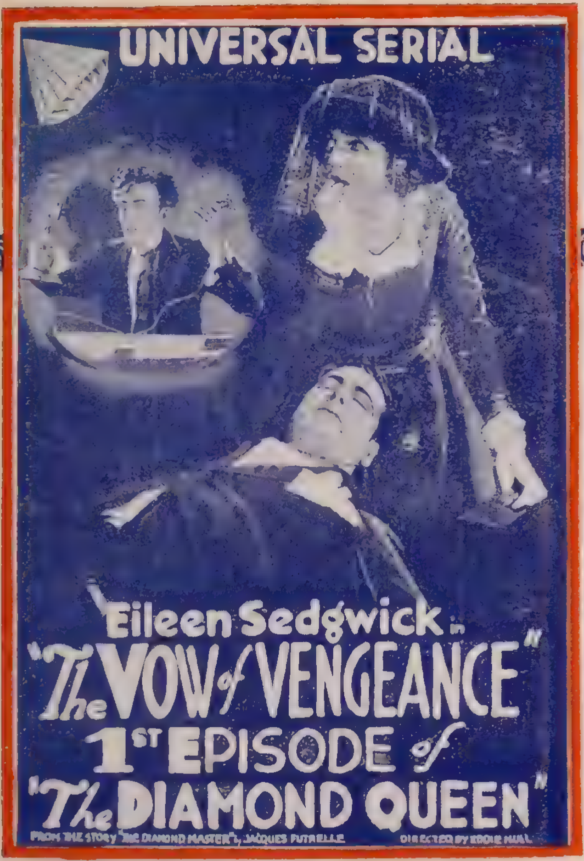
See the thrilling leap from a flaming airplane —

Beautiful
EILEEN SEDGWICK
In Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial
"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
Directed by EDWARD KULL

Ad cut No. 8
"The Diamond Queen"
Electro 50¢
Mat 15¢

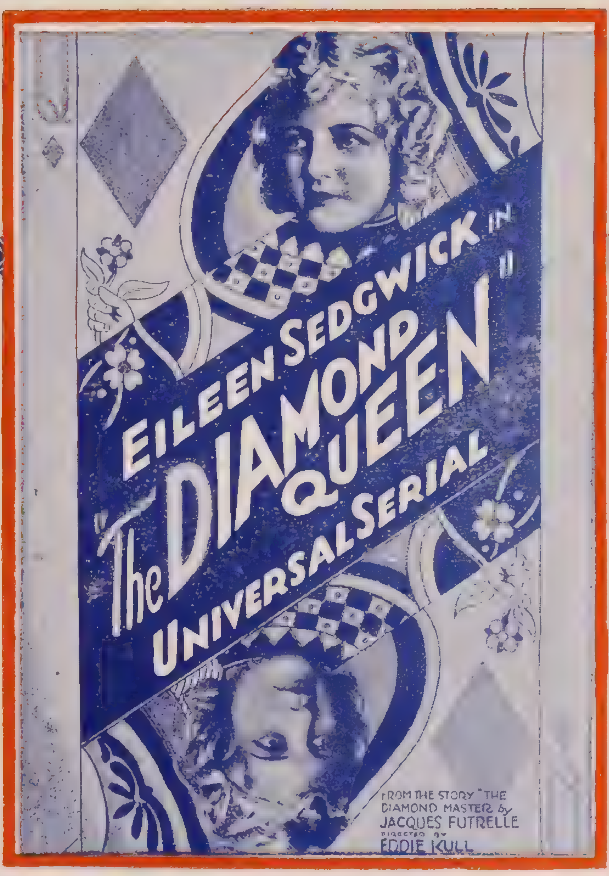
Big Space means Big Houses

POSTERS



UNIVERSAL SERIAL
Eileen Sedgwick in
"The VOW of VENGEANCE"
1st EPISODE of
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"
FROM THE STORY "THE DIAMOND MASTER" by JACQUES FUTRELLE
DIRECTED BY EDDIE KULL

Episode One-Sheet



EILEEN SEDGWICK IN
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
FROM THE STORY "THE DIAMOND MASTER" by JACQUES FUTRELLE
DIRECTED BY EDDIE KULL

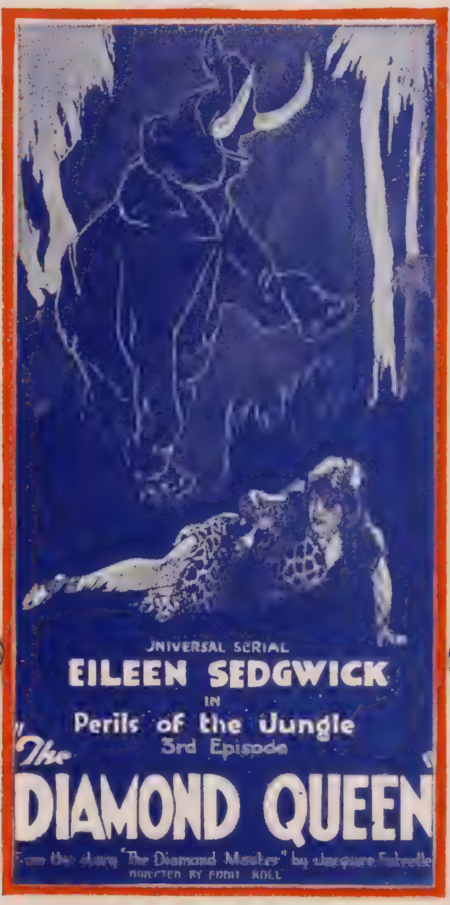
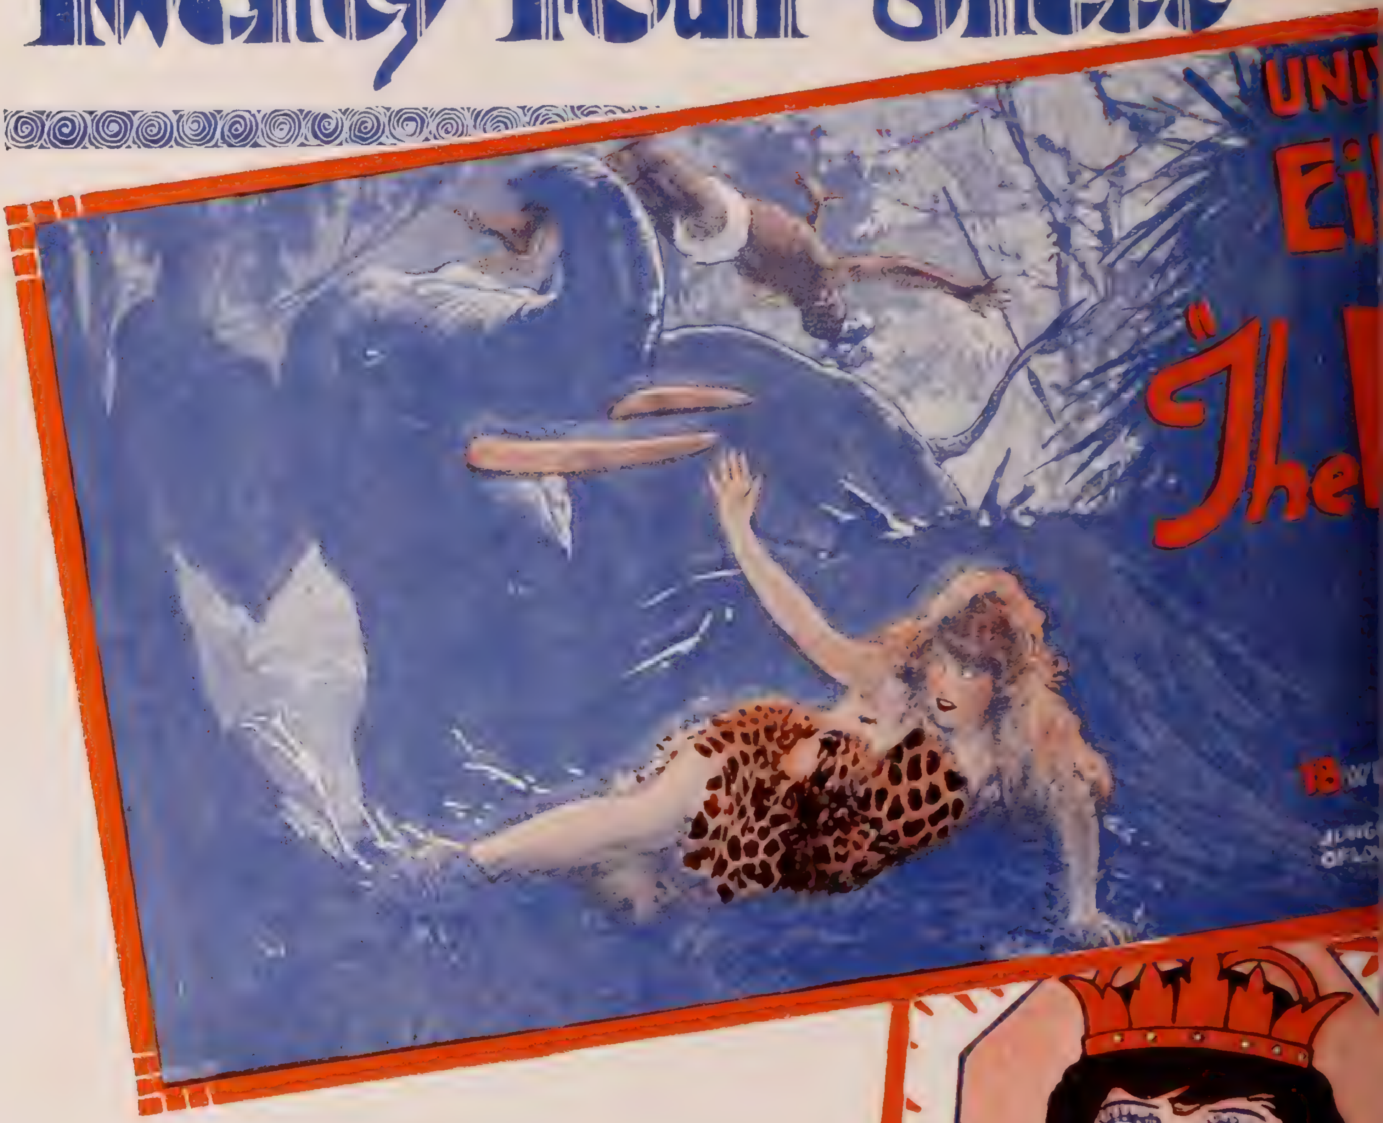
One-Sheet Advance

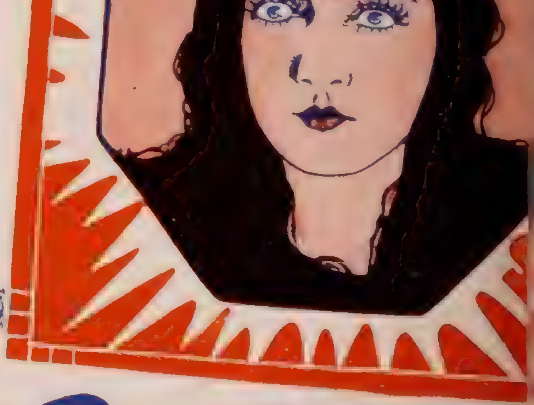


UNIVERSAL SERIAL
EILEEN SEDGWICK
IN
Perils of the Jungle
3rd Episode
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"
From the story "The Diamond Master" by Jacques Futrelle
DIRECTED BY EDDIE KULL

Episode Three-Sheet

Twenty-Four-Sheet





The Ba

ERSAL SERIAL en Sedgwick
A TREMENDOUS CAST IN IAMOND
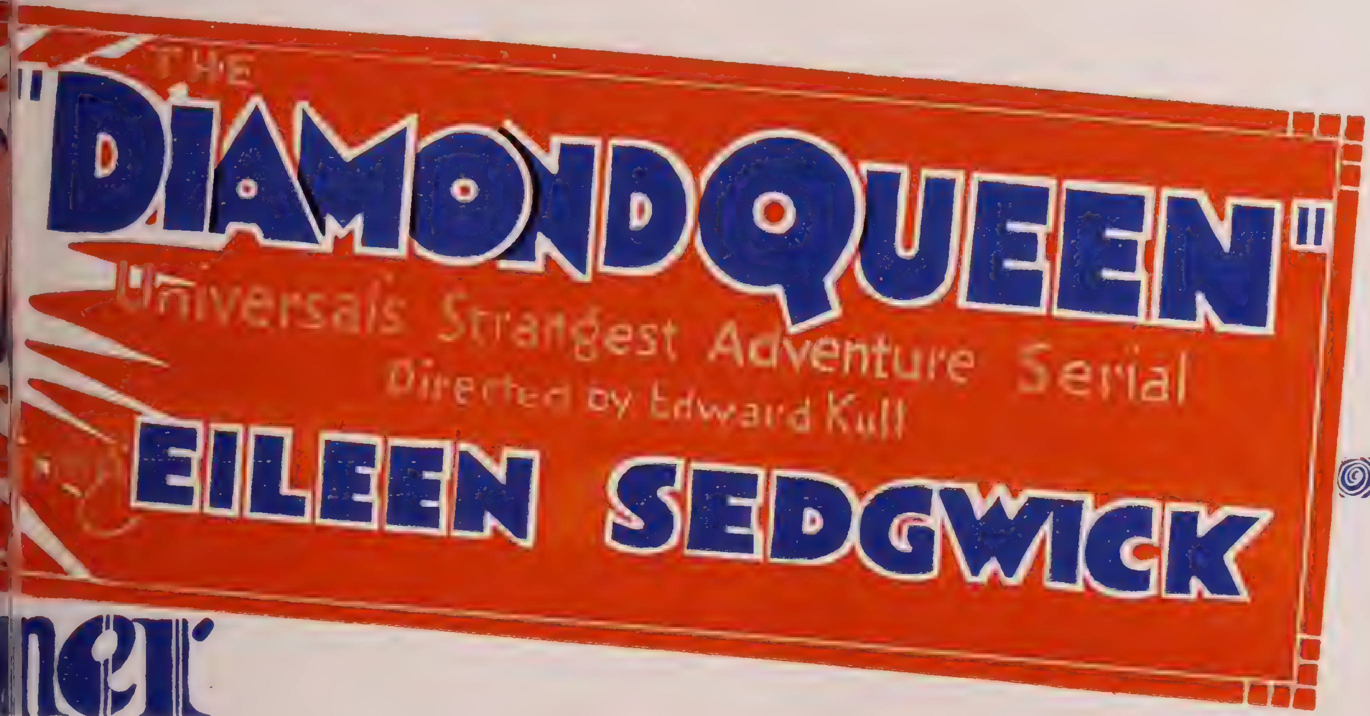
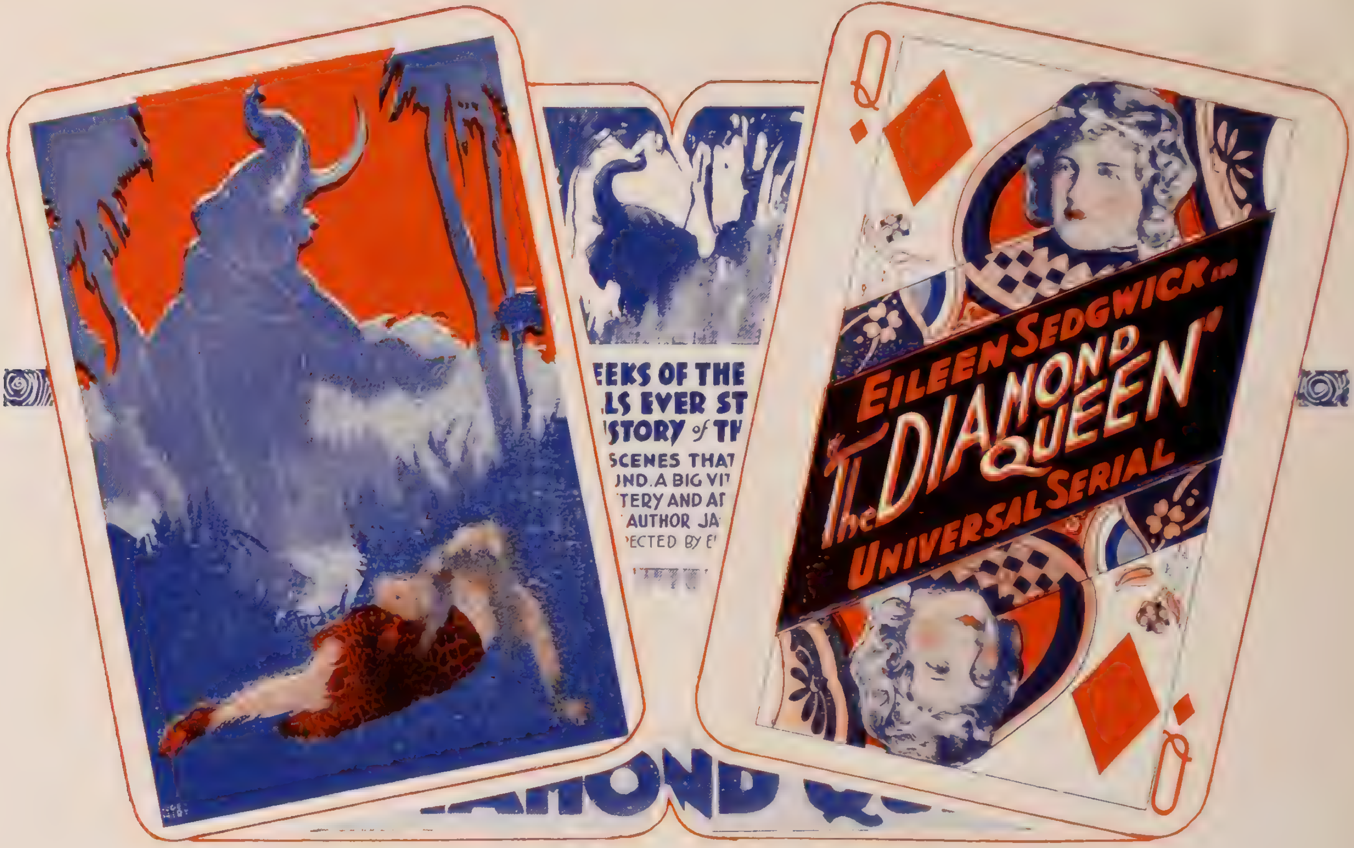
QUEEN"
OF THE BIGGEST THRILLS EVER STAGED
THE HISTORY OF THE SCREEN
ES THAT HOLD YOU SPELLBOUND. A BIG VITAL STORY
TERY AND ADVENTURE BY THE FAMOUS AUTHOR JACQUES FUTRELLE
DIRECTED BY EDWARD KULL



THE
"DIAMOND QUEEN"
Universals Strangest Adventure Serial
Directed by Edward Kull
EILEEN SEDGWICK

ner



EILEEN SEDGWICK in
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
EEKS OF THE LS EVER ST
STORY of TH SCENES THAT
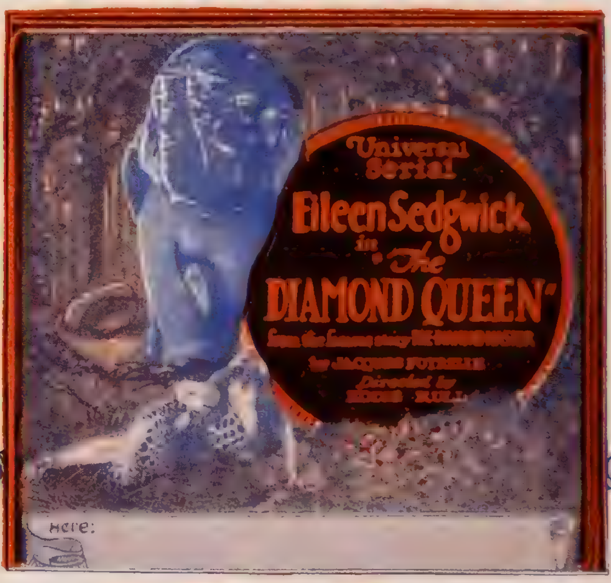
ND. A BIG VI
TERY AND AI
AUTHOR JA
ECTED BY E
AMOND QU

The Herald



Universal Serial
Eileen Sedgwick
in "The DIAMOND QUEEN" from the famous story
by JACQUES FUTRELLE
Directed by
Here:

Slide

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.

(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 12 JANUARY 1, 1921. No. 20

The Most Daring Woman in Pictures

EILEEN SEDGWICK, SERIAL STAR, NOTED FOR FEARLESS ACTING

Grew Up On Stage

EILEEN SEDGWICK, the star in "The Diamond Queen," the Universal serial to commence at the .... Theater next .... is one of the best known young women in moving pictures, not only because of her long succession of popular screen roles, but because of her many years as an actress in vaudeville and in the legitimate drama.

Her appearances before the public began when she was a youngster. Although born in Galveston, and educated in the Ursuline convent in that city, she left school at an early age and joined her family, becoming the baby member of the famous "Five Sedgwicks," a dramatic troupe which toured the South and West with a repertoire of tabloid versions of the latest New York comedy and dramatic hits.

One of the most popular of these tabloid comedies was a skit built around the Katzenjammer family. Eileen played the part of Fritz, the blond mischief-maker of the noted comic supplement family. Eileen's sister, Josie, also on the screen now, played the role of Hans, the other Katzenjammer brother.

Miss Sedgwick forsook the stage in her early teens to enter moving pictures. She played in a few photoplays for Lubin and then was engaged by Universal to take an important part in "The Isle of Life," a colorful screen thriller staged in Mexico. With her wealth of blonde hair, she made such a pretty heroine, that Universal officials determined to keep her permanently for Universal pictures. That was four years ago. She still is one of Universal's leading heroines.

She soon became a great favorite in Universal comedies, being featured in no less than thirty one and two-reel mirth producers. She then was entrusted with the supporting role in Eddie Polo productions. She played opposite this star in a long series of western pictures, in which Polo played "Cyclone Smith," a continued role.

It was with Polo that Miss Sedgwick had her first experience in serials. She played opposite him in "The Lure of the Circus," one of the most popular Universal serials ever made. The daring shown by the young woman in this serial prompted Universal to continue her in serials.

PUBLICITY MATERIAL

ON this and the following pages will be found a large assortment of scene cuts and publicity stories for use in popularizing this serial.

Also there will be found abundant material for heralds throw-aways, display ads. and exploitation campaigns.

Her next appearance in chaptered screen drama was in "The Great Radium Mystery," in which she was co-starred. Then followed her starring role in "The Diamond Queen," a screen adaptation of the late Jacques Futrelle's famous novel, "The Diamond Master."

In "The Diamond Queen" Miss Sedgwick has several episodes in which she has to act with wild animals, being charged upon by lions, tigers, elephants and other dangerous beasts. This is considered the most nerve-wracking of all screen acting.

One of the first Universal pictures in which Miss Sedgwick played was an animal picture entitled, "In African Wilds." Her shoulder was severely scratched by one of the lions in the production of that thriller. It was only by providing for every precaution that she could be induced to appear with wild animals again, for "The Diamond Queen."

Although Miss Sedgwick is twenty-one years of age, she is known by all her acquaintances as "Babe" Sedgwick. This nick-name was attached to her when she was the baby of the Sedgwick family.

She is noted throughout the screen world as one of the most fearless women in the moving picture business. Although her serials call for nerve-wracking stunts and hair's-breadth escapes in every episode, she refuses to permit a "double" to take her place in any perilous bit of action.

In the filming of "The Diamond Queen," which is filled with dangerous thrills, she narrowly escaped serious injury upon several occasions. Her coolness in time of danger brought her safely through each experience, where a less level-head would have come to grief.

When the first episode of "The Diamond Queen" is shown at the .... Theater it will be Miss Sedgwick's first appearance in this community as a serial star in her own right.

AIDS TO THE EXHIBITORS

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The beauty and charm of the star, Eileen Sedgwick, and her fearlessness in the performance of dangerous stunts.

2—The fact that the story was adapted from a thrilling novel, by one of the best-known of the modern writers.

3—Novel shots of the wild jungle country in Africa and the strange cannibal people who inhabit it.

4—The most unusual and daring wild animal scenes ever embodied in a serial.

5—The horrible customs of the cannibals shown in a realistic manner.

6—A thrilling fight on the wing of an aeroplane high above the earth.

7—Death defying stunts, including a plunge from a narrow plank eleven stories above the ground.

8—The introduction and dangerous operation of a marvelous machine, used for the manufacture of diamonds.

9—An exciting story, full of thrills, adventure and the sweetest of romance.

10—The masterful direction of Edward Kull—a maker of gripping photo-thrillers.

PRINCIPAL PLAYERS

DORIS HARVEY	EILEEN SEDWICK
JOHN HARVEY, her father	Burton Wilson
BRUCE WESTON	George Cheseboro
JULIUS ZEIDT	Frank M. Clark
PROF. MARTIN HARVEY	Alfred Fisher
ZIMBA	Al Smith
ALINE EARL	Josephine Scott

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"THE DIAMOND QUEEN."

LENGTH—Serial—18 Episodes.

STAR—EILEEN SEDGWICK.

PREVIOUS HITS—Lead in "The Lure of the Circus" with Eddie Polo, Co-star of "The Great Radium Mystery."

DIRECTED BY—EDWARD KULL.

STORY BY—Adapted by Robert F. Roden and George W. Pyper from the novel by Jacques Futrelle, "The Diamond Master."

SCENARIO BY—George W. Pyper.

SUPPORTING CAST—George Cheseboro, Frank M. Clark, Burton Wilson, Alfred Fisher, Al Smith, Josephine Scott, Lew Short and Harry de More.

LOCALE—The suburb of an American City; Kimberley, South Africa, and the jungle regions nearby, a large American City.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—When her father ruined by the unscrupulous diamond trust, commits suicide, Doris Harvey swears to avenge his death. This determination takes her to the earth's remotest corners, and involves her constantly in grim peril. Aided by a startling invention, she "breaks" the criminal trust and incidentally wins the heart of a young money-king.

ADVANCE NOTES

USE THESE BEFORE YOU SHOW THE FIRST EPISODE

As a child Eileen Sedgwick played the role of little Fritz in the "Katzenjammer" act with which the Five Sedgwicks toured in vaudeville all over the country. Now she is the dazzling star of the thrilling serial picture, "The Diamond Queen," which begins on .... at the .... Theatre.

Some wonderful scenes of a strange country, an untamed race and its barbarous customs are to be seen in "The Diamond Queen," the serial starring Eileen Sedgwick, which starts next .... at the .... Theatre.

"The Diamond Queen" was adapted from a novel by the famous Jacques Futrelle, and contains an exciting plot. Eileen Sedgwick is its star and the first episode will be shown at the .... Theatre next ....

No girl could look more attractive than blonde Eileen Sedgwick in the leopard skin dress she wears as queen of the man-eaters in "The Diamond Queen," the serial in which she is starring and which commences at the .... Theatre next ....

Eileen Sedgwick prefers being a serial star to acting in other kinds of pictures. She enjoys the thrill of it. Her latest serial, "The Diamond Queen" will begin next .... at the .... Theatre.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 1
Scene from later episode

An intricate machine, used for the manufacture of diamonds, plays an important part in "The Diamond Queen," the serial starring beautiful Eileen Sedgwick, which commences next .... at the .... Theatre.

Eileen Sedgwick, the star of the new serial, "The Diamond Queen," which starts at the .... Theatre, next ...., will be remembered as the charming blonde star of that recent serial-thriller, "The Great Radium Mystery."

The most dangerous stunt that Eileen Sedgwick is called upon to perform in "The Diamond Queen," is to drop from a narrow plank towards the street eleven stories below. This exciting serial will start at the .... Theatre ....

"The Diamond Queen" not only contains tense battles between men, but a thrilling fight between a lion and a tiger. This serial, starring beautiful Eileen Sedgwick, begins next .... at the .... Theatre.

It is one thing to fight on land but another to battle on the wings of an aeroplane high above ground. Such a struggle is shown in Eileen Sedgwick's new starring vehicle, "The Diamond Queen," coming to the .... Theatre on .... It is a Universal serial.

A READY-WRITTEN REVIEW

IT is quite refreshing to view a serial which starts off with so realistic and consistent a story as "The Diamond Queen," the newest Universal serial starring Eileen Sedgwick, which had its premiere last night at the .... Theatre. Here at last is a serial that is going to be an interesting story, not a mere conglomeration of thrilling incidents!

Adapted from "The Diamond Master," a novel by that famous storymaster, Jacques Futrelle, the plot promises to carry the spectator from America to the far-off diamond fields of dark Africa and the strange country surrounding them. Combine with this novelty of setting an adventure story full of excitement and suspense, and there results as interesting and entertaining a chapter-play as the movies have yet offered.

The story of "The Diamond Queen" is a timely one for it centers around an all-powerful and unscrupulous combine of enormously wealthy financiers, who bring to ruin and suicide a big-hearted millionaire when he refuses to bow to their unjust demands. His daughter resolves to avenge his death, and this determination involves her in thrilling and dangerous situations. Incidentally, a fascinating novelty is woven into this plot of vengeance. It is a diamond-making machine.

Thrills by no means have been neglected in the development of the realistic and logical story. In the first episode there is one of the most perilous stunts ever performed by a serial player. Eileen Sedgwick, the star of the serial, walks a frail plank connecting two buildings, eleven stories above ground. She is seen to stumble and pitch downward toward the street as the episode ends. Some thrill!

Directed by Edward Kull, this serial with its attractive and daring star, will provide splendid entertainment even to the most sophisticated moving picture patrons.

The Story of "The Diamond Queen"

OPENING CHAPTERS OF SUPER-SERIAL

(Not For Publication)

"The Vow Of Vengeance"

Episode One

DORIS HARVEY, about to complete her course at a fashionable girl's finishing school on the Hudson, prepares to slip home and surprise her father.

But John Harvey, diamond importer and philanthropist, of Maiden Lane, New York, is suddenly plunged into bankruptcy by the Diamond Trust, headed by Julius Zeidt, who is known as the world's diamond king, in order to force from Harvey control of certain new Brazilian mines. Harvey's great ambition, has been to establish a great free hospital clinic and school where crippled children, helpless mothers, life's misfits among the poor, can be righted and given a fair chance for progress. The blighting of his life's work is more than he can stand. Unable to face the daughter he idolizes in failure and disgrace, Harvey determines to end his life. Mason, his store manager, discovers his intent and tries to foil him, but Harvey slips away to his Long Island home, in the grip of suicidal insanity.

DAUGHTER IS TOLD

Doris, arriving at the store from school, learns from Mason what has happened. Like a bolt from a clear sky tragedy enters her life. She sets out in her car to overtake her father, instructing Mason to try and get him on the wire the minute he reaches home and hold him on some pretext till she arrives. The thrilling race with death is begun.

Doris draws close upon her father's speeding car, driven by Tim, the family chauffeur, but each time is delayed in her wild dash—once when she wrecks her own car and risks her life to save a child in the road. At the time of the accident, her sacrifice is witnessed by another motorist, Bruce Weston, a young millionaire, who is owner of the Stockley Co., one of the firms of the Diamond Trust. But Bruce has had no hand in the ruin of Harvey. Neither Bruce nor Doris know each other when he finds her stunned in the wrecked car and offers his own car and his services in answer to her hysterical plea. The mad race is renewed, Bruce at the wheel, Doris praying that she will be in time.

Eileen Sedgwick
IN A SCENE FROM "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 2

Harvey reaches his home just as Mason calls on the phone and delays him by a series of pretexts. Below in the basement of the home Prof. Martin Harvey, Doris grandfather, long considered half-demented because of his devotion to some mysterious chemical experiment, labors at his task. At last John Harvey, realizing that he is being tricked by Mason, tosses aside the phone, takes forth his revolver and raises it to his head. Bruce and Doris speed up the driveway outside, leap out of the car and dash up the front steps of the house in time to hear a shot ring out. They halt in their tracks. Old Martin Harvey stops at his task. The servants look aghast toward the drawing room. Doris, horror stricken, appears about to collapse.

TOO LATE

Recovering herself, Doris rushes into the drawing room only to find her father's crumpled body on the floor, dead. Bruce, still not knowing Doris or whose house he is in, tries to comfort her when old Martin Harvey enters, looks for one grief-stricken moment at his son's body, then stands erect, anew, grim light in his eyes. He asks Bruce to leave them. He goes away without learning who Doris is. Martin then leads Doris into the basement. There he tells her how the Diamond Trust had driven her father to his death and also explains the nature of his mysterious experiment. Together they swear to avenge John Harvey's death and carry out his great plan—and in the mysterious experiment they hope to find the weapon to achieve this. Doris looks at a newspaper cut of Zeidt and fastens his face in her mind.

In the office of the Diamond Trust, Zeidt, its chief, tells his associates that though they have forced Harvey out of business he still holds documents that will incriminate them. These must be obtained at all costs or they face prison.

Two days later Doris' grandfather hands her these documents to take to Henry Sylvester, close friend of her late father, for safe keeping. At the same time, Bruce, from a newspaper article, learns for the first time who Doris is and the circumstances surrounding her father's suicide. Sensing his position as a member of the trust, even though he is innocent, he sets out for the Harvey home in his car to clear himself in Doris' eyes. Thus, as Bruce nears the house, he sees Doris leave, followed by mysterious men, who are in reality crooks hired by Zeidt to obtain the documents. The crooks, spying at the house, had discovered Doris' intention and destination. Bruce follows them.

TRAPPED

When Doris discovers she is being pursued, she flees into an office building in the downtown section. The crooks are close on her heels. She runs down a blind corridor on one of the upper floors, enters a "to let" office and locks the door. Bruce overtakes the crooks at the door. They fall upon him and knock him out, than break in the door to seize Doris. But Doris dashes into a further room, locking the door. The crooks start to batter it down. Painters have been at work in the room. Doris looks out the window. Opposite her is another tall building. The ground lies eleven stories below. Seizing a painter's plank from the floor, she shoves it across the areaway from window to window, then starts across it. The crooks smash through the door and rush to the window. In her excitement Doris loses her balance and falls on the plank. The weight of her body breaks it. She plunges down apparently to her doom.

"THE PLUNGE OF DOOM"

Episode Two

DORIS is saved from death when she falls into a canvas stretched some distance underneath a scaffolding upon which painters had been at work on the wall of the building. The crooks, seeing this, start down to the floor far below to seize her from the window. Bruce, reviving, discovers Doris' plight. He leaps from the eleventh floor window into the canvas at the side of Doris. They climb thru an office window opened by an excited tenant. Doris tells Bruce she must reach the office of Sylvester at once. Bruce tells her the building is just around the corner. They dash off, but the crooks are again on their trail, unobserved.

In Sylvester's office Doris finds he has gone home. His secretary, a girl, offers her services, but before Doris can explain the purpose of her visit, the crooks reach the office door, which Bruce locks. From the outside his silhouette is plainly visible. One of the crooks strikes at the silhouette with a sap. The blow crashes through the glass and lays Bruce low. As the crooks rush in, seize and tie the secretary, Doris flees into Sylvester's open vault and closes the heavy door. It is a time lock. She is hopelessly entombed.

A GILDED TOMB

The secretary pleads with the crooks to save her. They drill to place a blast in the lock, after hurling the secretary aside. In the vault Doris is suffocating. Outside, the secretary manages to drag a phone from the table with her teeth and calls Sylvester. He, in turn, calls the police and himself speeds on his way to the office. Bruce now revives, sees the situation and attacks the crooks as they drill. But they knock him out again.

The blast is set. The crooks retire to the outside, waiting. But the secretary crawls to a water-stand, fills a sanitary cup with water, using her teeth to hold the water cup, manages to get to the vault and dashes the water on the low burning fuse, quenching it. At the same moment Sylvester and the police arrive. The crooks are caught. Sylvester works frantically at the safe. Bruce is carried off to the emergency hospital, Sylvester opens the safe, Doris, nearly suffocated, is borne forth to the table. A pulmotor resuscitates her.

When Bruce gets out of the hospital he finds the Harveys gone from their home—no one knows where. Haunted by the girl he can't forget, Bruce begins a cruise of indefinite length on his private yacht—determined that some day he will find her.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 3

Zeidt, the diamond king, also leaves New York for South Africa, where he is to inspect his diamond mines. By now Zeidt knows of Harvey's suicide and gloats over it, but has never seen the girl, Doris Harvey.

CAPTURED BY SAVAGES

A month later, Doris appears in Kimberley, hub of the diamond industry, and sets out, in spite of warnings and protests, for a newly discovered diamond field in a wild territory thronged with savages. She is captured by head-hunters—a tribe long without a king or queen who, listening to their medicine man's legendary urging for a "White Queen," decide to enter her in the list of candidates for ruler. These candidates must undergo a gruesome test. But in years none has survived the test.

The tribe of head hunters prepares for the royal torture test with its weird dances and rituals. The hour of the ceremony arrives and Doris with the other candidates is led forth. She sees one after another hoisted high to a crude box-trap in a tree and precipitated by means of a trap door into a pit of water rimmed with upturned spears.

A TERRIBLE TEST

Each, like herself, is garbed in a peculiar native costume of shredded, highly inflammable material, which is soaked with oil. Just before each candidate is precipitated toward the pit, this costume is ignited. If the victim is fortunate to fall into the pit, unscathed by the spears, the water extinguishes the flames and the survivor is triumphant. Those impaled on the spears die in agony. Doris is last on the list. None of her predecessors survive the horrible torture. She is hoisted high to the box-trap. Her garb is ignited. The trap door falls open. Doris falls.

Use These Special Stories Be

FILM SERIAL STARS NEED GREAT NERVE

Eileen Sedgwick Among The Most Daring

IT requires a great deal of nerve to be a serial star, not the sort of nerve described as "gall" or "crust," but the kind which designates daring and valor. There are several accomplishments necessary to serial stars. One must know how to act, must be an athlete and an acrobat; and above all must possess no trace or fear, but a willingness to take any and all chances.

Eileen Sedgwick, the youngest and most attractive of serial stars, whose latest success is scored in the Universal production, "The Diamond Queen," comprising thirty-six reels of daredevil action, demonstrated the fact that she possessed more than ordinary share of nerve when she was eight years old. She was the youngest member of the Sedgwick family, which toured the South and West and presented a repertoire of comedies and dramas. Between the acts, vaudeville acts were presented, and one of these was a slack wire specialty by a young woman of nineteen.

At odd times, and unknown to her father and mother, Eileen practised on the swaying cable. One evening the wire walker was sick and unable to perform. There was no other act to fill up the gap while the scenes were being changed, and Eileen, without a word to any one, rushed on the stage and performed the act. She fell several times during the performance, but undaunted by the accidents she returned to the swinging wire and finished all the stunts in the regular performer's repertoire.

Eileen Sedgwick's biggest film success is being scored in "The Diamond Queen," a serial based on the famous novel, "The Diamond Master," by Jacques Futrelle. This thrilling story, adapted for the screen by George Pyner and Robert Roden, was produced for Universal by Edward Kull.

"The Diamond Queen" is to be shown every .... at the .... Theater. The opening chapter is scheduled for ....

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 4

HEAVY SCREEN LOVER ALSO A HARD HITTER

GEORGE CHESEBORO, handsome leading man to Eileen Sedgwick in her thrilling new serial "The Diamond Queen," released by Universal, is more than just a good-looking lead. He is a real serial actor, who performs all sorts of feats of peril and endurance with easy confidence. He might easily be an aspirant for prize-fighting honors. In the eighth episode of this serial he knocks out a whole gang of ruffians single-handed.

There never is an amateur boxing or wrestling bout around the big studios in which George Cheseboro hasn't a hand. He has built up quite a reputation for himself in these fields of sport. The eighth episode of "The Diamond Queen" will be seen at the .... Theatre on ....

REMARKABLE FIGHTS SCREENED FOR SERIAL

Actual Conflict Of Wild Beasts In Jungle

THE most novel stunts ever filmed for a serial, are the wild animal scenes, which occur in the third episode of Eileen Sedgwick's newest and most thrilling serial, "The Diamond Queen," to be shown at the .... Theatre next ....

Fleeing from her cannibal captors, who have made her their unwilling ruler, Doris, accompanied by a friendly native, runs through the perilous mazes of a dense jungle. She is suddenly attacked by a leopard. A bullet from the weapon of her protector saves her, but her security is short-lived. From a dense mass of shrubbery a lion springs. A second well-directed shot accounts for the ferocious beast. The girl speeds weakly on, only to run directly into the path of a huge elephant.

But the vivid portrayal on the screen of the ferocity of these untamed beasts is not the most interesting part of the "shots." That occurs when a lion and a tiger actually are shown fighting to the death—the strangest battle ever depicted on the screen.

EILEEN SEDGWICK EXPERT AT WHEEL

EILEEN SEDGWICK, daring star of "The Diamond Queen," the serial which is now being shown on .... and .... of each week at the .... Theatre, is an expert motorist. Her ability to handle the wheel came her in good stead in the first episode of "The Diamond Queen." Here, racing against death in a high-powered car, she sees a child directly in the road in front of her, while another motor car is fast approaching from the opposite direction. At the risk of her life, to save the child as well as the driver of the approaching car, the daring star deliberately turns her machine into a fence at the side of the road. She crashes through it with terrific speed. Miss Sedgwick staunchly refused to have a skilled double perform this hazardous stunt. Excitement ran high in the company during the filming of the danger-fraught incident.

re And During The Showing

PRETTY FILM STAR RAISED ON STAGE

Eileen Sedgwick Youngest Of Famous Family

EILEEN SEDGWICK, starring in the Universal serial, "The Diamond Queen," which begins at the .... Theatre next .... has been on the stage since she was a child. Both her parents are popular players; so is her brother, Ed; likewise her sister, Josie. Traveling as an independent theatrical company, the Sedgwick family became famous throughout the South and West.

The dramatic company toured the country and became notable for its repertoire. Not only did they present tabloid versions of the latest New York comedy and dramatic hits, but interpersed vaudeville numbers, songs, dances and athletic sketches between the acts by way of variety.

Miss Sedgwick's first important work before the camera, was at the age of 14, in a Universal picture, "The Isle of Life," which was made in Mexico. She was so appealing in the role that her screen career was assured and she continued in Universal productions.

Forsaking the dramatic roles for a time, Miss Sedgwick gave a new interpretation to comedy leads and was featured in a number of funny-films made at Universal City.

Realizing that her talents were too great to be entirely confined to the comedy screen, the star was again placed in dramatic roles by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, and has since then specialized principally in serials.

Her work in support of Eddie Polo in his first romance of the big top, "The Lure of the Circus," was characterized by skill and daring and by a dramatic quality seldom met with in film serial production. She later appeared in such thrilling creations as "Man and Beast," "Dropped from the Clouds," "The Trail of No Return," "Number 10, Westbound," and others. She scored a tremendous success in "The Great Radium Mystery," in which she was co-starred, and her triumph in this serial won her the starring role in the latest Universal chaptered romance, "The Diamond Queen," based on "The Diamond Master," by Jacques Futrelle, and directed by Edward Kull.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 5
Scene from fourth episode

EILEEN DANCES TOO

Eileen Sedgwick not only is beautiful and a clever actress, but also is an accomplished ballet dancer. She ably demonstrates this in "The Diamond Queen," her latest serial-thriller, which begins at the .... Theatre next ....

WON FAME ON STAGE AS RESULT OF DARE

George Cheseboro An Actor Over Night

NEVER criticise another person unless you are sure you can do their job better than they can, was the greatest lesson ever learned by George Cheseboro, the hero for Eileen Sedgwick in her newest serial, "The Diamond Queen," now being shown every .... at the .... Theatre. Learning this lesson caused Cheseboro to be precipitated into a stage career from which he never recovered until he entered the moving picture world.

He was a ticket seller in the boxoffice of a Minneapolis Theatre several years ago, where Richard Ferris was conducting a stock company. One week young Cheseboro criticized the work of the juvenile in the company and boasted that he could act the role better himself.

Ferris was having a bad week and was in no mood for criticism. He snapped back:

"Oh, is that so? Well, suppose you just take this place to-night."

Cheseboro did take the part, and despite a weakness in the knees, did it so well that he was engaged for the remainder of the season. He played in stock and with road companies, one of his engagements being with a company that played a winter season at Sacramento, California. Henry McRae owned the company and directed the productions. Three years later, after Cheseboro returned from a two years' tour of the Orient, where he appeared with an American musical comedy and vaudeville company, he stopped over in Los Angeles and visited Universal City, then recently erected. There he found Henry McRae, his old stage director, producing photodramas.

McRae suggested to Cheseboro that he try pictures for a while, and his first screen work was in a two-reel drama with Lois Wilson. Since then George has been appearing entirely in the films, has supported a score of feminine stars and has specialized in serial productions. He admits that in no serial has he had the thrills and excitement he experienced in "The Diamond Queen."

FOR THE HERALD

TO Doris Harvey, pampered daughter of John Harvey, the diamond king, life is a succession of joys only, until the Diamond Trust drives her father to bankruptcy.

Intending to surprise her beloved parent with one of her impetuous visits from school, Doris enters his office one day, only to find Mason, the manager, in a state of frenzied excitement. John Harvey had just that moment departed for his home with suicide in his heart and Mason knew that no power but the daughter could stop this sudden insanity on the part of the financier, heartbroken because of what the loss of his money would mean to his child.

Ordering Mason to get her father on the phone to inform him of her coming, the girl starts her wild ride in her motor car to beat death. In the distance she can see the lights of her father's car. Heeding nothing, she speeds on, eyes fixed ahead, lips firmly set. She will stop this mad deed yet! But suddenly—ahead of her—there comes in view the figure bbof a child, playing heedlessly in the road, while from the opposite direction a high-powered car spins toward her. The child—the driver—she must not get in their way!

With never a thought for herself, and all in the flash of a second, she swerves her car to the right. With terrific speed, it crashes into a fence and from its firm rootings a huge tree falls across the roadside, missing the child by but the fraction of an inch. Unconscious she lays there in the tonneau of her crushed car. The driver of the other car, Bruce Weston, revives her. She tells him of her agony. Together they take up once again the mad dash.

What follows on this frenzied dash of rescue—how the girl and her family, possessors of a secret invention for producing machine-made diamonds, attempt to thwart the trust and seek vengeance; how Bruce Weston, in his love for the girl is dragged into intrigue against the very organization of which he himself is a member; how it takes them to the earth's obscure corners and into situations more fascinatingly horrible than have ever before been viewed, is thrillingly told in the eighteen tense and punchful episodes which go to make up "The Diamond Queen," Universal's newest super-serial sensation, starring the lovely and dauntless Eileen Sedgwick. This great chaptered photo-thriller will be shown weekly at the .... Theatre commencing ....

Advertising Display Lines

The Diamond Trust was all powerful. Yet it found itself helpless before the clever wiles of a woman. See Eileen Sedgwick in "The Diamond Queen."

A millionaire's daughter—then the queen of a wild band of cannibals—later a dancing girl in the antipodes. See Eileen Sedgwick in the Great Universal Serial, "The Diamond Queen."

Visit strange lands—See the horrible customs of an untamed race—view primitive live itself with beautiful Eileen Sedgwick in Universal's Great Serial, "The Diamond Queen."

She was thrown from the lap of luxury to the grim hands of poverty. From an easy, sheltered existence, she became the unhappy ruler of a band of cannibals. Then she mingled with crooks and gangsters—all for a great cause. See Eileen Sedgwick in "The Diamond Queen"—a super-serial

A dive from a dizzy height into a spear-rimmed pool. A battle with a ferocious elephant in the jungle-wilds. A swim through the rough waters of a shark-infested sea. A thrilling fight on the wing of an aeroplane. This is Eileen Sedgwick in "The Diamond Queen."

Fights in the jungle—Fights under the sea—Fights high in the air—Terrific fights in every quarter of the Globe—Fights. Don't miss "The Diamond Queen" with Daring Adorable Eileen Sedgwick.

Thrills from "The Diamond Queen"

TO BE USED BEFORE SHOWING THE VARIOUS EPISODES

FILM FAVORITE WALKS PLANK HIGH IN AIR

(Use before Episode 2)

All sorts of methods are employed to guard the life of the serial stars in the performance of their dangerous and thrilling stunts. However, there always is a large element of actual danger for them. Human methods of precaution are not infallible.

One of the most dangerous stunts ever staged in any serial occurs in the second episode of "The Diamond Queen," which is to be seen at the .... Theatre, next .... Eileen Sedgwick, the star, walks across a narrow plank between two buildings, eleven stories above the street. She stumbles midway and falls. The weight of her body breaks the frail plank and she is plunged apparently to her doom, to the street far below.

Eileen Sedgwick has performed any number of dangerous stunts in her career as a serial star, but she admits it took considerable effort to keep calm in the performance of this particular thriller, for the slightest miscalculation would have meant sure death for her.

THIS SAVAGE TRIBE HARD ON QUEENS

(Use before Episode 3)

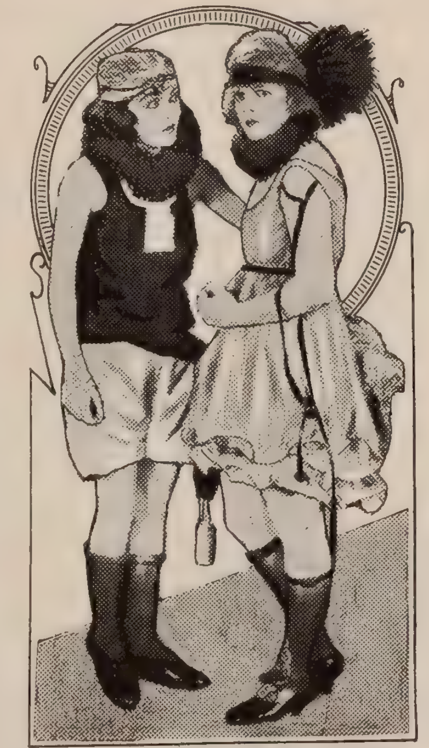
One of the most horribly fascinating incidents ever filmed occurs in the third episode of "The Diamond Queen," which will be shown on .... at the ....Theatre. Eileen Sedgwick, captured by the man-eaters, is arrayed in a grass gown and hoisted to a platform high above the ground. Her skirts are set afire and she is pitched head first into a pit of water far below, which is surrounded by tall, pointed spears, placed upright around the edge of the pit.

The aperture left by the points is just large enough for a human body to pass through, should it be lucky enough to fall that way. Many well-known serial players watched the filming of this episode and commented on the courage of the beautiful little star, who refused to get excited over the fearful stunt and maintained the calmest of exteriors. This sensational bit of action is only one of the numerous high spots in "The Diamond Queen."



Eileen Sedgwick (RIGHT)
IN A SCENE FROM "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No 6
Scene from fourth episode

REALISTIC JUNGLE LIFE SHOWN IN NEW SERIAL

(Use before Episode 4)

Eileen Sedgwick, beautiful blonde star of "The Diamond Queen," Universal's newest serial, recently was asked whether she had ever been with an animal act. Miss Sedgwick has never had that particular experience, but one would hardly think so to watch how confidently she acted in the fourth episode of "The Diamond Queen." Running through the jungle in her mad flight from the man hunters, she mercifully escapes from the claws of a lion, and from the fury of a wild leopard only to stray directly in the path of a huge and ferocious elephant which threatens to crush her. This episode of "The Diamond Queen" can be seen at the .... Theatre next ....

DIVING VENUS NOW FILM STAR FIGHTS SHARKS

(Use before Episode 5)

Eileen Sedgwick, daring and talented star of "The Diamond Queen" always welcomes a chance for water stunts. She has been an accomplished swimmer and diver all of her life. She didn't expect the large order she got in "The Diamond Queen," her latest serial starring vehicle, however. In the fifth episode of that exciting chapter-play, she is called upon to jump from the rails of an ocean liner, in the dead of night, into a rough and shark-infested sea. Rough water had no terrors for Eileen Sedgwick, but sharks were a new experience. Needless to say, she performed the hazardous feat herself, and it was marked by the same spirit of courage and daring which is so characteristic of this girl's screen work. This thrilling fifth episode of "The Diamond Queen" will be seen at the .... Theatre on ....

EILEEN SEDGWICK ENDANGERS LIFE FOR FILM THRILL

(Use before Episode 6)

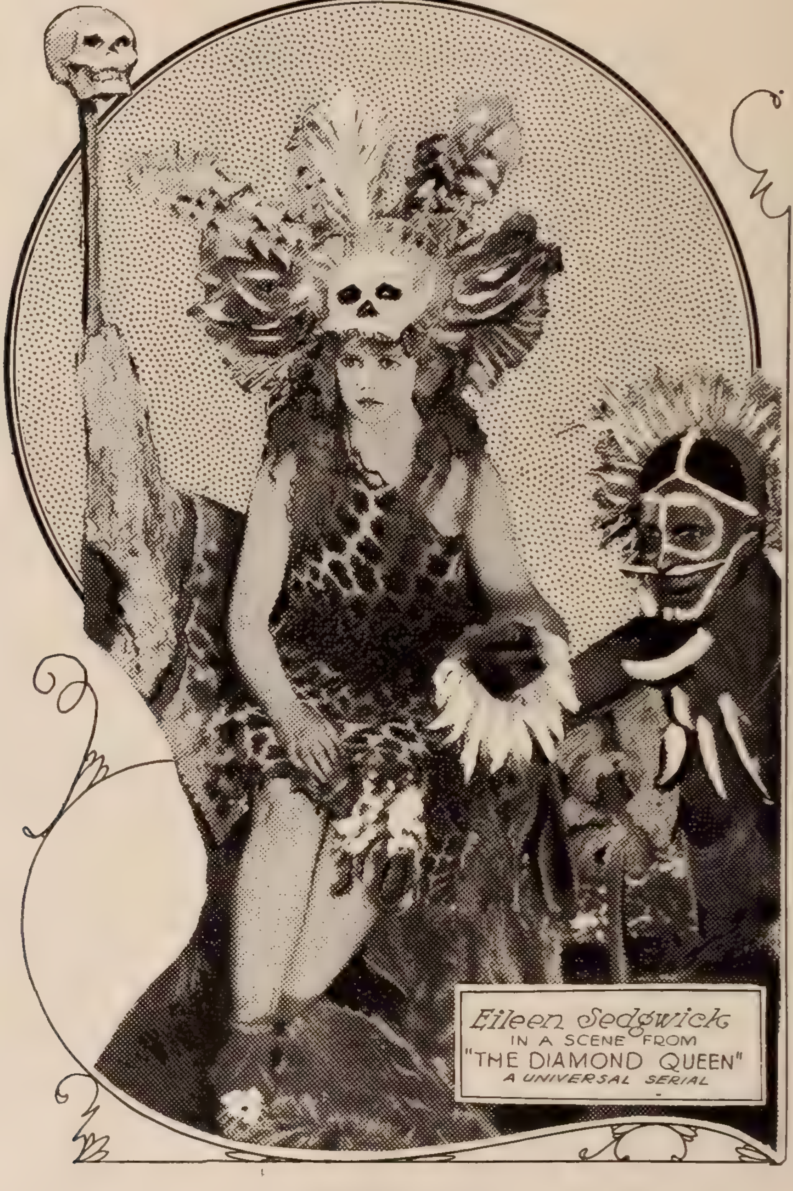
Motor stunts mean nothing in the life of Eileen Sedgwick, adorable star of "The Diamond Queen," the big Universal serial. She has performed them too many times to be excited about them. What to most folks looks like peril itself, is to her a mere matter of "all in the day's work." In the sixth episode of "The Diamond Queen," she has to leap from one high-speeding automobile to another. To misjudge time by as small a measure as an eighth of a second, would mean injury and possibly death, but Eileen Sedgwick, who has fallen from tall buildings, and risked her life in fires and in dangerous waters, has no sense of fear. It is a pleasure to watch the easy confidence with which this girl-wonder performs feats which many an iron-nerved man would approach with temerity. The sixth episode of "The Diamond Queen," in which this perilous automobile leap is so deftly accomplished, will be shown at the .... Theatre on ....



Eileen Sedgwick
IN A SCENE FROM
"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 7
Scene from third episode

MORE SPECIAL STORIES

Eileen Sedgwick
IN A SCENE FROM
"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 8
Scene from fourth episode

DANGER LOVING GIRL SCOFFS AT "DOUBLES"

IT has been said that every one in the world has some one who looks exactly like them, but Eileen Sedgwick, the Universal Serial star, would seem to be the exception that proves the rule.

Eileen Sedgwick is called by theatregoers, "The girl without a double." She is to be seen here .... at the .... Theater, in "The Diamond Queen," a new Universal thriller.

Not only have picture producers failed to find a girl whose unique type of beauty parallels that of Miss Sedgwick's, but they have been unable to find a girl who will chance the physical risks she takes in the hazardous production of Universal serials.

When Miss Sedgwick was starred in "The Great Radium Mystery" it was thought that the height of daring had been reached; but the star surpasses that record in her forthcoming serial, "The Diamond Queen."

Working absolutely without a "double" and not availing herself of "trick" photography to cover up a hesitancy to risk her life, Miss Sedgwick does hair-raising feats of skill and daring throughout the entire eighteen episodes.

Eileen Sedgwick started her dramatic career as the baby member of the famous "Five Sedgwicks," an independent dramatic company, which toured the country and made an enviable reputation for her father, mother, brother and sister Josie.

Eileen, Josie and Edward, the brother, all of whom took up picture work several years ago, have made a notable success. Eileen is regarded as the foremost serial star of the screen; Edward is a successful director, while Josie also has attained popularity as a photoplayer.

"The Diamond Queen" is a brilliant adaptation, by George F. Pyper and Robert W. Roden, of the popular novel by Jacques Futrelle, "The Diamond Master." It was produced for Universal by Edward Kull.

Germans Claim Method of Making Diamonds

Synthetic Gems A Fact

RECENT reports from Germany indicate that German chemists have perfected a method of manufacturing diamonds and that the manufactured product compares favorably with the natural stones.

Diamond interests in America plucked up their ears at this startling news. It may mean a complete revolution in the diamond industry. Investigations were immediately set on foot and considerable information was collected. It was verified that many diamonds of good size had already been perfected by the process and that the cost of production, although considerable, was small enough to permit the manufactured diamonds being sold at a price lower than the present price for the mined stones.

The makers of serial pictures for Universal, on the lookout for new and strange doings to incorporate into chapter-plays, received the announcement of the new discovery with the keen interest. Edward Kull, director of "The Diamond Queen," a new serial starring Eileen Sedgwick, put himself in possession of the principal facts and as a result, the chemical manufacture of diamonds plays a prominent part in the story of the serial; in fact it is upon this that the outcome of the action rests to a considerable extent. An unusual and fascinating machine, large and intricate in structure, and said to be an exact reproduction of the German machine, was introduced into many of the scenes, with the aid of which the complicated process of manufacturing diamonds is accomplished.

Eileen Sedgwick
IN A SCENE FROM "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 9
Scene from later episode

This new and novel process is but one of the many fascinating features that are woven into the exciting and thrilling story of "The Diamond Queen," which is to be shown at the .... Theatre, beginning next ....

Eileen Sedgwick
IN A SCENE FROM "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 10
Scene from second episode

Eileen Sedgwick IN A SCENE FROM "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Publicity Cut No. 11
Scene from third episode

Eileen Sedgwick's Own Story

Eileen Sedgwick
UNIVERSAL SERIALS

Publicity Cut No. 12

Pretty Film Star Tells Life History

WHY I AM IN THE MOVIES

By EILEEN SEDGWICK
Universal Screen Star

MY entrance into the realm of film drama was premeditated and perpetrated with malice aforethought—by my father.

As the baby member of "The Five Sedgwicks," a dramatic stock company which included my mother, father, brother and sister, I was doing the role of "Fritz" with my sister as "Hans" in a Katzenjammer act when our route led us into Southern California.

The motion picture industry was just getting well started and like the true pioneer, Ned Sedgwick, my father, decided to give his children every opportunity to become familiar with the new dramatic art.

At the conclusion of our tour we remained in Los Angeles. I was then fourteen years old and was given an important role in "The Isle of Life," a Universal picture being produced in Mexico. I seemed to have made a good impression, both with the public and the Universal officials. I was offered a regular position with Universal.

While my sister Josie was becoming popular as a player, and my brother Ed was starting upon his career as a director, I continued to learn the screen game and was soon cast in starring roles for Universal serials.

I had just completed "The Great Radium Mystery" at Universal City when Edward Kull selected me for the leading role in "The Diamond Queen" the serial based upon Jacques Futrelle's "The Diamond Master. Of all the pictures in which I ever played "The Diamond Queen" appeals to me the most. It is an interesting tale with a series of the thrilling feats which make motion picture work so different from the stage.

"The Diamond Queen" is to be shown at the . . .. Theatre beginning ....

Interesting Information About Eileen Sedgwick

AGE—21.
BIRTHPLACE—Galveston, Texas.
COMPLEXION—Fair.
HEIGHT—5 feet, 3 inches.
WEIGHT—120 pounds.
COLOR OF EYES—Gray green.
COLOR OF HAIR—Blonde.
DIVERSIONS—Knitting and motoring.
NICKNAME—"Babe."
FAVORITE AUTHOR—O. Henry.
FAVORITE SPORTS — Riding swimming, dancing.
MOST AMUSING INCIDENT—Working with lions and tigers.
REASON FOR BEING IN MOVIES—To keep eating regularly.

EXHIBITORS:

IF you put over a good exploitation stunt, if you have an unusual lobby display, or if you have an attractive stage picture in connection with this picture, have good photographs taken of the scene. Send them to the Exploitation Department, Universal Film Manufacturing Company, 1600 Broadway, New York City. They will be used in advertising and in trade paper layouts. It will mean prestige for you and for your theatre. Accompany the photos with a letter telling how you worked the stunt. Be sure to give your name and the name of your theatre.

EXPLOITATION HINTS

Put the first episode of "The Diamond Queen" over and you will be absolutely assured of packed houses on the play-dates of the succeeding episodes. The first episode is run of thrills, and each following episode is better—more and more gripping as the story unfolds.

There are numerous ways you can arouse interest in the serial, prior to your showing of the first episode. Don't fail to give the serial extensive advance publicity. For this purpose you will find a varied assortment of stories of all lengths and the most complete assortment of publicity cuts ever put out with a Universal serial, including striking scene cuts for use preceding several episodes after the first one.

TIE-UPS FOR WINDOW DISPLAYS

There are several stunts you can arrange to stir up interest in "The Diamond Queen." The story deals with a young woman who is fighting the Diamond Trust, and whose grandfather has invented a wonderful machine which will make diamonds as good as natural ones. Tie-up with jewelry or novelty stores and plant window displays of quantities of imitation diamonds, accompanied by a card explaining how science has duplicated real diamonds so that only an expert can tell the difference, and how such a diamond-making machine is shown in "The Diamond Queen," in full operation.

You might get one of the community's high-class jewelers to give you a display, showing the difference between real and manufactured gems, with a still showing the diamond machine used in this serial.

A NOVEL MOVING DISPLAY

Since two of the early episodes of "The Diamond Queen" takes place in the African jungles, near the Kimberly diamon fields, you can get much colorful exploitation, by the use of jungle, cannibal and animal stuff in your pre-showing advertising.

Dress up a truck or a wagon with jungle foliage. Put a couple of negroes on the truck, dressed in skins, painted ferociously, and armed with spears and shields. Have a white girl, preferably a striking blonde, dressed in a leopard skin, also on the truck. You have two tableaux suitable for this float. In one you can have the cannibals threatening the girl with their spears. For the other, put the girl on a sort of jungle throne and have the blacks bowing down before her. Eileen Sedgwick is captured by cannibals in the serial, and then made queen of the tribe. Stuffed wild animals can also be used on this float.

A STUNT WITH A THRILL

Here is a stunt which you may be able to put across, and which is the big thrill of the first episode. In the picture, Miss Sedgwick is pursued by hirelings of the Diamond Trust. She flees through a tall office building, and being trapped in a room on one of the upper floors, tries to escape across a plank leading from the window to a window in a near-by building. She is seen crossing the plank, high above the street. The plank breaks and she falls as the episode comes to an end.

Get a steeplejack or a sign painter not afraid of height. You may be able to find some place in your city where a stout plank or scaffold can be fixed, several stories up, between two buildings, and plainly visible from the street. Dress your man in women's clothing and have him cross the plank during the noon hour or when the greatest crowds are on the street. He can act as though he were pursued and make a lot of false starts, register fear and all that sort of stuff. As a climax, he can fake a fall just as he reaches the other window, and in so doing, drop a bunch of heralds, advertising the initial showing of the serial.

THIS WILL GET THEM

Here is one of the best serial exploitation stunts you can use:

Announce that on the opening night of the serial, a flashlight picture will be taken of the audience and that twenty (or any other number) of the faces shown in this picture will be enlarged and shown on the screen (by slide) during the showing of the second episode. Those persons whose faces thus appear on the screen will get season tickets for the entire run of the serial.

LOBBY DISPLAYS

Don't fail to arrange a good colorful lobby display for the opening of this serial in your theatre. You have unlimited angles from which to chose.

The easiest is a jungle front, with palms and other foliage. A big pot slung from a tripod, and other cannibal house-furniture, such as spears, shields, etc., can be added. Into this setting place a good cut-out of Eileen Sedgwick, in a leopard skin, to be found in one of the three sheets issued for this serial. Stuffed animals, especial a lion or a tiger if you can get them, will add greatly to your jungle lobby.

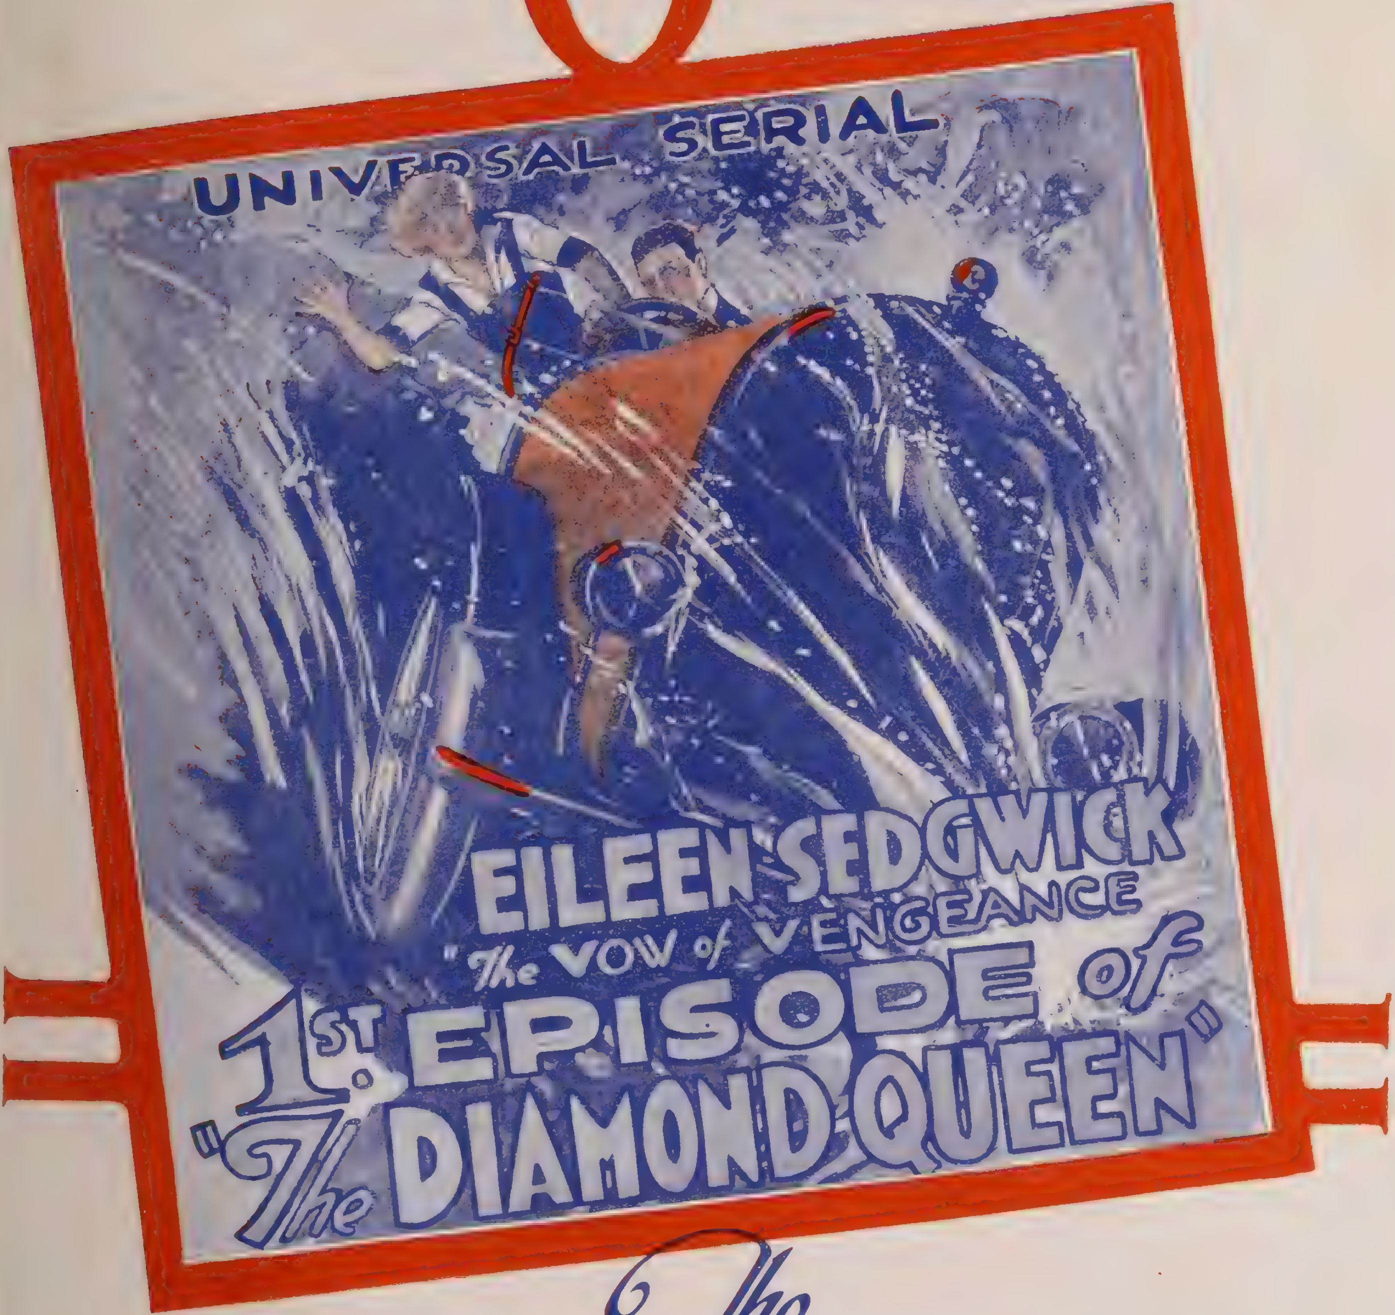
Another likely lobby decoration can be made by reproducing the diamond-making machine shown in the stills. You can get an excellent picture of this machine from the nearest Universal exchange. Reproduce it in your lobby with canvas and wooden frame-work. Make it more realistic by installing a small spark coil and a Geissler tube, which can be flashed off and on, giving the weird effect common to those electrical toys. You can produce the necessary apparatus from any electrical supply house.

Good-bye – and Merry Christmas!

BEFORE I go I'd like just a word with you, dear exhibitor-friends. Being a woman—and, modestly, being considered by some a beautiful woman—I know I am not supposed to possess any great amount of gray matter. But I do know a good serial when I see one, and I'm ready to stake my reputation—which means my livelihood—that "The Diamond Queen" is going to prove one of the biggest money-makers in your career. You can take my word for it that this serial has everything in it that the fans ever told me they wanted—and then some! And so—here's to the most prosperous year you've ever had. Take my friendly tip and start it off right with "The Diamond Queen."

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Episode 6 SHEET



UNIVERSAL SERIAL
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The VOW of VENGEANCE"
1st EPISODE of
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

The Thrill-a-minute Serial of Sky, Sea and Land

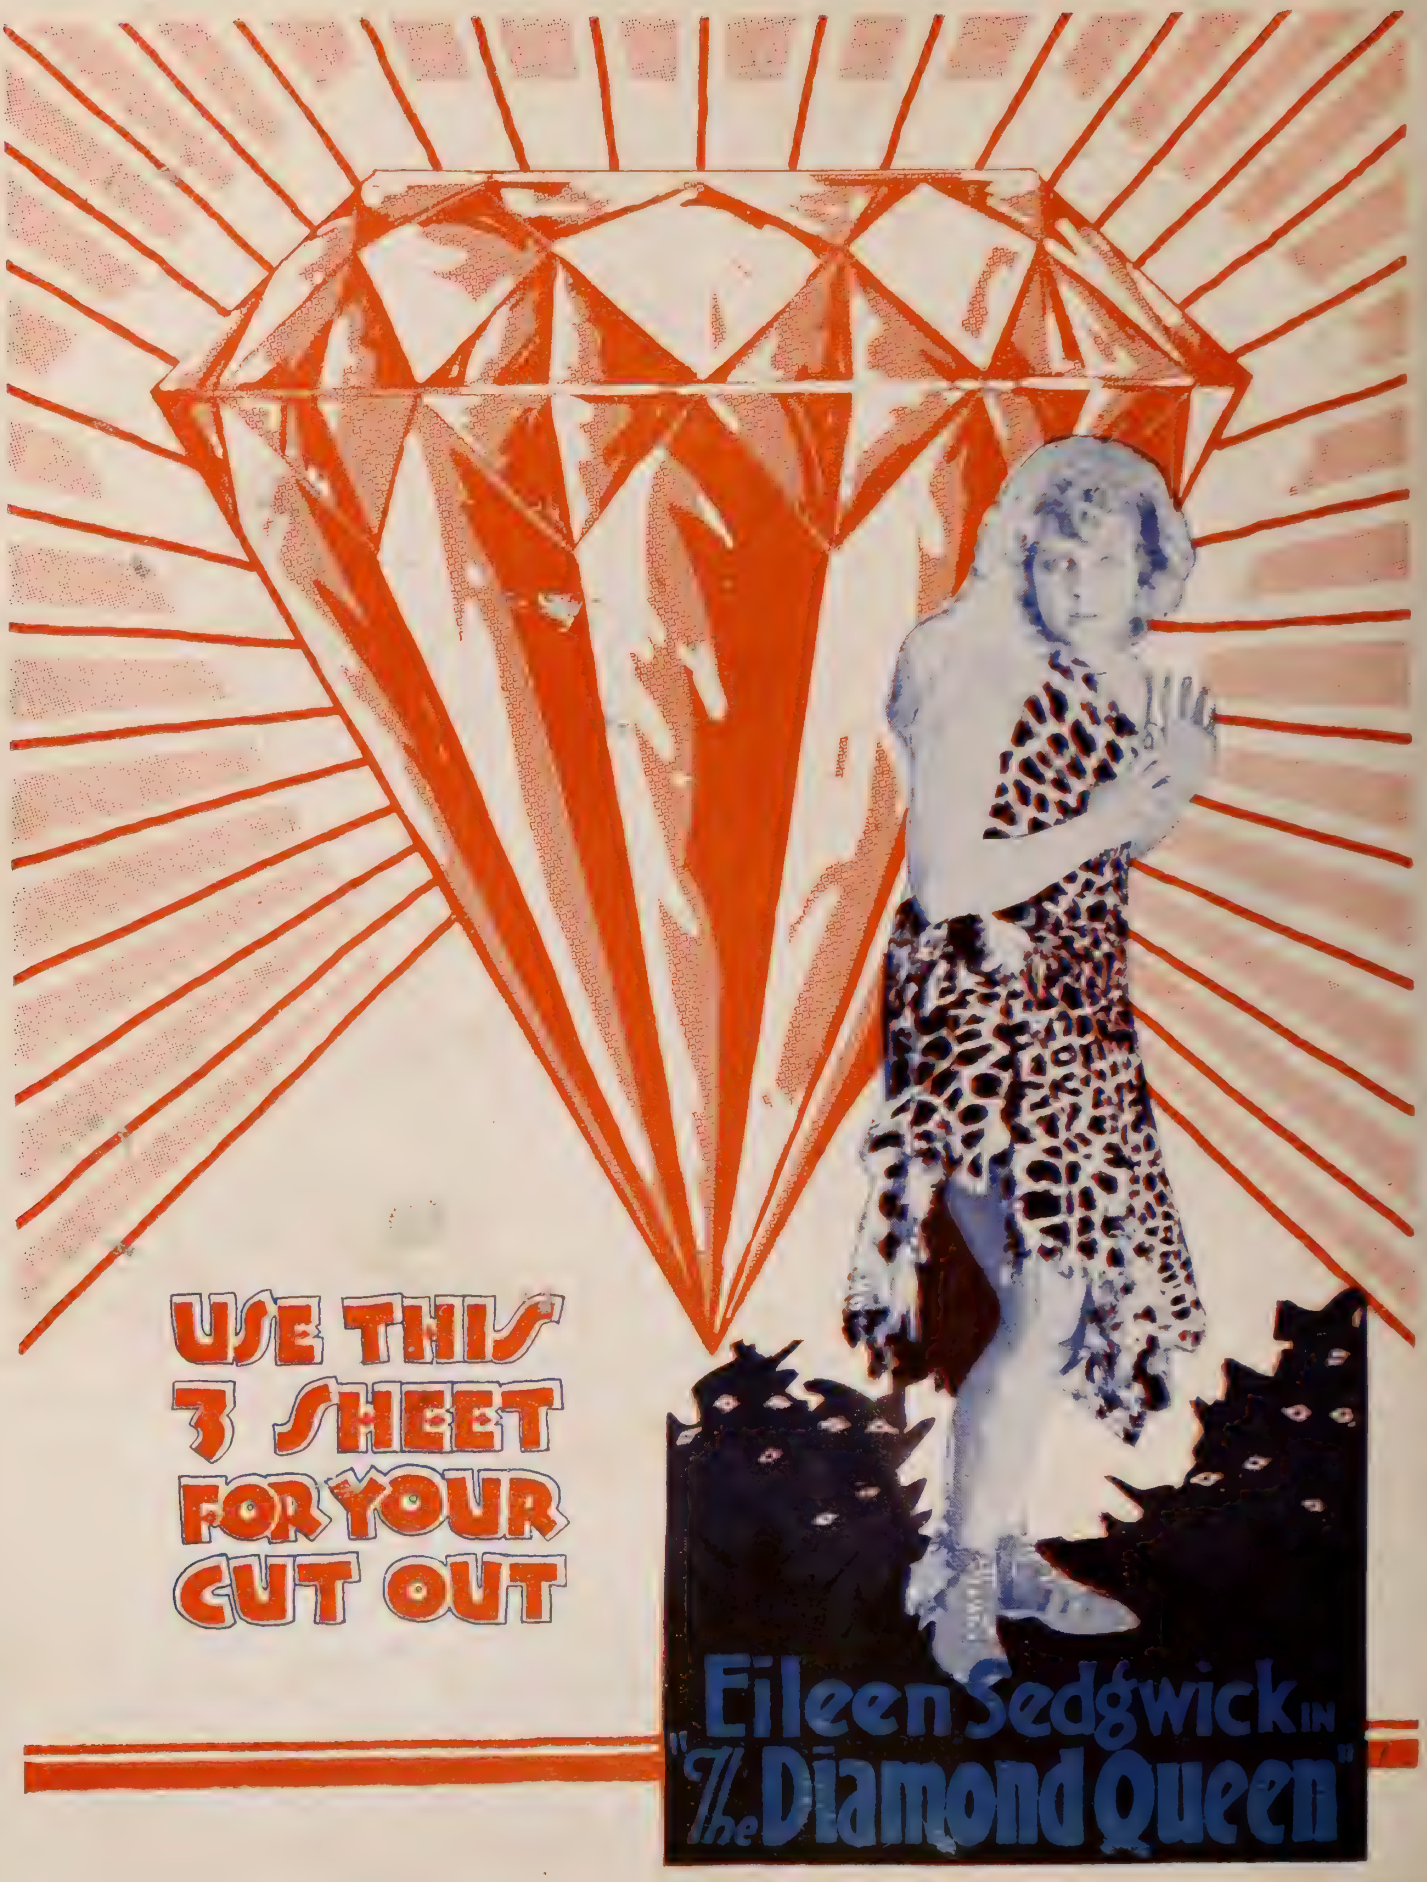
UNIVERSAL



USE THIS
3 SHEET
FOR YOUR CUT OUT
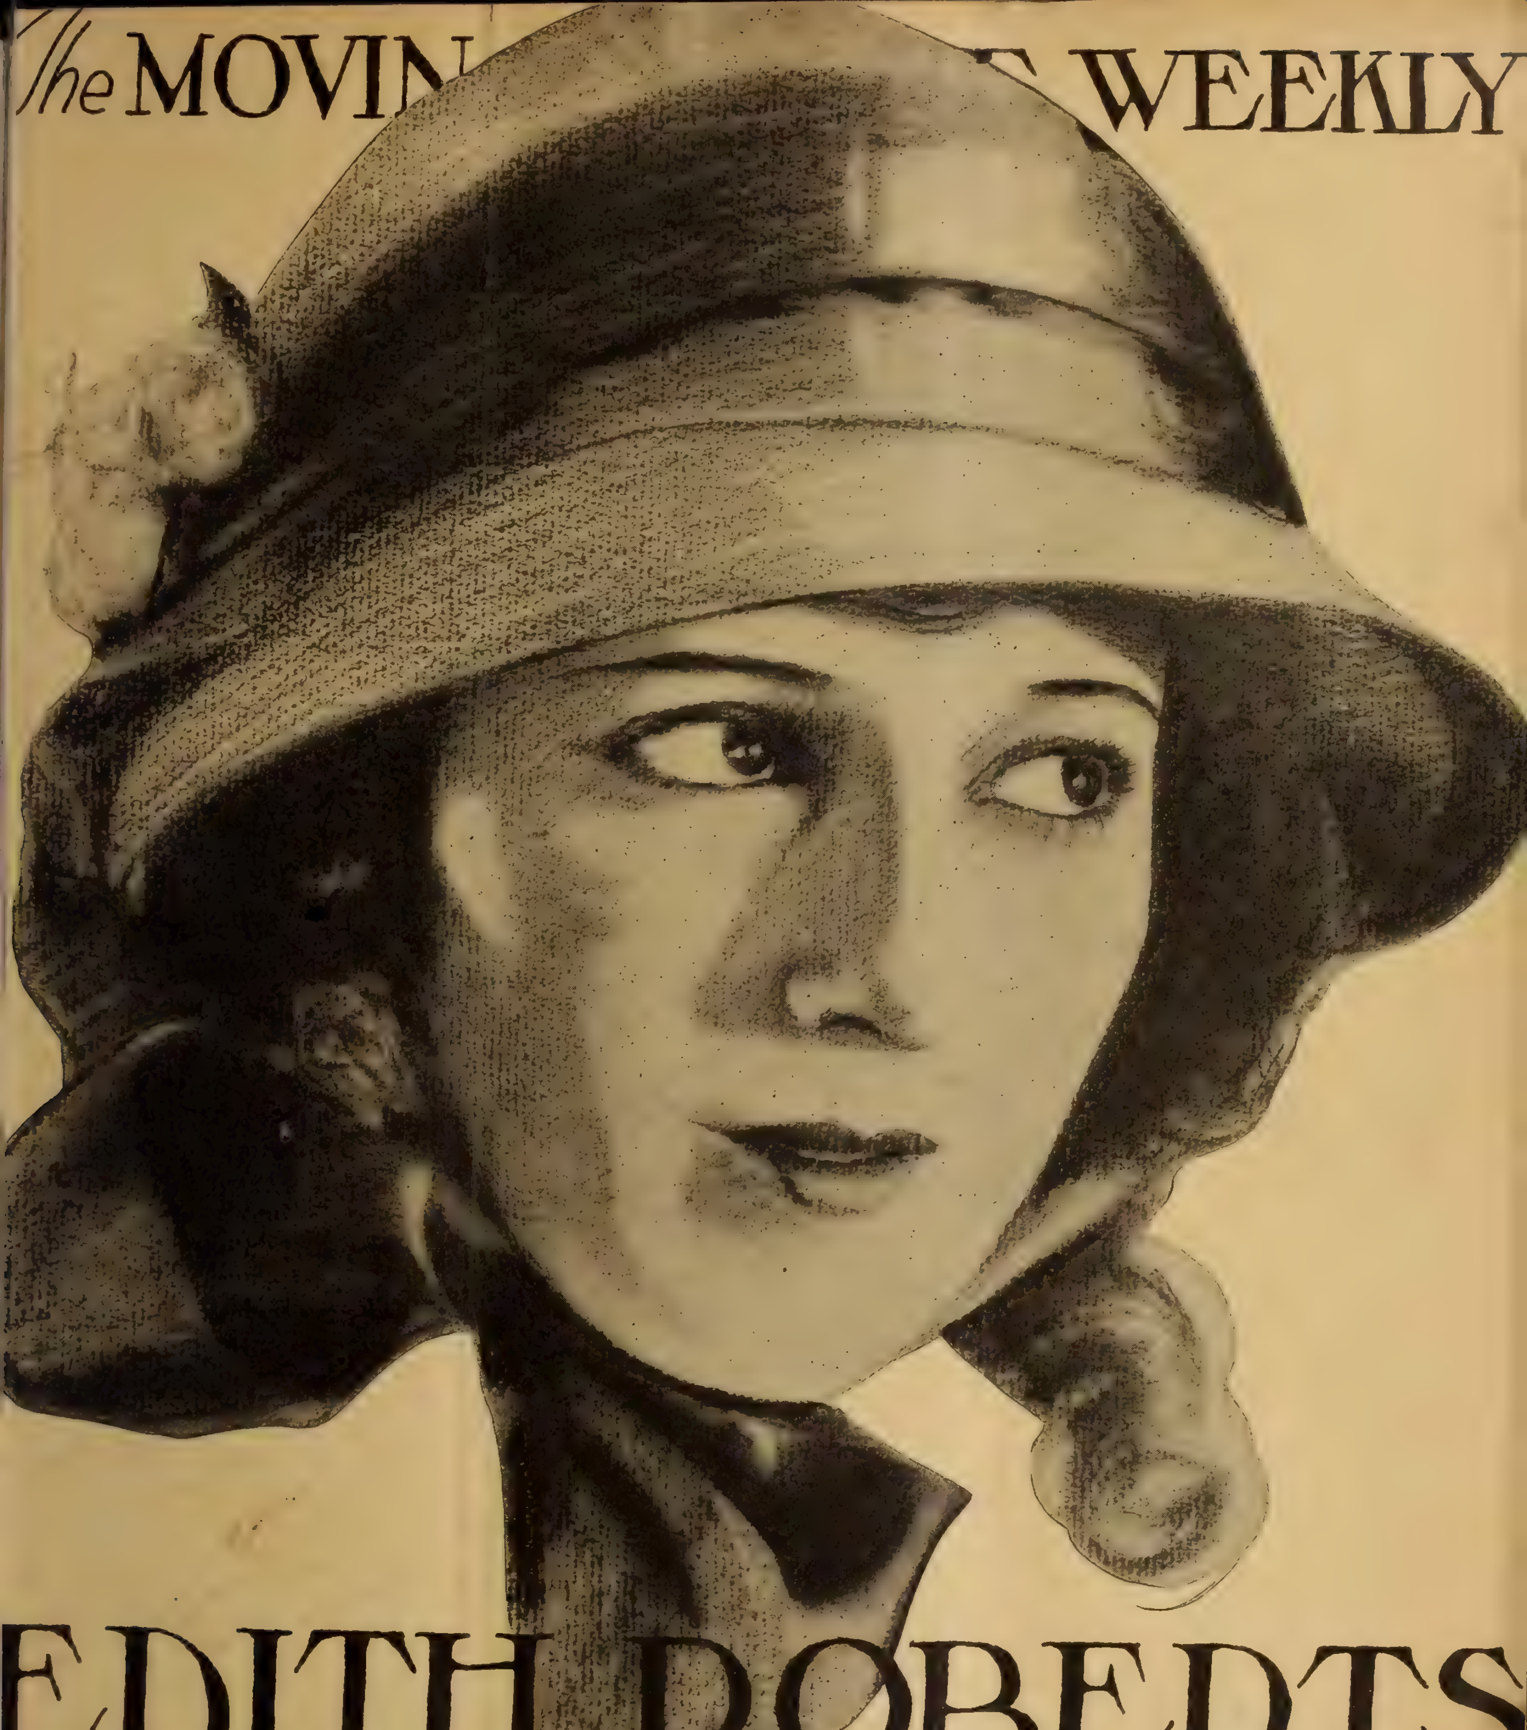
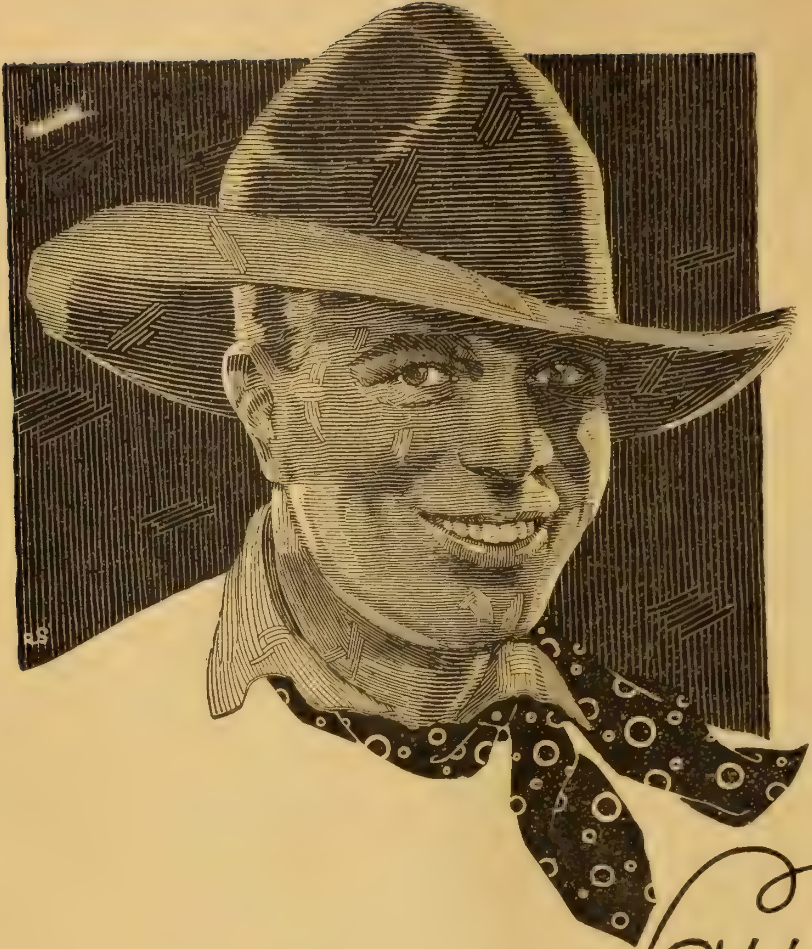
Eileen Sedgwick IN
"The Diamond Queen"

The MOVIN E WEEKLY



EDITH ROBERTS
IN
"WHITE YOUTH"

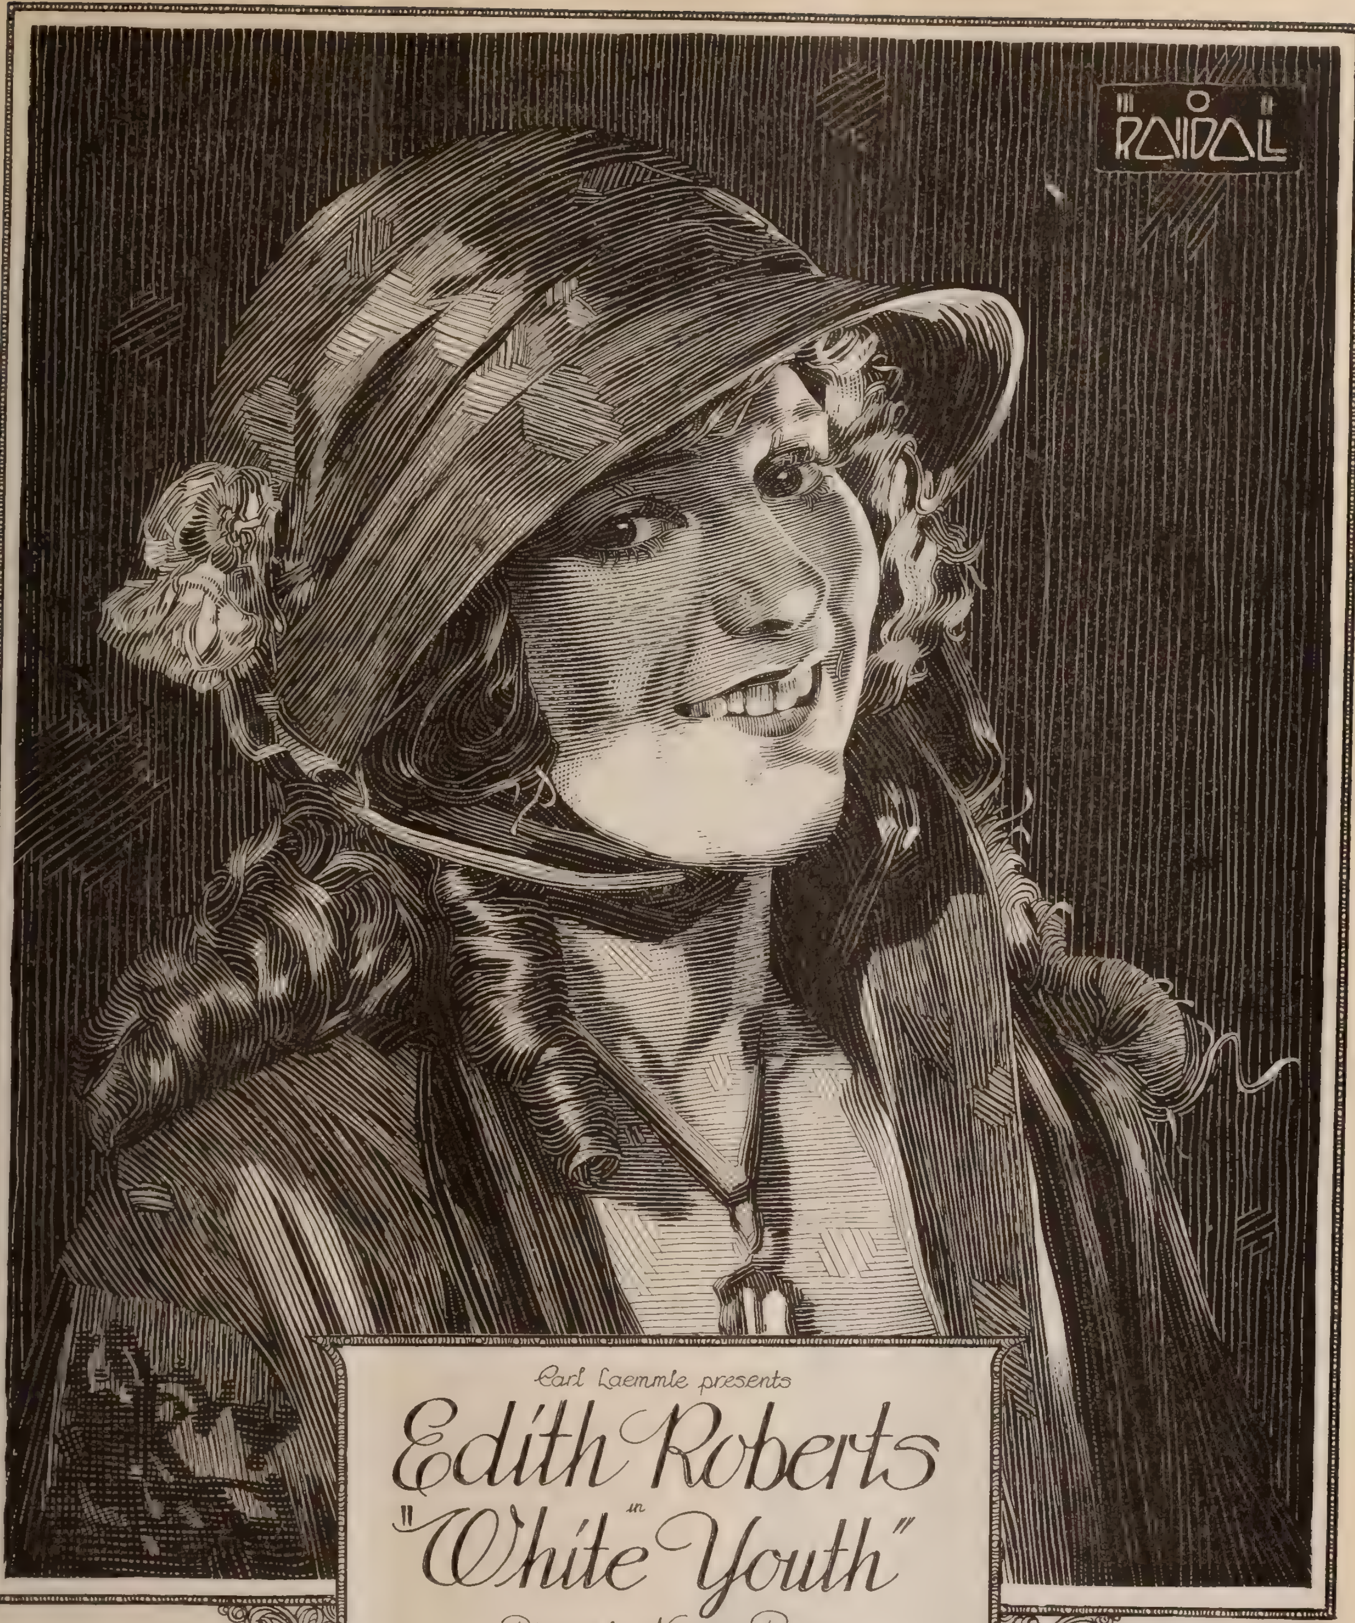
VOL 12 DEC 11. 1920 NO 17.



Have you noticed how all the girlies are falling for Hoot Gibson? He certainly does seem to have all of the fair sex roped and tied with that ready grin and ready wallop of his. This boy will stand watching, Mr. Exhibitor, for if he continues to gain in popularity at his present rate of speed he'll soon be compelled to hire a couple of motor trucks to carry his daily letters from female admirers, and when a star gets to that point it's time to make sure he has a regular place on your program. Have you booked any of Hoot Gibson's actionful two-reel Westerns yet? If you haven't you're passing up a series of short subjects that outshine in quality many of the so-called features of the day. Look into this proposition—NOW.

All the Girls love
HOOT GIBSON

Your newspaper engraver can reproduce any part of this ad, in any size you want, right from this page.



Carl Laemmle presents

Edith Roberts

in

"White Youth"

Directed by Norman Dawn

52 UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS 52

Good Pictures a Year

Carl Laemmle
presents

FRANK MAYO

in

"HONOR BOUND"

Written and directed by Jacques Jaccard

M. P. NEWS Says:

"'HONOR BOUND' is one of the best prouctions Frank Mayo has ever produced for Universal. The story has romance, heart interest and dramatic moments. Attention to detail is another important factor in this feature. In the latter scenes Frank Mayo does some of the best acting of his career. The star is supported by a strong cast."

WID Says:

"Working with a capable cast and original story, Jacques Jaccard has turned out a production that is excellent in atmosphere and holds attention in fine style. You can promise your patrons a meritorious production. Frank Mayo should be played up, this being one of his best vehicles in quite some time."

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS
52 Good Pictures a Year 52

Service Page for Edith Roberts in "White Youth"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"White Youth."

STAR—Editth Roberts.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Lasca," "The Triflers," "Her Five Foot Highness," "The Adorable Savage," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Norman Dawn.

STORY BY—Clara Beranger and Forrest Halsey.

SCENARIO BY—George C. Hull.

SUPPORTING CAST—Thomas Jefferson, Alfred Hollingsworth, Arnold Gregg, Hattie Peters, Baldy Belmont, Phyllis Allen, Alida B. Jones, Gertrude Pedlar.

LOCALE—A French Parish in Louisiana.

TIME—The Present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a little convent girl who rebels against the iron home rule of a past generation; who sets her own standards for deportment and love and who employs the eighteenth amendment as an ally in her quest of romance and happiness.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The ever increasing popularity of the star and the fact that this is her first picture since "The Adorable Savage."

2—The fact that the picture was directed by Norman Dawn, who produced Edith Roberts' two biggest successes, "Lasca" and "The Adorable Savage."

3—The novelty of the story and its authorship by Clara Beranger and Forrest Halsey, two of the foremost writers for the magazines, screen and stage.

4—The presence in the case of Thomas Jefferson, sterling character actor and son of the late Joseph Jefferson.

5—The fact that the scenes of the story are laid in the picturesque French Creole section of Louisiana.

6—Hattie Peters and Sam Kennella, two of the most talented colored players in the films, have amusing roles.

7—The interesting part the prohibition law plays in the development of the story.

8—The many beautiful costumes worn by Miss Roberts—both quaint and ultra-modern.

9—The fact that many of the picturesque scenes were filmed in New Orleans and rural Louisiana.

10.—The presence in the cast of Arnold Gregg, youngest leading man on the screen.

CAST

General Belame	Alfred Hollingsworth
Aline Ann Belame	Edith Roberts
Francois Cayetane	Thomas Jefferson
Burton Striker	Arnold Gregg
Calalou	Hattie Peters
Butler	Lucas C. Luke
Pierre	Sam Kennella
Monseiur Le Morne	Baldy Belmont
Madame Le Morne	Phyllis Allen
Madame Martin	Alida B. Jones
Mother Superior	Gertrude Pedlar
Madame La Roche	Olga Mojean

THE STORY

FOR the first time in her nineteen years in the quiet cloisters of the ancient convent of Sacre Cœur orphaned Aline Ann Belame receives word from her grandfather.

"I have with the trouble infinite selected for you a husband," writes the Creole gentleman who lives in the chateau his fathers built 200 years before.

"Husband—pouff! They happen to almost everybody!" she laughs innocently, never dreaming that the husband selected for her is a dissipated old fop who has buried three wives. Her grandfather has never forgiven the marriage of his son and her mother. This is his revenge.

While General Gustave Raoul Belame is icy-hearted insofar as his only granddaughter is concerned, he has two inanimate possessions on which he lavishes all the love and affection that belonged by right to her. One of them is his wine cellar. The other is a wonderfully carved cigarette holder of amber, presented him by the Empress Eugenie in the days when he commanded a thousand sabres under Beauregard.

In the prohibition amendment the General sees a menace to his beloved cellar, and he has sent for a safe expert to install a mob-proof door. Little Miss Aline arrives at the chateau, meets the young safe-expert, Burton Striker, and thinks he is the husband chosen for her. She is disillusioned when withered old Monsieur Francois Cayetane comes to squabble with the general. He wants ten gallons of his prospective grandfather - in - law's Bourbon added to the dowry

"No woman alive is worth ten gallons of my Vieux Bourbon '92!" declares the general. But Cayetane glimpses the beautiful girl and signs the marriage contract anyhow. Young Striker indignantly refuses to be witness to a contract binding a girl to "a tottering wreck," and goes to the village for the night.

The next day he comes to show the general the new combination to the cellar, and Aline hides nearby and overhears it. Burt Striker has an opportunity to tell Aline he loves her, and tells her that in free America she has a right to marry whom she will. They slip off to a festival in the village and after dancing together she agrees to elope with him.

The innkeeper overhears them and sends word to the general. Burt is locked up in the garage and Aline dragged home. Then Cayetane sends word to release Burt, and oils up his pistols. No jury will convict him for shooting a prowler.

Aline's faithful mammy gets an inkling of the plot and warns her mistress, so just as Cayetane is ready to fire the fatal shot Aline snatches the general's precious cigarette holder and threatens to dash it to pieces if he fires.

That saves Burt, but Cayetane challenges him to duel for the hand of Aline. Burt is handy with his fists but unexpert with the pistol; he agrees, however, and the time is set for the following sunrise. Aline knows that Cayetane is dependent upon liquor for his nerve and changes the combination of the wine cellar.

When the time comes for the duel Cayetane is half-crazed for lack of liquor. Burt comes down smiling after a good night's rest. "Heavens!" screams the old beau, "he smiles —he must have had a drink! Force him to tell where he got it."

On the field of honor the word is given and Cayetane fires, his hand trembling wildly. The shot misses Burt but hits the general's precious holder. The gift of an empress is smashed into a thousand pieces. In rage the general drives his old friend away forever and Aline is free to wed Burt, "but without my blessing."

Then the ingenious couple tell him that no blessing—no cellar combination, and in the face of a forced drouth the general blesses them both and hands them a loving cup filled with buttermilk in which to pledge their troth.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Amendment eighteen proves the Ally of Love. See Edith Roberts in "White Youth."

It was black revenge for forbidden marriage, this mating of White Youth with withered age. See Edith Roberts' latest photoplay.

Two Women—and a Man who would not accept from one that which he longed to give the other

HARRY CAREY

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52
Good Pictures
a Year

SAYS The Morning Telegraph: "Harry Carey's work gets better in each picture. He has emerged from the conventional Western type and brings humor and intelligence to his pictures." To which the Moving Picture World adds: " 'West is West' is remarkable for its realistic detail in picturing life in a camp of the modern, up-to-date sort. . . . The story interest is strong and has been developed smoothly. . . . The general charm of the picture is in its finely photographed scenes and its authoritative presentation of a great mining property, both above and below ground."

"WEST IS WEST"

Directed by VAL PAUL from the Famous Novel by EUGENE M. RHODES

Publicity Stories for Edith Roberts in "White Youth"

DELIGHTFUL VEHICLE FOUND FOR DAINTY EDITH ROBERTS

IN five feet of bookshelf Dr. Charles W. Elliott offered the public a liberal education, and in five feet of dainty femininity Universal offers the moviegoers of the world a source of joyous entertainment.

The five-foot person in question is Edith Roberts, charming actress and comedienne, who has gradually forged ahead to the very front rank of cinema stars and who now boasts a following enjoyed by few players in the silent drama.

So careful is Universal in selecting stories for Miss Roberts that they prefer to have her idle rather than appear in a photoplay that does not do abundant justice to her rare talents. The little acrtess can be vivacious and fiery, sad or whimsical as the case may require, and she has a number of half-tone moods peculiarly her own. It has been four months since Miss Roberts was last seen on the screen, and she is sure to be welcomed in her latest production, "White Youth," in which she will appear at the ——— Theatre next ———.

Miss Roberts made her first public appearance on the stage as a child, appearing as one of the urchins in Joseph Jefferson's presentation of "Rip Van Winkle." At the age of six she was singing and dancing in vaudevillee. Several years of intensive schooling followed, and at thirteen she was back on the stage, this time contributing to the success of a musical comedy.

When Miss Roberts was fourteen years old she played several parts in motion picture productions in New York. She then came to California to become leading lady with Lyons and Moran in their comedies at Universal City. Dramatic parts soon followed, and for the past two years she has been starring in a series of highly successful features.

Norman Dawn, who directed Miss Roberts in "Lasca" and "The Adorable Savage," also produced "White Youth."

NEW ROBERTS FILM ENRICHED BY PRESENCE OF RARE ACTOR

A MOTION PICTURE director looking for a "type" would scarcely ever pick Alfred Hollingsworth for a part; yet he is considered one of the finest character players on the screen. He has just finished the role of the fire-eating General Belame, an old French Creole, in Edith Roberts' latest feature, "White Youth," coming to the ——— Theatre next ———.

Hollingsworth relates that years ago, when he was on the stage, he called at the office of Henry B. Harris to apply for a part in Robert Edeson's play, "Soldiers of Fortune." The casting manager looked him over and told him he was not the type for the part. They wanted a man with a more breezy personality. Four hours later he reappeared at the office with a fresh hair cut, a light checkered suit, a handkerchief end dangling from his outer breast pocket, a brown derby perched at a rakish angle and twirling a light bamboo stick. "You're just the man I've been looking for," announced the stage manager when he came in, and he was immediately engaged.

Alfred Hollingsworth played with such stage celebrities as Richard Mansfield, E. H. Sothern, Mrs. Leslie Carter and under such producers as David Belasco, Daniel Frohman and Klaw and Erlanger.

His role in "White Youth" is entirely original and, as portrayed by Hollingsworth, it may be called a creation. It is that of a stern old soldier who lives in a past generation and refuses to admit that the world has changed since he was young. He is Edith Roberts' grandfather in the story.

SON OF RENOWNED ACTOR IS MEMBER OF "WHITE YOUTH" CAST

ONE of the finest actors on the screen was engaged by Norman Dawn for one of the most difficult character roles ever written. The actor is Thomas Jefferson; the story is "White Youth," in which Edith Roberts is starring, and which will be seen at the ——— Theatre next ———; the role is that of Francois Cayetane, a dissolute old fop, a French Creole by birth, the survivor of three wives ,and, in his own estimation, the same gay Lothario at three score and ten that he was fifty years before.

Thomas Jefferson is the son of the late Joseph Jefferson, one of the finest actors the English-speaking stage has ever known. Thomas began his stage career in his father's companies at an early age and after the elder Jefferson passed away, he toured the country in the plays made famous by his beloved sire, such as "Rip Van Winkle," "Lend Me Five Shillings" and "The Rivals." He has also appeared in support of many of the leading Broadway stars.

About four years ago he decided to locate in Southern California and occasionally appear in the films if the part was sufficiently interesting. An interesting coincidence associated with his appearance in Edith Roberts' support in "White Youth" is the fact that Miss Roberts, as an infant, appeared as one of the children in his father's production of "Rip Van Winkle."

"WHITE YOUTH" IS FILLED WITH EXCELLENT ATMOSPHERE

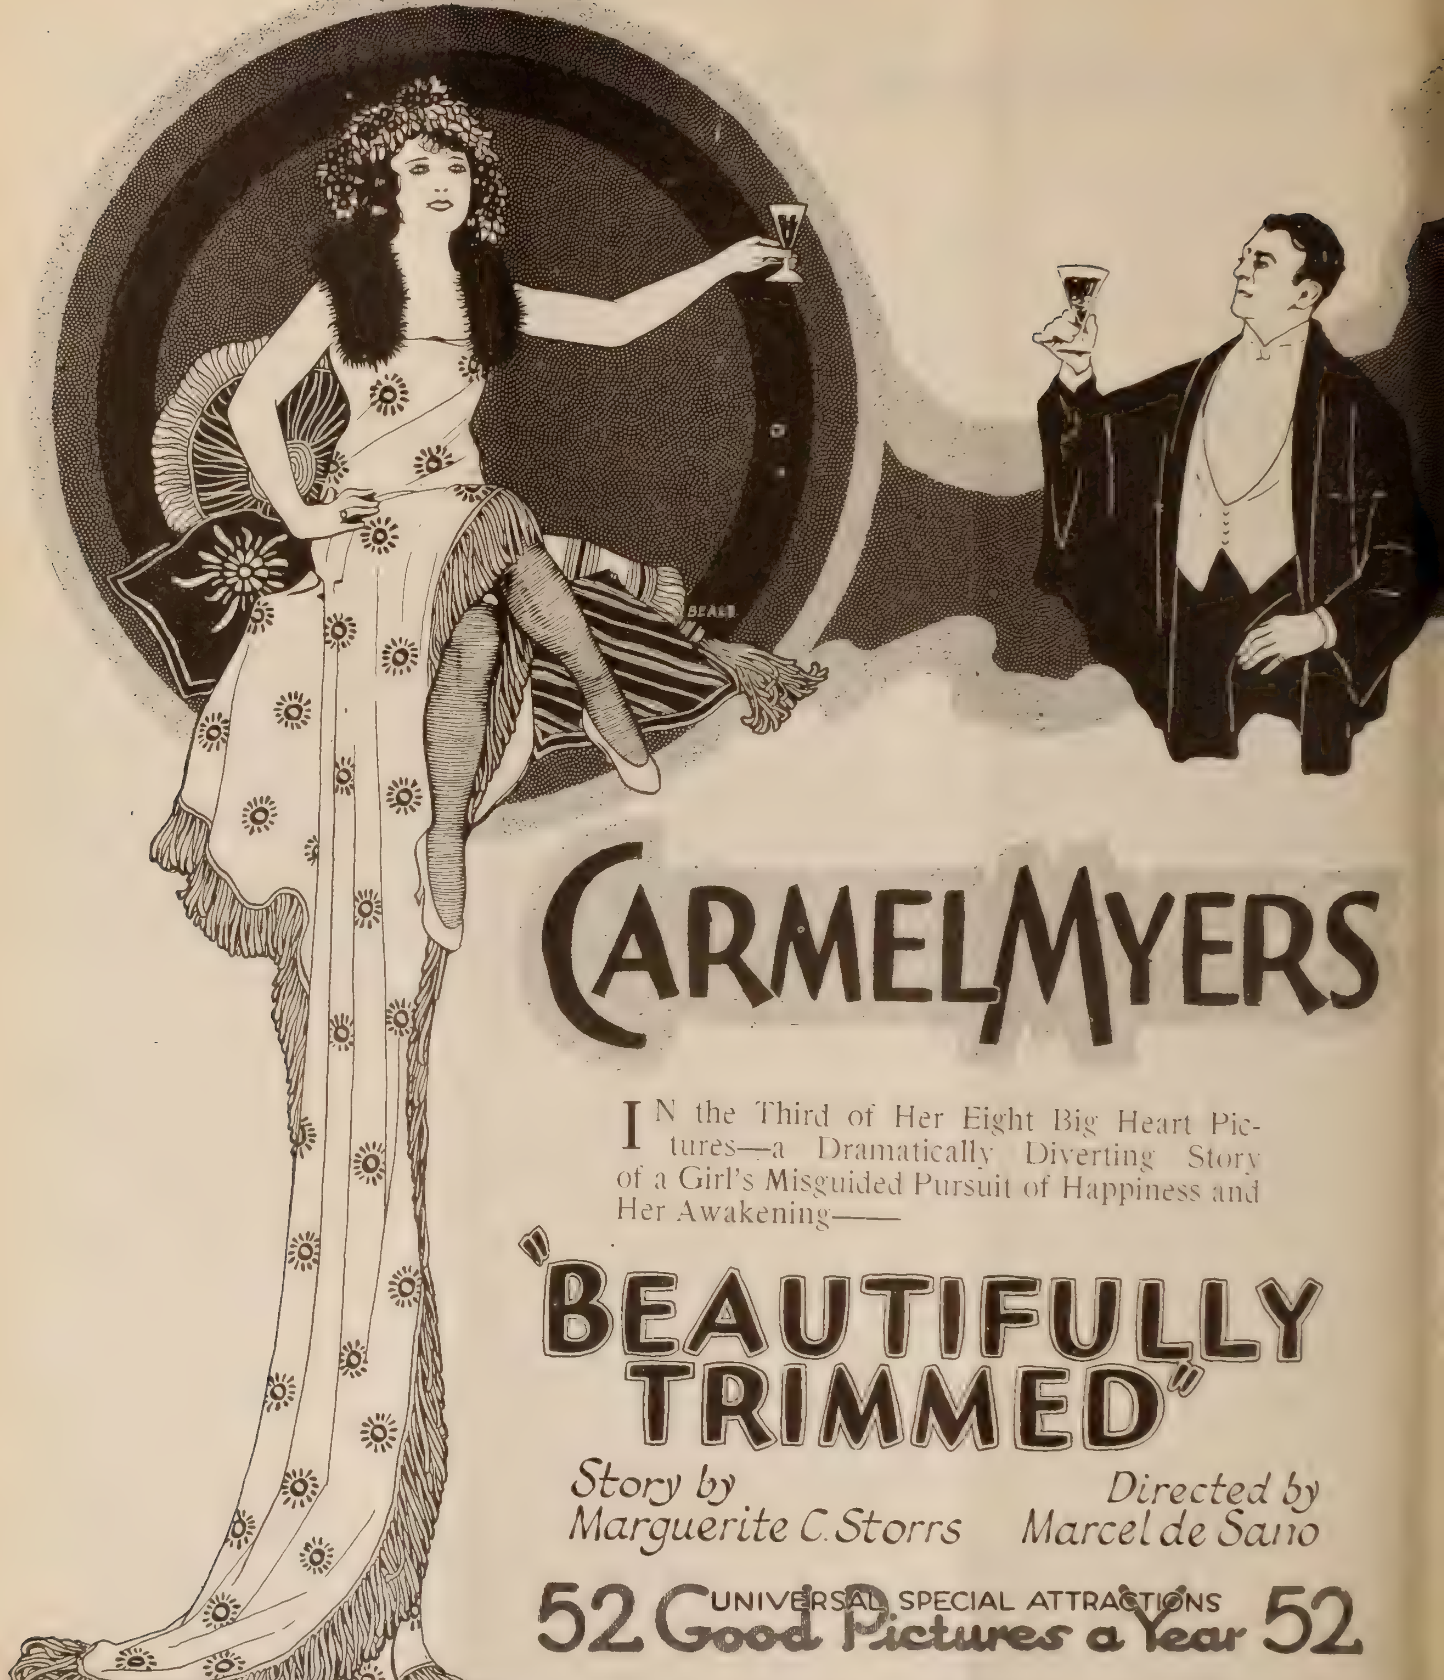
THERE are dozens of little touches and unusual incidents connected with the production of "White Youth," in which Edith Roberts is now appearing at the ——— Theatre, which mark this picture as a distinct novelty.

The locale may be set down as entirely different, the scenes being laid in old New Orleans and French Louisiana. Director Norman Dawn spent several weeks in that locality with a cameraman and technical director, gathering scenes and atmosphere for the production, and later reproducing these scenes at Universal city.

Some of the scenes of the story are laid in a huge wine cellar in which precious vintages had been stored for generations. It was necessary that the vault be lined with cobwebs and it was impossible to secure sufficient spider's web for the purpose. The technical department was put to work and in a few days Don Jarvis discovered a simple process for making artificial cobwebs which, even at close range, cannot be told from the real article.

It was necessary to reproduce a holy procession of the Feast of St. Ann on a set for "White Youth," renresenting the public square in a French Louisiana town. After considerable effort Norman Dawn persuaded two Catholic priests to act as his technical directors and to supervise the scene. They not only saw to it that every detail of the procession was faithfully carried out, but brought the complete set of sacred paraphernalia for the scene.

Two tons of Louisiana moss were used on the trees in one scene, and for the duel Dawn was able to pick up, while in New Orleans, a set of pistols that at one time belonged to General Winfield Scott.



CARMEL MYERS

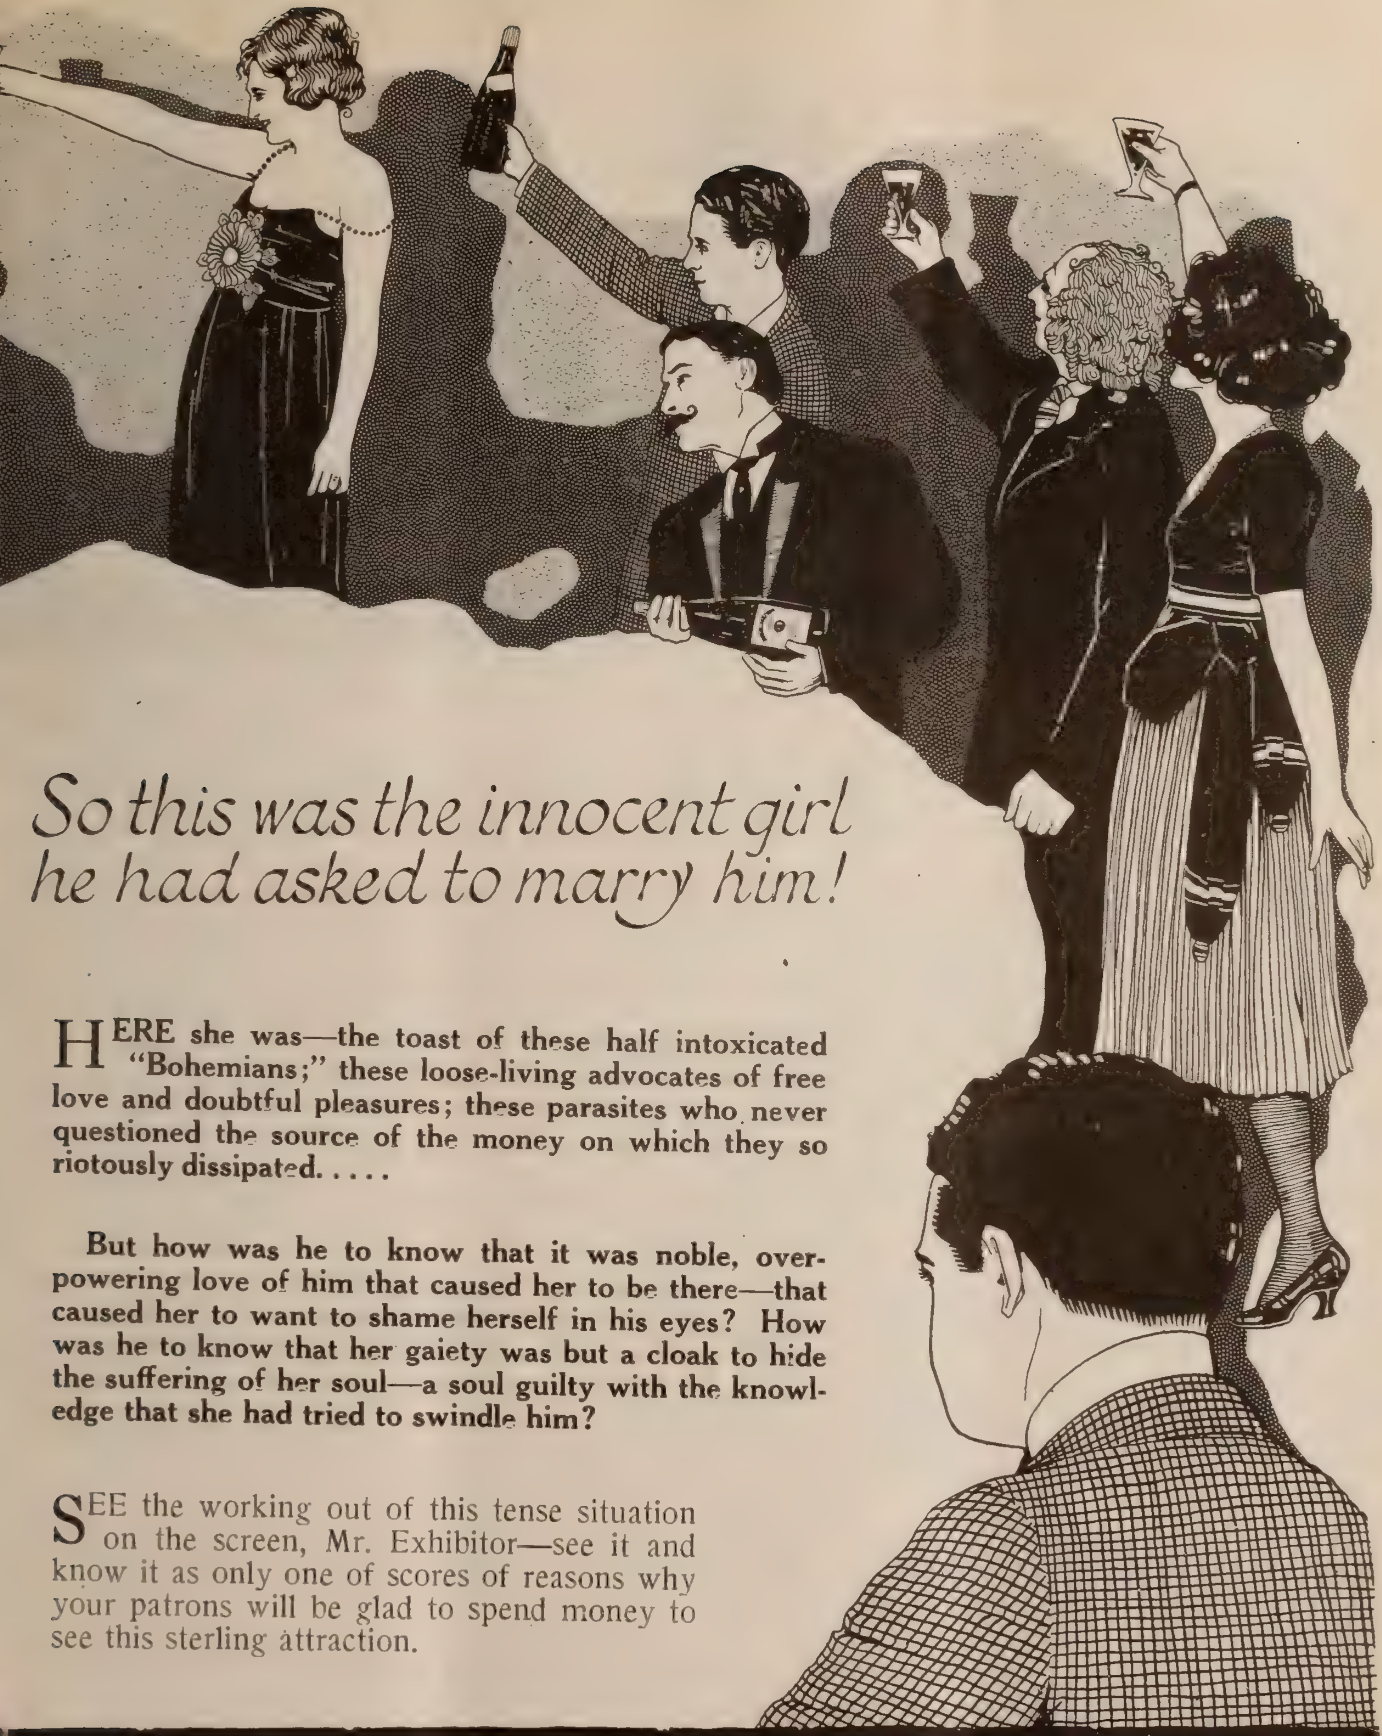
IN the Third of Her Eight Big Heart Pictures—a Dramatically Diverting Story of a Girl's Misguided Pursuit of Happiness and Her Awakening——

"BEAUTIFULLY TRIMMED"

Story by
Marguerite C. Storrs

Directed by
Marcel de Sano

52 UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS Good Pictures a Year 52



So this was the innocent girl he had asked to marry him!

HERE she was—the toast of these half intoxicated "Bohemians;" these loose-living advocates of free love and doubtful pleasures; these parasites who never questioned the source of the money on which they so riotously dissipated. . . . .

But how was he to know that it was noble, overpowering love of him that caused her to be there—that caused her to want to shame herself in his eyes? How was he to know that her gaiety was but a cloak to hide the suffering of her soul—a soul guilty with the knowledge that she had tried to swindle him?

SEE the working out of this tense situation on the screen, Mr. Exhibitor—see it and know it as only one of scores of reasons why your patrons will be glad to spend money to see this sterling attraction.

Gladys Walton disclosed the fact in "Risky Business" that she was a dancer of g experienced professional an

GLIMPSES OF GRACEF

THE wonder of Gladys Walton will never cease. For each new day seems to bring to light a new Gladys, who can do this thing or that thing which no one ever knew she could do.

When "Risky Business" was being filmed, the role of Philippa, played by Miss Walton, called for a daring dive from a yacht into the ocean. Gladys took that dive as cleanly and neatly as the most practised professional and she took it calmly.

But no one had the slightest idea that Gladys could dance—could dance so joyously and gracefully and with such skill and charm. Ever since the filming of "Risky Business," when Gladys was called upon to do an impudent little dance, in the most pert and adorable of costumes, with her pretty face hidden by a bewitching black satin mask (for Gladys as Philippa Renwick was an unbidden guest at the biggest ball of the season), it has been, "Oh, Gladys, give us a dance," whenever the band struck up. Gladys quite bewildered the dancing master who was coaching her for that particular dance in "Risky Business" by the quickness with which she learned each new step and the grace and ease with which she performed them.

But what was perhaps even more bewitching than that dance itself was the way in which Gladys wore the entrancing little Pierette costume that went with it and which is pictured above. For Gladys has a beautifully proportioned figure, the result, she claims, of lots of out-of-door exercise and a simple, healthful manner of living. Gladys does not believe in burning the midnight oil at cabarets and balls or dodging the sun in bed. She likes to swim when the season permits, or drive her motor-car, or ride her horse or hike. She is particularly keen on hiking and spent most of her vacation last summer on a tramp through the California woods with some of her friends.

Gladys Walton is certainly making good. She has registered an individual hit in every picture in which she has appeared. "Risky Business" did more than affirm the faith which Universal reposed in her talents, did more than stamp her as a capable actress—it stamped her as an individual actress with a personality and individuality all her own. She is vivacity personified, and what is more, she has plenty of brains. She knows how to make the most of each and every opportunity afforded her.

"La La Lucille," "The Secret Gift," "Pink Tights," "Risky Business"—that is some record for a seventeen year old! And even now "the powers that be" have their heads together and are providing this unspoiled girl with pictures fitted to her personality and worthy of her talents. It is to be hoped that she will get other chances to dance in these pictures, for it is in her dancing particularly that Gladys Walton best illustrates what she stands for—Spontaneity, Vivacity, Grace and the Spirit of Joyous Youth.

Inheriting the Sacred Cod and Boston Bean

BUT a stone's throw from Boston's sacred Common, within the shadow of the gilded dome of the Massachusetts State Capitol, and only a few blocks from the embankment of the historic Charles River, Gladys Walton first saw the light of day about seventeen years ago. Entering the world under such auspicious conditions, it might be imagined that when this girl, at the age of sixteen, became a film actress, she would apear in an Ibsen or a Sardou tragedy.

But the truth must be told and it is on record that charm and originality. In this picture she performs a dance worthy of the most is a delight to the eye.

JL GLADYS WALTON

Gladys made her first screen appearance in a Mack Sennett comedy. Miss Walton has been a physical culture fan ever since she was a child, swam in the waters around Boston Harbor as a child, and when the family moved to Seattle when she was nine years of age, little Gladys proved that she could be just as much at home in the waters of Puget Sound as on the waves of the Pacific.

Swimming has always been Miss Walton's hobby, and on a visit to an aunt in Los Angeles a little over a year ago she had an opportunity to appear as a diving girl in a comedy. The director noticed her unusual comeliness and intelligence and then gave her a small part. In less than three months she was ingenue in a popular comedy company, and in six months she was playing leads.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran personally picked Miss Walton as one of their two leading ladies in "La La Lucille." Her success was emphatic and since then she has risen to individual stardom by leaps and bounds.

Gladys Walton's Next Starring Vehicle

THE scenario department of Universal has prepared the next starring vehicle for Gladys Walton. This is a delightful little story of charm and romance now tentatively entitled "The Millionaire Kid," in which Gladys will be given another opportunity to prove her versatility in that she will be called upon to play a dual role—that of a child of the tenements and a daughter of wealth and luxury, both of whom, strange to say, bear a striking resemblance to each other. In some of the scenes, however, it will be impossible for Miss Walton to double up and the environs of the movie colony in California are even at this moment being scoured for a type of girlhood sufficiently like Gladys Walton to double up for her. But so individual is Miss Walton's particular style of beauty that this is practically an impossibility and unless something happens real soon, some new adjustments of plot will have to be made.

This picture will be the third starring vehicle of this excellent little actress who is one of the most notable movie "finds" of the year.

"Risky Business" Pays

"RISKY BUSINESS" is a picture that is going over big wherever it is being shown and the bookings on it are so numerous that the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, producers of the picture,feel themselves well repaid for the special attention and efforts concentrated on this production.

Although the production demands that that star of the picture, Gladys Walton, be constantly in the foreground, it is not a picture produced to suit the particular talents of a star, though in this instance the star does fit the picture like a glove. For, above all, "Risky Business" is a corking good story, full of excellent suspense, and more than one big thrill, and its interest is remarkably well sustained. It is from the pen of those excellent and prolific writers, John Colton and Douglas Doty.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 12 DECEMBER 11, 1920. No. 17

EDITORIALS

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN," Dorothy Phillips' latest Universal-Jewel production, was hailed with enthusiasm in Baltimore, the popular star's home town, where the picture was presented at an invitation showing in the New Theatre recently.

Almost every exhibitor in the Baltimore terrritory was present. Leading citizens of Baltimore and others prominent in the business and social worlds of Maryland's metropolis were present.

The presentation was notable by the fact that the guests of honor were members of Miss Phillips' family, including her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Strible, her sister Miss Genevieve Strible, and her little daughter, Mary Holubar. Mr. Allen Holubar, the husband of the star, was the director of the picture.

Jules Levy, manager of the Washington Branch of the Interstate Film Co., Inc., distributors of Universal pictures, arranged the presentation. The twenty piece orchestra of the New Theatre, led by Professor Cupero, a well-known Baltimore musician, supplied the musical background for the picture, which is the screen version of the life of a prima donna. The presentation was further enhanced by a series of songs rendered by Miss Edith Richard, a local musical celebrity.

Dorothy Phillips pictures always have been popular with Baltimore audiences. Miss Phillips began her public career as a member of the Fawcett Stock Company, a Baltimore institution of several years ago. Her husband and director also is a native of Baltimore. "Once To Every Woman," however, reached a high-water mark in popular esteem. The audiences applauded for ten minutes after the screening.

E. J. Smith, sales manager of Universal's Atlantic Division, who was present at the New Theatre with his wife, announced that after the showing he is convinced Universal will have better success with "Once To Every Woman" than with any other Universal-Jewel heretofore released.

"It strikes that popular heart-appeal which makes a picture great—which leaves a lasting impression upon those who see it and makes them remember its heroine as they remember the heroine of a masterful novel or a powerful play," explained Smith, in support of his judgment.

ELECTION night along the Canal Zone was one riot of moving pictures. In almost all of the canal club houses, in the Y. M. C. A. and Army clubs, elaborate entertainments, built around various feature productions, were held in connection with election returns. In Balboa the interest was heightened by a mock election staged around a local matter of humorous aspect.

The clubhouse at Ancon staged the biggest entertainment seen there in several years. The feature of the evening was a showing of "The Virgin of Stamboul," the big Priscilla Dean oriental picture, which was loaned to the club members by the Canal Zone Branch of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. As soon as this feature was run off in Ancon, it was speeded to Balboa, where a new audience was waiting to see it.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" has attained unusual success in the Canal Zone localities in which it has been released—Panama City and Colon, Universal reports.

THOMAS G. CARROLL, manager of the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, O., now is firmly convinced of the value of a lobby display that reaches right out to the curbing and jerks them in. He recently tried out two pictures of approximately equal merit. With the first one he did not use a lobby display. With the second he used a very striking lobby effect. Result: Double the business with the second picture.

Both of the pictures were Universal special attractions. The first was "The Marriage Pit," starring Frank Mayo, a picture adapted from the popular novel, "Black Friday," by Frederick Isham. This picture is one of Mayo's best productions.

The second picture was "Wanted At Headquarters," the first starring vehicle for Eva Novak. It is a society-crook picture and Carroll used the hold up idea in his lobby, half of which he turned into a prison set, with barred windows, showing cutouts of the principal characters inside. His ticket window also was a part of the set.

He added to the effect by obtaining a set of "Wanted" notices from Police Headquarters, showing the pictures and descriptions of several sought-for criminals. These he mounted in frames and arranged under the barred windows in the prison set. They attracted no end of attention. He thinks his lobby display was the greatest factor in the success of the week's run of the Eva Novak picture.

E. W. GUYOL, formerly foreign correspondent for the New York Herald, and the author of many magazine stories, has been engaged for the scenario department of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. He has been assigned to the studio staff, and already has arrived at Universal City.

Mr. Guyol has been in the moving picture field for several months, and already is known as the author of several successful scenarios. His first work for Universal will be the adaptation of "My Lady of the Island," a novel by Beatrice Grimshaw. Edith Roberts will be starred in the picture.

TOD BROWNING, who wrote and directed "Outside the Law," wrote the part of "Black Mike" especially for Lon Chaney. Browning and Chaney are old friends, and the director consulted Chaney concerning the part even before he put it on paper. Similarly, the leading role in the story, "Molly Madden," was written for Miss Dean, whom Browning directed in "The Virgin of Stamboul," and whose screen capabilities he knows as does no other director.

And Now It Is The "Mona Lisa Vamp"

THE Mona Lisa vampire has arrived.

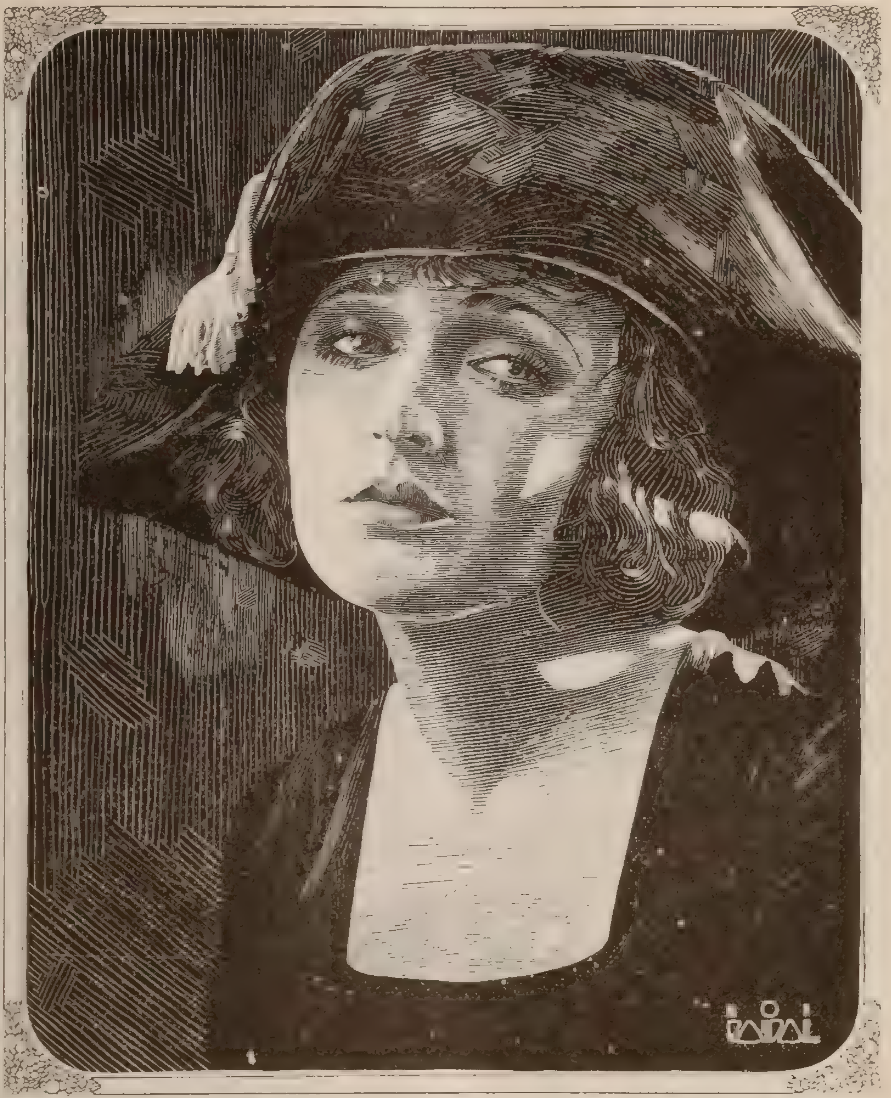
A new type of heroine, beautiful and unscrupulous, wise and innocent, capable of sustained revenge or of renunciating love—that is the Mona Lisa vampire type which Carmel Myers so brilliantly portrays in her latest special attraction feature, "Beautifully Trimmed."

It becomes more apparent with every one of her new offerings that this dark-haired, vivacious young star is forging ahead to a dominant position in the film firmament. Since her return to Universal from the stage she has given moviegoers two attractive features in "In Folly's Trail" and "The Gilded Dream," and now she comes to the fore with another drama, "Beautifully Trimmed," in which her charms are displayed to full advantage.

Not only does "Beautifully Trimmed" give Carmel Myers a splendid opportunity to act a new kind of role—in it, she gets "her chance" to demonstrate that stylishness and chicness and stunningness in fashion for which she is so well-known at the big film capital. For Carmel Myers can carry clothes in a manner all her own, and her hats, her sport togs, her afternoon frocks and her evening gowns in this production are the last word in loveliness.

There are all sorts of excellent things in "Beautifully Trimmed" to recommend it. In addition to an exquisite young star, it has for its director Marcel de Sano, a newcomer, the youngest man in all moviedom to hold the megaphone;two leading men in the persons of the well-known Pell Trenton and Irving Cummings and a lavishness and luxuriousness of production.

A new departure in settings, decoration and lighting is to be seen in the picture, credit for which must be given to young Marcel de Sano, who directed the feature; Lee Lawson, the technical director, and Harold Janes, who was in charge of the camera work. The settings are of a wide variety, some of bold ruggedness, and others exquisite in their charming color combinations. There are a dozen unique sets, each odd in its individual way, each one striking in in its originality.



Carmel Myers, fascinating star of "Beautifully Trimmed"

It is difficult to play a role like that of Norine Lawton, the heroine of "Beautifully Trimmed," for Norine is unscrupulous and yet the onlookers' sympathy must always be with her. But Carmel Myers handles the role faultlessly, winning and holding the hearts of the audience.

"Beautifully Trimmed" is now being released and those who have seen it are in love with it, as they can not help but being. Carmel Myers, however, is by no means resting on her laurels, on the praises that come to her because of "In Folly's Trail," "The Gilded Dream" and "Beautifully Trimmed." She is working with all her usual intensity and industriousness on another picture, which will not be anything like her former productions, in the role she has to portray and in the story itself. It is from the pen of a famous woman novelist.

Here Is A Combination That Spells Art

BRILLIANT DIRECTOR AND DAINTY, YOUTHFUL STAR HAVE MADE AND WILL CONTINUE TO MAKE THOSE DELIGHTFUL PRODUCTIONS FOR WHICH THEY HAVE GATHERED FAME AND GENEROUS PRAISE.

FROM all indications it is predicted that the Universal company plans to make the combination of Norman Dawn, director, and Edith Roberts, star, a fairly permanent one. Edith Roberts has presented the movie public with some delightful impersonations, but her outstanding successes are "Lasca" and "The Adorable Savage," both of which the brilliant Norman Dawn directed. And now there is "White Youth," her new release, also directed by Norman Dawn, and which is spoken of as Edith's crowning achievement. So delighted were "the powers that be" with the combined work of the star and director, that Mr. Dawn has already been commissioned to execute the next Roberts starring vehicle.

Edith Roberts is one of the most delightful of the younger generation of screen luminaries. Still in her teens, her early stage experience and her entrance into the movies at a tender age, have matured her art to a stage far beyond that usually exhibited by youthful stars. She is an accomplished actress, but with it all, she is just a girl, and that is the impression she leaves one with all the time. And if ever a girl was pretty, it is Edith Roberts. Rich brown hair, big brown eyes, the most adorable of noses, and the most demure lips—the slimest of figures and the sunniest of smiles—that is Edith Roberts.

Norman Dawn has an eye for the unusual and Edith Roberts seems to fit into his settings and his ideas delightfully. That is perhaps why the combination of Dawn and Roberts is so artistic a one, for there is unruffled harmony there.

Edith Roberts in Spanish costume brings back pleasant memories to her director, Norman Dawn, who was born in a South American republic of Spanish tendency.

HOW'S THIS FOR A "BOOST?"

"I ran Edith Roberts in 'The Adorable Savage' last night. My patrons liked it the best of any of her pictures. It is the first of many pictures that I heard them say 'Show it over.' I think it is good enough to be booked as a 'Special.' The scenery is fine and it has a good cast. The picture as a whole is Fine."

G. H. JENKINSON, Proprietor,
The Victor Theatre, Minocqua, Wis.

Eva Soars To Dizzy Heights

Charming Star Finds Newer Heights Than Fame Towards Which To Turn Her Gaze

WHAT can be more invigorating than a sky-cruise for two hours on a sparkling California morning in a naval sea-plane and nothing to do until the lunch that is to be given in your honor on the flagship of the mighty Pacific fleet?

That is what Eva Novak did some few weeks ago. Under the instruction of handsome Jack Perrin, who won his wings as a sea-plane pilot during the recent war, Eva mastered the air and did some exciting flying. And now that she has finished "The Torrent," her next release, in which Jack Perrin is her leading man, she has plenty of time to indulge in this newest of sports and to become more and more proficient in it.

For this lovely little blonde person is as ambitious and enterprising a young woman as ever flourished in moviedom. Not satisfied with being beautiful and talented and with having attained stardom at a very young age, Eva must constantly look about her for new fields to conquer and now it is the air. A dangerous ambition, indeed, but to Eva Novak everything is possible, and life holds no fears at all. Eva is indeed the personification of youth—spirited, light-hearted, and keenly alive.

It isn't so long ago that Eva Novak was playing "extra" roles. It didn't take her long to graduate into comedy leads, to drift into leading lady parts in feature dramas and then to become a star in her own right.

Her first starring vehicle, "Wanted At Headquarters," gave her a role, pleasing indeed. But her next, "The Torrent," gives her a greater one, and this film is eagerly being awaited by all. These two roles, that in "Wanted At Headquarters" and the one to come in "The Torrent," a vivid drama of society and an isolated South Sea Isle, are indeed an auspicious start for a new star—particularly so young a one as the very lovely, very enterprising Eva Novak.

Eva Novak, Universal Special Attraction Star

Isn't This A Hint For You?

"We showed your 'La La Lucille,' with Lyons-Moran, last night, and to say the least, this picture is a scream. My patrons went out sick from laughter."

O. S. SHONYO,
Gym Theatre,
Bushton, Kansas.

SOME STEPPER!

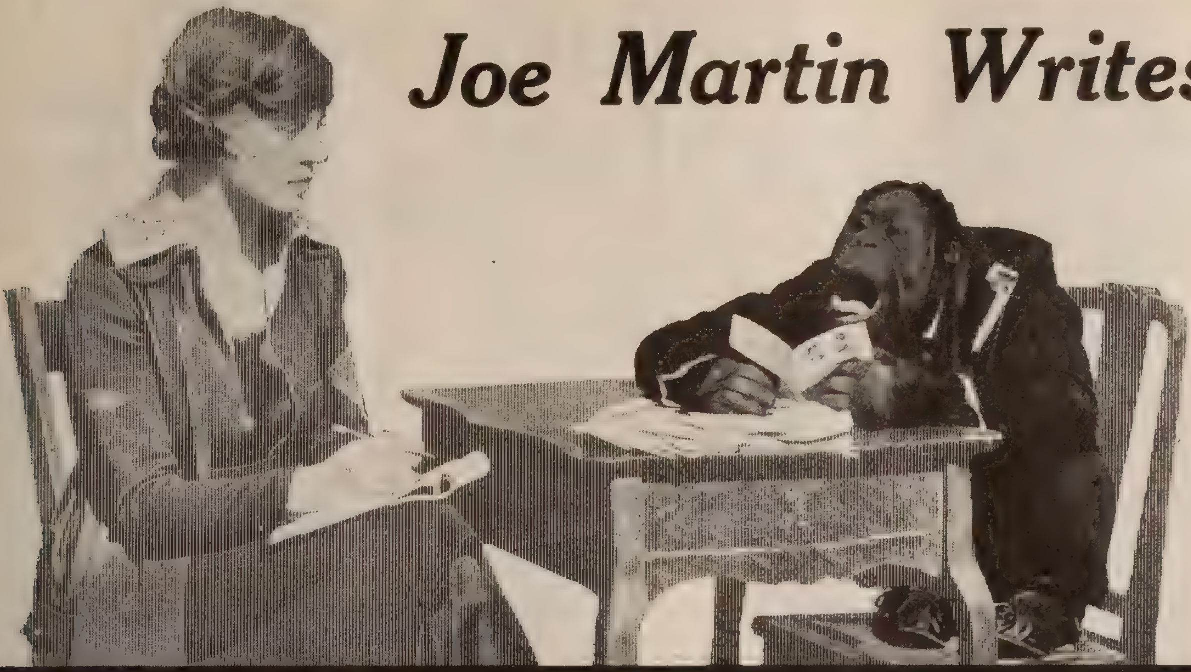
THE sky's the limit! Some stepper! you'll say, when you hear the tear-stained, side-shaking folk sway your house to the rhythm of their uncontrollable laughter at the funny antics in this latest Century Comedy. Every laugh's a reason for booking it! A Century has one hundred laughs!

Recent Release:

"Trouble Bubbles"

A Hundred Laughs that's a "CENTURY"

Joe Martin Writes---



dear exhibitors:-

I know you are fair and just men and i want to ask you if you think i am getting a square deal. here i go and make two of the best comedies ever made called "a prohibition monkey" and"a wild night" and what do you think? the boss says now i must write my own announcement. well, i'll do it but all i can say is that you better book "a prohibition monkey"and be sure of a wild night in your house.

Joe Martin
Universal-Jewel

Blacker Than He Is Painted

THAT IS SORT OF CHARACTER THAT LON CHANEY HAS TO PORTRAY IN "OUTSIDE THE LAW," JEWEL DRAMA.

Two views of Lon Chaney, consummate character actor, as he appears in support of Priscilla Dean in Tod Browning's forthcoming big Jewel production, "Outside the Law," which will be one of the biggest attractions of the coming film year.

WHEN Tod Browning wrote "Outside the Law" for Priscilla Dean, he not only provided this popular Universal star with the best role of her career, but created a character especially for Lon Chaney, than whom there is no more accomplished character actor on the screen. Lon Chaney has been offered stardom by a number of producers, but he is afraid he might be called upon to sacrifice his art in favor of stellar requirements, and he prefers to pick and choose his roles, usually selecting the most difficult parts imaginable and those utterly lacking in sympathy.

Tod Browning and Lon Chaney are great friends. biggest things in the career of the inimitable Lon Chaney. successes, the last occasion being in "The Wicked Darling," in which Priscilla Dean also starred for Universal. The director knows better than any other writer the dramatic heights which Chaney can scale and he created a role that permits him to sound the depths of deviltry and to exercise his dramatic skill to the utmost. He is an evil character this "Black Jack" Moran, leader of the underworld gang and afraid of but one—Silent Madden, who "turned straight" and whose leadership in the underworld "Black Jack" has inherited. It is a role that is said to fit Chaney even better than the role of "The Frog" in "The Miracle Man" or of the grim avenger in "The Penalty."

Universal was one of the first companies to realize what a consummate artist Lon Chaney really is. He has played in a number of Universal productions, among them "Paid In Advance," "Broadway Love," "Fires of Rebellion," "A Broadway Scandal" and others. He is counted by all critics as "among the best" in moviedom—indeed his is an art of flawless quality, his a personality that is interesting, mystifying and fascinating.

The name of Lon Chaney would be sufficient to recommend any picture to the moviegoer, but when one considers that "Outside the Law" will have Priscilla Dean as its leading female figure and star of the production; that it will have handsome Wheeler Oakman, Ralph Lewis, E. A. Warren and a capable little boy actor in its cast, it should be looked forward to as a distinct "event" in the movie calendar. Over six months in the making, Tod Browning has given it his most careful attention and he has no misgivings about its success. He is positive also that the role of "Black Mike" will be one of the biggest things in the career of the inimitable Lon Chaney. And Chaney himself is enthusiastic about the picture.

Mr. Small-Town Exhibitor, Our Congratulations !

OUR congratulations that you may book only safe, sure successes like the "The Virgin of Stamboul!"

THINK of the things you know in advance of showing this tremendous triumph: the quality of the picture—the public's reception—its record throughout the country—the desire that has been created in your town to see this picture by the advertising and publicity in the magazines and newspapers.

F there was any risk or chance attached to the "Virgin of Stamboul" it was long ago taken by your big-city brother-exhibitor: the same fellow whom, at times, you probably envy!

MR. Small Town Exhibitor, when you book this photoplay you show a proven success and the first run as far as the folk of your town are concerned. A picture with a reputation is a positive, big crowdgetter.

MUST we say more? Take an honest tip—book this big hit!

PRISCILLA DEAN
"The Virgin of Stamboul"

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

Story by
H.H. VAN LOAN

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION
DE LUXE

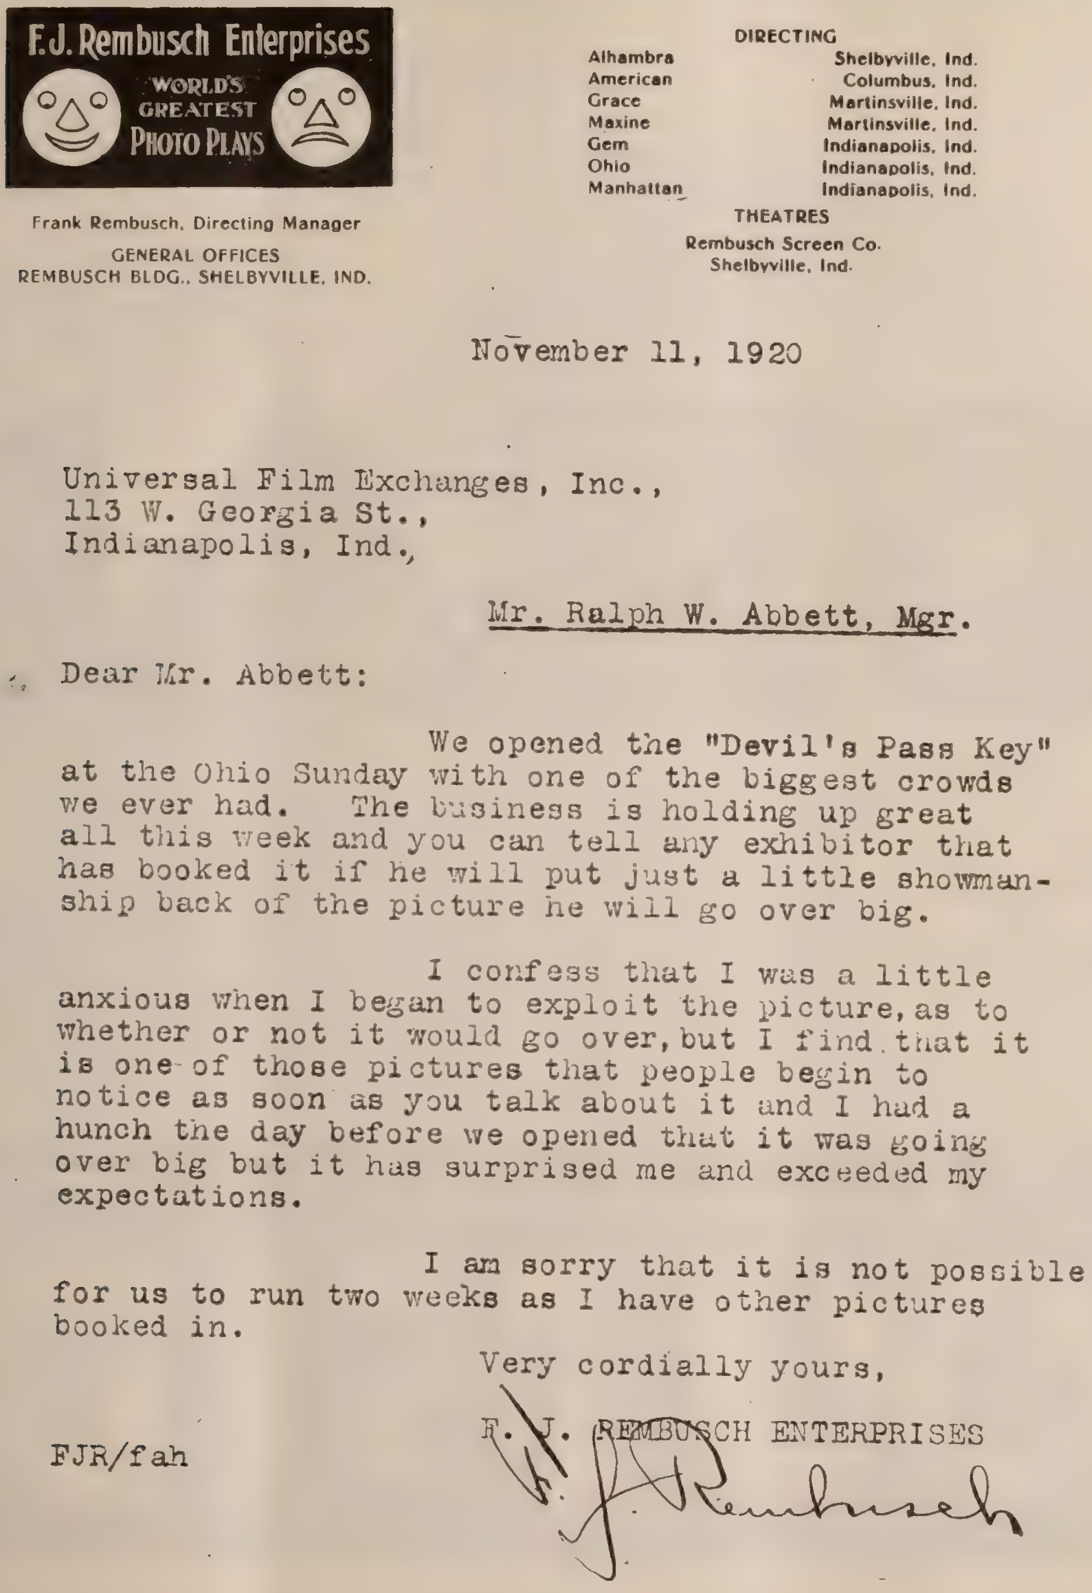
"No pretty woman need ever be in debt--in Paris."

SUCH were the honeyed words of the beautiful temptress. And poor, foolish, innocent Mrs. Goodwright listened—listened and succumbed to the advice of the avaricious modiste whose crafty claws were hidden by a velvet covering of smooth but ominous counsel . . . all of which is merely a small part of a drama so dynamic as to stir the soul of even the most hardened; drama so deep as to compel a response from every person who sees it.

Carl Laemmle
presents
Von Stroheim's
UNIVERSAL
—JEWEL
Master-Play

"The Devil's Passkey"

This One Made Us Happy



F. J. Rembusch Enterprises
WORLD'S GREATEST PHOTO PLAYS

Frank Rembusch, Directing Manager
GENERAL OFFICES
REMBUSCH BLDG., SHELBYVILLE, IND.

DIRECTING

Alhambra	Shelbyville, Ind.
American	Columbus, Ind.
Grace	Martinsville, Ind.
Maxine	Martinsville, Ind.
Gem	Indianapolis, Ind.
Ohio	Indianapolis, Ind.
Manhattan	Indianapolis, Ind.

THEATRES
Rembusch Screen Co.
Shelbyville, Ind.

November 11, 1920

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
113 W. Georgia St.,
Indianapolis, Ind.,

Mr. Ralph W. Abbett, Mgr.

Dear Mr. Abbett:

We opened the "Devil's Pass Key" at the Ohio Sunday with one of the biggest crowds we ever had. The business is holding up great all this week and you can tell any exhibitor that has booked it if he will put just a little showmanship back of the picture he will go over big.

I confess that I was a little anxious when I began to exploit the picture, as to whether or not it would go over, but I find that it is one of those pictures that people begin to notice as soon as you talk about it and I had a hunch the day before we opened that it was going over big but it has surprised me and exceeded my expectations.

I am sorry that it is not possible for us to run two weeks as I have other pictures booked in.

Very cordially yours,

F. J. REMBUSCH ENTERPRISES

F. J. Rembusch

FJR/fah

GET READY

Clear the decks! Buy a bigger cash-box! Get ready for action—action—action! A few weeks more and you'll be blocking traffic with your year's biggest attraction—the electrifying, startling, dynamic Meteor of the Screen—

Priscilla
DEAN

Directed by TOD BROWNING who made
"The Virgin of Stamboul"

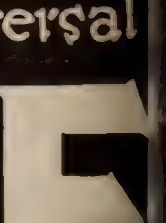
Coming in a whirling, rushing drama of desperate work done while the city sleeps—a picture with a shiver in it—but so real that your heart leaps up in your throat each time that daring Mary Madden stands trembling on the brink. Never has dazzling PRISCILLA DEAN done anything half so vital and living as this amazing picture—and she has supporting her the best "bad man" that the screen has ever known—LON CHANEY, now famous all over the country for his work in "The Miracle Man" and "The Penalty." All directed by TOD BROWNING—and when we've said that we've said something. Get ready now for "Outside the Law."



Carl Laemmle announces the Great Universal

"OUTSIDE

Supported by
LON CHANEY
of
"The Miracle Man"
and
"The Penalty"

Jewel Melodrama of Desperate Work after Dark

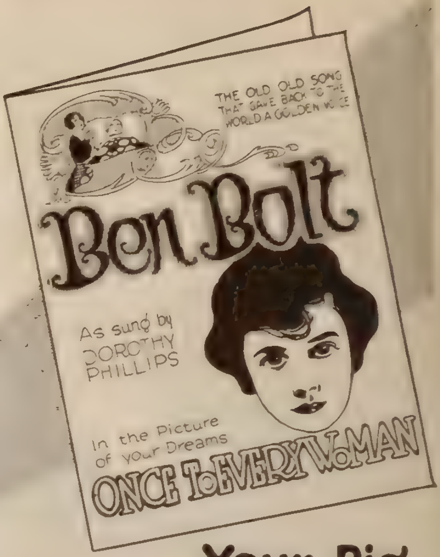
"THE LAW"

how to get wonderful crowds for a wonderful picture!

GET wonderful crowds for a wonderful picture by securing this beautiful four-page edition of "Ben Bolt" as sung by Dorothy Phillips in "Once To Every Woman." Delightfully illustrated, it is one of the greatest and safest sure-thing promotion aids ever originated.

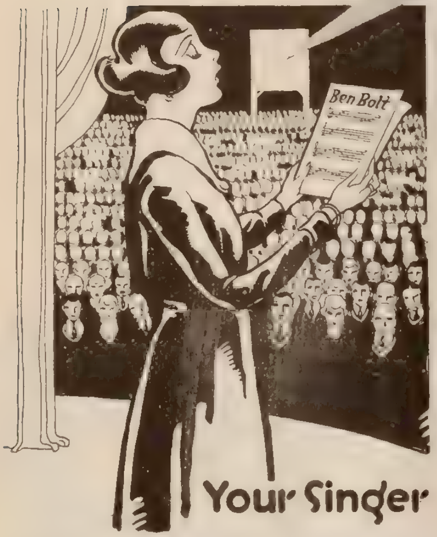
Go to your Universal exchange and get copies of this crowd-getting Super-Herald at the pride of one cent each —the actual cost to us. You get FREE OF CHARGE the same amount that you buy.

Give them away to your patrons for a week prior to, and during the showing of the picture. They'll take it home—they'll sing it—they'll read the advertising — and they'll pack your house when you show "Once To Every Woman."



THE OLD OLD SONG THAT GAVE BACK TO THE WORLD A GOLDEN VOICE
Ben Bolt
As sung by DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In the Picture of your Dreams
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

Your Big Song Herald
4 pages, 9x12 inches.



HAVE "BEN BOLT" sung by a local singer when you show this picture. In the gilded palaces of the big cities, in the neighborhood playhouses and in the modest halls of the small towns—EVERYWHERE—this big, new idea has caught on like wildfire and is creating an instantaneous, tremendous success.

Have the first verse sung as an introduction. The second verse should be given while Dorothy Phillips sings it at the bedside in the final scene. If you cannot secure a singer arrange to have your local Victrola shop lend you a machine and the "Ben Bolt" record as sung by Geraldine Farrar, in exchange for the publicity and credit you will give him on your programs and slides.

People who hear the song in conjunction with the picture talk about it. The news spreads and brings hundreds and thousands of others. They come to see the picture because of the famous old song and its memories—they come because of the pulling power of the star—they come because of the wonderful reception this picture is receiving everywhere and the powerful, sensational success it is creating.

"ONCE TO EVE

Universal-Jewel

and this is how Ascher Bros. stage the singing

ASCHER BROTHERS, owners of sixteen leading houses in Chicago, followed our suggestion and secured for each house the services of a singer to render vocal accompaniment during the showing of "Once To Every Woman"—with such remarkable success as to make their presentation more than worthy of this advertisement so that others may follow.

This Is How They Do It

ASCHER BROTHERS' singer appears first in Reel 3, where the title reads: "My daughter is making her debut to-night—may God be kind to her," and sings the aria from "Faust" with spotlight.

Her second singing is in Reel 6, where Dorothy Phillips leaves New York and appears at the gate of her old home—and the song is "Home, Sweet Home" sung behind the curtain.

The Third and Most Appealing Singing is where Dorothy Phillips, near the end, kneels at her mother's bedside and comforts her with that beautiful and famous song, "BEN BOLT." This, also, is sung behind the curtain.

THE RESULT IS NOTHING SHORT OF MIRACULOUS. THERE IS HARDLY A DRY EYE IN THE HOUSE. EVERYONE LEAVES THE THEATRE TALKING ABOUT THE WONDERFUL PICTURE AND ITS BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION.

TAKE A TIP FROM ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITING FIRMS IN THE WHOLE COUNTRY AND UTILIZE NOT ONLY THIS INEXPENSIVE AND RESULT-FUL PRESENTATION BUT ALSO THE "BEN BOLT-HERALD" TIE-UP PREVIOUSLY DESCRIBED. IT IS SURE-FIRE ADVANCE ADVERTISING AT WONDERFULLY LOW COST.

RY WOMAN"

Production de Luxe

Chicago Books This

IN LESS THAN THIRTY DAYS AFTER ITS RELEASE, 158 OF T
"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN." THE REASON—THE ONE REA
ENCES BE IT IN THE VILLAGE HALL, THE NEIGHBORHOO
WHITE WAY—IS THE MOTHER-LOVE HEART-APPEAL OF T
YEARS. A MOTHER DRAMA THAT TOUCHES US IN OUR H
THE BEING DEAREST TO EVERY MAN OF US.

BIJOU	114 S. State St., Chicago, Ill.
CASINO	58 W. Madison St., Chicago
BOSTON	21 N. Clark St., Chicago
PANTHEON	4624 Sheridan Road, Chicago
20TH CENTURY	3538 W. 12th St., Chicago
LA SALLE	152 W. Division St., Chicago
HAMLIN	3826 W. Madison St., Chicago
MADISON SQUARE	4740 W. Madison St., Chicago
WILSON	2437 W. Madison St., Chicago
ARCHER	2008 W. 35th St., Chicago
ATLANTIC	26th & Crawford, Chicago
CRYSTAL	2705 W. North Ave., Chicago
MARSHALL SQUARE	2871 W. 22nd St., Chicago
CROWN	Milwaukee & Division Sts., Chicago
BROADWAY STRAND	1615 W. 12th St., Chicago
LAKESIDE	4730 Sheridan Road, Chicago
COVENT GARDEN	2653 N. Clark St., Chicago
KNICKERBOCKER	6217 Broadway, Chicago
18TH STREET	1343 W. 18th Street, Chicago
OAKLEY	2320 Chicago Ave., Chicago
LINCOLN	1846 W. Madison St., Chicago
ADELPHIA	7074 N. Clark St., Chicago
CALO	5406 N. Clark St., Chicago
MILFORD	3311 N. Crawford Ave., Chicago
TERMINAL	3308 Lawrence Ave., Chicago
ILLINGTON	2122 W. 22nd St., Chicago
VITAGRAPH	3133 Lincoln Ave., Chicago
FAMOUS	3644 W. Chicago Ave., Chicago
ELLANTEE	1456 Devon Ave., Chicago
PRINCESS	2319 N. Western Ave., Chicago
ROSEWOOD	1823 Montrose Blvd. Chicago
WHITE PALACE	1607 S. Kedzie Ave., Chicago
STRATFORD	63d & Union Ave., Chicago
WOODLAWN	63d & Woodlawn Ave., Chicago
BRYN MAWR	1125 Bryn Mawr Ave., Chicago
BIOGRAPH	2431 Lincoln Ave., Chicago
MICHIGAN	110 E. 55th St., Chicago
WILSON	2437 W. Madison St., Chicago
COMMERCIAL	92nd & Commercial, Chicago
FROLIC	947 E. 55th St., Chicago
LANE COURT	322 Center St., Chicago
METROPOLITAN	4644 Grand Blvd., Chicago
AVON	3325 Fullerton Ave., Chicago
BOULEVARD	1606 W. 55th St., Chicago
HALFIELD	5449 S. Halsted St., Chicago
KENWOOD	1225 E. 47th St., Chicago
OAKLAND SQUARE	3847 Drexel Blvd., Chicago
DEARBORN	40 W. Division St., Chicago
PEOPLES	1640 W. 47th St., Chicago
CRESCENT	2915 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago
JACKSON PARK	6711 1/2 Stony Island Ave., Chicago
STATES	3507 S. State St., Chicago
NEW STRAND	2111 W. Division St., Chicago
COSMOPOLITAN	7938 S. Halsted St., Chicago
MABLE	3956 Elston Ave., Chicago
ROSE	2860 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago
CRANE	4236 Archer Ave., Chicago
COLUMBUS	6236 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago
ARGMERE	1040 Argyle St., Chicago
EDWARDS	2419 Wentworth Ave., Chicago
PARAMOUNT	2648 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago
PERSHING	Lincoln & Wilson Ave., Chicago
SCHINDLER	1005 W. Huron St., Chicago
CLAREMONT	3226 N. Clark St., Chicago
KIMBARK	6240 S. Kimbark Ave., Chicago
HARVARD	6216 Harvard Ave., Chicago
MONOGRAM	3520 S. Halsted St., Chicago
PEERLESS	3955 Grand Blvd., Chicago
ELSTON	3167 Elston Ave., Chicago
CASIMIR	4750 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago
HUB	1746 Chicago Ave., Chicago
PARKWAY	11153 Michigan Ave., Chicago
NEW REGENT	6826 Halsted St., Chicago
PRAIRIE	5744 Prarie Ave., Chicago
GRAYLAND	3940 N. Cicero Ave., Chicago
E. A. R.	6839 Wentworth Ave., Chicago

ONCE TO EVE

Universal-Jewel

Picture to the Limit

LEADING HOUSES OF CHICAGO AND SUBURBS BOOKED
N THAT NEVER FAILS TO DRAW RECORD-MAKING AUDI-
'LAYHOUSE OR IN THE PICTURE PALACES OF THE GREAT
, THE GREATEST MOTHER PICTURE PRODUCED IN MANY RTS BECAUSE IT IS A LASTING, LIVING MONUMENT TO

PLAZA .... 308 W. North Ave., Chicago
TIFFIN .... 4045 W. North Ave., Chicago
OWL .... 4653 S. State St., Chicago
KARLOV .... 4048 Armitage Ave., Chicago
BUGG .... 3940 N. Robey St., Chicago
MAGNOLIA .... 2819 Fullerton Ave., Chicago
HARPER .... 5234 Harper Ave., Chicago
NEW PARK .... 342 E. 51st St., Chicago
LELAND .... 4716 Lincoln Ave., Chicago
LOOMIS .... 2858 W. Archer Ave., Chicago
WINDSOR PARK .... 2638 E. 75th Street, Chicago
SHAKESPEARE .... 936 E. 43rd St., Chicago
DE LUXE .... 814 E. 63rd St., Chicago
NEW CLARK .... 4533 N. Clark St., Chicago
NEWBERRY .... 854 N. Clark St., Chicago
CIRCLE .... 3239 W. 12th St., Chicago
LEIDA .... 645 W. 120th St., Chicago
VIRGINIA .... 809 W. Madison St., Chicago
HAMILTON .... 2186 E. 71st St., Chicago
ESTENA .... 3709 Southport Ave., Chicago
CROWN .... 8402 Burley Ave., Chicago
SEELEY .... 2042 Roscoe Ave., Chicago
GARFIELD .... 2844 W. Madison St., Chicago
PERISHING .... 716 W. 12th St., Chicago
PRESIDENT .... 343 E. 55th Street, Chicago
EMMETTE .... 4338 Wentworth Ave., Chicago
STANDARD .... 750 N. Clark St., Chicago
PANORAMA .... 717 Sheridan Road, Chicago
LINCOLN .... 3132 S. State St., Chicago
IRVING .... 1310 S. Halsted St., Chicago
JEFFERSON .... 1523 E. 55th St., Chicago
DELPHI .... 225 E. 31st St., Chicago
CALIFORNIA .... 3434 W. 26th St., Chicago
GRAND .... 3433 W. North Ave., Chicago
LANGLEY .... 702 E. 63rd St., Chicago
ARMITAGE .... 3553 Armitage Ave., Chicago
CHARM .... 4303 S. Halsted St., Chicago
LIBERTY .... 3705 Fullerton Ave., Chicago
PICKFORD .... 108 E. 35th St., Chicago
PARK MANOR .... 321 E. 69th St., Chicago

GEM .... Gary, Ind.
PARK .... Champaign, Ill.
OAK PARK .... Oak Park, Ill.
MAJESTIC .... East Moline, Ill.
ORPHEUM .... Rockford, Ill.
DE LUXE .... Hammond, Ind.
HARTLEY .... East Chicago, Ind.
FOREST PARK .... Forest Park, Ill.
MAJESTIC .... Rock Island, Ill.
STAR .... Whiting, Ind.
COLONIAL .... Galesburg, Ill.
SOUTHERN .... Oak Park, Ill.
PRINCESS .... LaPorte, Ind.
VILLAS .... Cicero, Ill.
DE LUXE .... Lake Forest, Ill.
STAR .... Evanston, Ill.
MIRROR .... Meline, Ill.
CRYSTAL .... Joliet, Ill.
MAJESTIC .... Streator, Ill.
KEYSTONE .... 3912 Sheridan Road
MAYWOOD .... Maywood, Ill.
VILLIAGE .... Wilmette, Ill.
ELITE .... Waukegan, Ill.
STRAND .... Freeport, Ill.
AMUSU .... Table Grove, Ill.
PRINCESS .... Rensselaer, Ind.
TERRACE .... Danville, Ill.
CROWN .... Crown Point, Indiana
FAMILY .... Indiana Harber, Ind.
LYRIC .... Washington, Ill.
EAGLE .... Gary, Indiana
FAMILY .... Ogden, Ill.
LYRIC .... Blue Island, Ill.
AURORA AMUSE. CO .... Aurora, Ill.
BOND .... Pontiac
PRINCESS .... Maroa, Ill.
ILLINOIS .... Chicago Heights, Ill.
MAJESTIC .... Kankakee, Ill.
APOLLO .... Ottawa, Ill.
BLACKSTONE .... South Bend, Ind.

Production de Luxe

WOMAN"

Good for Ten Years

THIS remarkable drama will be just as current an attraction ten years from now as it is to-day. That's because it is the kind of work which, like masterpieces of literature, painting or any other art, will live forever. True, the fashion in clothes may change in ten years, but the fashion in emotion is unchangeable throughout all time. And that's the big reason why this masterpiece is good for ten years—it is a dynamic drama builded by a master craftsman on human emotion—understandable and appreciated by every human being. You'll be doing your patrons a favor by booking it to-day.

Von Stroheim's WONDER PICTURE "BLIND HUSBANDS"

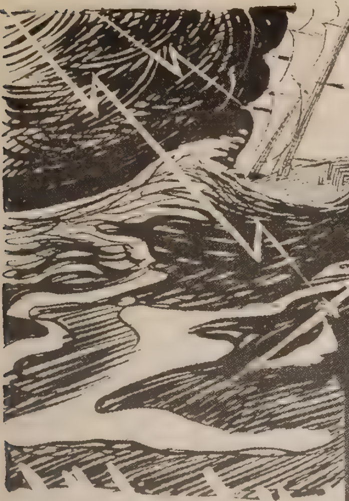
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE



"All hands on deck!"

IN this stirring adventure-romance-drama is one of the most thrilling and realistic storms at sea ever filmed. You can fairly feel the floor of the theatre rock in turbulent rhythm with the plunging deck of the schooner; you feel the sting of the rain and the lash of the spray as the timbers of the craft tremble under the tempestuous blows of Father Neptune; you hear the canvas ripping and the spars splintering as the craft staggers her blind way through the night. . . .

And the storm sequence is only one of the things that make this picture the marvelous attraction it is proving itself to be. Book it—TODAY.

ELMO LINCOLN

In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by REX INGRAM

Story by U.G.HAWKS

Malveen Polo, appearing in Eric Von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives"

A Newcomer Has Arrived At Universal City

MOST girls would envy Malveen Polo because she is the daughter of the world-renowned Eddie Polo, king of all serial stars. But Malveen finds that that is more of a hardship than a luxury, for she has to "step some" in order to keep up with the Polo reputation. For it would never do for the great Polo's daughter to lag behind in anything.

To look at Malveen Polo one feels instantly that it is all not as hard for her as she modestly claims, for there is beauty of form and face there, and an emotional quality about her which gives evidence of dramatic fire and an artistic temperament. And that is all true about Malveen Polo, every bit of it.

She started her professional career at a tender age, when most children are joyously playing about—but not as an actress. Early in life Malveen showed decided musical talents and so the best masters of the piano were provided for her. And she made good, her playing being earnestly applauded at the public appearances which she made.

But then came a day, a big day, when Eric Von Stroheim, connoisseur of beauty and keen discerner of dramatic talent, saw Malveen and watched her about the big Universal studio out in California, and lo and behold, Malveen right then and there became a member of the cast of no less a tremendous production than "Foolish Wives," Von Stroheim's forthcoming stupendous Jewel release. An auspicious start in moviedom, this!

Malveen will play a difficult role indeed in "Foolish Wives"—that of the counterfeiter's half-witted daughter. But "the powers that be" say that this fifteen-year-old girl is handling it with mature artistry. She is indeed her father's daughter, and she means to shine in a glory all her own.

AND STILL THEY COME

"It gives me great pleasure to advise you that 'The Devil's Pass Key,' which just closed a four-day engagement at this theatre, broke all records by far, surpassing a record which was made over a year ago.

"I feel that it is my duty to advise you of our success with this production on account of the splendid co-operation you tendered in our behalf to assist us with our exploitation ideas.

"The picture is one which will appeal to the most critical and its showing here was indeed very well received by our audiences."

A. P. DESORMEAUX,
Manager, Strand Theatre Co.,
Madison, Wis.

"It is not very often that we voluntarily write lettters of praise about any picture, but we must tell you that 'Once To Every Woman' is, to our minds, one of the best pictures that has been shown in St. Louis in many a day. We opened Sunday, Nov. 7th, to capacity business all day long, and to say that people were pleased with the picture is putting it mildly. We look for record business this week, and it is one of the few pictures that we really could give the public to combat the opening of a big new house as oposition.

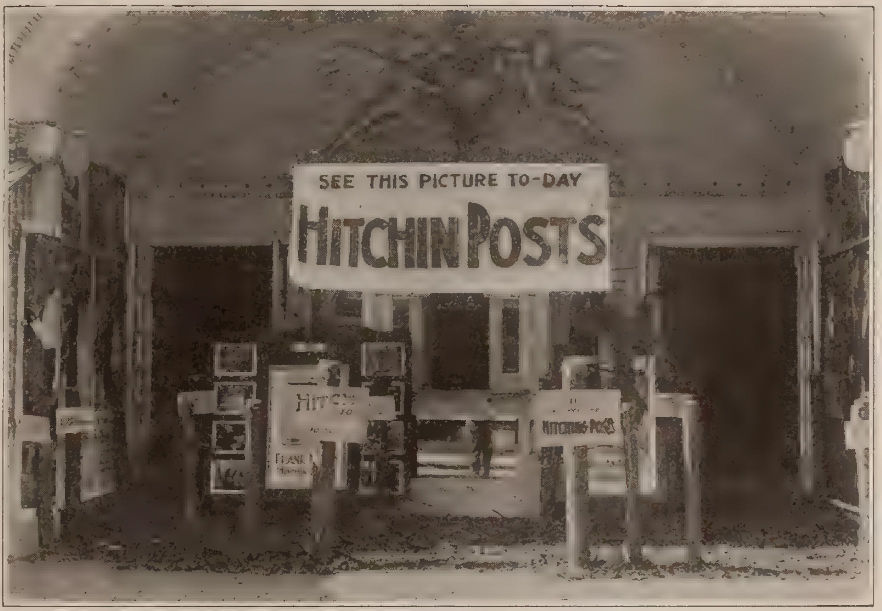
"Anything we can do to help you boost this picture along, you need only command us."

SKOURAS BROTHERS ENTERPRISES.
(Signed) Charles P. Skouras.

This Stunt Shows Clever Showmanship

ONE of the most interesting and novel lobby displays recently originated was that of the Royal Theatre in Hot Springs, Arkansas, in connection with the showing of Frank Mayo in "Hitchin' Posts."

Blaschke and Erickson, the proprietors of this theatre, are wideawake showmen and they were alive to the exploitation possibilities contained in the very name of the picture itself. Therefore they fitted up the front of their lobby with a "hitchin' posts" effect. Mr. Blaschke one of the proprietors of the Royal Theatre, wrote to the management of the Memphis, Tennessee office as follows:



Lobby front of Royal Theatre, Hot Springs, Arkansas, arranged for Frank Mayo's feature, "Hitchin' Posts"

"I am enclosing photo of my lobby front. This is how I put over 'Hitchin' Posts.' DID BIG BUSINESS."

There is no reason why every other exhibitor cannot repeat the success of the Royal Theatre. "Hitchin' Posts" is a picture which lends itself easily and simply to exploitation. And it is worthy of any efforts the showman puts behind it. It is one of the best pictures Frank Mayo ever made, virile from start to finish, with an exciting story and an unusual setting. The cast is excellent and includes a number of well-known film players and the whole colorful production is the work of the capable director, Jack Ford.

Efforts Spent On Serials Well Repaid

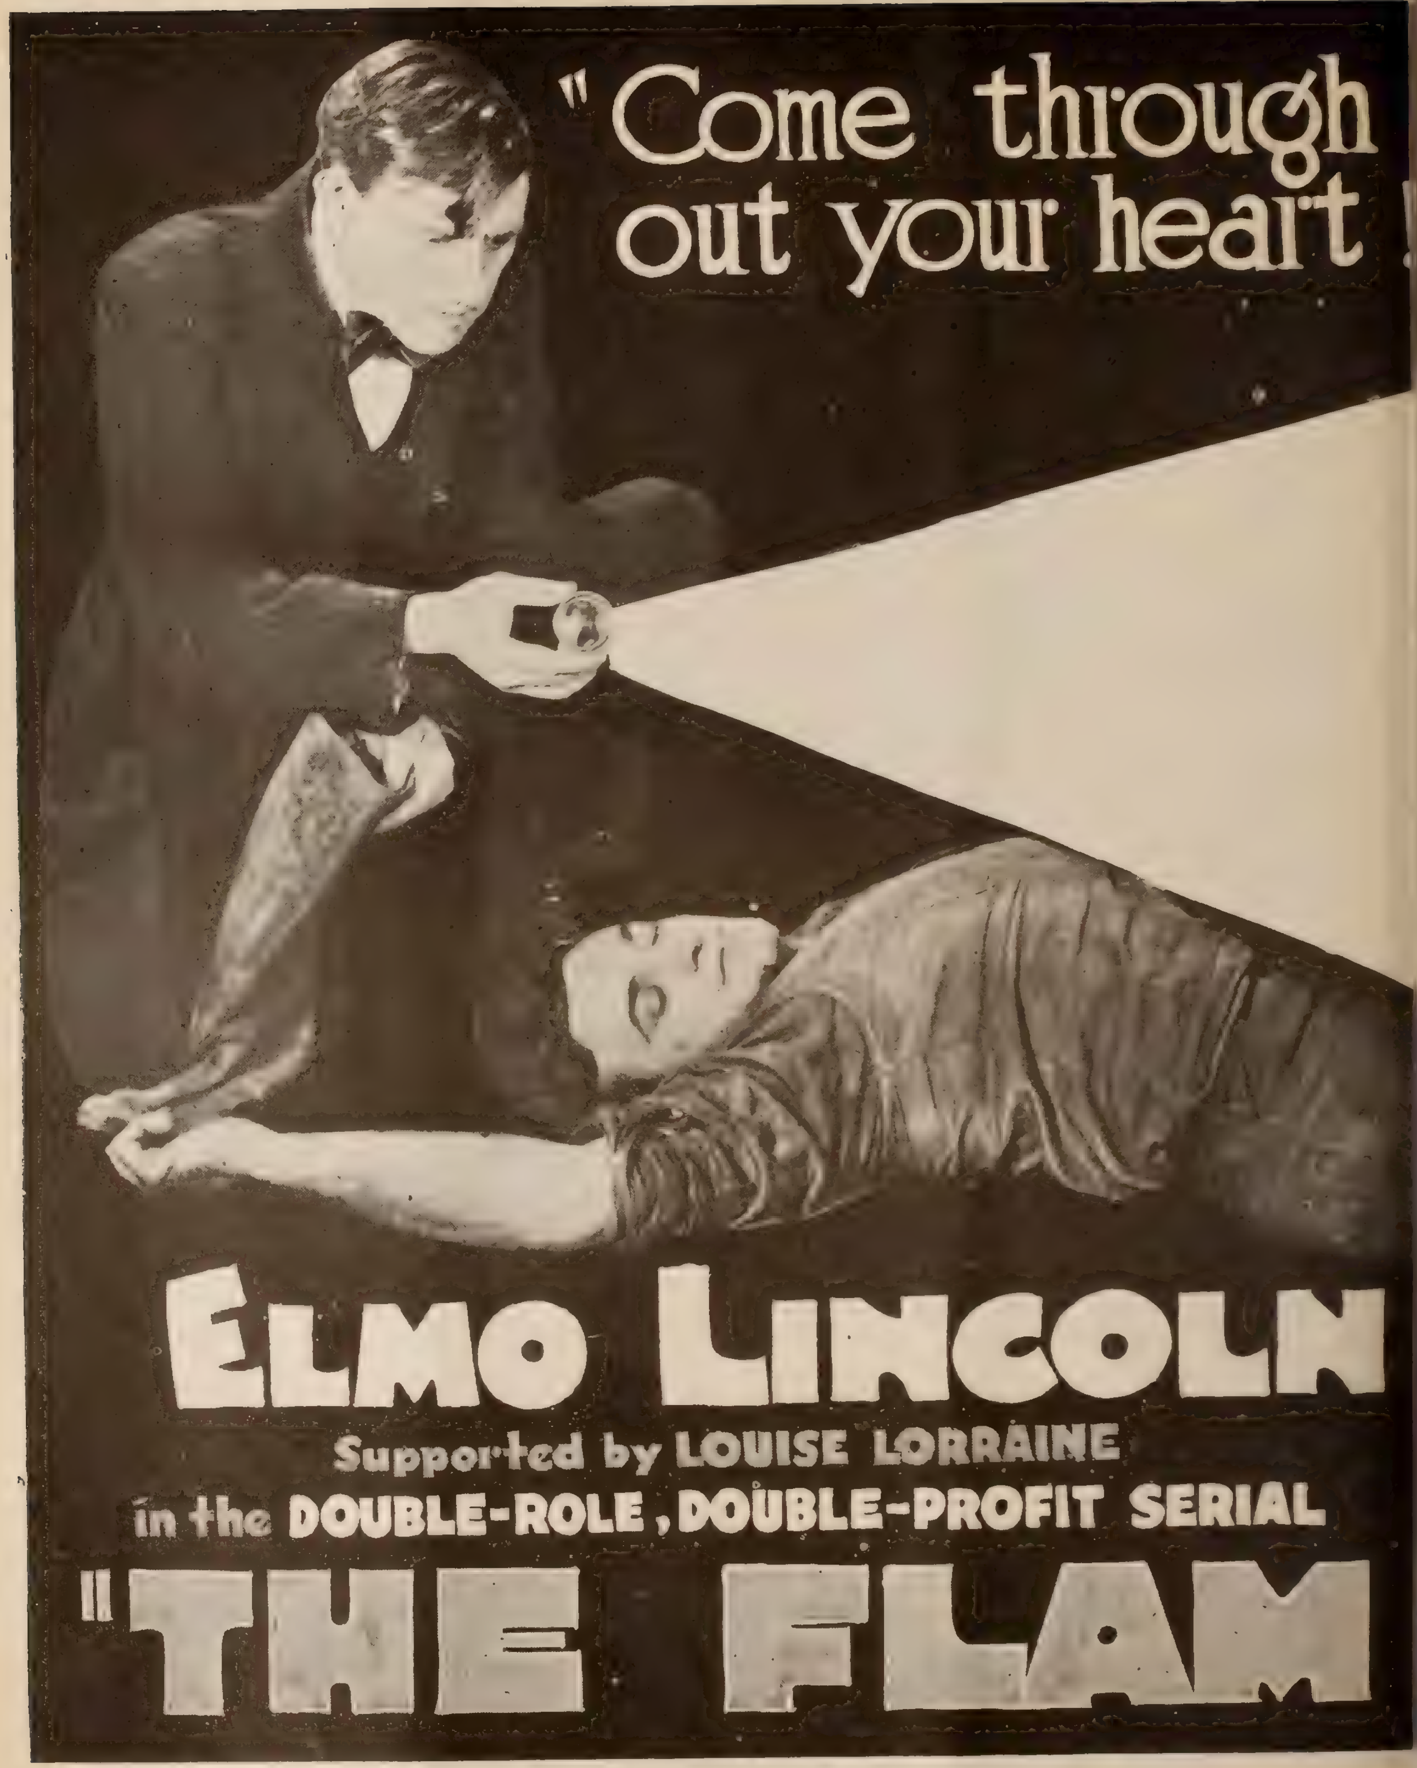
FROM the first day Universal began to make serial pictures, it has made them with care, with enterprise and with concentrated effort. It has spared no costs in employing the most ingenious of directors and the most talented of stars, and it has helped immeasurably to develop a number of stars whose talents are most particularly "serial" talents, and who apear to the greatest advantage in these chapter adventure plays. But Universal feels that it is well repaid for the efforts and the money which it has expended to so great an extent in the making of serials for Universal serials have come to mean something in the world of the moviegoer. The popularity of Universal serials is firmly established and Universal serial stars, such as Eddie Polo, Elmo Lincoln and Eileen Sedgwick have won the hearts of millions.

The mails daily bring letters of appreciation from grateful exhibitors who have met with success in running Universal serials and it is a matter of extreme gratification to the company to receive these endorsements. No more enthusiastic commendation has been received than that which came to the Universal branch at Atlanta, Georgia. It reads as follows:

"We have been running your serials ever since this theatre opened, begining with Marie Walcamp in 'LIBERTY,' and 'THE MOON RIDERS' is the best yet, to the best of our knowledge, and we are having packed house every Friday. Some of our patrons, who have been regular attendants, say it is the best serial they ever saw. I wish there were 36 episodes instead of 18. If 'THE VANISHING DAGGER' and 'THE DRAGON'S NET' beat 'THE MOON RIDERS' they will beat all box office receipts yet.

"If every exhibitor knew your serials as I do they would jump at them. With the best of success for Universal, we are,

PRUDEN AMUSEMENT COMPANY,
Edisonia Theatre, W. R. Scott, Mgr.,
Pruden, Tenn."



"Come through out your heart !

ELMO LINCOLN

Supported by LOUISE LORRAINE

in the DOUBLE-ROLE, DOUBLE-PROFIT SERIAL

"THE FLAM

or I'll burn
"

NEVER before has there been such a vicious villain as in this burning chapter-play—never before such a master in crime who devises such fascinatingly mysterious and thrilling tortures. And never before has there been a stalwart hero so mightily able to cope with that villain and his lawless band as Herculean Elmo Lincoln, who crashes his way into and out of cyclonic complications with a rush and a roar that spell action, action, ACTION! That's just what the serial fans want—that's what they keep spending money to see—and because this wild-fire continued melodrama is so filled with such elements it is cleaning up everywhere. Book it as the safest serial success in your history. DO IT NOW!

ING DISK"

Directed by Robert Hill

GOOD BYE EDDIE!

ATTA boy, Eddie!—make 'em shiver—make 'em sit right on the edges of their seats with the cold shimmies running up and down their spines—show 'em what a real he-man, daredevil serial stuntster can do when he really gets started. For that's the stuff they eat up, Eddie, and it's up to you to keep on piling up the thrills the way you have been doing in every foot of this big-top serial. Do they like it that much, you ask? Say, Eddie, they're almost walking over each other to get into the houses that are presenting this gorgeous chapter-play—and there are more of those houses every day. We'll say that any exhibitor is passing up one walloping big serial bet if he overlooks this one. Nuff sed, eh?

SOME THRILL

EDDIE POLO

In the Gorgeous 18-Ring Serial Spectacle

KING OF THE CIRCUS

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

You'll be playing it soon---

"The Diamond Queen," the Wildest, Strangest Adventure Serial Ever Filmed.

EILEEN SEDGWICK

The Real Goods!

Dotty Wolbert

in the hilarious laugh-provoker

"Forbidden Brew"

Directed by VIN MOORE

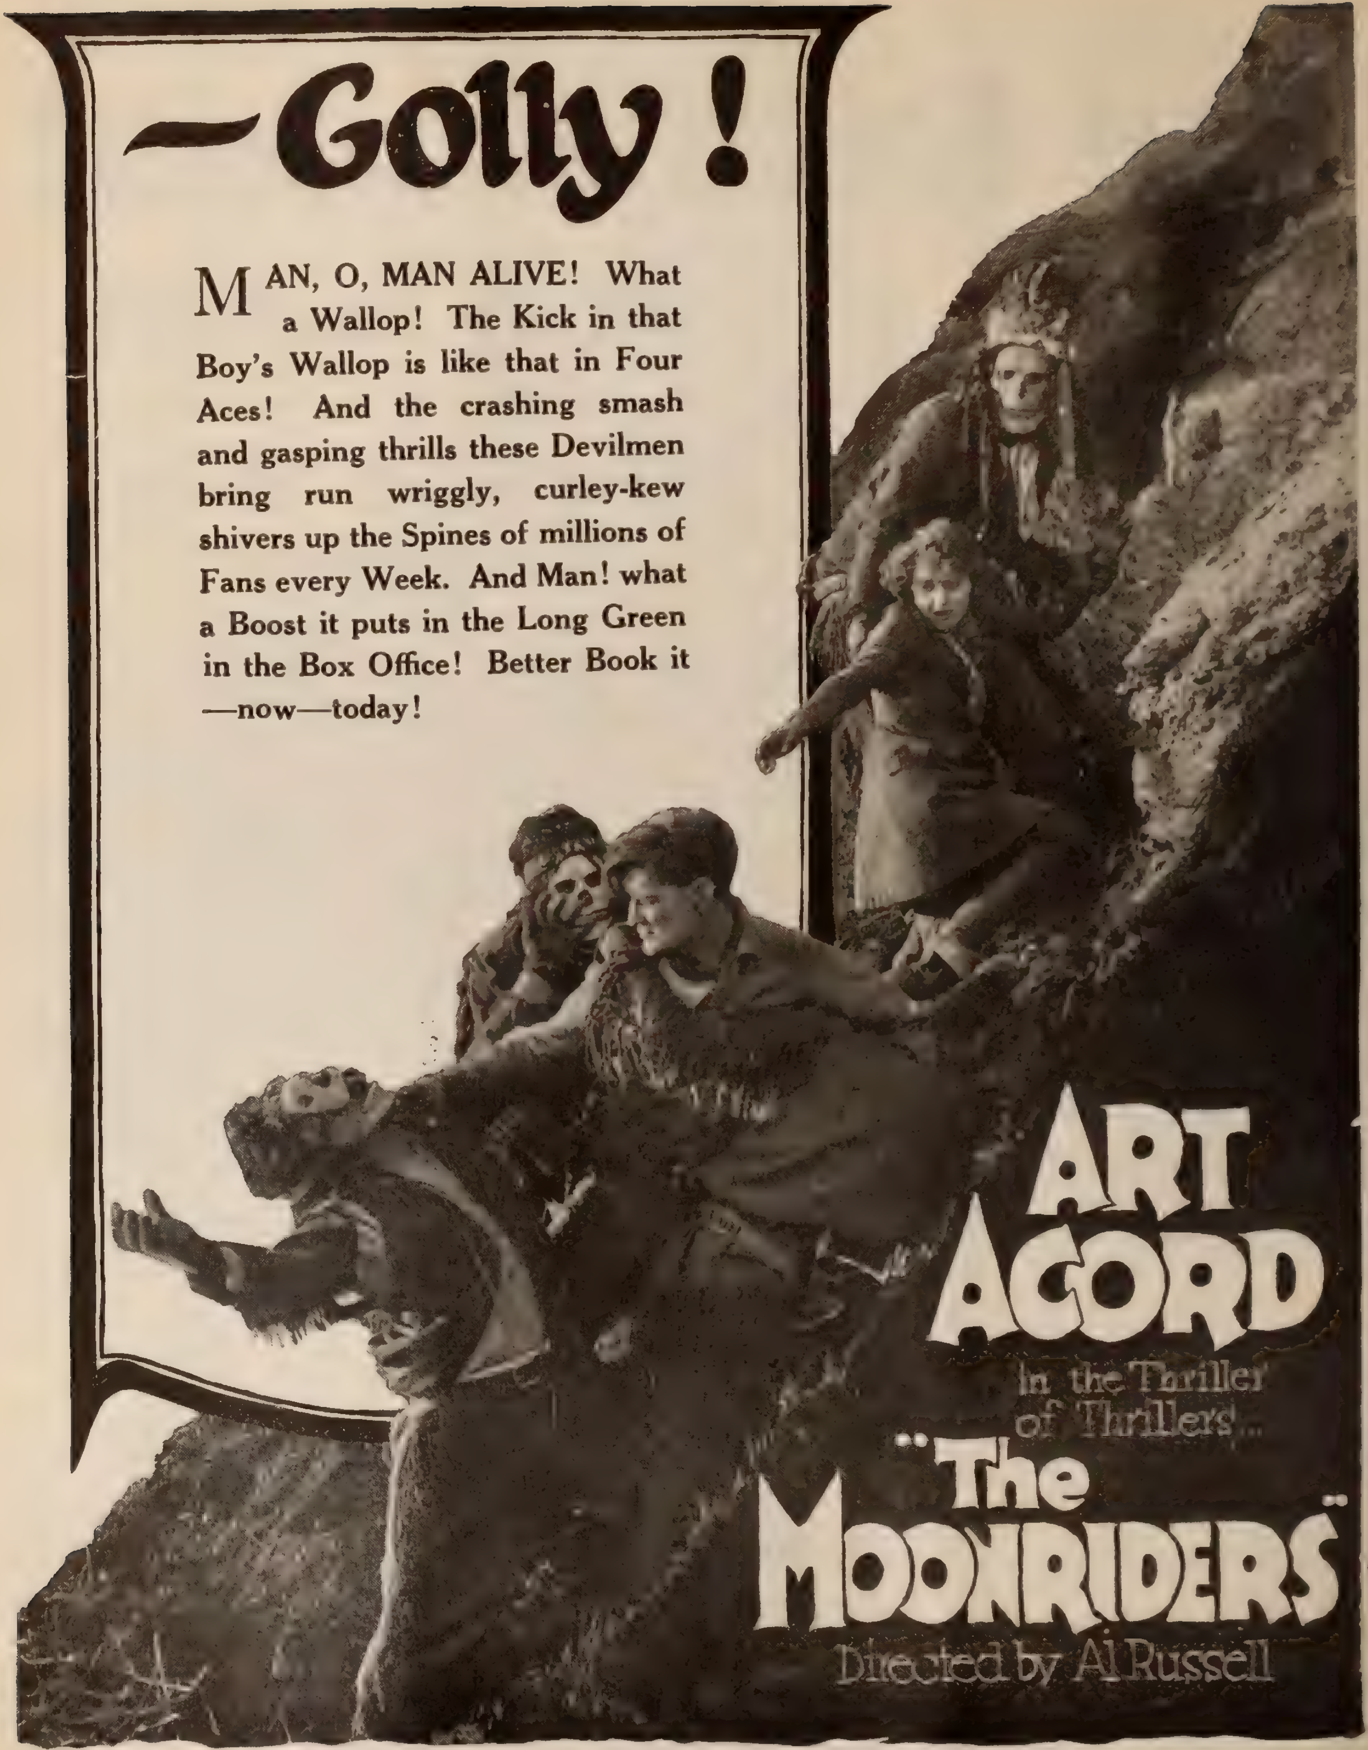
EVERY ONE A TWINKLER

STAR COMEDIES

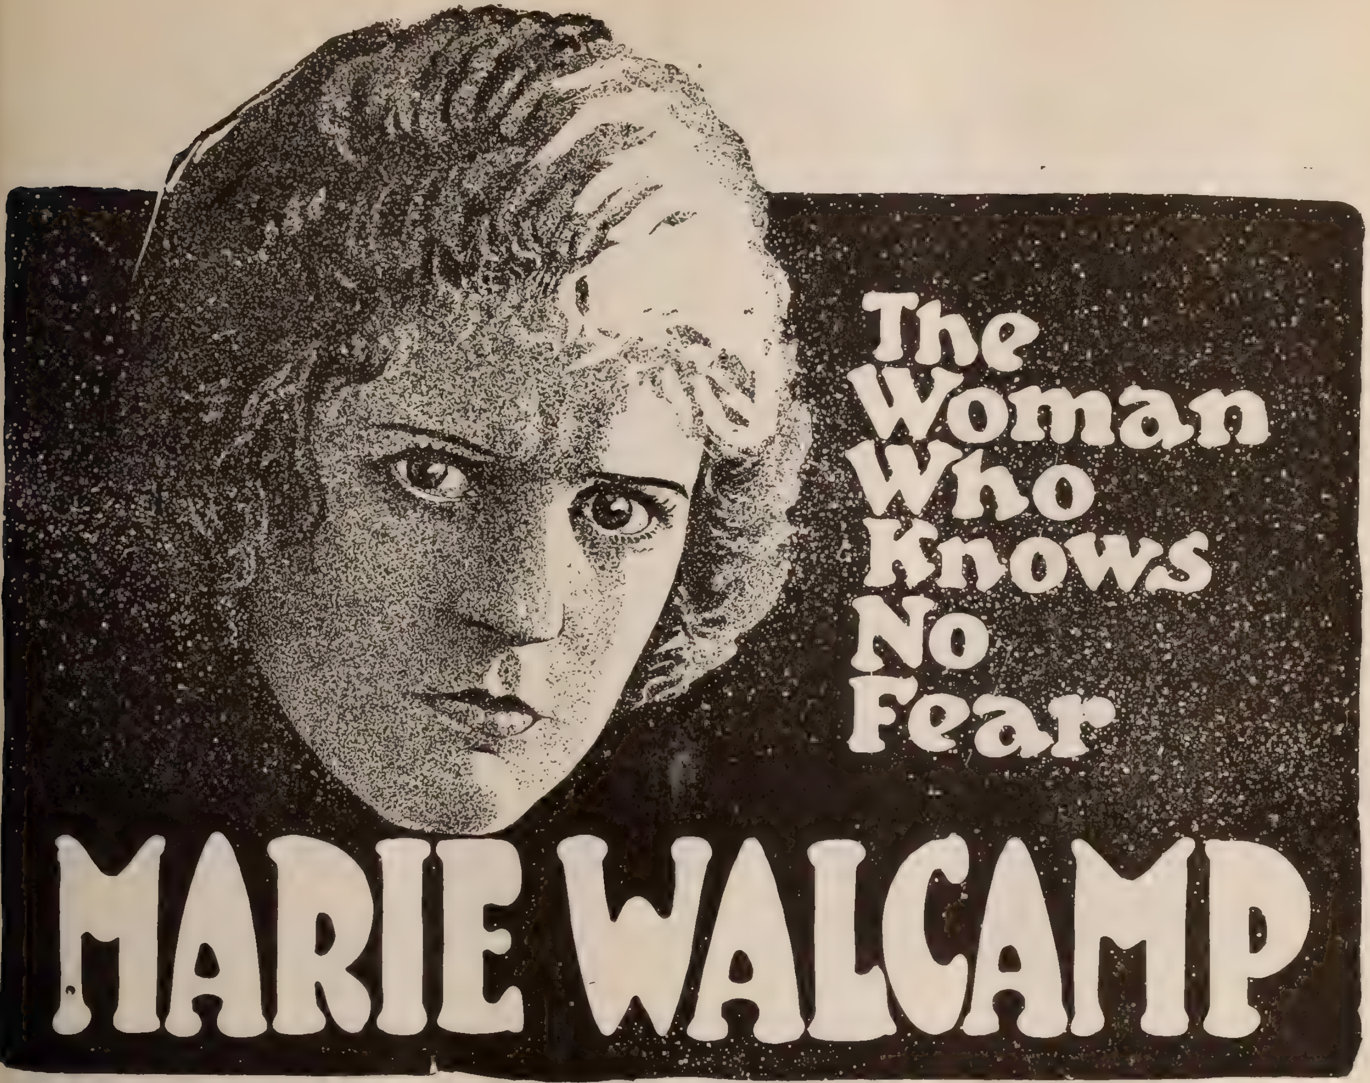
THE real stuff. Laughs . . . rollicking, roaring, house-rocking laughs: guffaws . . . giggling, gurgling, gusto-gushing guffaws; crowds . . . cramming, captivated, carnival-capacity crowds; receipts . . . real, rip-roaring, record-making receipts! Don't delay—Get it to-day!

—Golly!

MAN, O, MAN ALIVE! What a Wallop! The Kick in that Boy's Wallop is like that in Four Aces! And the crashing smash and gasping thrills these Devilmen bring run wriggly, curley-kew shivers up the Spines of millions of Fans every Week. And Man! what a Boost it puts in the Long Green in the Box Office! Better Book it —now—today!



ART ACORD
in the Thriller of Thrillers...
"The MOONRIDERS"
Directed by Al Russell



The Woman Who Knows No Fear
MARIE WALCAMP

A REAL SERIAL: has a REAL star; REAL in its thrilling, gasping adventures; REAL in its scenes taken on the ground in China, Japan, the Philippines and the United States. You should really book this REAL, smashing serial for REAL crowds and REAL receipts.

"The DRAGON'S NET"

Released thru Universal—Directed by Henry McRae

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 11

"The Dynamite Trail"

ELMO, by means of his gigantic strength, frees himself from the ascending plank.

The motorcyclist arrives on the scene and Helen prepares to escape with him through a subterranean tunnel while Elmo waits for Stanton and the housekeeper.

Barrows manages to capture Stanton, but with the aid of the gang, he manages to escape. Elmo in the meantime has rendered the flaming disk temporarily useless by removing the radio lens.

Helen, in the interim, had been stolen away from the mysterious motorcyclist by some of the Stanton gang and taken to Stanton's place in Brush Canyon. Elmo and the mysterious motorcyclist get wise to this and start in pursuit on motorcycles. When the gang discovers that the two are on their track, they plan another fearful deed. They take Helen outside on the ridge where Elmo will see her and then prepare to open a series of deadly switches which will explode the mines on the upper trail which Elmo and the cyclist will take. Stanton instructs Jim in the handling of the switches as Elmo and his mysterious friend gradually make for the trail, but when Jim is slow in the handling of the apparatus, Stanton takes a hand himself and a fearful explosion follows. It looks as if Elmo and his friend will go down to their doom.

"Forbidden Brew"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE is a chambermaid in a hotel. Her little boy stays with her during the day. Lizzie does a lot of breaking up around the place in the course of her working.

A bootlegger dwells in the hotel and hands out whisky to the guests over a shelf in the wall which can be easily concealed. A bride and groom arrive at the hotel and the groom gets wise to the whisky, and gets some generous portions.

A revenue officer enters. He makes Lizzie his deputy. Lizzie trails up the bootlegger and gets into all kinds of trouble in so doing. She even gets into the bridal chamber and causes a row between the bride and groom. The bootlegger is trapped and Lizzie is paid handsomely by the revenue officer.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 8

"Treachery"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Maison
Mary	Kittoria Beveridge
Helen	Corinne Porter
Winters	Charles Fortune

GRAY succeeds in keeping Eddie out of the recorder's office until he has torn the page containing the copy of the deed and proving Eddie's claim to the circus out of the book. Then he and his man escape. Mary rushes over from the hotel as Eddie enters and learns he has failed to save the precious records. At the same time Helen and Winters drive up outside the Hall of Records. Helen sends Winters in care of her chauffeur to his home in San Luis and then goes up to see Eddie. Eddie's warm welcome to Helen arouses Mary's jealousy, but Mary says nothing of it at the time. All of them start back for the circus lot while Gray and his man arrive there and Gray burns the last known evidence of Eddie's claim in the blacksmith forge.

When Eddie arrives he accuses Gray and demands restitution of his inheritance. Gray only laughs at him. At the same time Mary, jealous, gets some of the canvasmen to abduct Helen. She is carried away, but one of the men who is under obligations to Eddie tells him of the abduction and that Helen is to be taken to Mother Carey's lodging house. Eddie tsarts to the rescue.

Arriving at Mother Carey's Eddie gets Helen away from Gray's men and the fight leads to the attic, where Eddie and Helen are brought to bay. Unable to get at Eddie from the front, one of the canvassmen gets a gas bomb and smashes it on the wall of the attic. Both Eddie and Helen are overcome by the fumes and sink down unconscious as the episode ends.

New Screen Magazine

No. 96

MAGNESITE is a mineral noted for its heating and resisting qualities. The steel industry is partially dependent on it and therefore magnesite is very carefully mined. Until it reaches its final form of refinement, the process is a long and arduous one.

Edward Kunowitz and Miss Helene Marie Saxova of the Pavlova Russian Ballet, display their art for this issue of the magazine, illustrating the Hungarian Rhapsody, the Mazurka and a Polish peasant dance.

Uncle Sam is a natural history expert. In the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, one of the world's greatest museums, bones of giants are put together, specimens of birds now extinct are "brushed up a bit," all sorts of animal models are made, and so on.

There is an amusing animated in New Screen Magazine No. 96, by Pat Sullivan, entitled Sammie White Presents Hisself in "Flap Jacks."

"The Man With The Punch"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

The Stranger	Hoot Gibson
Jeff Sellers	Jim Corey
Fran Lane	Chas. Newton
Mary Lane	Dorothy Wood
Snake Harris	Ben Corbett

MARY LANE and her father, Frank Lane, live in a small western town which is in the grip of a lawless element, at the head of which is the supine sheriff, Jeff Sellers. As cowboys ride shooting through the town, Lane and Mary protest to Sellers, who knocks Lane down. Lane flees, leaving his hat and an old envelope addressed to him. Snake Harris, an outlaw, comes riding into town bringing a letter to Sellers from Shoshone Jim. It seems Sellers has sent to Shoshone for a real bad man. Snake is drunk and loses the letter; also he loses his way and takes the wrong road. The Stranger finds Snake's letter at the crossroads and delivers it to Sellers. Sellers, thinking The Stranger is the one Shoshone sent, plans with The Stranger to rob the stage of a gold shipment. The Stranger is to take Lane's letter and hat, leave them at the scene of the robbery for an alibi, as the stage driver is in on the plan.

But The Stranger meets Mary and Lane, has a fight with Snake in the saloon, and Snake is thrown unconscious into jail by Sellers. The Stranger retrieves the letter from Shoshone Jim and a hat of Sellers and robs the stage. Instead of incriminating Lane he has incriminated Sellers with the hat and lettter. The Stranger returns to town ahead of the stage, but in the meantime the Sheriff has learned his mistake and released Snake. The Stranger binds Snake and the stage driver, hands the incriminating documents to the Sheriff, who, without investigating, arrests Lane. Then it develops that instead of the evidence pointing to Lane, it points to Sellers, and The Stranger arrests him. It develops The Stranger is a deputy United States marshal. During his brief sojourn in town he has met Mary on several occasions, and a strong love attachment has sprung up between them, so that the romance winds everything up happily.

WHOA BOY!

STOP right here if it's serials you're looking for! In booking this action—speed-plus Eddie Polo—serial you get the thrilling chapter-play that is crowding 'em in week after week, leaving behind it a trail of tall tales to tell of bag-bulging receipts, record-making crowds and permanent and pleased patrons.

EDDIE

Polo

THE SMASHING
SEA-TO-SEA
SERIAL
directed by
POLO HIMSELF

"The VANISHING DAGGER"

"Tails Win"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

HARRY SWEET, ZIP MONTY and DIXIE LAMONT

A BOOKING agent has a beautiful wife and a beautiful stenographer who is also married, but the agent does not know it. Agent fires his bookkeeper, whereupon stenog. calls up hubby and tells him to come down to get the job, but not to mention that he is her husband. Husband lands the job, but when he has to watch agent making love to his wife, he calls up agent's wife and tells her to come down to the office to get divorce evidence. Wifey hires detectives and quite a mix-up follows when the detectives mistake wifey herself for the woman in the case.

Stenog. receives a letter saying she has fallen heiress to a circus, but that it has all been taken to pay the debts of the estate except two boxes which are being shipped her.

Detectives frame up to have agent's wife visit stenog. and then call up that stenog. is dying and wants agent to come to her. This does take place when wifey is at stenog's home and agent rushes to see stenog.

In the meantime boxes have arrived for stenog. and she and agent are opening same. Suddenly a number of lions jump from the box and there is great excitement. The stenog. faints in the arms of the agent; the wife sees it all; the lions give chase, and it is a long time before everything is peacefully and amicably settled.

International News

No. 81

London and Paris.—France and England pay remarkable tributes to unknown war heroes.

Sub-Titles.—At the Centopah in London—with King George and the Prince of Wales placing the first wreaths. The coffin of the "Unknown Warrior" on its way to Westminster Abbey with the royal family and Britain's greatest men in the procession. In the French capitol—amidst unprecedented scenes, the cortege of the "Unknown Warrior" is borne to the Arc de Triumphe. President Millerand, Marshals Foch and Joffre are among the leaders of throngs who joined in the nation's symbolic tribute to its unknown heroes.

Syracuse, N. Y.—A victorious finish. Syracuse eleven winds up season with 14 to 0 victory over Colgate.

SubTitle.—Rooters for Syracuse—boys from St. John's Military Academy at Manlius, N. Y. (Omit from Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Spokane, Portland and Seattle.)

Pasadena California.—Army football team submerged by Navy. Pacific Fleet gobs overwhelm land fighters by 124 to 0. (For Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane and Seattle only.)

Amherst, Mass.—Noted graduates help Amherst College drive for $3,,000,000 Fund. (Parading with "Prexy" Oldes.)

Sub - Titles. — Governor Coolidge helps the cause. And the Amherst team celebrates by defeating Williamstown 14-7.

New York City.—Victory for Quakers. Penn's team smashes through Columbia lines for 27-7 triumph. (Pittsburgh and Philadellphia only.)

Washington, D. C.—The last spring turkey for the President. Texas farmer sends Mr. Wilson a holiday bird in a miniature White House.

Sub-Titles.—A shipment of holiday dinners for us plain folks.—South Hatfield, Pa. "The holiday spirit" seems to peeve Mr. Turk.

Lavala, Greece.—Wrecked liner beached. British tars on duty in the Aegean Sea, aid in salvage work aboard battered ship. (Omit Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane and Seattle prints.)

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Pittsburgh engineers struggle desperately to hold big earth slide.

Sub-Title.—A dozen huge shovels work night and day. (Philadelphia and Pittsburgh only.)

San Francisco, Cal.—$60,000,000 naval site. Admiral Rodman and Congress Committee inspect location for great Pacific stronghold. (For Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane and Seattle prints only.)

Dublin, Ireland.—Reign of terror in unhappy Ireland. Armored crowds disperse embittered throngs as death list grows.

Dallas, Texas.—Flames destroy big oil plants. Millions of gallons of fuel feed great blaze. (Omit from Dallas prints.)

Point Isabel, Texas.—President-elect sails for Panama.

Sub-Titles.—Mr. Harding seeks warmer climate after a stormy ride on a "trick" railroad train. Even golf, with the thermometer at freezing, isn't much fun. So with a farewell to New Orleans' folk. The President-elect leaves for Panama.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—More trouble for New York's cops. "Wild West" riders to teach the Finest stunts like these.

Sub-Title.—When they can do these, they'll graduate.

Tad Cartoon.

International News

No. 82

Dublin, Ireland.—Smoke bombs used in Black and Tan's rule over Ireland. (Answering a riot call.)

Philadelphia, Pa.—Who gets the turkey? Aboard the battleship Minnesota the spryest jackey wins the bird. (To be omitted from Atlanta, Cleveland and Cincinnati.)

New York City.—Boosting Georgia. New York gives noted Dixie visitors a cordial welcome. (For Atlanta only.)

Canton, O.—Elks in big parade. "Best people" from many cities march in gallant array. (Cleveland and Cincinnati only.)

South Portland, Me.—Storms wreck ships. Schooner Pochasset aground off the Cuban coast.

Champayne, Ill.—Ohio's State team wins Conference honors with victory over Illinois.

Sub-Title.—The Buckeye boys go through—7 to 0. (For Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago only.)

Perrysburg, N. Y.—Snow birds reappear. Once again, youngsters seeking health via the strenuous route, revel in winter's healthgiving blanket.

In the Public Eye.—M. Paul Hymans, of Belgium, newly elected president of the League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland.

Sub-Titles.—Frederick H. Gillett, speaker of the House of Representatives—the December session is threatened with a spirited fight over his proposed re-election, Washington, D. C. The King and Queen of Spain are the guests of France, Paris, France.

Off the Florida Coast.—Fishing thrills lure sportsmen to Dixie. Giant Whipray furnished plenty excitement even after he is harpooned.

Sub-Titles.—And the Stingray is just as obstinate. The shark too is no gentle customer. Watch the pelicans dive for the unwary little ones.

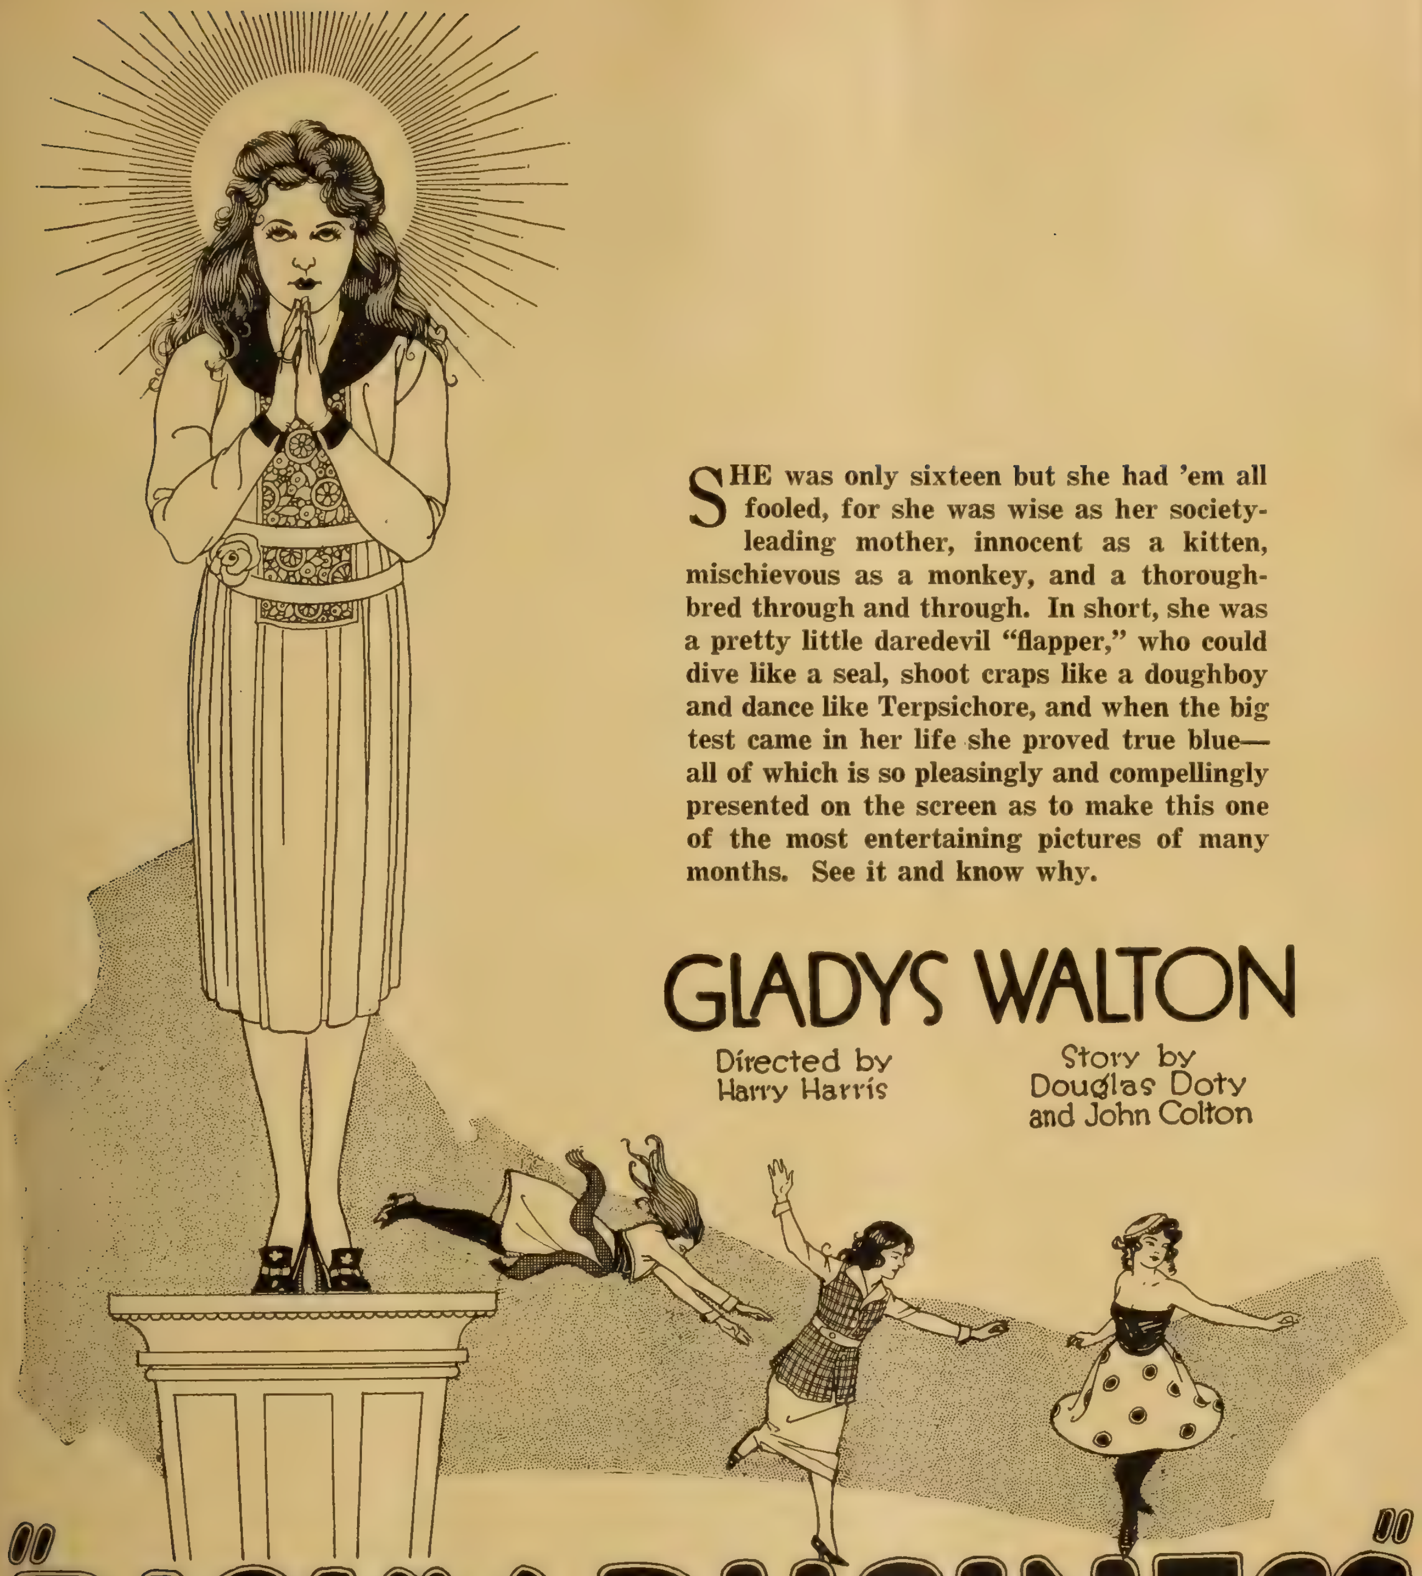
Belgium's Monarchs to Voyage to Brazil.

In the Adirondacks.—Wolf hunting with Artist Jacques Suzane in the year's first blizzard.

Sub-Titles.—Off for the hunt. On the trail. Through the wilds. Mr. Wolf scents peril He saves the hunter's ammnunition by stepping on the trap Monsieur Suzanne shows that an artist is not necessarily a mollycoddle. And rounds out the day with work on his latest canvas.

International Presents Thrilling Aero Feats by Uncle Sam's Pioneers of the Skies. Pictures made and just released by Engineering Division, Army Air Service.

Sub-Titles.—This is called "lifting-off"—the parachute catches the wind and pulls the performer with it—and no place to go but down. (Photographed at McCook Aviation Field.)



SHE was only sixteen but she had 'em all fooled, for she was wise as her society-leading mother, innocent as a kitten, mischievous as a monkey, and a thoroughbred through and through. In short, she was a pretty little daredevil "flapper," who could dive like a seal, shoot craps like a doughboy and dance like Terpsichore, and when the big test came in her life she proved true blue—all of which is so pleasingly and compellingly presented on the screen as to make this one of the most entertaining pictures of many months. See it and know why.

GLADYS WALTON

Directed by Harry Harris

Story by Douglas Doty
and John Colton

"RISKY BUSINESS"

52 UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS Good Pictures a Year 52

(Mats of this cut are available at your Universal exchange. Price 40c.)

Carl Laemmle
presents

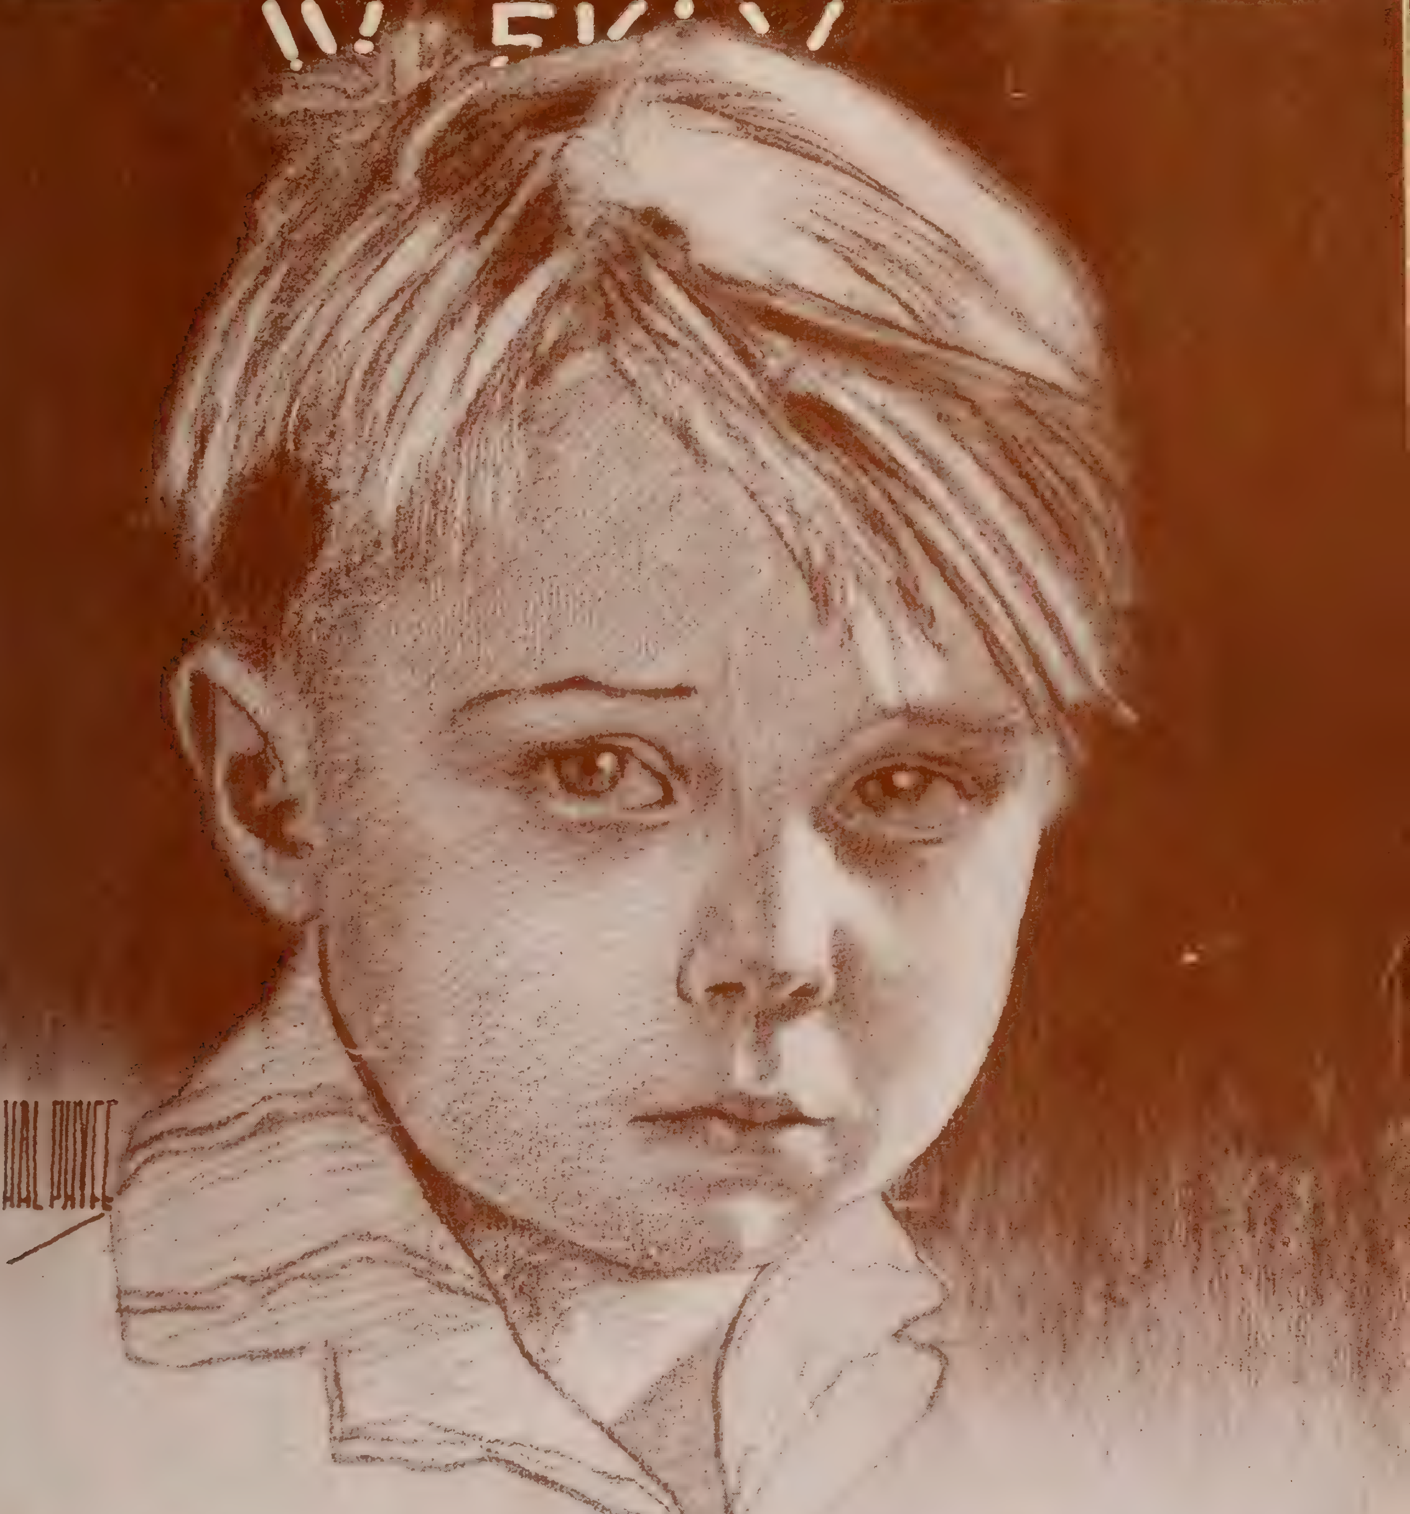
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

THIS is a story so startling and a picture so marvelously acted and photographed as to make you forget you are in a theatre. What grips your interest right at the start is its revelation of the perfectly desperate work which is always going on below the surface of society—drama so flamingly passionate in its loves and hates and merciless revenge as to seem to you impossible—until you realize that only your sheltered life has made these things seem unreal—that people are undergoing just such terrific moments right now, today—while you read this page—and that some few will live to tell the tale. And this as you well know, is just the kind of picture that Priscilla Dean can play better than any other actress in the whole wide world. Supporting her—Lon Chaney, that wonderful character actor who played in "The Miracle Man" and "The Penalty"—Wheeler Oakman, who was the hero in "The Virgin of Stamboul"—E. A. Warren, Ralph Lewis and a great company. Coming soon—one crowded hour of entertainment.

directed by
TOD BROWNING
Universal-Jewel
Production de Luxe
starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

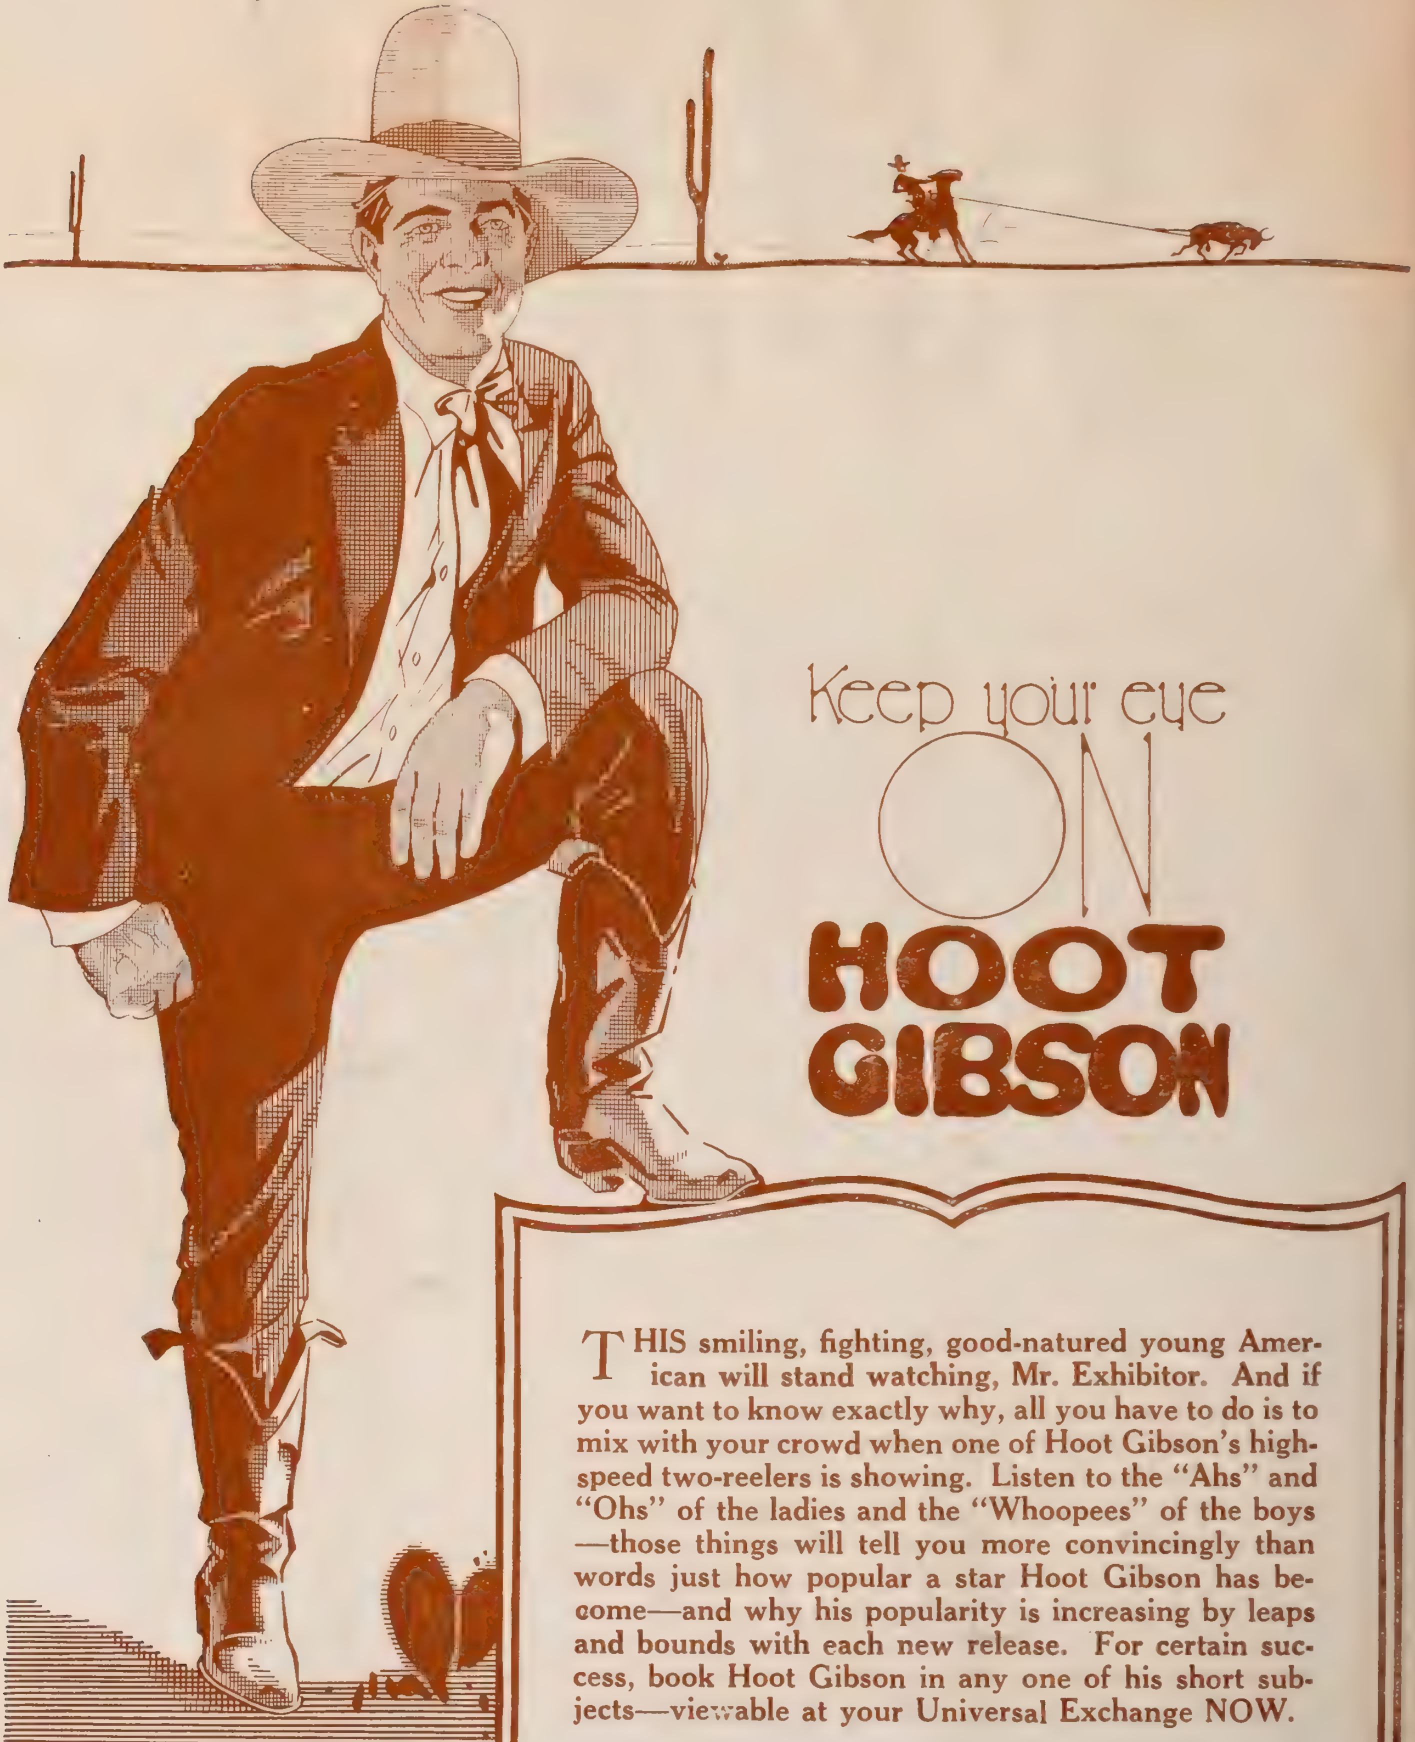


BREEZY EASON

IN

"TWO KINDS OF LOVE"

VOL 12 DEC 18. 1920 NO 18



Keep your eye ON HOOT GIBSON

THIS smiling, fighting, good-natured young American will stand watching, Mr. Exhibitor. And if you want to know exactly why, all you have to do is to mix with your crowd when one of Hoot Gibson's high-speed two-reelers is showing. Listen to the "Ahs" and "Ohs" of the ladies and the "Whoopees" of the boys—those things will tell you more convincingly than words just how popular a star Hoot Gibson has become—and why his popularity is increasing by leaps and bounds with each new release. For certain success, book Hoot Gibson in any one of his short subjects—viewable at your Universal Exchange NOW.

She was the smoothest swindler in New York—until she learned that money couldn't buy what she wanted most

CARMEL MYERS

in the third of her Eight Big Heart Pictures — a dramatically diverting story of a girl's misguided pursuit of happiness and her awakening

"Beautifully Trimmed"

Story by MARGUERITE
C. STORRS

Directed by
MARCEL de SANO

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS
52
Good Pictures
a Year

(Note—Your newspaper can reproduce this ad. in any size desired right from this page.)

Service Page for "Two Kinds of Love"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Two Kinds of Love."

FEATURED PLAYERS—A special Universal cast including "Breezy" Eason.

PREVIOUS HITS of "Breezy" Eason—Child parts with Harry Carey, Hoot Gibson, and the boy in "Pink Tights."

DIRECTED BY—Reaves Eason.

STORY BY—Douglas Doty and John Colton.

SCENARIO BY—Douglas Doty and John Colton.

SUPPORTING CAST—Reaves Eason, George McDaniels, Jimsy May, Ted Brooks, Fontaine LaRue, Charles Newton.

LOCALE—San Gabriel Canyon.

TIME—The present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a bitter feud growing out of the last California gold rush; how a woman and a child are unwittingly drawn into the maelstrom of hate and vengeance and how, through the instrumentality of the child, love and happiness come to the one man and the one woman.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—A story of unusual plot and dynamic situations by the well-known authors, Douglas Doty and John Colton.

2—The fact that the actual site of a deserted gold-camp was used as the locale of the story.

3—The story was directed by Reaves Eason, the director who made "Pink Tights" and other big successes.

4—The appealing work of little "Breezy" Eason, the four-year-old kiddie who puts humor, pathos and punch into every scene.

5—The novel climax, smashingly depicted, which lends itself to exploitation; being the confusion surrounding the relationship of the girl in the story to the man.

6—The splendid characterizations of George McDaniels, Jimsy May and Ted Brooks, all popular players.

7—The spectacular fight to the death in the deserted canyon between Ben Mason and Bull Dorgan.

8—The interesting aspect of a director playing one of the four leading roles; it being the first time in two years that Eason has been on the screen.

9—Some of the most beautiful scenery of the western country—several locations never before filmed.

CAST

Mason	George McDaniels
Fred Watson	Ted Brooks
Kate Watson	Jimsy May
Bobby Watson	Reaves Eason, Jr.
Dorgan	Reaves Eason, Sr.
Mickey	By himself
Sita	Fontaine LaRue
Jim Morley	Charles Newton

THE STORY

THE scene is laid in a wild gulch known as Dead Man's Canyon, in the Far West.

Fifteen years before the story opens the scarred sides of this canyon were thronged with men feverishly delving for gold. There was fierce rivalry and much bloodshed, and then their wild spirits dirfted away to more promising fields—all except one man known as Bull Dorgan, who came here each summer for reasons of his own and lived like a hermit in a small shack.

One day there comes crawling into this region a pitiful little caravan. On the front seat of the covered wagon sits a young woman, a boy and a dog. Inside is a sick man, searching for renewed health and renewed fortune in the high air.

Bull resents their arrival till he sees the girl. He points out an abandoned shack on the claim of a man in prison for murder. So the family settles down on Ben Mason's property. Kate and the boy, Bobby, tenderly get the boy's father settled. Fred Watson is not only physically ill; he is an all-round weakling. Bull hides his unclean desire behind a false smile and offers aid.

Then one evening Ben Mason, pardoned by a merciful governor, returns to his own. Sullen and bitter, and hating all women, he is at first feared by the Watson family whom he orders out of his place. As Fred is too ill to be moved, he gives them a week to get out. Bull shows fear and covert hatred when he meets Ben.

By degrees Ben is softened by the charm of the girl whom he takes to be Fred's wife, and by the appealing trustfulness of the little boy.

One day Ben confides his story to Kate—that he was wrongfully convicted of murder. He saw the arm of the man who had shot his old partner, as it reached through the window, gun in hand. On the forearm was a tatooed rattlesnake. Ben means to find the man. His dead partner had hidden a great cache of gold dust; its exact location indicated by a torn map, half of which he has. Bull Dorgan has the other half—for years he has been searching for the cache.

Ben and Bull engage in fierce combat from which Ben emerges seriously wounded. He is nursed back to health by Kate Much suffering follows for the trio and the death of Fred puts a damper on all of them. Ben protects the woman and the child but is unhappy in the suspicion that Kate, whom he had grown to love, was not Fred's wife. After many months of weary waiting Ben proves his conviction that Bull was the murderer of his partner and his happiness would have been complete when he finally located the cache of gold, but for his doubt about Kate. All doubts are cleared away, however, when Kate explains that she was Fred's sister and merely posed as his wife because she feared Bull Dorgan.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Too affectionate to be his wife; too young to be his mother; too innocent to be neither. What was she? See "Two Kind Of Love."

She was alone in the deserted canyon with three men—one a weakling, one a brute and one a cynic. See how her salvation was accomplished by the unconscious heroism of a child in "Two Kinds Of Love."

She only saw the rainbow; he only saw the pot of gold. But each received a newer vision with the dawning of love. See "Two Kinds Of Love."

They should put a luxury tax on Universal's photodrama, "Two Kinds Of Love." It's that good. See it.

HARRY CAREY

AS a novel, "West is West" was truly a "best-seller." But any novel has its limitations; for instance, no novel could bring you right down into a real mine, 2,000 feet below the surface of the ground, and show you such entertaining action there as does this picture. So, when you have a popular story, dramatically told in pictures, you have something the public wants. This picture is just that—Book it!

"WEST IS WEST"

Directed by Val Paul. Story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS
52 Good Pictures a Year 52

Publicity Stories for "Two Kinds of Love"

A SPECIAL CAST HAS BEEN SELECTED FOR THRILLING DRAMA OF FAR WEST

"TWO Kinds of Love" the thrilling drama of gold, of woman and of deep tragedy, is not a starring vehicle fo rany particular actor or actress although its cast is composed of five well-known figures in the world of the cinema. It is a picture with a special cast, carefully selected.

First there is "Breezy" Eason, most adorable of screen youngsters, famed for his entrancing performance in "Pink Tights." He plays an extremely important part in "Two Kinds of Love."

Reaves Eason, Sr., father of "Breezy," who directed the production also takes the principal "heavy" role, that of Bull Dorgan, and although it is some years since Eason, Sr., has acted, according to all reports, he handles this difficult role splendidly.

Ted Brooks, that experienced and splendid actor, has the role of the invalid. And virile George McDaniels plays the leading man role which calls for a strong actor such as he is.

The feminine part of "Two Kinds of Love" is represented by Jimsy May, She is the wife of the director, Reaves Eason, and the mother of young "Breezy." She is an actress of experience, and a beautiful young woman, quite capable of handling the difficulties of the important role she is called upon to portray.

"Two Kinds of Love" is full of the unusual. Its action takes place in a weird, romantic region and it treats of unusual happenings in the lives of humans. The whole story has been very realistically conceived by those splendid writers, John Colton and Douglas Doty and the whole company was transported to a famous California canyon for atmosphere.

"TWO KINDS OF LOVE" IS WORK OF TWO BRILLIANT AUTHORS

IF past performances are any indication, then "Two Kinds of Love," the Universal photodrama presented by an all-star cast and directed by Reaves Eason which is to be shown at the .... Theatre next .... should prove one of the most interesting stories of the year.

"Two Kinds of Love" is the result of the combined efforts of two of the most brilliant writers who are devoting their present time to the screen. One is Douglas Doty, formerly editor of the Century Magazine and the Cosmopolitan Magazine, and before that a well known writer for leading publications. The other is John Colton, whose stories have been published by the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, the Cosmopolitan and other magazines.

Both Doty and Colton are confining their present screen work to the needs of Universal producers. Their work is not only of a high literary and dramatic quality, but tinged with a timely humor and a keen knowledge of human nature. Since coming to California the idea suggested itself to them that there must be a world of romance about the old deserted mining camps—among the ghostly shacks and tottering structures that bear witness to the feverish activity of several decades ago. So they wandered up to San Gabriel Canyon, where in 1870 ten thousand men were digging for the precious yellow metal. The camp has been deserted for many years and now only an occasional horseman finds his way down the mountain trail. In this atmosphere, living in a tumble-down shack, they wrote the story of "Two Kinds of Love," and Universal sent its company, under the direction of Reaves Eason, to this very spot to film the principal scenes.

GEORGE McDANIELS HAS BIG ROLE IN THRILLING UNIVERSAL DRAMA

"GREATER love hath no man than that he lay down his voice for the silent drama."

The old quotation can stand a little twisting to apply to George McDaniels, the Universal leading man who is to be seen at the .... Theatre, where "Two Kinds of Love" is playing.

McDaniels was born in Atlanta, Ga., and left the Atlanta Colloge of Physicians and Surgeons to become a baritone with the Victor Herbert productions. He sang in concert for several seasons and in 1915 was the singing sensation of the revival of "Damon and Pythias."

With his voice improving each season and his popularity phenomenal among music lovers, McDaniels deliberately left the audible stage and began his screen career.

Before going to Universal City to play the masculine lead in "Two Kinds Of Love," McDaniels appeared in such productions as "The Little Princess," "The Door Between," "The She Devil," "Lombardi, Ltd.," and "The Shepherd of the Hills."

In "Two Kinds of Love," Universal's dramatic story of a deserted mining camp, McDaniels plays opposite Jimsy May, wife of Reaves Eason, and has for an ally little "Breezy" Eason, the four-year-old member of the all-star cast.

As Ben Mason, a miner who has been unjustly sent to the penitentiary, McDaniels returns to the deserted gold-camp in time to participate in the smashing plot which is contained in "Two Kinds Of Love."

The story of "Two Kinds of Love" was written by Douglas Doty, story editor of Universal, in collaboration with John Colton, a well-known magazine writer.

COMPANY ENCOUNTERS DANGERS IN FILMING "TWO KINDS OF LOVE"

TO assure absolute realism for "Two Kinds of Love," the Universal photodrama which is now attracting crowds to the ——— Theatre, the producing company penetrated the almost impassable depths of the San Gabriel canyon of California and filmed the story on the actual site of a deserted gold camp.

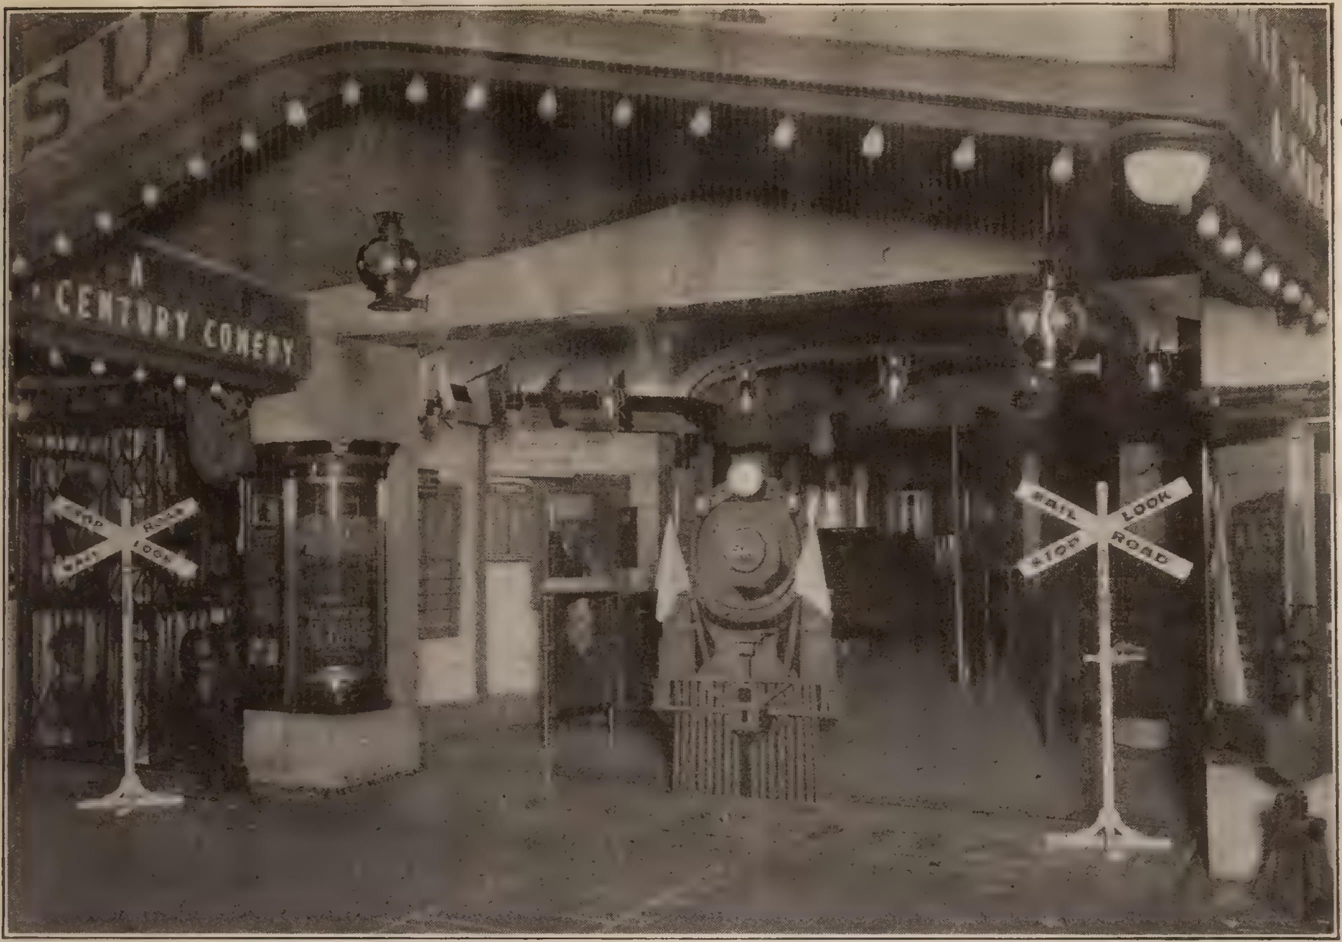
The story is based on a series of incidents having their origin in the last California gold rush and was written by Douglas Doty and John Colton. Reaves Eason directed the production.

To reach the location of the abandoned gold-camp, Eason was forced to transport his equipment by pack train.

Cautiously the heavily-laden mountain burros wound their way around treacherous mountain trails; trails obliterated by time and trails over which no pack-train has passed since the ten thousand men who made the canyon teem like a great city in the hours of the gold fever abandoned the site.

Coming up through the canyon to its crest at twilight, Eason and his Universal company saw the ghost of a gold-camp with the superstructure of the mine looming phantom-like against the sky. Wild goats scampered up the trail that had once blazed with light as the main street of the money-mad town. The night wind shrieked through the ruins of the tumble-down cabin and in the half-glow of evening they saw the flash of a wild-cat's eyes in the tangled underbrush fringing the trail.

Eason reconstructed the village from the ruins and on the selfsame site of the old Sonanza, filmed the most dramatic scenes for "Two Kinds of Love."



Lobby display of the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, for Eva Novak in "Wanted at Headquarters."

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

THE Moving Picture Weekly takes pleasure in reproducing above a photograph of the lobby display devised by the Superba Theatre of Los Angeles, Cal., in connection with that house's showing of Eva Novak in "Wanted at Headquarters." This is indeed an ingenious and attractive lobby display, and one which was executed at a minimum of cost.

We can never get enough of these lobby displays, and we repeat once again that we should be grateful for any photographs of their individual lobby displays which exhibitors will send to us. In this way exploitation ideas can be readily disseminated; one exhibitor can learn and get inspiration from the other. Enterprising exploitation and the constant devising of exploitation ideas means more money and easier money in the cash box of the showman, and we feel that there is no better place to show one showman in the East how his brother in the West and vice versa is "putting over" his pictures than in The Moving Picture Weekly.

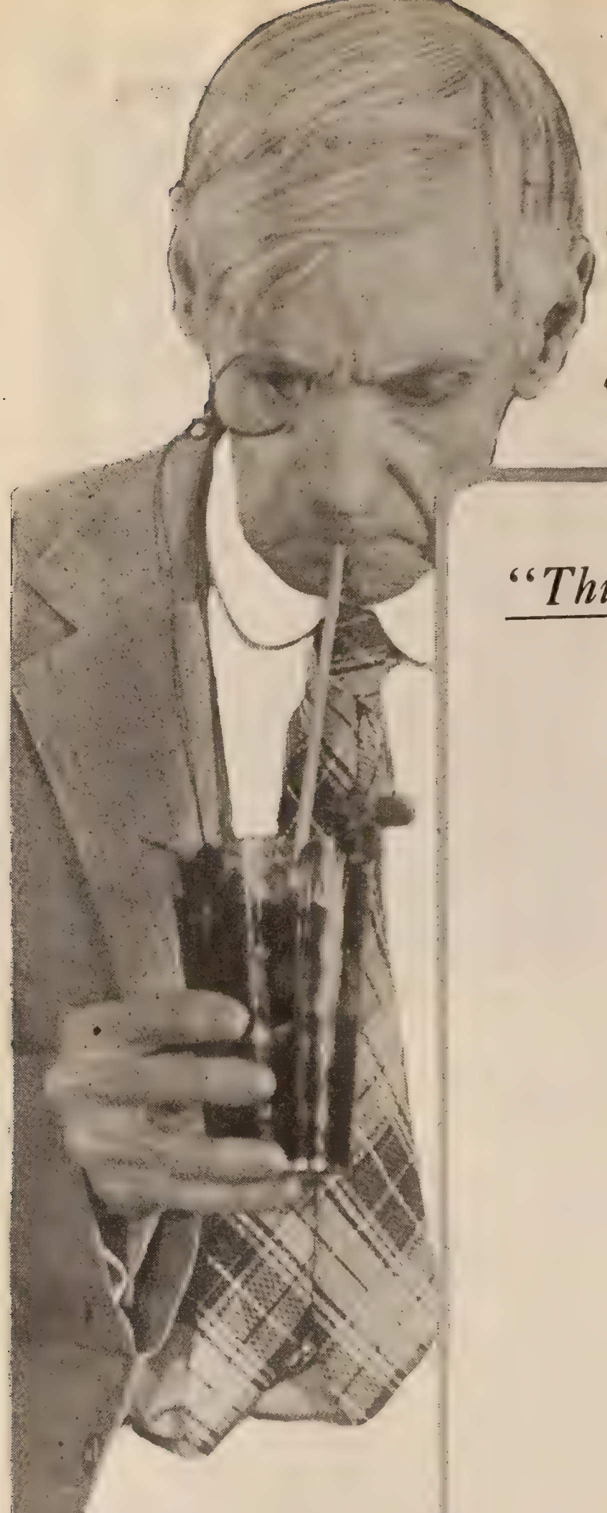
All photographs should be addressed to The Moving Picture Weekly, 1600 Broadway, New York City, and the editor would be grateful if the pictures would be accompanied by a short descriptive account of just how the lobby was decorated, and how the general exploitation idea was carried out.

ONE of the most novel and brilliantly executed lobby displays that has come to the attention of Universal recently is that devised and designed by W. E. Jones, manager of the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, and his staff, for the showing of "Wanted at Headquarters," the Universal special attraction starring Eva Novak.

The flags and railroad equipment were loaned the Superba Theatre by the Southern Pacific Railroad, and the Western Union loaned the house two telegraph instruments. The cashiers at the theatre kept these instruments constantly working, which caused passersby to stop. The railroad effect was carried out further in the painted track leading to the lobby and in the lobby cards themselves, which were made transparent wherever possible.

The most remarkable thing about this unusual lobby display is not its ingeniousness, however, but the fact that the only cost involved was about $12.00, which was paid to a scenic artist who painted the railroad station.

"Wanted at Headquarters" broke all house records at the Superba Theatre. This interesting crook and society drama has introduced Eva Novak to moviegoers as a Universal Star and so excellent was her portrayal of the title role that Universal immediately went on the lookout for more material for her talents. She will next be seen in "The Torrent."



EDITH ROBERTS

"This is the man she must marry!"

THIS tottering wreck, this old dissipated fop, this roue—this was the man her grandfather had chosen for her husband!

LONG years before, her parents had married without his consent. And now—nineteen years later—this was to be his black revenge upon poor, innocent White Youth! Alone in the world! No one to counsel her—none to guide her! What to do? Whom to see? Where to go? How was she to act—this innocent girl who had never known how terrible this beautiful world could be!

THESE were but a few of the questions that blocked the road to happiness. And how she broke all conventions to answer the love-call of youth in her quest for romance and happiness makes this a picture long to be remembered. Book "White Youth" for a big success-artistically and financially.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52 Good Pictures a Year 52

n

"White Youth"

Story by Clara Beranger and Forrest Hallsey

Directed by Norman Dawn

The Easons---As They Are and As The

"Breezy" Eason

as Bobby Watson

"BREEZY" EASON, or Reaves Eason, Jr., as he was christened, has a big role in "Two Kinds of Love," a large part of the action of this dramatic story depending on him as Bobby Watson. But the role is not too much by a long ways for young Eason, who long ago demonstrated that he was an actor of excellent quality, even though his years numbered only four. "Breezy" has been on the screen ever since he was a babe, and has appeared in all sorts of pictures, from "Westerns" to adorale romance, as in "Pink Tights." It was in the latter production that young Eason scored the hit of his brief but rich career, and therefore no fear was felt in assigning to him the difficult role of Bobby Watson in "Two Kinds of Love." "Breezy" enjoyed acting that role, too, for it took him out to the wilds of the San Gabriel Canyon, where he had the time of his young life, frisking about in the rugged canyon country.

Reaves Eason

as Bull Dorgan

THE most dramatic role in "Two Kinds of Love" falls on the capable shoulders of Reaves Eason, Sr., father of the inimitable "Breezy." In spite of the fact that it has been several years since Daddy Eason acted, having devoted his talents exclusively to directing, he enacts his role with a dramatic fervor and with an easy art that is remarkable. And when one takes into consideration that Eason also directed this drama and made of it a consummate drama, the feat is nothing short of marvelous. Eason has made many excellent pictures, but his greatest was "Pink Tights," in which his own little boy gave so charming and lovable a performance. And in "Two Kinds of Love" he again lives up to the best traditions of the directorial Eason. Eason, Sr., likes acting and loves directing, but best of all he enjoys being daddy to his talented youngster, who is a constant source of pleasure and happiness to him.

Jimsy May (Mrs. Eason)

as Kate Watson

MRS. REAVES EASON, wife of the director and the happy mother of "Breezy," was a successful cinema actress before she left the silversheet. As Jimsy May she appeared in many successful pictures, but since her marriage she has had little time for anything else than Reaves and "Breezy" and the beautiful Eason bungalow. But "art will out," and when Universal insisted that Mother Eason emerge from her retirement to play the role of Kate Watson, Daddy and "Breezy" were nothing loathe, for it meant that they would have more of their charming mother's company. Jimsy May has not forgotten how to act since she became manager-in-chief of the Eason domestic outfit, and she makes a charming and winsome picture as Kate Watson in "Two Kinds of Love." Hers is a dignified and noble kind of beauty, admirably suited to the role which she is called upon to depict. It is to be hoped that Mother Eason will not be too busy to appear in other pictures, for she is a distinct addition to the feminine contingent of the screen.

y Appear in "Two Kinds of Love"

GEORGE McDANIELS isn't a blood relation of the Eason family, but there weren't enough Easons to go around, so he was called in to act in "Two Kinds of Love." George wasn't sorry by any means, for he found the Eason family a charming trio, who never for a moment let him feel that he was an outsider. When George left the operatic stage to become a screen actor he amazed all his friends, for he had a rich baritone voice and was making a success of himself in a number of notable productions. But George proved so excellent a screen actor and became so much in demand that his friends changed their minds about the rashness of the step. In "Two Kinds of Love," George has a sympathetic role, which is admirably suited to his virile personality. He is an excellent actor to cast opposite Jimsy May, and the two make the most of their many scenes together.

George McDaniels as Ben Mason

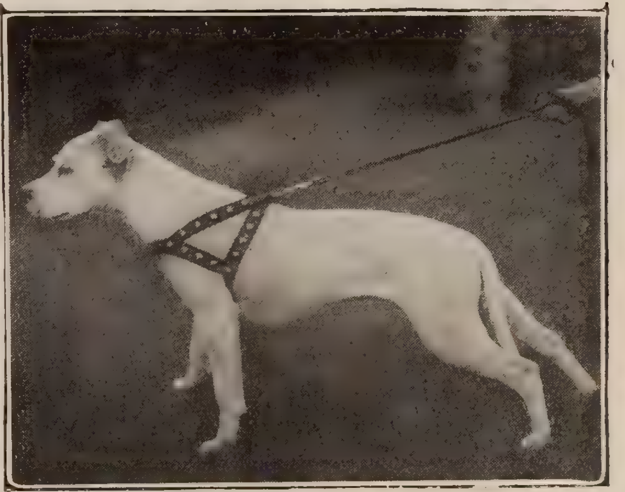
THE last member of the Eason family, but by no means the least, is Mickey Eason, the dog, whom "Breezy" loves and cherishes, and from whom he never will permit any one to separate him. Mickey is an honored member of the Eason family, and is always treated as such. He and "Breezy" have come to be familiar figures along the boulevards near the Eason home, and the attachment is so genuine on both sides that everybody in the neighborhood has come to love the little boy and the big friendly dog. Mickey has quite a role in "Two Kinds of Love," too, and although he is not a trained dog, in any sense of the word, he performs creditably, for "Breezy" coached him up a bit, and Mickey always listens to his young master. "Two Kinds of Love" is not the first picture in which Mickey has appeared, and it will by no means be the last if "Breezy" has anything to say about it. For "Breezy" is first of all a real little boy, and no real little boy likes to be separated from his beloved dog.



Mickey Eason himself.

Realistic Background Used In "Two Kinds of Love"

THE story of "Two Kinds of Love" centers about a tragedy occurring in a deserted canyon, once the seat of an active and prosperous mining camp. Reaves Eason, who directed the production, is a great believer in "realism," and he therefore transported the company to the San Gabriel Canyon, where most of the picture was filmed. In this canyon a hydraulic mining camp once flourished for fifty prosperous years. In 1870 the camp, known as Fellow's Camp, had six thousand inhabitants, most of whom were actively engaged in mining for gold.

A further bit of realism was employed by the director when he used the cabin built by John Knox, a notorious hermit and fugitive from justice for the shack of the villain, Bull Dorgan, in "Two Kinds of Love." Dorgan, in the story, is also a hermit and a fugitive from justice.

For the trail scenes in "Two Kinds of Love" Director Eason took his company twenty miles back through the San Gabriel Gorge. Eighteen pack mules and twenty-two saddle horses were required for transportation, and three weeks were consumed in making these scenes alone.

The delightful realism of its backgrounds, however, is not the only good thing about "Two Kinds of Love." Its story is a fascinating one, unusually treated, and it contains some highly dramatic and tense climaxes. It was written by Douglas Doty and John Colton, a clever literary combination that has given several excellent stories to the screen. The cast is a specially selected one, starring no one actor in particular, but composed of finished performers, every one of them. And the director, Reaves Eason, is a man of whom interesting production always can be expected.

"Two Kinds of Love" stands in a class by itself, for it is a "different" kind of picture. As such it should interest every person who finds interest and joy in the art of the cinema.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.

(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)

Vol. 12 DECEMBER 18, 1920. No. 18

EDITORIALS

IN this issue of the Moving Picture Weekly we take pleasure in presenting the first pages of announcement of Priscilla Dean's forthcoming melodramatic success, "Outside the Law," in which she is supported by Lon Chaney and Wheeler Oakman. We also wish to call attention to the novelization of the story of "Outside the Law," prepared under the auspices of the Publicity Department of the Universal and disseminated through the Universal system of exchanges. Any exhibitor who is desirous of having his newspaper run this novelization can obtain the story and the illustrations in mat form from the exchange through which he will book the picture, and it goes without saying that he will book the picture. It is certain to be one of the greatest money-makers of the year 1921, and will be the first super-feature released next year. For details of this novelization see page 18. There is also a double page of exploitation which can be used immediately by exhibitors who are going to play this feature. They will be found on pages 14 and 15.

IN the next issue of the Moving Picture Weekly, dated December 25th, there will be another broadside of Priscilla Dean "Outside the Law" publicity, and on this magazine will be a specially designed cover drawn by Hal Phyfe. It is the intention of the Poster Department to utilize this portrait for a special card poster, which can be shown by the better class houses which do not use regular posters as lobby display in front of their theatres.

THE January 1st issue of the Moving Picture Weekly will be devoted almost exclusively to the forthcoming serial "The Diamond Queen," starring Eileen Sedgwick, and now being made under the direction of Edward Kull. This issue of the Moving Picture Weekly will take the place of the regular campaign book, and will contain in addition to the colored cover a colored insert of the posters which are to be used for this serial. The pages in the book will be devoted to exploitation and publicity for "The Diamond Queen." You will note that it is issued well in advance of release date of the serial, and it is the sincere hope of the editors that the book will be religiously kept and utilized by the subscribers when the serial is actually released.

IN this connection it has occurred to the management of this paper several times that it would be useful to many exhibitors if a cheap and effective form of binder could be devised in which the Moving Picture Weekly could be bound by exhibitors and kept as permanent assistance in the exploitation of Universal pictures. The Big Ben Binder is such an expensive proposition that we very soon gave up the idea of even suggesting to exhibitors that they purchase it. Since that time, however, we have discovered a binder which is just as practical, although not quite as beautiful, and can be made to retail for one-half the price. Any exhibitor who desires one of these binders can secure one by writing to the Editor of the Moving Picture Weekly and enclosing stamps or money order in the amount of Fifty Cents. These binders will hold twenty-six books, which completes one volume of the Moving Picture Weekly. We issue two volumes a year. As soon as a binder is filled in this way the books may be taken out and put into a permanent depository, and the same binder used to start the new volume.

THE attention of exhibitors is also called to page 5, on which a lobby display is reproduced. We wish to assure exhibitors again that the columns of this Weekly are open not only for photographs of lobby displays, but to articles designed to show the manner in which wide-awake exhibitors have put over productions in their theatres. The columns of the Weekly are open also to any other interesting exhibitors' topics, and we shall be very glad to hear from any one whose interest prompts him to write to the Weekly.

WE saw a remarkable picture in the Universal projection room the other day and cannot refrain from calling it to the attention of exhibitors before they will have the opportunity to see it or to book it. The name is "Fire Bugs" and it is a two-reel Century comedy. Nothing so comical, clean and excellent fun has been seen this whole year on the comedy screen. Take our word for it that this is a clean-up. Get your local fire department to co-operate on the exploitation of this picture. Tell them about it now, and let them use your theatre as a benefit hall for the occasion.

Interesting Facts About Tod Browning

His Life, Rich In Adventure, Activity and Achievement, Reads Like A Fascinating Tale Out Of A Story Book

IT was in Kentucky—Louisville, to be exact—that State of thoroughbred horses, brilliant men and beautiful women—that Tod Browning first saw the light. And Kentucky can well be proud of him and count him as one more in its honor roll.

It is given to few men to live a life so rich and crowded with vivid and picturesque experiences as that of Tod Browning's. He is still a comparatively young man, but can look back over years rich in adventure, activity and achievement.

Tod Browning went the way of most boys for the first fifteen or sixteen years of his life—fishing and swimming and "playing hookey" whenever he got a chance. He attended the public school at 13th and Green Streets and the Boys' High School at 8th and Chestnut Streets in Louisville, and he didn't bother much about making any brilliant records.

One fine day there appeared on the highways of Louisville a street fair, and that was the end of all even routine for Tod Browning. For, boylike, he became enamored of circus life, and more particularly of a side show queen, and the carnival spirit entered his blood. His days at the family fireside were over. He became a bally-ho artist and drifted along from town to town with a struggling show. He emerged from that safe and sane, however, and at eighteen, graduated into the jockey class, riding the horses of a prominent Southern turfman. But the stage was in his blood, and he grew restless, and before long he formed a partnership with another enterprising young chap, and for several seasons they delighted vaudeville with an amusing act.

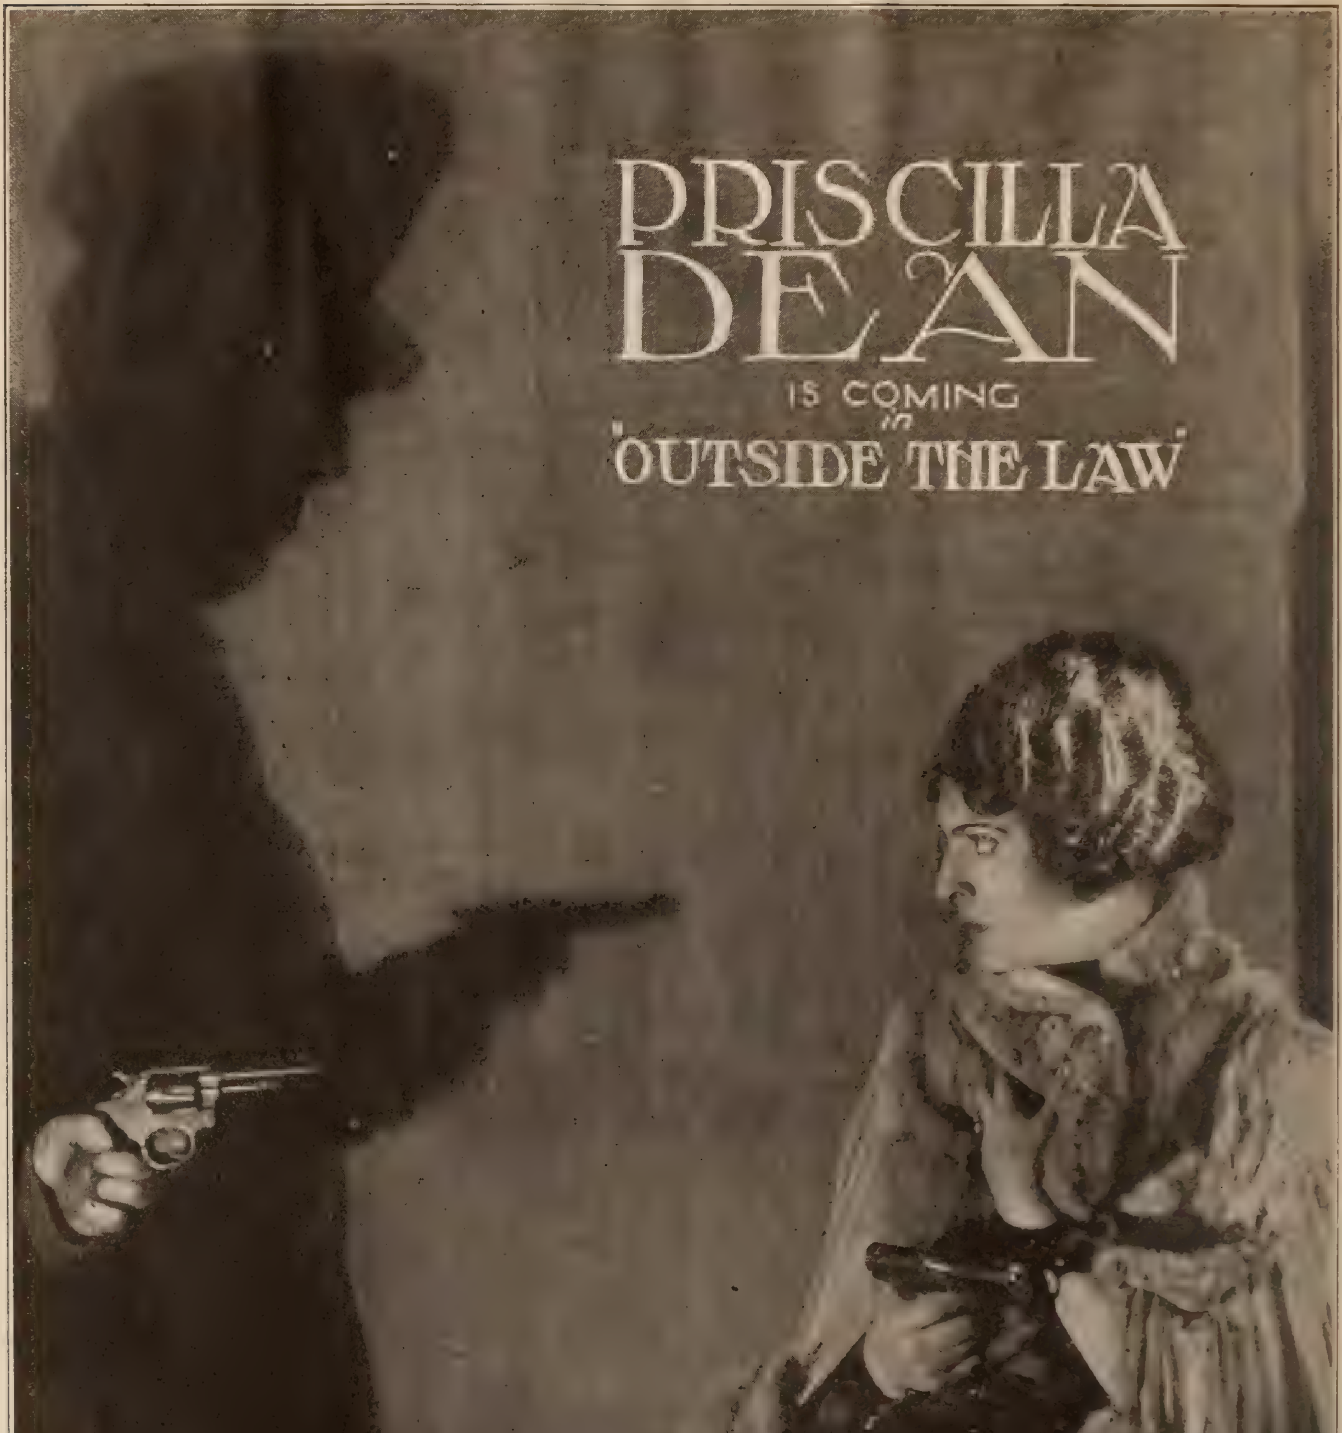
Tod Browning, who Conceived and Directed, "Outside The Law."

Tod Browning counts 1913 as his year. For it was during that year that he accosted a friend in New York City, who invited him to take the part of an undertaker in a two-reel moving picture comedy. Enterprising as ever, Browning grabbed the chance, delighted at being able to experience something new and novel. The director thought he was great, and as the director was none other than David Wark Griffith, Browning got ample opportunity to learn everything that there was to be learned about the cinema game. He graduated from an actor to an assistant director, and from an assistant director to director, and for five years now he has been handling the megaphone. And although the spirit of adventure is still strong in him, Tod Browning finds that the movies afford him ample excitement and adventure—give him plenty of opportunity to exercise that marvelous and fascinating imagination of his.

Many prominent stars have been made famous by superproductions produced by Browning. For "super-productions" are what the Browning genius alone can execute. He directed Priscilla Dean in her first starring picture, and realizing full well the unusual talent possessed by this girl, directed her to fame in "The Virgin of Stamboul."

And now Tod Browning will present another work of his art to his appreciative audiences; more his work than any other that he has heretofore done. For Tod Browning not only directed "Outside the Law," in which Priscilla Dean will be starred and in which she will be supported by the inimitable Lon Chaney; he conceived it and wrote it himself. It is the work of his profound genius, and he has given it freely of himself, overlooking not a detail and laboring patiently and perseveringly to whip it into final shape.

But Tod Browning has not finished—by no means, even though he has created a perfect masterpiece in "Outside the Law." For his is the real genius—the genius that never ceases to create.



PRISCILLA
DEAN
IS COMING
in
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

LET'S GO!

THAT is the spirit which best characterizes Priscilla Dean—"let's go." That is the spirit which makes her the first to take the initiative when there is a dangerous scene to be "shot." That is the spirit that makes her do things—big things, great things. And that spirit is perhap the reason for the meteoric success this girl has had —that is why her dynamic personality has endeared itself to millions, until to-day she holds one of the most enviable positions in the film world. Nothing is too difficult, too hazardous, too straining for Priscilla Dean to undertake, and undertake things she does, with never a bit of procrastination. She executes her activities with the same spirit with which she attacks them—ever full of vitality and a feminine vigor that is most refreshing. There is never anything "droopy" about Priscilla Dean—"let's go" is what the star of "Outside the Law" constantly exemplifies.

She has been doing things since she first started to walk. At four years she was acting with the renowned Joseph Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle." In her early teens she was a popular member of the gorgeous Follies Bergere in New York. When but a mere slip of a girl she made her bow on the silversheet, and now, at the very beginning of womanhood, with half a dozen notable successes already to her credit, she is to be the bright particular luminary of one of the biggest screen offerings of the forthcoming year—"Outside the Law." She has the world at her feet — photographers are clamoring to take pictures of her; artists by the legion desire her as a subject; modistes rave about the chic Miss Dean and how admirably she wears their creations; authors submit stories to her by the hundreds, and there is scarcely a big director who would not grasp at an opportunity to execute a production around the scintillating and interesting personality of this brilliant and lovable girl.

Although her features are so finely chiseled as to be remarkable in their perfection; although her figure and carriage suggest ease and grace; although hers is a face delightful in repose and capable of the most beautiful emotional expression, it is not beauty principally that is called to one's mind at the mention of Priscilla Dean. It is personality—arresting, fascinating, individual personality. She is a keen believer in personality, this girl-wonder of the screen, and it is what she emphasizes particularly in interviewing the hundreds of screen-struck girls who come to her with their aspirations and their ambitions.

The things that Priscilla Dean can do are legion. She can ride and dive and swim; she can play baseball and football and tennis; she handles a motor car like an experienced veteran; the air holds no fears for her; she loves to cook, to bake, to sew, to garden, and numerous other housewifely occupations, and in dancing she finds unalloyed joy. How she ever found time to educate herself in all these accomplishments is difficult to realize, for the screen has clamored continuously for her in the past few years and she has given herself generously. It is the Dean spirit, however, the spirit that enters whole-heartedly and quickly into everything, and that assuredly is the spirit of achievement.

She fits quite naturally into the role that Tod Browning has woven for her in "Outside the Law," for it is a role of undaunted, enterprising girlhood, at the same time that it is a depiction of gentle, lovable and loving girlhood. And those attributes are assuredly the attributes of the real Priscilla Dean who is so richly deserving of all the success and praise and popularity that have come to her.

When a girl displays a temperament and personality of this order, it is small wonder that a director of the genius of Tod Browning should not only be eager to execute her productions, but to write one especially for her. Tod Browning had plenty of opportunity to observe Priscilla Dean while he was directing her in "The Virgin of Stamboul," which was many months in the making, and he was quick to realize that here was an unusual sort of a girl, an extraordinary and consummate young artist. And he took time, therefore, from his numerous duties, to sit down and plan a role worthy of her. He didn't write "Outside the Law" all at once. He turned it over in his mind for weeks before he even began jotting it down on paper. And it grew with him gradually until it became a work of art and "Silky Moll" became a vital personality big enough to fit well that dynamic Dean girl. And when "that dynamic Dean girl" read the script she fell in love with her part, which meant a whole lot for "Outside the Law."

She seems to be favored of the Gods, this girl of the laughing eyes and the colorful personality. For they endowed her with beauty and talent, and, what is more, a vivid temperament, which she has moulded to her will and which she best expresses with that spirit of the "let's go."

"Outside the Law" will be ready for release the early part of January. But in the interim its dynamic star, after "a bit of rest," is busy studying the manuscript of her next work of art and planning her newest wardrobe. For that is the way of Priscilla Dean. And Priscilla will continue to forge ahead.

Post Card Teaser Campaign F

Effective method of arousing interest on the part of your patrons to a point where they will watch for the picture, like a kid watches for Santa Claus

(Post Card No. 1)

UNUSUALLY big pictures call for unusual treatment. "Outside the Law" is a picture that is so big, so overwhelmingly great, that it is more than unusual—it is epochal. It is the kind of picture that will leave its impress on the minds of the public for months, and after you have played it your patrons will be bothering you nearly to distraction for another like it.

Universal, realizing how big this picture is, has started an exploitation campaign that would draw crowds to the middle of the desert if the picture were advertised to play there. If you will avail yourself of just a few of the suggestions that will be given on "Outside the Law," from week to week, we promise you results that will be epochal for your box office.

There is no better way to attract a line of patrons in front of your box office than to get people talking about a picture several weeks in advance of the playing date. There are various methods of doing this, one of which is to use a lot of posters. Newspaper teaser campaigns are also highly effective, and we recommend their use.

Another very good way is by the use of a teaser postcard campaign. On this and the following page we have reproduced three postcards, which you can obtain from your nearest Universal Exchange. The first card, you will note, has all the elements necessary to arouse interest and curiosity. This card should be sent to your mailing list three weeks or a month in advance of the day on which you begin showing "Outside the Law." A week later the second card should be mailed, and the third a few days before opening.

If you do not use a mailing list, the cards can be distributed to your patrons by your ushers or ticket seller.

There are a number of reasons why "Outside the Law" is going to prove one of the biggest money-makers you have ever booked. The popularity of Priscilla Dean and the fact that she plays the role of Molly Madden, "one of the smoothest in the business," is reason number one. You remember and your patrons remember what an adorable crook Priscilla Dean was in "Pretty Smooth," "The Exquisite Thief" and "The Wildcat of Paris?" Then she appeared as Sari, the beautiful beggar in "The Virgin of Stamboul," and showed the world that she could excel in a big, spectacular drama. In "Outside the Law," a picture that is bigger than all of the others put together, she is a combination of society queen and clever schemer. That's reason number two.

Reason number three is the fact that the screen's greatest "bad man" is Miss Dean's principal support. This man is none other than Lon Chaney, who scored heavily as "the frog man" in "The Miracle Man," and has just been pronounced by critics the greatest character actor in moving pictures for his wonderful work in "The Penalty." Besides Mr. Chaney, there are other favorites in the cast, including Wheeler Oakman, the dashing American captain, in "The Virgin of Stamboul."

Another reason is that Tod Browning directed the picture. Mr. Browning has been directing Miss Dean for years, and knows better than any other director how to bring out Miss Dean's personality in pictures.

We could go on giving reasons sufficient to fill the entire issue of the Weekly, but Editor Paul Gulick has only allotted two pages for a description of these postal cards. Besides, our advertising manger, Edward Moffat, has already told you some of the reasons why "Outside the Law" is going to be a clean-up for you.

Get in touch with your Universal Exchange manager, and tell him how many postal cards you will need, so that he can place your order at once. The front of the card is the regulation postcard, with space for address, and on the left side there is room for you to print any

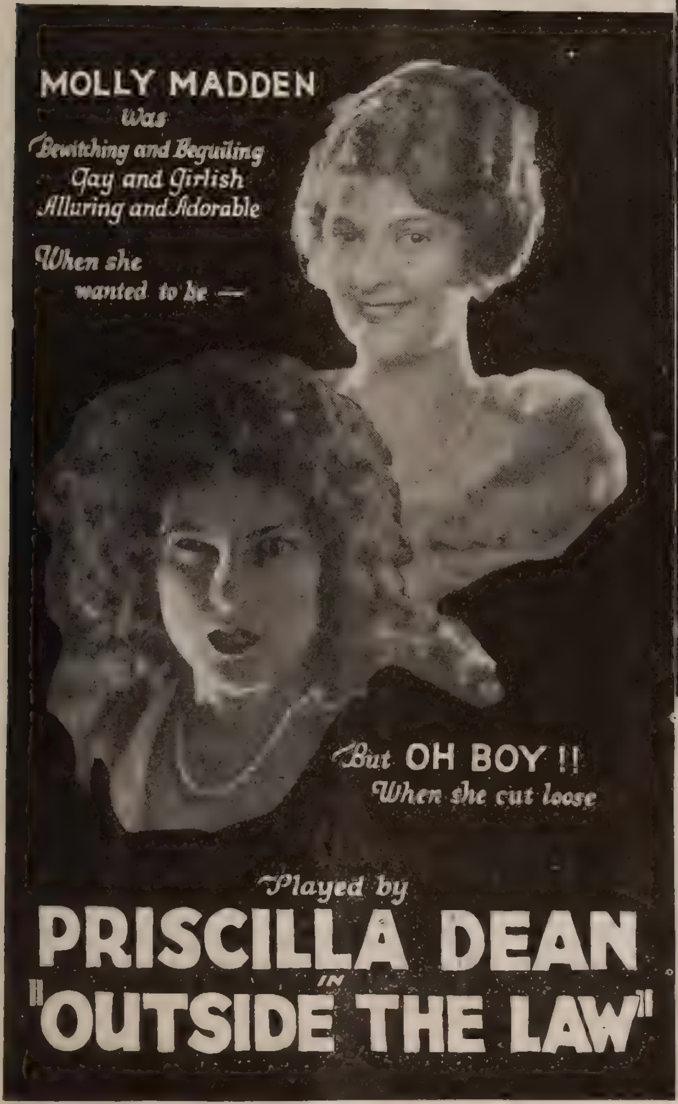
r “OUTSIDE THE LAW”

announcement you care to make. Our recommendation is that you use wording similar to this on the first card:

WARNING!
The cleverest crook
“OUTSIDE THE LAW”
is coming soon.
BEWARE!

On the second card which should be sent out a week after the first you can print something like the following:

PETULANT DELIGHTFUL
PIQUANT DYNAMIC
PRETTY DARING
PRISCILLA DEAN
in the melodramatic sensation
“OUTSIDE THE LAW”
will appear at (name of your theater) on..................(date)



MOLLY MADDEN
Was Bewitching and Beguiling
Gay and Girlish
Alluring and Adorable
When she wanted to be —
But OH BOY !!
When she cut loose
Played by
PRISCILLA DEAN
IN
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

(Post Card No. 2)

PRISCILLA DEAN
Supported by LON CHANEY in
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"
The most amazing thriller ever screened
Directed by TOD BROWNING
IT'S A UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

(Post Card No. 3)

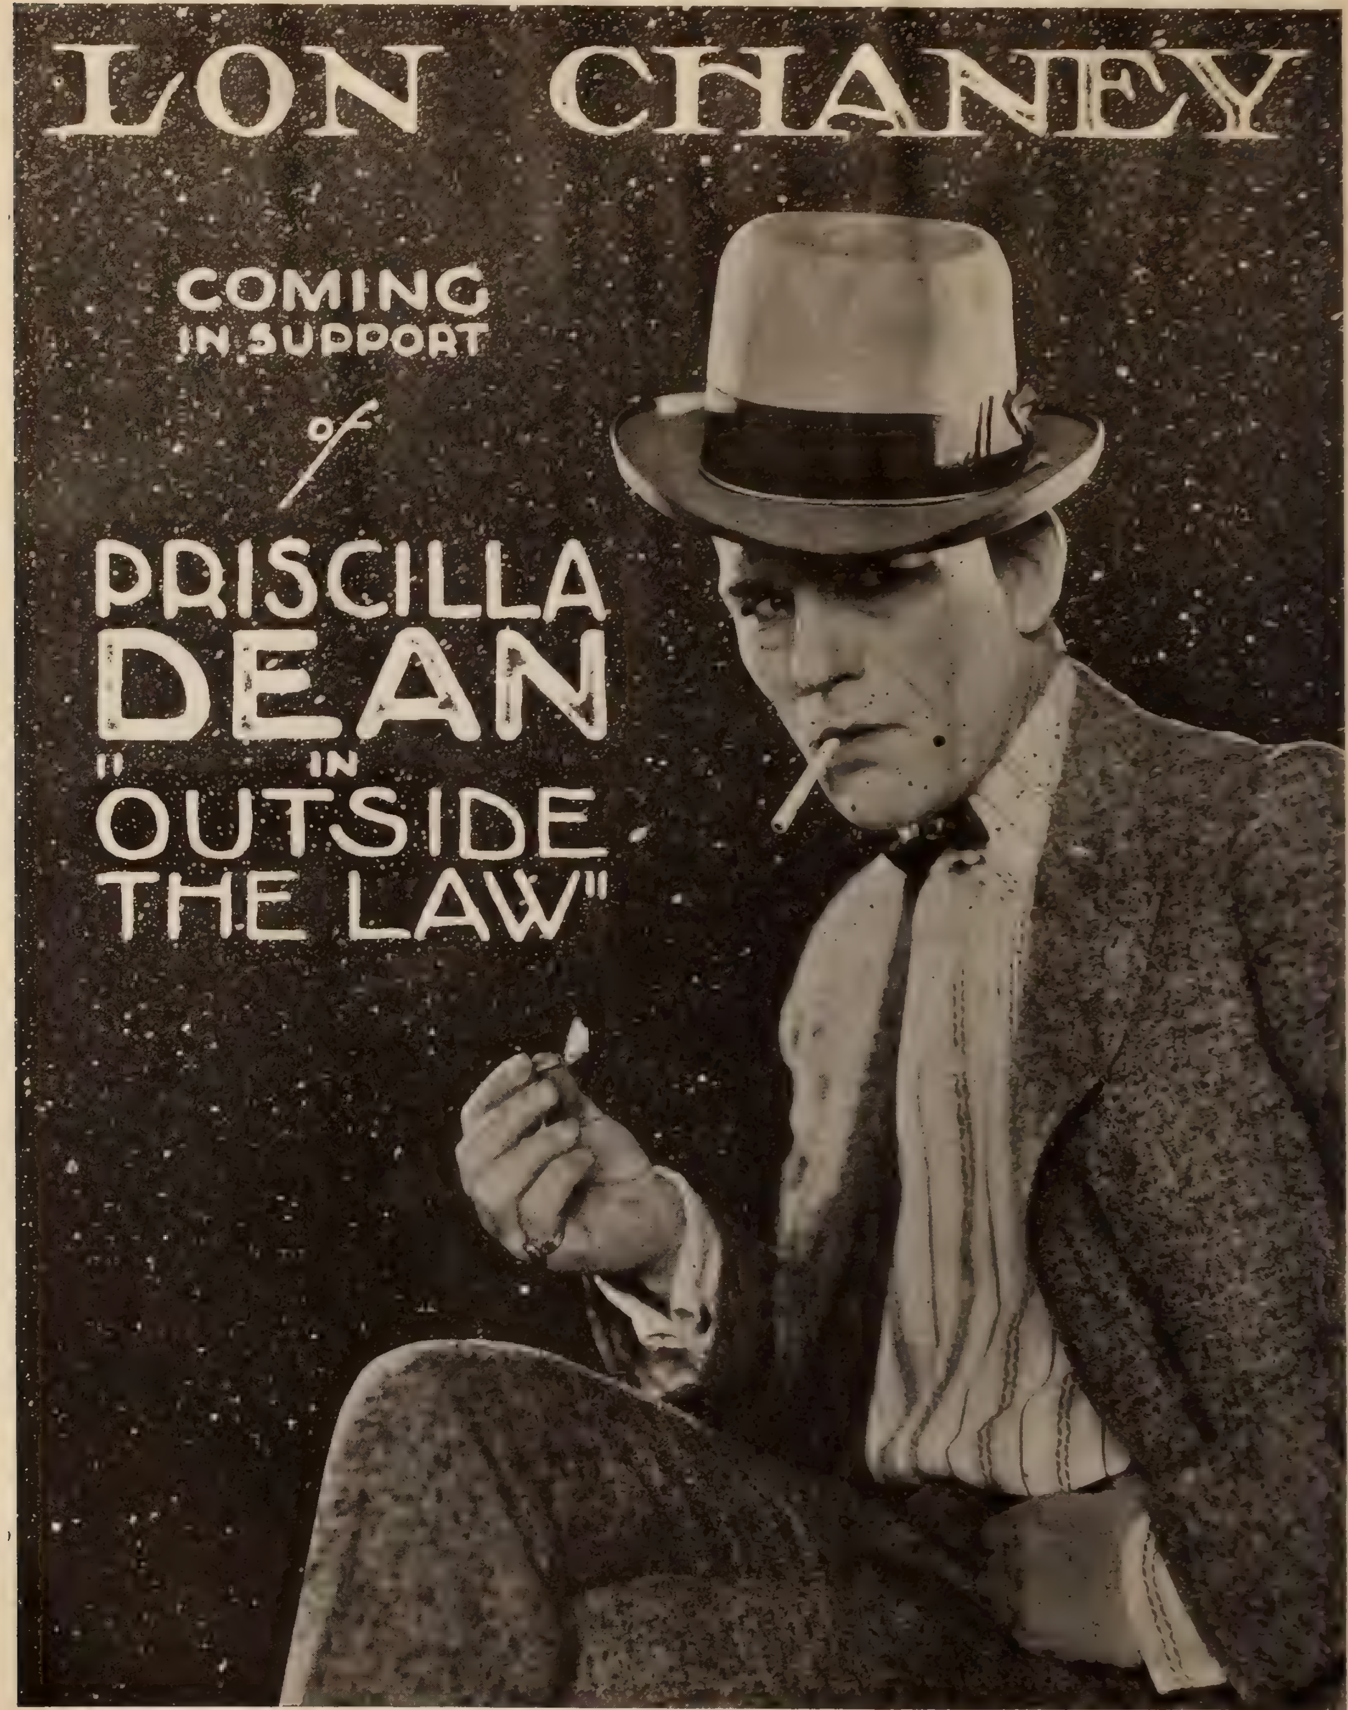
On the last card mailed or distributed a few days before you open the picture, you can print an announcement like this:

WARNING!
Don't forget that
“OUTSIDE THE LAW”
Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
supported by
LON CHANEY
will be shown at (name of your theater) on..................



LON CHANEY
COMING IN SUPPORT
of
PRISCILLA DEAN
IN
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

Lon Chaney, the inimitable, expressing several degrees and kinds of emotion in "Outside the Law," the big Priscilla Dean Jewel in which he plays "Black Mike," as wicked a gangster as ever flourished in any underworld.

Best Bad Man On Screen Enjoys Being Wicked

"TO be wicked," said Lon Chaney, in a recent interview, "is to my mind one of the most difficult things for an actor to undertake. And at the same time it is one of the most infinitely interesting and fascinating sides of the actor's art."

Few persons witnessing the smooth and easy manner in which Lon Chaney "puts over" his fascinatingly wicked characterizations could imagine for a moment that Lon Chaney ever found anthing difficult about portraying a bad man; that he spent hours in introspection and observation; that he studies characters constantly with deep concentration. But Lon Chaney does, and the result is art, the real art of portrayal that is executed so naturally and easily that the real man himself is never thought of apart from the particular character he is expressing at the moment. Lon Chaney says he enjoys every minute that he is acting his wicked impersonations and assuredly that accounts for the wonder of this bad man's art.

"Black Mike" is the most wicked of wicked roles, a role that Tod Browing, the author and director of "Outside the Law" conceived of with Lon Chaney in mind. Chaney and Browning are friends of years' standing and both men have put their "best" into the characterization—Browning has used his vivid imagination in its conception and Chaney his inimitable art in its execution. And the actor is as enthusiastic about the part as the author himself.

Lon Chaney is an interesting figure in the world of the cinema. He is an individualist in his art—alone in his kind of consummate characterizations. He became famous overnight in "The Miracle Man"; he lived up to all the praises which were showered on him in "The Penalty" and he promises to outdo all his former efforts in "Outside the Law," a big picture, with a "big" director, a "big" star and himself, Lon Chaney, among the "biggest" character actors on the screen.

Sure Fire Pre-Showing Publicity

EVERY EXHIBITOR WILL WANT TO SHOW PRISCILLA DEAN IN "OUTSIDE THE LAW." EVERYONE SHOULD GET HIS NEWSPAPER TO RUN THE SERIAL NOVELIZATION OF THE STORY WHICH IS NOW AVAILABLE.

CARL LAEMMLE, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, announces from the West Coast studios, where he is carefully following its every detail, that "Outside the Law" will probably be ready for release early in January.

The Publicity Department of Universal is devising numerous exploitation aids for the exhibitor to help him put over "Outside the Law." A novelization of the picture has been made, twenty-four thousand words in length, divided in twelve chapters, each chapter illustrated with single and double-column mats. This novelization of "Outside the Law" is now ready for immediate printing, and the exhibitor who intends to book "Outside the Law" can get splendid advance exploitation from it. Go to your local newspaper, or to that one of your newspapers which you know your patrons favor—get the newspaper to run the novelization of "Outside the Law" as a daily continued story. The novelization can be obtained from the nearest Universal exchange, and the exchange will also furnish the mats which accompany the story. There is a single and a double-column illustration for each of the twelve chapters. Both the story and the mats will be furnished absolutely free of charge to the newspaper. The story has been planned to run for two weeks, but each chapter can be cut in two, running for four weeks.

The best sort of publicity for any picture to receive is advance publicity. Fill your patrons beforehand with tales of the wonder of the picture you are going to exhibit at a certain time, and your house will be crowded to the doors at the appointed time. And if your patrons have followed the breathless experiences of Priscilla Dean as "Silky Moll" in the interesting novelization of the picture which their newspaper is running they will want to see it all the more vividly presented to them in the picture itself.

The enterprising exhibitor will get busy at once on this excellent exploitation stunt. There is only a month to go before the release of the picture, but in that month he can, with the aid of this novelization of "Outside the Law," lay the foundation for rich box office receipts when he shows the feature.

The Wires Are Getting Busy

HARRY M. BERMAN, general manager of exchanges for Universal, now on a tour across the country, had occasion, during his stop-over at Universal City, to witness a pre-showing of "Outside the Law." He sent the following telegram to Mr. R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, immediately after he saw the picture:

R H COCHRANE
UNIVERSAL FILM MFG CO

JUST SAW OUTSIDE LAW IS GREATEST CROOK STORY EVER PRODUCED YOU CANT GO TOO STRONG BOOSTING THIS COMING PICTURE VIRGIN NOT ONE TO THREE WITH THIS ONE THIS STORY BETTER THAN HALF A DOZEN BATS ONE EPISODE CHILD WINNING OVER PRISCILLA MOST WONDERFUL PIECE ACTING THAT HAS EVER APPEARED ANY PICTURE TOO MANY SPLENDID EPISODES TO MENTION WAIT UNTIL YOU SEE PICTURE BERMAN.

(1) Acting Chief of Police Dan O'Brien of San Francisco swears Priscilla Dean in as a special officer and assigns her to traffic duty. (2) Priscilla proudly displays her membership badge to members of the International Traffic Officers' Association in convention in San Francisco, and of which she was made an honorary life member. (3) Priscilla, on duty as a traffic cop, discovers an irregularity. (4) She sternly makes her first arrest.

Priscilla Turns "Cop"

LIFE is just one exciting thing after another for Priscilla Dean. And life has been doubly exciting for her since the filming of her next picture, the big Jewel melodrama, "Outside the Law."

The story of "Outside the Law" has considerably to do with the dark deeds of the San Francisco underworld, and in order to make his picture as realistic as possible, Tod Browning, the author of "Outside the Law" and its director, had the Dean Company transported to San Francisco. He would have had no end of trouble shooting scenes of the city's slums, but the police department lent a very helpful hand.

Priscilla Dean, charming and unaffected girl that she is, quickly became a favorite among the officers of the law and when the International Traffic Officers' Association held their convention in the Golden Gate City during her sojourn there, she took a leading part in the activities of the week and the assembled traffic cops from all over the United States chose her as their mascot and made her an honorary life member. She was sworn in as a special officer assigned to immediate duty by Dan O'Brien acting chief of police of the San Francisco force, and she handled the traffic on a busy corner like an old-timer. Lieutenant Dan Sylvester, head of the San Francisco traffic force and chief of the International Association presented her with a gold star in token of her duties and Priscilla in turn was chosen to present him with a gold watch, the gift of his associates in the traffic officers' association.

Priscilla was feted and wined and dined during her stay in the big western city, and she counts that experience as a traffic cop as one of the liveliest in her vivid and eventful career.

CARL LAEMMLE
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

supported by

LON CHANEY

Whoever he might be—if he came but one step nearer—

Coming! And coming soon! An absolutely breathless photoplay—a picture whose action is so swift, whose drama is so human and intense, as to hold your audiences as if in a vise right up to the last big moment—and then release them in a wave of relief and good feeling. In simpler words—a Dean picture that is DEAN all the way through—a whirling, rushing, desperate drama of quick work after dark that is going to work people into a frenzy of excitement. GET READY! SWEEP OUT YOUR BOX-OFFICE. PREPARE TO START YOUR NEW YEAR OFF WITH A BANG!

UNIVERSAL
Jewel
1600 Broadway New York

Silently the curtains parted and the Beast looked down at her.

The Most Amazing American

TOD BROWNING'S
tremendous Thriller

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

If she lived to be a hundred she would never forget what she saw in that blinding moment —

It had come—the one thing in all the world that they most dreaded

Remember "The Wildcat of Paris"? "Outside the Law" is like a whole barrel of wildcats. Remember the last reel of "The Virgin of Stamboul"? Wait till you see Priscilla's fight with Black Mike Silva in "Outside the Law." Remember her fine acting in "Pretty Smooth"? Watch for the moment in "Outside the Law" when that dear little kiddie, Stanley Goethals, melts her icy heart! CARL LAEMMLE himself tells you that Priscilla Dean in "Outside the Law" is incomparable—and Carl Laemmle knows. You can bet and bank on this to the limit.

UNIVERSAL
Jewel
1600 Broadway, New York

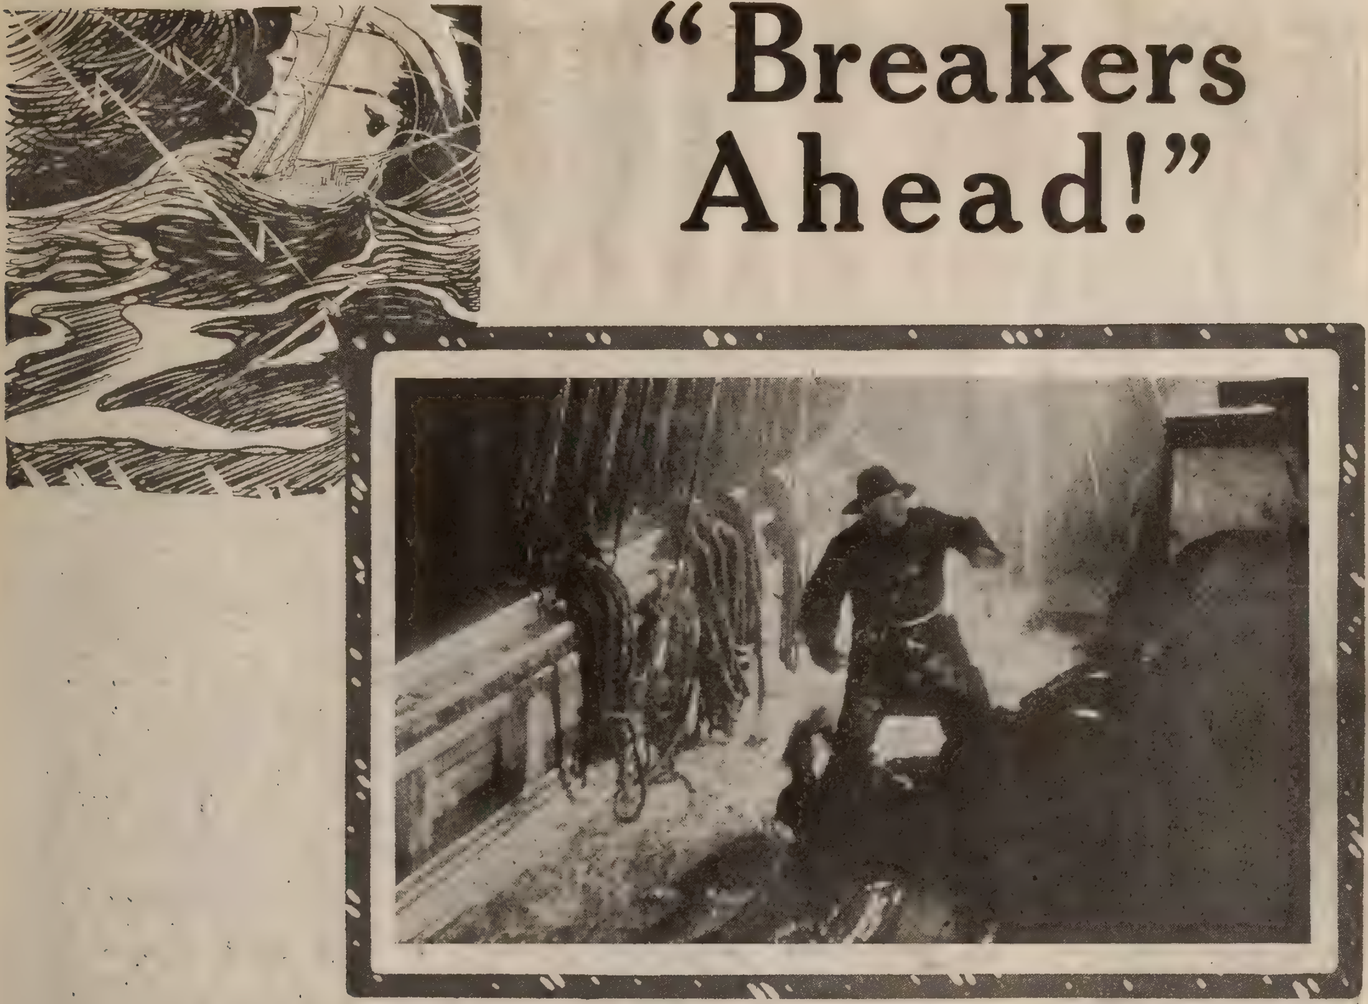
Melodrama Ever Screened

There are none so blind as those who will not see---

AND the exhibitor who has not yet presented this photodramatic masterpiece is deliberately shutting his eyes to one of the biggest bargains in entertainment ever offered. For it's a proved fact that this picture sells itself to the public—sells itself so completely as to make it one of the biggest money-makers on the market. Book it and know why.

Von Stroheim's
WONDER PICTURE
"BLIND HUSBANDS"
Universal—Jewel
Production de Luxe

"Breakers Ahead!"



"CRASH!" goes the mainmast as the storm-driven ship shudders against the coral reef. . . . The shot-like orders of the captain and the terrified screams of the passengers mix in howling chorus with the mad shriek of the wind and the shrill whine of ripping canvas . . . sea on sea pitilessly pounds the quivering deck of the doomed schooner. . . .

That's the sort of stuff you feel when you see it in this picture—the stuff that makes you a living, breathing part of one of the most pulse-quickening adventure-romance-dramas ever filmed. The storm scenes alone are worth the price of admission. Bank on that promise when you book it.

ELMO LINCOLN

In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by REX INGRAM

Story by U.G.HAWKS

You can rely on this picture to make money until the sands of the desert grow cold -
PRISCILLA DEAN
in the picture that made 1920 famous
"The VIRGIN of STAMBOUL"
Directed by Tod Browning
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION de LUXE

Eric von Stroheim as he appears in "Foolish Wives"

The Von Stroheim Genius Has Double Task

THE biggest share of the execution of "Foolish Wives" falls upon the shoulders of Eric von Stroheim. He is not only directing this gigantic Jewel, with its marvelous sets and reproductions of Monte Carlo, but enacting the principal role as well.

He is pictured above in the role which he will portray in "Foolish Wives"—that of the Count Sergius Aprazin, polished and unscrupulous beguiler of women—a liar and a rogue. It is a real Von Stroheim role, fascinating in every respect, and in its execution something vastly interesting is promised the moviegoer.

Here Is a Good Exploitation Aid

THERE is no picture, no matter how excellent, which will not profit materially by the use of clever and proper exploitation. An excellent exploitation stunt has been devised for "King of the Circus," Eddie Polo's greatest serial, and one of the best serials of all times, which is now thrilling audiences wherever it is shown.

The exhibitor would do well to buy a quantity of small rubber balloons, manufactured in the gayest of colors, bearing the Polo imprint, or an animal imprint as befits a serial dealing with circus life or both, and the name of the theatre imprinted on the balloon. These could be distributed in the theatre, or outside the theatre and would give excellent publicity to both the serial and the theatre itself.

Universal has made a survey of all balloon manufacturers and finds that the prices quoted by

THE PERFECTION RUBBER CO.,
2097 COLUMBUS ROAD,
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

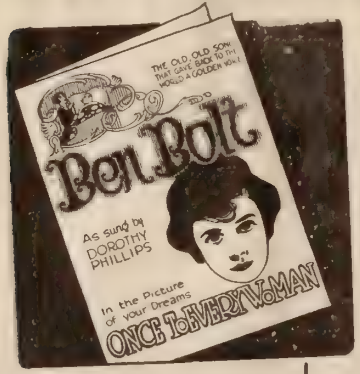
are the cheapest. Any exhibitor desiring to adopt this balloon exploitation idea in connection with the showings of the episodes of "KING OF THE CIRCUS" should write direct to this concern. It will be necessary to order at least five hundred (500) of these balloons as that is the minimum quantity of order that is accepted. All orders must be accompanied by check in payment.

Following are the prices quoted by THE PERFECTION RUBBER CO.:

	Per thousand
No. 60 With animals and either Polo imprint or imprint for the theatre	$25.00
No. 60 With the Polo cut imprint and the imprint for the theatre	$23.50
No. 50 With animals and one other imprint	$21.50
No. 50 With Polo cut imprint and imprint for the exhibitor	$20.00

Good For You! That's The Way!

Quarter million "Ben Bolt"-Super-Heralds used in four days. 100,000 re-ordered in one day--Read all about this crowd-getter



THE OLD, OLD SONG THAT GAVE BACK TO THE WORLD A GOLDEN VOICE
Ben Bolt
As sung by DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In the Picture of your Dreams
ONCE To EVERY WoMAN

SO great is the success of this remarkable "Ben Bolt" Super-Herald that 232,000 of them were insufficient to satisfy the demands of exhibitors showing "Once to Every Woman" between November 15th and November 19th! A rush re-order of 110,000 copies had to be forwarded! What this Super-Herald is doing for exhibitors in largest cities and smallest hamlets, it positively will do for you. Read this page—don't miss a single word! It has been written for your benefit and profit.

GIVE THEM AWAY

IMMEDIATELY upon booking "Once to Every Woman" go to your Universal exchange and get this big practical promotion aid. It is a beautiful four-page sheet of "Ben Bolt" enhanced with just enough advertising to create a wide-spread demand to see this wonderful photoplay. Here is exploitation based solely upon common-sense and success-proven experience. Distribute them to your patrons for a week prior to, and during the showing.

USE THE BIG MUSIC STORE TIE-UP

ARRANGE for the tie-up with your local music store whereby he will give the Super-Heralds window display, and sell them at a price which will leave him a reasonable profit and give the Heralds wide distribution. The Super-Heralds will cost you one cent each and you will receive Free of Charge the same number that you buy.

In the two ways outlined above, almost everyone will get a copy of "Ben Bolt." They'll take it home—they'll sing it—they'll read it—and when you show "Once to Every Woman" they'll come until you hang out the S. R. O. sign.

GET THE SINGER

ENGAGE a local singer to sing "Ben Bolt" during the showing of the picture. First tried at the premiere of the photoplay at the Hotel Astor, this singer idea has proven itself an instantaneous success wherever tried. The effect is tremendous and there is barely a dry eye in the house at the end.

OR THE VICTROLA

IF it is impossible to secure a singer tie up with your local Victrola shop which will gladly give you window display for a big attractive sign and lend you the machine and the "Ben Bolt" record sung by Geraldine Farrar in exchange for the publicity in your program and slide.

ALL PLANS THAT WORK

THESE are not harum-scarum schemes that require much outlay of money. They are all proven, sure-fire crowd-getters. Use them and play to capacity houses at every performance.

Dorothy Phillips in "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

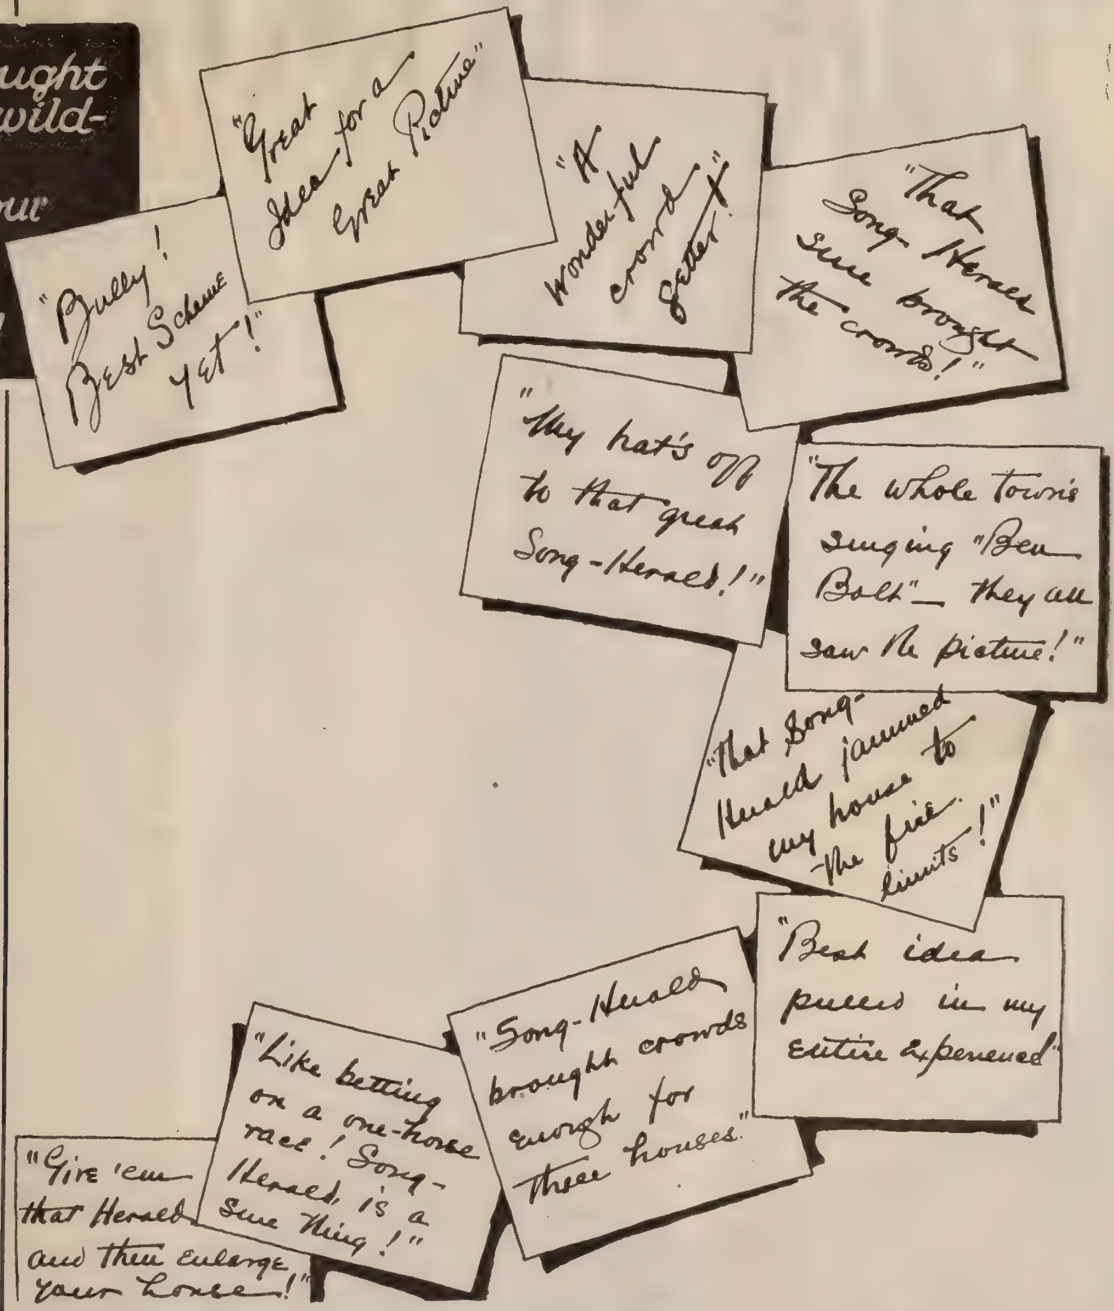
Universal-Jewel de Luxe directed by Allen Holubar.

It's That Song-Herald That Gets 'em!

From everywhere--small town and big city--come reports of the tremendous success of the great "Ben Bolt"-Super-Herald

It has cought on like wild-fire—
Get your Super Heralds Today!



"Bully! Best Scheme Yet!"

"Great Idea for a Great Picture"

"A wonderful crowd getter!"

"That Song-Herald sure brought the crowds!"

"My hat's off to that great Song-Herald!"

"The whole town's singing "Ben Bolt"— they all saw the picture!"

"That Song-Herald jammed my house to the fire limits!"

"Best idea pulled in my entire experience!"

"Song-Herald brought crowds enough for three houses."

"Like betting on a one-horse race! Song-Herald is a sure thing!"

"Give 'em that Herald and then enlarge your house!"

Dorothy Phillips in "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

Universal-Jewel de Luxe directed by Allen Holubar.

She had danced-- and now the fiddler must be paid.

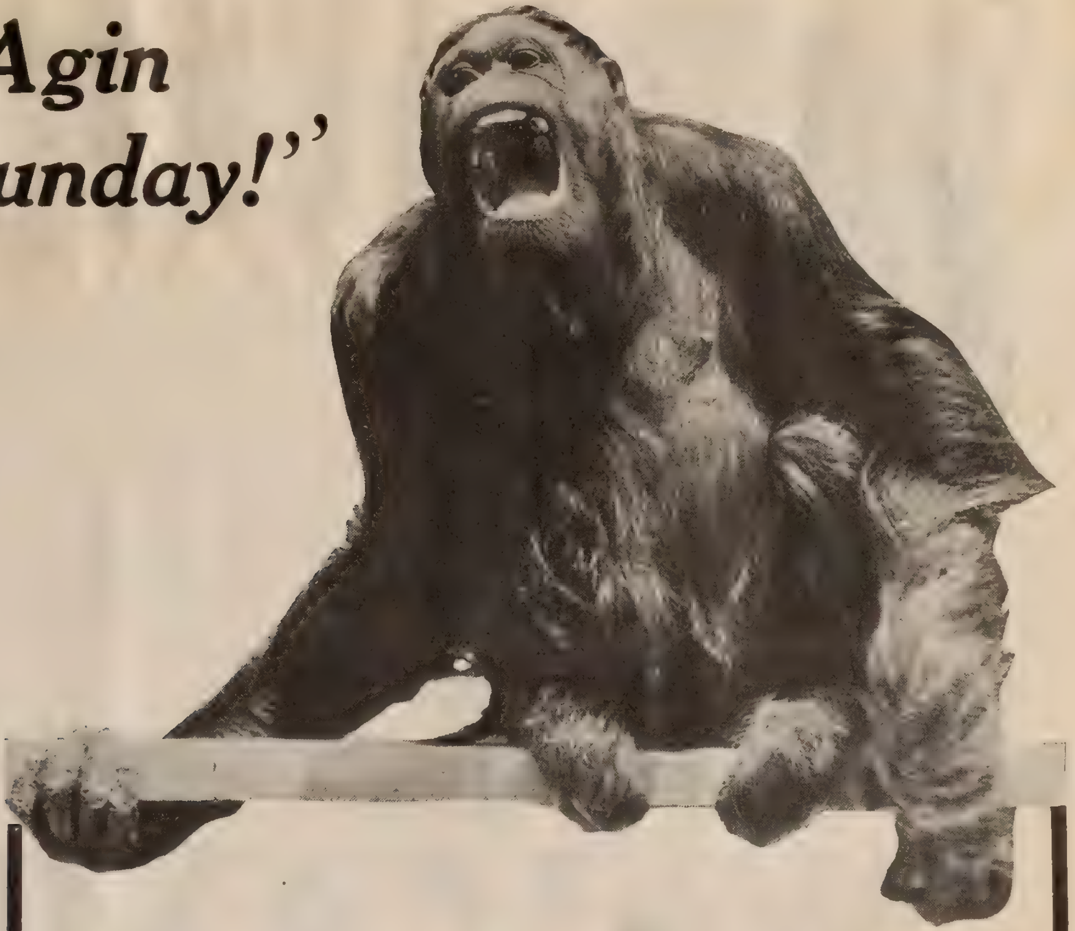
GET the drama—and the possibilities—of this situation. Here's a beautiful woman who loves the pretty clothes her husband cannot afford. Intrigued into debt by a designing Parisian modiste, the woman must pay—and the modiste has introduced her to a man willing—anxious—to settle the modiste's bill—for a price. But the woman really loves her husband. . . .

Imagine this and countless other deeply dramatic situations working out on your screen, Mr. Exhibitor, and you'll begin to realize just why this picture is proving one of the most powerful drawing cards of the season.

Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE
"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

"I'm Agin Blue Sunday!"



I'm for Sunday movies!

It's my best day!

WHY, last year, on 52 Sundays, 38,987,634 people saw my pictures and I received 2,546,798,461 laughs and 97,463,423 hand claps!

Close the movies on Sunday, indeed!

Some guy must have seen one of those fool monkeys who are trying to imitate me, and now, as a result, is trying to put those Blue Laws through!

He never saw me, Joe Martin, the highest paid monkey actor on the screen!

Book me in "A Wild Night" and "A Prohibition Monkey" and give those long-faced, sour reformers the best of all reasons for changing their minds—if they have any.

Yours for Free America,

JOE.

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

Joe Martin

Directed by
Al SANTELL

ACTION STAGED HALF 'ROUND THE WORLD

HERE you have the unbeatable combination of beautiful, fearless MARIE WALCAMP and a story that is brimful of action and mystery—you have the only serial ever filmed in China, Japan, the Philippines and the United States. That is only one of a score of money-making reasons for booking the serial that travels as it thrills.

MARIE WALCAMP

DIRECTED BY HENRY MCRAE

THE WOMAN WHO KNOWS NO FEAR

WITH the world-wide popularity of MARIE WALCAMP, and the drawing power of a chapter-play filmed in the mystic orient, you are guaranteed capacity houses for twelve weeks. Play WALCAMP and deposit more serial profits than you ever did in your life. Do it NOW!

"THE DRAGON'S NET"

UNIVERSAL

PRAISING JEWELS

TELEGRAM

TO HERMAN STERN
MGR UNIVERSAL FILM CO 1018 FORBES STR PITTSBURGH PA

THANKS FOR BOOKING ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN WITH DOROTHY PHILLIPS INTO SEDLER THEATRE STOP MORE THAN PLEASED WITH THE PICTURE ITS PHOTOGRAPHY ITS SETTINGS THE STORY AND ITS CAST STOP THREE CAPACITY AUDIENCES LAUGHED CRIED AND APPLAUDED STOP UNIVERSAL JEWEL PRODUCTIONS CAN ALWAYS FIND A PLACE ON OUR PROGRAMS.

J. HOWARD LICHTENSTEIN
MANAGING DIRECTOR SEDLER THEATRE
EAST PITTSBURG, PA.

Ness City, Kansas,
Oct. 19, 1920.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.,
Kansas City, Missouri.
Att: Mr. Rubert.—

Gentlemen:

We opened our beautiful new theatre with that Grand Universal Production, "The Virgin of Stamboul" and we felt a pardonable pride in ourselves after showing it.

Our patrons were well pleased, so much so, that the second day was double the receipts of the first day.

And I want to say in this connection that we have run many big pictures, but the "Virgin" is the only one we felt repaid for running. Even if the Exhibitor didn't make a dollar, it is an honor to any house to show it.

With kindest regards and all best wishes, I am

Yours,
WM. MOONEY, MGR.,
ELECTRIC THEATRE,
Ness City, Kansas.

Universal Film Exchange, Inc.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen:

I have the great pleasure to inform you that my business on the opening of "Once to Every Woman" has exceeded all expectations, and it has set a house record which will remain for some time.

Everyone was very pleased with the picture, and there was heart appeal in the story that will not fail to touch everyone.

I heartily endorse the Universal-Jewel production.

Yours very truly,
LIBERTY THEATRE,
MORRIS ROTH,
Duquesne, Pa.

"'Once To Every Woman' broke all records at the Oakland Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa."

(Signed)
Prof. LEO GERETHLER.

TELEGRAM

H M BERMAN
UNIVERSAL FILM CO NEW YORK

CAPACITY OF ONLY THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY CLOVER BALTIMORE MARYLAND PLAYED TO FOUR THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY FIVE PEOPLE OPENING SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS MONDAY

JULES LEVY

“W

Don't shiver, Folks!
Lookit him go!

This is only one of the thousand and one thrills that make this chapter play one of the biggest money-makers in serial history. Ask any man who is playing it.

ell, I'll be d-----d!"

THAT'S what you'll say when you see this and the countless other wild and spine-chilling thrills in this greatest serial of all time. For the stunts that Eddie Polo pulls are almost unbelievable in their speed and daring—every minute there's something doing when Eddie's on the screen, and most often its something that just makes you suck in your breath and sit helplessly fascinated—and anxious for more. And that's the key to the unprecedented success of this chapter-play—it has to the nth degree the power to make the viewers of any episode eager to spend money to see the next—and the next never disappoints. That's why you can rely on this serial to pyramid your profits with each succeeding chapter. Begin making money NOW.

EDDIE POLO

In the Gorgeous 18-Ring Serial Spectacle

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. Mc. Gowan

A DOUBLE ROLE that

ELMO LINCOLN

Playing the double role of double thrills

"The FLAMING DISK"

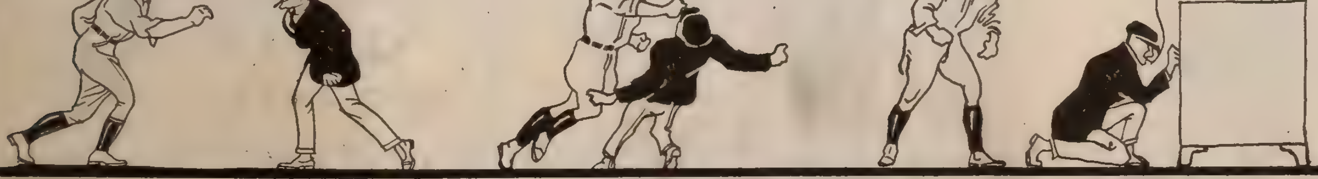
Directed by ROBT. F. HILL

DOUBLES CROWDS

HOW they roar—how they applaud—how they scream with joy—those boys and girls in every town in every state in the good old U. S. A. when episode after episode of this amazing, sensational serial with Elmo Lincoln in his remarkable double role, unravels its blood-curdling, spine-shivering mysteries.

Kids and grown-ups go "daffy" over this wonder super-serial with its myriad thrills and hair-raising feats of strength. Who could you possibly get as bigger, better boosters than these same delighted folk who yell themselves hoarse at the thrilling exploits of their Elmo!

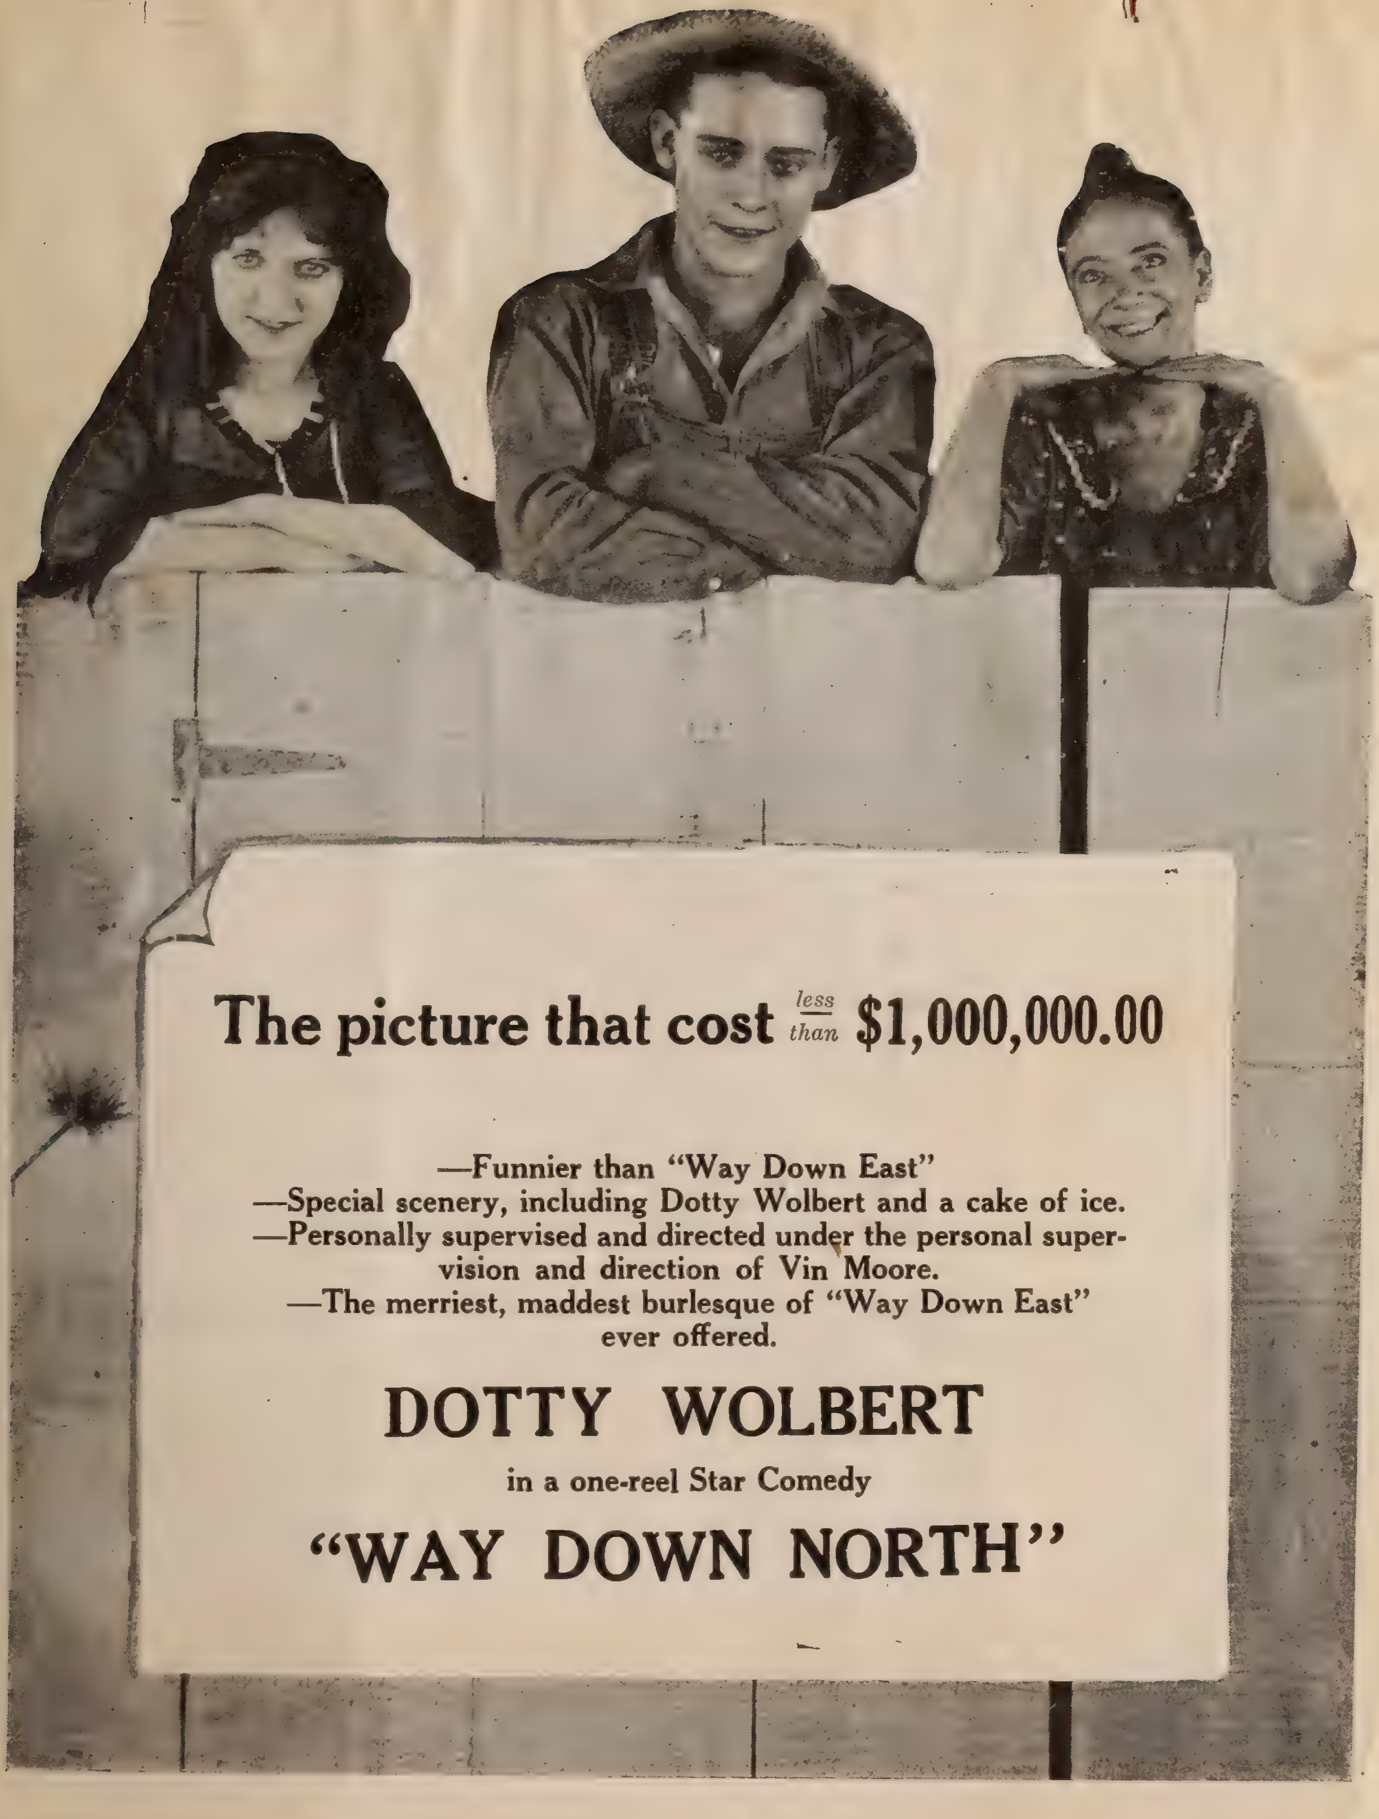
Exhibitors everywhere go "bugs" over the steady packed houses and the smashing, record-making receipts that greet each episode. That double role gets 'em in double numbers. Book this giant serial and insure yourself a bag of 18 weeks of gold. Do it to-day!



Coming Soon!
Beautiful
EILEEN SEDGWICK
In the wildest and most fascinating serial ever filmed

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Watch for it!
UNIVERSAL



The picture that cost less than $1,000,000.00

—Funnier than "Way Down East"
—Special scenery, including Dotty Wolbert and a cake of ice.
—Personally supervised and directed under the personal supervision and direction of Vin Moore.
—The merriest, maddest burlesque of "Way Down East" ever offered.

DOTTY WOLBERT

in a one-reel Star Comedy

"WAY DOWN NORTH"

International News

No. 83.

Dublin, Ireland.—War like scenes in Ireland. Temporary Cadets of Royal Irish Constabulary busy drilling and recruiting.

Sub-titles.—"Repulsing an ambuscade," a rehearsal. Powerful searchlights help the Constabulary in night raids on Sinn Feiners' homes.

Long Island City, N. Y.—A comical cuss is the racing walker. If you do not believe it, look at these deadly serious contortionists in ten-mile match.

Chicago, Ill.—First aid for pets. This hospital sees that Towser gets as expert attention as his master.

Sub-titles.—Dogs like the dentist as much as we do. Saving a waif of the city streets from going blind.

New York City.—In the Public eye.—Dr. Bedrich Stepanek, first minister to America from Czecho-Slovakia.

Sub-titles.—John H. Patterson, famous captain of industry, sails for Europe to study trade conditions abroad. Sheppard Berkowitz, Boy Scout praised by President Wilson for selling $50,000 worth of thrift stamps. Los Angeles, Cal.

Stockholm, Sweden.—Tiny yachts compete. Swedish sportsmen stage a picturesque regatta. (Omit from Chicago.)

Chicago, Ill.—Six most perfect children in Chicago. Health Commissioner Robertson gives winner in Herald-Examiner contest final inspection.

Sub-titles.—Here they are—the perfect half dozen—Marion Hollenstein, Beverly Swinehammer, Evelyn Beckford, Robert Beech, Jayne Wheeler and Dorothy Kallish. (For Chicago only.)

Bucksport, Maine.—Approach of Christmas finds woodsmen busy. Maine forests rescued to the sound of the ax in preparation for Yuletide.

Sub-title.—Yuletide load for distant points. (Omit from New York.)

Newark, N .J.—Champion riders in gruelling training for six-day race.

Sub-title.—Around the track with experts who will compete in annual bicycle classic.

Syosset, L. I.—Hard times for Bre'r Fox. Society riders on his trail these brisk days.

Sub-titles.—Giving Reynard a fair start. On the scent.

New York City.—Navy eleven wins in desperate gridiron struggle with West Point team.

Sub-titles.—General Pershing with Secretary Baker rooted hard for the future generals. Secretary Daniels cheered the winners. 50,000 saw the struggle. And the Annapolis boys made the only touch-down in the final quarter—score 7—0. (Omit from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Spokane.

Confeley, Cal.—California smothers Stanford, score 30 to 0. College football classic of the West proves one-sided. (For Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Spokane only.

Gurnet Beach, Mass.—Crew saved in gale by heroic Coast Guard as mine sweeper grounds.

Sub-titles.—Bringing off the crew of 56 in the breeches buoy. Heavy seas battering the Sweeper Swan. Stalwart firemen return to the Swan in vain effort to get ships fires going again. Naval craft stand by ready to give help.

Tad Cartoon.

"The Trail Of the Hound"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Bob Lane	Hoot Gibson
Alice Gray	Dorothy Wood
Slim Dodgers	Jim Corey
Chub Gray	Chas. Newton
Simon Todd	W. S. Weatherwax
Hungry Higgins	Ben Corbett

BOB LANE and Slim Rodgers are in love with the boss' daughter, Alice. Alice plays no favorites but Bob wins first place by beating Slim for the mail. Alice is elated over her letter, for her uncle is sending her an angora poodle. They are all very happy when her father enters to learn the cause of the merriment. On hearing the news he looks very forlorn, as pups are not to his liking. Alice informs Bob that he is to drive her to the city for the dog. As they leave her father tells Slim that he will give him money for an engagement ring if he will make away with the pup before it reaches the farm. He follows the two to town and as Alice is doing a little shopping, Bob steps into the meat market leaving the pup alone. Hungry Higgins, a town bum spies the pup and steals it. Slim watching from a distance, tells Alice and Bob on their return that the pup jumped from the buggy and was killed by a freight. They are heartbroken and Alice blames Bob for leaving the pup alone. She then asks Slim to take her home. In the meantime the tramp has purchased some hair dye and has dyed the pup black. He then approaches Bob, who is sitting very dejected and offers the pup for sale. Bob thinking that he might be able to make it up with Alice buys the dog.

Todd, one of their neighbors, is sorrowing over the loss of his dog, Tillie. He is telling Alice's father of his loss, just as Bob presents Alice with the pup; she, thinking it is Todd's dog, refuses it—Bob is taken back, but has no chance to escape and hides the dog in his hat just as Alice's father and Todd come out. Bob beats it to the bunk house and is followed by Todd and Alice's father. They accuse Bob of stealing the dog and Bob brings forth the pup only to find it is not Todd's. Alice's father then tells him Alice can have the dog, and to bring her down there for it. While he is gone he again bribes Slim to make away with the dog. Bob and Alice return to find the dog gone. They see Slim making his getaway and they follow. Bob overtakes him at the bank of a small stream and a terrific battle ensues, the pup being dropped into the water.

Alice and her father drive up just as Bob knocks Slim out. He then makes for the pup who is unable to get out of the water only to find that it has washed white. This delights Alice who forgives Bob for the past and taking the buggy they start for home, leaving the impression that it will be a very happy ending.

"Trouble Bubbles"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

BILLY ARMSTRONG AND ESTHER JACKSON

BILLY, a police-officer, falling asleep on the job, is stripped of his uniform and thrown on the street. But he lands on a police sergeant whose uniform he takes and then puts himself on duty as a traffic cop. He captures a home brewer with his brew. He is almost rewarded by the chief, but a lieutenant who bears him a grudge tells the chief he saw Billy flirting with his (the chief's) daughter. But the chief's daughter says it was the lieutenant and not Billy and as a result Billy is made a lieutenant. The home brewer calls up a lot of dancing girls, and they do all sorts of damage to the chief's office when they dance with Billy.

Billy had arrested the chief's wife for drinking a bottle of perfume and during the dancing, she gets out of her cell, gets a bottle of the home brew, becomes intoxicated, joins the dance, and when the chief comes back after the girls have left, he and Billy have no end of a time reviving her from a faint.

A band of home brewers kidnaps the chief's daughter as reprisal, but Billy sets boldly forth and gets her back. The home brewers arrive at the station and are just about to get away with "the good old stuff" when Billy comes on the scene with the daughter and locks them all up.

The chief rewards Billy by giving him his daughter's hand in marriage.

A New Stack of Unlaughed Laughs!

Recent Release:
"Trouble Bubbles"

HERE'S a fun festival of joy and jubilation that's the merriest smile tonic concocted in many moons. A mirthquake that rocks every theatre with roaring eruptions of laughter. A blue-chaser that's a sure joy catcher. In short, a laugh-getter that's a sure crowd-getter. Makes the heart light and the profits heavy. Book it to-day.

100 LAUGHS-THAT'S A "CENTURY"

International News

No. 84.

New York City.—Building collapses in heart of Broadway. Many injured as structure being re-modelled, tumbles down. (For New York City print sonly.)

Sub-title.—Authorities fear that under the huge mass of debris, may be found unreported victims.

Buxbury, Mass.—Crew saved in gale by heroic Coast Guard as mine sweeper grounds. (Omit New York City.)

Sub-titles.—Bringing off the crew of fifty-six in the breeches buoy. Heavy seas battering sweeper Swan. Stalwart firemen return to the Swan in vain effort to get ship's fires going again. Naval craft stand by, ready to give their help.

Washington, D. C.—Uncle Sam's pleads for help to lighten his Christmas load.

Sub-titles.—Mail trucks spread the propaganda. Even now, the load's beginning to pile up. A Post Office on wheels helps a bit. If you do not want to break the poor postman's back , do your Christmas mailing early.

San Francisco, Cal.—Shovel rowing race. Pacific Fleet gobs spurn cars, and make real speed anyhow.

Buxbury, Mass.—Wrecked mine sweeper stuck fast on beach. Naval craft try in vain to release the grounded Swan. (New York City only.)

Florida.—Birds but not of feather. International presents some unusual glimpses of a variety of air travelers —first the denizens of the Everglades.

Sub-titles.—The Army bird, going south, prefers the rugged canyons.—Along the Rio Grande. The air lanes of the seas are still the private highways of the original winged folks.—On the North Atlantic. But above the majectic Alps, the man-made bird flies in lonely grandeur.—Switzerland. (New York City only.)

Seattle, Washington.—East beats West! Dartmouth triumphs over Washington at dedication of huge stadium. (Omit New York prints.)

Sub-title.—28,000—greatest crowd in Northwest football history—saw Washington put up a game but futile fight.

San Francisco, Cal.—Hitting the high spots. Rough-riding motorcyclists in a strenuous hill-climbing contest.

Revelstroke, B. C.—Early snows brings joy to ski demons. Canada's expert jumpers out in force for exciting sport.

Croton-On-Hudson, N. Y.—Winter rains turn huge water system into raging falls.

Sub-titles.—Over the spillway for the first time this season. Picturesque glimpses of the Croton system, capable of giving Manhattan two billion gallons of water a day.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Demon drivers break world's speed records in fatal auto classic.

Sub-titles.—Odd glimpses from the air—note the thousands of cars parked about the Speedway. Roscoe Searles, the winner who averaged 103.2 miles an hour in the 250-mile contest. Results of the smash up in which Gaston Chevrolet, the famous driver, met his death.

At Sea.—With President-elect Harding on his Panama vacation trip. (Beating the reporters at deck shuffleboard.)

Sub-titles.—Inspecting some "testimonials" from the New Orleans Gun Club. Into the harbor of Cristobal, Panama. All share. Greeted by his namesake, Governor Harding of the Canal Zone.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 9

"Dynamite"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Helen	Pansy Porter
Mary	Kittoria Beveridge
Gray	Harry Madison
Winters	Charles Fortune

EDDIE and Helen recover from the fumes of the gas bomb before Gray's canvasmen can reach them. Eddie fights his way to a window and, with Helen holding on, makes his way down a water pipe outside the building.

The Unknown now appears at the circus and discovers that Mary is Eddie's sister. She is overcome upon learning this and realizes that by having had Helen abducted her brother's life is endangered. She tells the Unknown what she has done and also that Gray has gone to get Winters who is at the home of Helen's chauffeur. The Unknown gives Mary the canvas with instructions to give it to Eddie and says he will take care of Winters himself. Both he and Mary leave.

Mary arrives outside Mother Carey's as Helen and Eddie are escaping. She has only time to give Eddie the canvas when Gray's men attack. She, Helen and Eddie escape and start for Winters' home. There they are met by Gray and the rest of his men and another fight follows. During the fight Mary gets the canvas again, escapes and hides it in a box on a truck bound for the water front before she is recaptured. Gray, to force Eddie to tell what became of the canvas, ties him hand and foot and places a charge of dynamite at his feet.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 12

"The Tunnel Of Flames"

ELMO is not killed, however, but merely stunned. He falls into the hands of the gang again and they take him to one of their nearby outposts and throw him in a poison well hidden therein.

In the meantime, Stanton, now in possession of the flaming disk, orders Jim to show its marvelous burning powers, but they soon learn that Elmo has rendered it useless. They question Helen, their prisoner, in what manner Elmo has destroyed the power of the disk, but when she denies any knowledge of it, they rush to the outpost to save Elmo from the poison lake, realizing that he alone can restore the power of the disk.

Elmo, in the meantime, has managed to extricate himself from the depths of the poison well and when the Stanton henchmen come after him he shoves them into the deadly waters. He gets back to Helen and they both manage to elude the gang who are outside. When Stanton realizes that they have made their getaway, he and his henchmen start in hot pursuit. Elmo and Helen make for the railway tracks, discover a hand-car and start on a mad ride down the tracks towards the mouth of a big tunnel through which they have to pass. The gang fill the mouth of the tunnel with oil and make preparations to blow up the hole. Just as Elmo and Helen approach, a fearful explosion takes place.

New Screen Magazine

No. 97

ANDURADHAPURA, Ceylon, once a great metropolis, is to-day a series of artificial lakes. The present inhabitants are Tama immigrants from South India and are Buddhist believers.

Making mechanical dolls and animals has reached a high stage of development. This is illustrated with wonderful specimens of dolls and animals.

A young man, scion of a "blue-blood family" of wealth, has found an enjoyable hobby in chasing the elusive butterfly. He mounts the captured insects into frames which make attractive den decorations.

New Screen Magazine No. 97 closes with an amusing animated entitled "Sammie White Presents Himself in 'A Day of a Dog's Life.'"

GLADYS WALTON

– as the "flapper" who danced on the brink of disaster

HERE'S a picture with just enough solid drama-ingredients to make it nourishing; just enough self-raising comedy to make it wholesome. And the whole is leavened with such a delightfully palatable milk of human feeling as to make it indeed satisfying entertainment.

REMEMBER "Pink Tights?" If you do you'll recollect it as one of the most thoroughly enjoyable pictures Universal ever made. And here's another one with the same star in much the same class—not a great, big brass-band production, but nevertheless an attraction that's going to make an impressive hit with every man, woman and child who sees it.

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52
Good Pictures
a Year

—In a peppery drama of a pretty little daredevil with 1921 ideas—

"RISKY BUSINESS"

Directed by Harry Harris from a story by Douglas Doty and John Colton

Note: When you reproduce this ad. from this page for newspaper use you may, if you desire, have your engraver leave out "52 good pictures a Year."

"TWO KINDS OF LOVE"

Directed by
REEVES
EASON
the man who made
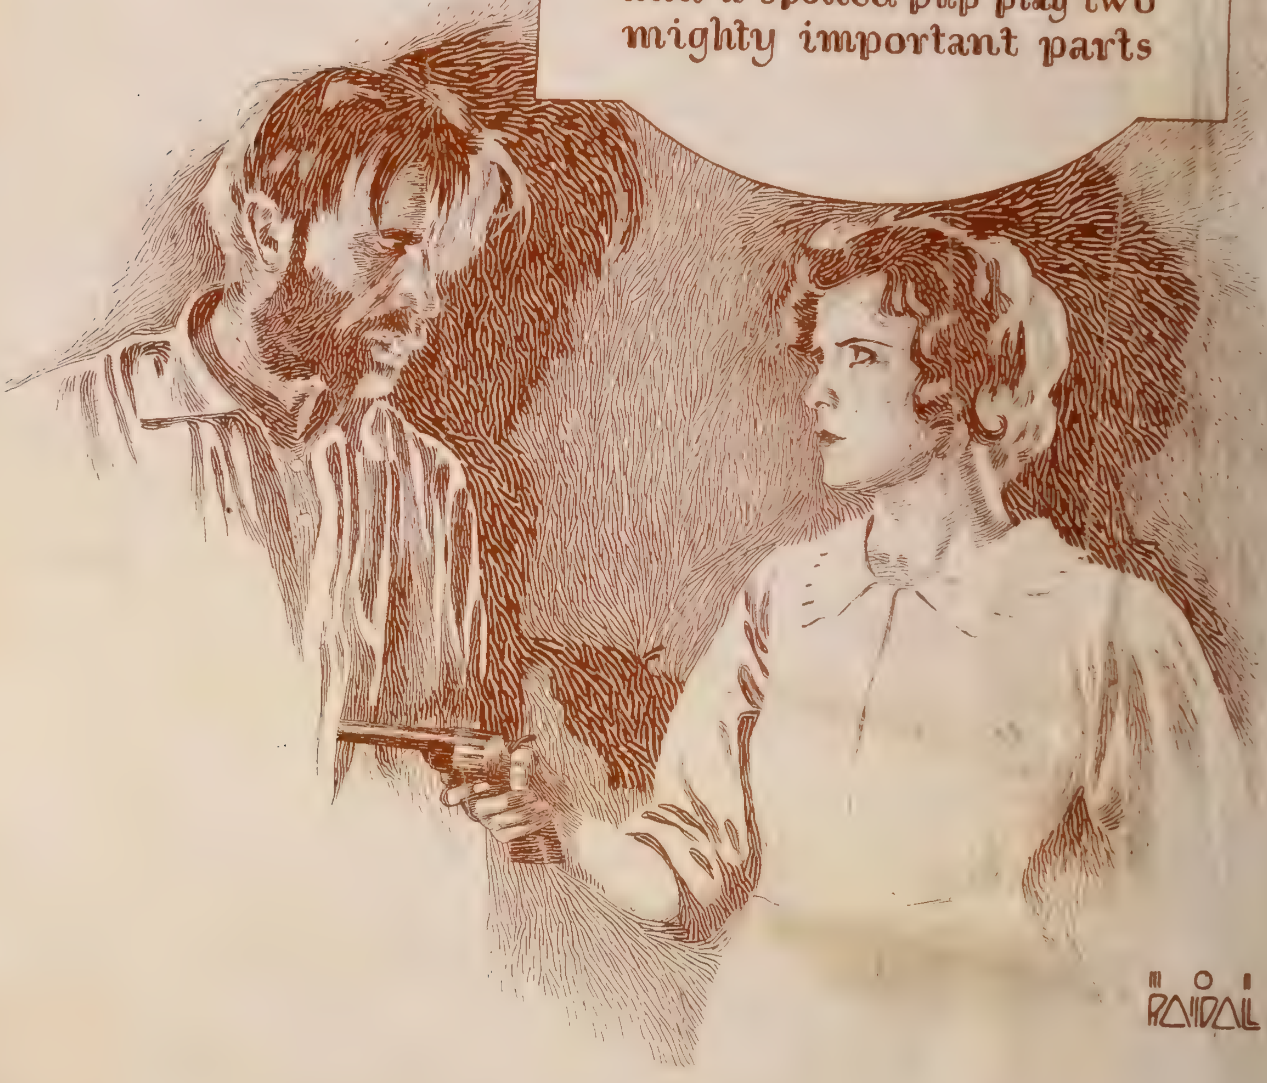
"PINK TIGHTS"

The absorbing story of a woman's white lie-and its thrilling consequences A real heart picture in which a dear little boy and a spotted pup play two mighty important parts



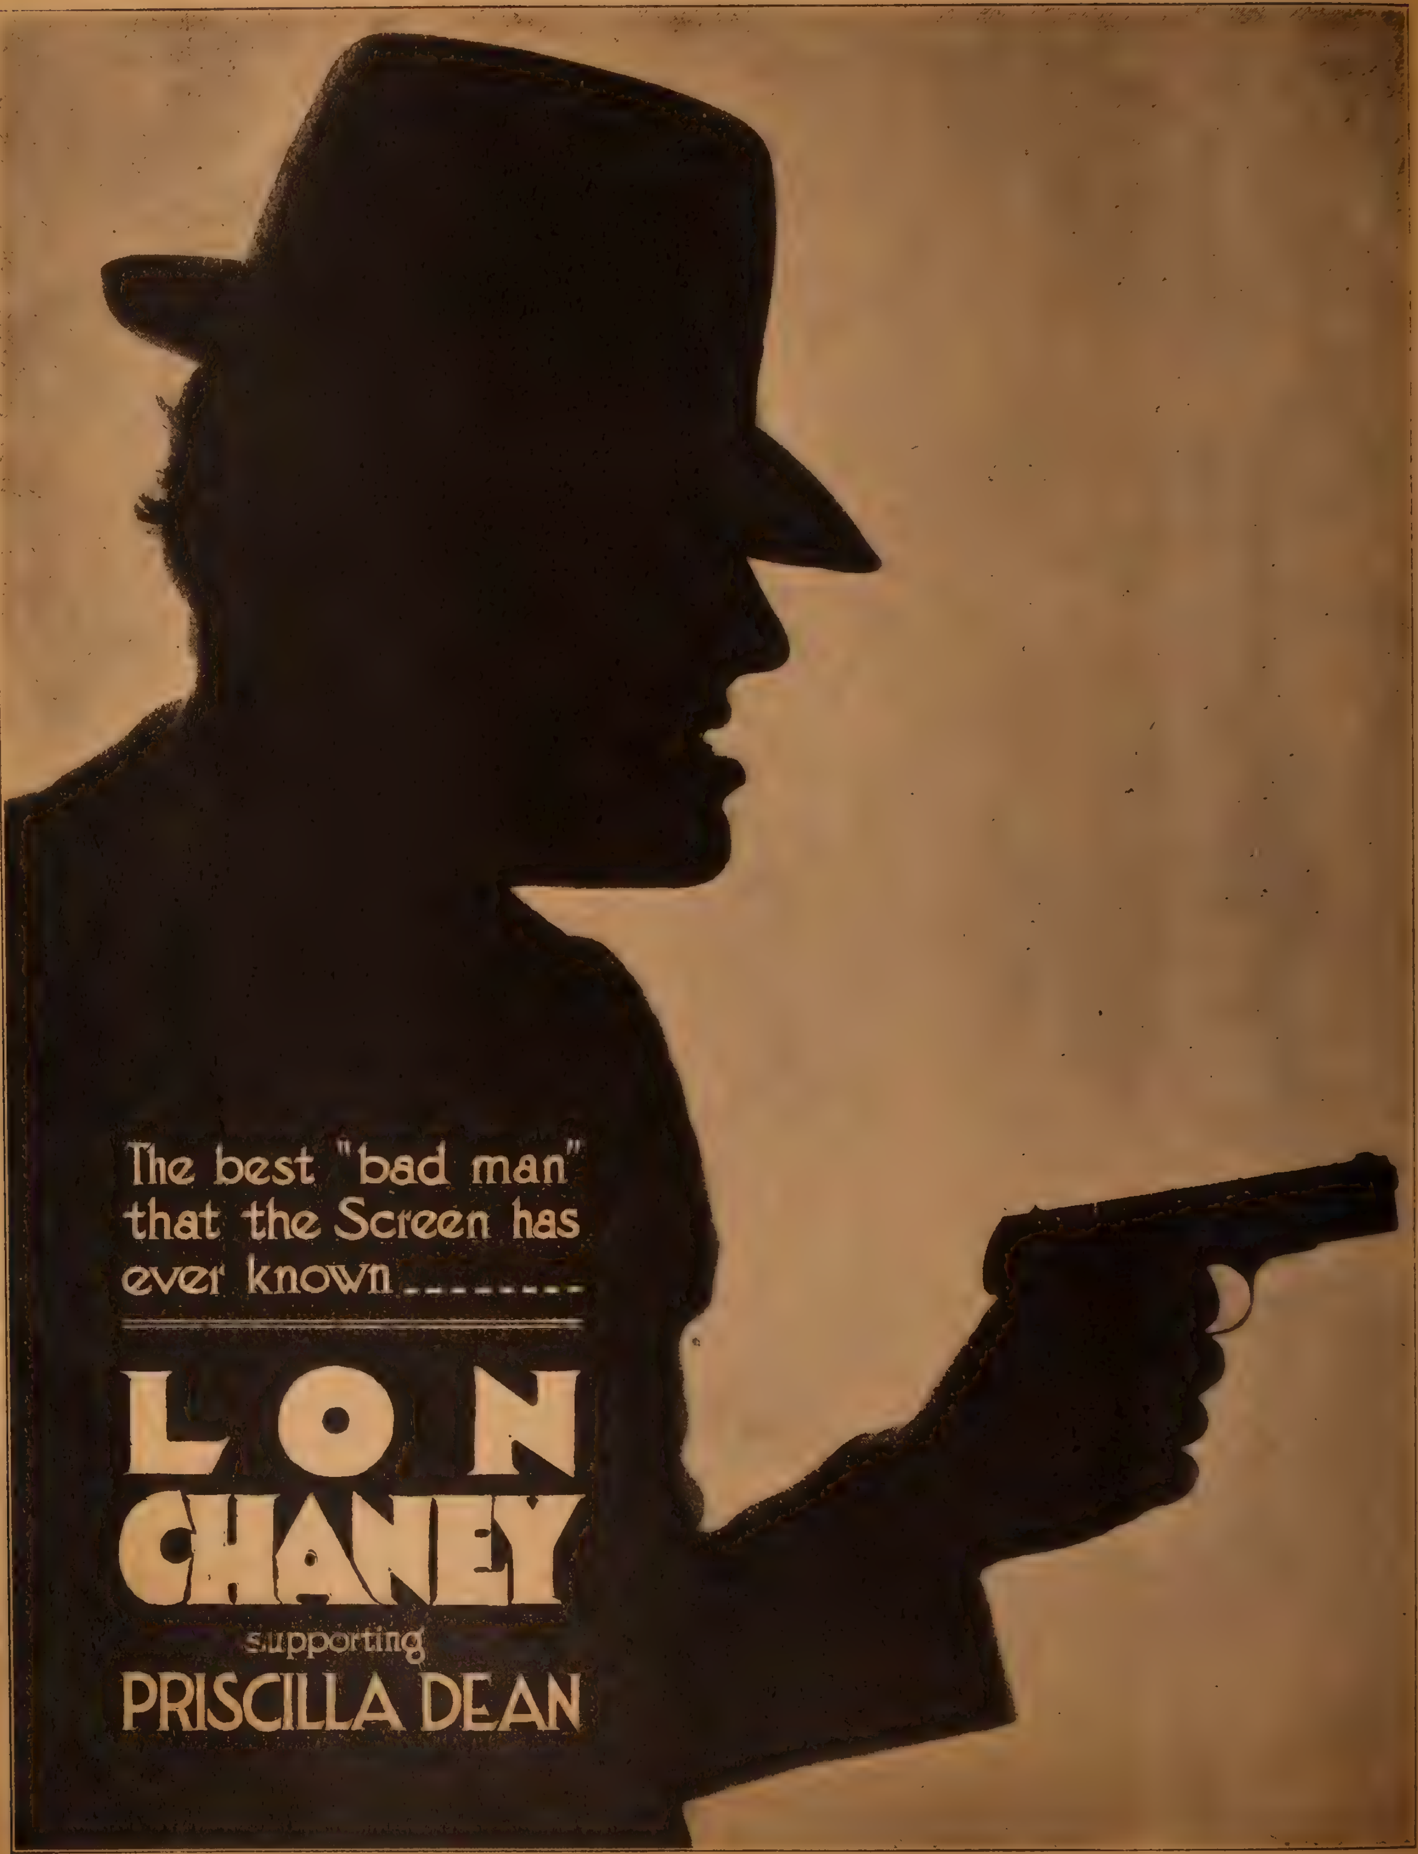
THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

PRISCILLA DEAN

in

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

VOL 12 JANUARY 8 1921 NO 21



The best "bad man" that the Screen has ever known ....
LON CHANEY
supporting
PRISCILLA DEAN

click . . . .
click . . . .
click . . . .
click . . . .

s-s-s-h-h-h

tap . . . .
tap . . . .
tap . . . .

--"Who's There?"

. . . .

--bang!

tick . . . .
tock . . . .
tick . . . .
tock . . . .

YOU!
YOU!
YOU!

—right in the middle of the most AMAZING American Melodrama ever screened.

Priscilla Dean

Supported by
LON CHANEY
Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

Universal-Jewel Production de Luxe

The Production

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal
Jewel
de
Luxe

IN every conceivable phase of production "Outside The Law" reaches the highest possible standard. Nothing has been overlooked. No pains have been spared; no money has been stinted, and no effort was too great to make this a shining example in motion picture production. Everything possible for human ingenuity to accomplish has been accomplished, for everybody from the director to the assistant cameraman, working at the home of producing facilities, was on his toes to make this picture a distinct achievement in production. It is just that.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Direction

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal
Jewel
de
Luxe

YOU saw the tremendous power of Tod Browning's direction in "The Virgin of Stamboul." Here you have that same power multiplied a hundredfold. Intensive intelligence applied to even the most minute matters has builded a smashing picture. Browning has made even such a little thing as the lift of an eyebrow create drama. He has produced THE melodrama—pure but not simple. "Outside The Law" is Browning's brain-child. It is a monument to its parent.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Electrifying Star

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

THE most compelling, vigorous, powerful personality on the screen to-day—that's Priscilla Dean; the most lovable, sympathetic, charming woman in pictures—that's Priscilla Dean; the most daring, vivid, vital actress in filmdom—that's Priscilla Dean. Women are won by her because they can't help it; men are attracted to her because they want to be. And everybody will want to see her latest and by far her best appearance—as "Silky Moll" in "Outside The Law."

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Amazing Contrast

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

A SMILE—a sneer; a kiss—a hiss; trust—fear; hope—terror! Such are the lightning-like changes in the life of "Silky Moll." And so far separated from each other are the contrasts as to make it almost unbelievable that that beautiful, smiling, gentle girl could become, instantly, a desperate, preying, hell-cat of the underworld. Yet so realistically, so convincingly does Priscilla Dean portray the character as to make you positively shiver!

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Sterling Support

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

IT takes a mighty good actor to be a good "bad" man. And there is no better actor in this respect than Lon Chaney. He proved that by his performances in "The Miracle Man" and "The Penalty." Again he proves it by his marvelous portrayal of the role of "Black Mike" Silva in this astounding photoplay. Cruel, relentless, fascinatingly terrible, his is a role calculated to give a lasting thrill to all who see him.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Interiors

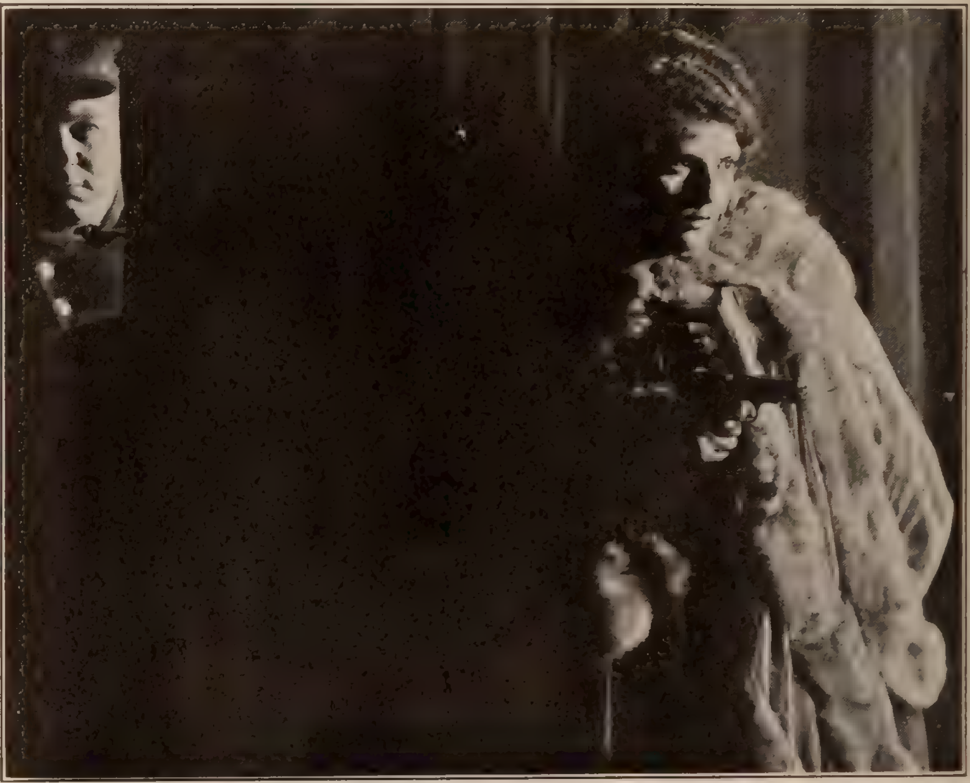
Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

NO finer sets ever were built for a picture than were constructed for "Outside The Law." For instance, those sets representing the interior of a wealthy man's home are the last word in luxurious beauty and true-to-lifeness. The army of technical experts at Universal City spent months and months of time building these and countless other sets. The result, as shown on the screen, shows that the time, money and effort were indeed well spent.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Effective Lightings



Priscilla
Dean
in "Outside
the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal
Jewel
de
Luxe

HERE you have lightings striking in their effectiveness as an aid to drama, and beautiful in their enhancement of pictorial values. Lightings in "Outside The Law" lend a variety of scene and color to the action that helps make the picture the tremendous work it is. You'll learn much about what can be done with lightings when you see "Outside The Law."

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Love Interest

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

FOR as long as men love women love-interest will be a cardinal requirement for a successful photoplay. Here you have a love story minus mush and plus power. The deep, compelling, sympathy-holding love of a likeable young man for a lovable girl is one of the threads that make this picture rich in story value. No audience can sit unmoved by the romance of "Silky Moll" and the man whose love opened her eyes to the straight and only way to go.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened

The Swift Action

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal
Jewel
de
Luxe

YOU don't get chance to catch your breath when looking at "Outside The Law." Plot action and physical action are so swift as almost to dazzle with their rapidity. Yet both run so smoothly and their elements are so cohesive as to cause a constant flow of the most vivid drama-movement ever filmed. You'll be surprised at the wealth of action in "Outside The Law."

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Breathless Suspense

Priscilla
Dean
in "Outside
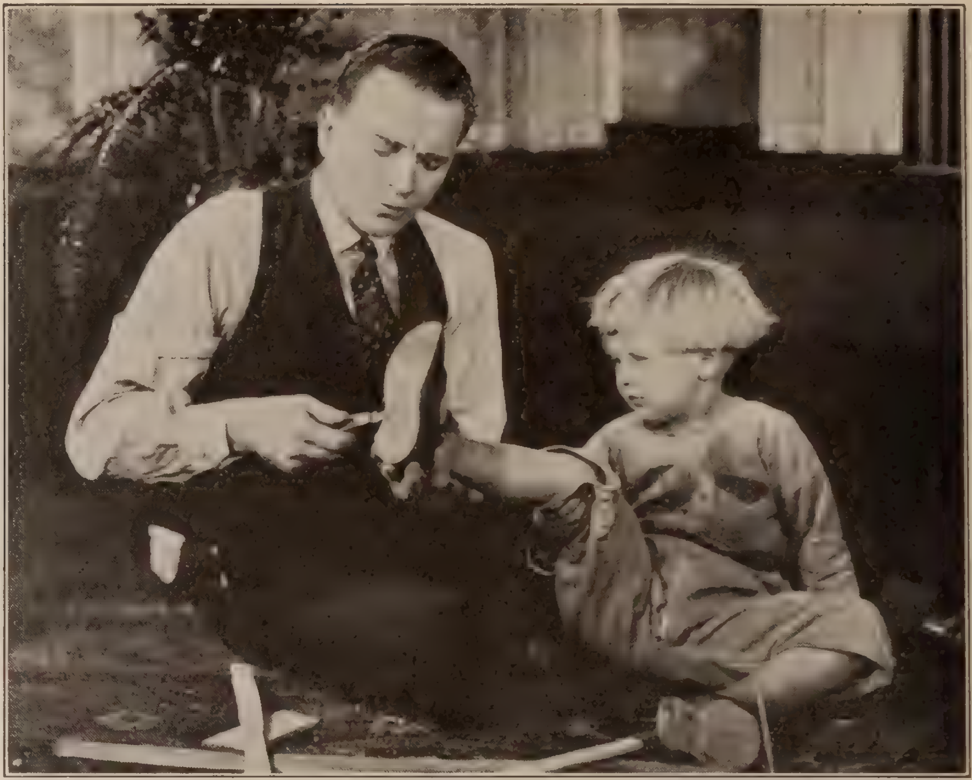
the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal
Jewel
de
Luxe

VISE-LIKE suspense—that's the keystone of "Outside The Law." No one can guess what the next move will be. Situations so tense and so brittle in their tautness as almost to snap pyramid one on the other with ever-growing strength. Absorbing uncertainty as to the outcome holds captive the interest with a power such as seldom before has been attained on the screen.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Heart Appeal



Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

WITH all its rush of action, "Outside The Law" has a vein of sentiment as deep and appealing as human sympathy itself. It has "sob-stuff" of a sort that is bound to touch the heart of even the most hard-boiled. One of the most compelling passages ever screened is that in which a child wins, first, the heart of a clever crook, and then the affection of "Silky Moll," whose heart had been made of steel.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Emotional Thrill

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

NERVES tingle in quivering harmony with the emotional thrill of "Outside The Law." So poignant, so fiery hot and freezingly cold by turn is the range of emotional reaction as to make the viewer forget he is in a theatre and give himself up completely to the spell of the picture. You can't help responding to the emotional thrill of "Outside The Law."

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Healthy Excitement

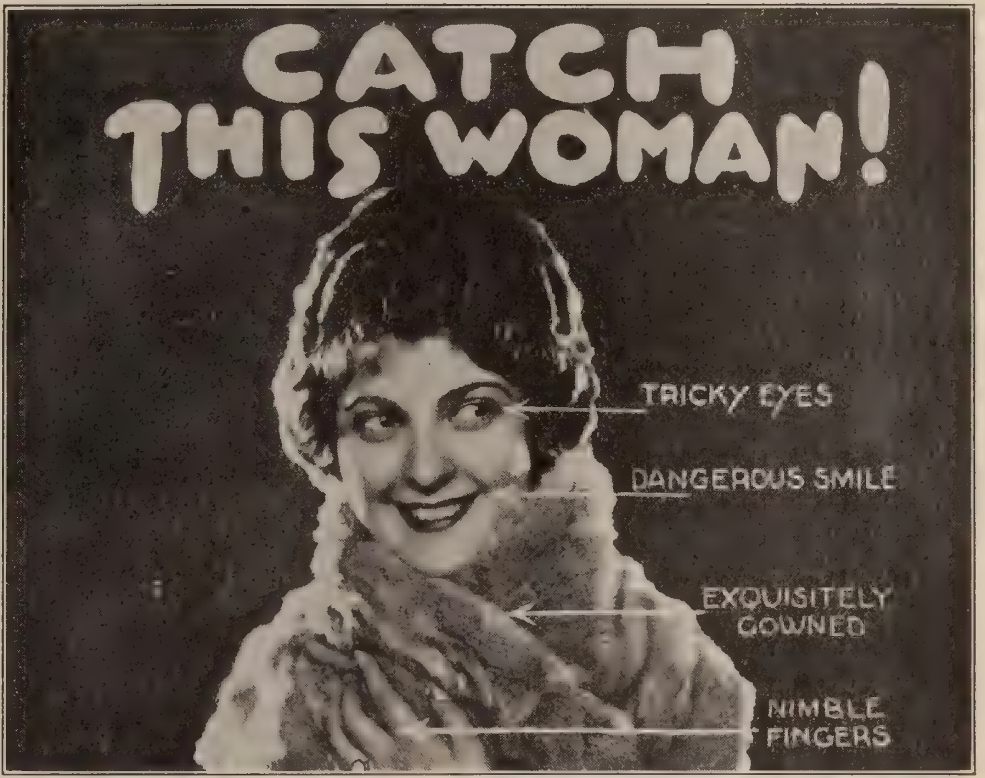
Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

THERE'S clean, healthy excitement that fairly leaps from the screen in "Outside The Law." Stimulating and invigorating, it's just the sort of pepful stuff that helps put over a picture with a resounding bang. And you'll find enough of such healthy excitement here as to satisfy even the most jaded thrill-hunter—enough to make even the hardened fans sit up and take notice—enough to make 'em like it so much they'll demand more and more.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

The Exploitation



CATCH THIS WOMAN!
TRICKY EYES
DANGEROUS SMILE
EXQUISITELY GOWNED
NIMBLE FINGERS

Priscilla Dean
in
"Outside the Law"
Supported by
Lon Chaney
Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal Jewel de Luxe

THE figure in the illustration above is the keynote of the main exploitation idea. The possibilities of the idea and the range of stunts possible are limitless. Look over recent copies of your Moving Picture Weekly and learn some of the things already suggested; then watch Weekly every week for months to come and get additional exploitation ideas. With regard to exploitation, "Outside The Law" is one of the richest productions ever presented—which is just one more reason why it's sure to prove the biggest crowd-getter in your career.

"The Most Amazing American Melodrama Ever Screened"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.

(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)

Vol. 12 JANUARY 8, 1921. No. 21

Carl Laemmle Scoffs at Depression in Motion Picture Industry

THERE is too much calamity howling among motion picture men, it is the opinion of Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, who recently returned to New York after a careful survey of the California production centers and of the conditions in the various film exchanges from coast to coast.

The film official believes that the motion picture industry has less to fear from the present general business unrest than any other industry. Motion picture producers and exhibitors, it is his contention, did not profiteer during the war and immediately afterwards, and consequently have no inflation to unscramble and no ficticious prices to reduce.

The Universal chief predicts there will be much less production during the coming months. This state of affairs he welcomes as a much needed correction for the great over production of the past months. It is his opinion that both the producer and the exhibitor will be brought successfully through the coming year, by lessened production and concentration on big pictures with high exploitation value.

He urges that all film men, producers, distributors, exhibitors and others, turn their faces away from general business conditions and recognize that the amusement field is the last that will suffer from the pinch.

Discussing the relation of the present conditions to the film industry, Mr. Lacmmle, in a recent interview said:

"This cry of business depression is all wrong."

"I won't deny that there is a certain amount of business unrest in commercial lines, but there never was a period in which the motion picture business was in a more flourishing condition than it is today, and there has never been a time when exhibitors were more prosperous.

"Naturally there is a slump in some lines, but any thinking person knows that this slump had to come sooner or later, and the surprising fact is that it did not come sooner.

"During the war everybody made a lot of money. Some saved a little, but the big majority did not. While the people were making the highest wages they ever earned in all their lives, they did not stop to consider the price of anything, regardless of whether it was a suit of clothes, or a can of beans, and the profiteers maddened by profits, thought they would continue to gouge the public.

"'We'll keep it up as long as we can, and when we can't we'll can the idea, and get back to earth,' is the way they reasoned. Then the people began to awaken to the fact that they could get along without certain things which were costing them twice or three times as much as they were worth, and suddenly they quit buying. That left the market filled with goods which had been ordered at the very highest prices, and in order to dispose of their stocks the merchants and manufacturers had to get prices down to something like normal.

"I'm not trying to argue an economic question. I simply want to show you how business uncertainty, or whatever you choose to call it hasn't a thing to do with the motion picture business.

"Like other commodities the price of producing motion pictures doubled and trebled during the past three years, but unlike other lines the tremendous increase in the cost of production was not carried on to the ultimate consumer, as was done in other lines of business. Rentals are higher now than they were three years ago, but the increase is nothing like the increase which was made in commercial lines.

"Exhibitors may have made slight increases in admission prices, but they did not go wild and put the price up so high that they now have to make radical reductions.

"As a matter of fact, even if business were as bad as it is printed in some quarters, it would have very little effect on the amusement business generally, or the motion picture business in particular. Nothing short of a panic can stop the public from seeking amusement, and as moving pictures are the most popular of all forms of amusement, the people are going to continue to enjoy their favorite entertainment regardless.

"All this squawking doesn't do the industry any good, and the sooner it is stopped the better it will be for all concerned. One of the leading editors of the film world spoke wisely in a recent editorial when he said:

"'Negative production cost advanced during the war period, just as did all manufacturing cost. But that is not so important as the fact that negative quality also advanced to a very marked degree.'

"There can be no turning backward now. Producers must recognize that quality is the first consideration, and cost second. The people have been educated to expect good pictures, and if the industry is to continue enjoying prosperity, producers must continue making quality pictures.

"Universal is now making a picture which if it lives up to half our expectations should enjoy the longest run of any picture we have ever made. I refer to 'Foolish Wives,' which up to date has cost nearly three quarters of a million dollars, and which is not finished by a long shot. If this picture is to be a money maker, it must of necessity enjoy long runs in the big cities the same as successful theatrical productions.

"If we give the exhibitor good pictures and help him put them over, we do not have to fear this bugaboo called 'business uncertainty.' Moreover, with bigger pictures, the exhibitor can increase admission prices instead of reducing them."

Service Page for Eva Novak in "The Torrent"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Torrent."

STAR—Eva Novak.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Wanted at Headquarters," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Stuart Paton.

STORY BY—George Rix.

SCENARIO BY—Philip Hurn and Wallace Clifton.

SUPPORTING CAST—Jack Perrin, Leonard Shumway, Oleta Ottis, Jack Curtis, Harry Carter, Bert Apling.

LOCALE—The Pacific Coast; on board a yacht; an uninhabited island.

TIME—The Present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of the young wife of a wealthy rake who finds herself on an uninhabited island with a young aviator; of the adventures that befall them, and of what transpires when they return to civilization.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The emphatic hit scored by the star in her last feature.

2—The fact that the author has based his amazing story on a personal experience while engaged on newspaper work.

3—The eternal romance and mystery of the sea and the unchartered Pacific islands.

4—The presence in the cast, as leading man, of "Handsome Jack" Perrin, a starred and featured player.

5—The fact that the picture was directed by the man who produced "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

6—Marvelous effects of a storm at sea.

7—Thrilling flight of a seaplane over rough and dangerous ocean waters.

8—The effective character acting of Leonard Shumway, who was Eva Novak's leading man in her last picture.

9—Two weeks spent on an ocean-going yacht to secure scenes for the production.

10—A stretch of rugged California coast transferred into exact semblance of a Pacific island.

CAST

Velma Patton	Eva Novak
Anne Mayhew	Oleta Ottis
Lieut. Paul Mack	Jack Perrin
Sam Patton	Leonard Shumway
Red Galvin	Jack Curtis
Jud Rossen	Harry Carter
First Mate	Bert Apling

THE STORY

VELMA PATTON is unhappily married to Sam Patton, millionaire roue. They are bound for the South Seas, aboard his luxurious yacht, The Wanderer, but Sam pays more attention to his other friends, particularly Anna Mayhew, erstwhile chorus lady, than to Velma.

Sam openly mistreats Velma and when he endeavors to force liquor on her, she flees from him. A sudden paralytic stroke renders him helpless and Velma believes him dea. A storm comes up and Velma is cast adrift on a life buoy, and is washed ashore on a South Sea Isle.

There also Paul Mack has landed when his hydroplane began to give him trouble. Velma finds him an exact antithesis to her husband and before long the two are deeply in love with each other.

But their happiness is short-lived for the island is the rendezvous of a criminal band of moonshiners who capture Paul and Velma and torture them cruelly. They finally make their getaway, however, in the moonshiners' own schooner and go to Velma's palatial mansion in California. There the cruelest shock of all awaits Velma. For Sam Patton had not died; it had been a severe stroke, but he was slowly recovering. With him is Anna Mayhew. To Paul and Velma life holds nothing any longer. Velma stoutly refuses to see Paul any longer, saying that the least she can do for her husband is to nurse him back to health.

Sam Patton begins to realize how he has wronged Velma. He decides that she will be far happier without him, especially since he is now a hopeless cripple. Against the doctor's orders, he takes an overdose of whisky which so affects his heart that he dies soon after.

Velma is at last free to marry Paul and together they make a trip in an aeroplane to the romantic and perilous scene of their first meeting.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

"Women don't realize that men, like dogs, never forgive a hurt!" See Eva Novak in "The Torrent"

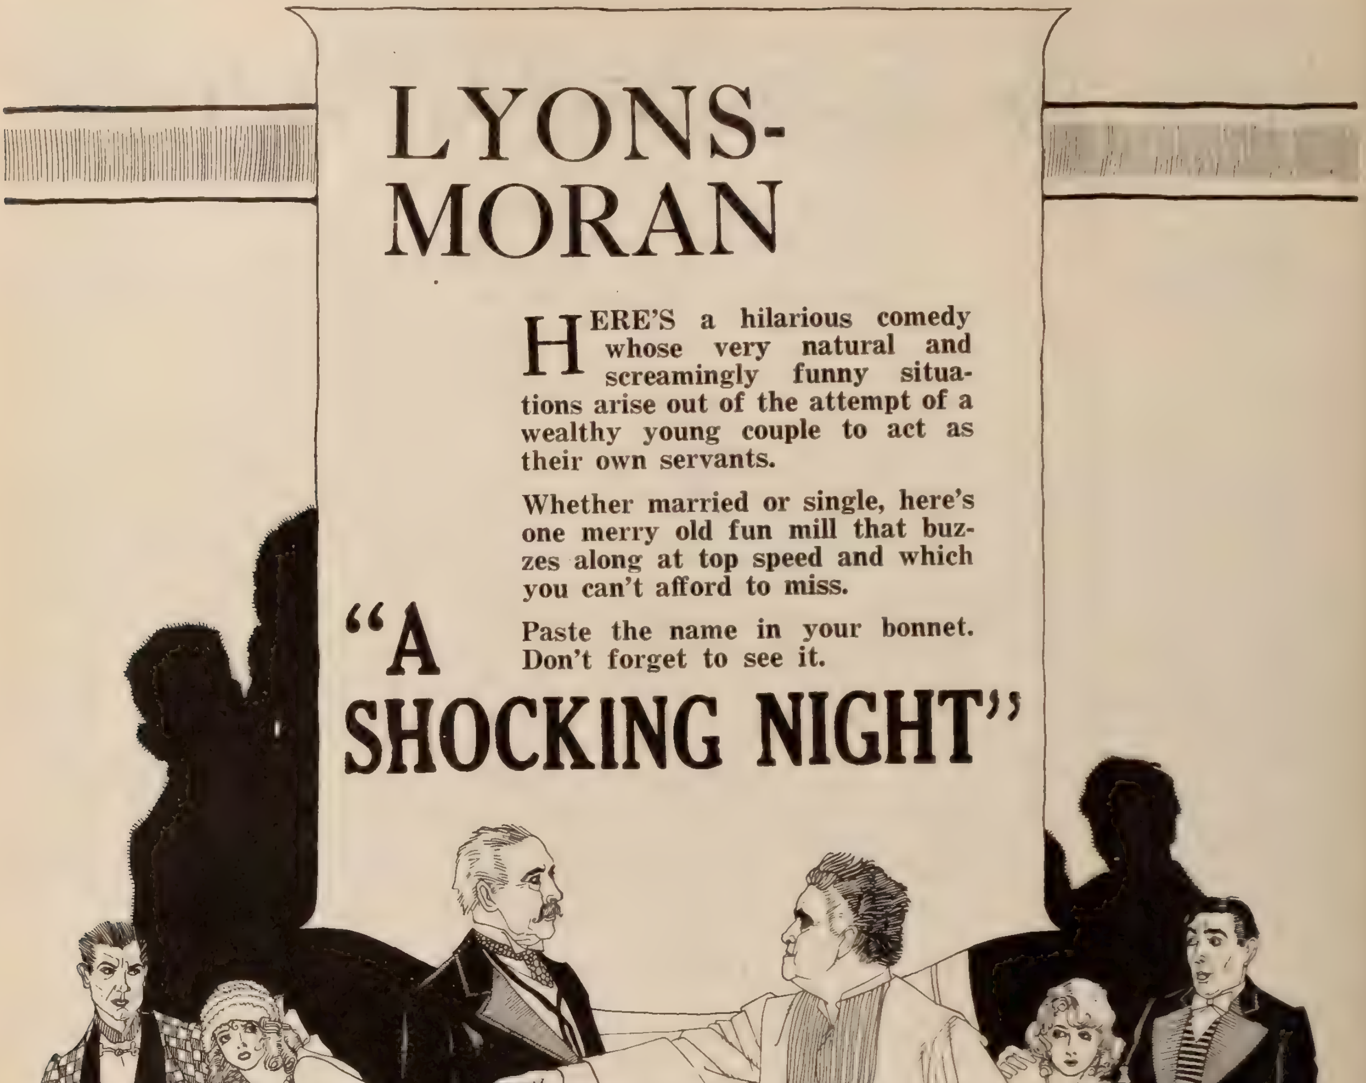
The footprints on the shore of that uninhabited island meant a fight. Fight meant flight. Flight meant happiness for the man and the woman—at least so thought Eva Novak in "The Torrent"

Just a man and a woman on a desert island. The conventions of silly society faded vaguely away. Then one day there were strange footprints on the sand. Was it a friend—or a foe? "The Torrent."

Out of Bacchanal revels on a yacht far beyond the pale of statutory law arose incidents that turned a marital tragedy into a great romance and changed the course of four human lives. See Eva Novak in "The Torrent."

She married for wealth—and then she suffered the tortures that civilization permits a husband to inflict on the woman he promised to love and cherish. See Eva Novak in "The Torrent."

She was swept by the curling sea on the shores of a desert isle. He swooped down from the sky and they met. "The Torrent," starring Eva Novak.



LYONS-MORAN

HERE'S a hilarious comedy whose very natural and screamingly funny situations arise out of the attempt of a wealthy young couple to act as their own servants.

Whether married or single, here's one merry old fun mill that buzzes along at top speed and which you can't afford to miss.

Paste the name in your bonnet. Don't forget to see it.

"A SHOCKING NIGHT"

You can secure mats of this "ad" from your Universal Exchange for 40 cents.

Publicity Stories for Eva Novak in "The Torrent"

EVA FIRMLY BELIEVES IN "I'M FROM MISSOURI"

THERE must be some truth in the saying that those who hail from the good old State of Missouri, demand occular evidence before accepting anything as a fact.

Eva Novak, Universal's newest star, who was born and raised in St. Louis, simply asks to be shown. Universal officials knew six months ago that she was ripe for starring honors; but Eva herself was not quite sure of herself. She had a contract to play the leading feminine roles in two pictures opposite William S. Hart, and she wanted to wait till those productions were finished and on the screen before she would sign a starring contract. And after she watched a private screening of these features she told the Universal management that she was at last ready to assume the responsibility of stardom.

Miss Novak's first Universal picture was called "Wanted at Headquarters," and the film officials who watched the development of the story from day to day were very enthusiastic about the youthful star and her work. Stuart Paton, prominent director, who was entrusted with her first vehicle, was delighted with her intelligent acting and her appealing personality. But Miss Novak herself would not begin work on her second picture until she had been shown. She insisted on waiting till her first feature was cut and edited. "Wanted at Headquarters" has since then been enthusiastically received everywhere, and when Eva saw her work on the screen she finally admitted that perhaps she had stellar qualities after all.

Miss Novak's second story is called "The Torrent." It is the work of George Rix, and like her first production it was directed by Stuart Paton. It will be shown at the .... Theatre next ....

TWO LEADING MEN APPEAR IN EVA NOVAK FEATURE

EVA NOVAK was particularly fortunate in having the support of two leading men in her latest feature, "The Torrent," which will be seen at the .... Theatre next .... They are Jack Perrin and Leonard Shumway. Shumway plays the role of her dissolute husband and Perrin appears as the young naval aviator whom she rejected to marry the man of wealth.

Perrin, or "Handsome Jack" as he is known to his friends and the fans, is well known to theatregoers. He was co-starred with Kathleen O'Connor in the Universal serial, "The Lion Man," with Josephine Hill in a number of western productions, was recently featured with Edith Roberts in "The Adorable Savage" and again with Gladys Walton in "Pink Tights." He was an ideal selection for the role of the government aviator, especially as he learned to fly during the war and was able to do all the serial stunts required by the scenario without the aid of a pilot.

Leonard Shumway was Miss Novak's leading man in her last picture, "Wanted at Headquarters," in which he played the part of the society detective. In "The Torrent" his role is of quite the opposite type, being that of a rich man who wins a girl for his wife and then proceeds to disgust her with a life of dissipation. Shumway is a splendid actor, however, and all roles are alike to him. He has played principal roles with almost every star of note and may always be depended upon to give an intelligent and forceful characterization of any part entrusted to him.

STUART PATON CALLED DIRECTOR OF THE UNUSUAL

THE Director of the Unusual—that is the title unofficially bestowed upon Stuart Paton, a director who is well qualified to actualize strange happenings and unusual circumstances because he personally is a strange mixture of scientist, artist and writer. He was born in Scotland and studied chemistry and painting. Then for six years he was an actor in London. He came to Universal City as scenario editor.

Then his penchant for visualizing the unusual came to light. Universal decided to picturize Jule Verne's prophetic submarine epic, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and Paton dared to cope with the unusual difficulties connected with its production.

He followed it with other pictures for Universal, and then left for other fields. He recently filmed "The Hope Diamond Mystery," following which Universal made him an offer he could not resist. His first picture on his return was "Wanted at Headquarters," which introduced Eva Novak as a star. It was based on "Kate of Crime Street," by Edgar Wallace. In it a gang of super-crooks kidnapped from its tracks an armored express train containing a shipment of $10,000,000 in gold ingots. In the magic hands of Paton these amazing scenes breathed reality.

Another highly unusual situation occurs in "The Torrent" in which Miss Novak also stars. Here a young woman is set adrift in an open boat under peculiar circumstances. On an uninhabited island she meets a young aviator who was forced to land there because of gasoline shortage. How Stuart Paton handled this situation with the fullest semblance of verity may be seen on the screen of the .... Theatre next ....

NEW FILM RECOUNTS STORY OF THRILLING ADVENTURE

THE wonder-novels Jules Verne wrote a generation ago and the romance-novels Joseph Conrad writes to-day keep glowing in the hearts of the world's readers the love of adventure on far, uninhabited islands.

"Swiss Family Robinson," "Foul Play," Charles Reade's novel, and "The Admirable Crichton," Sir James Barrie's dramatic comedy, are noted recitals of adventures of castaways.

In its first year in business Universal issued "Robinson Crusoe," as "positively the greatest and most masterly three-reel feature ever made." Now, in Universal's latest release, "The Torrent," the desert island theme is again used, this time with an ultra-modern crossing.

For while the girl is castaway in a rowboat in "The Torrent" the man is marooned on the same island when he runs short of gasoline and is forced to land his seaplane. Even the circumstances of the girl's finding herself adrift on the open sea on a life buoy are plausible and possible.

Stuart Paton is the director of "The Torrent," and it will be shown at the ——— Theatre starting .... The star is Eva Novak, the blonde beauty who has recently made her way to prominence on the screen. She is supported by Jack Perrin, Leonard C. Shumway, Oleta Ottis and others.

Little Glimpses I

THE drunken orgy on the yacht was at its maddest. Freeing herself from her husband's unsteady embrace, the disillusioned young wife sought refuge on the storm-swept deck. Suddenly the rolling deck seemed to slip from beneath her. Her startled scream was drowned in a whirl of spray. . . .

DAWN found the society wife on a lonely island. Her opening eyes met those of the wealthy young aviator who had been forced to land because of lack of fuel. What she read in his eyes made her fear, yet invite; shrink from, yet hope for, the days that must pass until their rescue.

THE uncouth smuggler's senses whirled at the sight of a woman—a beautiful woman—asleep! Stealthily, craftily, relentlessly the drink-maddened brute crept upon her. Her gleaming shoulder showed white and soft in the moonlight. He would have her—he must have her. . . .

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52
Good Pictures
a Year

A BIG
SPECIAL
CAST

"THE T

From the Story in "Telling Tales" by George Rix.

to a Big Feature

HAPPINESS at last! Now the way was open for a fulfilment of Love's promise; now, with her cruel husband's death but a distasteful memory, she was free to accept the love that she had so long awaited. Again their eyes met—this time with the melting light of perfect understanding.

WAS she to be cheated of her one hope of happiness after all? Was Life again to be a hollow mockery? She had believed her husband dead. Here he was, alive and sneering, believing the worst of her and of the man who loved her—the man who had learned his love on the lonely island.

AND now a darker Fate awaited her. Her protector bound and helpless, she was at the mercy of the leader of the smugglers —who knew neither mercy nor honor. How long was he going to gloat over her . . . how long must she endure the terrible suspense until the worst had happened?

RRENT"

Directed by Stuart Paton
the man who made
"Wanted at Headquarters"

with
EVA NOVAK
AND JACK PERRIN

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52
Good Pictures
a Year

Service Page for Lyons-Moran in "A Shocking Night"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"A Shocking Night"

STARS—Lyons and Moran.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Everything But the Truth," "La La Lucille," "Once a Plumber," "Fixed by George," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Lyons and Moran.

STORY BY—Edgar Franklin.

SCENARIO BY—C. B. Hoadley

SUPPORTING CAST—Lillian Hall, Alta Allen, Lionel Belmore, Clark Comstock, Chas. McHugh, Florence Mayon.

LOCALE—In a Suburban Mansion.

TIME—The Present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a young business man, on the verge of bankruptcy, who tries to impress a prospective investor with a show of wealth, and the complications which result when his hastily conceived plan begins to leak at every corner.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The drawing quality and popularity of the stars.

2—The fact that the names of Lyons and Moran are synonomous with laughter.

3—The fact that this comedy is from the pen of Edgar Franklin, author of some of the biggest laughing hits produced by these stars.

4—The youth, beauty and cleverness of the two leading ladies, Lillian Hall and Alta Allen.

5—The presence in the cast of Lionel Belmore, popular character actor and comedian.

6—The unusually amusing situation of a wealthy young couple acting as servants in their own home.

7—The lightning rapidity of the action, the entire story occuring within twelve hours.

8—The latest hints in Parisian lingerie displayed by the leading ingenues.

9—Another of those "evening clothes comedies"for which Lyons and Moran are famous.

10—The excellent cast, the artistic settings and the beautiful photography.

CAST

Richard Thayer	Eddie Lyons
William Harcourt	Lee Moran
Bessie Lane	Alta Allen
Maude Harcourt	Lillian Hall
Bill Bradford	Lionel Belmore
Jack Lane	Clark Comstock
Cook	Florence Mayon
Butler	Charles McHugh

WILLIAM HARCOURT is a shrewd young business man, happily married, but unfortunate in a recent business transaction. He has a splendid estate, which he has mortgaged to the limit, and unless something unforeseen happens he is on the verge of ruin. William is happily married and his wife—so far—has not been a very satisfactory helpmate in the way of economy. In fact Maude has developed into a very reckless spendthrift with the full knowledge and consent of William.

William has not taken Maude into his confidence and she is oblivious to the fact they must slow up. There is a ray of hope, however. A western millionaire miner has become interested in William and has tacitly agreed to finance him in a big deal. William has never met Bradford, the western Croesus, but is hoping he will turn up at an opportune moment.

The climax comes when the servants demand their wages which are in arrears. William is irate and discharges the force. He seeks out Maude and tells her of their condition—they are ruined. Maude takes it philosophically and comforts him.

At this juncture Richard Thayer, a warm friend of the family, accompanied by his fiancee, Bessie Lane, arrives to spend the day and they are most welcome. Coincident with their arrival comes a telegram from Bradford announcing that he is coming down to visit them.

William and Maude are in a quandary. Bradford is due at any moment and the servants have decamped. The host and hostess have a family conference. They must keep the secret of their financial condition from their visitors—but Bradford must be entertained.

William gets the idea. The guests are called in and William unfolds his scheme diplomatically. The absence of the servants is explained to the guests and William explains that Richard and Bessie must assume to be the hosts and William will pose in the role of butler with Maude as the maid. There is no time to discuss it and Richard enters into the spirit of the occasion and agrees to the plan.

Richard, as Harcourt, hurries to the station and brings home Bradford, posing as the host. Now Bradford is a species of the big bluff Westerner, plain in speech and action. He admires Richard—as Harcourt—and becomes interested in Bessie, as Mrs. Harcourt. Bradford is single and fancies Maude in the role of maid.

Bradford is solicitous for the welfare of his host and insists that Richard and Bessie retire early to get their beauty sleep. This starts a complication that is very embarrassing. Bessie rebels and threatens to queer the whole plot. Bradford sticks around and Richard is forced to wear a bath robe as Bradford appropriates his clothing.

At this interesting stage Bessie's father, Jack Lane, arrives and he is a fire-eating Southerner. He demands an explanation.

Richard and William tell Lane that Bradford is crazy and they also tell Bradford that Lane is a harmless lunatic. They each hunt the other and finally Bradford forcibly shoves Lane into a closet and locks the door.

The plot thickens and the house is simply a bedlam, the four principals being nearly frightened to death.

The tension is relieved by the butler and cook returning to prepare breakfast—being truly sorry for William and Maude. They release Lane and he comes charging in flourishing a gun and threatening to shoot Bradford.

William is forced to discard his role of butler and explain to the two irate men, and Lane and Bradford become fast friends.

Bradford enjoys the joke and tells Harcourt he'll back him to the limit of his bank roll in any venture in which he may engage.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

If there's anything to the "Laugh and Grow Fat" theory you'll take on weight after seeing Lyons and Moran in "A Shocking Night."

If you like a little dynamite with your honey see "A Shocking Night."

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are on the screen with a new one that should crack your ribs. See them in "A Shocking Night."

and no worry!

52 Good Pictures a Year

A WEEKLY FEATURE that you can count on will be the heart and soul of Universal's policy for the year 1921.

A good picture every week for fifty-two straight weeks—a great big slice of your schedule off your mind for a whole year.

And no worry. A production every week in the year that will average higher than any other brand of pictures on the market. Made by a company with bigger assets in past performances, picture-making knowledge and equipment than any other concern in the world.

Sold you at a price that will net you more than anything else you can buy.

Fifty-two good pictures a year. That's all and that's enough.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O

WOW!

OF course, the folks don't get dizzy watching Eddie's hair-raising stunts! Of course, they don't grab their seats every time Eddie pulls out a new one from his bottomless bag of brand-new thrillers! Of course, they don't pack the houses to the fire limits every time they show a Polo picture. No, of course they don't! Exhibitors write us so, just to make us feel good.

Eddie POLO

Directed by J. P. McGowan

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Publicity Stories for Lyons-Moran in "A Shocking Night"

LYONS-MORAN HAVE THEORIES ALL THEIR OWN ON MIRTH MAKING

THE average motion picture player in Southern California would rather accept an engagement for a production with Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran than with any other stars in the cinema world. These Universal comedy stars have learned that secret of nature, that it is not profitable either materially or mentally, to take one's self too seriously, and work on their "set" is always one round of entertainment.

"Devising and portraying comedy stories is strenuous work," recently explained Eddie Lyons. "It requires a lot of deep thought to figure out just at what tempo every scene should be played, how every entrance and exit should be made and what tricks of gesture or expression should be employed to create a burst of laughter. It is up to Lee and me to do all this planning in our dressing rooms and in our studies before we arrive on the set. Once on the job, it is our aim to put the entire company in the proper spirit for farce, and that is to make them happy and carefree for the time being.

"You can't play comedy successfully," added Lee Moran, "when you are mentally wearing a long face. The business may call for a doleful expression, but the player must be alert and light-hearted all the time. We try to make the company forget its troubles, and everyone enters into the spirit of the comedy. The visitor on our set may be led to believe we are wasting a lot of time in frivolous pastime; but the fact is we are investing in a happy disposition and it pays big dividends in screen results."

Lyons and Moran have just completed the fifth of their big comedy features, "A Shocking Night," said to be brimful of wholesome laughter, and it will be seen at the .... Theatre next .... ,

LYONS-MORAN PICTURE ENHANCED BY ACTING OF LILLIAN HALL

LILLIAN HALL, the pretty girl, who plays with Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran in "A Shocking Night," which is now at the .... Theatre, is said to be the only society girl in the world who spent more than a week in England without coming home with a pronounced British accent.

Miss Hall toured England with her parents at the impressionable age when most young girls acquire a British accent even if they have to get it by eating Yorkshire pudding. Yet she returned to America with the pure inflection of Reading, Pa., unimpaired.

Before she was selected by Lyons and Moran to support them in "A Shocking Night," Miss Hall was on the screen in dramatic roles.

Miss Hall began her dramatic work in stock, playing long engagements in Philadelphia, Canada and Brooklyn.

In "A Shocking Night," the clever little ingenue plays opposite the two star comedians and gives the production added zest through her interpretations of the vivacious role.

Associated with her in the cast are such prominent screen folk as Lionel Belmore Alta Allen, Clark Comstock, Florence Mayon and Charles McHugh.

SHAKESPEAREAN ACTOR APPEARS IN CAST OF "A SHOCKING NIGHT"

WHEN Shakespeare wrote, "and one man in his time plays many parts," he was probably thinking of his old friend Clark Comstock, the Universal player.

Comstock does not claim friendship with Shakespeare but regards him an acquaintance, having thundered the bard's sonorous lines from the speaking stage for thirty years.

From "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to "A Shocking Night" is quite a jump but Comstock made it when he was selected by Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran to play one of the principal roles in "A Shocking Night" which is now playing at the .... Theatre.

In that feature comedy he depicts the role of an irate father with all the annoyance that King Lear experienced when he discovered that the minds of his daughters were not "going along with his," as Mr. Wilson says.

Comstock started his dramatic career in 1884 with old John Jack and Annie Firman. He toured the United States in every Shakespearean role from Banquo's Ghost to Romeo. Later he appeared on the stage with such favorites as Katie Putnam, Grace Hawthorne, John Dillon, Sol Smith Russell and in stock where he took part in 1500 different plays in Milwaukee, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver.

Other popular players in the cast of "A Shocking Night" are Alta Allen, Lillian Hall, Lionel Belmore, Florence Mayon and Charles McHugh.

PRETTY INGENUE HAS BIG PART IN LATEST LYONS-MORAN FEATURE

NEGLIGEE has been defined as a carefully disarranged costume in which a woman sometimes manages to be surprised.

Playgoers who attend the .... Theatre where "A Shocking Night" is playing will "surprise" one of the screen's prettiest girls in a "surprising" negligee.

She is Miss Alta Allen, particularly selected by Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran to support them in their Universal feature comedy, "A Shocking Night."

Miss Allen was born in San Francisco and celebrated her fourth birthday with the San Francisco earthquake; which is just a difficult way of saying that she is eighteen.

After graduating from the Oakland High School at sixteen, Miss Allen joined a west coast stock company, took a swing around the Orpheum circuit and then returned to San Francisco to be featured with the Fairmont Follies in a song and dance number.

A year ago she entered pictures and has achieved a distinct success as an ingenue lead. Before her work with Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran in "A Shocking Night," she played opposite Max Linder, the French Comedian in "Seven Years Bad Luck," a picture made at Universal City.

In "A Shocking Night," the pretty girl plays one of the four leading roles and adds materially to the spice of the production.

"A Shocking Night" is playing at the .... Theatre where it will continue until ....

Every

11 story plunge from scaffold

Captured by Cannibals

In mid-ocean at midnight

Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial

Directed by Edward Kull

Eileen Sedgwick

in the thrill-a-minute Serial

Thrill-a Gem!

IN the air—underground—on land—on sea—in savage Africa—in civilized America — everywhere, unheard-of thrills, action and mystery await the crowds that will sit spellbound and breathless before this supreme, spectacle serial. Start the New Year with a big winner. Book this serial.

Attacked by Thugs
Where the Diamonds were made

"The Diamond Queen"

It Is and It Aint!

MYSTERY! That's what gets 'em —and keeps 'em coming back. They know it's Elmo playing that mighty double role of the twin brothers—but when they see these two fly at each other's throat and otherwise stage a fight, so thrilling that it has 'em standing on their seats yelling their heads off—well, you can't blame 'em if they begin to wonder: it is and it ain't Elmo!

IT'S that same double role dominating this smashing serial filled with action, mystery and punch that is piling up the green dominoes for thousands of exhibitors.

Universal's Serial Sensation

ELMO LINCOLN

Directed by Robt. Hill

"THE FLAMING DISK"

International News

No. 90.

London, England.—Lloyd George's home barricaded against attack in grave Irish crisis.

Sub-Titles.—British officers, slain in Ireland, are buried with military honors. Fires in Plymouth, England, following disturbances in Ireland. And the beginning of the great fires in Cork, Ireland, laid to the British "Black and Tans."

New York Zoological Park.—New arrivals lure children to zoo, but as usual the tiger at lunch holds them fascinated.

Sub-Titles.—One of the recent arrivals—a Malabar squirrel. A rare specimen of the African porcupine—don't stand too close. The cavy poses for his first picture. The most popular performer of all.

New York City.—Friar's Circus invades Wall Street to aid Santa Theatrical stars perform in financial district to help New York American fund.

Sub-Title.—A little jazz by 'Frisco and Miss Dixie O'Neill lures many dollars for New York's poor. (New York only.)

Plymouth, Mass.—Plymouth Rock moved to final resting place at Tercentenary festival.

Sub-Titles.—Note the crack made in moving the historic rock. Governor Coolidge and Senator Lodge take part in the ceremonies. The vice-President elect, Mrs. Coolidge and Senator Lodge. (Omit from New York City.)

Champagne, Ill.—Making rough-riders of college students. University of Illinois boys become crack cavalrymen under expert army instructors.

Sub-Title.—Fancy stuff.

Paris Island, S. C.—Exploring the clouds with Marine flyers. Picturesque glimpses of a trip in unchartered skies.

Sub-Titles.—Hide-and-seek. Skimming a sea of clouds.

Hetch-Hetchy Valley, Cal.—25 ton locomotive dropped by cable to road, 450 feet below.

Sub-Title.—American engineering skill, utilizing a 800-foot cable to bridge the chasm, solves a problem that had threatened to tie up construction work on the new Hetch-Hetchy dam.

San Francisco, Cal.—A Naval novelty. Several thousand sailors in turret gun formation afford air-man a unique sight. (Photographed from a Varney Standard plane.)

Sub-Title.—Shoot a plea for the Navy.

Monterey Bay, Cal.—Hunting the whale offers real thrills. Giants of the sea put up a game struggle—but in vain.

Sub-Title.—A rope slipped through a hole in the giants tail, holds him—and the hunt for more continues.

Villa De Guadalupe, Mexico.—Thousands of Indians in great pilgrimage to "Miracle Shrine."

Sub-Titles.—The temple built in the 15th Century by the Spanish Padres. The "Virgin de los Remedies" to whom the Indians attribute the power to cure all disease. Near the temple, is a sacred wall to which is also attributed marvelous curative powers. The jars in which the Indians take "holy water" from the sacred well. Festival time in Villa de la Guadalupe.

"Sweet Revenge"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Hoot Douglas	Hoot Gibson
Betty Adams	Gertrude Olmstead
Ben Carnes	Jim Corey
Will Adams	Otto Nelson
Bobby Adams	Roy Stecker

HOOT DOUGLAS is the only cattleman in a land given over to the sheepmen. He loves Betty, daughter of Adams, the wealthiest cattleman in the country, and his love is returned. Adams' foreman, Carnes, dislikes Hoot and determines to get him out of the country. He works up Adams' ire and he finally tells Hoot he will have to get out. Hoot leaves, after telling Adams that some time he will have to come to him (Hoot) and say "Please."

While they are talking Adams' small son, Bobby, roams away, and a search is made for him, without avail. Hoot meets the youngster and takes him to his cabin. He conceives the idea of holding the kid and writing a note to his father telling him he has Bobby and that he can get him by saying "Please." He sees Carnes passing, and asks him to deliver the note, but forgets to seal it. Carnes reads it, and decides he can make a little easy money by demanding ransom for the child. He and his pals accordingly write the old man a note and Adams falls for it. He brings the money to the designated place and is followed by Betty who is seen by the crooks and taken to their cabin, where she is to be held until they can get away. Carnes also decides to get the reward offered, by telling Adams where the boy is. One of his pals goes to Hoot's cabin, knocks Hoot on the head and takes Bobby to Carnes' cabin. Hoot goes to the cabin and gets the better of Carnes and his pals, just as Adams and a friend ride up. Adams has previously marked the money he had left for the supposed kidnappers, and it is this money which incriminates Carnes and his pals, and everything ends happily for Hoot.

"Tee Time"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Percy Pembroke Billy Armstrong	Rivals
Geo. Williams	Father
Fay Holderness	Mother
Florence Lee	The Girl

The Century Lions

PEMBROKE and Armstrong agree to hold a golf contest and the winner is to get the girl.

Armstrong loads his golf ball with nitro-glycerine because Pembroke is a better player.

One decides to kidnap the baby and blame the other, so that he'd be put in jail. By accident the wrong fellow picks up baby and both land in jail.

After numerous adventures, including some thrills with lions, the girl is finally won by the lucky Pembroke.

"Happy Daze"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring The Century Lions

THE Boy sets sail for Turkey as a sailor, because he likes the Girl and he discovers by her suitcase that she is bound for Turkey.

He gets into all kinds of mischief as a sailor. One of the crew blows the boat up with TNT and he is adrift on the sea but manages to be picked up by some of the others who are sailing along in a couple of tubs. In this way the Boy gets to Turkey.

The Girl is shopping on the streets of Turkey. The Boy meets her but as he is recounting to her the thrilling tale of his rescue, one of the sultan's wife snatchers picks her up and carries her to the harem as the millionth wife for the big chief. The Boy follows in hot pursuit and there are wild doings in the harem, especially when he masquerades as a girl. He is joined by two of his cronies from the ship.

The sultan realizes that the only way to get even is to call out the lions, which he does. Then the real trouble starts and the whole city practically is put to flight. The sultan himself flees. The Boy thinks he has The Girl all rescued for himself when he sees her in the arms of one of the other sailors. He begins to weep but his tears are turned to smiles when he tells him that it i only her twin brother Oswald.

From Coast

The Biggest Hit

Montpelier, Idaho

"Finest picture shown this year. Every one talked about it for days."
Walter Stevens,
Gem Theatre.

Wausau, Wis.

"Piled them in for two days. Can't say enough for it. Book it."
G. A. Schochow.

Madison, Wisconsin

"Opened to capacity. "Ben Bolt" sung made a real hit. Great."
H. J. Donovan,
Fuller Theatre.

Milwaukee, Wis.

"More profitable than I anticipated. Great applause from audience." D. Feinberg,
State Theatre.

Fresno, Cal.

"As Harrison said: 'It is a pleasure to witness such an enjoyable picture. Star and story superb."
Geo. Sharp,
Liberty Strand.

Kansas City, Mo.

"The talk of the town. Crowds stood on street in rain and cold. Picture like this comes once to every exhibitor."
Liberty Theatre.

St. Louis, Mo.

"One of the best pictures shown in St. Louis in many a day. Capacity all day long."
Skouras Bros.
Enterprises.

Use the Practical

They've brought crowde houses to thousands of exhib itors. They'll do the same fo
you. Go to your Universa Exchange and get the beau tiful "Ben Bolt" Super-Her alds. Arrange for the bi publicity tie-up with you largest music store. Get local singer to render "Be Bolt" during the showing, o

Dorothy Phillips

Assisted by
MARGARET MANN

"ONCE TO EV

to Coast—
of the Year!

Chicago, Ill.

"Never had a picture more pleasing to audience. Did exceptionally good business."
Jacob Cooper,
20th Century Theatre.

Youngstown, O.

"Broke all records. Over two thousand turned away."
Chas. W. Denzinger.

New York City

"Wonderful. Went over big. Broke all box-office records."
Harry D. Stern,
Mt. Morris Theatre.

Duquesne, Pa.

"Set a house record. Every one pleased. Heart appeal in it that will not fail to touch everyone."
Morris Roth,
Liberty Theatre.

Pittsburg, Pa.

"This is largest house on North Side. Played to one of the largest audiences."
New Kenyon Theatre.

Brooklyn, N.Y.

"Did good business. Patrons entirely pleaed."
Elias Mayer,
Roebling Theatre.

Pittsburg, Pa.

"Broke all records at the Oakland Theatre."
Leo. Gerethler.

E. Pittsburg, Pa.

"Three capacity audiences laughed, cried and applauded."
J. Howard Lichtenstein.

romotion Aids operate with your Victrola p for the use of a phonoaph and the Geraldine rrar record of "Ben Bolt." fuller details, refer to t numbers of the Weekly ask your salesman. Take tip from Universal: investate and use these commonse aids and put the pice over big.

Universal-Jewel
Production
de Luxe
Directed by
ALLEN HOLUBAR

ERY WOMAN"

CENTURY

COMEDIES

One big laugh every week

YOU want good comedies but you want more than one—you want fifty-two—for every week in the year. That's taking comedy worries really off your mind. And you can do this by booking CENTURY COMEDIES—because they're made right where the screen's best features are made—where talent and ideas and equipment and unusual sets are always available. There's nothing cheap in the looks of a CENTURY COMEDY and the fun is as fresh as the next minute. Don't worry about your comedies—lean on CENTURY.

CURRENT RELEASE
"HAPPY DAZE"

Released Thru
UNIVERSAL

The Picture That Reaches Every Exhibitor's Audience!

IN the town halls of tiny hamlets—in the neighborhood playhouses of small towns—in the gilded palaces of gay Broadway — everywhere, this picture has been a tremendous success!

Why? Because its human appeal is so world-wide—so big and fundamental—that it must and does reach every exhibitor's audiences.

A big picture—a big profit-maker! You should book it!

Von Stroheim's
WONDER PICTURE
Universal—Jewel
Production de Luxe
"BLIND HUSBANDS"

Exhibitors Themsel

Buffalo, N. Y.

Opened at the Palace Theatre. House seats 780—six shows total seating capacity 4,680. Played to five thousand. Broke all house records. About two thousand turned away. HOWARD SMITH.

Baltimore, Md.

Capacity of only 320 at the Clover Theatre. Played to 4,245 people on opening day. JULES LEVY.

Kansas City.

Opening a big success. Had crowds waiting in line two hours before the opening time. Admission largest this house ever charged. Making arrangements to keep picture four weeks. DORIC THEATRE.

“SHIPWRECKED A

Univers

es Wrote this “Ad.”

Pittsburg, Pa.

Opened at the Columbia Theatre with a capacity business from 9 A. M. to 11.30 P. M. Played to over 4,500 paid admissions. Receipts at 10 P. M. were $1,601. Crowd in line all day long.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.

Huntington, Ind.

You certainly sold me a great picture. Any more that you may have like this one, bring ’em on!

JOHN A. HEFFERNON,
Perfect Theatre.

Indianapolis, Ind.

Smashed all expectations. Played to nearly 3,500 paid admsisions from 1.30 to 11 P. M. Only a 500-seat house, and we were forced to turn hundreds away. Crowd was lined up for half a block all day long. R. W. ALBERT.

NG CANNIBALS”

ewel

International News

No. 88

3,500,000 Children in Europe Face starvation Unless America Helps.—Herbert Hoover, chairman of the European Relief Council. He needs $33,000,000 to avert the greatest tragedy in the world's history. The council comprises the American Relief Administration, American Red Cross, American Jewish Relief, K. of C., Federal Council of Churches, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. A few of the thousands of children suffering from under-nourishment in Europe. Their little bodies, warped by the lack of food. Only American philanthropy keeps these children from starving. Have an invisible guest at your Christmas table by giving the cost of one extra meal to feed these helpless ones. $10,000 feeds one child until the next harvest. Send your donation to Franklin K. Lane, treasurer, 42 Broadway.

New York City.—New wrestling "champ." Here's strangler Lewis, showing how he won the world's title from Joe Stecher. The heavyweight boxing champion is still Mr. Dempsey. Here's how he looked before meeting Mr. Brennan. The champ in training. (He needed all he got.)

Washington, D. C.—Vice-President gives boys farewell party. Mr. Marshall has been a "daddy" to all the Senate pages. (Washington only.)

New York City.—Those Sunday blues. Mournful procession gives Manhattan a glimpe of what's coming, if certain folks have their way.

New York City.—"Casey" brings joy to East Side kiddies. Hundreds of toys made by shell-shocked soldiers distributed to poor youngsters. They have the K. of C. to thank for the first Christmas toys they ever received. (Omit Washington prints.)

Hoboken, N. J.—Peaceful but wary is your Uncle Sam. Not looking for a scrap—but overlooking no bets. Here's a new gun tractor he's just perfected. Keeping the navy up to date. Here's the scout cruiser Omaha, 555 feet long, getting its finishing touches.—Seattle Wash. And for the coast defense, the first disappearing gun mount ever constructed for a 16-inch gun.—Watertown, Mass.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Mid-winter madness. While poor Eastern folks shiver, look at these pupils of Miss Marion Morgan enjoying the air. Why the trains going West are crowded.

Batavia, Java.—Javanese snapshots. Christmas means turkey for us, but sea-fish is the little yellow man's holiday dish. All fish look alike to the Javanese. He doesn't despise the tiniest. The Java boy's favorite sport is training pigeons to "come home."

Masquillet, France.—Foch beaten at last. The great Marshal meets his Waterloo in a bird shooting contest. Hugh Wallace, U. S. Ambassador to France.

West Bank, N. Y.—Oh, a lonesome life is the lighthouse keeper's!! International news cameramen pay a visit to one of New York's most exclusive bachelor clubs! No woman's land—officially known as West Bank Light. Coming out to meet us—any kind of company looks good to the lighthouse man. No elevators, no movies, no neighbors—a few of the reasons why lighthouse keepers stay single. Lighthouse Luke leads the wat to Bachelor Hall. The lighthouse lamp of crystal prisms, a blessing to many a storm-tossed ship. One advantage—an unobstructed view. The lighthouse man's last question as we leave : "Ain't there any lady cameramen?"

International News

No. 89

Fort Rodman, Mass.—Barbette guns get first try-out. New weapon, firing 1070 pound projectile, to help defend coast. (Omit from Portland, Seattle and Spokane prints.)

Seattle, Wash.—Explosion on "gold ship." Alaskan steamer Victoria set afire by fatal accident. For Portland, Seattle and Spokane only.)

Staten Island, N. Y. (Omit from Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Atlanta and New Orleans prints).—British oil tanker built in U. S. yards. Miss Edythe Carr christens craft with a bottle of real champagne. Uncle Sam's great scout cruiser Omaha is launched at Tacoma, Wash. (Subtitle to be omitted from Boston prints.)

Tacoma, Wash.—Uncle Sam's greatest warship christened. Giant scout cruiser Omaha gracefully takes the water. (For Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Atlanta and New Orleans Only.)

New Orleans, La.—$2,000,000 ship fire. Blaze wrecks docks and boats along river front. The fire's trail. (For Atlanta and New Orleans only.)

Paris Island, S. C.—Marines at play. Strenuous games keep "Devil Dogs" cheerful between scraps. Their pull counts.

Roxbury, Mass.—Homespun for Harding. Mrs. Laura Jackson's ancient loom helps President-elect cut the high cost of clothes. This loom's 168 years old and still going strong. The finished cloth for Mr. Harding.

San Francisco, Cal.—Santa Claus turns aviator to aid poor. Gift-laden parachutes dropped from Varney plane, bring joy to orphans. Straight to the kiddies who need them most—gifts contributed by Uncle Sam's marines.

Happy Blue Year.—Glimpses of the kind of Sundays you may expect in 1921 if the cheerful reformers have their way. At the beach—old style. New style. Luna Park unreformed. The same—reformed. A Sunday baseball crowd in the wicked year of 1920. The same park in the perfect 1921. Romance—a picture of the dark days drawing to a close. In the glorious about to dawn. The perfect Sunday sport—1921 style.

New York City.—Daredevil aerialist "studies" on skyscraper. Captain Charles Fitzgerald commander of New York's air police, shows how to get used to the high spots. Warming up. One of those movie disappearing acts—hold your seats.

Boston Mass, (Boston only).—Bay State greets Irish martyr's widow. Massachusetts Senators and Representatives welcome Mrs. Terrence MacSwiney.

Famous Tad cartoon.

New Screen Magazine

No. 100.

NEW YORKERS live very near some of nature's beauty spots, but they see very little except the skyscrapers in which most of them battle for their daily bread. Forty-five minutes from the city are some exquisite bits of scenery but few New Yorkers know about them.

Living diphtheria germs, cultivated for medical experiments, receive the careful handling due their dangerous nature. A view of the germs, 37,000 times magnified, is shown.

One of the most inventive of American families is the Remington family. Eliphalet Remington 3rd and his son Philo, live at the old homestead near Ilion, New York. A score of inventions are monuments to several generations of Remingtons. At ninety-two, Eliphalet Remington still enjoys a stroll with the family gun. The world's first typewriter, velocipede and steam propelled canal boat were products of the Remington genius. Particularly interesting is the old-fashioned typewriter, created in 1860.

This issue of the magazine closes with an amusing animated by Pat Sullivan entitled "Sammie White presents Hisself in 'Baby Mine.'"

New Screen Magazine

No. 99

THE lives of the beloved trees in in New York parks are guarded by a staff of tree "doctors." Trees that are victims to lightning, age and disease are treated.

M. Eugene Lauste, a Frenchman, is the inventor of one of the first motion picture machines. With his help, Thomas A. Edison developed his kinetoscope. M. Lauste has photographed many world wide celebrities, including the late King Edward the Seventh of England.

There are various types of monkeys. There is the ferocious African gorilla and the gentle orang outang from Borneo. The Saki of Brazil is an extremely rare monkey. The African baboon is large and savage.

Bernard McFadden, founder of the Physical Culture Magazine, demonstrates a few simple muscle builders in this issue of the magazine. Among these are deep breathing and certain kinds of exercises.

The magazine closes with a comic cartoon.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 11

"The Evil Eye"

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Helen	Pansy Porter
Gray	Harry Madison
Mary	Kittoria Beveridge

EDDIE escapes from the box as it lies on the bottom of the canal, rises and swims to shore. He makes his way back to Chung Hu's and rescues Helen—and they return to the circus.

Meanwhile, the representatives of the circus combine visit Gray and offer to buy the shows. Gray refuses because he is afraid to have the title examined until the canvas which is Eddie's proof to his ownership of the show, is out of the way. Gray, therefore, asks an unreasonable price and the representatives start to leave. At the same time, the hypnotist gets Mary under his control and she tells him that the canvas was left in a box bound for Chung Hu's. The hypnotist reports accordingly to Gray as the representatives are getting into their car and Gray calls them back. He now feels sure he can get the canvas and destroy it and so offers to sell at the figure they offered. Eddie and Helen arrive at this moment. Eddie hears what is being done and interrupts. He claims he owns the circus and insists Mary be brought forth to prove it. Mary is brought out, but she is under Zanoni's influence and refuses to recognize Eddie. She denies she is his sister and says she never heard of canvas. Moreover, Zanoni has successfully covered the mark on her shoulder which identifies her as a member of the Polo family.

Eddie is discredited in the eyes of the circus combine representatives. They proceed with the sale but their suspicions are aroused and they finally ask time to examine the books of the circus and the title. Gray reluctantly agrees to allow one of them to visit the show, travel with it and watch its business affairs closely. While this is going on, Eddie realizes that Mary was hypnotized, forces Zanoni to release her and learns the whereabouts of the canvas. He tells Helen he will start at once for the water front after the box.

The representatives leave and Zanoni tells Gray that Eddie has learned where the canvas is hidden. Gray notices Eddie preparing to leave and sees an elephant standing before a tent near which Eddie must pass. Gray prods the elephant from behind with a pitchfork as Eddie goes by and the infuriated beast grabs Eddie and swings him high. Then he kneels upon him.

NOTE:—In the issue of The Moving Picture Weekly of December 25th, the synopsis of the star comedy was erroneously entitled, "Nearly Married." The correct title for this is "Nearly Wed."

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 14

"The Purple Rays"

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

ELMO backs up the stairs as Stanton calls off his gang but when he gets to the top he falls through a trap into a deep pool below. The gang believe that he has finally met his death.

In the meantime, the mysterious motorcyclist has endeavored to steal the flaming disk from the Barrows' safe but is foiled by Stella Dean.

Elmo escapes from the perilous waters and makes his way upstairs. Hearing Stella's voice, he realizes for the first time that she is a member of the gang. Helen and Barrows are being tortured by the Stanton outfit in a hideous fashion; a huge stone threatens to crush Helen to death. Elmo rescues them and with aid of the mysterious motorcyclist they attempt to make their escape through an underground tunnel. The gang get wise and just as they reach a certain spot, Stanton presses a button and Elmo is buried under a pile of sand while Helen and Barrows are taken prisoners again. They are taken into Stanton's room of electric torture in which the floor of steel plates is charged with electricity. Two Secret Service men, who attempt to round-up the gang are killed by the electricity, as they walk across the floor. Helen and Barrows are tied to chairs in the room. Elmo extricates himself from the sand-pile and locates his two charges. He is about to enter the room when Helen calls out, "Elmo, stay back—they'll kill you!" Will he walk across the dangerously charged floor?

International News

No. 87

New York City.—One-man torpedo boat. Sea Hornet, new terror of the sea, is successfully launched.

Washington, D. C.—Fire sweeps war heroes' hospital. 200 wounded men saved as blaze wrecks Walter Reed buildings.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Three-in-one dress. Miss June Day shows how to be in style and cut wardrobe bills—with just a silk scarf. (First—a street costume).

Milwaukee, Wis.—Biggest aeroplane nearing completion. Finishing touches put on mammoth 1,200-horsepower sky express.

London, England.—Famous rulers visit their their English cousins. London gets a glimpse of the tallest King in the world.

Emeryville, Cal.—Electrical rabbit eludes speedy hounds. Controlled by alert switchman, Bunny leads canines a vain chase.

In the Sea of Japan.—Japan weeding out all obsolete warships. Veteran fighting craft pass in final review before being discarded.

Chicago, Ill.—A prosperity picture. The cameraman finds Mid-West steel mills working at 100 per cent capacity. Vivid glimpses of steel in the making. Furnaces that turned out weapons of death for the Great War now producing implements of peace at top speed. The fires of progress—no depression here. The melting pot of prosperity.

Great Lakes, Ill.—The season's greetings. Conveyed to you for International by 3,000 sailor boys at Naval Training Station.

Tad cartoon.

Within 70 Minutes They Were Selling S. R. O.

Pocatello, Idaho.

Broke all records. Opened doors at 12:10 P. M. At 1:20 P. M. were selling standing room tickets until late at night. Something extarordinary.

L. Manders, American Theatre.

Wanted It for Indefinite Run!

Atlantic City, N. J.

Played four days; had I not been booked with another show, which I found impossible to take out, I would have kept this picture on for an indefinite run. Best production I ever played.

P. Mortimer Lewis, Bijou Theatre.

Wonderful Picture---Broke All Records!

Anacortes, Wash.

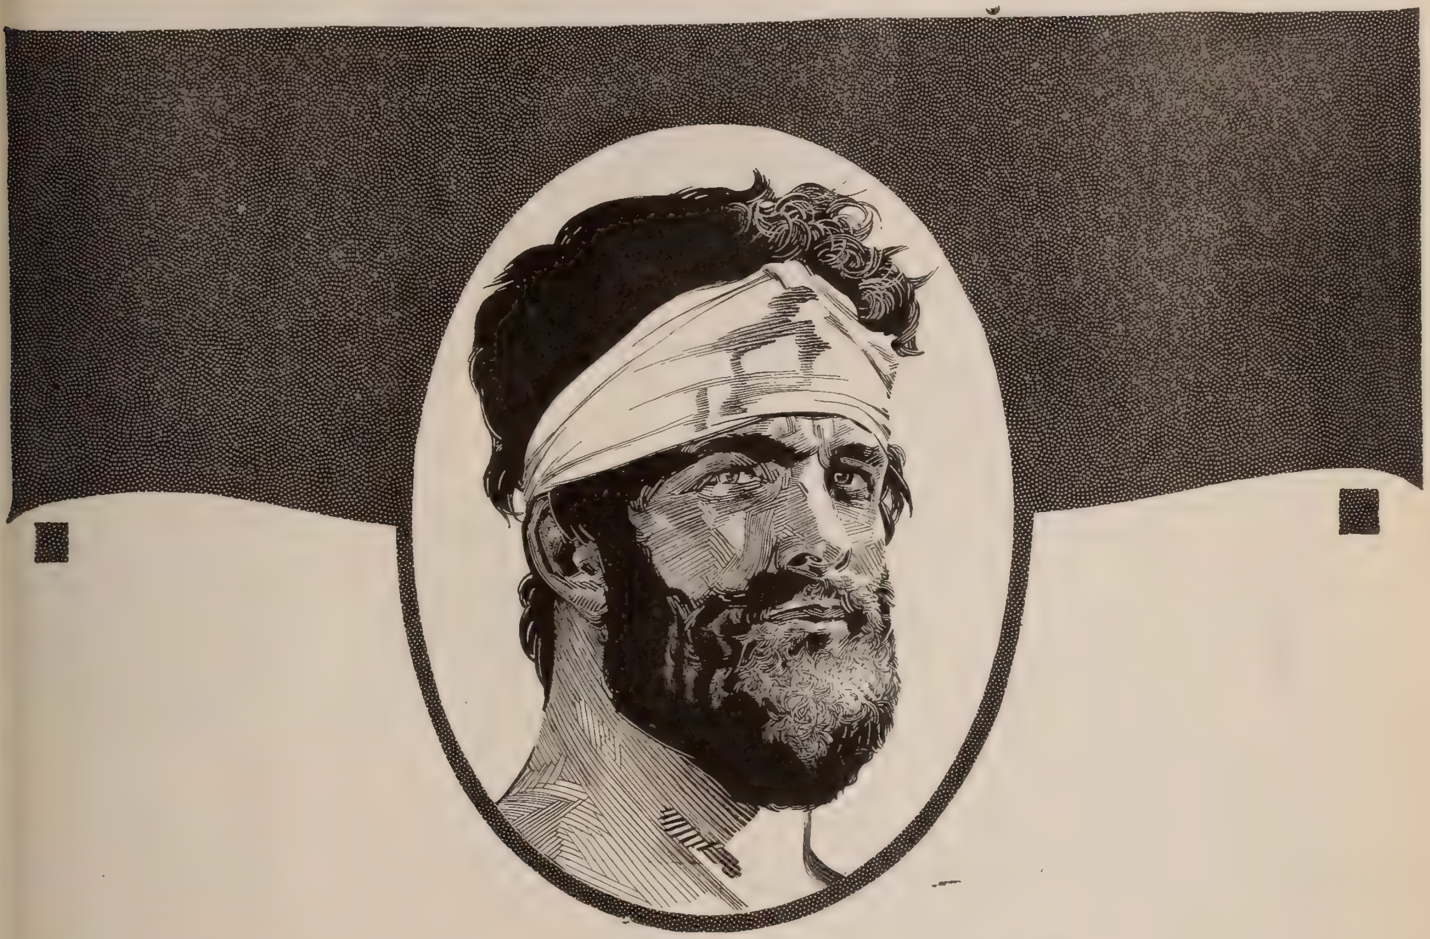
Broke all records. That is saying a good deal because I have played the biggest productions on the market. Best I have even seen.

Sam Mendelson, Empire Theatre.

UNIVERSAL JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

Von Stroheim's Masterpiece

"THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY"



Has Everything---Pleases Everybody!

THAT'S the BIG reason for this picture's phenomenal success! On the gay white way—in the quiet little village—wherever this great stirring page of life has been shown, have come glowing reports of pleased audiences and fine receipts. A fine, big feature that combines in one all those essential elements that make a great and lasting photoplay. A big picture for a big town, an even bigger picture for the small town. Book it to-day!

ELMO LINCOLN

In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by REX INGRAM

Story by U.G.HAWKS

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 12

"Deep Waters"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Helen	Pansy Porter
Gray	Harry Madison
John Winters	Charles Fortune

A TRAINER sees Eddie's predicament in time to kill the elephant and save Eddie. Helen has already started for the water front and leaves a note for Eddie advising him of this fact. Gray is also on his way and Eddie starts out ofter them. A three cornered chase follows in which Gray succeeds in wrecking the machines in which Helen and Eddie are riding.

At the docks, the mysterious Unknown, accompanied by old John Winters, Eddie's foster father, is already searching for the canvas. Winters is left in the garage while the Unknown, who has found the remnants of the box in which the canvas was hidden, goes out by launch to search for other pieces of it. He has been told by fisherman that the parts of the box that are now on the dock were picked up in the harbor. Gray and his men arrive and find Winters whom they are anxious to kill because of his knowledge of Eddie's past. They attack him but Eddie arrives in time to save him. But Gray and his men succeed in getting Helen, whom Eddie has left in his car, and they imprison her in another box lying along the docks.

Another battle between Eddie and Gray's men follows. The fight ends when Eddie and one of the men go off the top of a high tower into the bay. They are picked up by the Unknown's boat and Eddie's wounds are attended to by one of the boatmen. To his surprise Eddie finds his bandage is the half of the canvas for which he is searching. Gray learns of this fact and he and his men rail the boat. Eddie escapes into a rowboat but Grey pursues him and at the finish of the episode they overtake Eddie as he is drawing up alongside the docks. The launch crashes thorugh the frail rowboat and Eddie is apparently crushed into the piling

"Fresh From The Country"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE visits her rich city cousin. City cousin has a charming young daughter whom she wants to marry off to a rich old man. She puts the poor young suitor whom daughter loves, out of the house.

Lizzie falls in love with the fat suitor herself and so she decides to help her young cousin out. The young lover comes to the house dressed as a painter and begins to paper Lizzie's room. Lizzie tells the mother that she will marry the painter and all of a sudden the daughter meekly says she will marry the fat rich suitor. A minister is immediately called, but during the ceremony the brides manage to change places and the two girls get whom they want, but the mother is furious.

Lizzie's kid brother has no end of fun during all these happenings, and gets into all kinds of mischief.

"The Driftin' Kid"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Kid	Hoot Gibson
Adonis	Art Ortego
Mary Wilkerson	Gertrude Olmstead
Mrs. Wilkerson	Lulu B. Jenks
Silent	Jim Corey
Tex Higgins	Otto Nelson

THAT is what they called McGregor because he was always about to drift.

One day the foreman of the XL ranch commissioned Mack to go to the station to meet the Boss, Mrs. Wilkerson and Mary her niece. All the other boys on the ranch got busy cleaning up, especially Adonis, who always "dolled" up on every occasion.

Mack falls in love with Mary at first sight and permits her to drive the horses home. They run away and Mack succeeds in stopping them, but at the risk of his life.

Mack had forgotten to give Silent, one of the ranchers, a letter which the postman had handed him on the way to the station. Several days later, at Mary's party, he gives it to him and notices that Silent is considerably upset.

At the party Mack and Adonis come to blows and they finish it in the corral. Adonis is just about to kick Mack in the stomach when a shot rings out and Adonis falls on his face dead. Mack makes a hasty exit, meeting a stranger at the gate, who wonders at the hurried departure.

There is great excitement at the ranch and Mary is sobbing her heart out, for she too believes Mack to be guilty.

In the meantime, Mack is racing down the canyon after a figure in the distance. He succeeds in stopping him and it turns out to be Silent, who committed the deed. Adonis had betrayed Silent's sister. They return to the ranch where the stranger at the gate discloses himself as an officer of the law and states that there probably will be no prosecution since there was a warrant out for Adonis dead or alive. He had previously murdered a man.

Mack notices Mary sobbing and believes her tears are for Adonis. He tells Tex, the foreman, to bring his time to the bunk house as he is really going a-driftin'. Tex has Mary take the money to him. She tells him she is sorry he is leaving and then Mack realizes that his driftin'-days are over.

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 15

"Poisoned Waters"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

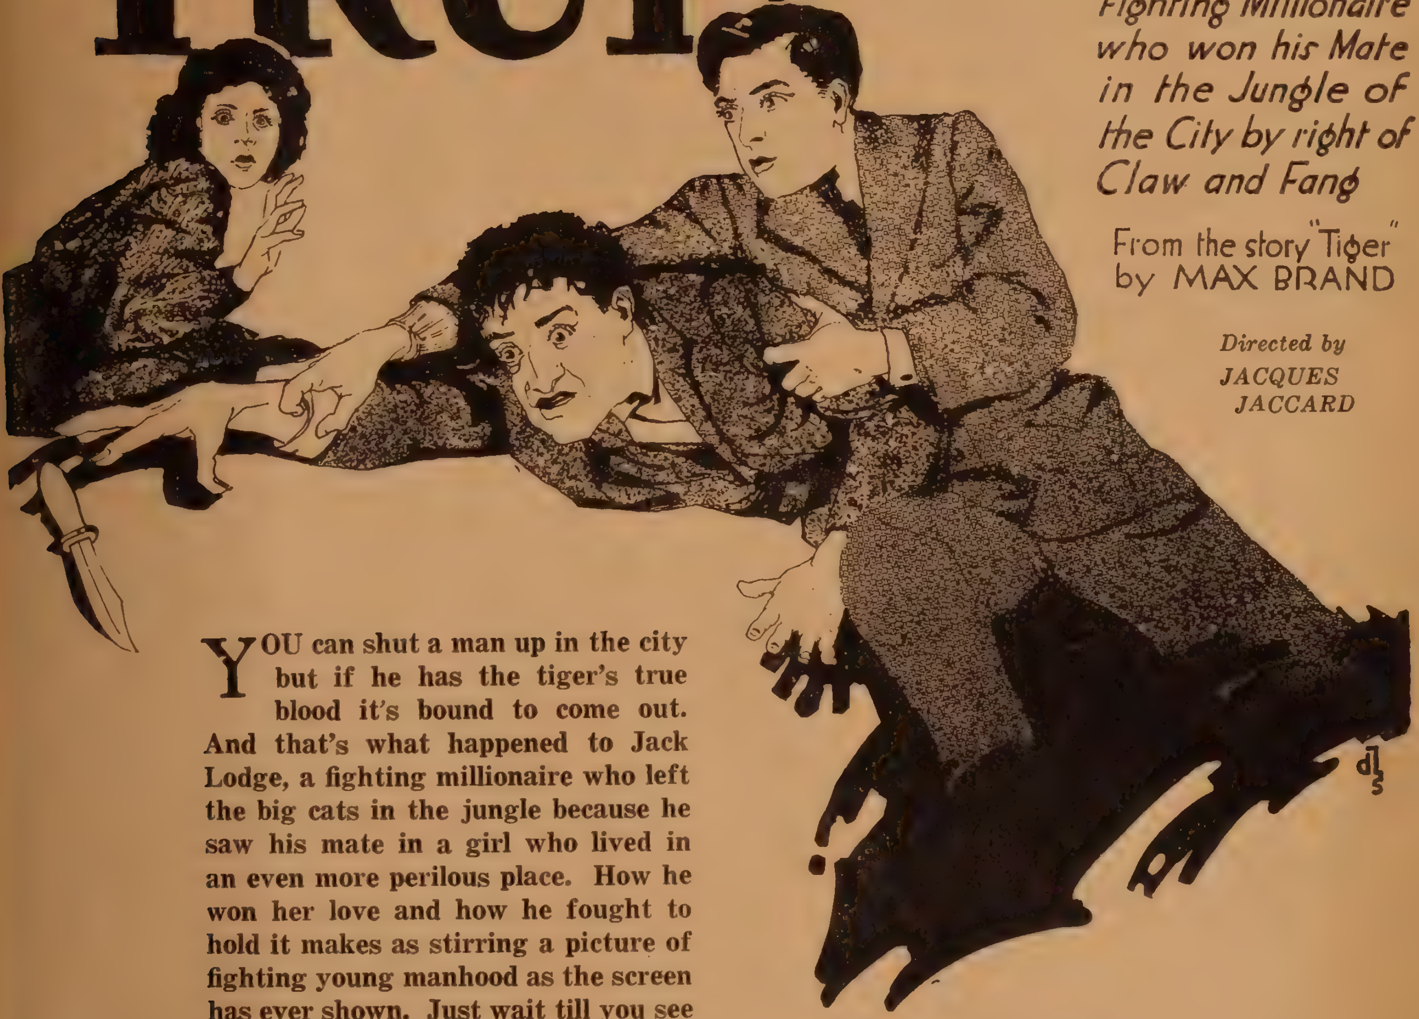
ELMO does cross the floor but without harm to himself for his kind friend, the mysterious motorcyclist, had turned off the switch hidden in a secret panel.

Stella Dean has in the interim brought the flaming disk to Stanton but they soon discover that the radio active lense is lacking. They search Elmo and find it on his person. They make him prisoner and set out to cross the desert to see Chief Spotted Horse whom Stanton had long promised a white squaw. He intends to make the Indian his permanent ally by giving him Helen. At the rim of the desert is Stanton's Circle Dot Ranch, managed by Peacock Jones and "Slippery" Smith an ex-conivct. They plan to help Stanton get Helen across the desert.

Elmo frees himself from his bonds and makes for the ranch where he forces information from Peacock and "Slippery" as to Stanton's route. By a clever ruse, Helen slips away from the gang and when they catch up with her she faces them with a pistol and threatens to do away with herself if anyone of them comes a step closer to her. Suddenly a sand storm comes up and Helen wander helplessly about in the sand-laden wind with Elmo frantically searching for her. Finally as the storm abates somewhat, he finds her and together they start for safety. Tortured by thirst, they come upon a well and lean down to satisfy their thirst. The well is poisoned. Will they drink of the fatal waters?

"TIGER TRUE"



The Story of a Fighting Millionaire who won his Mate in the Jungle of the City by right of Claw and Fang

From the story "Tiger"
by MAX BRAND

Directed by
JACQUES JACCARD

YOU can shut a man up in the city but if he has the tiger's true blood it's bound to come out. And that's what happened to Jack Lodge, a fighting millionaire who left the big cats in the jungle because he saw his mate in a girl who lived in an even more perilous place. How he won her love and how he fought to hold it makes as stirring a picture of fighting young manhood as the screen has ever shown. Just wait till you see the "Tiger's" terific encounter with the "Baboon" in the Tangle—it's just one thrill tumbling over another. ....

STARRING

FRANK MAYO

HERO OF ROMANCE

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by
LON CHANEY

Lon
Chaney

in the

Most Amazing
American Melodrama ever Screened

The
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
Production de Luxe, presented by CARL LAEMMLE

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

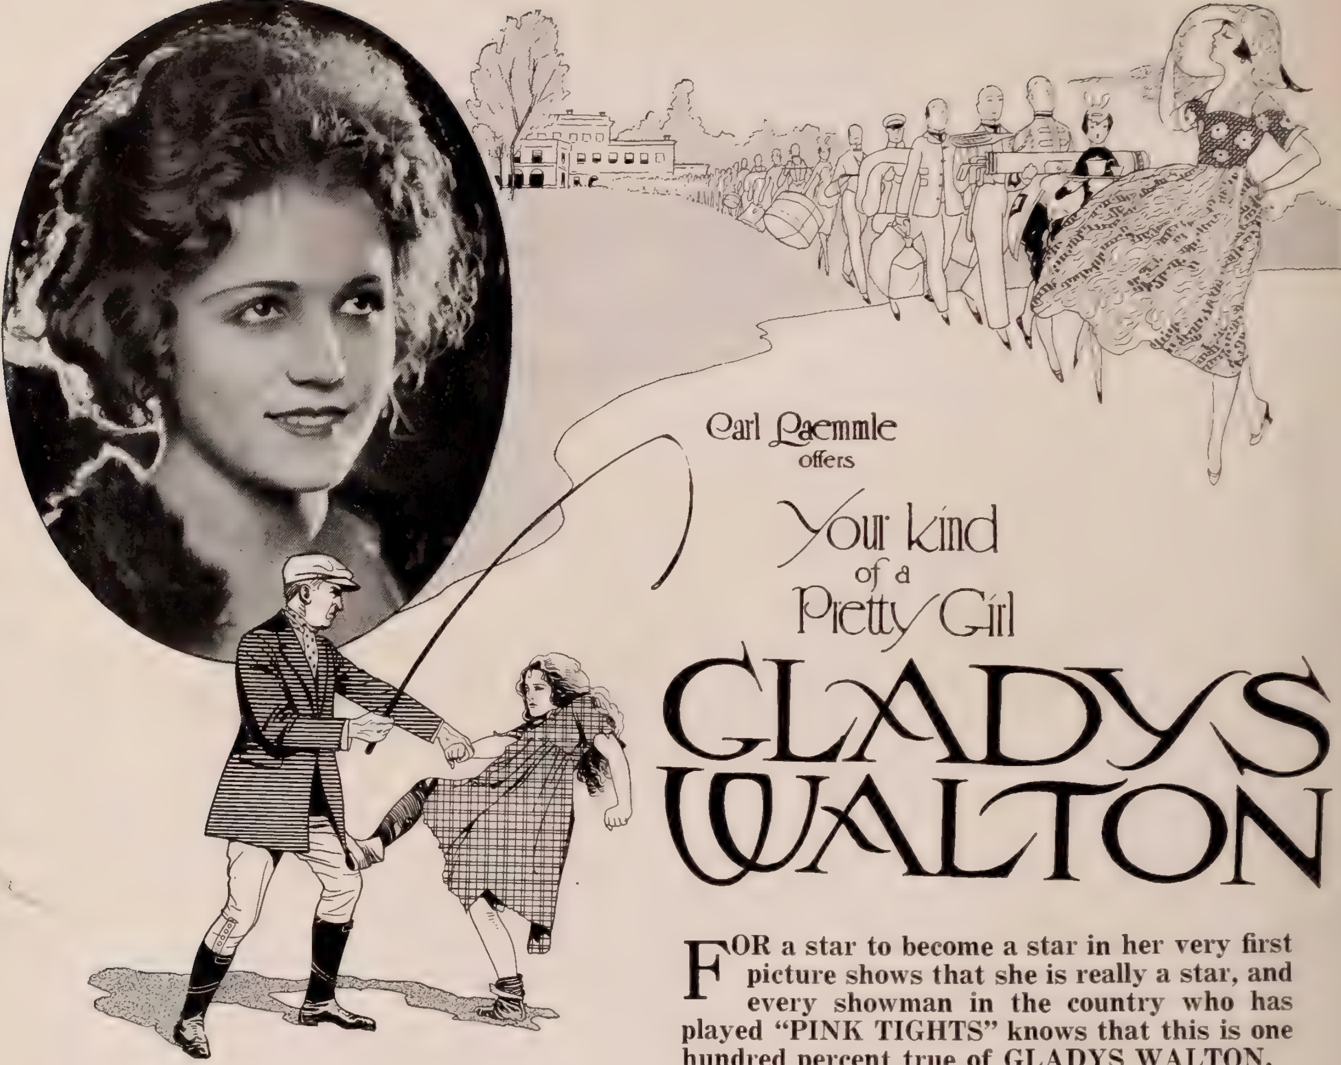
Directed by TOD BROWNING

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

GLADYS WALTON
IN
"RICH GIRL POOR GIRL"

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VOL 12 NO 23
JANUARY 22 1921



Carl Laemmle
offers

Your kind of a Pretty Girl

GLADYS WALTON

FOR a star to become a star in her very first picture shows that she is really a star, and every showman in the country who has played "PINK TIGHTS" knows that this is one hundred percent true of GLADYS WALTON.

See Gladys Walton in her newest joyous hit "RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL," directed by Harry B. Harris. Universal will bet its bottom dollar that here is a picture to make your audiences chuckle and glow for weeks afterwards.

Universal has helped more players become stars than any other producer in the whole world. We do not say "has made more stars"—we say, "has helped them become stars." In simpler words, it's all up to the player. Which gives you pretty nearly the whole difference between an over-touted disappointment and "52 Good Pictures a Year—and no Worry."

The reason why you have no worry is simply because it is you who have made the star.

52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

Universal Special Attractions

The Little Flapper can really act!

ONCE upon a time, not so very very long ago, a little girl, with fair curly hair, mischievous eyes and the prettiest of rounded figures took a high and dizzy dive and landed—in the movies! Pretty girls, with pretty legs, who can do pretty dives, find it easy to land soft jobs in the movies. Then they just look cute, worry lest their bathing suits get wet and draw fat checks for ever afterwards. But somehow, this little bathing girl was different and though no one took particular notice of her, there came a day (there always does seem to come a day, doesn't there?), when A MAN WHO KNEW singled her out with his great wise eye. He took her away from the pool and the pretty girls and the bathing-comedies and headed her straight for the fairyland of moviedom—Universal City. That wasn't the end of the little girl's story either, even though she is now living happily ever after. Indeed, it is only the beginning, the big beginning of what is going to be the glorious career of Gladys Walton, "The Little Flapper Who Can Really Act."

You've seen her in "La La Lucille," where she didn't do so much; in "The Secret Gift," where she did a little more; in "Pink Tights" where she had a lot to do and in "Risky Business," where she "walked off" with the show. But you've got to see "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" to really appreciate her. She pouts and smiles; she cries and laughs; she plays and scraps; she is full of sweet wistfulness one moment and filled with wrath and fight the next—SHE ACTS. And with an ease, a spontaneity and an unconcern that make you just love to watch her and make you breathe a sigh of regret when the last scene fades out before your delighted eyes.

That is all there is to the story of Gladys Walton just now, but sometime (and not so very far off either), her story is going to be lots and lots bigger and all sorts of wondrous things will be told of "The Little Flapper Who Can Really Act."

THE FAIRY GODMOTHER.

GLADYS

WITHOUT stopping to tell you the story of this third Walton Special Attraction we'll simply say that we bet our bottom dollar on this picture just exactly as, three months ago, we bet our bottom dollar on "PINK TIGHTS"—and every showman who played that Little Wonder of a picture is mighty glad that we called his attention to it. Take it from us—in "RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL" you have a Star and a Story to make your audiences chuckle and glow for weeks afterwards.

WALTON

– the captivating new star who won all hearts in
"PINK TIGHTS"
in a delightfully entertaining picture of an alley-cat who wanted to be a pet angora

"RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL"

Directed by
HARRY B. HARRIS

A UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTION
Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE

Service Page for Gladys Walton in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Rich Girl, Poor Girl."

STAR—Gladys Walton.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Pink Tights," "The Secret Gift," "Risky Business."

DIRECTED BY—Harry B. Harris.

STORY BY—J. G. Hawks.

SCENARIO BY—A. P. Younger.

SUPPORTING CAST—Antrim Short, Harold Austin, Gordon McGregor, Wadsworth Harris, Joe Neary, C. W. Herzinger.

LOCALE—A metropolitan city.

TIME—The Present.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of two young girls, one raised in the slums, the other in the lap of luxury, whom nature has formed in the same physical mould and who change identities for one hour; of the strange events which follow the introduction of the two in their unaccustomed surroundings and the climax which proves that love and desire know no social limitations.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The popularity of Gladys Walton, established by "Pink Tights" and "Risky Business."

2—One of the most furious fight scenes ever filmed, showing a battle to the death between rival street gangs.

3—The quickly shifting locale and the sharp contrast; from the most magnificent estate on "millionaire's row" to the most squalid tenement in Fish Alley.

4—The fact that the story was written by J. C. Hawks, author of many of the screen successes of Mary Pickford and William S. Hart.

5—The speed with which thrill after thrill paves the way for the smashing climax.

6—The skillful direction of Harry Harris, who also directed Miss Walton in "Risky Business."

7—The youthful star in a double role, depicting the two extremes of the social scale.

8—The clever work of the two leading men—Antrim Short as the hero of Fish Alley and Harold Austin as the young aristocrat.

9—Remarkable night photography, showing the slums of a great city by gaslight.

CAST

Nora McShane	Gladys Walton
Terry McShane	Gordon McGregor
Reginald	Harold Austin
Mugsy	Antrim Short
Spider	Joe Neary
Vanderfleet	Wadsworth Harris
Boggs	C. W. Herzinger

THE STORY

NORA McSHANE, Black Irish with the dusk of Donegal on her hair and the alabaster glow of Limerick in her face, lived in Fish Alley, the block-long street whose reeking gutters separated extreme wealth from abject and sordid poverty.

Flanking Fish Alley and crowding out the sun were the backs of the stone garages wherein the rich kept their limousines.

Between Fish Alley and the magnificent estates of the rich there was not only an impassable social barrier but an exceedingly practical fence with barbs to wound any profane hand that should touch it from the Fish Alley side.

Directly across from the tenement in which Nora McShane lived with a drunken father, dwelt Beatrice Vanderfleet, the only one to whom the great Vanderfleet could leave his Wall Street gleanings.

From the squalor of Fish Alley, Nora peered through the iron fence and yearned for the shaded walks that drifted in and out through the restful green stretches of the Vanderfleet estate.

From the turreted window of her boudoir Beatrice Vanderfleet looked down into the streets of Fish Alley and longed to dance with the other kids to the melody of the hand organ.

So—it was not unnatural that when Nora slipped through the fence to steal a flower, Beatrice saved her from the blows of a brutal groom and arranged with her to change identities for one short hour, in which time Beatrice Vanderfleet would forget the burden of her grandfather's millions and dance with the alley-cats, while Nora could play in the dazzling splendor of the palace.

Beatrice Vanderfleet and Nora McShane were more than sisters under their skin. They bore to one another a startling resemblance so that when Beatrice, dressed in Nora's rags, darted through the gate the groom struck at her with his kennel-whip and cursed her as the cause of his mistress' vexation toward him.

Beatrice danced with the kids in the alley while Nora paraded before a mirror in the rich girl's room. The play was to have lasted an hour but when night drew in and Vanderfleet rolled into his driveway in his car, Nora was frightened. Beatrice had not returned. Nora did not know that her drunken father had mistaken Beatrice for her and that he had beaten her. Neither did she know that he had later discovered her real identity and that he was holding her for ransom in an underworld den.

It was a terrible dinner at the Vanderfleet home—Nora impersonating Beatrice, Vanderfleet engrossed in his paper and Reggie, a ward of Vanderfleet's, marvelling that the girl whom he believed to be Beatrice, repelled his friendliness.

When the deception leaked out only Reggie was present. Without telling Vanderfleet, he took a car, and with Nora started out to save Beatrice. Nora, through Mugsy her pal, assembled the Fish Alley gang. Loaded into two limousines the gangsters located Beatrice and put on the toughest scrap in the history of the slums. Beatrice is rescued and McShane goes to jail.

The chief of police was frantically telephoning his precincts from the Vanderfleet home when Beatrice Reggie, Nora and Mugsy limped into the millionaire's study, followed by twenty of the hardest young ragamuffins living in Fish Alley.

While Beatrice, Nora, Reggie, and the deliriously happy Fish Alley gang are enjoying the refreshments, Vanderfleet tells the butler that he is henceforth to consider Nora as a member of the family.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

See "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" with Gladys Walton and clip a fortune in thrill coupons and love dividends.

A short and crooked street divided the palaces of extreme wealth from the hovels of sordid poverty. Judged by distance Nora and Beatrice were neighbors; in reality they inhabited opposite sides of the Globe. See Gladys Walton in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl."

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN!

"THE gamest little sport I have ever met." Those are the words used by Harry B. Harris, Universal director, when discussing the accident with which Gladys Walton met, during the recent filming of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," her newest starring vehicle, soon to be released.

There is a "rough - house" scene in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," when the whole Fish Alley Gang fall on the kidnappers to rescue the little heiress, the like of which has never been done before in a picture. Gladys, entering as ever into the spirit of the thing, did some pretty tall running and scrapping, and during the course of the fight, sustained a severe laceration of the foot. Of course, they called in the doctor and the doctor bound it all up neatly. Whereupon Gladys got ready to go back to work but—"nothing doing," said The Medicine Man. So Harry Harris, the director, dug up an invalid's chair out of the storeroom and fixed it all up pretty with cretonne and they made Gladys sit in it for four days. Then she balked and positively refused to hold up her part in the picture any longer. She should have rested that foot longer, according to the opinion of the doctor, but Gladys has a strong will of her own, so she just winced a bit at first and then got gradually back into her work. Director Harris thoughtfully shot those scenes in which the little star was not required to do much moving and inasmuch as these required several days time, Gladys was quite ready for the "action" stuff when it was in order. Director Harris is quite proud of the little star, however, and he claims that it is only her grit and will power that brought her back to the studio so soon.

Gladys didn't enjoy being an invalid and her director, Harry B. Harris (right) is trying his "darndest" to cheer her up.

"Rich Girl, Poor Girl" is just the sort of picture for Gladys Walton. In it she plays a dual role, full of "the flapper" and is capably supported by Antrim Short, Harold Austin, Joe Neary, Wadsworth Harris, Gordon McGregor and others.

"Pink Tights" Didn't Freeze Out The Crowds

Mr. Geo. L. Levine, Manager,
Universal Film Exch., Inc., Milwaukee, Wis.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
Nov. 13, 1920.

Zero weather and the coldest day of the year marked the opening of "Pink Tights" featuring Gladys Walton at our theatre. On the morning of this day, we felt somewhat discouraged believing this would undoubtedly effect the business of the day.

Extreme temperature, however, seems to have no effect on a Universal picture, for in spite of the shivering air, we played "Pink Tights" to capacity business on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. Our display in front of theatre proved a great attraction, and added to the very satisfactory results.

"Pink Tights" brought us an unusual number of comments, and is a valuable addition to the New Star Series.

WHITEHOUSE THEATRE,
(Signed) O. L. Miester, Manager.

Publicity Stories for Gladys Walton in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

THE CAREER OF GLADYS READS LIKE A FAIRY TALE

THE career of Gladys Walton is almost like a fairy story. A year and a half ago a high school girl in Portland, Oregon, she is now a popular motion picture star, having established herself in the favor of theatregoers by charming work in several screen productions. And now she will score her crowning success by her clever portrayal of a dual role in the Universal feature, Rich Girl, Poor Girl," coming to the .... Theatre next. ....

Gladys Walton is really a Boston girl, although she left the Hub City when she was quite young. But she has recollections of playing on the grass of Boston Common, of riding a velocipede along the Charles River Embankment and of attending kindergarten classes in a school on Newberry Street. At the age of ten she was attending school in the Oregon metropolis, and at the age of sixteen she was visiting a cousin in Los Angeles.

From here on Gladys Walton's story is the sort that tempts hundreds of good looking girls to come to Southern California in search of fame and fortune in the movies. For Gladys is one of those very few girls who have ever been "asked" to go in pictures. Being an expert swimmer and diver she was cast for a part in a comedy. This was all great fun for Miss Walton, who expected to return to school in Portland and tell her classmates about her wonderful experience. But she remained in pictures. Her advance was rapid and less than a year after her first appearance before the camera she was playing principal roles. Her first starring part was the little circus girl in "Pink Tights," and so emphatic was her success that her stellar career was assured.

STAR HAS DECIDED VIEWS ON SUBJECT OF CLOTHES

WOMEN who "haven't a thing to wear" will feel better about it after seeing Gladys Walton at the .... Theatre in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." The little Universal star has a dual role; one as a rich girl where she wears magnificent clothes and the other characterization is that of a little gutter girl who wears tattered rags.

Not every girl can look appealing in rags, but Miss Walton wears them with a wistfulness that makes them actually becoming.

"It isn't so much what you wear," said Miss Walton recently, "as the way you wear it, that makes all the difference in the world. Some women can lend queenly dignity to a shirtwaist and skirt, while others will appear dowdy in spite of the draper and dressmaker. Many little shop girls in the big cities appear smarter in their inexpensive clothes than some of their patrons who have unlimited charge accounts and can satisfy all their whims in the way of material and design."

Considering her extreme youth, Gladys Walton has already established quite a reputation for taste and style in her apparel. While she is only called upon to wear clothes of the flapper type, her costumes are all characterized by a certain individuality and chic which win the admiration of the feminine portion of the audience.

Miss Walton designs all her own costumes, and those who saw her in "La La Lucille," "The Secret Gift," "Pink Tights" and "Risky Business" will look forward to another occular treat in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl."

ONCE FAMOUS STAGE CHILD IN CAST OF WALTON PICTURE

ANTRIM SHORT, the youthful leading man for Gladys Walton in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," the much heralded screen feature announced for next .... at the .... Theatre, though but twenty-two years of age, is a veteran of the theatre and the screen. Short comes of a long line of actors. His father and mother, Lewis W. Short and Estella Short, are both prominent players, while his sister, Gertrude Short, is one of the most delightful ingenues of the audible and silent drama.

Antrim Short made his debut on the stage at the age of six, playing children's roles with Ye Liberty Stock Company in Oakland. On the stage he supported Mrs. Fiske, Nance O'Neill and other prominent stars. On the screen he has played leading roles with numerous well-known players.

A strange coincidence is the fact that twelve years ago when he was ten years old, he made his debut on the screen in a 500-foot comedy called "Mugsy's Dream," in which he played the part of Mugsy. This was one of the talking pictures popular at the time and made by the Cameraphone Company. Harry Harris was the cameraman. In his latest picture, "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." Antrim Short is again playing the role of Mugsy, the leader of a gang of young roughs, and Harry Harris is directing the feature.

As Gladys Walton plays a dual role in this story, she has another leading man in the person of Harold Austin, who plays her aristocratic friend.

SKILLFUL DIRECTION EVIDENT IN "RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL"

THE experience of twenty-five years in the producing end of the theatrical business was put behind "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," by Harry Harris, who directed the Universal photodrama in which Gladys Walton is now starring at the ———— Theatre.

For twelve years Harris was a stage director, actor and business manager of road attractions. Then, about twelve years ago, he saw the posssibilities of the motion picture screen and, possessing a knowledge of photography, became a cameraman, rapidly gaining recognition as one of the best cinematographers in the profession.

During the recent visit of Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, to the company's west coast studios, he promoted Harris to a directorship, entrusting him with the production of "Risky Business," starring Gladys Walton. As in the case of Von Stroheim, Holubar, Rosen, Eason and other producers first selected to direct by Mr. Laemmle, the chief executive's judgment proved sound. The new director produced a high-class feature, and as a reward he was put in charge of the production of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," starring the same fascinating little actress.

Just how well Harris handled the 'script is to be judged by the screen at the .... Theatre which is illuminated, critics say, with one of the snappiest film stories ever screened, with thrills and heart interest as the principal motif.

"Rich Girl, Poor Girl" was written by J. G. Hawks and gives Gladys Walton a dual role; that of an heiress to a million and a little gutter waif.

The cast is unusually popular among playgoers, including Antrim Short, Harold Austin, Wadsworth Harris, Joe Neary, Gordon McGregor and C. W. Herzinger.

"Tiger True" Full of Deft Human Touches

Frank Mayo and Fritzi Brunette in a charming moment from "Tiger True."

PICTURED above, is one of the most delightful human moments in "Tiger True," Frank Mayo's latest starring vehicle.

As Jack Lodge, millionaire adventurer, Mayo takes a job as "bouncer" in an underworld cafe, run by pretty Mary Dover, with whom he has fallen in love. Unconscious of a hundred unfriendly eyes that are watching them, and of the danger all around him, he goes over to the bar when she calls him on a matter of business and spontaneously places his big protecting hand over hers.

"Tiger True" contains another real Mayo role. For he appears not only as the polished society gentleman, but as the fighter—a man who would match his physical strength instantly against any opponent when he feels that he is fighting for the cause of the right. The fight scenes in "Tiger True" are excellently and realistically done and in addition to an exciting combat with Walter Long, who plays the villain, Mayo has what is perhaps the best fight of his cinema career with the pugilist Al Kaufman, who plays a small but important part in the picture, that of Larry Boynton. And even though Al Kaufman was at one time one of the most promising heavyweights in the ring, he admits quite frankly that Mayo packs a terrific punch in his fist and that it didn't require so much acting on his part to be beaten by the virile star.

The love story of Jack Lodge and Mary Dover is one of the most human romances ever pictured and Fritzi Brunette, popular leading lady and star of many a Universal picture, acts as a charming foil to Mayo in the role of the little proprietress of The Midway Bar. The role makes some heavy demands on the dramatic ability of the actress who portrays it, but Fritzi Brunette measures up to them capably and in addition looks more beautiful than ever. A distinct brunette, with large, wondering eyes, she is one of the loveliest of the screen actresses.

"Tiger True" is adapted from the story "Tiger" by Max Brand, well-known author. The purchase of this story as a vehicle for Frank Mayo, is in line with the policy of the Universal Scenario Department in employing the works of popular and well-known writers for the use of Universal stars. Brand's story has been turned into an excellent photoplay. "Tiger True" is full of lively suspense, mystery, adventure and romance and the whole is permeated with a "humanness" that makes it indeed an appealing photoplay for everybody to enjoy.

Long Loves To Be Hated

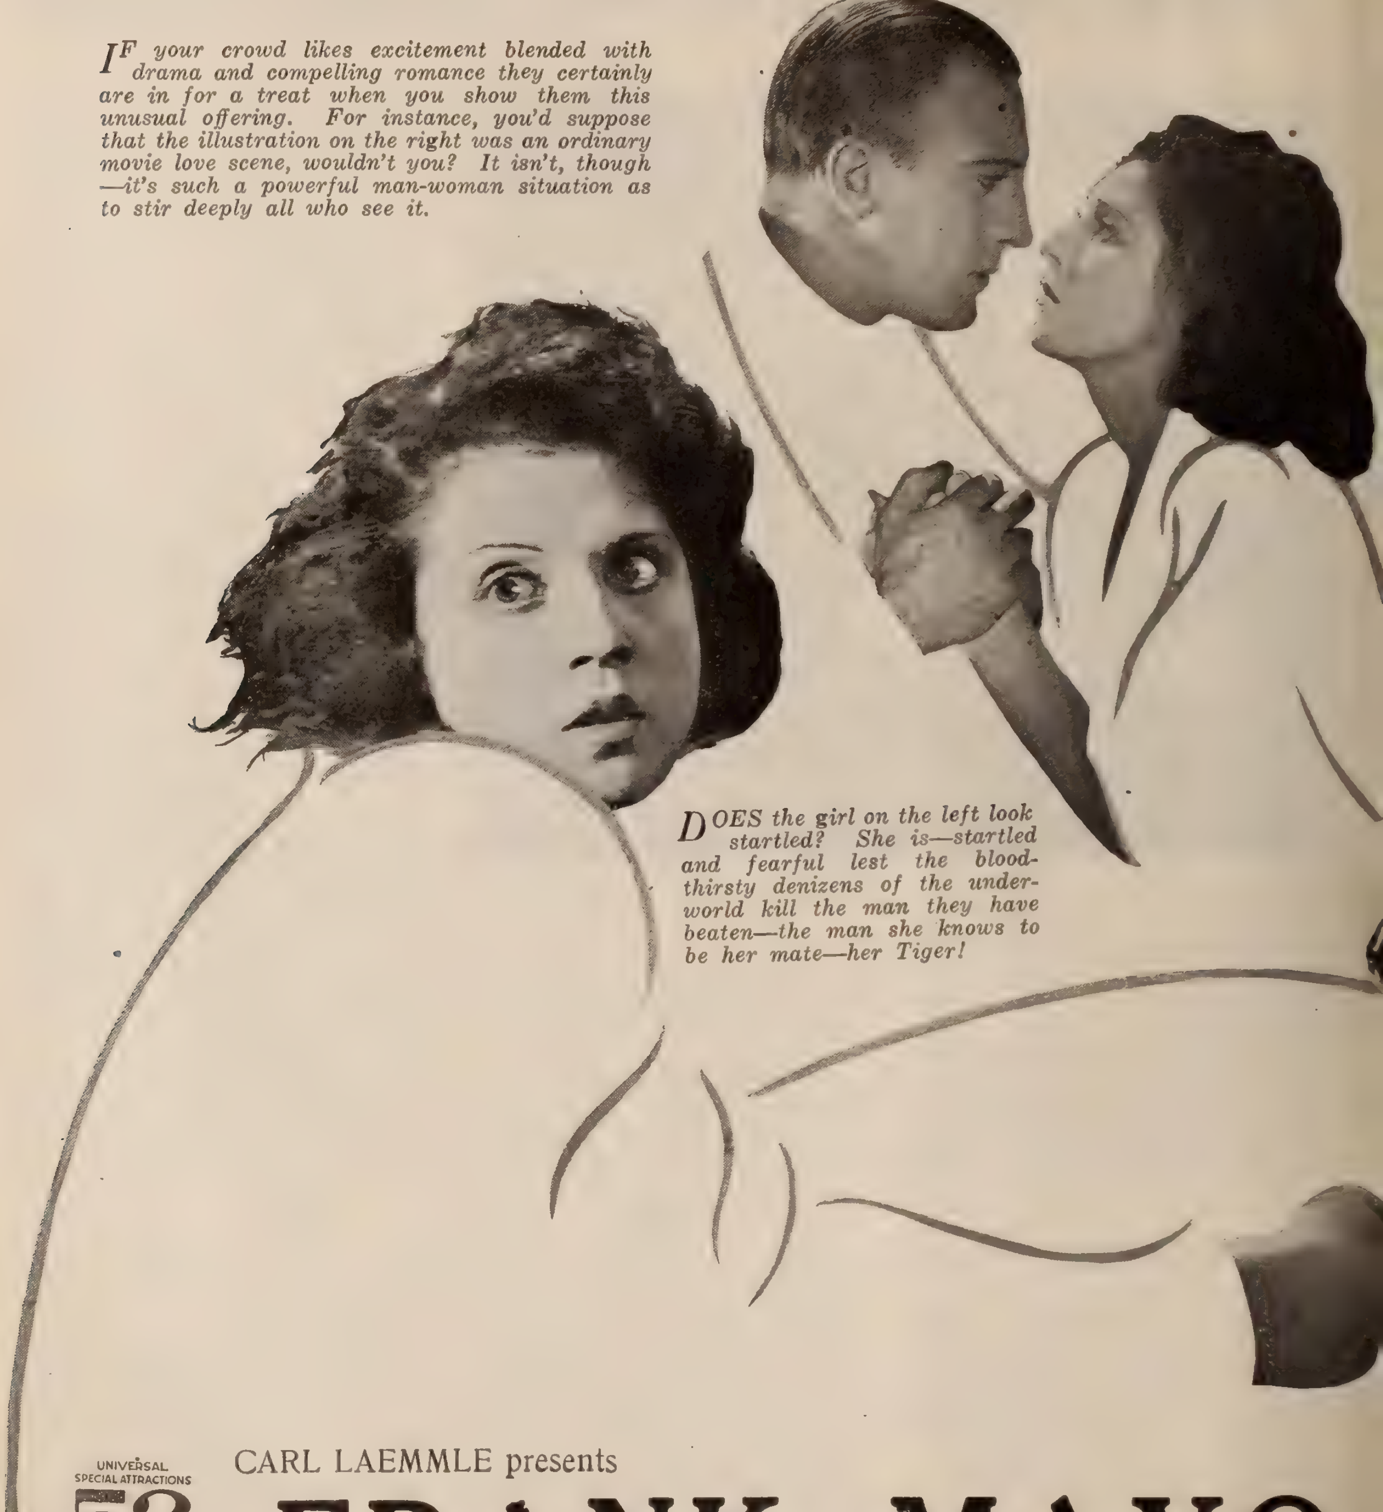
THERE are three types of screen villains and there are three actors who are recognized as eminent portrayers of these types. Erich Von Stroheim represents the suave and polished scoundrel—Mephistopheles in broadcloth and linen. Lon Chaney is the unscrupulous, deep-dyed monster—the cunning, double-crossing type. And then there is the low-brow wretch—the human brute whose brains are capable only of planning evil and deviltry. Walter Long is recognized as the leading delineator of these types on the screen.

Long has just finished playing a part of this sort in "Tiger True," the picture made from Max Brand's famous story, "Tiger," which Universal is releasing with Frank Mayo in the stellar role. In this drama Walter Long appears as a wicked and mysterious character of the underworld, The Baboon, and he also doubles in another role—that of Whitey, a strange, crippled figure who gives aid and advice to the residents of that section of the underworld known as The Tangle. In this two-phased role Walter Long has an opportunity to display his skill as a character heavy.

After several years on the dramatic stage, Long made his first impression on the screen as the degenerate negro in "The Birth of a Nation." That sinister figure stamped him as a "heavy" and he has devoted his talents to that type ever since.

Immediately after finishing his work with Frank Mayo in "Tiger True," Walter Long was summoned by Norman Dawn, the director, to take a principal role in Edith Roberts forthcoming production. Naturally, he will again be seen as "a bad man."

IF your crowd likes excitement blended with drama and compelling romance they certainly are in for a treat when you show them this unusual offering. For instance, you'd suppose that the illustration on the right was an ordinary movie love scene, wouldn't you? It isn't, though —it's such a powerful man-woman situation as to stir deeply all who see it.



DOES the girl on the left look startled? She is—startled and fearful lest the bloodthirsty denizens of the underworld kill the man they have beaten—the man she knows to be her mate—her Tiger!

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS
52
Good Pictures
a Year

CARL LAEMMLE presents

FRANK MAYO

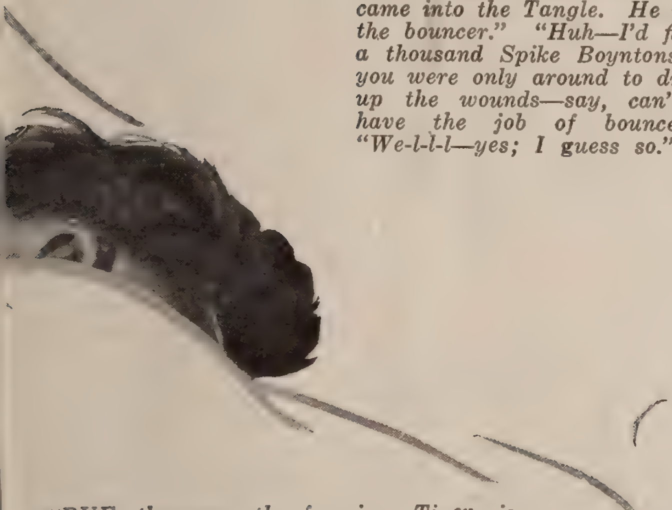
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

HERE again we have what appears to be an ordinary love scene. Again it is not such—it is just a part of a powerfully dramatic sequence in which the fighting millionaire is trying to win the respect of the on-the-level girl who queens it over the underworld cafe!

"GEE, but you're some Tiger, aren't you?" "What? A Tiger because I won a little scrap like that?" "Little scrap!—why, Spike Boynton is the toughest fighter that ever came into the Tangle. He was the bouncer." "Huh—I'd fight a thousand Spike Boyntons if you were only around to dress up the wounds—say, can't I have the job of bouncer?" "We-l-l-l—yes; I guess so."



TRUE, the man—the ferocious Tiger—is unconscious now. But before he had been felled by the gangsters he had thinned their ranks and made them hesitate even now to finish the millionaire Tiger who stalked the jungle of the underworld.

n "TIGER TRUE"

Story by MAX BRAND

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS
Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY
PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1920, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 12 JANUARY 22, 1921. No. 23

Well-Planned Campaign Effective

H. ELLIOTT STUCKEL, general manager of Stuckel, Inc., Advertising Agents of Butte, Mont., and A. V. Hile, manager of the Ansonia Theatre in that city, are noted throughout the Northwest for their systematic advertising and publicity campaigns. They believe in taking every possible advantage of the exploitation possibilities of a picture. A continued series of box office successes at the Ansonia has proved that their advertising methods are sound.

A good example of their carefully arranged exploitation program was the campaign they recently co-operated on in putting over in Butte "Once to Every Woman," the Universal Jewel production starring Dorothy Phillips. Not only did it net an unusual amount of publicity, but it went into the homes and drew unprecedented crowds to the Ansonia.

Hile believes in personal contact with his patrons but he does not overdo it. When he gets a really big picture for his theatre, he personally notifies a selected number of his patrons of this fact, by letter. In a carefully worded letter of straight-forward intensity, he tells his patrons a few of the salient facts about the picture. He does not try to drag them to his theatre by high-sounding phrases. Instead, he gains their confidence by his moderation and stimulates their interest by his directness.

He also gives them an idea of the punch of the picture. Here is a paragraph from his letter on "Once to Every Woman," which is unique in its forceful yet simple description of a gripping scene:

> "The climax is remarkable in its intensity. Imagine, if you can, the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House. As the last notes of a beautiful aria die in the throat of a girl who has the world at her feet, a man in a lone box rises and fires—she clutches at her throat; the curtain falls and the next moment a mad, fighting, clawing mob is rushing through the theatre. It is one of the most tremendous scenes ever filmed."

This letter was sent to 1000 prominent citizens of Butte and its vicinity. Each letter contained a copy of the Ben Bolt Super-herald supplied with the picture—a copy of the favorite old ballad, with an attractive picture of Miss Phillips on its cover. Hile followed these letters by the distribution of 1000 more Super-heralds to women attending his theatre on the two days before the play date of "Once to Every Woman."

A comprehensive newspaper advertising and publicity schedule was drawn up, including the use of one, two and four column display ads. This netted more than 150 column-inches of layouts and stories, in addition to the advertising space taken, and included three three-column scene cuts from the picture.

Next, an attractive lobby display was arranged, using cut-outs from the 24-sheet supplied with the picture. This was supplemented by a Magna Vox horn installed over the front of the theatre, connected to a phonograph in the manager's office. This phonograph played Oriental and operatic airs afternoon and evening during the run of the picture. It could be heard two blocks away.

Hiles used a singer in his presentation. She was used in two places in the film, first while the screen heroine was shown singing in the opera. As the shot, described in the foregoing letter was fired, the singer stopped and the trap man duplicated the shot. The effect was intensely realistic. The singer also was used at the sick-bed scene when the heroine recovers her voice in singing Ben Bolt for her dying mother. One of the city's leading soloists was engaged for this work.

The picture took the city by storm, and hundreds were turned away at every performance during the four days' run. All former house records at the Ansonia went by the board and the photoplay critics of the local newspapers gave the picture unusually appreciative notices. So impressed were they by Hile's presentation, one critic had the following to say:

"When a moving picture production combines excellence of theme, a star and assisting cast of genuine merit, photography of thorough artistry and delightful manner of presentation by the theatre featuring the offering, the affair is bound to be an important success in 'screen' annals."

Interesting Features Promised By Harry Carey

Star Will Appear In Several Appealing And Distinctly Human Dramas

Harry Carey, little Tommy Smith and "Pal"

"HEARTS UP!" the little drama of a big ranch, "a make-believe daddy" and "the old, told story" of love and "the" girl, in which Harry Carey is starring, is winning all kinds of popular favor. It is not to be wondered at, for its story is so appealing and Harry is so human, and, therefore, so much in his element, that popularity is a natural result.

It will be a long time before "Hearts Up!" is out of date. Harry Carey, however, is busily working on his next release in which some delightful novelties are promised. It is an adaptation of a famous story, "Bruvver Jim's Baby," by Philip V. Mighels. It is being directed by Jacques Jaccard and in it Harry Carey will have notable support, prominent among whom will be the leading lady, Carol Halloway. Harry Carey is tremendously fond of children and he is happy over the fact that in this picture he will have an adorable little boy in the company. His name is Tommy Smith and he is the three year old son of William Smith, prominent newspaperman of Los Angeles. As this is Tommy's debut as an actor, he is making an auspicious start indeed. "Pal", a remarkable dog in many ways, will also be a member of the cast, and Carey and Tommy and "Pal" are a familiar and happy-looking trio around the big west coast studios nowadays.

There are other stories now being adapted for the use of "Human Harry Carey" and the public can be assured of continued entertainment from his endearing and appealing art.

Eva Gets There Every Time

IF ever there was a wide-awake girl, it is Eva Novak. Which accounts for the fact that Eva is where she is to-day—a star and steadily progressing. Eva keeps in touch with everything that will help her art and career—athletics, dancing, modes, books and lots of other things.

Eva read about the fashion designers' convention in Chicago the other day and immediately wired a friend of hers in the windy city. As a result Eva is the proud and envied possessor of a Parisian evening gown which took the prize at the convention. The creation is of rose colored brocaded silk, simply made. It is heavily brocaded in silver and hangs in straight, slender lines. Eva will proudly disport it in her next picture, the third of her starring vehicles, on which she is now busily working. None can blame her for being proud of it, for it took an exceedingly wide-awake girl to make a unique "buy" like that.

Eva's second picture "The Torrent" is a worthy successor to her first, "Wanted At Headquarters." Like the latter it is full of exciting suspense and can boast of exquisite photography. Stuart Paton again directed the lovely blonde star. The third picture, in which wide-awake Eva, will wear the prize gown, is of a different nature entirely, and deals with life in ultra-smart society. It is an adaptation from a well-known story by a famous woman writer.

When the announcement was made that Universal was to star Eva Novak in five reel dramas, it created no end of interest. Eva was known principally as a comedienne and had not had much experience in parts of a more serious nature. But Eva justified the faith that Universal placed in the scope of her histrionic ability and scored a hit in "Wanted At Headquarters" and in "The Torrent" in both of which features her roles were seriously dramatic.

JACK is still the same, modest, unassuming actor he ever was, even though the Gods have beamed on him so kindly and generously of late. Not only has he recently been awarded three distinctly interesting roles and enacted them with a keen eye to dramatic effects, but he has played them opposite three talented young stars, girls as beautiful and capable as the screen can boast of to-day. He was an attractive foil to dark-haired Edith Roberts; he was an engaging leading man to the fairer-haired Gladys Walton and he played admirably opposite fairest-haired Eva Novak. Indeed, he seems the ideal leading man—a good actor and one capable of adapting himself easily and harmoniously to any type of feminine beauty and talent.

In "The Adorable Savage," Edith Roberts starring vehicle, concerning the excellencies of which the critics have not yet ceased talking, Jack played the role of Templeton, the American, who, fleeing from the law, hid himself on a South Sea Island, only to fall in love with a half caste girl, more lovely, more appealing and more innately cultured than any of the women of the society in which he had formerly moved. Tall, handsome Jack, with his engaging smile and winning personality and little Edith, with her quaint grass costume and frightened eyes—what a pair of lovers they did make!

Jack Perrin had been a cowboy in pictures, a horseman, a society man, just an everyday sort of a chap, but a minister—NEVER! Yet that is just the sort of a role that Jack undertook to portray in "Pink Tights." His friends advised him against it—"you never can carry it through successfully, Jack; you're not that type of an actor." But Jack Perrin, true artist that he is, would listen to none of their words of discouragement and went on bravely mastering his role. With what charm and appeal and dignity, he played the young preacher of Pleasantown, who learned a far greater lesson from the little circus girl than all his years of school and study had ever yielded him, those numerous thousands who have seen this daintiest of pictures can well attest. Jack didn't marry Mazie, so appealingly impersonated by winsome Gladys Walton, and so for once in his career, he didn't have to take the lovely star in his big, protecting arms. And here once again Jack proved that he is more than just the convenient man whom the scenario provides to settle the destiny of the star once and for all. Young Reverend Jonathan Meek had fallen in love with the wistful little circus queen and how he gives her up to Jerry who loves her too and unites the two in marriage is delicately and exquisitely handled by the young actor. One bit of over acting would have spoiled the effect of it all, but Jack Perrin seems just to have lived that part and depicted it with the deftest of touches.

"Lucky Jack!"

THAT IS HOW THE OTHER ACTORS AT UNIVERSAL CITY REFER TO HANDSOME JACK PERRIN, LEADING MAN, WHO HAS RECENTLY PLAYED PRINCIPAL ROLES OPPOSITE NOT ONE—BUT THREE BEAUTIES — EDITH ROBERTS, GLADYS WALTON AND EVA NOVAK, UNIVERSAL STARS AND AMONG THE LOVELIEST AND MOST CAPABLE OF THE SCREEN'S GIRLS.

From "Pink Tights" to "The Torrent" was quite a jump dramatically speaking, for "Pink Tights" was a little comedy drama of small town foibles while "The Torrent" is an adventure story with a society flavor that is chock full of tensest excitement and thrills. But everybody was beginning to realize the scope of the Perrin ability and Jack was first choice for the role of the daring aviator who outwits the dealiest of foes with the lovely shipwrecked heroine and takes her back to civilization. Jack was an aviator during the great world war, and his knowledge of aeronautics came him in good stead in this picture. He even taught Eva Novak, the lovely blonde star of the production, the workings of the big air-machine, and she has, as a result, become quite a bird-woman. Eva and Jack in aero togs were a treat to the eye of an unusual order and Eva and Jack were an entertainment of a large order in "The Torrent." Both were called upon to do some particularly heavy acting and Jack especially had to go through stunts as hazardous and gruelling as those usually allotted to the stars of the serial plays. Some folks have even said that Jack Perrin's work in "The Torrent" was the best he has ever done, but he was so delightful in "The Adorable Savage" and "Pink Tights" that it would be a difficult matter indeed to decide.

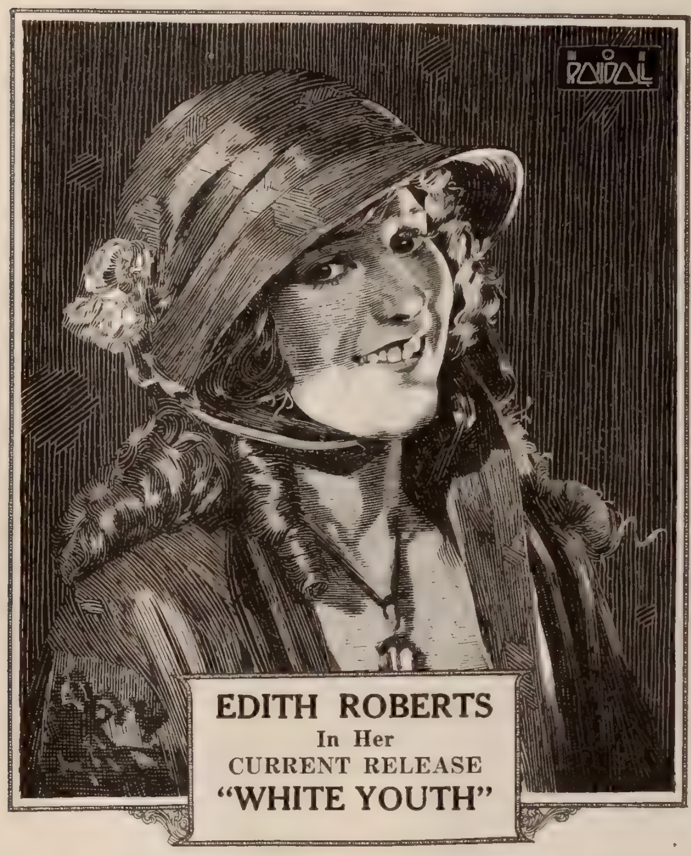
It is whispered in cinema circles that Jack is going back to that type of rôle for which he first was famous —the Western hero. He is an admirable personality for such a character type — big, broad - shouldered, with a frank, smiling face and a breezy manner. He is "a perfect whale of a horseman" and adept at all the tricks of the Westerner. This type of screen hero has been so abused of late by would-be Western impersonators who have flooded the screen by the legion that Jack's rumored return should be welcome news indeed. For he will more than fit the Western hero physically—he can ACT him.

LATEST BULLETIN FROM THE COAST

DOROTHY WOOD, dainty blonde heroine of so many entertaining Hoot Gibson two-reelers, has been definitely designated as leading lady to Jack Perrin for the forthcoming series of Western "featurettes" in which he will star. This is pleasant news indeed. Both Jack and Dorothy are experienced "Western" actors, and the lovely little blonde girl should make a charming partner for the big handsome, dark-haired star.

They will be supported in these pictures by a company of players skilled in the tatics of the West.

Girlhood's Charm Exquisitely Portrayed by Young Star



EDITH ROBERTS
In Her
CURRENT RELEASE
"WHITE YOUTH"

IF there is one actress who can consummately portray the allure of budding young womanhood, it is little Edith Roberts. She has played all sorts of girls—spirited girls and fiery natured girls and little mouse-girls and into each of these diverse feminine types, she always manages to inject just that elusive and charming quality that always goes with the young girl on the brink of womanhood— be she an angel, a wildcat, or just an every-day, usual sort of a girl. And to this long list of delightful portrayals Edith Roberts has added another exquisite one in her role of Aline Belame in "White Youth," her current release.

Aline is an angel, a little spitfire, and "just an ordinary girl" all in one, who dreams the sweetest dreams of romance and looks eagerly and innocently toward that bigger life that is to come—womanhood.

"White Youth" is a little drama suited for all kinds of tastes. It is appealing, it is romantic, it is human and it tells a spirited story. Taken from a story by those splendid authors and playwrights, Clara Beranger and Forrest Halsey, it has been made into an entrancing picture by Norman Dawn, who also directed the dainty star in "The Adorable Savage." And Norman Dawn has "just hit it right" here again. He has injected into the story plenty of atmosphere—the big plantation country of the south with its sunny cotton fields, its happy-go-lucky darkies and the quaint customs to which the planters still fondly cling.

For a few brief momens, all too brief indeed, Edith appears as a girl of several decades ago—in quaint bonnet and cloak, as depicted above, and then she changes off to a modern miss, sweet yet spirited, and one so full of the "customs and manners of her fathers" as to make her an alluring personality indeed.

Supporting Edith Roberts in "White Youth" are Alfred Hollingsworth, well-known character actor; Thomas Jefferson, son of that renowned actor of the past century, Joseph Jefferson; Arnold Gregg, one of the youngest leading men of the screen, and other experienced players.

Best Picture He Ever Saw

Baraboo, Wis.
Nov. 1, 1920.

Universal Film Exchange,
Milwaukee, Wis.
Dear Mr. Baldwin:

To show you that I can boost as well as knock, I want to tell you that I never saw a better picture, anywhere, than "The Adorable Savage" shown here last Saturday.

If you care to make me a price on a return date I shall be pleased to show it here again at a later date.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) W. M. FRANKS,
Mgr. Gem Theatre,

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"Blue Streak McCoy"
"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"The Red Lane"
"Hitchin' Posts"
"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"The Adorable Savage"
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"
"The Devil's Passkey"
"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"
"The Great Air Robbery"
"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)
"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"A Prohibition Monkey"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"Cinders"
"The Two Fisted Lover"
"Tipped Off"
"Superstition"
"Fight It Out"
"The Man With The Punch"
"The Trail Of The Hound
"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

"A Son Of The North"
"The Girl And The Law"
"Big Stakes"
"When The Devil Laughed"
"The Forest Runners"
"The Timber Wolf"

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

"The Moon Riders"
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Twin Crooks"
"A Fishy Story"
"Hot Dog"
"Laughing Gas"
"Tails Win"
"Trouble Bubbles"
"Their First Tintype"
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"

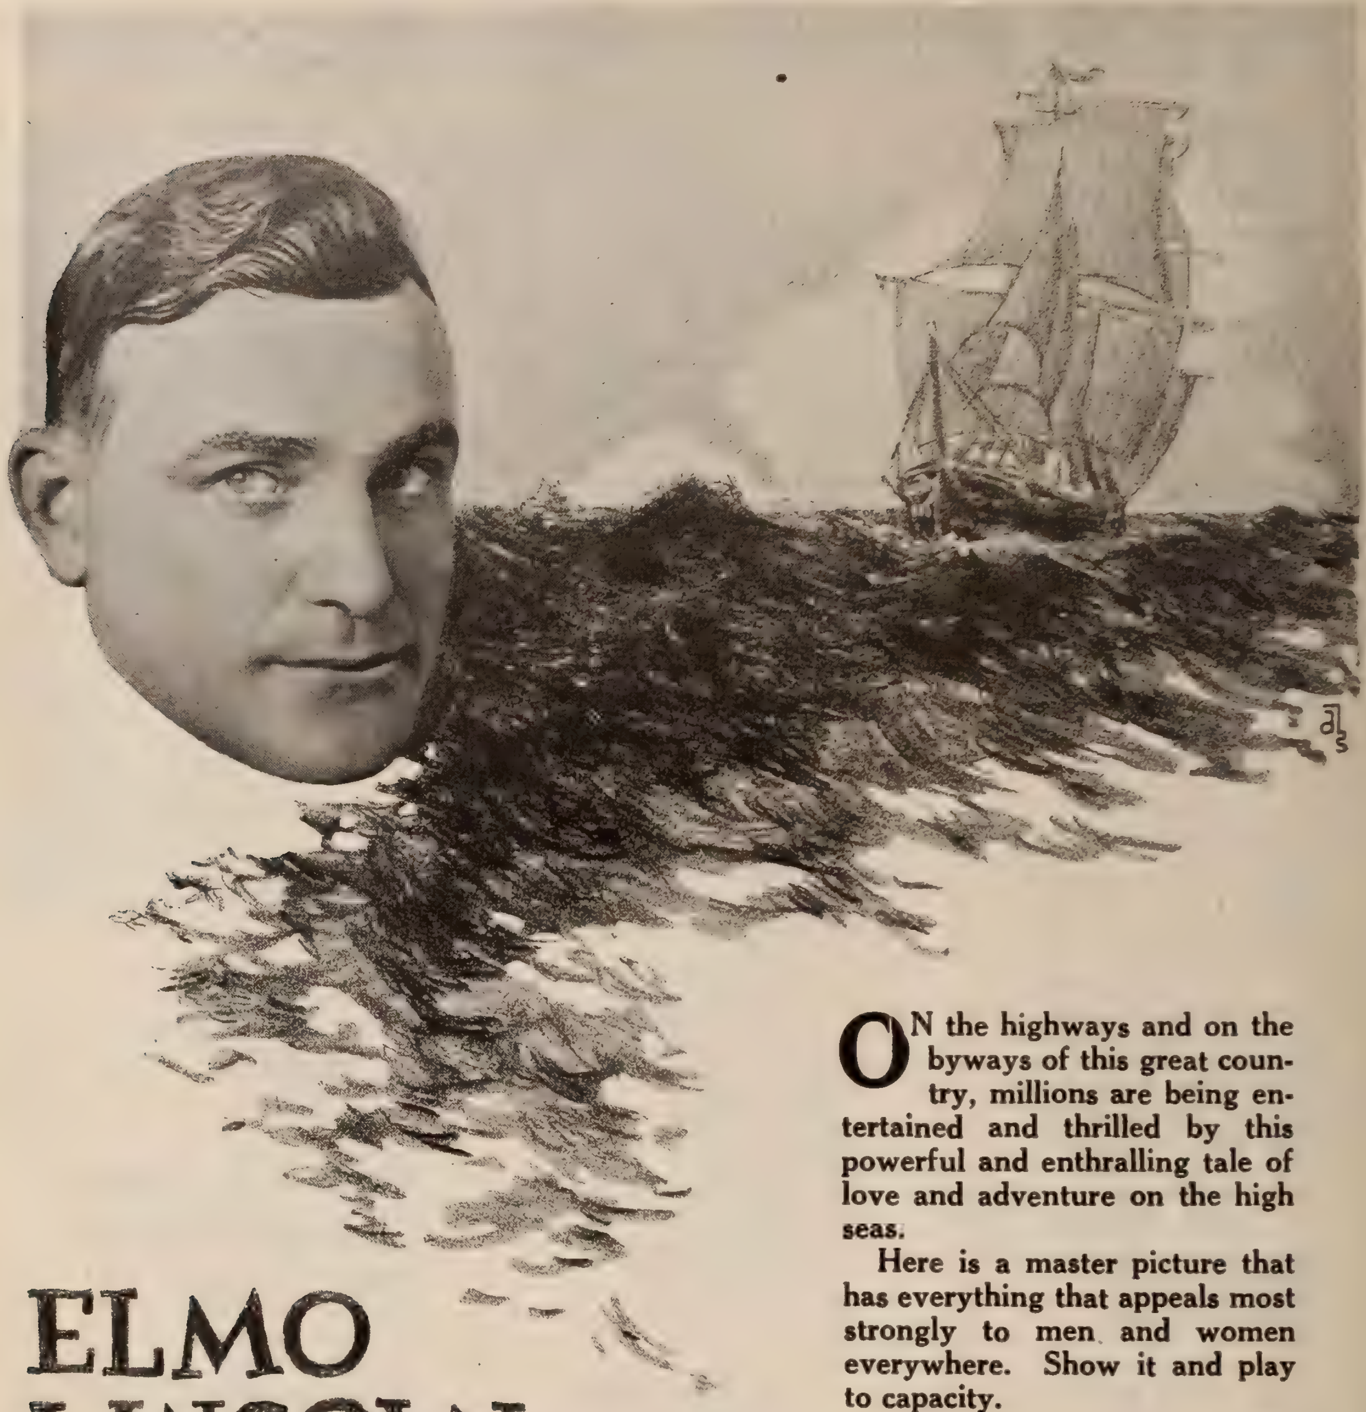
One Reel Star Comedies

Featuring

DOROTHEA WOLBERT

"Maids A-Courting"
"Romeo and Juliet"
"Shapes and Scrapes"
"A Movie Bug"
"Forbidden Brew"
"Way Down North"
"Nearly Wed"
"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE-A-WEEK



ON the highways and on the byways of this great country, millions are being entertained and thrilled by this powerful and enthralling tale of love and adventure on the high seas.

Here is a master picture that has everything that appeals most strongly to men and women everywhere. Show it and play to capacity.

ELMO LINCOLN

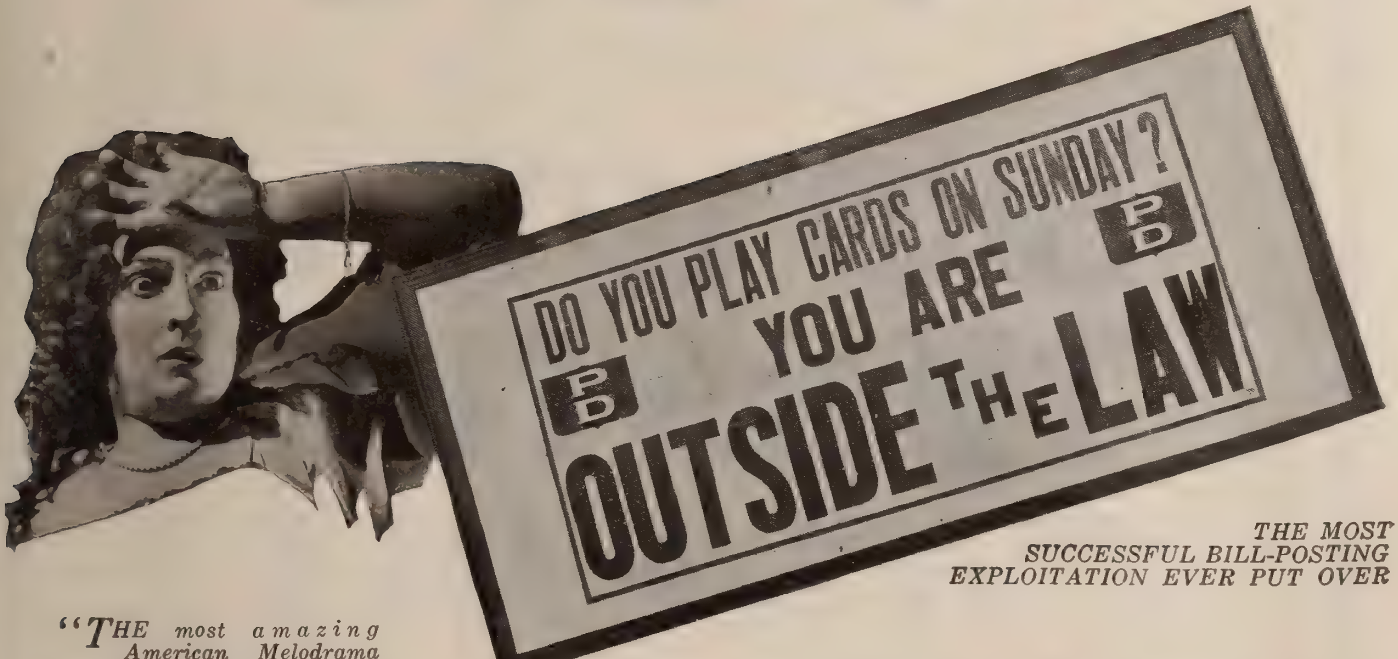
IN THE STIRRING UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

DIRECTED BY REX INGRAM

STORY BY J.G. HAWKS

The 24 Sheet that scared New York



THE MOST SUCCESSFUL BILL-POSTING EXPLOITATION EVER PUT OVER

"THE most amazing American Melodrama ever screened" is the right way to characterize this tremendous picture. Up-to-the-minute and absolutely breathless in its action, it will give your people the biggest thrills of their lives. Here is one picture you can book without viewing.

UNIVERSAL has done it again! Has developed an exploitation idea that will work in every town and city of the country just exactly as it worked in New York—and it nearly scared New York to death!

A series of four posters was used:

"Do you play cards on Sunday?"
"Do you motor on Sunday?"
"Do you work on Sunday?"
"Do you dance on Sunday?"

After these had been on the board four weeks, another 24-sheet was posted announcing Priscilla Dean in "Outside the Law."

FOR four weeks all New York saw these posters — and thought only of the proposed Blue Laws—and talked of nothing else. When the advertisement was disclosed, that title, "Outside the Law," had been fixed in their minds as nothing else has been fixed for years.

It will work exactly the same way in your town, wherever you are. A complete description of the campaign will be found in your Help-book, which is now in the mail, or, better, see your Universal Exchange today.

CARL LAEMMLE
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by LON CHANEY in TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

4 BIG

BROADWAY THEATRES

at

ONE CRACK

ASTOR 45th and Broadway	LYRIC 42nd West of Broadway
LONGACRE 48th West of Broadway	GEO. M. COHAN 42nd and Broadway

OPENING SUNDAY JAN. 16

A Four-Square First Showing as Unparalleled as the Picture Itself.

Carl Laemmle
presents
TOD BROWNING'S
Greatest
UNIVERSAL - JEWEL PRODUCTION

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

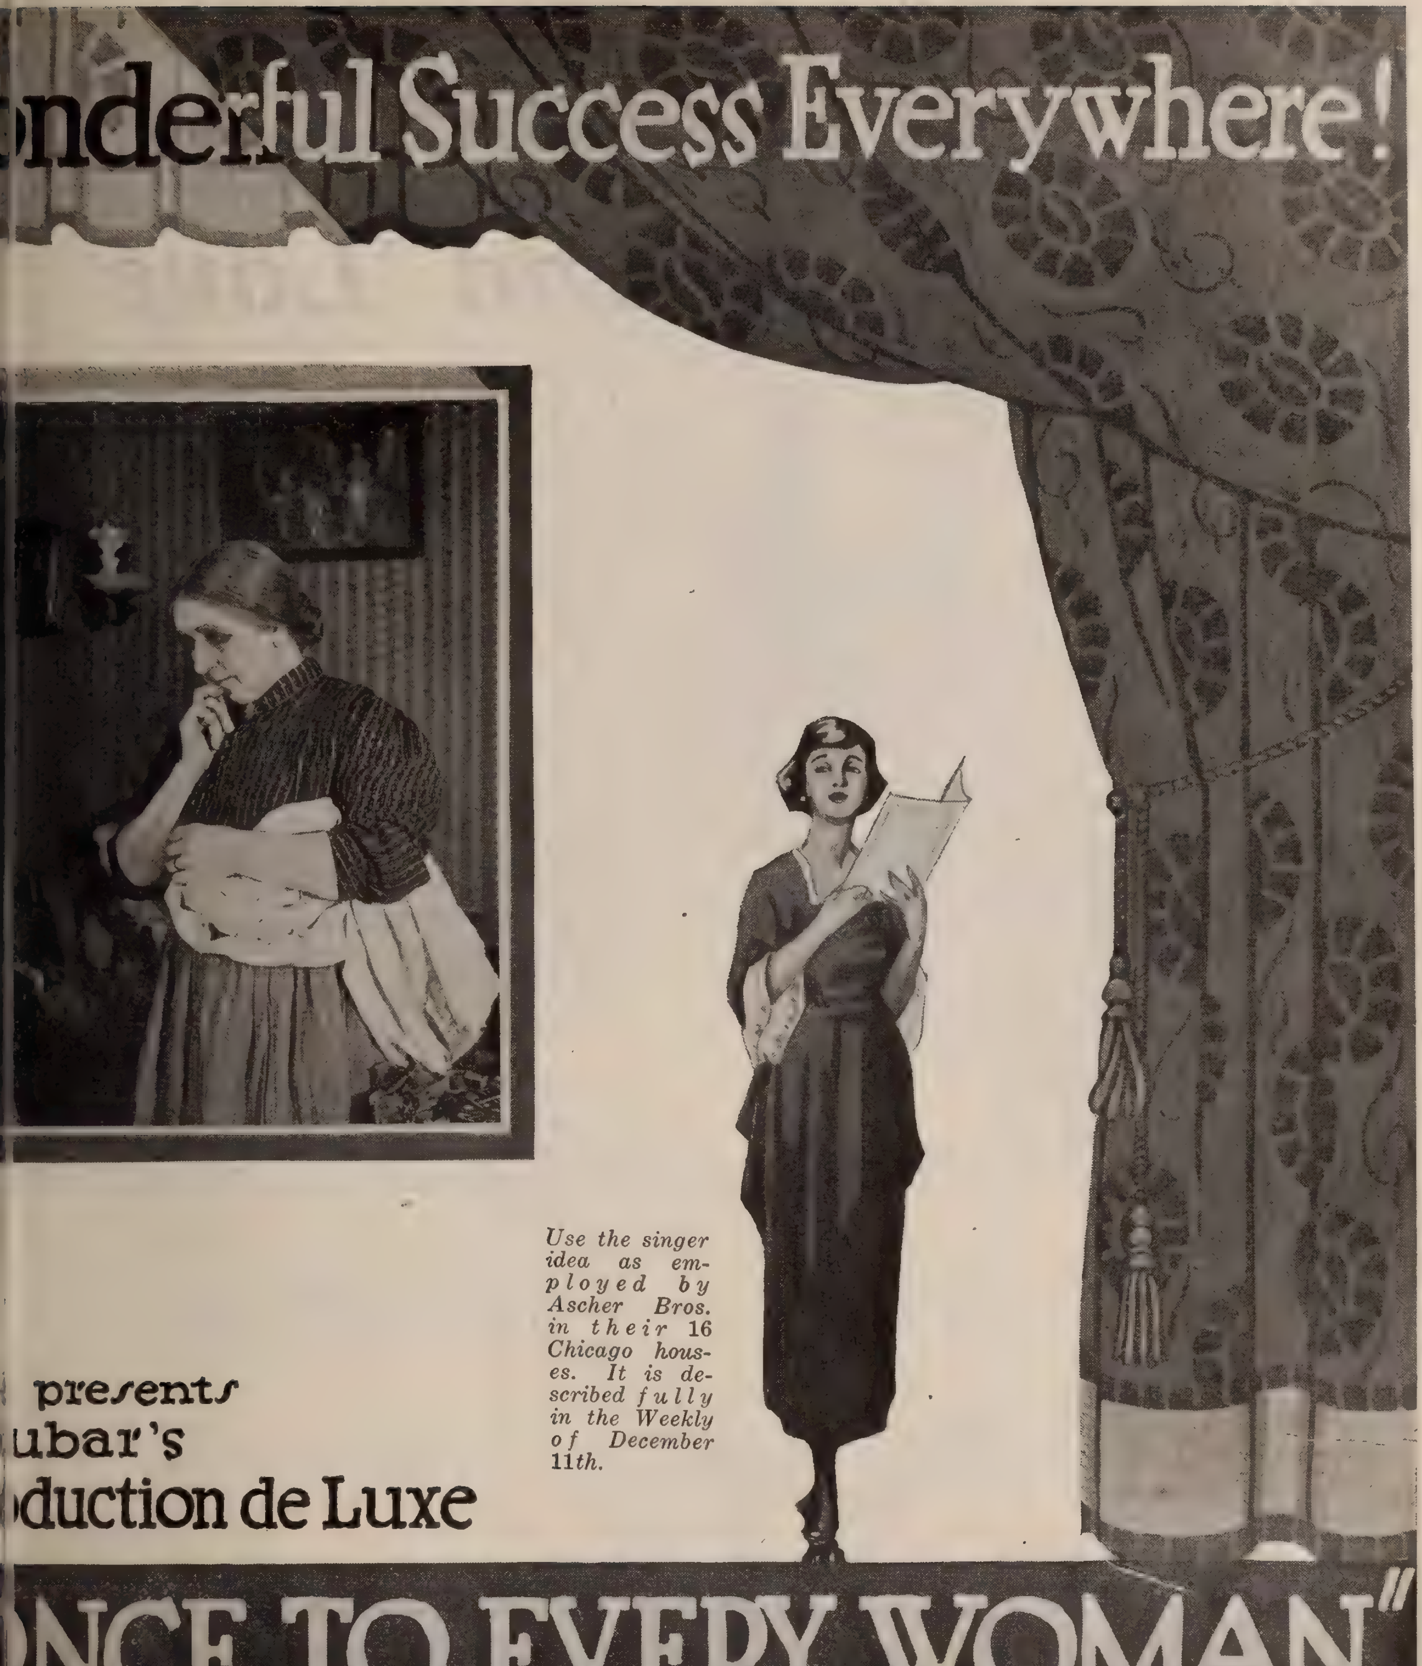
Supported by
LON CHANEY
in the
Most Amazing
AMERICAN MELODRAMA
EVER SCREENED

The Picture-Singer Idea-A W

WHEREVER there are mothers and fathers, sons and daughters—wherever there are human beings this great mother-love drama is creating a deep and lasting impression. It is a picture worthy of any theatre because it makes any theatre worth-while to its patrons.

Carl Laem
Allen
Universal-Jewel

DOROTHY PHILLIPS in "



nderful Success Everywhere!

Use the singer idea as employed by Ascher Bros. in their 16 Chicago houses. It is described fully in the Weekly of December 11th.

presents
ubar's duction de Luxe

NCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

Wherever People Live --And Love

IN the humble halls of peaceful villages and in the gilded palaces of bustling cities—everywhere that humans live and love—this simple tale is having its profound effect.

SO keen and powerful are the master-strokes of Von Stroheim as he shows us this slice of life that, once seen, it can never be forgotten.

PLAY "Blind Husbands" and let the results open your eyes!

Carl Laemmle Presents Von Stroheim's Wonder Play

UNIVERSAL JEWEL

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

We Are Still Looking for More!

LAST week The Moving Picture Weekly reproduced a lobby display of a theatre in New York City. Herewith reproduced is the lobby display of the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, for "The Devil's Passkey," the Von Stroheim Jewel feature. Whether your theatre be in The Strait Settlements, or further west, The Moving Picture Weekly is grateful for photographs of attractive lobby displays in connection with Universal features. Why not send on yours?

"The Devil's Passkey" played to big houses at the Standard Theatre, Cleveland. The middlewest, like the rest of the country, is loud in its praises of the picture. When it opened at the Regent Theatre, in Wichita, Kansas, people were still lined up deep outside the lobby as late as 9:30 P. M. waiting for a chance to get seats in the crowded house inside.

The DEVIL'S PASS KEY
DEVIL'S PASSKEY.

Lobby of the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, "togged out" for "The Devil's Passkey."

How Wheeler Oakman Started In The Movies

WHEELER OAKMAN, the handsome husband of Priscilla Dean, who so excellently portrays the big role of "Dapper Bill" in her newest Jewel release, "Outside The Law" was not "born in clover" by any means. But Wheeler Oakman harbors no grudge against the world for that reason, for the mere fact that he was "broke" led him to the movies and the successful career as a cinema actor which is now his.

Oakman arrived in Los Angeles with a road company presenting "Checkers" and left the show shortly after an argument with the stage manager. Like many other stage players, he had an averson to the "flicker-films" which only the absence of three meals could efface.

When it did not seem likely that a company would come to Los Angeles with a vacant role for his acceptance, and because the annoyance of "riding the rods" did not appeal to his artistic soul, Oakman got a job before the camera and has been building his success from that day on.

Wheeler Oakman played leading man to Priscilla Dean in that charming picture of romance and the Far East, "The Virgin of Stamboul" and he is again her pal and lover in "Outside the Law" which promises to be one of the sensations of the cinema year of 1921.

Oakman was born in Washington, D. C. and is remembered at Georgetown University as a baseball player of exceptional ability. He began his stage career immediately after leaving school and scored a hit with a number of big touring companies.

While he has not told of his plans for the future they are sure to be bigger and more interesting than ever.

Tremendous Pulling

Read These --

Pilot Mound, Iowa.

"OUR house would not hold the people. Had to turn hundreds away. Never happened before. Far the best ever shown." Geo. Witcraft.

Cairo, Ill.

"IT got the money. Thanks for favors."

Peter Lind,
Bijou Theatre.

Janesville, Wis.

"HUNDREDS turned away. Seating capacity 300. Paid admissions 1527. Give me more of these money makers."

Jacob Moelke, Majestic Theatre.

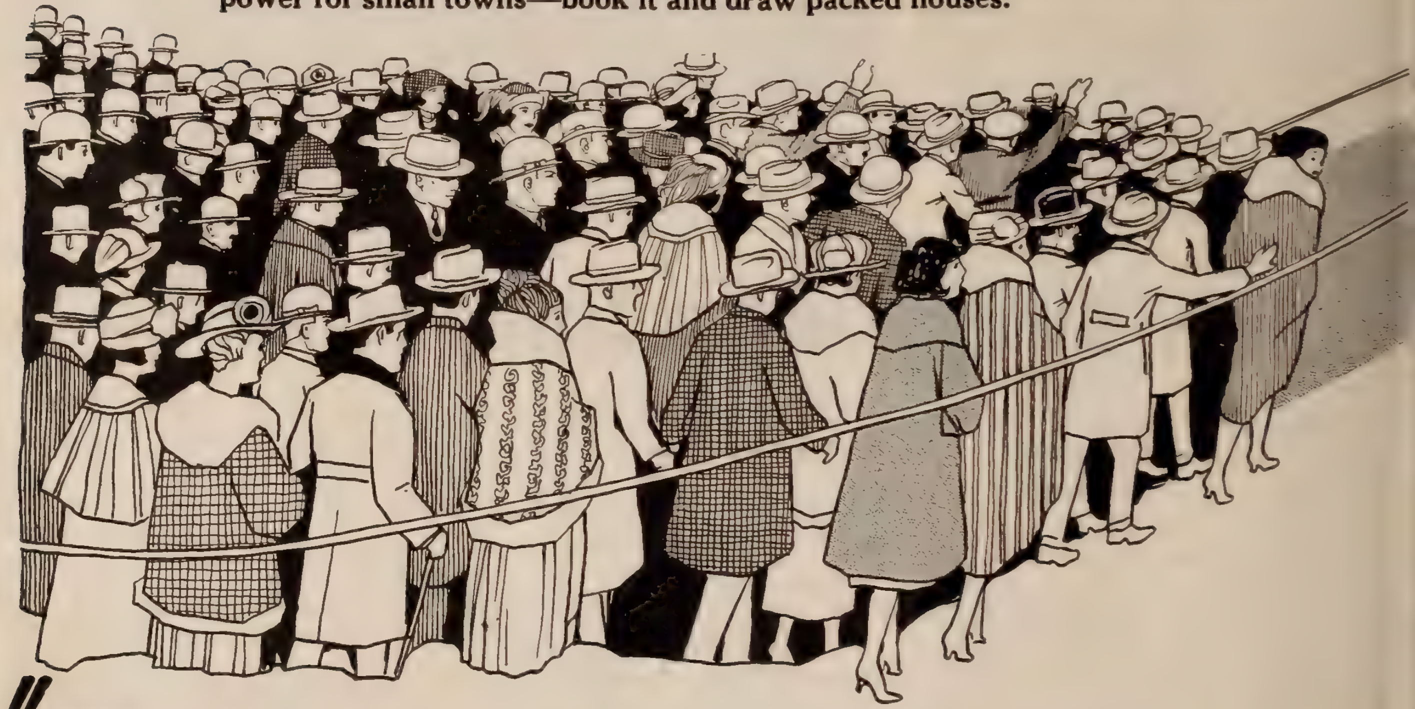
Huntington, Ind.

"DID a great business. Kept them lined up all day."

John Heffernon, Perfect Theatre.

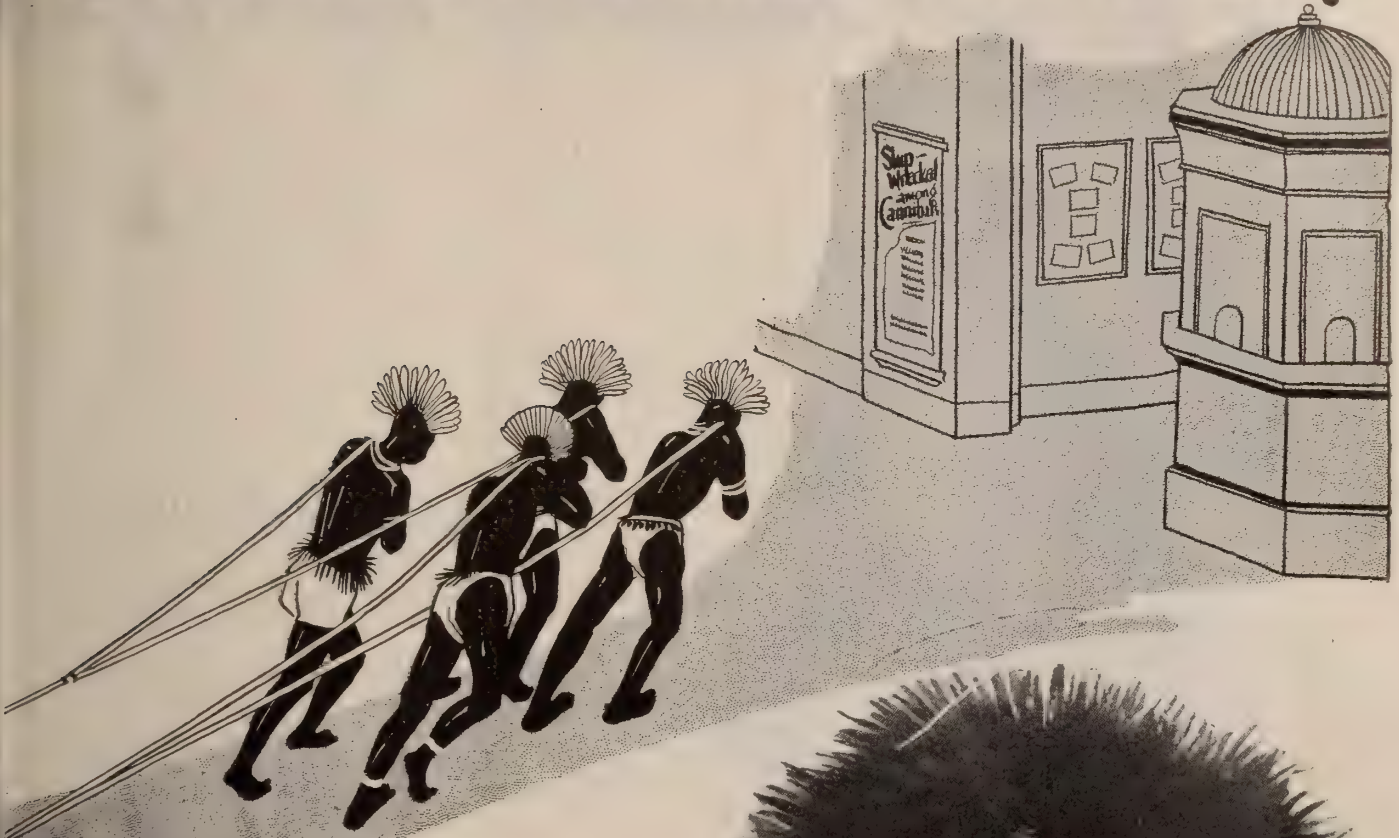
Then Act!

REMEMBER that the same tremendous success that "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" has scored in thousands of large cities and small towns is yours if you show this big sensational feature. It has tremendous pulling power for small towns—book it and draw packed houses.

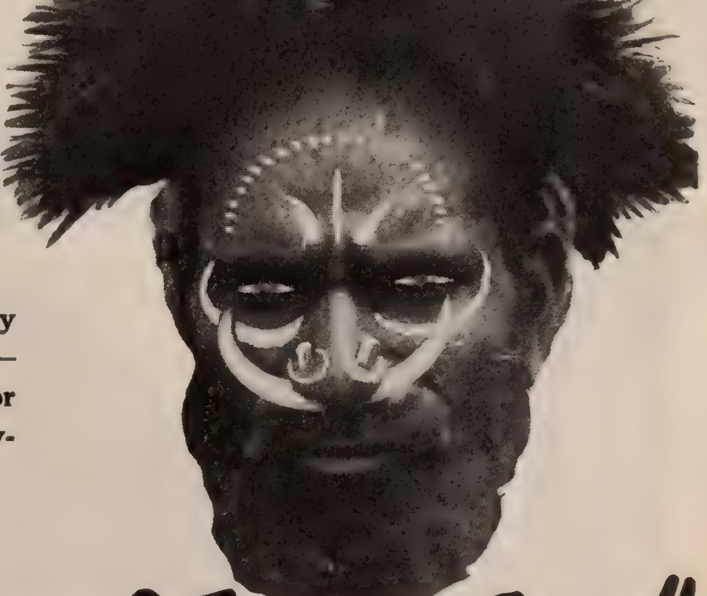


"Shipwrecked a

Power for Small Towns!



Ship-Wrecked among Cannibals



IF you don't believe they look like this—and worse—get the film and see for yourself! Seeing is believing!

mong Cannibals"

"Business wonderful

ALL PARIS LAUGHED
AT THE INNOCENT
WOMAN CAUGHT IN THE WEB OF INTRIGUE

will play return engagement"

—MANAGER GORMAN

SAYS General Manager L. M. Gorman, of the Rialto, Liberty and Lyric Theatres, Lincoln, Neb.; "I think that 'The Devil's Passkey,' from every angle, is one of the best pictures we have had the pleasure of playing this season. We have received an unusually large number of complimentary letters regarding this production. The patrons praised it unstintedly as they were leaving the theatre, and business was wonderful. We will play a return engagement in January."

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS
Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE

The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION de LUXE

The Devil's Passkey
Moving Picture Weekly
Carmel Myers

Carmel Myers is a constant reader of The Moving Picture Weekly.

Looking Ahead

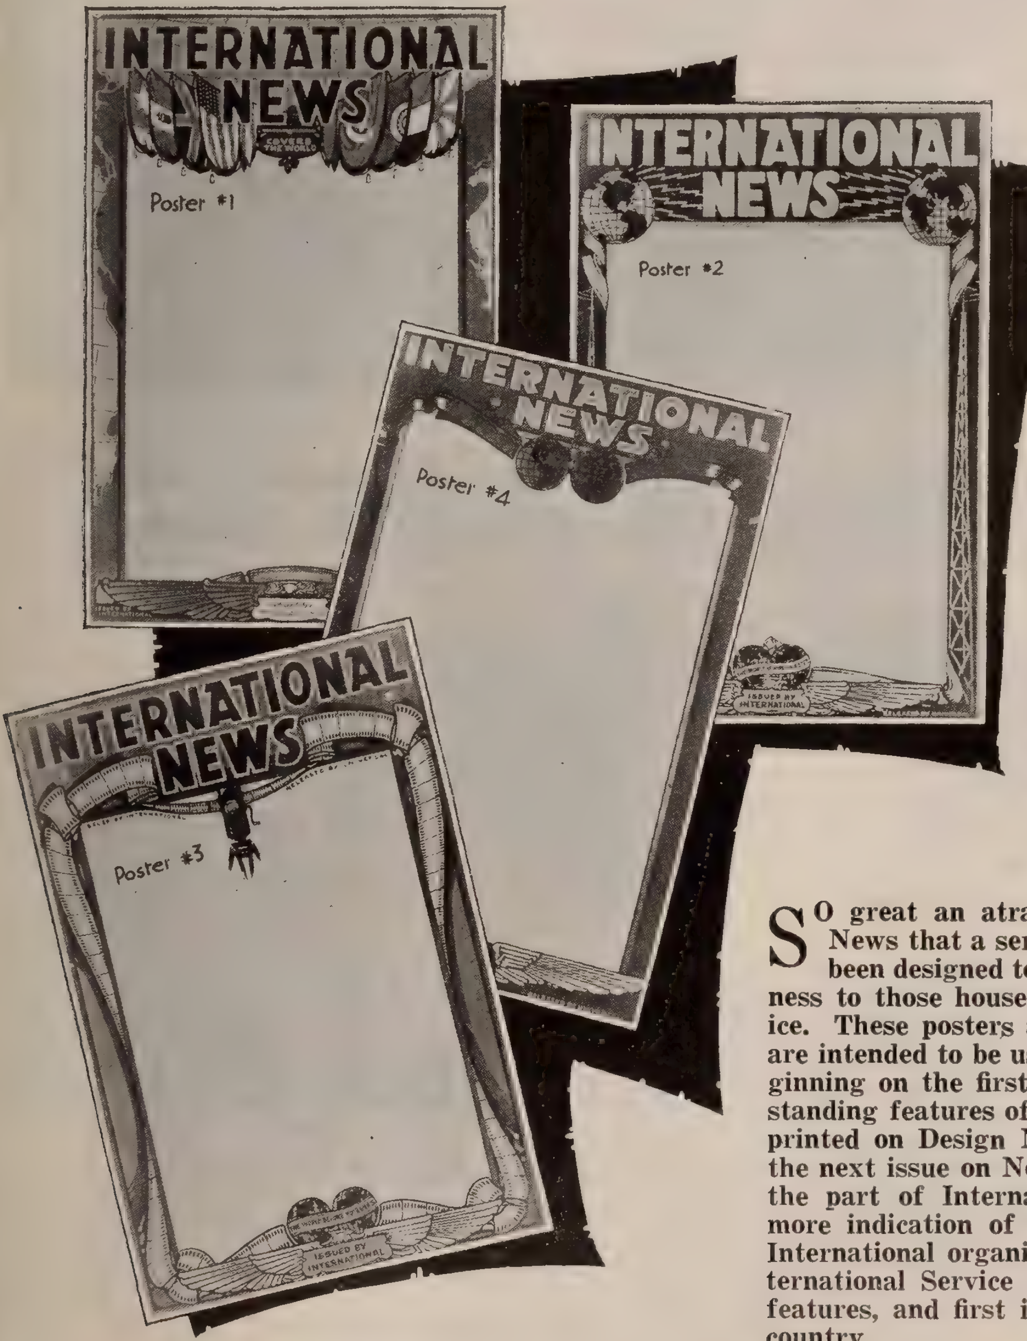
THERE are few young screen artists who take their work and career more seriously than Carmel Myers. She is always "looking ahead," ever preparing herself for the bigger work that constantly falls to the lot of the ambitious and progressive actress. She reads all her press notices, whether they praise or find fault, and considers earnestly what her critics and admirers have to say concerning her work.

To the admirable three productions she has already made since her return to the silent drama, "In Folly's Trail," "The Gilded Dream" and "Beautifully Trimmed," there will soon be added a fourth, entitled "The Mad Marriage." This picture was adapted from an entertaining novel, by that famous woman writer, Marjorie Benton Cooke, and was directed by Rollin Sturgeon, with whom Miss Myers has often been associated and who understands so keenly the talent and capabilities of the young star. It is a story of the gay and irresponsible life of the artist colony in New York City, and how a girl who was full of "theories" and little else, contracted a rash marriage and had to suffer much until the realization of the true meaning of life and love came to her. Miss Myers will have an engaging leading man in "The Mad Marriage"—Truman Van Dyke, who has won a firm niche for himself in the hearts of all the movie fans.

"The Mad Marriage" will very shortly be released, but already the young star is "looking ahead" to the demands of her next story, which is now being whipped into final shape by the scenario department. She started East to New York, several days ago, on a shopping tour, and from last reports is busy replenishing her wardrobe with the latest Parisian modes to be used in this production. Incidentally, she is greeting again the many friends she has among the players of "the spoken drama" and they will assuredly be glad to welcome the little movie actress whose versatility surprised everybody, when she left the screen temporarily last year to successfully fill a prominent part in that popular Broadway musical comedy, "The Magic Melody."

It is refreshing indeed to meet with an actress like Carmel Myers. Young, beautiful, talented and successful, she is nevertheless modest and unassuming; always eager to strengthen her art, always attentive to suggestion, always alert—"looking ahead." And that is why this youthful actress is progressing so rapidly and winning such general popular favor.

We Couldn't Improve The Service So We Improved The Posters



INTERNATIONAL NEWS
COVERS THE WORLD
Poster #1
INTERNATIONAL NEWS
Poster #2
ISSUED BY INTERNATIONAL
INTERNATIONAL NEWS
Poster #4
INTERNATIONAL NEWS
Poster #3
ISSUED BY INTERNATIONAL

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE, as it stands at the moment of writing, cannot be improved. This is because during every minute of the day and night members of International's vast organization are on guard to make even the most minor improvement the minute the need for it is shown. It is this constant vigilance that assures you the last word in a news reel with every issue of International.

SO great an atraction is International News that a series of new posters has been designed to draw even more business to those houses presenting the service. These posters are in four colors and are intended to be used consecutively. Beginning on the first of the year, the outstanding features of the current reel were printed on Design No. 1, the features of the next issue on No. 2, etc. This step on the part of International is merely one more indication of the spirit behind the International organization that makes International Service first in news, first in features, and first in the theatres of the country.

International News

Released
Thru
Universal

TSURU AOKI
J. BARNEY SHERRY
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

On Her Answer Hung The Fate Of A Nation--

She dared not answer "yes"; she could not answer "no!" She knew she loved him, but to confess it meant to renounce her birthright. In her trembling lips lay the power to shape the destiny of a country—on the battleground of her heart, her love of the man was fighting her love of country. Which was to win?

Show this

All-Star Cast

in a wondrous drama of secret diplomacy. Directed by Rollin Sturgeon from the novel by Sidney McCall.

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

Production De Luxe

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

Now Rolling Up
Gigantic Profits
Everywhere

ELMO LINCOLN

in

"FLAMING DISK"

THE WILDFIRE SERIAL SENSATION

Directed by
ROBERT HILL

"$100,000,000—or I'll Floc

TERROR-STRICKEN, they stare at the hundreds of precious stones she has sent them gratis! If she gives them away like this—my God, they'll be ruined! What to do? And in a moment you are whirled away on a wave of action so swift and daring as to hold you breathless and spellbound.

See the fascinating Mystery of Diamond-making in Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial // Directed by Edward Kull.
EILEEN SEDGWICK in

d the World with Diamonds!"

Says M. P. World

"A SUSPENSEFUL adventure serial, filled with highly-colored melodramatic incidents, is found in "The Diamond Queen," a new Universal serial based on a story written by the late Jacques Futrelle. Eileen Sedgwick heads a well-balanced cast with George Cheseboro playing opposite her as the hero.

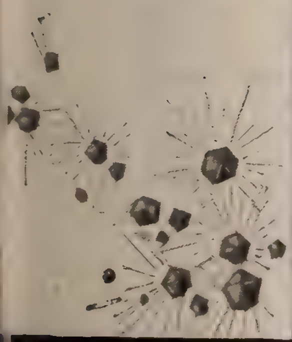
"Sure-fire Thrills"

"EDWARD KULL, who directed, must be given credit for developing the opening chapters with a strong sense of what makes for suspense and a good eye for sure-fire thrills. If the serial keeps up the pace set for itself at the beginning it should prove very popular.

"Fast Running"

"THE opening scenes are laid in and near New York City. Later the scene shifts to the diamond country of Africa and its surrounding jungle land. The melodramatic incidents themselves, as well as the intermediate stretches of the story, are better than common."

Give 'em what they want: Book this serial!



"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

SOME leap—and it registers some thrill! Not just one—or ten or twenty, but hundreds of death-defying stunts are crowded into this big serial sensation. That's the way Universal makes its serials—and that's the way EDDIE POLO plays!

YOU'RE in business to profit as well as entertain. That's what this serial is intended to do —and that's what it does. For 18 solid weeks of good, sound business book this money-getter. You'll thank us!

EDDIE POLO
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Beauty Winner Forging Ahead Rapidly

Hoot Gibson, Gertrude Olmstead and Art Ortego in a scene from "The Driftin' Kid."

SEVERAL weeks ago, Gertrude Olmstead made her first screen appearance in a Hoot Gibson two reeler entitled, "Tipped Off." She justified all the faith that Universal placed in her during the months of her training. And now she appears again as leading lady to Hoot Gibson, in "The Driftin' Kid." She seems prettier than ever, and again shows that she is an excellent little actress and that bigger things can be expected of her.

It is now about eight months since little Miss Olmstead won the beauty contest which the Chicago Herald-Examiner conducted in connection with the Elks and was awarded a contract by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, to appear in pictures for that company. From the obscure routine of every-day life in a small mid-western city, Gertrude was sent to Universal City, with its fascinating studios, its interesting people and its big screen personalities. She wasn't phased at all, but just set right to work learning all she could; she rode and danced and swam; she took lessons in dramatics from some of the stars and lessons in the art of make-up from the others and she LEARNED so that now she handles herself capably indeed in "The Driftin' Kid." When a girl possesses natural talent and a will to learn, there is no reason why she should not forge ahead, and the future, therefore, holds big possibilities for the youthful Miss Olmstead.

She is scheduled to appear in another "Western" with Hoot Gibson, entitled "Sweet Revenge." What follows upon this is not yet definitely known, but Universal has interesting plans for this seventeen year old beauty.

Your Help Is Needed Once Again!

AS exhibitors are by this time probably well aware, January 26th has been designated by every branch of the Motion Picture Industry as Motion Picture Day. Upon this day the Red Cross and six other organizations desire to make drives in all the motion picture theatres of America for funds for the European Relief Council, Herbert Hoover, Chairman.

Three and one-half million children in Central and Eastern Europe will starve unless they are provided for at $10 per baby until the next harvest. The Motion Picture Industry is expected to raise $2,500,000.00 which will care for 250,000 babies until the next harvest. Or, in other words, the Motion Picture Industry has undertaken to save a quarter million babies.

The industry has organized for this movement as The Motion Picture Hoover Committee located at 122 West 49th Street, New York City, telephone Bryant 8770. On the day of January 26th, speakers designated by the organization will plead this noble cause in the moving picture theatres of the country and take up voluntary contributions and it is indeed earnestly hoped that exhibitors will lend their co-operation. In addition, on the morning of January 29th, special children's matinees have been designated in the theatres throughout the country, the proceeds of which are to go to make the necessary quota.

Throughout the war the Motion Picture Industry was solidly in back of all "movements of mercy," and it is to be hoped that now, when help is needed more than ever to succor the starving children of Europe, it will not slacken its zeal.

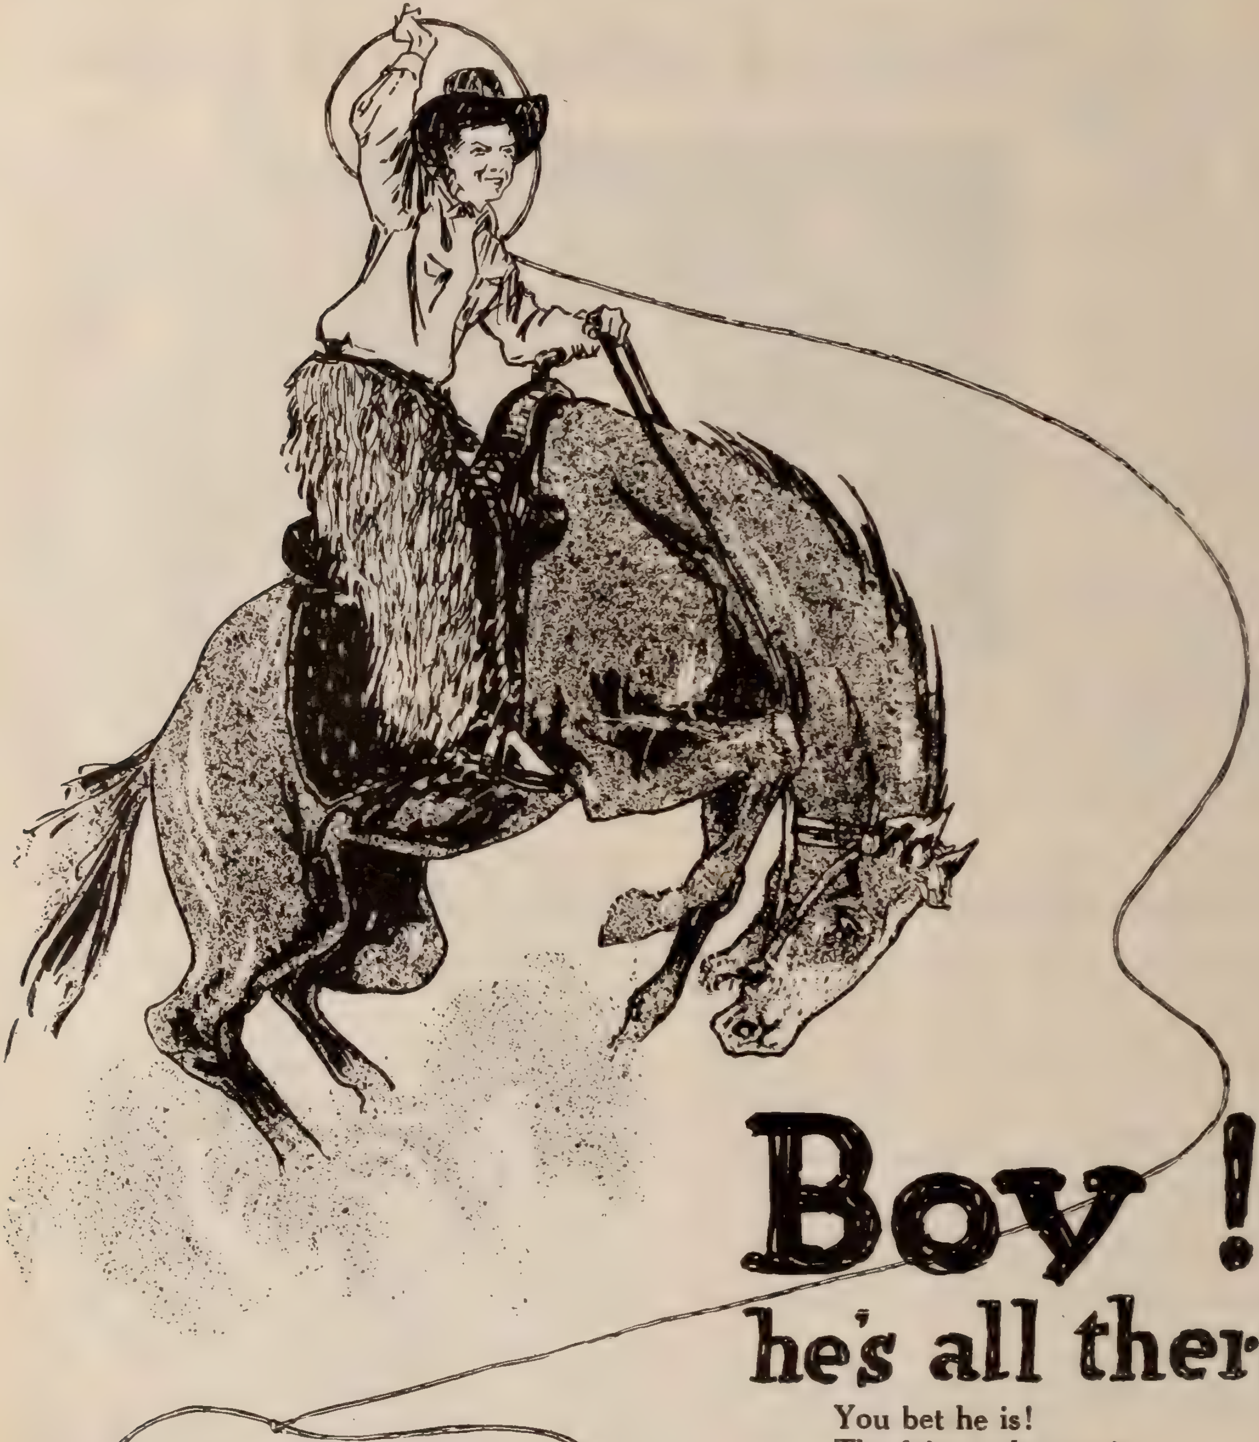
All information concerning the general plans of this worthy movement can be obtained by applying to The Motion Picture Hoover Committee, 122 West 49th Street, New York City.

Serial Stars Popular

IN a popular contest now being conducted in Rio de Janiero, Brazil, by the trade paper "Palcos e Telas" among its readers, to determine who is the best actor of serials, Eddie Polo, better known in Brazil as "Rolleaux," heads the list of his American and foreign competitors by a very substantial majority. Marie Walcamp and Pearl White are running neck to neck for the feminine lead in the same contest.

Universal serial stars have achieved unprecedented popularity not only in America but in all parts of the globe including the most remote regions where the motion picture has managed to penetrate. Dozens of letters come in daily to the Universal offices praising Eddie Polo, Elmo Lincoln, Eileen Sedgwick, Marie Walcamp and the other popular players who have appeared in the splendid serials for which Universal is famous.

If the Universal serial stars have achieved great popularity now, they will achieve even a greater measure of fame and favor in the near future, for the company is planning all sorts of big serial novelties for them and unusual chapter plays can be looked for from Eddie Polo, Eileen Sedgwick and Elmo Lincoln.



Boy! he's all there!

You bet he is!
The fair sex knows it—
the men don't have to be told.
You show the series—then try to take care of the crowds!

keep your eye on
HOOT GIBSON

Beauty And The Beast

"The Beast" Is The Famous Century Wonder Dog, And "Beauty" Is Certainly Well Represented By These Lovely Century Bathing Girls

THE Century Wonder Dog is a distinct added attraction to Century Comedies. Few stage dogs are as clever and keen-witted as this dog and the parts that he takes in the comedies are ofen considerable.

In "Fire Bugs," for example, one of the recent Century Comedy releases, and an unusual two-reel mirth-provoker in every way, a generous share of the plot rests on the capable dog. There doesn't seem to be a thing he cannot do, and he does it all so easily and naturally.

The Century Bathing Girls are a delight to the eye, pretty in both face tnd figure. They serve in every way to enhance the entertainment quality of these really funny two-reelers, and they have won a large measure of popular favor for themselves. Audiences all over are coming to look for them in the comedies and to miss them when there isn't much provided for them to do.

Another reason for the general excellency of Century Comedies is the calibre of the comedians and comediennes who enact the principal roles. Harry Sweet, Bud Jamison, Charles Dorety, Louise Lorraine, Dixie Lamont are distinct personalities whose comedy talents are large and whose popularity and favor are daily increasing.

And the best that is to be had in the way of directors is to be found on the Century lot—Fred Fishback, William Watson, Jim Davis, Thomas Buckingham and Chuck Reisner, men who have a wealth of experience in the comedy field behind them and who are constantly progressing in their work.

Two From Texas Brought Us Joy

Austin, Texas,
Dec. 19, 1920.

Consolidated Film Co.,
Dallas, Texas.

Gentlemen:

Just a few words in regard to your Century and Rainbow Comedies. In Austin the movie fans have termed me the Comedy King. You see, I have the comedy market cornered here. We use the Sunshines, the Sennetts, the Al St. Johns, the Arbuckles, the Rainbow and the Centuries. So you will note that I hold contracts for the best in the comedy line.

Now please don't try and raise the rental on the Rainbow and Century Comedies, when we tell you that we consider your comedies the best drawing cards; in fact our books show the Rainbow and Century have made what we always termed a "blue" Monday and Tuesday two of the best days in the week. You have but to turn and look on your books and see that we have used the two comedies ever since they were released. We can truthfully say that if an exhibitor has a day in the week that doesn't go over, he will find on trial that a Rainbow or Century will make the blue day one of the best days in the week. Of course, it will take several weeks; in other words, the fans will have to see a Rainbow or Century, and you know that they don't come all in one night.

Best wishes,

(Signed) R. S. Pryor, Mgr.,
Grand Central Theatre.

Electra, Texas.
Dec. 20, 1920.

Consolidated Film Supply Co.,
Dallas, Texas.

Gentlemen:

I take pleasure in volunteering to recommend your Century Comedies as being the greatest laugh getters of any comedies we are using, and especially so when we get the ones that use the lions.

Yours truly,

(Signed) R. G. SYKES,
Secretary.
Grand Theatre Company, Inc.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 14

"Out Of The Clouds"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Mary Warren	Kittoria Beveridge
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Zola Sinclair	Eugenie Silbon

EDDIE is strong, however, and manages to hold back the revolving wheel and free himself from his bonds.

Gray sends a wire to Zola Sinclair, an adventuress in league with him, telling her that he will arrive in the afternoon. She is to have a speed boat meet the steamer for him and to watch all the guests arriving at the hotel.

In the meantime Mary receives Eddie's wire and Flint manages to get hold of it, thus learning of Eddie's whereabouts and that he has half the canvas. He sends an immediate wire to Zola telling her that Eddie is on the boat and that he has half the canvas.

Eddie sees Grey enter the speed boat, but he makes for a big blimp and hires it. As the boat passes underneath the blimp, Eddie jumps down to it, overcomes Gray and his henchman, grabs the second piece of canvas and returns to the blimp.

Short of fuel, the blimp is swept out to sea. Eddie realizes that he must go to Winters aid. Winters and Collins had put up at the hotel in Avalon and had been seen by Zola.

From a dizzy height Eddie makes a thrilling jump in a parachute? Will he reach the water's surface in safety?

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 17

"Rails Of Destruction"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

ELMO wards off the steer and aided by Barrows and the mysterious motorcyclist, makes his getaway. Helen also escapes.

To throw Stanton off his track, Hogan sends him after Elmo, causing him to believe that Elmo is in possession of the flaming disk. Stanton gets wise to Hogan and plans to find out his game.

In the meantime, he sends some of the henchmen after Helen and they plan to throw her in the river.

Jim is at last able to throw off the yoke of Stanton's hypnotic power, but he assumes the characteristics of the weakling in order to find out Elmo's whereabouts. He is now going to devote his energies to helping Elmo alone.

Helen is thrown in the river and Elmo, lassoed by the gang, is strung to a tree. However, he breaks loose from his bonds and runs to Helen's rescue. She is almost overcome and together they hurry to the railroad.

Stanton, seeing Elmo and Helen make their getaway, gives orders to the gang to blow up the bridge just as the two are crossing it. Will they meet their death in the fearful explosion that follows?

International News

No. 2

Boston, Mass.—Channing H. Cox in Coolidge's place. Suceeds vice-President elect as Bay State Executive.

Sub-Titles.—Taking the Oath. Mr. Coolidge turns over Ben Franklin's Bible to the new Governor—it goes with the office.

New York City—Miss Anne Morgan, a fight promoter. Daughter of famous financier, backs Leonard-Mitchell title bout to raise funds for France. (Omit Boston prints.)

Sub-Title.—Auctioning box seats in Wall Street.

Boston, Mass.—Picked as loveliest girl in New England. Mrs. Walter Tuff, of Boston awarded first prize in recent beauty contest. (For Boston only.)

City Island, N. Y.—Sea Hornet a speed marvel. First test proves one-man torpedo boat a real speed demon.

In the Public Eye.—General Enoch Crowder, who has been sent to Cuba to adjust serious differences over the presidential election . . . . Washington, D. C.

Sub-Titles.—Ludwig Martens, Soviet Envoy, surrenders to a representative of the Labor Department to be deported to Russia. (Martens on the right.) King Gustav, of Sweden, visits American war craft in the Harbor of Stockholm.

New York City.—Bachelor admiral adopts seven waifs. Newton A. McCully, of U. S. Navy, will be father to Russian youngsters.

Sub-Title.—Admiral McCully and his "family" admitted after a protest by Ellis Island immigrant authorities.

Fort Meyer, Va.—"Circus" riding keeps artillery boys in trim. Army training is just like rehearsing for the "big show."

Sub-Titles.—Training for mountain climbing. The 19th Field Artillery showing some speed.

New York City.—Mighty dreadnaughts off for winter cruise, passing under Brooklyn bridge; the Pennsylvania and Arizona start for Panama waters.

Sub-Titles.—At sea, greeted by the rising sun. Seaplanes of the Pacific fleet leave to join in the Panama maneuvers . . . . San Diego, Cal.

Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis.—Studying the moon through the world's biggest telescope.

Sub-Titles.—The 62-foot telescope. The objective glass is forty inches in diameter. Glimpses of the moon through the giant telescope. It does look a bit like green cheese at that. Professor A. B. Frost, Director of the Observatory.

Long Branch, L. I.—Crew saved from stranded steamer. Signal for help to Point Lookout Guard, brings speedy relief to the grounded Austral Plain.

Sub-Titles.—Speeding to the rescue aboard a U. S. Revenue Cutter. Saved. A quick joruney to a safer port.

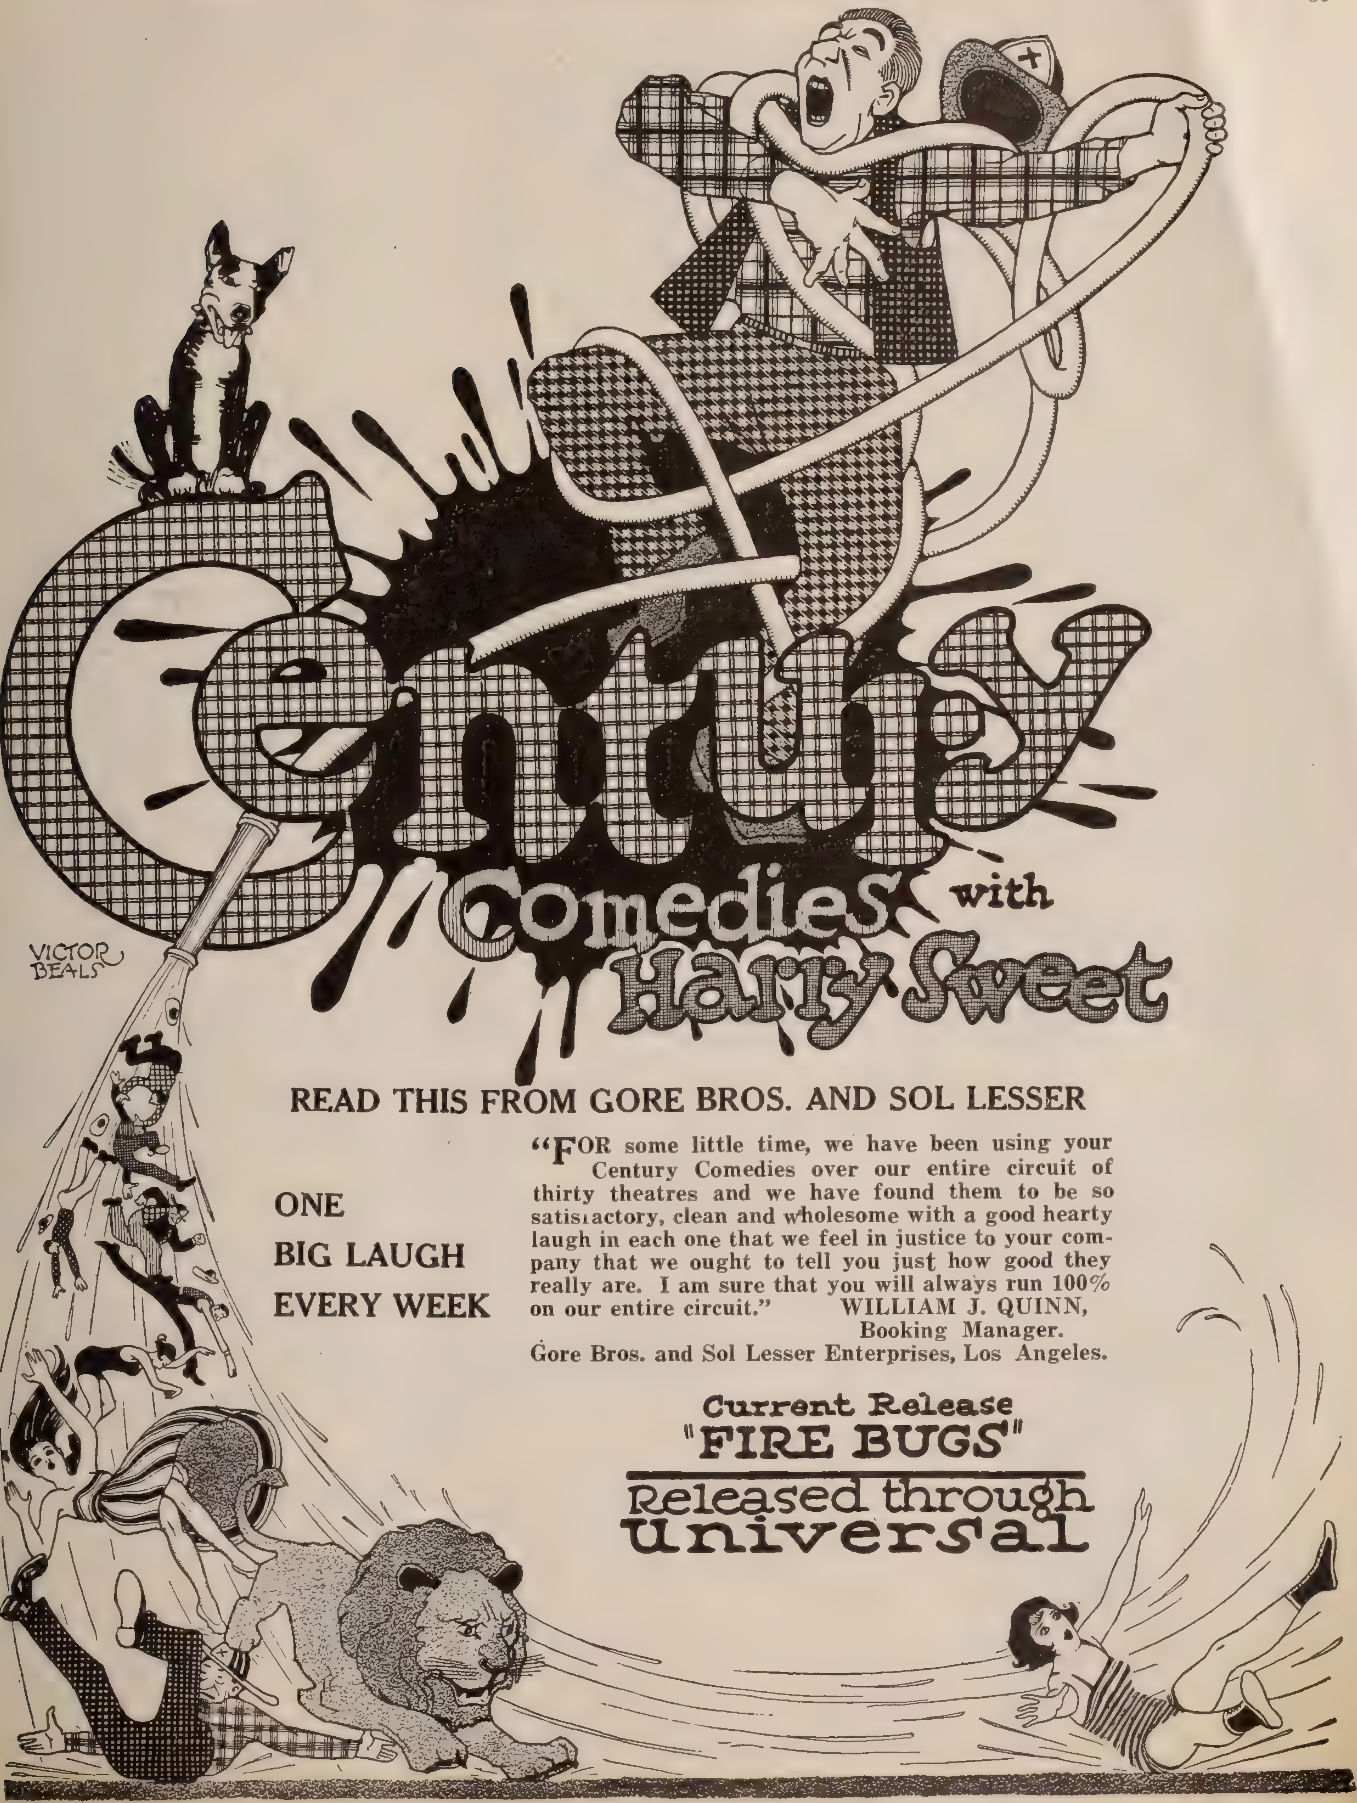
"Vamps and Scamps"

Two Reel Century Comedy

JACK O'LADDEN was a champion woman-hater. His friend Bunny Huge (both in size and habits) loved the ladies, on the contrary.

Bunny makes a bet with Jack that if he comes down to his hotel, "Bunny's Hotel," the girls there will make him fall in twenty-four hours. Jack takes up the bet. The girls all start to vamp him—one dresses as a Chinese waiter, the other as an expressman, another as a bellhop, but their efforts are fruitless when each time he discovers their identity. They try another way. One gets on a runaway horse and he captures the horse. Another gets her foot caught in the railroad track and he saves her. Still another jumps into the lake and is rescued by the dauntless Jack.

Finally, they resort to the beach. Dressed in beautiful but scanty costumes, they pose before him, but they fail to interest him. Bunny gets into a fight with Jack. The police come on the scene and chase them. Jack is finally chased by the cops and Bunny —he jumps on a passing truck and thus loses them only to find, at the twenty-fourth hour, that he is surrounded by girls in policemen's uniforms. He is captured in every way and so has to pay Bunny the bet.



READ THIS FROM GORE BROS. AND SOL LESSER

ONE
BIG LAUGH
EVERY WEEK

"FOR some little time, we have been using your Century Comedies over our entire circuit of thirty theatres and we have found them to be so satisfactory, clean and wholesome with a good hearty laugh in each one that we feel in justice to your company that we ought to tell you just how good they really are. I am sure that you will always run 100% on our entire circuit." WILLIAM J. QUINN, Booking Manager.
Gore Bros. and Sol Lesser Enterprises, Los Angeles.

Current Release
"FIRE BUGS"

Released through
Universal

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Episode 18

"The End Of the Trail"

CAST

Elmo Gray	Elmo Lincoln
Jim Gray, his brother	Elmo Lincoln
Rodney Stanton	Roy Watson
Stanley W. Barrows	Geo. Williams
Prof. Robert Wade	Lee Kohlmar
Helen Wade	Louise Lorraine
Briggs	Fred Hamer
Stella Dean	Fay Holderness
Batt Hogan	Monte Montague
Con Dawson	Jenks Harris

AS the bridge explodes and Helen and Elmo fall into the water, the mysterious motorcyclist comes along in a motorboat and rescues them. Helen is taken to an emergency hospital for dry clothes and Elmo tells her that he will send for her if he can't come back himself. The gang get wise to this, however, and send one of their own men to Helen and she, unsuspecting, accompanies him. She is taken to Kolp's and thrown in the tank underneath the house. Jim rescues her, however. Helen believes it is Elmo at first, but gradually she comes to the realization that it is Jim and that he has really reformed and is helping them to the best of his ability.

Stanton, with his henchmen have made for Coles, a prominent jewelry concern, in whose vaults a million dollars worth of diamonds are hidden. With the aid of the flaming disk they plan to make away with these. But their thieving plan is interrupted by Elmo, Barrows and the Secret Service. "You've got me, Gray," said Stanton, "but I've beaten you; your sweetheart is drowned in a tank under Kolp's."

However, Elmo finds Helen safe in Jim's care. And wonder of wonders, Helen's father is also alive, having been kept in safety by the mysterious motorcyclist, who is none other than Briggs, Stanton's butler, and an active employee of the United States Secret Service.

The Government pays Wade handsomely for the flaming disk and Jim promises to be best man for Elmo and Helen.

"Kickaroo"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Mollie O'Neill	Gertrude Olmstead
Buck McGrew	Hoot Gibson
Joe Lee	Ben Corbett
Rawhide O'Neill	Otto Nelson

BUCK McGREW is courting Molly, daughter of O'Neill of the Star Cross Ranch. Joe Lee also desires Molly and is envious of Buck. He is only waiting an opportunity to discredit Buck in her eyes. Buck is very fond of drink and is trying hard for Molly's sake to give it up.

One Sunday when Buck is waiting for Molly to go driving he meets one of the punchers of the Star Cross ranch who has a brand new drink with lots of kick in it. They go into the bunk house to test it, and when they open the first bottle it makes a terrific explosion, which brings Molly, Joe and O'Neill to the scene. Molly then and there tells Buck she will give him one more chance, and if he ever tastes a drop again she is through with him. It is then that Joe conceives the brilliant idea of doping Buck, thus discrediting him forever in Molly's eyes. He meets him one day and offers him a bottle which he says is called "kickaroo" with a great kick in it. Buck at first resists, but the temptation proves too great, and he takes just a "taste." He presents himself at the O'Neill house in a drunken state, and Molly decides once and for all to break Buck of his bad habit.

When Buck awakes he finds himself stretched out on a table with a sheet over him, and discovers every one mourning for him. He jumps up, but no one seems to see him. They have a coffin built and a grave dug, and Buck finally doesn't know whether he is dead or not. He notices the headboard of the grave, on which is a verse to the effect that Buck McGrew died from the effect of too much "kickaroo." Joe comes on the scene, and seeing the mournful preparations thinks he has killed Buck. Then when he sees Buck he thinks it is his spirit and is terror-stricken. In his terror he confesses to having doped Buck, but says he didn't intend to kill him. They see mourners carrying the coffin to the grave (all for Buck's benefit, of course), and Buck forces Joe to go up to the grave and confess that he had doped him. They are dumbfounded, and Molly goes into Buck's arms. Joe tries to make a getaway, but Buck sees him, and, pushing Molly aside, gives chase.

Universal Serials Score Heavily

Rockingham, N. C.

Mr. E. F. Dardine, Mgr.,
Univeral Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

My Dear Mr. Dardine:

Just a few lines to tell you that "THE MOON RIDERS" has been one of the greatest serials ever shown in the tSar Theatre of Rockingham, N. C., and I would like to say that it has gone so far as to get the best money for us of any serial of the last fifteen months. We cannot take care of the crowd waiting to see the next show. This is the kind of serial we need all the time.

We are going to make Thursday a "Universal Day," and we know that we will get the money when we say Universal to our people.

Thanking you once more for the best serial of the season and with best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,
THE STAR THEATRE,
(Signed) W. G. ATKINSON, Mgr.

Having used your serial, "The Lion Man," I think it is the best western serial that was ever put before the people. After the first five nights, my box office receipts gained twenty per cent.

R. D. Johnson,
Palace Theatre,
Le Roy, Kansas.

Leonardsville, Kan.

Mr. Walter L. Rubert,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir:

We have increased our Wednesday attendance beyond expectations with "Elmo the Fearless."

(Signed) Charles Rothlesberger,
Leonard Theatre.

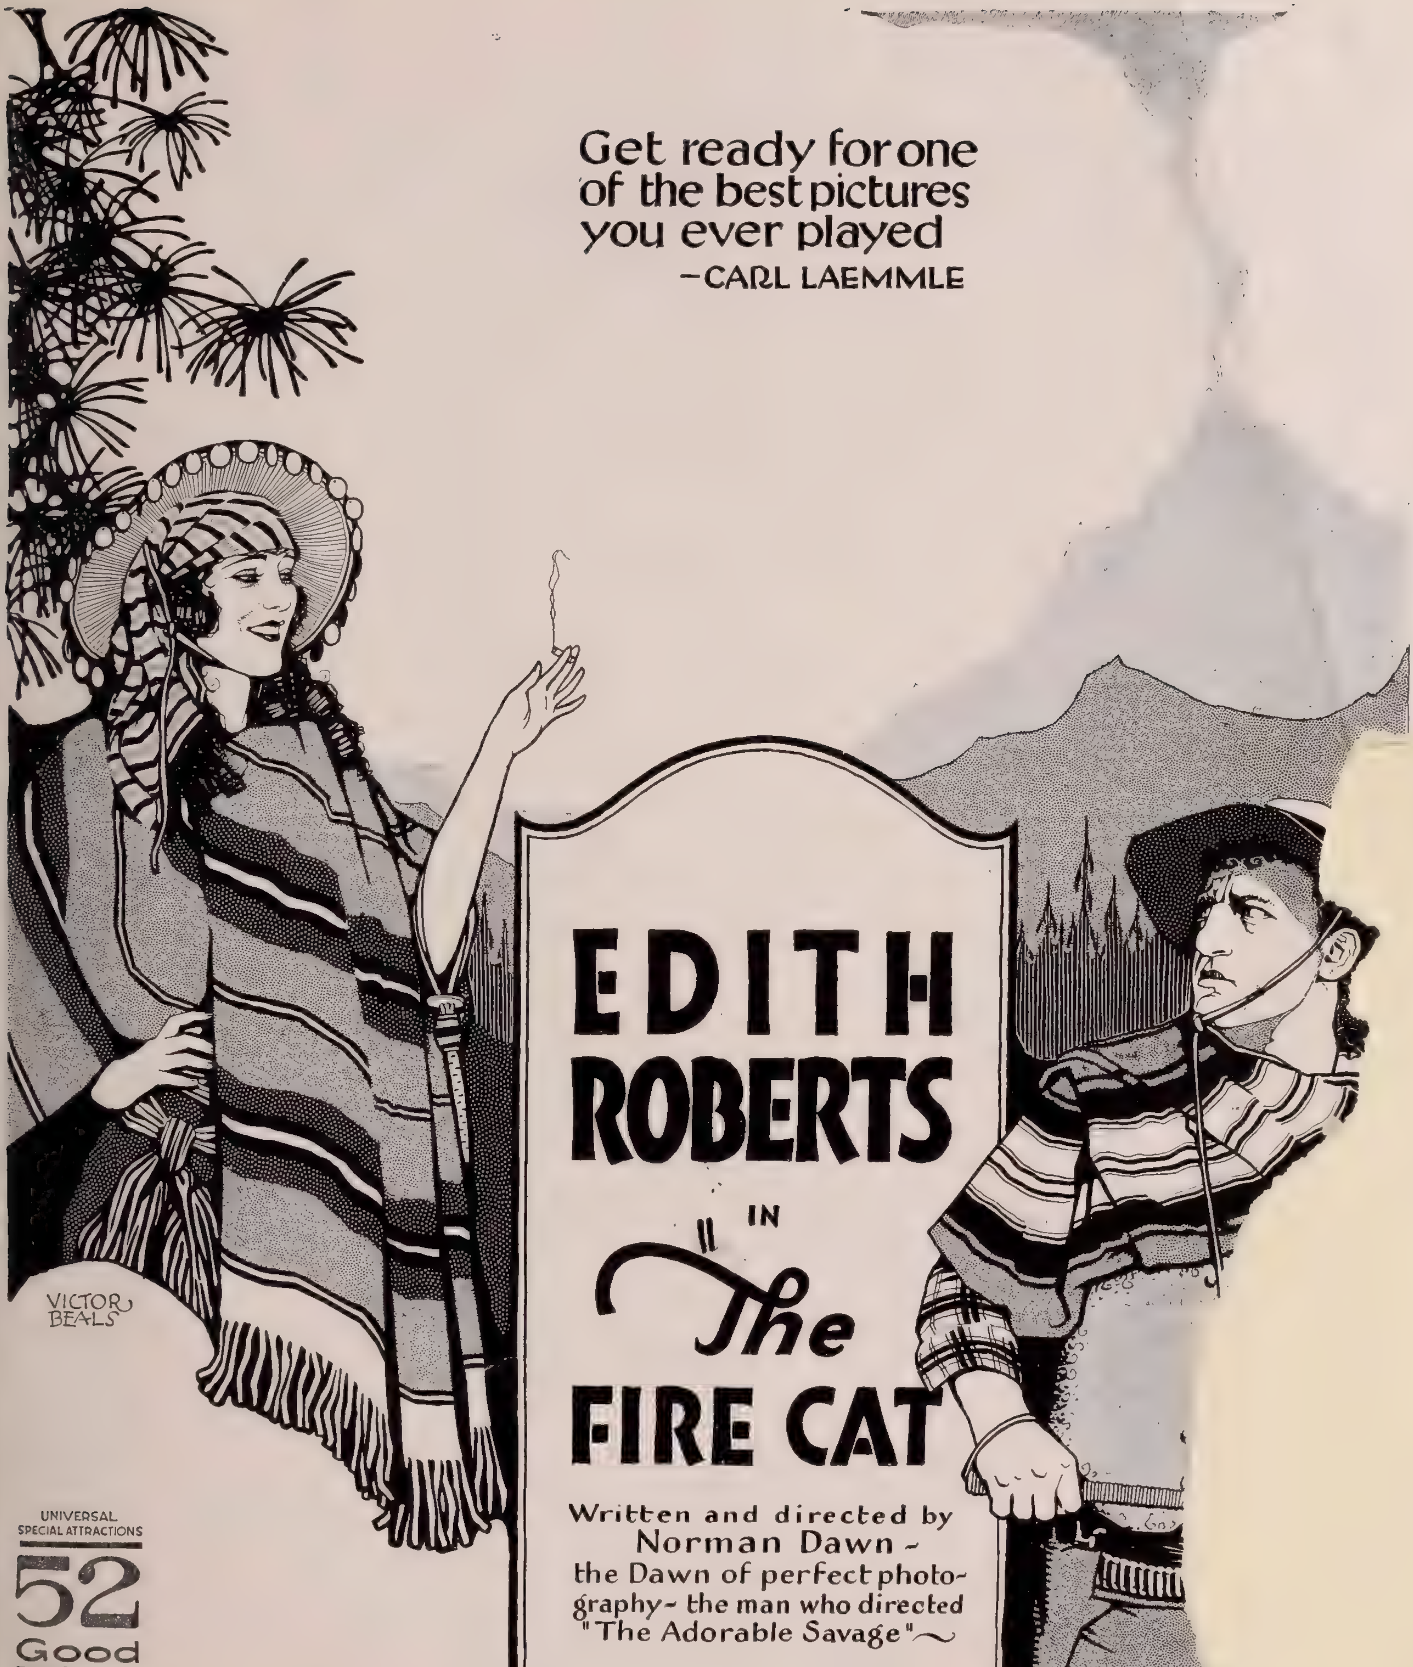
Mr. Walter L. Rubert,
Universay Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir:

"Vanishing Dagger" serial is one of the best I have ever run, in my estimation.

J. Ben Carter,
Browning Theatre,
Browning, Mo.

Get ready for one of the best pictures you ever played
—CARL LAEMMLE



EDITH ROBERTS

IN

"The FIRE CAT

Written and directed by
Norman Dawn—
the Dawn of perfect photography—the man who directed
"The Adorable Savage"~

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

52
Good
Pictures
a Year

The WICKEDEST WOMAN IN EUROPE

THE PRINCESS OLGA—said to be the cousin of the dashing Count Apraxin and mistress of the beautiful Villa Amorosa, Monte Carlo Seemingly, an aristocrat of the old regime, admirable in her hauteur, the perfection of style, charming in every word and move and gesture. In reality, an abandoned character of the most desperate type—the wickedest woman in Europe—and the cleverest. What chance does Andy Hughes' small-town wife stand with a woman like this, surrounded by all the fascinating temptations of Monte Carlo? The same chance that a celluloid cat stands in Hades. Watch for the Princess when you show this picture—Maud George will fool you, too.

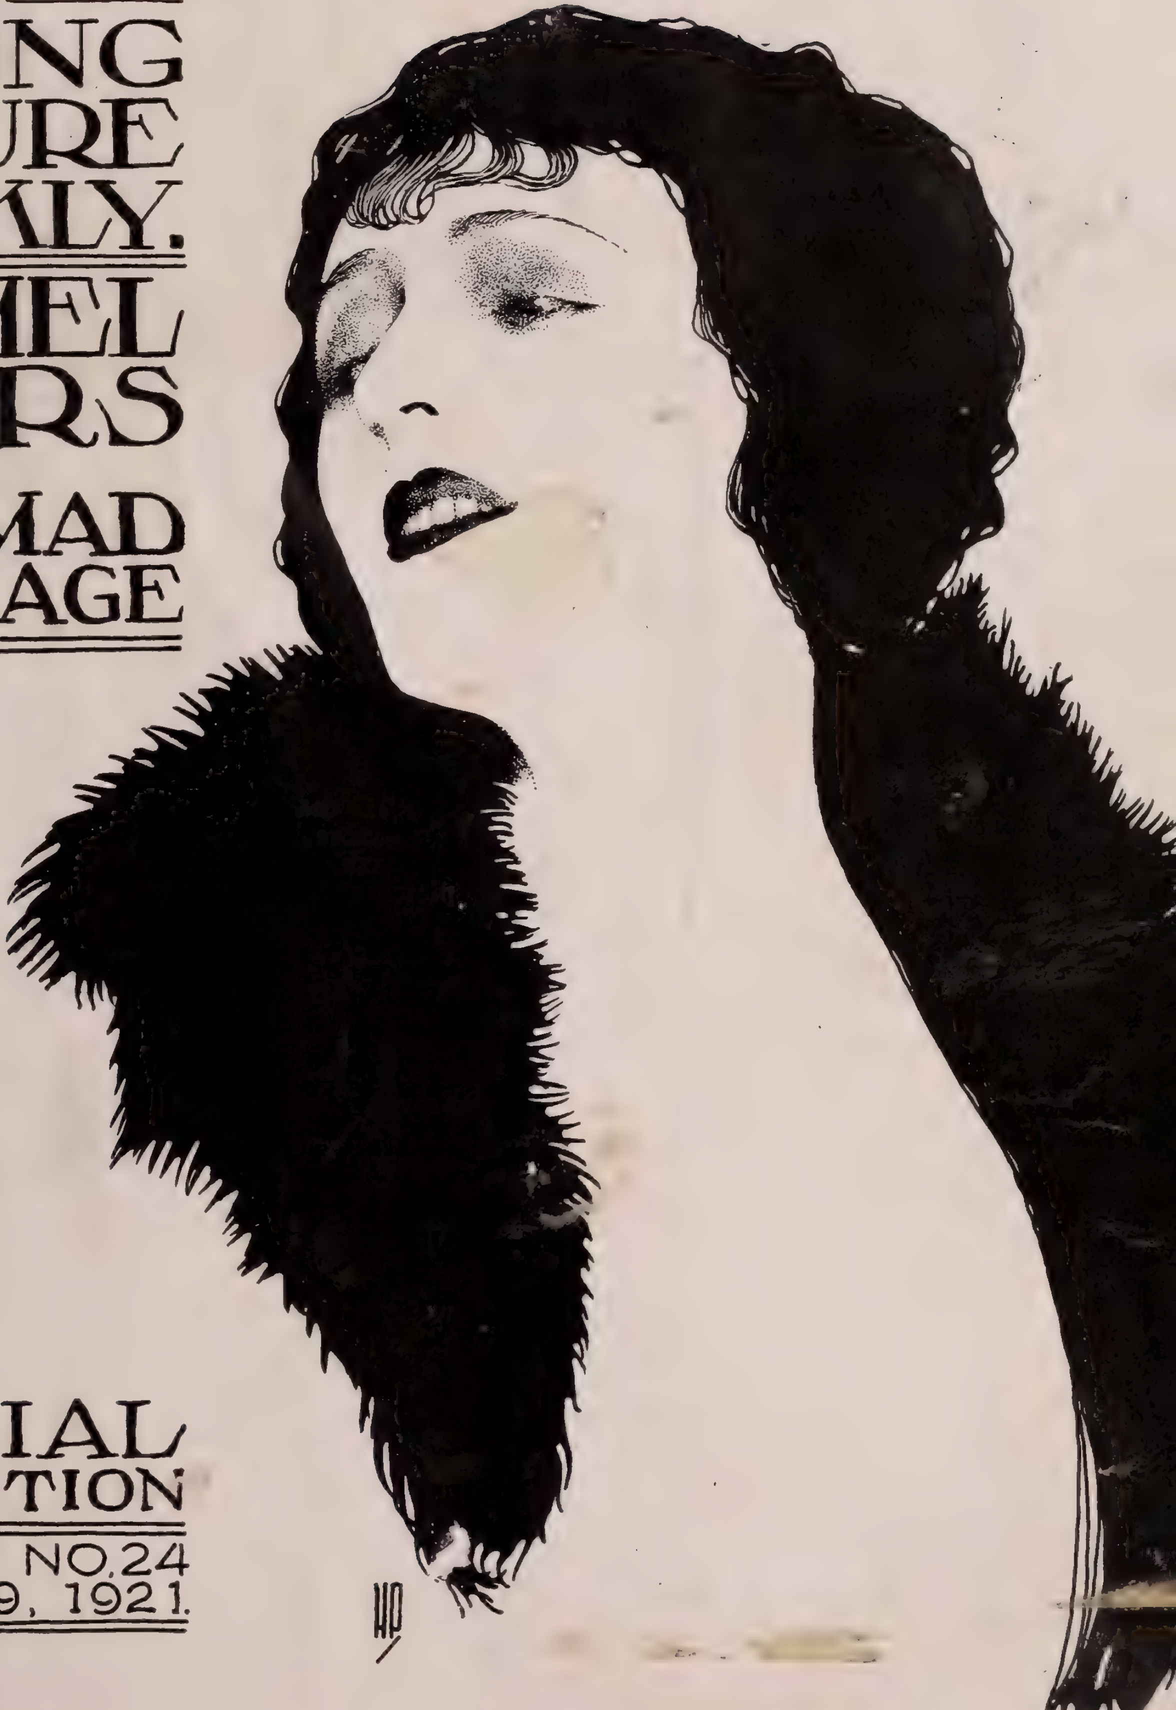
see her
orthcoming
RSAL-JEWEL
DER –

Von Stroheim AGAIN!
2½ times as much

FOOLISH WIVES"

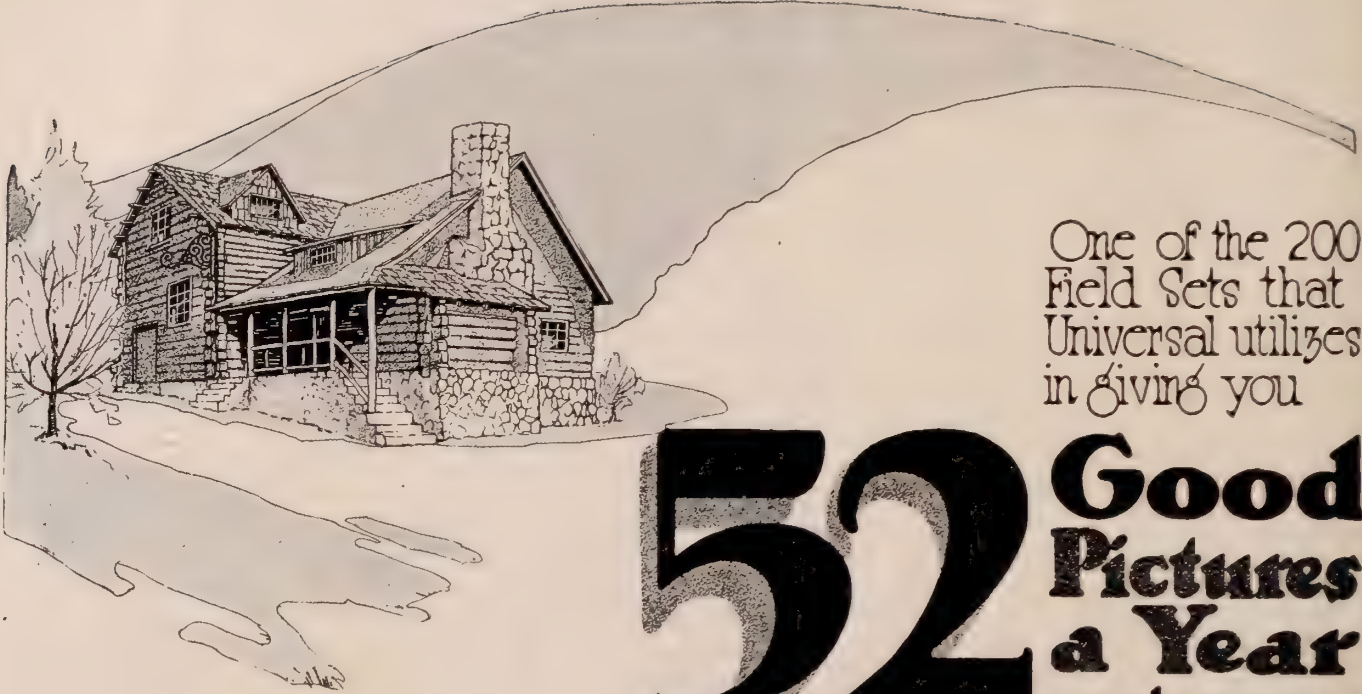
The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY.

CARMEL MYERS IN THE MAD MARRIAGE



SPECIAL ATTRACTION

/OL 12 — NO. 24
ANUARY 29, 1921.



One of the 200
Field Sets that Universal utilizes
in giving you

52 Good Pictures a Year

—and no worry

The French-Canadian Field Set Number R-C shown above is only one of a score of buildings constructed specially for pictures laid in the Big North Woods. These admirable pieces of scenic realism include a complete Hudson's Bay Trading Station. Many of them are leased from Universal on short terms by producers who have not facilities for making a good picture every week right straight through the year.

YOU can't make pictures without sets, and the more sets you have the more pictures you can make—and the bigger the certainty that your pictures will be good pictures.

Universal's standing resources in Field Sets alone would render possible the making of 52 Good Pictures a Year for the next four years without ever using the same set twice. And this, you will understand, applies merely to permanent exteriors. It does not include the scores of special exteriors which ar constantly in course of construction for Special Attractions and Jewel Productions de Luxe—and it does not include any interiors at all, and we number these by the hundred.

This is one of the reasons why we say—"and no worry" when we sell you 52 Good Pictures a Year. The worrying is done by competing producers.

Presented by
Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

The Eyes Have It!

YOUTH, animation, vivacity and life—they are written in Carmel Myers' eyes. Big, lustrous and gray-green are those eyes—and direct. It is fascinating to watch them not only for their singular beauty but because they are so expressive. They can be merry and sad, scornful and sympathetic; they can flirt and they can "freeze"—indeed they seem to be able to perfectly express every shade of human feeling.

The owner of those wondrous eyes is what one terms "a real pretty girl". Great masses of glossy brown hair enhance the charming oval face. Her skin is dazzling white; her lips shapely and full. She is slim and lithe of figure, walking always with airy grace. And when she smiles, her face lights up joyously and she displays a set of perfect, pearly teeth.

She is ambitious and progressive. No role is too difficult. She aims constantly for "the bigger". "In Folly's Trail", "The Gilded Dream", "Beautifully Trimmed"—what a trio of exquisite pictures! And uppermost in them all is the alluring personality, the haunting beauty and the spontaneous art of the young star. But now comes the biggest one, The Mad Marriage", full of story, of suspense, of action, but mostly full of Carmel Myers. It is one of those "bigger things" for which this dainty slip of a girl constantly aims and in it she rises to truly dramatic heights. It is such a picture as will entrance you and enthrall you and from it you will carry away the distinct impression that here at last is a girl who is really young, really pretty, really appealing, and an actress every inch of her—Carmel Myers.

Carmel Myers, Universal star, whose fourth picture, "The Mad Marriage", upholds in every way, the splendid standard set by the other three.

Carl
Laemmle
presents

"The Doctor says that Baby is terribly ill!"

OF course, you never had a quarrel with your better half — you never were green with jealousy—you never poked a fellow in the eye—nor had your wife leave you—you're not a Greenwich Village artist, that's why. But you'll sympathize with both these very human young people because there are millions just like 'em, and you'll laugh with them when their troubles come to a happy end. As pretty a picture as bewitching Carmel Myers ever made and that means something. Take a good look at the stills.

When
Art fell in Love with the kitchen

The Voice of Scandal

Carmel Myers

in "The

MAD MARRIAGE"

Directed by
ROLLIN STURGEON
Adapted from the Novel
"Cinderella Jane"
by Marjorie Benton Cooke

It's One of Those
52 Good Pictures a Year and No Worry

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL
ATTRACTION

"Making a Nurse-maid out of an Artist -eh?"

The Green-eyed monster gets busy

"Get out of here before I lose me temper"

All's well that ends well

Service Page for Carmel Myers in "The Mad Marriage"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Mad Marriage."

STAR—Carmel Myers.

PREVIOUS HITS—"In Folly's Trail," "The Gilded Dream," "Beautifully Trimmed," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Rollin Sturgeon.

STORY FROM—A Novel by Marjorie Benton Cooke, "Cinderella Jane."

SCENARIO BY—Marion Fairfax.

SUPPORTING CAST—Truman Van Dyke, Arthur Carewe, William Brunton, Nola Luxford, Jane Starr, Margaret Cullington, Virginia Ware.

LOCALE — New York — Greenwich Village and Up Town.

TIME—The present.

THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of an artist who marries a girl because she doesn't interfere with his career and will protect him from a marriage with some other woman who might; how she agrees to the proposal to learn life—and how she takes a post-graduate course.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The fact that the novel "Cinderella Jane," by Marjorie Benton Cooke, from which "The Mad Marriage" was made, was read by thousands.

2—The personal screen popularity of Carmel Myers, the star.

3—Intimate glimpses behind the scenes in Greenwich Village.

4—The unusually dramatic story, based upon a girl who marries to experience life.

5—The splendid supporting cast, including Truman Van Dyke, Nola Luxford, Margaret Cullington, Virginia Ware, Robert Brunton, Jane Starr and Arthur Carewe.

6—The spectacle of fat, and fully forty, society women draping themselves in kittenish costumes for a pageant.

7—Unrestrained views into the exclusive studios of New York's Bohemia, and a study of the unconventional customs of its denizens.

8—The fact that Rollin Sturgeon, who directed "The Mad Marriage" produced "Destiny" and "Pretty Smooth."

9—Elaborate settings, true to the romantic and colorful locale of the story.

10—Brilliant photography and lighting effects which add to the artistry of the production.

CAST

Jane	Carmel Myers
Jerry	Truman Van Dyke
Willie	William Brunton
Mrs. Brendon	Virginia Ware
Harmonia	Margaret Cullington
Althea	Jane Starr
Christiansen	Arthur Carewe
Bob	Nola Luxford
Mrs. Boggs	Lydia Yeamans Titus

THE STORY

JANE knew that she would someday be a successful playwright, but in the meantime she darned socks and kept house for a group of artists who lived in Greenwich Village.

Among her clients was Jerome Paxton, a young artist, who was threatened with too much popularity when a set of rich and idle women fastened upon him as a lion.

Jane was the most unobjectionable little person in the world, always working industrially at her "domestic engineering" and never bothering anybody. Paxton realized her quiet capabilities; beyond this he never gave her a thought for he was too busy with "himself."

Jane finished the play on which she was working and took it to Christiansen, a successful play-broker. He admitted its possibilities but said that Jane must first experience "life" if she wanted to write. Besides Christiansen had to be more or less in love with a woman, he candidly admitted, in order to be interested in any work of hers, and he couldn't see anything attractive about Jane.

Jerry asks Jane to marry him, knowing that she will never interfere with his work as some other woman might. Jane, remembering Christiansen's advice about "life," agrees. They marry.

Paxton's hope for material success hinged upon a pageant of scriptural nature which he had conceived for his society folks. On the night of the pageant, the lady taking the leading role of Salome, is injured. The ever capable Jane jumps into the part and acts so capably and looks so beautiful that society is astounded, Christiansen falls in love with her and then and there offers to help her work out her play. Jerry goes blindly on, still unawakened to the charm and attractiveness of his wife.

Night by night Jane and Christiansen work secretly on the play. Weeks pass and a baby is born to Jane and Jerry. The play is finally finished and Christiansen takes Jane to the opening. Jerry awakens at last to a realization of the fact that he loves his wife. He fears that his egoism has caused him to lose her. He misunderstands her relations with Christiansen. He follows the two to the theatre and is thunderstruck to find that his wife is the author of the most successful play that has come to town in many a month. Sadly he steals out and goes home. Christiansen and Jane return. Christiansen tells Jane of his love for her; explains that Jerry is too selfish and egoistical to appreciate her. Jerry interrupts and a furious fight ensues between the two men. Finally, they cease and say that Jane must choose between them on the morrow. But in the interim, Jane had stolen out with her child leaving a note for Jerry that when she knew her mind, she would let him know.

Weeks pass. Jane and the baby are living in a secluded village. Jerry, heartbroken, wanders aimlessly about the city. The baby becomes seriously ill and Jane realizes she needs help; she cannot go on alone. She sends wire after wire to Jerry, but he is never home and misses them. She 'phones at last to Christiansen, in her despair. He comes with a specialist. The crisis night arrives and in that night of torture, Jane knows her answer and her duty. The baby will recover.

Jerry arrives, having finally received the telegram. Seeing Christiansen, he slips away, however, telling the maid to inform Jane she can have her divorce. But Jane follows him to their home, and there is a beautiful understanding between the two. Love and peace will follow for Jane and Jerry.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

"You're the girl I want. You won't interfere with my work and you'll keep me from marrying some one who would." See how it resulted in "The Mad Marriage".

"Will you go to dinner with me?" "No." "Well, then, will you marry me?" That started things moving in "The Mad Marriage".

Is your husband your career? If he is, see "The Mad Marriage". If he isn't—don't let him see it.

Carmel Myers even had to learn how to hold a baby properly for her current release, "The Mad Marriage."

HOW TO HOLD 'EM

SHE had learned to swim, to dive, to execute fancy steps, to ride a horse, to do a hundred and one fancy stunts for the sake of the movies, but when she had to learn how to hold a baby, Carmel Myers admits the task was a big one. But learn she did, otherwise "The Mad Marriage,,' this charming star's newest release, would never have reached the screen with her in the stellar rôle.

For Carmel is a young mother, a very young mother, in "The Mad Marriage" and the scenes with the baby are alluring indeed. And she dared not spoil them by appearing awkward as she held the infant.

Luckily her teacher was an excellent one. Rollin Sturgeon, her director, is the happy father of four kiddies himself, and he has fond recollections of the days when "he walked the floor with Baby" during the teething period. He instructed Carmel in all the intricacies of holding the baby, and as illustrated above, he held the real infant who is so enchanting in the picture, while Carmel made progress with a doll. Even the biggest difficulties are surmountable if one is determined enough and Carmel finally learned her lesson so well that she acts gracefully and spontaneously in her scenes with the infant in "The Mad Marriage".

Without a doubt, this picture taken from that interesting novel, "Cinderella Jane" by the famous novelist, Marjorie Benton Cooke, is the best thing that Carmel Myers has ever done and it is indeed a welcome addition to that trio of notable productions she has already made, "In Folly's Trail", "The Gilded Dream" and "Beautifully Trimmed". She is surrounded by a capable cast and her leading man is Truman Van Dyke who is a great favorite with "fans" all over the country.

Rollin Sturgeon has made a charming production of "The Mad Marriage". His expert skill is especially evident in the pageant scenes, where difficult biblical allegories are represented with artistic finish and are made interesting and extremely entertaining.

It is a safe bet that everybody will like "The Mad Marriage". It has everything in its favor—an interesting story, skilled direction and a beautiful, talented star. In addition, it deals with a subject vitally interesting to every man and woman—marriage, and its relation to the newer womanhood of to-day.

Former Universal Favorite Returns

Truman Van Dyke, supporting Carmel Myers in "The Mad Marriage"

UNIVERSALITES, who found such keen delight in watching Truman Van Dyke play opposite Marie Walcamp in that daring girl's serial vehicle, "The Red Glove," will again have an opportunity to be entertained by him when they witness "The Mad Marriage," the picture taken from Marjorie Benton Cooke's famous novel, "Cinderella Jane," in which Carmel Myers is starring. Truman plays the leading man role, that of Jerry Paxton, a much "lionized" artist, who marries the little studio mouse, demurely portrayed by Miss Myers, for convenience, only to find, when he believes it too late, that he loves her madly. The role is one admirably suited to this sterling actor's pleasing personality and he makes the most of every opportunity. He and Miss Myers make a delightful team—both of them good-looking and both of them capable players—and the picture is indeed enhanced by the combination.

Truman Van Dyke holds the unique distinction of being the only red headed leading man extant. Born in Mississippi, of Dutch extraction, he attended the schools in that state, being interested in agriculture and mechanics. But his main love was the drama and it was in college dramatics that he got his principal experience and the impetus to seek the stage as a permanent career. However, he drifted to California where the movies naturally "got him" and crtainly the movies mean to keep him.

There is another excellent male role in "The Mad Marriage," that of Christiansen, the play-broker, who falls in love with the lonesome little Mrs. Jerry. This part falls on the capable shoulders of handsome Arthur Carewe, who is best remembered for his exquisite portrayal of the Japanese Prince Hagane in the Jewel production-de-luxe, "The Breath Of The Gods."

Truman Van Dyke is not the only player welcomed back recently to Universal City after a protracted absence. There were in addition, Fritzi Brunette, who has just finished supporting Frank Mayo in "Tiger True," Gloria Hope, who will be seen with Mr. Mayo in his next, "Colorado" and Beatriz Dominguez of "The Moon Riders" fame, who returns to play a colorful role in Edith Robert's forthcoming "The Fire Cat." These four were happy indeed to renew their numerous friendships in the big west coast studios and they were indeed heartily greeted by all.

Droll Role Draws Laughs in "The Mad Marriage"

READERS of Marjorie Benton Cooke's popular novel, "Cinderella Jane," will pleasantly recall the character of Harmonia, who calls herself the "unharmonized chord" and who seeks among the males of Greenwich Village for the one masculine note that will supply the necessary harmony of her existence. It is one of the most delightfully droll characters ever drawn by a writer, and in adapting the story for the screen Marion Fairfax has retained all the delicious humor of the character.

"Cinderella Jane" has been made into a photoplay by Universal entitled "The Mad Marriage," with Carmel Myers in the stellar role, and for this role of Harmonia, Director Rollin Sturgeon selected Margaret Cullington, one of the cleverest eccentric comediennes on the screen. Miss Cullington will be remembered as the actress who created the role of that famous rolling pin artist, Maggie, in the screen version of "Bringing Up Father" and as the player of scores of other outstanding comedy roles in the film features of the past few years.

Miss Cullington has been on the stage all her life. Her father was a well known stage director and her mother was Lilly George, a popular stage soubrette of 20 years ago. At the age of three months Margaret was carried on the stage as the infant in "Frogg's Ferry," played by Mrs. Fiske, and with the exception of ten years spent at school she has been before the public all her life. Miss Cullington's mother was a niece of the late Henry George, the father of the single tax idea. The actress was born in New Rochelle, made famous by George M. Cohan as the town that is 45 minutes from Broadway.

Publicity Stories for Carmel Myers in "The Mad Marriage"

STAR EVER READY FOR EVERY OPPORTUNITY

SOME of Carmel Myers' acquaintances will tell you that this young California girl is lucky; that Opportunity, instead of knocking at her door, was presented her on a silver platter. But her friends, who know her better, will add that opportunity always found her ready; that she has worked hard for every chance, so that when it presented itself she was prepared to take full advantage of it. That is why this fascinating brunette, still in her teens, has been a film star for two years, and has to her credit a year's success on the Broadway stage.

Carmel Myers' most recent success is the Universal photodrama, "The Mad Marriage," in which she is starred under Rollin Sturgeon's direction. This picture, by the way, is taken from Marjorie Benton Cooke's very popular novel, "Cinderella Jane," and was scenarized by Marion Fairfax. It is the fourth feature production in which she has been starred by Universal since her return from New York after her stage triumph.

During the production of "Intolerance" Carmel Myers, then a school girl, was a frequenter at David Griffith's studio, her father being of great service to the famous director in staging the biblical episodes of the spectacular photoplay. She observed everything, from the work of the "grips" and the "extras" to the more important duties of the directors and featured players. And when Griffith sometime later, offered her work in his company, he found her proficient in all the mechanical branches of the art, besides possessing a dramatic instinct which immediately became apparent. In fact, six months after she made her first screen appearance, she was featured in a picture, and several months after that was engaged by Universal as a star.

DIRECTOR'S LIFE FULL OF BIG EXPERIENCES

"Here lies a lawyer and an honest man," is the inscription on a tombstone in a country churchyard near Universal City, Calif.

"How did they get them both in the same grave?" asks Rollin Sturgeon, the director.

Sturgeon's thrust at the profession is to be taken in good part, however, for the famous director of motion pictures was a successful attorney before he entered the field of the silent drama.

Sturgeon has just completed "The Mad Marriage," the Universal photodrama which is now playing at the ....Theatre and in which Carmel Myers is starring in the title role.

After graduating from Harvard, Sturgeon joined his father in Rock Island, Illinois where the elder Sturgeon is regarded as one of the foremost legal authorities. He took up practice and continued until the desire to do creative work in literature and dramatic art overcame his determination to listen to self-winding judges.

Starting as a scenario writer he achieved an almost immediate success. He then became a director and produced such features as "Destiny," "Pretty Smooth," with Priscilla Dean, "Sundown Trail," "The Breath of the Gods" and other notable screen successes.

In "The Mad Marriage" Sturgeon is believed to have achieved most auspicious success through his interpretation for the screen of the novel by Marjorie Benton Cooke, "Cinderella Jane," from which the photoplay was filmed.

LAUGHS WELL PROVIDED FOR IN "THE MAD MARRIAGE"

To make himself as foppishly foolish as possible is the ambition of William Brunton, the character leading man, who is furnishing the comedy relief in "The Mad Mariage," now playing ot the ....Theatre.

In "The Mad Marriage" Brunton depicts the role of Willie, a hopelessly absurd young man of the idle rich who is so immaculately dressed that lifting his eyebrows is an effort resulting in the most prostrating fatigue. It is a role for which he has gained a wide reputation in other productions.

Brunton was born in London, Canada, and graduated at the Trinity College School in Toronto. In 1907 he joined a repertoire show and toured the country, followed by indignant letters from his family. Later he established his own stock company at Santa Barbara, California, and played for several seasons before he joined Oliver Morosco's stock company. In spite of the fact that his grandmother was Helen Brunon, the grand opera star, his family objected to his presence on the stage and only with his success in the films have they removed their objection.

In "The Mad Marriage" Brunton is one of the principal supporting players for Carmel Myers, the star.

The production was filmed at Universal City under the direction of Rollin Sturgeon from the widely read novel, "Cinderella Jane," by Marjorie Benton Cooke.

In addition to the presence of Mr. Brunton the cast includes such popular players as Truman Van Dyke, Margaret Cullington, Nola Luxford, Virginia Ware, Jane Starr ond Arthur Carewe.

AUSTRALIAN GIRL HAS ROLE IN CARMEL MYERS' PICTURE

From far-off New Zealand came a fascinating little actress to charm the moviegoers of America, and her first important screen appearance occurs in "The Mad Marriage," the photodrama in which Carmel Myers is to appears at the .... Theatre on ....

The young woman in question is Nola Luxford, whose totally different personality puts an added "kick" into this story of bohemian life in Greenwich Village, New York.

Miss Luxford's father is a well-known literary critic of Australia and New Zealand, and the young lady was born in Nunterville less than 20 years ago. At the age of fifteen she made her debut on the stage in Hastings, New Zealand, in an English musical comedy company, and appeared in various roles throughout the Antipodes. About the same time she met a young New Zealand officer home from Egypt on his furlough, and the two became engaged. The soldier was then ordered to France and there was wounded on three occasions. He received the military cross and returned to his home in New Zealand at the end of the war. There he married Miss Luxford, but his physicians ordered a change of climate for a year or more in order that he might fully regain his health.

J. V. Bryson, who represents the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in Australia, suggested to Miss Luxford that they come to America and locate in Southern California. He also gave Miss Luxford a letter to the producing manager at the film capital, with the result that she was given an early opportunity to appear in a screen feature. But the fact is that with Miss Luxford's charm, beauty and talent it would have been hard to keep her off the screen once she had become acquainted with the motion picture producers.

"1921's

Says Carl Laemmle

I'VE been a producer for many years. I've seen scores of stars rise and fall. Watching them is part of my job. For a new star—a REAL star—means money to you and to me. So I've been watching. And I stake my reputation on the statement that Gladys Walton is going to make lots of money for YOU and for ME. Because she has EVERYTHING that a big star needs. For proof, see her in "Pink Tights", "Risky Business" or "Rich Girl, Poor Girl". Exhibitors already have seen her possibilities. I know them. Miss Walton will be allowed to develop. She'll soon be one of your BIGGEST attractions. And that's a PROMISE.

Carl Laemmle

Brightest New Star"

GLADYS WALTON

In the humorous and dramatic story of an alley cat and a pet angora who changed places

"RICH GIRL POOR GIRL"

Directed by Harry B. Harris

"I'll learn you to put on airs with your own father

"I'll learn you to get fresh with Nora McShane!"

Beatrice Vanderfleet liked Nora well enough to loan her her toothbrush - or her bath

It's one of those 52 Good Pictures a Year and no worry

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Rights Reserved.)
Vol. 12 JANUARY 29, 1921 No. 24

EDITORIALS

PEOPLE from any part of the United States north of the Bronx and south of Jersey City will tell you that New York City is the biggest "rube" town in the country. Whether that is true or not, it is a fact that an exploitation or publicity stunt will attract the same curious throngs, as the same stunt on Main street, in any city.

This was conclusively proven last week by a stunt arranged by Universal to exploit "Outside The Law," the new Priscilla Dean picture.

On the Broadway face of the Mecca Building, its home office, Universal has a large electric sign, combined with several six-sheet stands used for painted ads. In changing these painted ads from the copy used for "Once to Every Woman" to that needed for "Outside The Law," Universal hired several pretty girls to do the painting.

Mounted on a flimsy scaffolding thirty feet or more above the street, and attired in short skirts, smocks and tam-o-shanters, the young women devoted several days to the repainting of the signs.

It is needless to say that the side-walks in front of the Mecca Building were crowded with on-lookers from morning until night. Crowds equally as large blocked the side-walks on the opposite side of the streets. From the buildings along Broadway in the vicinity others watched the girls by the hour.

Various news photographers and news reel cameramen took pictures of the stunt. New York papers carried the news stories of the event.

Several exhibitors in the vicinity of New York who have booked "Outside The Law" already have made arrangements to duplicate the stunt in front of their theatres.

FROM Fernie, British Columbia, Canada, comes praise of an unusual order for "Once To Every Woman." This was expressed in the form of an anonymous letter written to the Fernie Free Press, a newspaper of the section. The letter is such an admirable expression of an individual opinion that we are herewith reproducing it. It reads as follows:

Fernie, B. C., Jan. 9, 1921.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—Permit me to use a little of your valuable space regarding the wonderful improvement in our local moving pictures. I had the pleasure of seeing "Once To Every Woman" on Wednesday night at the Isis Theatre, and I want to say that it was a splendid picture. The picture itself was well played and the characters were all well chosen for their respective parts. It was very well presented and the unknown singer added considerably to the effect of the picture. The music was very adaptable and while I always knew Mr. Bass' orchestra was excellent for dancing, the way they played to this picture shows that they are quite capable of handling other branches of the musical profession.

Mr. Orner is to be congratulated upon the manner in which he caters to the public. A picture that is staged well and brings tears to the eyes of the audience is a good picture, and I, for one, would like to see more of them.

Thanking you for the space, I am,

Yours truly,
A Lover of Good Pictures.

THE ancient but honorable lost key stunt was revived to the tune of considerable publicity and a full house recently in Dubuque, Ia., by F. L. Y. McNamee, one of Universal's space grabbers in the middle west.

"The Devil's Passkey" was booked to play the Majestic Theatre in Dubuque, so McNamee arranged with the management to distribute dozens of old keys attached to small red tags bearing the inscription: FRONT DOOR KEY—MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Ads then were inserted in the local papers announcing that the front door key of the Majestic had been lost and that the finder, upon returning it, would receive a pass to "The Devil's Passkey." This ad was varied for several days prior to the play date. The newspaper thought the stunt was so good that a news story was printed explaining it.

The keys came pouring into the box office and the attendant mouth to mouth advertising did much to increase the success of the picture's run in Dubuque.

THE first news reel pictures of the return to civilization of the three Navy balloonists stranded in the Canadian Wilds, were released January 14 by the International News, in the News Reel No. 4, it is claimed by the Universal Sales Department, which distributes that news reel. At the same time the reels were issued in New York City, thy were speeded by fast mail and air mail to other parts of the country.

The first pictures of the returning airmen were obtained by International because one of their representatives "mushed" northward with an Indian guide from Mattice, and met the Navy men many miles from their destination at the railhead.

The pictures also include shots of the various other persons now nationally known by their participation in the lost balloon story, pictures showing the territory over which the balloon drifted, as well as an animated diagram of the entire flight.

Miss Billie McCarthy, top row, sixth from the left, was the girl chosen to double for Gladys Walton, center, bottom row, star of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

"Double" Troubles

WHEN little Gladys Walton heard that she was to play a double role in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," she was delighted. She is an ambitious young actress and she rather relished the idea of being Beatrice Vanderfleet, scion of a millionaire family, one moment, and Nora McShane, the ragged daughter of Terry McShane, the next.

However, as work progressed on the film, Harry B. Harris realized that some of the scenes were so elaborate that even double exposure could not give the desired effect. Whereupon, there enters the double, and "double" troubles for the director. For as soon as it leaked out, that a double was needed for Gladys Walton, Director Harris was flooded with letters and photographs and some several hundred insistent and film-struck young maidens presented themselves at the studio. It was quite a task indeed for one poor, mere man to view row upon row of females, each and every one of whom was positively sure that she was an exact "double" for the winsome Miss Gladys. Finally Director Harris chose Miss Billie McCarthy, and although her role is a very small one indeed (she was just used a few times), it is nevertheless an important one.

The "double" troubles of the director were by no means over, however, with the final selection of Miss McCarthy. For Mr. Harris almost got into a row with a prominent Los Angeles physcian because of her. Gladys Walton injured her foot during the filming of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" and while Mr. Harris telephoned for the doctor, the little star was rushed to her dressing room to have a temporary bandage put on her foot.

The doctor had an important case on hand but Mr. Harris was so insistent, that he finally sent a substitute and rushed down to the studio to see what he could do for Gladys. When he arrived there he saw a young lady who he was sure was Gladys Walton, industriously skipping a rope on the stage. And she skipped with a remarkable ease and agility for one whose foot was supposed to be so badly injured. The busy doctor's ire was up and he approached the director with an ominous look in his eye. However, all difficulties were smoothed, when Mr. Harris explained that the skipping girl was Billie McCarthy, Miss Walton's double, and that the star herself was resting easily in her dressing room.

Paton Puts Them Over

Stuart Paton, Universal Director

WHEN Stuart Paton returned to Universal, after an absence of several years from the big film capital, he was given a warm and hearty welcome. Everybody at Universal City was glad that he was back.

Paton is that skillful director who made the wonderful "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" for Universal, a big picture in every way. And Paton is still making big pictures judging from the two that he has made since he again took up his duties for Universal.

The first was "Wanted At Headquarters," that thrilling crook drama starring Eva Novak which is playing to excellent houses all over the country. Speaking of the work of Paton in this connection, Wid's says as follows: "'Wanted At Headquarters' is to be noted for some very well suggested thrills. Director Paton has done this end of his work with much skill. The hold-up of the gold train and the subsequent blowing up of the two engines are exciting sequences. The cameraman has come to the aid of the director with some superb night photography—the manner in which the spotlights have been manoeuvred resulting in increased suspense for the action. In fact, the thrills of the picture, taken separately, are altogether unusual."

Paton followed up "Wanted At Headquarters" with another thrilling drama, dealing not only with society life among the idle rich, but embodying also an adventure as unusual and exciting as the screen can present. This production again stars Eva Novak, and Jack Perrin, Harry Carter, Leonard Shumway, Oleta Ottis and other well-known players are in the cast. This picture had some delightful "water shots" and like "Wanted At Headquarters," contained some exquisite night scenes. "The Torrent" is a big picture, worthy of the biggest place on any exhibitor's program.

Paton is now working busily on a very large production, a Jewel, which will feature a big star, and he promises some very interesting novelties. But then big and novel things are always to be epected from the skillful hand of Stuart Paton.

ACTRESS LEADS DUAL LIFE

SIX days in the week Virginia Ware plays all sorts of parts in the studios where motion pictures are made; but on Sunday she is the soloist in one of the fashionable churches of Hollywood, California. It is to be regretted that the screen does not register the voices of the players, for Miss Ware possesses one of the finest contralto voices outside of grand opera.

"In "The Mad Marriage," the latest Universal feature starring Carmel Myers, Miss Ware has the role of Mrs. Brendon, the fashionable dowager of New York, whose hobby is to patronize promising young artists of Greenwich Village. Although Miss Ware usually plays character roles, the part of the grande dame permits her to wear some stunning gowns and to add a touch of humor to an otherwise "straight" role.

Virginia Ware has been on the stage over twenty years. Her father owned a small circuit of theatres in the middle west, and at the age of sixteen she was playing parts in a repetoire company which made a tour of these playhouses every two weeks. By the time she was twenty years old she had played nearly 300 parts. About six years ago she was singing in vaudeville in San Francisco and met a director who had worked for her father a dozen years before. He suggested pictures to her, and finding the California climate to her liking, she decided to stay there.

In the past few years she has played with Edith Roberts, Tsuru Aoki and many other stars.

The cast of "The Mad Marriage" is a capable one indeed and in addition to the star, Carmel Myers, her leading man, Truman Van Dyke, and Arthur Carewe in the role of "the heavy", there are some excellent bits most competently played by Margaret Cullington, Jane Starr, Wm. Brunton, Nola Luxford, and the role of Mrs. Brendon, portrayed by Virginia Ware.

Nora didn't like being a rich girl. You had to be too prim, and therefore you never had any fun like the kids who crowded the streets of "Fish Alley."

Nora and Mugsy.

Reggie was a different kind of a chap than the ones she danced with in Fish Alley but Nora took a friendly liking to him, somehow.

Two Leading Men For Gladys Walton

INASMUCH as Gladys Walton plays a dual role in her current release, "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," impersonating both a daughter of the rich, and a little alley queen, it was necessary for her to have two leading men. And she found two exceedingly capable young ones in Harold Austin and Antrim Short.

Harold Austin plays the role of the rich boy who caters to Gladys' moods and whims when she is Beatrice, heiress to millions, and a generally discontented young person. And Harold makes that role a "punchful" and virile one indeed, in spite of the decorative clothes with which he adorns himself and in spite of the butlers, footmen and other servants who constantly surround him. For when it comes to "the big fight" with the gang who hold the lovely Beatrice for ransom, Harold delivers a punch with the best of them and seems not to care a whit what happens to his nifty togs.

Antrim Short, most engaging of screen youths, plays the other leading man, Mugsy by name, Beau Brummel of Fish Alley, who has laid his heart and his pennies at the feet of the vivacious Nora McShane, ragged daughter of Terence, the drunkard of the Alley, and "the best lookin' kid" of the whole Alley female contingent. They are a sight for sore eyes indeed, the good-natured, pug-nosed, adoring Mugsy, and the winsome and spirited lassie, with her toes half out of her shoes, and her dress hanging in rags about her pretty figure. And how they danced—joyously, laughingly, spontaneously, to the tune of the good old street organ, Mugsy cheerfully donating his last copper so that the kids of the Alley could "trip it" to their hearts' content. Antrim Short is indeed one of the "high-lights" of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." Born of well-known stage folk, young Short has been behind the footlights practically all of his life, and has in addition, made a name for himself in the silent drama. He is but twenty-two years of age, but in the short span of his life he has had a richer variety of histrionic experiences than many an older actor. His role in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" fits him perfectly and his work is a joy to watch.

There were several mishaps during the filming of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." Gladys Walton, the enchanting young star, lacerated her foot, but was so "Spartan" about it, that work on the picture was held up only for a very short time. Young Short broke his wrist during the strenuous fight scenes, but he too absolutely refused to "hold-up" production because of it. He bravely ordered the bone placed in a "plaster of Paris" splint and the white bandage was painted flesh-color to deceive the camera.

"Rich Girl, Poor Girl" was written by J. G. Hawks, one of America's foremost scenarists, who has furnished original stories for the leading screen stars. Originally entitled "The Millionaire Kid" and intended for the use of Mary Pickford, Universal was able to secure it when that star decided to go to Europe. It is every foot of it a Gladys Walton role, and the little star is a "knockout" in it. It isn't every girl who can look appealing in rags, but Miss Walton never looked more charming and lovely than in the ragged dress and torn shoes she is compelled to wear when she is Nora McShane. She has plenty of opportunity too, to wear some elegant "flapper" togs, as chicly and "tonily" as only Gladys Walton can.

The critics were unanimous in their praises of Gladys Walton in "Pink Tights" and "Risky Business." They hailed her as a distinct "find" and as one of the most engaging and attractive of the younger screen personalities. They are going to have their favorable opinions of her more than confirmed when they view "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." There is one word that best describes it—adorable. It is one of those "you breathe a sigh of regret when the last scene fades out before your delighted eyes" kind of pictures.

STARS, BOTH OF THEM!

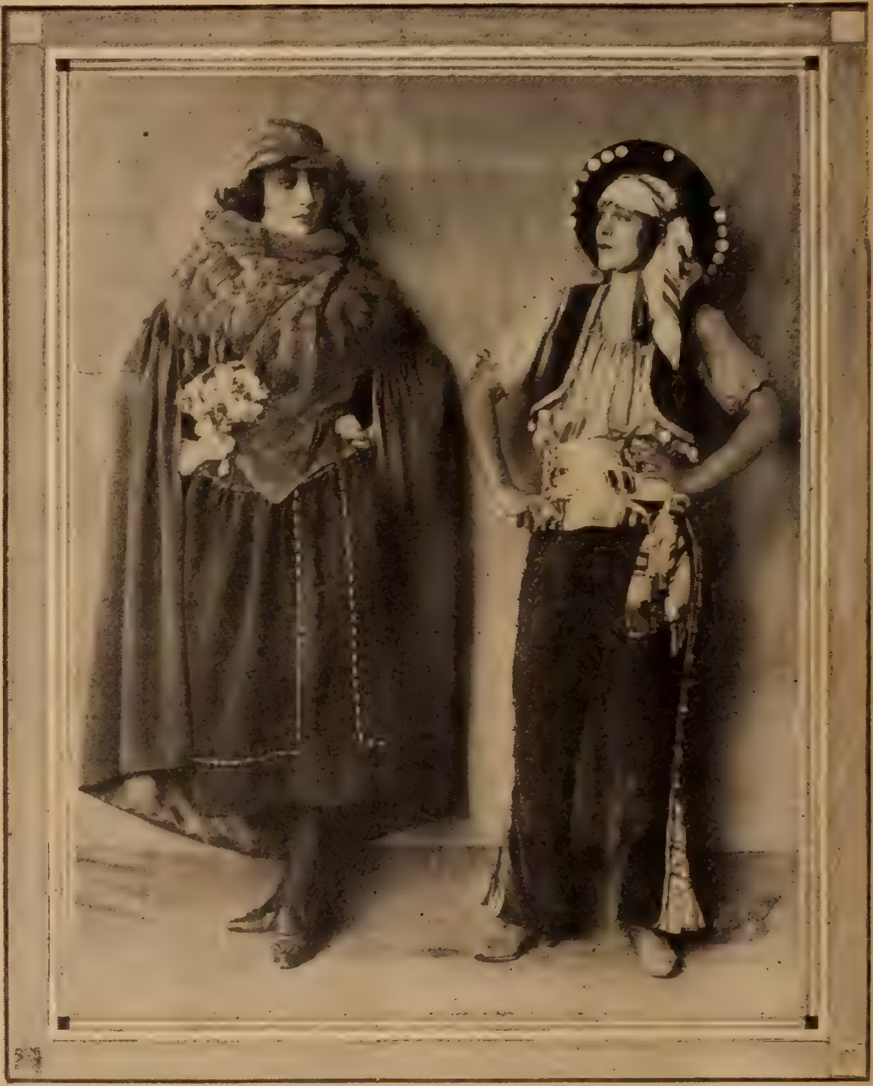
THEY are both of them young, beautiful, talented, and stars of the very first order. Carmel Myers and Edith Roberts are as lovely two girls as the screen can boast of to-day and both of them have won a large personal following for themselves.

The photographer thought it was a lucky "coup" to meet them both about the big studios in the costumes they wear in their newest pictures and he realized that it was too good a thing to let pass. Hence, the charming picture reproduced to the right. And the photographer was right about it being "a lucky coup", as anyone who knows anything about pictures can staunchly affirm. For while there are numerous companies working at the same time on pictures, they are usually scattered all over "on location" and it is not often that two big stars can be found around the studios wearing the costumes of the pictures in which they are working.

Carmel Myers appears here in the lovely cape which she drapes about her young person in one of the charming scenes in her current release, "The Mad Marriage". This picture gives Carmel plenty of opportunity to display some of those excellent sartorial effects for which she is famous, but she herself was particularly fond of this graceful cape with its rich squirrel collar, and the jaunty hat which she wears so chicly here.

It isn't every actress who can look alluring in a character costume, but that particular "knack" seems to belong to Edith Roberts. She made a charming picture in her grass dress in "The Adorable Savage" and she was quaintly demure in a "grandmother's style" in "White Youth". Now, in "The Fire Cat", which will shortly be released, she wears a Spanish costume and it suits her dark type of beauty well indeed. Edith just loves that costume not only for its picturesqueness but because it is so comfortable. She can race about to her heart's content in it, with no skirts to impede her progress.

"The Fire Cat" is said to be the biggest thing this little actress has ever done. It was directed by Norman Dawn, and so excellent have been the advance notices that it is a picture that is being very eagerly awaited.



Carmel Myers and Edith Roberts, Universal Stars, as They Appear in Their Latest Pictures

Universal is preparing some interesting picture material for both these young stars. Carmel Myers, whose "The Mad Marriage" is a bit ahead of "The Fire Cat" on the time schedule, has already started work on a new production. She spent a week in New York very recently purchasing an entire new wardrobe for the picture and moviegoers can look for some original costumes from her. An excellent story of a different nature entirely and written by a well-known author has been purchased for Edith Roberts, and she will have a new director, who will make his bow to moviegoers as a Universalite with this production.

Both Carmel Myers and Edith Roberts have had an unusual amount of experience for artists so young in years. Both of them have been on the "legitimate" stage and both of them entered the field of the silent drama at an age when most girls were still busily pouring over "Little Women" and tying up their curls with gaily colored ribbons. That is why they have reached the top so early in life. And they both intend to remain there, for that is in the nature of Carmel Myers and Edith Roberts.

It is charming to note the companionship which these two girls have with their mothers. Edith and her mother are constantly together and Carmel seeks Mrs. Myers' advice on every step she takes. They declare that their success is due in a large measure to the careful guidance and inspiration which their mothers give them.

Stories are coming in daily from the west coast studios concerning "The Fire Cat", Edith Roberts' next starring vehicle and all of them agree that it will be one of the sensations of the early film year. The picture directed by Norman Dawn, is filled with rich and rare "atmosphere".

Strange Sights Coming Soon

WHEN it comes to atmosphere, the prize will be handed to Norman Dawn who not only directed "The Fire Cat, Edith Robert's next starring vehicle, soon to be released, but wrote it as well. This is a screen romance of the rugged Andes country in South America, and Dawn has done everything possible to inject the most exact local color into the film. As a result, "The Fire Cat" is full of novelties, and movie-goers will witness strange sights, the like of which have never before been seen on the screen.

The fierce-looking bird who stands guard over the little fire-cat, impersonated by Edith Roberts, in the picture at the extreme left, is known as the Bone-Crushing Vulture, and he isn't a particularly pleasant gentleman to meet, if one values one's safety and happiness. The creeping creature in the second picture is known as the armadillo, an armored member of the reptile family, and one of the most unique animal personalities Universal City has seen in many a day. The two beasts that are trying so hard to snuggle up against the dainty little star in the third picture are the gentlest of all—llamas they are called—and in South America they are commonly used as beasts of burden. At the very bottom is Arthur Jasmine who has an important rôle in "The Fire Cat". His sombrero is artistically decorated with an iguana, which is just a difficult way of spelling lizard.

Norman Dawn imported each and every one of these strange creatures directly from South America. They are not the only novelties to be seen in "The Fire Cat". There is a big earthquake scene which will be the talk of all filmdom, so naturally has it been done. All the customs, costumes and manners of the Andes country have been preserved intact and the little star looks fascinating indeed in her picturesque Spanish costume.

Wallace McDonald is the engaging young leading man who will be cast opposite Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat". Walter Long, remembered for his splendid work in "Tiger True" with Frank Mayo, a recent release, will again have a bad man role. Beatriz Dominguez will have a dashing Spanish role and Arthur Jasmine plays a character part.

Edith Roberts is at her best in colorful roles and the role of Dulce Alvarez in "The Fire Cat" is just such a one. She had such a role in "The Adorable Savage" and all the thousands of movie-goers whom this pretty picture so delightfully entertained, will look forward eagerly to the release of "The Fire Cat".

An all-Star Cast—
an all-absorbing Drama

featuring

TSURU AOKI

with

J. BARNEY SHERRY

Supported by

STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

ARTHUR CAREWE

ETHEL SHANNON

and a great company

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

Made by
Rollin
Sturgeon from the famous Novel by Sidney
Mc Call

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER PRODUCTION

Read What Motion Picture News Says About "Outside The Law"

Issue of Jan. 22, 1921—Page 915

JANUARY 6 is rather early to make predictions for twelve months, but if "Outside The Law" doesn't prove to be the best straight melodrama of the year then 1921 will see the release of more great pictures than any preceding period of equal length.

Beginning with some carefully planned scenes that succeed in giving the production atmosphere and establishing sympathy for the the leading characters, especially Miss Dean and Wheeler Oakman, the picture builds from sequence to sequence with perfect suspense, good incident and excellent action unttil its dramatic and thrilling climax almost at the tag of the eighth and last reel, a free for all fight in which Lon Chaney, Mr. Oakman and a dozen others, including Miss Dean, mix it in a way that carries the spectator off his feet and makes him forget that he is looking at a picture and view the melee as the real thing.

The star has a good role, one eminently suited to her talents, but the picture is in no sense a vehicle. In fact Wheeler Oakman and Lon Chaney both have parts that present equal opportunities for acting and both deliver in a way that gives them a real right to billing honors. From a story angle "Outside The Law" is one of the most logical productions of all time. There are no tricks in the matter of construction and each sequence carries its full measure of suspense and dramatic interest. The continuity except for one rather abrupt jump is perfect. Tod Browning's direction maintains a highly dramatic tempo. There is scarcely a scene in the whole picture that could be eliminated without hurting the story. Elaborate sets, especially those showing scenes in San Francisco's Chinatown, have been provided. The titles are faultless, although some of them are rather long. Through the dramatic action of the story is interwoven a theme that can be summed up in the oft-quoted "And a little child shall lead them," for it is through a child—by the way, one of the cleverest baby actors ever presented—that Miss Dean as the crook heroine comes to decide that the straight road is the best road.

The plot of "Outside The Law" is rather too complicated for a synopsis in the space allowed for reviews. Suffice to state that it concerns the reformation of a trio of crooks, with dramatic situations enough for a half dozen ordinary pictures. If they like action and real drama and thrills they will like this. It is there from every angle.—Length, 8 reels.—J. S. DICKERSON.

“Outside The Law” Opens In Fou

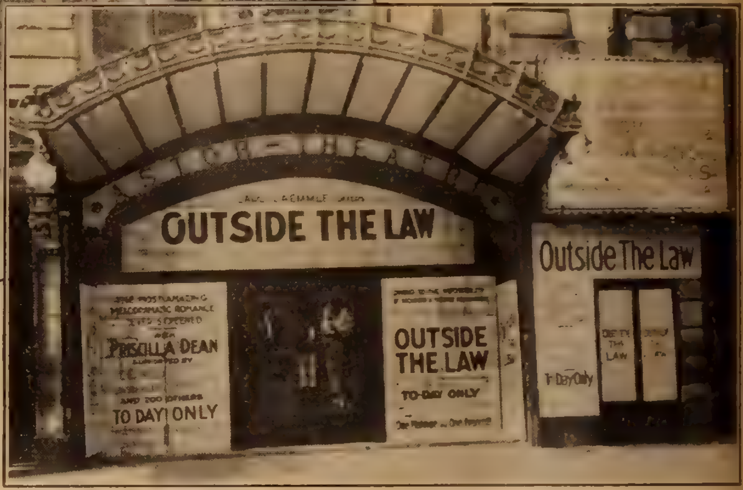
Big Priscilla Dean Feature Has Auspicious Premier

Crowds Waiting Outside Theatres For Chance T

Most Amazin Melodrama Eve Big Success Pr Critics for

Outside The Law
The most amazing melodramatic romance ever screened
Evening 8:30 P.M.
Matinee 3:30 P.M.
Outside The Law

Longacre Theatre



Astor Theatre

“OUTSIDE The Law,” the big Universal-Jewel production starring Priscilla Dean, received an enthusiastic reception Sunday, January 16, at the hands of New York’s photo-play goers, when it was presented simultaneously at four Broadway Theatres.

This was the first time in screen history that the same picture ever was shown in four Broadway houses at the same time. The theatres were the Astor, the George M. Cohan, the Lyric and the Longacre. The novelty of such a unique presentation registered well with New Yorkers, who crowded the four theatres during the two shows, one matinee and one evening, given in each house.

This arrangement was for one day only—there being legitimate shows in each of the four theatres during the week. The following Monday, “Outside the Law” opened for a week’s run at B. S. Moss’ Broadway Theatre, with the expectation that its stay at that theatre would be extended. Universal’s four-of-a-kind presentation was the outcome of the moving picture situation on Broadway, which prevented that company from obtaining a theatre for an indefinite run.

Reviewers, as well as the crowds which poured from the four theatres, united in singing the praises of the big underworld melodrama, which was written and directed by Tod Browning. Never has a Universal picture achieved such instantaneous success. It is hailed as the greatest screen melodrama of its kind ever presented, judging from critical reviews of the feature.

Universal added another novelty to its Broadway presentation by masking the front of each of the four theatres with canvas frames painted to represent the gray and sombre walls of a prison. This weird effect created a sensation on Times Square. All day Sunday, great crowds gathered before the theatres, curiously examining the circus-like “fronts.” The box office figures indicated that the startling lobby effect drew many people into the houses.

Coming on top of the effective poster campaign waged by Universal and which made a catch line out of the title “Outside The Law,” the four-theatre presentation was the culmina-

New York Theatres Simultaneously

n Great City.
View "The American Screened." A icted by All
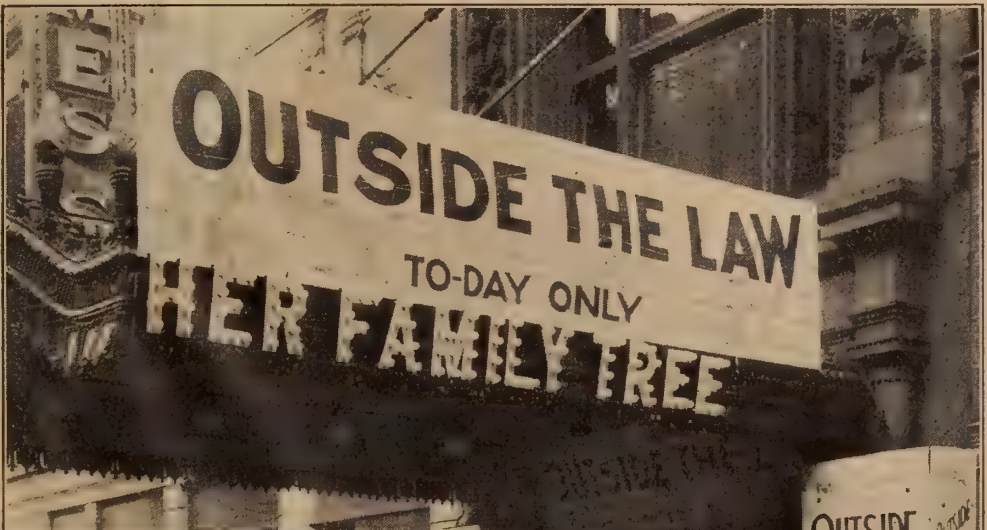
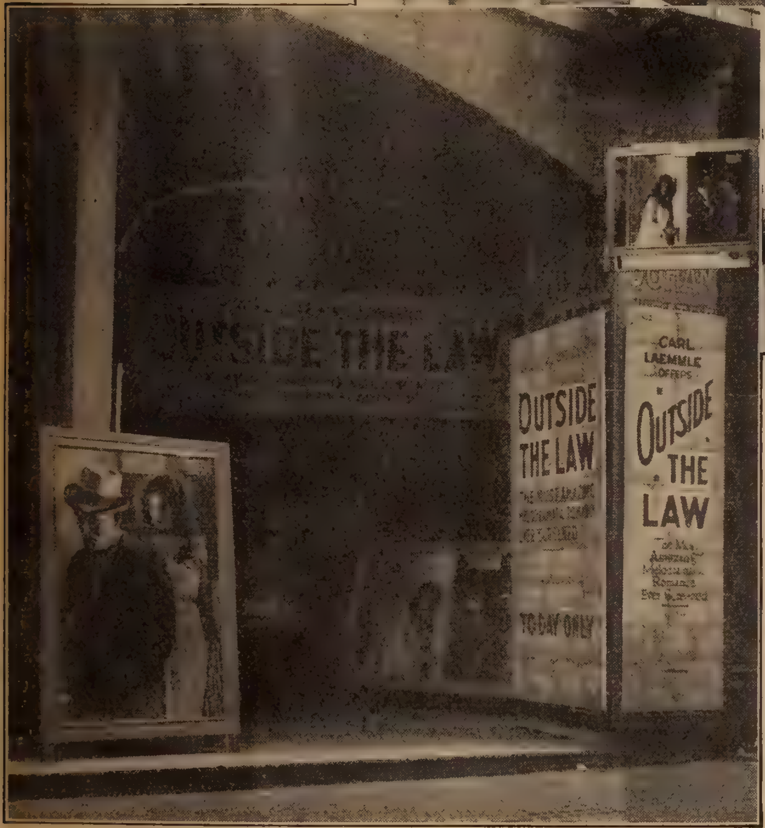
This Jewel.



Lyric Theatre

Geo. M. Cohan Theatre



tion of Universal's six weeks' exploitation to put the picture over in the New York territory. Similar campaigns are being conducted in other key cities. Universal promises the most far-reaching exploitation for "Outside The Law" that ever has been put behind a Universal production.

That the force and exciting phases of "Outside The Law" were apperciated by those who saw the picture, was well attested by several colorful incidents that occurred during the screening. In almost every one of the four theatres, outcries of emotion greeted the highlights of the terrific gang fight shown in the last reel of the feature. Women screamed as Lon Chaney was shot and toppled from a balcony in his remarkable death scene.

So keenly did the audiences, typical Broadway crowds, feel the drama of the situations presented in the picture, that rounds of applause followed the twists of the plot when they worked to the advantage of the hero and heroine.

"Outside The Law" brought a new actor to the screen in the person of little Stanley Goethals, four years old, and a master of screen charm. The sequence of scenes in which he figured, winning "Silky Moll," played by Miss Dean, to the "straight and narrow" by his childish appeal, received great applause and much favorable comment. In the George M. Cohan Theatre one woman broke into hysterical sobs at the intense heart-interest of these scenes.

In the New York newspaper reviews of the picture stress was laid upon the assertion that "Outside The Law" presents real crooks acting as real crooks would act in similar situations, not as the usual glorified crook of stage and screen.

One Week-670

Beats the Gross on "GREAT AIR ROBBERY" by Almost TWO TO ONE

At the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, "Outside the Law" in one week grossed $9,466.15, exclusive of war tax. This beats the record of "The Great Air Robbery" in the same house by more than $4,200! The house seats 670. Average admission was 35c. The "Air Robbery" brought over seven dollars a seat. "Outside the Law" brought more than FOURTEEN DOLLARS A SEAT—and was held over for the second week!

IF THIS THRILLER DOESN'T MAKE MONEY FOR YOU
NO PICTURE EVER WILL

Get Out Your Pencil and Begin Figuring Your Own Two-to-One Profits NOW

What this amazing thriller did for the Superba it will do for you, no matter who you are or where you are. So—right this minute—you can begin to figure out your 2 TO 1 profits. If you ran "The Great Air Robbery" you can figure on doubling its gross—if you didn't run the "Air Robbery," you can double the amount of the gross of any other record-breaker with "Outside the Law".

CARL LAEMMLE

THE MOST AMAZING AMERICAN

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported
LON CHANE

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL

Seats-$9466.15 !

Just a Little Bit of Simple Arithmetic Will Show You What Your Profits Should Be

Using the Superba's experience as a model, you can figure out your own probable profits easily. The Superba's record shows that each seat for the week represented 40-odd admissions. Therefore, multiply your own seating capacity by 40; multiply the result by your own admission price (and the picture will stand a boost) and the result will tell you what you should gross on a week.

Be Wise and Arrange NOW for a Double Run—Second Week at Superba Grossed $8,158.75

When you get a chance to book a big money-making picture it's certainly up to you to grab all the coin you can at one helping. Business is business, and you can't afford to let any extra admission slip by. That's why you'll show good showmanship and good business sense if you arrange NOW to give this profit-making thriller a double run. Remember, the Superba's second week was almost as big as the first. You can do it, too—and you can DO IT NOW.

YOU CAN TURN LOOSE
ON THIS ONE FOR ALL
YOU'RE WORTH

PRESENTS

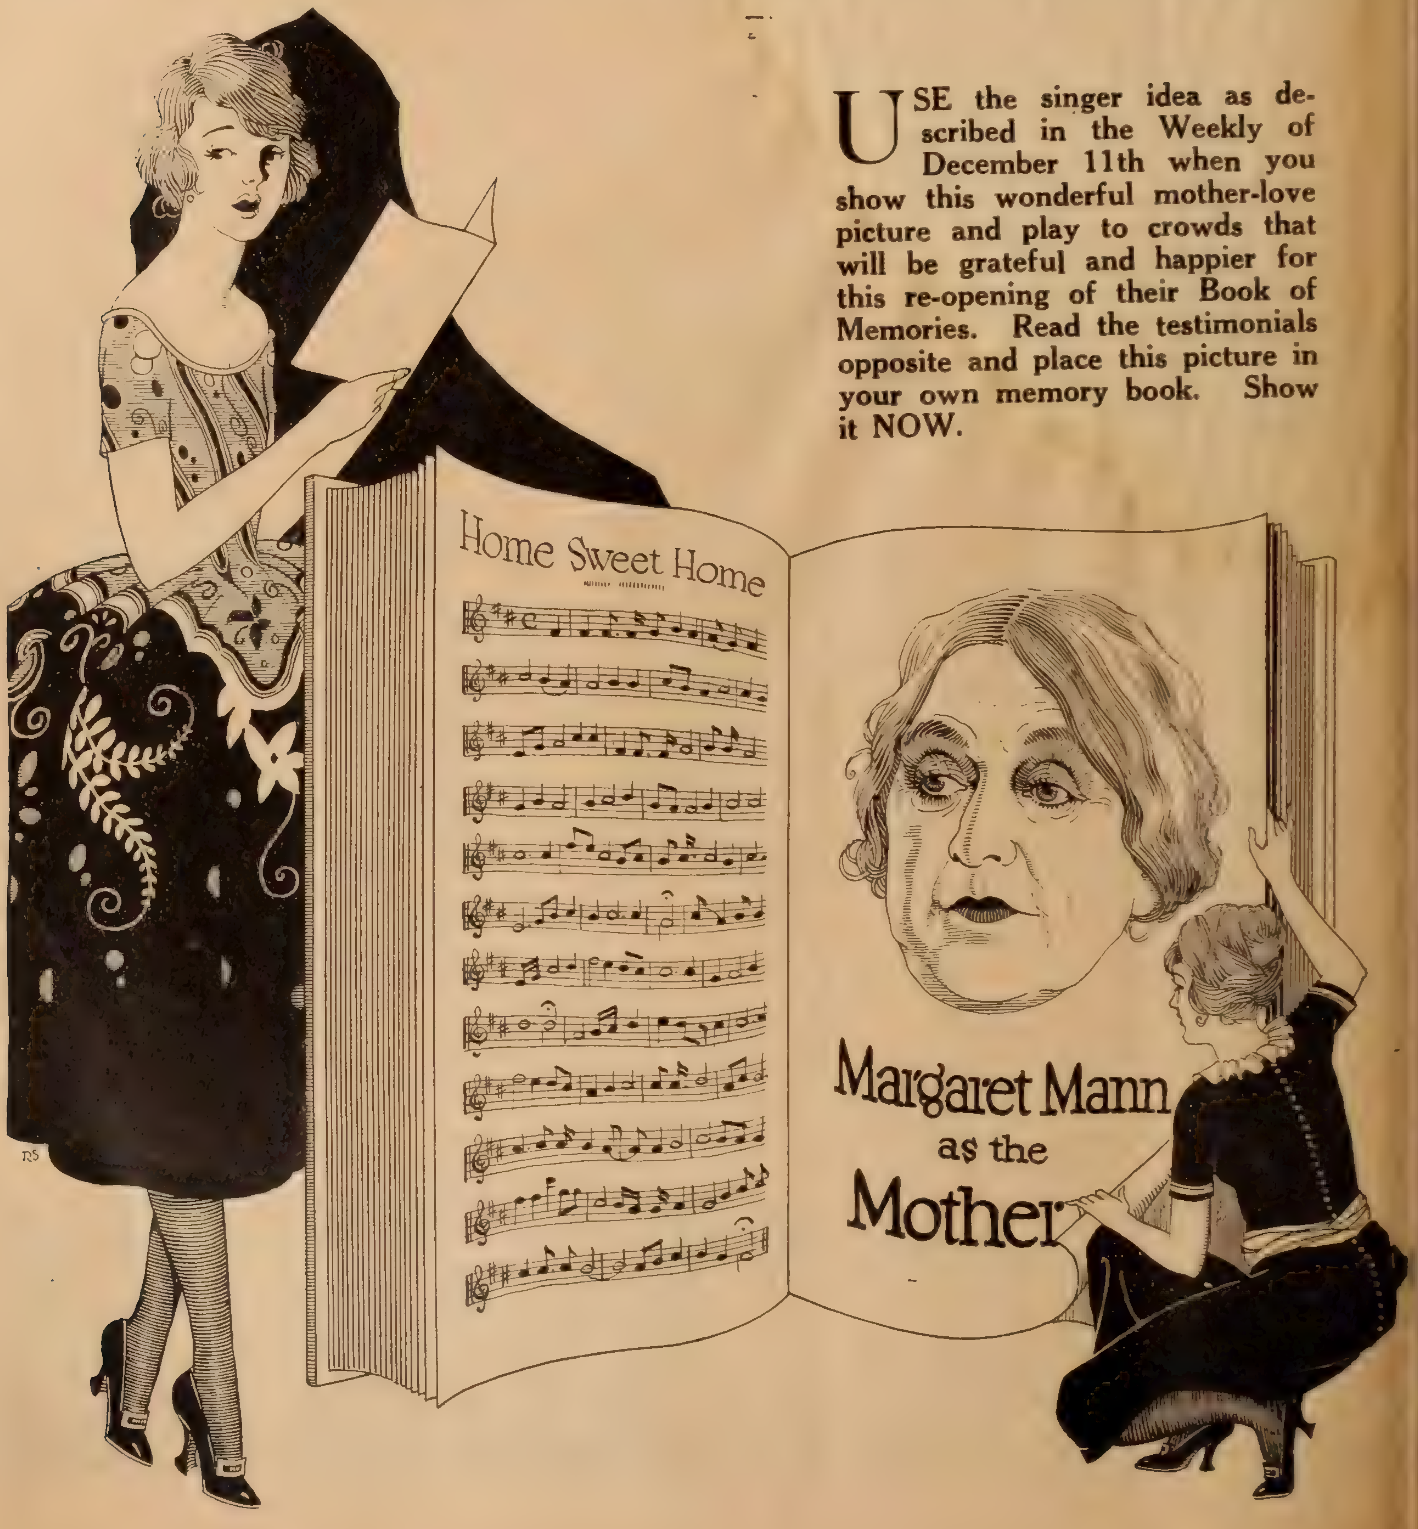
MELODRAMA EVER SCREENED

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

It Re-opens the

USE the singer idea as described in the Weekly of December 11th when you show this wonderful mother-love picture and play to crowds that will be grateful and happier for this re-opening of their Book of Memories. Read the testimonials opposite and place this picture in your own memory book. Show it NOW.



Home Sweet Home
Margaret Mann
as the Mother
RS

Book of Memory!

GOOD FOR OLD PENN!

Easton, Pa.

This is fourth day of this picture. Breaking all records.

STRAND THEATRE.

THEY KNOW A GOOD ONE!

Marion, Ill.

Exceeded fullest expectations. Would like return date.

FAMILY THEATRE.

IF APPLETON CAN DO THIS—!

Appleton, Wis.

Three-day run to capacity houses. A truly wonderful picture.

ELITE THEATRE.

PULLED AT THESE PRICES IN CHILTON!

Chilton, Wis.

Wonderful production. Played to good business at 15c. and 35c. for two days.

PRINCESS THEATRE.

LOOK! WAY OUT WEST!

Valley Junction, Ia.

Impossible to say enough good words for this feature. Did big business.

LYRIC THEATRE.

OUT IN THE WHEAT FIELDS!

Wausau, Wis.

I piled them in for two days. Can't say enough for it. Book it—you'll make no mistake.

G. A. SCHOCHOW.

OHIO KNEW A GOOD ONE!

Youngstown, O.

Broke all records at the Strand. Turned over two thousand away on Sunday.

CHAS. W. DENZINGER.

WENT HOLY SMOKES IN SMOKETOWN!

Pittsburg, Pa.

Broke all records at the Oakland Theatre.

LEO GERETHLER.

YOU'LL SAY SO!

Montpelier, Idaho.

One of the finest shown tihs year. The talk of the town for days after.

GEM THEATRE.

HERE'S A HAPPY EXHIBITOR!

Duquesne, Pa.

Has set a record that will stand for some time. Pleased every one.

LIBERTY THEATRE.

Carl Laemmle presents
DOROTHY PHILLIPS
in
"Once to Every Woman"
Directed by Allen Holubar

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

Like handing you money on a silver platter!

"A TITLE that is a sure-fire box-office attraction—and the picture is there to back up the title—one of the really big pictures this year. From any angle, 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY' is perfect. The cast is exceptionally good—the photography, like that of all other JEWEL productions, is wonderful. What more could any exhibitor desire for his audience, small town or big city?"

(Signed) A. C. Chamberlain,
Madera Opera House,
Madera, Calif.

"FROM any angle 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY' is one of the best pictures we have ever had the pleasure of playing. Business was wonderful."

(Signed) L. M. Gorman, Mgr.,
Hostettler Enterprises,
Lincoln, Neb.

"IT has broken all records at this theatre—and I have played the biggest productions on the market"

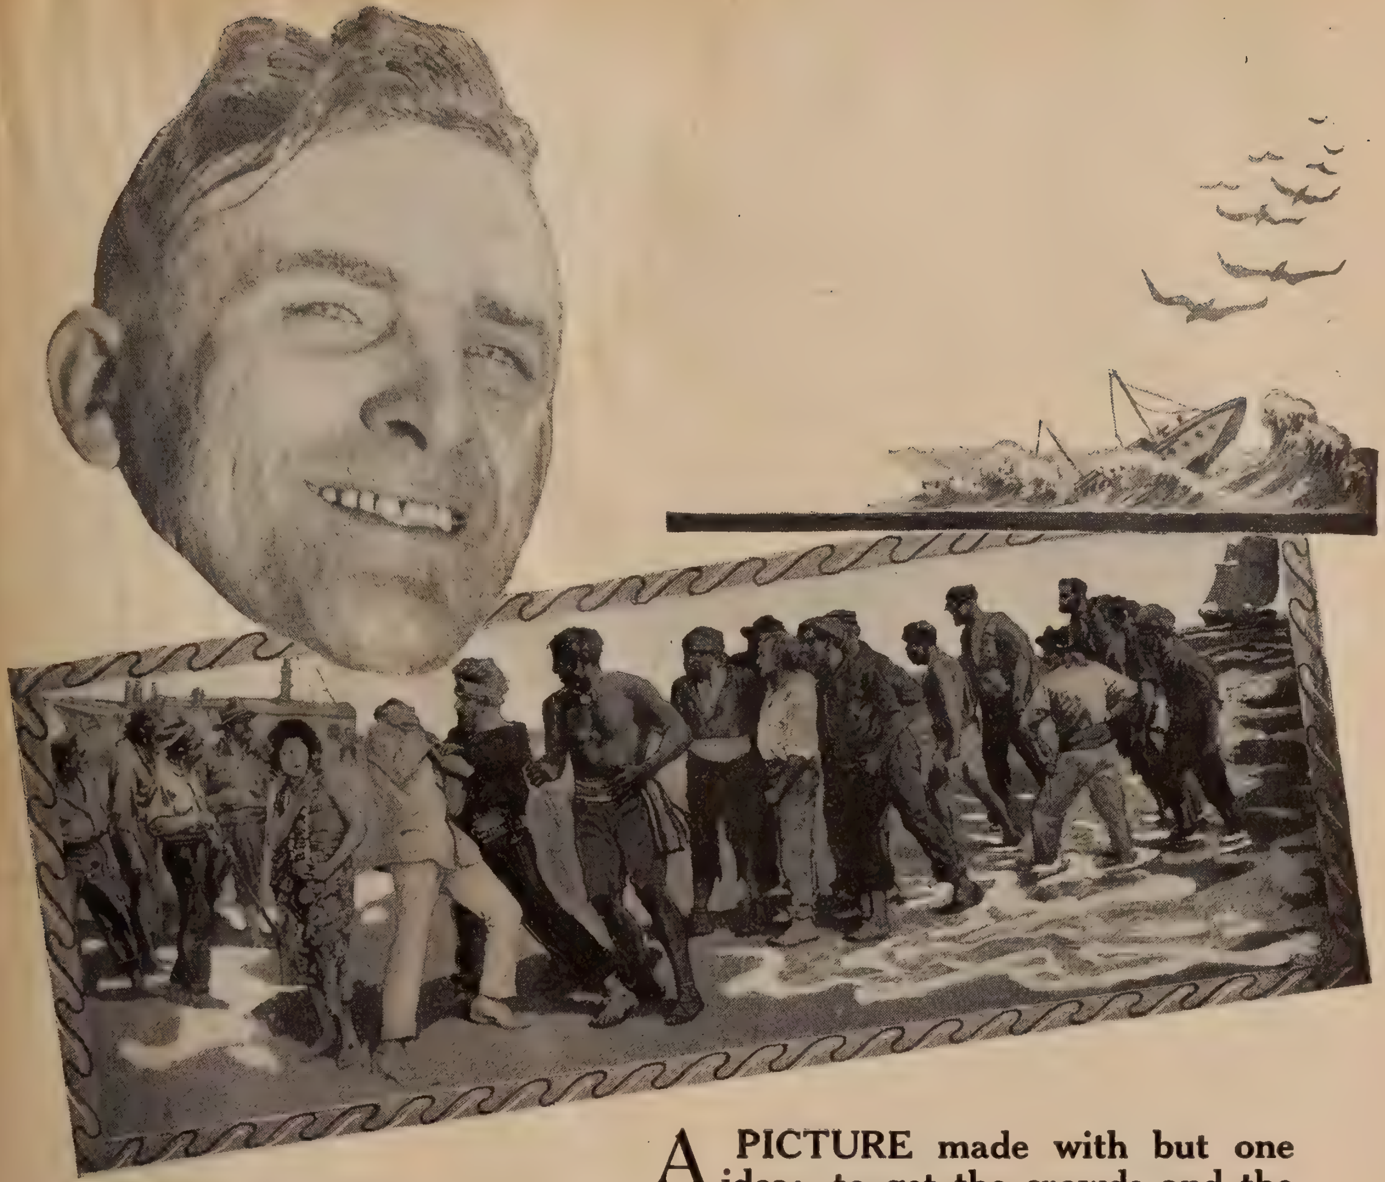
(Signed) Sam Mendelson,
Empire,
Anacortes, Wash.

Carl Laemmle
presents

Von Stroheim's

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
MASTER
PICTURE

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"



Above is a reproduction of the inspiring

24 Sheet

The Picture that Has Everything

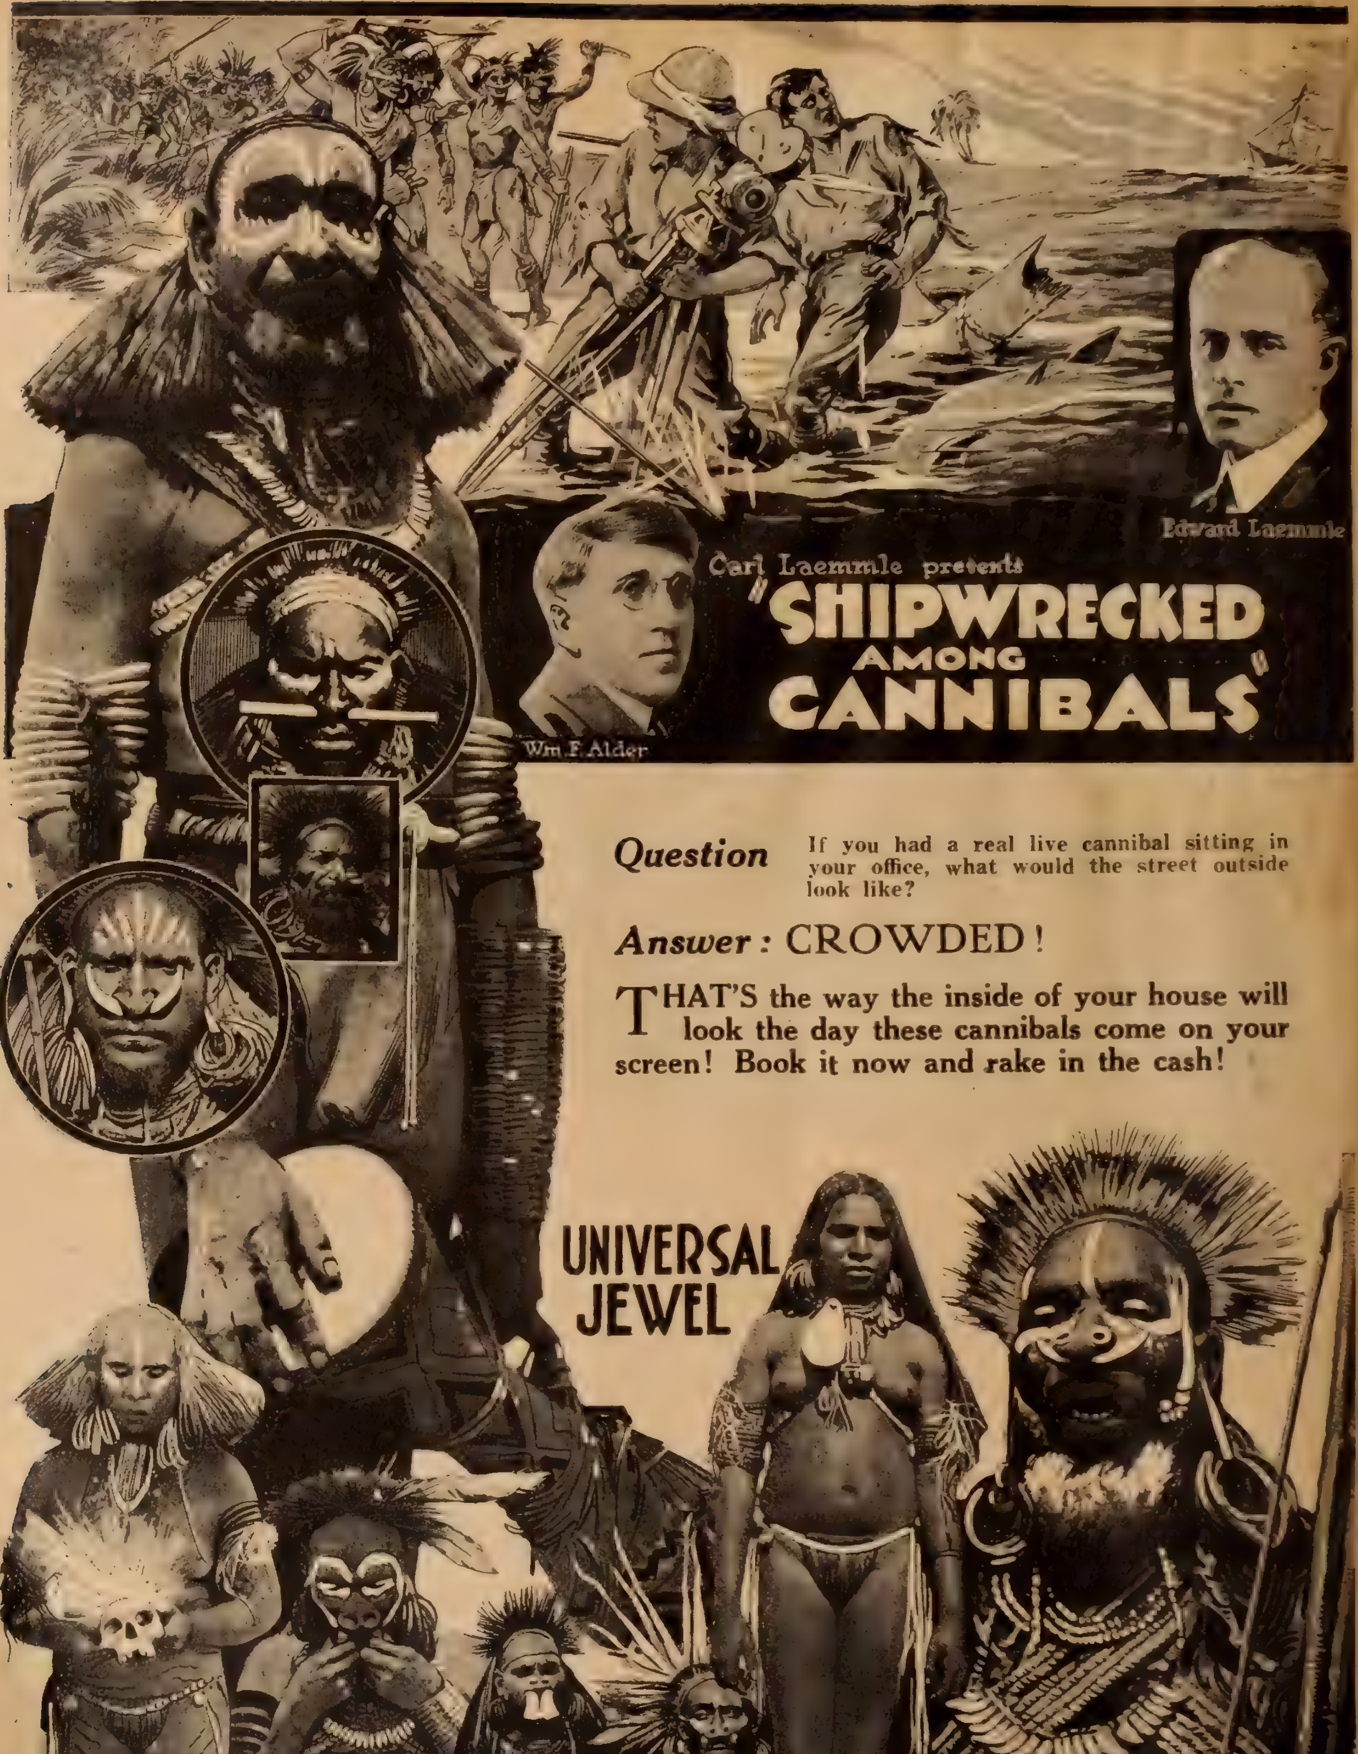
A PICTURE made with but one idea: to get the crowds and the cash for exhibitors! In small towns and big cities — everywhere that it is shown — this splendid feature with its mighty star is doing just that thing. Book it, and you, too, will play to crowded houses and large receipts!

ELMO LINCOLN

In the UNIVERSAL-JEWEL SUPER-PRODUCTION

Story by J. C. Hawks Directed by Rex Ingram

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"



Carl Laemmle presents

"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"

Question If you had a real live cannibal sitting in your office, what would the street outside look like?

Answer*: CROWDED!

THAT'S the way the inside of your house will look the day these cannibals come on your screen! Book it now and rake in the cash!

UNIVERSAL JEWEL

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring
HARRY CAREY
"Blue Streak McCoy"
"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"

Starring
FRANK MAYO
"The Red Lane"
"Hitchin' Posts"
"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"

Starring
LYONS-MORAN
"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring
EDITH ROBERTS
"The Adorable Savage"
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"

Starring
CARMEL MYERS
"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring
EVA NOVAK
"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring
GLADYS WALTON
"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST
"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"
"The Devil's Passkey"
"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"
"The Great Air Robbery"
"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)
"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring
JOE MARTIN
(Two Reels)
"A Prohibition Monkey"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring
HOOT GIBSON
"The Two Fisted Lover"
"Tipped Off"
"Superstition"
"Fight It Out"
"The Man With The Punch"
"The Trail Of The Hound
"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"

Red Rider Series

Featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM
"A Son Of The North"
"The Girl And The Law"
"Big Stakes"
"When The Devil Laughed"
"The Forest Runners"
"The Timber Wolf"

Serials

Starring
EDDIE POLO
"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring
MARIE WALCAMP
"The Dragon's Net"

"The Moon Riders"
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Hot Dog"
"Laughing Gas"
"Tails Win"
"Trouble Bubbles"
"Their First Tintype"
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"

One Reel Star Comedies

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT
"Romeo and Juliet"
"Shapes and Scrapes"
"A Movie Bug"
"Forbidden Brew"
"Way Down North"
"Nearly Wed"
"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

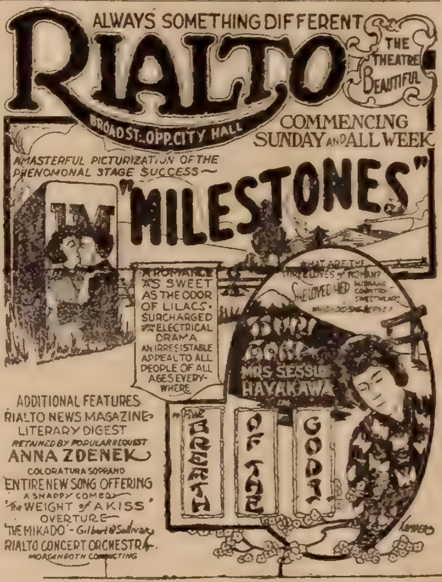
Novel Jewel Given Delightful Presentation

Picture Still Playing To Capacity Houses

Above—Rialto Theatre, Newark, N. J. Right—Newspaper "ad" of the Rialto for "The Breath of the Gods."

THE Rialto Theatre, situated on Broad Street, is one of the largest and most beautiful theatres in Newark, New Jersey. Several weeks ago, Mr. F. L. Smith, the enterprising manager of the theatre, booked the Universal-Jewel feature, "The Breath of the Gods", starring Tsuru Aoki, the charming little wife of Sessue Hayakawa. The picture had a very successful showing at the Rialto, not the least reason for which was the very delightful manner in which Mr. Smith presented this Jewel. He engaged a woman soloist, and dressed in Japanese costume and surrounded by a Japanese atmosphere, devised by the manager, she sang that delightful song, which the whole country seems to be humming nowadays—"Little Japanese Sandman". It put the audience in the right mood for the picture, which is an entrancing story of Western ideals as embodied in the U. S. A., and Eastern ideals as embodied in Japan.

It is now many months since "The Breath Of The Gods" had its first screen showing, but there has been no abatement in its popularity. Taken from the famous novel by Sidney McCall, and directed by the master hand of Rollin Sturgeon, it is a picture achievement and there are few who have failed to be moved by its charm and strength. It tells mainly a story of Japan, but it is also the story of a woman, of her life and her love and as such its appeal is universal. Tsuru Aoki, its star, has won for herself a large following among movie-goers, and justly so, for she is an interesting type of womanhood, a Japanese, who combines the mystic charm of the East with a dramatic talent as artistic as it is appealing. She has made some charming pictures for Universal, "Locked Lips", and "A Tokio Siren", but she reached her crowning glory in this big Jewel feature, "The Breath of the Gods". Surrounding her is a cast which has made movie history—J. Barney Sherry, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Arthur Carewe and Ethel Shannon. The atmosphere of the story has been excellently retained, and as all critics were unanimous in agreeing, it is a masterpiece, from the directional side.



ALWAYS SOMETHING DIFFERENT

RIALTO

THE THEATRE BEAUTIFUL

BROAD ST. OPP. CITY HALL

COMMENCING SUNDAY AND ALL WEEK

A MASTERFUL PICTURIZATION OF THE PHENOMONAL STAGE SUCCESS—

"MILESTONES"

A ROMANCE AS SWEET AS THE ODOR OF LILACS. SURCHARGED ELECTRICAL DRAMA AN IRRESISTABLE APPEAL TO ALL PEOPLE OF ALL AGES EVERYWHERE

TSURU AOKI MRS. SESSUE HAYAKAWA IN

THE BREATH OF THE GODS

ADDITIONAL FEATURES

RIALTO NEWS MAGAZINE

LITERARY DIGEST

RETAINED BY POPULAR REQUEST

ANNA ZDENEK

COLORATURA SOPRANO

ENTIRE NEW SONG OFFERING

A SNAPPY COMEDY—

"The WEIGHT of A KISS"

OVERTURE—

"THE MIKADO"—Gilbert & Sullivan

RIALTO CONCERT ORCHESTRA.

MORGENROTH CONDUCTING

In addition to its star, its director, its cast, and the story itself, "The Breath of the Gods" is unique in that it lends itself so easily to exploitation. There are a dozen easy angles from which it can be given publicity.

Most managers, when making plans for "putting over" a picture, have in mind for the most part, exploitation and advertising stunts. They want to get the crowds in, which is a desire easy to understand. But once having gotten them "in", considerable of the effect of the picture and the reaction of the audience to it, depend on the presentation. This should not only be smooth and uninterrupted—it should be made as attractive as possible. As in the case of Mr. Smith of the Rialto in Newark, a consistent stunt in the way of introduction is not only helpful but can be made pleasing and entertaining to the audience. In many cases musical solos can be rendered during the showing and the finales of pictures offer all sorts of possibilities in the way of dramatic or special musical accompaniment. "Once To Every Woman", for example, is a splendid example of a picture whose value is enhanced by special presentation aids during the course of the picture. Managers who have engaged solo singers to render "Ben Bolt" while the star, Dorothy Phillips, is supposed to be singing the old song to her dying mother, have made their showings a thousand times more effective because of it. The introduction stunt of Mr. Smith's for "The Breath Of The Gods" was nothing unusual—it was just a simple idea but it was such a timely one that it just took easily and naturally.

FROM time to time The Moving Picture Weekly prints stories of exploitation and presentation stunts evolved by enterprising managers and occasionally the Universal Exploitation Department offers some original suggestions to exhibitors. The Exploitation Department of Universal is eager to receive stories of successful stunts which are always reprinted in the pages of The Moving Picture Weekly for the benefit of other exhibitors. Likewise the Exploitation Department is always at the service of the exhibitor who wants suggestions and ideas for the most effective way to put over his pictures.

Canadians Enthusiastic Over "Once To Every Woman"

Holman Theatre, Montreal, Canada, decorated for the showing of the Universal-Jewel, "Once To Every Woman".

ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN
DOROTHY PHILLIPS
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

THE weather wasn't particularly pleasant when this photograph of the Holman Theate, way up in Montreal, Canada, was taken, yet the crowds turned out in great style for "Once To Every Woman", the Universal Jewel, starring Dorothy Phillips. The lobby was attractively decorated and the presentation was excellent.

Universal has received letters from near and far praising this noteworthy production. Several weeks ago The Moving Picture Weekly reprinted a number of these letter comments from exhibitors using a map to illustrate how general the applause for "Once To Every Woman" has been throughout the entire country.

This is truly a wonderful production, with a wonderful star, Dorothy Phillips, a skilled director, Allen Holubar, and a capable cast, which includes that delightful actress, Margaret Mann, who so lovingly and enchantingly portrays the Mother role in the picture. The Exploitation Department of Universal has been zealous indeed in its efforts to help the exhibitor to properly put over this feature in big style and its biggest achievement has been The Ben Bolt-Super Herald campaign, details of which have been printed and constantly reprinted in back numbers of The Moving Picture Weekly and information concerning which exhibitors can get either from The Moving Picture Weekly or from the Universal exchange nearest them.

With a picture that is a "Jewel" both in brand and actual merits, with many splendid exploitation aids already tried and found successful with which to back it up, and with all sorts of additional exploitation angles possible, "Once To Every Woman" is easily "a clean-up" for every exhibitor.

A "FAN" SPEAKS HIS MIND

THE FOLLOWING LETTER WAS RECEIVED BY MR. JOSEPH BAUER, OWNER OF THE WIGWAM THEATRE, SAN FRANCISCO, FOLLOWING HIS SHOWING OF "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN".

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 4, 1921.

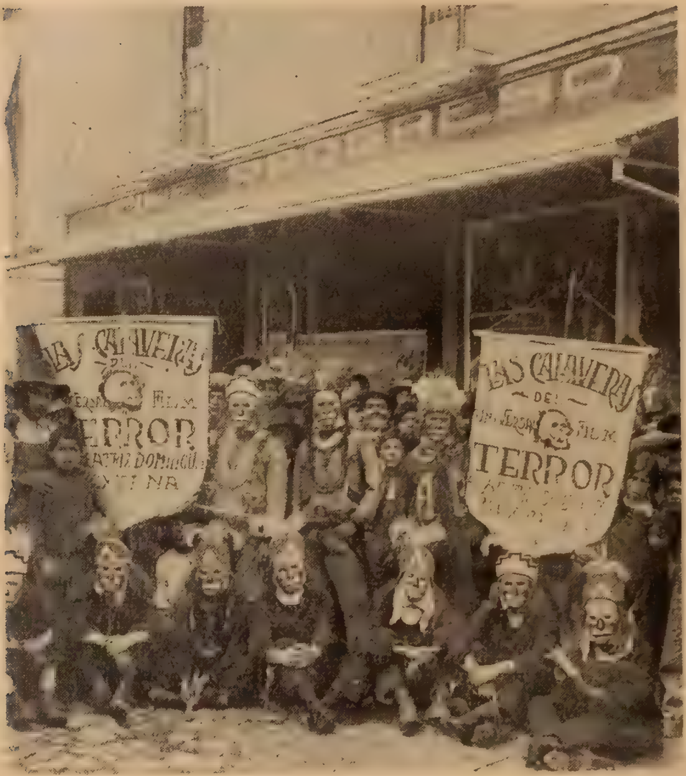
Mr. Joseph Bauer,

I have seen the picture, "Once to Every Woman" at your theatre and am surprised that you did very litttle advertising on such a wonderful picture, that all San Francisco ought to see. Why, "Humoresque," a picture of which everybody talked is not half as dramatic as this one and to think it ran for about six weeks! "Once to Every Woman" is a picture that can hold record-breaking attendance if only the public knew what it is. I have seen it once and am going to urge all my friends to see it again with me. It tells not only of mother love, but of both father and mother love, and it takes you back to the days when your father and mother were striving to make your ambitions come true. It is a picture that will astound both young and old and would suggest on behalf of myself and others from whom I heard comments, that you try and run it as long as possible, and bring out to all San Francisco the exact sense of the picture. I remain forever a Wigwam goer.

I hope you will pardon my frankness, but I am doing this because everyone who attended it I know spoke of it as being a far greater picture than "Humoresque".

(Signed) JOSEPH ROSSI.

Universal Films Popular in Foreign Lands



Exploitation Stunt for "The Moon Riders", devised by the "Cine Progreso", a theatre in Mexico City, Mexico

FOREIGN countries book Universal films extensively and testimonial letters pour into the Universal offices daily from the furthest parts of the globe. Especially in Mexico, Universal films are well received. "The Moon Riders," for example, that excellent serial made by Al Russell and featturing that engaging cowboy, Art Acord, was especially liked by our neighbors to the south. They called the serial "Las Calaveras del Terror, which translated literally means The Skull of Terror, a pretty good title at that.

The Mexicans, however, presented this thrilling serial in a different manner. They featured Beatriz Dominguez, not Art Acord. Miss Dominguez is the beautiful Spanish girl who plays one of the leading female roles in the serial and the Mexicans are so proud of her that they gave her name first place.

"The Cine Progreso," the theatre in Mexico City where "The Moon Riders" met with such success, did some excellent exploitation work in connection with the serial. Pictured to the left is the ensemble dressed in the grotesque "moon rider" costumes which advertised the film for the theatre.

It is interesting to note in this connection, that Art Acord, who so excellently portrays the virile hero of "The Moon Riders," has returned to the Universal studios after a protracted absence, and will in the near future be seen in another big western serial in which he will again be directed by the capable Al Russell.

"The Moon Riders" is being very generally praised. In addition to the very excellent cast and the novel story, it is filled with such genuine and delightful western atmosphere, that it is a real treat to those who love the big west with all its wealth of free and rugged background. It has proven one of the most successful serials Universal has ever made and it shows conclusively that "the west" is just as interesting to people to-day as it ever was, despite all reports to the contrary.

POLO TAKES CUBA BY STORM

EDDIE POLO has taken Havana by storm, Universal reports. The serial star recently took a company to Cuba to film his next serial. Since his arrival there he has made personal appearances in many of the leading theatres on the island and causes a young riot each time he leaves his hotel, so popular is he with Cuban photoplay fans.

Polo's first public appearance was at the Campoamor Theatre, one of the best theatres in Havana. The management had to call out the police to handle the crowds that attended, only a fraction of which could get into the theatre.

Eddie's first experience with his horde of Havana admirers was almost as exciting as some of his serial stuff. He and his company had arranged to take a ride around the city, shortly after their arrival, but when they started to leave the Hotel Sevilla, where they were stopping, they were greeted by a struggling, fighting, cheering mob of more than two thousands of men and boys, anxious to catch a glimpse of their cinema hero.

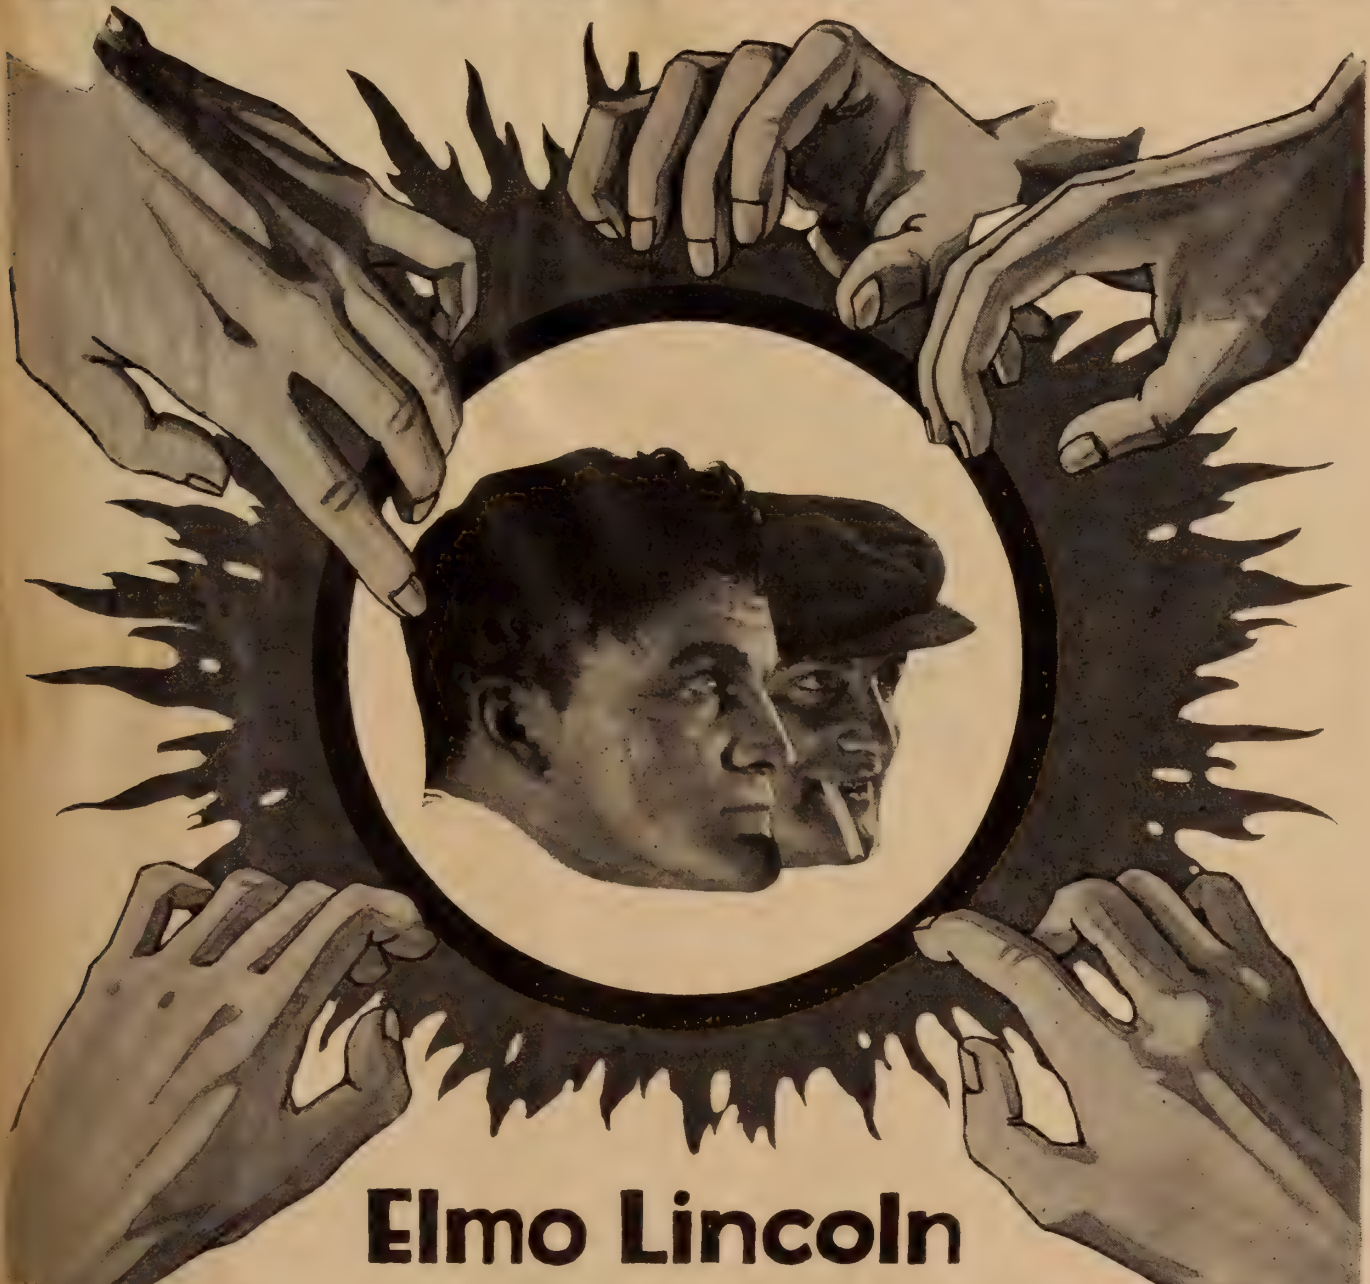
Polo, besides being a doer of unusual and daring stunts for the camera, has gained fame as a circus acrobat and dare-devil, but he hesitated and decided not to force his way through the enthusiatic crowd. After a brief appearance and much hand-shaking, he went back into his hotel.

Polo's visit to Cuba is regarded by photoplay fans as the most interesting event in the cinema world of that island. As in all other Latin American countries, Polo is a prime favorite, because of his dare-devil feats.

The new Universal serial starring Polo will be of an entirely different nature than his present highly successful serial "King of the Circus." Most of it is being filmed in Cuba, in the West Indies and in Panama. Many of the historic points in Cuba and the West Indies will be used as settings for the action of the story, as, for instance, Morro Castle, San Juan Hill, Santiago harbor, the famous Buccaneer Bay and other spots.

J. P. McGowan is directing the serial, which was written by Anthony W. Coldeway. Among others in the company taken to Cuba were Cecil Myers and Jean Perkins, camera-men, Jay Marchant, McGowan's assistant, and David Brandman, business manager. Hundreds of Cubans will be used as "extras" in the serial.

GRAB THIS HOT ONE!



Elmo Lincoln

Playing the mighty Double Profit-Role in the Burning Serial Sensation.

Directed by Robert Hill

"THE FLAMING DISK"

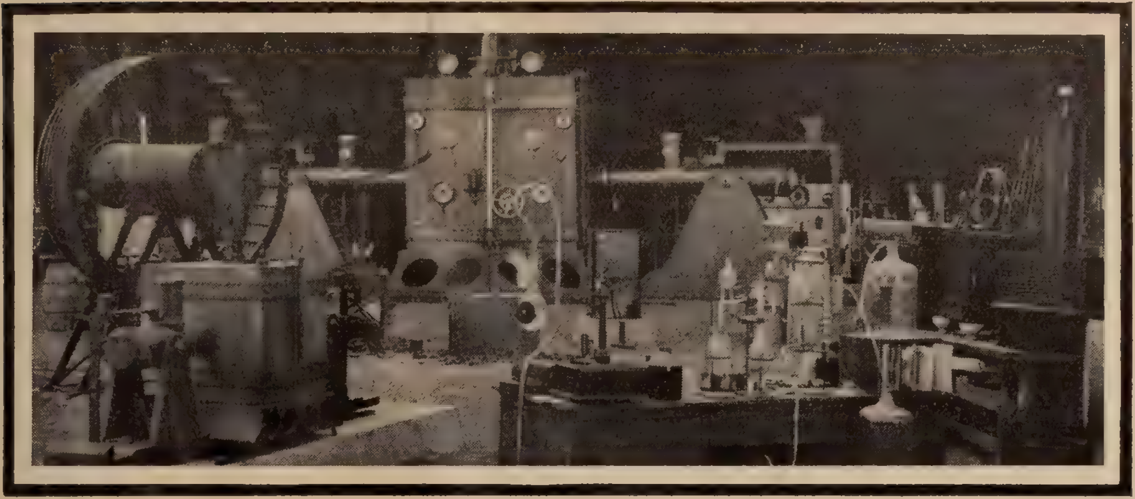
The Strangest and Most Startling Adventure Serial Ever Produced by Universal

The Most Beautiful Of All Serial Stars

The story of a beautiful, daring girl who discovered the secret of diamond-making and defeated all efforts of the diamond trust hirelings to bring about her ruin, although she went through unimagined perils

Eileen Sedgwick in

This is Where the Fascinating Mystery of Diamond-Making is Solved by a Beautiful Girl



These Hirelings of the Diamond Trust Will Hold Your Audiences Breathless and Spellbound.

They'll Get the Thrill of Their Lives When They See This Fall.

Directed by
EDWARD KULL

he Diamond Queen"

"She Was No Playful Kitten," says Eddie

"YOU certainly can take my word for it that there was no fooling in that scene where I struggle with the lioness", says Eddie Polo. "She was no playful kitten, and I'll tell the world that the perspiration that stood out on my forehead was no fake. I was scared stiff that time she got me down—I sure thought I was a goner until I got the strangle hold on her throat. But the scene shows up great on the screen, and if that's the sort of thrills that the fans like you can bet they get their fill in 'King of the Circus'".

EDDIE
POLO
in the Spectacular 18-Ring Thriller
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"
Directed by J.P. McGowan

Reaches Films via Chautauqua Circuit

NEBRASKA, the state that supplies most of the talent for the Chautauqua, just as Ohio delivers presidential timber, has reason to be proud of Josephine Scott, the pretty Universal serial player who left the Lincoln, Nebraska, High School to take a swing over the Chautauqua circuit before entering the films.

Miss Scott, who plays the interesting rôle of Aline Earle, in "The Diamond Queen," the Universal serial starring Eileen Sedgwick, was the most popular girl in the graduating class of the Lincoln High School two and a half years ago. Upon her graduation she was signed by the Chautauqua for a singing and dancing turn and toured the circuit in that capacity. Then she returned to do a season as a member of the Oliver stock company through the middle west.

A year ago Miss Scott's father, a prominent attorney of Lincoln, went to Los Angeles for his health and it was through this move that his talented daughter became a Movie Actress.

After a few months of preliminary work with other companies, Miss Scott was summoned to Universal City and cast for the role of "Aline Earle" in "The Diamond Queen".

This serial is based on the popular Saturday Evening Post story, "The Diamond Master", by Jacques Futrelle. It was adapted to the screen by Robert Roden and George Pyper, and produced for Universal by Edward Kull.

Josephine Scott is a vivacious brunette, with large, lustrous, rich masses of dark hair and finely chiseled features. She is the exact opposite type to the star, Eileen Sedgwick, who is a most dazzling blonde. The two girls have several scenes together in which their opposite types make a charming contract. They are especially pretty in the theatre episode where their beauty is enhanced by the pretty ballet costume which they both wear as dancers.

"The Diamond Queen" is just about ready to be released and it is the safest serial bet for any exhibitor. Full of the strangest of incidents, the most fascinating of novelties and lots of thrilling action, Edward Kull, the director, has made a finished "job" out of it. Its star, Eileen Sedgwick, is one of the most arresting of the feminine screen personalities, a beautiful blonde girl, who can act and who seems to be absolutely fearless. Not the least of the wonderful story threads injected into the serial, is a big diamond machine, a marvel of mechanism, by means of which the scientific manufacture of diamonds, a problem which has been really puzzling chemists for years, is accomplished.

Josephine Scott, appearing with Eileen Sedgwick in "The Diamond Queen"

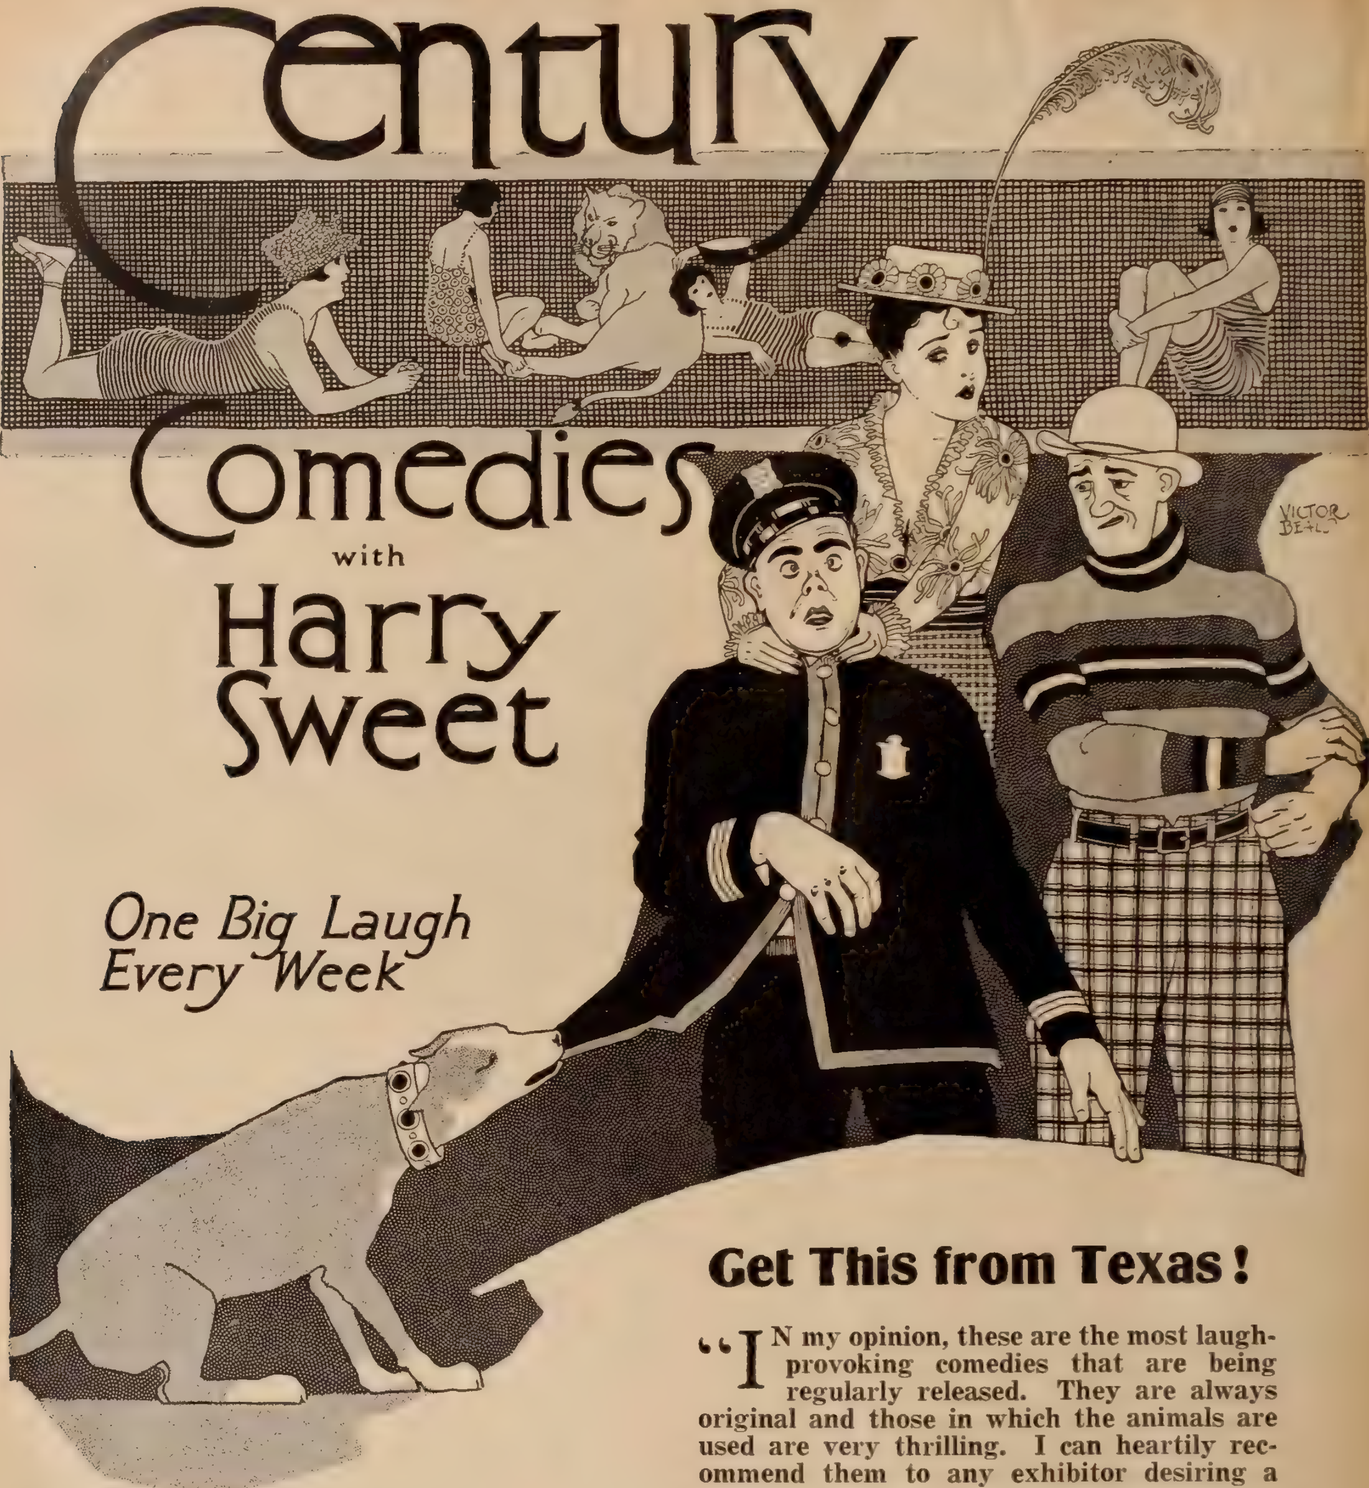
A cast of experienced players is to be found in the serial and in addition to Eileen Sedgwick and Josephine Scott, includes George Cheseboro, the leading man, Frank Clark, Al. Smith and Alfred Fisher.

SERIAL ACTOR'S LIFE RICH IN ADVENTURE

SOME day, when he has retired from active work in the films, Frank M. Clark will write an autobiography, and it will include some of the most interesting reminiscenses of the stage and screen that have ever been given the public. At present Mr. Clark is playing the role of Zeidt, head of the diamond trust, in the Universal serial, "The Diamond Queen," in which Eileen Sedgwick is starring.

Old timers in the middle west, who attended the Woodward High Schoool in Cincinnati, in the 70's, may recall Frank Clark, who gave early promise of a dramatic career. He was prominent as an elocutionist in all the school entertainments, and shortly after graduating he became a member of the famous Macauley Stock Company in his home city when Fanny Davenport was leading woman. He later was transferred to the Macauley Company in Louisville, and was a member of the cast the night the famous Mary Anderson made her debut. He first crossed the continent in 1882, playing what were then known as variety theatres, together with his wife, who was a well-known harpist.

Clark took over the first minstrel company that ever toured Australia and became a fixture in the Antipodes. He remained there for twenty years, as producer, manager and actor. He returned to America in 1906, and made his film debut with the Selig Company in 1909. He has been in pictures eleven years and cannot recall a part he liked better than the one he is now playing in "The Diamond Queen".



Century Comedies

with

Harry Sweet

One Big Laugh Every Week

Get This from Texas!

"IN my opinion, these are the most laugh-provoking comedies that are being regularly released. They are always original and those in which the animals are used are very thrilling. I can heartily recommend them to any exhibitor desiring a consistently good two-reel comedy every week."

(Signed) C. W. BATSELL, JR.,
King and Queen Theatres,
Strawn, Texas.

Released through
UNIVERSAL

LATEST RELEASE

"VAMPS AND SCAMPS"

LAST year International News shot and looked at one million feet of negative in order to give your patrons the newsiest news on the screen. Just think of the wastage! Two hundred feet shot for one shown. But it isn't wastage--for that two-hundred-to-one is exactly the reason why your News Reel, if it's International, has come to be worth 30% of your program. Book it through your nearest Universal Exchange today.

International News Released thru Universal

"The Grip of the Law"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Cal Newton	Jack Perrin
Dr. Amos Morton	C. W. Herzinger
Ginger Morton	Dorothy Wood
Mark Heckle	Jim Corey
Sheriff	Leonard Trainor

CAL NEWTON, a cowboy in search of a job, meets Mart Heckle, who is being pursued by the Sheriff and his posse, for horse stealing. Mart asks Cal to change horses with him, as he is riding to attend his sick wife and his horse is winded. Cal makes the change, and the posse recognizing the horse, open fire on him. They are about to string him up for a horse thief when Ginger, the daughter of the old doctor, Morton, rides up and pleads for his life. The sheriff agrees to give him another chance, and Cal is free on parole, his sentence being that he is not to ride a horse for six months.

Mart is thrown from his horse and badly injured. He is found by a prospector who takes him to the home of Dr. Morton. In the meantime Cal and Ginger become good friends. Ginger is the telephone operator of the little town and lives a short distance out, and rides back and forth on her pony. Mart tries to make advances to Ginger, but is repulsed. He is determined to have her, and one day compels old Morton at the point of a gun, to call her on the phone and tell her to come right home. Then they struggle, and Cal, who has offered to run the switchboard for Ginger, hears a shot and realizes that something is wrong. On her way home Ginger is attacked by Mart, but throws him off her horse. He shoots her and she falls across the track. Cal mounts a horse and is off and the sheriff, thinking he has broken his parole, gives chase. Part of the posse catch Mart, Cal rescues Ginger, and Dr. Morton proves who is the real horse thief.

"His Fearful Finish"

Two Reel Century Comedy

CAST

The Stranger	Charles Dorety
The Village Loan Shark	Bud Jamison
The Daughter	Bartine Burkette
The Father	Loyal Underwood

THE Father owns a house and nothing else. And besides that, it is heavily mortgaged. The big fat village loan shark holds the mortgage and comes to collect payment. Father is a lazy sort of a fellow who never works and he hasn't got the payment. Whereupon the Shark threatens to put them out unless the pretty daughter will have him.

Daughter, however, has ideas of her own in the person of The Stranger, whom she begins to love madly and whom she wants to marry. However, she is dutiful and will sadly marry The Shark if she must. But Stranger is no slow one and he gets into all sorts of terrible fights with The Shark and Pa. He plans to elope with daughter and is climbing up the house when he is observed by Pa and The Cruel Shark. He goes up to the roof and kicks all the chimney bricks down at the two and finally falls through. But that was some lucky flop, for in a brick in the chimney was hidden a regular roll of bills which he appropriates immediately.

He hands them over to The Shark and kicks him out.

The Shark, however, plans a revenge. Father has a youngster whom he steals and puts him on a big horse truck. The horses and truck run away with the child. The lover with the daughter pursue and the child is saved. The romance of Daughter and Stranger can go happily on without interruption.

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode Three

"Perils of the Jungle"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zimba	Al Smith
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Aline	Josephine Scott

DORIS falls srtaight into the water pit, unscathed by the spears, and the water extinguishes her flaming raiment. Overawed, the Zulus fall down before her worshipping. The medicine man's legend has come true. Doris is proclaimed "White Queen."

Meantime Zeidt, the diamond king, is at his mines abusing his workers, who are underpaid. On one of the men lined up to receive pay is found an uncut stone taken from the compound. Although this black stole the stone to feed his starving family, his pleas are in vain. Zeidt sends him to prison.

Back in the cannibal camp great festivities are under way in honor of the "white queen," when a native half-cast who has been a government runner, known as Zimba, strays off the beaten way and is captured by the head-hunters. They are about to behead him when Doris intervenes. When Zimba starts to address her in English, Doris sees a possible chance of escape with his aid and silences him.

That night, Doris steals to the tent of Zimba, explains her predicament, saves the black's life again in a fight with guards and enables him to escape with a message to the Kaffir police asking aid. She flees with him.

Meantime Bruce Weston, on his yacht, is engrossed with the vision of Doris, the girl he can't forget—the girl he is searching for.

Zimba and Doris find themselves not only pursued by the head-hunters, but beset by the wild beasts of the jungle. Zimba, bringing up the rear so as to be better able to protect Doris, guards her from attack from both blacks and animals, using as his weapon a rifle procured from the camp. But Zimba runs out of amunition just as a wild elephant attacks Doris. She is apparently doomed.

International News

No. 3

New York City.—Lord Mayor of Cork "refugee' from Ireland, gets great welcome.

Pasadena, Cal.—Ohio's star eleven meets its Waterloo. Strain of long journey proves too great and California wins rather easily—28 to 0.

New York City.—Jobless men parade. "Shorn Lambs of Labor" march in "silent protest" to hear special sermon in old Trinity.

Kent, Washington.—First winter flood. Tough days for the flivvers as western rivers overflow. (Omit New York City and New York State.)

St. Gallen, Switzerland.—Alpine avalanche partly buries town. Heavy snows keep Swiss villagers busy digging themselves out.

Pasadena, Cal.—Tournament of roses is gorgeous pageant. Dazzling display of nature's beauties in Sunshine Land's annual flower revel. (Omit Los Angeles prints.)

Denver, Colorado.—Winter drives deer to the haunts of man. Shy beauties overcome their natural timidity in hunt for food.

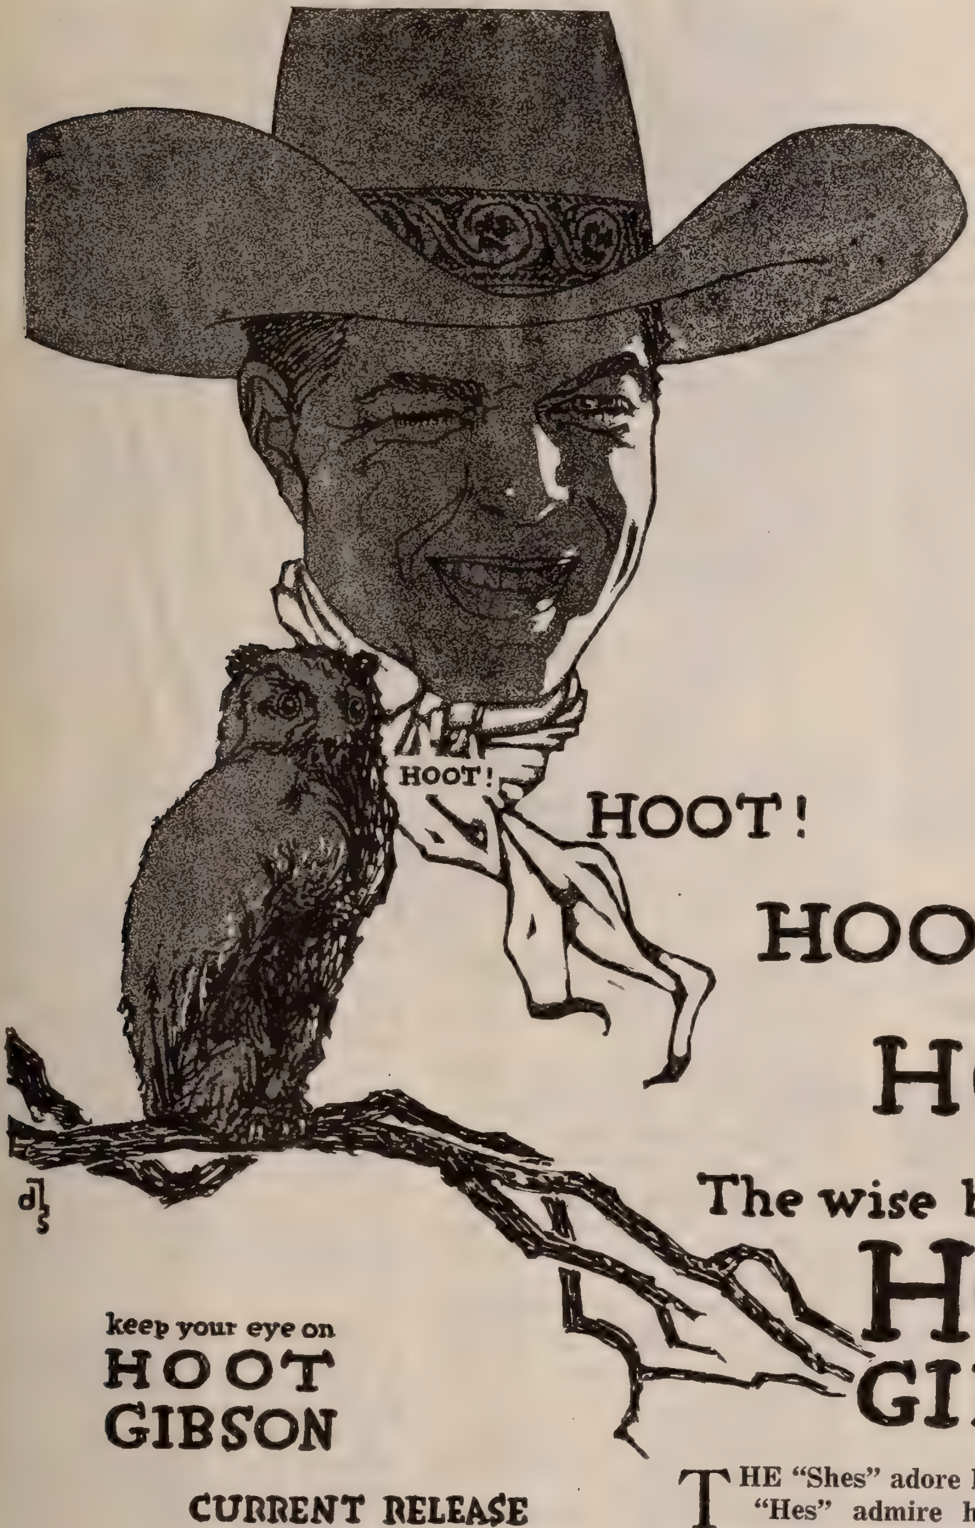
Roehampton, England.—Cornell runners lose International Race. Beanten after a game struggle by Oxford and Cambridge team.

San Pedro, Cal.—Famous German U-Boat sent to the bottom in Pacific battel practice. (The U-88 being towed to sea.)

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia.—New Republic builds national spirit with amazing mass drills.

1. 10,000 men drilling as one.
2. Perfect co-ordination—an inspiring example of national team work.
3. Czecho-Slovakia is an ardent admirer of Uncle Sam.
4. Building up the spirit of unity.
5. The most complicated evolutions performed with perfect precision.

Tad Cartoon.



HOOT!

HOOT!

HOOT!

The wise birds call for

HOOT GIBSON

keep your eye on

HOOT GIBSON

CURRENT RELEASE
"KICKAROO"

THE "Shes" adore him. The "Hes" admire him. For various and good reasons. The "Hers" and the "Hims" make the crowds. And that's the reason wise exhibitors keep calling for Hoot Gibson pictures.

"The Spirits of '21"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

THE butler and the maid and Lizzie, the other maid, are giddy at a seance while the Mr. and Mrs. are attending a masked ball. They have spirits of another kind, too, and Lizzie and the butler get drunk. Lizzie goes upstairs to bed and begins "seeing things." The bureau begins to move. She rushes downstairs only to see the tiger rug moving. She engages in combat with the beast and vanquishes him seemingly. She rushes to the dining room to see the serving table move. But she does not know the drunken butler is underneath. Then she rushes back to the stairs to find the tiger moving about again. Into her bedroom she goes and finds herself waking up. In her mad dream she had pounded the feathers out of the pillows and the room is in some mess. She rushes downstairs again just as the Mr. and Mrs. are returning from the ball, he in a devil's costume and she in a costume of "bones." Lizzie is scared all over again and dashes back to her bedroom where she hides under the covers. The Mr. and Mrs. follow her and drag her out and when they take off their masks, her fears are over.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 15

"The Woman in Black"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Mary Warren	Kittoria Beveridge
Zola Sinclair	Eugenia Silbon

EDDIE makes a successful jump in the parachute and gets to shore.

In the meantime, Gray instructs Zola to locate Winters. She does so and Gray and his henchman attack Winters in his room. A fight follows and Eddie rushes to the aid of his friend.

Things at the circus had not been going so well with Mary and Dick Maxwell the treasurer and a staunch friend of Eddie's. Flint, Gray's unscrupulous ally, endeavors to fire Maxwell but finds himself powerless to do so. He therefore perfects a plan to rid himself of him. He takes the money from the sales box, hides it and then accuses Maxwell of stealing it. But Mary finds the money and discovers the plot much to the discomfort of Flint.

Flint has also sent a message to Zola telling her of Polo's arrival in Avalon and of the fact that he has half the canvas. This he had gleaned from Eddie's telegram to Mary which he had managed to steal.

Winters and Collins go for a walk and Eddie leaves them temporarily. They are again attacked by Gray and his ally. Eddie runs to their rescue and is knocked senseless. While he is in this helpless condition, the two leave him to attend to the others and it is then that Zola Sinclair craftily steals the canvas from him and makes her getaway.

Gray returns and demands the canvas from the reviving Eddie. When the latter disclaims any knowledge of it, they bind him in an obscure corner, near a water pump and then turn open the valve. Slowly the water rises about Eddie and he sinks underneath the surface.

Gray then realizes that Zola had run off with the canvas.

International News

No. 4

Off the Coast of Mexico.—Great Pacific Armada speeding to Panama. Air Glimpses of the giant fleet on its way south for winter maneuvers.

Chassigny, France.—Chinese minstrels seek aid in France. Oriental troupes give traveling shows to raise funds for famine sufferers. (Omit Chicago.)

Chicago, Ill.—Governor Len Small assumes office. Succeeds Frank G. Lowden as Illinois' executive.

(The new Governor and his wife.) (For Chicago only.)

Chicago, Ill.—Here's the latest queerest plane. Not finished yet—but when it flies—if it does—it is going straight without wings.

Berlin, Germany.—German snapshots. Resumption of trotting races attract thousands to track.

Brea, Cal.—Fire raging many days threatens destruction to rich oil district.

Santa Monica, Cal.—Mid-winter dances. It is hard for ice-bound westerners to believe, but this is a favorite January pastime for California maids.

El Paso, Texas.—Crack border cavalry reviewed from air. Col. Glover sets a new style by directing drills from an Army blimp.

Mattice, Canada.—International News presents the returning to civilization by heroic airmen lost on record ballon flight.

1. It was in a balloon like this, Lts. Kloor, Farrell and Hinton, Navy fliers, started on their dramatic journey from Rockaway Point, N. Y.

2. Glimpses of the Canadian woods in which the adventurers landed after being blown 825 miles in 25 hours.

3. Two carrier pigeons—like these—constituted their only food while they tramped the woods completely lost.

4. George McLeod, Indian runner, first to bring to Mattice and the outside world news that the airmen had finally reached a safe haven at lonely Moose Factory.

5. Numerous runners were dispatched by American newspaper correspondents, to get direct word from the aviators—and began "mushing" through the wilderness.

6. Agapi Clermont, the first runner to meet the airmen and bring back word they were on their way back.

7. "Huskies" who brought the airmen back—the real heroes of the north who make it possible for man to live in the frozen wilds.

8. "Mushing" to civilization—the heroic airmen on the return trip after resting at Moose Factory.

9. Arriving at Mattice after fourteen days of arduous traveling.

"Puppy Love"

Two Reel Century Comedy

Featuring The Century Wonder Dog

THE Widow Haash kept a limburger cheese emporium and her daughter loved the bootblack next store, which mother didn't like at all. The bootblack owned a clever dog who dug ditches in the street so that passers-by should fall in and dirty their shoes.

The Widow Haash had two sons—one an infant and the other one, Dinky, just getting wise to himself. Dinky hides from his ma, and a stranger, entering, throws the old lady off his track and then proceeds to rob the safe.

Dinky and the dog have a grand time while ma is out hunting for him and while the stranger is safe-cracking; they break no end of victrola records.

Dinky gets wise to the crook and gets the police who take the bootblack by mistake. The crook puts Dinky in an auto, starts it off, and the kid rides along at a mad pace.

In the meantime the bootblack had convinced the cops that he was not the thief and they haul in the real crook. Dinky is saved by the dog who stops the automobile by means of a clever rope stunt.

Daughter and Bootblack come upon a minister and are in the process of getting married when ma comes upon the scene and gets herself married to the bootblack instead.

Von Stroheim again!
2½ times
as much

"clever as the devil"

NO director ever leaped into fame as quickly as Von Stroheim. And very few actors. Which is why we say—"Clever as the devil"—with the phrase describing his forthcoming Universal-Jewel as aptly as it describes the man himself. Once more you will see him act, and do it to perfection—once more you will see his direction, and marvel at its genius. Once more you will say—with us—"Clever as the devil."

The Coming
UNIVERSAL-
JEWEL
Wonder-Play

"FOOLISH WIVES"

A TIP
from
CARL
LAEMMLE

Watch for the Announcement of the early Release of

EDITH ROBERTS

In the Story of a Wildflower of the Andes who felt the flame of hate and the kiss of love

"THE FIRE CAT"

DIRECTED AND WRITTEN BY
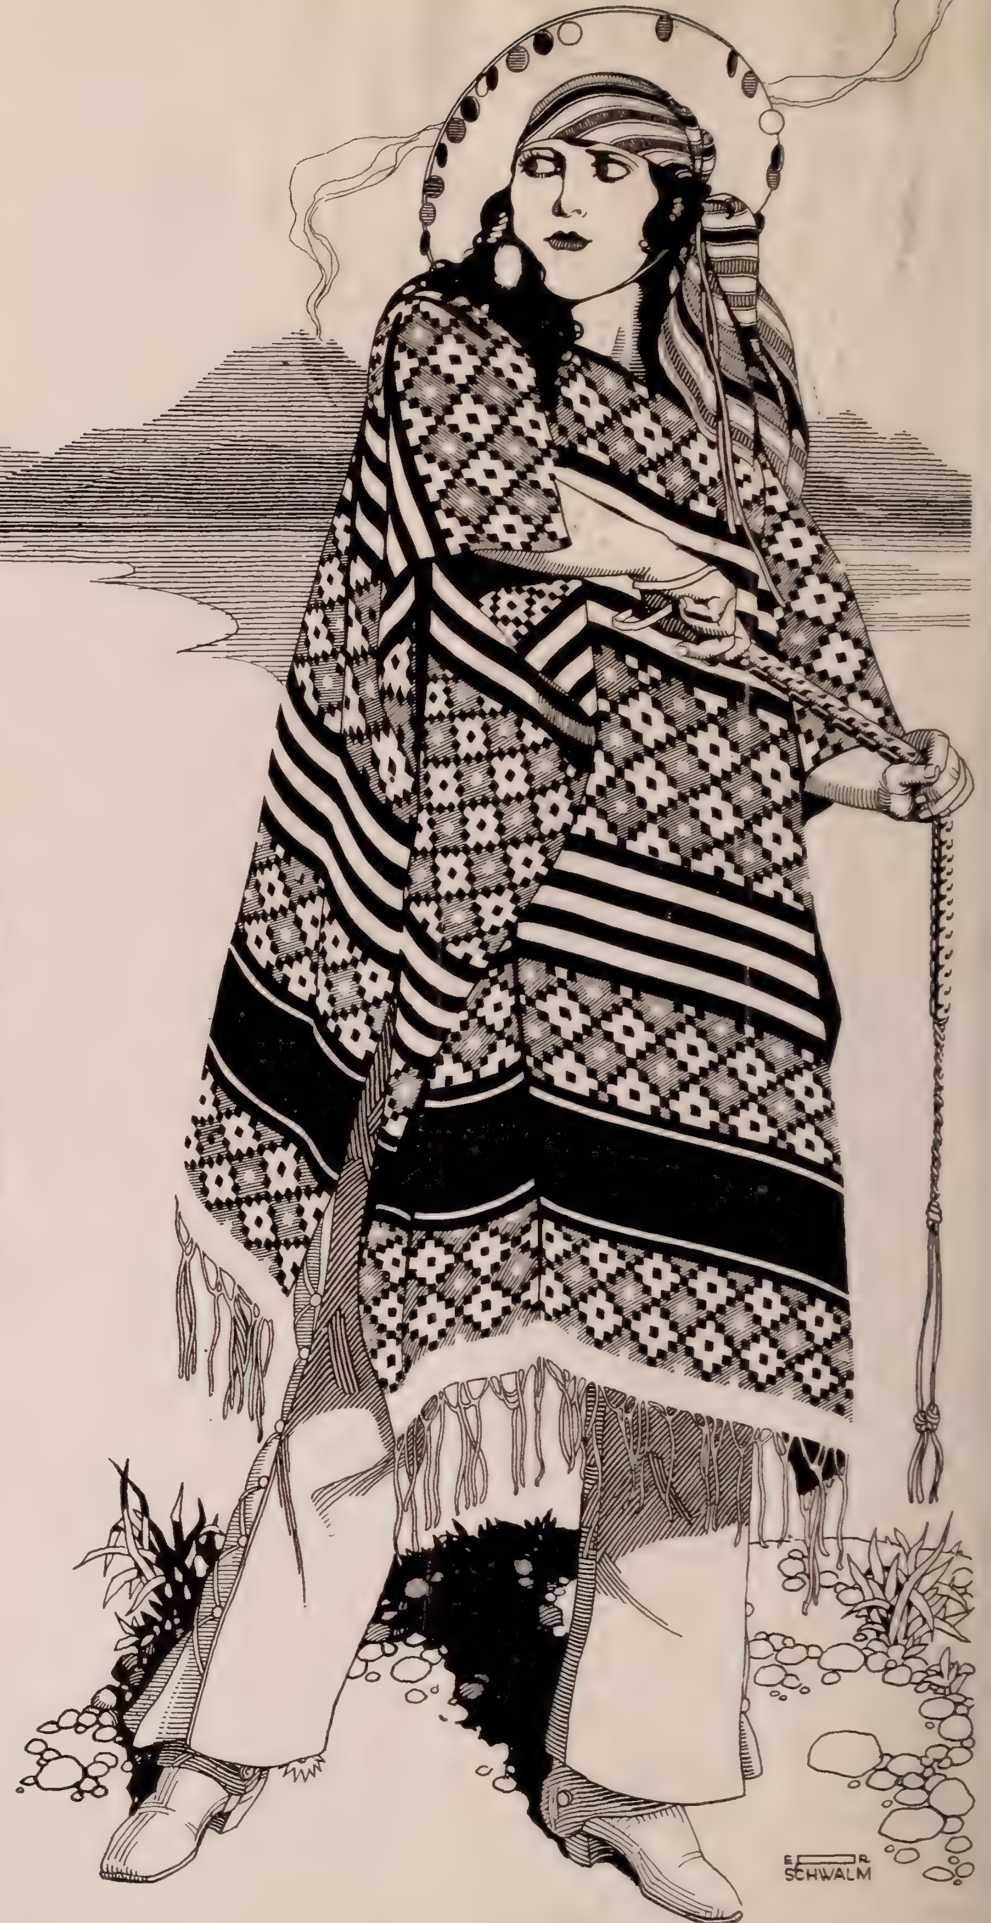
NORMAN DAWN



Mats of this cut are available at your Universal Exchange, Price 40c.

The MOVING P WEEKLY

EDITH ROBERTS in

"The FIRE CAT"

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VOL 12 FEB 5 1921 NO 25

EDITH ROBERTS

presented by
Carl Laemmle

Brings her Beauty and her Fire to those

52 Good Pictures a Year ___ and No Worry

"LASCA" gave this striking young star her chance—that golden romance of the old Rio Grande, made still more wondrous by Norman Dawn's exquisite camera-work. Then came "The Adorable Savage," with South Sea island backgrounds like some famous painting. And now—a still more gorgeous, still more appealing love-drama of hot-headed youth, flaming and blazing with the color and passion of outraged Spanish blood—"THE FIRE CAT"—a spectacular production whose catastrophic ending marks Norman Dawn as the real screen-find of 1921. Only Universal, with its tremendous resources in playing talent and equipment, can so surely produce a winning director-player combination and give it to you at Weekly Feature prices. And keep on giving it to you fifty-two weeks in the year.

Show her now in Norman Dawn's
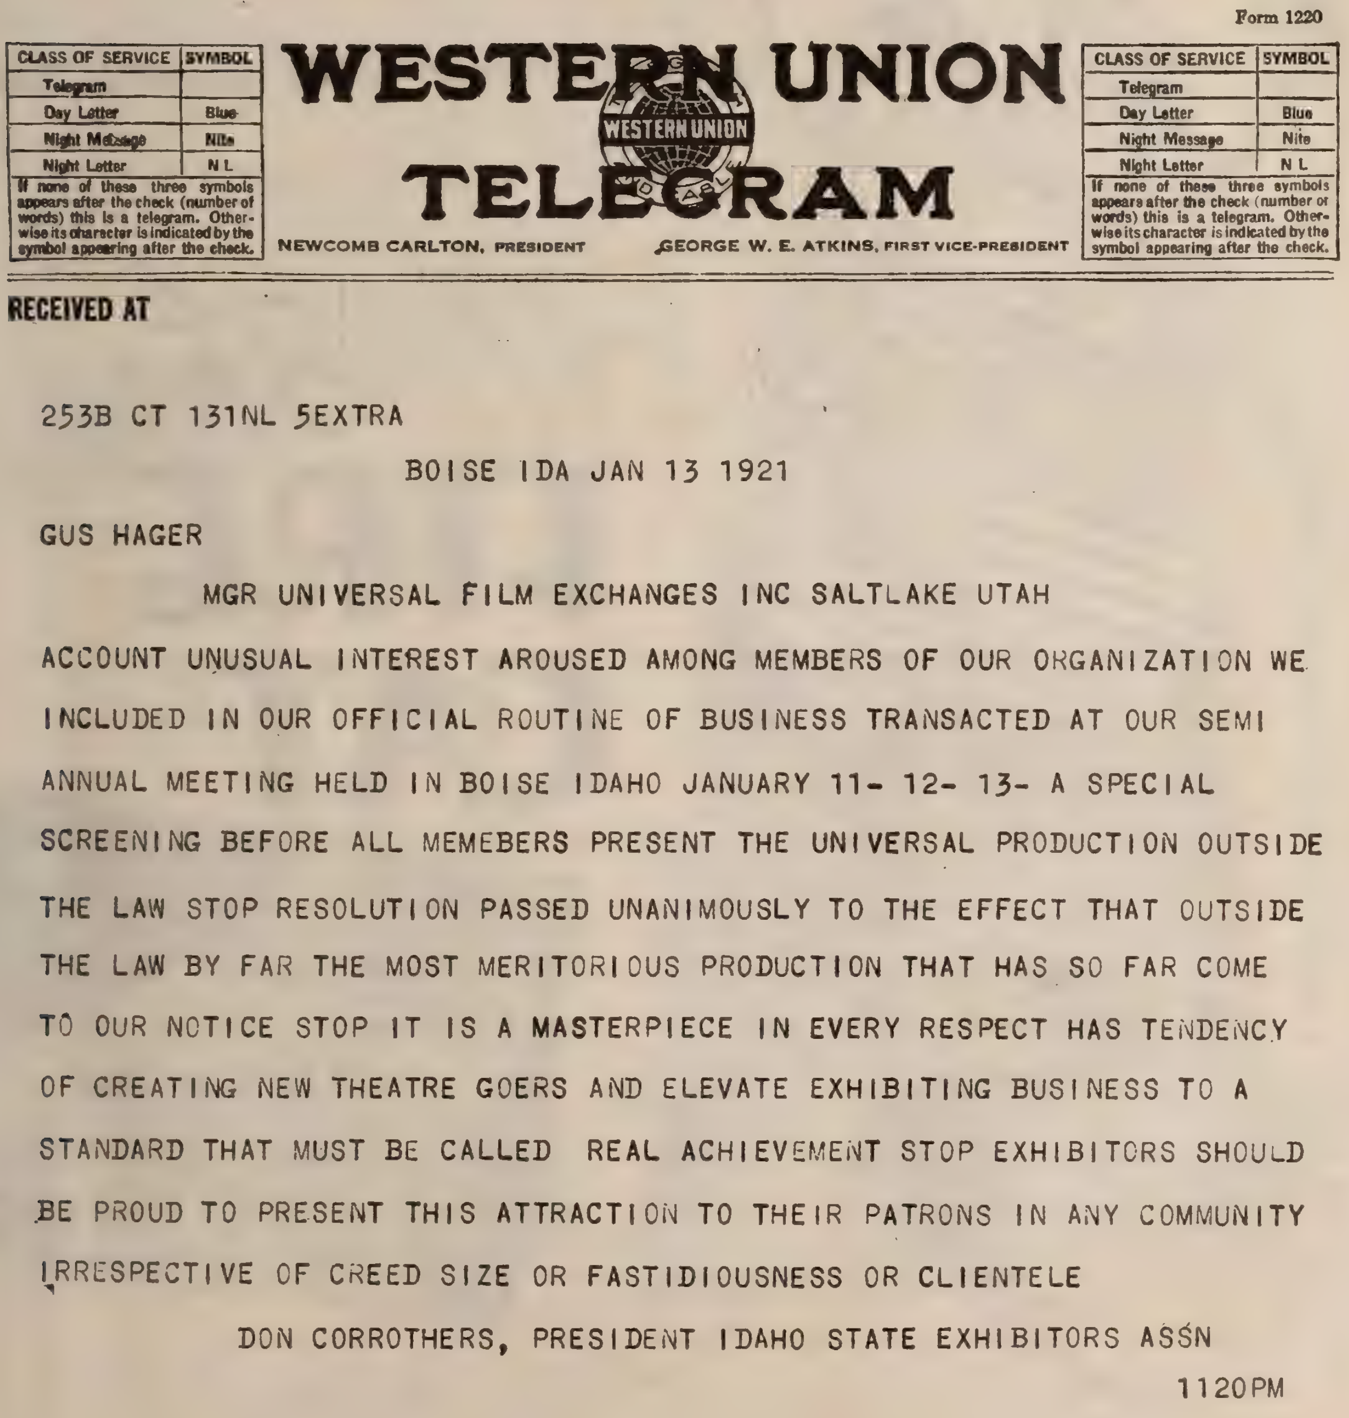
Great Spectacular
Love-drama
"THE FIRE CAT"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

BULLETIN

No. 1



Form 1220

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Telegram
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a telegram. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Telegram
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a telegram. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

RECEIVED AT

253B CT 131NL 5EXTRA

BOISE IDA JAN 13 1921

GUS HAGER

MGR UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES INC SALTLAKE UTAH

ACCOUNT UNUSUAL INTEREST AROUSED AMONG MEMBERS OF OUR ORGANIZATION WE INCLUDED IN OUR OFFICIAL ROUTINE OF BUSINESS TRANSACTED AT OUR SEMI ANNUAL MEETING HELD IN BOISE IDAHO JANUARY 11- 12- 13- A SPECIAL SCREENING BEFORE ALL MEMEBERS PRESENT THE UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION OUTSIDE THE LAW STOP RESOLUTION PASSED UNANIMOUSLY TO THE EFFECT THAT OUTSIDE THE LAW BY FAR THE MOST MERITORIOUS PRODUCTION THAT HAS SO FAR COME TO OUR NOTICE STOP IT IS A MASTERPIECE IN EVERY RESPECT HAS TENDENCY OF CREATING NEW THEATRE GOERS AND ELEVATE EXHIBITING BUSINESS TO A STANDARD THAT MUST BE CALLED REAL ACHIEVEMENT STOP EXHIBITORS SHOULD BE PROUD TO PRESENT THIS ATTRACTION TO THEIR PATRONS IN ANY COMMUNITY IRRESPECTIVE OF CREED SIZE OR FASTIDIOUSNESS OR CLIENTELE

DON CORROTHERS, PRESIDENT IDAHO STATE EXHIBITORS ASSN

1120PM

The Year's Most Specta

Carl Laemmle presents
NORMAN DAWN'S
marvelous
Special
Attraction

"The FIRE CAT"

Straight to his black heart "the Fire Cat" drove

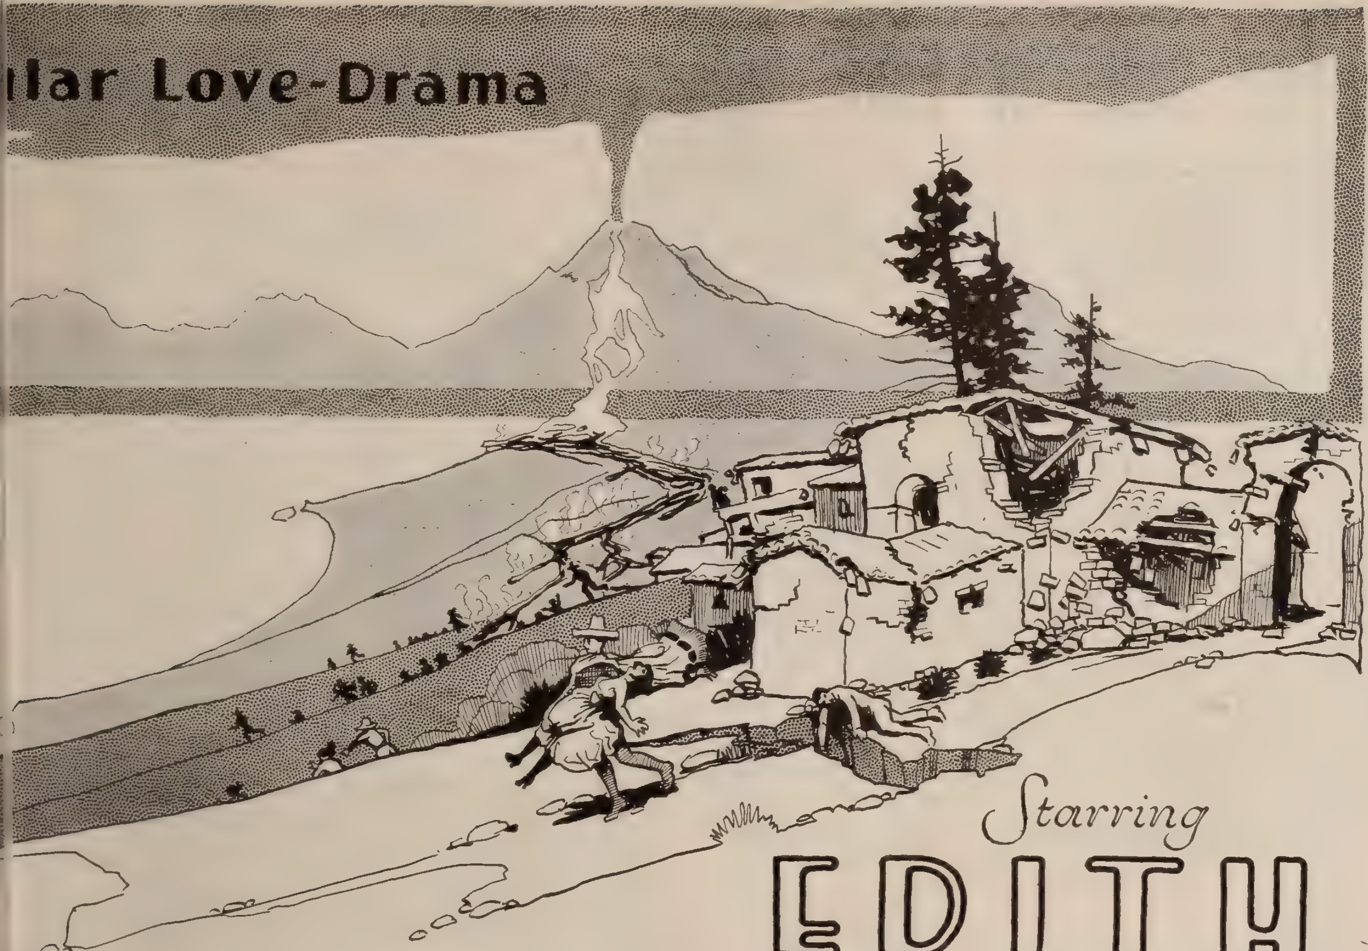
lar Love-Drama



See the astounding earthquake scene with a real volcano in action

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

Heaven and earth shook-houses fell like cards

Alas! She loved this cursed Gringo who would save her Service Page for Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Fire Cat."
STAR—Edith Roberts.
PREVIOUS HITS—"Lasca," "Her Five-Foot Highness," "The Adorable Savage," "White Youth," etc.
DIRECTED BY—Norman Dawn.
STORY BY—Norman Dawn.
SCENARIO BY—Philip Hurn.
SUPPORTING CAST—Wallace McDonald, Walter Long, Arthur Jasmine, Beatriz Dominguez, Olga D'Mojean, William Eagle-Eye, etc.
LOCALE—South America—At the Base of Cotopaxi.
TIME—The Present.
THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of a young Castillian girl who, to avenge the brutal murder of her mother, becomes a habitue of a dance hall in a foul Peruvian mining camp and lures the assassin to his doom; of a young American who brings to light her finer nature; of the eruption of Cotopaxi, wreaking vengeance on the evildoer; of a miraculous escape and a rosy dawn.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—"The Fire Cat" gives Edith Roberts her most appealing rôle as a wild-flower of the Peruvian mountains.
2—Colorful scenes of a lawless South American town in the heart of the Andes.
3—The notable supporting cast which includes Walter Long, Beatriz Dominguez, Wallace McDonald, Arthur Jasmine and other screen favorites.
4—The strange collection of tropic animals, reptiles and birds used in the picture to establish South American atmosphere.
5—Scores of ravishingly beautiful Spanish maidens who appear in the dance-hall scenes.
6—The spectacle of a sweetly innocent girl dancing in a notorious dive to lure the murderer of her mother to his doom.
7—The fact that "The Fire Cat" was filmed in the secret caves where Valdez, the notorious Mexican bandit withstood the siege of an army of sheriffs in the old days of lawlessness.
8—The interesting fact that Norman Dawn, who wrote and directed "The Fire Cat" is a South American by birth and knows the locale of the story intimately.
9—Some of the most striking photography ever projected on a screen.
10—The thrilling spectacle of a volcano demolishing an entire town and burying scores in a scalding sea of lava.

CAST

Dulce	Edith Roberts
Gringo Burke	Walter Long
Cholo Pete	William Eagle-Eye
Mother Alvarez	Olga D'Mojean
Margarita	Beatriz Dominguez
Pancho	Arthur Jasmine
Ross	Wallace McDonald

THE STORY

HIGH in the Andes in a beautiful, but lonely, valley lived Dulce Alvarez, tempestuous daughter of the mountain storms and the youngest heir of the proud Alvarez line. With her lived only her mother, and grand dame of the Castilian aristocracy who saw around her the shabby mockery of what had once been the most magnificent mountain villa of Peru.

Their home had nestled for generations at the foot of Cotopaxi, the volcano that tradition told them, once buried villages in its wrath. Cotopaxi was threatening.

To fill an empty larder, Dulce spurred her pony down the slope, telling her mother with forced cheerfulness that she would return with a full game-bag.

To watch the stately lady, lest she should do work beyond her strength, Dulce called Pancho, a half-caste Indian boy who loved her with the mute adoration of a dog.

Dulce hadn't gone far into the canyon when Gringo Burke, an American renegade lashed a tired horse to the hacienda and made a coarse demand for food and wine.

Goaded to fury with wine Burke abuses the woman and demands money. She tells him of her poverty. He kills her with one blow and rides furiously down the mountain toward Purisima, the hell-hole city of the Andes.

Stunned by the murder of her mother, Dulce curses Pancho for his cowardice and swears vengeance against the man who has robbed her of her only love, the grand dame Alvarez.

Dulce starts for Purisima. There she finds Burke and plots to kill him. To better accomplish her purpose she dances in the cafe and makes herself appear a woman of the street.

Among the derelicts to be found in Purisima was David Ross, a mining engineer by profession and a drunkard, at the moment, by preference. When a gentleman does hit the toboggan he slides fast and Ross had been a gentleman. Dulce's feeling toward him corresponds with her regard for all men—hatred. She hates him primarily because he is a man, then because he has shown a trace of cowardice and then because he is apparently oblivious to her presence; the latter weakness being always certain to annoy a beautiful girl.

Resenting an insult from Burke and showing the first flash of he-man that had stirred within him in months, Ross beats the American renegade to a pulp. He is injured himself in the scuffle. Dulce takes him to her room to dress his wounds. There is only one interpretation of the act in the talk of the cafe. With his wounds dressed, Ross goes out into the night with a determination to again get hold of himself and straighten up. Up in her room, Dulce is forced to admit to herself that she hates all men—but Ross.

Ross goes to work at the mine. The threatening of Cotopoxi had driven the superintendent away and Ross is in charge. He keeps his crew at work only through his own fearlessness.

Burke and his gang plan to rob the mine of the ore that Ross is trying to get to safety before Cotopaxi should shake the earth with its eruption and bury the town.

With the roar of artillery, Cotopaxi speaks. White-hot lava engulfs the mine. Burke and his men are trapped.

Only by a tremendous effort does Ross save Dulce.

The volcano had avenged her.

The coming of the dawn finds them watching the fires of nature cleanse Purisima of its sins.

Before them lay happiness.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

The earth shuddered and a godless town was cleansed of its sins in the baptismal fires of a volcano's wrath. See a city destroyed in "The Fire Cat."

How bad can a good girl be and how good can a bad girl be? See Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat," and see the two extremes dramatically enacted.

Can you imagine a sweetly innocent girl from the unsullied mountains of Peru suddenly leaving her home to dance in the lowest dive in the worst mining town in the Andes? See Edith Roberts as the girl in "The Fire Cat."

Edith More Enchanting Than Ever

Left—Edith Roberts In A Gay Mood In "The Fire Cat." Above—Edith, As Dulce, Seeks The Cool Quiet Of A Doorway.

AS gentle as the flocks which grazed on the verdant slopes of Cotopaxi when that majestic mountain of the Andes was in repose; as deadly as Cotopaxi in eruption when the hot Castilian blood tingled in her veins and revenge surged in her heart.

That is the characterization of Dulce Alvarez, the girl in whose likeness Edith Roberts appears in "The Fire Cat," her forthcoming production de luxe. And in it Edith is more than ever enchanting.

As Lasca, in the production of that name, she was a picturesque and appealing heroine; as Marama, the little half-caste in "The Adorable Savage" she was pure delight. But it is in "The Fire Cat" that Edith has the rôle of roles.

Never has author been kinder to a star in the creation of a character than was Norman Dawn, when he etched the role of Dulce for Edith Roberts. He has given her the entire scale of human passion to depict. From the gay-hearted simple little mountain-girl, grief transforms her into an avenging demon, and she goes forth into the sin-sodden town at the mountain's base to play the wanton and thus trap the human wolf who despoiled her home and robbed her of the one who was dearer to her than life itself.

Edith will have admirable support in "The Fire Cat." Her leading man will be Wallace McDonald. The "bad man" role will be portrayed by Walter Long. Beatriz Dominguez will have another one of her dashing characterizations in "The Fire Cat" and the rest of the cast includes Olga D'Mojean, Arthur Jasmine and William Eagle-Eye.

Universal has made some interesting plans for talented Miss Roberts. Several stories by well-known authors have been secured for her and the scenario department is busy whipping them into shape. Her next will be a different one entirely, having a decided "crook" angle and this she will follow up with a picture adaptation of Clara Louise Burnham's famous novel, "The Open Shutters."

Few young stars have had as rich and varied a screen career as Edith Roberts. She first appeared before the camera when most girls are still playing with their dolls and that is the reason why stardom and a mature art have come to her though she is still in her "teens."

Publicity Stories for Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat"

STAR'S WISH HAS BEEN FINALLY REALIZED

SINCE Edith Roberts became a film star, at the age of seventeen, her longing has been to buy a beautiful home for her mother and herself and this laudable ambition has finally been satisfied. Just before she began the filming of her latest photodrama, "The Fire Cat," in which she will be seen at the .... Theatre next ...., Miss Roberts and her best pal and friend—her mother—moved into their new home, which is one of the most charming in Hollywood, California. It is situated in Laurel Canyon, about five miles from Universal City, and was designed by one of the leading Los Angeles architects from plans suggested by Miss Roberts and her mother. Within a stone's throw of their spacious lawn are some of the leading lights in filmdom, many of whom have selected this part of the Hollywood foothills as an ideal home site.

Up to six months ago Miss Roberts lived in a rented home, as she was not quite sure of remaining in California. She still entertained thoughts of returning to her native New York City, as she had received many offers from eastern studios. But just before Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, sailed for Europe last summer, he gave Miss Roberts a contract and this fascinating young star will remain a Universalite for some time to come.

Edith Roberts is happy in her present role. It is one of those colorful characterizations in which she appears at her best—a Castilian girl who lives in the Peruvian Andes—and it was directed by the same master-craftsman who produced her former big successes—"Lasca," "The Adorable Savage" and "White Youth."

BANDIT'S CAVE UTILIZED IN THRILLING FILM

THE secret caves that shielded Valdez the notorious Mexican bandit from capture, play an important part in "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama in which Edith Roberts is to be seen at the .... Theatre next ....

The murky caverns are located in the almost inaccessible wilderness near King City, California. They were undiscovered until a posse searching for Valdez accidentally stumbled into the mouth of one of the grottos and saw the tiny spark of the bandit's camp fire far back in the shadowy recess.

Then followed the most sensational gun fight in the history of early California. Valdez and his gang were killed or captured. Because they are so far from civilization the caves were not visited until Norman Dawn took his Universal company into them to film a series of dramatic scenes for "The Fire Cat."

"The Fire Cat" is a colorful story of life in the South American mining district, in the heart of the Andes. Edith Roberts, the star, depicts the role of Dulce Alvarez, a native girl of primitive passions. In one of the sensational incidents in the story she leaves the shelter of her mountain home to go to the lawless town of Purisima where she becomes a dancer in order to lure to his death with the beauty of her body the man who murdered her mother.

In picturesque locale and brilliance of presentation, "The Fire Cat" is one of the best photodramatic efforts of the decade and will no doubt be largely attended at the ....Theatre.

FINE CASTING EVIDENT IN NEW ROBERTS' FILM

"THE Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama which is now playing at the .... Theatre has been set apart by critics as the best example of casting of recent months.

Each player in the romantic photoplay which serves Edith Roberts as a starring vehicle was selected for his or her fitness for the role.

Edith Roberts, the star, plays a role that was made for her. The story of "The Fire Cat" was written by Norman Dawn, her director, who knows her ability to depict the exotic and colorful characterization of a drama of that type.

Wallace McDonald, who plays the rôle of an American derelict in a South American Sodom appears as Miss Roberts' leading man and portrays the character with infinite skill.

What is perhaps the best example of individual fitness for a role is seen in Walter Long who plays the unspeakably brutal part of an American renegade bandit in the sin-sodden South American rendezvous of ruffians. Long reaches the profoundest depths of villainy in "The Fire Cat."

Beatriz Dominguez, the spectacular Spanish beauty who plays a dance hall queen, was the featured dancer of the Panama-Pacific Exposition where she became famous as "La Bella Sevilla."

Arthur Jasmine, who has an important character part did a similar screen interpretation in "Lasca" in support of the same star.

Olga D'Mojean, playing the rôle of the grande-dame, is a South American actress and adds to the Castilian personnel of the production, while William Eagle-Eye, one of the bandit gang, is a South American Indian who adopted the English version of "Aguillo-Ojo" as his name.

"THE FIRE CAT" FULL OF REALISM AND NOVELTY

THE queerest assortment of animals and reptiles ever assembled for a motion picture will be seen in "The Fire Cat," the South American screen drama in which Edith Roberts is to appear at the .... Theatre on ....

Heading the list is an ant-eater, an elegant little animal who would be happier if some plodding ant would wend a homeward way wearily through his cage. The little insecticide was brought to Universal City from old Mexico to furnish atmosphere for the picture.

Then there is a very svelt young Iguana which is nothing more nor less than a lizard. The Iguana, it seems, is as common in the Andes as mice in a bread-box and was imported along with an armadillo. An armadillo is a nasty little beast with a hard-shell skin who spends most of his spare time robbing graves. On the set he hob-nobs with a bone-crushing Vulture.

To get a pleasanter topic there are two baby llamas in the Universal City zoo which will be seen in the picture. According to Dawn, who is a South American and should know, the llama is a beast of burden who will toil all day under a definite load of say 100 pounds; but let some one add just an ounce to his pack and he'll pass out to the extent of laying down and declining to move an inch.

Innumerable Chihuahua dogs, sans hair, and mason fruit jars filled with active and dangerous Tarantulas are additions to the atmospheric livestock which will add color to the picture.

Difficult Role Capably Acted by Leading Man

THE role of David Ross in "The Fire Cat" makes heavy demands upon the dramatic ability of the leading man playing it, but Wallace McDonald handles it with poise and exquisite artistry.

It is in reality a dual role for he must first portray a man who has sunk to the lowest depths, who seeks his acquaintances in Purisima, "the hell-hole of the Andes," but who later "finds" once again the manhood that was always dormant in him through the influence of the beautiful girl so spiritedly played by Edith Roberts, the star of the production.

Wallace McDonald is another one of those "stagemen" who deserted the "legitimate" for the screen. And he has no reason to regret the step, for the silversheet seems to be the ideal medium for his engaging personality and versatile talents. He has become a popular photoplayer and each day his popularity is increasing. Born in Canada, Nova Scotia, to be exact, he began his stage career early in life, playing on his native soil and in the United States. He acted with a company in Los Angeles, and as with many others, the next step was the movies.

He has had an illustrious screen career, having appeared in numerous notable productions in support of some of the most famous of the screen's women.

Appearing with Mr. McDonald and Miss Roberts in "The Fire Cat" are several other notable players. In fact, the cast, which includes besides these two, Beatriz Dominguez, Olga D'Mojean, Arthur Jasmine, William Eagle Eye and Walter Long has been chosen with the utmost care and they fit their roles perfectly. Walter Long has another one of those "bad man" roles which he can portray so inimitably and Beatriz Dominguez is again a dashing Spanish beauty.

Wallace McDonald As David Ross In "The Fire Cat."

Good Advance Stories for "The Fire Cat"

THE depths of screen villainy are believed to have been reached by Walter Long, who plays the role of Gringo Burke, in "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama which comes to the .... Theatre on .... Long is remembered for his work as "the bad man" in several recent notable productions and more particularly, as "The Baboon" in Frank Mayo's feature, "Tiger True."

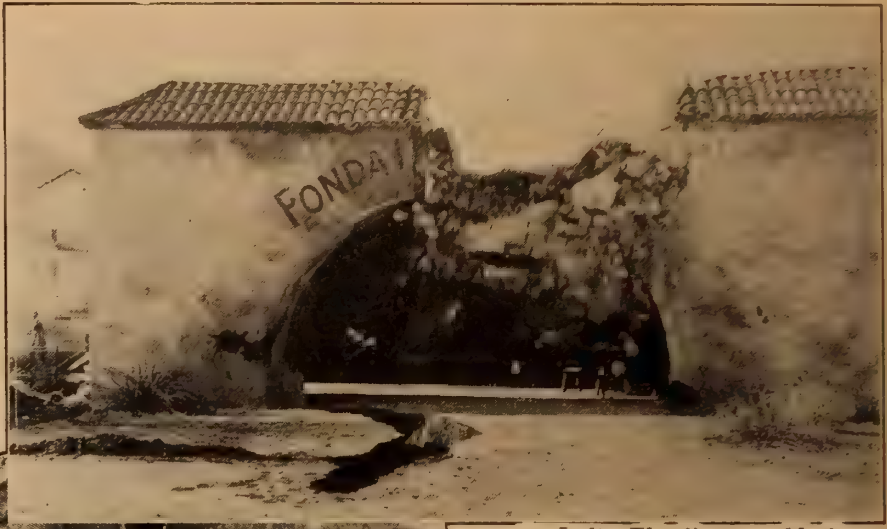
THE romantic fire of old Castile sparkles throughout the scenes of "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama coming to the Theatre on .... The Universal story was written by Norman Dawn, himself a South American, and is vibrant with the colorful romance of the Andes. Edith Roberts is in the starring role with a splendid cast of screen favorites in support.

AN ant-eater, an Iguana, a bone-crushing vulture, an armadillo, two baby llamas and a whole family of tarantulas are some of the strange creatures to be seen in "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama which begins its run at the .... Theatre on .... The story features Edith Roberts and is a romantic drama of Southern American life. The livestock is used to establish the South American atmosphere.

EDITH ROBERTS has another exuberant and exotic role in "The Fire Cat," her latest Universal photodrama which is to be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre beginning .... The star appears as a dancer in a lawless South American dive.

Earthquake Reproduced with Thr

Strange and unusual incidents have been introduced in Edith Roberts' next feature, which will cause a sensation. Director Norman Dawn has sent to South America for "atmosphere" and has given every detail most careful attention. "The Fire Cat" promises to be an artistic achievement in every way.



Left—The first rumble is heard.
Above—Destruction begins.

THE crust of the earth was cracked for a quarter of a mile, buildings toppled and a volcano hurled rocks sky-high in the filming of a photodrama at Universal City.

By artificial means the convulsions of nature were reproduced to serve the dramatic needs of a screen story.

The notable engineering feat was achieved by Norman Dawn, the Universal director, who wrote and is producing "The Fire Cat" as a starring vehicle for Edith Roberts.

The story, a romance of South America, required that a town be demolished by an earthquake and then flooded with lava from a volcano.

To produce the earthquake Universal civil engineers cut a jagged slice in the earth a quarter of a mile long and ten feet deep. Under ten equally divided sections of one side of the slice were placed sliding platforms. At this stage of the excavation the result might be visualized as folding doors, placed flat on the ground with ten feet of earth on each door. The ten sliding platforms were then attached to ten powerful motor trucks by concealed cables. The ten trucks were lined up evenly, each attached to one sliding platform by just enough cable to be out of camera range. With motors running the trucks waited for the word from Norman Dawn.

As the camera clicked the trucks leaped forward, pulling the crack in the earth apart with an effect exactly like an earthquake fissure At that moment a mountain in the background roared and the sky was bombarded with rock which fell on the scene in a genuinely dangerous barrage.

The volcano eruption was produced by dynamite. The peak of a high hill on Universal City property was drilled in twenty places and packed with dynamite. To give the effect of lava fifteen concealed sets of fire hose pumped scalding muddy water from the far side of the peak to rolling torrents down the side toward the camera. The dynamite was detonated by electricity. As the explosion hurled tons of rock and sand high into the air, the fire hose belched the dirty steaming water from their concealment.

To topple down the buildings nearest to the earthquake crack a dozen yoke of oxen were hitched to the adobe structure ten on each side. At a signal from Norman Dawn they were lashed into action, literally tearing the building apart.

"The Fire Cat" is one of the few photodramas in which a Universal director has been permitted to use artificial means to produce an effect. The story is so highly dramatic and the climax depends so much upon the earthquake that Dawn had the full co-operation of the Universal City engineers' corps to achieve his results.

The cast of "The Fire Cat," the Universal photodrama in which Edith Roberts is starring, is enchanced by the presence of a South American ant eater. The little fellow is about the size of a wood-chuck and has long and inquiring nose. He snuffs ants

ing Effect In "The Fire Cat"

Star not only has another colorful role but a highly emotional and dramatic one as well in "The Fire Cat." Those who remember the artistry of her work in "Lasca" and "The Adorable Savage" will delight again in her charming new picture de luxe.

Above—The wreckage.
Right—The rescue.

like an addict snuffs cocaine; that is when he can find any ants to snuff.

Just to give the setting the proper atmosphere, Dawn sent an assistant to the State of Sonora in old Mexico to get an ant-eater at any cost. The man was absent from Universal City for three weeks. He returned with $1500 worth of ant-eaters in a shoe-box. It cost just that amount to stage an ant-eater hunt in Sonora and to defray his transportation.

In addition to the ant-imbiber, the cast includes Walter Long, Beatriz Dominguez, Arthur Jasmine, Olga D'Mojean, Wallace McDonald and William Eagle-Eye, a famous Indian photoplayer.

The story of "The Fire Cat" was written by Dawn from his own South American experiences. He was born in that country and the picture will afford Edith Roberts one of her most colorful vehicles.

STAR AT HER BEST IN FOREIGN ROLES

JUST why a charming young American girl like Edith Roberts should appear at her best in roles that are so thoroughly foreign to her real self is a source of wonder to her personal friends, her directors and the officials at Universal City to whom she is best known. In real life Miss Roberts is a typical American girl of nineteen and thoroughly up to the hour in her tastes. Her clothes are ultra-smart, she knows and likes all the latest dancing steps, she reads the popular novels and likes the best music. But on the screen she has scored her biggest hits in the portrayal of out-of the-ordinary characters—strange, colorful maidens quite outside the pale of conventionality.

Her first success in a role of that type occurred about a year and a half ago when she was seen as the heroine in "Lasca," a film adaptation of the widely read poem by Frank Desprez. In the role of the untamed Mexican girl who loved and hated with the vehemence of unrestrained nature, she gave a new personality to the screen.

Some months later Edith Roberts again scored a triumph in "The Adorable Savage," in which she appeared as a half-caste girl in the Fiji Islands and gave an appealing portrayal of the struggle between the white and dark blood which coursed through her veins.

Her recent success, "White Youth," gave her an opportunity to appear as a French Creole maid in rural Louisiana whose impressions of life had been gained from romantic novels smuggled into her convent home.

In her latest production, "The Fire Cat," in which Miss Roberts will soon be seen, this charming little star appears as a South American girl whose life is dedicated to vengeance. It is said to be the most picturesque role of her career.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 12 FEBRUARY 5, 1921 No. 25

EDITORIALS

UNUSUAL praise and commendation for a moving picture have just been received by Universal from the Chairman of the Committee of Public Health and National Quarantine of the United States Senate. The picture in question is "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals," the remarkable adventure film accurately portraying the experiences of two Universal camera-men in the South Seas.

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" recently was booked for a week at the Leader Theatre, Washington, D. C. Senator Joseph Irwin France, of Maryland, the chairman of the aforenamed Senate Committee, heard about the picture, but was too late to catch it at the Leader.

Word of the Senator's interest reached Jules Levy, manager of Universal's Washington office, who immediately arranged a special showing of the film for the benefit of the Senate Committeeman.

"For many years, I have been deeply interested in the study of aboriginal peoples," explained Senator France, "and particularly in the inhabitants of the great undeveloped continent of Africa. It is because of my interest in this subject, that I was particularly pleased to know that this wonderful picture is now being offered to large and enthusiastic audiences throughout the United States.

"Not only is this picture most delightful from a romantic and artistic point of view, but it also has a high educational value from the fact that it shows the customs, dress, dances and habits of the primitive peoples of New Guinea.

"I feel that as a result of the wide publicity given this picture, the people of the United States will secure valuable information concerning the uncivilized portions of the world. This is an important work, for ultimately America must become the leader in advancing and improving the conditions among the backward peoples."

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" consists of seven reels actually filmed in Siam and along the cannibal coast of New Guinea. It shows a Siamese tiger hunt with startling climaxes, and gives a spirited and thrilling film history of the adventures of the two explorer-cameramen, Edward Laemmle and William F. Alder, among the New Guinea Head-hunters.

The picture is enjoying unusual success throughout the United States, being considered the greatest novelty of the past screen year. With the plot consisting only of the chronological adventures of the two Universal men, the picture contains so much unusual scenery, savage types, customs and rituals, that it stands by itself as a film combining the educational, the unusual and the sensational.

Exhibitors are finding the picture especially adapted to striking exploitation—with stunts varying from a jungle lobby and negroes dressed in cannibal garb—to educational tie-ups with local geographical societies, churches and schools.

JOE MARTIN, Universal's famous orang-outang, who has been "vacationing" for some weeks, has started the first of a new series of two reel comedies at Universal City, under the direction of Harry Burns, assisted by A. C. Stecker, Joe's trainer. Many of the animals in the Universal City zoo, from the tiny monkeys to the largest elephant, will be used in these comedies.

Joe's last two releases, "A Prohibition Monkey" and "A Wild Night," are among the best he has ever made and are meeting with the greatest success wherever shown.

WHAT are probably the most thrilling air pictures ever taken are included in International News No. 6, just released by Universal, and which show "Jersey" Ringle, Locklear's successor as a sky-dare-devil, performing stunts in an aeroplane high over Chattanooga, Tenn.

The pictures were filmed by John A. Bockhorst, himself an intrepid dare-devil, and upon whom International relies whenever there are dangerous pictures to be taken. Bockhorst set up his tripod in a sister ship to the one Ringle used for his stunts, and filmed the remarkable series of "shots" from a distance which seems to have imperilled the occupants of the two machines at all times.

Ringle's most foolhardy stunt, as shown in the news reel pictures, is to swing himself from one plane to the other—not by means of a rope ladder, but by having the planes almost brush each other in flight, so that he can make the transfer directly. As he is transferring to the aeroplane bearing the camera-man, his perilous work is seen at close range. He also makes the transfer back to the first plane, only a few feet from the camera.

The altitude of the two machines during these pictures is strikingly shown by the bird's-eye view of Chattanooga and the Tennessee River, with its beautiful Moccasin Bend, far below.

In the obtaining of these pictures, Bockhorst ran almost as much a chance as did Ringle. The two planes missed a crash by only a few inches. The camera-man received high praise from International and Universal officials for his work.

Mexico Extends a Gracious Invitation

Beatriz Domingeuz As She Appears In "The Fire Cat."

ONE of the longest trips on record to make a personal appearance will be undertaken by Beatriz Dominguez, portrayer of Spanish roles in a number of Universal productions, when she goes to Mexico City shortly to appear in person in the cinema theatres of that metropolis. The occasion will be the showing in Mexico City of "The Fire Cat," Edith Roberts' latest Universal feature—a story of the Peruvian Andes—in which Miss Dominguez plays an important role.

Owing to the fact that Miss Dominguez is probably the best known Spanish actress in the movies, the people of Mexico, Cuba and the Central and South American countries have made a star of her. Recently, when "The Moon Riders," a Universal serial, was shown in the Latin countries, the theatregoers insisted on Miss Dominguez being featured above the star of the production, and they have done the same with every photoplay in which she has appeared.

Recently the movie patrons of the Mexican capital have determined to see the Spanish actress in person, and they started a fund to pay Miss Dominguez' expenses to Mexico City. In less than a week nearly $1500 was collected at the various film theatres. Jean Wall, who represents the Universal Company in Mexico City, brought the money to Los Angeles last week and arranged with the actress to come to Mexico City in the Spring, when "The Fire Cat" is shown, stay a week or two, and appear and dance in person in every theatre where the picture will be shown.

Miss Dominguez' role in "The Fire Cat" is admirably suited to her particular type of beauty and her individual and striking talents. She plays the part of a dance-hall queen in the wickedest of semi-Spanish cities—Purisima. It is a role that is full of fire, and, naturally, Beatriz makes the most of it. She acts with that spontaneity and fervor for which she is so well known and appears to actually live her part. Her costumes are exquisite, charming examples of real Spanish style, and Beatriz wears them with superb grace.

Wild Settings for Universal Film

THE secret caves that shielded Valdez, the notorious California bandit from capture, play an important part in "The Fire Cat," the feature which Norman Dawn has produced for Universal, with Edith Roberts in the stellar role.

The hidden caverns are located in the almost inaccessible wilderness near King City, California. They were undiscovered until a posse searching for Valdez accidently stumbled into the mouth of one of the murky grottos and saw the spark of the bandit's camp-fire.

"The Fire Cat" is a colorful story of life in the South American mining district, in the heart of the Andes. Edith Roberts plays the role of Dulce, a native girl of primitive passions. The brutal part of Burke, a bandit, is depicted by Walter Long while Arthur Jasmine will follow his success in "Lasca" with a dramatic role in this forthcoming production.

The story hinges about a dangerous Andean volcano. For the graphic scene of the eruption, Dawn has actually blown the top off a mountain, one of the most hazardous undertakings ever attempted for the screen.

With thirty-five players and as many more artisans, Dawn went to King City, where the most dramatic sequences of the story were filmed.

Miles from the nearest settlement, the company was rationed along lines followed by the United States army and a field kitchen was used to prepare the food.

LITTLE BITS OF LIF

WHEN you get a picture that is so human that it amuses; so real that it compels, and so seasoned with action and suspense that it grips, you have exactly the kind of a picture that folks will go a long way to see.

SUCH a picture is "Rich Girl, Poor Girl"—with the added value of your kind of a pretty girl in the lead—a girl that takes you right along with her through every big and little emotion she experiences—a girl that makes you want to jump right into the screen and help her when she's in trouble and to laugh with her when she's happy.

YOU remember just how good your audiences considered "Pink Tights" and "Risky Business.". Here you have a picture even better than either of those. In a general sense this is of the same class—with a magnified appeal that will make you agree that as an honest-to-goodness attraction it's certainly one humdinger. Better book it—NOW.

It's one of those 52

GOOD PICTURES
a YEAR

— and no worry

AKE GREAT BIG PICTURES

Her Father

CARL LAEMMLE presents

GLADYS WALTON

Directed by HARRY HARRIS

in

RICH GIRL POOR GIRL"

Muggsy

Bumpus

Reginald

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring
HARRY CAREY
"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only' Jim"

Starring
FRANK MAYO
"Hitchin' Posts"
"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"

Starring
LYONS-MORAN
"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring
EDITH ROBERTS
"The Adorable Savage"
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"

Starring
CARMEL MYERS
"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring
EVA NOVAK
"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring
GLADYS WALTON
"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST
"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"
"The Devil's Passkey"
"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"
"The Great Air Robbery"
"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)
"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring
JOE MARTIN
(Two Reels)
"A Prohibition Monkey"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring
HOOT GIBSON
"Superstition"
"Fight It Out"
"The Man With The Punch"
"The Trail Of The Hound
"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"The Grip Of The Law"

Red Rider Series

Featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM
"A Son Of The North"
"The Girl And The Law"
"Big Stakes"
"When The Devil Laughed"
"The Forest Runners"
"The Timber Wolf"

Serials

Starring
EDDIE POLO
"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring
MARIE WALCAMP
"The Dragon's Net"

"The Moon Riders"
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Hot Dog"
"Laughing Gas"
"Tails Win"
"Trouble Bubbles"
"Their First Tintype"
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"

One Reel Star Comedies

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT
"Romeo and Juliet"
"Shapes and Scrapes"
"A Movie Bug"
"Forbidden Brew"
"Way Down North"
"Nearly Wed"
"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE-A-WEEK

(Reprinted From Motion Picture News, Issue of January 29, 1921, Page 1084.)

"RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL"

(UNIVERSAL)

Gladys Walton Scores in Heart Interest Story

THE elements which compose Gladys Walton's latest photoplay are sure-fire in their appeal and there is no doubt that " Rich Girl, Poor Girl," will meet with popular approval. Permit a pleasing personality like Miss Walton to appear in a vivid study of a street waif who manages to be happy despite a drunken father's abuse and then permit her to double in brass, as it were, and play the pampered daughter of the rich, and it is dollars to doughnuts that the picture will get over. J. G. Hawks has fashioned his tale after the manner of Mark Twain's " Prince and the Pauper." In other words, the girl of riches becomes the girl of poverty and vice versa.

This is a good idea for the expression of Miss Walton's talent and charm. It offers her opporttunities to present vivid contrasts. The environment of the poor is shown alongside of the estate of the rich. The early footage is given up to planting the characterization, after which it swings into its action—action of a melodramatic and local color brand. The introductory scenes show the Irish lass dancing on the pavement and going after beer for her father. She wanders to the rich girl's estate and the exchange of identities takes place. Quite appealing are those scenes given up to Miss Walton taking delight in the manners and customs of society. A bath in an artistic bathroom, followed by a royal dinner, are surefire incidents.

If the story sags, and it does so occasionally, the director introduces melodramatic hokum and the interest is maintained. The rich girl, disguised in the other's clothes, is made the victim of a kidnapping party, but is rescued in time to give the " alley gang " a dinner party. The author conveniently eliminates the drunken father by exposing his relationship as a fraud. Thus the poor girl is destined to become rich. The picture is Gladys Walton's any way you look at it. She is maintaining the stride revealed in " Pink Tights " and knows more about impersonation than a lot of beauties masquerading as stars. The action is told against a street set or two and the interiors of the tenement and the palace. The studio atmosphere is exposed in one scene which shows the breath exhalations of the players. Such a story is far-fetched. But Mark Twain found it sure-fire and so has J. G. Hawks. " Rich Girl, Poor Girl," is vivid in characterization and carries the elements of heart interest, pathos and romance. The double exposure work is commendable.—Length, 5 reels.—LAURENCE REID.

Stage And Screen Stars Meet

Marjorie Wood and Priscilla Dean

MARJORIE WOOD, the actress, who so vividly portrays "the wild woman of the desert" in that great musical spectacle drama, "Chu Chin Chow," made a pilgrimage to Universal City recently, while that famous stage play was enjoying a successful engagement in Los Angeles. There she came upon Priscilla Dean whom she had not seen for years, and there was a delightful re-union indeed.

Marjorie Wood and Priscilla Dean played kiddie rôles in the spoken drama when they were little more than "tots." Both girls are the daughters of famous stage women. Miss Dean's mother is May Preston Dean, who some years ago was a great favorite with playgoers and Miss Wood's mother, Marguerite St. John, was equally popular.

Marjorie and Priscilla soon found that professionally they had much in common. Both of them always portray spirited female types—"the sweet young thing" is not in their respective lines at all. Marjorie's portrayal of the "exotic desert woman" in "Chu Chin Chow" is a delight to watch and Priscilla's "peppy" performances in "The Exquisite Thief," "The Wildcat of Paris," "The Virgin of Stamboul," "Outside The Law" are still fresh in the minds of those thousands who witnessed them and are daily being witnessed by more delighted multitudes.

Miss Wood watched Priscilla at work on her next Jewel feature, started several weeks ago at Universal City, and Miss Dean returned the compliment from a box at the Los Angeles Theatre where "Chu Chin Chow" was playing.

Universal City is a Mecca for illustrious travelers; invariably they stop over at the big west coast studio city to view the wonders of the movies. Political personalities, royalties, famous artists and athletes, "all kinds and conditions of men" prominent in the public eye, have visited Universal's capital. And all of them agree that it is one of the most wonderful places they have ever been in.

Browning Busy

TOD BROWNING is busy again. In fact there seems never to be a time when he is not doing something interesting to the movie world.

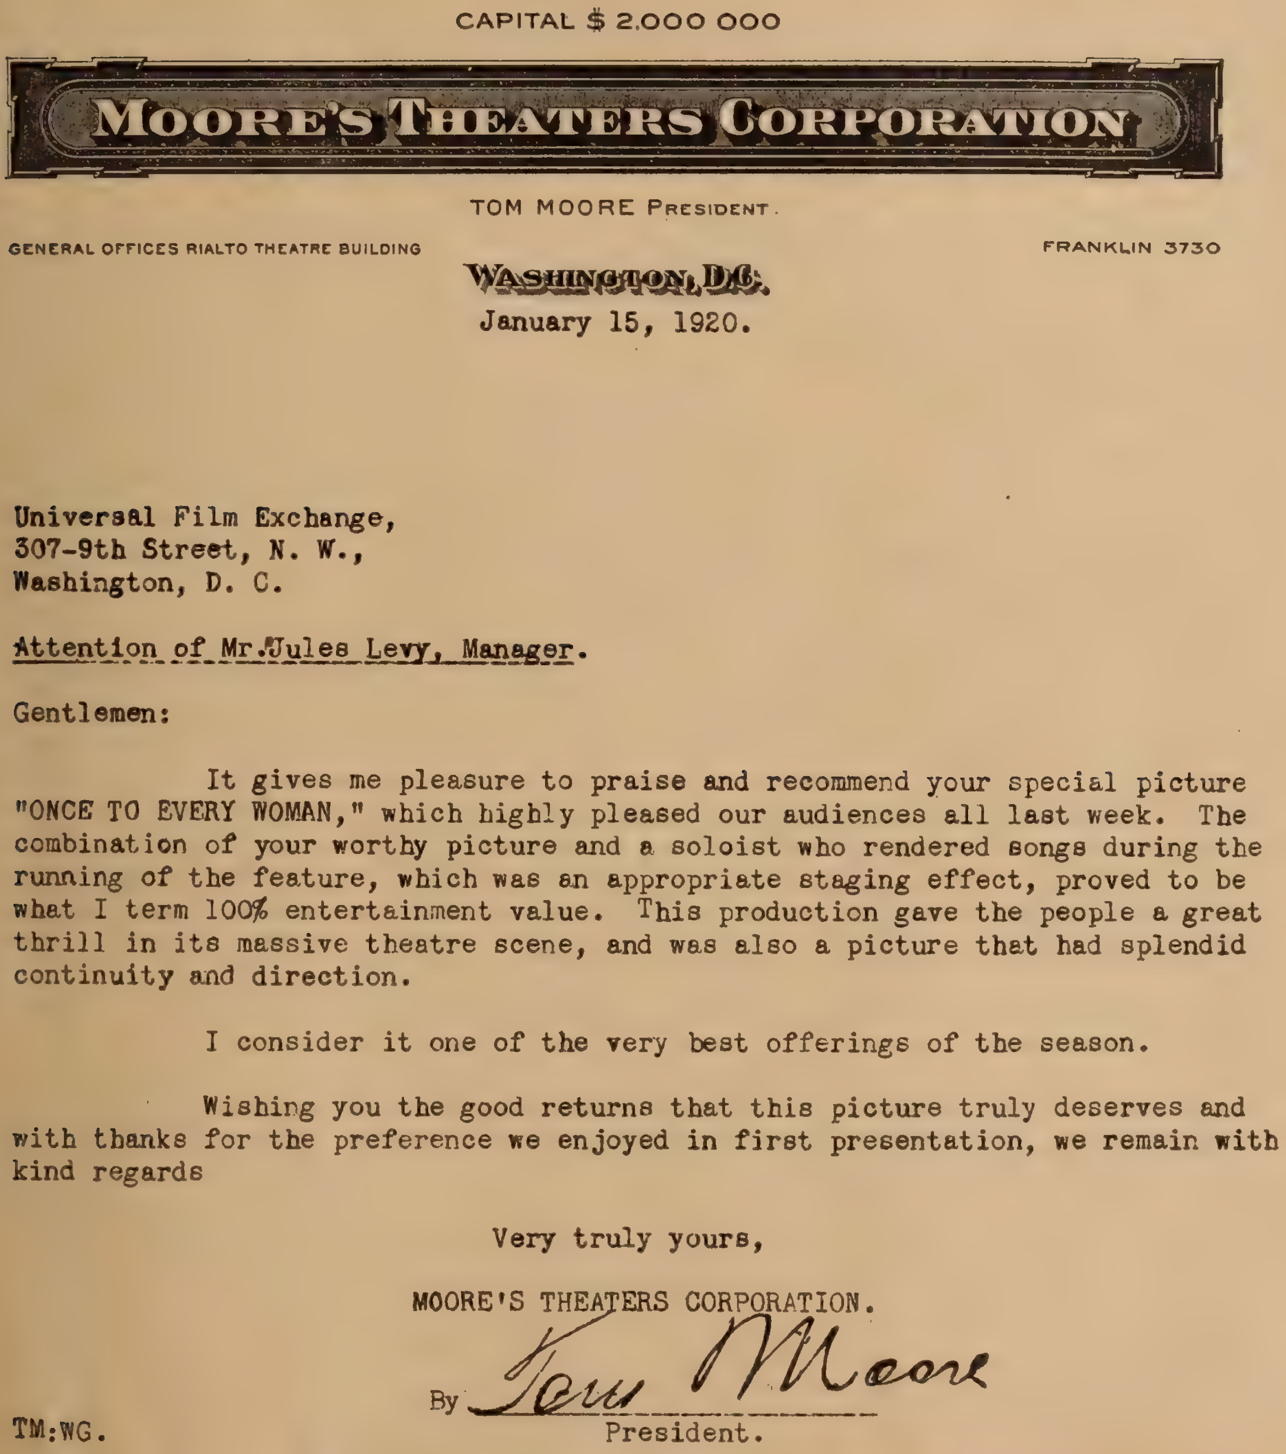
Universal announces the purchase of a novel by the famous Edna Ferber, entitled "Fanny Herself" and it further announces that the picture to be made therefrom will have the competent guidance of Director Browning's talented hand.

The cast will be an illustrious one and although no names have as yet been announced, reports have come from the big west coast studios that several personalities famous in cinema circles have already been engaged. In fact, the cast will be an all star one.

It is a foregone conclusion that the picture from "Fanny Herself" will be a great one in every way for great things are in Tod Browning's field. He made the exquisite "The Virgin Of Stamboul," with Priscilla Dean and he is also responsible for "Outside The Law," "The Greatest American Melodrama Ever Screened" in which Priscilla Dean, Lon Chaney, Wheeler Oakman and a capable cast will soon startle filmdom in America.

The purchase of "Fanny Herself" by Edna Ferber is in a line with Universal's general policy of buying the best to be had in the literary field for the use of its players.

Isn't This Great?



CAPITAL $ 2.000 000

MOORE'S THEATERS CORPORATION

TOM MOORE President.

GENERAL OFFICES RIALTO THEATRE BUILDING

FRANKLIN 3730

WASHINGTON, D.C.

January 15, 1920.

Universal Film Exchange,
307-9th Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Attention of Mr. Jules Levy, Manager.

Gentlemen:

It gives me pleasure to praise and recommend your special picture "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN," which highly pleased our audiences all last week. The combination of your worthy picture and a soloist who rendered songs during the running of the feature, which was an appropriate staging effect, proved to be what I term 100% entertainment value. This production gave the people a great thrill in its massive theatre scene, and was also a picture that had splendid continuity and direction.

I consider it one of the very best offerings of the season.

Wishing you the good returns that this picture truly deserves and with thanks for the preference we enjoyed in first presentation, we remain with kind regards

Very truly yours,

MOORE'S THEATERS CORPORATION.

By Tom Moore
President.

TM:WG.

(Reprinted From The London (England) Express, Sept. 5, 1920.)

SEA PICTURES

STRENUOUS THRILLS IN "UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

SINCE the days of clipper freights, and probably before, American skippers out of 'Frisco have had a reputation for brutality that stinks the world over, coupled with a notoriety for the use of language that makes even Cardiff and Liverpool blush, and has noticeably deepened the tint of Pacific blue. It is probable that only among the fraternity sailing out of the Golden Gate could exist such characters as "Shanghai Smith," whom one meets in the works of Morley Roberts, and the similar hard-living and hard-fighting men encountered in some of the books of Jack London.

A MARITIME EPIC

This general atmosphere contained in the reputation of 'Frisco and its skippers forms the motive of "Under Crimson Skies," a new Universal-Jewel production, marked by all the wealth of imagination, great pictorial effects, fidelity to type, and romantic sweep of this famous series of films. They are splendid even in their failures, but in courage, a certain grandeur of conception, and efforts to find new and unconventional methods of film-expressions, they have never been surpassed. The present film, which was shown to the trade last Friday afternoon, is to be numbered among their successes. My opinion has long been that the spirit at work in the big Universal films comes nearer to the true line of development in screen art than any other.

LADYLIKE EXHIBITIONS

Being a masterpiece of its class, "Under Crimson Skies" was most favorably received, but it will probably not be booked by the considerable number of exhibitors with ladylike instincts, as it contains a strong, brutal story, and gallantry demands that the motto in some exhibiting circles should be "Women and children first." After all the namby-pamby work to which the British industry has lately treated us, this virile American film is as refreshing as its own sea-breezes.

Why is it that we cannot get stories of the sea from British producers? Why is it left to America to show us pictures of a barque in full sail, perhaps the finest sight in the world, and all the wonderful pictorial effects to be obtained on shipboard, especially storm scenes? Stevenson would have revelled in this film, and so would Conrad.

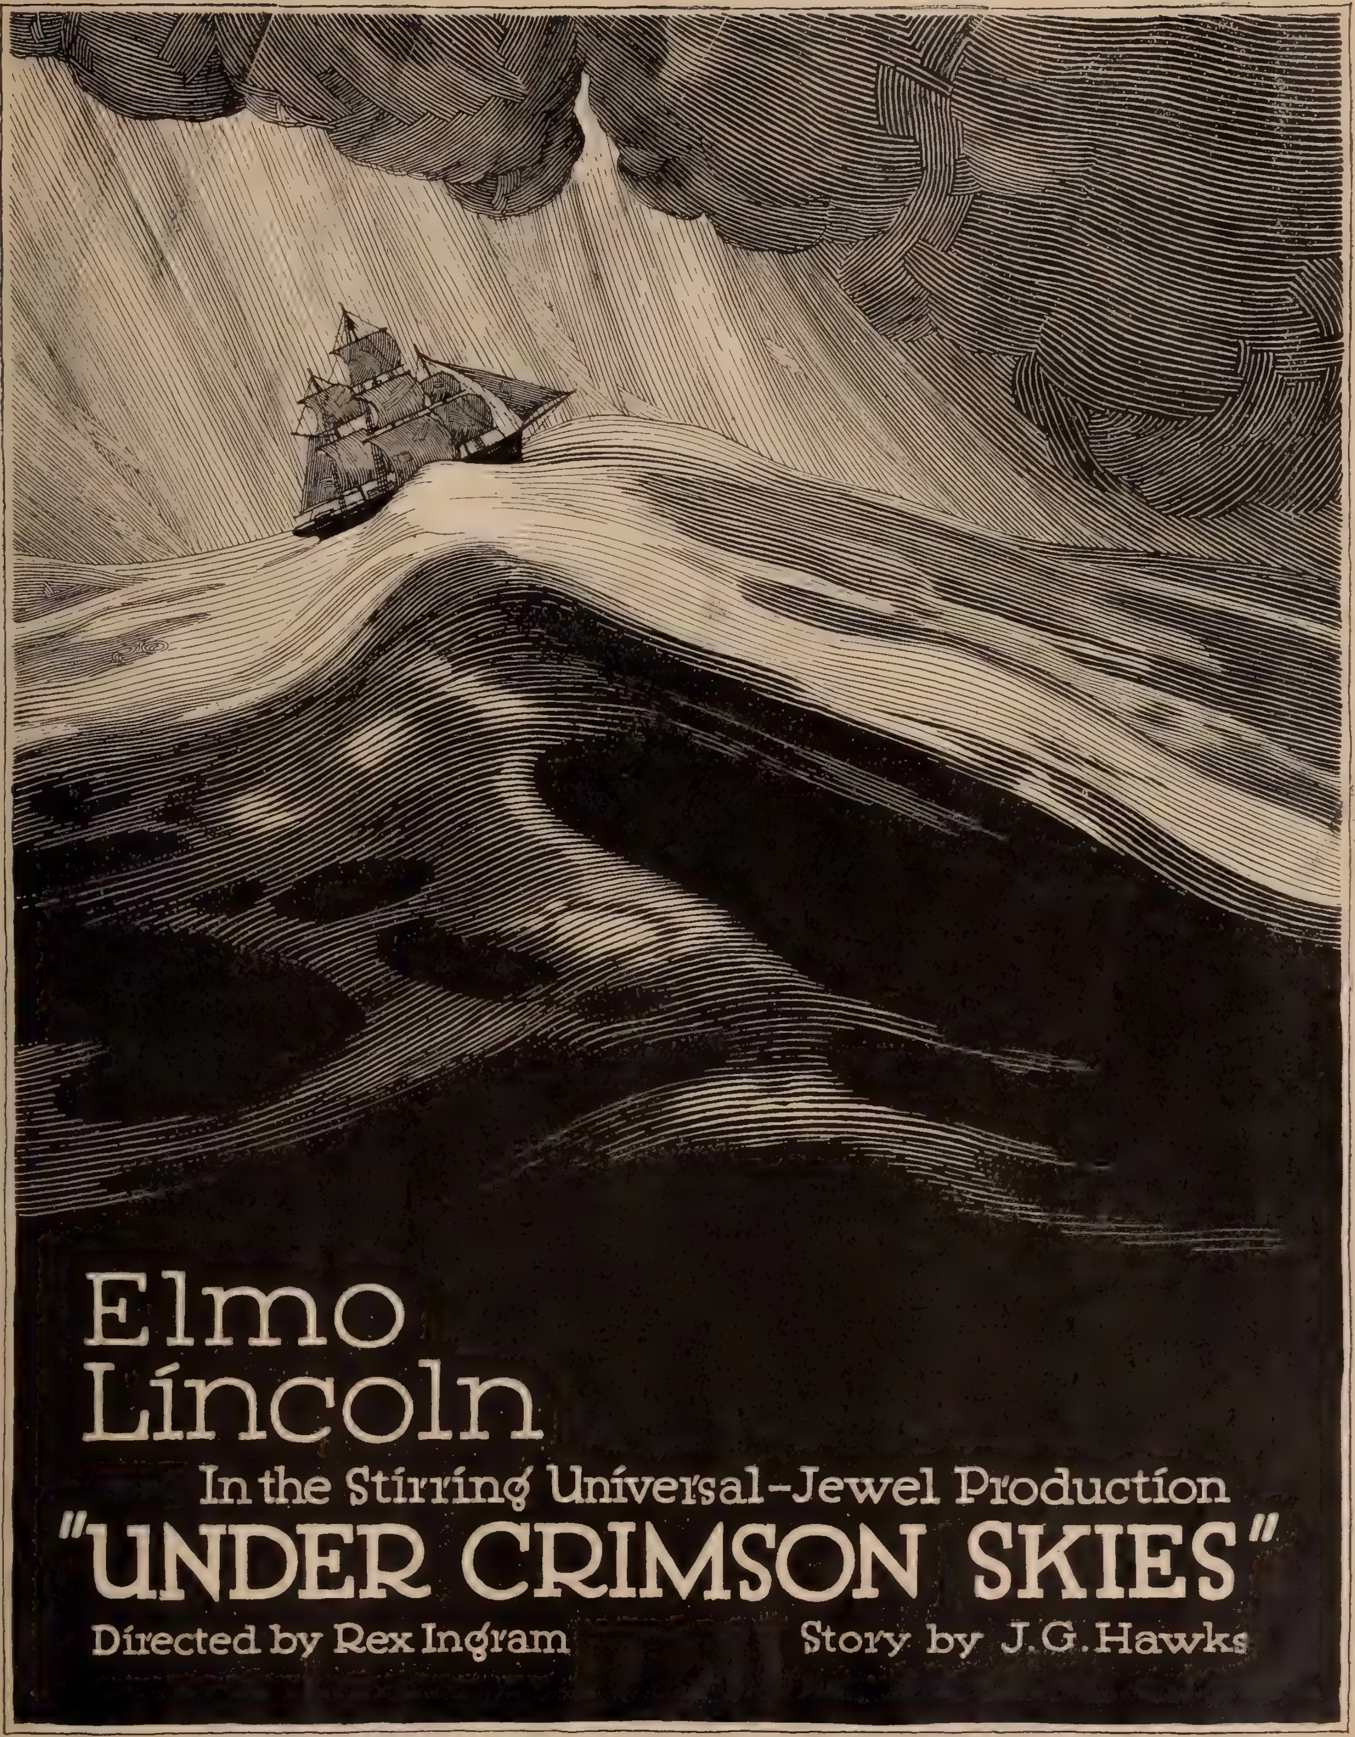
GUN-RUNNING

It features Elmo Lincoln in the role of skipper of a gun-running wind-jammer trading between 'Frisco and Puerto Cortez. . .. .. . .he makes a magnificent savage when he joins the honorable society of Pacific beach-combers after escaping from a South American gaol. The gallery of out-of-the-way human types shown in this film is simply marvelous.

They are repellant but fascinating, and one feels that they are truly drawn. Scenes of a South American revolution, in a country where they change their governments more frequently than their shirts, are not quite so convincing, perhaps, because we in this country never get nearer to revolution than a coal strike, but we are glad, all the same, to see the manly and much-injured skipper marry the widow of the cowardly gun-runner. It is a great scene when the gallant captain breaks a piano out of the hold, in order that the lady may play him a sea chanty, and finds that the instrument is full of potential military music in the shape of rifles.

STORM AT SEA

From a technical point of view the film is flawless. Its interest and excitement never flag, and there is a memorable punch in the sub-titles, also much humor. The film reaches its climax in the scenes showing a storm at night on shipboard, with the vessel swept from end to end by huge avalanches of water and fierce spray, and everything on deck awash or afloat, including the human beings trying to force their way along in the teeth of the gale. There is also a brilliant flash of characterization in the role of "J. de Pyster O'Toole," a South American "war correspondent de luxe."



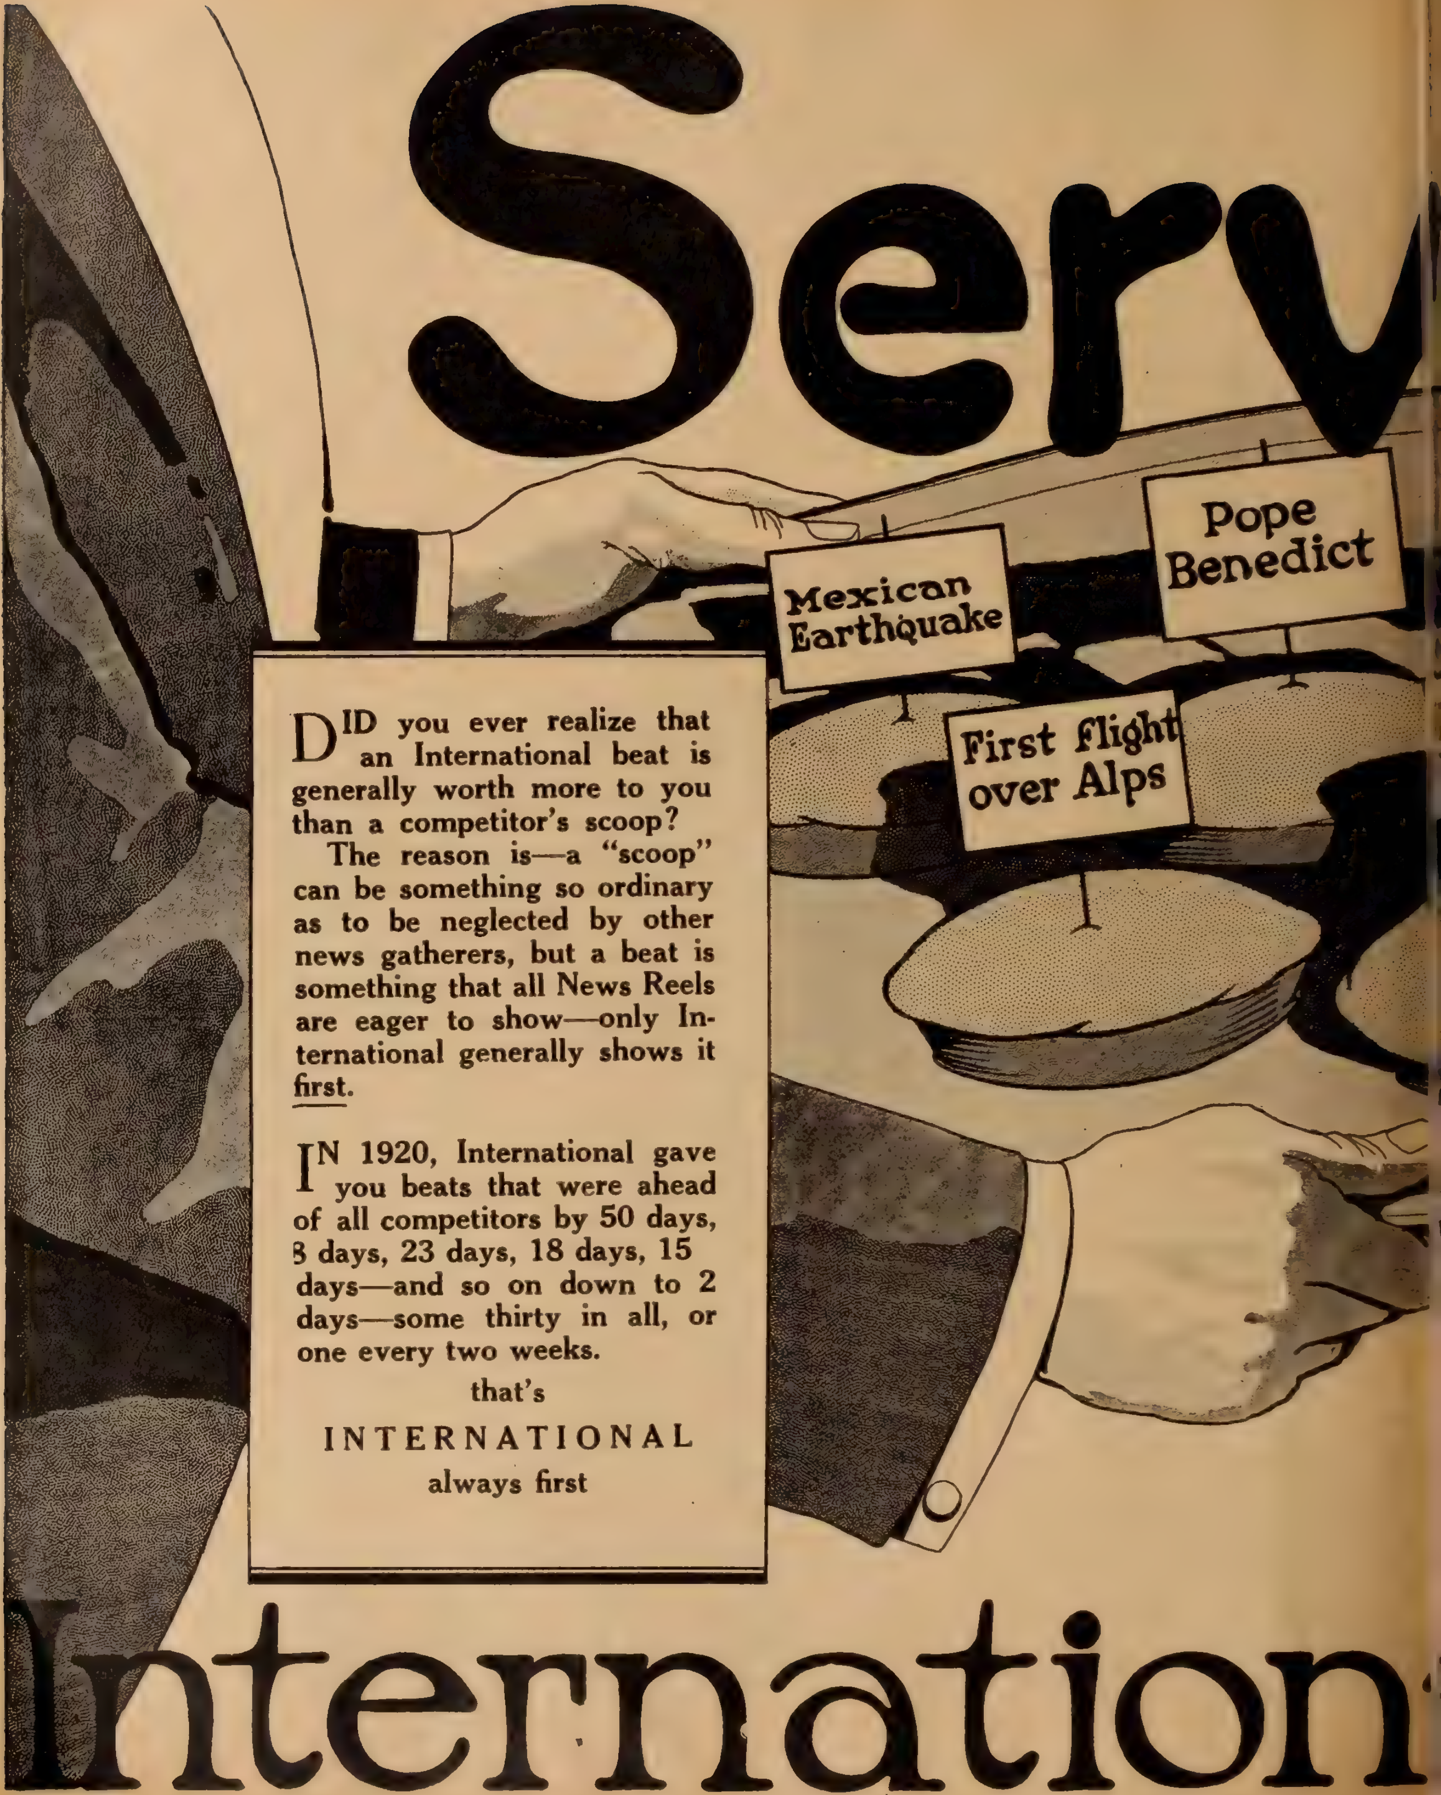
Elmo
Líncoln

In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by Rex Ingram

Story by J. G. Hawks



Serv
Mexican Earthquake
Pope Benedict
First Flight over Alps
Internation

DID you ever realize that an International beat is generally worth more to you than a competitor's scoop?

The reason is—a "scoop" can be something so ordinary as to be neglected by other news gatherers, but a beat is something that all News Reels are eager to show—only International generally shows it first.

IN 1920, International gave you beats that were ahead of all competitors by 50 days, 8 days, 23 days, 18 days, 15 days—and so on down to 2 days—some thirty in all, or one every two weeks.

that's

INTERNATIONAL always first ice! 1920

EXCLUSIVE DISHES

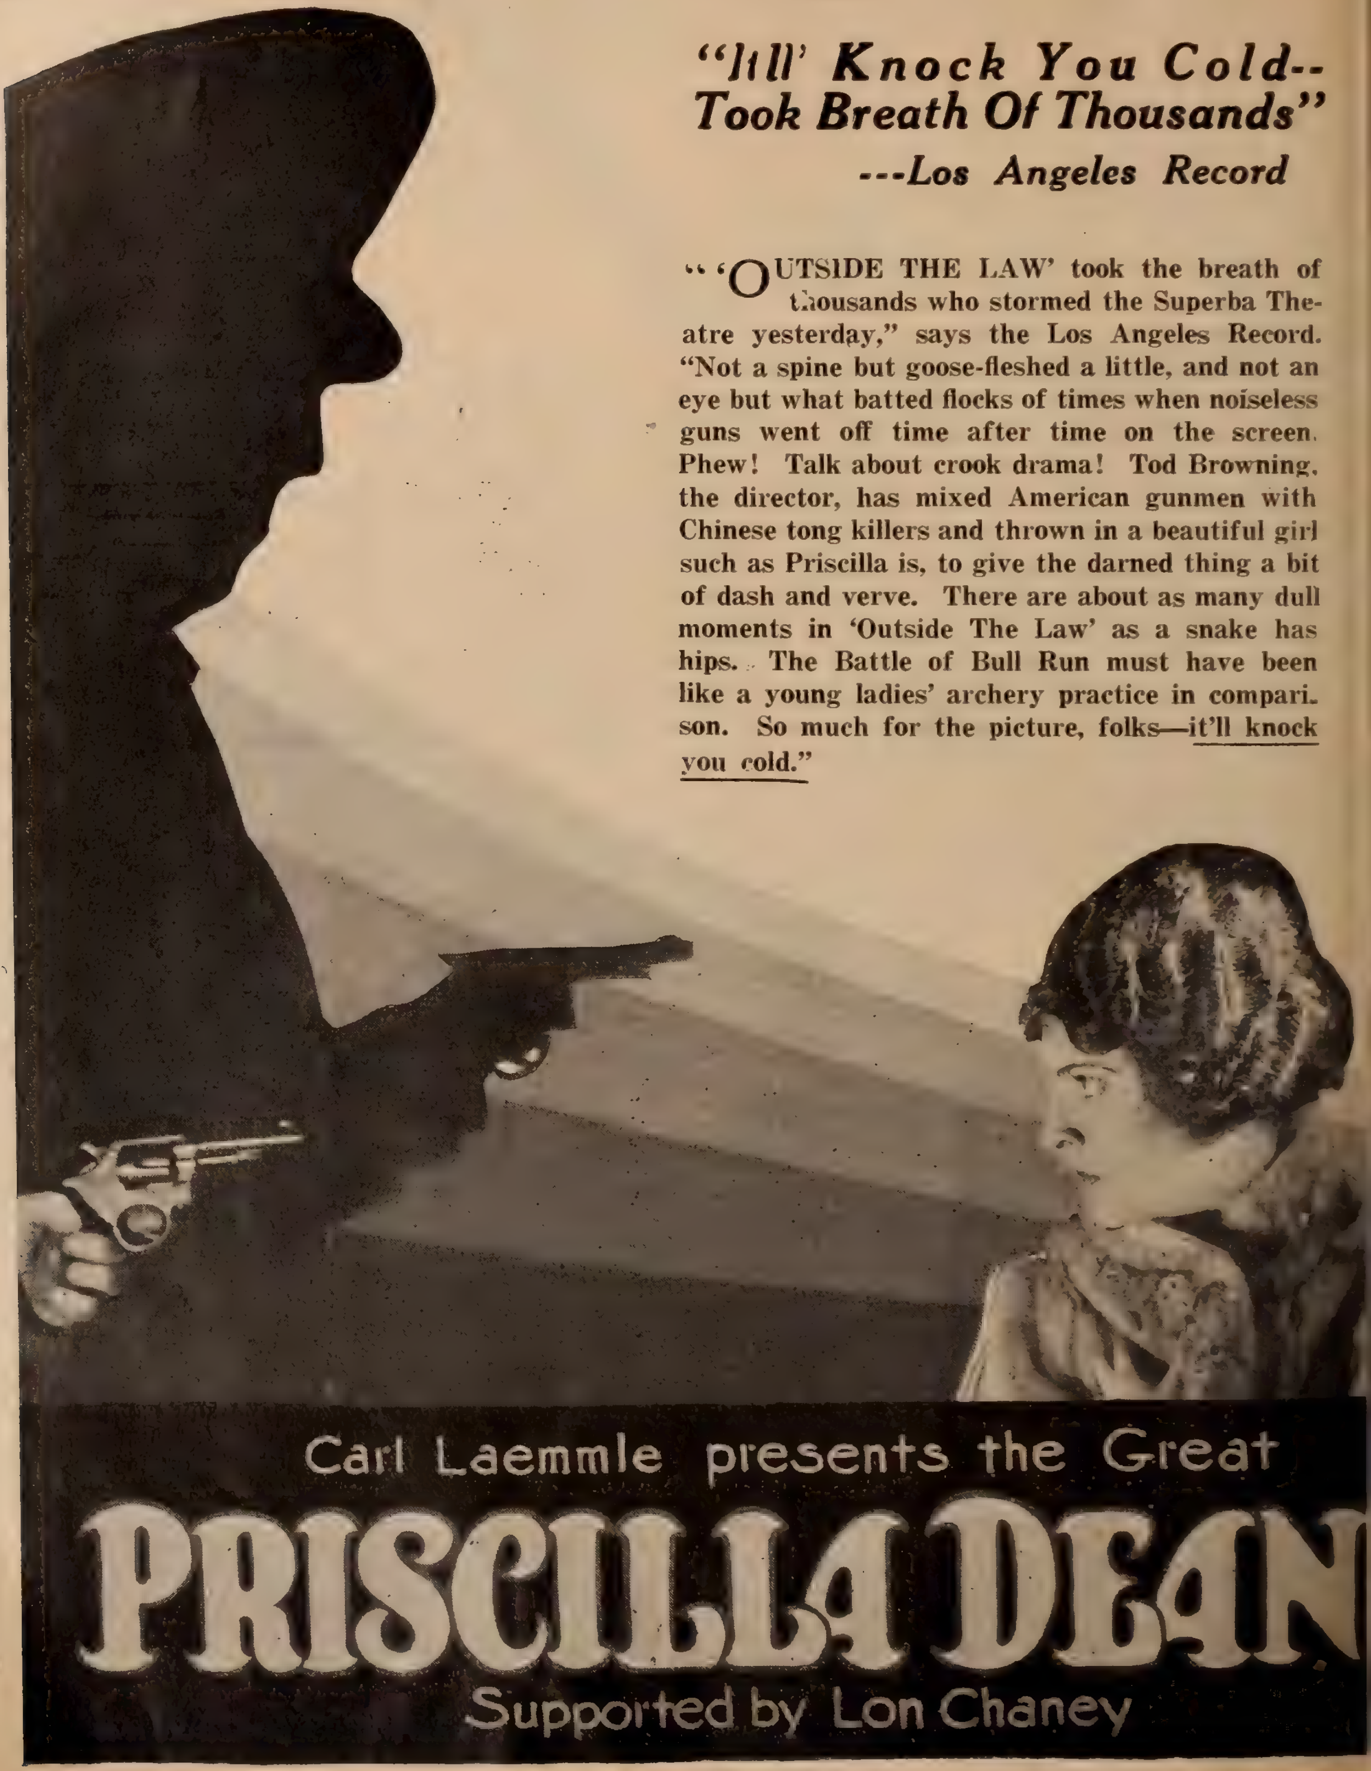
WE cannot show you all the exclusive news pictures we screened in 1920—we cannot even take the space to list them—we simply pick out seven of the forty-four exclusives as first-rate samples of the kind of service in exclusives alone which International News has been furnishing you with right straight through the year 1920. In addition to these exclusives, International gave you some thirty beats—news happenings which we put on your screen anywhere from two to fifty days sooner than our competitors put them in the screen of your competitors. This is what we call "SERVICE"—because not one of these exclusives or beats cost you one penny in excess of what you contracted to pay for your year's showings.

al News-released thru UNIVERSAL

“It'll Knock You Cold-- Took Breath Of Thousands”

---Los Angeles Record

“‘OUTSIDE THE LAW’ took the breath of thousands who stormed the Superba Theatre yesterday,” says the Los Angeles Record. “Not a spine but goose-fleshed a little, and not an eye but what batted flocks of times when noiseless guns went off time after time on the screen. Phew! Talk about crook drama! Tod Browning, the director, has mixed American gunmen with Chinese tong killers and thrown in a beautiful girl such as Priscilla is, to give the darned thing a bit of dash and verve. There are about as many dull moments in ‘Outside The Law’ as a snake has hips. The Battle of Bull Run must have been like a young ladies' archery practice in comparison. So much for the picture, folks—it'll knock you cold.”



"Worth going miles to see-- Best crook picture yet"

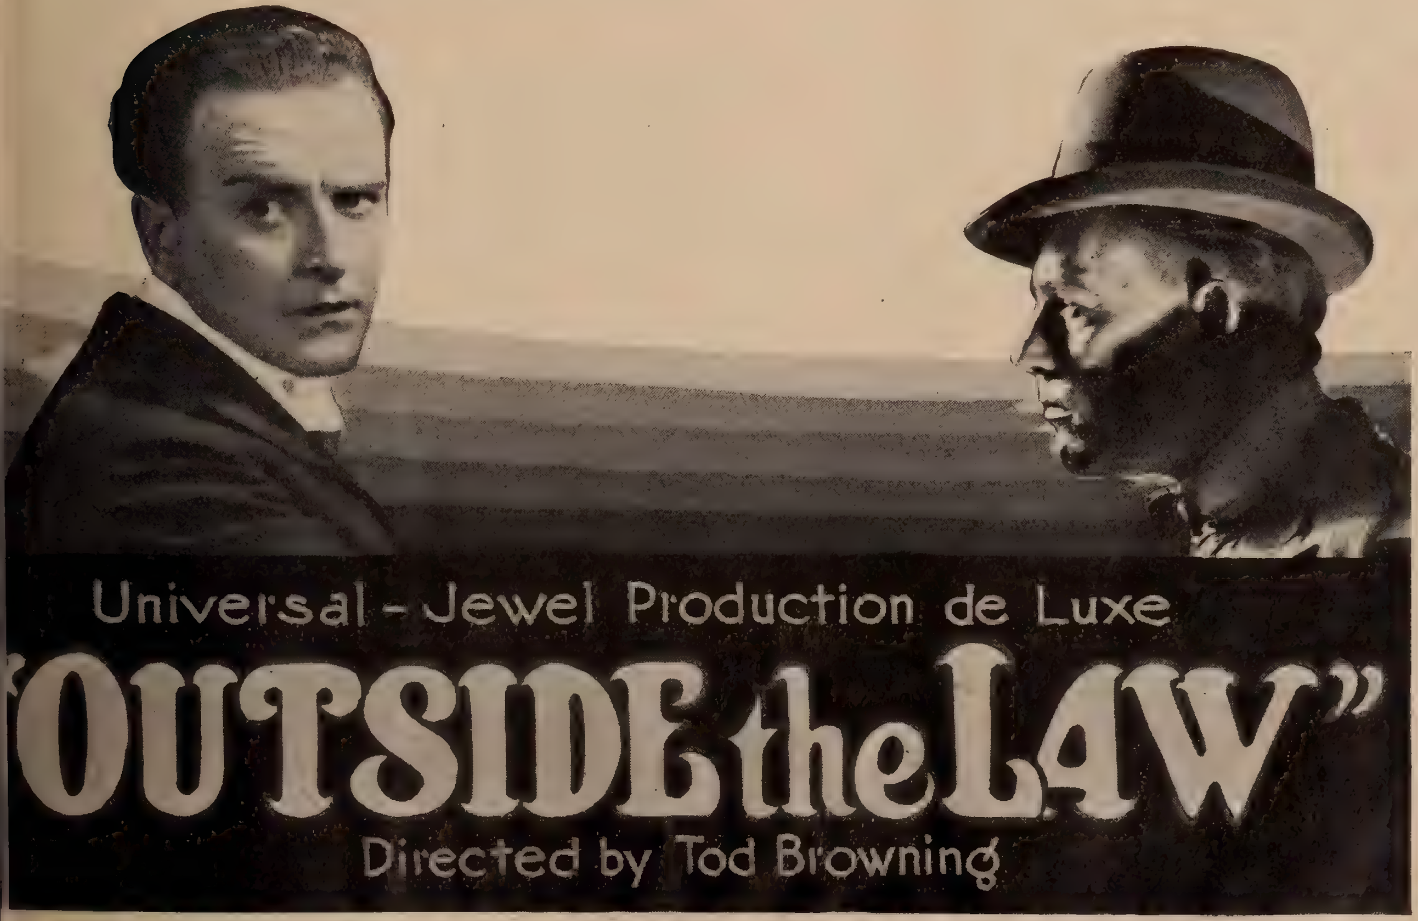
---Zit's Weekly

"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' . . . is a splendid picture that really deserves a long run on Broadway," says Zit's Weekly Newspaper. "It tells one of those interesting crook yarns in which something is happening all the time. . . . Priscilla Dean is a most energetic sort of feminine crook. As 'Silky Moll' she gives a very convincing performance. . . . There is a fight scene that takes place in a palatial Chinese home that is worth going miles to witness. The cast was excellent throughout. Wheeler Oakman can always be depended upon to be a nice hero, and Lon Chaney in a dual role deserves special commendation for his versatile characterizations. . . . 'Outside The Law' is the best crook picture we have witnessed in the longest time; it tells a gripping story in a fascinating manner and maintains one's interest at all times."

"Priscilla Holds Long-Time Mortgage On Popularity"

---Los Angeles Times

"IF there is one star that holds a long-time mortgage on popularity it is Priscilla Dean," states the Los Angeles Times. "No matter how many months elapse between the showings of her pictures the audience line-up is just as lengthy as ever. In fact, one would judge by the crowd that assembled at the Superba to witness the performance of 'Outside The Law' that everybody in town wanted to catch a glimpse of Priscilla's black eyes, her devil-may-care smile and enjoy the thrill of her ever-vibrant personality. . . . The photoplay opens with a fight and closes with one. . . . It's the biggest and most blood-curdling chop-suey party ever staged for the screen. . . . There is an admirable handling of the burglar episode and the hiding out of the crooks. This is very clever and even, you might say, original stuff."



What more can you

M.P.
NEWS

"CARRIES the spectator off his feet—makes him forget he is looking at a picture. Excellent action—carefully-planned scenes—perfect suspense—a dramatic and thrilling climax. Elaborate sets—faultless titles—scarcely a scene could be eliminated. One of the most logical productions of all time. It is there from every angle."

WID

"HERE'S another good one with Priscilla Dean. Lon Chaney—you can talk about him to the limit. If you say he is the best character on the screen you won't be far wrong. A mighty good picture, with a battle at the finish that is bound to get them going. One of the best casts ever assembled. Direction—uniformly excellent."

M.P.
WORLD

"MANY melodramatic moments—thoroughly attractive to the eye—exceptionally fine from a photographic standpoint."

"The settings are sumptuous."

"The child interest is very appealing."

CARL LAEMMLE presents TOD BR

The Most Amazing AMERICAN

PRISCILLA

"OUTSIDE

say of any picture ?

"THOSE who like melodrama are certainly going to like "OUTSIDE THE LAW."
"It is bigger than anything of the kind we have seen."

"Lon Chaney, of course, is excellent."

N.Y.
TRIBUNE

"THE character work is very good."
"The action scenes form the best part of the show."

"Stanley Goethals, as the baby, is a delight."

N.Y.
AMERICAN

"ABOVE the average in point of suspense and development."

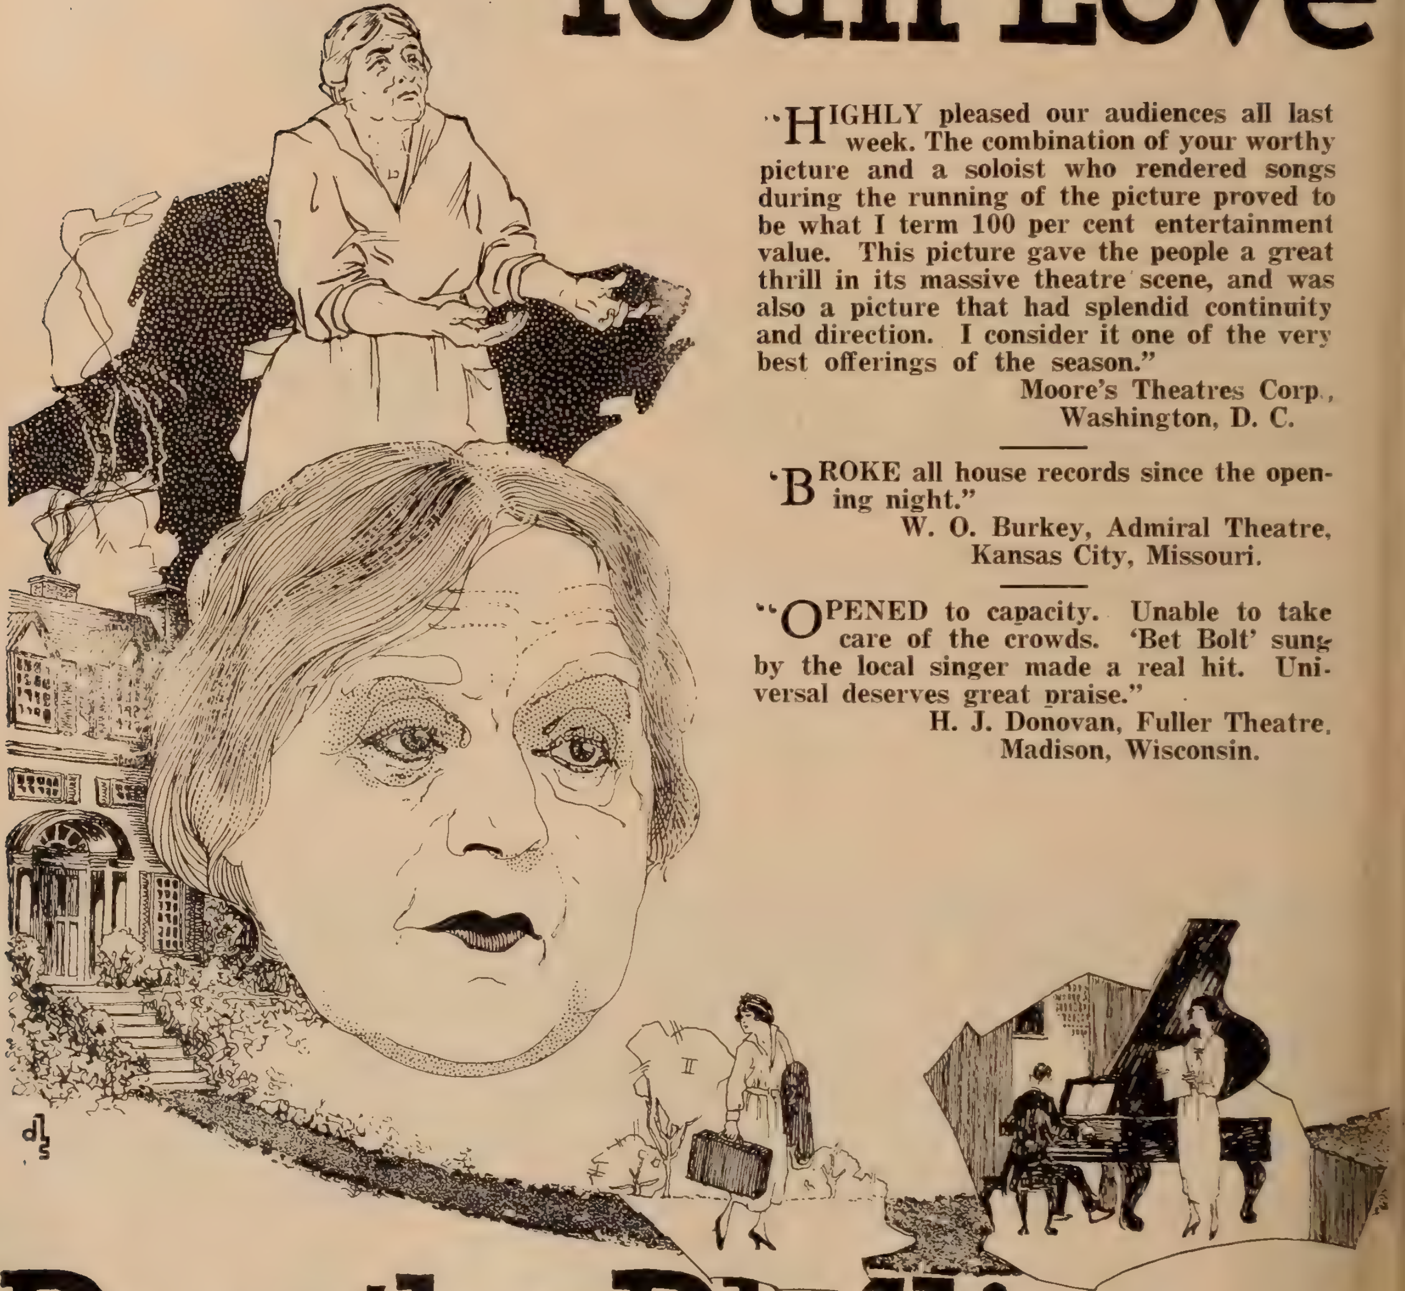
"Lon Chaney is convincing, Priscilla Dean and Wheeler Oakman fulfill all requirements."

"Stanley Goethals (the baby) is one of the picture's high-lights."

N.Y.
MORN.
TELEGRAPH

VNING'S greatest UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
MELODRAMA Ever Screened
DEAN Supported by
LON CHANEY
THE LAW"

If You Love You'll Love



"HIGHLY pleased our audiences all last week. The combination of your worthy picture and a soloist who rendered songs during the running of the picture proved to be what I term 100 per cent entertainment value. This picture gave the people a great thrill in its massive theatre scene, and was also a picture that had splendid continuity and direction. I consider it one of the very best offerings of the season."

Moore's Theatres Corp.,
Washington, D. C.

"BROKE all house records since the opening night."

W. O. Burkey, Admiral Theatre,
Kansas City, Missouri.

"OPENED to capacity. Unable to take care of the crowds. 'Bet Bolt' sung by the local singer made a real hit. Universal deserves great praise."

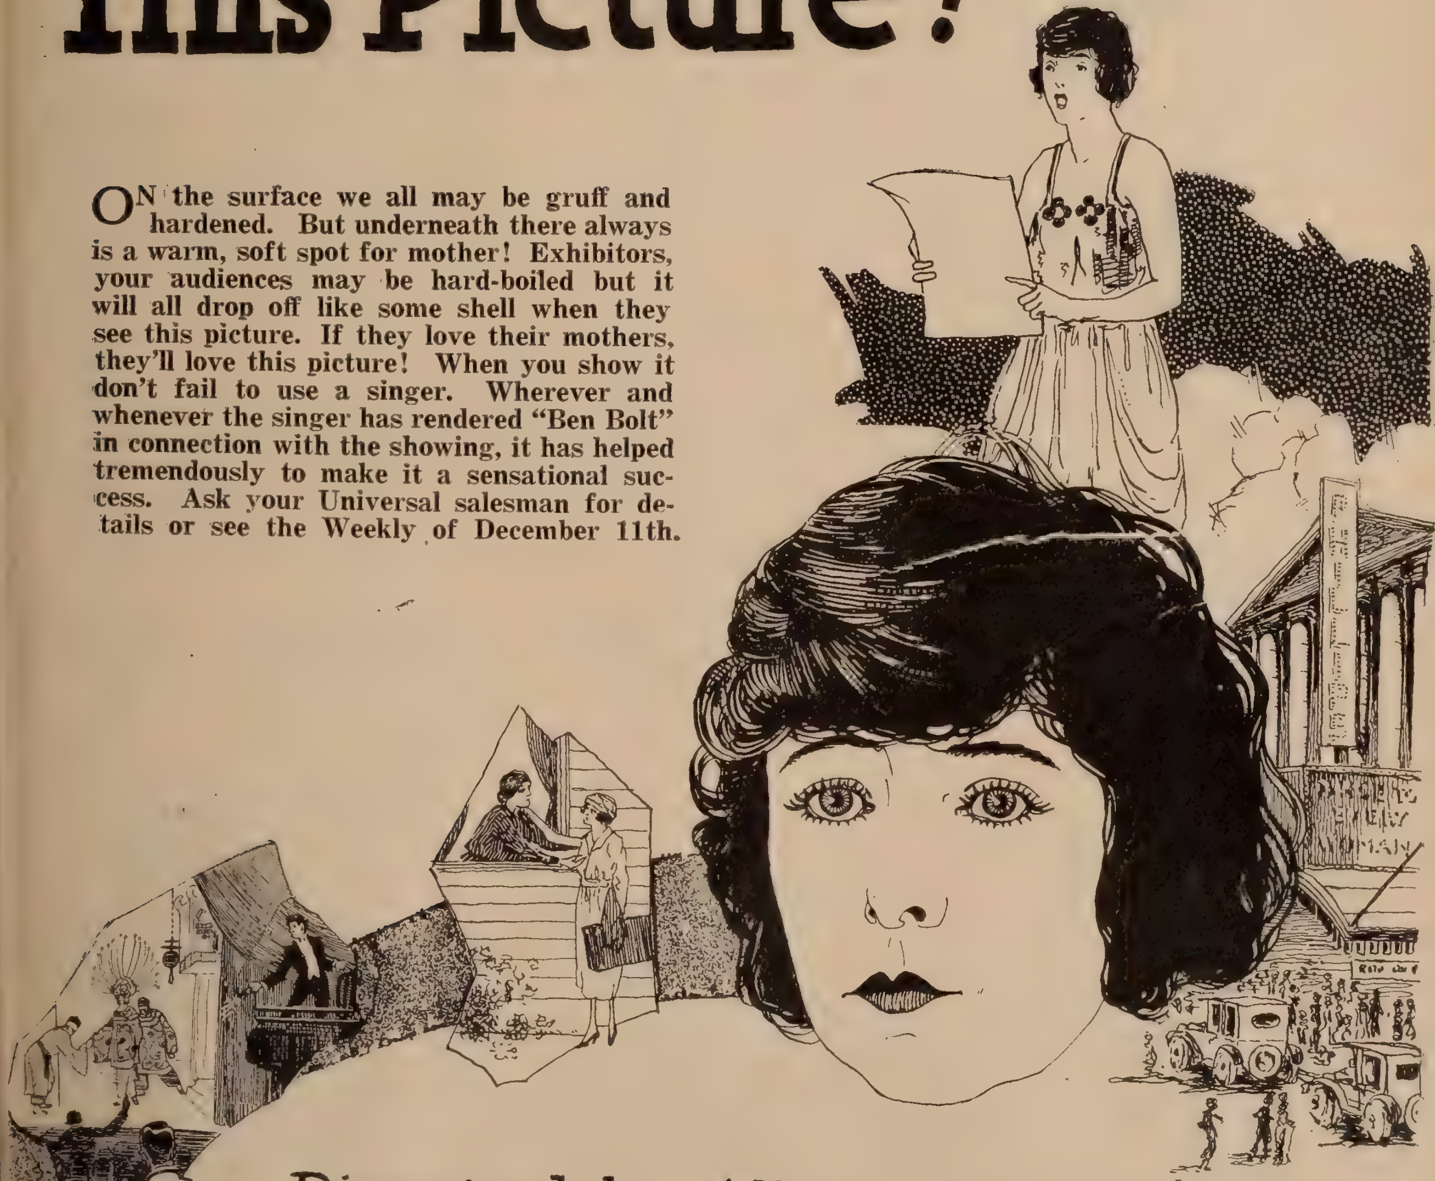
H. J. Donovan, Fuller Theatre,
Madison, Wisconsin.

Dorothy Phillips in

UNIVERSAL — JEWEL

Your Mother, This Picture!

ON the surface we all may be gruff and hardened. But underneath there always is a warm, soft spot for mother! Exhibitors, your audiences may be hard-boiled but it will all drop off like some shell when they see this picture. If they love their mothers, they'll love this picture! When you show it don't fail to use a singer. Wherever and whenever the singer has rendered "Ben Bolt" in connection with the showing, it has helped tremendously to make it a sensational success. Ask your Universal salesman for details or see the Weekly of December 11th.



Directed by Allen Holubar

"Once to Every Woman"

PRODUCTION DE LUXE

A Small Town Wife

Went Big In A Small Town!

"WENT over big. Proved everything you claimed for it. Business for four days more than came up to our expectations."

—F. S. Meyer, Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, Ohio.

Population Only 1434!

"PLAYED it two nights at 40c and 20c. Advertised with 24-sheets. Brought them in."

—Philip Rand, Rex Theatre,
Salmon, Idaho.

Have You Ever Heard of Anaheim, Cal.?

"AS a box office attraction it proved a winner. As entertainment it gave entire satisfaction. As a quality production, it should be classed with the best, and exploited accordingly."

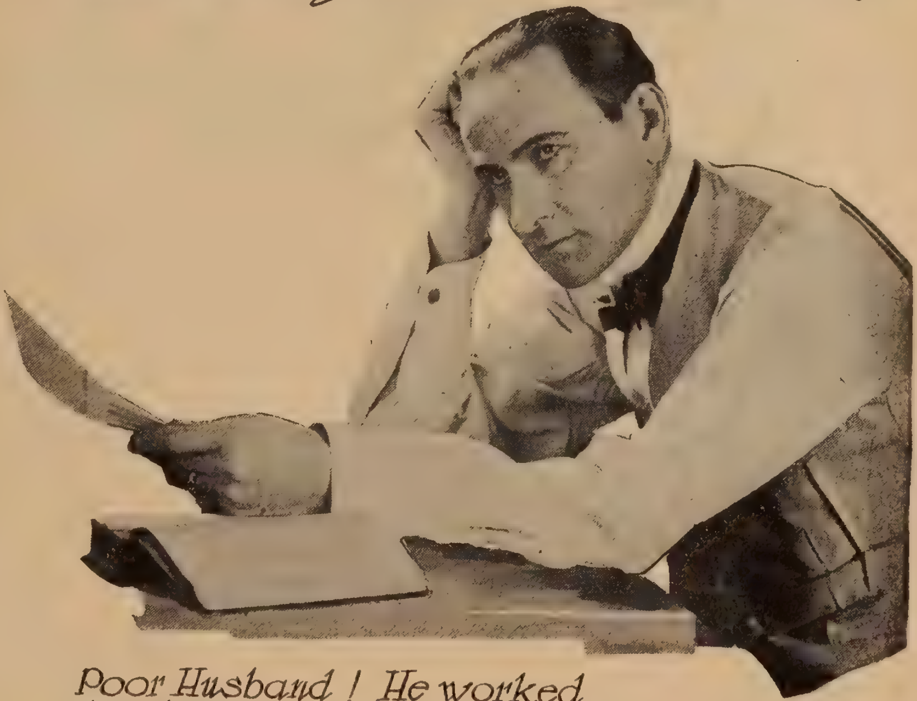
—C. L. Head, Anaheim Theatre,
Anaheim, Cal.

"The DEVIL'S

in Wicked, Wonderful Paris

—and how her husband slaved that he might satisfy her vanity!

MR. SMALL TOWN EXHIBITOR, like the women of your town, she was a good woman. But like the women of your town, she, too, liked fine clothes. And in gay, wicked Paris, she found a way to gratify her desires. How in paying for them, she tore down all that was dear to her, creates a lesson of such power and timeliness, as to make it the big thing for your town. Book it and be as enthusiastic about its results as those small town exhibitors on the opposite page.

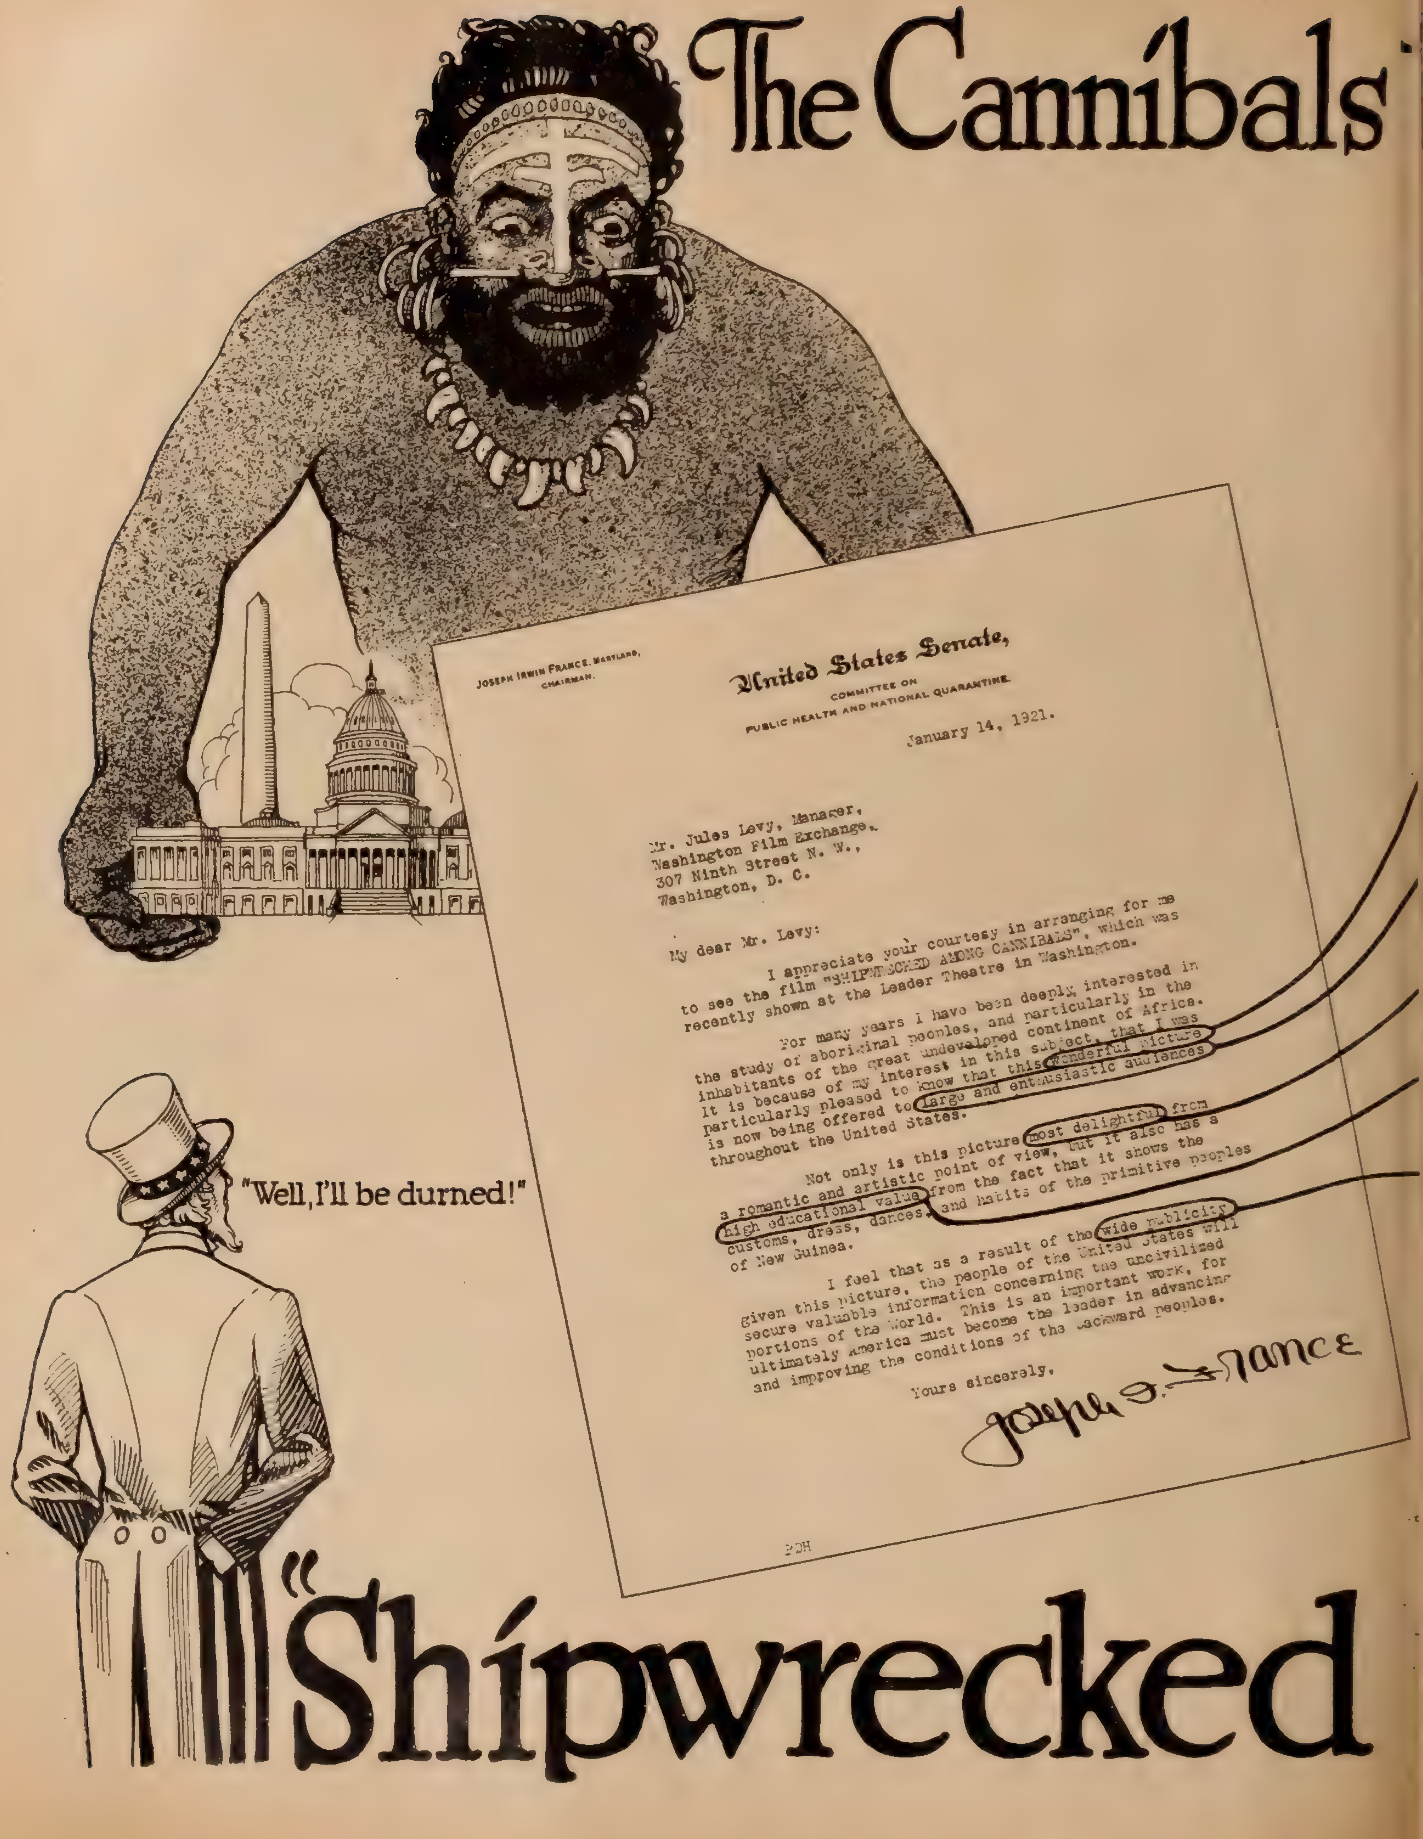


Poor Husband! He worked hard to pay her bills—only to be deceived in the end!

CARL LAEMMLE
presents
Von Stroheim's
WONDER-PLAY

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

"PASSKEY"



JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE, MARYLAND,
CHAIRMAN.

United States Senate, COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC HEALTH AND NATIONAL QUARANTINE.

January 14, 1921.

Mr. Jules Levy, Manager,
Washington Film Exchange,
307 Ninth Street N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Levy:

I appreciate your courtesy in arranging for me to see the film "SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS", which was recently shown at the Leader Theatre in Washington.

For many years I have been deeply interested in the study of aboriginal peoples, and particularly in the inhabitants of the great undeveloped continent of Africa. It is because of my interest in this subject, that I was particularly pleased to know that this wonderful picture is now being offered to large and enthusiastic audiences throughout the United States.

Not only is this picture most delightful from a romantic and artistic point of view, but it also has a high educational value from the fact that it shows the customs, dress, dances, and habits of the primitive peoples of New Guinea.

I feel that as a result of the wide publicity given this picture, the people of the United States will secure valuable information concerning the uncivilized portions of the World. This is an important work, for ultimately America must become the leader in advancing and improving the conditions of the backward peoples.

Yours sincerely,

Joseph I. France

PDH

have Captured Washington!

From Motion Picture News, January 29, 1921 wonderful picture

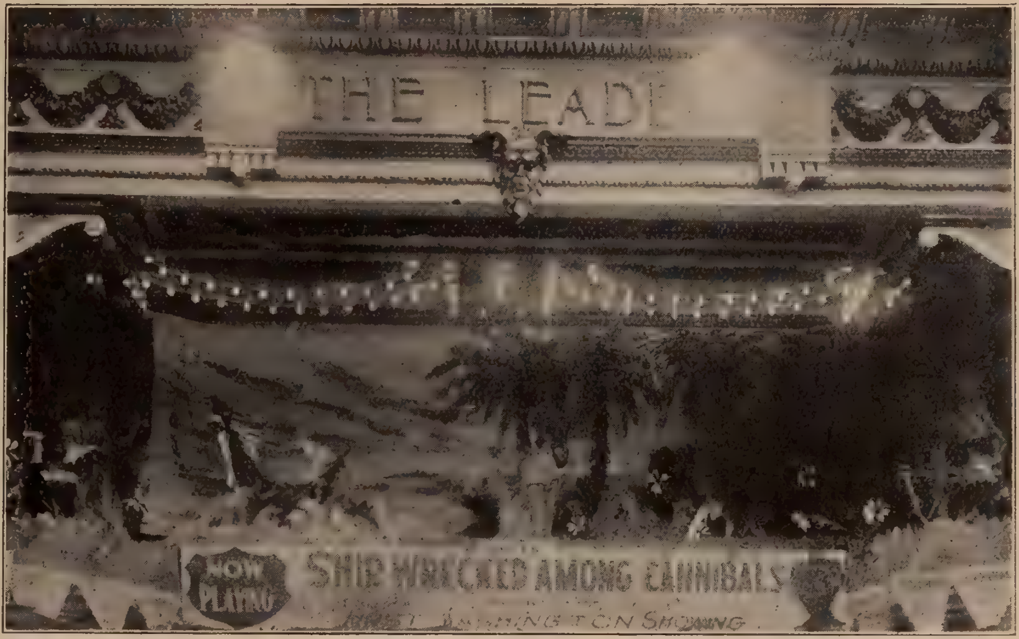
large and enthusiastic audiences

most delightful

high educational value

wide publicity



Attractive lobby display arranged for the showing of "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" by the Leader theatre, Washington, D. C. Description of the decorations appears on this page.

Washington House Puts Over Great Campaign for "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

THE manager of the Leader Theatre, Washington, D. C., recently constructed a stage setting with a back drop consisting of a shipwreck and a tropical beach in his lobby.

In front there were figures of the cameramen and savages cut from one of the 24-sheets. The effect was immensely realistic and could be seen from across the street. On the kettle was painted the word "Welcome" and sticking from it were two models of human feet. The effect was startling.

The result was highly successful from a box-office standpoint.

Universal-Jewel

among Cannibals"

Going Bigger Than Ever!

VON STROHEIM'S

Marvelous picturization of yourself and Myself and Our Wives

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION
DE LUXE

ON the plains—in the valleys—on the mountainsides—everywhere and everytime that this picture is shown, packed houses and record-making receipts are the result.

SO big and so human is its drama—so great is its elemental appeal to the emotions of every man, woman and child that exhibitors everywhere should not fail to show this masterpiece to their expectant patrons.

An ALL-STAR Cast in a Big Picture

A REMARKABLE DRAMA OF THE POWER OF LOVE AND THE INTRIGUE OF SECRET DIPLOMACY AS PORTRAYED BY

TSURI AOKI
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
J.BARNEY SHERRY
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

A Transcending Picturization of Sidney Mc Call's Novel
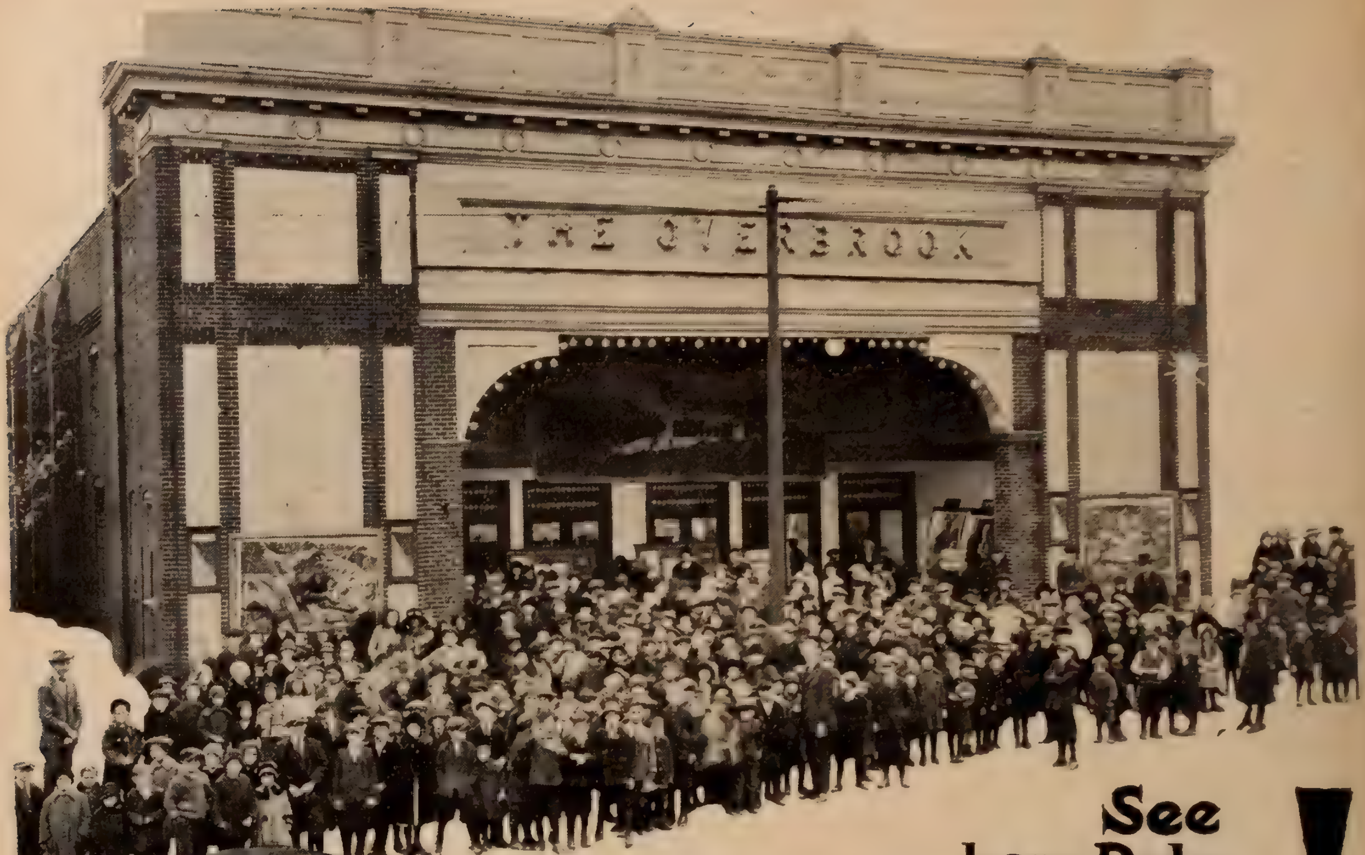
Directed by Rollin Sturgeon

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL SUPER-PRODUCTION



See how Polo pulls in the Kids in the Suburban Towns !

YOU can't fool kids! You've got to give 'em the right goods! You show 'em a serial that has action, suspense and mystery as Universal employs these elements, and, well—just see the way the kids in Overbrook, a suburb outside Philadelphia, Pa., turned out to greet their hero, Eddie Polo! Kids are kids everywhere! Show 'em

EDDIE POLO in Universal's Serial Sensation

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGowan

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 4

"Fires of Hate"

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zimba	Al Smith
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Aline	Josephine Scott

DORIS is saved from the lion by a member of the Kaffir police who had gone forth to her rescue when Zimba's relay man reached the outpost. They had followed the sound of Zimba's shots. Doris, in safe hands, looks around for Zimba, her faithful protector, but he is nowhere to be found. The party moves on toward Kimberley. Zimba, unknown to Doris, has resolved to devote his life to her and follows secretly.

In Kimberley Doris resorts to the stage for funds with which to continue her secret mission. One night both Zeidt, who has returned from his mines to leave for home, and Bruce, who, with his yachting party, by chance visits the city, attend the performance. Doris is veiling her identity under the stage name of Doris Delmont. Her vaudeville partner is Aline Earle, who in reality is a member of a diamond-smuggling gang. Both Zeidt and Bruce, neither of whom knows the other is in the theatre, see Doris and think she is Doris Harvey, but neither is absolutely certain. Bruce ascertains her hotel address, intending to look her up when his inquisitive guests are not with him. Zeidt sends a note to Doris in her dressing room and she, for a purpose, agrees to meet him there after the show. Doris is not aware of Bruce's presence at the theatre. He has occupied an obscure seat. Aline, who has noted Zeidt's eye on Doris and who recognizes him as the diamond king, commends Doris on her great "catch," and urges her to play Zeidt to the limit.

Meantime Zimba the faithful has saved Doris from the frenzied jealousy of a half-crazed admirer, a fellow performer, who forced his attentions upon her just as she was summoned to her act. Zimba is thrown out of the theatre from the stage door. He had secretly concealed himself among the props to guard his "white queen."

Zeidt goes to Doris' dressing room. She has already had supper served and invites him to join her. He accepts after being convinced by her manner and conversation that she is not Doris Harvey. From his own lips Doris hears the story of how the diamond trust drove her father to his death. Bruce, at this time, is walking back with his party to the hotel—the same hotel where Doris is stopping.

Back in America, in his secluded underground workshop, we see Martin Harvey, assisted by Tim, formerly the family chauffeur, bring his mysterious experiment to a marvelous success, after all the years of toil and defeat. Triumph had come at last!

In her dressing room Doris, who finds herself the object of Zeidt's licentious advances, discovers the theatre is in flames. They had been trapped by the fire in her room. Zeidt, leaving her to her own fate, attempts to escape. A mass of burning scenery falls in front of the dressing room door just after Zeidt dashes out of the room, thus walling in Doris to a terrible fate.

Meantime Bruce, walking homeward with his party, learns the fire is at the Kimberley theatre. Instructing his party to go on to the hotel he has dashed madly back, fearing for the life of the girl Doris. He cannot convince himself it is not Doris Harvey. At the stage door he learns Doris is still in her dressing room. Bruce rushes into the flaming stage structure in search of her.

Zeidt, lost amid smoke and flame on the stage, is struck by falling scenery and is buried senseless under the burning debris. Bruce, in an attempt to find Doris, falls through a stage trap door that gives way to flames, and Doris, imprisoned in the dressing room, is about to collapse from suffocation.

"Won: One Flivver"

One Reel Star Comedy

THE gay young fellow wins a flivver in a church raffle and he calls up The Girl and tells her to come right over. He doesn't see his partner steal the raffle tocket from his pocket.

The Girl comes over and they put the flivver together inasmuch as it has arrived in parts. But they can't get it out of the house. Meantime, the landlord arrives for the rent and they have some job trying to keep him from seeing the flivver behind the curtain. Finally, The Girl and the butler get the parts out, assemble them again on the lawn near the house and then the gay young fellow tries to start the thing going, but with no success. His partner comes along and claims the flivver; he gets in. He gets arrested for sitting in the flivver, however, for none of them have noticed a "Keep Off The Grass" sign. After he is "hauled in" the gay young fellow and The Girl take possession of the ffivver once more; they try to start it and the whole outfit blows up.

International News

No. 5

Rockaway Beach, N. Y.—Airmen welcomed in pouring rain. Swirling storm fails to dampen ardor of homefolks' greeting to the returned balloonists.

Sub-Titles.—Parading in the pouring rain in honor of the airmen. Lieutenants Farrell, Kloor and Hinton welcomed by Borough officials.

New York City.—Ben Franklin honored as Thrift Week opens. "Poor Richard's" birthday marks beginning of National Saving Campaign.

Sub-Titles.—Charles Schwab honors "Father of Thrift". Gold Star Mothers of colored war heroes join in the tribute.

Pictorial Brevities In the News of the Day.—Stage beauties rehearsing on Madison Square Garden Roof for a race with geese.—New York City.

Sub-Titles.—"Sneaker" racing is the latest winter fad.—Lake Placid, N. Y. Miss Natalie Mae Todd christens her namesake—a trim little craft.—Brooklyn, N. Y. Supreme Knight Flaherty and Director Larkin inspect model for the K. of C.'s great war memorial to be placed at the tomb of Napoleon in Paris.—New York City. Many new ships, built for the U. S. Shipping Board, are tied up for lack of cargoes. (Photographed at Martinez, California, from a U. S. plane.)

Chicago, Ill.—Blue-Ribbon chickens. Prize array of beauties on exhibition at big show.

Sub-Titles.—Miss Silkie in her winter furs. A couple of scrappers.

Boston, Mass.—Moving time in zoo. Man-eaters suffering from cold shifted to warmer quarters. (Boston only.)

Oakland, Cal.—Children dance at Duck festival. Annual pageant in honor of wild fowl, held on shores of Lake Refuge. (Los Angeles only.)

Middleton, Ireland.—Irish homes burned in official reprisal. British rulers order destruction as punishment for "neutrality" in present crisis.

Warsaw, Poland.—Poles honor heroes who saved capitol. Thousands pray in streets at dedication of memorial to men who stopped Russian drive.

On the Atlantic.—With the fleet steaming south. Glimpses of the "Gobs" activities on the long trip to Panama.

Chicago, Ill.—Speedy skaters in title tourney. Lightning pace set by leaders in Sleipner Cup Derby—watch 'em.

Sub-Title.—Down the track with the speedsters.

Tad Cartoon.

Just One C

UNIVERSAL'S STRANGE AND STARTLING ADVENTURE SERIAL

EILEEN SEDGWICK in

ontinuous Wild Chase of Dawgone Thrills!

On Land

- —fires
- —jungles
- —leaps
- —actresses
- —collisions
- —diamonds
- —fights

On Sea

- —sharks
- —yachts
- —struggles
- —smugglers

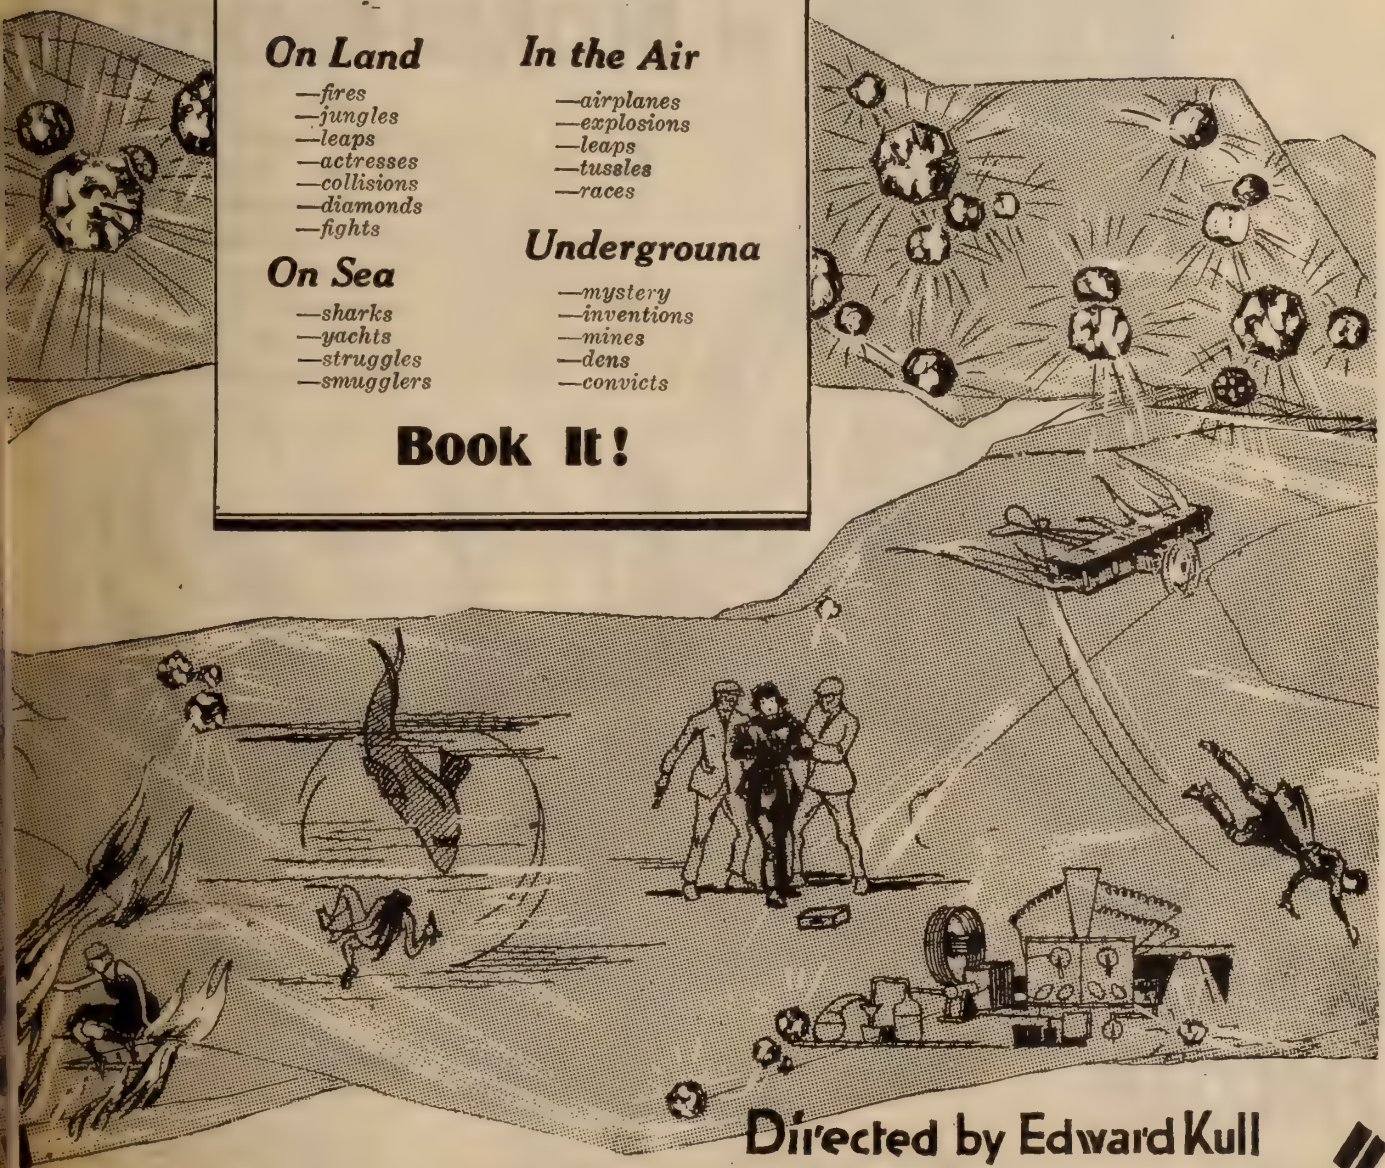
In the Air

- —airplanes
- —explosions
- —leaps
- —tussles
- —races

Undergrouna

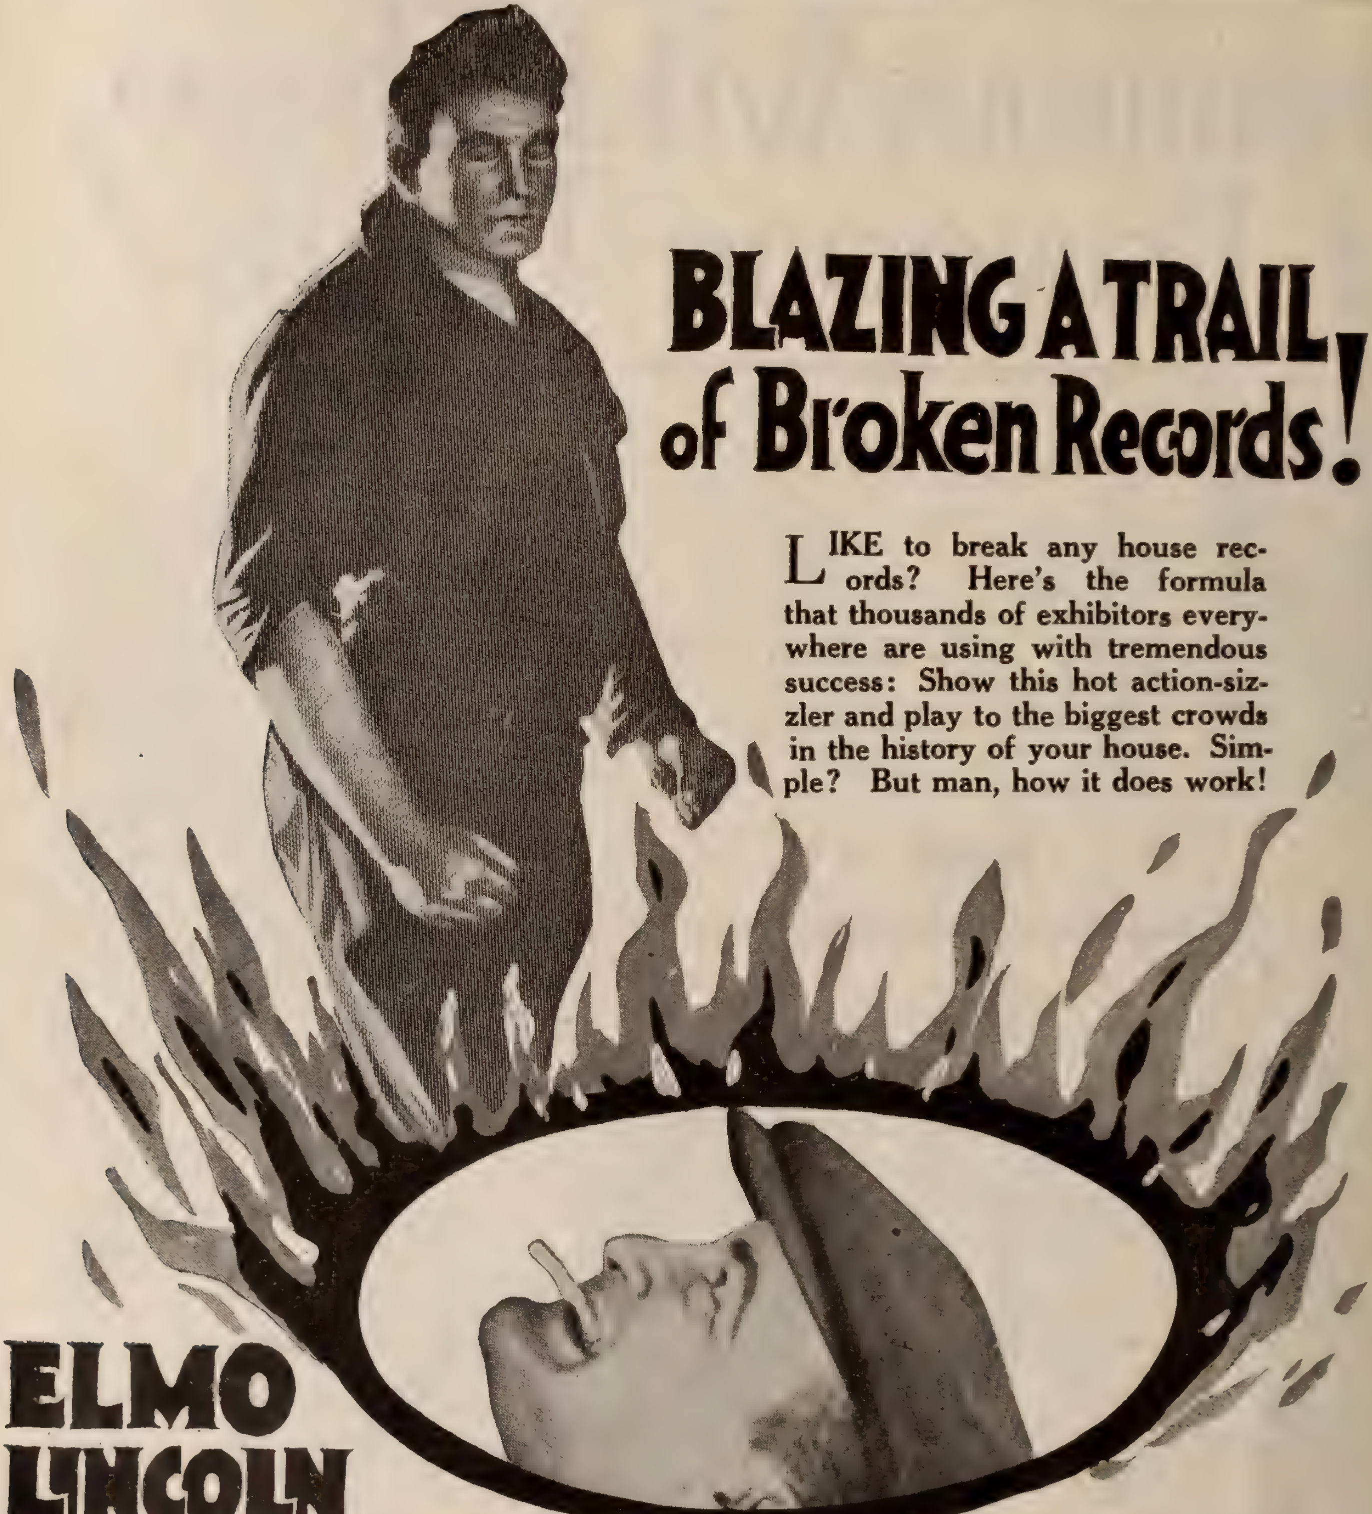
- —mystery
- —inventions
- —mines
- —dens
- —convicts

Book It!



Directed by Edward Kull

The DIAMOND QUEEN



BLAZING A TRAIL of Broken Records!

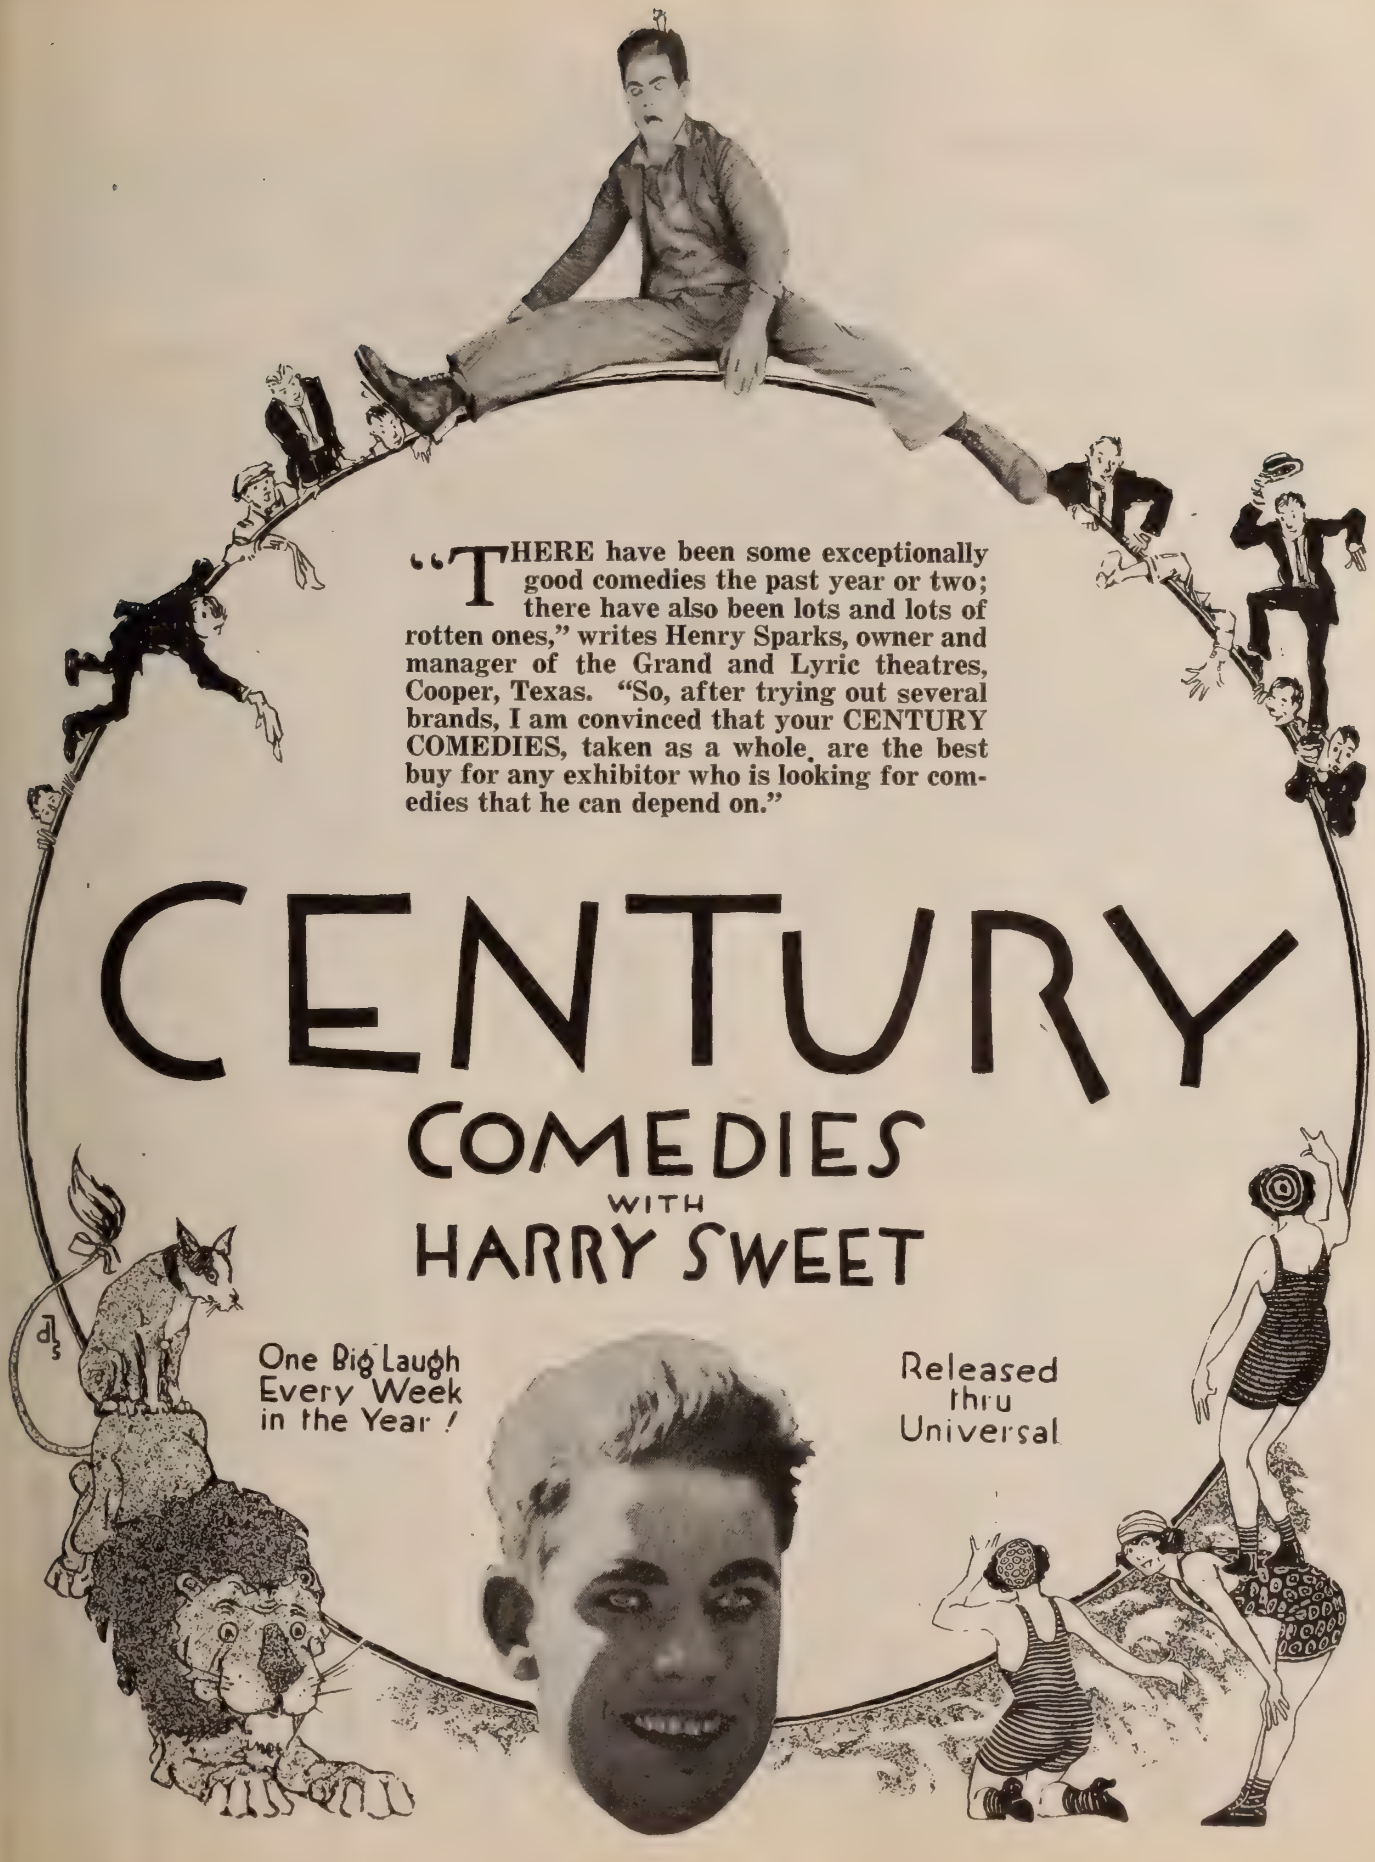
LIKE to break any house records? Here's the formula that thousands of exhibitors everywhere are using with tremendous success: Show this hot action-sizzler and play to the biggest crowds in the history of your house. Simple? But man, how it does work!

ELMO LINCOLN

The Mighty Serial of a Thousand Thrills

Directed by Robt. HILL

"The FLAMING DISK"



"THERE have been some exceptionally good comedies the past year or two; there have also been lots and lots of rotten ones," writes Henry Sparks, owner and manager of the Grand and Lyric theatres, Cooper, Texas. "So, after trying out several brands, I am convinced that your CENTURY COMEDIES, taken as a whole, are the best buy for any exhibitor who is looking for comedies that he can depend on."

CENTURY

COMEDIES

WITH

HARRY SWEET

One Big Laugh
Every Week
in the Year!

Released
thru
Universal

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode No. 16

"The Cradle Of Death"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Mary Warren	Kittoria Beveridge
Zola Sinclair	Eugenie Silbon

THE Mysterious Unknown saves Eddie from death by drowning.

Eddie pursues Zola in a motor boat as does Gray and his henchman. There is considerable fighting between the three factions on one of the boats when they all meet. Zola, however, makes her getaway to the caves where her men are waiting for her.

Gray follows her up and tells the men that Zola has double crossed both shows Flint's telegram to her. The men are incensed and Gray hurls Zola into the water from a platform high in the air. She is rescued by Eddie and becomes his staunch supporter. Gray and the men try to kill both Eddie and Zola by blowing up some of the cliffs with dynamite but they are unsuccessful.

In the meantime, Mary and Dick Maxwell have received a note to the effect that the other piece of canvas is at a certain house in Chinatown. The signer of the note is the owner of the boat which carried them while they were looking for this piece of canvas. Flint gets wise to this note.

Zola, indebted to Eddie for saving her life, starts back to town with him. The gang get after them, capture Eddie, and then by means of a torture device, send him to apparent death below the surface of the waters.

"Milk and Yeggs"

One Reel Star Comedy

THE chauffeur loved the maid, so much in fact, that he got bounced when he kissed the Mrs. by mistake.

The maid sees the reflection from a pocket light moving against the wall and believes a burglar is in the house. She telephones the police. A mad chase for the burglar begins in the house in which the old chauffeur, the new chauffeur, the Mr. and Mrs., the maid and the cops take part. Most of the men get mistaken for the burglar and get banged up considerably. But the young love-smitten chauffeur escapes any injury.

When finally it is discovered that it is the young man of the house, aged two, who is doing all the mischief with the pocket light, peace descends upon the excited household. The old chauffeur is given his job back and is free to marry the maid.

"The Trigger Trail"

Two Reel Western Drama

CAST

Lone McCarthy	Jack Perrin
Jennie McLane	Louise Lorraine
Sheriff McLane	C. W. Herzinger
Baby McLane	Walter Wilkinson
Desert Coyote	Jim Corey

SHERIFF McLANE of Cactus County, who has held the office for many years, is growing old, and is not able to run down outlaws as in his younger years. "The Desert Coyote" has been causing a reign of terror, and the people becoming dissatisfied, ask for a younger man, and Lone McCarthy is given the assignment. McLane is jealous of the younger man, and refuses to permit him to pay his attentions to his daughter, Jennie.

Soon after Lone's arrival, the Coyote robs the bank. The Sheriff at the head of his posse, goes in search of him, and Lone takes the trail alone. The Sheriff sees the outlaw and shoots his horse, but is unable to find the man. Later he escapes, and kidnaps the sheriff's little adopted son. In his lone search for the outlaw, McCarthy falls asleep and when he awakens finds himself in the power of the outlaw. He is bound and gagged, and the outlaw ties his gun in McCarthy's hand in such a way that when the sheriff later puts in an appearance, McCarthy is compelled to shoot him. Then the outlaw allows Lone to go, telling him to beat it for home. Lone sneaks around to where the sheriff is lying wounded, and when the outlaw, with the child, puts in an appearance, intending to finish the sheriff, he is met with a bullet from the sheriff's gun, handled by Lone. The sheriff is taken home by Lone, who later becomes a welcome visitor at his house.

"Simple and Sweet"

One Reel Star Comedy

SON is so girlish that his chief love in life is knitting. Mother is in despair, and she therefore calls up a pretty girl. But Son remains uninterested in pretty female charms.

Whereupon mamma calls in a pugilist, but even he fails to stir Son to any kind of active emotion.

The pugilist takes Son around to his neighborhood in the night, thinking that possibly the roughnecks might make a man out of him, but to no avail. Suddenly Son looks into a shop window filled with toys. He turns around and speaks to the pugilist about it. They get into a fearful row. He fights with fury. He doesn't get home until after midnight. Then he worries mother some more by knocking everything about that is within his reach. Finally, when this manly display of strength has calmed down, Mother says, "What's happened, dear?" Son replies: "That rude fighter said there wasn't any Santa Claus!"

International News

No. 6.

Worcester, Mass.—Heart of Worcester in ruin as 20 fires menace entire city.

Sub-Titles.—Firemen, encrusted in ice, halt the flames after a valiant all-day struggle. Zero weather lays a sheath of ice over the smouldering ruins. Glimpses of the wide-spread damage, estimated at nearly three million dollars.

El Paso, Texas.—Wild West revival. Expert riders and "bulldoggers" stage a show with all the old-time "pep."

In The Public Eye.—Frank B. Willis, former Ohio Governor succeeds president-elect Harding in the U. S. Senate . . . Washington.

Lake Placid, N. Y.—Young speed kings in skating classic. New records attained in races for national Junior championship.

Kempton Park, England.—Thrills galore in great steeplechase. "Boxing Day" races furnish plenty of excitement for thousands at English track.

Sub-Title.—The great finals—with each man for himself alone.

Boston, Mass.—Fishing craft turned into floating "igloos." Zero weather transforms boats into regular ice palaces.

Corbett, Wyo.—East and West in a round up contrast. Driving buffalo home means strenuous work for cowboys of the Shoshone.

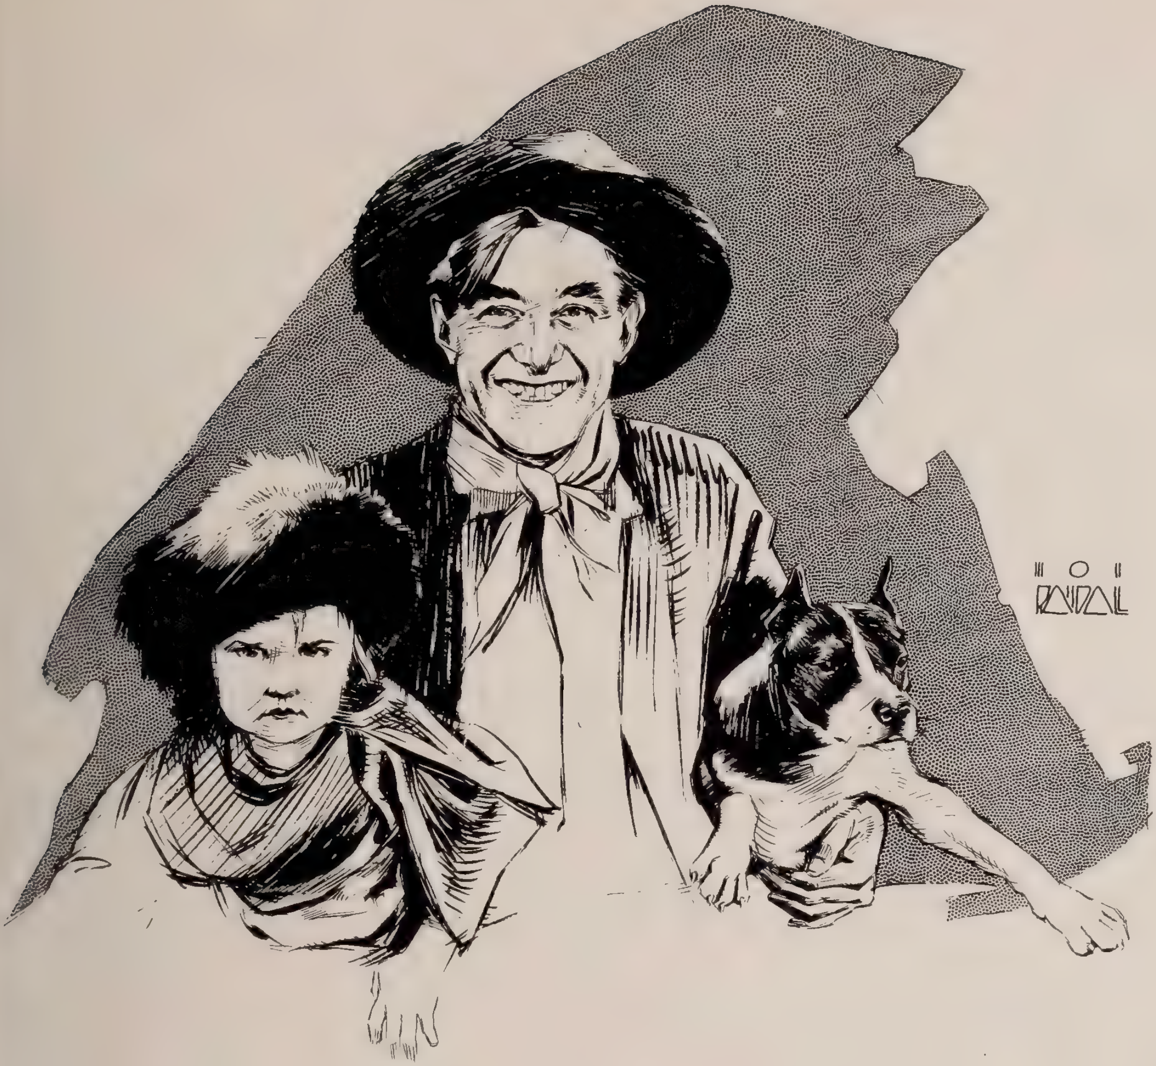
Sub-Title.—And in New Hampshire, a goat round up on a "ranch" modeled after the Balkan style, gives the eastern "cowboys" just as strenuous a job.

In The Alirondacks.—Artist Jacques Suzanne trains sturdy dog team for great "Huskie" race.

Sub-Title.—A sample of the speed with which Artist Suzanne hopes to win the northern Dog Races later in the season.

Chatanooga, Tenn.—International News presents Jersey Ringle, ace of dare-devils, in his latest sky thriller.

Sub-Titles.—After that pleasant ride down the river, Mr. Ringle decides to "change cars." Watch closely—here he goes! A restless chap is the greatest of all aerial acrobats—he decides to return to his originad steed. Missing death by a matter of inches—folks with weak hearts are warned to look the other way. (Photographed by John A. Lockhorst, International Staff cameraman).



"humanerthanever"

A KID and a pup and a Harry Carey grin—what more do you want to make people happy? Oh, yes—a nice girl to steal the kid from lazy, laughing Harry—this time he's " 'IF ONLY' JIM"—and make him so sore that he falls in love with her. Anything more? You bet! Whirlwind action with a lot of real pathos behind it—a claim stolen from him because the kid's too sick to let him do his "holding work"—and a cyclone finish when he finally breaks loose and wins it all back. A real, honest-to-gosh Harry Carey—" 'IF ONLY' JIM"—humaner than ever. Watch for its release—it's one of those "52 Good Pictures a Year."

HARRY CAREY

As luring as the lazy laughter of luxury

CARMEL MYERS

CHARMING as the Spirit of Youth itself in those first pictures of three years ago and now with beauty and talent matured by a season's stage success, alluring Carmel Myers comes to delight your audiences in pictures as admirably fitting as her shimmering Paris gowns. Dramatic bits of intensely human appeal, picked out, like a summer's night, with star-like sparks of life and love and laughter.

A perfect example of the wise, sure way in which Universal encourages unknown young players of ability to develop into national favorites who bring you both pleasure and profit. And excellent testimony as to the quality of those "52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry," which you will find it good business to buy.

Good business, because you'll realize it pays better to get frequent Specials at Weekly Feature rates than to book only super-boosted Specials at a Special's special price.

See her in
"THE MAD MARRIAGE"
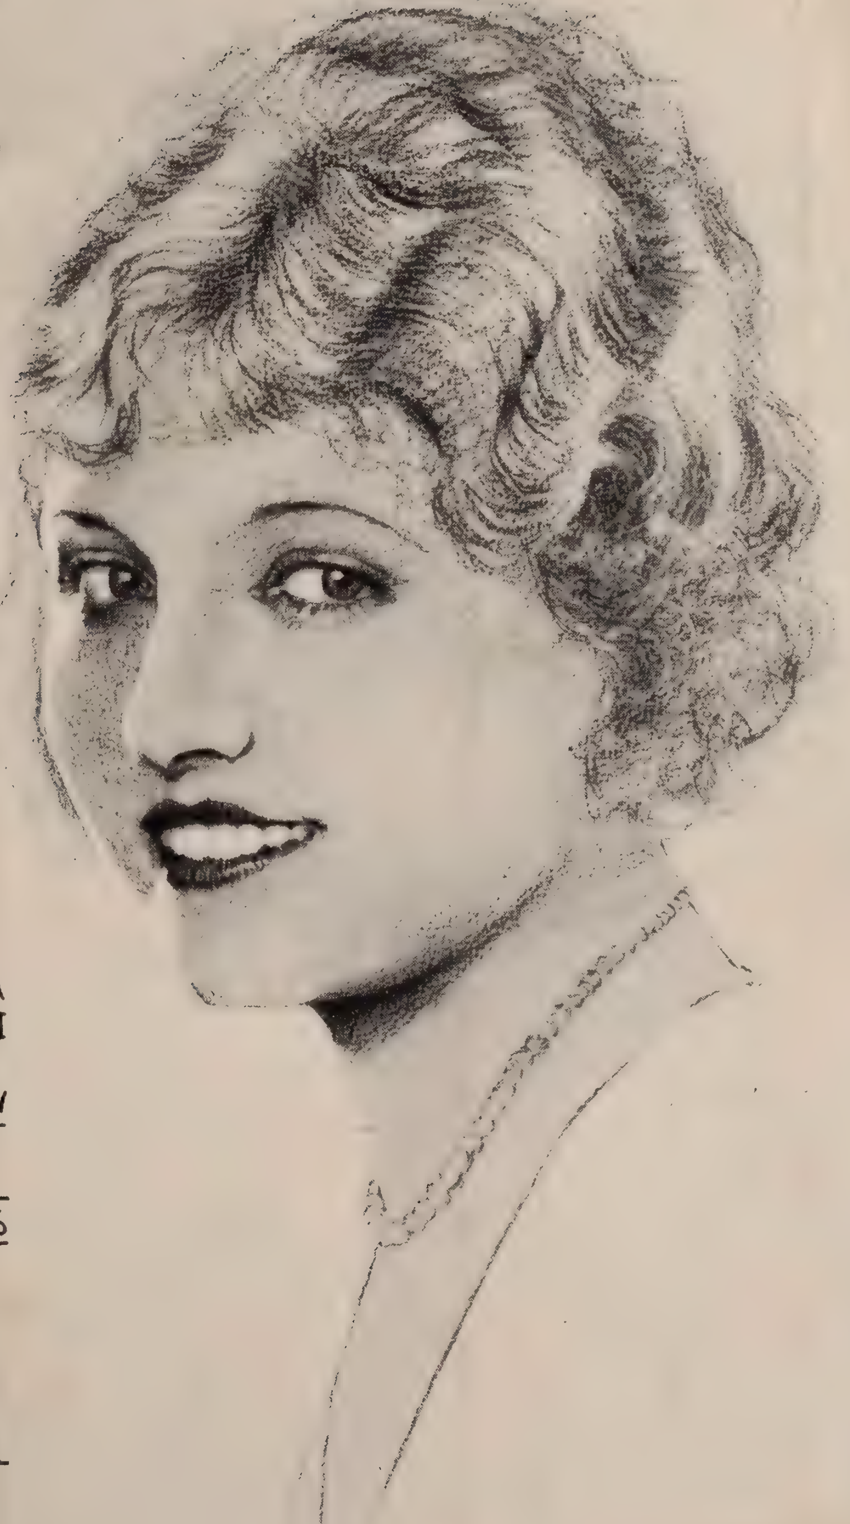
It's one of those

52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

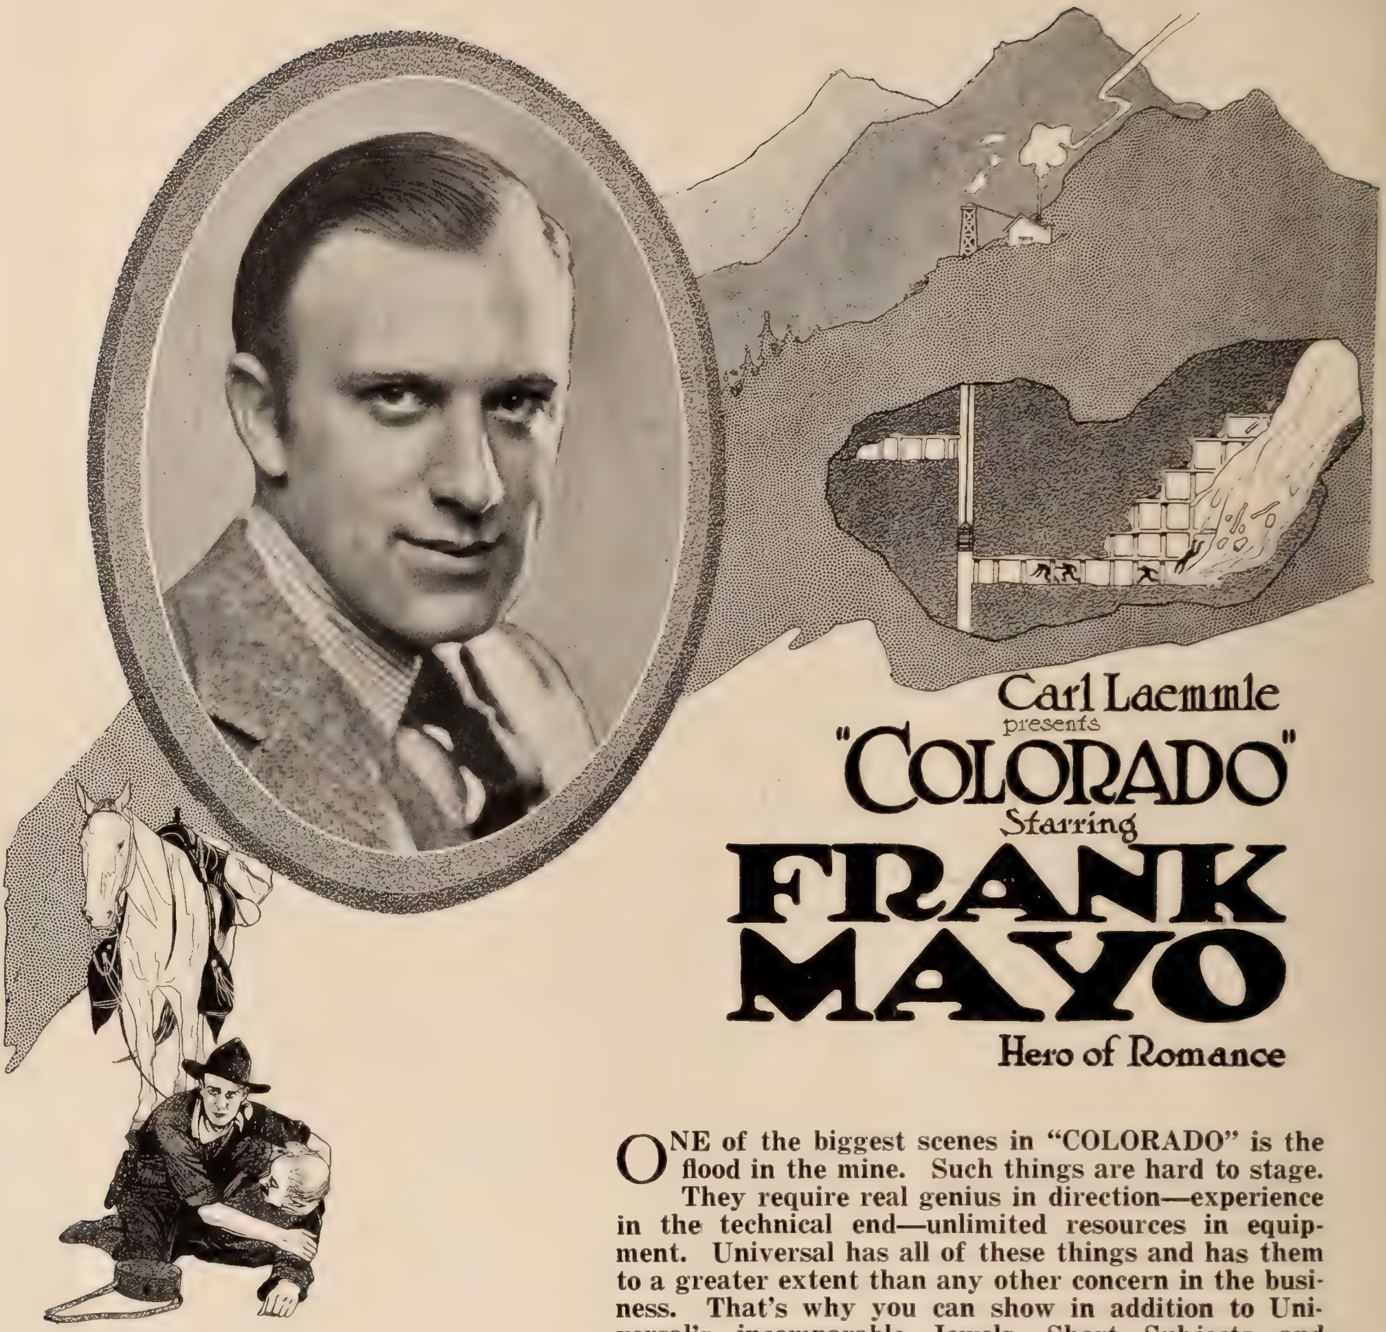
Universal Special Attractions



The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

VOL 12 FEB 12 1921 NO 26

EVA NOVAK IN "SOCIETY SECRETS"



Carl Laemmle
presents
"COLORADO"
Starring
FRANK MAYO
Hero of Romance

ONE of the biggest scenes in "COLORADO" is the flood in the mine. Such things are hard to stage. They require real genius in direction—experience in the technical end—unlimited resources in equipment. Universal has all of these things and has them to a greater extent than any other concern in the business. That's why you can show in addition to Universal's incomparable Jewels, Short Subjects and Serials—"52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry." Among these "52 Good Pictures" you'll often find what is really a Special. But you'll get that Special at Weekly Feature Rates—which is somewhat better than booking only Specials at a Special's special price.

Directed by
REEVES EASON,
the man who made "PINK TIGHTS", from the famous stage success by
AUGUSTUS THOMAS

It's one of those

52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry
Universal Special Attractions

humaner
than ever

HARRY CAREY

HE was all action now! They'd started something—he'd finish it! He'd show 'em! They could "kid" him—call him lazy—but he'd teach 'em to lay off Miss Dot an' the Kid an' even "Pal!" . . . And the next moment Harry Carey is in such a remarkable whirlpool of action as surely to sweep him even deeper into the hearts of his thousands of admirers. Here's a picture you must book!

One of those 52
good Pictures a Year
—and no worry

Carl Laemmle
presents

"'if only' Jim"

Universal Special Attraction
Directed by Jacques Jaccard

CARL LAEMMLE presents

"The FIRE CAT"

It's one of those

52 GOOD PICTURES

A YEAR—and NO WORRY

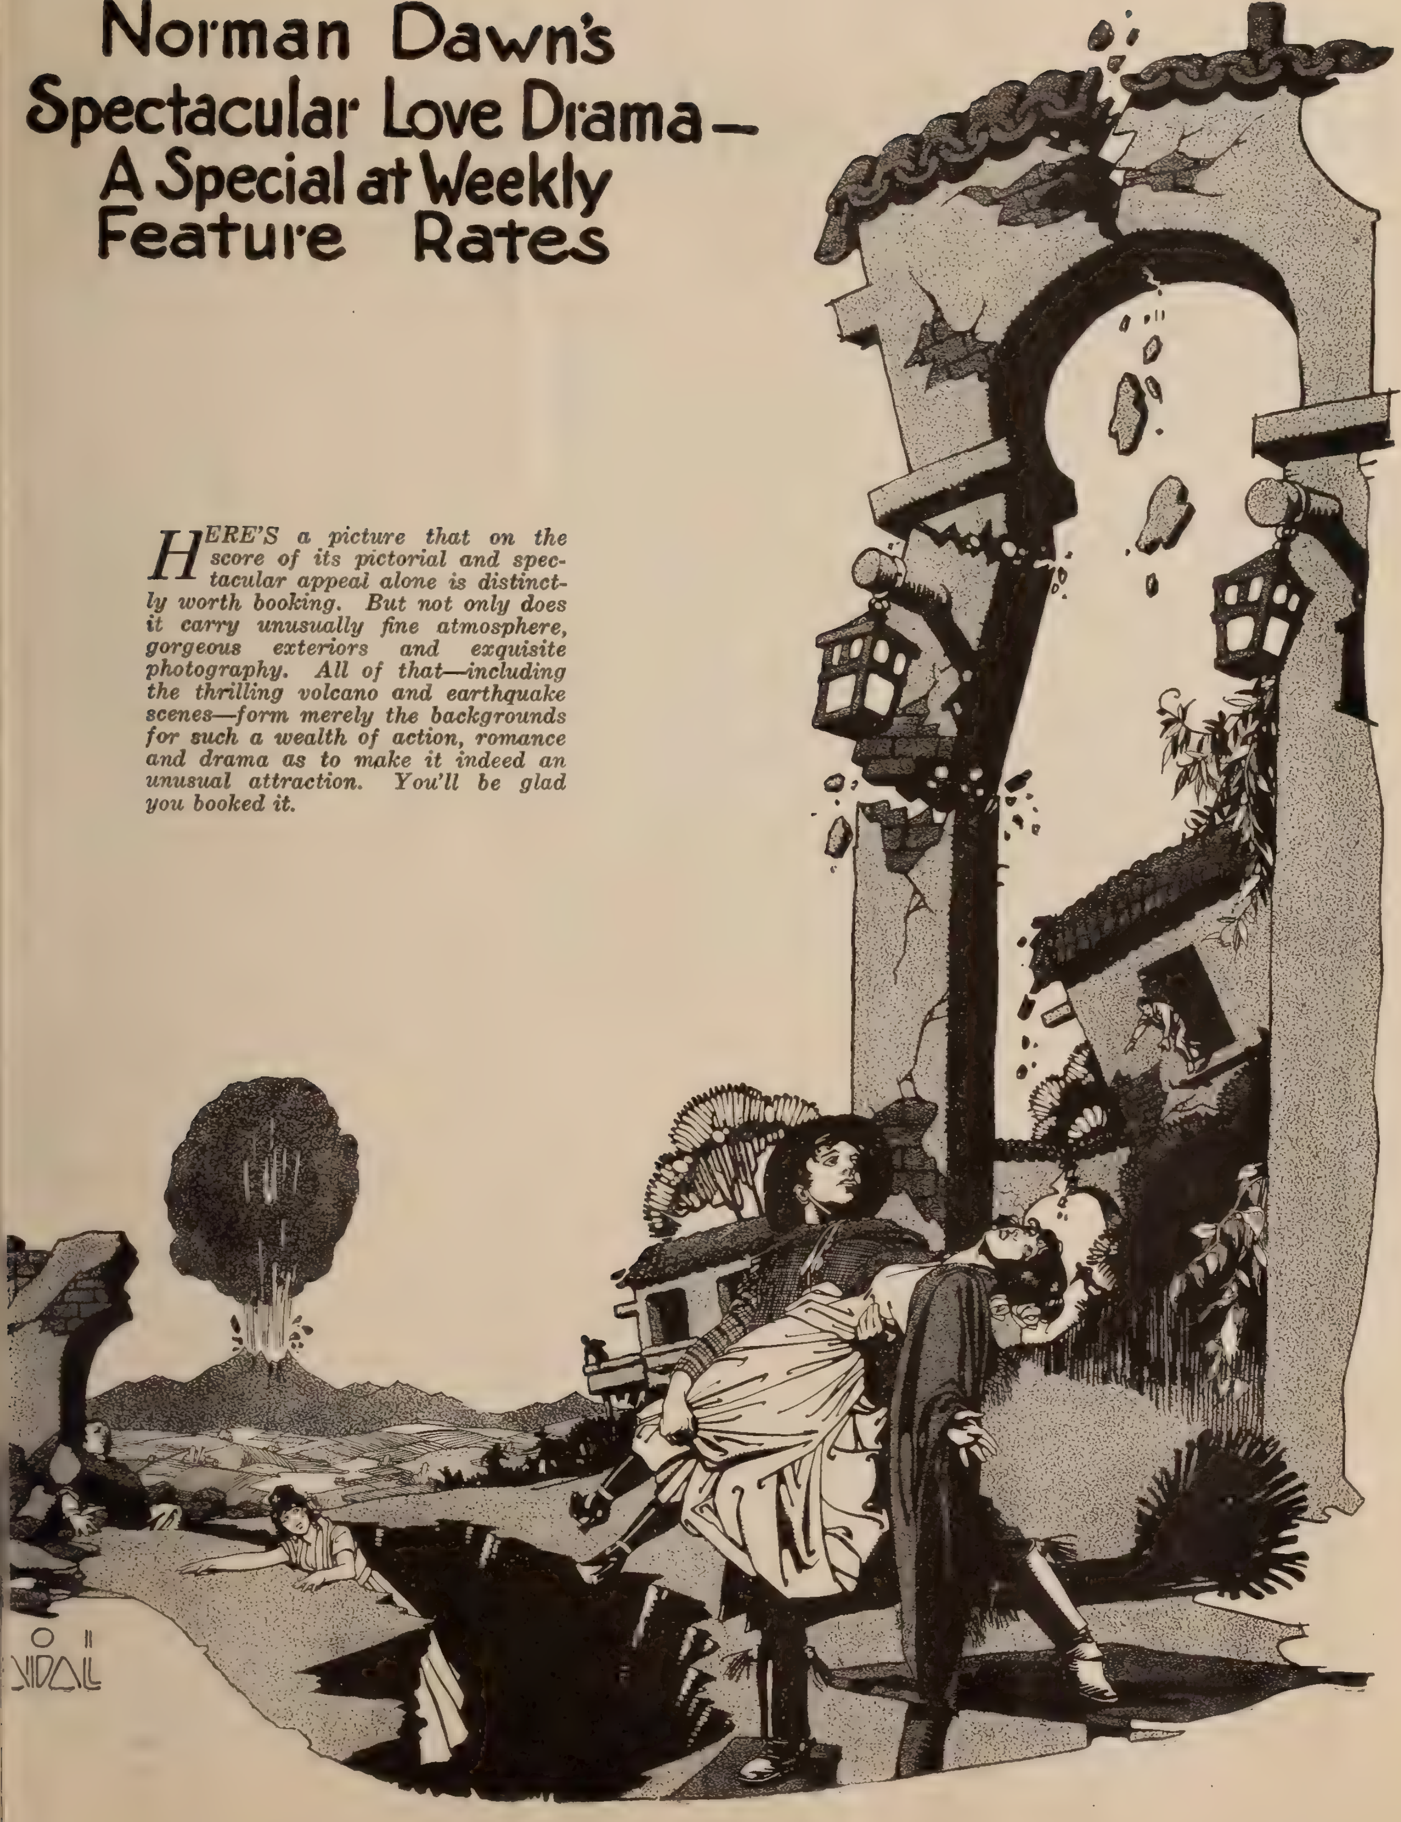
Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

Norman Dawn's Spectacular Love Drama— A Special at Weekly Feature Rates

HERE'S a picture that on the score of its pictorial and spectacular appeal alone is distinctly worth booking. But not only does it carry unusually fine atmosphere, gorgeous exteriors and exquisite photography. All of that—including the thrilling volcano and earthquake scenes—form merely the backgrounds for such a wealth of action, romance and drama as to make it indeed an unusual attraction. You'll be glad you booked it.



Service Page for Frank Mayo in "Colorado"

AT A GLANCE

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Brute-Breaker," "Lasca," "The Red Lane," "Honor-Bound," "Tiger True," etc.
DIRECTED BY—Reaves Eason.
FROM PLAY BY—Augustus Thomas.
SCENARIO BY—Wallace Clifton.
SUPPORTING CAST—Gloria Hope, Leonard Clapham, Charles Le Moyne, Charles Newton, Lillian West, Dan Crimmins, Rosa Gore, etc.
LOCALE — The Colorado Mining Country.
TIME—The Present.
THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of an army officer who leaves camp before he is formally discharged to shield a girl from harm; how the thought that he is a deserter sends him, a fugitive, to the Colorado desert and prevents him from marrying the girl he loves; how his new-found prosperity is threatened until he discovers that his discharge from the army had been secretly kept from him by the same man who now tries to wreck his life, and how he settles accounts on the threshold of eternity.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The fact that "Colorado" is a modern film version of the famous stage success of the same name by Augustus Thomas.
2—Frank Mayo's personal popularity as the star of "The Brute Breaker," "Honor Bound" and "Tiger True."
3—Thrilling scenes in the lover level of a gold mine.
4—Gloria Hope's appearance in the leading feminine rôle and the fact that she is the titian-haired beauty of many big productions.
5—The splendid direction of Reaves Eason, who directed "Pink Tights."
6—The fact that Dan Crimmins and Rosa Gore, the famous vaudeville team, play the principal comedy character rôles in the production.
7—Leonard Clapham's presence in the supporting cast and the fact that Clapham has been featured in his own right and that he is popular with the fans in westert rôles.
8—Magnificent mountain scenery which furnishes a background for the spectacular dramatic action.
9—The dramatic spectacle of a man risking his life to save a girl from drowning in a torrent of water which wrecks the gold mine.
10—An expose of the methods used by big swindlers in seizing valuable mineral land from honest ranchers.

CAST

Frank Austin	Frank Mayo
Tom Doyle	Charles Newton
Kitty Doyle	Gloria Hope
Mrs. Doyle	Lillian West
James Kincaid	Charles Le Moyne
David Collins	Leonard Clapham
Lem Morgan	Dan Crimmins
Sally Morgan	Rosa Gore

THE STORY

LIEUTENANT FRANK HAYDEN, recently returned from France, awaited his discharge at an eastern army camp. In the idle days that followed the armistice he spent many pleasant hour in the company of the society girls of the place. Strolling with a young lady one day, he met Captain Kincaid and introduced him. An hour later Hayden discovered that Kincaid had lured the girl into his quarters and was attacking her. He beat Hayden. He would willingly have stood a general court-martial, but to save the girl the publicity and chagrin, he deserted.

A month later found him on the Colorado desert where he saved the life of Tom Doyle who was dying of thirst. He visits the Doyle ranch to find there Kitty, Doyle's beautiful daughter—with whom he falls in love—Mrs. Doyle, her step-mother, and Collins, a mining engineer, in love with Kitty, and a none too scrupulous man.

Under the name of Autin, Frank spends a number of happy days at the ranch. One day he discovers a vein of virgin gold. He tells Doyle and together they form a fifty-fifty partnership.

Collins informs Kincaid, who is his friend, that the country is full of gold and wires him to come on, suggesting that he see Austin. Naturally, when Kincaid arrives, he recognizes Austin as Hayden, and in this way he gets Frank's share of the mine from him, Frank going to work as a foreman. Frank gave up his wealth so that Kitty might not know of his disgrace

Doyle, not understanding the motive, trusts Austin, nevertheless, until he sees Austin in a clandestine meeting with his wife. He is furious but he does not know that Austin is endeavoring to save Mrs. Doyle from the advances of Kinkaid.

The mine is flooded. Kincaid orders the men down with him and when he refuses to let them up they beat him and make their getaway, leaving him below and in danger. Austin saves his life.

Somehow the mine trouble abates, with no serious loss, and the whole story comes out—that Kincaid had had Austin's discharge on his desk for two days when he beat him up.

Kitty and Frank are now free to start on a life of love, wealth and happiness.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

The love of a woman either makes or breaks a man. See its effect upon Frank Mayo as the hero of "Colorado," his latest Universal action-drama.

A torrent of water roared through the mine and engulfed the slender girl who had gone into the depths to forget. How the man she loved saved her is just one of the big dramatic thrills of "Colorado."

The golden goblet of wealth held for him only the bitter hemlock of despair. Frank Mayo tells the story in "Colorado."

Why is it that a man will protect a woman from every man but himself? See Frank Mayo in "Colorado," the modern Universal film version of the noted stage success.

FINE FUN BETWEEN SCENES

FILMING "Colorado" wasn't a particularly light task, either for the players or the director and his staff; in fact, this drama of the great open made heavy demands on the energies of "all those concerned." Small wonder, then that "between scenes" such a general air of relaxaeion prevailed.

After hours of hard work one fine day, Frank Mayo, the star of "Colorado," and his beautiful leading lady, the titian-haired Gloria Hope, decided unanimously that a little sport was due them. They enlisted all available technical aid, and in two hastily improvised automobiles, they staged as thrilling a race as Universal has seen in many a day. And they claim that they had more sport out of it than their numerous spectators themselves. Of course, the fair lady won the race, but whether the big star had anything to do with that, has never been ascertained. At any rate, Gloria proved a great little sportswoman.

"Colorado" is a picture remarkable for the beauty of its "shots." Many of these were taken out on the big western desert, others in the most beautiful mountain regions of the country. All lovers of the big open will delight in them; they are indeed a treat for the eye.

Reaves Eason, the director, has again done a notable piece of work and the scenes in the flooded mine will stand out as pictoral and directorial achievements of the screen year.

Frank Mayo has surrounded himself with a skilled cast, which includes those two experienced actors of western types, Charles Newton and Charles LeMoyne. And then there is Leonard Clapham, who understands his "outdoors" as few others do, and who will best be remembered for his splendid work as star in the notable Red Rider Series of not so long ago.

Frank Mayo and Gloria Hope Do a Little Relaxing Between Scenes

GOOD ADVANCE NOTES FOR "COLORADO"

Frank Mayo is said to have found the most congenial role of his screen career in the character of Frank Austin, alias Lieutenant Hayden, in "Colorado," in which he will appear at the .... Theatre next .... The role is not only colorful and picturesque, but calls for acting in its highest form and an athletic prowess of the real Mayo brand.

There is always an irrestible appeal in the spectacle of an innocent man believing himself under a cloud. It is such a man that Frank Mayo portrays in his latest screen success, "Colorado," which is announced for next .... at the .... Theatre. A fugitive, he comes to the western state to begin life anew, and here he meets with dramatic adventures that provide sufficient thrills to satisfy any audience.

"Colorado," the latest photodrama starring Frank Mayo and announced as next .... attraction at the .... Theatre, is taken from the successful stage play by Augustus Thomas which had a long Broadway run a few years ago. The screen adaptation was made by Wallace Clifton nd the production was filmed under the direction of Reeves Eason.

At a cost of many thousands of dollars an entire gold mine was reproduced at Universal City for a sequence of scenes in "Colorado," the photoplay starring Frank Mayo which is to be seen at the .... Theatre next .... The various levels, the underground chambers, the elevator cage and all the other features of a real mine were duplicated in every detail under the direction of a prominent mining engineer.

On the dramatic stage a play from the pen of Augustus Thomas always merits instant attention,f or this noted playwright has written such dramatic successes as "Arizona," "Alabama," "In Mizzoura," "Colorado," which has been adapted to the screen and produced by Universl with Frank Mayo in the leading role. It will be seen at the .... Theatre next ....

Gloria Hope, the titian-haired beauty who plays opposite Frank Mayo in his latest production, "Colorado," has been on the screen but three years, but in that time has supported nearly every male star of prominence. She thinks her role in "Colorado," which will be seen at the .... Theatre on ...., is her best since she played opposite Charles Ray in "The Law of the North."

STARRING

GLADYS WALTON

YOUR KIND OF A PRETTY GIRL

THERE'S a certain charm about Gladys Walton that casts you under the pleasurable spell of her personality the moment you see her on the screen.

"Here, you young scamp—don't you know these gardens are not for such as you?"

An Amusing and Dramatic Story of Girlhood's Dreams Come True

REAL screen entertainment grows from clever presentation on the screen of big and little bits of real life—pages from the book of emotions that everybody understands. This is such a picture—plus. For it carries to the screen the hopes and aspirations of Everygirl; it touches the depths of budding womanhood's soul with a smile and a tear and a dramatic zest that lift it emphatically into the class of real worth-while entertainment. Your crowd will thank you for showing it. Please them by booking it—NOW.

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

"RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL"

DIRECTED BY HARRY B. HARRIS

It's One of Those 52 Good Pictures a Year-and no Worry

"Gee, here I am taking a bath—and Saturday almost a week off!"

"So this is my darling daughter—wearing diamonds, eh?"

Harry Takes Some Lessons

THE fastest man on a gun in the world and the fastest man on the screen met at Universal City recently when George Blair, internationally known as "The Montana Kid," made a pilgrimage to the the big studio to meet Harry Carey, the Ace of the Saddle.

The two notables were introduced by Jacques Jaccard, who is directing Harry Carey in "'If Only' Jim."

Blair is fifty-four years old and looks thirty. At the age of fifteen he was sheriff of Douglas County, Montana, and become famous as a gun fighter on the side of the law. He later toured the world as an exponent of the art of gunmanship.

Harry Carey, according to Blair, is considered to be the most accurate apostle of the western drama by those pioneers who know the old west and love its romance.

Left to Right: "The Montana Kid," Harry Carey, Jacques Jaccard

As the guest of the star and Jaccard, Blair remained at Universal City while several scenes for "'If Only' Jim" were made, then he and Carey withdrew to one end of the western street and practiced the four dimensions of gun-work, the difficult trigger-fanning, the hip-shooting and other advanced methods of shooting one's adversary before he shoots you.

"'If Only' Jim" will shortly be released. It is an adaptation of that famous story, "Bruvver Jim's Baby," by Philip V. Mighels and Carey is said to be at his best in it. He is supported by a charming leading lady, Carol Halloway, by an adorable little boy, Tommy Smith, and by Pal, a great old dog.

Large plans are in order for Carey, and Universal will make some very interesting announcements concerning the popular star in a very short time.

Biblical Pageant In Universal Film

A BIBLICAL pageant as a sequence in "The Mad Marriage," an ultra modern photodrama, is one of the rarities in that production which has just been completed at Universal City under the direction of Rollin Sturgeon.

The story, as it was written by Marjorie Benton Cooke in the form of a popular novel, shows a group of idle society women being piloted through the artistic intricacies of a pageant by a young artist of Greenwich Village and his bride.

Amusing situations as the portly dowagers cavort over the creaking stage as vestal virgins, and as mincing dandies of the "four hundred" depict such heroic roles as Haloferes and Jeptha give the screen story many laughable twists.

"The Mad Marriage" shows Carmel Myers as a girl who makes a precarious living by darning socks and cooking for a clique of indigent Greenwich Village artists. The highlight in the theme comes when the society girl, who is to play the leading role in the pageant, sprains her ankle and the modest little heroine surprises the audience by taking her place creditably.

Truman Van Dyke appears opposite the star while Arthur Carewe, Jane Starr, Margaret Cullington, William Brunton and Virginia Ware have important and interesting roles.

Miss Myers ws never better than in this charming story of a woman's life and love, and she rises to truly dramatic heights. She depicts several stages of a woman's life—girlhood, wifehood, motherhood, and she plays each of these roles with a keen insight and appealing charm.

The young star appears to grow more beautiful with each production and she wears some of the most exquisite and original gowns in "The Mad Marriage." In fact, Carmel Myers is coming to be looked upon as one of the most charming and exquisitely dressed women of the screen.

Rollin Sturgeon is indeed to be congratulated upon "The Mad Marriage," for it is a directorial achievement. It is the third picture he has made with Miss Meyers, the other two being "In Folly's Trail" and "The Gilded Dream," and the combination of director and star has been so exceedingly successful that it is earnestly to be hoped that more co-work will come from them.

Publicity Stories for Frank Mayo in "Colorado"

NEW "HE-MAN" ROLE FITS VIRILE STAR ADMIRABLY

IN the production of "Colorado," coming to the .... Theatre next ...., Frank Mayo will be seen in one of those he-man roles for the portrayal of which he is so eminently fitted by his temperament, dramatic force and physique. And yet the part of Frank Austin, alias Lieutenant Hayden, differs from those other virile roles in which he has been seen of late. Most of Mayo's big parts have shown him as a character of the north woods, as in "The Brute Breaker" and "The Red Lane." In "Colorado" he appears as a man self-exiled from polite society, trying to forget the past and start anew amid the sands and mountains of the rugged west.

Although Frank Mayo has not appeared in many western roles during his screen career, his first huge stage success was scored in a western part—that of Cash Hawkins in "The Squawman." It was in the big London production of this American play that Mayo created the role which was originally played in New York by William S. Hart.

However, Mayo is one film star who does not have to be fitted with a part. He is an actor by birth and instinct and can portray any role within the range of his physical limitations. No two of the roles he has portrayed on the screen since he has been starring in Universal photodramas have been alike, and of each he has made a distinct characterization.

Frank Mayo is the third of his name to have achieved fame in the world of the theatre. His grandfather, Frank Mayo, was the reigning actor of his day. His father, Edwin T. Mayo, followed in his sire's footsteps, and is well remembered by the older theatregoers for his "Davy Crockett" and "Puddin' Head Wilson." The younger Frank Mayo has acted since childhood and is carrying on the family traditions.

SMOKY CITY BIRTHPLACE OF WINSOME GLORIA HOPE

PITTSBURGH has been abused for its smoke and envied for its wealth so long that the city's sensibilities are somewhat dulled to praise or criticism; but it never fails to show a glow of pride through the murky atmosphere when mention is made of Gloria Hope.

Miss Hope, a Universal player, is now at the .... Theatre in the leading feminine role of "Colorado," in which Frank Mayo is the star.

Gloria Hope was born in Pittsburgh and received her early education there. After leaving grammar school her parents moved to Newark, N. J., where the pretty girl entered high school and took an active part in scholastic affairs.

Upon her graduation at the age of seventeen she accompanied her parents to Los Angeles and there got her first glimpse of a motion picture studio. The possibilities of a high school girl from the east stepping at once before the camera seemed remote to her but she decided to make the screen her life's work and at last got a chance to prove that she is a capable actress.

After some preliminary work at other studios, she was summoned to Universal City to play a leading role opposite Harry Carey. She scored such a success in the part that she has since supported many masculine stars, including Charles Ray, Frank Mayo and Jack Pickford.

Her role in "Colorado" shows her as the daughter of a poverty-stricken rancher whose life is strangely interwoven with the fate of the hero. Miss Hope has flaming red hair and is of a slight build, but possessed of considerable athletic ability, which she is called upon to display in "Colorado," filmed from the stage play of the same name by Augustus Thomas.

STAR HIMSELF SUGGESTED FILMING OF "COLORADO"

DRIVING his big car from New York to Los Angeles recently Frank Mayo, the Universal star, crossed the Colorado destert and saw the copper-colored sun swing out from the mountains to sparkle on the dew-studded sage.

In the enchanting dawn of the Rockies he decided to film "Colorado," the famous stage play by Augustus Thomas. Shortly after his return to Universal City negotiations were made whereby the stage success was assured Frank Mayo as his next screen vehicle.

The production is now the principal attraction at the ....Theatre and as a background for the dramatic action are the majestic mountains with the eternal snows falling from their mighty shoulders like the surplice of an acolyte at the altar of the gods.

In filming "Colorado," Reaves Eason, the director, adhered to the original theme, but slightly modernized it and added dramatic punches and romance.

Gloria Hope, the titian haired beauty of many big productions, plays opposite the star as his leading woman. Leonard Clapham, Charles LeMoyne, Lillian West and Charles Newton have other important characterizations.

Magnificent scenery, the personal popularity of Frank Mayo and the thrilling situations in which the story abounds, is attracting hundreds of theatregoers to the .... Theatre where "Colorado" will remain until ....

MOVIES OFFER ACTORS RAREST OF COMFORTS

THAT the motion picture industry has made better citizens of actors is the interesting statement of Charles LeMoyne, the Universal player who is to be seen at the ———— Theatre where he is supporting Frank Mayo in "Colorado."

"The day of the nomad actor, the strolling player, is fast disappearing," he said recently, "the wandering minstrel sings his lay at the studio and then parks his wild harp in his own garage until the next day.

"What is perhaps the best feature of the screen from the standpoint of an actor is that one can have a home and bring up a family," he continued. "Once in the old days, after a year on the road, I returned to my home to see my little two-year-old daughter for the first time since our tour started. With Mrs. LeMoyne I played with the little one until she grew sleepy. Turning suddenly to her mother she said:

"'Muvver, tell that gentleman to go home now, I want to go to bed.'

"Nowadays an actor, who is fortunate enough to be on the screen, can share the joys of his family and have something to do with the education of his children.

Charles LeMoyne was born in Marshall, Ill., but went to the west coast to attend the University of California. For several years after his graduation he toured the country with theatrical companies until an opportunity came for him to get into screen work.

He has appeared in many big pictures and has played "heavies" in nearly all of Harey Carey's recent productions—but none in which his ability as a screen villain has such scope as in "Colorado."

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 12 FEBRUARY 12, 1921 No. 26

Leading Writers Supply Universal Stories

UNIVERSAL has embarked upon a period which will go down in its history as an era of "better stories," and in which the big film company will go to unusual lengths to obtain the works of the best possible writers for its stars and directors. Mr. R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, in a recent statement indicating Universal's plan for 1921 in the story line, laid stress upon the policy which now acuates the Universal Scenario Department—that no writer is too big for Universal, and no story too good.

Universal is producing or projecting pictures by a list of prominent authors which includes many of the most popular writers in America. Among them are such recognized literary figures as F. Hopkinson Smith, Augustus Thomas, Booth Tarkington, Edna Ferber, the late Jacques Futrelle, Courtney Ryley Cooper, Clara Louise Burnham, Max Brand, Marorie Benton Cooke, Izola Forrester and Mann Page, Edwina Levin, Helen Christine Bennett, George Rix, Philip V. Mighels, James E. Hungerford, Wadsworth Camp, and such noted photo-dramatists as Forrest Halsey and Clara Beranger.

"We plan to make the coming season a criterion in the production of great pictures, adapted from the work of great writers," said Mr. Cochrane. "The past few months have seen an unprecedented activity in Universal's Scenario Department, headed by John C. Brownell, who with an enlarged staff, has obtained for our company the screen rights of more popular plays, novels and stories than at any other period in our history.

"Some of these stories were immediately put into production. With a full realization that photo-play patrons are becoming more critical in their taste and have grown to appreciate a good story properly told through the medium of the screen, Universal determined to lose no time in supplying this demand. Our production schedule for the opening months of 1921 looks like a list from 'Who's Who in Literature.'

"Tod Browning, who wrote and directed 'Outside the Law,' the latest Priscilla Dean feature, now is busy selecting an all-star cast for the screen adaption of Edna Ferber's remarkable novel, 'Fanny Herself.' This will be one of the biggest pictures of the coming year, and Universal is sparing no pains to assure it a sumptuous production.

"In the meantime, Priscilla Dean, under the direction of Stuart Paton, one of the veteran directors in the moving picture field, has started work on a photo-dramatization of Edwina Levin's great novel of stage life, 'False Colors.' This we expect to be the masterpiece of Miss Dean's screen career. In portraying the subtle characterizations of the dual rôle drawn by Miss Levin in her powerful story, the star will be called upon to exert her utmost screen talent. Both Paton and Miss Dean have had long experience in the theatre, and are well fitted to transfer to the screen the unusual back-stage atmosphere of Miss Dean's novel.

"Not only has the Scenario Department in the home office been increased; the scenario staff at Universal City has been considerably augmented, within the last few weeks, by the addition of such experts as William Lord Wright, John W. Gray, George Plimpton and George Morgan.

"Mr. Carl Laemmle, the head of Universal, soon will be in California to take personal supervision of the coming 'production wave' at our West Coast studios. I will join him there early in February to assist in the supervision of Universal's drive for 100 per cent. pictures."

In addition to the two big Universal-Jewel productions now being made from the novels by Edna Ferber and Edwina Levin, Universal also has acquired the screen rights to "The Open Shutters," the popular novel from the pen of Clara Louise Burnham. This story now is being put into continuity form and will be used as the next starring vehicle for Edith Roberts.

The next picture to be made by Harry Carey, Universal's popular western star, will be an adaptation of Courtney Ryley Cooper's story, "Christmas Eve at Pilot Butte," which recently attracted great attention when it appeared in the Red Book. Cooper is regarded as one of the best writers of virile stories. His rugged characters are those of the country and customs that Harry Carey likes to portray, and in which setting he has now fame as a screen star.

Universal also promises the early screening of "The Flirt," Booth Tarkington's widely read novel. No star has been seleted for this picture, says Mr. Brownell, Universal scenario chief, but continuity writers at the coast are busy on its screen adaption, and a director soon will be assigned for its production.

(Continued on page 34.)

Frank Mayo Relaxing In His Dressing-Room

Mayo Mighty Busy

THE announcement of the early release of Frank Mayo in "Colorado" should come as welcome news to his scores of admirers for this picture from the famous stage play of the equally famous American dramatist, Augustus Thomas, has all the elements in it that best fit the virile personality and striking talents of the star. "Colorado" is full of romance, of adventure, of the big open country and of "fight," and what more can the Mayo admirers ask?

The filming of "Colorado" as a vehicle for Mayo is in line with the Universal policy of supplying this star with stories from the pens of well-known writers. Mayo's previous release, "Tiger True," was filmed from the famous story of "Tiger" by Max Brand.

Now that he has finished his work in "Colorado," the star is busy on his next production, from the pen of the famous scenarist, J. G. Hawks. It is a picture tentatively called "Blood Brother to the Pines," and has to do with the big open northern country and of the unusual manner in which the hero captures the woman of his heart, even against her own will. This picture will have an added novelty in the person of the director, Robert Thornby, who has but recently joined the Universal forces, and who makes his initial bow to Universal audiences with this production. And what is more, the leading lady is no less a personage than dainty Dorothy De Vore, erstwhile comedy queen.

It has just been announced that Universal has purchased "The Truant," a thrilling novel by Izola Forrester and Mann Page, which will soon run serially in the pages of the Delineator magazine, for the use of Mayo. It is now being whipped into shape, and it is most probable that the star will do this one after he has finished with the Hawks story. Izola Forrester and Mann Page are a well-known literary combination that can be counted upon to provide something thrilling and entertaining at all times.

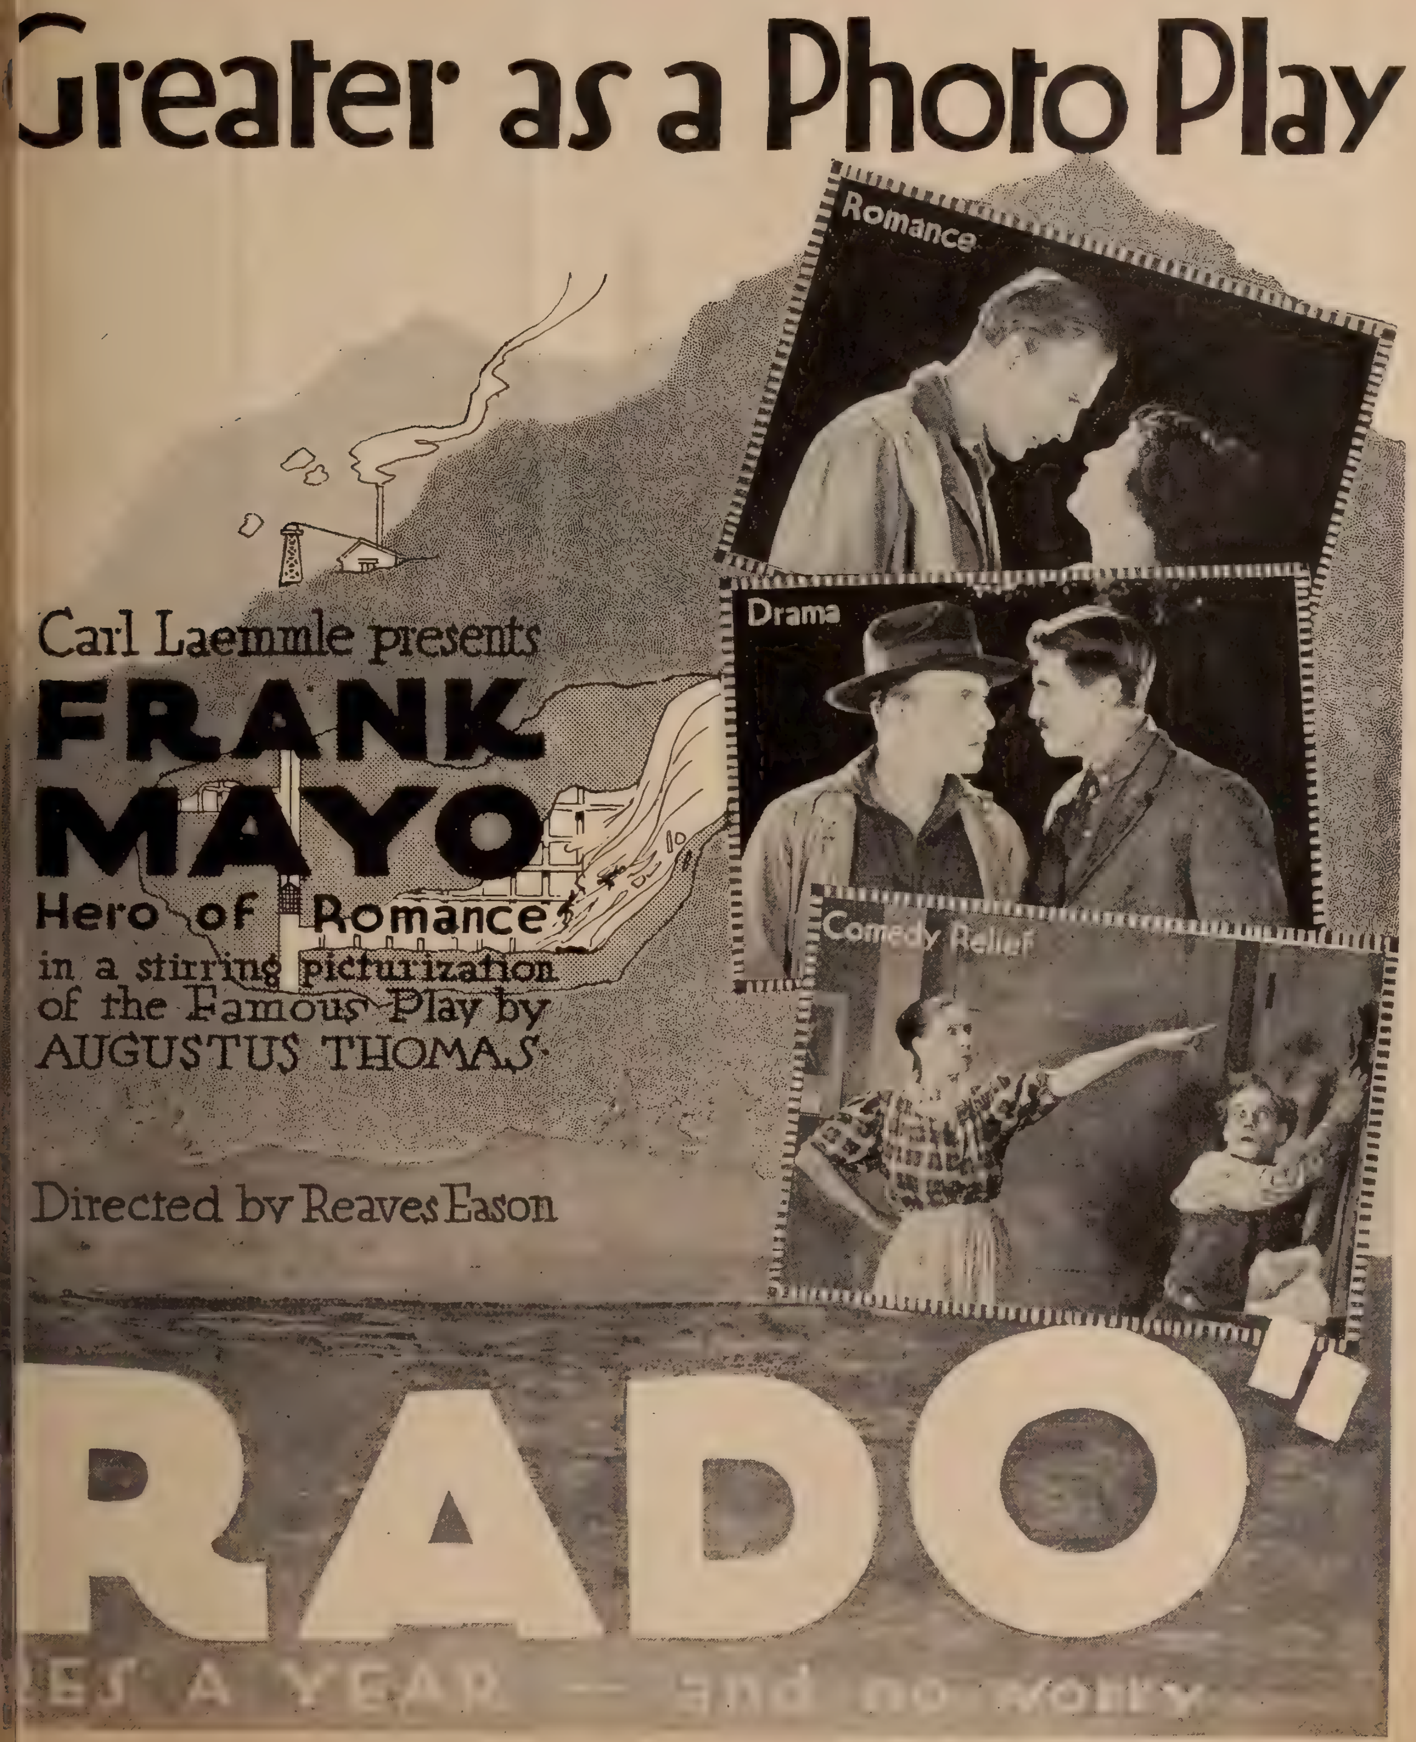
With such plans as these in store for Frank Mayo, his admirers can well rest easy that there will be a constant source of "good ones" from him within the coming months.

The recent Mayo pictures, "Hitchin' Posts," "The Marriage Pit," "Honor Bound" and "Tiger True" are meeting with hearty receptions everywhere. For Frank Mayo is a popular favorite, and with the added attraction of good pictures and good direction his ever-increasing popularity is not to be wondered at in the least.

Great as a spoken Play;

HERE'S a whale of a picture, gentlemen. As a stage play it made a big hit on Broadway and on the road. But the stage never could give Augustus Thomas' famous play such rugged virility, such swift action, such sheer suspense and such gripping drama as have been screened. For example, that sequence in which a mine is flooded is crowded with thrills—because the scenes were actually photographed in a real mine. But realism is only one of a score of reasons why "Colorado" is a whale of a picture. You'll say so, too, when you see it.

"COLO
It's one of those 52 GOOD PICT



Greater as a Photo Play

Carl Laemmle presents

FRANK MAYO

Hero of Romance

in a stirring picturization of the Famous Play by AUGUSTUS THOMAS.

Directed by Reaves Eason

Romance
Drama
Comedy Relief

RADO"

ES A YEAR — and no worry

My Experiences At Universal City

By

Gertrude Olmstead

Gertrude Olmstead

EIGHT months have sped across the calendar since I arrived at Universal City as a novice at the conclave of celebrities.

Now, with the first picture in which I appear on its way to the screen, I can look back over the strenuous days spent in acquiring an inkling of the technical knowledge which is absolutely ecessary to any one who aspires to be more than a wax doll on the screen.

Like any other worth-while thing, the screen requires efficiency from its slaves. Art, it has been said, is a relentless task-master, and one can no more do effective screen work without training than can one master the sciece of astronomy by glancing at the stars.

Universal City is like Wonderland. To a seventeen-year-old girl it recalls the romance of fairy-lore and the enchanting unreality of make-believe. Truly, it is a delightful school to attend.

When my big brothers, the Elks, were good enough to elect me as their queen and Mr. Laemmle engaged me as a Universal player, I had no idea that I had anything to do but stand before the camera and do as I was told. That idea lasted about ten minutes after I had crossed the threshold of the world's film capital.

"Report to the Hoot Gibson company at 9 a. m. for riding lessons," I was told.

Splendid! I thought; a nice ride through some park; I'll show him what a fine rider I am.

That ride!

Sitting astride a Mexican saddle and trying to keep aboard a tempestuous mustang, I followed a plaid-shirted cowboy over a mountain trail that would tax the balancing powers of a goat.

Not much like riding in Lincoln Park in Chicago on a livery stable pony and an English pad.

For weeks after that I rode every day and spent the spare moments in learning to spin a rope like a cowgirl.

Then followed weeks of hard study in the simple things that I thought I could do; the natural little mannerisms of the stage and screen which, I discovered, must be done in an exacting manner to be effective.

Priscilla Dean herself gave me instruction in drama, while Gladys Walton, Frank Mayo and Carmel Myers gave me an intensive course in the science of make-up. I had an idea that a little red on the cheeks and a little penciling of the eyebrows was sufficient. Little did I realize that the make-up box of a photoplayer must contain pigment to meet the temperamental demands of the camera and that a ghastly purple is the nearest thing to rouge used.

I have been so kindly treated at Universal City that the hard work has been a pleasure. Every one from the stars to the cowboys have been delightfully interested in my progress, and now my ambition is to please those thousands who see Universal pictures in every theatre in every country.

"Miss Illinois" Arrives

AFTER eight months of careful training in the art and technique of motion-picture playing, Gertrude Olmstead, selected by the Elks of America as their queen at their last convention, and winner of the prize beauty contest, is now a post graduate.

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, through its president, Carl Laemmle, agreed to give the winner of the Elks beauty contest a long term contract to appear in its productions. Miss Olmstead, who is but seventeen years old and but recently graduated from the La Salle, Illinois, high school, was brought to Universal City, California, accompanied by her mother. Instead of taking advantage of the wide publicity given the beauty contest throughout the country and putting the attractive young miss before he camera at once, Universal decided to give her a thorough training before reproducing her on the screen.

Youth and beauty, while very important qualities, are not considered sufficient by Universal directors for success on the screen. So Miss Olmstead was given training in acting, in dancing, in physical culture, in riding, in make-up and in every other accomplishment requiste for success in motion pictures. She has already appeared with Hoot Gibson in several small parts and all who have seen her are delighted with her charm and grace and positive that she will justify Universal's faith in her. And now, at the end of eight months Miss Olmstead is pronounced a finished actress, and the young lady has been made leading lady for Hoot Gibson, the popular Universal Western star. The little Illinois girl has captivated every one about the huge film studio with her vivaciousness and charm and a bright future is predicted for her on the screen.

Gladys Walton in Some Interesting Moments from "Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

Big Plans For The Little Flapper

WITH the release of "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," starring the little flapper, otherwise known as Gladys Walton, the "find" sensation of 1920, comes also the announcement of the plans which Universal is making for the future of this vivacious and talented younug lady.

Her next picture will be from a story called "The Bobbed Squab" by that clever writer of human stories, John Colton. Rollin Sturgeon will direct Miss Walton in this production, and of interest in connection with it is the announcement that Florence Turner will have the main female rôle opposite the star. Florence Turner, popularly known as the Vitagraph Girl, formerly starred in productions at Universal City, and it is interesting to note that the first picture that Rollin Surgeon ever directed had Miss Turner in the stellar rôle. Others in the cast will be Richard Norton, Helen Bruneau, Fred Malatesta, who played the "heavy" so capably in "Risky Business" with the young star, Ruth Royce, John Goff, Frank Norcross, Muriel Godfrey Turner, Ed Hearn and Lydia Titus Yeamans.

The story of "The Bobbed Squab" deals with the life of a little cash girl in a big department store; how she dreams of a rich man falling in love with her and finally how she does fall in love, really and truly in love, but with a poor man. Miss Turner plays the rôle of a wealthy spinster who takes the girl and boy in her protection and sees to it that "they live happily for ever afterwards." The film title will be "All Dolled Up."

Still further plans have been made for the little flapper. Universal has purchased the picture rights to that famous novel, "A Kentucky Cinderella," written by that delightful author, F. Hopkinson Smith, and Gladys will certainly revel in that role. The working title is "Little Miss Merridew" but it is not the final one.

Gladys Walton is richly deserving of all these excellent plans that are being laid for her. She is an arresting personality indeed—a little girl who is "different" in every way. Critics are predicting all sorts of great things from her, for her's is a rare charm and an unusual talent. Before her first starring vehicle, "Pink Tights," little Gladys had appeared in only two feature productions—"The Secret Gift" and "La La Lucille," the latter starring Lyons-Moran. In spite of this limited experience, however, she "walked off" with the show in her first starring vehicle, that delightful little comedy drama, "Pink Tights." Since then she has made "Risky Business" and her current release, "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," both of which have scored big successes.

In commenting upon the remarkable similarity in beauty and dramatic ability between the late Olive Thomas and Gladys Walton, Mae Tinee, dramatic critic of the Chicago Tribune said as follows, after reviewing "Risky Business": "She's just another such gallant, whimsical, captivating child as the unfortunate little girl who died in Paris."

All the critics seem to be unanimous in their splendid predictions for the future of the little flapper.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only' Jim"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"Hitchin' Posts"
"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"The Adorable Savage"
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"
"The Devil's Passkey"
"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"
"The Great Air Robbery"
"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)
"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"A Prohibition Monkey"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Trail Of The Hound
"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Grip Of The Law"
"The Trigger Trail"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

"A Son Of The North"
"The Girl And The Law"
"Big Stakes"
"When The Devil Laughed"
"The Forest Runners"
"The Timber Wolf"

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

"The Moon Riders"
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Tails Win"
"Trouble Bubbles"
"Their First Tintype"
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"

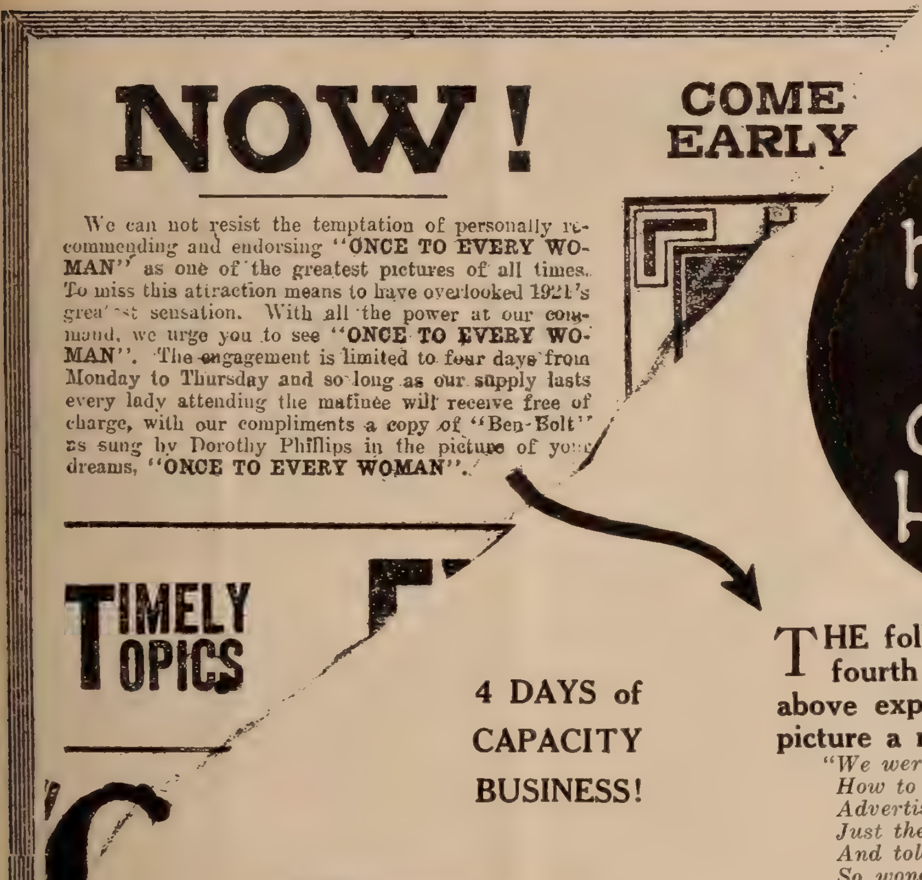
One Reel Star Comedies

Featuring

DOROTHEA WOLBERT

"Way Down North"
"Nearly Wed"
"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)
also
"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk And Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK



NOW!

COME EARLY

We can not resist the temptation of personally recommending and endorsing "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN" as one of the greatest pictures of all times. To miss this attraction means to have overlooked 1921's greatest sensation. With all the power at our command, we urge you to see "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN". The engagement is limited to four days from Monday to Thursday and so long as our supply lasts every lady attending the matinee will receive free of charge, with our compliments a copy of "Ben-Bolt" as sung by Dorothy Phillips in the picture of your dreams, "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN".

TIMELY TOPICS

4 DAYS of CAPACITY BUSINESS!

This is how they put it over in Hamilton, OHIO

THE following ad. was used on the fourth day and helped with the above exploitation stunt to make this picture a record-breaker.

"We were somewhat undecided
How to word our
Advertisement for to-day.
Just then somebody walked in
And told us that while we have
So wonderful an attraction as
"Once To Every Woman"
We don't need to advertise.
So we just want to call
Your attention to the fact that
This wonderful production and Special musical settings will come to a Positive close to-night.
To-morrow it will be history!
We thank you."

P. S.—A singer rendered "Ben Bolt," "Good-Bye" and "The Flower Song" as suggested in full detail in the Weekly of December 11th.

CARL LAEMMLE presents

Dorothy Phillips

Supported by Margaret Mann in the greatest mother love Story of a generation. Directed by Allen Holubar

"Once to Every Woman"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

House seats 670
third week
Average
Still

THIS photo shows Priscilla Dean in a Priscilla Dean Tam —a piece of feminine headgear around which one of the biggest exploitation ideas ever devised is builded. Ask your Universal-Jewel Exchange about the big tam idea and you'll hear of a wonderful newspaper-department store-theatre-public tie-up. It's big league stuff!

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS
THE MOST AMAZING
AMERICAN
MELODRAMA
EVER
SCREENED

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported b
LON CHANEY

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL-

Gross $8200.00 Going Strong!

THAT'S a record for you!—made by the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles. Think of it—the figures mean that for the first three weeks the average was more than twelve dollars a seat a week at an average admission of 35c. And what's more, as this announcement is being prepared, "Outside The Law" is in its fifth week at the Superba and it's still going strong!

Extended Run Means Bigger Weekly Percentage For You

THE Superba's record, of itself, proves that you will make more money each week by booking "Outside The Law" for a long-extended run than you would by giving it a short run and following it with a picture of unknown box-office value. That's just horse sense, for when a picture breaks records every week for five weeks in Los Angeles it will do exactly the same in ’odunk or Peoria or anywhere else.

THERE are many other reasons why an extended run will increase your weekly gross. It is already an established fact that "Outside The Law" is one of the biggest self-advertisers ever produced. To get the full benefit of this word-of-mouth advertising it is up to you to hold the picture long enough to get the benefit of this priceless and costless seat-selling by pleased patrons.

Decreased Overhead Makes Profit Percentage Increase

WHEN you hold over a picture your overhead is less than when you put in a new picture. This holds true of advertising, presentation and a score of other big and little details. What is even more important—your work and worry are lessened. Once you have the picture going right you can rest assured it will carry itself with less help than an unknown feature—on the same sort of record-breaking run it is making in Los Angeles.

OUTSIDE THE LAW"

JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

VON STROHEIM

"Erich von Stroheim is a born genius. His perception for details is remarkable."

—Harrison Reports.

Carl Laem
presents

Von Strohei
Marvelo
Play

"Th

"In Paris – a beautiful woman needs no money"

Main Street or Rue de la Paix– it's all the same!

TO the village girl on Main street as well as to the demi-monde of the Parisian boulevard come the same dreams of life, love and fine clothes.

In this master play every woman, everywhere, finds pictured vividly all her hopes and longings.

That is why this remarkable photoplay is achieving the same marked success in the smaller towns that it has registered in the larger cities!

It is Everywoman's—everybody's—picture. You should show it!

"Come my pretty lady – a kiss for your knight!"

"Won't you Forgive me ?"

"DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE

ENTHUSIASM FOR "JEWELS"

Ebson, Kan.
Jan. 6, 1921.

Mr. J. H. Valvert,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir:—

I wish to make it known to you that the pictures, "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Under Crimson Skies," were very good, and I received good compliments on them from my patrons.

In spite of the bad weather that was against me I made some money on them, and would have had an extra large attendance if the weather had been favorable.

Yours truly,
Francis Peroutek,
Empress Theatre.

Boise, Idaho,
Dec. 31, 1920.

Universal Film Erchanges, Inc.,
Salt Lake City, Utah.

Gentlemen:

I don't like the idea of writing testimonial letters in regard to pictures, butfor your information will say that "The Devil's Passkey" and "Once to Every Woman" were very good pictures, both as to pleasing patrons and from the box office standpoint.

With best wishes and kindest regards, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
Majestic Amusement Company,
(Signed) L. C. Gallagher, Man.

Gentry, Ark.,
Nov. 29, 1920.

Universal Film Co.,
Gentlemen:

Enclosed is my check to cover booking for December 8th and 11th. In all my experience as an exhibitor, I never had a better satisfied house than that of "The Virgin of Stamboul." Nothing but prise for the picture.

Yours truly,
(Signed) A. M. Ottinger.

Anaheim, Cal.
Jan. 15, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges,
San Francisco, Cal.
Gentlemen:

We wish to add our little quota of praise to your "The Devil's Passkey," which we played November 17th and 18th. As a box office attraction, it proved a winner. As entertainment it gave entire satisfaction. As a quality production, it should be classed with the best, and exploited accordingly.

Yours truly,
Anaheim Theatre Company.
Per C. L. Head.

Lincoln, Neb.
Dec. 18, 1920.

Universal Film Exchange,
Omaha, Neb.

My dear Mr. Lefholtz:

I think that "The Devil's Passkey," from every angle, is one of the best pictures we have had the pleasure of playing this season. We have received an unusually large number of complimentary letters regarding this production. The patrons praised it unstintedly as they were leaving the theatre, and business was wonderful.

We will play a return engagement of "The Devil's Passkey" in January.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) L. M. Gorman, Gen. Mgr.,
Hostettler Enterprises.

"Cannibals" Not Neglected

Jan. 5. 1921.

Mr. Ralph W. Abbett, Mgr.,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sir:—

This is to inform you that I started the New Year with a bang. I broke my house records with "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals." Would advise any exhibitor who wishes to increase his bank balance to play this picture, for with a little extra exploitation it will turn the trick.

(Signed) Lawrence Porter, Mgr.,
Majestic Tehatre.

Washington, D. C., January 2, 1921.

Mr. Jules Levy, Mgr.,
Washington Fillm Exch.,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Levy:

Many thanks for booking "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" to me for my Leader Theatre. Being in the exchange business for six years and having handled the biggest box-office attractions in this territory, I believe I can justly extol the wonderful advertising possibilities of your picture.

The "front" that I am exhibiting as you know is the talk of the theatregoers of Washington. All my patrons have been highly pleased with the picture, and despite weather conditions, I wish to advise that this will be a record breaking week for the house. The business has indeed exceeded all my expectations.

Don't fail to get in touch with me whenever you have any more attractions of the calibre of "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals."

Thanking you for your co-operation in making this engagement most successful, I am,

Sincerely yours,
(Signed)....Sidney B. Lust, Pres..
Super Film Attractions.

GREATER THAN EVER

Washington, D. C.,
Jan. 15, 1920.

Universal Film Exchange,
307 9th Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Attention of Mr. Jules Levy, Manager.

Gentlemen:

It gives me great pleasure to praise and recommend your special picture, "Once to Every Woman," which highly pleased our audiences all last week. The combination of your worthy picture and a soloist who rendered songs during the running of the feature, which was an appropriate staging effect, proved to be what I term 100 per cent. entertainment value. This production gave the people a great thrill in its massive theatre scene, and was also a picture that had splendid continuity and direction.

I consider it one of the very best offerings of the season.

Wishing you the good returns that this picture truly deserves, and with thanks for the preference we enjoyed in first presentation, we remain with kind regards,

Yours very truly,

Moore's Theatre Corporation.
By Tom Moore, President.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.,
Jan. 20, 1921.

Mr. Edgar B. Haines, Manager,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Des Moines, Iowa.

Dear Mr. Haines:

No doubt it will please you to know that our business on "Once to Every Woman," which was shown at the Princess Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week was very satisfactory from both the box office and pleased patrons' angle.

Many of our patrons expressed their appreciation and thanked us for showing this picture.

The idea of using a singer in connection with it added very materially, we believe, to the entertaining value of the feature.

We are especially pleased with the financial results and several times during the run we had to hang up the old S. R. O. sign.

Give us more like "Once to Every Woman" if you want to keep us happy. Best wishes, from

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. I. Neagle,
Managing Owner Princess Theatre.

P. O. Box 301,
Fernie, B. C., Jan. 7, 1921.

Canadian Universal Film Co.,
Calgary, Alberta.

Dear Mr. Kohn:—

"Once to Every Woman."

Could four words be more pregnant with power to move all the audiences of both days showing, to tears and sighs, then happy smiles.

I played "Once to Every Woman" on both days against heavy opposition and had to put up the S. R. O. sign.

This picture has given more pleasure than any picture ever shown here, bar none.

More pictures like this and the Censor would be out of work.

Thanking you for booking me with this extra superb attraction,

I am,

Respectfully,
The Isis Theatre,
J. Chas. Orner.

Kansas City, Mo.,
Jan. 12, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
17th and Main Streets,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Mr. Calvert:

This is to inform you that after playing your Jewel production, "Once to Every Woman," I find upon counting my receipts for the day, that I have broken all house records since the opening night.

I have always used all releases of the Universal and can say that for consistency, they are on a par with all other productions.

I want to thank you for your kind treatment in the past and can plainly see the difference between the manager and the exhibitor that existed heretofore.

We are all glad to see the industry headed by able business men and we hope the day of the four-flushing manager is past.

(Signed) W. O. Burkey,
Admiral Theatre.

TELEGRAMS

Jan. 4, 1921.

George Levine,
Manager Universal Film Co.,
Milwaukee, Wis.

Open today for a three-day run to capacity houses on "Once to Every Woman." A wonderful picture. When you have any more such let me hear from you.

Neil Duffy,
Elite Theatre,
Appleton, Wis.

Jan. 13,1921.

H. M. Berman,
Care Universal Film Company,
1600 Broadway, New York.

This is foutrh day of "Once to Every Woman." Breaking all records.

Strand Theatre,
Easton,Pa.

Dec. 30, 1920.

Barney Rosenthal,
Universal Film Exchange, Inc.,
St. Louis, Mo.

"Once to Every Woman" just closed second big day. Exceeded fullest expectations. Miss Phillips great actress. Production talk of town today. Full houses first showing both nights good, hold over matinees good. Like return date fourteenth per your offer.

Hicks,
Family Theatre,
Marion, Ill.
Edinburg, Ind..

"You will go away from this play with a lot of lumps in your throat and the feeling that you have seen something VERY WORTH WHILE. As the bird-like Yuki, who is the sacrifice of diplomatic baseness and of the traditions of her country, Tsuru Aoki proves herself capable of expressing great dramatic intensity and poignancy of emotion."

PHOTOPLAY

Featuring
TSURU AOKI
with
J. BARNEY SHERRY
supported by
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
and a great company

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

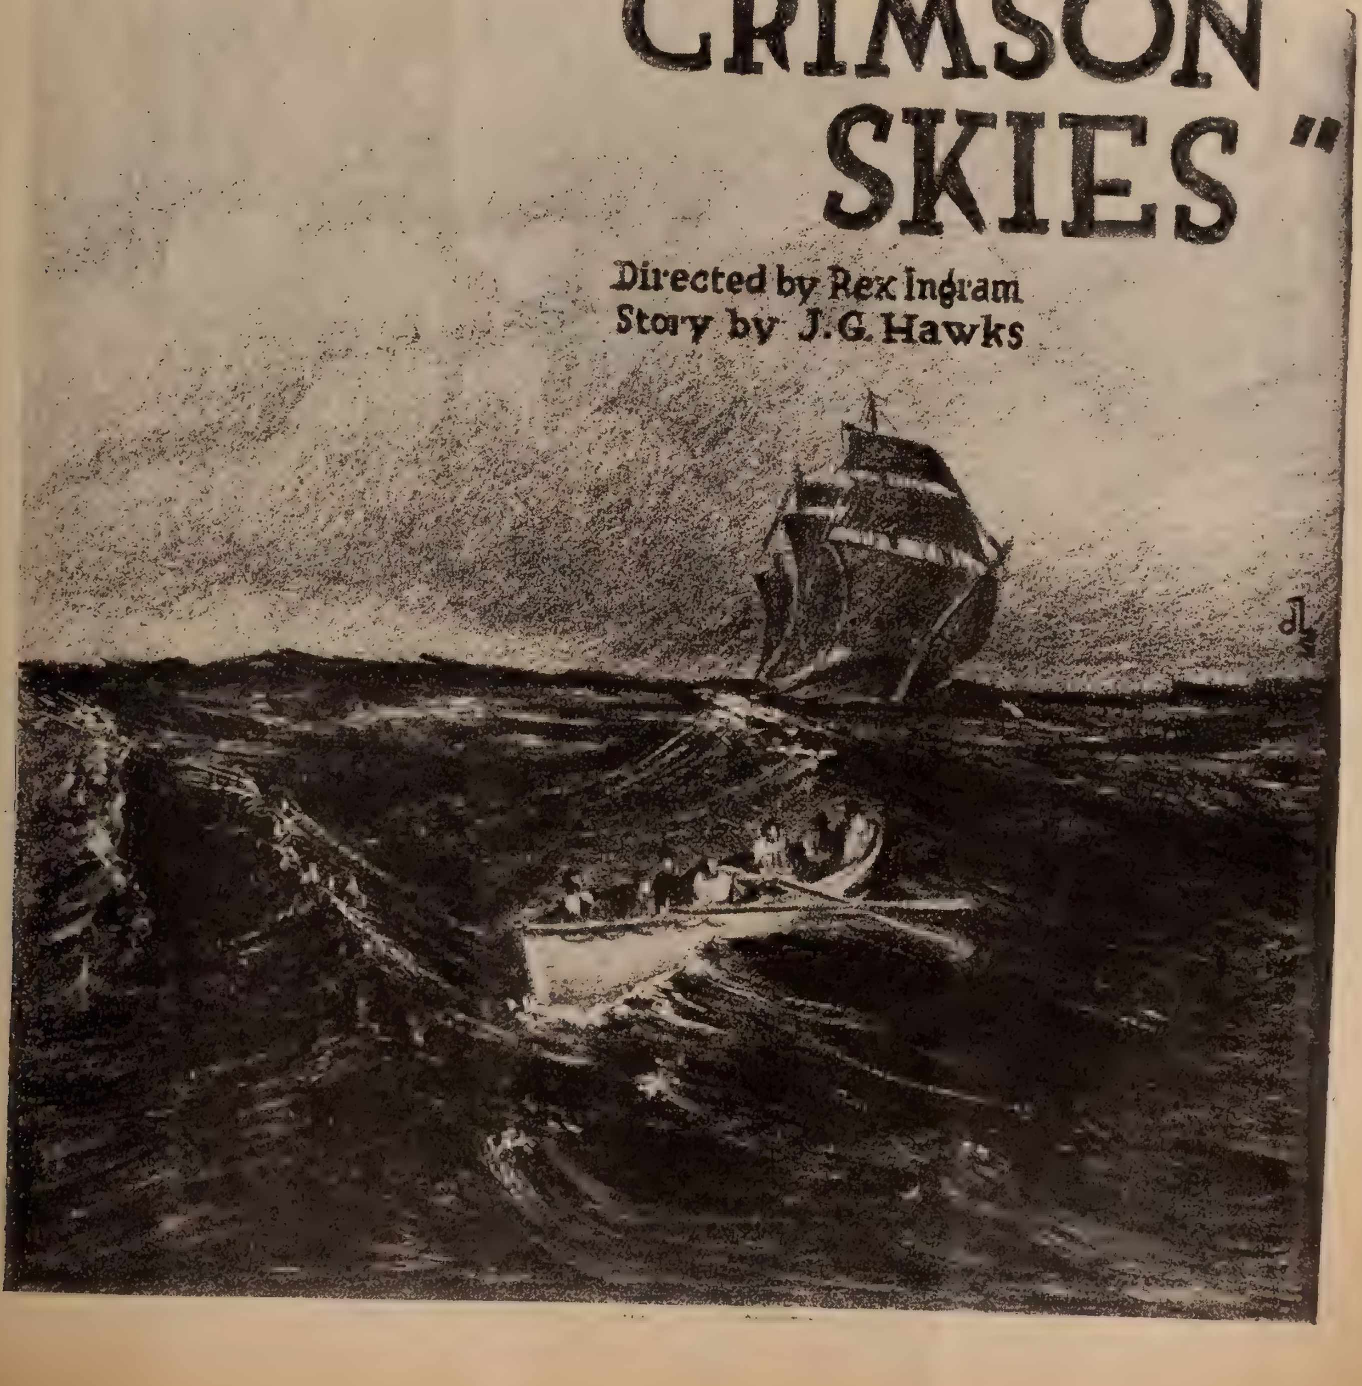
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER PRODUCTION
Made by ROLLIN STURGEON
from the famous novel by
SIDNEY McCALL

ELMO LINCOLN

IN THE STIRRING
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"



Directed by Rex Ingram
Story by J. G. Hawks

Just as Big---

On Main Street as on Broadway

Testimonials from large cities and small towns continue to come in telling of the tremendous success this picture is making. Read two of the latest:

"A great offering. Not a bit suggestive. A sure money-getter."
Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, O

"This is a good picture. Full of thrills."
Royal Theatre,
Lehi, Utah.

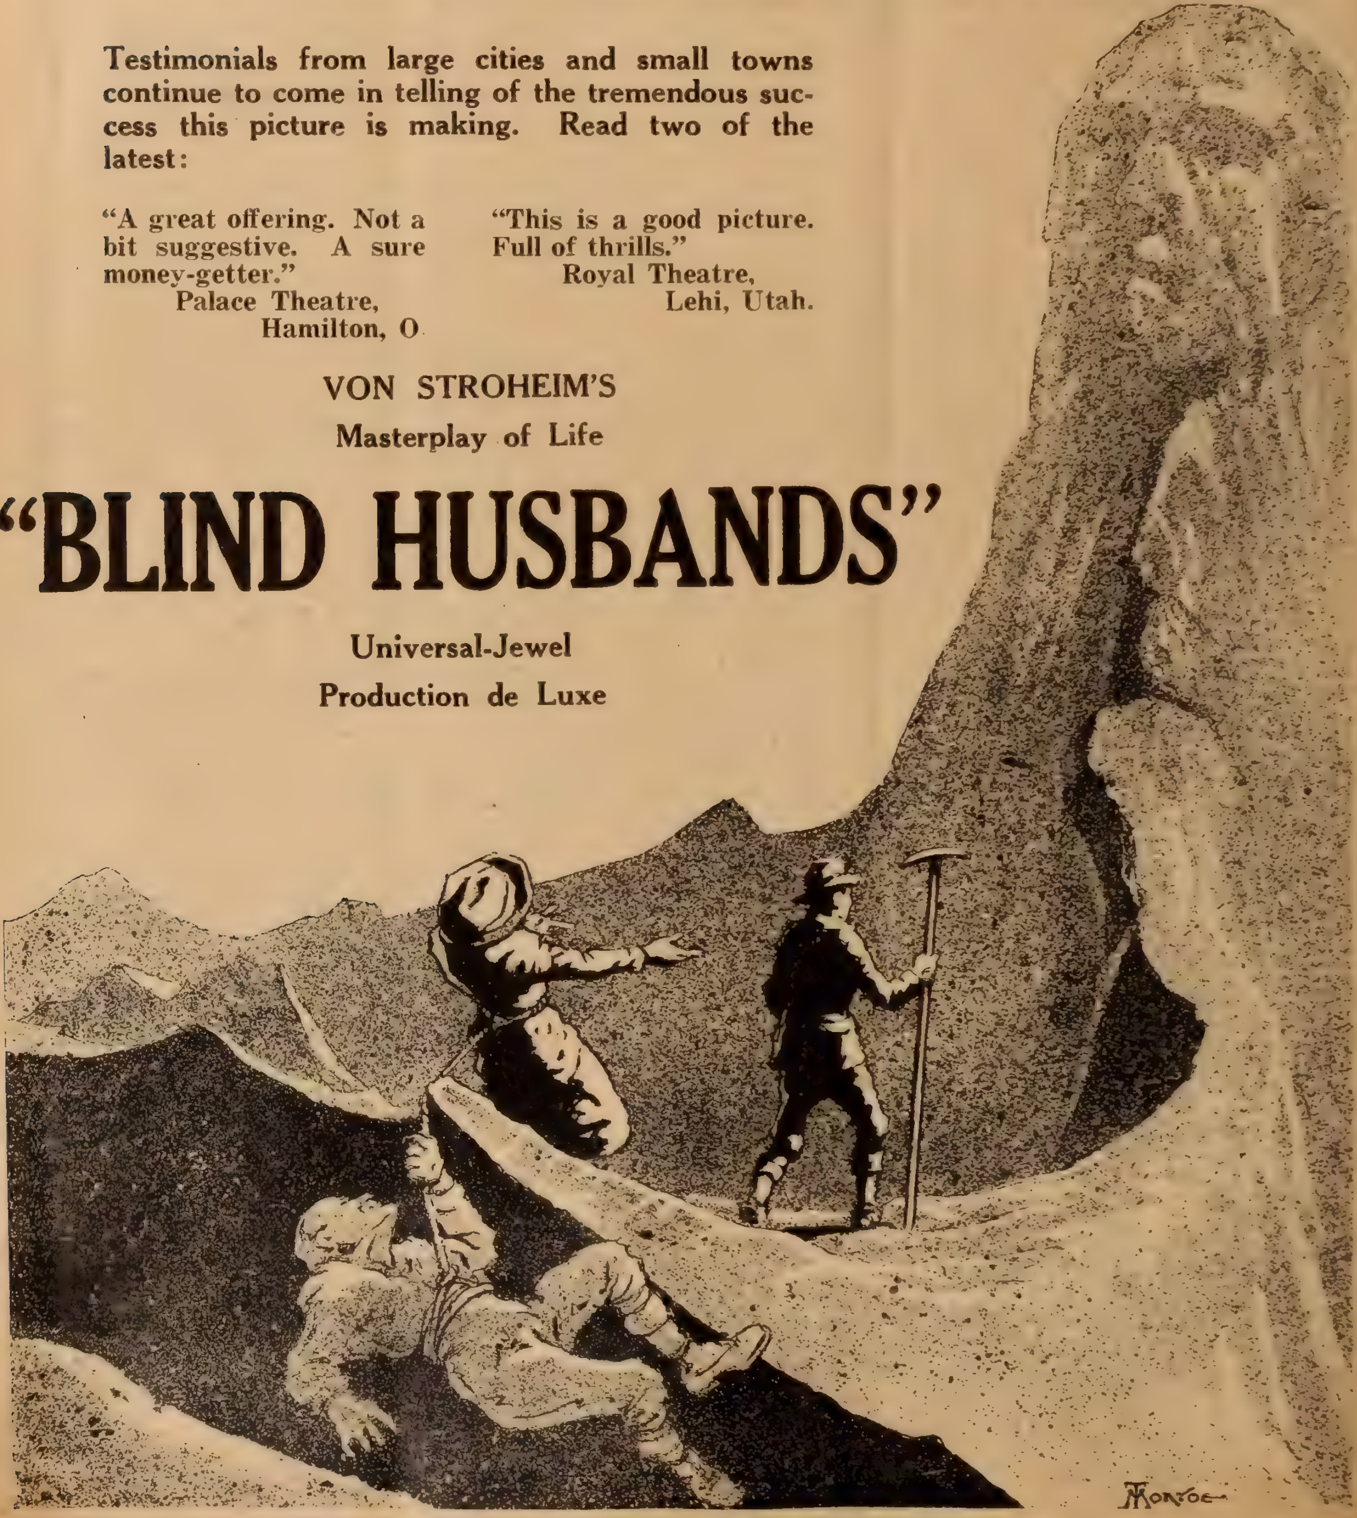
VON STROHEIM'S

Masterplay of Life

"BLIND HUSBANDS"

Universal-Jewel

Production de Luxe



The Amazing Contrast

Priscilla Dean, Star of "Outside the Law" in Two Different Moods

THE electrifying changes in character portrayal executed by Priscilla Dean in "Outside the Law" stamp her as the most dominant personality on the screen to-day. Never before have the patrons of the films had an opportunity to see such contrasts of superlative acting.

We could not visualize the strongest depicted characters of the world's greatest writers with a fuller degree of accuracy than is presented in this film by Miss Dean. Her interest compelling acting forces every one to watch her every move with supreme enthusiasm.

Priscilla Dean's repertoire is all inclusive and runs the complete gamut of human expression. In one instant the gentle, serene girl, and in the next foot of film shown as the whirlpool around whom the various eddies and tides of the underworld revolve. Such is the histrionic ability of this adorable girl of the films.

Her eyes laugh out upon the world with intense frankness one minute and the next second from their depths flash all the trickery and deceit of the super-clever woman of the underworld who lives by her wits.

The characteristic Dean smile serves one minute as a sally to a particularly brilliant remark of her partner at some social gathering and then reverting to her character of "Silky Moll" her lips become sneering and cruel. Her facial expression alone and her complete mastery of human expression in the rôle she creates make the picture a success.

When viewed as the society woman with her exquisite and tasteful gowns and graceful poise it is almost inconceivable that the same woman could change into the daring fighter around whom surges a veritable vortex of swift dramatic action.

Her amazing versatility is clearly evident and will be highly praised and commented upon wherever "Outside the Law" flashes from the silver sheet. The picture has taken the country by storm and is now being released by our exchanges throughout the country.

From press comments in the cities where the picture has been shown the critics are unanimous in their praise of "Outside the Law" as a great melo-drama. This production built around Priscilla Dean promises to be a tremendous success with unusual popular appeal.

Although the leading interest is centered in Priscilla Dean, the necessary villain essential to all melo-dramas is capably played by Lon Chaney, who has leaped into national prominence as the best "bad man" developed by the films. Together with Wheeler Oakman, the handsome leading man playing opposite to Miss Dean and Tod Browning, the director-author, who has many pictorial achievements to his credit, the cast is one of superior ability.

Polo Serial Goes Over Big

Original Lobby Display Devised By The Whitehouse Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., for "King of the Circus."

UNIVERSAL has every reason to be gratified with the reception accorded Eddie Polo in his latest serial, "King Of The Circus." Audiences are enthusiastic over it and are unanimous in the opinion that it is a serial of a "different" order.

The serial is full of the most realistic circus atmosphere and the circus scenes were actually taken in some of the big circus tents and sets that flourish in the U. S. A. nowadays. Naturally, this angle of the chapter-play lends itself perfectly to exploitation of the most effective order and exhibitors are taking advantage of it to the fullest. The Whitehouse Theatre in Milwaukee had a striking lobby display arranged in connection with their showing of "King of the Circus," which is partially reproduced on this page.

Naturally, Eddie Polo is in his element in a serial of this kind. His early years were spent "under the big tent" and it was there that he laid the foundations for that remarkably agility and courage for which he is famed all over the world.

Polo is as popular in the eastern hemispheres as he is in the west. Each day finds scores of letters addresed to him from admirers, and some come from places so remote that the good folk who inhabit the U. S. A. have no knowledge of them at all.

A notable cast supports Polo in this serial. Charles Fortuna who plays the role of Winters, and an important one at that, is "a circus brother" of Eddie, having played with him "under the big tent," years ago. Kittoria Beveridge, who plays the big role of Mary Warren, is a relative of no less a person than the distinguished Senator Beveridge. Harry Madison is all that could be desired as a villain and the lesser roles are very capably taken care of.

Immediately upon completion of "King Of The Circus," the energetic Polo began making plans for "his next" and his legion of admirers will be glad to learn that he is even at this writing in good old Cuba, where the greater part of his forthcoming chapter-play will be filmed.

Interesting Additions To Universal Scenario Staff

THE reorganization by Lucien Hubbard, scenario chief, of the serial and short-reel feature department at Universal City will interest Warren C. Harding for one of his star reporters of twenty years ago is in charge.

The newly appointed chief of the important department at the world's film capital is William Lord Wright. Twenty years ago he wrote copy on the Marion Daily Star and frequently watched Harding make-up the paper at press time. Wright worked under George Van Fleet, who was then city editor and is now the managing editor, and for his work he got $9.00 a week.

After varied newspaper experience Wright arrived in New York with an idea he could write material for the screen. Carl Laemmle, president of the Big U was then the executive behind the old Imp organization. Wright dashed off a thrilling two reel drama which he called "For the Sunday Edition," and Mr. Laemmle used it with King Baggot in the starring role and Owen Moore as the villain.

Following several years as a department chief on such trade publications as The Motion Picture News and the Dramatic Mirror, Wright published the first text book on the art of writing scenarios. He then joined the Selig Polyscope Company in an assorted job of scenario writing and editing, publicity, film editing and title writing. Later he rendered a similar service to the Pathe organization.

Cashing in on his extensive experience and exacting training, Wright is now reorganizing the serial and short reel feature department at Universal City to keep up with the demand of the exhibitors' for the Universal output.

To his staff he has added John W. Gray, George N. Plimton and George Morgan, all widely known writers of original material and continuity.

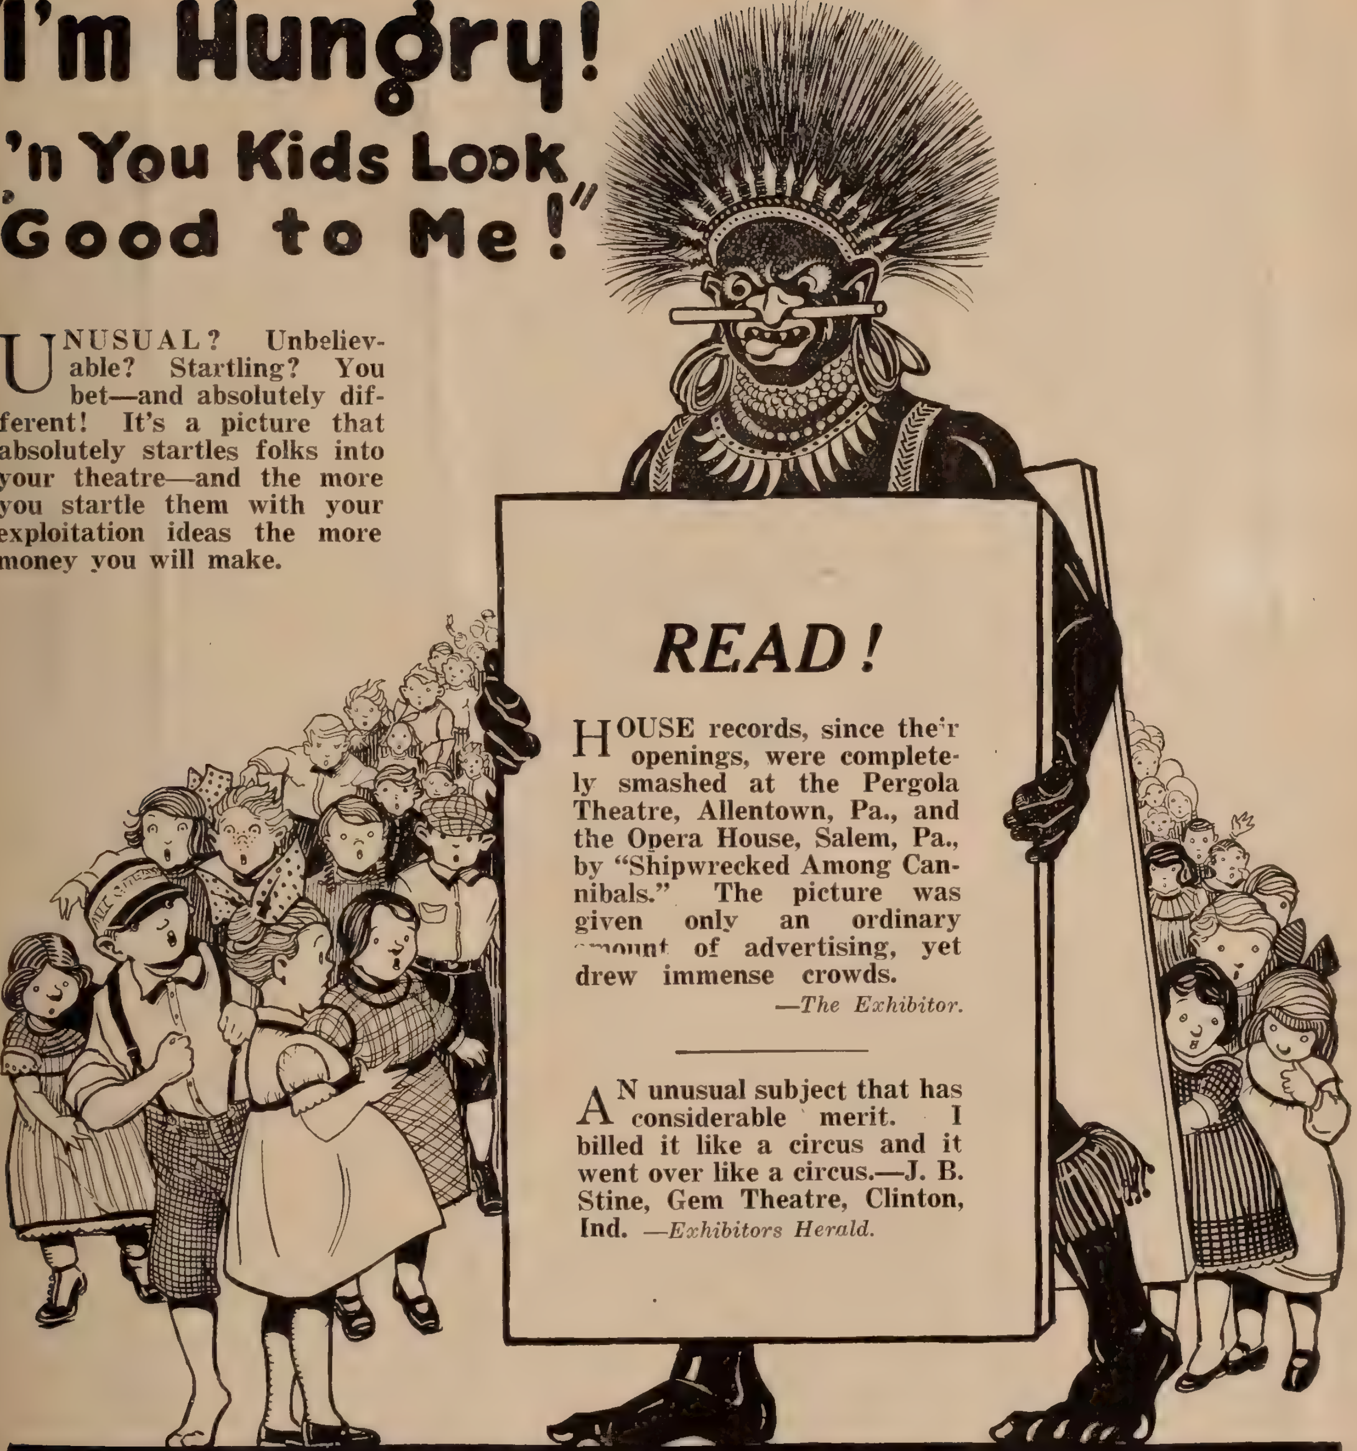
The department now has in hand the writing of two big serials, one of which is intended for Eileen Sedgwick and the other for a popular serial star whose return to the Universal fold will come as a welcome surprise to his numerous admirers.

Hoot Gibson and Jack Perrin will both be busy under the new production schedule. Gibson will start a series of two-reelers, each a complete story, but with the same characters. The series will be released as "The Texas Ranger'" and will give the hard-riding star the chance of his life for dramatic puches.

Jack Perrin, who is doing some of the best work of his career in the two reel westerns which he recently was assigned as starring vehicles, has recently finished an excellent one, "The Trigger Trail" and the new schedule will provide some excellent stories for his virile personality.

"I'm Hungry! 'n You Kids Look Good to Me!"

UNUSUAL? Unbelievable? Startling? You bet—and absolutely different! It's a picture that absolutely startles folks into your theatre—and the more you startle them with your exploitation ideas the more money you will make.



READ!

HOUSE records, since their openings, were completely smashed at the Pergola Theatre, Allentown, Pa., and the Opera House, Salem, Pa., by "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals." The picture was given only an ordinary amount of advertising, yet drew immense crowds.
—The Exhibitor.

AN unusual subject that has considerable merit. I billed it like a circus and it went over like a circus.—J. B. Stine, Gem Theatre, Clinton, Ind. —Exhibitors Herald.

UNIVERSAL - JEWEL

SHIPWRECKED among CANNIBALS

(Your local newspaper or engraver can reproduce this for your "ad.")

"The whole family's just gotta see how that girl gets those millyuns of diamonds!"

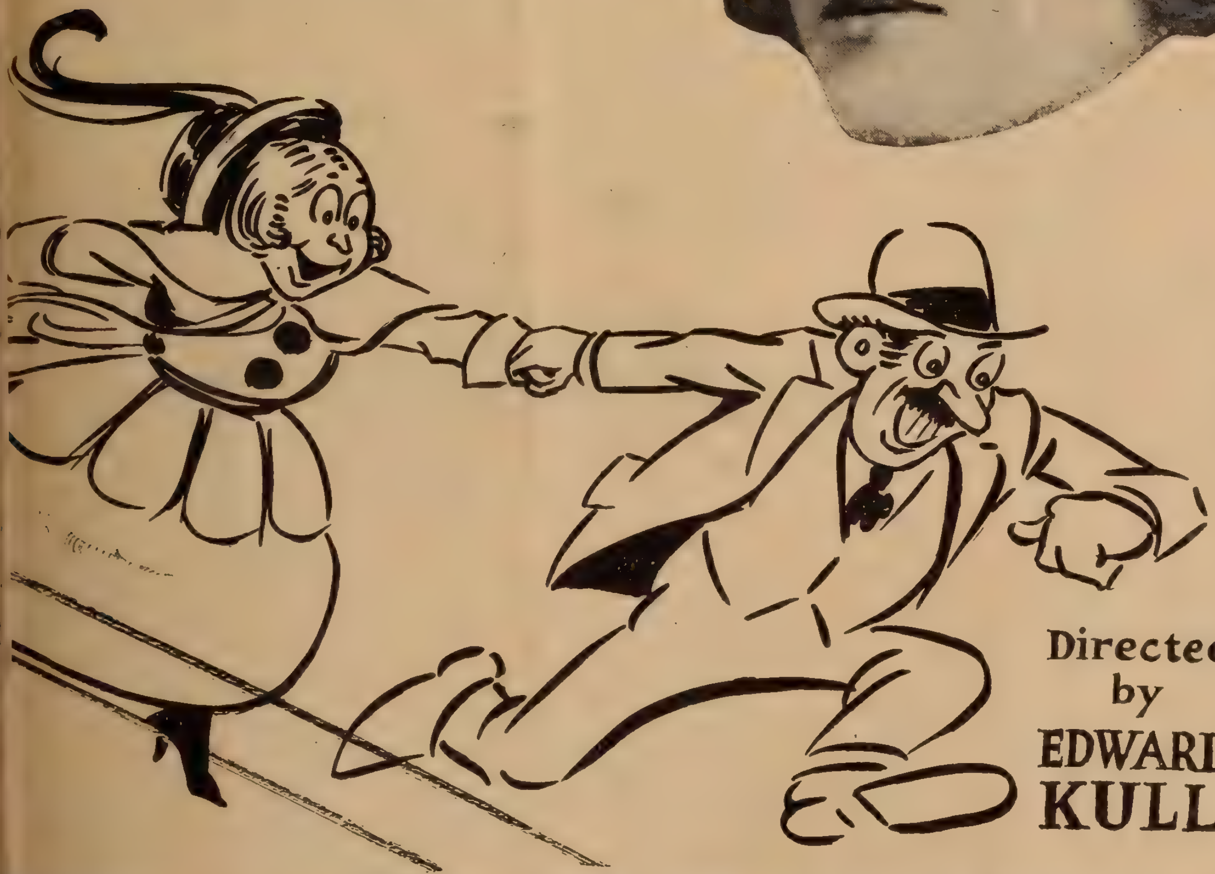
Clean as a whistle but fast as lightning

EILEEN SEDGWICK

in Universal's strangest and most startling adventure serial

"The DIAMON

MA, Pa, Brother and Sis—everybody—wants to see this clean and thrilling chapter-play featuring the most beautiful star in the serial skies; and you'll be drawing whole families for eighteen profitable weeks when you show this serial of sky, sea and land!



Directed
by
EDWARD KULL

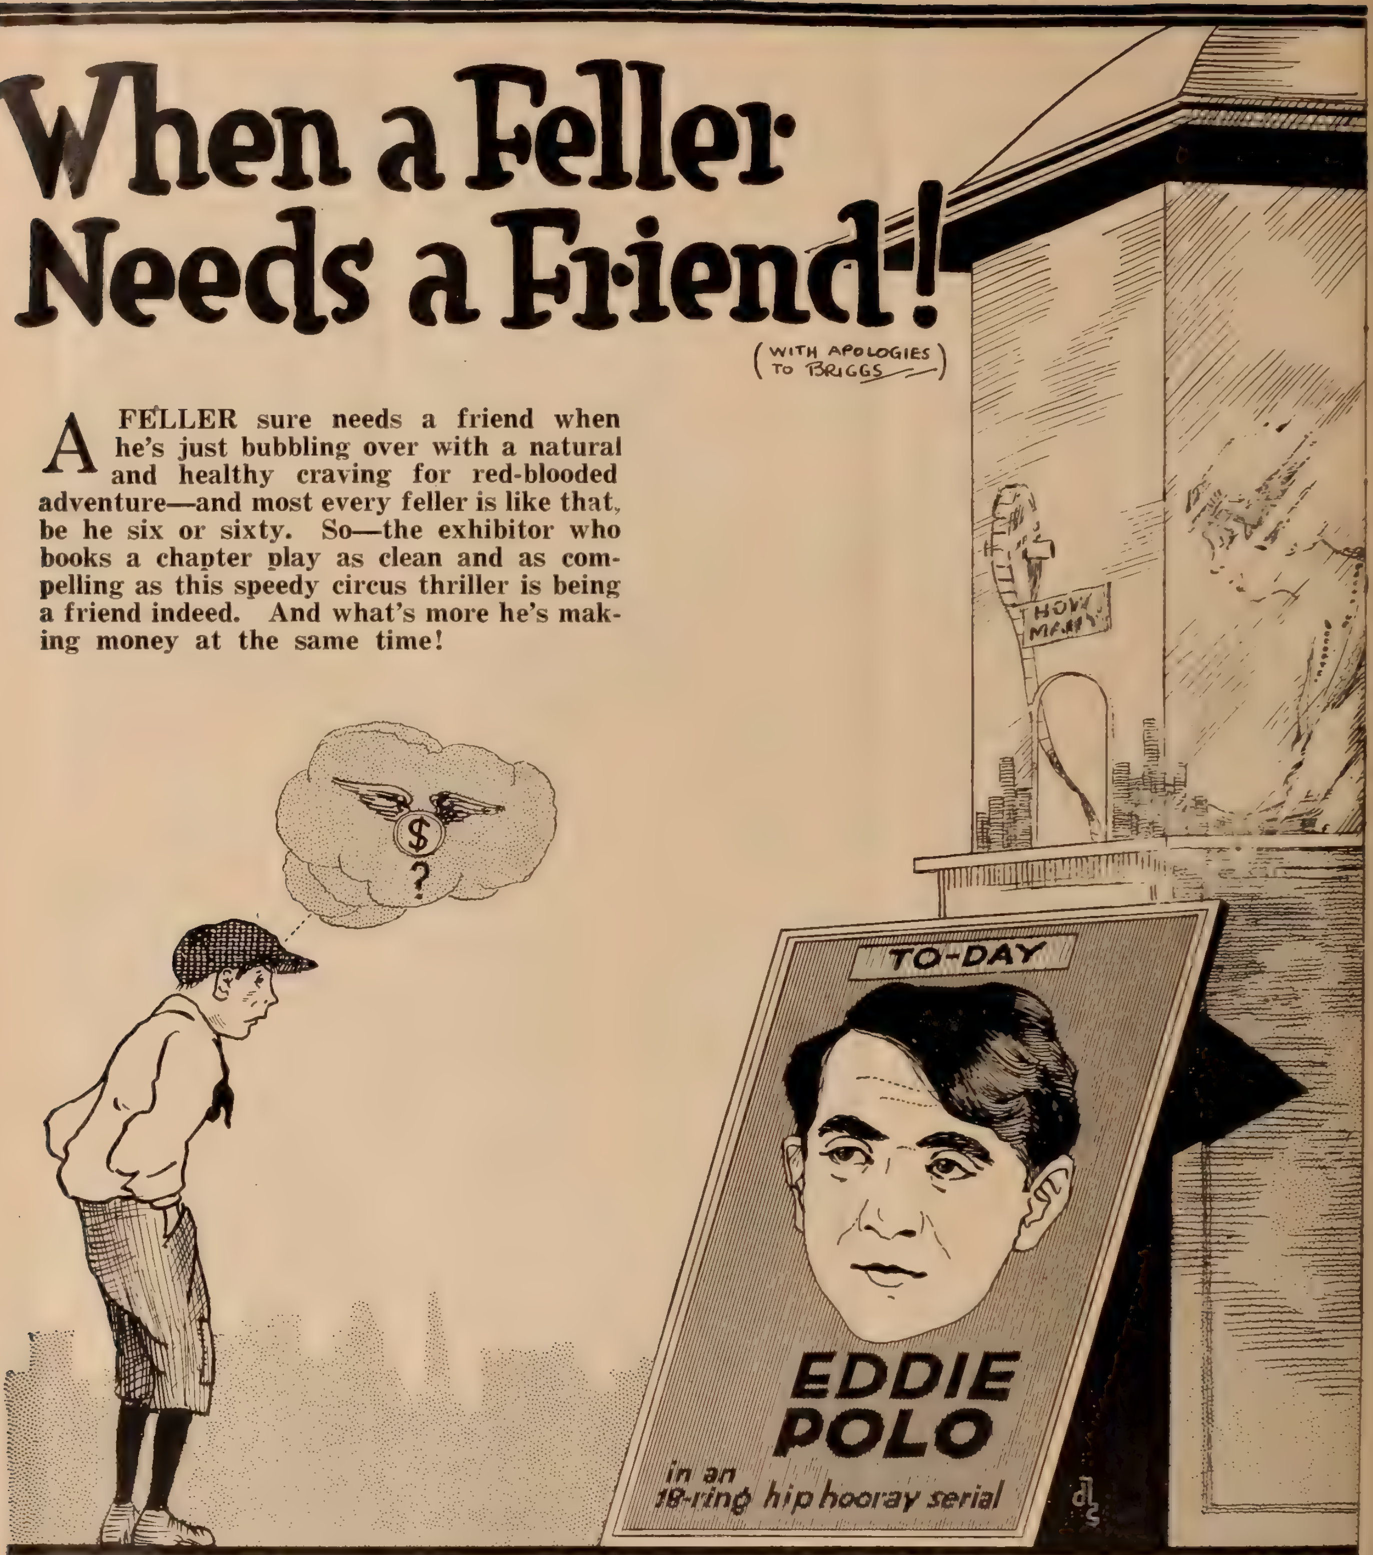
D QUEEN"

When a Feller Needs a Friend!

A FELLER sure needs a friend when he's just bubbling over with a natural and healthy craving for red-blooded adventure—and most every feller is like that, be he six or sixty. So—the exhibitor who books a chapter play as clean and as compelling as this speedy circus thriller is being a friend indeed. And what's more he's making money at the same time!



(WITH APOLOGIES TO BRIGGS)
HOW MANY
$
?
TO-DAY
EDDIE POLO
in an 18-ring hip hooray serial

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Directed by J·P·McGowan

No Censor
Ever Gave Any Trouble
with

ELMO LINCOLN in

a Mystifying Double Role in —

"THE FLAMING DISK"

Supported by
LOUISE LORRAINE
Directed by
ROBERT HILL

ONE of the big reasons for the sweeping popularity of this burning serial sensation is the fact that for clean, swift action and vigorous, healthy excitement plentifully seasoned with dashing mystery it stands as a model in serial-making. Its unprecedented success has opened the eyes of hundreds of exhibitors to the real ticket-selling value of the right kind of a chapter-play. You'll make money by booking it —NOW.

Leading Writers Supply Universal Stories

(Continued from page 10.)

F. Hopkinson Smith will be represented on the Universal schedule by his engaging tale of the mountains, "A Kentucky Cinderella," in which Gladys Walton soon is to be starred. Rights also have been bought for "The Truant," a stirring tale soon to be published in The Delineator, and which was written by Izola Forrester and Mann Page, whose most recent work, "The Dangerous Inheritance," is now gaining them added popularity as co-writers. Frank Mayo has been cast for "The Truant." It will be put into production as soon as it can be put into continuity form.

Two other promising stories recently bought by Universal are "The Black Cap," by Wadsworth Camp, noted for his out-of-doors stories, and "Patches" from the pen of James E. Hungerford. "The Black Cap" will be produced as the next starring vehicle for Eva Novak, Universal's newest star. "Patches" is being put into continuity for "Breezy" Eason, the youngster whose work in "Pink Tights," in "Two Kinds of Love," and in several Harry Carey features won him a place in the hearts of screen patrons. In "Patches" young Eason will be directed by his father, Reaves Eason, Sr., maker of many Universal successes.

Among current Universal releases are several pictures adapted from stories familiar to almost every reader of current literature. "Out of the Sunset," George Rix's melodramatic story published in "Telling Tales," was screened at Universal City by Stuart Paton with Eva Novak in the featured rôle. It is called "The Torrent" and ranks with the best photo-melodramas.

Max Brand's stirring tale, "Tiger," has been made into a picture, with Frank Mayo playing the rôle of the fighting millionaire. It is called "Tiger True," and has just been released. "The Diamond Master" the celebrated adventure and mystery story by the late Jacques Futrelle, was used by Universal as the basis for its most recent serial, "The Diamond Queen," featuring Eileen Sedgwick. It is just being released.

Among the popular stories nearing completion at Universal City or being prepared for early release as Universal screen features is "The Mad Marriage," taken from Marjorie Benton Cooke's widely read novel, "Cinderella Jane." Carmel Myers plays the leading rôle. Another is "Society Secrets," an adaptation of Helen Christine Bennett's humorous story, "It's Never Too Late to Mend." There also is a new story by Philip V. Mighels, called "If Only Jim," in which Harry Carey is the star.

Most heralded of all, however, is the screen adaptation of "Colorado," the famous stage melodrama by Augustus Thomas, one of the leading American dramatists. It was one of the most celebrated "State" plays of several years ago, among which were "Alabama," "Arizona," "In Missouri" and others. "Colorado" has been screened by Reaves Eason, with Frank Mayo as the star. It is understood that all the romantic flavor of the popular melodrama has been retained in the screen version, plus the opportunity of putting the story in its proper mountain settings, thus giving it the atmosphere that could only be approximaed on the stage.

The Universal Scenario Department reports that it is considering a score of the best stories of the past few months. The list of those selected for production as Universal pictures will be announced as soon as possible.

International News

No. 7

St. Augustine, Fla.—In the Sunny South with President-Elect Harding. The next chief of State seeks strength for arduous duties in the land of the Fountain of Youth.

Sub-Titles.—His favorite sport. Golf lures the President-elect on the first day of his vacation. Out for the day—making friends with young Florida. On the palatial Victoria as guest of Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey.

Newport, N. H.—New England holds first winter carnival. Throngs from many towns attend gay revels on ice. (Omit Portland and Seattle prints.)

Sub-Titles.—Down the toboggan. If "Pussyfoot" Johnson saw this he'd suspect something was wrong. Miss Martha Johannsen, champion of Sweden, and Willis Frick, title holder, in a fancy dancing exhibition.

Seattle, Wash.—Western oarsmen seek championship. Washington U. crew starts early training to wrest honors from East. (For Seattle and Portland only.)

Sub-Title.—Limbering up the old training shell.

Washington, D. C.—A stroll around the Capitol. Notables snapped by the cameraman—First, Will Hays, Cabinet possibility, and Congressman Bland of Indiana.

Chicago, Ill.—Pity the poor artist! Painting a portrait of Milady's sweet heart on her knee, is the very latest fad.

Pictorial Brevities In The Day's News.—Herbert Hoover superintends shipping of food stuffs to Europe's starving children. New York City.

In The Caribbean Sea.—Uncle Sam's Eaglets greet the sea giants. Planes welcome great Atlantic Fleet after historic trip south.

Chatanooga, Tenn.—From auto to plane at 70 miles an hour. Jersey Ringel, famous aerial dare-devil, in a new thriller.

WARNING!

THE moving picture industry is hereby notified that the following titles have been copyrighted by the Universal Film Manufacturing Co.

"THE WHITE HORSEMAN"
Art Acord serial.

"OUT O' LUCK"
Two-reel western featuring Hoot Gibson.

"THE SHOW DOWN"
Acord two-reel western.

"THE MAGNIFICENT BRUTE"
Five-reel feature with Frank Mayo.

"THE FREEZE OUT"
Five-reel feature with Harry Carey.

"ALL DOLLED UP"
Five-reel feature with Gladys Walton.

HOOT WALKS OFF WITH ANOTHER RODEO

HOOT GIBSON Co.

Upper Right, Hoot and the Boys Who Took the Honors; Lower Left, Hoot in a Scene From "Secret Revenge," a Recent Release

HOOT GIBSON and his cowboys walked away with the rodeo which Mayor Meredith P. Snyder of Los Angeles staged as a Christmas benefit for the poor, and in which most of the Western stars of the motion picture studios participated.

Riding at the head of his outfit, the popular Universal star got the biggest hand of the day when he cantered across the field and coached his cowpunchers for the big events.

Johnny Judd, one of Hoot's men, won the goat roping contest by tying up two goats in eighteen seconds each. Then he copped the fancy roping prize and called it a day.

"Sleepy" Armstrong, another one of Gibson's outfit, won the relay race and then best of all comers in a flat sprint down the field.

The Roman race was won by Benny Corbett for the first day, and on the second day Bob Anderson stepped in and won the event just to keep the Roman honors in the Hoot Gibson company.

The toughest horse in the West was ridden by Ben Dobbins, who does the same thing every day or so before the camera at Universal City, while "Kansas" Mooring, another one of Hoot's veterans, collected the prize as a steer-rider.

Most of the men rode the range with Hoot Gibson before he became a picture star, and the company is considered unbeatable collectively and individually at rodeos.

In 1912 Hoot himself was proclaimed the world's champion cowboy at the Pendleton, Oregon, rodeo, and won the diamond-studded belt for his prowess.

Hoot Gibson is a personality to be reckoned with in the world of the movies. Skilled in all the tricks of the West, with a winning smile and the cheeriest of grins, he is more than everything else, a real actor, whose pantomine is executed with ease and a naturalness that is a delight to watch. The West and the Western actor have been so falsely misrepresented on so many occasions that it is a relief to get an actor who knows his West, who has lived it and who makes the Western picture a source of unalloyed joy to his audiences. There is no doubt of Hoot Gibson's popularity,, and it is not confined to the male contingency either. There is a certain winning bashfulness about Hoot that endears him to the ladies, especially when he alternates this with a marvelous display of courage and physical prowess as the story happens to dictate.

There are all sorts of rumors concerning the big plans for "Hoot" coming out of the west coast studios daily. Most of them will no doubt materialize. For the present, however, it is defintely known that he will do a series of ranger stories, each story of two reels to be complete in itself.

Here's A Really Great Comedy!

The Century Wonder Dog Drives a Pony With Skill

ONE of the most original comedies that the screen has seen will shortly be released by Universal. It is a Century comedy entitled "The Dog Doctor," and it features that individual comedian, Harry Sweet, assisted by the wonder of all canines, The Century Wonder Dog. And it has an additional surprise in the person of Louise Lorraine, one of the most charming girls on the screen, whom Universalites will remember as the heroine of "Elmo, the Fearless" and "The Flaming Disk," both Elmo Lincoln serials.

Harry Sweet is a comparative newcomer in comedy circles, but he is already a name to be reckoned with. His "rube" humor is as funny as it can be and more than that, it is distinctly individual.

As to the wonders of the dog, Universalites are well aware of these. Only, in the dog doctor they are greater than ever. He not only skillfully drives the little dog ambulance through the streets, but calls for the little dog patient, puts him on a stretcher and carts him to the hospital.

"The Dog Doctor" was directed by Fred Fishback, who is responsible for numerous mirth-provoking comedies. He has far outshone his previous efforts in this admirable two-reeler.

Universal can promise some interesting novelties in the way of Century comedies with the forthcoming releases. No expense is being spared to place them "among the best."

HOW'S THIS?

Sherman, Texas, Dec. 23, 1920.

Mr. Ned E. Depinet,
Consolidated Film & Supply Company,
Dallas, Texas.

Dear Sir:—

When I was in your office recently I told you I was so well pleased with the two-reel Century Comedies that I would write you a letter commending them.

In my opinion these are the most laugh-provoking comedies that are being released regularly. They are always original and those in which the animals are used are very thrilling.

Century Comedies draw good business for me and please my patrons immensely, and I can heartily recommend them to any exhibitor desiring a consistently good two-reel comedy every week.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) C. W. Batsell, Jr.
The King and Queen Theatres.

IN the course of the year 1920 International News put you ahead of your competitor not less than thirty separate times with news beats that were from two to fifty days ahead of competition. That's why an International beat is worth more to you than another fellows "scoop." Worth more, but you don't have to pay any more----it's also well to remember that.

International News Released Thru Universal

International News

No. 8

New York Harbor.—Crippled by icy seas, wireless brings help. International Radio call summons tug to aid of limping fishing steamer. (Omit Atlanta, Memphis and New Orleans.)

Sub-Titles.—A common sight these wintry days. The Sound steamer Hartford, imprisoned by an ice jam in the Connecticut River. . . . Glastonbury, Conn. The crew "escapes" by way of the solid ice.

Memphis, Tenn.—Fire and explosion lay homes in ruin. Wide trail of wreckage in wake of oil tank blow-up. (For Atlanta, Memphis and New Orleans only.)

Washington, D. C.—Moving day soon for Mrs. Harding. Next First Lady of the Land gets ready to occupy new quarters at the Capitol.

Sub-Titles.—Mrs. Harding, arriving back in the Capitol from Marion, is greeted by old friends. An invitation to the White House. Mrs. Harding is starting cleaning out her present Washington residence, and Frank, her chauffeur, is the moving man. While Mr. Harding takes it easy, floating down the Indian River, Rockledge Florida.

Keyport, N. J.—Ice traps airplane. Big machine held fast in Jersey river after forced landing.

Sub-Titles.—Cutting a channel through the ice for a boat to tow her out—maybe. A long trying job—without much hope of success. Dynamite as a final resort—but from the last account the bird was still a prisoner.

New York City.—Milady's thoughts turn to Spring hats. Advance "tips" on the new headgear styles.—Miss Yvonne Gall, opera star, shows a black Milan straw trimmed with Paradise.

Sub-Titles.—Mme. Rosa Raisa, opera star, also likes Milan straw. A navy blue—red celluloid combination, is Mimi Palmieri's idea of "class." Or perhaps you like these better.

In The Public Eye.—Captain D'Annunzio, forced to give up Fiume, sheds his uniform for civilian clothes. . . . Fiume.

Sub-Titles.—His last trip! Captain J. B. Ransom, famous commander of the White Star liner Adriatic, to retire after thirty years as an ocean skipper. New York City. Ex-President Taft returns from Bermuda with Mrs. Taft. New York City. James M. Cox, former Democratic presidential candidate, gives the "Promised Land" the once-over . . . Washington, D. C. And tells the reporters "Wait till the next time."

Truckee, Cal.—Record snow fall in Sunshine Land. Blizzard holds up North California railroad traffic, but a new "spreader" soon solves the trouble.

Worcester, England.—A run with the hounds. Picturesque views of the Duke of Beaufort's prize pack on a winter hunt.

Athens, Greece.—Once-exiled monarch again rules Greece. First and exclusive pictures of the return of Constantine to the Hellenic throne. (Photographed by Captain Ariel Varges.)

Sub-Titles.—Crowds besiege the Parliament House to join in the welcome to the returned sovereign. Leading churchmen of Greece take part in the ceremony. Ging Constantine and the Queen arrive. After the Parliamentary welcome. The Royal family pose for International News. Crown-Prince of Roumania and his Fiancee, Princess Helen of Greece.

"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring
HARRY SWEET

BIRDIE had flown from her father's nest and married Harry, the ham actor, who was always in need of a job. Papa is a governor, or something like that.

The warden of the nearby prison is getting ready for a necktie party, otherwise known as a hanging. His wife was sweet on the chap that was to be hung and brought him dainties until the warden got wise.

This condemned chap had a wifey who came to visit him. She vamped the warden good and proper. Somehow or other her hubby dressed up in her clothes and escaped.

The hanging was scheduled. The day arrived as did the governor, his party and Birdie, whom he had invited to witness the hanging. But there was no man to hang.

The warden sees Harry passing by and asks him if he wants to take part in a play. Harry, being an actor when he is working, agrees, and the crafty warden prepares him for the hanging. Birdie recognizes her hubby dear and calls to father who says she is all wrong. Harry would have come to grief only the real murderer, in planning a revenge, lets loose some circus lions nearby who raid the prison. A grand chase follows; everybody is panic-stricken. Harry is finally rescued; the hanging is all off.

Note: On page fourteen of the Weekly of February 5th, 1921, entitled, under the heading of Current Releases, "The Grip of Law" was listed as a Hoot Gibson western. This was incorrect as Jack Perrin is the star of "The Grip of the Law."

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 17

"The Final Reckoning"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Mary Warren	Kittoria Beveridge
Zola Sinclair	Eugenia Silbon

GRAY and his henchmen have Eddie chained to a load of stone in a large wooden dipper on the hoisting derrick which they lower beneath the water. Zola, however, comes on the scene and reversing the engine, hauls Eddie back to safety. When Gray sees this he returns and with another ally attacks Zola.

In the meantime Eddie is sufficiently recovered from the effects of the submersion to go to her rescue. He succeeds in fighting off the men and going to his step-father's home tells him to rescue Zola and place her in the motor boat waiting below the cliff.

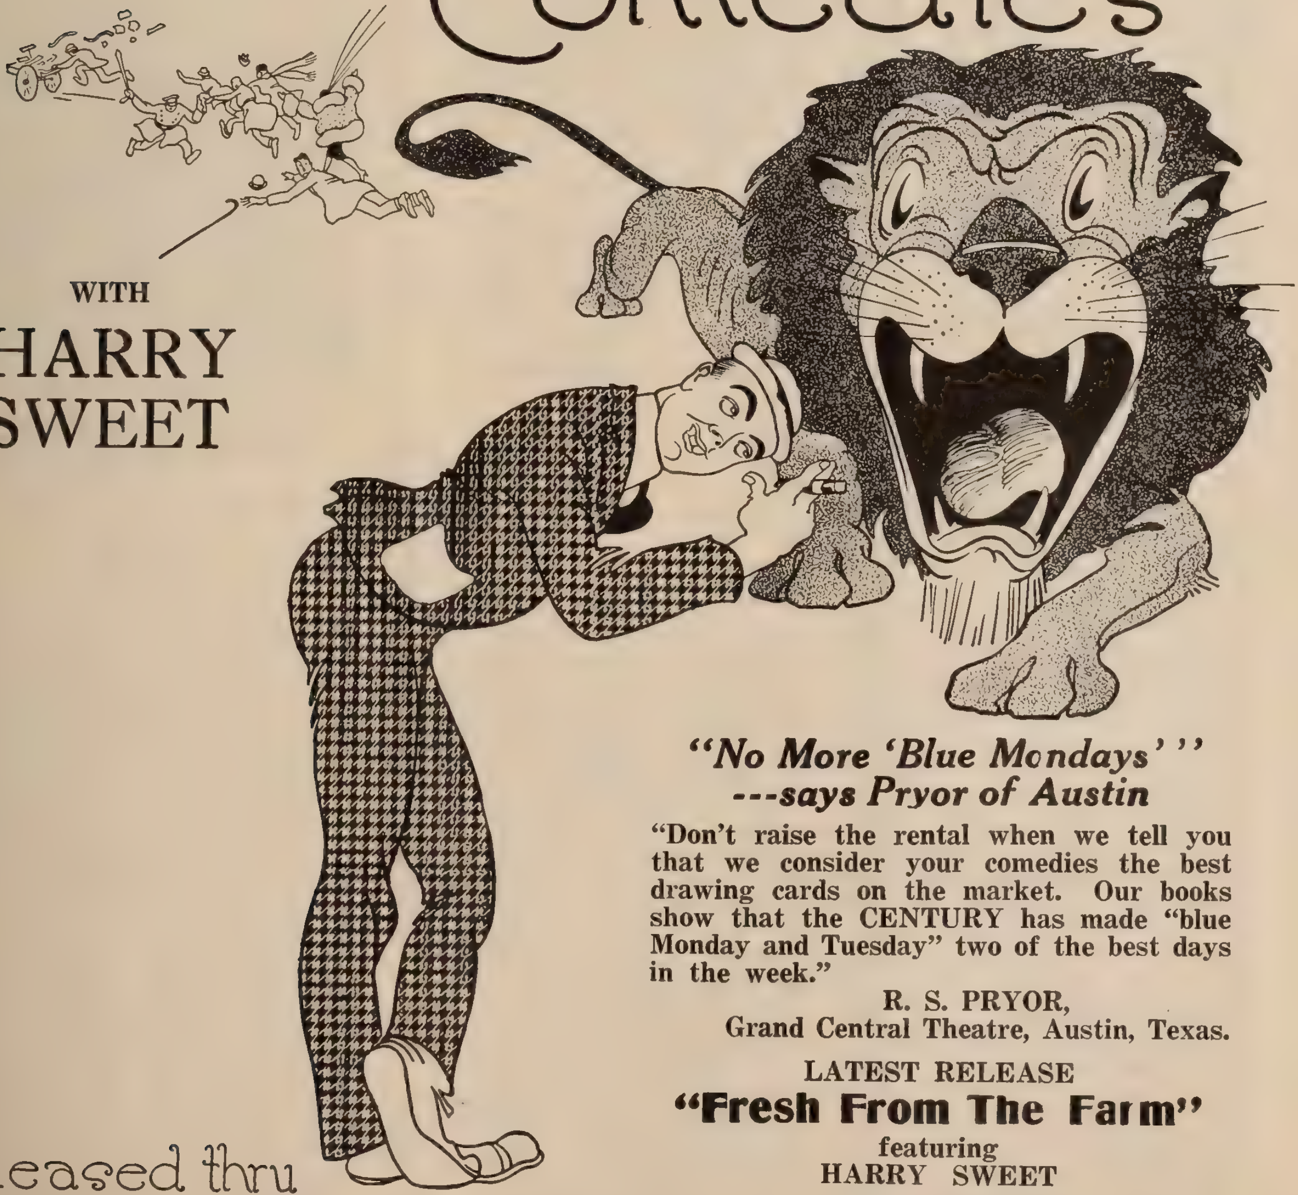
While Gray is chasing Eddie, John Winters takes Zola safely to the boat. Eddie eludes Gray and climbing to the top of a tall boom he introduces a spectacular stunt by grasping the guide rope and swinging far out over the jagged cliff and dropping to the water below.

He swims out to the boat and they start off for the city with Gray in pursuit. During this action Mary and Dick Maxwell, the treasurer, go to a little restaurant in Chinatown, and from the proprietor receive the second half of the canvas which is necessary to prove that Eddie is the real owner of the circus.

When Eddie and Zola return to the circus lot they find Gray on the scene. He orders his men not to allow Eddie to leave the place alive while he goes to Chinatown to get possession of the canvas. As Mary and Dick are leaving the restaurant they are attacked by Flint and his men, Mary eludes them, and before they catch her she hides the canvas behind a window shutter in one of the alleys there. Flint carries her off to a Chinese house and holds her a prisoner.

Maxwell returns and tells Eddie of Mary's peril. When Eddie tries to leave the circus grounds he is attacked by the hired gangsters. In the fierce fight that follows he is bested and thrown into a circus wagon securely bound hand and foot. In placing him in the wagon one of the men kicked over a lantern which sets fire to the wagon and Eddie is enveloped in a cloud of smoke and flames.

Century
One big laugh every week
Century Comedies



WITH

HARRY SWEET

"No More 'Blue Mondays'"
---says Pryor of Austin

"Don't raise the rental when we tell you that we consider your comedies the best drawing cards on the market. Our books show that the CENTURY has made "blue Monday and Tuesday" two of the best days in the week."

R. S. PRYOR,
Grand Central Theatre, Austin, Texas.

LATEST RELEASE
"Fresh From The Farm"
featuring
HARRY SWEET

Released thru
UNIVERSAL

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode Five

"The Tide Of Destiny"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zimba	Al Smith
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Aline	Josephine Scott
Benson	Al Smith

JUST when all hope for Doris seems lost, the wall of the dressing room yields to the flames, opening an avenue of escape for her. As she rushes forth she stumbles over the unconscious Zeidt, but is powerless to save him. She makes her way out and leads firemen back into the flames to rescue Ziedt. Bruce, meantime, recovering from his fall, is almost suffocated by smoke and fumes.

A hotel bellboy brings Doris a cablegram from her grandfather telling her of the marvelous success of the mysterious experiment and asking her to return to America at once. Bruce and Zeidt both reach safety without meeting each other. Zeidt leaves to hasten on to Cape Town, whence he sails next day for London on his way home. Bruce sets out for the hotel to see Doris. Doris, meantime, has reached her hotel room just as Aline has been visited in the room adjoining by Reitman, her confederate, who has brought a package of uncut diamonds worth $50,000 with which he has fled from the shop just as it was about to be raided by Benson, a detective for the Veers Syndicate, controlled by Zeidt. Benson is even at that moment trailing Reitman to the hotel and they must find some means of disposing of the stones. When Aline learns that Doris is leaving that same night for Cape Town and thence to New York via London, she gets her to take "a package" as a very great "favor" to her "brother" in London. Doris puts the package in her grip and hurries away from the hotel. On the stairs she passes Benson and a policeman who are on their way up to Aline's room. Doris gets into a taxi and races to make the train, while Benson, surprising Aline and Reitman, is unable to find the diamonds when he serches the room. Aline taunts Benson, saying that what he seeks is at that very moment on its way out of mimberley. Benson recalls the girl he passed on the stairs, finds he is too late to catch the flier to Cape Town and sets out to overtake Doris by auto.

Bruce learns from the clerk that Doris has just checked out to Cape Town. He decides to sail too.

Doris makes the steamer at the same time Zeidt boards it, but she secretes herself in her stateroom disguising herself as a widow. Later Zeidt succeeds in establishing a friendship as fellow voyagers. Doris veils her identity from his successfully. Benson, reaching the pier too late to catch the steamer, wires the captain to take him on when the pilot is let off at the point.

Benson at last boards the boat. His suspicions fall upon Doris, the "widow." Finding her with Zeidt, Benson convinces him the "widow" is the diamond thief suspect. Doris, from a secret point of vantage hears this. She recalls the package Aline entrusted to her, rushes to her stateroom and opens it, finding the stones. She realizes that to be caught would mean prison for twenty years. She hears Zeidt, Benson and the Captain at her door and secretes herself. They enter and find the diamonds just as she darts out to the deck. A thrilling chase ensues, ending when Doris leaps to the rail of the deck and jumps overboard. The Captain plays the searchlights upon the water.

Sharks are seen, headed towards Doris. She is given up for lost.

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

Episode 18

"The Lost Heritage"

CAST

Eddie	Eddie Polo
Gray	Harry Madison
John Winters	Charles Fortune
Mary Warren	Kittoria Beveridge
Zola Sinclair	Eugenia Silbon

EDDIE gets out of the flaming circus wagon and Dick Maxwell tells him that Mary is held a prisoner in Chinatown. In searching for her he follows one of Gray's henchmen to the place where Gray and Flint are holding Mary, but falls into a trap they set for him. In order to save Eddie's life Mary tells Gray where she hid the canvas behind the window shutter.

Leaving Eddie and Mary securely tied, Gray and Flint go to the place where the canvas was hidden. They find the parchment and decide to burn it and destroy the last bit of evidence of Eddie's inheritance. In the meantime Eddie succeeds in freeing himself and his companion and they start back to the circus.

Gray and Flint make a fire and place the canvas in the flames. When they look away for a minute The Great Unknown appears at a window behind them and snatches the canvas from the fire. Another piece of paper is placed on the fire which teh two allies believe to be the remains of the canvas.

Back on the circus lot the sale of the outfit is about to be completed when Zola appears and denounces Gray as a crook. She is brushed aside, however, and the official paper is just about to be signed when Eddie and Mary join the group around the capitalist negotiating for the circus. At this moment the Great Unknown gives John Winters the canvas which would prove Eddie to be the rightful owner of the circus. When Gray is confronted with this evidence he whips out a revolver and trys to shoot Eddie, but Zola throws herself into range and is shot in the shoulder.

Winters, the foster father finds a will in the barrel of the gun proving that Zola is Eddie's sister and on her shoulder they see the mark of the Polo family. The revolver was stolen the night that Eddie' father was killed and Gray is suspected of being the murderer.

When Eddie learns that Zolo and not Mary is his sister there follows a love scene in which he tells Mary that he wants to make her his wife. As he is about to take her in his arms Gray is shown standing behind one of the circus wagons and about to shoot. Before he can pull the trigger, however, The Great Unknown kills him.

The Great Unknown then explains that he, and not Flint, represents the combine looking to purchase the circus, and that he suspected for some time that Gray was trying to defraud Eddie.

The End.

"Fresh From The Farm"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring
HARRY SWEET

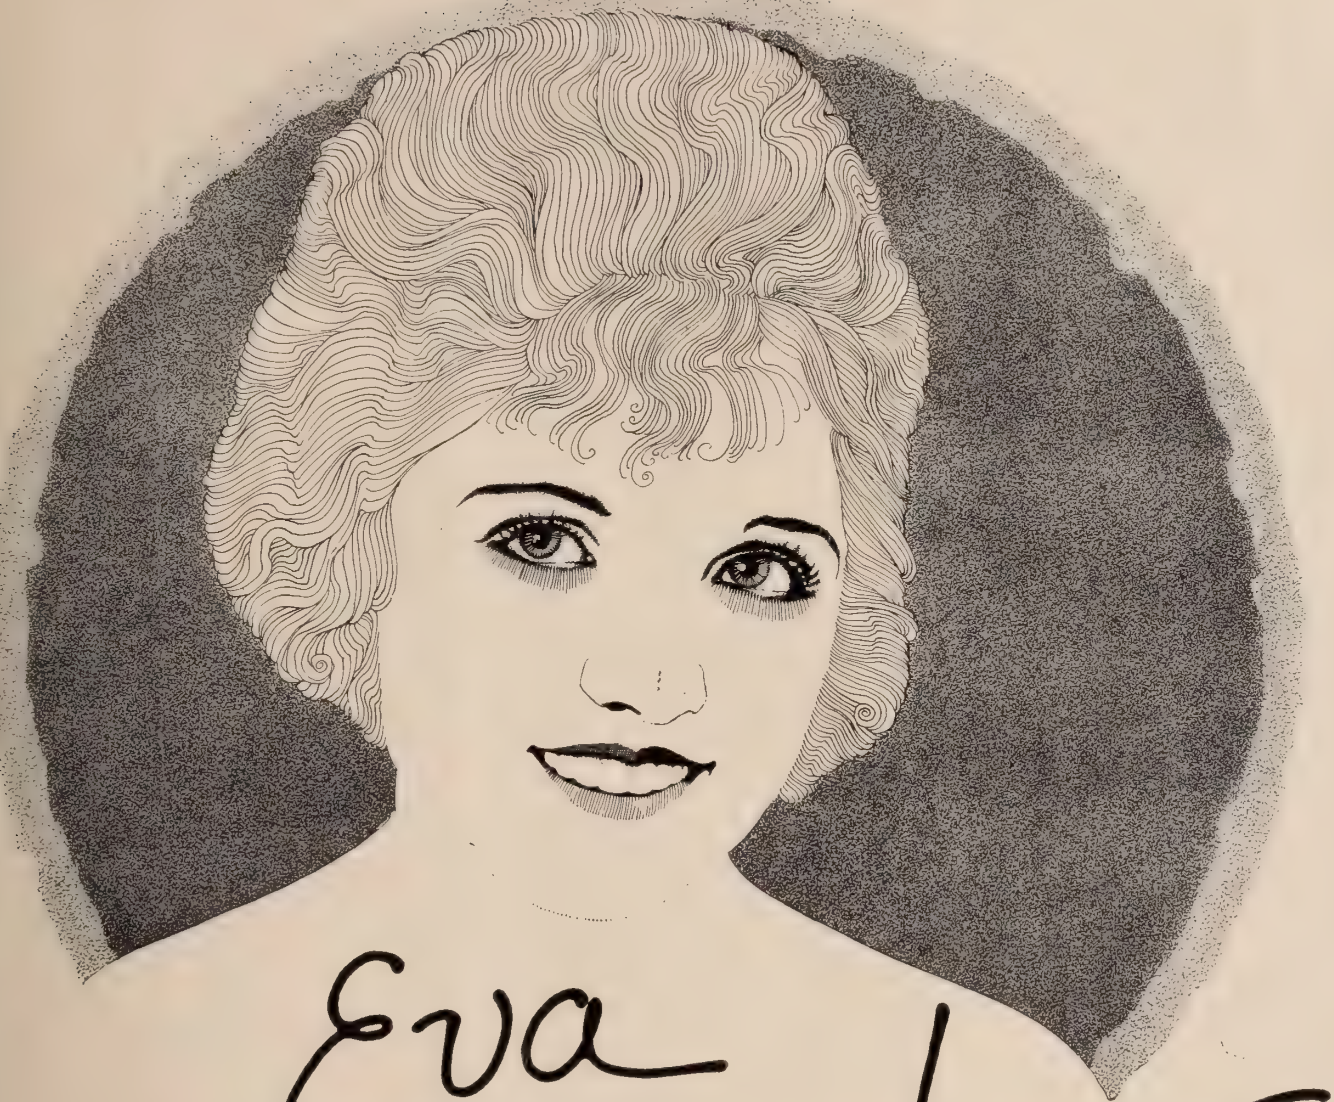
HARRY is a country boob and when he gets to the city, a shrewd taxi-driver grabs him and relieves him of his roll. He also loses his watch and chain when a "sharpster" spots him.

He gets entangled with a couple of cops and there is a fight from a roof in which the bricks fly hot and heavy, but Harry somehow emerges to find himself working in a boarding house.

There is a classy queen living there and Harry falls for her but in so doing, he incurs the wrath of Bud, the fat cook, who swears he will have the lady for his bride.

Harry gets into considerable of a rumpus with Bud and this time it is flour and dough that does the flying. He ties the cook's ankle to a rope attached to a truck, thinking this way to get rid of him but his plan is nipped in the bud when a trolley car comes along and cuts the rope.

Somehow or other, he and the classy queen make a getaway in an auto, closely pursued by Bud and reach a parsonage, where they are united in matrimony and live happily ever afterwards.



Eva Novak

is in those
"52 Good Pictures
a Year—and No Worry"

WIDE eyes, flashing smile, dainty figure, blonde beauty—you knew all these a year ago and you wondered why she wasn't in "something bigger." She is! In those "52 Good Pictures a Year." She won her place in "Wanted At Headquarters"—she scored again in "The Torrent" with Jack Perrin—she's soon to let you in on "Society Secrets." Charming and vigorous, yet with a strong feminine appeal in every graceful move and gesture—let your audiences laugh and thrill and be happy with sunny EVA NOVAK.

Soon to be offered by Carl Laemmle in
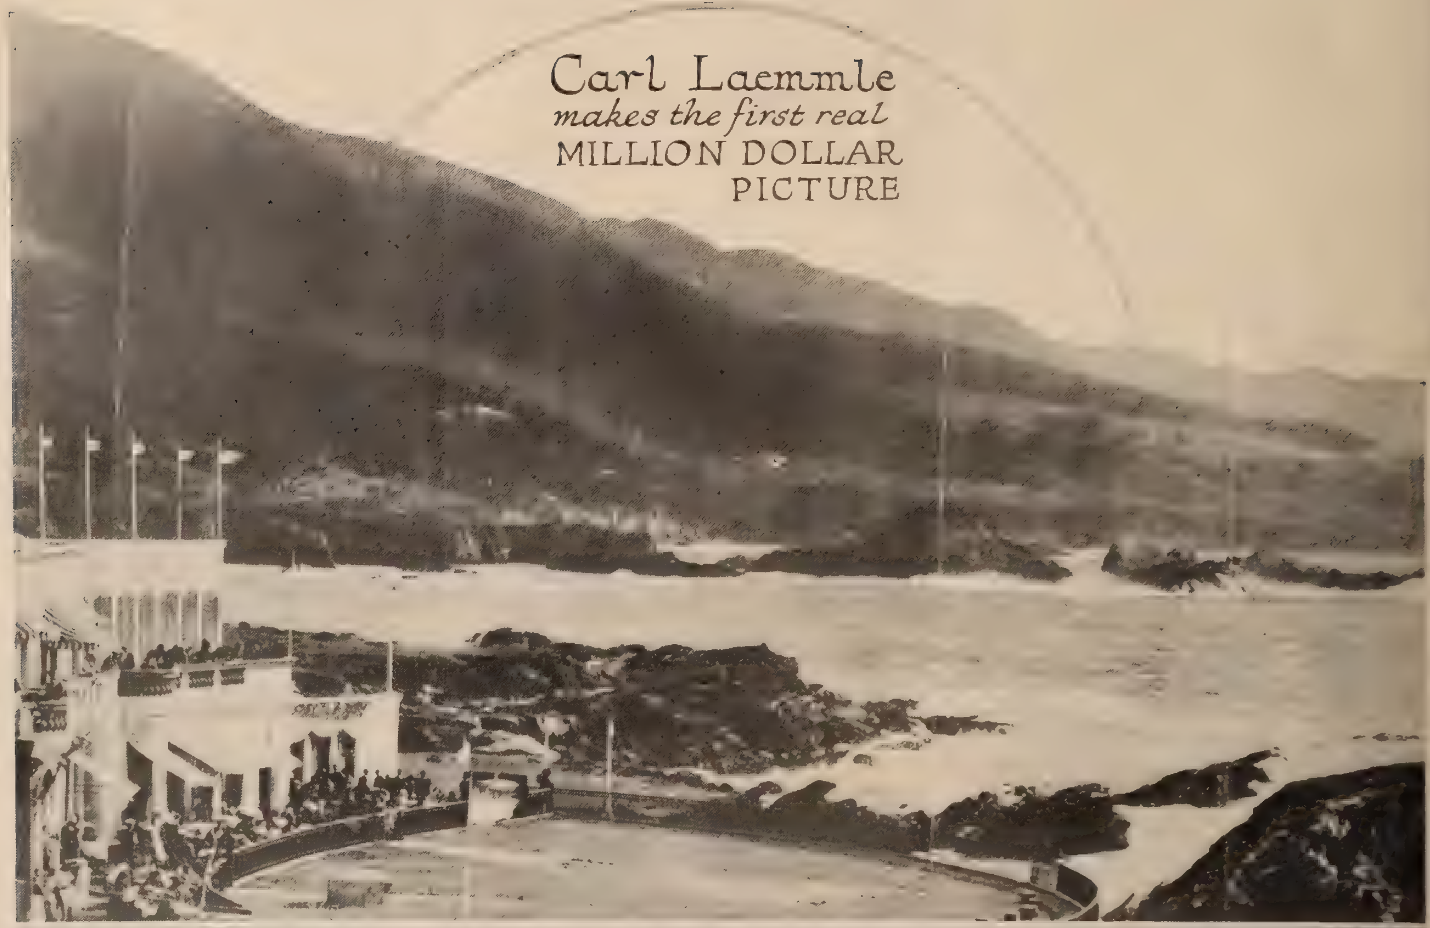
"Society Secrets"

Universal Special Attractions

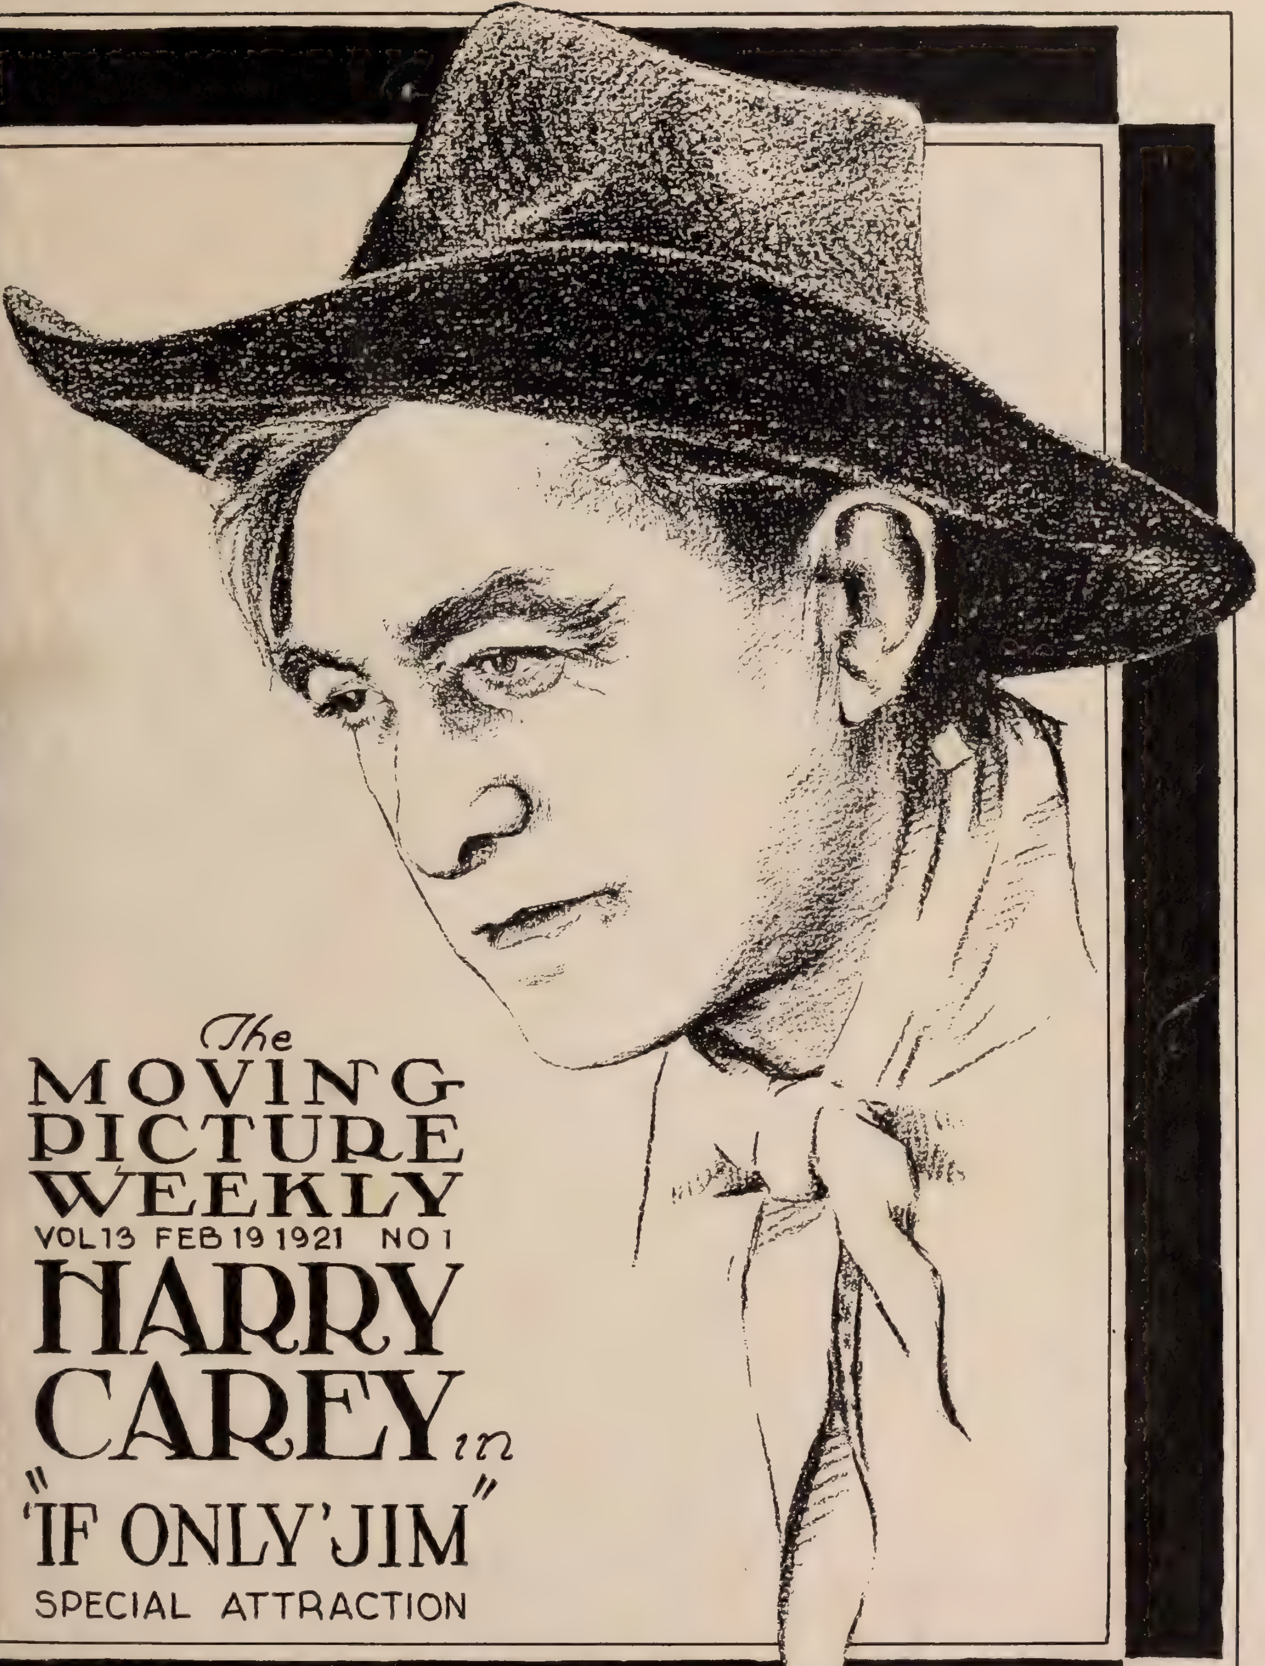


Carl Laemmle
makes the first real
MILLION DOLLAR
PICTURE

CARL LAEMMLE was the first man in the picture business to give the industry a great picture-producing plant completely equipped and entirely self-contained. He was the first to perfect the vitally necessary Short Subject—first to send producing companies to foreign lands—first to say what everybody's saying now—"The Play's the Thing"—and first to prove it by making "52 Good Pictures a Year". And this same CARL LAEMMLE who has been first in everything else is, to day, the first to make a real Million-Dollar Picture. Here is just one of the sets—the sea-front of the world-famous Casino at Monte Carlo, taken from the camera-stand. Other sets, scores of them, just as elaborate and costly and faithful in detail, are at Universal City. You'll have no trouble seeing where every dollar has gone in making "FOOLISH WIVES" the greatest production of all time—and every dollar that you put in it means many, many dollars more for you and your theatre.

Von Stroheim's
Coming
UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

"FOOLISH WIVES"



The
MOVING PICTURE
WEEKLY
VOL 13 FEB 19 1921 NO 1

HARRY CAREY in

"'IF ONLY' JIM"

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VICTOR BEALS

Carl Laemmle offers

EVA NOVAK

Prettier than a sunny day in June . . . in

"SOCIETY SECRETS"

Directed by Leo McCarey

CHARMING and vigorous, yet with a strong feminine appeal in every graceful move and gesture, Eva Novak has won an undisputed place in popular favor—a place so secure as to give her every right to be in the ranks of stars appearing in those "52 Good Pictures a Year."... With her natural ability, her refreshing beauty and her winning personality she made a big hit in "Wanted At Headquarters."... She scored again in a big way in "The Torrent" with Jack Perrin. And soon she'll come to your screen in "Society Secrets"—a picture that furnishes further proof of Universal's abilit to develop star talent in a manner that is profitable for you, and to perform a promise that is backed by every facility—mental an physical—known to the motion picture world.

52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

To Every Exhibitor

Copy of a night letter sent out by Mr. Laemmle and by several other prominent men in the industry following a momentous meeting of the heads of the companies producing and releasing Moving Picture Films

AS a Result of Careful Discussion of the Problems Confronting Our Industry Held Last Night Between Prominent Exhibitors and the Heads of the Largest Producing and Distributing Companies, It Was the Unanimous Sentiment That the Exhibitors of the Country be Invited to Join the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry Stop May I Personally Urge You to Join Immediately to the End

[OVER]

That We May Act in Close Cooperation as a Unit for Our Common Good Stop Send Your Application by Letter or Wire to Me or F. H. Elliott Executive Secretary of the National Association at Fifteen Twenty Broadway New York.

CARL LAEMMLE

---HERE IS THE APPLICATION

Cut It Out, Sign and Send It.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION
of the
MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY, Inc.
1520 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

The undersigned hereby applies for membership in the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Inc., in the class to which the undersigned is eligible according to the by-laws of the association which are hereby adopted.

Mr.. of..

is hereby designated as the representative of the undersigned in the membership of said association, and is to receive notices of all meetings.

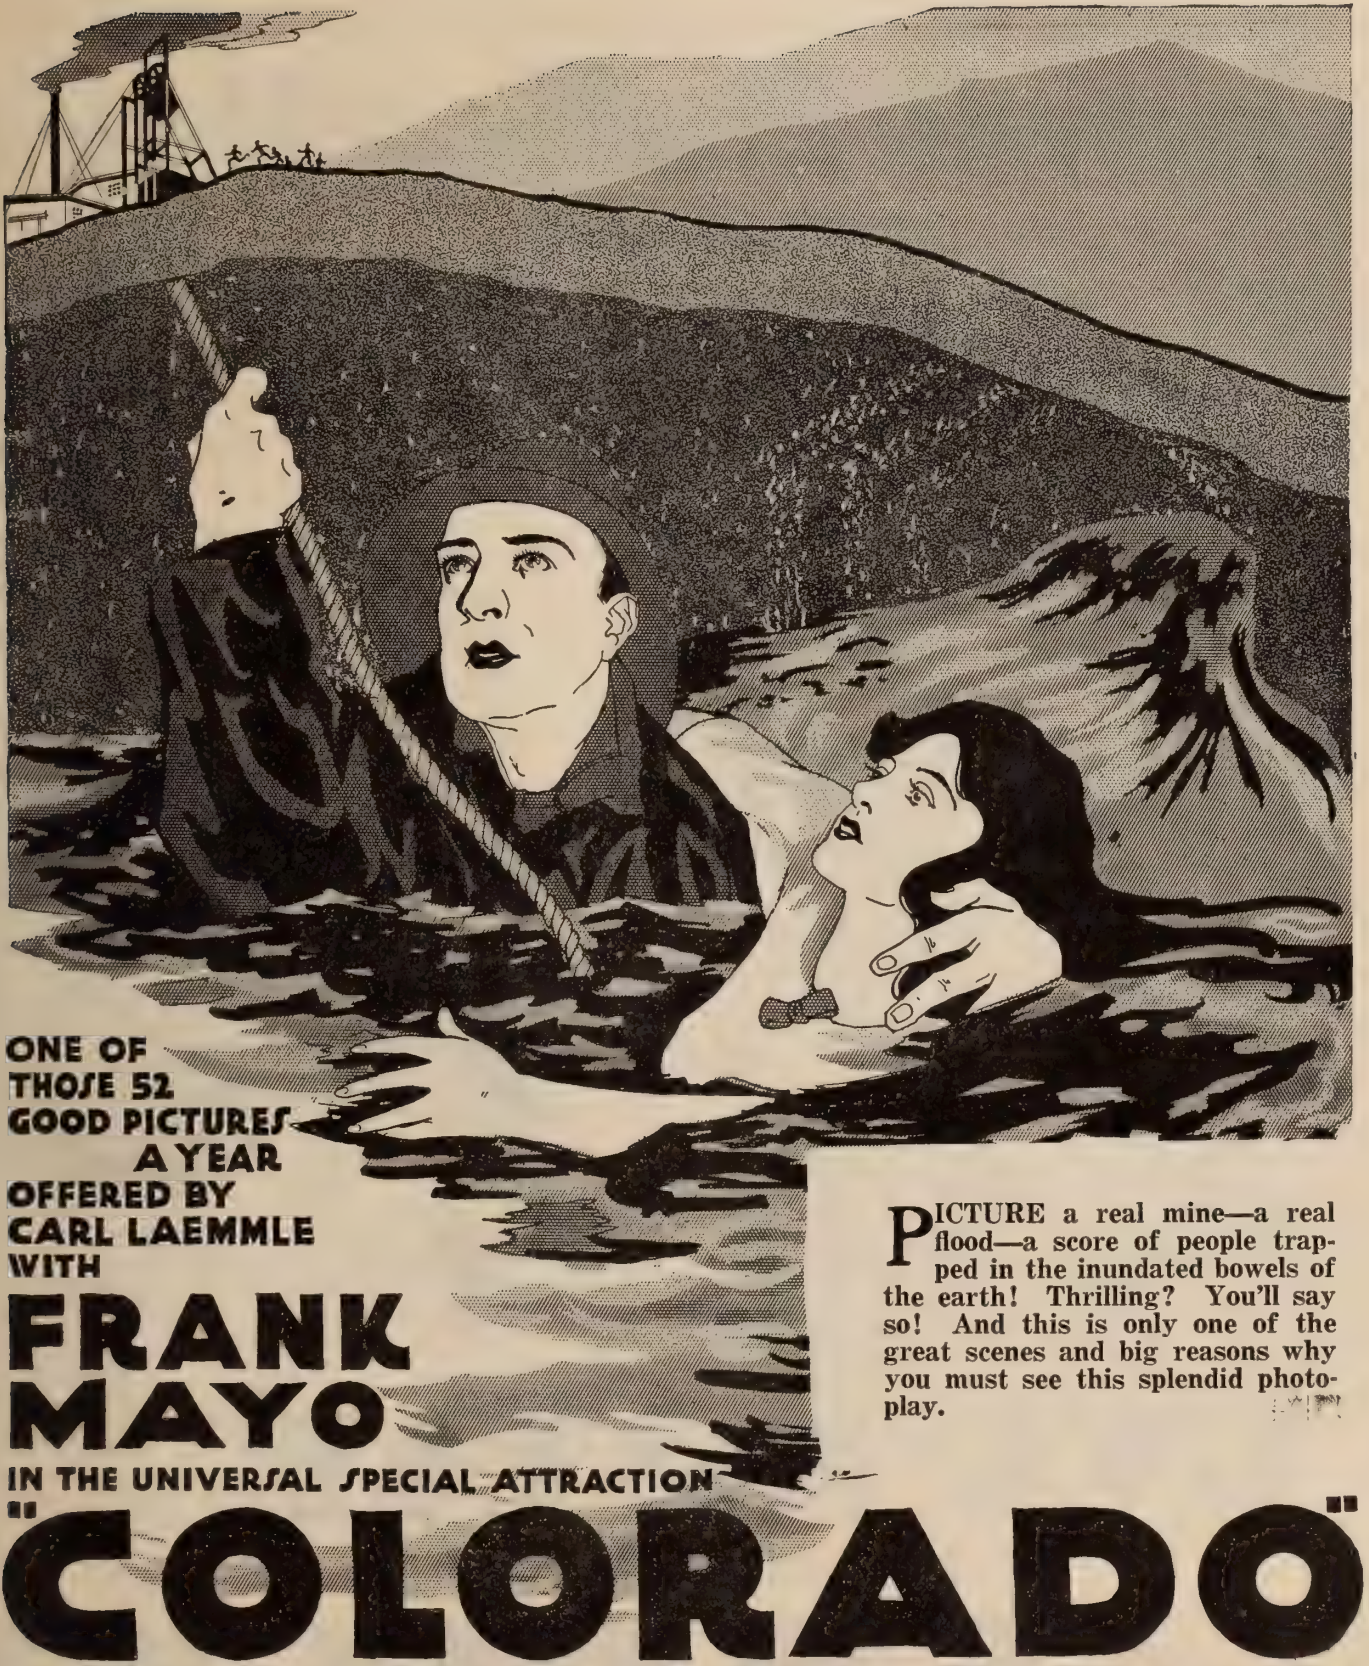
Name ....

Address ....

Date.................................... City.............................. State.....................................

THEATRE DIVISION CLASS No. 2

Class	Seating Capacity	Annual Dues	Class	Seating Capacity	Annual Dues	Class	Seating Capacity	Annual Dues
A	3001 or over	$50	C	1001 to 2000	$24	E	301 to 500	$12
B	2001 to 3000	36	D	501 to 1000	19	F	300 or under	6



ONE OF THOSE 52 GOOD PICTURES A YEAR OFFERED BY CARL LAEMMLE WITH

FRANK MAYO

IN THE UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"COLORADO"

FROM THE FAMOUS STAGE SUCCESS BY AUGUSTUS THOMAS

DIRECTED BY REEVES EASON

PICTURE a real mine—a real flood—a score of people trapped in the inundated bowels of the earth! Thrilling? You'll say so! And this is only one of the great scenes and big reasons why you must see this splendid photoplay.

(Mats of this cut are available at your Universal Exchange, price 40c.)

Inside Stuff on How to

EVA NOVAK further establishes her right in the realm of the screen's brightest and greatest stars in one of the most sympathetic characters ever created for the screen. One moment, a chic and adorable comedienne; the next, a powerful and dynamic actress, she displays such art and brilliancy in this picture as to be an ever-flowing source of joy to her thousands of admirers.

"For shame—Pa will have to get his hair cut!"

Carl Laemmle offers
another of those
52 Good Pictures
a Year-and No Worry
starring

EVA NOVAK in

Helen Christine Bennett's Story

"SOCIETY"

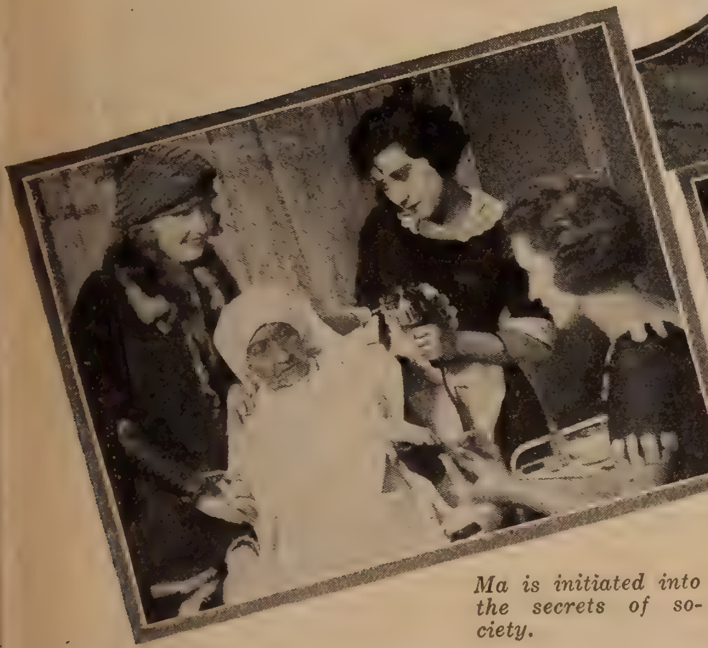
Universal
Special
Attraction

Make People Nice to You!

HERE'S a picture that gives you the low-down on how to hobnob in society.... It lifts the curtain on all the inside stuff—shows you what to do and what not to do. For example, did you know that to have a crease in your trousers was "the thing," whereas to have them in your face was—oo la la! —all wrong?

HERE'S a picture that is as different as night from day, yet a sure-fire box-office success, because in it lies an appeal for everyone, everywhere. Humor and pathos—laughter and tears—all intermingle here to make this one of the most enjoyable photoplays of the season.

"This is the one I love!"



Ma is initiated into the secrets of society.

"You've taught me a lesson. I will always respect and love my parents."

"SECRETS"

Directed
by Leo
McCarey

Service Page for Eva Novak in "Society Secrets"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Society Secrets."
STAR—Eva Novak.
PREVIOUS HITS—"Wanted At Headquarters," "The Torrent," etc.
DIRECTED BY—Leo McCarey.
STORY BY—Helen Christine.
SCENARIO BY—Douglas Doty.
SUPPORTING CAST — Gertrude Claire, George Berrell, William Buckley, Ethel Ritchie, Leonard C. Shumway, Clarissa Selwynne, Carl Stockdale, Lucy Donohue, etc.
LOCALE—New York City; A New Jersey Village.
TIME—Now.
THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of a New York son and daughter who are ashamed of their small town parents; how the old folks take intensive training in the artificial graces of society to win back the love of their children, and how they discover that their instructor in the social arts is the aristocratic fiancee of their urbanized son.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—A strong story of big moments in the lives of simple people that will advertise itself in any community.
2—The beauty and popularity of Eva Novak, the star, whom playgoers will remember as the heroine of "Wanted at Headquarters" and "The Torrent."
3—The striking contrast between a country town in New England and the glittering maelstrom of New York's social whirl.
4—The splendid acting of Leonard Shumway, who supported Eva Novak in her last two features.
5—The appealing character interpretations of George Berrell and Gertrude Claire, playing "anybody's father and mother."
6—Unique among photoplays in that it does not strain for an effect; its appeal is in the story.
7—The story was written by Helen Christine in magazine form and was adapted to the screen by Douglas Doty, formerly editor of the Cosmopolitan and the Century magazines.
8—The story with a general appeal of locale; any country village or any big city.
9—The direction of Leo McCarey, the young director who began his screen career as Tod Browning's first executive on "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Outside the Law."
10—The possibilities for exploitation, concentrating on golden weddings, old peoples' homes and family re-unions.

CAST

Louise	Eva Novak
Mother	Gertrude Claire
Father	George Berrell
Aunt	Clarissa Selwynne
Arthur	William Buckley
Lucie	Ethel Ritchie
George	Leonard C. Shumway
Squire	Carl Stockdale
Squire's Wife	Lucy Donohue

THE STORY

SOMEWHERE in New England, on a farm, live Mr. and Mrs. Amos Kerran. They are country folk, old, alone, old-fashioned—away behind the times. As Christmas approaches they get letters from two of their children that they cannot come home for Christmas. It is a shock to the old folks—and they understand the reason. So Mother Kerran sets about to effect a remedy. At the same time, back in New York, Louise de Witt of the proper de Witts, is almost engaged to Arthur Kerran. Her aunt, a Winthrop, is skeptical of the match because she knows nothing of Arthur's parents.

At about the time that the young folks indicate a preference for a New York dinner on Christmas to a visit to the old farm, Louise is heckled by her aunt regarding the personality of the Kerran family. She goes to Stoneyville and accidentally stumbles into a school teaching job. Ma Kerran, having decided in her own mind that she and her husband are much to blame for the fact that the young folks have grown awav from them, learns of the presence of the smart young school teacher, and takes Louise into her confidence.

Louise is a regular girl, and the humbleness of the old folks doesn't diminish her regard for Arthur one whit. Together, they go over the situation, and Ma offers Louise $100, on the side, if she will put Pa and Ma Kerran thru a finishing school. It is some three months until Christmas. Louise starts to work. She schools Ma and the protesting Pa in grammatical expression, in etiquette, in care of the person, in sartorial lines. Of Saturdays all three go to New York for the week end. There Pa is shot thru the Turkish bath, the manicure, et al., while Ma is running the gamut of masseuses, hair dressers, and the like. Their wardrobe is revised upward. They are trained in the topics of discussion.

Dick and Eleanor are giving the big dinner. They are horrified to receive a telegram from the old folks. Pa and Ma are to arrive just in time for dinner. The displeasures of the young people is manifest. Then word comes that Louise cannot be present, as she has met with an accident. Pa and Ma appear. The children are astounded as the stylishly dressed old couple enter the dining room. There is that business of the dinner, the merry repartee of Pa and the lovely presence of Ma. The guests congratulate Bob and Lucie and Dick and Eleanor, not to say Arthur, upon having such wonderful parents.

It should have been explained that at no time did Louise let the old folks know her identity, or that she was there to investigate them. So, when the guests have departed and the home circle is still happily together, Louise appears. Instead of the simple school ma'am, she is a radiant creature. Pa and Ma Kerran are, in turn, dumfounded. Arthur is ecstatic. Then Louise explains all that has gone before. The shame that comes over the children is followed by their pledge that in all the Christmas eves to come they will be back on the old farm with the old folks. And Louise apparently has no trouble in later convincing her aunt that a Kerran is 100 percent.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Are you ashamed of your parents? See "SOCIETY SECRETS" and they'll be ashamed of you. Eva Novak is the star of this Universal photoplay.

If you don't like your future husband's parents, why not educate them? That is what Eva Novak does in "SOCIETY SECRETS."

Big moments in the lives of simple people are dramatically presented in "SOCIETY SECRETS," the photoplay of a hundred punches.

Intimate Pose of Eva Novak

IN speaking recently to several of her friends regarding her entrance into the world of movie folks, Miss Novak, the dainty Universal star, offered the following explanation:

"Four years ago this summer, after school closed in St. Louis, my mother brought me with her to California to visit my older sister, Jane, who had made a success on the screen. She was at that time appearing in a picture called "Graft" at Universal City and we rode out there the first day we arrived.

"I recall that about that time my 'pet villain' of the screen was Ernie Shields, who had been appearing in Vitagraph serials, and who, I imagined to be quite a desperate character. I was therefore surprised to find him on a set at Universal City, supporting Mary MacLaren in "Shoes," and apparently a very decent sort of a man. They were using a few extra girls in a scene in Miss MacLaren's picture, and when the director learned that I was Jane Novak's sister he asked me to do one of the 'atmosphere parts.'

"That extra part settled my career. I was determined not to return to school and finally my mother consented to remain out here. I secured an engagement with L-KO Comedies, with whom I remained two years. After three months at that studio I was playing the leading ingenue rôles, but was anxious to do dramatic work. I got my chance when Tom Mix offered me the leading rôle in one of his pictures—part ingenue and part emotional, and evidently made good, for I remained with him in two more features. I then played opposite House Peters, and went back to comedy to play the lead in 'Up in Mary's Attic.' I decided that I did not like comedy any more and accepted an offer to play the leading rôles with William S. Hart in two pictures. Then came the offer from Universal to sign a starring contract and my ambition was realized."

Star of "Society Secrets"

Eva Novak was born in St. Louis, and at the time of the World's Fair in that city, in 1904, the future movie star was just four years old. Her mother relates how she took her two young daughters, Jane and Eva, to the Exposition one afternoon and visited a fortune teller's booth while exploring the mysteries of "The Pike." The seer went into his usual trance and prophesied brilliant futures for the two children, telling the mother that both Eva and Jane would achieve fame before they were twenty years old.

This incident escaped the mother's memory entirely, as the visit to the swarthy oracle was in the nature of a lark. When both girls became motion picture stars, however, before they were old enough to exercise their recently acquird right of suffrage, Mrs. Novak remembered the fortune teller episode and related it to some of her friends.

"Society Secrets" is her third starring feature and after the success achieved by this blonde beauty in "Wanted at Headquarters" and "The Torrent," her latest production has placed her among the leading feminine stars of the silent drama.

At the present time Miss Novak has the leading part in "The Girl and the Goose," a sparkling comedy drama dealing with the tribulations of a show girl, and which is nearing completion at Universal City. In this story the heroine is an attractive chorus girl in a small time musical comedy company which expires in a provincial town.

The goose which is featured in the picture is one of the "props" carried by the troupe and when the company disbands the awkward bird becomes her property. An amateur night in the local theatre gives the girl a chance to win a prize with the faithful goose. With this money she plans to spend the summer at a farm house until the theatrical season opens again.

While there she meets a rich young spendthrift who is spending a vacation on an adjoining farm. Under her influence he begins to see the folly of his past life and views matters from a different angle. The action then centers around this couple in a series of situations which are highly entertaining.

Fred Leroy Granville, who has just returned from London, where he produced two photoplays with Peggy Hyland, has some unique ideas to introduce in this feature, and Miss Novak's support includes Geoffrey Webb, Frank Baidwood, Mayre Hall, Norman Hammond, Dorothy Hagan, Calvert Carter, Margaret Mann, James O'Neill and Evelyn McCoy.

Upon the completion of the picture Miss Novak has been asked to make a vaudeville tour with the pet goose. When the picture was started the bird was quite ordinary, but now has developed an amazing amount of intelligence.

No word has come from California regarding her decision in this matter, as Miss Novak is still busy coaching the bird in all the variety of plain and fancy acting necessary to her latest picture. Their act would undoubtedly be as well received in vaudeville as in the picture.

Splashing Around At The Vanderfleets

THE illustration shown below pictures one of the most amusing and humorous scenes in the new Gladys Walton feature "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," which is one of the best pictures released by Universal and undoubtedly the best in which this new star has appeared in the leading role. This picture with its contrasts of sunshine and shadow in the life of two girls will surely prove a tremendous attraction and appeal to everyone.

The situation pictured below is built around Miss Walton, who, as Nora McShane of the slums, is in the process of transformation into a society debutante. Her experiences in an ultra-modern bath room are highly amusing and not in the least suggestive. In fact there is not one situation that the most rigorous Board of Censors would object to.

As a matter of fact, not a single foot of film was ordered cut out by the National Board of Reviews. The whimsical, human type of the story should prove to be of paramount interest to theatre patrons throughout the country.

The picture is just what its name implies; a scene from the life of a poor girl, and the same pages torn from the diary of a rich girl. They have a marked similarity, but this is the only thing that they have in common, and when their places in life are changed, some interesting situations are developed.

In this picture there is some of the best double exposure photography seen on the screen in a long time. A young girl, closely resembling Miss Walton was used as a double thus enabling the director to stage his action so that it is most difficult to tell when he had to depend on double exposure. Even the most critical will find much of interest in this phase of the picture alone.

When it was learned that a double would be required for this picture, those in charge of the casting out at the studios were besieged by hundreds of applicants for the role. They carefully compared all the applicants resembling the star and finally selected one who practically was her double.

Harry B. Harris, who stamped the feature film with the seal of his directorship has proven by the medium of this picture that he understands the capabilities of the new star and has achieved a creditable production. He was the first camera man before whom Miss Walton worked when she first entered moving pictures eighteen months ago.

This feature is certain to have a wide appeal and from advance comments heard in the centers where it has already been shown will remain in favor for a long time.

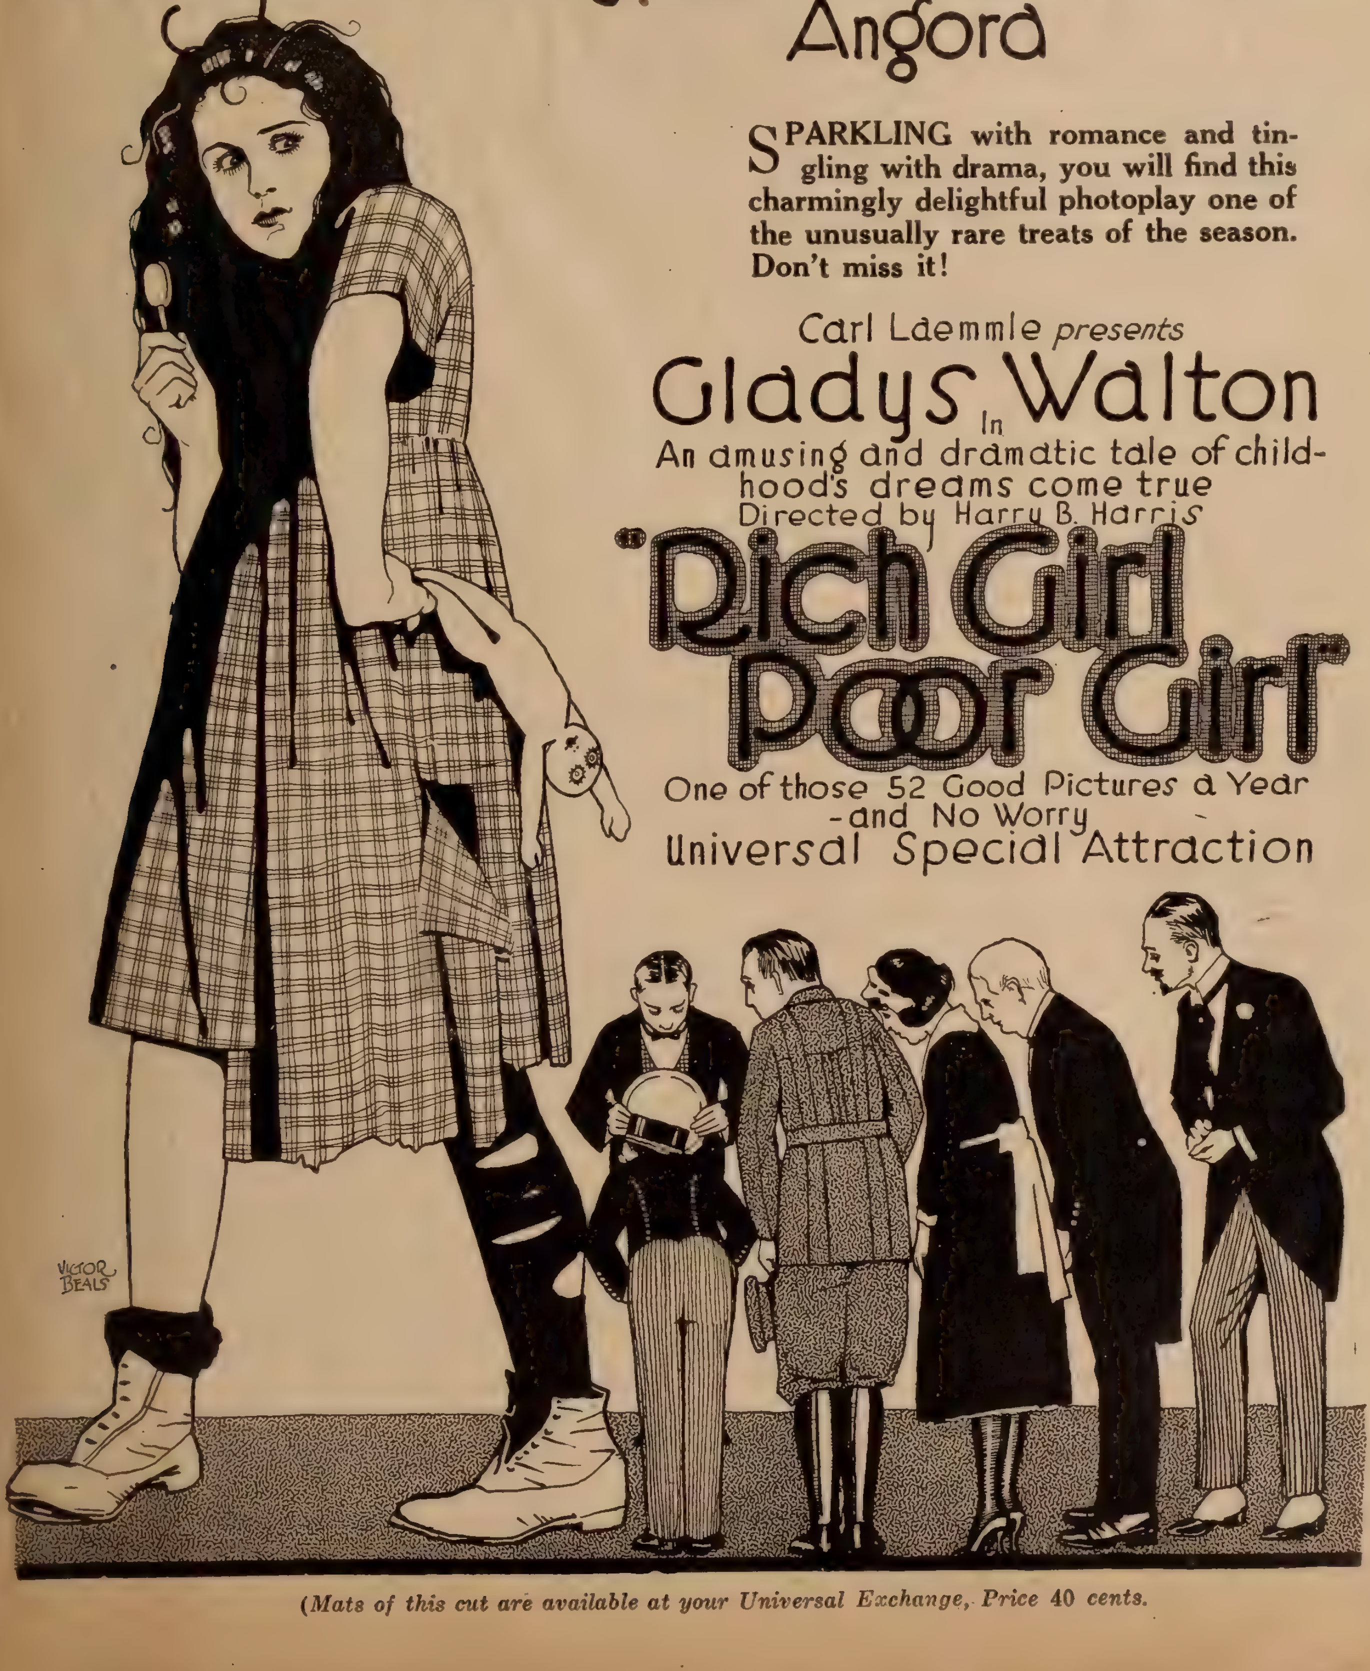
ACCOUNT OF GLADYS WALTON'S FIRST MOVIE EXPERIENCE

IN 1919 I finished the Junior year in Jefferson High School in Portland, Ore., and my mother took me to visit my grandparents in San Francisco. While we were in California we thought we might as well visit my aunt and uncle in Los Angeles for a few days, too. My uncle jokingly suggested one day that I go into the movies, and it occurred to me how much fun it would be to go back to school and tell the girls that I had worked for the motion picture camera. Of course I didn't know how to go about it to get a position. Uncle took me to Bill Hart's studio, but there was nothing there. Just a few days before mother and I were ready to start home I met a gentleman who gave me a note teo Hampton Del Ruth, and he signed me for stock in Sunshine comedies at $25 a week. My, I thought that was a big salary for a little girl to get! I didn't tell Mr. Del Ruth I was planning to go back home, and when a little later he gave me a contract as a leading woman—"the" leading woman—Mother and I decided to stay.

I wandered over to the dramatic side of the lot and met some of the other directors. Harry Harris was then a cameraman and I met him. He evidently told Rollin Sturgeon, the Universal director, about me, for Mr. Sturgeon suggested that I try dramatic work. What, leave Sunshine! I should say not. So after I had been there eight months the manager called me into his office and said, "What are you doing here?" Just as though he didn't know as well as I did! But I told him and he said "Next week I'm going to give you a surprise—for your own good." The surprise was a release of contract; I could continue in stock there or accept any offer that came up. And the very next day Mr. Sturgeon phoned that there was a good part for me in "La La Lucille" with Eddie Lyone and Lee Moran. When I finished that they gave me the leading role in "The Secret Gift," with Lee Kohlman and Rudolphe Christians. That was my very first dramatic part. Then they featured me in "Pink Tights." When I saw myself on the screen in that it made me cry, but everybody else seems to like it. Now I'm starring in "Risky Business." Starring? Can you imagine it? And eighteen months ago I was digging into Latin and French.

Nora takes a bath at the Vanderfleet home

See What Happened When—
The Alley-Cat Changed Places with the Pet-Angora



SPARKLING with romance and tingling with drama, you will find this charmingly delightful photoplay one of the unusually rare treats of the season. Don't miss it!

Carl Laemmle presents

Gladys Walton
in

An amusing and dramatic tale of childhood's dreams come true

Directed by Harry B. Harris

"Rich Girl Poor Girl"

One of those 52 Good Pictures a Year
-and No Worry

Universal Special Attraction

(Mats of this cut are available at your Universal Exchange, Price 40 cents.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION - PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 13 FEBRUARY 19, 1921 No. 1

EDITORIALS

EXCELLENT business has resulted from the practise of many managers in medium-sized cities and towns of circularizing the citizens of their locality when they feel that they have an unusual feature that should be called to their attention. Many house managers and exhibitors have a more or less exclusive mailing list and send out their announcements while others send circular letters to all they can reach.

The following extracts are taken from the letter sent out recently by Ramey and Ramey of Lyons, Colorado, to every family in that city.

"WE wonder if you fully appreciate a real treat in the amusement line is being brought to Lyons for YOU on Saturday, January 15th, 1921, in the evening at 8.15 P. M.?

The picture is a Universal-Jewel super-production with Dorothy Phillips playing the leading part. Added to this big program is another of equal interest to those who love beautiful horses, that is the World Championship Horse race held in Canada recently, where the race horse, 'Man-of-War' won the $5,000 Cup for being the fastest horse on the track today.

Did you ever have the ambition when you were young to leave Home and Mother and Father and go out into the Big World and write the indelible letters 'Fame' after your name? Did you ever tire of the common every-day tasks of home life? Were you born and raised in a small town, and did you tire of the imaginary 'littleness' of your environment? Have you a child who had rather do something else besides study at school, or help mother with the dishes? Then you should see this remarkable super-production of Dorothy Phillips in 'Once to Every Woman.' Do you remember the Sainted Mother and the old home? See this picture. Hear again the sweet strains of 'Be It Ever So Humble, There's No Place Like Home,' and hear 'Ben Bolt,' both sung at the beginning of the evening's entertainment, and also with the proper action in the film.

Remember that this is no cheap, tawdry production with a vampire background. It is the tragic, heart-appealing story, worked into picture form with beautiful scenes and wonderful pictures and a gripping living plot, of a small-town girl who wanted to be a great singer; of how she left the little village and fared forth into the great world; of how when her supposed fame was won she found she had lost all on its cold altar, and of how she came back broken-hearted at last to her dear old mother and Home, Sweet Home.

Remember that this picture is brought to Lyons at great expense. First showing in northern Colorado out of Denver.

Remember that every theatre in the City of Chicago has exhibited this film within the last sixty days. The most famous dramatic film critics in the country who mercilessly censor and criticize every film production all unite in praising this film as having a wonderful plot and best acting. No lost motion, every movement on the screen means something. The very elect of the Santa Barbara, California, social leaders were glad to appear in this picture as an 'audience' for Miss Phillips when a magnificent opera scene was reproduced for the first and only time.

Lyons singer will feature 'Home, Sweet Home,' and 'Ben Bolt.'

Yours for better amusements,
RAMEY & RAMEY,
The Lyons Theatre."

TWO exclusive news beats are recorded in the latest releases of the International News reels for this week. The first motion pictures of the great Atlantic fleet passing through the Panama Canal to join the Pacific armada are shown in No. 9 and in No. 10 are some interesting views of the reception given the Yankee "Dollar Princess," Princess Anastasie, formerly Mrs. William D. Leeds, at the celebration of King Constantine's return to Athens.

These news reels are now being distributed by the Universal Sales Department. The pictures taken in Greece were obtained by Captain Ariel Varges, a noted news camera man who last week reported the reinstatement of the Hellenic throne by King Constantine.

In the Canal Zone "shots" were taken from the decks of the giant dreadnaught Delaware, showing units of the Atlantic fleet passing through the Gatun locks with the aid of electric mules. Other interesting scenes of the battleships included in the fleet are shown in this reel.

WHEN Warren G. Harding visits Universal City, as all Presidents do, he will find a man who worked with him twenty years ago as a reporter on The Marion Star, the President-elect's paper. He is William Lord Wright, head of the short-reel feature department at Universal City and one of the best known executives in the motion picture industry.

Wright was a political writer on another Ohio paper when Senator Harding called him to Marion to join the Star's staff as a special political reporter.

If the President searches around in his pocket for a pencil to autograph the roster of distinguished guests at the world's film capital, Wright will hand him a pencil that will perhaps get a Presidential smile, for the pencil will be of the brand that Editor Harding always used and insisted upon in his newspaper office at Marion.

With a reporter's memory for details Wright recalled recently that Harding would only use one particular kind of a pencil and after some difficulty located a box of them, one of which he is saving to spring on the President when he comes to Universal City.

Publicity Stories for Eva Novak in "Society Secrets"

STORY OF THE AGES IN EVA NOVAK PICTURE

THE cast and production of "Society Secrets," which is looked forward to with considerable interest by the patrons of .... Theatre, where it will be shown on ...., presents a study in contrasts. For instance, the star, Eva Novak, the charming young star, is the most golden of blondes; her leading man, William Buckley, is decidedly dark in his coloring. Part of the scenes in this photoplay is laid in New York's most fashionable circle; others have their locale in a simple New England home, where the weekly prayer meeting is the most exciting event in the lives of the characters.

"Society Secrets" is a story of age and old youth, wisdom and folly, the substantial and the superficial. It requires a cast of capable players and able direction, and these Universal has evidently supplied. Leo McCarey, Tod Browning's first executive in the production of "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "Outside the Law," directed the picture. The star, Eva Novak, has been supplied with a role that tests her skill and displays her beauty to splendid advantage; William Buckley, who was so well liked as young Royal Northwesterner in the Red Rider series, has an excellent role; Ethel Ritchie, who has supported Priscilla Dean and Lyons and Moran recently, is cleverly cast; Leonard C. Shumway, who supported Eva Novak in her last two features, is again seen in her support, and Gertrude Claire and George Berrell, two of the best known character actors on the screen, have splendid roles as the father and mother.

Altogether "Society Secrets" gives promise of proving one of the treats of the year.

GENUINE MOTHER ROLE IN "SOCIETY SECRETS"

GERTRUDE CLAIRE has been mother to every star in the motion picture world and to scores of other prominent players in the silent drama. Miss Claire does not play the haughty aristocratic mothers, but the old fashioned mothers—the sort a person indistinctly brings to mind when the sacred word is mentioned.

Gertrude Claire's latest portrayal of a mother is in "Society Secrets," the appealing comedy drama in which Eva Novak is starring and which comes to the .... Theatre next .... Here she plays the part of a New England mother, a simple, loving soul who realizes with a pang of sorrow that the children who had been given the advantages of life in a big city had grown ashamed of their small town parents. Miss Claire is said to give a remarkable performance of this resourceful mother who undertakes to win back the complete love of her city-proud son and daughter, by playing their own game.

Miss Claire was for some years a prominent figure on the dramatic stage. She was star of her own stock company in Boston and other Eastern cities, but was induced to go into the films when "Ramona" was produced some eight years ago. Since then she has appeared with every leading star and in numberless big productions of the screen. Within the last two years she has played important roles in the Ince-Triangle feature, "Golden Rule Kate," in the Ince-Paramount drama, "A Nine O'Clock Town," in the Select picture, "Romance and Arabella," with Paramount in "Little Comrade," "Stepping Out," "Widow By Proxy" and many others.

According to Miss Claire, her role in "Society Secrets" is the best she has had in some time, as it gives her opportunity for comedy as well as pathos.

FEATURE FILM REFLECTS CURRENT PUBLIC TASTE

AFTER decades of the problem play, years of the bed-room farce and/ months of eagle-screaming war story, the pendulum of public taste in entertainment has swung back to the bucolic drama.

A splendid example of a story that depends for its appeal upon human nature is to be seen .... at the .... Theatre in "Society Secrets," a Universal photodrama of big moments in the lives of simple people, presented without straining for effect but with a heart appeal that has marked it as one of the genuine stories of the screen.

"Society Secrets" is a starring vehicle for Eva Novak, but the manner in which her supporting cast appears makes the production practically all-star in its presentation.

The story was written as a magazine feature by Helen Christine and was filmed at Universal City under the direction of Leo McCarey.

In theme "Society Secrets" stands out as one of the most delightful narratives of the screen. It concerns an old farmer and his wife who are so behind the times that their city-wise children are ashamed of them.

How they take lessons in society mannerisms from the girl who is to marry their own son and has come to secretly investigate their social standing, gives the capable cast ample opportunity to get over dramatic punches delicately seasoned with spicy humor.

"Society Secrets" is considered by critics to be the type of a story that the American public turns to after an over-dose of the wrought-up session with the over fervent problem and sex drama.

WOULD YOU DISCOVER REAL SECRET OF ETERNAL YOUTH?

EVER since Ponce De Leon drank Florida water to restore his youth, scientists have been trying to fill old gentlemen with a desire to play leap-frog by surgical and chemical means.

The real secret of eternal youth, however, is believed to have been discovered in the filming of "Society Secrets," which is now playing at the .... Theatre.

In the screen story an old farmer and his wife take an intensive course in society mannerisms and arrive in the city to take part in a brilliant social function which their children are giving to convey the impression that they never heard of a farm.

George Berrell and Gertrude Claire, who play the old folks in support of Eva Novak, the star, are glandiloquent in describing the youthful glow which followed their delightful rejuvenation in the picture.

"I feel perfectly gland," said Mr. Berrell, using the Chinese inflection.

"The benefits are interstitial," said Gertrude Claire, the charming old character actress who plays opposite him.

The rejuvenation process by which the old folks knocked off a few decades from their appearance in the picture consisted in a series of Turkish baths, hot oil massage, and a strict diet consisting of oysters on the half-shell, malted milk, bromo-seltzer, raw eggs and a glass of bitters whenever the spirits inclined to droop.

"Society Secrets," in which Eva Novak stars with such capable support, was produced at Universal City under the direction of Leo McCarey and is now playing at the .... Theatre.

Buffalo

At the Palace Theatre: " 'Outside The Law' going very big in Buffalo," says a wire. "Breaking all records. Turning them away. May hold picture over.

Salt Lake

At the Kinema Theatre: " 'Outside The Law' opened Saturday, breaking all previous records. First three days' run $2964.50, beating previous record first three days' run by nearly $400."

Los Angeles

At the Superba Theatre: "Broke every previous record. First week's gross showed it did better than nine dollars a seat. Holding record-breaking run in its fifth week.

"OUTSIDE

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

SUPPORTED BY LON CHANEY

in

THE LAW"

TOD BROWNING'S
GREATEST UNIVERSAL—JEWEL

Repeating Its Big

A SENSATION
EVERYWHERE

PRISCILL

DEAN

in the
UNIVERSAL-JEWE
$500.000
Production deLuxe

Story by H.H.VAN LOAN
Directed by TOD BROWNIN

ty Success In Smaller Towns!

READ these letters from small-town exhibitors, all unanimous in their praise of this picture, and the remarkable results it brought them. Then remember that you are in business for profit and that here is one picture to help you do it!

"SHATTERED ALL RECORDS"

"This attraction was played at advanced admission rates. We shattered all house records."

Gaiety Theatre,
Fredericton, N. B.

"BIGGEST EVER RUN"

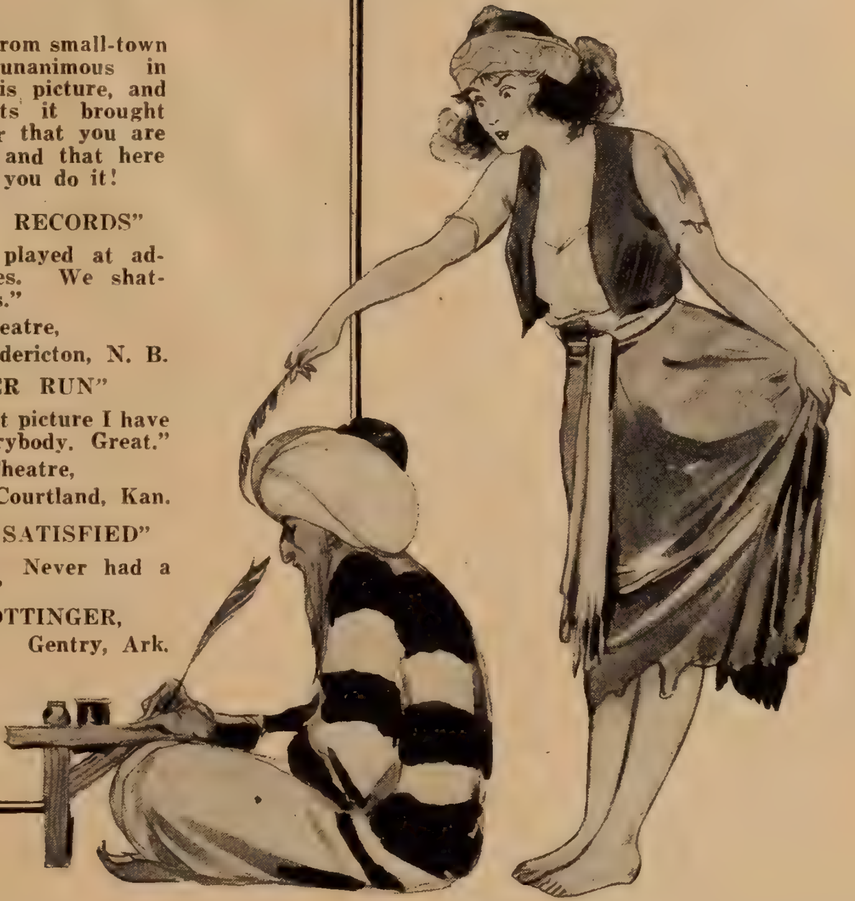
"Consider it the biggest picture I have ever run. Pleased everybody. Great."

Electric Theatre,
Courtland, Kan.

"NEVER BETTER SATISFIED"

"Nothing but praise. Never had a better-satisfied house."

A. M. OTTINGER,
Gentry, Ark.



CARL LAEMMLE Presents

"The VIRGIN of STAMBOUL"

A Great Pic
Going Big Small To

IN small towns everywhere this powerful photodrama is registering unprecedented success in box-offices as well as in the hearts of its record-making audiences. Crowded houses, pleased patrons and large profits are the share of every exhibitor presenting this master-drama of yourself and myself and our wives. Read the testimonials from happy exhibitors and profit by their experience—NOW!

Carl Laemmle presents

Von Stroheim's master picture

“The DEVIL'S

ure-
in ns!

"A SURE money-getter in every respect. A wonderful production. Worthy of being called a masterpiece. Big business for four days. Grab it."

FRED MEYER,
Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, O.

"PROVED a winner. Should be classed with the best."

C. L. HEAD,
Anaheim Theatre,
Anaheim, Cal.

"THE successful future of this new theatre is due large part to the first feature shown—'The Devil's Passkey.' "

ALLEN JENKINS,
Bijou Theatre,
Roanoke, Va.

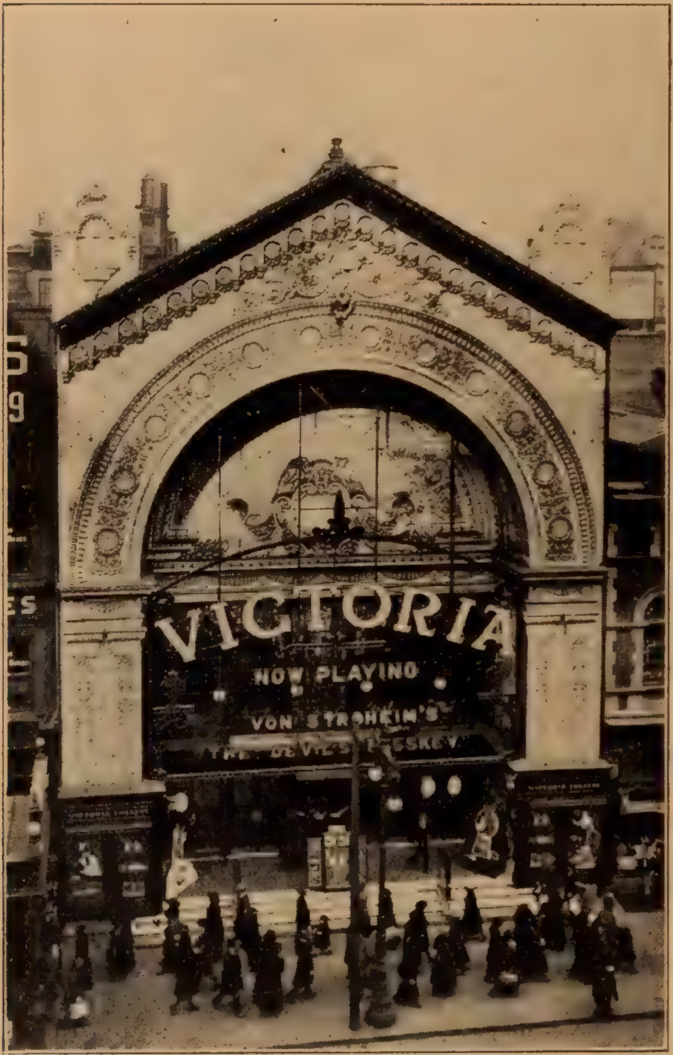
"SURE-FIRE box-office attraction. One of the really big pictures of the year. From any angle—perfect!"

A. C. H. CHAMBERLAIN,
Madera O. H.,
Madera, Cal.

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION de LUXE

PASSKEY”

"Devil's Passkey in Philadelphia"



Victoria Theatre on Market Street

ENCOURAGING reports are still coming in from various cities concerning the record houses drawn by the Universal production de luxe "The Devil's Passkey." Here is reproduced a photograph of the method of featuring this picture at the Victoria theatre on Market street in Philadelphia.

This is one of he Stanley houses and reported that the picture enjoyed a very good run at the Quaker City playhouse. Special posters and lobby displays were arranged as can be seen by a close study of the accompanying picture.

Everywhere that the picture has been shown there has been favorable comment concerning the masterful artistry with which the theme of the production was carried out. The settings and photography are up to the usual high standard which is to be expected of a Universal-Jewel film.

Te fact that Eric von Stronheim directed the picture is an additional factor of great importance to exhibitors everywhere an intelligent interest in take in photoplays. With his inherent perception for details he invariably produces a picture free from petty flaws and with no careless spots in the action.

The theme of "The Devil's Passkey" is one that carries a vital message to every woman whether she lives in Paris, New York or Gopher Prairie. Because of this universal appeal the film is attracting the same marked degree of interest in the smaller towns as in the larger cities.

Regardless of location there is a fertile field for this feature in every small town and hamlet throughout the country or wherever there is a moving picture theatre. It will easily remain for a long time one of the best current releases of Universal Films.

Praise From Idaho

Salmon, Idaho, Jan. 21, 1921.

Mr. A. W. Skoog, Esq.,
Universal Film Exchanges,
Butte, Montana.

My dear Mr. Skoog:

I wish to tell you how pleased I am with the showing of "The Devil's Passkey." It gave universal satisfaction and especially pleased those of the more critical and exacting tastes. It is a high class society crook drama that holds interest to the last moment. It is a gem of its type.

There is no reason why any small town or large city exhibitor should not make money on this production.

One can conscientiously boost this play. The acting is splendid. It is artistic and dramatic settings and treatment are very fine. The plot is unusual and entertaining. Though the sex situation is the main theme, yet it is handled in such a clever and delicate manner that it will not offend.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) PHILIP RAND, Manager.
The Rex Theatre.

Movie Campaign in Des Moines

GARDEN
DOROTHY PHILLIPS
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN
Dorothy Phillips
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN

"Once to Every Woman" at Garden Theatre, Des Moines, Iowa.

THE recent Go-To-Movie Week which was held in Des Moines, Iowa, starting January 9th, proved to be an unqualified success in every respect, and aided materially in acquainting the public of that city with their movie house managers and also with the type of pictures shown in the various theatres. Universal pictures occupied a prominent place on the special programs arranged by the respective managers.

Much publicity was used in the daily papers and the general public was completely "sold" for the idea when the week opened. All the theatres enjoyed a very successful week and incidentally made more friends who will undoubtedly prove to be regular patrons. Special posters and lobby displays were used to increase the effectiveness of the campaign.

Two of the A. H. Blank Enterprise houses featured Universal first run pictures. "Once to Every Woman," starring Dorothy Phillips, was shown at the Garden theatre on Locust Street, and "White Youth," with Edith Roberts in the title role, was the feature at the Majestic theatre.

At the Majestic in addition to the Universal five reel feature there was a vaudeville bill, but at the Garden, "Once to Every Woman" was not supported by any other film. Both these picture plays drew capacity audiences all day in spite of strong competition from the other houses and easily proved to be the chief topic of conversation wherever the results of the week were discussed.

ANOTHER RECORD

COLONIAL THEATRE

Lethbridge, Alberta
January 19th, 1921.

Mr. George Kohn,
Manager, Canadian Universal Film Co., Ltd.,
Calgary, Alberta.

Dear George:

I've just got thru having a new and novel experience. For the first time in fifteen years of show business I'm actually sick and tired of having my patrons thank me, and congratulate me on a picture. That picture is "Once To Every Woman." My right arm is about worn out, and, like the Prince of Wales if it keeps up I'll have to use my left arm to give my right a rest. Thank God for my right arm's sake that I'm only playing the picture three days instead of a week, for if I played it for a week my arm would be worn out. Hell of a note, isn't it? And right now I'm kicking myself to think I didn't take your advice and play it a week anyway, for the sight of a theatre manager going round with his arm in a sling from shaking hands and counting the coin would be a novel sight—and a pleasant experience at that.

But, all joking apart, please book me down for a return date on "Once To Every Woman." I say without hesitation that it is the greatest picture of its kind I have ever played. Thanks for the singer tip. It makes a great hit. Strong men cried like babies here during every showing. Our ministers here have enthusiastically endorsed it. Our Women's Club here have seen it in a body, and have requested me to bring it back, promising to help me put it over on the return. I took it upon myself to invite over a dozen of the smaller town exhibitors in this district to come in and see it, with the result that I want you to communicate with the enclosed list of exhibitors relative to booking it in the towns mentioned.

Don't fail to book me with "Outside The Law." I sure want that after "Once To Every Woman."

Thanks again, a thousand times—the picture is the greatest boost my theatre ever got.

"Once To Every Woman" (and only once) comes a picture like "Once To Every Woman."

Sincerely,
(Signed) LEN S. BROWN,
Sole Lessee and Manager.

"WATCH 'EM BREAK

Did You Ever Read
Anything Like This?

Read What Exhibitor Meyer Says:

Everything that has been said and written about this picture fails to do justice to the truly remarkable attraction this really is. The first picture that stood up for four days and did as much business on the last day as on the first. Censorship and blue laws would have to go out of business if we could get offerings like this with greater regularity. Exploitation possibilities great. Put it on with a singer and watch 'em break down your doors."— Palace Theatre, Hamilton, O.

The Greatest Mother-
Love
Picture
of the Generation

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS
the
Universal-Jewel
Production
de Luxe

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

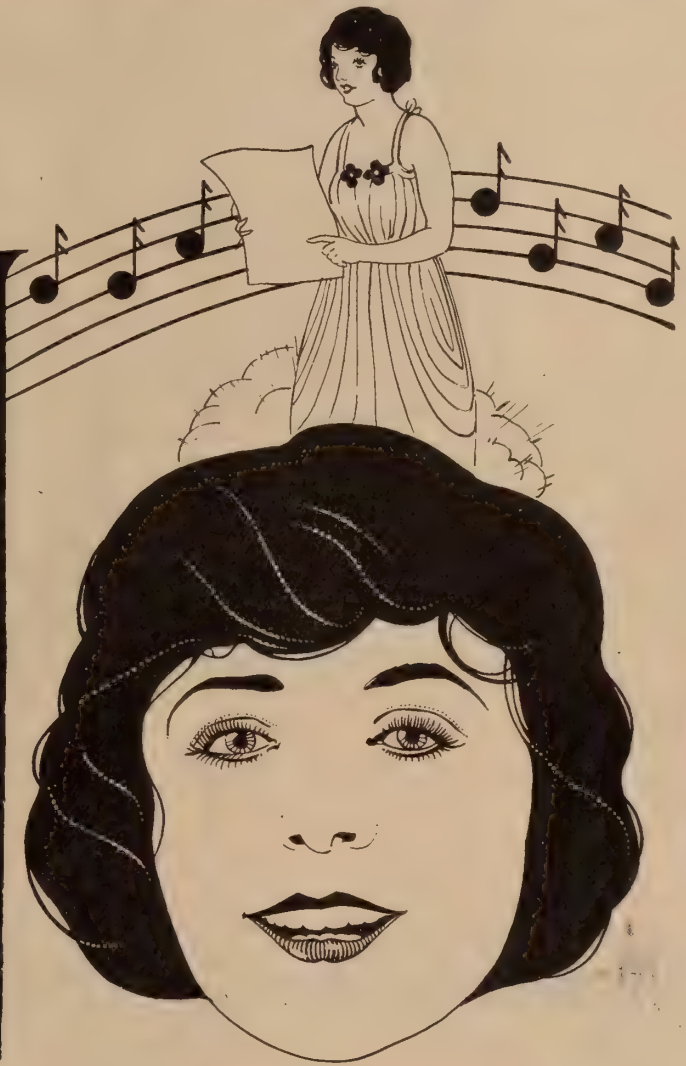
DOWN YOUR DOORS!"

--Says Mgr. Meyer

"FOR the first time in fifteen years of show business I'm actually tired of having my patrons thank me and congratulate me on a picture. THAT PICTURE IS "ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN." My right arm is about worn out. PLEASE BOOK ME A RETURN DATE. IT IS THE GREATEST PICTURE OF ITS KIND I HAVE EVER PLAYED.

—Thanks for the singer tip. It makes a great hit. strong men cried like babies. Thanks a thousand times."

—LEN S. BROWN,
Colonial Theatre,
Lethbridge, Alberta.



Directed by
ALLEN HOLUBAR

ONCE to EVERY WOMAN"

Waiting For Opening Show

Liberty Theatre, Kansas City, Mo.

EXHIBITORS everywhere are encoured to send in photographs of their exploitation methods or the crowds attracted by the features at their theatres for publication in the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY. Pictures similar to the one presented here are always welcome and will be given space in this publication.

The accompanying picture was taken in front of the Liberty Theatre in Kansas City, Mo., just at the beginning of the evening performance. The attraction was the feature film, "Once to Every Woman," with Dorothy Philips in the leading role. In commenting upon this production, easily the leading attraction in that city, the manager of the Liberty said that all attendance records had been broken during the showing of this Universal-Jewel Production De Luxe. The same reports have been received wherever the film has been exhibited.

House managers rendered "Ben Bolt," "'Good-Bye'" and "The Flower Song." The irresistible merit of the picture, together with the musical program proved to be unusually effective wherever shown.

No one can avoid making a tremendous success with the greatest mother-love story of years with Dorothy Philips handling the leading part in her own inimitable way. Capacity business will be assured for many months to come.

Mammoth Electric Plant at Universal City

AN electrical lighting station for the generation of direct current, now under installation at Universal City at a cost of a third of a million dollars, will have the largest and most powerful equipment in use at any studio according to electrical engineers.

Four motor-generating sets are the nucleus of the plant. Two of these are the largest type now in use in any studio—300-kilowatt units consisting of a motor and two generators. The other two are 500-kilowatt machines especially designed for Universal and under construction in the East by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The substation will carry a normal load of 16,000 amperes with a possible overload of half that amount additional. Ten miles of underground cable will connect the station with the various stages, the theatre, and remote points on Universal's 600-acre lot. A two-story switchboard 45 feet long (three times the size of the largest board now in studio use in the West) will control distribution of energy.

A system of remote control, with automatic switches above and below stages, will place light effects at the fingertips of the director.

A concrete substation building 36 feet by 56 feet, and 20 feet high, is nearing completion under the supervision of Harry Brown, electrical chief. It will house the motor generators, the monster switchboard, and the 10,050 K. V. A. transformers that take the 15,000 volt current from the high tension incoming power line and reduce it to 2200 volts. It is distributed at this strength, individual transformers on each stage and location further "stepping it down" for use in illumination.

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Universal's
strangest
Adventure Serial
starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

CLEAN as mother likes 'em.
THRILLING as only Universal makes 'em.
SPEEDY as a whizzing shot.
MAGNETIC as any feature—and for eighteen weeks.

DIRECTED BY EDWARD KULL

SKY

SEA

LAND

UNDER-GROUND

UNIVERSAL

"You can't lose--unless your house burns down!"

--Says Manager Wegener

"BROKE all house records with this one. You cannot lose on it unless your house burns down. If it does, show it in a big tent. Big pulling power."

ED. L. WEGENER,
Lyric Theatre,
Valley Junction, Iowa.

"Will Clean Up!"

"IT'S an odd picture and will clean up. Greatest week's business in the history of the house was done by more than $2,000."

M. CURTIS,
Doric Theatre,
Kansas City, Mo.

"Broke My House Record!"

"INTERESTING scenes and will appeal. Broke my house record for two days."

M. CASSIN,
Fourth St. Theatre,
Moberly, Mo.

"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"

UNIVERSAL—JEWEL SENSATION

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring
HARRY CAREY
“Sundown Slim”
“West Is West”
“Hearts Up!”
“‘If Only’ Jim”

Starring
FRANK MAYO
“Hitchin’ Posts”
“The Marriage Pit”
“Honor Bound”
“Tiger True”
“Colorado”

Starring
LYONS-MORAN
“La La Lucille”
“Once A Plumber”
“Fixed By George”
“A Shocking Night”

Starring
EDITH ROBERTS
“The Adorable Savage”
“White Youth”
“The Fire Cat”

Starring
CARMEL MYERS
“In Folly’s Trail”
“The Gilded Dream”
“Beautifully Trimmed”
“The Mad Marriage”

Starring
EVA NOVAK
“Wanted At Headquarters”
“The Torrent”
“Society Secrets”

Starring
GLADYS WALTON
“The Secret Gift”
“Pink Tights”
“Risky Business”
“Rich Girl, Poor Girl”

WITH A SPECIAL CAST
“Under Northern Lights”
“Two Kinds Of Love”

Jewels

Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
“The Virgin Of Stamboul”
“Outside The Law”

“Once To Every Woman”
(with Dorothy Phillips)

“Blind Husbands”
“The Devil’s Passkey”
“Shipwrecked Among Cannibals”
“The Great Air Robbery”
“The Breath Of The Gods”
(with Tsuru Aoki)
“Under Crimson Skies”
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring
JOE MARTIN
(Two Reels)
“A Prohibition Monkey”
“A Wild Night”

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring
HOOT GIBSON
“The Trail Of The Hound
“The Saddle King”
“The Driftin’ Kid”
“Sweet Revenge”
“Kickaroo”

Starring
JACK PERRIN
“The Grip Of The Law”
“The Trigger Trail”

Red Rider Series

Featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM
“A Son Of The North”
“The Girl And The Law”
“Big Stakes”
“When The Devil Laughed”
“The Forest Runners”
“The Timber Wolf”

Serials

Starring
EDDIE POLO
“The Vanishing Dagger”
“King Of The Circus”

Starring
EILEEN SEDGWICK
“The Great Radium Mystery”
“The Diamond Queen”

Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
“Elmo, The Fearless”
“The Flaming Disk”

Starring
MARIE WALCAMP
“The Dragon’s Net”

“The Moon Riders”
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

“Trouble Bubbles”
“Their First Tintype”
“Happy Daze”
“Tee Time”
“Fire Bugs”
“His Fearful Finish”
“Puppy Love”
“Fresh From The Farm”
“Leaping Lions and Jailbirds”
“Vamps and Scamps”

One Reel Star Comedies

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT
“Nearly Wed”
“Fresh From The Country”
“Chicken, Country Style”
“The Spirits of ’21”
also
“His Lady Friend”
(with Joe Martin)
“My Lady’s Ankle”
(with Robert Andersen)
also
“Simple and Sweet”
“Milk And Yeggs”
“Won: One Flivver”
“A Waiting Maid”

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE-A-WEEK

Carl Laemmle Presents An

ALL-STAR CAST

IN

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

Made by ROLLIN STURGEON
from the famous novel by
SIDNEY McCALL

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER-PRODUCTION

A REMARKABLE drama portraying the conflicting influences of a great love and the traditional duty to country. Just the picture for small town exhiibtors!

TSURU AOKI
with
J. BARNEY SHERRY
supported by
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
and a great company

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Starring

ELMO
LINCOLN

"GREAT!" "Big pulling power!" "Give us more!" These are but a few remarks taken from the hundreds of enthusiastic letters of small-town exhibitors! What it has and is doing for exhibitors everywhere, it can and will do for YOU! Profit by their experiences! Book it now—TO-DAY!

Story by J. G. HAWKS

Directed by REX INGRAM

UNIVERSAL - JEWEL

West Takes to Carey Pictures

Featuring "West Is West"

OUT where the real West is known by personal contact and not from novels of the plains and woods, the enthusiasm for the Western features starring Harry Carey is invariably evident. Up and down the West Coast he is recognized as a real exponent of the life typical of those parts up to a few years ago and still the same in some places even today.

Carey has the reputation of being the fastest man on a gun in the films, and he is given a wide opportunity for this gun play in his pictures. The old West is brought back to us with increased vividness after viewing a Carey picture.

The East, because of the general lack of actual knowledge of affairs of the true West or of the days now past may be shown films not technically correct in all their detail and notice no difference, but when the Western public is catered to there can be no faults in Western drama if it is to get by.

There is no doubt about the authenticity of the characters played by Harry Carey nor of the background for his pictures. When the West stamps it approval upon one of the dramas of the Great Outdoors you can be sure that every detail is correct and logical. A Western picture with Carey will always go over big and receive a royal welcome.

The photograph shown here is of the Star Theatre in Portland, Oregon, which recently ran "West Is West" for one week with exceedingly gratifying results.

ADVANCE NOTES FOR "SOCIETY SECRETS"

"Society Secrets," the Universal photodrama which comes to the ....Theatre on .... with Eva Novak in the starring rôle, has been described as a photodrama that "makes laughing dimples to catch the tears." It was produced with an unusually fine cast under the direction of Leo McCarey from a magazine story by Helen Christine.

Those who saw beautiful Eva Novak in "Wanted at Headquarters" and "The Torrent" will be particularly attracted by the Universal star's beauty and dramatic force in "Society Secrets," coming on .... to the ....Theatre. The vivacious screen lassie runs the gamut of drama and humor in this photoplay, contrasting the simple sincerity of nature with the artificial veneer of the big city. It was produced under the direction of Leo McCarey.

Two of the best screen characterizations of the year are to be seen in the work of George Derrell and Gertrude Claire as the small town parents in "Society Secrets," the attraction which is coming to the .... Theatre on .... The character players appear in support of Eva Novak, the star, and add to the drama and humor of this appealing story.

The kind of a picture that fills the dimples of smiles with tears is coming to the ....Theatre on........, in "Society Secrets," a Universal photoplay of big moments in the lives of simple people.

The story was written by Helen Christine and adapted to the screen by Douglas Doty, formerly editor of the Cosmopolitan and Century Magazines. It was filmed at Universal City under the direction of Leo McCarey with pretty Eva Novak in the starring role.

An ingenious plot has been woven around two old fashioned country folks and their three children who have covered their natural worth with an artificial veneer of social affectation.

The old folks are planning a big Christmas dinner for the children when a telegram comes saying that they cannot leave the city. The old folks plan to go to them, but they learn that they are not wanted. They realize that it is because their old fashioned simplicity will embarrass their children in their new environment.

How they accidentally hire the fiancee of their son to teach them society ways and how they arrive at the dinner just in time to dazzle the guests with their ultra-fashionable clothes and suave manner forms one of the delightful comic touches to the dramatic theme.

"Society Secrets" offers a story of unusual heart interest with a splendid cast. Playgoers who attend the ....Theatre on ...., will see the lovely Eva Novak supported by George Barrell, Gertrude Claire, Clarissa Selwynne, William Buckley, Ethel Ritchie, Leonard C. Shumway, Carl Stockdale and Lucy Donohoe.

The Moving Picture Weekly frequently receives inquiries as to where the films advertised in its pages may be booked. For the benefit of these and any others who may wish it we have here published the addresses of the various exchanges and the names of the managers.

C. E. Halligan, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 657 Broadway, Albany, N Y.

William Oldknow, Consolidated Film and Supply Co., 111 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.

Samuel Grant, American Feature Film Co., 60 Church St., Boston, Mass.

M. A. Chase, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 257 Franklin St., Buffalo, N. Y.

A. W. Skoog, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 23 So. Montana St., Butte, Mont.

D. C. Walkley, Canadian Univ. Film Co., 407 W. 8th Ave., Calgary, Alta.

J. E. Daly, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 707 Dryden St., Charleston, W. Va.

E. F. Dardine, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 307 W. Trade St., Charlotte, N. C.

I. L. Leserman, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 220 So. State St., Chicago, Ill.

H. S. Brown, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 294½ No. High St., Columbus, O.

Cleve Adams, Universal Film Ex., Inc., Film Exchange Building, Pioneer & Broadway, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Art Schmidt, Universal Film Ex., Inc., Prospect Ave. & Huron, Cleveland, Ohio.

N. E. Depinet, Cons. Film & Supply Co., 1900 Commerce St., Dallas, Tex.

A. R. Cherry, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 1018 Forbes St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Eugene Gerbase, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 1422 Welton St., Denver, Colo.

Edgar B. Haines, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 918 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Jos Friedman, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 63 E. Elizabeth St., Detroit, Mich.

R. C. McIlheran, Cons. Film & Supply Co., 110 E. Franklin St., El Paso, Texas.

C. H. White, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 709 Rogers Ave., Ft. Smith, Ark.

Ralph W. Abbett, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 113 W. Georgia St., Indianapolis, Ind.

John R. Barton Cons. Film & Supply Co., 615½ W. Forsythe St., Jacksonville, Fla.

J. H. Calvert, Universal Film Ex., Inc., Film Exchange Building, Main & 17th Sts., Kansas City, Mo.

C. L. Theuerkauf, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 822 So. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

W. E. Sipe, Cons. Film & Supply Co., 226 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

George Levine, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 174-2nd St., Milwaukee, Wis.

I. Gettleson, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 21-23-25-3rd St., Minneapolis, Minn.

D. Leduc, Canadian Universal Film Co., Ltd., 295 St. Catherine St., W., Montreal, Can.

Morris Joseph, Big U. Film Ex., 126 Meadow St., New Haven, Conn.

W. M. Richardson, Cons. Film & Supply Co., 914 Gravier St., New Orleans, La.

Charles Rosenzweig, Big U. Film Ex., 1600 Broadway, 7th floor, New York, N. Y.

Sam Benjamin, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 312 W. California St., Oklahoma City, Okla.

H. F. Lefholtz, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 1304 Farnum St., Omaha, Neb.

Int. Films Inc., E. J. Smith, 1304 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

W. H. O'Brien, American Feature Film Co., 85 Market St., Portland, Me.

D. Brill, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 405 Davis St., Portland, Ore.

H. L. Craig, Canadian Universal Film Co., Ltd., 87 Union St., St. John, N. B., Can.

Barney Rosenthal, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 2116 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

G. A. Hager, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 56 Exchange Pl., Salt Lake, Utah.

C. A. Nathan, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 221 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

Geo. Bourke, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 215 Virginia St., Seattle, Wash.

S. W. Fitch, Univeral Film Ex., Inc., Colonial Theatre Bldg., Sioux Fall, S. D.

A. H. MacMillan, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 10 So. Banard St., Spokane, Wash.

Clair Hague, Canadian Universal Film Co., Ltd., 350 Yonge St., Toronto, Can.

W. Walkley, Canadian Univ. Film Co., Ltd., 553 Granville St., Vancouver, B. C.

Jules Levey, Wash. F. Exch., 307-9th St., N. W., Wash., D. C.

H. H. Buntley, Universal Film Ex., Inc., 209 E. 1st St., Wichita, Kan.

J. A. Wilson, Canadian Univ. Film Co., Ltd., 40 Aikens Bldg., Winnipeg, Man.

Eddie Polo At Work on New Serial

Universal Star of "King of the Circus" Promises New Thriller

HERE is an interesting announcement for all the serial fans who are following the variable exploits of Eddie Polo in his current attraction "King of the Circus." There will be another thriller with Polo in the star role and from dispatches from the producing unit now at work on the picture there is a treat in store for all those who follow Eddie's career in the chaptered screen drama.

Now, next to the circus, what was the most interesting and most desired pastime of your youth, or adolescence (as they say on the other side—meaning of course the avenue—and if you have money enough to talk that way)? Wasn't it stories of the Spanish Main with the pirates brandishing cutlasses and sneaking along in the dead of night to hide their pieces of eight in a deep, dark cave?

Of course we all know that they had to sneak along furtively with their gold and also bury it in some cave or else there wouldn't be any story at all. But just why the night had to be dead the story tellers have not enlightened us.

However to get back to our original topic and the why of this bulletin, we want to say right here that there will not be a single dead night, moment, foot of film or any thing of a paraller nature in the new Eddie Polo serial. If you thought that the situations in "King of the Circus" were tense and dramatic, you will hugely enjoy the next feature serial.

Locale Set In Cuba

The new film on which the star and his troupe are now hard at work will be called the "Seal of Satan." It's locale will be in Cuba, Isle of Pines and some of the smaller islands of the Caribbean, and will be fourteen months in screening.

Some of the most thrilling episodes will be made with historic Moro Castle and San Juan Hill for a background. Then will follow sequences along the romantic old smuggling coast in which latter scenes, sea-planes and battleships will participate.

Moro Castle, historic San Juan Hill and the romantic environment of old Cuba will furnish backgrounds for the dramatic theme of the story.

When the Cuban sequence is finished the company will sail for the Isle O'Pines, there to stage a thrilling underwater fight with a shark for which Universal has insured Polo against death or permanent disability for a large sum.

To Return Thru Canal

The return trip will be made through the Panama Canal and scenes will be made near Culebra Cut, the vessel delaying long enough for the Universal company to get the desired "shots."

Pretty Magda Lane, the screen idol of thousands for her sincere work in scores of Universal productions, and Inez MacDonnell, also popular in the films, have been selected by Carl Laemmle to play opposite Eddie Polo in the serial for which the star is leaving for Cuba.

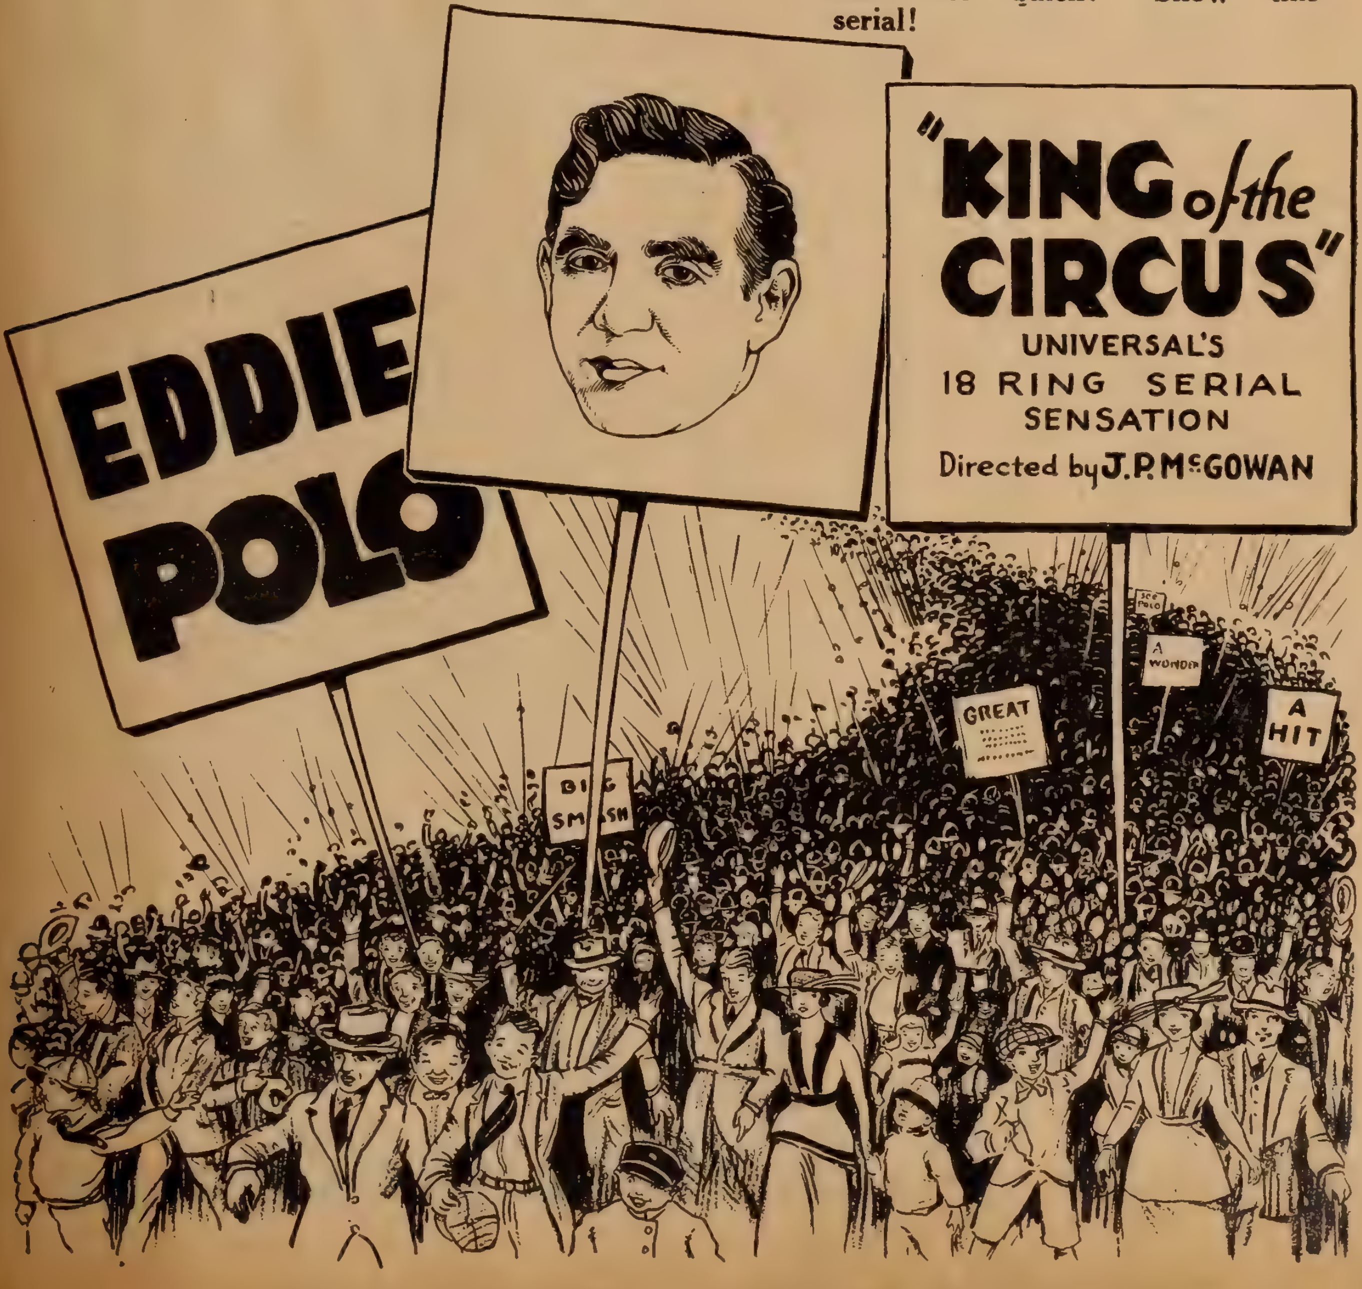
J. P. McGowan, who directed Polo in his last serial, for which he went to Europe, will again direct the star.

Accompanying the star and the director will be an entire company of well-known players; Anthony W. Coldeway, the author of the story; Cecil Myers and Jean Perkins, cameramen; Jay Marchant, assistant to Mr. McGowan; Charles Roberts, technical man, and David Brandman, business representative.

Choice of The Crowds!

Universal makes 'em fast and clean!

THE pick of all serials featuring the king of serial stars is the choice of crowds everywhere and is packing houses to the limit on Eddie Polo nights! Speedy as a bullet—thrilling as only Universal makes 'em—and clean as any mother would want it! It pays to give folks what they want! Think hard—act quick! Show this serial!



EDDIE POLO
"KING of the CIRCUS"
UNIVERSAL'S
18 RING SERIAL SENSATION
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN
BIG SMASH
GREAT
A WONDER
SEE POLO
A HIT

The Best SHORT

FOR EXAMPLE

Read this from the Moving Picture World:

"Ed (Hoot) Gibson throws his hat in the ring and challenges all comers for the MOST LAUGHABLE COMEDY YET RELEASED FOR 1921. It is 'KICKAROO,' a two-reel Universal Western subject."

UNIVE

STUFF in the World

CENTURY COMEDIES

RIP-ROARING laugh-getters, featuring Harry Sweet; Brownie, the Century Wonder dog, Century Lions, Century Bathing Beauties, etc. Two roaring reels every week in the year.

TWO-REEL WESTERNS

SWIFT short subjects, featuring Hoot Gibson; also numbers featuring Jack Perrin; and, soon to be released, hurry-up thrillers featuring Eileen Sedgwick, star of "The Diamond Queen" serial.

RED RIDER SERIES

SIX two-reelers of feature quality. Vigorous, red-blooded, actionful stories of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Fast, clean stuff featuring Virginia Faire and Leonard Clapham.

ONE-REEL COMEDIES

THE new Star comedies are filled with original gags and other clever comedy ideas—real screen humor directed by such experts as Al Beaudine, Chuck Reisner and others.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

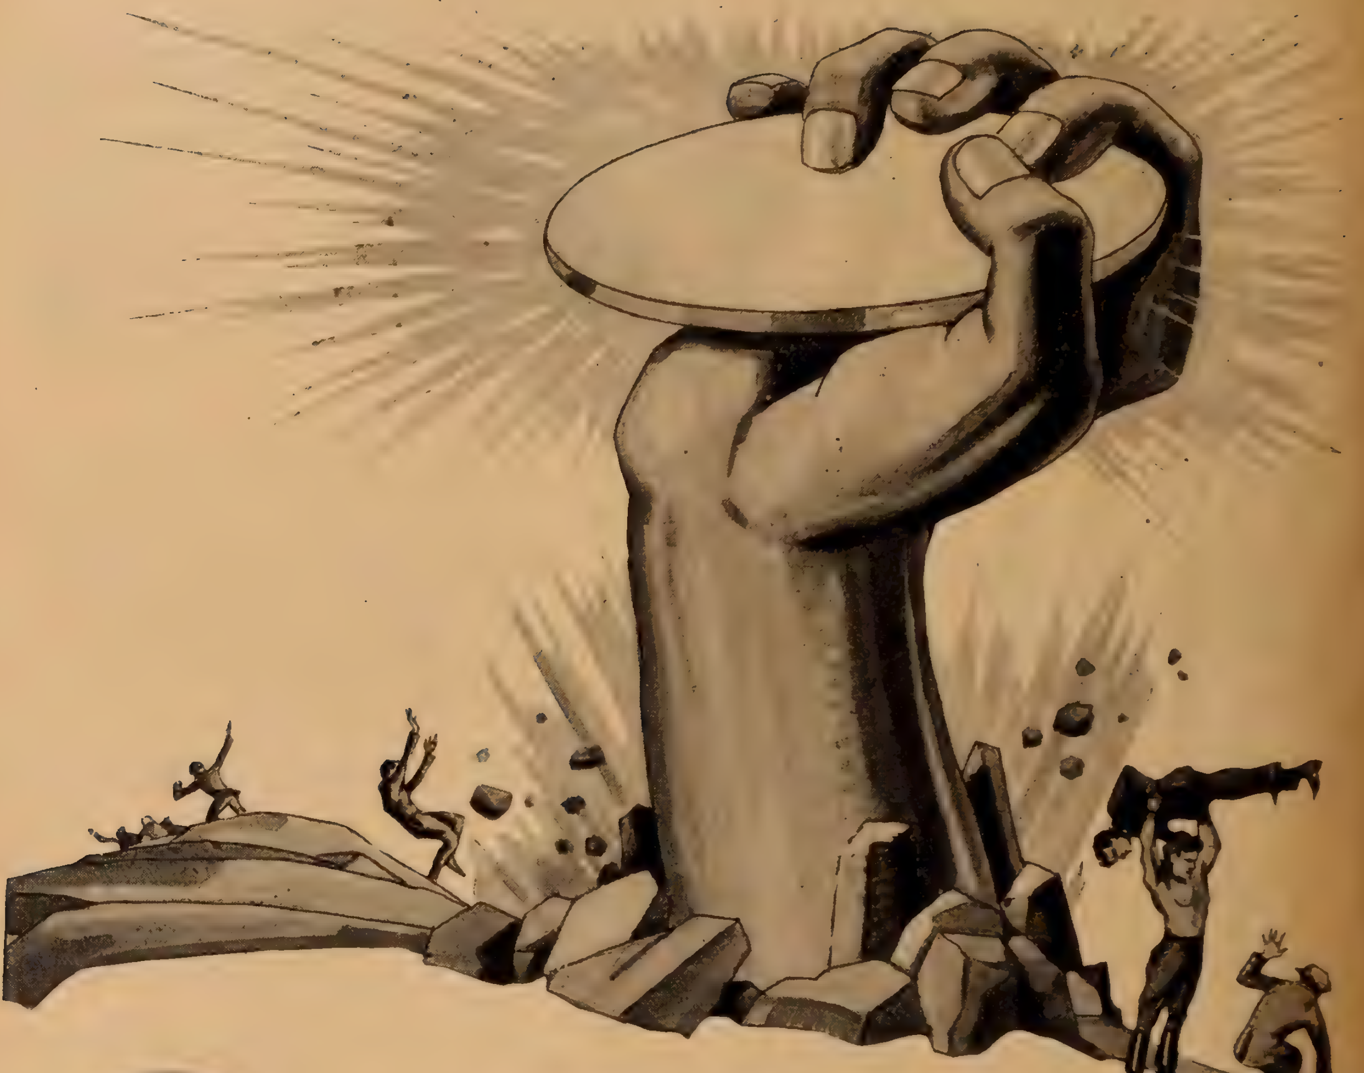
TWICE a week. The service that scored more than thirty big scoops last year—and which begins this year with some more exclusives. Always the best in news and features.

coming

LYONS-MORAN 2-REELERS

THIS popular comedy team will soon be seen in sparkling two-reelers of highest quality—subjects so crammed with well-dressed fun as to make them attractions in any house.

RSAL•



A MIGHTY THRILLER

yet clean!

Pep
Action
Mystery
Suspense
Thrills
Perils
Leaps
Explosions
Fights
Excitement

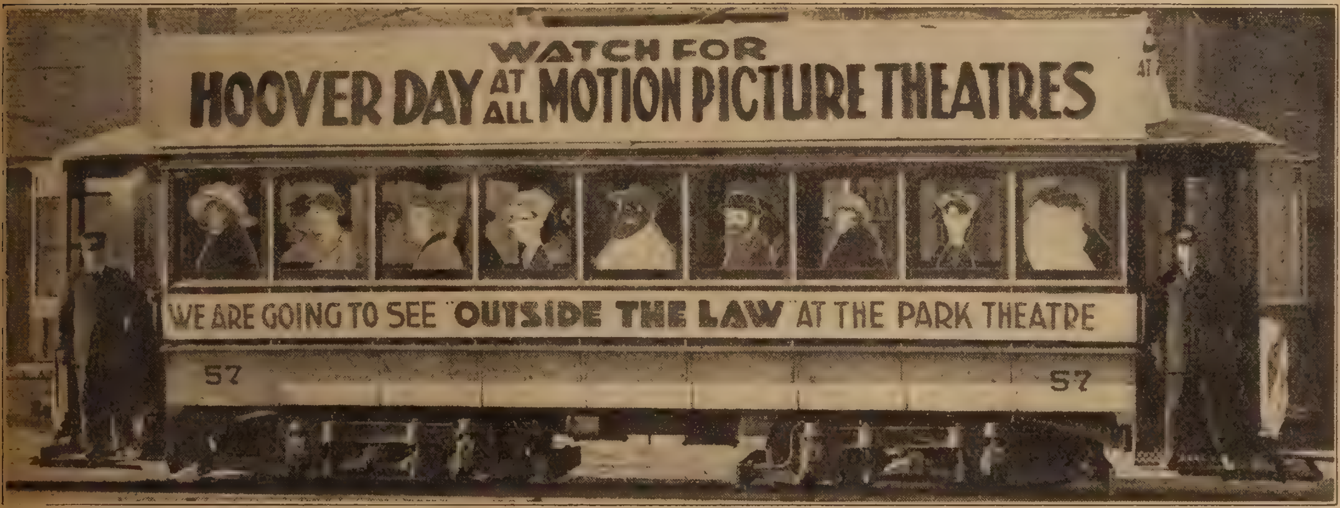
ALL THESE—YET
CENSOR-PROOF!

ELMO
LINCOLN
in

A clean Serial with the double-role punch. Directed by Robt. Hill

"The FLAMING DISK"

Hoover Day in the "Hub" City



WATCH FOR
HOOVER DAY AT ALL MOTION PICTURE THEATRES
WE ARE GOING TO SEE "OUTSIDE THE LAW" AT THE PARK THEATRE
57
57

All Set for the Ride Through Boston With the "Outside the Law" Special Car

PUBLICITY stunts that amuse, tease, or even anger the public so that they want to know what all the fuss is about have been worked in every conceivable form, but for sheer effectiveness the palm must be handed to the exploitation stunt used in Boston for "Outside The Law." Staid Boston was never so aroused before and the energetic and clever campaign will remain the topic of popular discussion for some time.

The crowds brought out to see "Outside The Law," the Universal-Jewel picture, starring Priscilla Dean, were so great that the Park Theatre had to close its doors at 10:42 o'clock on Monday morning of last week's run. The campaign was in charge of Harry Reichenbach of the Universal Exploitation Department.

The principal exploitation stunt worked was the use of a street car bearing signs concerning the big Dean picture, which traveled over seventy-two miles of tracks in the heart of the city nine times each day during the several days preceding the opening.

In the windows of the car were painted a variety of human faces, of all races, ages and conditions. "We are going to see 'Outside The Law' at the Park Theatre" was the streamer that adorned the entire length of the car. On top of the car was another big banner with the following caption: "Watch for Hoover Day at all Motion Picture Theatres."

This was the first time in the history of the Boston Elevated railway that this stunt had been put over in that city. It created a sensation in the New England metropolis.

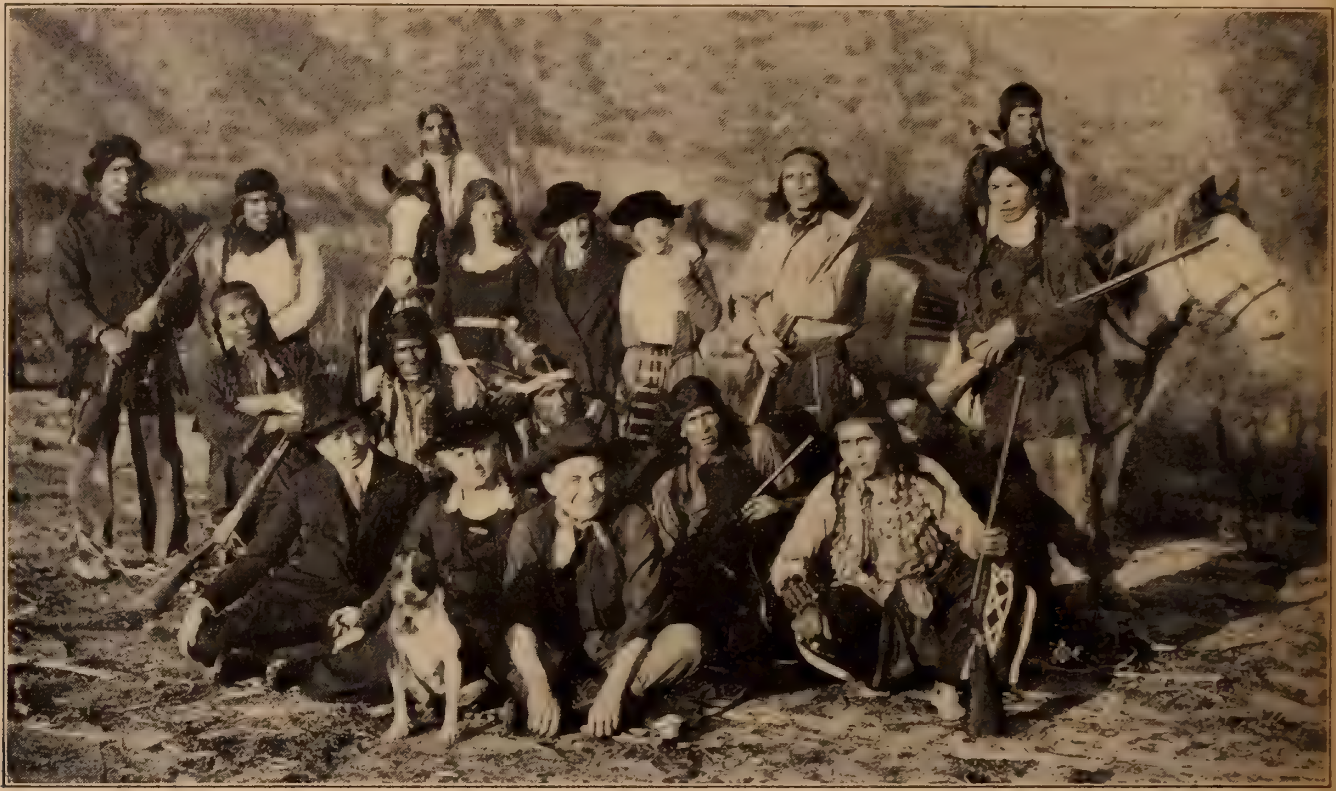
It was only after careful consideration on the part of the traction company that consent was gained by Reichenbach to utilize the car. Boston laws prohibit the use of public service vehicles for advertising purposes. It was not until Reichenbach thought of tying up the "Outside The Law" showing to the Hoover Motion Picture Day, a charitable activity to the mutual advantage of both, that the street railway company leased the car.

So interested was the company in the stunt that Manager Dana and Assistant Manager Potter of the Boston Elevated company were on hand at the car barns at 8:17 a. m., when the car first left the barns. It traveled continuously until 6:15 in the evening, covering every foot of surface track in Boston. Inside the car were a bass drum and a snare drum.

Boston stared at the car. It became the talk of the town. New reel representatives photographed it. Newspapers printed pictures of it, explaining the stunt in detail and giving complete mention of "Outside the Law" at the Park Theatre.

Another stunt which was worked with great effect, was the sign painting stunt as worked by Reichenbach in front of the Universal home office in New York City. For four days preceding the opening of the Dean picture in Boston, three girls in smocks, tam-o-shanters and short skirts, mounted scaffolds near the entrance to the Park Theatre and painted signs advertising the picture.

When the last show had been run at the end of the week, the Park Theatre managers found that "Outside the Law" shattered all records for that theatre by many hundreds of dollars.



Bottom Row.—Left to right: Allen Carey, brother of Harry; his mother, Mrs. Carey and the star. The ladies on the top row, left to right, are Mignonne Golden, erstwhile leading lady to Carey; Mrs. Harry Carey, the star's wife, and Mrs. Allen Carey, his sister-in-law.

Mother His Most Ardent Admirer

"SHE'S a great mother off-stage and I wish I could get her to play mother roles on the screen," said Harry Carey, the Universal star when his mother arrived from the East to visit her son at Universal City.

But Mrs. Carey is content to watch her popular son on the silver-sheet and to add her homage to the millions who have elected Harry Carey the Ace of the Western Drama.

Mrs. Carey's home is in New York where her husband, the late Judge Carey, was for many years one of the best known jurists of the surrogate court. She maintains the old family home there but once in a while journeys west to spend a month with her son on his ranch in the San Francisquito Canyon.

Harry Carey was in the middle of "Everybody for Himself," his forthcoming photodrama, when Mrs. Carey arrived this time. Reaching Los Angeles a day ahead of schedule she motored out to the world's film capital and watched her son work. It was half an hour before Jack Ford, who is directing the star, saw her and called an adjournment in picture making to greet her.

After the day's work the star gave a big banquet on his ranch in honor of his mother and at which various celebrities of the screen were guests.

That was not all. On the following day, Carey took his mother and his other guests (there is always someone being entertained at the hospitable ranch-house) on location with him to shoot some scenes for the production on which he is now working and they all had a merry time of it indeed, judging from the happy faces pictured above.

The production, in the midst of which Harry was working when his mother came to visit, is not his next release. He had just finished working on "If Only Jim" and Carey admirers will soon have a chance to view this as Universal is scheduling it for release very shortly. "If Only Jim" is an adaptation of the famous novel by Philip V. Mighels, "Bruvver Jim's Baby" and it is said to offer Carey any number of delightful opportunities to be—well, just Carey himself. Carol Halloway will be the chief female support and there will be a big dog and a lovable little boy in important roles, so what more can the Carey admirers ask?

Carey is a name to be reckoned with in cinemadom—indeed, he is among the arresting personalities of the screen. His name has come to be associated with western pictures, for that is the kind of pictures folks love to see him in most, the kind he has studied and perfected above all others, but he could be seen to equal advantage in any kind of a drama from life. For Carey is human and his art shows it. He acts his parts and more than that, he brings his characters home to his audiences. They are part and parcel of that big elusive thing called Life.

"Century" Popularity Grows

"I have been showing your two-reel Century comedies for the past two or three years and I have always been well pleased with them; in fact they are much better than most of the comedies now being produced."

W. F. BOGERT,
American Theatre,
Brownwood, Texas.

"With reference to your Century comedies I want to say that they are giving me entire satisfaction. As a matter of fact, I feature your comedies and try to get them in on days when I have spent a lot of money for a feature or when I have pictures that I think are weak.

This has worked out successfully, for Century comedie put these features over."

Very truly yours,
JULIUS SAX,
Julius Sax Theatres Circuit,
Portland, Oregon.

"I wish to compliment you on your Century comedies and find them good in every respect. Give us plenty of action with the lions, dogs, etc., as my audiences like animals."

Yours very truly,
G. M. THOMPSON,
St. Clair Theatre,
St. Clair Borough, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"We would like to congratulate you on your Century comedies. We have been using these from the very first and would like to say that they are full of 'Pep' and that we have not seen a bad one yet. Make more of these. We are,"

Yours very truly,
ROBERT E. LEE,
Crystal Theatre,
Beaumont, Texas.

"I take great pleasure in advising you that we have run your Century comedies and found that same were well received by our audience.

Hoping to continue same on our programme, I am,"

Very truly yours,
J. JONES JOHNSON,
Orient Theatre,
111 West 125th St., New York City.

"Allow me to congratulate you on the merit and laughing quality of your two-reel Century comedies. I have been running same at my theatres for the past three years and find they are the best on the market. I cannot recommend them too highly to every exhibitor.

Trusting that your Century comedies will be as good in the future as they have been, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
S. RINSLER,
Sheffield Theatrical Specialties,
308-314 Sheffield Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Please accept a word of thanks for the exceptional quality of Universal's Century comedies. They sure are the two-reel comedies with laughs bubbling out of them like squeaks from a stuck pig. For general excellence they have never been surpassed, to my way of thinking.

"Here's hoping they keep up the good work."

Yours very truly,
W. W. WHITSELL, Manager,
Pastime Theatre,
Eighth Avenue, New York City.

"We wish to state that your two-reel Century comedies are the best comedies we have had and please our patrons at each showing. Only wish is that we could get them for all our shows, for we know they are the best.

Yours truly,
V. E. BASS,
Bradentown, Fla.

"It is not my habit to offer commendation on any of the various services that go to complete my regular program, however, when the exception presents itself, I can hardly resist giving special credit where such is due.

And so I do not hesitate to voice my sincerest praise of Universal's Century comedies for a consistently successful series of laugh producers and business getters they are hard to beat.... I believe I know, because I tried them all.

Here's hoping they keep up the high quality,"

Sincerely,
S. COHEN,
Windsor Theatre,
823 Third Avenue, New York City.

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 6

"The Colossal Game"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zeidt	Frank Clarke

DORIS, having seen what her pursuers did not—the dim lights of another vessel in the distance—just before plunging overboard, attempts to swim to it, but becomes exhausted and cries for help. The nearby vessel chances to be the yacht of Bruce, who makes a thrilling rescue of Doris from the water. But when Bruce greets her as Doris Harvey, the girl he helped in her mad race to her home the day of her father's suicide, Doris pretends not to recognize him and insists she is Doris Delmont, the actress, on her way to New York. Bruce is confident that Doris remembers him, but that she, for some deep reason of her own is hiding it. His efforts to penetrate her strange attitude are futile.

In New York, two months later after her rescue by Bruce, Doris, having carefully laid her plans in conjunction with Martin Harvey, her grandfather, takes the first step in the battle, against the diamond trust. Zeidt and his leaders of the trust—five all together—each receive from an unknown mysterious source, an amazingly large and perfect diamond such as none had ever gazed upon. Czenski, Zeidt's world-renowned diamond expert, pronounces the gems to be the most wonderful in existence. While the trust members are debating what it all means, Doris, hiding her identity, phones Zeidt and tells him she sent the diamonds to them as gifts. She could afford to give them away, she says, because she has an UNLIMITED SUPPLY! In return for their value she asks only an audience with Zeidt and his associates and the expert, Czenki, in Zeidt's office that night at 8 o'clock. Zeidt realizes that if the girl speaks the truth and diamonds suh as they had received were to keep popping in the market without limit, they would not be worth a dollar a bucketful. He agrees to the appointment.

As Doris hangs up and turns away from the phone with a smile—elated by the success of her first step in the fight against the trust—her features become suddenly frozen with horror as she sees a swarthy, muscular, bare arm reach forth from the folds of the portieres nearby to clutch her.

"BIG BOB"

Two-Reel Western Drama

CAST

Bob Johnson	Jack Perrin
His Mother	Ruby Lafayette
"Wolf" Larsen	Jim Corey
Rose	Louise Lorraine
"Red" Moore	Harry De More

BOB JOHNSON, riding the unfenced range as a special deputy sheriff in the service of the Cattlemen's Association, sees a rustler changing the brand on a calf and arrests him at the point of a gun. After a hard day's ride over the range he heads toward home, expecting to find his mother awaiting him. Instead he finds his cottage a wreck and no sign of his mother. Only the whining of his dog broke the ominous silence of the night. Led by the dog Bob went around the house and there saw a new-made grave to which she had been consigned after her brutal murder by the rustlers who sought vengeance against Bob.

With uplifted hand Bob vowed to avenge the death of his mother. At the risk of his life he rode to The House of Death and entered. The House of Death was an isolated cabin run as a saloon by Moore, a former bandit who maintained the place as a rendezvous for men outside the law. It was in The House of Death that Bob knew he would find the murderers of his mother.

Arriving there with his faithful dog he concealed his grief and mingled with the border brigands who drank at the bar and chanced the roulette wheel. To his amazement he found there a girl whose face showed her fear of the men around her. She was a ward of Moore and she had incurred his brutal wrath by refusing to vamp the men who patronized his dive.

When he won a small fortune at the roulette wheel, Moore sent word to the rustlers to come and rob him. Rose overheard the plot and barricaded herself in a room, determined to cast her fate with the stranger who seemed so unlike the other men in the place.

When the rustlers arrive they smash the cabin trying to get Bob and the girl who are barricaded in the upper part of the structure. By good gun-work and the girl's strategy they hold off the mob until the dog runs to Bob's pals with a message of his distress and they come and capture the rustler gang.

A love grows between Bob and Rose and with justice speedily meted out to the murderers, they plan a bright future in which the faithful dog will participate.

International News

No. 10

Athens, Greece.—Greece honors Yankee "Dollar Princess." First pictures of Princess Anastasie, formerly Mrs. William D. Leeds, widow of the American Tin Plate King. (With her husband, Prince Christopher.)

Tring, England.—Royal spring lamb. Here's the flock being raised for King George's family.

San Jose, Costa Rica.—All Costa Rica joins in Prosperity Festival. Great pageant marks return of good times to Central America.

Sub-Title.—A tame bull fight is a feature of the celebration.

Cape Cod Canal, Mass.—The toll of the seas. Coast guardsmen make unsuccessful attempt to board wrecked barges. (Omit from New Orleans and Atlanta.)

Sub-Title.—Pounding to pieces on the rocks.

New Orleans, La.—Elks bring joy to homeless children. Crippled youngsters are "best people" guests on auto ride and picnic. (New Orleans and Atlanta only.)

In the Public Eye.—Charles M. Schwab, fully cleared of charges made in connection with his shipbuilding for Uncle Sam, sails for Europe.—New York City.

Sub-Titles.—Secretary Tumulty and the correspondents who "cover" the White House, hold their last important confab and pose for the movies.—Washington, D. C. A glimpse of President-elect Harding vacationing in Florida. The next President is a pretty good fisherman—here's his day's catch.

Birmingham, Ala.—Dr. J. A. Bryan, beloved pastor who won the Birmingham News loving cup for having done the most for his city during 1920. (For Atlanta and Birmingham prints only.)

Marseilles, France.—Duke of Connaught sails to help end unrest in India.

Sub-Titles.—H. M. S. Malay ploughing through the Mediterranean. Approaching Suez—passing the statue of de Lessepe, builder of the canal. The Duke of Connaught, former Governor-General of Canada, meets Lord Allenby, British ruler of the Near East. Coaling at Suez Canal—in preparation for the voyage to India.

Sloatsburg, N. Y.—Chicken express in disastrous wreck. Thousands of feathered beauties meet death as train plunges into ditch.

New York City.—Dazzling fashions for 1921 kiddies. Bewildering creations for lucky kiddies displayed at Spring style show. Jazz Babies.

Arcadia, Cal.—In Uncle Sam's balloon school. Parachute jumping keeps monotony out of study. Ross Field, Arcadia, Cal.

"Hooray!
I'm Dead!"

REST IN PEACE

"Most laughable comedy released in 1921!" says M·P·World

"HOOT GIBSON throws his hat in the ring and challenges all comers for the most laughable comedy yet released for 1921. It is 'Kickaroo,' highly original in conception and splendidly produced."

JUST one example of the quality and class you will always find in Universal short stuff. Why worry and shop around when you can get all your short stuff at your Universal exchange?

keep your eye on

HOOT GIBSON

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 7

"The Amazing Ultimatum"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Kennedy	Harry De More

AS Doris stands terrified, looking at the great arm that seems about to clutch her, she suddenly gets a surprise and a good laugh when the arm is followed into view by the comical, portly figure of her negress housekeeper, who had merely been in the self-satisfying, gesticulating throes of a good stretch and yawn.

Back in the office of the diamond king, Zeidt is telling himself that the girl who had just made the amazing claim of having an unlimited supply of diamonds may be bluffing, but he resolves to take no chances. Unknown to anyone but himself, Zeidt arranges with Kennedy, a private detective, to surround the office with his men. At the appointed hour, Kennedy and his men hide themselves in and around Zeidt's office, guarding every exit. But what neither Zeidt nor Kennedy knows is that Mary O'Rourke, formerly Doris's maid, now her aide in the fight against the trust, has been secretly following the movements of both Zeidt and Kennedy.

Doris leaves her secret headquarters, a house in East 37th street—and goes to her hotel suite. There she receives a large box of roses, addressed to Doris Delmont, with a card from Bruce Weston, inscribed "to the most interesting girl that I have ever met." She hugs the roses to her breast and once again love threatens to upset her plans, but she masters her emotions and thrusts the flowers aside to keep her all-important engagement.

When Doris stands before the trust members in a gorgeous array of diamonds, she convinces Zeidt that he is mistaken in greeting her as Doris Delmont. He introduces the other, including Bruce, who Doris never knew was a member of the trust. But he had not taken any part in the ruination of her father. This, also, she does not know. Thus she finds the man she secretly loves among those she has sworn to crush! She again refuses to recognize Bruce who, silent, pondering, cannot understand her attitude.

By a sensational display of diamonds, most of which she brings in a handbag, Doris, whose identity remains unknown to all except Bruce, convinces them that she has found the UNLIMITED SUPPLY and can smash the market, and also the trust, unless they agree to what she has to propose. Zeidt and his associates are thunderstruck, awed, but Zeidt's face bears a sneer as he thinks of his arrangements with Kennedy.

Leaning toward Doris across the table in his office, Zeidt hisses out the question: "What is your proposition?" At the same time he draws forth his handkerchief and mops his forehead, upon which beads of tense excitement stand forth. It is the signal to Kennedy. Doris tells Zeidt she will destroy the source of her unlimited supply of diamonds and bind herself to utter secrecy, as the trust must, when they purchase from her at one half the existing karat price One hundred million dollars worth of diamonds! The dramatic pause that results is broken when Zeidt summons Kennedy to arrest Doris, but Brue interferes, forcing Zeidt and the trust member to a pledge of secrecy and fair play. When the detective and his men are dismissed, Doris says she will give the trust ninety days to accept or decline her offer. If it is accepted, she expects a certified check. If declined, she will flood the market with diamonds, annihilate it—and smash the trust! She will call ninety days from the next day, at noon, for her answer. Doris leaves the trust chieftains dumfounded, but as she descends to the lobby of the building discovers that in spite of the pledge of fair play Kennedy and his men are trailing her.

"A Waiting Maid"

One Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHEA WOLBERT

LIZZIE, the Maid, while helping the daughter of the house get ready to greet her sweetheart notices his picture on her dressing table and steals it. She shows the photograph to the butler with whom she is in love and also to the cook and they take the message of love on the picture to be meant for Lizzie.

They congratulate her and when the young man calls at the house the butler shows him into the kitchen and leaves him with the maid. He discovers his picture and laughs over it and then proceeds to show her how a modern proposal is delivered.

While on his knees before her he is surprised at the entrance of the young lady of his dreams and attempts to pass off the matter as a lark. She believes the worst however and rushes out of the house closely followed by her fiance and in turn by Lizzie and the Butler.

The young lady and also the butler insist that Lizzie and the astonished youth be married. A minister is secured and while the butler holds their hands together they are dragged before the clergyman. However Eddie convinces the butler that he does not love Lizzie and the butler substitutes his hand when the minister makes them man and wife. The girl, however, when the time for the final part of the ceremony arrives, throws herself on a couch and cries. She is astonished to hear a shout and to find her fiancee sitting beside her and the butler holding the maid in his arms. She then forgives him and they make up.

International News

No. 9

Lexington, Ky.—Man O'War goes home. Retired from the turf for breeding purposes, greatest horse of the day returns to his native city.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—New sport invented. Second Field Artillery, N. Y. N. G., finds "basketball" on horseback, an exciting pastime.

In The Public Eye.—Prince Antoine Bibesco. new Minister from Rumania, arrives with his English wife. . . . N. Y. City.

Sub-Titles.—Sir Ernest Shackleton, famous explorer, comes to look after his personal interests in Canada. Secretary Daniels welcomes Admiral Newton McCully's seven adopted Russian waifs into the "Navy family" . . . Washington, D. C. Lord Reading, noted British Statesman, who will attempt to adjust England'sdifficulties in India. . . . London, England.

The Race For Oil.—Britain's building tankers in American yards in struggle for world's supremacy. . . . Shooters Island, N. Y. (Launching of the San Tiburcio.)

Sub-Title.—While at Quincy, Mass. the huge tanker Indian Arrow flying the American flag, takes the water.

Fresno, Cal.—A new temple to Buddha. Japanese colonists open their largest church in America. (Something for Americans to think about.)

Sub-Titles.—The Bulletin board record of donations to Buddha. Praying to the ancient dieties of Nippon.

In The Cascades, Washington.—Bucking the storm King, huge rotary plows make short work of twelve foot snow fall on picturesque mountain roads.

Sub-Title.—Glimpses of the White Paradise—from the train steadily forging its way through the wall of snow.

Fex, Morocco.—Moroccan chieftains pay homage to France. Native leaders give pledges of loyalty to General Lyautey.

On the U. S. S. Delaware In The Panama Canal.—Great Atlantic fleet goes through Canal to join Pacific armada.

Tad Cartoon.—Watching the fat bloke trying to telephone from a telephone booth.

CARL LAEMMLE
presents

"The FIRE CAT"

NORMAN DAWN'S
Spectacular Love Drama

It's one of those
52 GOOD PICTURES
A YEAR—and NO WORRY

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

humaner
than ever

HARRY CAREY

in a new and different Western

Another of those 52
Good Pictures
A Year
-and no worry

A GIRL—a kid—and a pup—whirlwind action and a cyclonic finish—with Harry Carey in one of those honest-to-goodness, humaner-than-ever parts that have made him the idol of all fans.

A rip-roarin' western!—doggone good—and diff'rent!

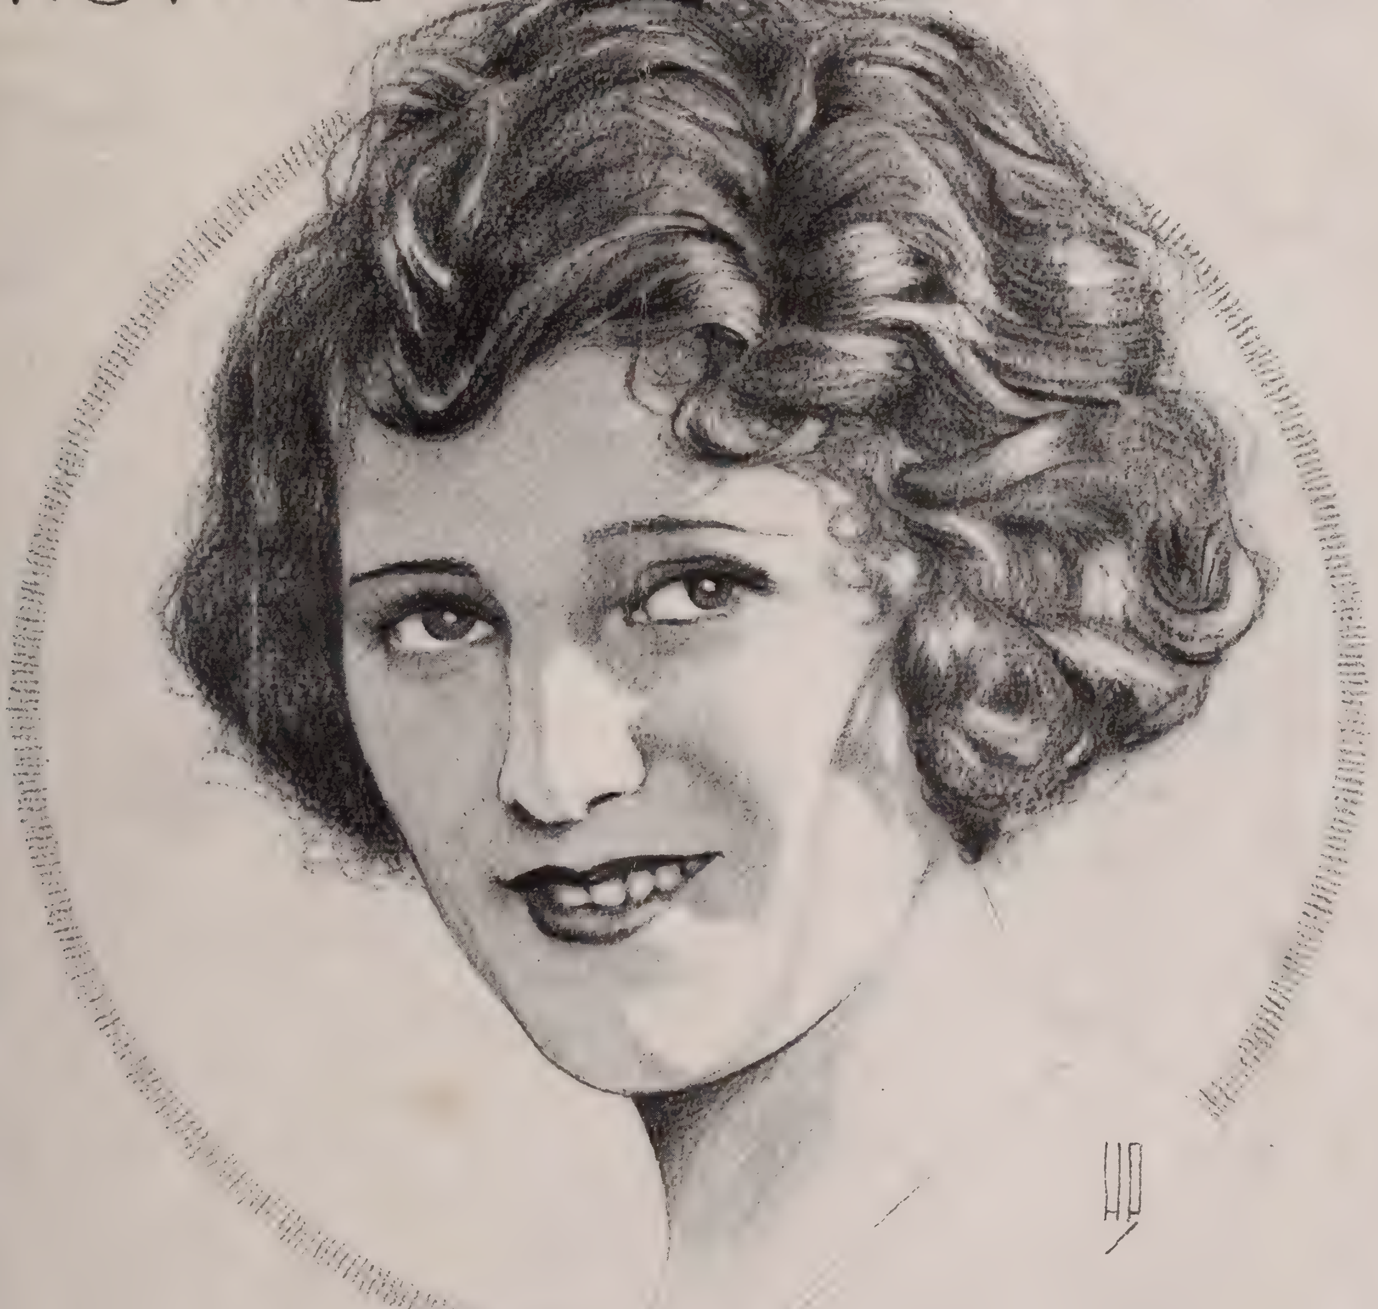
Carl Laemmle
presents

"'If only' Jim"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION DIRECTED BY JACQUES JACCARD

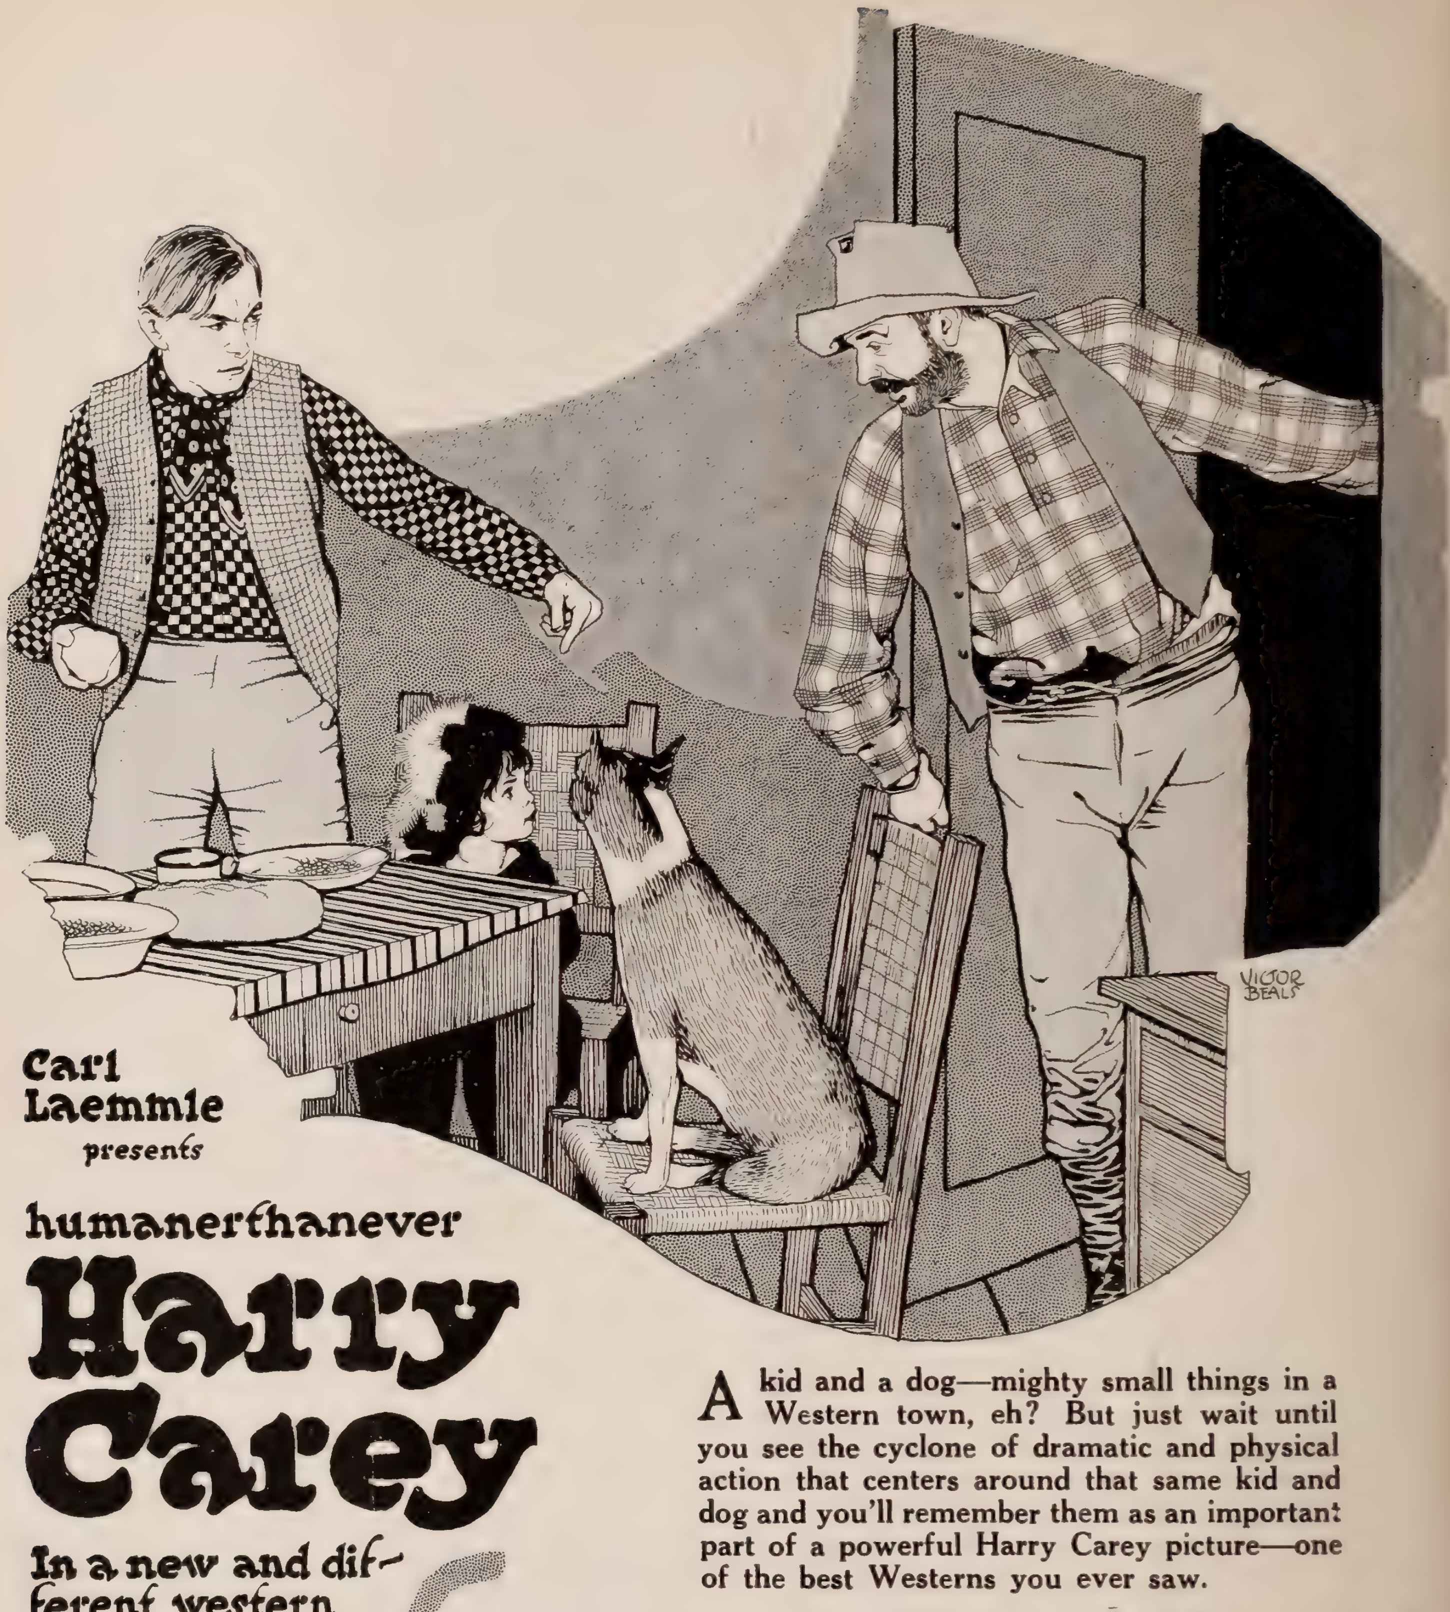
(You Can Secure Mat of This From Your Universal Exchange for 40 Cents.)

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY



EDITH ROBERTS
in
"The UNKNOWN WIFE"

VOL 13 MARCH 5 1921 NO 3



Carl Laemmle
presents

humanerthanever

Harry Carey

In a new and different western

A kid and a dog—mighty small things in a Western town, eh? But just wait until you see the cyclone of dramatic and physical action that centers around that same kid and dog and you'll remember them as an important part of a powerful Harry Carey picture—one of the best Westerns you ever saw.

"if only Jim"

Directed by Jacques
Jaccard

Universal ~ Special ~ Attraction

To Mr. McCURDY

The attention of Carl Laemmle, who is at Universal City, Cal., was called by telegraph to the apparent misunderstanding which his published invitation to exhibitors to join the National Association had aroused in Maryland and to the action which was taken by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland. The following telegram was sent by Mr. Laemmle to Eugene M. McCurdy, President of that organization.—EDITOR.

ARTICLE in Moving Picture Weekly inviting exhibitors to join National Association no reflection whatsoever on any other organization. Had no idea it would be taken as such by exhibitors stop Was inspired solely by censorship crisis and our desire to cement industry and do everything possible for exhibitors and ourselves to counteract censorship stop I was not present at meeting but was advised by telegraph of all that took place stop I have never been and never will be a party to attacks on exhibitor organizations stop If I thought the National Association was doing this which I know it is not I would resign.

(OVER)

CARL LAEMMLE,
President Universal Film Mfg. Co.

Action Confirmed

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry held in New York on Saturday, February 19, 1921, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, members of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry recently invited exhibitors of the United States to join the Theatre Division of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, and

WHEREAS, the purpose of such invitation was to bring about a more perfect co-ordination of all branches of the industry to combat legislation seeking to establish legalized censorship of motion pictures prior to publication, the enactment of so-called blue laws, and all other adverse legislation, it being always understood that membership in the Theatre Division of the National Association would not and shall not in any way conflict with membership in any local, state or national exhibitor organization now existing, or that may hereafter be formed; now therefore be it

RESOLVED: THAT THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY APPROVES AND CONFIRMS SUCH ACTION OF ITS MEMBERS, AND NOW AS AN ASSOCIATION INVITES AND SOLICITS THE EXHIBITORS OF THE UNITED STATES TO BECOME MEMBERS OF ITS THEATRE DIVISION.

Attest:
FREDERICK H. ELLIOTT,
Executive Secretary.

Dated at New York, February 19, 1921.

WHY did he change his name and wander over the Colorado desert? Why did he permit a derelict to cheat him of a gold mine? Why did he refuse to confess his love of the girl he worshipped?

SEE this picture with its thrilling suspense, tingling drama, sparkling romance and gripping heart-throbs and know why it is a much greater attraction than the famous stage play from which it was taken ever could be.

Carl Laemmle
offers

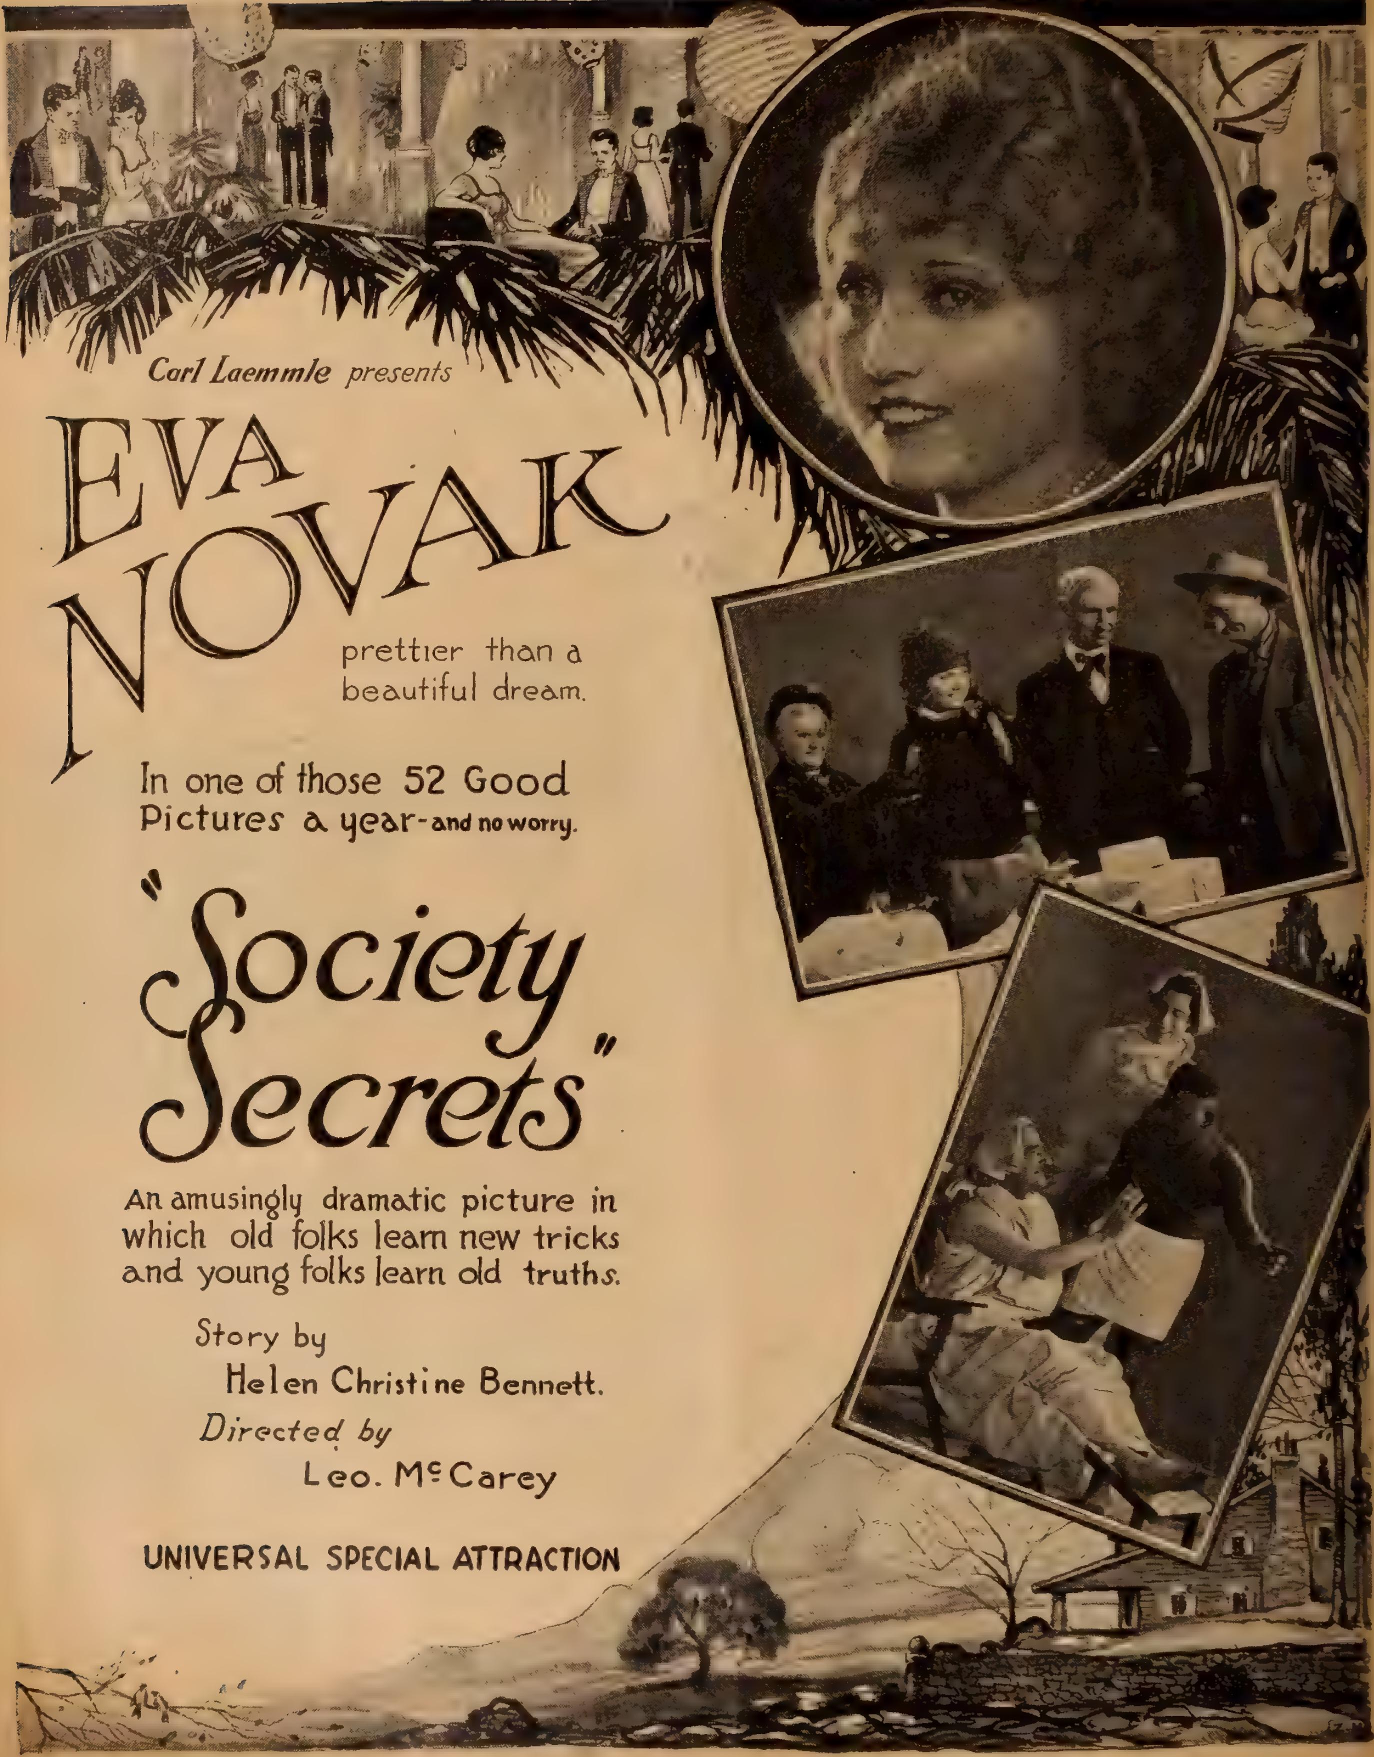
FRANK MAYO

another of those 52
Good Pictures a Year
—and no worry!

"COLORADO"

From the famous Stage Success by
AUGUSTUS THOMAS
Directed by Reeves Eason

Universal Special Attraction



Carl Laemmle presents

EVA NOVAK

prettier than a beautiful dream.

In one of those 52 Good Pictures a year-and no worry.

"Society Secrets"

An amusingly dramatic picture in which old folks learn new tricks and young folks learn old truths.

Story by Helen Christine Bennett.
Directed by
Leo. M^cCarey

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

A New and Different Action Western!

A CRISP, crackling action-tale with Harry Carey in a new role guaranteed to create thousands of new Carey fans. Here's one picture you can't afford to miss. Book it to-day.

Carl
Laemmle
offers humaner
than ever

HARRY CAREY

in Another of those
52 Good Pictures
A Year
–and no worry

"if only Jim"

Directed by Jacques Jaccard

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Universal

Watch for....

— a cash girl
— a rich woman's clothes
— a strange man
— blackmail
— false kisses
— a society sensation

See

Gladys Walton

In Another of those 52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

acks this to the Limit!

— Carl Laemmle

The cleverest, most wholesome Comedy produced in 1921

UNIVERSAL backs this picture to the limit because it's one of the most entertaining pictures ever screened—and you can take President Carl Laemmle's personal word for that. It's a picture on which you can bet your bottom dollar, pawn the family jewels, rob the baby's bank and borrow a few on the old homestead. We're not going to tell you its story. We're just going to make the open-and-shut statement that it's a picture sure to make good for you in a big way. See it yourself at your Universal Exchange and, after you get through wondering how Universal is able to offer you such specials as this at weekly feature rates, book it, exploit it—and PROFIT!

ALL DOLLED UP"

Directed by Rollin Sturgeon
Story by John Colton

Universal Special Attraction

Service Page for Gladys Walton in "All Dolled Up"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"All Dolled Up."

STAR—Gladys Walton.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Pink Tights," "The Secret Gift," Risky Business," "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." etc.

DIRECTED BY—Rollin Sturgeon.

STORY BY—John Colton.

SCENARIO BY—A. P. Younger.

SUPPORTING CAST—Florence Turner, Edward Hearn, Fred Malatesta, Richard Norton, Helen Bruneau, Ruth Royce, John Goff, Frank Norcross, Muriel Turner, Lydia Yeamans Titus, etc.

LOCALE—A metropolitan city.

TIME—The present.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY—Alfred Gosden.

THUMB NAIL THEME—The story of a little shop girl who comes into possession of some swell clothes and tries to test the truth of the adage, "Fine Feathers make fine birds.' Her vanity is crushed when she discovers her Adonis only a chauffeur in his Sunday best; but Cupid heals her wounded pride.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—Gladys Walton is rapidly gaining the front rank in screen popularity.

2—The story is by John Colton, an author whose work for the magazines, stage and screen have met with unqualified success.

3—The presence in the cast of Florence Turner, formerly the most popular star of the silent drama.

4—The novelty of the story, dealing with an Arabian Nights adventure in a large American city.

5—The largest department store in California was used for an entire week for scenes in this story.

6—The splendid work of Fred Malatesta in the rôle of a grand opera tenor.

7—One of the liveliest fist fights ever staged for the camera with the little star outwitting a gang of society ruffians.

8—The story demonstrates the fact that fine feathers do not always make fine birds.

9—The strength of the supporting cast, which includes a dozen well known favorites.

10—The fine direction of Rollin Sturgeon and the artistic photography of Alfred Gosden.

CAST

Maggie Quick	Gladys Walton
Jas. Montgomery Johnson	Ed. Hearn
Percy Prack	Richard Norton
Eva Bundy	Florence Turner
The Widow	Helen Bruneau
Amilo Rodolpho	Fred Malatesta
Mlle. Scarpa	Ruth Royce
Eddie Bowman	John Goff
Mr. Shankley	Frank Norcross
Mme. De Jercasse,	Muriel Godfrey Turner
Landlady	Lydia Yeamans Titus

MAGGIE QUICK is employed as a ten a week cash girl at Tuffel & Bullets' smart shop. Eva Bundy, a spinster, is heiress to millions, and has a nodding acquaintance with the bright little shop girl.

Eva meets and falls desperately in love with Rodolpho, a tenor. He gives her a string of pearls, supposedly an heirloom, but in reality purchased at a pawn shop.

Miss Bundy goes to Tuffel and Bullets, and selectes the most giddy apparel obtainable for her trousseau. She has promised to marry Rodolpho. As Miss Bundy shops, a pickpocket slips in behind her and attempts to steal her string of pearls. Maggie Quick sees her, jumps from her cashier's desk and saves the pearls for Miss Bundy.

Mlle. Scarpa, a prima donna, jealous and angry over Rodolpho's switch in affections, rifles his trunk and secures evidence of the fact that he has in Italy a wife and six children. Vindictively she goes to the editor of a scandal sheet and lays the evidence before him.

The editor sends for Rodolpho and convinces him that there are easier ways of securing Miss Bundy's money than thru a bigamous marriage. If Miss Bundy were caught in a compromising position she would gladly pay any amount for secrecy. Rodolpho sees the possibilities of the scheme, and invites Eva to a romantic little dinner.

On the street one evening after work a floor-walker in the store attempts to force his unwelcome attentions on her. Maggie grabs his hat and throws it upon a lamp post. She makes her escape thru the traffic, and as a young man of aristocratic appearance, who has been watching the occurrence, opens the door of his car as a haven of safety, Maggie jumps in. The boy has fallen in love with Maggie at sight, and Maggie agrees to meet him at a fashionable hotel the following night.

In the meantime Mlle. Scarpa has gone to Miss Bundy with the evidence of Rodolpho's infidelity. Miss Bundy, heart-broken, sends the trunkful of beautiful clothes she has purchased to Maggie, feeling that her romance is shattered and she will have no further use for them.

Maggie meets the young man at the hotel. She believes him to be an aristocrat, but in reality he is Miss Bundy's chauffeur.

After dinner they ride out into the country. They get out of the car and sit on a bench. Jim confesses that he is only a chauffeur. Maggie is elated, kisses him and runs away from him.

A motor car comes around a sharp turn and knocks her unconscious, and Jim finds in the pocket of her coat the address of the hoadhouse where Rodolpho and the editor are waiting for Miss Bundy. Jim takes Maggie there and leaves her at the house.

Jim, suspecting and suspicious, has hung around the exterior of the house. As he sees the flash in the window of the camera planted in the room by Rodolpho he is convinced that something is wrong and goes for help. After the flashlight is taken Rodolpho discovers that the person is not Miss Bundy. The editor's assistant, who has previously attempted to make advances to Maggie, says that he will make the girl talk. Rodolpho leaves, and the assistant locks the door. He attempts to embrace Maggie, and the battle is on. Jim rescues her with the aid of the police.

Later, Jim and Maggie go to Miss Bundy and explain the plot to secure her money. She decides to take the money she saved, adopt the two youngsters and spend it on them.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

She was an heiress. She thought he was a prince. That's the flying start of "ALL DOLLED UP" that crosses the line for a whirlwind finish.

Romance in a department store is usually just a remnant at the bargain counter of love. The little shop girl found it at the road-house. See "ALL DOLLED UP."

"'The Fire Cat' Has Real Spectacular Value"

---Says Morning Telegraph

AND continues: "The plot is well put together and is of absorbing interest. Edith Roberts is an attractive heroine. Especial credit is due to Norman Dawn who has written and directed a fine picture with such discrimination."

SHOW your patrons this vivid, spectacular romance that holds irresistibly by the sheer intensity of its beauty and power as it drives on to a stupendous climax showing a real volcano in action and the greatest earthquake scenes ever filmed.

Carl Laemmle
offers
Another of those
52 Good Pictures
a Year
-and no worry

Edith Roberts

In Norman Dawn's Spectacular
Love-Drama

"THE FIRE CAT"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS
Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY
PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 13 MARCH 5, 1921 No. 3

Two Important Letters

Supplementing the telegram on the first page oj this issue and somewhat in explanation of it the two letters below will be read with interest

Mr. Carl Laemmle,
c/o Paul Gulick,
1600 Broadway,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Laemmle:—

It is with much surprise and regret that I noticed the enclosed advertising in your weekly under date of February 19th. I always felt as an exhibitor that you were one producer who believed in the exhibitors. At a convention held here at the Southern Hotel yesterday by the Exhibitors of Maryland this circular in your weekly was denounced. As Vice-President of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland, I, for one, feel deeply grieved that the producer should attempt to corrupt the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America. I feel quite satisfied in my own mind and I believe every exhibitor in the State believes that this is not from the pen of you personally and were you aware of the contents of this personally you would never have sanctioned it going into your weekly.

There is only one way that we can hope to attain the recognition from the country that our industry is entitled to and that is by working together. Adverse legislation of all kinds and anything that may affect the industry will never be overcome if the producer and distributor fight against the Motion Picture Theatre Owners. There is no reason in my mind why a representative body from each of the organizations could not work together as business men and try to destroy anything that might hurt the industry. There is no doubt in the world but we need each other and with the screen of the exhibitor and the loyalty of the manufacturer, producer and distributor working in one common cause that the enemy will always be defeated.

I sincerely trust that we may have the pleasure of reading in your weekly where you believe in the exhibitors and exhibitors' organizations, in so long as they work for the best interest of the industry.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) THOS. D. GOLDBERG,
Vice-Pres. M. P. T. O. of Maryland.

February 19th, 1921.

Mr. Thomas D. Goldberg,
Vice-President M. P. T. O. of Maryland,
The Walbrook Amusement Company,
Walbrook, Baltimore, Md.

My dear Mr. Goldberg:—

Your letter to Mr. Laemmle, in my care, is being sent to him today, but inasmuch as it concerns me somewhat, I think it is only just to you that I make reply on my own behalf, as well as on that of Mr. Laemmle.

If you will permit me, I was a great deal more surprised that any serious body of exhibitors should take offense at Mr. Laemmle's inviting them to join an association of which he is a member than you were at the advertisement in the "Moving Picture Weekly." I cannot conceive how anything detrimental to the Motion Picture Owners could possibly have been read into that invitation, and I assure you personally, because I was present at the meeting, that such intention was furtherest from the thought of every man in the room when the project of inviting all of the exhibitors in the United States to join the National Association was proposed. It was freely discussed and unanimously carried, and every moving picture producer and some who were not in the Association at all, agreed to make this appeal to the exhibitors whom he knew best, as one very definite way in which we could concentrate the industry's fight against censorship. As I say, I do not know who could possibly have attached any sinister or ulterior motive to such an appeal at such a time. Whoever it was was not only mistaken but is going very far afield in an attempt to keep the exhibitors and the producers of the country from getting together on concerted action against censorship.

I have read your letter very carefully and I quite agree with you that the only way to attain recognition for the industry is by working together. The exhibitor needs the producer and the producer certainly needs the exhibitor. It was that thought which was solely the inspiration for the appeal which was printed in the "Moving Picture Weekly" under Mr. Laemmle's name. The constant accusations flying back and forth and the lack of any united policy on censorship is far more dangerous to the industry than the attacks in legislatures and by paid reformers. If we can overcome the dissension in our own ranks and present a united front, our battle will be three-quarters won.

You are perfectly right, also, in the belief which you have always held that Mr. Laemmle is one producer who believes in the exhibitor. I have known Mr. Laemmle for

(Continued on page 35)

Little Shop Girl Finds Rainbow

Gladys Walton SUPPORTED BY Florence Turner and Ed Hearn in "ALL DOLLED UP" UNIVERSAL

GLADYS WALTON easily holds her place in the front rank of screen favorites through her acting in her latest picture, "All Dolled Up," which promises to be the best liked film in which she has been starred. This is the fourth production featuring Miss Walton and is easily one of the best special attractions produced so far by Universal.

In theme and situations the story particularly fits the young star and was written expressly for her by John Colton. The action is fast moving throughout the entire length of the plot and not a single foot of film could be eliminated without spoiling the sequence of the story.

Gladys Walton brings to this story of New York life all her inimitable qualities of acting which have endeared her to the movie public in her previous productions. In addition to the fine work of the star there is a capable cast to round out the picture.

In this picture Miss Walton appears as the little shop girl who spends her time between wrapping up fine clothes purchased at the store where she is employed and day dreaming about the fairy prince confidently expected to ride into her life.

As a reward for saving her jewels from a thief, a wealthy patron of the store sends her a trunkful of clothes she can no longer use because of a blighted romance. The little package girl can then indulge in social affairs to her heart's content, and it is in this rôle that most of the action and comedy situations are developed.

Her dreams come true and the prince turns out to be the chauffeur for the wealthy woman, so that all ends happily when she finds that they are both of the same station in life.

FLORENCE TURNER, the first great star of the silent drama, has returned to the screen and is now playing the principal rôle in support of Gladys Walton in "All Dolled Up," the Universal photodrama which is now the principal attraction at the .... Theatre.

Miss Turner began her dramatic work in New York, appearing for four seasons with Robert Mantell, Grace George and other stage stars. She left Broadway to become the star of Vitagraph films and as "The Vitatgraph Girl" attained a phenomenal popularity throughout the world.

With a contract which, at that time, was unprecedented, Miss Turner went to England, where she formed her own company and made such big successes as "A Welsh Singer" and "My Old Dutch," two pictures which are being shown throughout England today and which are as enthusiastically received as more recent productions.

When the wounded soldiers began returning to England Miss Turner abandoned her screen work at the sacrifice of her own personal fortune and entertained the wounded. As the war ended Miss Turner returned to America and spent several months in recuperating from the strenuous service which she had rendered at the British hospitals.

A movement is now under way among British film men to induce Miss Turner to return to England. Whether she will do so or remain in the balmy glow of Southern California she has not yet decided.

"All Dolled Up," in which she does one of her famous characterizations of a middle-aged woman, has been so favorably reviewed by the American press that she is inclined to remain in this country.

EDWARD HEARN, who plays opposite Gladys Walton in that youthful star's latest Universal feature, "All Dolled Up," has one pet hobby aside from his screen ambitions. He loves to drive fast automobiles and is considered one of the most daring amateur drivers on the Pacific Coast. It may have been for this reason as much as for his clever acting that he was selected for his latest role, in which he plays the part of a handsome young chauffeur who tries to pose as a society man in order to seek a bit of adventure while his wealthy mistress is otherwise engaged.

In one of the scenes of "All Dolled Up" he has to run over the star in his machine on a crowded street, and Miss Walton had sufficient faith in his ability to handle the big car that she did not ask for a double to take her place when the scene was filmed. Hearn drove his machine at terrific rate down the street and stopped the heavy car just within two inches of the nervy little actress.

Hearn is a product of the West, having been born in the State of Washington, and going on the stage in a Seattle stock company when he was seventeen years old. He later appeared in stock in Salt Lake City and Denver. His screen experience extends back five years, when he became associated with Universal in such pictures as "Idle Wives," "Her Bitter Cup" and "The Undercurrent." He later again played with this company in "The Lure of Luxury" and "The Last of His People." He has also supported many other prominent stars, playing leads, or leading juvenile rôles.

Hearn is said to have the best rôle he has had in some time in the part of Jimmie Johnson in " All Dolled Up."

We had to send

POL

BANG!

BANG!

"WE never had a picture here which had such a strong pull on all kinds of people," writes Manager Howard J. Smith of the Palace Theatre, Buffalo. "During its ten-day run we broke all our records (which was also made by a Universal). We played to more people and more money than the house ever took in a week before, and then broke our rule and held the picture three days more."

"IN all my ten years have never had a picture draw like "Outside The Law," writes S. S. Blackly, manager of the Laughlin Theatre, Long Beach, Calif. "Turned hundred away. Universal wins the big money again. Advise all exhibitors to play this. It's a sure bet. It has no limit."

PRISCILLA

Supported by LON CHANEY in

UNIVERSAL

"OUTSIDE

S.O.S. Call to

ICE!

— Says Manager Garand

"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' smashed all records of attendance and receipts competing against first-run double bills of West End theatres of this city," wires Manager L. S. Garand of the Holman Theatre, Montreal. "We had to send S. O. S. call to police force. It was really a riot. Woman fought with men to get tickets. S. R. O. one hour after opening. Ticket-office closed and house jammed one hour and a half after opening both Saturday and Sunday. 'Outside The Law' is the talk of Montreal."

DEAN

OD BROWNING'S Greatest

— JEWEL.

THE LAW'

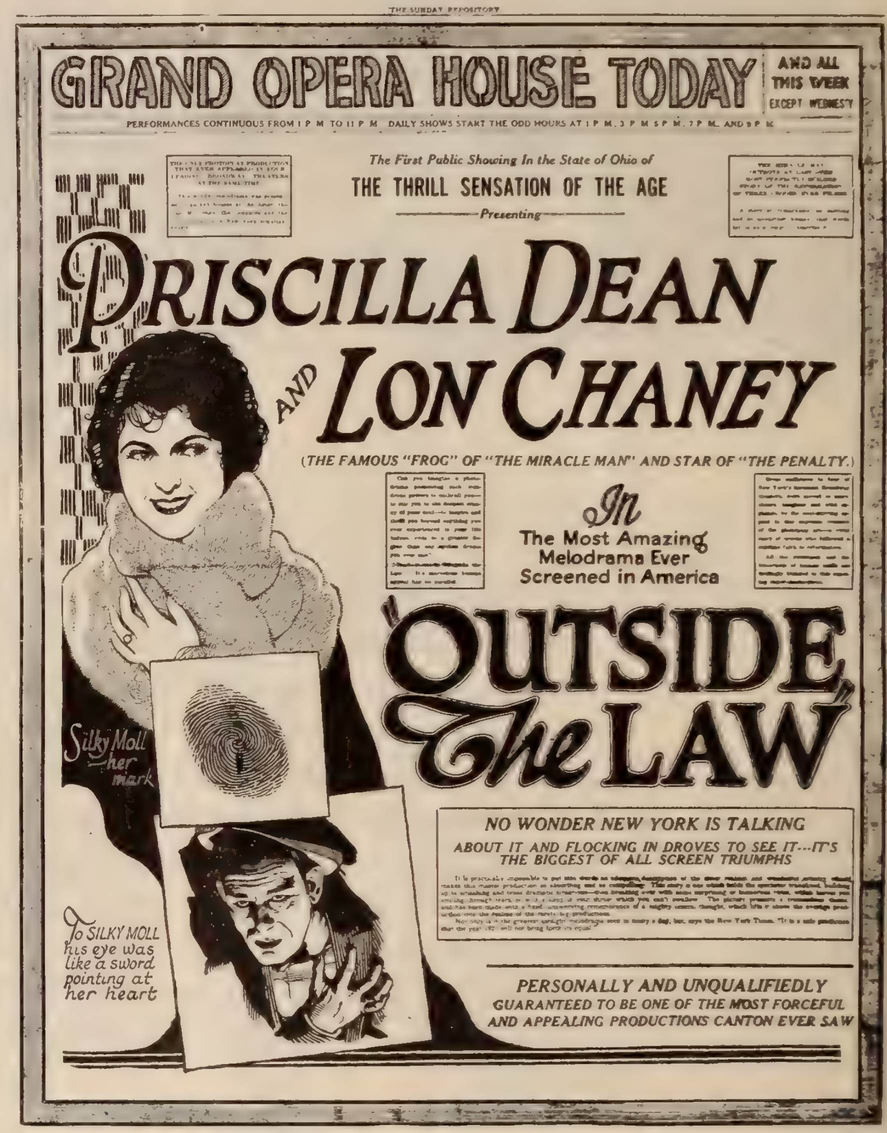
"Silky Moll" Makes Debut In Ohio

As an example of effective advertising by an exhibitor, the following advertisement shown on this page ranks with the best ever produced. In announcing the first public showing in the State of Ohio of "Outside The Law," the Grand Opera House in Canton, Ohio, used a full-page advertisement in the Sunday Repository of that city on February 6th.

The feature picture opened on that day and ran all week with the exception of Wednesday. By a combination of the most interesting facts concerning this melodrama, a particularly forceful message was created and presented to the public.

The layout of the ad is practically faultless and created unusual interest in the picture. The outstanding points in the advertising page were the photograph of Priscilla Dean in a characteristic pose, the finger print of "Silky Moll" and the terrifying picture of "Black Mike" as played by Lon Chaney, who was the famous "Frog" of "The Miracle Man."

With this announcement as the drawing card, the Grand Opera House did a tremendous business and the manager of the house received the same expressions of praise for the production as was noted in the other cities of the Middle West where the picture was shown at the time of it's premier in Canton.



THE SUNDAY REPOSITORY

GRAND OPERA HOUSE TODAY

AND ALL THIS WEEK EXCEPT WEDNESD'Y

PERFORMANCES CONTINUOUS FROM 1 P M TO 11 P M DAILY SHOWS START THE ODD HOURS AT 1 P M, 3 P M 5 P M, 7 P M AND 9 P M

The First Public Showing In the State of Ohio of

THE THRILL SENSATION OF THE AGE

Presenting

PRISCILLA DEAN AND LON CHANEY

(THE FAMOUS "FROG" OF "THE MIRACLE MAN" AND STAR OF "THE PENALTY.")

In The Most Amazing Melodrama Ever Screened in America

"OUTSIDE The LAW"

Silky Moll —her mark

To SILKY MOLL his eye was like a sword pointing at her heart

NO WONDER NEW YORK IS TALKING

ABOUT IT AND FLOCKING IN DROVES TO SEE IT---IT'S THE BIGGEST OF ALL SCREEN TRIUMPHS

PERSONALLY AND UNQUALIFIEDLY GUARANTEED TO BE ONE OF THE MOST FORCEFUL AND APPEALING PRODUCTIONS CANTON EVER SAW

Advertisement used by Grand Opera House in Canton, Ohio, for first showing of "Outside The Law"

Packed Houses In Kansas City

FEB. 7,1921.

H. M. BERMAN,
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGE,
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

NET RECEIPTS, "OUTSIDE THE LAW," YESTERDAY, LIBERTY, FOURTEN HUNDRED THIRTY-SEVEN DOLLARS TWENTY-SIX CENTS, ALTHOUGH WEATHER BAD. PACKING THEM AGAIN TODAY.

J. H. CALVERT,
KANSAS CITY, KAN.

Publicity Stories for Gladys Walton in "All Dolled Up"

MAGGIE MEETS FAIRY PRINCE
GIRL'S DAY DREAMS COME TRUE

A ROMANTIC love story spurred at a fast clip through a series of dramatic situations is the offering at the .... Theatre, where "All Dolled Up" began its local engagement last night before a large audience drawn by the irresistible appeal of Gladys Walton.

Regardless of the popularity of the star, however, a screen story must be good, and in selecting "All Dolled Up" a fortunate choice was made. How well the picture was liked was manifested last night by the spontaneous applause of the audience.

"All Dolled Up" shows Miss Walton as a little shop girl with a dream that some day a fairy prince would come into her life to take her from the round of drudgery that fate exacts from her for a scant living.

In the course of her work behind the counter she meets Eva Bundy, a spinster with millions, who is buying a trousseau for her impending marriage to Rodolphe, a singer.

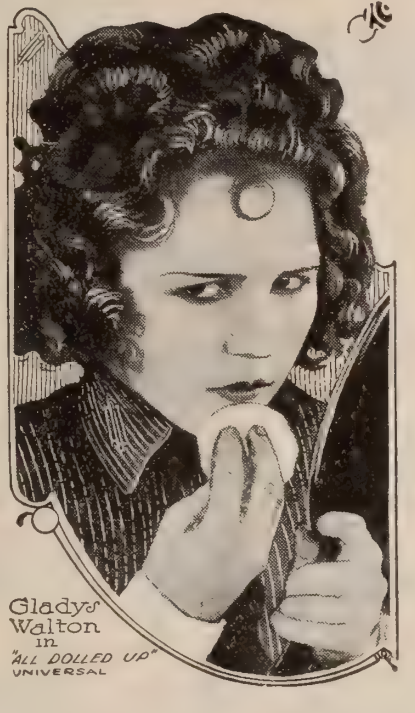
To escape from a floor-walker, Maggie one night steps into an automobile driven by Miss Bundy's chauffeur. She thinks that he is a rich young man and is quite naturally glad that it happened to be he who saved her in her distressing predicament. Through a well conceived series of episodes he takes her to a road-house where Rodolpho is trying to lure Miss Bundy, intending to compromise her and blackmail her out of her millions. The plan goes wrong, however, and Rodolpho is exposed while Jimmy, the chauffeur, and Maggie are started on their way to happiness with the financial backing of the spinster.

Rollin Sturgeon directed the production with a capable cast, including such favorites as Florence Turner, Edward Hearn, Helen Bruneau, Fred Malatesta, Ruth Royce, John Goff, Frank Norcross, Richard Norton, Muriel Godfrey Turner and Lydia Yeamans Titus.

MOUNTAINS OF "FAN" MAIL
STAR NEEDS SECRETARY

ALTHOUGH Gladys Walton is the youngest star in the Universal firmament, her "fan" mail is already assuming considerable proportions and she has been compelled to engage a secretary to reply to her numerous correspondents.

Gladys Walton was attending high school in Portland, Oregon, a year and a half ago; but the stack of letters she receives at Universal City is beginning more and more to look like the daily harvest of a Chicago mail order house.



Gladys Walton in "ALL DOLLED UP" UNIVERSAL

And almost all of Miss Walton's correspondents are school boys and girls. Gladys had attended school in Boston, Denver and Portland, and the young star figures that every boy and girl of school age in these three cities has written to her, many of them being well remembered by Miss Walton.

There is a certain type of part for which Miss Walton is fitted better than most players on the screen. There is no star young enough to faithfully portray the "flapper," "squab" and "chicken" types like Gladys Walton. Of precisely that age herself, and being gifted with a dramatic talent quite out of the ordinary, Gladys is unique among the stars of the screen. There are parts that are peculiarly her own—rôles that have not often been exploited in scenarios because they are too immature for the adult player and too grown-up for the juvenile actress. It is in rôles of this sort that Miss Walton's success lies, and she has already scored several decided hits in photodramas of this kind.

Gladys Walton's latest feature is called "All Dolled Up." Here she plays the rôle of a poor little shop girl in a big department store. She has never experienced love, but has indulged in fairy dreams of romance. It is a rôle that will delight the patrons of the .... Theatre next .... when "All Dolled Up" is to be shown.

DOES LOVE LAST FOREVER?
THREE STAGES OF EMOTION

PSYCHOLOGISTS say that the emotion of love has three periods in which its effect is most pronounced.

First in order comes the immature form of the emotion, generally called "puppy love." Its effect is more potent upon boys and girls and usually lasts until one or another of the principals develops freckles.

The second stage frequently results seriously at the altar and is the form of love that brings about marriage and other calamities.

The third stage is the rejuvenation period of the early forties when a woman, usually a spinster, decides that she is missing something and that most anyone with a clear tenor voice and well creased trousers is the fairy prince especially directed to her by a slow but nevertheless inevitable fate.

Love, its symptoms and cure are discussed brilliantly in "All Dolled Up," the Universal protodrama which is now playing at the .... Theatre, with Gladys Walton in the starring rôle.

Contrasting her experience in the love market is a spinster whose love affair burns furiously for a while and then dies out, leaving only the sodden ashes of a vanished hope.

A splendid cast and a thrillingly dramatic story make "All Dolled Up" one of the enjoyable photoplays of the year.

NEW PART FOR FAMOUS ACTOR
MALATESTA IS OPERA SINGER

SO long as authors of stories for the screen will write foreign "heavies" into their stories—Italian counts, black-eyed Spanish grandees, Latin adventurers or South American swindlers, just so long will there always be a demand for the services of Frederick Malatesta, the most polished of celluloid villains and the foremost portrayer of rôles of this type in the films.

A few weeks ago Malatesta was seen here as the love pirate in Gladys Walton's delightful feature, "Risky Business," and next .... he will appear at the .... Theatre once more in support of this charming young star, playing the rôle of the Italian grand opera tenor, Rodolpho, in "All Dolled Up." Here he once more exercises his seductive wiles and plays havoc with the heart of a wealthy maiden lady in order to acquire a portion of her millions.

He has played on the stage throughout South America and leads in screen popularity in all the Latin countries.

EXHIBITOR EXPERIENCE PROVES I

Washington, D. C.
"Combination of your worthy picture and a soloist proved to be 100% entertainment. Gave the people a great thrill in its massive theatre scene. One of the very best offerings of the season."
Moore's Theatres Corp.

Hamilton, O.
'Stood up for four days; did as much on the last as on the first day. Censorship and blue laws would have to go out of business if we could get offerings like this with greater regularity.

Put it in with a singer and watch 'em break down your door."
Palace Theatre.

Lethbridge, Alberta.
"My right arm is about worn out from having people shake it and thank me. Please book me for a return date. Thanks for the singer tip. It makes a great hit. Strong men cried like babies. Greatest picture of its kind I have ever played."
Colonial Theatre.

Oskaloosa, Ia.
"Especially pleased with financial results. Several times we had to hang up the old S. R. O. sign. Give us more like this one and keep us happy."
Princess Theatre.

Albany, N. Y.
"The songs we received from you were the best advertising stunts that can be pulled for this wonderful picture. We did the most wonderful business we have ever done. Turned them away for three days."
O. H. Stacy Amusement Co.

Carl Laem

DOROTHY

in the Universal

"ONCE TO

WO

Directed b

A CERTAIN MONEY MAKER!

e presents

PHILLIPS

ewel Production

EVERY

AN"

en Holubar

Easton, Pa.
"Biggest business this theatre ever did. Positively broke all records. Extra show was necessary to accommodate those who could not be driven away. We want a return engagement for three days. It is the cleanest picture ever presented in Easton and the very best since the 'Birth of a Nation'.."

Strand Theatre.

Mundy, Tex.
"Very successful. Put on songs as you told me and had 100% pleased patrons. If we had more pictures like this one there would be no more blue Sunday laws."

People's Theatre.

Shenandoah, Pa.
"Had to call help from the Fire Department in order to live up to local regulations. Over five hundred people jammed my lobby fifteen minutes after first show."

Strand Theatre.

Yankton, S. D.
"Played to packed houses. It's the kind of a picture that will keep a theatre alive and healthy. It is splendid. Strikes right into the heart of an audience."

Lyric Theatre.

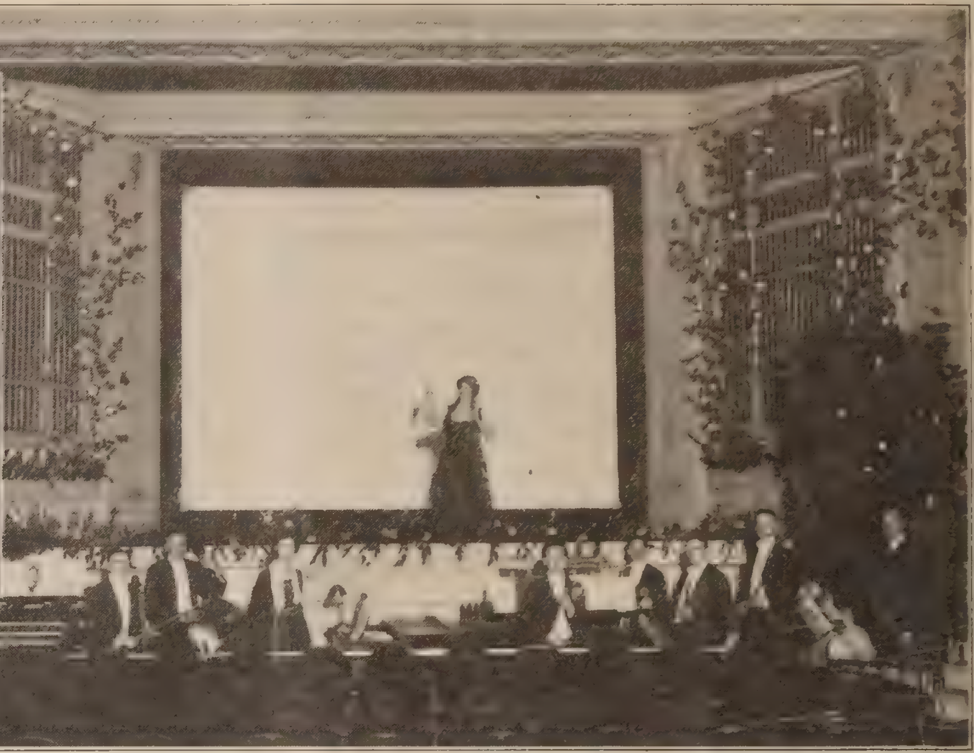
Kingsville, Tex.
"Near 100% perfect as productions ever get. Broke all existing Kingsville records. Tremendous success made by using phonograph and record of Geraldine Farrar singing 'Ben Bolt'."

Kings Inn Theatre.

Splendid Campaign for "Once to Every Woman"

Dan Burgum.

Manager, Garden Theatre, Des Moines, Iowa.



Singer helps put over "Once To Every Woman" at Garden Theatre, Des Moines, Iowa.

SEEING the wonderful advertising possibilities of "Once To Every Woman," when he was shown the picture at the Universal Film Exchange branch in Des Moines, Dan Burgum, manager of the Garden Theatre in that city, imediately laid plans for it's proper presentation. He considered it the best bet picture to show during "Go-To-Movie Week" which opened in Des Moines on January 9th.

Special commendation is due Mr. Burgum for the method of presenting this picture. In addition to several extra men in the orchestra, he secured the services of Mrs. Grace Clark De Graff, the wife of Judge De Graff, of that city, and a soprano singer of exceptional ability.

After an overture by the orchestra, the picture was started and run in the usual manner until the scene showing the mother at the little home and the title: "My Baby Makes Her Debut in New York Tonight, God Be Good to Her." At this point the picture was stopped and a spotlight thrown on Mrs. De Graff, who appeared dressed in the costume of Marguerite and sang the Jewel Song from Faust.

As the artist was acknowledging the applause of the audience, the picture was again started showing Dorothy Phillips on the screen being applauded by the screen audience. The picture then proceeded to the scene just before the shot was fired from the box. Here Mrs. De Graff sang "The Lullaby Song" from "East Is West," which was popularized by Fay Bainter. The sound of her voice was heard until the actual firing of the shot, when it ceased. The shot was duplicated by a member of the orchestra as were the other three shots that are fired during the action of this part of the picture.

When the scene showing Dorothy Phillips back in the little home at the table with the rest of the family flashed on the screen, and after the title "Be It Ever So Humble," Mrs. De Graff in a low voice sang a verse of "Home Sweet Home." There were few dry eyes in the house at that time.

Again, when the dying mother requested her daughter to sing "Ben Bolt," Mrs. De Graff sang a verse of this plaintive old song and timed her voice so well that one would have thought that the artist on the screen had come to life. The entire effect was wonderful and Mr. Burgum was enthusiastically praised by hosts of his patrons.

We are indebted to Edgar B. Haines, manager of the Universal exchange in Des Moines, for the following information concerning Mr. Burgum's experiences in the moving picture field.

Dan Burgum, inseparably connected with the Garden Theatre is one of the real pioneers of motion pictures in Des Moines. Back in 1900 Mr. Burgum was a machinist living in Pennsylvania and taking a keen interest in electricity. In 1904 he became the manager of a penny arcade in Pittsburgh.

Next door to his arcade flourished a little motion picture theatre and Dan was constantly being called into service to mend the machine which projected the pictures on the screen. Finally he was put in charge of the motion picture house and had all the time he desired to study the workings of the motion picture machine.

In three years Mr. Burgum was known as one of the few expert projectionists in the country. When Mr. I. Ruben was scouting around in the East for ideas and plans for his Lyric Theatre, he found Dan Burgum and

(Continued on page 27.)

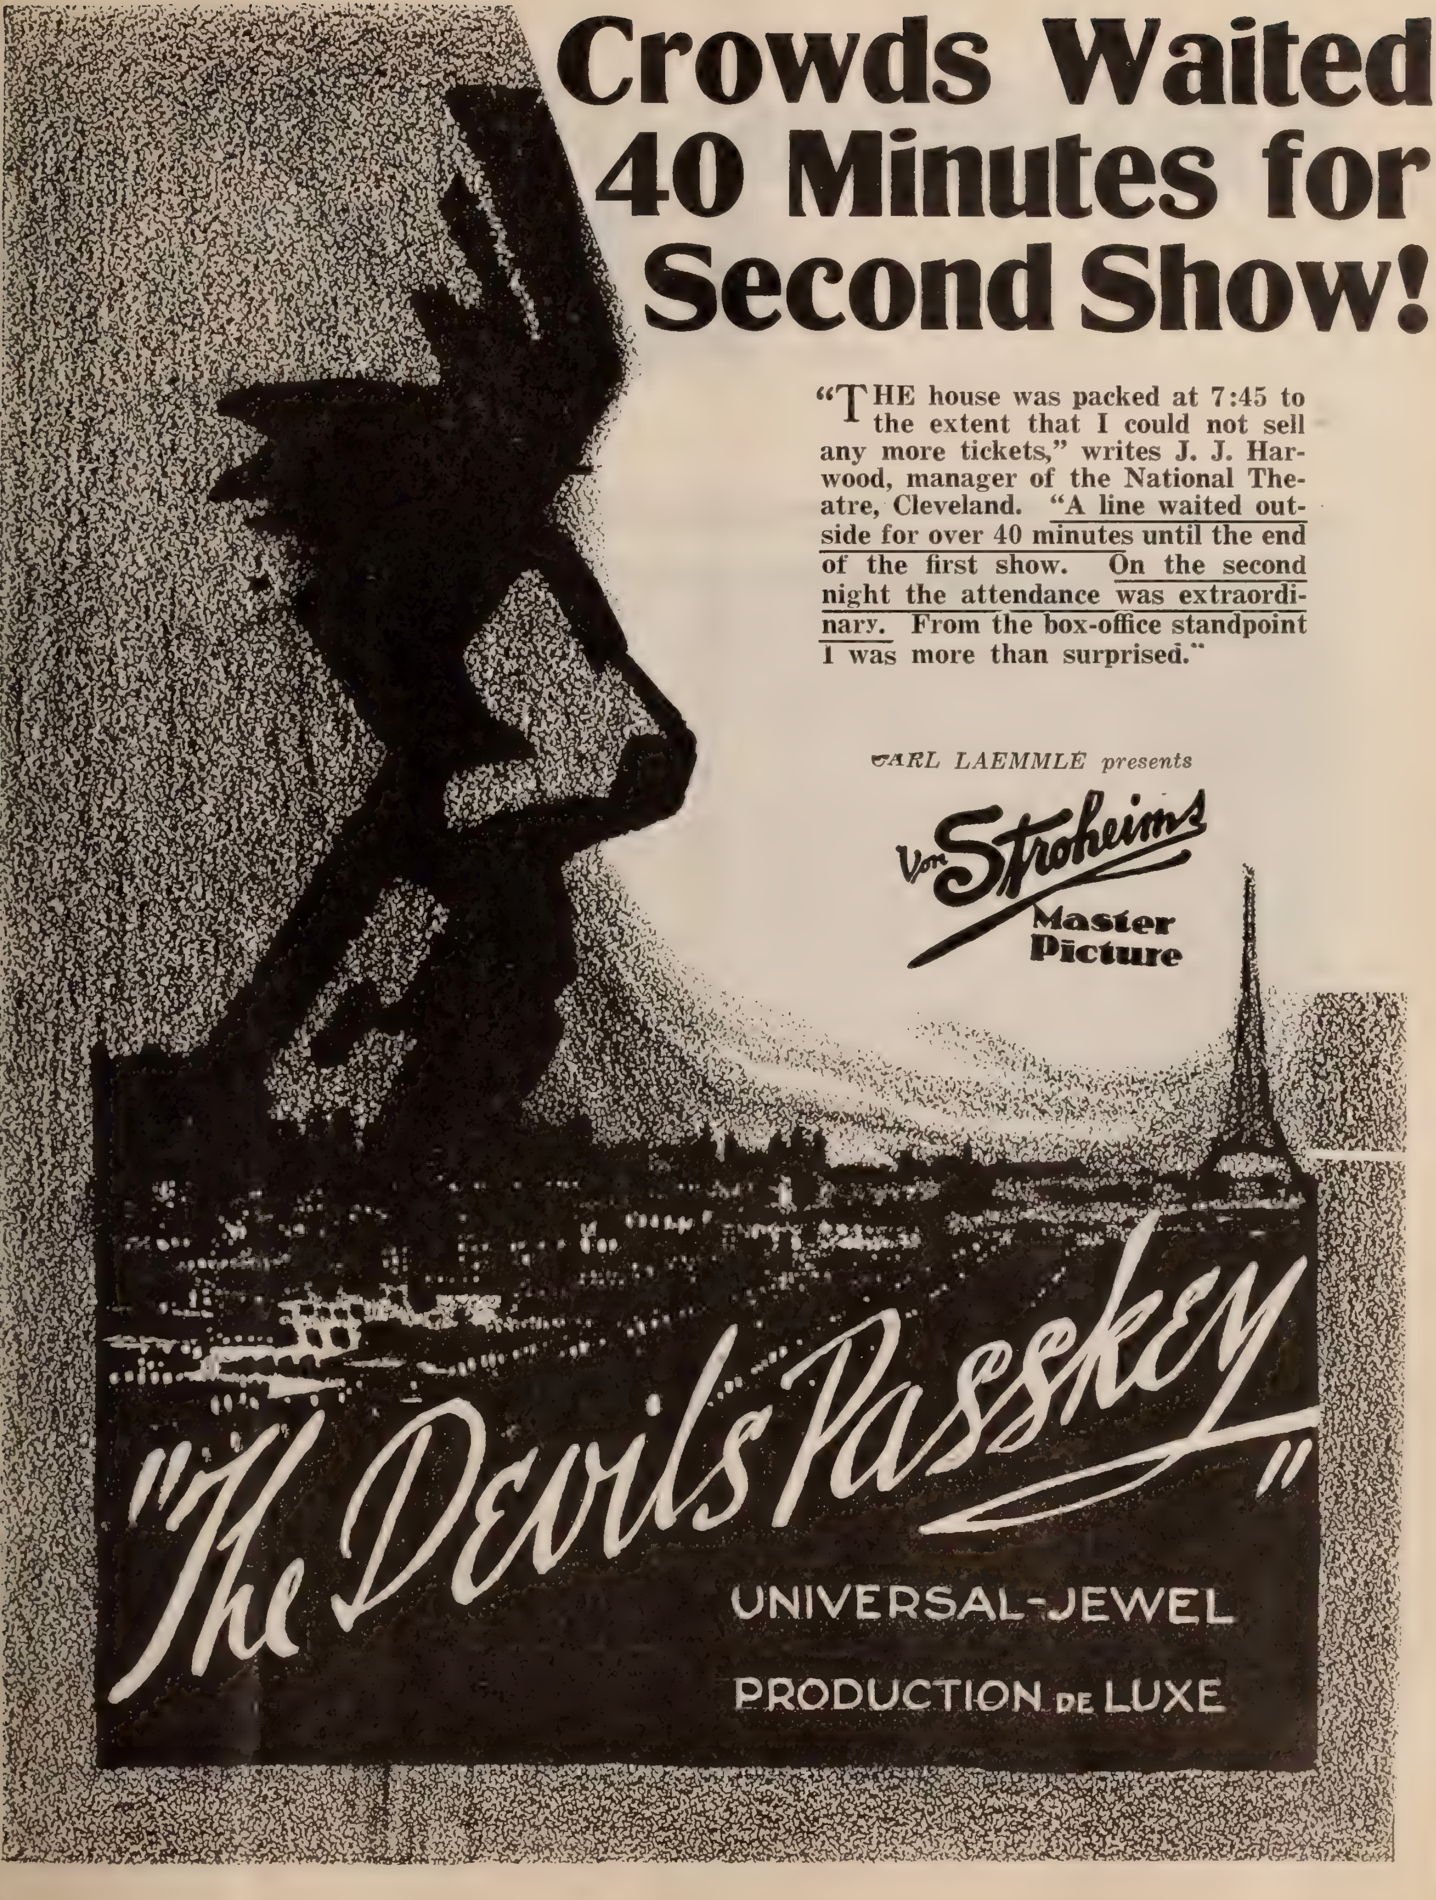
Crowds Waited 40 Minutes for Second Show!

"THE house was packed at 7:45 to the extent that I could not sell any more tickets," writes J. J. Harwood, manager of the National Theatre, Cleveland. "A line waited outside for over 40 minutes until the end of the first show. On the second night the attendance was extraordinary. From the box-office standpoint I was more than surprised."

CARL LAEMMLE presents

Von Stroheim's Master Picture

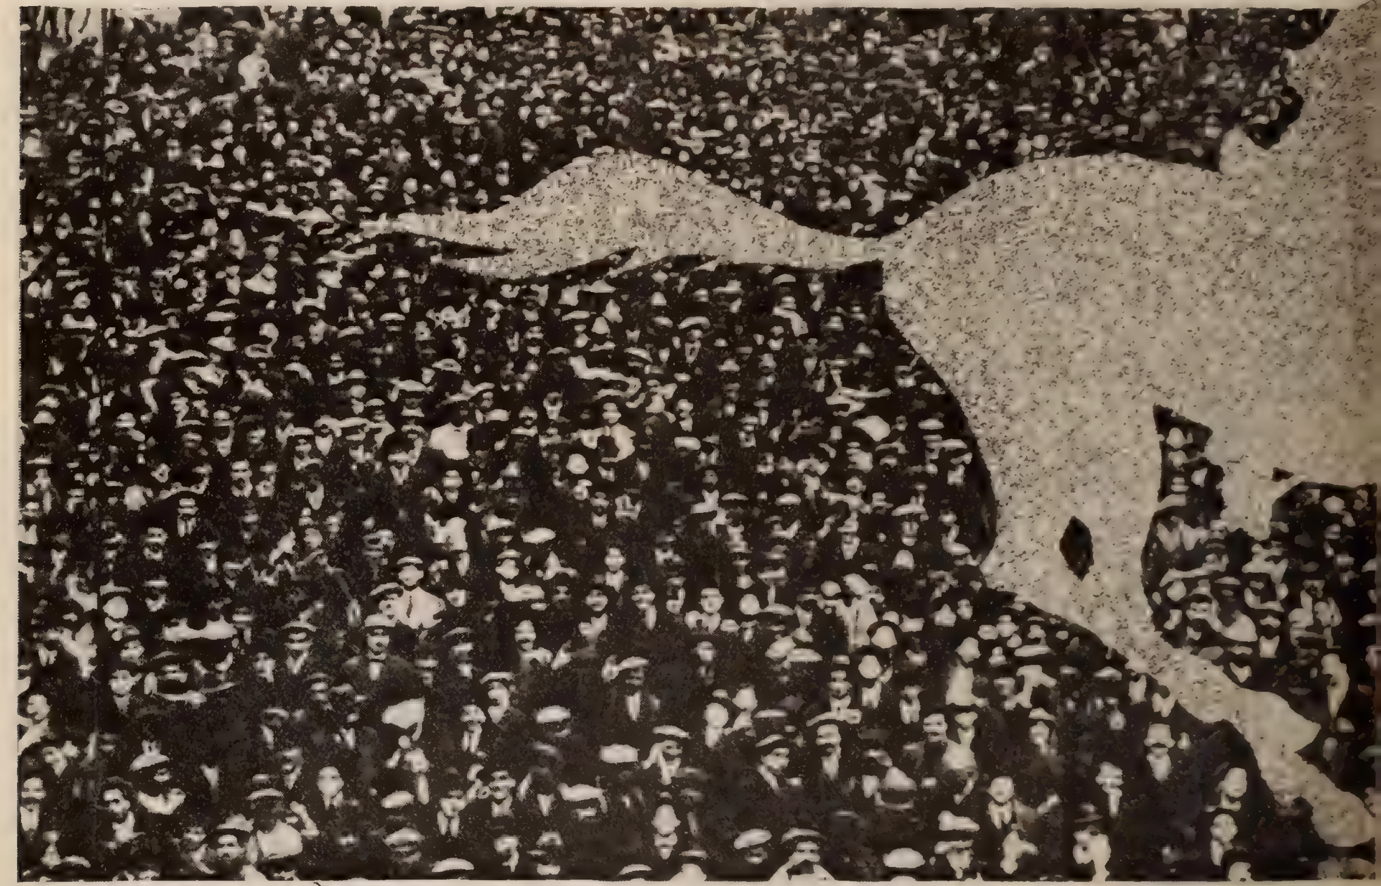


"The Devils Passkey"
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE

Millions of peopl

ART A

The Cowb



"The White

Watch for next issue of The Weekly
It is the combined announcement and Campaign bo will want to see

CORD

y King, in

Horseman"

Directed by AL RUSSELL

THE BEST WESTER

Real Action Western Dr versal City to Meet Steady I

Hoot Gibson, Universal Cowboy Star

WHEN it comes to real Western pictures the Universal holds an undisputed leadership in this field and no other company can present the galaxy of Western stars equal to those making one and two reel Westerns at Universal City. The plans for the future are particularly bright and it has been decided to go to greater lengths to produce more and better one and two reel Western dramas.

Hereafter the Westerns will receive extra and special exploitation, some of it approximating the exploitation received by the feature productions. In addition to this, a campaign will be started to popularize the stars directly with the public according to a recent statement by H. H. Berman, the general sales manager of the company.

At the present time Hoot Gibson is turning out another vigorous two-reel Western photodrama, under his own direction. It is entitled "The Cactus Kid" and Gertrude Olmstead, the latest addition to the ranks of the Western feminine stars, is his leading woman. The versatile Hoot is given every opportunity in this film for hard riding and rodeo stunts.

Jack Perrin is now at work on "The Coward of Cavello," a swift narrative of the desert, under the direction of Edward Laemmle. Louise Lorraine, who is supporting the star, is developing a high quality of dramatic ability under Laemmle's direction and has made good in this short reel photodrama.

Art Acord has just finished the two-reeler entitled "A Ranch Romeo," before starting work on his new serial, "The White Horseman." Marcella Pershing was his leading lady in this production, and William Craft directed the screening of the picture.

Another serial star who will also be seen in Westerns is Eileen Sedgwick, who is acting under the direction of Edward Kull in "The Shadow of Suspicion." Percy Pembroke is supporting the beautiful and daring serial star. Her acting in this Western classic will seem like a vacation after her strenuous work in "The Diamond Queen."

For real Western atmosphere with the proper settings the two-reel dramas starring Hoot Gibson cannot be duplicated and are extremely popular with the photoplay fans throughout the country. The homely and humorous plots of these stories of the modern West are particularly suited to Hoot Gibson and he has been a featured player in these productions for a year or more.

It has been the Universal boast that no story is considered for a Hoot Gibson Western unless it has plot enough for a five-reeler. Then it is boiled down into two reels of pep and action.

Hoot is known as the champion cowboy of the world and because of this fact there is a constant demand on the part of exhibitors everywhere for his real life pictures. He won the championship at the round-up at Pendleton, Ore., in 1912, when he rode, roped and bull-dogged steers against such experts as Lou Miner, Eddie McCormick, Dell Blanchard, Art Acord and Ben Corbett. He also took the major prizes at the Los Angeles Stampede, held in Ascot Park, Los Angeles, in 1919.

The popular Western star is a native of Tekamah, Neb., where his father is in the grocery business. It was at his father's ranch near Teka-

Eileen Sedgwick, Now Acting in Westerns

NS EVER MADE

nas Now Being Produced at Uni-
:mand from Exhibitors and Public mah that Hoot learned to ride. Later he ran away from home and joined Bud Adkin's Circus and Carnival of Rough Riders, going with that organization to Mexico, South America and Australia. He later became an automobile racing driver. During the war he was a top-sergeant in the Tank Corps.

Hoot started with Universal several years ago, and was for a long time juvenile lead for the Harry Carey features. He has also done work before the camera for Vitagraph and other companies. He had an important rôle in "The Hazards of Helen," the Kalem pioneer serial.

Eileen Sedgwick, the youngest and most attractive of the serial stars, was born in Texas and spent the early years of her life in the Lone Star State. As a little girl Miss Sedgwick was the baby member of "The Five Sedgwicks," a famous troop of players which included her parents, her brother and her sister Josie.

Eileen demonstrated the fact that she possessed more than ordinary share of nerve when she was eight years old. She was then known as Babe Sedgwick (in fact, she is still called "Babe" by her friends), and she was the youngest member of the Sedgwick family,. which toured the South and West and presented a repertoire of comedies and dramas. Between the acts, vaudeville acts were presented, and one of these was a slack wire specialty by a young woman of nineteen. One evening the wire walker was sick and unable to perform, so Eileen rushed on the stage and went through the act, although falling several times.

Dorothy Wood Who Appeared in Several Hoot Gibson Pictures

Louise Lorraine, Leading Lady For Jack Perrin

That fetching bit of diminutive which have attracted so much atten- femininity known as Louise Lorraine is another ambitious young girl who has graduated from the comedy films to the silent drama.

Born in San Francisco nineteen years ago, of French and Spanish parentage, little Miss Lorraine inherits all the fire and temperament

"Handsome Jack" Perrin

tion to her on the screen. Her olive complexion, dark brown eyes and jet black hair make an ideal combination for the film, and her dimples are deep enough to catch all the sunshine in the world when she smiles.

The famous motorman who spent his day off riding around with another motorman would find a kindred spirit in Jack Perrin, the vigorous Universal Western star who rides the Universal range all through the week and returns on Sunday to ride for his own diversion.

Perrin is a noted horseman and his good looks have won him the nickname of "Handsome Jack." Unlike many Western and serial stars he has no double and can do anything that is required of a cowboy in the course of a real days' work with the herd.

In addition to his prowess as a puncher, Perrin is also a crack rifle and pistol shot, drives racing cars, pilots a plane and is an all-around athlete.

The star has just begun a series of two-reel Western action-dramas at Universay City in which he is being directed by Edward Laemmle, nephew of Carl Laemmle, president of the big Universal organization.

Another Western unit has just completed the last of the Red Rider Series, featuring Leonard Clapham.

Following the Masked Arab From Amherst to Stamboul

Exploitation used by Park Theatre, Amherst, Ohio, for "The Virgin of Stamboul"

THE cut above shows the advertising stunt which was adopted at the Park Theatre of Amherst, Ohio, in their exploitation work for "The Virgin Of Stamboul." This Priscilla Dean picture is proving as big a drawing card for the smaller houses who are unable to pay the larger rentals which are asked for a picture when it is first released. and it is still turning them away as it did months and months ago. The Park Theatre had this imitation Arab with a mask over his face and turban over his head and a sign on his back which read, "Priscilla Dean in 'The Virgin Of Stamboul' will be shown at the Park Theatre." This, with its newspaper advertising, got the Park Theatre an over-flowing crowd

Oriental Picture Pleases Patrons of Royal Blood

President of the Universal Film Manufacturing Co.,
1600 Broadway, New York City.

Dear Sir: Just one week ago I saw in the Empire Bioscope, Medan, the Universal-Jewel production "The Virgin Of Stamboul."

Being the fact that the majority of the inhabitants believe in the Mahommedan religion, it is very well to conceive that people stood in line in order to procure tickets for the show.

As agent of the Empire Bioscope I came to the conclusion that among the patrons were many of Royal Blood, including the Crown Prince of Delhi with his staff and also the Radja of Portjoet. After the performance I asked their opinion about the picture. The unanimous response was that it was tremendous.

The masterly and unforgettable acting of Miss Priscilla Dean (among the natives well known as the "Wild Cat") and the other stars was noticed. As far as staging is concerned, without exaggeration, the film should be called "georgous." In fact the films of the Universal Company are too well known and are able to compete with any other company. They are absolutely superior.

J. K. HOEKSTRA,
Agent Oranje Bioscope,
Medan, Deli.

Congratulations for Production

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.
PLYMOUTH, ILL.

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES, INC.,
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

GENTLEMEN:

I PLAYED "THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL" TWO DAYS TO A VERY GOOD BUSINESS, AND I WISH TO CONGRATULATE THE UNIVERSAL FOR TURNING OUT AN UNUSUAL PRODUCTION.

I ALSO WISH TO ADD THAT I PLAYED "THE GREAT AIR ROBBERY" TO CAPACITY BUSINESS TWO DAYS AND HAD GOOD COMMENTS FROM MY PATRONS.

MONK BROTHERS,

The Money-Picture for YOUR Town!

TO-NIGHT
PRISCILLA DEAN
261.

Sioux Falls, N. D.

"THIS picture did a wonderful business. A world-beater for the box-office."

Colonial Theatre.

Lynn, Mass.

"WONDERFUL acting—Miss Dean at her best. The picture was the talk of the town. Made a great impression."

Lynn Olympia Theatre.

Sewickley, Pa.

"A HOWLING success—autos parked for blocks."

Sewickley Theatre.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

"THE crowds were so great that, although we had expected a great deal, as we had a right to, our expectations were exceeded. It was a rush such as comes once in a blue moon."

Echo Theatre.

Cannonsburg, Pa.

"GIVE us more pictures like this. Mine is a small town and a small house, but nevertheless there is no picture of the calibre of the 'Virgin of Stamboul' too big for me to play. May play a return engagement."

Star Theatre.

Rockingham, N. C.

"BY all means the very best picture that has been shown here. We played to packed houses at each showing. This is the sort of a picture we exhibitors want."

Star Theatre.

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

Priscilla Dean in

THE UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION

STORY BY H. H. VAN LOAN
DIRECTED BY TOD BROWNING

"The VIRGIN of STAMBOUL"

ALL THE WORLD

loves a big sea picture and here is the biggest of them all -biggest on the screen and biggest at the box-office.

ELMO LINCOLN

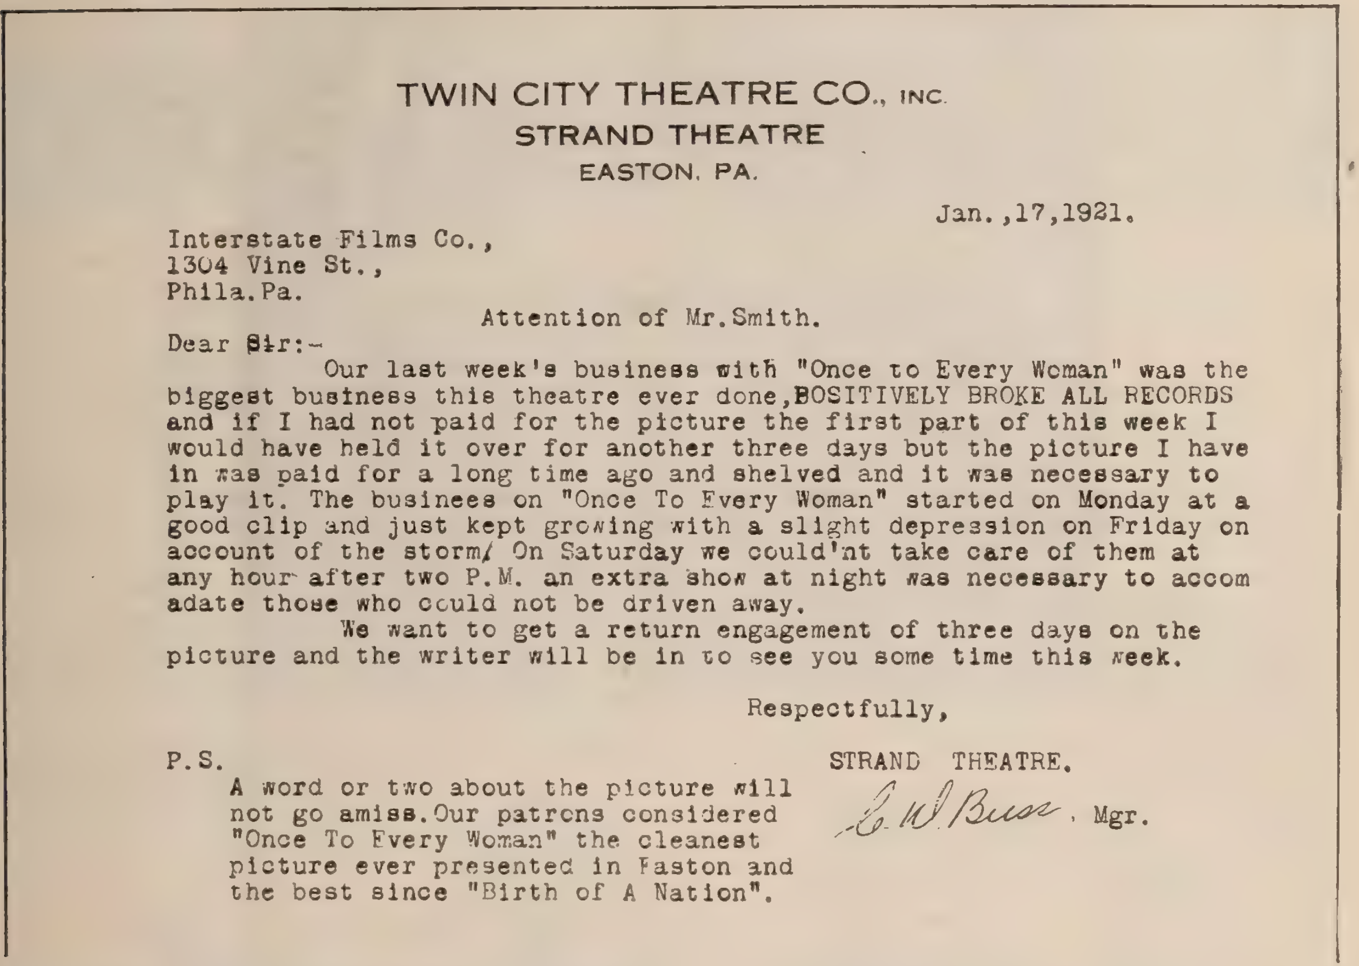
In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by REX INGRAM

Story by U.G.HAWKS

Extra Show Needed for "Once to Every Woman"



TWIN CITY THEATRE CO., INC.
STRAND THEATRE
EASTON, PA.

Jan.,17,1921.

Interstate Films Co.,
1304 Vine St.,
Phila.Pa.

Attention of Mr.Smith.

Dear Sir:-

Our last week's business with "Once to Every Woman" was the biggest business this theatre ever done,BOSITIVELY BROKE ALL RECORDS and if I had not paid for the picture the first part of this week I would have held it over for another three days but the picture I have in was paid for a long time ago and shelved and it was necessary to play it. The businees on "Once To Every Woman" started on Monday at a good clip and just kept growing with a slight depression on Friday on account of the storm/ On Saturday we could'nt take care of them at any hour after two P.M. an extra show at night was necessary to accomadate those who could not be driven away.

We want to get a return engagement of three days on the picture and the writer will be in to see you some time this week.

Respectfully,

STRAND THEATRE.
E. W. Buss, Mgr.

P.S.
A word or two about the picture will not go amiss.Our patrons considered "Once To Every Woman" the cleanest picture ever presented in Easton and the best since "Birth of A Nation".

Letter Received From Strand Theatre, Easton, Pa., Concerning Success of Universal Jewel

Splendid Campaign for "Once to Every Woman"

(Continued from page 18.)

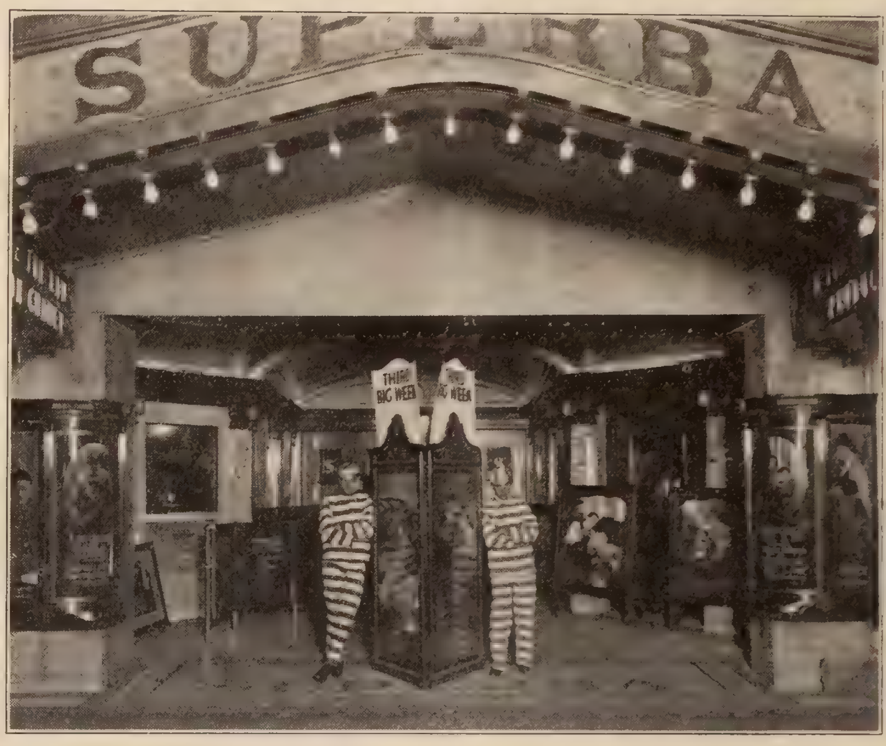
persuaded him to come to Des Moines and to open his new house. When the Casino was planned Mr. A. H. Blank, now president of the A. H. Blank Enterprises, called in Dan for expert advice, and when the house opened Dan, as well as the owner, was quite proud of that wonderful house.

In the interim between the opening of the Casino and the Garden, Mr. Burgum managed and operated practically every house in that city at different times. In May, 1914, the Garden Theatre opened and Mr. Burgum took charge of what was then the marvel of the Middle West and which today through his efficient management holds it's place among the leaders of the theatres dedicated to the cause of the silent drama.

One might wonder why a man with the knowledge and experience possessed by Mr. Burgum should remain at the Garden Theatre despite the fact that he has been offered the management of the newest theatre operated by the same interests which operate the Garden, but after hearing the complimentary remarks spoken about him by the prominent people of Des Moines, one could not criticise his judgment but rather would compliment him on his desire to remain with his first love.

Dan Burgum says that "Once To Every Woman" has made him a friend of the Universal product and that he looks forward to the release of more such pictures as this.

Special Stunts for Jewel Photoplay



Lobby Display for "Outside the Law" at Superba Theatre, Los Angeles

IN order to present a touch of underworld life which is given a big part in the story of "Outside The Law," W. E. Jones, manager of the Superba Theatre in Los Angeles, Cal., stationed two men dressed in convicts' clothes at the entrance to the lobby during the showing of the film at his theatre. At the time this picture was taken the feature attraction was in its third week and still drawing a capacity audience for every show.

This impression of the underworld and its important bearing on the plot of the photoplay aided materially in awakening interest in the production. The two large posters beside the convicts told the theme of the film in a graphic manner.

In addition to the lobby display, Manager Jones had about forty traffic stands bearing the caption: "Don't Park Here! You Are 'Outside The Law!'" placed at the intersecting points of the city's chief business streets.

Particular attention was given to the matter of window displays and one exhibit was composed of burglar's equipment loaned by the Police Department. In the collection were various types of "jimmies," bars, weapons used in attack and several dfferent styles of handcuffs. A history of each article accompanied the display.

Unusual interest was centered in this picture by residents of California because many of the underworld scenes were made with the historic Chinatown of San Francisco as the locale for the story.

This special effort was worth while because of the great run of the picture.

ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS BROKEN

HARRY M. BERMAN, GENERAL MANAGER, EXCHANGES,

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO., 1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, N. Y.

"OUTSIDE THE LAW" A POSITIVE KNOCKOUT. EVERYBODY THAT SAW THE PICTURE TICKLED TO DEATH. KEPT CROWD STANDING FROM TWO THIS AFTERNOON 'TIL 10 O'CLOCK. THE MOST PEOPLE THAT EVER CAME TO SEE A PICTURE AT THE ALLEN THEATRE. AT LEAST FIFTEEN HUNDRED PEOPLE TURNED AWAY. BROKE ALL RECORDS INCLUDING DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN "MARK OF ZORRO," AND MARY PICKFORD. JOE MAYER CERTAINLY PUT ON A WONDERFUL ADVERTISING AND EXPLOITATION CAMPAIGN. THE BEST I HAVE EVER HAD IN MY FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE IN THE MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS.

ALLEN T. HIMMONS, PROP. ALLEN THEATRE,
AKRON, OHIO.

Carl Laemmle presents

An All Star Cast

in a great Overseas Drama of Secret Diplomacy and the Three Loves of Woman

TSURU AOKI
J. BARNEY SHERRY
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

"GIVE me the information and you can have my wife."

TOSSED on the current of three great loves like some petal in a storm, she had been at a loss what to do. But now, her husband, by his words, had written "finis" to one of the loves.

TWO left—how would she solve them. Show this powerful drama of love and intrigue and play to capacity audiences.

featuring
TSURU AOKI
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
J·BARNEY SHERRY
in

"The BREATH of the GODS"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER-PRODUCTION

Directed by Rollin Sturgeon
From the novel by Sidney McCall

Wild Man Day at Grand Circus

GRAND CIRCUS
NOW NOW SHOWING NOW

Showing "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals," Grand Circus Theatre, Detroit, Mich.

CURRENT reports from Detroit, famed as the automobile city, regarding the slump in the automobile industry, in general with other industrial plants, show that the amusement houses of the city have not been materially affected by the decline in production in many plants out there and the number of men idle. It would seem that if good pictures are shown the theatres will always be crowded irrespective of the trade conditions in other industries.

The featuring of the Universal picture, "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals," attracted considerable attention from the theatre-goers in that city. Many others who do not regularly attend the movie houses in their vicinity, but who are interested in the account of the life of the strange races inhabiting the far corners of the globe, came out to view this production.

The accompanying picture shows the poster and lobby displays of the Grand Circus Theatre in Detroit. Carrying out the name of the theatre in a literal sense the entire front of the theatre was decorated with the colored posters depicting the various views of the cannibals taken from "stills" made on the island of New Guinea. The realistic posters proved to be of immense help in attracting the attention of passersby who then stopped to read the message on the sheets. In addition to being highly entertaining the picture has great educational value for everyone.

Numerous letters have been received from exhibitors throughout the country testifying to the box-office powers of "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals." Those managers who billed the production as a circus had wonderful results and in the words of one of these exhibitors "It went over like a circus."

Cannibal Picture Revives Buffalo Theatre

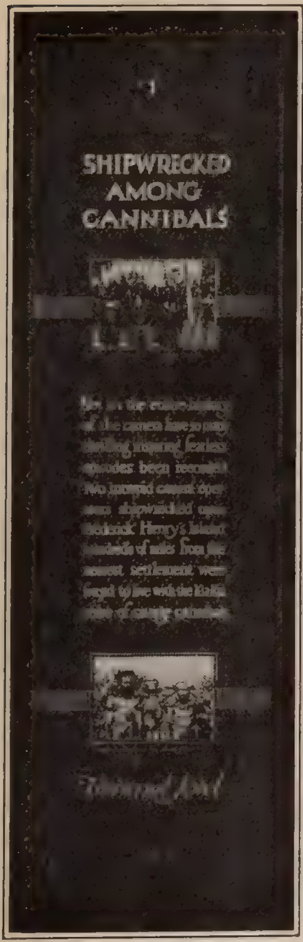
MANAGER HOWARD J. SMITH of the Palace Theatre, Buffalo, put his show-place back in the map with "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals." The Palace, it is only fair to say, is one of the coziest and prettiest motion picture theatres in Buffalo. It is located on the main street of the city, just opposite one of the busiest squares in Western New York, and despite a non-progressive management in the past it has always drawn fair crowds. Its natural advantages were such, in other words, that its business was always good enough to make an improvement somewhat of a task.

When Mr. Smith, one of the principal owners of the theatre, personally took over the management last fall he was therefore up against one of the stiffest propositions that he had ever faced. "I cast about for some of the strongest attractions I could find," he said recently in discussing his theatre. "I wanted pictures that not only would bring the people to my house, but more than that, I wanted pictures that would make the people talk.

With "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" Mr. Smith broke all existing records at the Palace Theatre. During the week that it played, more people visited the Palace than ever visited it in a single week in all the ten years of its history. Every record for every day in the week was broken. The picture opened on a Sunday, and not only was every Sunday record for the theatre broken but more than that, the average Sunday business of the theatre was more than doubled, and this despite the fact that the Palace has always been a good Sunday house. Hundreds were turned away nightly.

These results were not accomplished without work. The picture was boosted in a $600.00 newspaper advertising campaign, special ballyhoos were placed on the streets, a tie-up with the Melachrino cigarette company in a guessing contest on the number of cigarettes contained in boxes in a prominent cigar store window, and several other smaller window displays were among the feature stunts pulled. In addition to this one of the local papers —the Enquirer—ran a cannibal contest, offering prizes of $10.00, $7.50 and $5.00, and theatre passes, for the six best answers to ten questions about cannibals. The money for the prizes was of course paid by the Palace Theatre and the passses were for the Palace. Then, too, the local Universal film exchange hired a conveniently located neighborhood house and on the Friday before the opening of the picture at the Palace invited all the school teachers of Buffalo—over 2,000—to a private screening of the film. More than 500 attended and the word-of-mouth advertising and the newspaper publicity which resulted from this screening did much to put the picture over in a really big way—in so big a way in fact that the people of Buffalo are still talking about it.

Get the Sensational Lobby Displays that Yank 'em in!



SHIPWRECKED
AMONG CANNIBALS

SHIPWRECKED
AMONG CANNIBALS

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only' Jim"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"Hitchin' Posts"
"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"The Adorable Savage"
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

"The Great Air Robbery"

"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)

"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"A Prohibition Monkey"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Trail Of The Hound
"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"Out o' Luck"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Grip Of The Law"
"The Trigger Trail"
"Big Bob"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

"The Moon Riders"
(with Art Acord)

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Their First Tintype"
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"

One Reel Star Comedies

"Nearly Wed"
"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)
also
"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk And Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

EVERY THRILL A GEM!

FAST AS LIGHTNING — YET CLEAN!

UNIVERSAL will bet its bottom dollar that here is a chapter-play which will fascinate and thrill any kind of an audience—anywhere. The reason lies not only in its tremendous power to thrill and mystify—it has for its heroine the most daring and beautiful woman on the serial screen. Here's a serial that's better than fifty per cent. of the so-called "features" that you pay big money for. Book It!

BEAUTIFUL
EILEEN
SEDGWICK
in
UNIVERSAL'S STRANGE
AND STARTLING
ADVENTURE SERIAL.
DIRECTED By EDWARD KULL

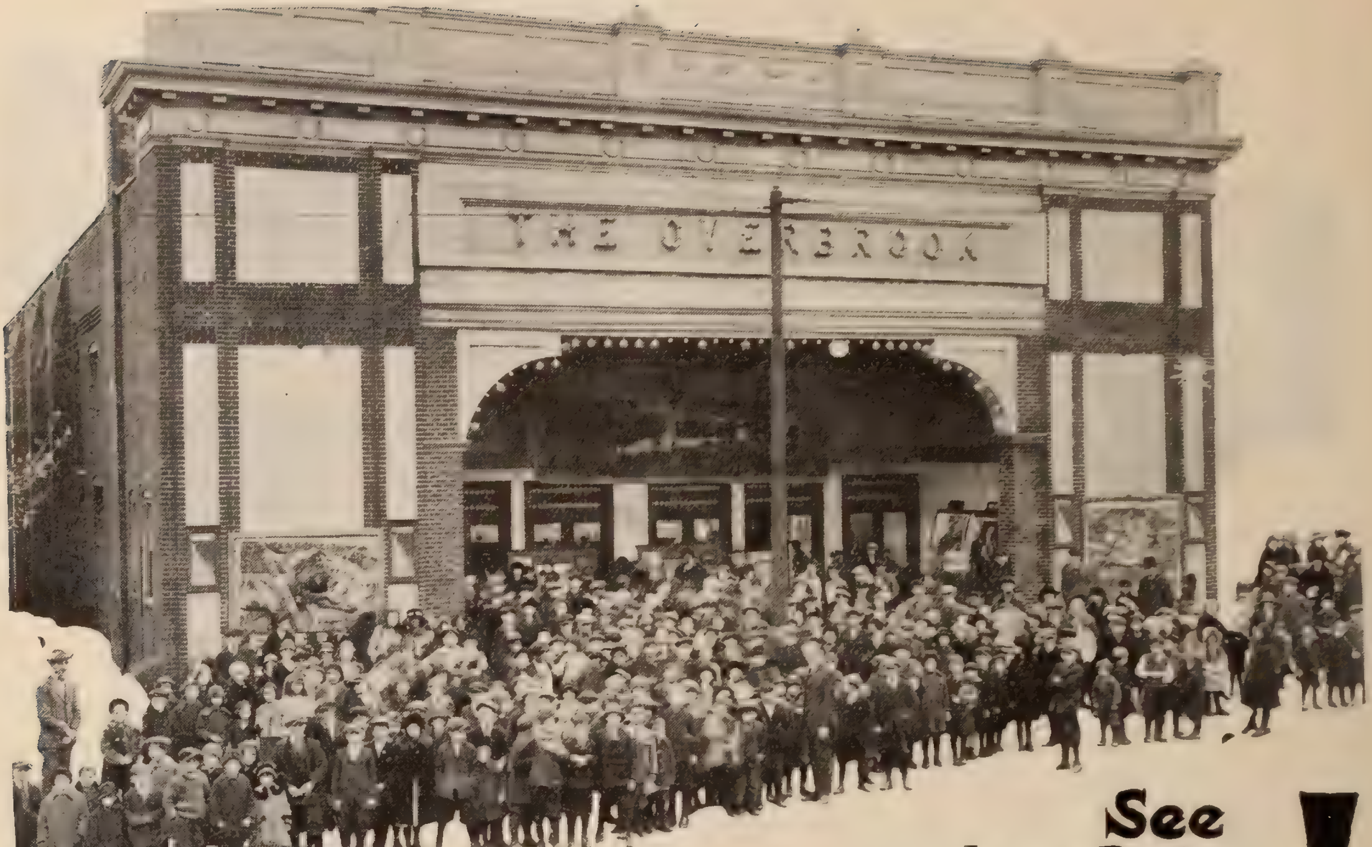
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"



See how Polo pulls in the Kids in the Suburban Towns !

IT'S CLEAN!

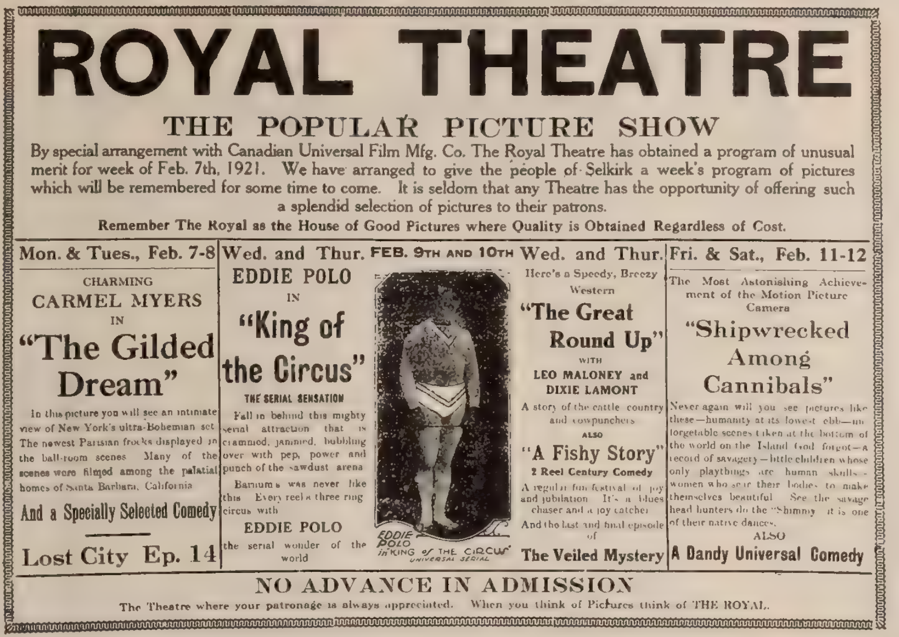
IN the above picture you have living proof of what Polo did in Overbrook, Pa. In following excerpts from exhibitors' letters you have additional proofs of what Polo will do for YOU: "We run it Mondays. Receipts are better Monday than on Sunday. You don't have to boost it—it boosts itself." —Lyric Theatre, Valley Junction, Ia. "Gets the money. They like the circus atmosphere. Eddie is a genuine, honest-to-goodness he-man."—Strand Theatre, Paoli, Ind.

EDDIE POLO in Universal's Serial Sensation

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Directed by J. P. McGowan

Universal Week Big Success



ROYAL THEATRE

THE POPULAR PICTURE SHOW

By special arrangement with Canadian Universal Film Mfg. Co. The Royal Theatre has obtained a program of unusual merit for week of Feb. 7th, 1921. We have arranged to give the people of Selkirk a week's program of pictures which will be remembered for some time to come. It is seldom that any Theatre has the opportunity of offering such a splendid selection of pictures to their patrons.

Remember The Royal as the House of Good Pictures where Quality is Obtained Regardless of Cost.

Mon. & Tues., Feb. 7-8

CHARMING
CARMEL MYERS
IN
"The Gilded Dream"

In this picture you will see an intimate view of New York's ultra-Bohemian set The newest Parisian frocks displayed in the ball-room scenes Many of the scenes were filmed among the palatial homes of Santa Barbara, California

And a Specially Selected Comedy

Lost City Ep. 14

Wed. and Thur. FEB. 9TH AND 10TH

EDDIE POLO
IN
"King of the Circus"

THE SERIAL SENSATION

Fall in behind this mighty serial attraction that is crammed, jammed, bubbling over with pep, power and punch of the sawdust arena

Barnum's was never like this Every reel a three ring circus with the serial wonder of the world

EDDIE POLO

EDDIE POLO in KING of THE CIRCUS
UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Wed. and Thur.

Here's a Speedy, Breezy Western

"The Great Round Up"

WITH
LEO MALONEY and DIXIE LAMONT

A story of the cattle country and cowpunchers

ALSO

"A Fishy Story"

2 Reel Century Comedy

A regular fun festival of joy and jubilation It's a blues chaser and a joy catcher

And the last and final episode of

The Veiled Mystery

Fri. & Sat., Feb. 11-12

The Most Astonishing Achievement of the Motion Picture Camera

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

Never again will you see pictures like these—humanity at its lowest ebb—unforgetable scenes taken at the bottom of the world on the Island God forgot—a record of savagery—little children whose only playthings are human skulls—women who scar their bodies to make themselves beautiful See the savage head hunters do the "Shimmy" it is one of their native dances.

ALSO

A Dandy Universal Comedy

NO ADVANCE IN ADMISSION

The Theatre where your patronage is always appreciated. When you think of Pictures think of THE ROYAL.

Featuring Special Program at Royal Theatre, Selkirk, Manitoba

THE town of Selkirk, Manitoba, Canada, may not be large in area or in the number of its inhabitants, but it is large in community spirit and in the quality of the amusements offered to its people. The Royal Theatre, which is the leading theatre in the town, planned a complete Universal program for the week of February 7th by special arrangement with the Canadian Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

On Monday and Tuesday Carmel Myers was featured in "The Gilded Dream" with the remainder of the program consisting of the fourteenth episode of "The Lost City" and a Century Comedy.

The bill for the middle of the week was headed by Eddie Polo in "King Of The Circus." This was the introduction of the first episode of the stirring tale of life on the circus lot to the residents of that section of Canada.

In addition to this serial a Western drama, "The Great Round-Up," a Century Comedy and the last chapter of "The Veiled Mystery" was shown. Intense enthusiasm was shown with the opening episodes of the Polo serial and the picpromised to make many friends in Selkirk.

The attraction for the last of the week was the film tour "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" which is one of the best records of camera history of the little-known tribes of the South Seas. The plan of using all the productions of one moving picture company for the entire week, as many managers other towns did, proved to be entirely satisfactory and the bills for each day were well balanced and proved to be great attractions. The manager of the Royal thought so much of the attractions he was offering to the movie lovers of his town that he inserted a seven-column advertisement in the Selkirk "Weekly Record," and which took up the lower half of the front page. One point he especially stressed in his advertising copy was that there would be no advance in the admission charge for the special week's showing.

FIRST EPISODE BROKE ALL RECORDS

OGDEN, UTAH,
JAN. 9, 1921.

G. A. HAGER, MANAGER,
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES, INC.
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

EDDIE POLO IN THE FIRST EPISODE OF "KING OF THE CIRCUS" BROKE ALL RECORDS FOR FRIDAY AND SATURDAY BUSINESS AT THE COZY THEATRE. THINK THIS POLO SERIAL WILL BE A WINNER.

S. S. STECK,
MANAGER COZY LYCEUM AND REX THEATRES.

TWO IMPORTANT LETTERS

(Continued from page 10)

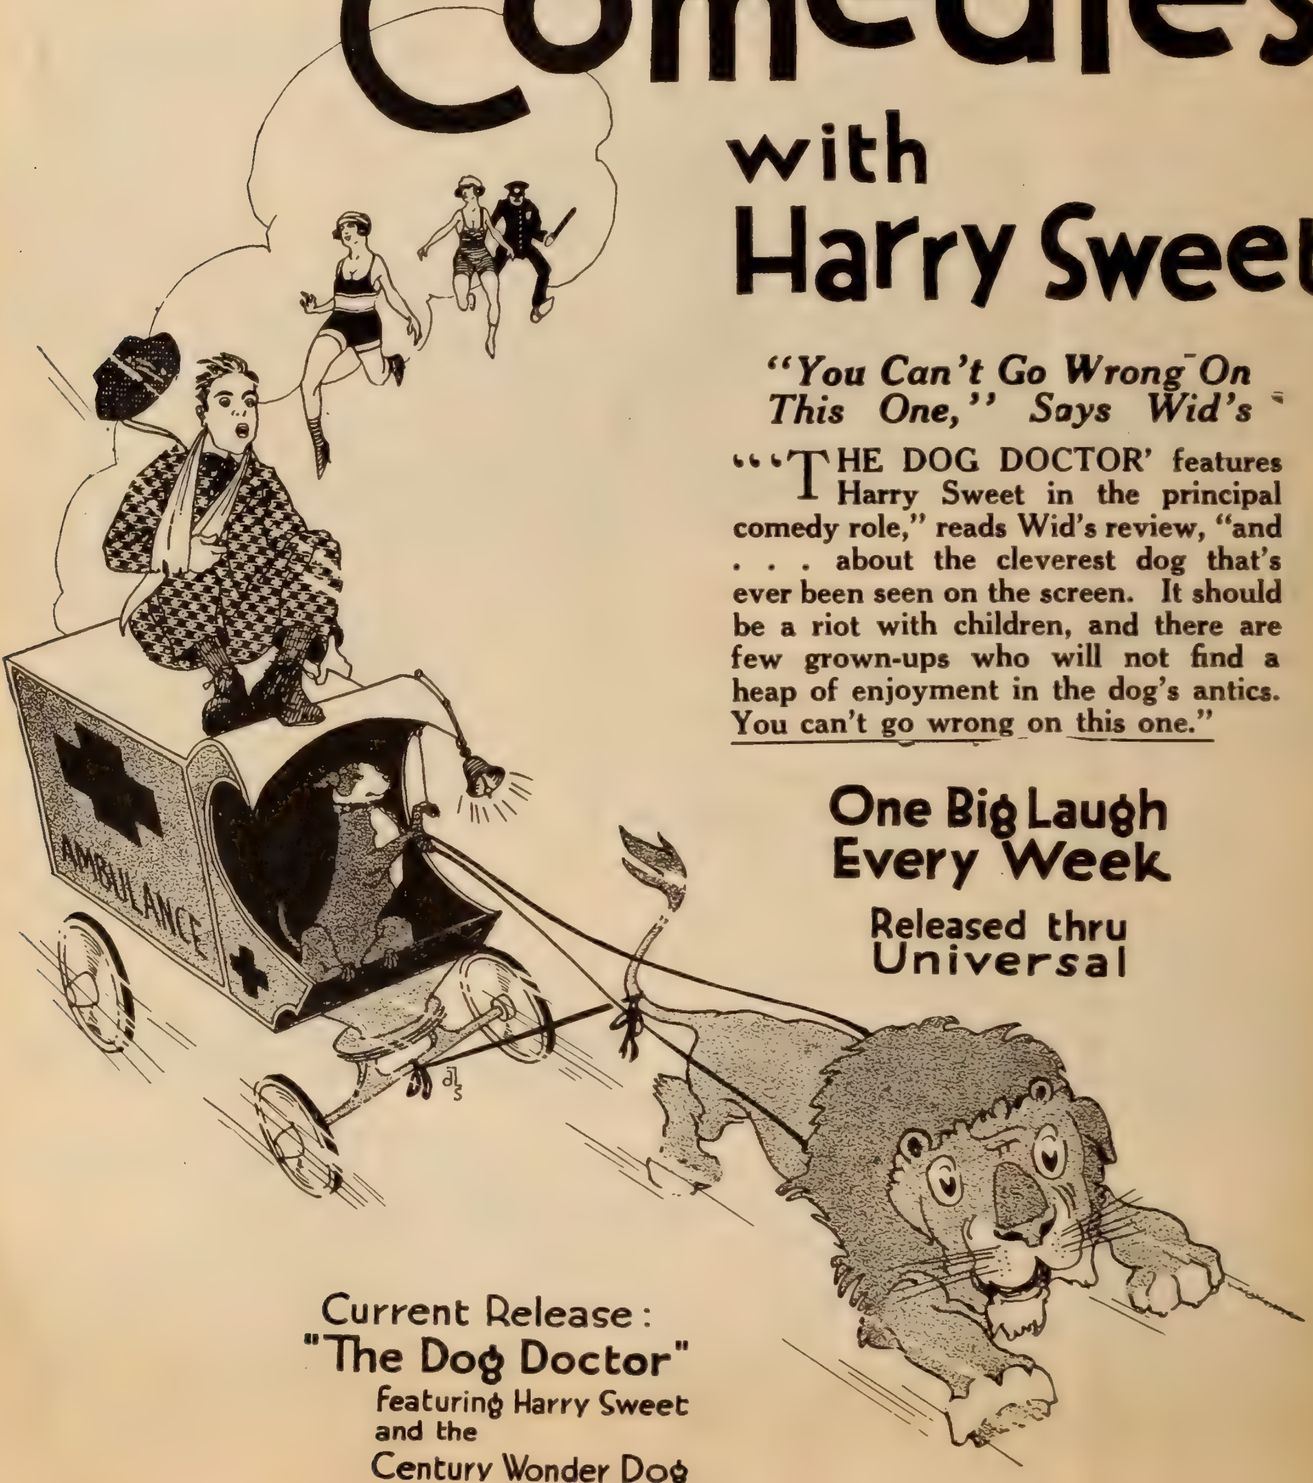
eight years and he has consistently and often repeated his attitude toward exhibitor associations. He has never permitted any employee of his in any one of his exchanges to become a party to any attack on exhibitors' associations, and he is particularly keen for all such organizations when they are working for the best interests of the industry. The fact that Mr. Laemmle holds such views and that these views are widely known and appreciated among exhibitors should have been the best assurance that the Association was working in perfect harmony with all exhibitors' associations in inviting exhibitors individually to join the National Association.

Very sincerely yours,
PAUL GULICK,
Editor of "Moving Picture Weekly."

Century Comedies

with Harry Sweet



"You Can't Go Wrong On This One," Says Wid's

"'THE DOG DOCTOR' features Harry Sweet in the principal comedy role," reads Wid's review, "and . . . about the cleverest dog that's ever been seen on the screen. It should be a riot with children, and there are few grown-ups who will not find a heap of enjoyment in the dog's antics. You can't go wrong on this one."

One Big Laugh Every Week

Released thru
Universal

Current Release:
"The Dog Doctor"
Featuring Harry Sweet
and the Century Wonder Dog

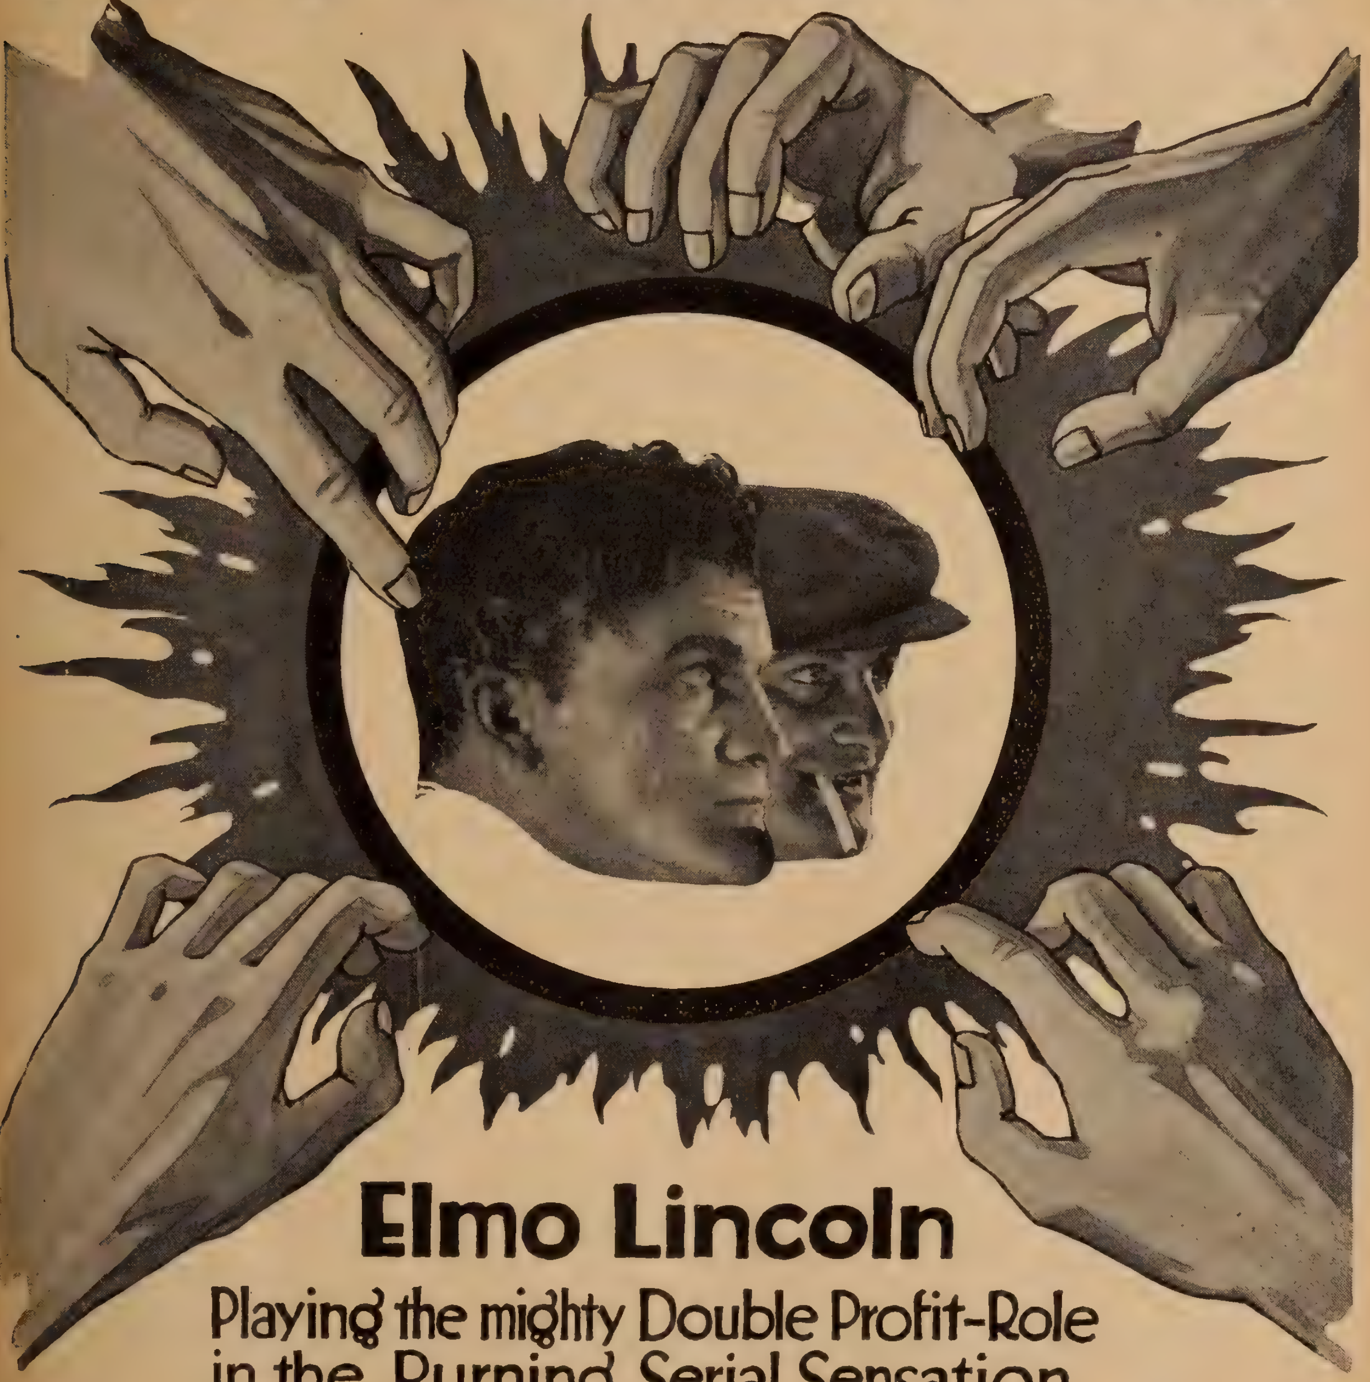
GRAB THIS HOT ONE!



Elmo Lincoln

Playing the mighty Double Profit-Role in the Burning Serial Sensation.

Directed by Robert Hill

"THE FLAMING DISK"

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 10

"The Betrayal"

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Kennedy	Harry De More
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Benson	Al Smith
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Aline Earle	Josephine Scott
Zimba	Al Smith

AS Kennedy's horse swims past, Doris, from her perilous position underwater, seizes Kennedy's leg and drags him down into the water, at the same time clutching the horse's tail with a free hand and being thus drawn thru the water toward shore. While Kennedy's men go to his rescue, Doris, drawn to shore, mounts Kennedy's horse and dashes away. By the time Kennedy and his hirelings resume the chase she has eluded them and safely reached the secluded cottage and underground workshop of her grandfather, Prof. Martin Harvey, where she narrates to Martin and Tim the violent, foul tactics adopted by the trust to discover the unlimited supply of diamonds, and warns them against the menace. It is agreed to communicate only in case of dire need. Zeidt, the diamond king, enraged at Kennedy because of the latter's failure to learn where the girl gets and keeps her diamonds, pays him off and cables Benson, his most capable sleuth, in London, to report to him at once. Benson arrives two weeks later and Zeidt explains the task before him. Zeidt has been trying to place Doris in his mind and is now convinced she is the "widow" who jumped overboard just after the ship on which he, the girl and Benson were passengers, had left Capetown—the same girl Benson was trailing as a diamond smuggler. Zeidt warns Benson against Bruce Weston, who has withdrawn from the trust to aid Doris—the girl he loves—saying he is a man to be feared and reckoned with. Doris secretly loves Bruce, but scorns him, thinking he is numbered among her enemies. Benson outlines a mysterious plan to Zeidt by which he is confident he will reder both Bruce ad Doris powrless. He cables the warden of the Kimberley prison in South Africa a mysterious message and later Aline Earle, formerly Doris' dancing partner on the Kimberley stage, but now serving time for diamond smuggling, is released under surveillance for an indefinite probation on one condition—that she carry out to the letter the instructions the warden gives her. If she fails in any particular, she will be 'ard imprisoned again. Aline agrees. Two months later we see Doris carrying on the humanitarian work of her dead father, befriending crippled children and helpless mothers in the poverty stricken tenements of New York. At the same time we see a mysterious character deliver to Bruce in his home, a note supposedly from Doris, saying she is in dire peril—that if he would prove his friendship to come to her aid at once—that he can trust the bearer of the note implicitly. Bruce, directed by his strange visitor, races in his car, supposedly to Doris' aid. In the tenement district a woman of the streets has a heated argument with a man who accuses her of trying to "frisk" him and calls a policeman. The woman is arrested and is about to be taken away, when Doris pushes her way through the crowd and recognizes the woman as Aline Earle, her former dancing partner. Doris induces the policeman to let her take care of Aline, who begs Doris to take her to her room. In Doris's car, on the way to Aline's room, Aline tells her story of her imprisonment and downfall. At the same time we see Bruce and his strange escort speeding to Doris's aid, supposedly. Zimba, a half-caste twice saved by Doris from cannibals in South Africa and now devoting his life to her service, sees Bruce racing along in his car and, hiring a taxi, follows. Bruce is led into a trap and is attacked by Benson's hirelings in a secluded spot in a park. Aline, leading Doris to a rickety waterfront structure in another part of town, gets her into a room, where she is seized by Benson and his hirelings, who have been lying in ambush. It is Benson's intention to torture Doris into telling where the unlimited supply of diamonds is to be found. Bruce, meantime, is overpowered by his foes.

Doris, now captive in Benson's hands, turns to Aline questioningly—lady, walking close to her, tears off a wig of straggling hair that she had worn, throws back her head and laughs tauntingly in her face.

"The Show-Down"

Two-Reel Western Drama

Snappy	Art Acord
Blackie	Jack Richardson
Gunnison	Ed Burns
Betty	Marcella Pershing

THE fortune left Betty Gray by her father when he died was being rapidly dissipated by Gunnison, her guardian, and Snappy Walton, the dashing young cow-puncher of the ranch, knew it.

For that reason Gunnison feared the love interest which was growing between Betty and Snappy and tried to persuade the girl that he was not fit to associate with any good woman.

It was hard work at first but by gradually poisoning her mind against Snappy, Gunnison got Betty into an unhappy state of doubt and felt that the girl's fortune would be left in his hands.

Snappy left the state, threatening to return and get Gunnison. His return was the signal for Gunnison to send out a death squad into the desert to meet him, with definite instructions to kill him. Outwitting the men sent to cause his death, Snappy set them adrift in the sea of hot sand and rides to Gunnison's cabin for a show-down. The girl has lost all faith in him and it seems as though he were trying to blackmail Gunnison out of money rightfully his. To again try and cause his death Gunnison mines the road so that it will explode when Snappy rides over it. The explosion almost kills Betty but Snappy is uninjured. He saves the girl from a plunge down the cliff and explains that Gunnison is trying to kill him. Still unconvinced the girl follows him to the cabin where he beats Gunnison to a frazzle and extracts from him a confession that he had been trying to frame up a fake blackmail plot to frighten Snappy into leaving him alone with Betty's fortune.

Betty realizes that Snappy is worthy of her love and the two leave the cabin, Snappy to recuperate from the battle and Betty to prepare for their wedding.

"Her Circus Man"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring HARRY SWEET

HARRY goes to the station to meet his girl but sees her walk off with a city swell she met on the train. later he calls at her house to take her to the circus but again his rival goes off with the girl on his arm. He gets a book entitled "O'Sullivan, the Rubber-Heeled Sleuth," and putting on a mustache comes upon the girl and the dude near the entrance to the circus tent.

The city swell is frightened because he thinks Harry is a real detective and starts to make his retreat. He immediately comes back, however, when he sees Harry take off the disguise and steals Harry's pocket-book so that he can't follow them into the circus.

Harry tries every entrance to locate the girl but each time he is chased away by a guard. Just at the time when the circus manager is offerering $50 for anyone who can ride the mule, he climbs up one of the tent poles and jumps inside the tent, landing right on the mule's back.

When he stays on the mule the manager gives Harry the money. He then runs outside and buys a ticket but when he returns and sits down beside the girl the show is over and they leave him sitting there alone.

You Can Book it Blindfolded —and Never Go Wrong!

YOU don't have to pick and choose from Universal's complete list of short stuff in order to find the best. It's all 100%. You know that Universal always did make the best short stuff. That's true to-day more so than ever—for to-day the list includes such incomparable subjects as the two-reel Century Comedies, two-reel action Westerns, one-reel Star Comedies, two-reel Red Rider series, International News, and, soon—Lyons and Moran two-reel fun-films.

UNIVERSAL SHORT STUFF
"THE BEST SHORT STUFF IN THE WORLD"

UNIVERSAL SHORT STUFF

THE DOG DOCTOR

Two Reel Century Comdy

Featuring
HARRY SWEET and
THE CENTURY WONDER DOG

HARRY SWEET is hurrying to his wife's home, as the baby is sick but is delayed by the trolley service. Finally when he does get home he finds that there is immediate need for a doctor. The doctor is called, but as he is out on a case he sends his assistant.

The assistant, who is the Century Wonder Dog, takes the doctor's grip in his mouth and trots out the ambulance, which he pulls to the home. There he finds that it is Brownie, a little pup, who needs the doctor.

He puts the dog in the ambulance and starts back for the hospital. At the hospital he is shown caring for about a dozen other dogs and doing all the work of a doctor or nurse in treating his little patients.

While the Century Wonder Dog is busy in the ward, the villain tries to steal Brownie, but is discovered by the Dog Doctor and Harry. Brownie then responds to the treatment, and is able to leave the hospital without the use of the ambulance.

International News

No. 13

Philadelphia, Pa.—Greatest hospital ship completed. Every modern medical convenience in world's finest relief vessel.

Sub-Title.—A glimpse into the operating room—note the sieve-like walls to allow all the light possible.

Chicago, Ill.—Race "twixt" giants. Steam rollers in speed contest to boost good roads campaign.

San Francisco, Cal.—Chinese oppose loan to home land. American orientals against international aid for present Pekin Government.

In The Public Eye.—Ignace Paderewski, pianist-statesman arrives for a rest from the strenuous activities of Polish politics. . . . New York City.

Sub-Titles.—Captain Charles Nungesser, champion ace of French Army, who shot down 64 German planes, comes to look us over. Vittorio Rolando Ricci, new Ambassador from Italy, arrives. General Pershing assumes the rôle of mason at the cornerstone laying of the Racquet Club. Washington, D. C.

Chicago, Ill.—A monument to a bygone age. 1,250,000 beer cases mark one of the spots where King Gambrinus ruled supreme.

Miami, Fla.—Air glimpses of motorboat classic. The Adieu breaks world's record for 50-miles in national championship meet.

New Orleans, La.—King Carnival rules famous Mardi Gras. Thousands of revellers out in Dixie's annual fete despite rain.

Scranton, Pa.—Great mine caves in. Hundreds of homes ruined in coal field collapse.

Miami, Fla.—Palatial yacht destroyed by fire. Armour's $250,000 yacht a total loss after gasoline tank explosion.

Panama Canal.—Above the fleet in Panama Canal. Exclusive air pictures of the great battleships passing through the great ditch.

Sub-Titles.—A picture that gives the most comprehensive view ever afforded of the great canal, with its marvelous locks and cuts. Over the City of Balboa to the Bay of Panama, with the great Pacific Fleet lying at anchor.

Tad Cartoon.

The Pony Express Rider

Red Rider Series No. 7

Featuring
LEONARD CLAPHAM

MADGE NELSON is the postmistress of Rimrock, and about the only excitement in the town is the efforts of three of her suitors to outdo each other. Carlos Ruiz, who is in love with Madge, sends her a letter with a ring, saying that he is cutting out drink because of her and asking that she wear his ring until he can send for her and claim her.

Dick Cody, the rider for the Double J. C. Ranch, and Dell Norton, a gambler, are also listed among the admirers of the plucky postmistress. Dick Cody sends Carlos a letter advising him to take the pony express through Carson City rather than Rimrock.

Dell Norton decides to hold up the express and "get" Carlos and put him out of the way. Carlos takes the usual trail, and there is some very hard and fast riding shown between the mail stations.

Norton and his men hold up Carlos and steal the ring. The next rider notifies the sheriff that there is something the matter with the pony express, as no mail has come through. Bill Dallas, the sheriff of Rimrock county, and Dick Cody start out after Norton. When they find him he is wearing the ring which he says Madge gave to him. The men believe that the little postmistress has played falsely with them. In the meantime, however, the girl herself takes the mail through to the next station on time and saves the name of the service. When the men come up after her hard ride she is able to explain everything, and they return to the town with everything smoothed out.

International News

No. 14

Washington, D. C.—Women's party in great convention. Politics—the right kind—all year round—is slogan of Suffragist leaders.

..Sub-Titles.—The Rev. Olympia Brown (In center foreground) is 85 years old—but spry as a girl. Forty national organizations of women represented at the presentation of the Suffrage statue to Congress.

Dublin, Ireland. — Bloodhounds trained to track Irish patriots. Royal Constabulary enlist aid in hunt for Republican leaders.

New York City.—1921 bridal creations. This $7,500 symphony in silk is enough to make any bachelor examine his bank roll twice.

Chella, Morocco.—"Magic" festival lures tribesmen of Morocco. Natives travel many miles to see famous "sorcerers" perform.

In The Public Eye.—Archbishop Dougherty of Philadelphia, who will be created a Cardinal at the next Consistory in Rome. (Omit San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Spokane and Atlanta.)

San Pedro, Cal.—Fighting the Japanese fishermen's methods. Southern California. (For San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Spokane and Portland prints only.)

Sub-Title.—Cheerful givers to the Atlanta Georgian's "tinfoil Valentine" sold to buy milk for tubercular children.

Hollywood, Cal.—Unusual glimpses into Guina-pig town, showing Mickey Monk bossing a colony of active youngsters.

The Everglades, Fla.—Last of the Seminoles. For the first time picturesque members of vanishing tribe, agree to pose for the camera.

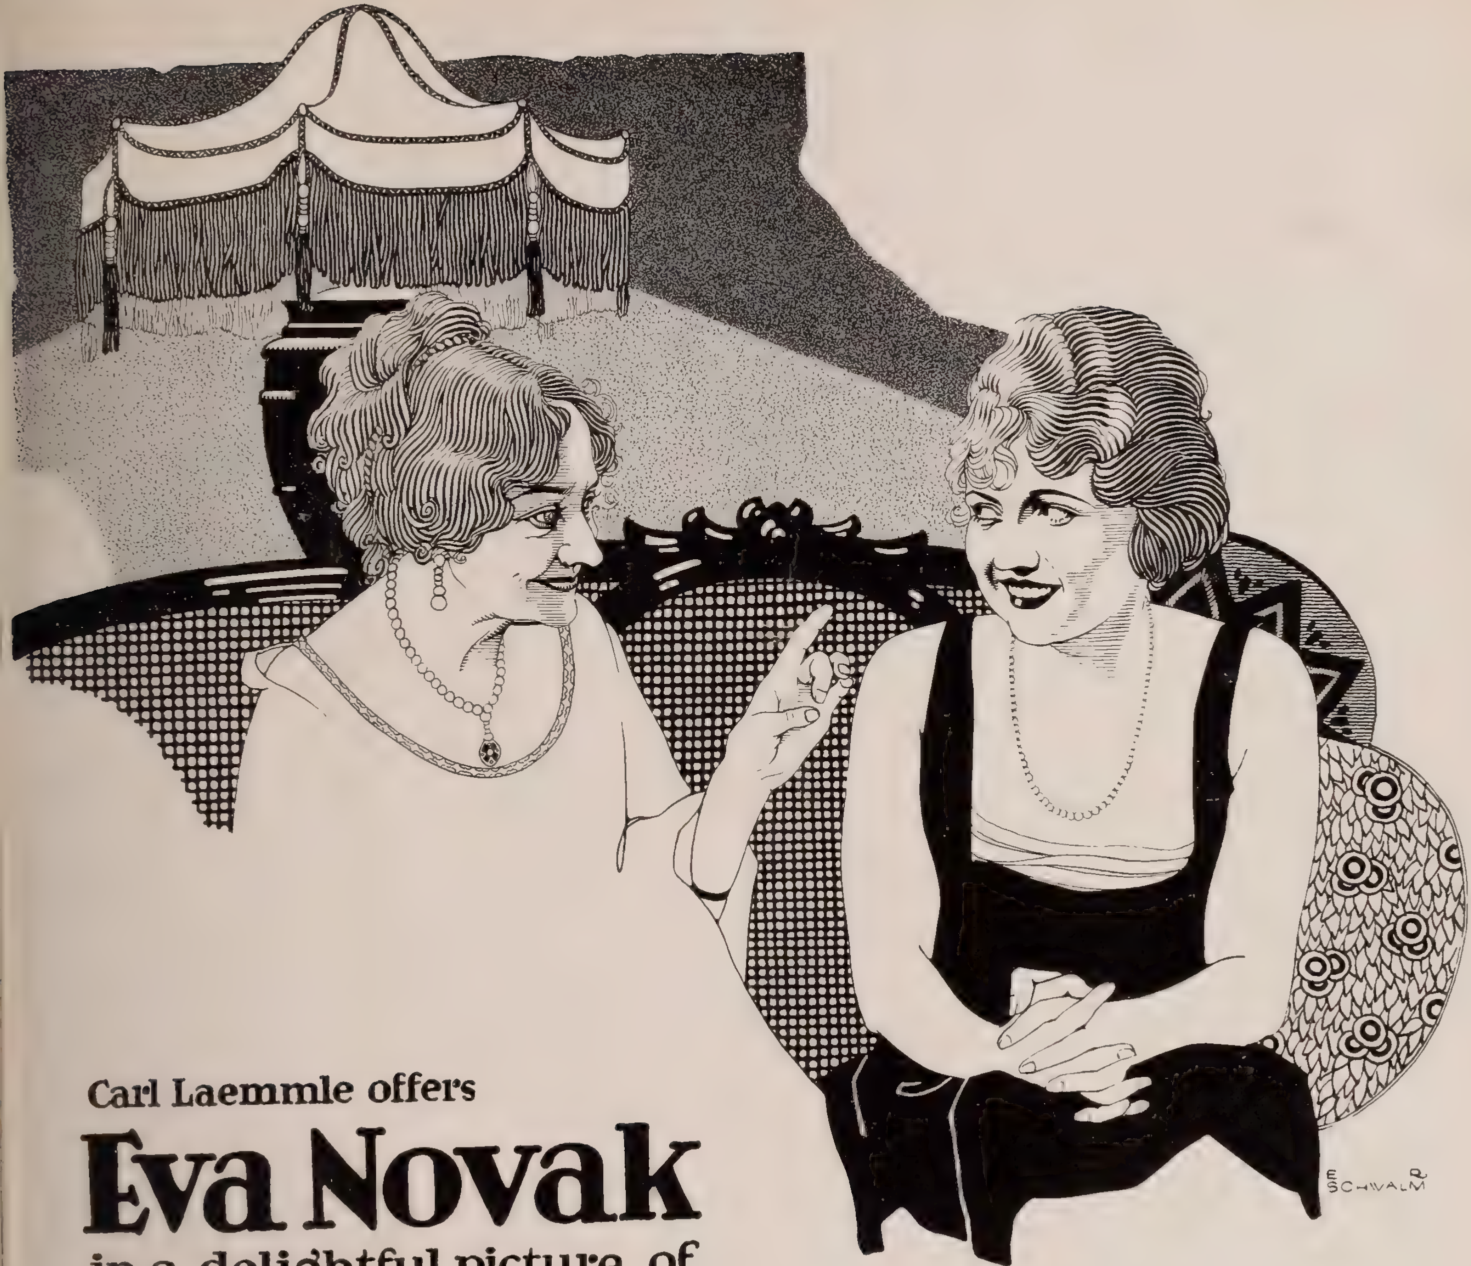
San Francisco, Cal.—Dare-devil dancing. Marjorie Hillick perfects her sense of balance by practising where a false step means death.

Perrine, Fla.—Hunting a 'coon for the President-elect. Successful chase furnishes a toothsome dinner for Mr. Harding.

Sub-Titles.—The hounds getting the scent. Mr. Coon chooses a bad place to hide. The makings of a presidential banquet.

New York City.—Golden-voiced Caruso in death's shadow. Intimate pictures of the world's famous singer.

Sub-Titles.—Caruso gave his voice freely in aid of causes he espoused—here he is singing for his beloved Italy. And here helping the American Red Cross—accompanied by his wife—who has been at his bedside day and night during his illness. A cartoonist of real ability. Sketching has long been one of his favorite pastimes.



Carl Laemmle offers

Eva Novak

in a delightful picture of 399 ways of getting into the Exclusive "400"

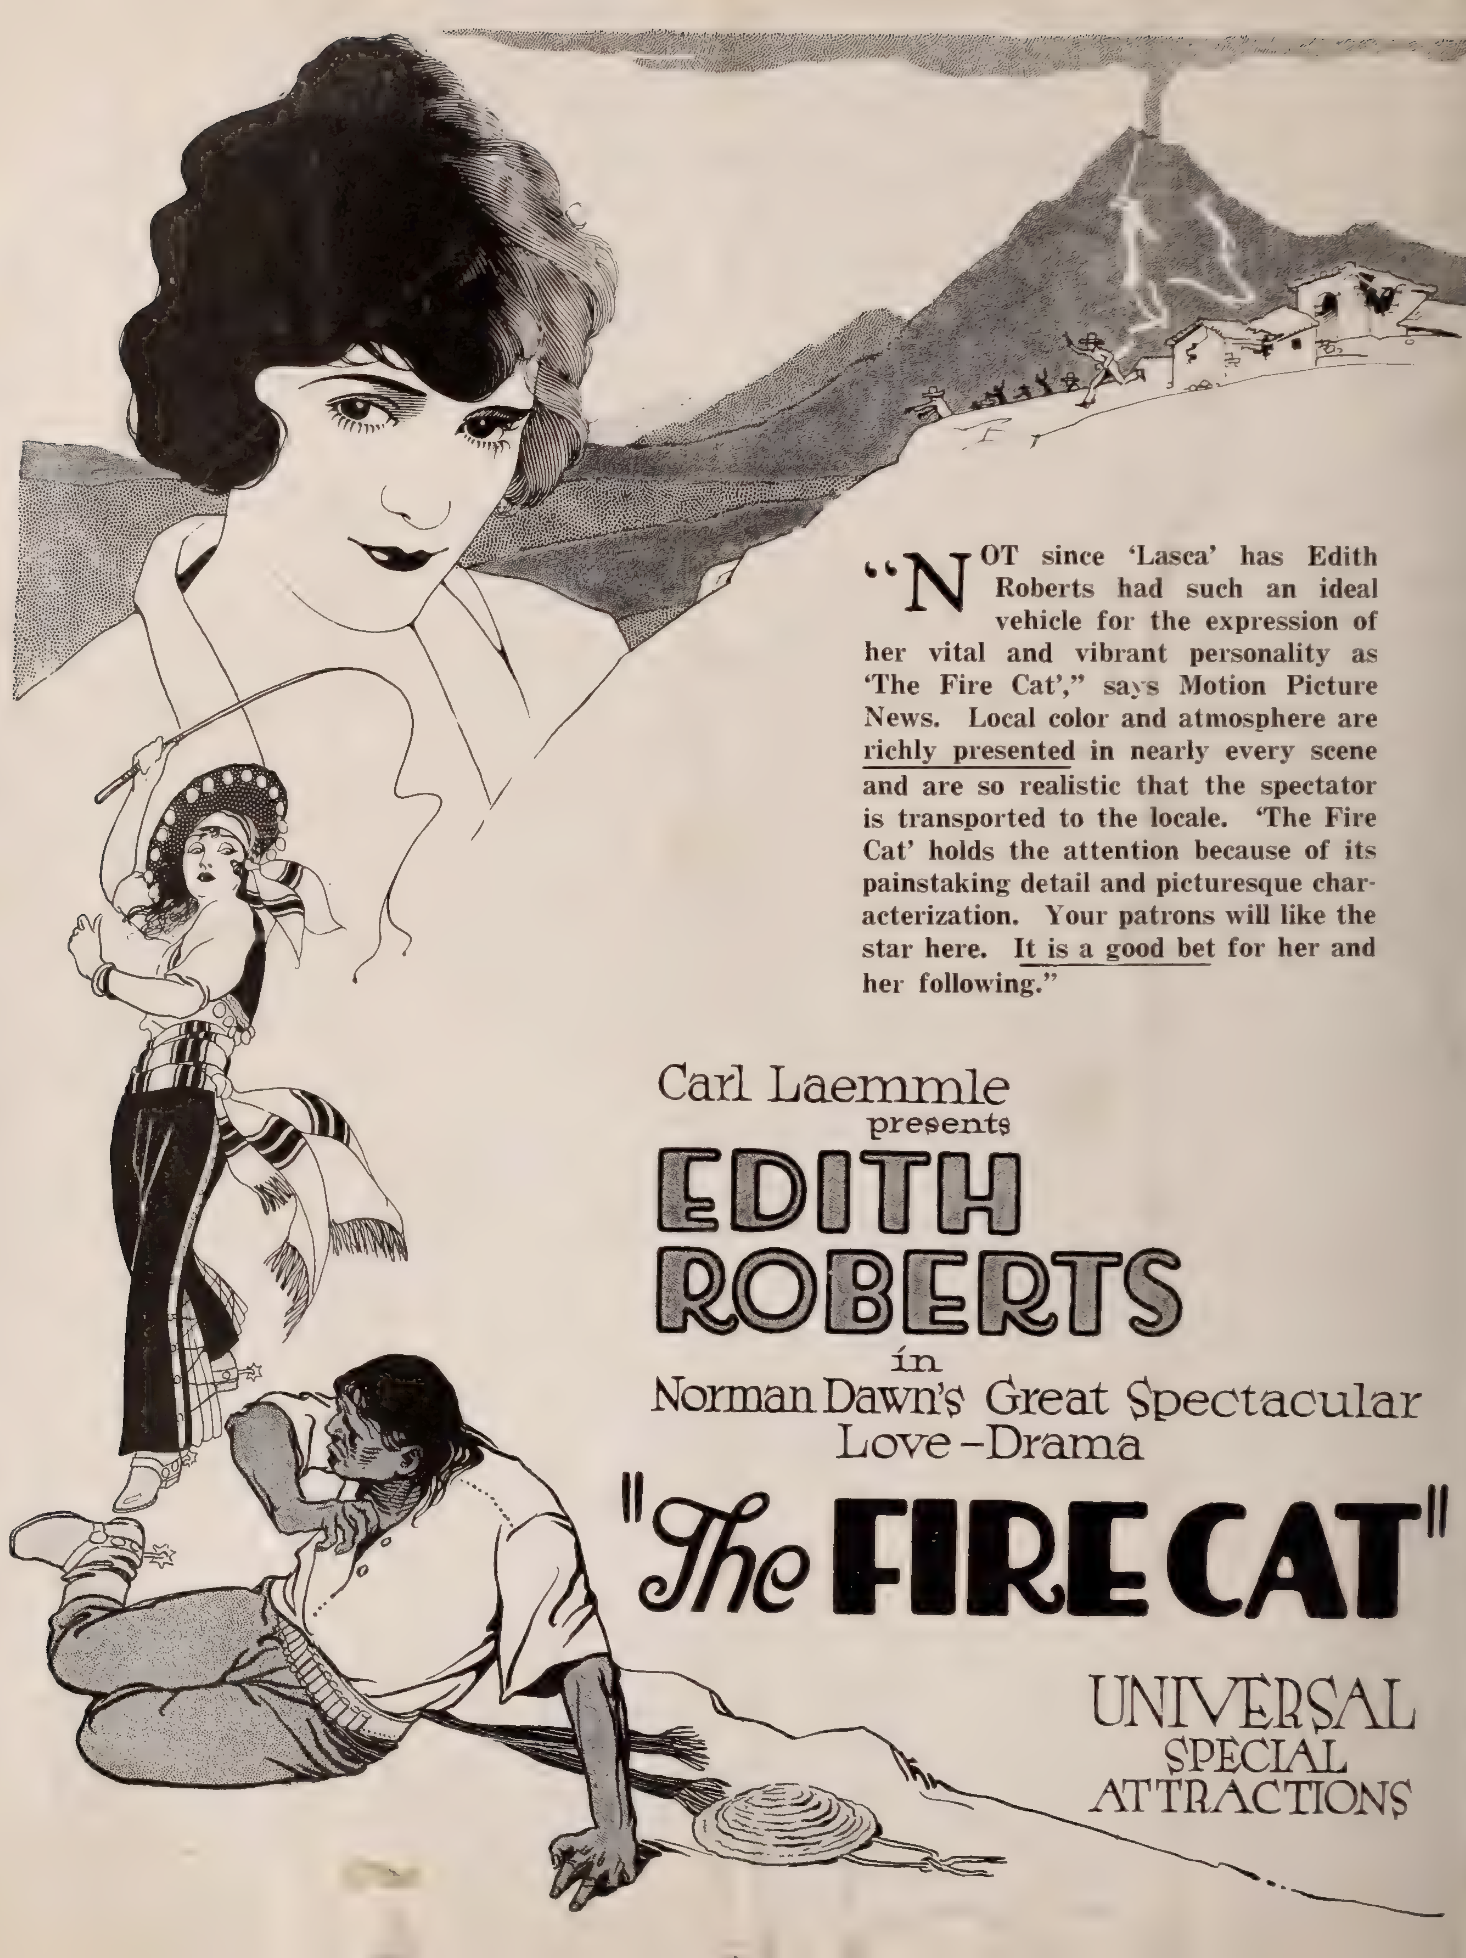
"SOCIETY SECRETS"

Story by Helen Christine Bennet
Directed by
Leo Mc Carey

ABOVE is an attractive line cut that you can have reproduced in any desired size for your newspaper ads. Use catchlines something like: "Are you ashamed of your parents? See 'Society Secrets' and you'll be ashamed of yourself." "If you don't like your future husband's parents why not educate them? Eva Novak does that in 'Society Secrets'." Or if you want to jazz up your copy a bit, use ideas like: "Do peas roll off your knife? See how to train them in 'Society Secrets'—a picture in which old folks learn new tricks and young folks learn old truths."

Universal Special Attraction



"NOT since 'Lasca' has Edith Roberts had such an ideal vehicle for the expression of her vital and vibrant personality as 'The Fire Cat'," says Motion Picture News. Local color and atmosphere are richly presented in nearly every scene and are so realistic that the spectator is transported to the locale. 'The Fire Cat' holds the attention because of its painstaking detail and picturesque characterization. Your patrons will like the star here. It is a good bet for her and her following."

Carl Laemmle
presents

EDITH ROBERTS

in
Norman Dawn's Great Spectacular
Love-Drama

"The FIRE CAT"

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

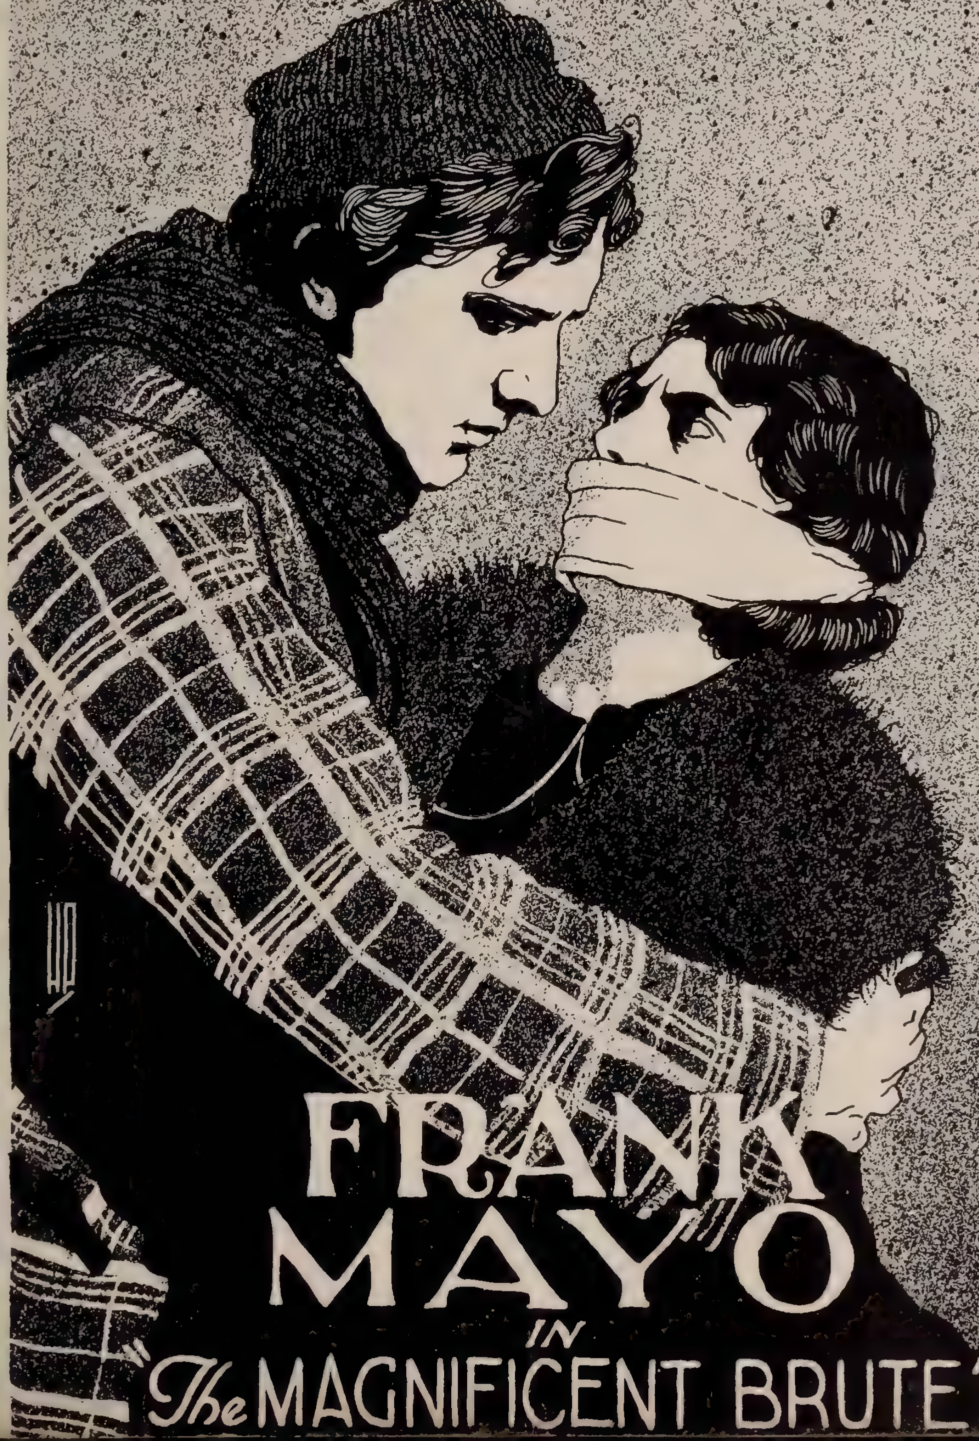
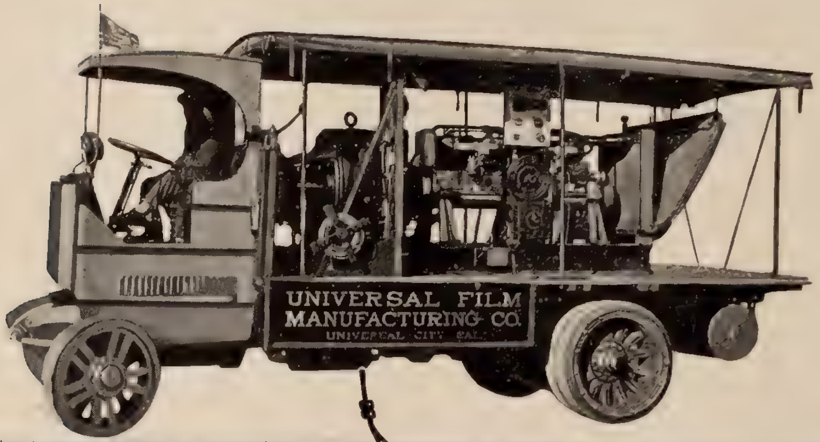
THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

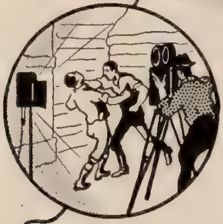
VOL.13 MARCH 19,1921 NO.5

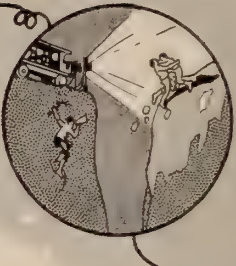


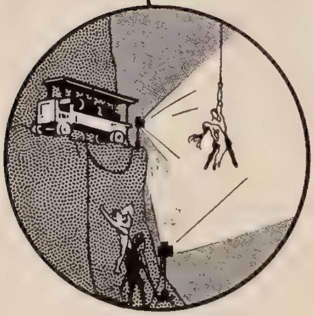
FRANK MAYO
IN
"The MAGNIFICENT BRUTE"

UNIVERSAL'S LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS!

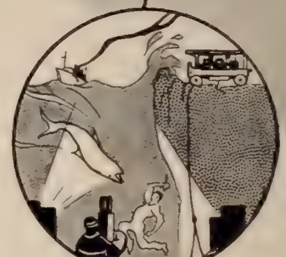




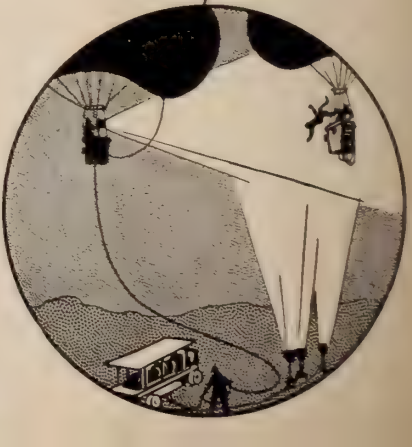




ONE big reason why you can be sure that those "52 Good Pictures a Year" are better pictures at a better price is because the equipment of Universal City includes every known producing facility. The portable power plants, for instance, are always ready —Universal directors can have light for photographing whenever and wherever needed. The power wagons help make it possible to photograph any location exactly as Nature made it— not as the studio imitates it—and this without expensive delays, last-minute makeshifts or poorly-done hurry-up jobs to save rental on other people's equipment.



We have light wherever we need it, in making those



52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

Universal Special Attractions

Extreme Measures Discredit Reforms and Reformers

(Reproduction of an excellent editorial in the N. Y. American)

MOST reformers seem to have good character and good purposes, but notably to lack the balance of good judgment and common sense.

As a result, these reformers, after they have accomplished some admittedly needed reforms, generally go to such lengths in the prosecution of their extreme ideas as to discredit not only themselves, but their whole programme of reform. Reform becomes a business with certain persons.

(Continued on page 32.)

The Dreaded Moment

DESPERATION! — Face to face stood the District Attorney and the man he had sent to jail; between them trembled the woman the District Attorney loved and who was the wife of the ex-convict. What was to happen?

TRAPPED! — The wounded burglar; the pal in need; the innocent woman—cornered in a situation that might mean jail—or worse—for all! A lifetime lived in a moment! Disgrace, death—anything would be better than this fearful suspense.

CARL LAEMMLE presents

EDITH ROBERTS

In one of those "52 good pictures a year—and no worry."

"The UNKNOWN WIFE"

The compelling story of a small-town girl who was thrust into a whirlpool of big-city happenings—

Directed by
William Worthington

Service Page for Edith Roberts in "The Unknown Wife"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Unknown Wife."

STAR—Edith Roberts.

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Adorable Savage," "The Fire Cat," "Lasca," "White Youth," etc.

DIRECTED BY—William Worthington.

STORY BY—Bennett Cohen.

SCENARIO BY—Wallace Clifton.

SUPPORTING CAST—Casson Ferguson, Spottiswoode Aiken, William Quinn, Joe Neary, Augustus Phillips, Bert Frank, Mathilde Brundage, Jessie Pratt, Edith Stayart.

LOCALE—A New England town; New York City.

TIME—The present.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY—William Edmond.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a girl who undertakes to cure the physical ills of an ex-convict and succeeds in effecting his moral reformation. Ignorant of his shadowy past, she falls in love with and marries the man, only to find him under suspicion when they go to the city. But love finds a way to overcome all obstacles and gain real happiness.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The personal popularity of Edith Roberts, the star.

2—A remarkable supporting cast including screen and stage favorites.

3—The fact that Casson Ferguson, who plays the leading male role, was the hit of 'The Mutiny of the Elsinore" and "Madame X" and has a tremendous popularity among fans.

4—A furious gun-battle between the master-mind of a crime club and the police.

5—The pathetic theme of a man trying to make good when a prison record follows him like an evil shadow.

6—The new and particularly delightful role in which Edith Roberts is seen as a small-town girl.

7—The remarkable character work of Spottiswoode Aiken, the veteran of the screen.

8—William Worthington's splendid direction.

9—A rich vein of wholesome comedy providing a laugh for every thrill.

10—The authorship of the story. It was written by Bennett Cohen, master of melodrama.

CAST

Helen Wilburton	Edith Roberts
Henry Wilburton	Spottiswoode Aiken
Donald Grant	Casson Ferguson
Lefty Mayes	William Quinn
Slim Curry	Joe Neary
John Mayberry	Augustus Phillips
Thomas Gregory	Bert Frank
Mrs. Stanwood Kent,	Mathilde Brundage
Mrs. Dalton	Jessie Pratt
Doris Dalton	Edith Stayart
Brooks	Hal Wilson

THE STORY

THE story opens in the little town of Camsdenville, six hours out of New York, a place with one through street and a felt factory. Everyone who wants to walk must take Main Street and everyone who wants to work must keep on going until he reaches the felt factory.

Helen Wilburton used to do that. "Donald Grant," alias the Kid, come to town—just out of Sing Sing —and becomes Helen's boarder. They fall in love, and Donald fast recovering health, forgets about the felt factory—until Lefty and Slim, his old pals, steal into town and a furtive whistle sounds in the dusk down by the syringa bushes at the gate.

Donald stalls. The next day is Sunday and he has fallen of late into a strange habit—walking to church with Helen, pushing old Wilburton along in a wheel-chair. He cannot omit the practice without causing comment. Slim and Lefty watch with amazement.

They can come to only one conclusion. The Kid has fallen so low that he will rob a collection box! They slink into church after the others and watch tensely through the services until the plate is passed. The Kid is going to grab it and run! They hide their faces in shame—peering out furtively. And the Kid drops a quarter in the box.

The inevitable explanations follow, and the Kid insists he's going straight. A big scene follows in which the crooks, contrary to precedent, clap him on the back and tell him to go to it. They depart shaking their heads sadly.

Wilburton dies, and the Kid and Helen marry and go to the city. Sought by the police, the Kid cannot get work and Helen seeks a post as stenographer. She becomes the social secretary to Mrs. Stanwood-Kent, whose nephew, John Mayberry, a prominent lawyer, was an assistant district attorney at the time that the Kid was sent up.

Mayberry falls in love with Helen, and on one occasion calls for her when his aunt needs her services.

Helen has concealed the fact that she is married, and now tells Mayberry.

At the attorney's office the next day Mayberry accuses Donald of not playing fair with Helen, and asks him to free her. Donald in turn accuses Mayberry of merely wanting Helen for himself. There follows a tense scene in which Donald attacks Mayberry and is overpowered. Mayberry insists his motives are unselfish and releases Donald.

Donald has just reached his home and is explaining to Helen that Mayberry had made a proposition which seemed to offer hope for the future when there is a rush down the hall, a frenzied knocking at the door and Lefty staggers in, wounded—shot by a cop.

Donald knows he is risking disaster for himself, but hides Lefty in an adjoining flat. A detective rushes in, recognizes Donald as the Kid and tells him that unless he turns Lefty up, he will be arrested himself. Donald refuses, and is backed up by Helen, who insists there has been no one there that night.

Through force of habit he tries the door of the adjoining flat. It opens and he goes in. Lefty darts out the fire-escape and is shot and killed. His last words to the Kid are that honesty is the best policy after all. He clears the Kid in the eyes of the police, and after a scene of explanation and forgiveness between Donald and Helen, the story ends with a return to Camsdenville and the felt factory.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Love does not demand a pedigree. She only knew that she loved him. If he was a criminal she would shield him with her life. See a wonderful story thrillingly told. It is "THE UNKNOWN WIFE."

Against the forces of evil was arrayed the love of a girl for a man. Edith Roberts is the girl and "THE UNKNOWN WIFE is the Universal photodrama which tells the thrilling story.

One of Best Screen Stories of Year

Edith Roberts
in "THE UNKNOWN WIFE"
UNIVERSAL

AFTER the theatregoing public has seen Edith Roberts as a South Sea Island maid in "The Adorable Savage," as a Creole beauty in "White Youth" and as a South American girl in "The Fire Cat," they would appreciate seeing her as herself—a young American girl of today. In her latest photodrama, "The Unknown Wife," she takes the rôle of a well-bred girl in a small New England town and handles her part in a delightful manner.

According to William Worthington, Miss Roberts' new director, and who has guided the dramatic footsteps of some of the foremost stars on the screen, the young Universal star does some of the finest work in this rôle that has been filmed in some time. In this story she has an exceptional opportunity for strong emotional acting.

Although Edith Roberts is one of the youngest stars on the screen, she won her laurels as a child actress on the stage before she began acting for the films and since that time has become a popular favorite with the movie public. Her biggest success before the camera was made in unusual parts, but now the public has an opportunity to see her in a familiar rôle such as the one she is playing in "The Unknown Wife."

Casson Ferguson, who plays opposite Edith Roberts in this special attraction, is a brilliant young actor and a great favorite with all who appreciate real acting and character work in the films.

Ferguson comes of an old Southern family, having been born near Alexandria, Louisiana, on what was once one of the finest plantation estates in the state. He was educated in New Orleans and later in Paris, where he studied for the operatic stage. He sang in grand opera in the French capital and in concert throughout Europe. Finding the requirements of grand opera too strenuous for his voice he decided to follow the lighter musical productions, and appeared in musical comedy and in revues in London. He came to America with an English musical show a few years ago and after appearing in New York for some months was engaged by the Paramount Company for a rôle in "Secret Service." Since then he has remained in pictures, appearing in "How Could You, Jane?", "The Only Road," "Jane Goes a Wooing," Johnny Get Your Gun," "The Flame of the Desert" and a number of Universal features During the past year he has scored two big personal hits—as the son of "Madame X" and in the leading rôle in "The Mutiny of the Elsinore."

"In "The Unknown Wife" he plays the part of a youth who has fallen into evil ways and serves five years in the penitentiary. It is the big male role in one of the best screen stories of the year.

Advance Notes for "The Unknown Wife"

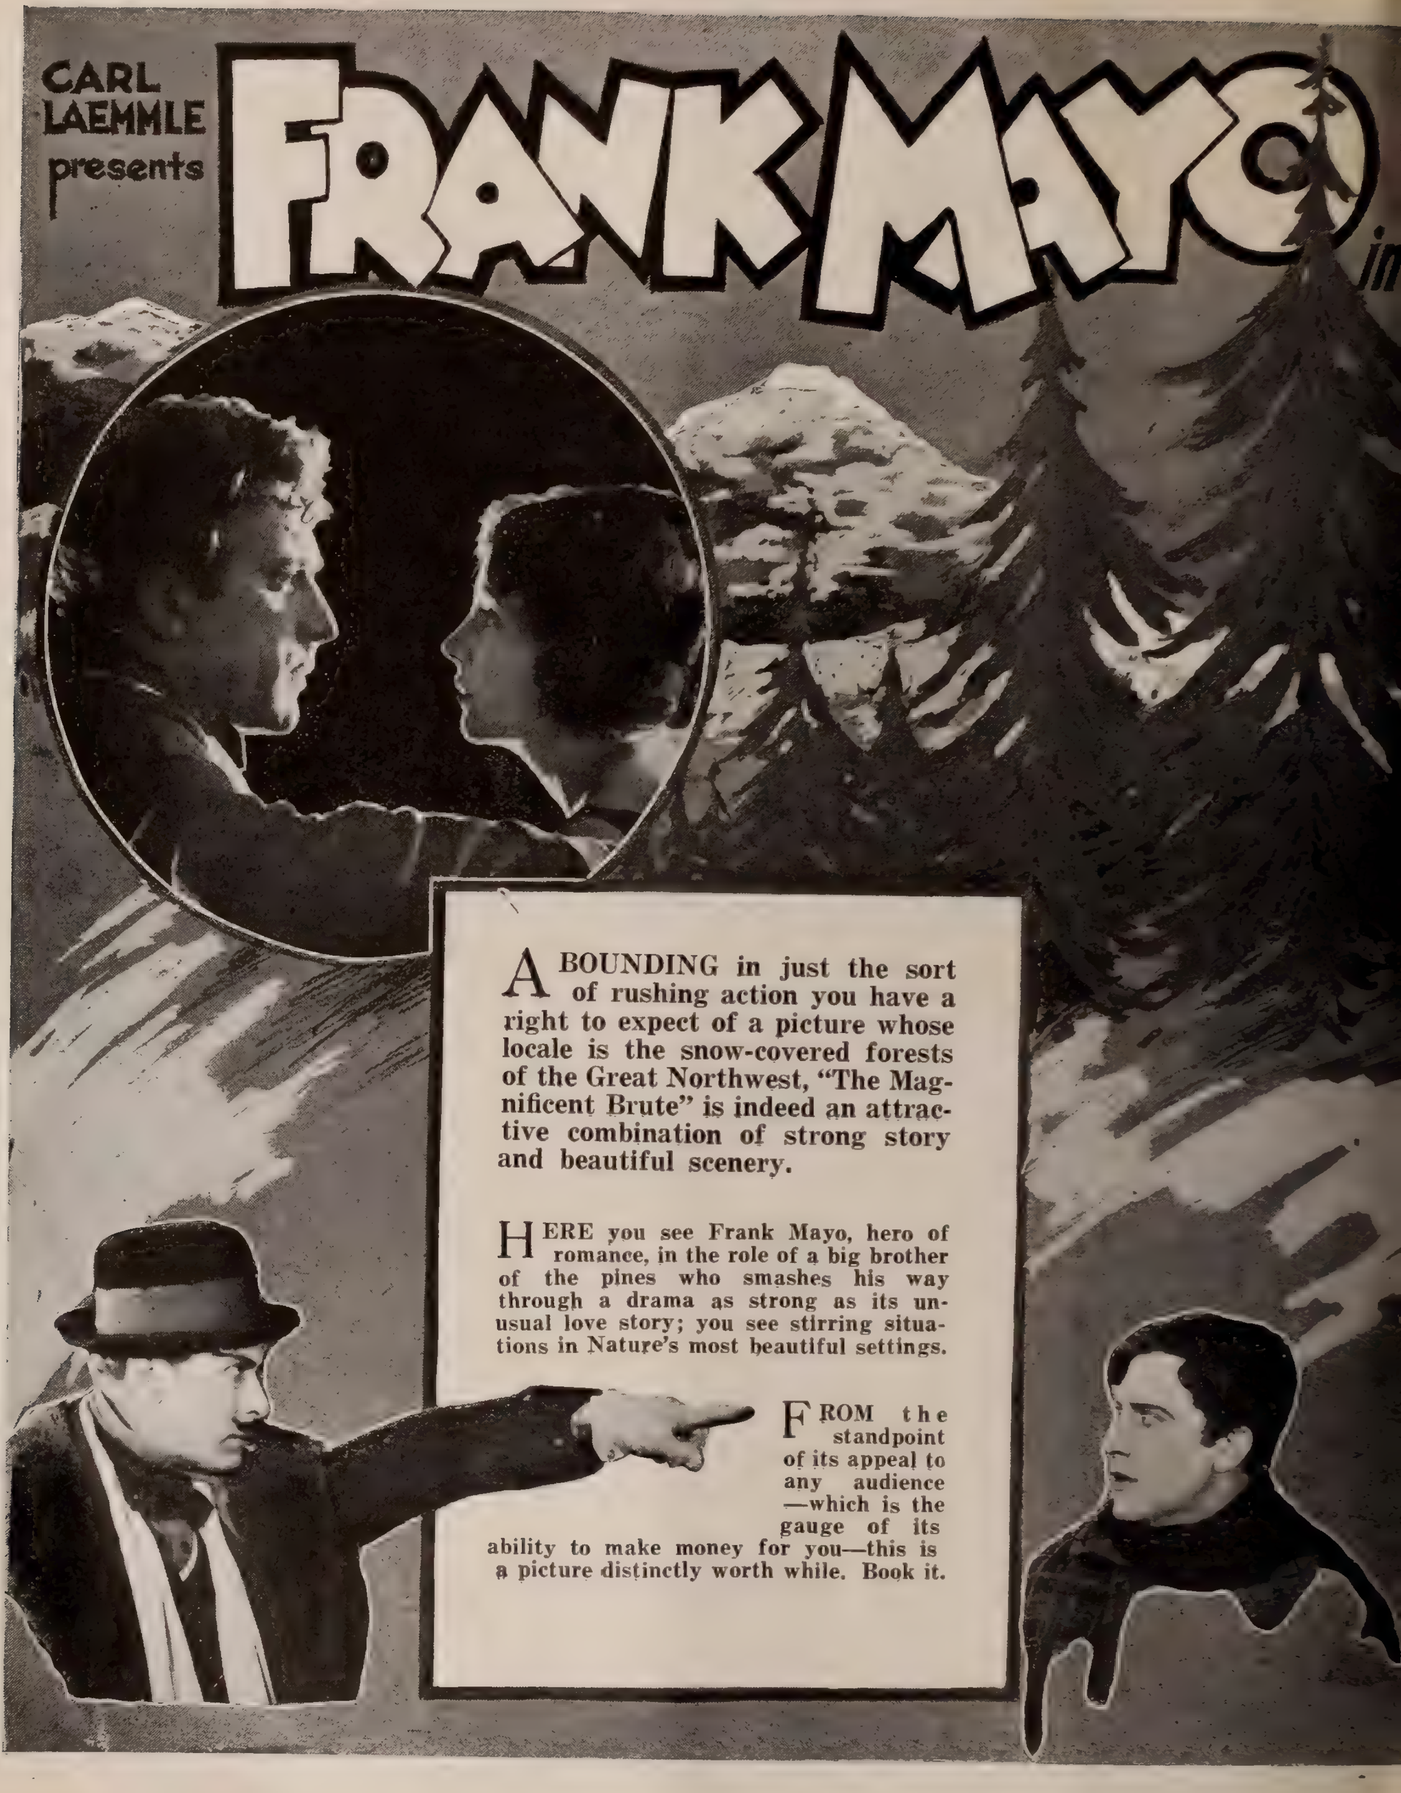
Edith Roberts has a new kind of a rôle in "The Unknown Wife," her latest Universal photodrama in which she is to be seen at the .... Theatre beginning .... The story gets away to a fast start and ends with a whirlwind of action. It was directed by William Worthington at Universal City and gives a brilliant cast a splendid opportunity to emphasize the star's dramatic skill.

Casson Ferguson, Spottiswoode Aiken, Hal Wilson and Joe Neary are three of the widely known and popular players who support Edith Roberts, the Universal star, in "The Unknown Wife," which hundreds of local playgoers are planning to attend when it opens at the .... Theatre on .... Miss Roberts appears as a girl who leaves a church-going community to marry the leader of a band of criminals and from that start the story swings into an amazing sequence of thrillingly dramatic events.

Theatregoers who have usually seen Edith Roberts in some wildly exotic rôle will enjoy the little Universal star's interpretation of a subtle dramatic characterization at the ....Theatre on .... The star appears as a small town girl with a big town problem to solve. She does it with an understanding appeal that wins her new dramatic laurels. Casson Ferguson, the popular young leading man, plays opposite her.

From the restful environment of a small town to the whirling madness of a great city is the rapid change of locale which heightens the dramatic punch of "The Unknown Wife," Edith Roberts' Universal photodrama which will have its local premier at the .... Theatre on .... The story gives the popular star a startlingly different rôle and will add to her fame as one of the most appealing young dramatic stars of the screen.

The inner workings of a well organized band of criminals will be exposed on the screen at the .... Theatre on .... in "The Unknown Wife," the Universal photodrama starring Edith Roberts. The story was written by Bennett Cohen, the widely known novelist, and produced under the direction of William Worthington. The leading male rôle, that of "The Kid," the brain power that drives the crime machine in action, is played by Casson Ferguson.



CARL LAEMMLE
presents

FRANK MAYO in

ABOUNDING in just the sort of rushing action you have a right to expect of a picture whose locale is the snow-covered forests of the Great Northwest, "The Magnificent Brute" is indeed an attractive combination of strong story and beautiful scenery.

HERE you see Frank Mayo, hero of romance, in the role of a big brother of the pines who smashes his way through a drama as strong as its unusual love story; you see stirring situations in Nature's most beautiful settings.

FROM the standpoint of its appeal to any audience—which is the gauge of its ability to make money for you—this is a picture distinctly worth while. Book it.

The MAGNIFICENT BRUTE

The Cave Man of Every Woman's Dreams

Directed by Robert Thornby

ANOTHER OF THOSE
52 GOOD PICTURES A YEAR—and No Worry

"Should Satisfy Wherever Played"

Says M. P. News

"There is no doubt about the entertainment quality of the picture. Has enough on its credit side to please any type of patron. The action never drags. A first-class program feature. IT SHOULD SATISFY WHEREVER PLAYED."

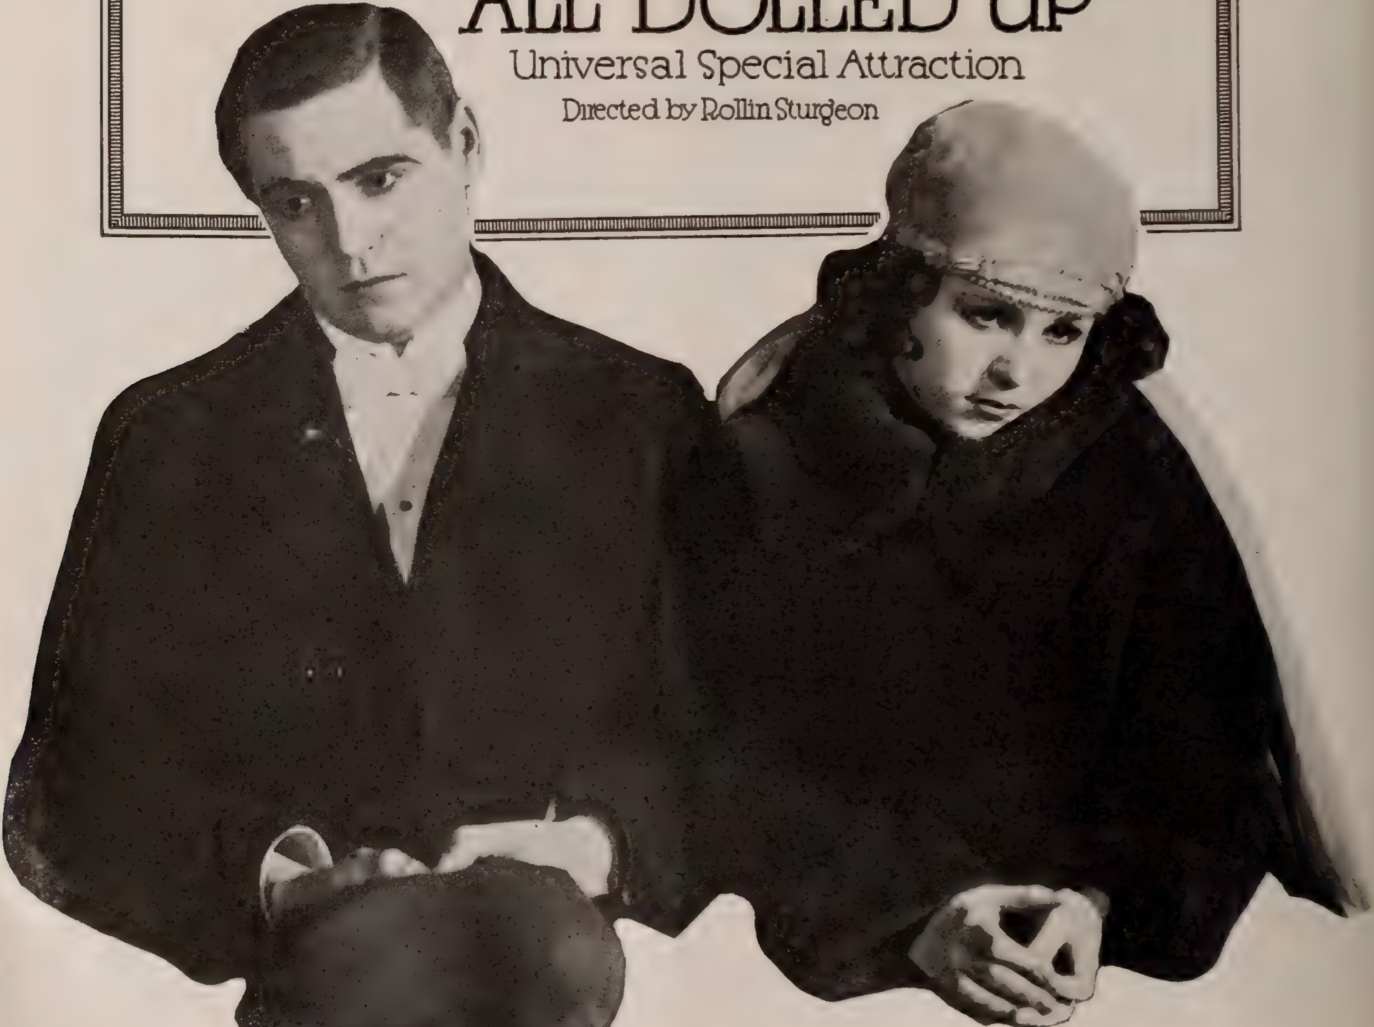
Carl Laemmle offers

Gladys Walton in

"ALL DOLLED UP"

Universal Special Attraction

Directed by Rollin Sturgeon



Service Page for Frank Mayo in "The Magnificent Brute"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Magnificent Brute."

STAR—Frank Mayo.

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Brute Breaker," "Lasca," "The Red Lane," "Honor Bound," "Tiger True," "Colorado," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Robert Thornby.

STORY BY—Malcolm Stuart Boylan.

SCENARIO BY—Lucien Hubbard.

SUPPORTING CAST—Dorothy Devore, Percy Challenger, J. J. Lanoe, Alberta Lee, Lillian Ortez, Ely Stanton, William Eagle-Eye, etc.

LOCALE—The Canadian Woods.

TIME—The Present.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY—William Fildew.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of an ultra-modern girl who trifles with the affections of a primitive man; of his blind fury on discovering that he has been used as a pawn in her social game, and of what transpires when she discovers love unravels a deep mystery and saves his life.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The extreme popularity of the virile star.

2—The vigorous character of the story, whose scenes are laid in the majestic north woods.

3—A forest fire which surpasses in realism any similar scene yet filmed.

4—The wondrous valley of the Yosemite used as a background for many scenes.

5—A series of man-to-man combats which eclipse the terrific fights in "The Brute Breaker."

6—The authorship of the story, by Malcolm Stuart Boylan, son of Grace Duffie Boylan, the novelist, and the screen adaptation by Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City and widely known as an "action" dramatist.

7—The never-failing charm of the primitive—the lure of nature in the raw.

8—The presence in the cast of Dorothy Devore, formerly a popular comedy star.

9—The excellence of the cast, including the correct type for every character.

10—The superb direction of Robert Thornby and the artistic photography of William Fildew.

CAST

Victor	Frank Mayo
Yvonne	Dorothy Devore
Fontaine	Percy Challenger
Mrs. Fontaine	Alberta Lee
Marquis Courtiere	J. J. Lanoe
Indian	William Eagle-Eye
Kendrick	Charles Edler
Randall	Dick Sutherland
Woodsman	Ely Stanton
Woodsman	Buck Moulton
Maid	Lillian Ortez

THE STORY

VICTOR RAOUL is hastening from his cabin in the woods to the trading post at St. Ignace. It is there his partner, M. Fontaine, has his home, and it is there he will find Yvonne, from the convent in France, whom he hasn't seen in five years. With Yvonne has come from Paris the Marquis Courtiere, the Paris representative of the fur firm of M. Fontaine Et Cie, and it is a different Yvonne who greets Victor distantly as he strides into M. Fountaine's drawing-room.

Kendrick, a bully lately come to the St. Ignace country, has been giving whiskey to Victor's Indian as a joke at the Inn of the Voyageurs. Victor warns Kendrick to leave his guide alone. A knife hurled by the latter narrowly misses Victor and is returned in a manner to make Kendrick more cautious.

Victor takes the first opportunity of a private word with Yvonne to remind her of their romance of other years. "In five years a child can grow into a woman," is her answer. "We were but children then, playing at love." Leaving Yvonne, Victor is snubbed by the Marquis and his ill humor is such that he vents his spite on M. Fontaine in a bitter quarrel which is overheard by the Marquis, Yvonne and others. He makes charges of irregularity in Courtiere's accounts with the firm—charges which impel Fontaine to ask apologetically for an account from Courtiere.

Late that night old Fontaine is found apparently dead and his safe robbed. News comes of the finding of Fontaine's body and Victor is accused by those who had heard his quarrel. In a thrilling battle he fights his way to liberty and calls at the Fontaine home to beg Yvonne to believe in him. Victor sets out for his cabin in the woods, the Marquis hurriedly organizing a posse to track him down.

About dawn Fontaine, who was not killed, recovers sufficiently to shake his head feebly when Yvonne asks if Victor struck him down. But before he can tell who did, he relapses into unconsciousness. Yvonne leaves hurriedly with Victor's faithful Indian to head off the posse at the cabin.

Victor on arriving at the cabin finds Kendrick planting the stolen strong box beneath the floor of his cabin to make conviction certain. It was only a slight miscalculation of strength that left Fontaine living instead of dead, as Kendrick and the Marquis intended. With Fontaine out of the way and witnesses ready to testify to Victor's quarrel with him, conviction of Victor should be certain. Victor bests Kendrick in a thrilling battle which ends just as the Marquis and posse arrive. Victor sees them coming and clambers into a storeroom in the roof of the cabin. By a ruse the Marquis gets Yvonne to scream when she arrives at the cabin. This is intended to bring Victor to her rescue so that he can be shot down as he runs, but Victor drops unexpectedly from the roof, covers the posse with their own guns and with Yvonne backs out of the cabin—into the waiting hands of two Northwest Mounted Troopers. The Marquis demands the arrest of Victor as the assailant of Fontaine. The troopers relate that Fontaine has recovered and testified that Kendrick attacked him. Kendrick thereupon accuses the Marquis of paying him to do the job. The troopers have a warrant issued in France accusing the Marquis of misappropriating funds which should have been transmitted to the main office at St. Ignace in payment for furs. As the troopers ride down the trail with the prisoners, Victor sighs as he tells Yvonne of the hours he had labored to make that cabin beautiful for her to live in. Yvonne looks up into his eyes as she answers him, "I am here, Victor."

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

Violently loved by a man she secretly adored—was she in terrible Danger or on the way to Lovelight Bay? See "THE MAGNIFICENT BRUTE."

As big and silent as the pines in his beloved forest—as furious in battle as a wind-lashed tree — as gentle in love as a woman. You will like Frank Mayo in "THE MAGNIFICENT BRUTE."

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 13 MARCH 19, 1921 No. 5

EDITORIALS

REPRESENTATIVES introducing moving picture censorship bills in the legislatures of Nebraska and Utah, two States recently active in this work, are not welcomed as public benefactors, but, on the contrary, are being generally denounced on all sides for directing unfavorable publicity towards their fellow lawmakers. The leading newspapers of these Western States have come out firmly against all advocates of the recent "anti-everything bills."

In the following editorial the Salt Lake Telegram, of Salt Lake City, Utah, reports on the present activity shown in the legislature to ban uncensored films in the State:

"A few days ago a light in the Utah legislature proposed a law requiring the erection of fences in the business districts of cities of this state to keep burglars out. Now comes Representative Parker of Cache county with a proposal to put a wall around the state which will keep everybody out. The situation would be funny if it were not for the fact that the last elections brought so many of the same view to the Utah legislative halls.

"Mr. Parker starts with a proposal to prohibit the showing of any film in the state in which a cigarette appears, even in a minor rôle. He concludes by locking the state up tight on Sunday, prohibiting picture shows as well as exhibitions and entertainments of all kinds. We do not understand why he does not order the keys thrown away lest these institutions operate the other six days of the week.

"Meanwhile the urgent business of the state legislature lags. How can it be otherwise when the competition for the stellar rôle of stupidity is so keen? Our legislative friends have notoriety and fame hopelessly confused, as the individual members vie with each other for the crowning freak of the session. At the same time the state is forced into competition with Zion City, Ill., for the laughs and jibes of the country at large."

THE Evening World-Herald, of Omaha, Nebraska, states its views on this same question in the following editorial.

"We wonder if the people of Nebraska and the legislature of Nebraska have a definite idea of just what it is that the motion picture censorship bill presented by the "Nebraska Children's Code Commission" means.

By whom is the censoring to be done? What voice shall the people have in choosing them? According to what rules and standards shall the censorship be administered?

Censorship, as all men and women who believe in democracy sense instinctively, is a serious proposal freighted with menace to popular liberty—to the freedom of thought and ideas and expression. Censorship of motion pictures is directly that.

Who among our citizenship are competent to say, in the name of all of us, just what ideas, bearing on social and moral questions it is permitted to present in Nebraska, and what ideas are to be banned?

The children's code commission, in the legislation it asks, says we should create three censors for Nebraska at an annual salary of $3,000 each. These three shall appoint such other "operators, clerks, inspectors, and other employees as shall be necessary, and fix the compensation therefor." And all of them, censors and censors' appointees, shall be paid all expenses incurred in addition to their salaries.

How shall the three be chosen?

Shall they be elected by the people? No. Appointed by the governor whom the people have elected? No. They shall be named by the secretary of the state department of public welfare."

WHEN International News Reel No. 18, containing pictures of the inauguration of President Harding, were thrown on the screens of Broadway theatres, March 4, a few hours after the actual ceremonies in Washington, the New York audiences were treated to a novelty. The Harding inauguration pictures were immediately followed by pictures of the Wilson inauguration, taken eight years ago, and which showed in strange contrast to those of today.

The double inauguration pictures were possible to no other news reel, as International has the only negatives in this country of the first Wilson inauguration. They show Wilson smilingly accepting the high office from William Taft. His vigor and cheerfulness are in strange contrast to the pictures of 1921, in which he could not conceal his broken health and care-worn appearance.

The 1913 inauguration pictures obtained by International News are said to have been the first movie news picture exhibited the same day as being taken. E. B. Hatrick, now general news manager of the International News, conceived the idea of putting the inauguration pictures on the screen in Washington, the same day. The same pictures were shown in New York the following morning. It is significant of the progress of the news reel business that the time has been cut down to a few hours from camera to screen in the case of important news.

Publicity Stories for Frank Mayo in “The Magnificent Brute’

NORTH WOODS DRAMA MAYO IN STAR PART

FRANK MAYO, the vigorous star of “The Brute Breaker” and other big Universal features, will be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on .... in his newest and fastest action drama, “The Magnificent Brute.”

The story was written especially for Mayo and adapted to the screen by Lucien Hubbard, who added dramatic twists and thrills to suit the broad versatility of the star.

Presented against an awe inspiring scenic background of the mighty Yosemite, the story deals with Victor Raoul, a fur trapper of the Canadian North who visits the haunts of civilization but once a year. He falls in love with the daughter of his partner, Yvonne, a Parisian bred girl who is strangely out of place in the wilderness and who toys with the big fellow for sheer amusement. How he is accused of murder and escapes in the trackless forest, later to be saved by the girl, is just one of the incidents which leads to the whirlwind climax.

A furious man-hunt, a fight that dwarfs the famous battle of “The Brute Breaker” for action and a love story that starts with a spark and develops into an inferno, are additional situations which will keep the spectators in doubt as to the story's outcome until the last scene.

Frank Mayo is said to be at his very best in the rôle of Victor Raoul, the giant of the north woods, whose passions are elemental and whose code of honor primitive.

SCHOOLED IN PARIS REFUSES FUR TRAPPER

ONE of the most daring love escapades ever conceived by a romantic girl causes a furious chase and a terrific man-killing battle in “The Magnificent Brute,” the Universal photodrama which opened last night at the .... Theatre with Frank Mayo in the starring rôle.

The story takes place in the majestic north woods where the primitive emotions have full sway and the elements conspire to break the spirits of the men who brave the fury of nature to earn a livelihood.

As Victor Raoul, Frank Mayo appears in the rôle of a trapper who goes to the city to find love. Yvonne Fontaine, an ultra-modern girl just from Paris, tells him that they had only played at love five years before. She sends him back to his forest in an ugly mood. An hour later Fontaine, his partner, is found in what appears to be a dying condition. Victor is accused. He returns to tell Yvonne that he is innocent. She reserves judgment and Victor starts for his hidden cabin in the great woods. When her father recovers consciousness and tells her that Victor did not strike him down, the girl sets out to head off the posse. She finds Victor at his cabin in a furious fight against eight men and saves his life.

Then an amazing thing happened which is told so forcibly on the screen that it would be unfair to those who will see the production to tell it now.

CAUGHT IN SNOW-SLIDE FILMS LOST IN STORM

SEVERAL thousand dollars were added to the estimated cost of producing “The Magnificent Brute” by a playful prank of nature. “The Magnificent Brute” is the latest Universal feature, starring Frank Mayo, and it is coming to the .... Theatre next ....

As many of the most important scenes in this story are laid in the frozen wilds of the Canadian forests, Robert Thornby, the director, took the entire company to the valley of the Yosemite. This is but a twelve hours ride from the flowers and sunshine of Southern California, but here nature shows itself in different guise. The giant pines and the deep snow make this location unapproachable as a background for a story of the far north.

It was while taking a scene on the edge of a mountain, with the camera and lighting effects backed against the hill and the company playing a scene in front of a forest of pines, that a snow slide occurred. It was one of the worst of the kind that had occurred in the Yosemite this year and did considerable damage throughout the valley. The actors were in a position to see the avalanche of snow rushing down the mountain side and ran for safety, warning the director, cameraman and their assistants. The valuable cameras and film magazines were saved, but much of the electrical equipment was destroyed and damaged. The portable power plant was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars, besides necessitating the spending of several days on location while repairs were made.

Those who see “The Magnificent Brute,” however, will agree with Universal that the picture is worth all that it cost, and more. It is said to be the best feature in which Frank Mayo has appeared since “The Brute Breaker” and to eclipse that photoplay in many ways.

ON NORTHERN TRAILS SHOWN BY UNIVERSAL

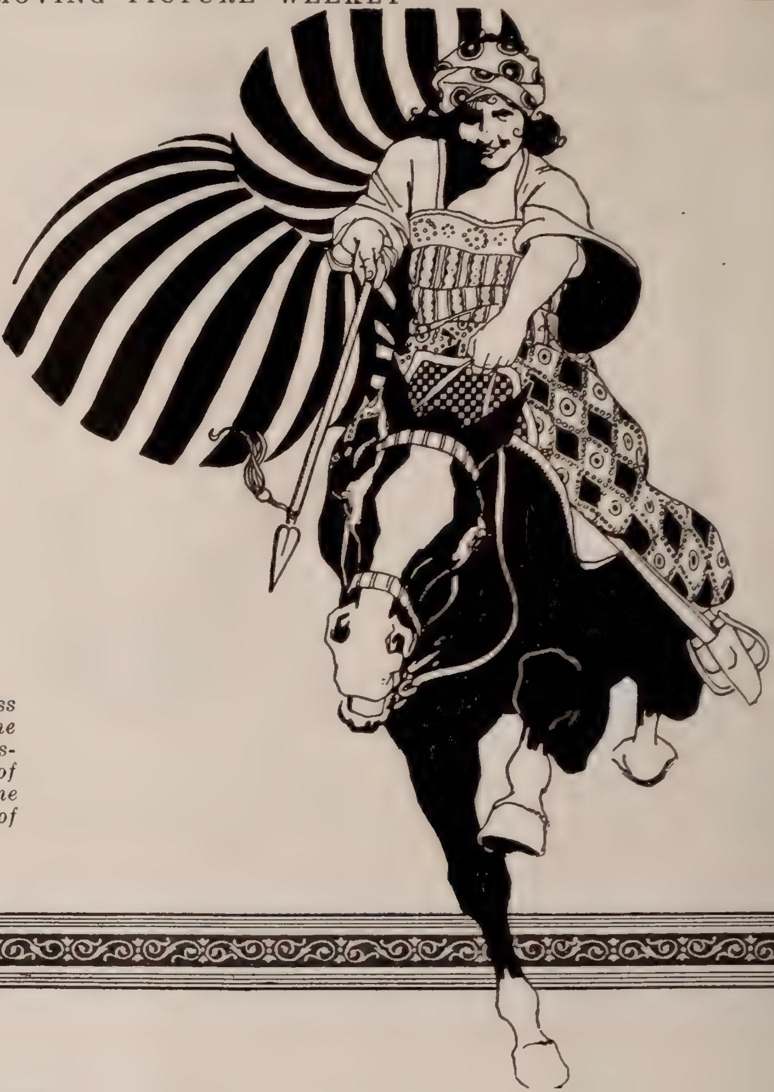
VICTOR RAOUL, a magnificent brute from the forest, goes into the trading post of St. Ignace to see his senior partner, Fontaine, and incidentally his daughter, Yvonne, who has just returned from Paris.

When the girl left for Europe five years before she promised big Victor that she would return to him. On the night of their meeting at Fontaine's home in St. Ignace she said that their love was just a sham. Victor goes out into the night sullen and unhappy. An hour later Fontaine is found in what appears to be a dying condition. Victor, eluding capture as the one suspected, returns to the house to tell Yvonne that he is innocent. Then he strikes out into the trackless immensity of the woods with his pursuers hot upon his trail.

That is the situation that starts things moving in “The Magnificent Brute,” the Universal photodrama which opens at the .... Theatre on .... with Frank Mayo as Victor Raoul.

The story was filmed in the heart of the Yosemite and at Universal City under the direction of Robert Thornby from Lucien Hubbard's adaptation of the story by Malcolm Stuart Boylan.

Playing opposite the star in a particularly vivacious rôle will be seen Dorothy Devore, the former comedy star who has turned her talent into dramatic channels.



See the untamed Virgin charge across the blazing desert at the head of the fiery Black Horse troop—see her rescue her lover from the revenge of Achmet Hamid and you will see one of the greatest picture spectacles of modern times.

WHEN you employ a man you do so on his record or on some reliable recommendation. You do that because it's prudent business. And it's just as much prudent business to book pictures that way. That's why we can't be too emphatic when we say that what "The Virgin of Stamboul" has done for thousands of other exhibitors it will do for you—and its record shows that it has made money in big city and small town — everywhere. Take it from reliable sources — you'll profit by booking the "Virgin."

CARL LAEMMLE presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

In the Gorgeous Universal-
Jewel Production De Luxe.

"The VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

Directed by Tod Browning

Story by H. H. Van Loan

Publicity Stories for Edith Roberts in "The Unknown Wife"

GAINS HEALTH AND GIRL NEW LIFE FOR "THE KID"

"THE UNKNOWN WIFE" is the title of Edith Roberts' latest Universal photodrama which will begin an engagement at the .... Theatre on .... The story is one of the most absorbing of recent months, affording splendid opportunities for the star and for her excellent support, chief among whom is Casson Ferguson, who achieved such great success recently in "Madame X" and "The mutiny of the Elsinore." Ferguson was selected to support Miss Roberts because of his particular fitness for the rôle of "The Kid," the brain power behind a band of young criminals.

As the story opens he is found in a New England factory town where he has been sent to regain his health after a prison term. In the town dwells a girl who runs a boarding house to support her invalid father, and there the Kid goes to rest up and make his plans to rob the factory.

After a month his pals arrive under the shadow of night and hide out in the village to see what their chief is doing. It is a Sunday morning and they see him wheeling the girl's father to church. "The Kid has sunk so low that he's going to rob the collection plate,' 'they thought. But The Kid hadn't reached that depth. He had reformed.

At least he thought he had until he found himself involved with the police in one of the strangest tangles ever conceived to lead up to a smashing climax.

"UNKNOWN WIFE" HERE SEEN IN NEW FEATURE

DARING plot, more daring love and furious dramatic action are promised playgoers who attend the .... Theatre on .... when Edith Roberts, the irresistible Universal star makes her first local appearance in "The Unknown Wife."

The story is from the pen of Bennett Cohen and crackles with speedy action. Even more thrills were introduced when Wallace Clifton wrote the scenario and William Worthington produced it on the screen with dramatic interpretations of his own.

"The Unknown Wife" deals with "The Kid," the creative brain behind a band of young criminals, who leaves the country by his pals. He arrives in Camsdenville, a New England village, and rests up while he plans to rob the factory.

Perhaps guided by fate he becomes a boarder at the home of Helen Wilburton, a slip of a girl who is trying to suport her invalid father. Gradually he succombs to her wholesome influence and determines to live straight. They fall in love and are married.

Edith Roberts
UNIVERSAL

Then comes a relentless oppression of the past. Because of his shadowy career, the Kid is unable to find employment. To support the two of them, the girl secures a position as a secretary in the home of the district attorney who sent her husband to prison.

The dramatic thrills that accompany the story from that point on are too unique to be guessed and give "The Unknown Wife" an appeal which will further establish Miss Roberts as one of the most popular feminine stars of the screen.

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE" FINDS STRAIGHT PATH

ONLY love can erase the stain of prison from a man's heart.

That was the conclusion that theatregoers who attended the .... Theatre last night came to after seeing Edith Roberts, the irresistible Universal star, in what will probably be listed among her greatest interpretations of emotion, "The Unknown Wife."

As the story opens she is seen as the daughter of an invalid who keeps a boarding house for a scant living. Into her home, and then into her life, comes "The Kid," the brain-dynamo that drives the silent wheels of a criminal machine, a machine made up of daring and desperate men who run the gauntlet of the law to live.

The Kid arrives to regain his prison-broken health and to plan the robbery of the town's factory. Instead he regains moral poise under the girl's influence, determines to live down the past, and a wonderful love story develops.

How they marry and go to the city to find that The Kid's past bars their way to either success or happiness brings the story to a climax that crackles with thrills and sizzles with unexpected drama.

"The Unknown Wife" was written by Bennett Cohen and produced under the direction of William Worthington. If the applause of playgoers at the .... Theatre last night can be taken as a guide, it should prove immensely popular among those thousands who like action, love interest and the inimitable Edith Roberts.

MONTH OF GRAND OPERA STARS HAVE FESTIVAL

THE production of "The Unknown Wife," the principal attraction now at the .... Theatre, was like a month of grand opera.

Edith Roberts, the star, is a concert singer with a particularly appealing soprano; William Worthington, the director, was a former grand opera singer, while Casson Ferguson, Miss Roberts' leading man, sang in concert, light opera and musical comedy before he became a photoplayer.

All three of the important film folk are trained singers and in the lull between scenes of "The Unknown Wife" they sang together until the crowd that gathered from other parts of Universal City wanted them to forget picture making and sing throughout the day.

William Worthington started his career as a singer, appearing in grand opera and concert after his studies in France and Germany.

Casson Ferguson left Alexandria, La., as a boy with an idea that he might someday learn to sing. He studied in Paris and was acclaimed one of the best young tenors of the musical colony.

Spottiswoode Aiken ,who plays Miss Roberts' invalid father, brought his violin; Joe Neary, who has the rôle of one of the trio of light fingered gentry, is a "bear" with the saxaphone, and the two actors augmented the regular orchestra which every company of screen players is supplied with during production.

The Love that threatened a Country's Destiny!

Show this
ALL-STAR CAST

TSURU AOKI
J. BARNEY SHERRY
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
MARION SKINNER

DIRECTED BY
ROLLIN STURGEON

A MARVELOUS DRAMA
OF DIPLOMATIC INTRIGUE

ADAPTED FROM SIDNEY McCALLS FAMOUS STORY

"The Breath of the Gods"

UNIVERSAL—JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE

The Small Theatre is lucky ------ it plays only proven pictures !

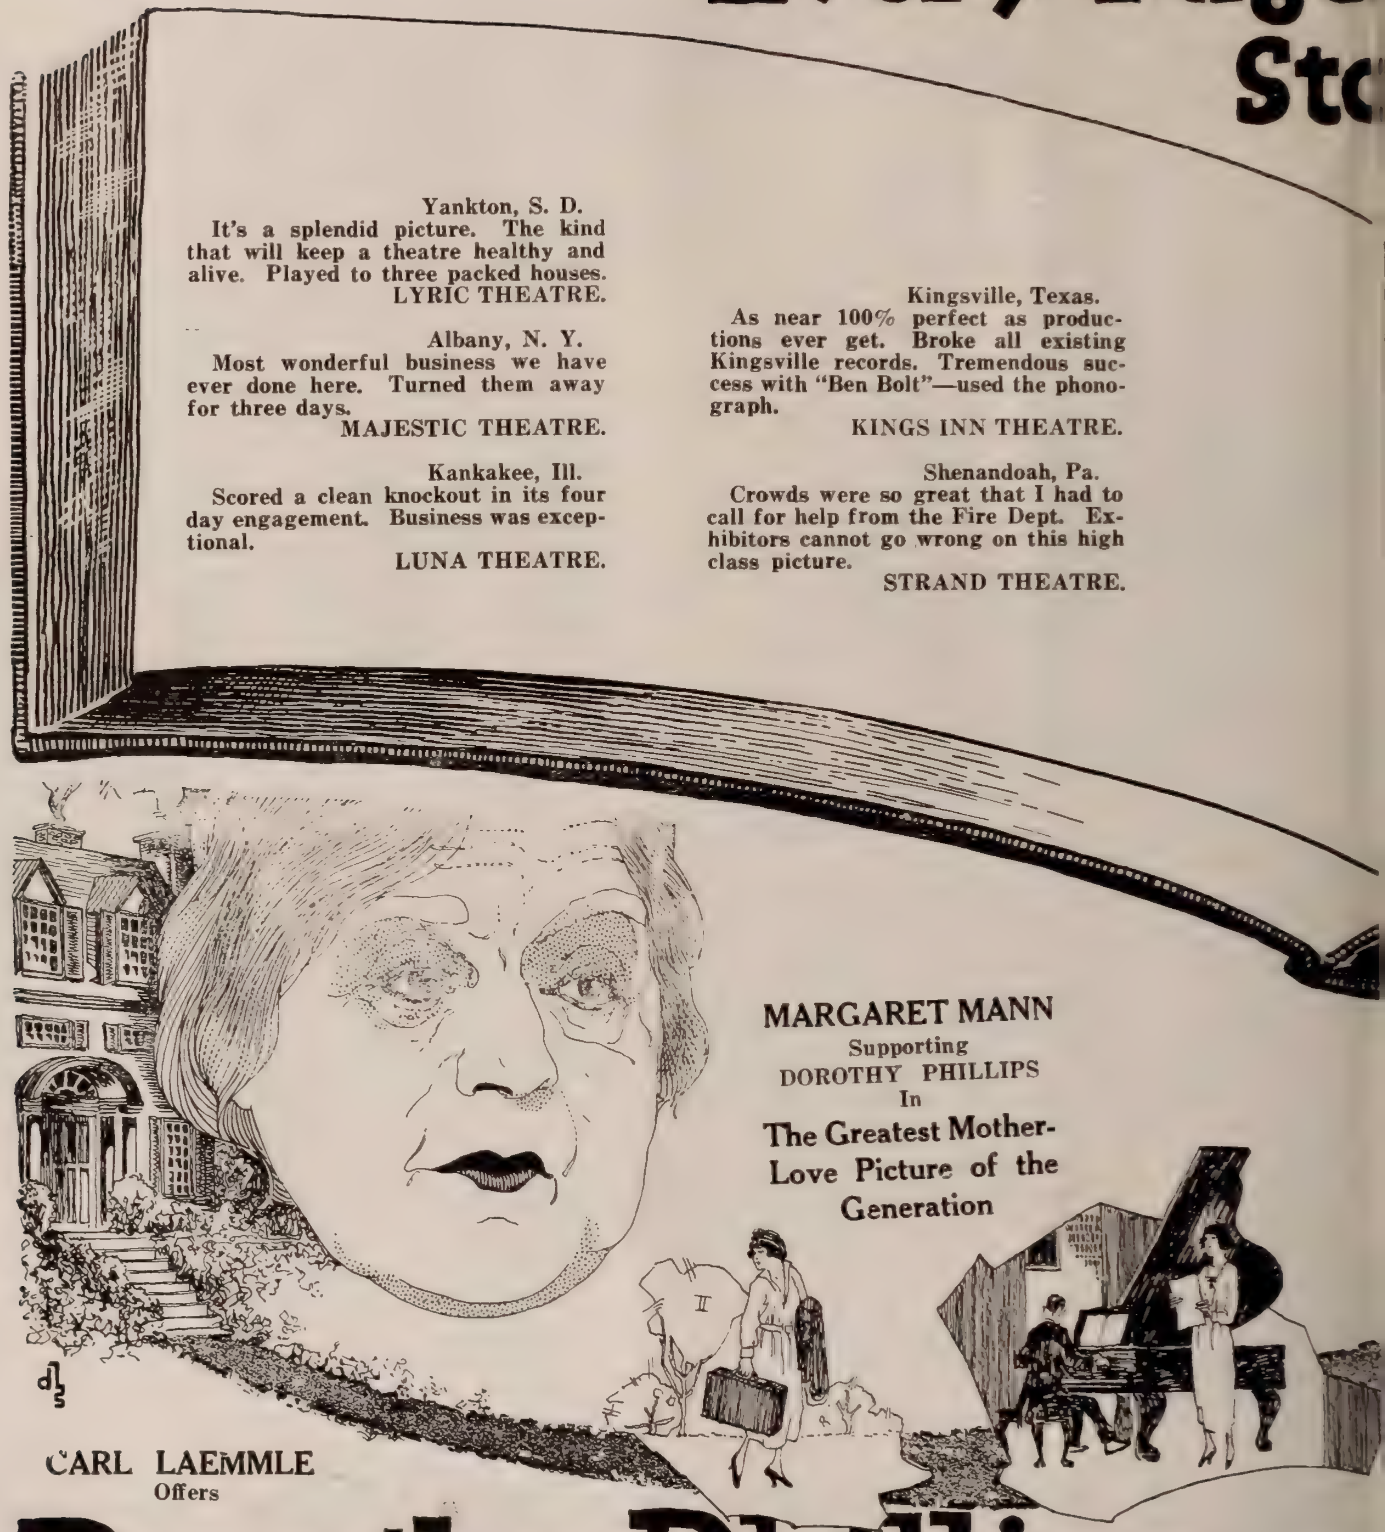
YOU—the small theatre owner—are the luckiest cuss in the picture business, because you don't have to play anything but proven pictures. Take "The Devil's Passkey," for instance—it was the big house that had to prove this up—you simply sat back and waited to see what would happen. And it's happened. "The Devil's Passkey" has been proven to be one of the biggest small-town pictures ever made. For example, read what a small town—Exeter, N. H. (neighborhood patronage)—says: "If you have not used it, get it! It is the first picture I ever brought back for a second time." (Signed) G. W. Yeaton, Ioka Theatre.

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS Von Stroheim's
MASTER PICTURE

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION de LUXE

Every Page
St



Yankton, S. D.
It's a splendid picture. The kind that will keep a theatre healthy and alive. Played to three packed houses.
LYRIC THEATRE.

Albany, N. Y.
Most wonderful business we have ever done here. Turned them away for three days.
MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Kankakee, Ill.
Scored a clean knockout in its four day engagement. Business was exceptional.
LUNA THEATRE.

Kingsville, Texas.
As near 100% perfect as productions ever get. Broke all existing Kingsville records. Tremendous success with "Ben Bolt"—used the phonograph.
KINGS INN THEATRE.

Shenandoah, Pa.
Crowds were so great that I had to call for help from the Fire Dept. Exhibitors cannot go wrong on this high class picture.
STRAND THEATRE.

MARGARET MANN
Supporting
DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In
The Greatest Mother-Love Picture of the Generation

CARL LAEMMLE
Offers

Dorothy Phillips in

UNIVERSAL — JEWEL

Tells the Same ry

Fort Dodge, Ia.

A bear and then some. Played it three days and business constantly improved. Put on singer with especially pleasing results.

RIALTO THEATRE.

Davenport, Ia.

Did a smashing business. Was talked about all over the Tri-Cities. This wonderful picture will get business for every exhibitor. Trying to arrange a return engagement.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Cedar Falls, Ia.

There was not a dry eye in the house during the singing of "Ben Bolt." This is an "AA" super-production in every sense of the word.

REGENT THEATRE.

Easton, Pa.

Our last week's business was the biggest we have ever done. Positively broke all records. The cleanest picture ever presented in Easton and the best since "Birth of a Nation."

STRAND THEATRE.

Viroqua, Wis.

Proved to be one of the best attractions. Not a single adverse criticism. Business good.

STAR THEATRE.

Directed by Allen Holubar

"Once to Every Woman"

PRODUCTION DE LUXE

"biggest crowds in years"

Carl Laemmle
presents
The Greatest
American
Melodrama
ever
Screened

ASCHER'S MERRILL THEATRE, MILWAUKEE

"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' opened at Merrill today to biggest crowds in years, turning away just as many. Comments received are evidence of greatly satisfied audiences. One look at the crowds in the lobby and on the sidewalk enough to prove 'Outside The Law' one of the biggest box-office attractions ever released. In our opinion, a truly wonderful production."

PRISCILLA DEAN Supported by LON CHANEY

"smashed all records"

Tod Browning's amazing Universal Jewel Production de Luxe

HOLMAN THEATRE, MONTREAL

" 'OUTSIDE THE LAW' smashed all records of attendance and receipts, competing against first-run double bills of West End theatres of this city. Had to send S. O. S. call to police force. Real riot. Women fought with men to get tickets. S. R. O. only one hour after opening. Ticket office closed and house jammed one hour and a half after opening both Saturday and Sunday. It is the talk of Montreal."

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

"most wonderful melodrama"

Carl Laemmle presents the Greatest American Melodrama ever Screened

LIBERTY THEATRE, KANSAS CITY

"I HAVE just finished the first week of 'Outside The Law' in my Liberty Theatre. That we broke all records for attendance is not surprising. This picture surely went over big and pleased everybody. I recommend it highly as the most wonderful melodrama and great money-maker. I am waiting for your next Priscilla Dean."

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by
LON CHANI

“Tremendous business”

Tod Browning’s amazing Universal Jewel Production de Luxe

ELLANAY THEATRE, EL PASO

“ ‘OUTSIDE THE LAW’ opened up with tremendous business. It broke all records by over three hundred and fifty dollars. Almost blocked the traffic with the crowd in front of the theatre waiting to get in from time show was open till last show. Priscilla Dean does the best work of her career. Despite increased admission prices, patrons complimented picture highly. Indications are that the week’s business will surpass anything done in the history of the show business in El Paso. More people were turned away than saw the picture.”

“OUTSIDE THE LAW”

Through The West With The Tam Girl

Priscilla Dean wearing her tam, now a popular standard model.

TWO of the best exploitation campaigns ever put over in the Middle West were used to introduce the Universal-Jewel photoplay "Outside The Law" to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Akron, Ohio. As a direct result of the advance publicity and advertising this feature film proved to be the sensation of the theatrical world in those two cities.

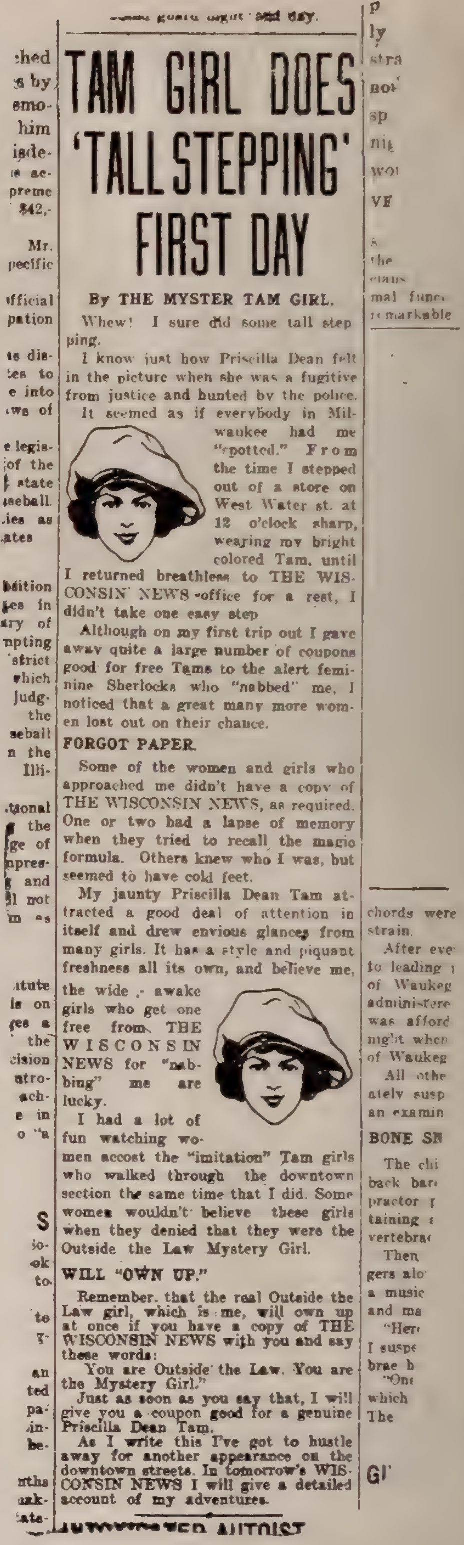
When the picture was booked for the Merrill Theatre in Milwaukee, the manager of the theatre, working with the Universal exploitation department, immediately secured the co-operation of The Wisconsin News, the leading daily newspaper in that city. During the week of the showing of "Outside The Law" all records at the Merrill Theatre were broken.

The managing editor of the paper was favorably impressed with the Priscilla Dean Tam Girl stunt. A cleverly-laid campaign informed the readers of the paper that they could secure a free tam by identifying the young woman reporter who would be sent through the business section of the city dressed as the "Priscilla Dean Tam Girl." A coupon would be given to every one who approached the reporter, showed her a copy of the current issue of The News and said, "You are Outside The Law: You are The Mystery Girl."

Before she started out each day her route was outlined, giving the hour she was expected to be in certain stores. There were several other girls wearing tams similar to the Priscilla Dean model sent through the shopping districts and they were often mistaken for the real girl.

Every evening an account of the reporter's experience was printed on the front page of the newspaper, and one of her column articles is reproduced here. Her experiences were very amusing: many of the women who accosted her forgot the complete formula or else did not have a copy of the day's paper with them. Before they could locate the girl with the tam again, she had disappeared in the crowds.

The advertising manager of the News jumped to the chance to tie up the campaign with the local stores. He secured special advertisements from the merchants in whose stores the Tam Girl was scheduled to appear.



TAM GIRL DOES 'TALL STEPPING' FIRST DAY

By THE MYSTER TAM GIRL.

Whew! I sure did some tall stepping.

I know just how Priscilla Dean felt in the picture when she was a fugitive from justice and hunted by the police.

It seemed as if everybody in Milwaukee had me "spotted." From the time I stepped out of a store on West Water st. at 12 o'clock sharp, wearing my bright colored Tam, until I returned breathless to THE WISCONSIN NEWS office for a rest, I didn't take one easy step

Although on my first trip out I gave away quite a large number of coupons good for free Tams to the alert feminine Sherlocks who "nabbed" me, I noticed that a great many more women lost out on their chance.

FORGOT PAPER.

Some of the women and girls who approached me didn't have a copy of THE WISCONSIN NEWS, as required. One or two had a lapse of memory when they tried to recall the magic formula. Others knew who I was, but seemed to have cold feet.

My jaunty Priscilla Dean Tam attracted a good deal of attention in itself and drew envious glances from many girls. It has a style and piquant freshness all its own, and believe me, the wide - awake girls who get one free from THE WISCONSIN NEWS for "nabbing" me are lucky.

I had a lot of fun watching women accost the "imitation" Tam girls who walked through the downtown section the same time that I did. Some women wouldn't believe these girls when they denied that they were the Outside the Law Mystery Girl.

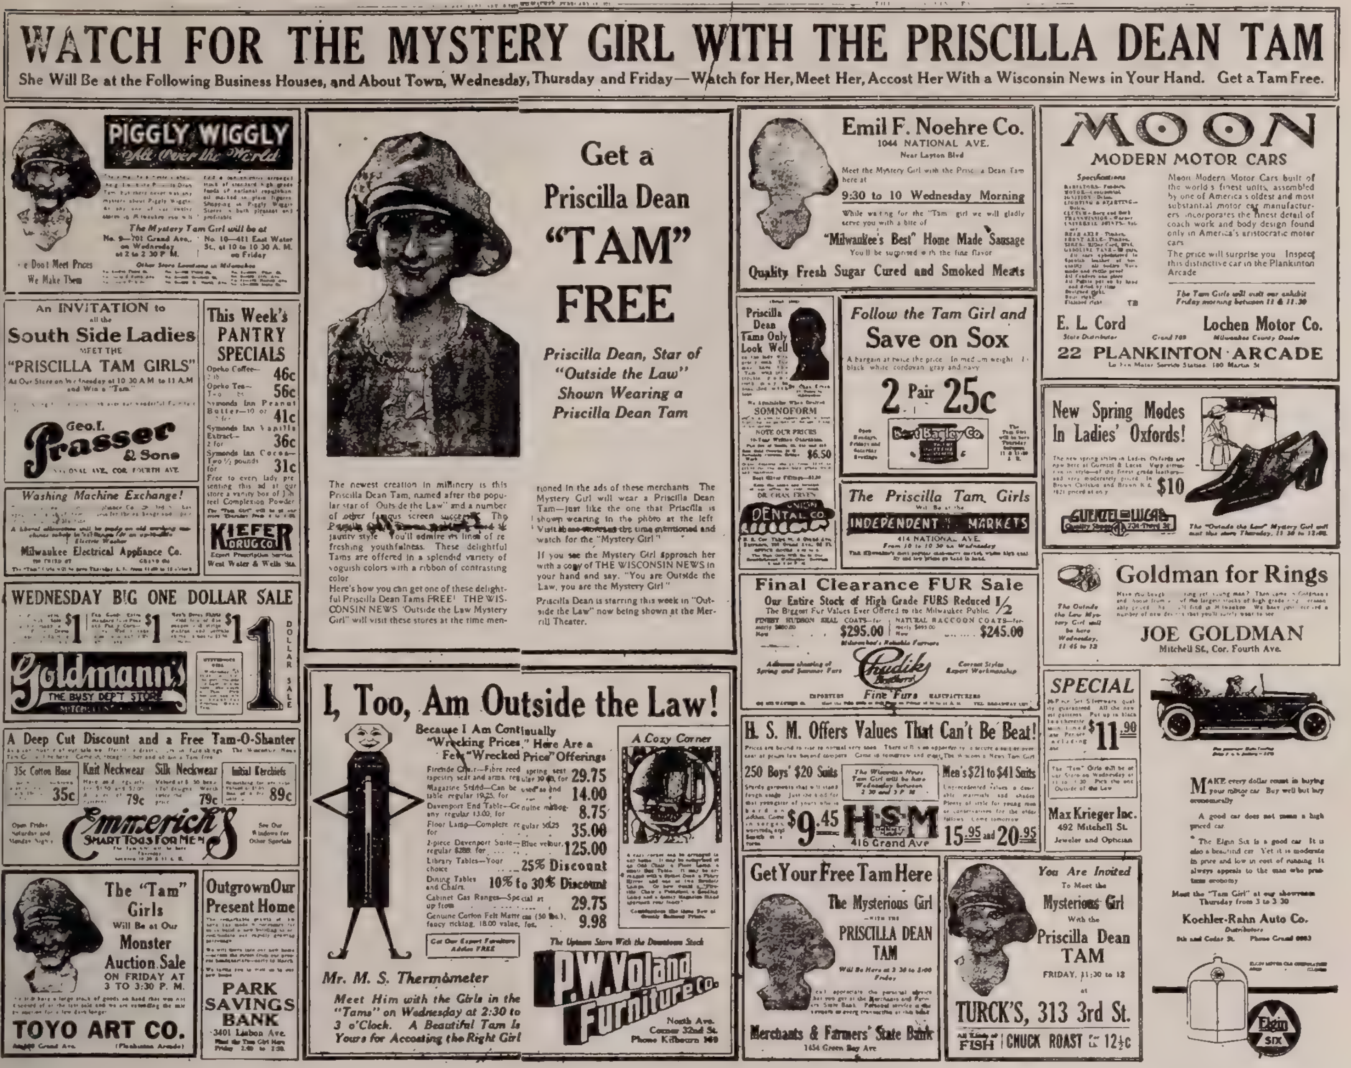
WILL "OWN UP."

Remember, that the real Outside the Law girl, which is me, will own up at once if you have a copy of THE WISCONSIN NEWS with you and say these words:

You are Outside the Law. You are the Mystery Girl."

Just as soon as you say that, I will give you a coupon good for a genuine Priscilla Dean Tam.

As I write this I've got to hustle away for another appearance on the downtown streets. In tomorrow's WISCONSIN NEWS I will give a detailed account of my adventures.



WATCH FOR THE MYSTERY GIRL WITH THE PRISCILLA DEAN TAM

She Will Be at the Following Business Houses, and About Town, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—Watch for Her, Meet Her, Accost Her With a Wisconsin News in Your Hand. Get a Tam Free.

PIGGLY WIGGLY
All Over the World

We Dont Meet Prices
We Make Them

The Mystery Tam Girl will be at
No. 9—701 Grand Ave., on Wednesday at 2 to 2 30 P. M.
No. 10—411 East Water St., at 10 to 10 30 A. M. on Friday

Other Store Locations in Milwaukee

An INVITATION to all the South Side Ladies
MEET THE
"PRISCILLA TAM GIRLS"
At Our Store on Wednesday at 10 30 A M to 11 A M and Win a "Tam."

Geo. F. Prasser & Sons
NATIONAL AVE. COR. FOURTH AVE.

This Week's PANTRY SPECIALS
Opeko Coffee— 46c
Opeko Tea— 56c
Symonds Inn Peanut Butter—10 oz 41c
Symonds Inn Vanilla Extract—2 for 36c
Symonds Inn Cocoa—Two ½ pounds for 31c
Free to every lady presenting this ad at our store a vanity box of Jonteel Complexion Powder

KIEFER DRUG CO.
Expert Prescription Service.
West Water & Wells Sts.

Washing Machine Exchange!

A liberal allowance will be made on old washing machines
Milwaukee Electrical Appliance Co.

WEDNESDAY BIG ONE DOLLAR SALE
$1 $1 $1
1 DOLLAR SALE
Goldmann's
THE BUSY DEPT STORE

A Deep Cut Discount and a Free Tam-O-Shanter
35c Cotton Hose 35c
Knit Neckwear 79c
Silk Neckwear 79c
Initial Kerchiefs 89c
Open Friday Saturday and Monday Nights
Emmerich's
SMART TOGS FOR MEN
See Our Windows for Other Specials

The "Tam" Girls
Will Be at Our Monster Auction Sale
ON FRIDAY AT 3 TO 3:30 P. M.
TOYO ART CO.

Outgrown Our Present Home
PARK SAVINGS BANK
3401 Lisbon Ave.

Get a Priscilla Dean "TAM" FREE

Priscilla Dean, Star of "Outside the Law" Shown Wearing a Priscilla Dean Tam

The newest creation in millinery is this Priscilla Dean Tam, named after the popular star of "Outside the Law" and a number of other famous screen successes. The Priscilla [illegible] jaunty style. You'll admire its lines of refreshing youthfulness. These delightful Tams are offered in a splendid variety of voguish colors with a ribbon of contrasting color.

Here's how you can get one of these delightful Priscilla Dean Tams FREE! THE WISCONSIN NEWS "Outside the Law Mystery Girl" will visit these stores at the time mentioned in the ads of these merchants. The Mystery Girl will wear a Priscilla Dean Tam—just like the one that Priscilla is shown wearing in the photo at the left. Visit these stores at the time mentioned and watch for the "Mystery Girl."

If you see the Mystery Girl approach her with a copy of THE WISCONSIN NEWS in your hand and say, "You are Outside the Law, you are the Mystery Girl."

Priscilla Dean is starring this week in "Outside the Law" now being shown at the Merrill Theater.

I, Too, Am Outside the Law!

Because I Am Continually "Wrecking Prices," Here Are a Few "Wrecked Price" Offerings

Fireside Chair—Fibre reed spring seat tapestry seat and arms, regular 39.00, for	29.75
Magazine Stand—Can be used as end table, regular 19.25, for	14.00
Davenport End Table—Genuine mahogany, regular 13.00, for	8.75
Floor Lamp—Complete, regular 50.25 for	35.00
2-piece Davenport Suite—Blue velour, regular $200, for	125.00
Library Tables—Your choice	25% Discount
Dining Tables and Chairs	10% to 30% Discount
Cabinet Gas Ranges—Special at up from	29.75
Genuine Cotton Felt Mattress (50 lbs.), fancy ticking, 18.00 value, for	9.98

Get Our Expert Furniture Advice FREE

A Cozy Corner

Mr. M. S. Thermometer

Meet Him with the Girls in the "Tams" on Wednesday at 2:30 to 3 o'Clock. A Beautiful Tam Is Yours for Accosting the Right Girl

The Uptown Store With the Downtown Stock
P. W. Voland Furniture Co.
North Ave. Corner 32nd St.
Phone Kilbourn 169

Emil F. Noehre Co.
1044 NATIONAL AVE.
Near Layton Blvd
Meet the Mystery Girl with the Priscilla Dean Tam here at 9:30 to 10 Wednesday Morning
While waiting for the "Tam" girl we will gladly serve you with a bite of "Milwaukee's Best" Home Made Sausage
You'll be surprised with the fine flavor
Quality Fresh Sugar Cured and Smoked Meats

Priscilla Dean Tams Only Look Well
SOMNOFORM
NOTE OUR PRICES
$6.50
DR. CHAS. ERVEN
UNION DENTAL CO.

Follow the Tam Girl and Save on Sox
A bargain at twice the price. In medium weight in black, white, cordovan, gray and navy
2 Pair 25c
Bert Bagley Co.

The Priscilla Tam Girls
Will Be at the INDEPENDENT MARKETS
414 NATIONAL AVE.
From 10 to 10 30 on Wednesday

Final Clearance FUR Sale
Our Entire Stock of High Grade FURS Reduced ½
The Biggest Fur Values Ever Offered to the Milwaukee Public
FINEST HUDSON SEAL COATS—formerly $600.00 Now $295.00
NATURAL RACCOON COATS—formerly $495.00 Now $245.00
Chudik Brothers
Fine Furs
Correct Styles Expert Workmanship

H. S. M. Offers Values That Can't Be Beat!
250 Boys' $20 Suits $9.45
Men's $21 to $41 Suits 15.95 and 20.95
HSM
416 Grand Ave

Get Your Free Tam Here
The Mysterious Girl
—WITH THE—
PRISCILLA DEAN TAM
Merchants & Farmers' State Bank
1654 Green Bay Ave

You Are Invited
To Meet the Mysterious Girl
With the
Priscilla Dean TAM
FRIDAY, 11:30 to 12
at
TURCK'S, 313 3rd St.
FISH | CHUCK ROAST 12½c

MOON
MODERN MOTOR CARS
Moon Modern Motor Cars built of the world's finest units, assembled by one of America's oldest and most substantial motor car manufacturers, incorporates the finest detail of coach work and body design found only in America's aristocratic motor cars.
The price will surprise you. Inspect this distinctive car in the Plankinton Arcade.
The Tam Girls will visit our exhibit Friday morning between 11 & 11.30
E. L. Cord, State Distributor
Lochen Motor Co., Milwaukee County Dealer
22 PLANKINTON ARCADE

New Spring Modes In Ladies' Oxfords!
$10
GUENZEL & LUCAS

Goldman for Rings
The Outside the Law Mystery Girl will be here Wednesday, 11 45 to 12
JOE GOLDMAN
Mitchell St., Cor. Fourth Ave.

SPECIAL
$11.90
Max Krieger Inc.
492 Mitchell St.
Jeweler and Optician

MAKE every dollar count in buying your motor car. Buy well but buy economically.

A good car does not mean a high priced car.

The Elgin Six is a good car. It is also a beautiful car. Yet it is moderate in price and low in cost of running. It always appeals to the man who practices economy.

Meet the "Tam Girl" at our showroom Thursday from 3 to 3 30
Koehler-Rahn Auto Co.
Distributors
Elgin SIX

Double page advertisement used in The Wisconsin News during "Outside The Law" showing in Milwaukee, Wis.

During the height of the campaign a special two-page advertisement was run in the paper containing specially prepared copy from the leading merchants in the city. Practically every d of business institution was represented on the display page. This succeeded in crowding the various stores with eager and enthusiastic shoppers at the time for the appearance of the girl with the coupons for the free tams.

Far surpassing any moving picture exploitation campaign previously held in Akron, Ohio, was the campaign used for the first showing of "Outside The Law" in the State of Ohio, which broke all records at the Allen Theatre in Akron. Most of the campaign was directed through the newspapers of the city as the Allen Theatre, which is one of the prettiest houses in Northern Ohio, does not go in for sensational lobby displays.

On the opening Sunday it was necessary to have police protection in the block upon which the theatre stands. The succceding days of the week of February 13th held up the first day's average attendance. Allen Theatre records established by Douglas Fairbanks in "The Mark of Zorro" and by Mary Pickford before the mid-winter drop in the moving picture business, were smashed.

Perhaps the greatest and most intense interest during the campaign in the scheduled showing of the picture, was created by the threat of a court action by Joseph Mayer, of the Universal exploitation department, to compel the manager of the Allen Theatre to show the picture at an advanced admission charge.

The entire summary of the controversy which drew space on the front page of all the Akron papers is contained in the following telegram to the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY from R. J. Henderson, of the Beacon Journal. The matter was later arbitrated and the film shown at the usual rate of admission.

Editor Moving Picture Weekly,
1600 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Threats of court action on the part of Joe Mayer, District Representative of the Universal Film Co., will not keep Manager A. T. Simmons of the Allen Theatre from showing "Outside The Law" which is advertised to open at the Allen on Sunday. Simmons announced that he would show the film unless he was restrained by the courts and has employed attorneys to represent him should the Universal ask an

(Continued on Page 26)

"three cheers for Priscilla Dean"

STRAND THEATRE, WACO, TEXAS

"THREE cheers for Priscilla Dean—three cheers for Lon Chaney—and a hundred for Tod Browning. 'Outside The Law' is breaking all theatre records in Waco, even that of 'The Devil's Passkey,' which held the record until now."

STANDARD THEATRE, CLEVELAND

"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' broke all records at the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, despite the strongest opposition ever known in this city, which consisted of "Forbidden Fruit"—"The County Fair"—"The Love Light"—"Without Limit"—"The Truth About Husbands"—and "Way Down East."

Carl Laemmle presents the Greatest American Melodrama ever Screened

CATCH THIS WOMAN!
TRICKY EYES
DANGEROUS SMILE
EXQUISITELY GOWNED
NIMBLE FINGERS

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by
LON CHANEY

"constant stream of people"

BARBEE LOOP THEATRE, CHICAGO

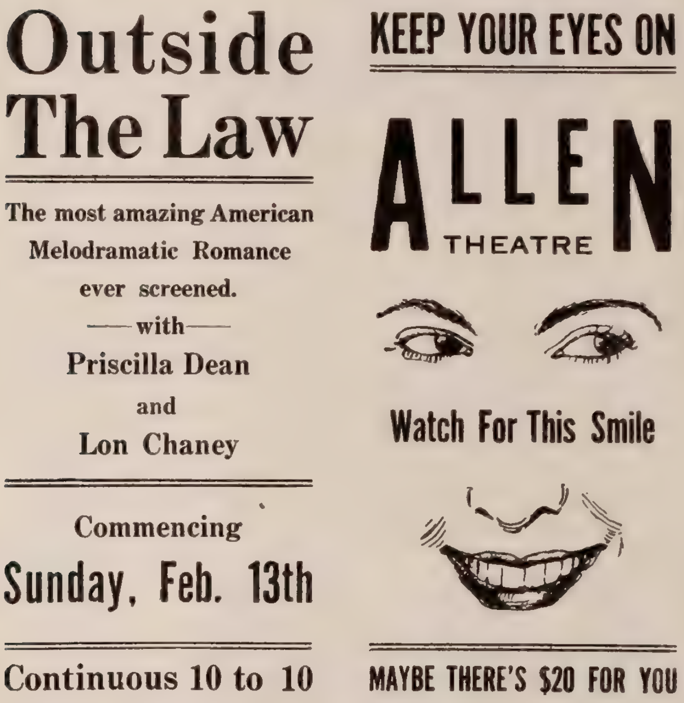
"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' opening at my Loop Theatre broke all previous box-office records by eight-forty-five. Constant stream of people still coming. Attendance has exceeded my most sanguine expectations. Compelled to continue show until midnight to take care of the crowds."

BIJOU THEATRE, GREEN BAY, WIS.

"MOUTH-TO-MOUTH advertising did more for us than anything else during four-day run. 'Outside The Law' proved a wonderful attraction. Everyone who saw it was greatly enthused. Is even now, after completion of run, the talk of the town."

Tod Browning's amazing Universal Jewel Production de Luxe

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"



Outside The Law

The most amazing American Melodramatic Romance ever screened.

—with—

Priscilla Dean

and

Lon Chaney

Commencing

Sunday, Feb. 13th

Continuous 10 to 10

KEEP YOUR EYES ON

ALLEN THEATRE

Watch For This Smile

MAYBE THERE'S $20 FOR YOU

Handbill distributed by Allen Theatre, Akron, Ohio

THROUGH THE WEST WITH THE TAM GIRL

(Continued from page 23)

injunction. The film is now locked in a safety deposit box under Simmons' name. According to Simmons the break with the film company officials is due to a disagreement in the admission price to be charged. The owners of the film demand that the price be $1. While Simmons insists that the show be placed on at the regular addmission price of 35 cents. The disagreement is the result of a two months' parley between the Akron exhibitor and the Universal representative, Joseph Mayer. An agreement was reached, according to Simmons, to show the picture on a percentage basis. Two weeks ago the film arrived in the city in order that the theatre musicians might arrange their program. The film was accompanied by an order that $1 be the price of admission. Simmons objects to this on the ground that it is not giving his patrons a fair deal in advancing the price on a special attraction. Simmons is ready to stand pat on his judgment and intends to exhibit the film for two weeks at 35 cents. Mayer arrived in Akron today. He asserts that inasmuch as the picture has been showing in other cities at from one to three dollars it is impossible to consider showing it n Akron for 35 cents. "If Simmons don't come to our terms we'll sue him," says Mayer." The film has a value of $300,000 is the claim of the owners. Attorneys for both sides in the disagreement are due to hold a conference late Friday in an attempt to bring about a settlement, as the film has been extensively advertised and should its showing be called off will mean a big loss to both the Allen and the Universal.

R. J. HENDERSON,
Beacon-Journal.

The giving away of 100 Priscilla Dean Tams through the Akron Daily Times, proved to be one of the most successful tie-ups of the campaign. A mysterious woman called "Silky Moll" (the name used by Miss Dean in "Outside The Law) appeared on the streets of Akron at certain hours, wearing a Priscilla Dean Tam, a standard tam-o-shanter, now on the market.

Women who approached her and repeated the right formula received a coupon for one of the tams. Every day "Silky Moll" wrote about her experiences in the Times On the first day it was estimated that more than 3,000 women visited the business section of Akron, solely to catch "Silky Moll."

The remarkable success of the Universal-Jewel production in Akron is said to be due largely to the elaborate advertising and exploitation campaign put over by A. T. Simmons, proprietor and manager of the Allen, assisted by Joseph H. Mayer, of the Universal Exploitation Department. Newspaper men in that city say the picture has received more publicity than any film ever shown in Akron. . It is admitted that no advertising campaign on a picture ever reached the proportions of that put behind "Outside The Law" by Mr. Simmons.

The publicity campaign included the use of teasers of many kinds, mystery posters, and tie-ups with several Akron newspapers. During the week preceding the initial showing "Outside The Law" received several two and three column heads on the front page of the Akron papers. In all more than twelve columns of publicity were printed concerning the picture before its showing.

Another fruitful tie-up was made with the Akron Press, having to do with different expressions of Miss Dean's eyes. Hundreds of Akron residents took an active interest in solving the problems presented concerning the star. A third stunt which created great interest was the search for a girl with a thub print resembling that of Miss Dean. Thousands of heralds boosting this search were scattered through Akron. Interest ran high. Miss Katherine Ward, of No. 895 E Market street, Akron, was found to have the most closely resembling thumb-print She was the recipient of a handsome gift by the management of the Allen.

The Priscilla Dean Tams also were used for further exploitation. Yeager's, one of the leading department stores, devoted a window to tams, with picture of Miss

(Continued on page 27)

Does Your Finger Print Look Like Priscilla Dean's?

Have you ever had your finger print made? No two finger prints are alike, although many are similiar. If your finger print resembles that of Priscilla Dean you may win a prize of $20.00.

The Allen Theatre will award a $20 cash prize to the one whose finger print bears the closest resemblance to that of the Star in "Outside the Law."

To make the print, rub the finger with a soft pencil or make an impression on an ink pad. Press it on paper and send it to the Manager of the Allen Theatre not later than Friday, February 11th. Winner will be announced at the theatre, Sunday, February 13th.

"Outside The Law" broke all records at the Roebling Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BROOKLYN RECORD FOR DEAN PICTURE

M. & S. Roebling Theatre,
Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 28th.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.,
1600 Broadway,
New York.

My Dear Mr. Rosensweig,

We played your "Outside The Law" for a five-day run. Besides breaking all records for any picture played to date at the M. & S. Roebling Theatre, it brought complete satisfaction to all our regular patrons and to a great many who had visited this theatre before.

Hoping other exhibitors will book this feature and do as well, I am,

Yours cordially,

ELIAS MAYER.

THROUGH THE WEST WITH THE TAM GIRL

(Continued from page 26)

Dean and cards announcing the coming picture. The ushers and ticket sellers at the Allen also wore bright red tams.

Further newspaper publicity and general interest was obtained from a series of 24-sheet stands bearing the caption: "If you Dance on Sunday—You are Outside the Law"?

There was some consternation in Akron as to the possibility the city was being visited by Blue Law agitators. The posters were followed by pictorial stands.

Among the interest-creating stunts worked by Simmons and Mayer were the mailing from Cleveland of 16,000 teaser post-cards to Akron residents, and for the second week, telephonic communication with every telephone subscriber in Akron, asking if they had seen "Outside the Law."

The Priscilla Dean Tam tie-up with the Evening Times created so much interest that Mr. R. F. Walker, the manager of the newspaper, wrote to Mayer as follows:

"We want to compliment you upon the Silky Moll feature, which we have been running during the present week, in which we are giving away Priscilla Dean Tams. This has been a very successful enterprise and has given a great deal of publicity, both to this newspaper, Allen Theatre and to the well-known star, Priscilla Dean. We want to thank you for your co-operation in this matter and assure you we are always open for any feature as good as this."

In this connection, Universal announces that many exhibitors are arranging with Baer Brothers of Chicago, the manufacturers of the Priscilla Dean Tam, for similar tie-ups.

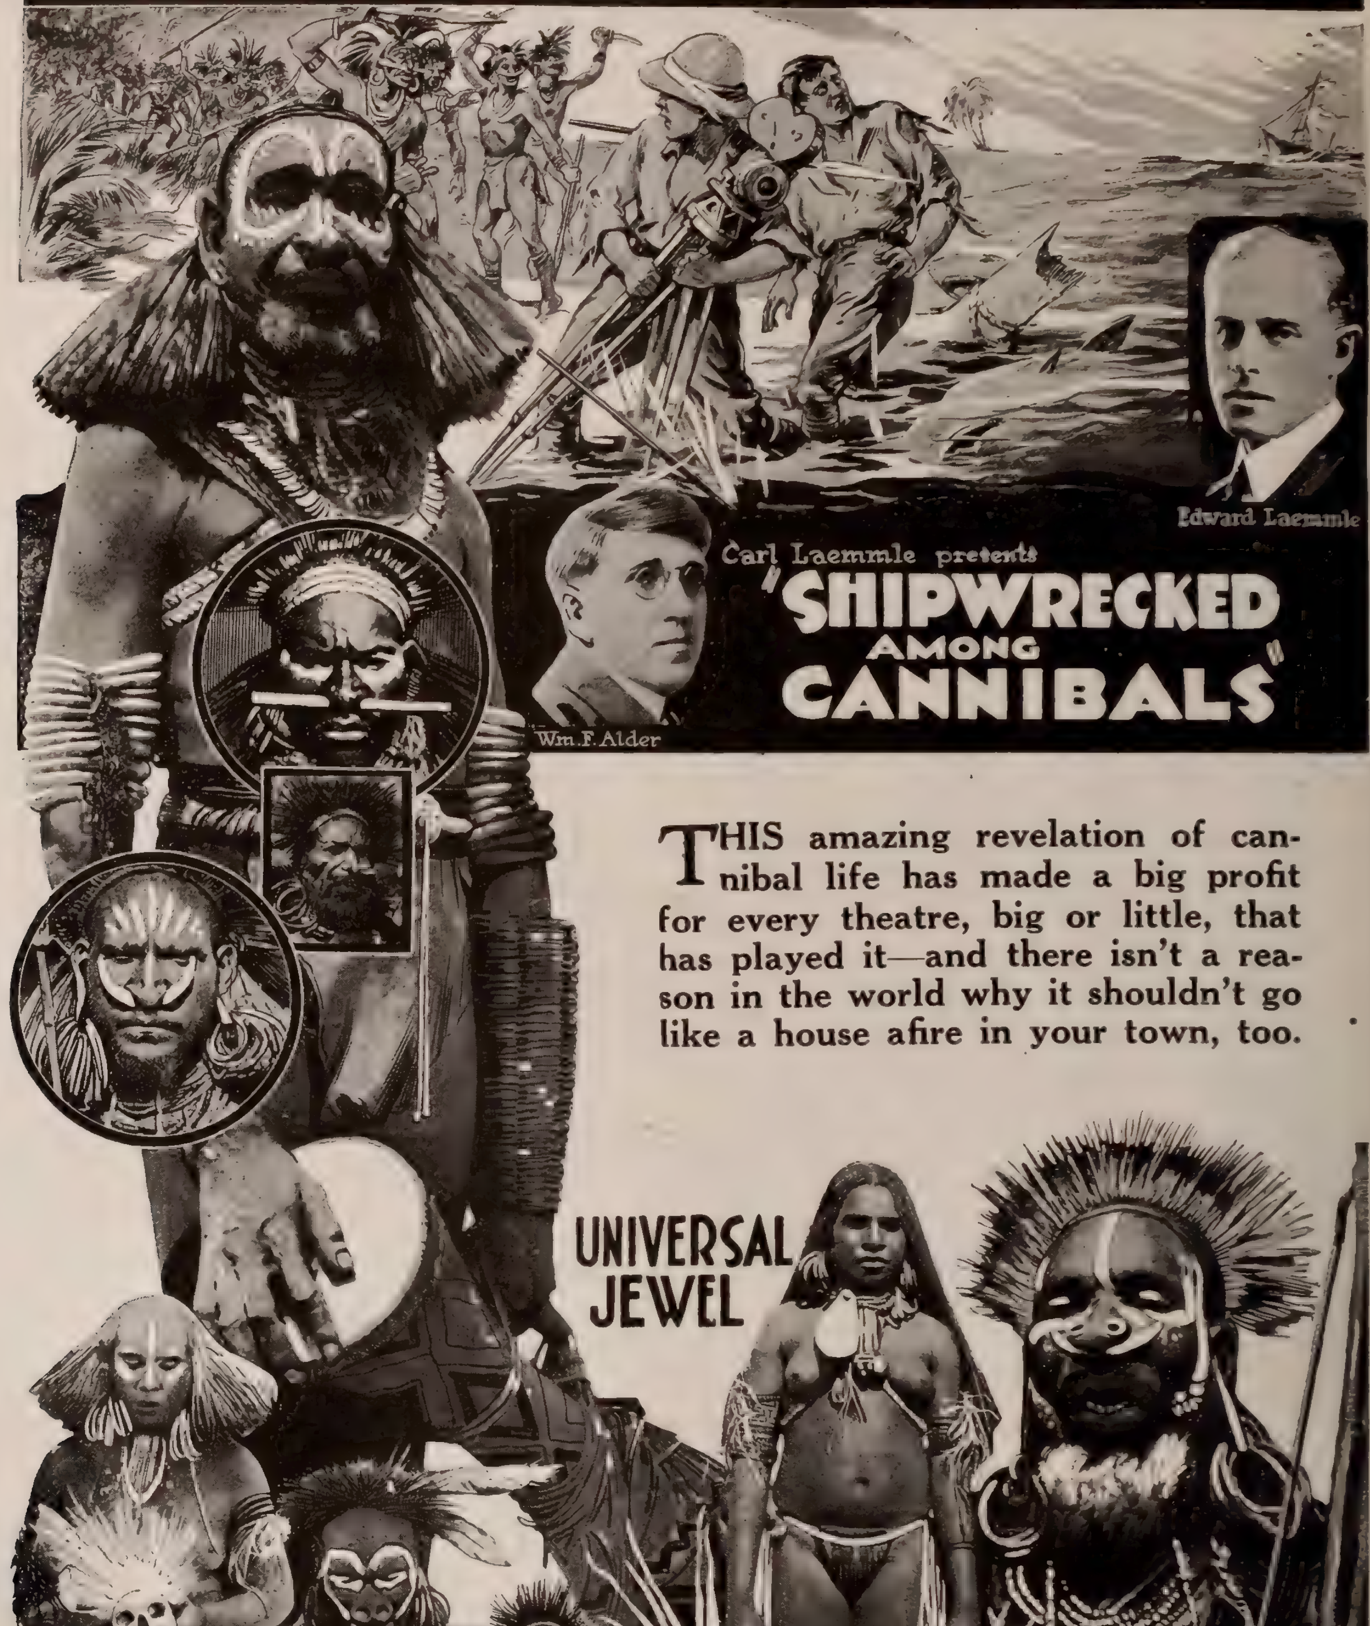
Record Run In Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C., MARCH 2ND.

CLAIR HAGUE,
UNIVERSAL FILM CO., LTD.,
TORONTO, ONT.

"OUTSIDE THE LAW" AND "PASSKEY" BOTH OPENED UP MONDAY, DOING THE BIGGEST BUSINESS EVER EXPERIENCED IN VANCOUVER. THE ONLY BUSINESS OTHER HOUSES ARE DOING WAS FROM OVERFLOW FROM MAPLE LEAF AND ALLEN. TUESDAY NIGHT MAPLE LEAF HAD TO GIVE EXTRA SHOW IN SPITE OF DOWNPOUR OF RAIN.

LOUIS JACOBS.



Edward Laemmle
Carl Laemmle presents
"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"
Wm. F. Alder
UNIVERSAL JEWEL

THIS amazing revelation of cannibal life has made a big profit for every theatre, big or little, that has played it—and there isn't a reason in the world why it shouldn't go like a house afire in your town, too.

WITH all its tidal wave of stormy action, "Under Crimson Skies" also carries an absorbing love story of such tender pathos and such smashing drama as to make it one of the big entertainments of the season. Your folks will thank you for having shown it.

It's still making big money because it's the greatest sea story ever screened.

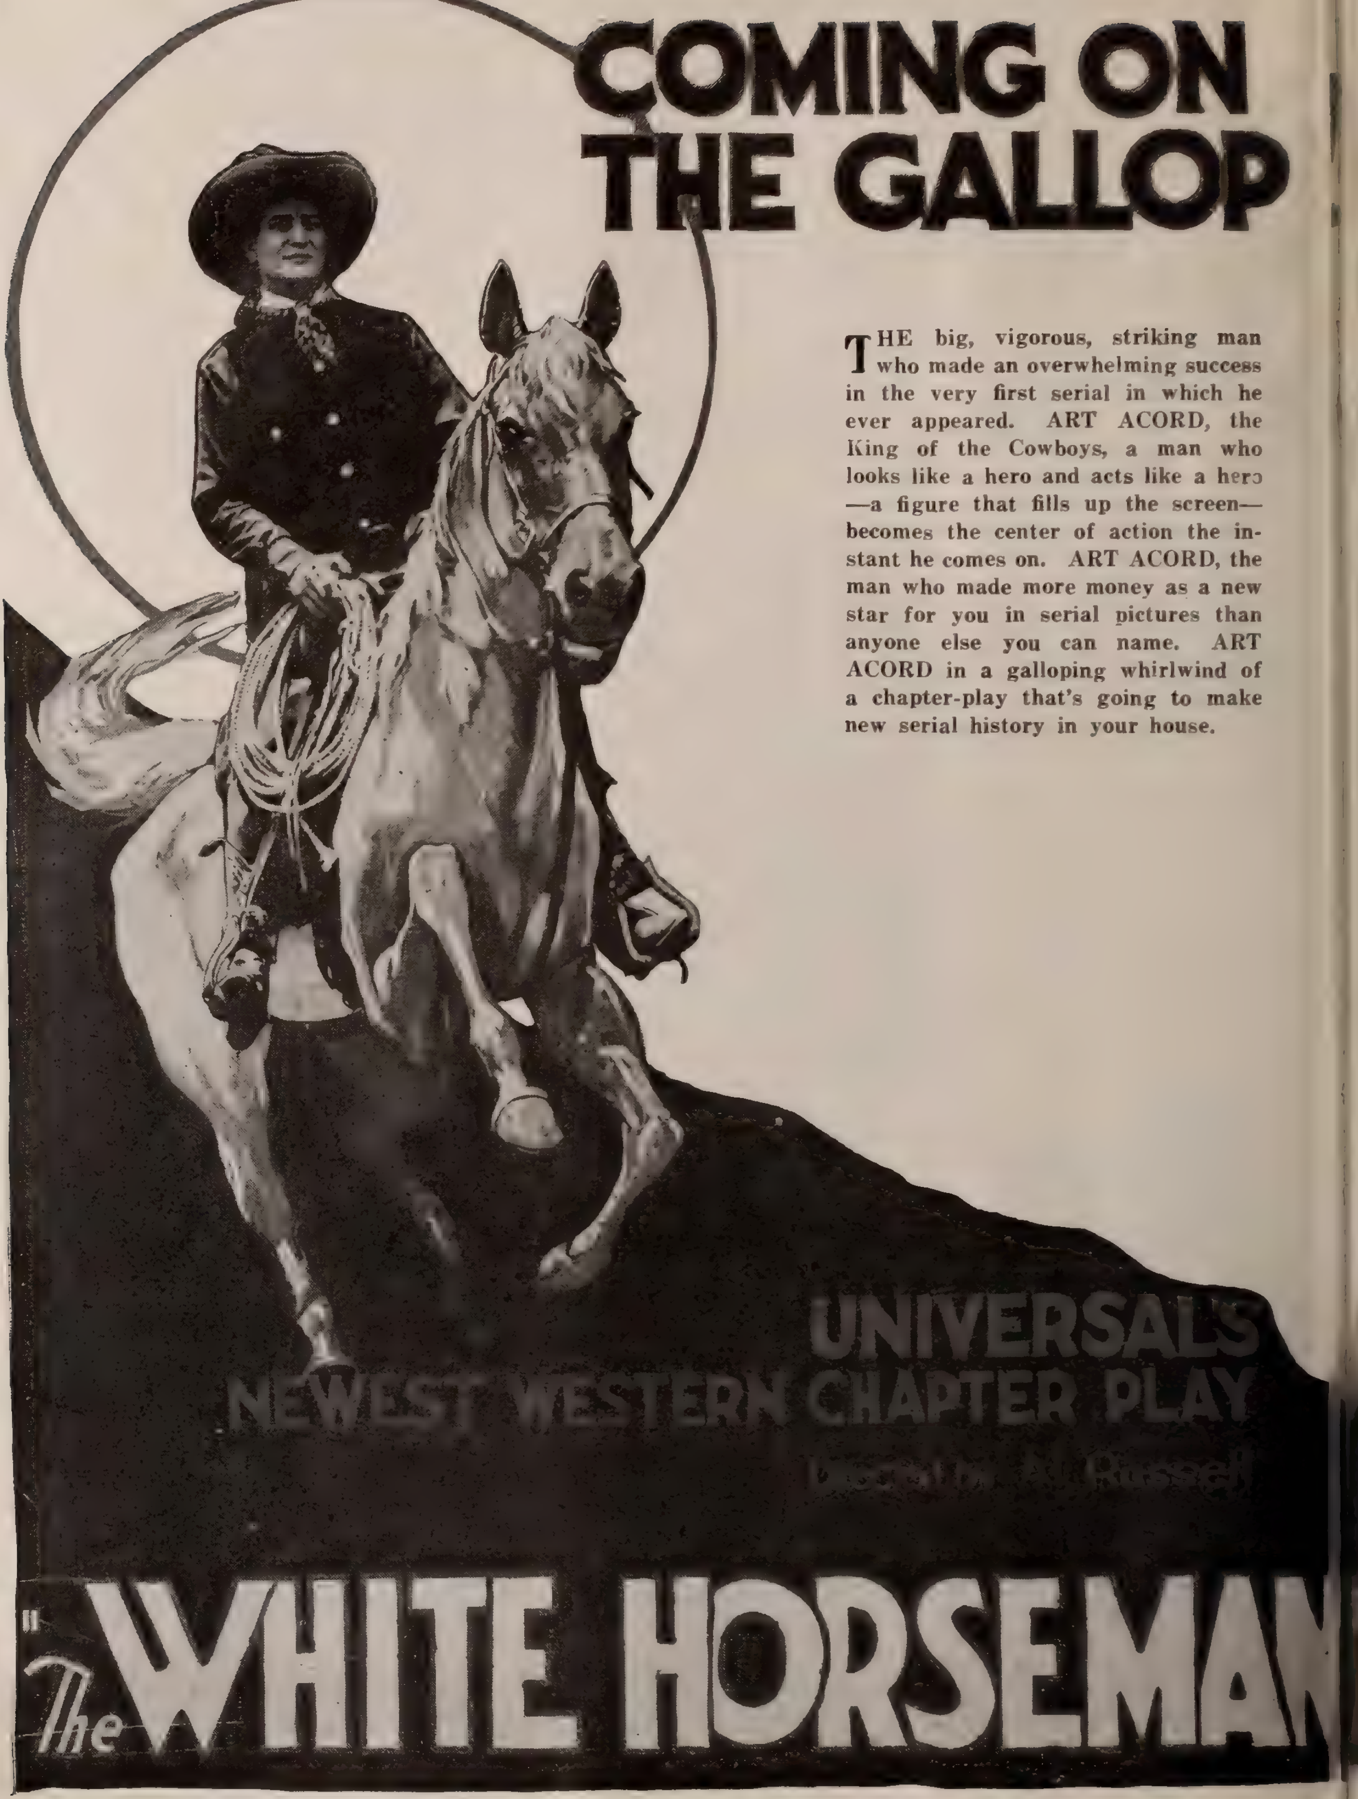
ELMO LINCOLN
in

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL SUPER PRODUCTION

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

COMING ON THE GALLOP

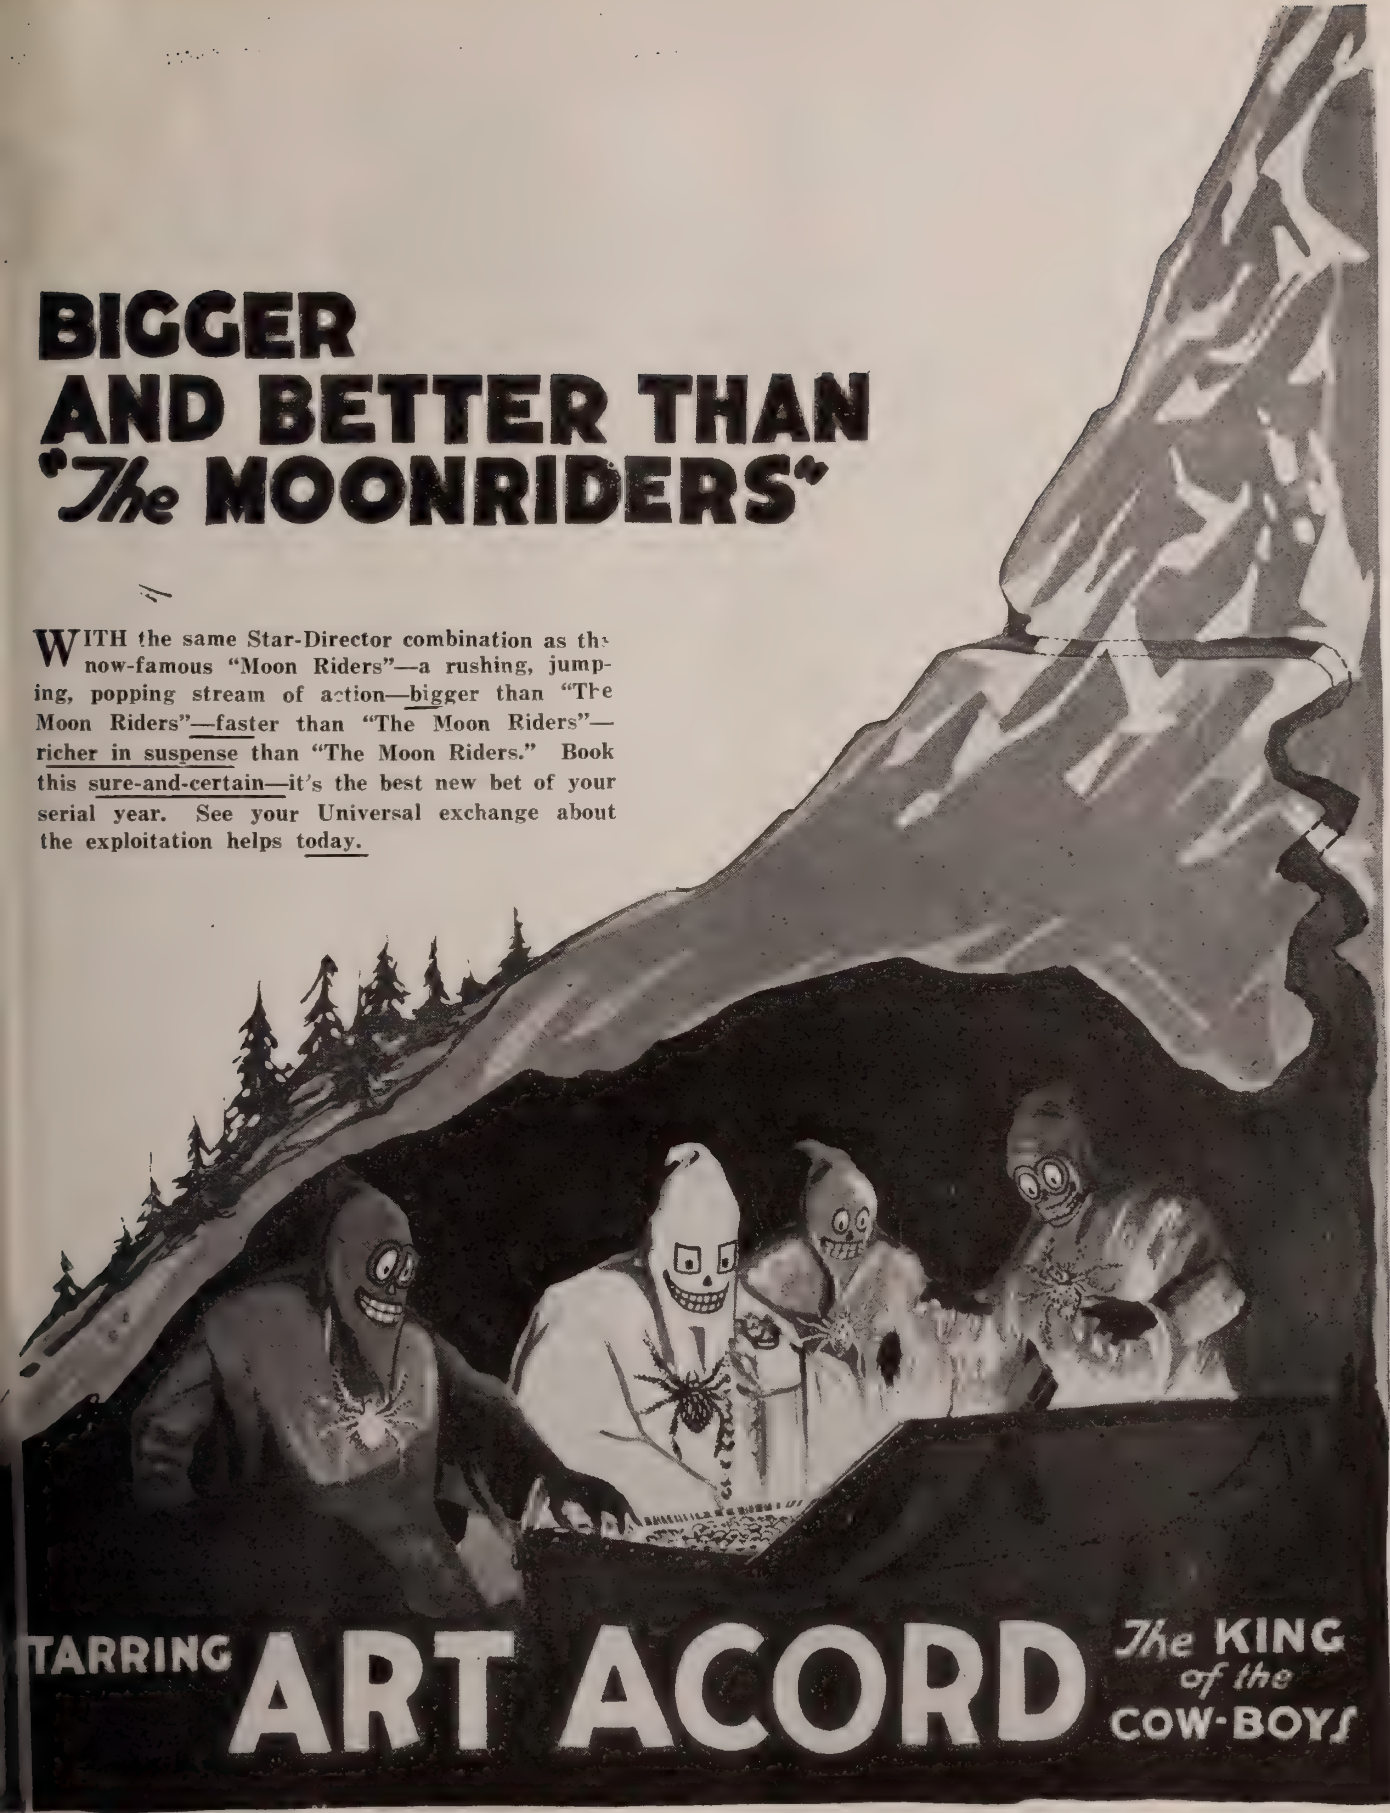
THE big, vigorous, striking man who made an overwhelming success in the very first serial in which he ever appeared. ART ACORD, the King of the Cowboys, a man who looks like a hero and acts like a hero—a figure that fills up the screen—becomes the center of action the instant he comes on. ART ACORD, the man who made more money as a new star for you in serial pictures than anyone else you can name. ART ACORD in a galloping whirlwind of a chapter-play that's going to make new serial history in your house.



UNIVERSALS
NEWEST WESTERN CHAPTER PLAY
Directed by Al Russell
The "WHITE HORSEMAN

BIGGER AND BETTER THAN "The MOONRIDERS"

WITH the same Star-Director combination as the now-famous "Moon Riders"—a rushing, jumping, popping stream of action—bigger than "The Moon Riders"—faster than "The Moon Riders"—richer in suspense than "The Moon Riders." Book this sure-and-certain—it's the best new bet of your serial year. See your Universal exchange about the exploitation helps today.



TARRING ART ACORD
The KING of the COW-BOYS

Extreme Measures Discredit Reforms and Reformers

(Continued from page 1.)

And it is a business of busybodies, of meddling, interfering cranks, with queer crochets and conceptions—cranks with such a disproportionate idea of the importance of their alleged reforms that they would establish their peculiar fads and affectations even at the sacrifice of the basic rights and liberties of the public and the free democratic institutions of the nation.

Such reformers are a distinct menace to the peace and happiness, to the prosperity and liberty of the Republic.

Their organized effectiveness and their pernicious and persistent activity give them an influence out of all proportion to their numbers, their power or their worth.

Their narrow, shallow, irritating interference with the simplest enjoyments and plainest rights of the public is making the very names of reform and reformer detested, and is sure to bring about a reaction which will result in causing even proper regulative measures to be thrown overboard along with these objectionable Jonahs of reform that are endangering the safety of the whole reformship through a storm of popular indignation and repudiation.

Perhaps the most iniquitous form of reformer, the one who is most willing and most likely to sacrifice the whole cause of reform to his own narrow prejudice and extreme views, is the man who is anxious to suppress the moving picture with an undemocratic, un-American and wholly unnecessary censorship.

This extreme of meddling reform is UN-DEMOCRATIC because it interferes with one of the greatest, one of the simplest, one of the most wholesome and most beneficial forms of entertainment of the whole mass of the people.

It is UN-AMERICAN because it seeks to establish an autocratic body of limited numbers and limited intelligence with the power to dictate to the American people what their taste in such simple pleasures must be and what the limits and character of their enjoyment shall be.

It is UN-AMERICAN because it sets up a body professing superiority in wisdom, in morality, in judgment, above that of the whole people, and authorizes this body despotically to control, to limit, to modify, or even to suppress the most popular form of public enjoyment without the knowledge of the public, and without any opportunity for the public to express its own opinion as to what it wants or what it does not want.

This method of oppression and suppression under the name of reform is UNNECESSARY, ABSOLUTELY UNNECESSARY, because the police powers of every State and every section and every city and every district of every city are ample or more than ample to cause the elimination of all film exhibitors, or of theatrical exhibitions of any kind, which are in any way offensive to the public taste or subversive of public morals.

The objection on the part of these selfish and self-satisfied reformers to the exercise of the police power is that the police power must be exercised with a knowledge of the public and subject in a degree to the judgment and approval of the public, while under the autocratic plan proposed by these reformers for their own benefit, and possibly for their own employment, a small body of prejudiced, bigoted, narrow-minded, short-sighted zealots can sit in a back room and exercise despotic powers without regard or consideration for the wish or the welfare of the people.

The crying need of reform to-day is reform of the reformers, and the placing of moral and ethical movements in the hands of men of more brains, more heart, more judgment and more soundly American character.

The average reformer has become a pest, comparable to the cootie in objectionableness and to the boll weevil in destructiveness.

The whole structure of our American liberties is likely to be eaten away and undermined by them, and great moral forces, like the press, that are eager to support all legitimate reform movements, are compelled to array themselves against the pestiferous activities of these reform plagues in order to protect their own rights and liberties and the rights and liberties of the people.

—From the New York American,
Monday, February 7, 1921.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only' Jim"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"
"The Magnificent Brute"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Once A Plumber"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"
"The Unknown Wife"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"The Secret Gift"
"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

"The Great Air Robbery"

"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)

"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"No Monkey Business"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"Out o' Luck"
"The Cactus Kid"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Grip Of The Law"
"The Trigger Trail"
"Big Bob"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

Starring

ART ACORD

"The White Horseman"

Two Reel Century Comedies

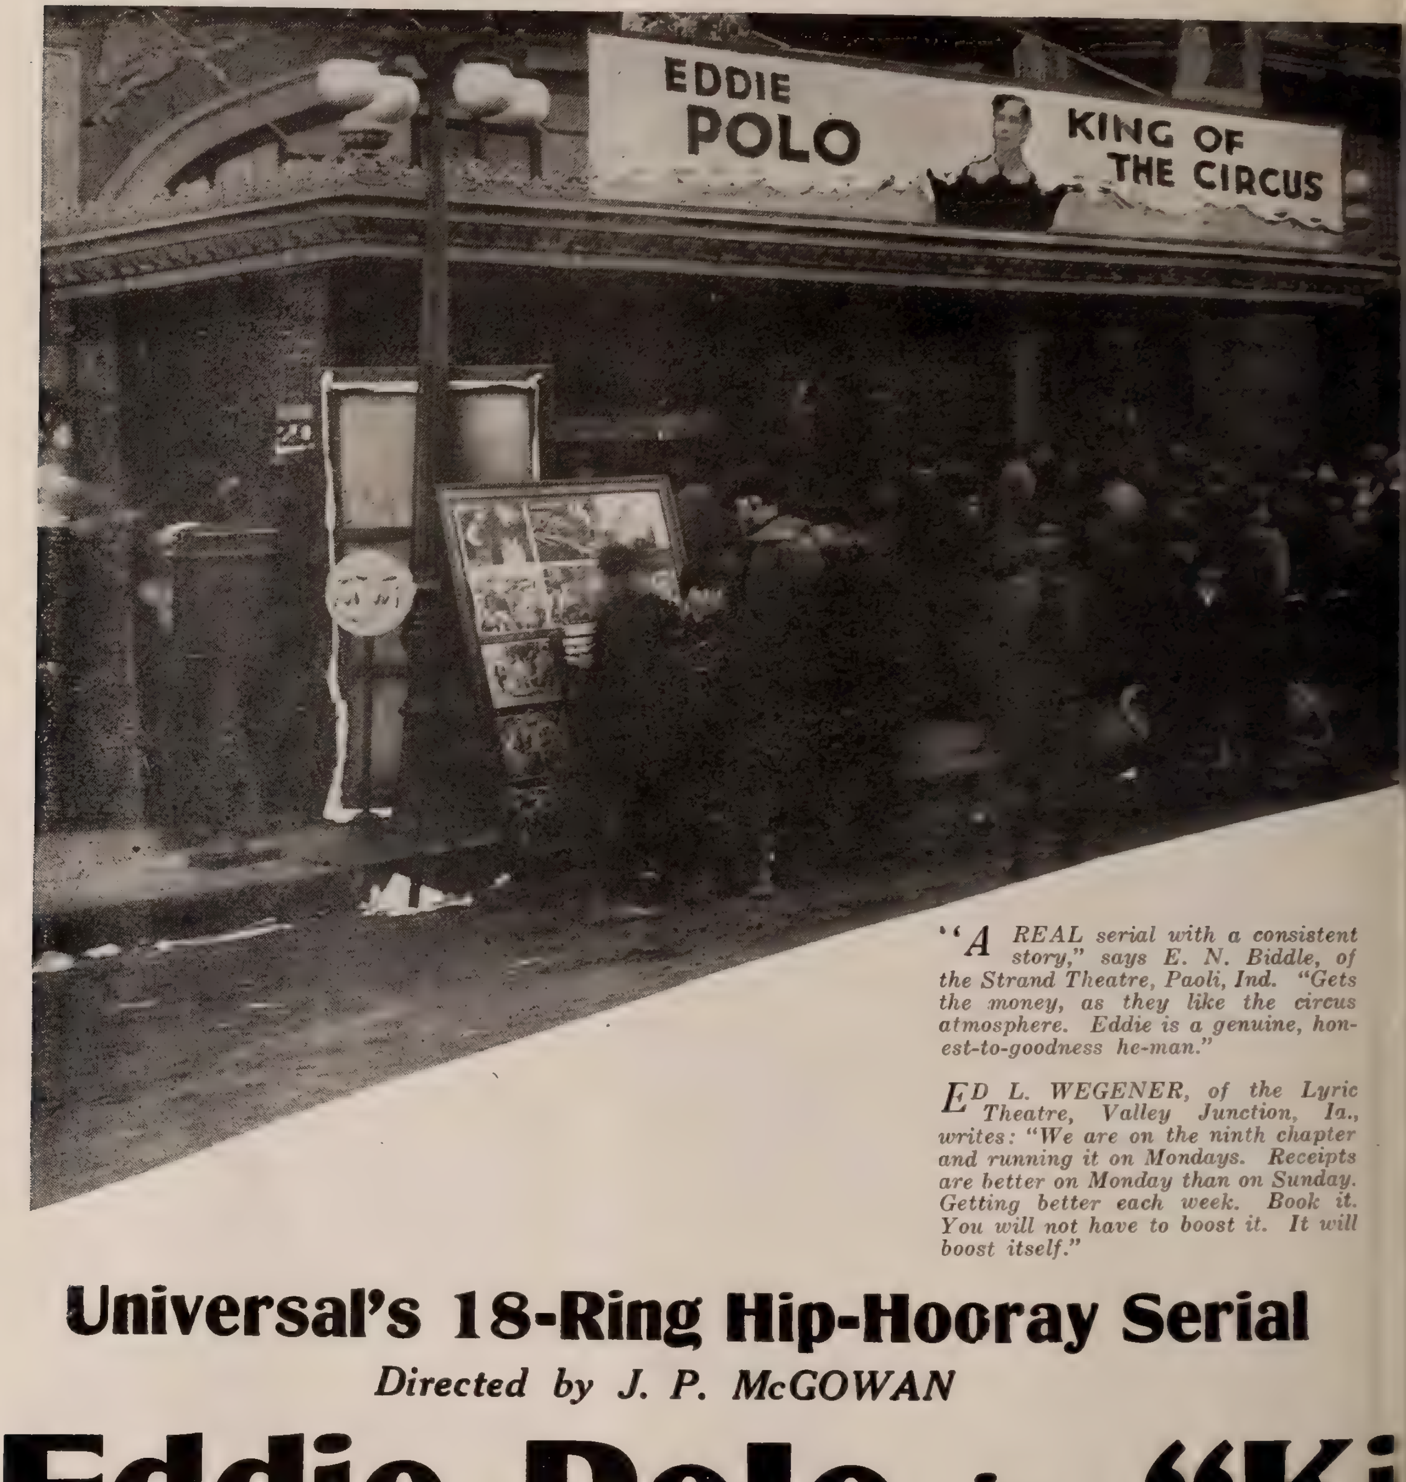
"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"
"Stuffed Lions"

One Reel Star Comedies

"Fresh From The Country"
"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
also
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Andersen)
also
"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk And Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"
"When Eve Fell"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

Photographic Proof that Universal



"A REAL serial with a consistent story," says E. N. Biddle, of the Strand Theatre, Paoli, Ind. "Gets the money, as they like the circus atmosphere. Eddie is a genuine, honest-to-goodness he-man."

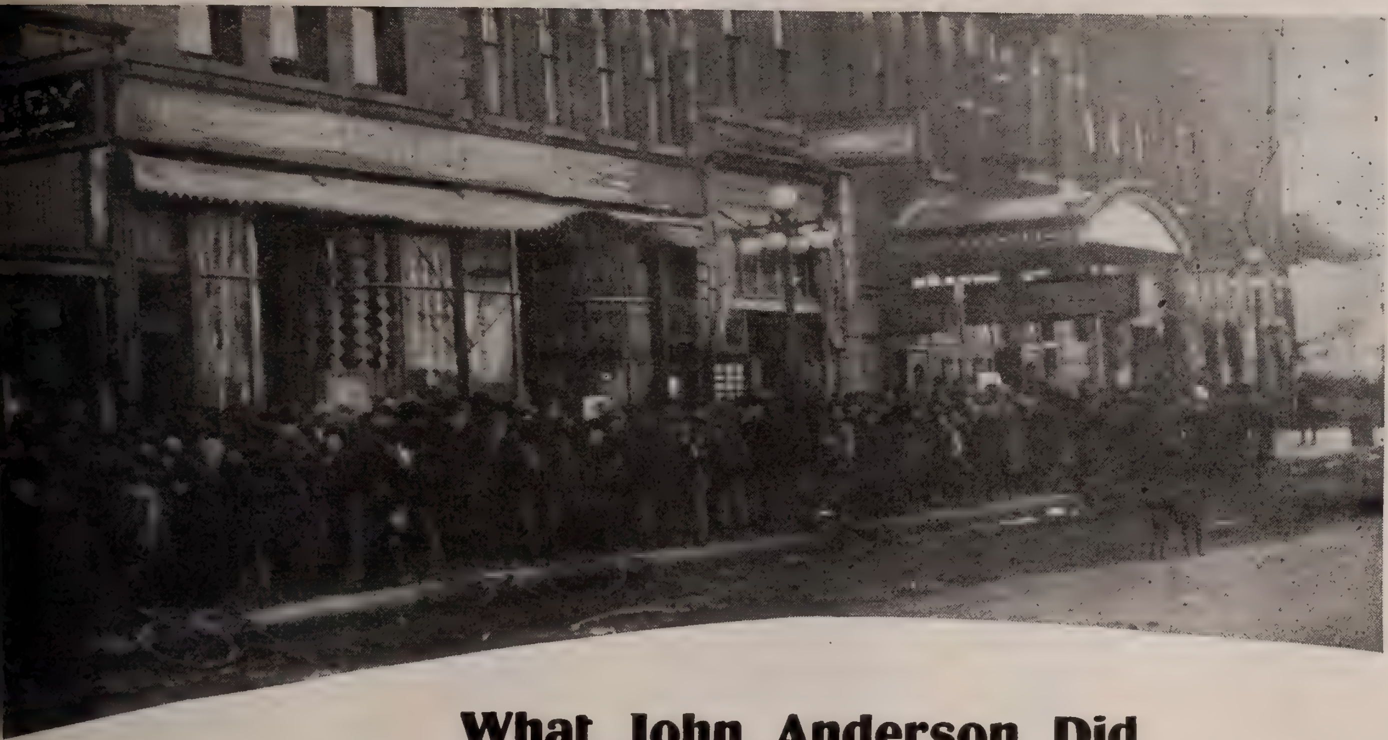
ED L. WEGENER, of the Lyric Theatre, Valley Junction, Ia., writes: "We are on the ninth chapter and running it on Mondays. Receipts are better on Monday than on Sunday. Getting better each week. Book it. You will not have to boost it. It will boost itself."

Universal's 18-Ring Hip-Hooray Serial

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

Eddie Polo in "Ki

Fast, Clean Serials Always Pay



What John Anderson Did

SPEAKING of John Anderson of the Princess Theatre, Boone, Ia., Exhibitors Herald says, in part: "Mr. Anderson's consistent serial policy has been demonstrated a policy of success. Theatre men in every part of the country should profit by his excellent example. He has tested the serial form of entertainment and a consistent policy of presenting that type of attraction perhaps more thoroughly than any other theatre man in America. The accompanying illustration, taken after the first performance of the initial episode of "King Of The Circus" is convincing proof of his wisdom in the course pursued over a period of eleven years. If there is in any quarter concern as to alleged waning popularity of serials, the fact that Mr. Anderson planned to run "King Of The Circus" at matinee performances only and was forced by popular demand to include it in the evening program should serve as convincing evidence to the contrary."

—EXHIBITORS HERALD.

ng of the Circus"

Some Card!

A Startling Succession of Sensations
—and Clean!

You Will Draw a
Full House
Every Time
---Play It!

Universal's Strange
and Startling
Adventure Serial
Directed by Ed. Kull

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

"Bring On The Groom"

One-Reel Star Comedy

Featuring Dorothy Wolbert

JACK has been commissioned by his company to sail for Honolulu and calls on Betty to tell her the good news. They decide to get married before he sails the next day, but her father says that Dottie, the older sister must be married first. He offers a dowry of $10,000 for the man who marries her.

Jack finds a man out of work who consents to be married for that sum. However, when he lifts the veil of his intended bride he runs out of the house and leaves Dottie fainting in the minister's arms.

The next suitor offered on the altar of love is Eddie, a second story gentleman who has been in business in the neighborhood. Jack bargains with him that he won't call a cop if he marries a girl for the sum of $10,000. But when he gets a closeup of the blushing bride, begs that they call a cop and in the excitement makes his escape.

A regular Prince Charming who is introduced next, is taken back to the asylum by his keepers just before the ring is put on the bride-to-be. Chances for the double marriage seem very slight when Phenias, the childhood sweetheart of Dottie arrives and asks to marry her. He has been a minister educating the Heathen for the last ten years and this is his first vacation. He then marries Jack and Betty.

"A Bunch Of Kisses"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring Charles Dorety and Louise Lorraine

WHILE Charley is working in his auto repair and vulcanizing shop his rival spends most of the time hanging around the shop talking to the girl presiding over the cash register. Every time the owner of the garage comes up for air after being under one of the animated cars left in the shop to be repaired, he finds the other man holding the girl's hand.

Part of the equipment in the place is an antique car that has baffled all the mechanics who have tried to solve the puzzle. Charley has the "nuisance" help him bring the car down from one of the upper floors. When he is underneath the machine his volunteer helper fools with the engine causing an explosion which nearly puts Charley out of the way.

The new suitor then steals the girl and they start off in one of the flivvers. Every few blocks the girl loses her hat and the man has to stop the car and go back and recover it. Twice Charley, following in a car behind almost catches up to them but they start the flivver and speed away. Finally he steps on the hat and when the other fellow goes back to get it, he knocks his hat off.

Jumping into the car Charley rides off with the girl to the ministers and they become as one. In the last scene they are shown riding off together on the way to their "tin wedding" anniversary.

"The Cactus Kid"

"Texas Ranger" Series

Featuring Ed. (Hoot) Gibson

Dick Harris	Hoot Gibson
Jeremiah Smucker	Duke Lee
Allen Johnson	Charles Newton
Queen Johnson	Consuela Henley
"Red" Leary	Benjamin Corbett

DICK HARRIS, the Texas Ranger, is loafing around the "Ace High" hotel in the boom oil town when he sees Jeremiah Smucker, a wildcat promoter selling worthless oil leases. Dick laughs at Smucker's efforts to dispose of the options and scares away an easy victim. The oil promoter, not knowing that Dick is a ranger, warns him to keep quiet when he is putting across a business deal.

Allen Johnson, an easy going rancher, sends a letter to the promoter stating that he will arrive on the afternoon train with the cash to buy up some of the oil leases. The afternoon stage is held up by Smucker and "Red" Leary. Queen Johnson slips away on one of the horses and meeting Dick on the road tells him about the holdup while she rides for the other Rangers.

Dick drives away the bandits and becomes very friendly with the rancher and his pretty daughter, who in his estimation, certainly is a "Queen Bee." After Johnson has paid for the leases, Smucker discovers that they are really of great value and schemes to get them back. The girl is kidnapped by "Red" and her father receives a message saying that she will be returned if $5,000 ransom is paid.

The oil man happens along just about this time and offers out of pure generosity to buy back the leases. Johnson jumps at the chance and hands him the paper while Smucker goes for the money.

Dick, in the meantime has discovered where Queen is held a prisoner and arrives at the oil shack as she is about to make her escape. To elude "Red" she climbs up the super structure of one of the oil derricks with "Red" following at her heels.

Dick sees them, and, climbing to the top of the derrick, battles with "Red" on top of the tall structure. He sends him hurtling to the ground.

Rushing back to town Dick confronts Smucker with the statement that before his ally had died he had signed a confession implicating his chief in the ransom plot. When Dick flashes his Ranger badge upon Smucker, the oil man is frantic to get possession of the confession. In exchange for the lease Dick hands him the sheet of paper which, when it is examined is without writing of any description.

Laughing at the promoter's wrath Dick returns to the Johnson home, and Queen and the big Ranger decide to prospect on the land together.

International News

No. 16

Washington, D. C.—The next Cabinet. Charles E. Hughes, picked for Secretary of State by President-elect Harding.

Boston, Mass.—The new "Siamese Twins"—but these are from Poland and have been together quite a few years.

Manhattan Beach, N. Y.—Snow birds frolic on blizzard bound beach. A picture guaranteed to make you feel cool. (Omit from Boston, N. Y. State prints—Not N. Y. City.)

Burlington, Vt.—Vermont University stages a unique fete. Tractor brings joyful sleigh parties to winter carnival. (For Boston and N. Y. State—Not New York City.)

Court Asked to Halt New Loans to Europe.—William Randolph Hearst, who enjoined the United States Government from selling its German ships to England, now brings suit to restrain the Secretary of Treasury from loaning further billions of American money to bankrupt foreign nations.

Chicago, Ill.—Starved sea-gulls invade city lots. Thousands of birds desert Lake Michigan in quest of food.

Ashbourne, England.—Whole town plays in this football game. Historic shrove-tide match in which goals are five miles apart, dates back several hundred years. (Omit from Boston.)

East Boston, Mass.—Steamer almost sinks at dock. The City of Rockland nearly submerged and diver goes down to look her over. (For Boston only.)

Lake Tahoe, Cal.—Makes perilous flight to icebound lake over high mountain range. (Photographed from a D.H. Government plane piloted by Lt. H. A. Halversen.)

International News Presents The American Navy's Historic Visit To Chile.—The guns of the Pacific Fleet roar a salute as President Allesandri of Chile goes aboard the New Mexico to greet Admiral Rodman and his staff.

"No License"

One-Reel Star Comedy

Featuring Billy Fletcher

BILLY and his sweetheart decide to defy Dad and get married without his consent. Her father, packing for a trip to Europe, by accident places the young couple's marriage license in his brief case. They follow him to the boat but fail to recover the license.

There is only one stateroom left, which they take and hope to get the license before the ship sails. Father is in the next stateroom. Billy puts on a mustache and trails dad all over the deck but can't put his hands on the bag.

Finally, when the old gent leaves the bag in his stateroom Billy changes clothes with the steward and steals the bag. A minister is secured but, when they look in the brief case there is no license.

They both go out to look for the missing document and run into the girl's father. They tell him that they are married. Billy sneaks back to the room and finds the license under a pillow. The ceremony is started all over again but a witness is needed. The steward meets the father and asks him if he would stand up for a wedding.

He enters the stateroom and sees his daughter who he thought was already married. He threatens to turn Billy over to the ship's officers but finally gives his consent to the marriage.

International News

No. 17

Bridgeport, Conn.—Uncle Sam's largest submarine launched. Mrs. J. A. Germain, real Indian Princess, christens giant of under-sea craft.

Washington, D. C.—Aerial glimpses of the snow covered Capitol. Made by Navy Air Photographic Department. (Omit from Chicago and New York prints.)

Panama Bay.—Inter-Fleet sailing races. Arizona crew wins contest between speedy yachts of Atlantic and Pacific armadas. (Omit from Boston prints.)

Wellesley, Mass.—College girls in winter carnival. Interesting glimpses of Wellesley's big celebration. (For Boston only.)

New York City.—"Harding Blue" rules Inaugural styles. Latest creations in the popular color named after the new First Lady of the Land.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Bicycle racing revived in west. Two-wheel speedsters compete in State Championship meet.

Great Yarmouth, England.—Princess Mary aids ex-fighters' children. King George's daughter opens home for former soldiers' youngsters. (Omit from Boston, Philadelphia, Dallas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Spokane.)

Lake Charles, La.—(For Philadelphia only.)—Mack's Athletics get an early start. Connie's boys begin brisk training to break hoodoo.

Boston, Mass.—New England Governors meet. Six State executives gather for vital railroad conference. (For Boston prints only.)

Oak Cliff, Texas.—Texas Legion Post in big celebration. Great throng joins Veterans in impressive ceremonies. (For Dallas only.)

San Bernardino, Cal.—Finest orange show. Citrus fruit growers surpass previous displays in this year's lavish exhibit. (For Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Spokane only.)

Ft. Standish, Mass.—Fishing schooner driven on rocks. Craft wrecked in storm which sweeps Boston Harbor.

Porter, Indiana.—Central Railroad wreck. (Special for Chicago and New York.)

Meteora, Greece. — International News presents the Monks of the Clouds. First moving pictures ever made of the world's famous monasteries perched on top of Thessaly Mountain. (Photographed by Captain Ariel Varges.)

International News

No. 18

Albany, N. Y.—New Yorkers storm capitol in transit fight. Mayor Hylan and Senator Johnson lead throng protesting against bill to raise fares and deprive cities of home rule.

Sub-Titles.—Mayor Hylan (right) and Senator Hiram Johnson, who is representing the city in the fight to prevent the breaking of the contract which provides for a five-cent fare. Major La Guardia, Republican President of the Board of Aldermen, who declares the question of Justice for New York is not a part of the issue. Into the Capitol—one of the New York delegations who backed up Mayor Hylan's protest. (For N. Y. State and New York City prints.)

Warsaw, Poland. — Impressive scenes on Poland's Memorial Day. General Pilsudski, the President, joins with thousands in solemn street demonstrations. All Warsaw joins with President Pilsudski in ceremonies honoring the heroic dead. (For New York City and Chicago only.)

Porter, Indiana.—Express trains in fatal crash. Thirty-five meet death in collision between New York and Michigan flyers. (Omit New York City and Chicago prints.)

New York City.—Film Industry raises big funds for relief. $660,000 collected for starving children of Europe. (S. L. Rothapfel, Chairman, signs New York's check.)

Sub-Titles.—C. C. Pettijohn signs the $500,000 check covering funds raised outside of New York. James J. Rick, representing Herbert Hoover, receives the money that means life for many thousands of European children.

Aboard the Arizona, Panama.—Atlantic Fleet wins Navy boxing title. Pacific champions put up a game but losing fight.

Johannesburg, S. Africa.—South Africans dance for British Governor. The natives stage primitive welcome for Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Pocatello, Idaho.—Crack dog teams in race for speed title. Interesting glimpses of the Ashton Cup Contest for fleet huskies of the Northwest. (Omit from Boston, Baltimore and Washington prints.)

Plymouth, Mass. — Mending Plymouth Rock. Miss Dorothy Reed, Mayflower descendant, mends fissures in the historic landmark. (For Chicago and Boston only.)

Washington, D. C.—Parting memento for Mr. Daniels. Mary McIntype unveils painting of Battleship New Mexico, given to the Secretary as farewell gift. (For Baltimore and Washington prints only.)

Washington, D. C.—Warren G. Harding inaugurated.

International News

No. 15

Keyport, N. J.—Seek sunier clime in flying pullman. Wealthy business men off on long air journey to escape winter's rigors.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard oarsmen begin limbering up. First indoor training for big squad of candidates.

America's Center of Population.—You'd think to look at this, it was 5th Ave. at 42nd street, Manhattan—before the blizzard.

Olympic Peninsula, Wash.—Storm fells giants of northwest forests. Tornado wreaks havoc in majestic woods and dynamite is used to clear the roads.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Sails for "Red Hat." Archbishop Dougherty starts for Rome to be made a Cardinal.

New York City.—New York snowbound! Unexpected blizzard turns the metropolis into an Arctic desert, but huge tractors afford speedy relief.

Fort Meyer, Va.—Training honor guard for President-elect. Crack Third Cavalry put through its paces in preparation for Inauguration ceremonies.

Everglades, Fla.—Gathering the alligator crop—bare-handed. Henry Copinger thrives on what looks like a very strenuous job.

You Can't Go Wrong on a straight Road

UNIVERSAL AVENUE

WHEN your destination is money-making Short Stuff the straightest and most direct road is Universal Avenue. It's a road that you can travel safely without a map or guide. What's more, it's the road that saves you time, trouble and money, because you don't have to stop off at places that look good on the outside but are all wrong on the inside. Along Universal Avenue you can stop anywhere and be sure your stopping-place is the ideal spot in the world of short stuff. Go the limit and meet success!

"The Best Short Stuff in the World"

UNIVERSAL SHORT STUFF

"No Monkey Business"

One-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring Joe Martin

JOE has been out celebrating with some of his friends and arrives home just a short while before the milkman. His wife is sitting up waiting for him and has a royal Simian welcome prepared for him. Joe, however, stops downstairs to have some more refreshments.

A figure closely resembling the devil appears and drinks with him, after which the devil disappears in a cloud of smoke. Poor Joe has only recovered from this sight when he sees a crocodile and an ostrict coming after him.

He rides on the back of the ostrich to his room. When he climbs into his bed he finds a large snake between the covers and several other kinds of reptiles and birds. After this experience he is willing to swear off drinking and promises his wife not to indulge in any more "monkey business."

"The Fighting Actor"

Two-Reel Western Drama

Featuring Art Acord

CAST

Bob Weston	Art Acord
Helen	Marcella Pershing
Hank Forbes	Bob Kortmann
Lucius Cassius	Joe North
Palmer	Ed Burns

BOB WESTON and Lucius Cassius McBoyle, members of a failing "Romeo and Juliet" troupe, are forcibly evicted from their side-door pullman as their train goes through the little Western burg of Cattle City; but they had intended stopping there, anyhow, as they are due to play there. The city is alive with punchers and when the two newcomers arrive they meet with a warm reception. The old man, McBoyle, is frightened when his plug hat is shot off. Bob resents this treatment and sails into the punchers, but he is roped from behind and hoisted onto a wild bronco. He surprises them all by riding the horse successfully and bringing it back tamed. Among those who view the feat are John Palmer, a wealthy rancher, and his daughter, Helen. The latter is impressed with Bob's appearance, so much so, in fact, that she comes to town the very next day ostensibly to "shop," but actually to get another glimpse of the actor. She finds Bob just as he has been spilled from a ladder by her own dog, Bob having been doubling in the role of bill-poster. In the laugh which ensues Helen and Bob get well acquainted. She congratulates him on his riding. Bob informs her that he was brought up on a ranch. Old McBoyle, terribly agitated, informs Bob that their troupe is busted and they are stranded. Bob gives the old fellow all the money he has to help him on his way. Helen asks her father to give Bob a job, but Palmer has no use for those "actor-fellers." Hank, Helen's most ardent cowboy admirer, sees her talking with Bob. He hastily warns Bob it would be healthy for him to leave town, but Bob laughs at him. Helen's buckboard runs away with her in it. Bob mounts a horse and effects a thrilling rescue. Palmer changes his mind and gives Bob the job he wants.

Bob finds that Hank is foreman of the Palmer ranch. Hank's jealousy of Bob is obvious, for he has made a hit with Helen, so Hank makes it as unpleasant for Bob as he can. He complains to Palmer that Bob will not obey him, but Helen intercedes for Bob, telling her father that Hank is merely jealous. One night Bob sees Hank cheating at cards while playing with some of the boys in the bunkhouse. Bob denounces him. This leads to a fight and Hank is beaten up. Knowing that his position is no longer secure and enraged by his failure to get Helen, Hank swears vengeance on the whole outfit and forms his plans with two helpers. The next day Palmer drives to town, leaving Helen to care for the house. Hank sends all of the boys but his two off on an inspection trip. Bob's suspicions are aroused, but he has nothing tangible on which to base them. He lags behind, however, greatly worried. Hank goes to the house and tries to rob the safe. He is surprised in the act by Helen, who holds a gun on him. One of Hank's men steals up behind Helen and disarms her. The Chinese cook hears the fight, takes one look and madly rides for help. He finds Bob and the others and they all ride back. Bob arrives first and is set upon by all three men. He has a hard fight; but the others arrive in time, closely followed by old Palmer. The latter concludes that he needs a new foreman—and he finds that he has acquired a prospective son-in-law as well.

"Stuffed Lions"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring The Century Lions

AT the village taxidermist's shop there is an unusual tribe of animals all stuffed with real liquor and which are very popular with the animal lovers of the town. By pressing on the side of any of the stuffed birds or animals the favored customer could secure a drink.

The police of the town are conducting a campaign against all mendicants and use a roller-skate squad to round up the "Weary Willies." Harry Sweet, to escape from the police, runs to the taxidermist shop where the owner's daughter saves him and then persuades her father to give him a job.

He is not a very great success and right on the first day of the job he mistakes the signs of the customers and sells the stuffed animals. To give him another chance to be useful the proprietor sends Harry to the railroad station to get a crate of lion cubs. Harry takes the cubs out of the case and puts them in a basket but they get out when he turns away for a second.

The colored parter at the station then places a cigarette near a case of dynamite and the place goes up in smoke, liberating the ferocious old lions. There is a great rush to get out of the way. The lions follow Harry to the shop and chase the taxidermist and his family in and out of the rooms.

They run along the ledge outside the apartment windows to get into the room where Harry has barricaded himself. Finally the roller-skate police arrive and chase the lions all over the shop still on their skates. The cops succeed in rounding up the lions and locking them in one of the rooms until they can get their cages and thus prevent them from doing any more damage.

"When Eve Fell"

One-Reel Star Comedy

Featuring
Dorothy Wolbert and Eddie Barry

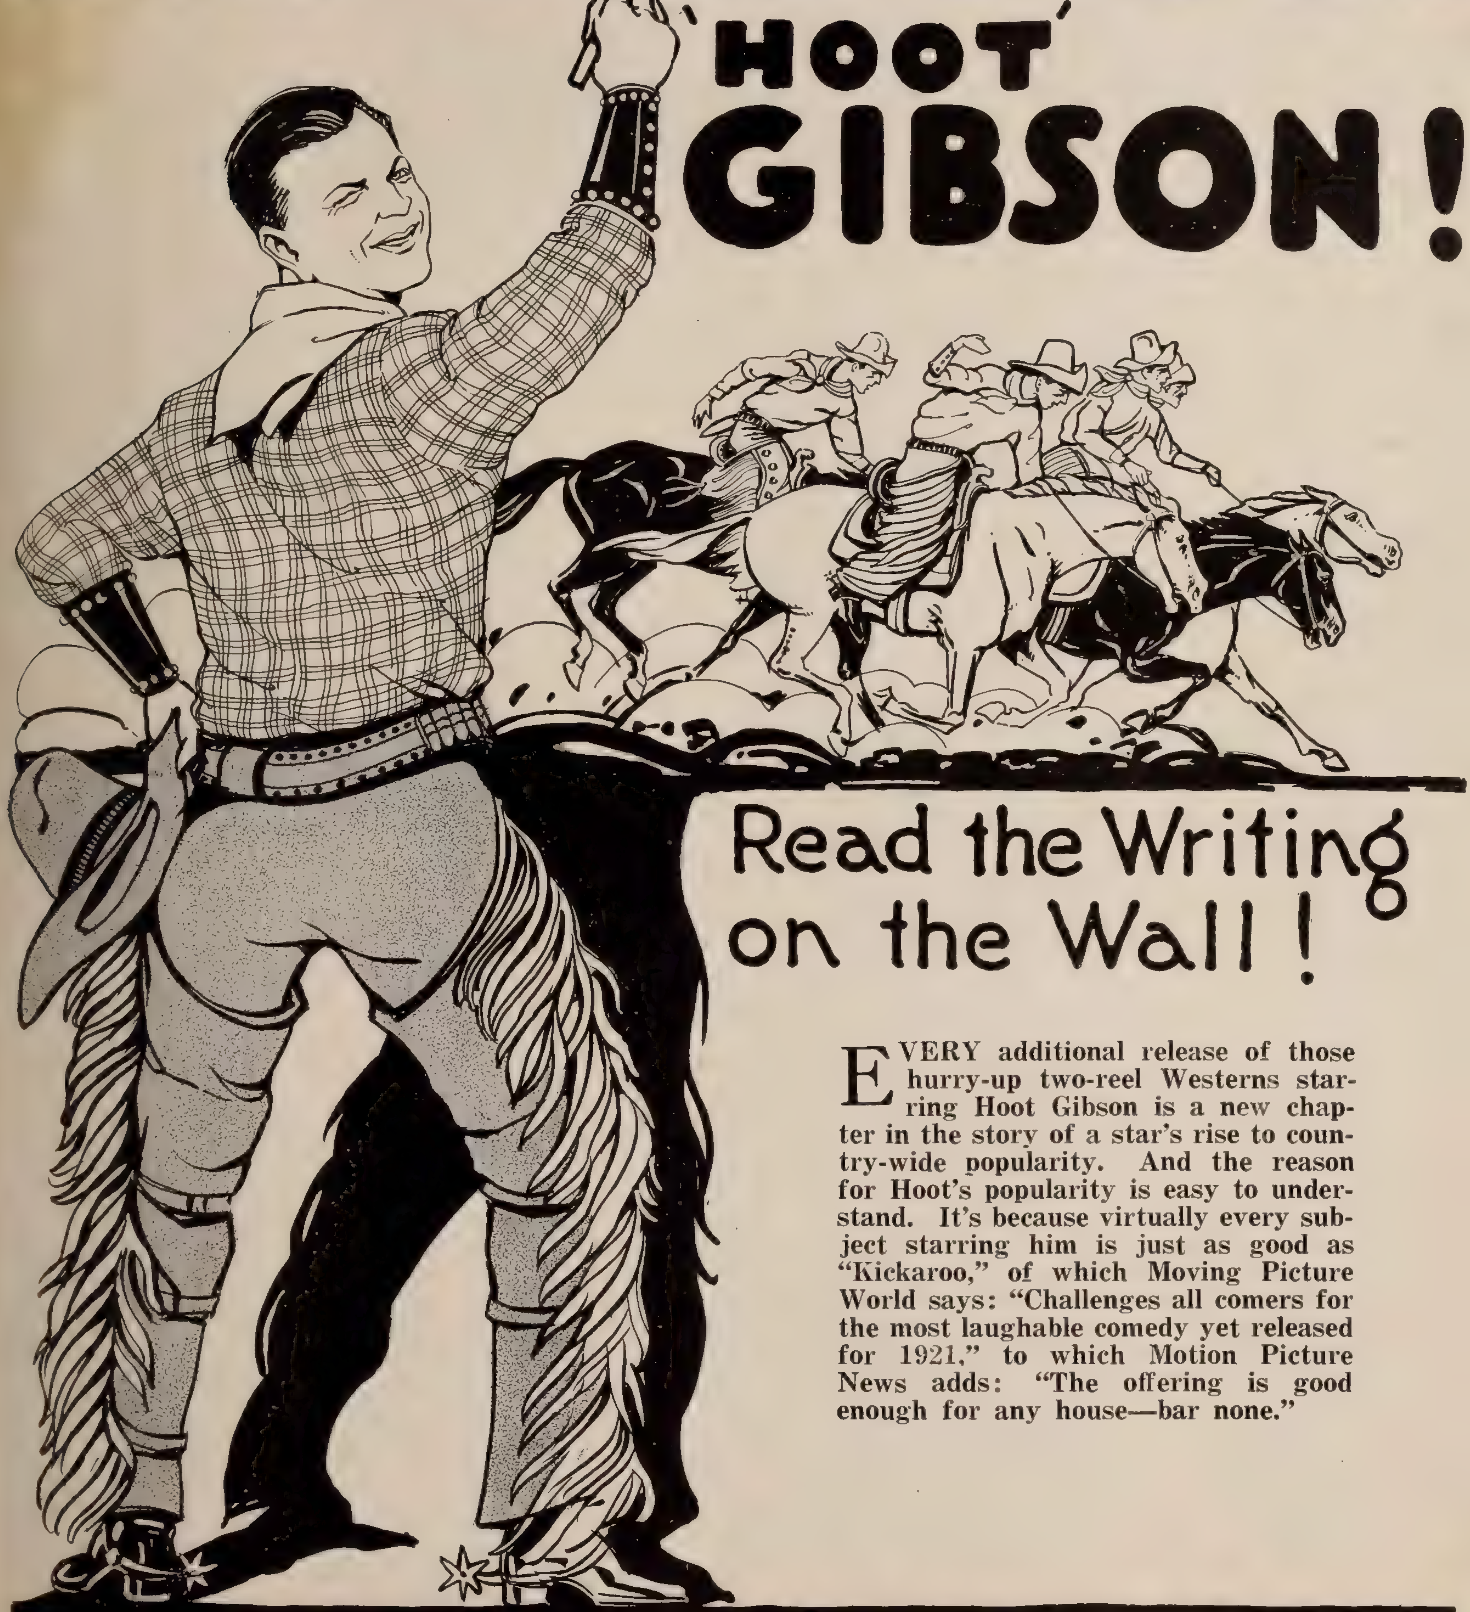
THE newlyweds have an aunt who is very fond of art. Before paying them a visit she has a statue of Eve sent up to the house. When the young couple go out, Dottie, the maid, breaks the statue. She then runs out to get the statue doctor, in the person of Eddie Barry, to mend the piece of marble.

While she is on the way back with the doctor the young husband returns and finds the broken statue lying on the floor. Immediately he runs out to buy one. The doctor repairs the statue but when he is carrying Eve down-stairs he drops her. Dottie chases him out of the house and starts out to buy another one.

Just at this time the mistress of the house enters and is stunned at the sight of the marvelous statue in pieces on the parlor floor. She hears the doorbell ring and goes to greet the aunt. While at the door, Eddie Barry who has repaired the statue, places it back on the pedestal.

In vain trying to prevent the aunt from seeing the empty pedestal, the wife has to bring her into the parlor. There they see the statue and the aunt comments on the beauty of the figure. While they are standing there the husband rushes in with another statue in his arms and Dottie skids across the room clutching a duplicate Eve. Gulping down his astonishment the husband is able to explain that they liked the statue so much they decided to place one in each room.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON 'HOOT' GIBSON!



Read the Writing on the Wall!

EVERY additional release of those hurry-up two-reel Westerns starring Hoot Gibson is a new chapter in the story of a star's rise to country-wide popularity. And the reason for Hoot's popularity is easy to understand. It's because virtually every subject starring him is just as good as "Kickaroo," of which Moving Picture World says: "Challenges all comers for the most laughable comedy yet released for 1921," to which Motion Picture News adds: "The offering is good enough for any house—bar none."

[redacted] 2-REEL ACTION WESTERNS - [redacted]

Carl Laemmle
makes the first real
MILLION DOLLAR
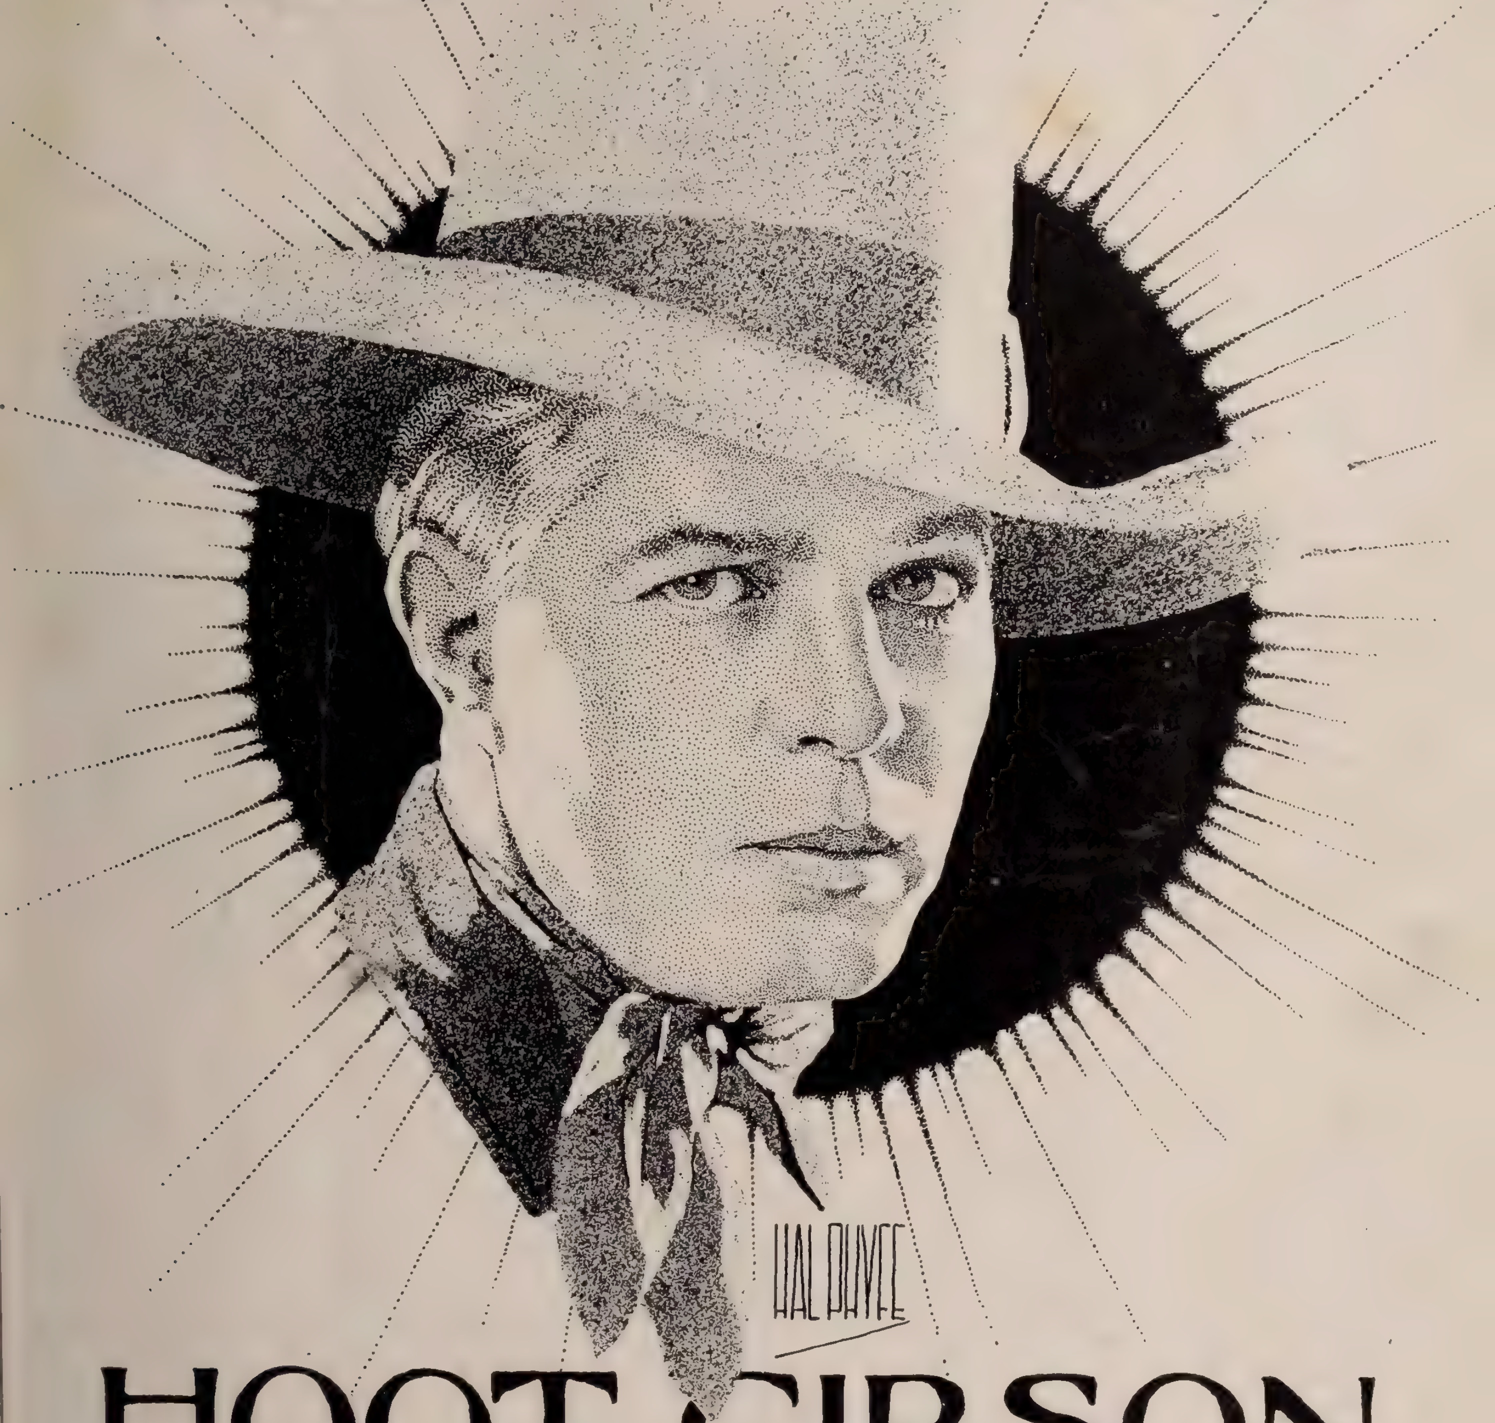
PICTURE

Von Stroheim's
Coming
UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

"FOOLISH WIVES"

THE MOV E WEEKLY

VOL 13. MARCH 26. 1921 NO 6



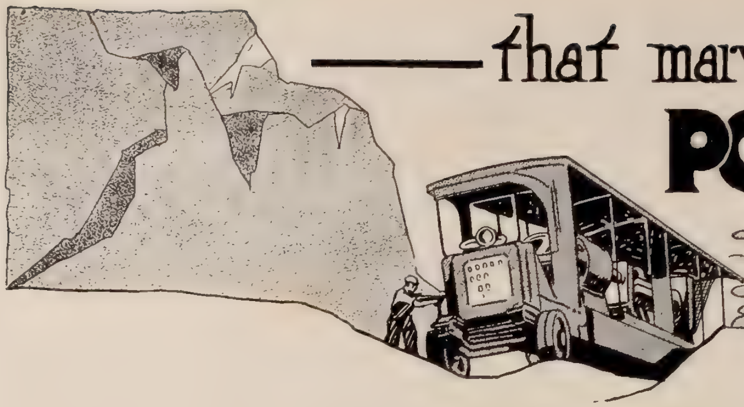
HOOT GIBSON

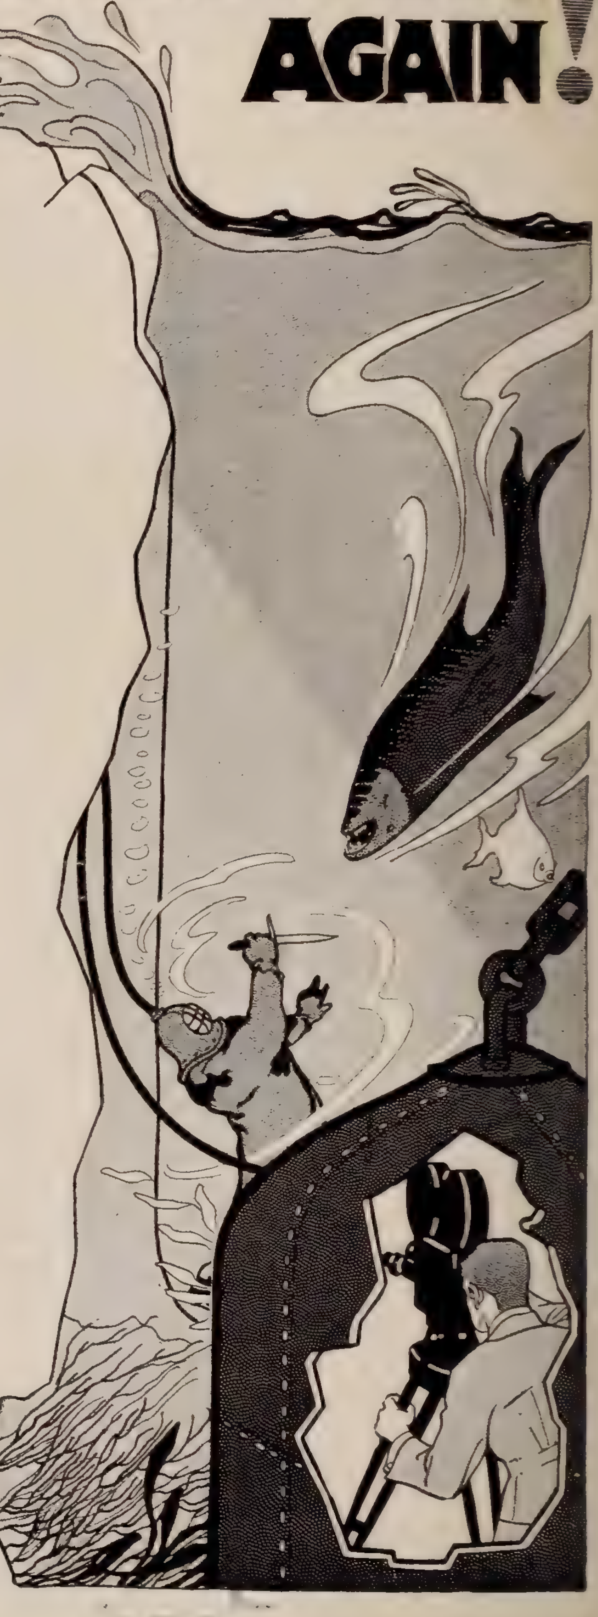
IN

"THE CACTUS KID"

TWO REEL WESTERN DRAMA

—that marvelous UNIVERSAL POWER WAGON AGAIN!





YOU have to have lights to make pictures—and good lights to make good pictures. If you want an outdoor setting but have no portable lighting system you have to beg, borrow or steal the necessary equipment or else make your picture in the studio—which means that its realism will suffer.

Universal takes its lights right with it wherever it goes—to the mountain tops or the bottom of the sea. Universal pictures are the realest pictures that the art produces because the Universal Power Wagons let us make those pictures wherever we like.

Which is simply another reason why you can be sure of "52 Good Pictures a Year and No Worry" in Universal Special Attractions—and another reason why you often get what is really a Special at Weekly Feature Rates.

52
Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry

Universal Special Attractions

"No Censorship" Says Gompers

"In New York State it is proposed to enact legislation providing for state censorship. I hope the New York Legislature will demonstrate a better understanding of our time than to add one more to the already too long list of repressive and coercive measures of our various law books.

* * * * * * * * *

"It is regrettable that advocates of governmental motion picture censorship again are active in the endeavor to place one more restriction upon the exercise of freedom of expression. I trust they will not be successful.

* * * * * * * * *

"But there must somewhere be an end to restriction, the censorship, to the exercise of the arbitrary judgement of a few over the doings of the masses, or we shall lose our democratic character entirely and become a nation of subjects."

Statement by SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President American Federation of Labor.

"Back-stage" Story of a H

"Cut out the romance!
I'm not your leading lady.
So — break!"

Carl Laemmle
offers

EVA NOVAK

—prettier than the
Girl o'your dreams

UNIVERSAL

ard-luck Chorus Girl!

"Say, father-in-law, this chicken may be only a showgirl but she is white! So cut out the bribe stuff and come clean!"

"Perhaps you can razz poor, little me from the chorus, but you can't bully my husband—even if he is your own son!"

IMAGINE a hard-boiled show-girl softened by love; imagine her living on a farm—and liking it; imagine her thrust into a seething caldron of dramatic events—and behind it all the unquenchable spirit of youth, and you just about begin to get an inkling of what to expect of this picture. Here you have every ingredient known for popularity so welded and so presented as to make of the whole pure entertainment—entertainment of the sort that makes motion pictures popular, and of the sort that makes most popular the theatre that shows them. You'll be glad you booked it.

One of those 52 Good Pictures a Year—and no worry

"The SMART SEX"

Directed by William Worthington

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Service Page for Eva Novak in "The Smart Sex"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Smart Sex."
STAR—Eva Novak.
PREVIOUS HITS—"The Torrent" and "Society Secrets."
DIRECTED BY—Fred Leroy Granville.
STORY BY—Emma Bell Clifton.
SCENARIO BY—Doris Schroeder.
SUPPORTING CAST—Frank Braidwood, Geoffrey Webb, Mayre Hall, C. Norman Hammond, Dorothy Hagan, Calvert Carter, Mrs. Margaret Mann, Jim O'Neill and Evelyn McCoy.
LOCALE—A New York theatre on amateur night, a farm and a country estate.
TIME—The present.
THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a schoolgirl who leaves a stranded troupe with her trick goose and steps into a series of serio-comic adventures which lead her to a dramatic climax out of which she finds love and happiness.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The spectacle of a barn-yard goose co-starring in a picture and getting over dramatic and humorous emotion.
2—The rapidly-growing popularity of Eva Novak.
3—The presence in the supporting cast of two popular young leading men, Frank Braidwood and Geoffrey Webb ,the latter a favorite of the London stage.
4—Excellent work by Mrs. Margaret Mann, whose mother-role in "Once To Every Woman" is being so widely commented upon.
5—The fact that Fred Leroy Granville, who directed "The Girl And The Goose" photographed many big Universal features, went to England to direct his first picture and was brought back by Mr. Laemmle.
6—Serio-comic glimpses behind the scenes of a theatre during "amateur night."
7—The novelty of a beautiful actress being forced by poverty to appear as an amateur at a cheap theatre.
8—A fascinating mystery story involving the theft of a fortune in gems.
9—The selection of L. L. Lancaster, former chief of all photographic work at Universal City, to film the story and his remarkable lighting effects.
10—The rapidly changing locale; from a teeming city to a restful farm; from a cheap lodging house to the bridal chamber of a mansion.

CAST

Rose	Eva Novak
Guy	Frank Braidwood
Edith	Mayre Hall
Mr. Vaughn	C. Norman Hammond
Mrs. Vaughn	Dorothy Hagan
Mr. Haskins	Calvert Carter
Mrs. Haskins	Margaret Mann
Danny	Jim O'Neill
Dorothy	Evelyn McCoy

THE STORY

ARABELLA, a goose, is the principal property of the small time show of which Rose Darrow is the prettiest chorus girl. The show breaks up and Arabella is seized by the hungry troupers as a means of allaying their hunger. Rose pleads for the life of the bird and starts out to walk the railroad ties back to New York, the goose waddling behind her.

Rose goes to her old lodging house in New York, where, she hopes, the landlady will care for her and Arabella until she can get a job. The landlady agrees to take Rose on credit but not the goose. Sorrowfully Rose wanders into the street, followed by the waddling Arabella and to the amusement of the passersby.

Their walk brought them to a vaudeville house which advertised for amateurs. Posing as an amateur Rose goes on the stage and puts on a comedy skit with Arabella in support. The act is a success and Rose wins the prize of the evening, $20.00.

In the box of the theatre and helping her win the money with his applause is Fred Vaughn, son of a wealthy diamond merchant. Rose sees him, admires him and sees that he likes her. That is as far as it got.

To live as cheaply as possible until the opening of the theatrical season, Rose goes to a farm near New York and arranges for board and lodging for herself and Arabella. She has not been there long when Danny, a waif from nowhere, arrives. Rose persuades the farmer to give him a job driving the wagon from which he delivered truck garden stuff over a route.

Near the farm is the magnificent country estate of the Vaughns. Things are going badly for Fred. He persists in drawing to straights and flushes at poker and loses his allowance for eight years in advance. His father drives him forth one evening just as he has climbed into his evening clothes for a poker party. Morning finds him sleeping on a park bench. As he awakens Danny drives up with his vegetable wagon. He falls from the seat and breaks his leg. For the deviltry of it Vaughn agrees to drive his route for him. The younger Mr. Vaughn arrives at his own back-door later with a vegetable basket on his arm and his evening clothes a trifle wrinkled. His parents are horrified but he insists upon delivering his cargo of food all through the fashionable neighborhood. At the farm Rose learns with sorrow of Danny's accident but recognizes Vaughn as the man who applauded her act from the box of the dingy little amateur theatre.

Fred asks Rose to marry him. She refuses until he can get his parents' consent. "I'll drive that vegetable wagon until you accept Rose as my fiancee," he tells his folks. In the hope of showing her to be unworthy of their son they invite Rose to spend a week with them. To their amazement Rose wins the affection of everyone.

One evening Carter, a diamond agent, delivers a case of priceless jewels to Vaughn at his home. They are discovered missing. Danny, who has arrived at the house to tell Rose that Arabella, the goose, is sick, is suspected. So is Fred and Guy, Guy being one of his gambling friends.

Through Rose's cleverness it is discovered that Carter switched jewel cases on Vaughn. He is arrested as he tries to leave for South America.

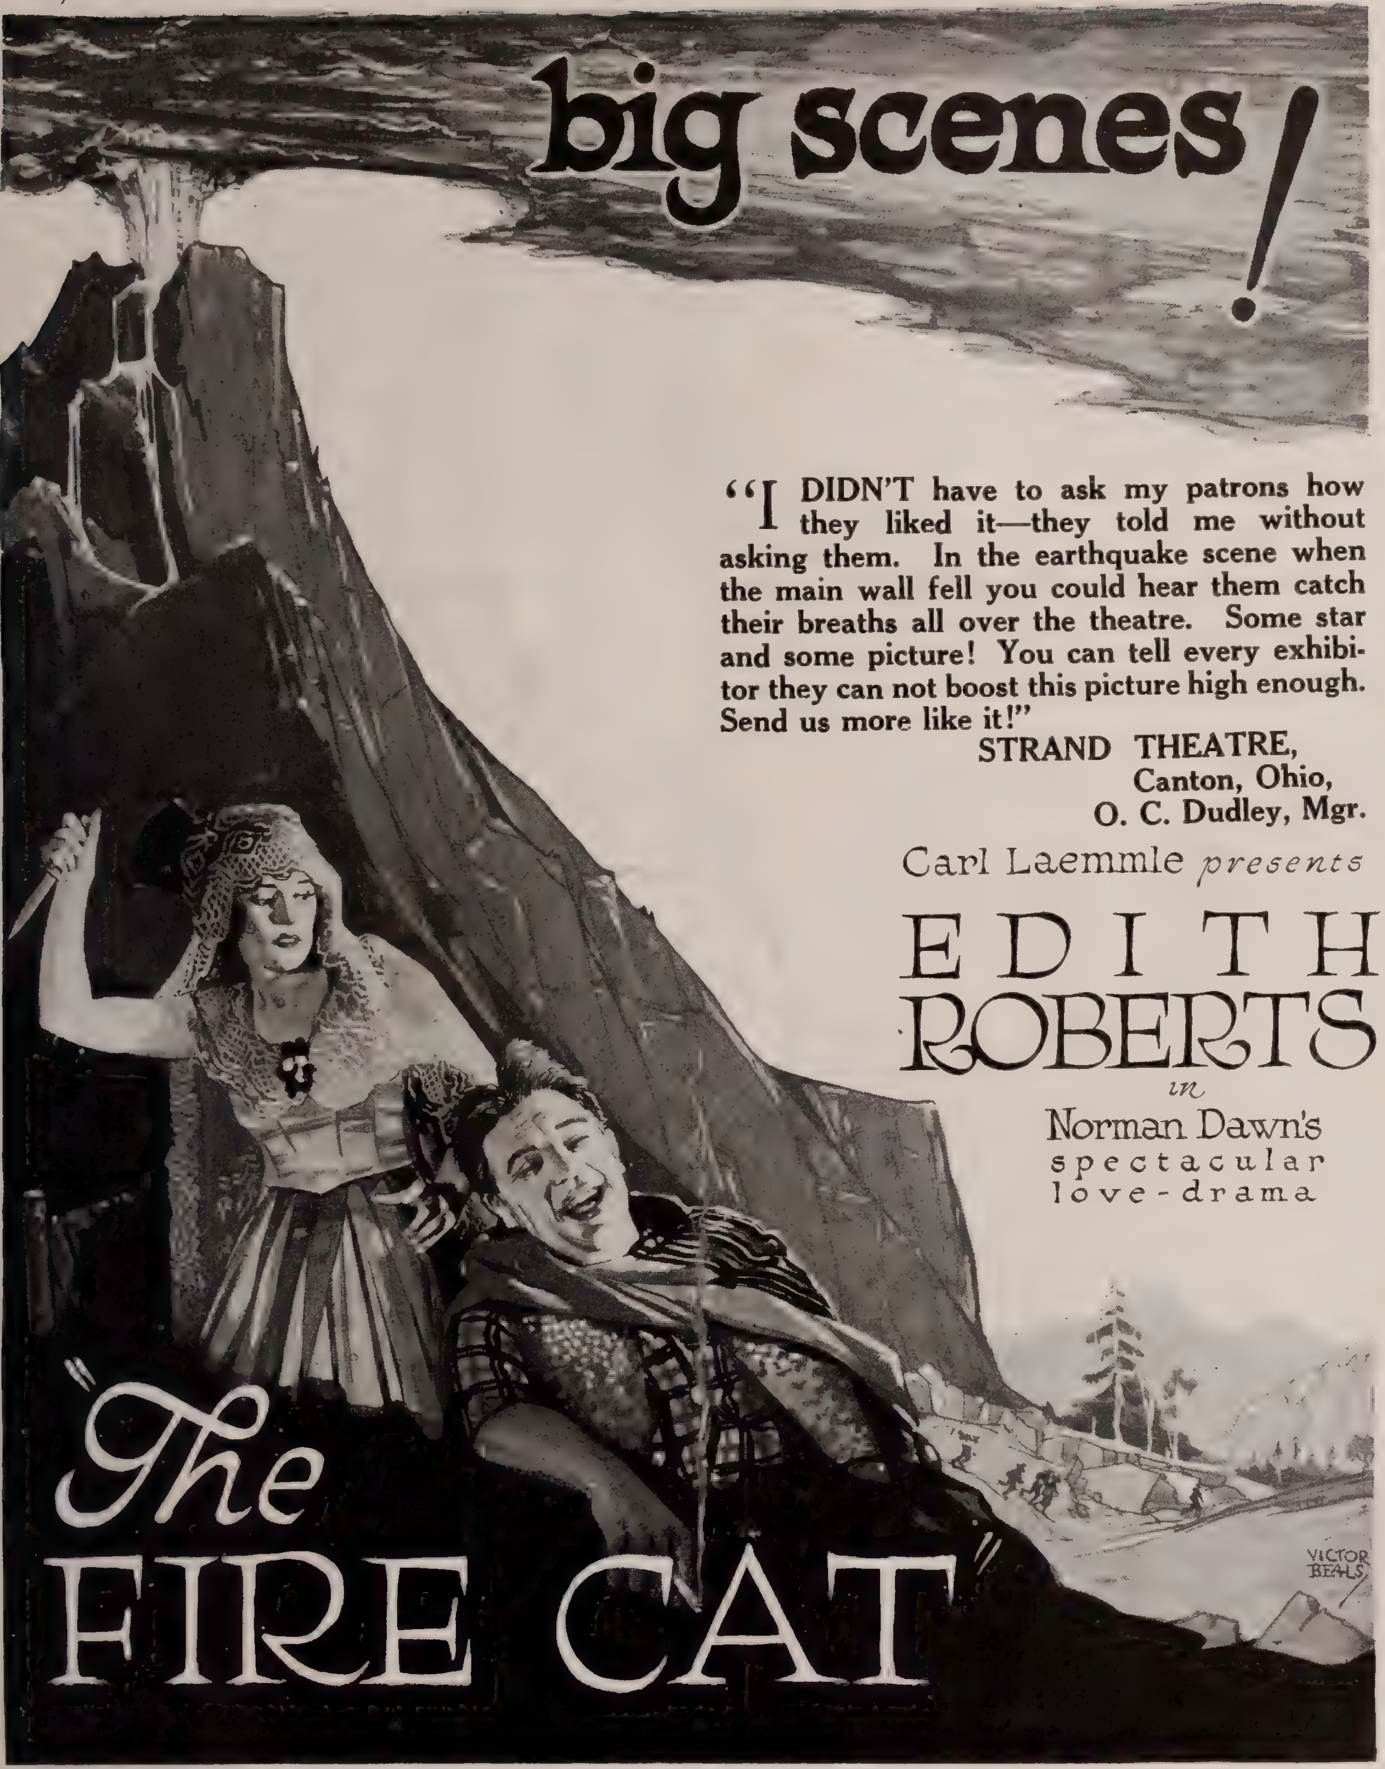
The little Goose Girl, through her sweetness and cleverness, meets the approval of the Vaughns and as the story closes is scheduled as Fred's bride.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY LINES

He played poker and lost his allowance for eight years in advance. She had not eaten for two days. You'll get a thrill out of "THE SMART SEX."

No luck from day to day. That was why Rose started out with a trained goose on the wildest and funniest adventure that could be imagined. See it all in "THE SMART SEX," a Universal picture with Eva Novak.

Love, like flowers, grows best in the country. At least it does for Eva Novak in "THE SMART SEX," her latest Universal photoplay.



"I DIDN'T have to ask my patrons how they liked it—they told me without asking them. In the earthquake scene when the main wall fell you could hear them catch their breaths all over the theatre. Some star and some picture! You can tell every exhibitor they can not boost this picture high enough. Send us more like it!"

STRAND THEATRE,
Canton, Ohio,
O. C. Dudley, Mgr.

Carl Laemmle presents

EDITH ROBERTS

in

Norman Dawn's spectacular
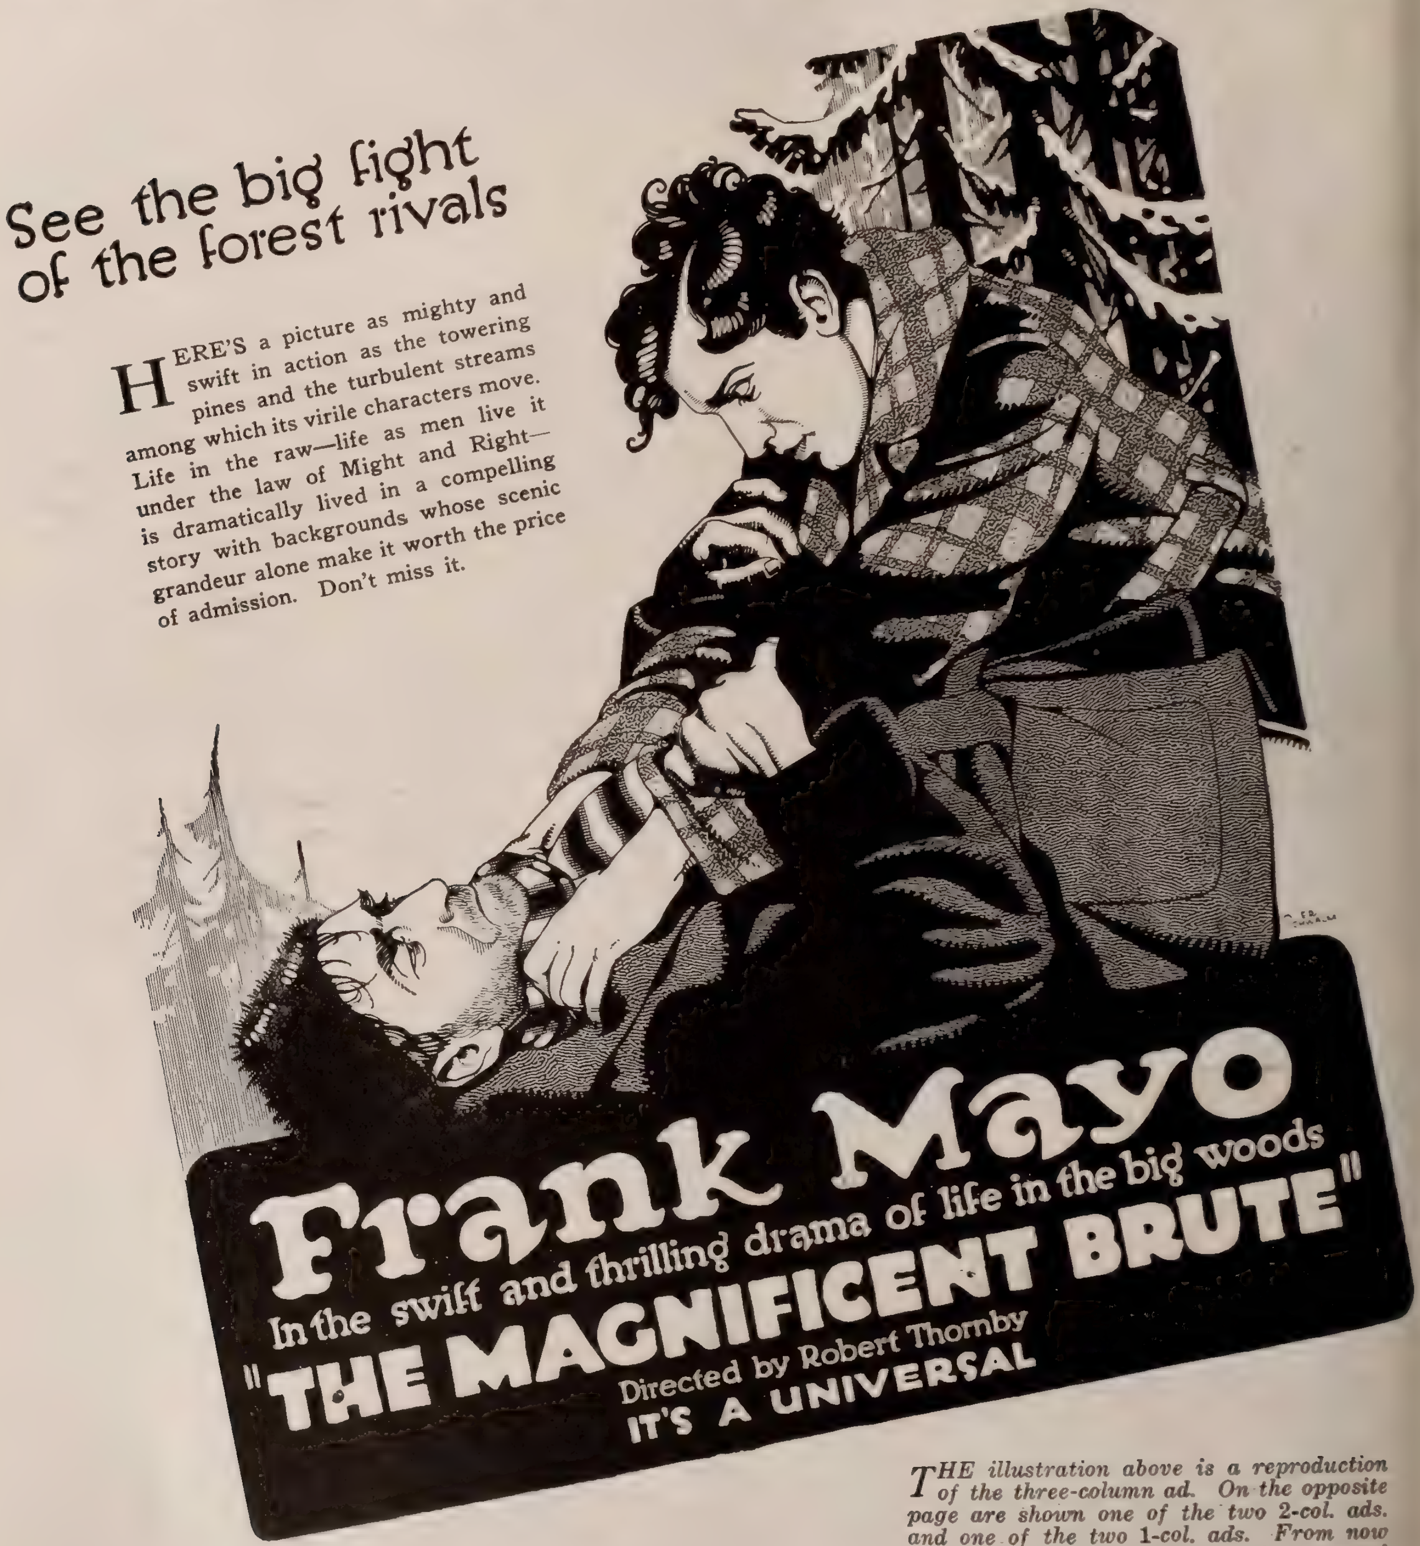
love-drama

USE BIG SPACE TO



See the big fight of the forest rivals

HERE'S a picture as mighty and swift in action as the towering pines and the turbulent streams among which its virile characters move. Life in the raw—life as men live it under the law of Might and Right—is dramatically lived in a compelling story with backgrounds whose scenic grandeur alone make it worth the price of admission. Don't miss it.

Frank Mayo

In the swift and thrilling drama of life in the big woods

"THE MAGNIFICENT BRUTE"

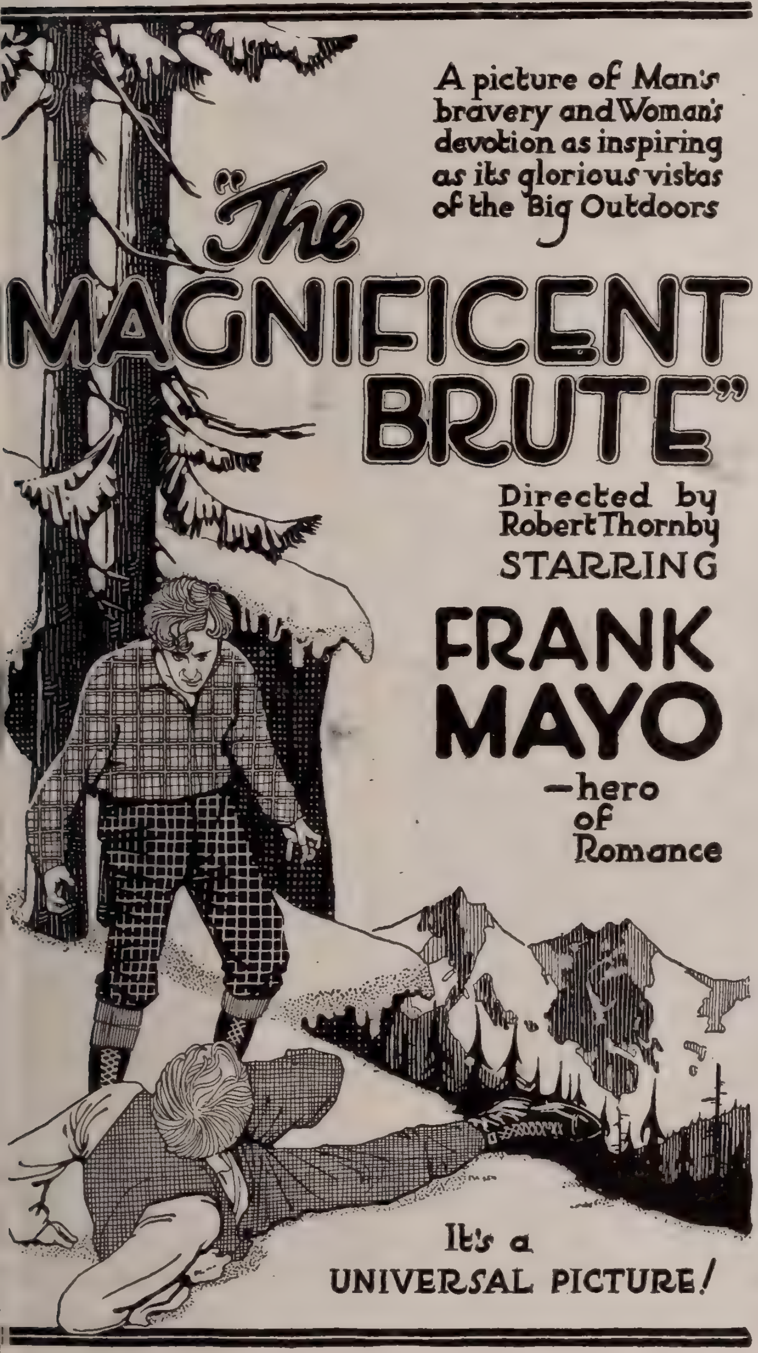
Directed by Robert Thornby

IT'S A UNIVERSAL

THE illustration above is a reproduction of the three-column ad. On the opposite page are shown one of the two 2-col. ads. and one of the two 1-col. ads. From now on there will be five different ads. prepared for every Universal Special Attraction.

MAKE BIG MONEY

ONE way to beat your competition to a frazzle and to build your business in general is to use big newspaper space. Here you see three of the five newspaper ads. on "The Magnificent Brute." Each of those "52 Good Pictures a Year" is armed for big business with compelling advertising ammunition. For the benefit of your box-office—SHOOT!



A picture of Man's bravery and Woman's devotion as inspiring as its glorious vistas of the Big Outdoors

"The MAGNIFICENT BRUTE"

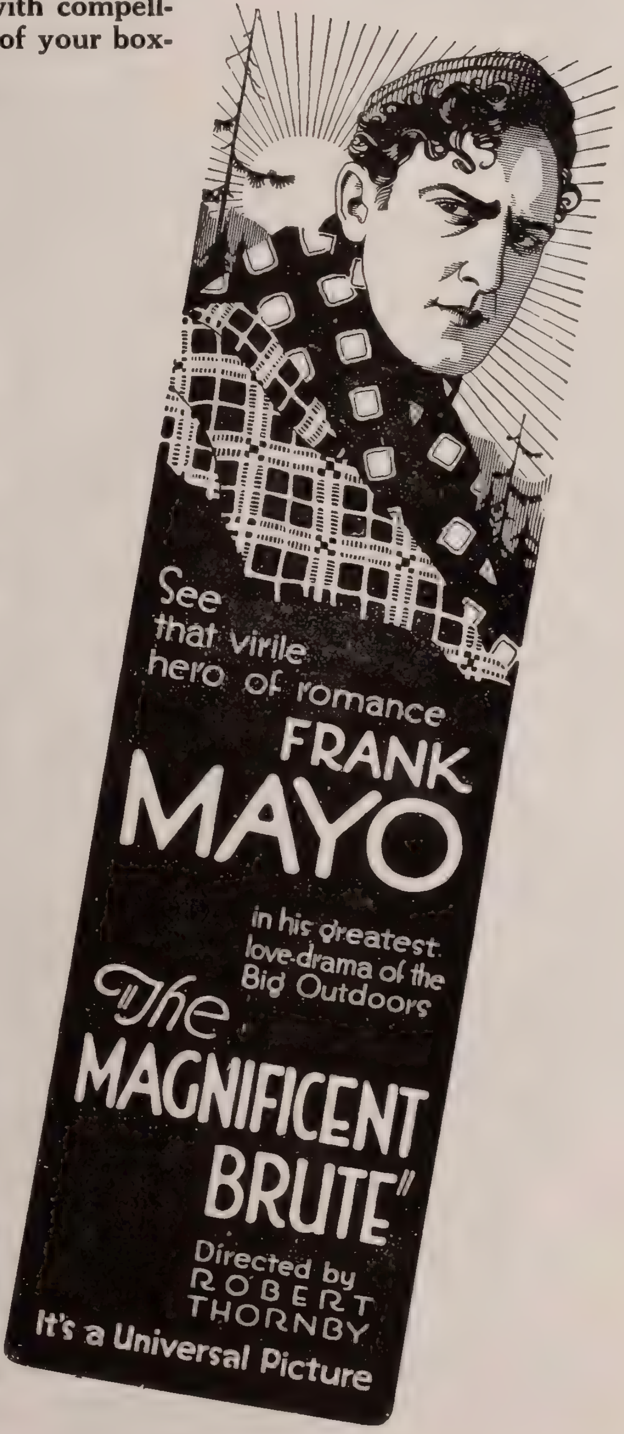
Directed by Robert Thornby

STARRING

FRANK MAYO

—hero of Romance

It's a UNIVERSAL PICTURE!



See that virile hero of romance

FRANK MAYO

in his greatest love-drama of the Big Outdoors

"The MAGNIFICENT BRUTE"

Directed by ROBERT THORNBY

It's a Universal Picture

A Perfect Sample
Universal
52 Times

M. P. NEWS SAYS:

"THERE is no doubt about the entertainment quality of the picture. Has enough on its credit side to please any type of audience. The action never drags. It should satisfy wherever played."

M. P. WORLD SAYS:

"ENTERTAINING picture. Develops under exciting situations. Action is good and rounds the piece up with a strong climax."

WID'S SAYS:

"CONSIDERABLE action and suitable story for the star. Interesting bit of entertainment."

EX. HERALD SAYS:

"CAN be depended upon to please. Contains sure-fire ingredients. All the qualities demanded by lovers of romantic fiction are in this picture."

EX. TRADE REVIEW SAYS:

"GOING to please any audience. Interestingly portrayed and has absolutely no trace of the so-called "padding." Every foot of film just thrills with realism. Young and old will enjoy the story of every-day life. There is no questionable sex or risque situation.

VICTOR BEALS

of the Pictures
Offers You
in the Year

THERE'S a world of difference between promise and performance. Universal proves it every week in the year—proves it by living up to the letter of its promise of "52 Good Pictures a Year—and no worry." True, some of the Universal Special Attractions are better than others—but they're all good. Take the case of "All Dolled Up," for instance. It would be absolutely impossible for any producer to produce a picture as good as that every week, just as it would be impossible for you to play to capacity houses at every performance every day. But the average is mighty high — you do get a good picture every week — and very often a Special like "All Dolled Up" at weekly feature rates. Universal's "52" proposition is a good business asset for you. Pictures like "All Dolled Up" prove it!

Carl Laemmle
presents
GLADYS
WALTON
in the fastest and most wholesome
comedy of the year

Directed by
Rollin Sturgeon

Universal
Special Attraction

"ALL DOLLED UP"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol 13 MARCH 26, 1921 No. 6

Preserve Film Of Cannibal Life

WHEN the Universal production "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" was exhibited in Washington, D. C., it received recognition of its educational value from the Smithsonian Institution, which is one of the foremost scientific institutes in America. In addition to having a wide popular appeal for the general public it was said to possess great interest for scientific men interested in native life on the Island of New Guinea.

During the exhibition in Washington at the Leader Theatre the attention of Dr. Walter Hough, Curator of Ethnology at the Smithsonian Institution, was called to the picture. Upon his recommendation the following letter was sent to Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., asking for a copy of the film to be kept permanently in Washington:

January, 29, 1921.

The Universal Film Co.,
1600 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—

There was recently displayed at one of the local motion picture theatres in this city (the Leader Theatre, I believe) a film depicting the life of natives of New Guinea. It was viewed by Dr. Walter Hough, our Curator of Ethnology, who reports that it is of great ethnological value, and should be permanently preserved. I beg to inquire, therefore, if you have a duplicate of this film that you would be willing to present to the national collections for permanent preservation? It would be recorded as a gift in the name of your company, and suitable mention of the donation would be made in the Museum's Annual Report.

Dr. Hough was of the impression that for public exhibition certain portions of the film had been cut out. If this is the case I would explain that for ethnological purposes the complete film would naturally be desired.

Trusting that you will find it possible to comply with our request, and assuring you that the film will be permanently preserved in the archives of the Museum, I am

Very respectfully yours
W. DE C. RAVENEL,
Administrative Assistant to the Secretary

In answer to this request the following is a copy of the letter notifying the Smithsonian Institution that a print of this picture would be shipped to Washington:

February 1, 1921

Mr. W. de C. Ravenel,
Administrative Assistant to the Secretary,
Smithsonian Institution, U. S. National Museum,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter dated January twenty-fifth, and take great pleasure in giving the Smithsonian Institution a copy of our picture "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals," for its archives.

We, too, realized the tremendous importance of bringing such a picture to this country, and for that reason we sent our expedition to New Guinea at enormous cost to ourselves, in order to secure these films. A copy of "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" will be shipped to the Smithsonian Institution within the course of the next week.

Assuring you of our willingness at all times to be of assistance to the Institution, I remain,

Very truly yours,
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
(Signed) CARL LAEMMLE,
President.

A special expedition was sent to the Island of New Guinea to obtain the scenes shown in "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals." Everywhere the picture has been shown it has created unusual interest and has received praise from all classes.

VALUE OF PICTURE PALACES.

It is the opinion of George Bernard Shaw, author and playwright, that much of the objection to moving pictures is by persons who condemn without seeing the pictures they object to. In discussing this subject recently he said:

"I am glad that the police have at last testified to the civilizing influence of pictures. I was once invited to a conference of eminent persons, including the head master of a famous public school, for the purpose of checking the alleged pernicious effects of the cinema on the youth of the country. I heard the eminent persons speak with sincere horror of the immoralities of the picture theatre.

"I asked where the immoral films were to be seen, as I had visited cinemas in many European countries, and had found their morals oppressively conventional, as might be expected from entertainments which have to be presentable to audiences of all classes and races, appearing simultaneously in cathedral towns and Chinese seaports, model villages and uban eastends.

"The eminent persons were unspeakably shocked at my assuming that they had actually seen what they were denouncing, or that they had ever been in a picture palace in their lives. Besides myself there was only one man present who spoke from personal experience of the pictures; and he was the master of a school for defective children in a very poor neighborhood.

"He testified eloquently to the value of the picture palaces as a refuge from the streets for children who had to be locked out while their mothers were out working.

"What other chance have such children of seeing well-dressed people in handsome houses, behaving themselves courteously? If it makes them discontented with squalor and poverty and savage manners, so much the better."

Publicity Stories for Eva Novak in "The Smart Sex"

HUMOR OF AMATEUR NIGHT SAVES MYSTERIOUS GOOSE

AMATEUR night at a dingy Bowery theatre.

What a great chance for the student of human nature to watch humanity as it passes in review before him.

The ungrammatical introduction of the manager. The whispered conversation between the nervous performer and the unsympathetic orchestra leader. The sea of faces, upturned with a lust for mockery glowing like phosphorus through the shadows. The pathetically faltering monologue. The cat-calls from the gallery. Then the inevitable "hook."

The next act.

A woman with streaks of gray in her hair where the dye has washed out. She starts to sing. A glorious voice reverberates in the building. The sneering crowd below her is hazy in her age-dimmed eyes. Instead she sees the magnificently-dressed crowd who left the Odeon weeping when the voice that had thrilled Paris ten years before, broke. Again the voice lifts to a splendid note and crashes flat. Again she has failed in her ceaseless effort to "come back," even through appearance at amateur nights.

The amateur theatre, its humor and pathos, is cleverly used as an incident in "The Smart Sex," the Universal comedy-drama which is now showing at the .... Theatre with Eva Novak in the starring role.

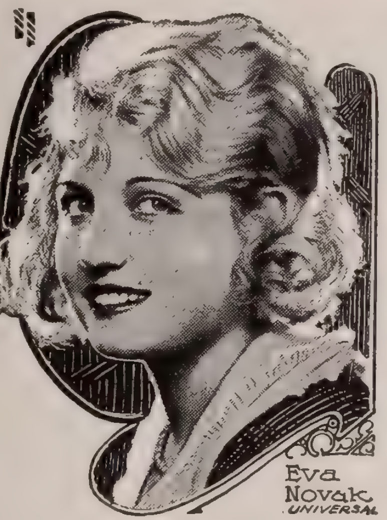
The story was filmed at Universal City under the direction of Fred Leroy Granville and is considered to be one of the best examples of the thrilling photodrama blended with humor into which the human emotions enter with unusual force.

FIRST PRIZE BRINGS GIRL HAPPY HOME AND HUSBAND

HUMOR is skillfully blended with thrills in "The Smart Sex," the Universal comedy-drama which opened last night at the .... Theatre, with beautiful Eva Novak in the starring rôle and a barn-yard goose strutting in support.

The story was produced at Universal City under the direction of Fred Leroy Granville and is one of the most entertaining screen offerings of the year.

The heroine of the story is a stranded show girl, who walks the railroad tracks to the city accompanied by Arabella, the goose. She applies for food and shelter at a boarding house, but leaves hurriedly when the landlady indicates that she has to pay her rent with the goose in addition to having some of the white meat for herself at Sunday dinner. Trying her luck at an amateur theatrical performance, the girl and the goose win the first prize and start for the country to economize until the opening of the theatrical season. There she meets Fred Vaughn, a rich young fellow who helped her win the amateur prize with his applause. They fall in love, but their happiness is clouded by a daring robbery of which the girl is accused.



How she exonerates herself and wins the love of everyone with whom she comes in contact is told in a forceful climax which gives a brilliant contrast to the humorous under-current of the story.

EVA NOVAK PLAYS NEW PART TAKES ROLE OF SHOW GIRL

"THE SMART SEX," which has been viewed as "the most entertaining comedy-drama of the year," will be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on .... when local playgoers will again have an opportunity to see Eva Novak, the star, who preceded her current success only recently with "The Torrent" and "Society Secrets."

The story was directed at Universal City by Fred Leroy Granville from the original theme by Emma Bell Clifton and a clever dramatization by Doris Schroeder.

A particularly popular cast will be seen in Miss Novak's support. As the interpreters of the principal masculine rôles will be seen Frank Braidwood, well regarded as a leading man among screen fans, and Geoffrey Webb, the handsome young favorite of the London stage, which he recently left to join the colony of film celebrities at Universal City. Mrs. Margaret Mann, whose greatest work was in "Once to Every Woman," has an appealing mother rôle in "The Smart Sex," while Mayre Hall, C. Norman Hammond, Dorothy Hagan, Calvert Carter, Jim O'Neill and Evelyn McCoy have the remaining supporting characterizations.

As a stranded show girl with only a goose for company, the star walks the railroad tracks to the city, appears at an amateur theatrical show for the price of a meal and meets a dashing young fellow who is instrumental in rapidly transplanting her from the metropolis to a sleepy country town where she encounters an amazing series of dramatic and humorous adventures.

UNIVERSAL FEATURE TO SHOW WONDERFUL GOOSE

SPARKLING comedy is cleverly blended with appealing pathos, which leads to a smashingly dramatic climax in "The Smart Sex," the widely discussed Universal comedy-drama which is to have its initial showing locally on .... night at the .... Theatre.

Eva Novak, who smiled her way into the hearts of playgoers and made her popularity permanent through such excellent examples of dramatic art as her starring role in "The Torrent" and "Society Secrets," is the featured player of "The Girl and the Goose."

As the story opens the girl is seen trudging up a railroad track with a goose waddling alongside. They are leaving a theatrical company that has become stranded in the country town. From then on the wayfarers are thrown into enough serio-comic situations to keep a serial snappy for eighteen episodes, but it all ends well and with a concluding twang on the heartstrings that will be pleasing to those for whom romance has an appeal.

"The Smart Sex" was produced at Universal City under the direction of Fred Leroy Granville. With an interesting understanding of the dramatic value of contrasts he presents the story in a rapidly changing locale; from the teeming city to the pastoral countryside and from the unsavory pit of an amateur theatre to the luxurious home of a millionaire.

Theatregoers who seek the unusual in screen stories will find in "The Smart Sex" that satisfaction which comes from a skillful presentation of a clever comedy-drama by players admirably suited to their roles.

The Drama of a Love that Rocked a Throne

THROUGHOUT history there are incidents where the Fate of a nation hung on so small a thing as a woman's whim—which proves once more that the whole drama of the world revolves about elementals. Here you have a story along these same lines, but with this big difference: "The Breath Of The Gods" is modern in treatment and modern in setting. It is a powerful story of to-day—a picture whose drama is as deep and as compelling as Truth itself. What's more, it's timely, and your folks are going to thank you for having presented it. Try it and profit.

Show This ALL-STAR CAST

TSURU AOKI
J. BARNEY SHERRY
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON

"The BREATH OF THE GODS"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

Directed by Rollin Sturgeon
from the Novel by Sidney McCall

Fooled!

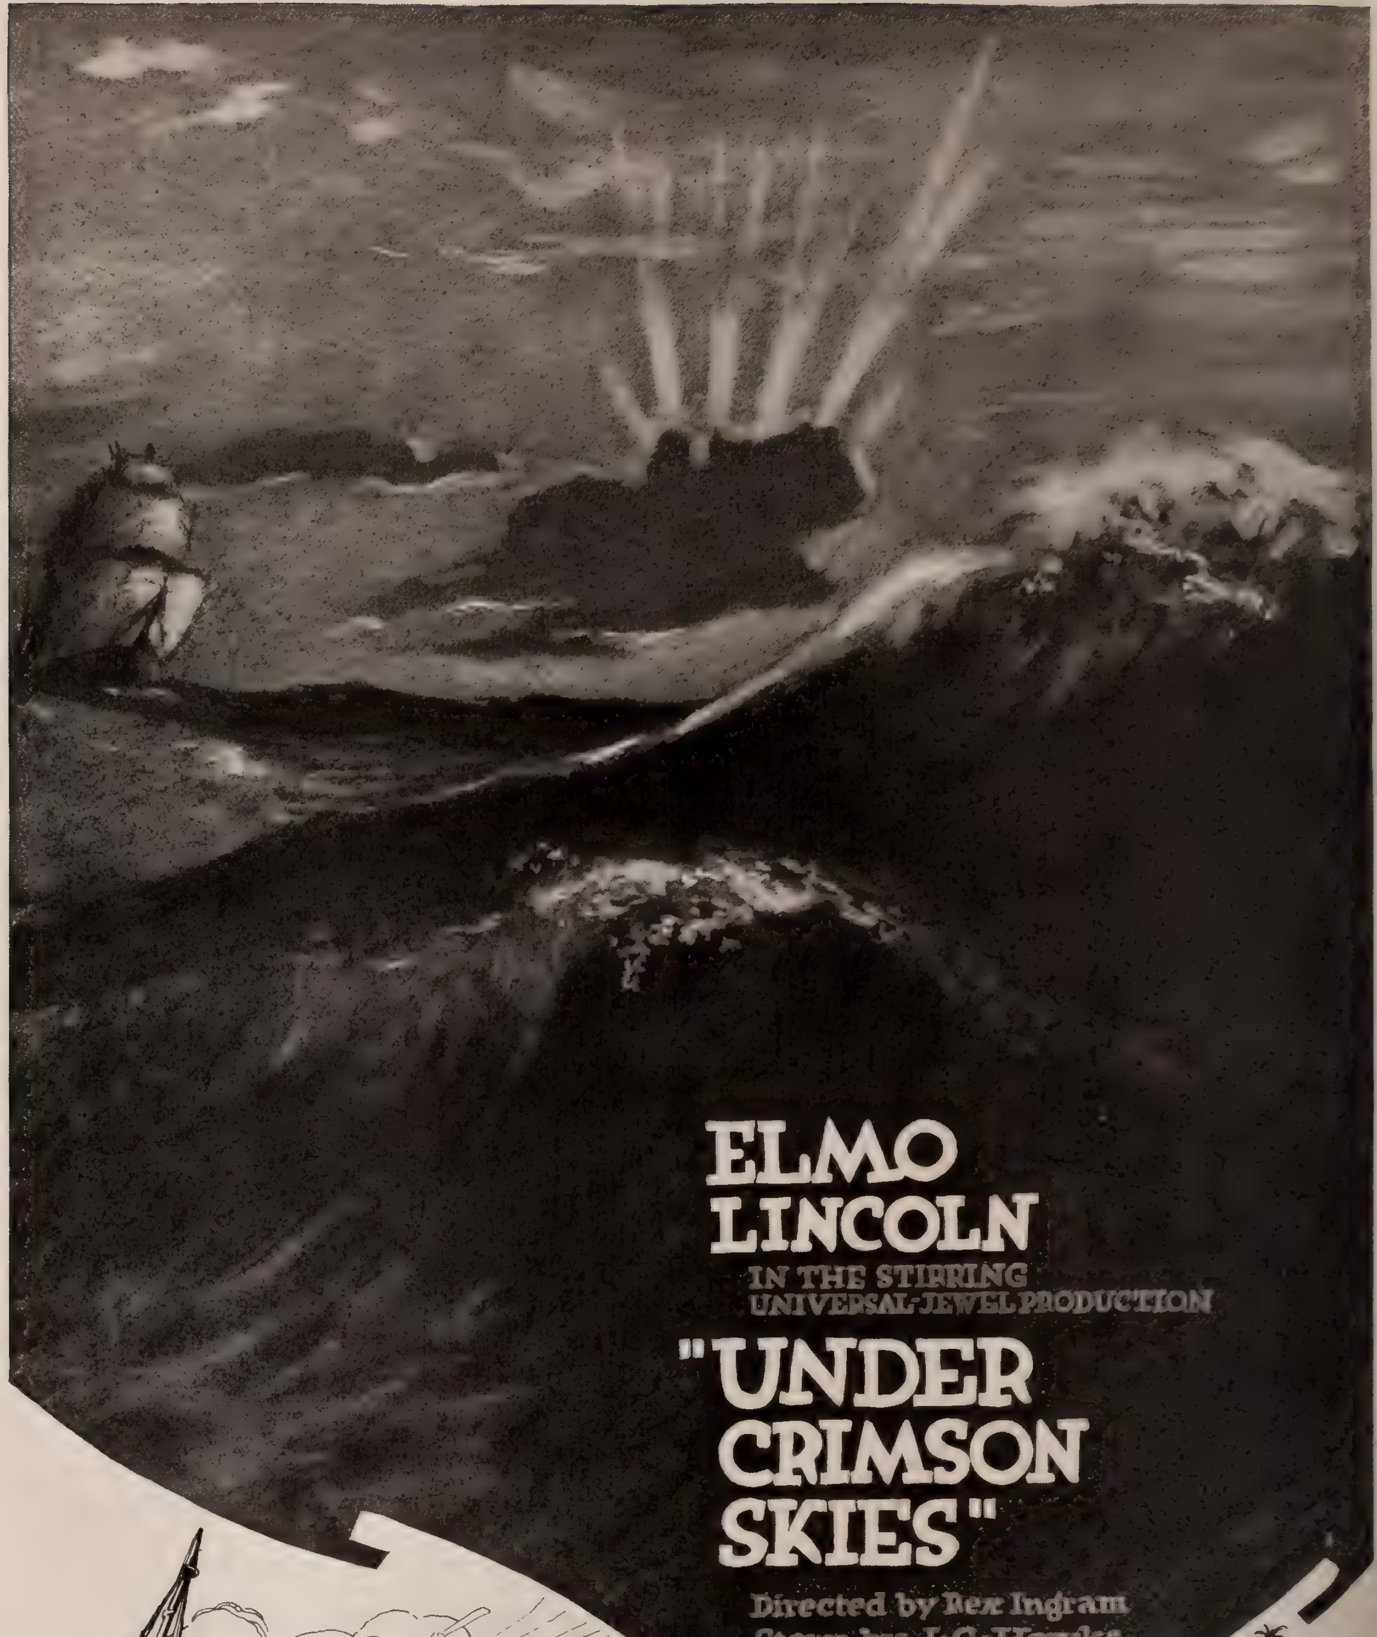
the exhibitor who once believed that a big picture could not go "big" in a small town!

Carl Laemmle presents

Priscilla Dean in "The Virgin of STAMBOUL"

Directed by
Tod Browning

Universal - Jewel



ELMO LINCOLN
IN THE STIRRING UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION
"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"
Directed by Rex Ingram
Story by J·G·Hawks

These Startling Lobby Paintings

Pull Every Age & Every Sex!

-Get them from Your Universal Exchange

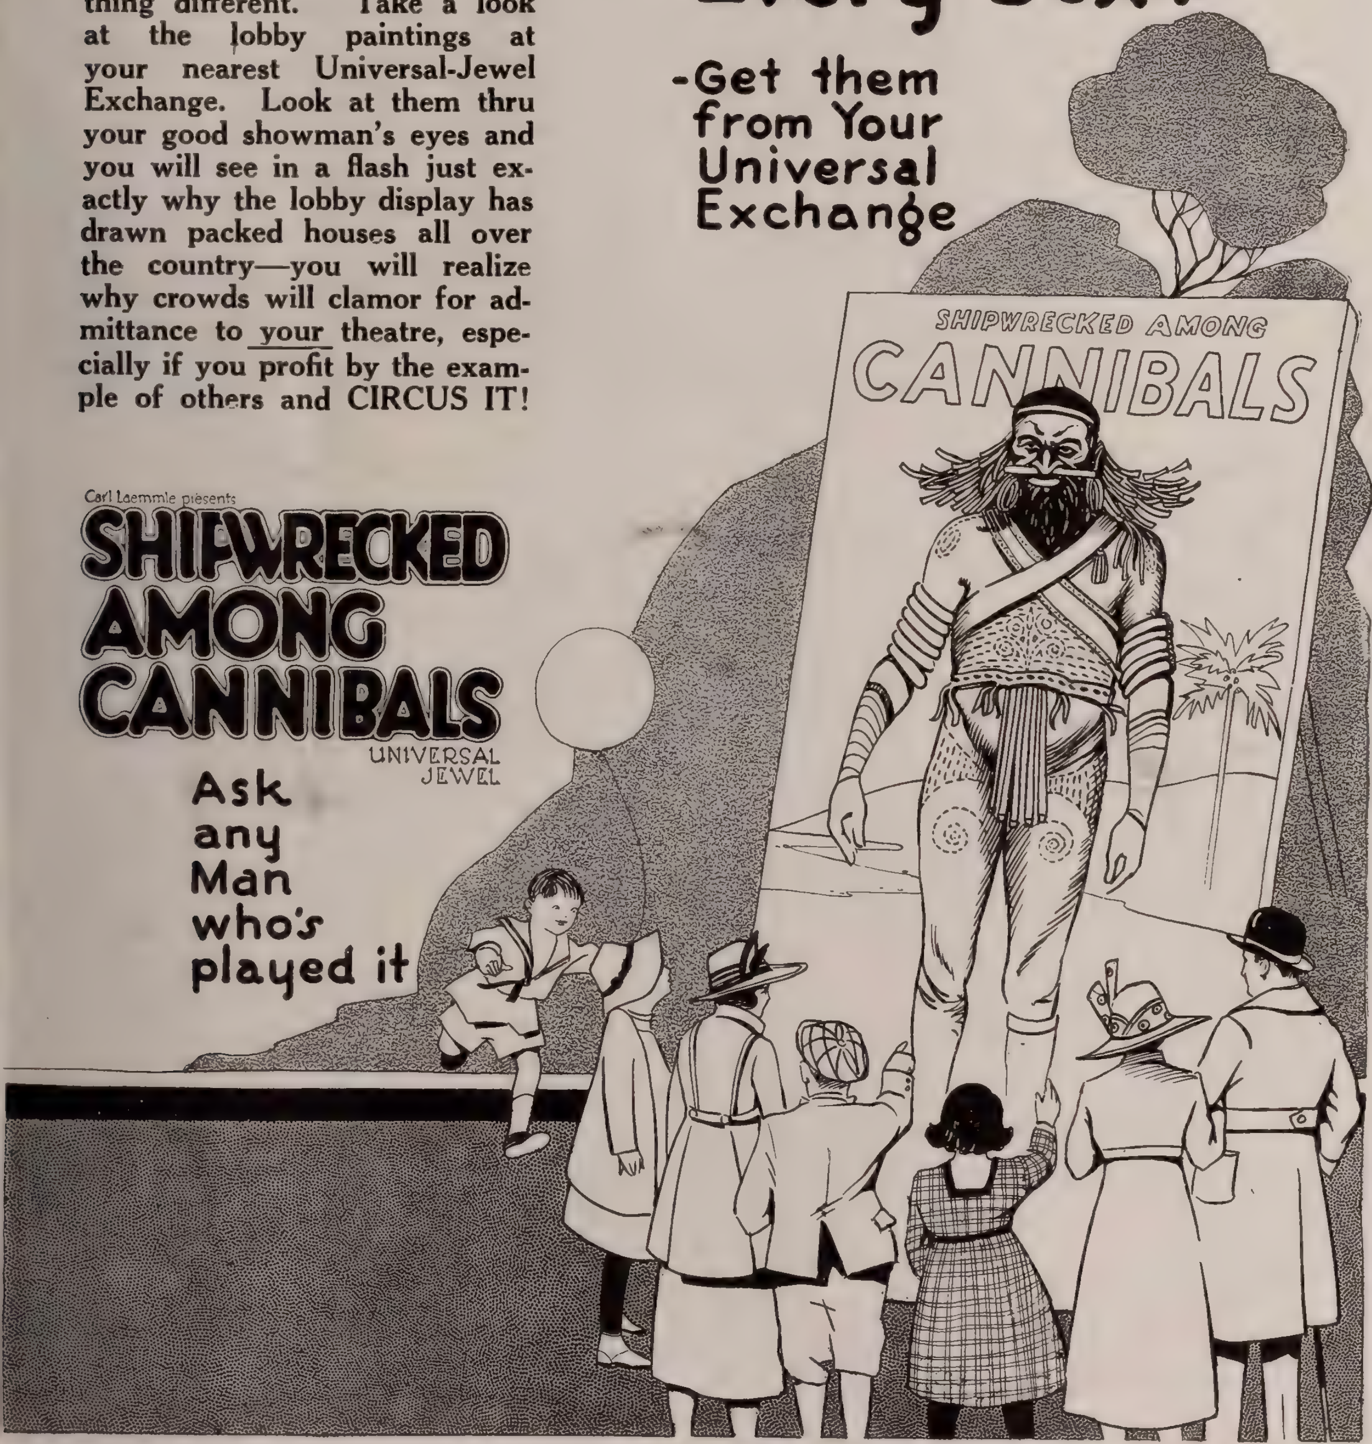
YOU know what it means in the picture business to be able to present "something different." Here is that "something different." Take a look at the lobby paintings at your nearest Universal-Jewel Exchange. Look at them thru your good showman's eyes and you will see in a flash just exactly why the lobby display has drawn packed houses all over the country—you will realize why crowds will clamor for admittance to your theatre, especially if you profit by the example of others and CIRCUS IT!

Carl Laemmle presents

SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS

UNIVERSAL JEWEL

Ask any Man who's played it



Goose Supports Star in "The Smart Sex"

Stranded musical comedy show "prop" starts Eva Novak on series of adventures

IN the latest Eva Novak feature picture, the Universal star shares first honors with a goose which should quickly win the favor of screen audiences everywhere. After its efforts in this picture the strutting bird will occupy a permanent niche in the hall of fame for animal players at Universal City.

In this story Miss Novak appears as the most attractive chorus girl of a small time musical comedy company which expires in a provincial town. One of the "props" carried in the show is a goose to which the girl has become attached, and the awkward bird is her sole possession when the troupe goes on the rocks.

An amateur night in a vaudeville theatry estate of the Vaughns whose chief a prize thanks to the faithful goose. The money thus earned enables her to go to a farmhouse to stay until the theatrical season reopens.

Not far away from the farm is the country estate of the Vaughans whose chief worry is the son of the family who labors under the conviction that money was made to spend in having a good time. How the chorus girl meets the rich young man and how, under her wholesome influence, he begins to see life from a different angle presents a series of situations that in turn, interest, amuse and thrill.

New "Breezy" Eason Release

A KID and a dog form an irresistible combination, according to heart specialists, and this fact is clearly shown in the photoplay "The Great Adventure," which has just been screened at Universal City and is scheduled for an early release. Little "Breezy" Eason, the son of director Reeves Eason, will be seen in the starring rôle with "Micky," his dog playing in support.

This is exactly the type of story in which playgoers will appreciate the qualities of this little star. It was written by James Edward Hungerford, and contains just the right proportion of humor, pathos and drama.

"Breezy" Eason and "Micky"

Mr. Eason says that "Micky" should be called "Bevo" because he is only near bull, but "Breezy" stoutly protests that "Micky" is a thoroughbred at heart even if physically he bears a close resemblance to a dashhund and a Fox terrier.

The "big folks" in the story are Gertrude Olmstead, Mollie Schaeffer, L. C. Shumway and Fred Herzog, all of them enthusiastic admirers of the little fellow who did his first important screen work with Gladys Walton in "Pink Tights" and immediately won his way to popularity.

Another Carey Picture

NEARING completion at Universal City and ready for early release is a new Harry Carey western story "The Freeze Out," from the pen of George C. Hull. The production marks the return to the Universal studios of Jack Ford, who directed Carey in some of his biggest successes.

"The Freeze Out" is a new version of the story of the reformation of a bad western town through the influence of a wandering adventurer aided by the ambition to win the favor of the town's best woman. After announcing that he would open up a new gambling place, "Ohio," the stranger meets the woman. Under her influence he opens up his elaborate "joint" and discloses a school and public library instead of the gambling hall.

Harry Carey, as the mysterious stranger whose smile hides a fighting nature, is shown at his best in this picture. In the supporting cast are: Helen Ferguson, Charles Le Moyne, Joe Harris, J. Farrell McDonald, and Lydia Yeamans Titus.

Don't fail to see the Episode Poster Sketches on the following pages

POLO

18 WEEKS OF GASPING THRILLS

UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SERIAL SENSATION

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

After All, The Posters Do The Trick

NEXT to the star the greatest "puller-in" for serials is the Episode Poster. Good, actionful posters outside draw the crowds inside.

Eddie Polo is the idol of serial fans everywhere. He is one of the greatest drawing cards playing in serials to-day.

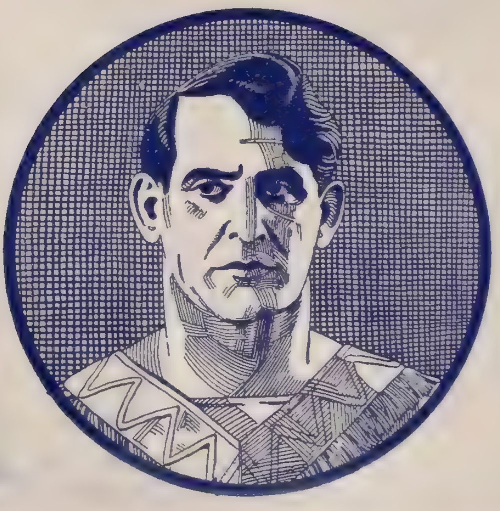
When you play him let people know it. Advertise the fact. Use "paper" and use it liberally. Spread the news. Pass the good word along.

Go the Limit on Posters

IN the adjoining pages of this section are sketches of the eighteen episode posters printed in the original in five colors. Every one of them is jamful of action to pull 'em in. The artist has eliminated the lettering in the sketches that stands out so strikingly on the posters.

Keep Pounding Away

WHEN You have a good thing like "The King of the Circus"—DON'T KEEP IT A SECRET. Tell them what you've got. Tell them repeatedly. Bang away at 'em week after week. Use your episode posters everywhere. Then just try to make room for the crowds that will pack your sidewalk for eighteen money-making weeks.

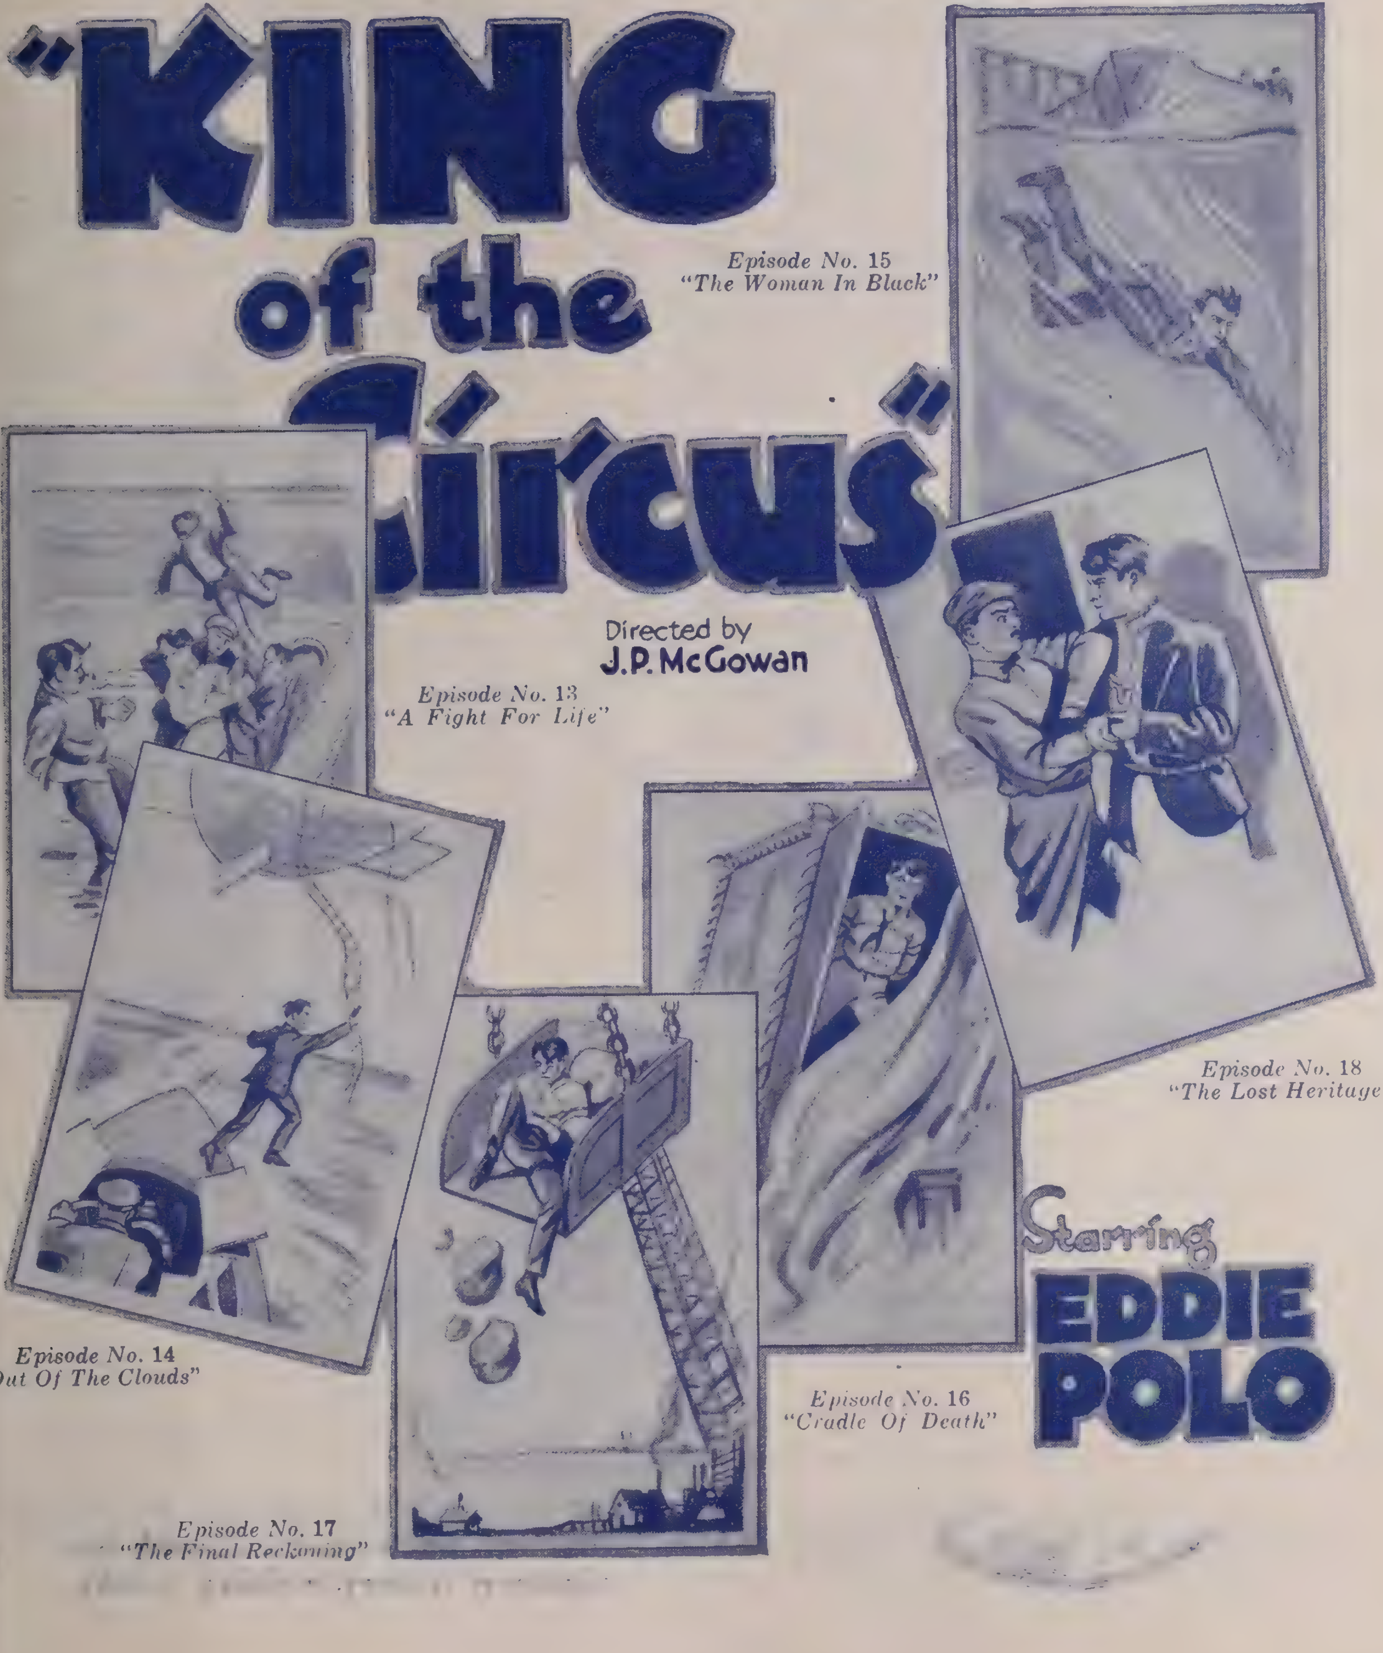


EPISODE POSTERS 13 to 18

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Directed by
J.P. McGowan

Starring
EDDIE POLO



Episode No. 15
"The Woman In Black"

Episode No. 13
"A Fight For Life"

Episode No. 18
"The Lost Heritage"

Episode No. 14
"Out Of The Clouds"

Episode No. 16
"Cradle Of Death"

Episode No. 17
"The Final Reckoning"

After All, The Posters Do The Trick

NEXT to the star the greatest "puller-in" for serials is the Episode Poster. Good, actionful posters outside draw the crowds inside.

Eddie Polo is the idol of serial fans everywhere. He is one of the greatest drawing cards playing in serials to-day.

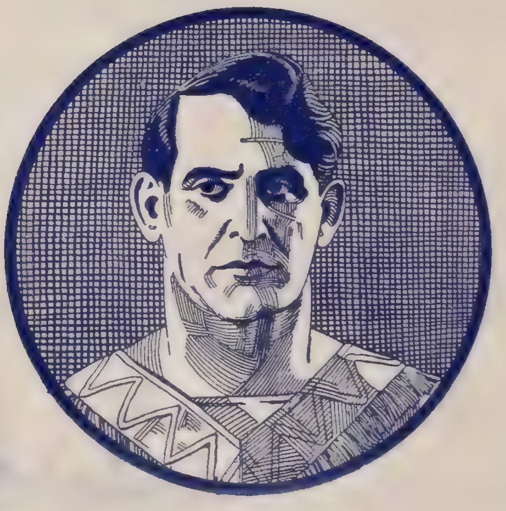
When you play him let people know it. Advertise the fact. Use "paper" and use it liberally. Spread the news. Pass the good word along.

Go the Limit on Posters

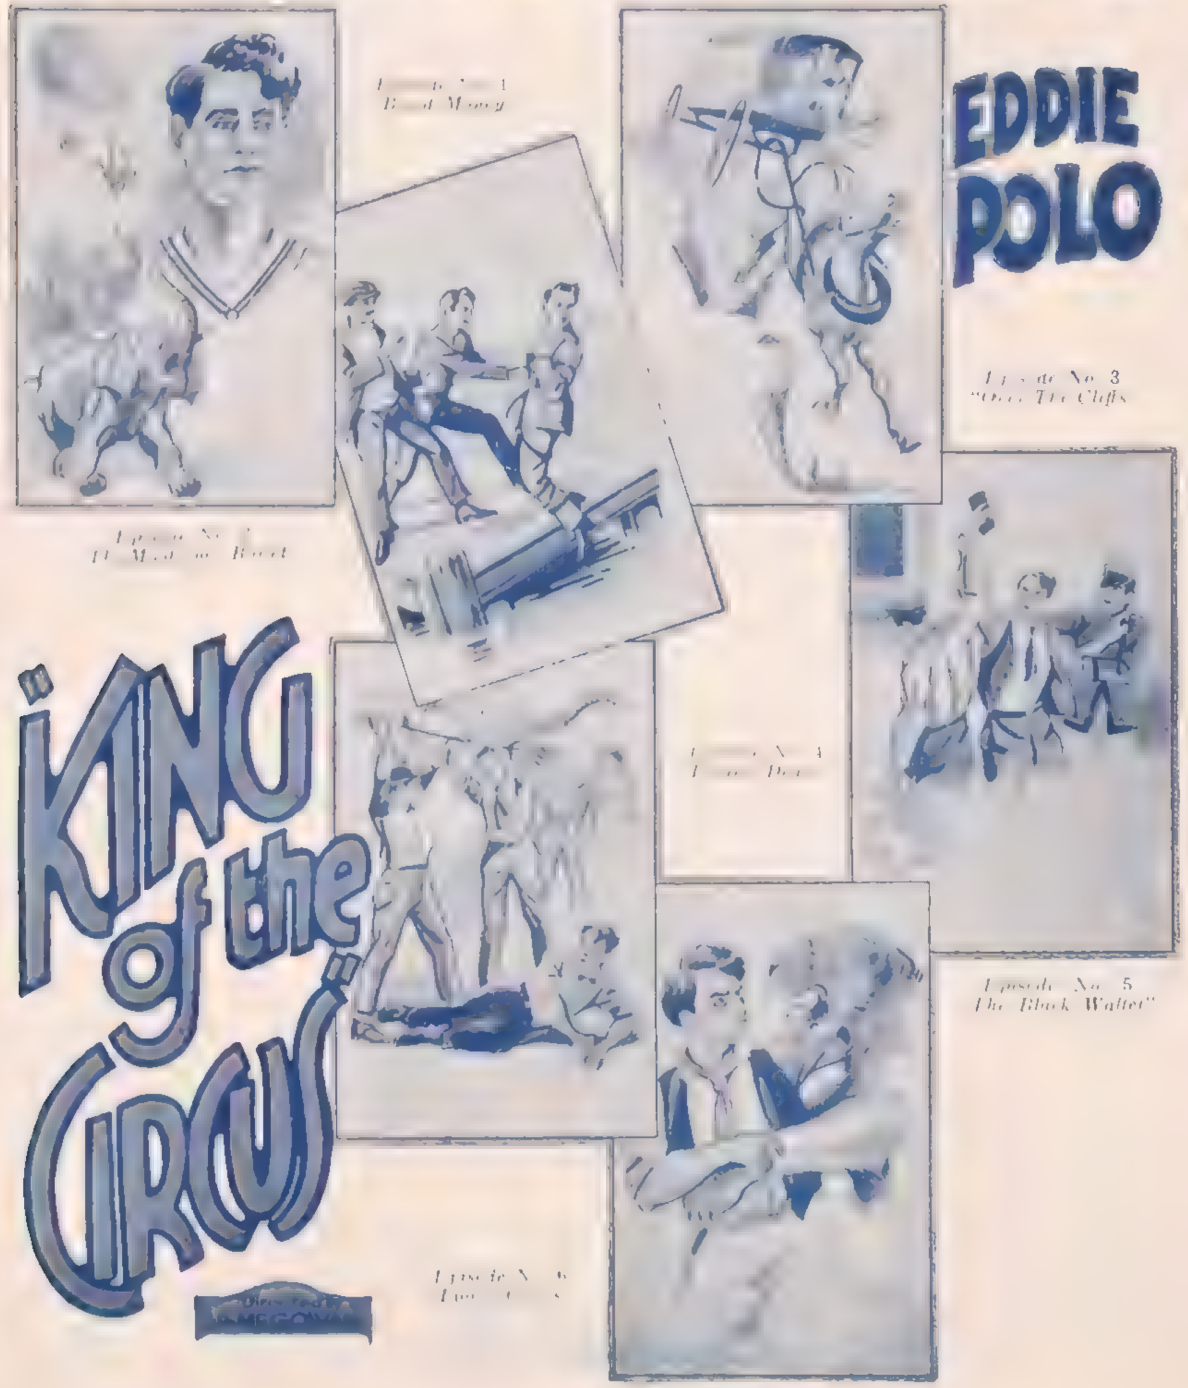
IN the adjoining pages of this section are sketches of the eighteen episode posters printed in the original in five colors. Every one of them is jamful of action to pull 'em in. The artist has eliminated the lettering in the sketches that stands out so strikingly on the posters.

Keep Pounding Away

WHEN You have a good thing like "The King of the Circus"—DON'T KEEP IT A SECRET. Tell them what you've got. Tell them repeatedly. Bang away at 'em week after week. Use your episode posters everywhere. Then just try to make room for the crowds that will pack your sidewalk for eighteen money-making weeks.



EPISODE POSTERS 1 to 6



EDDIE POLO
"KING of the CIRCUS"
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

Episode No. 2
Blood Money

Episode No. 1
The M[illegible] Beast

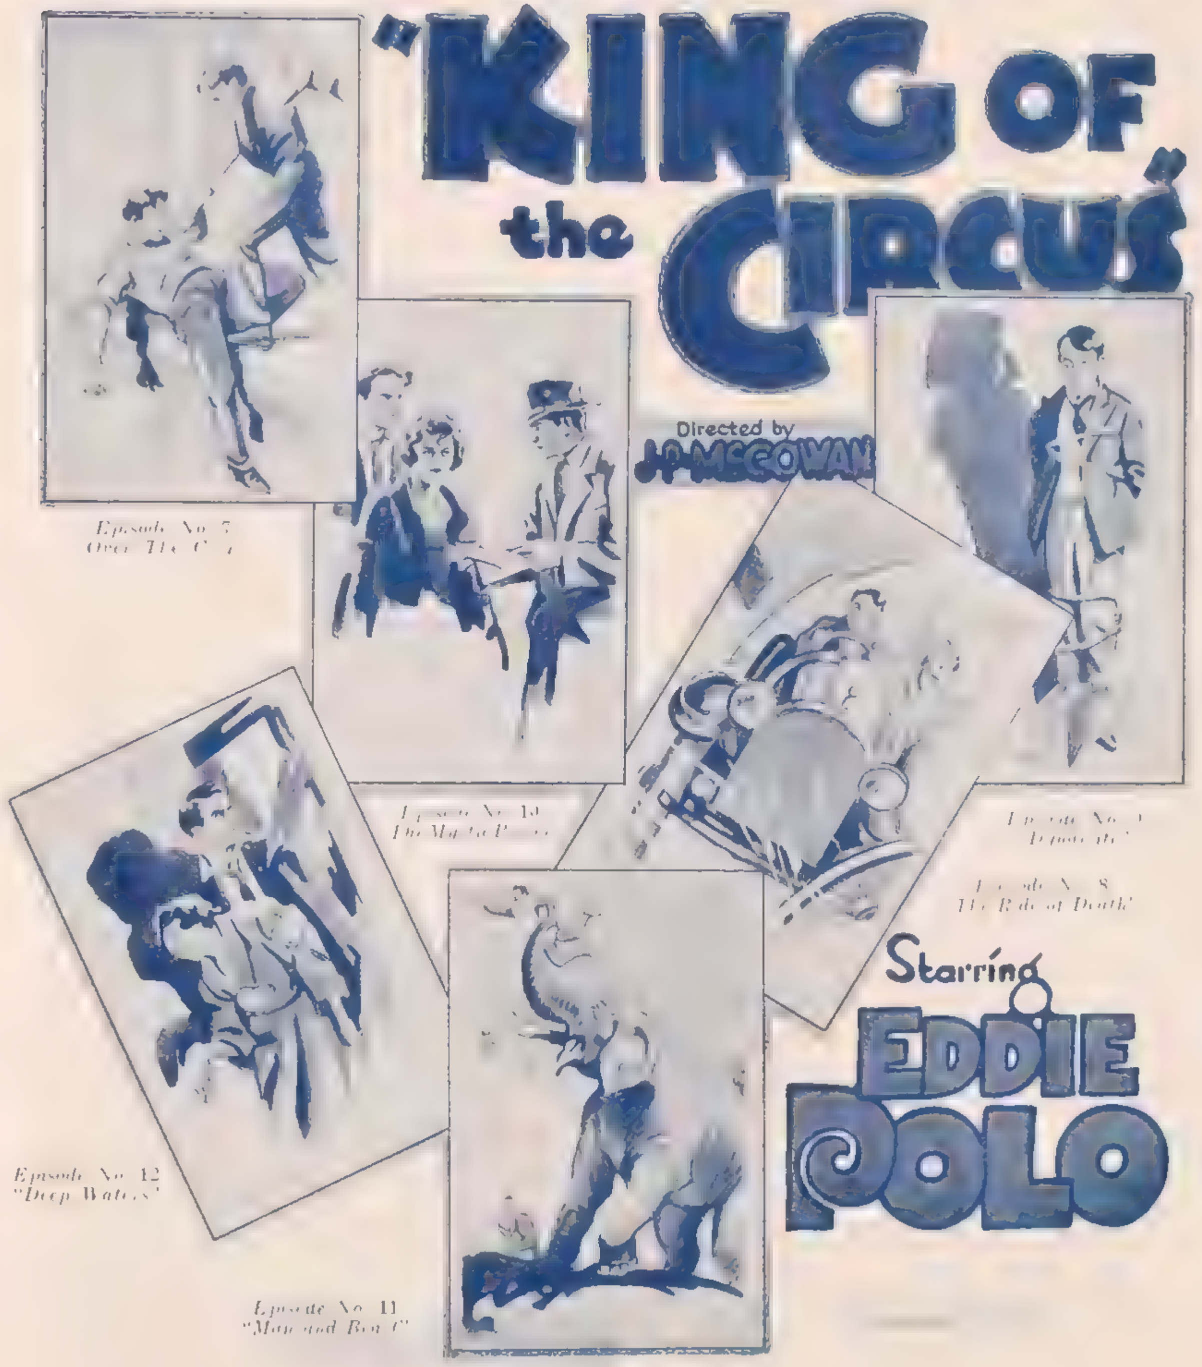
Episode No. 3
"Over The Cliffs"

Episode No. 4
[illegible]

Episode No. 5
The Black Wallet"

Episode No. 6
[illegible]

EPISODE POSTERS 7 to 12



"KING OF the CIRCUS"
Directed by J. P. McGOWAN
Starring
EDDIE POLO

Episode No. 7
Over The C[illegible]

Episode No. 10
The [illegible]

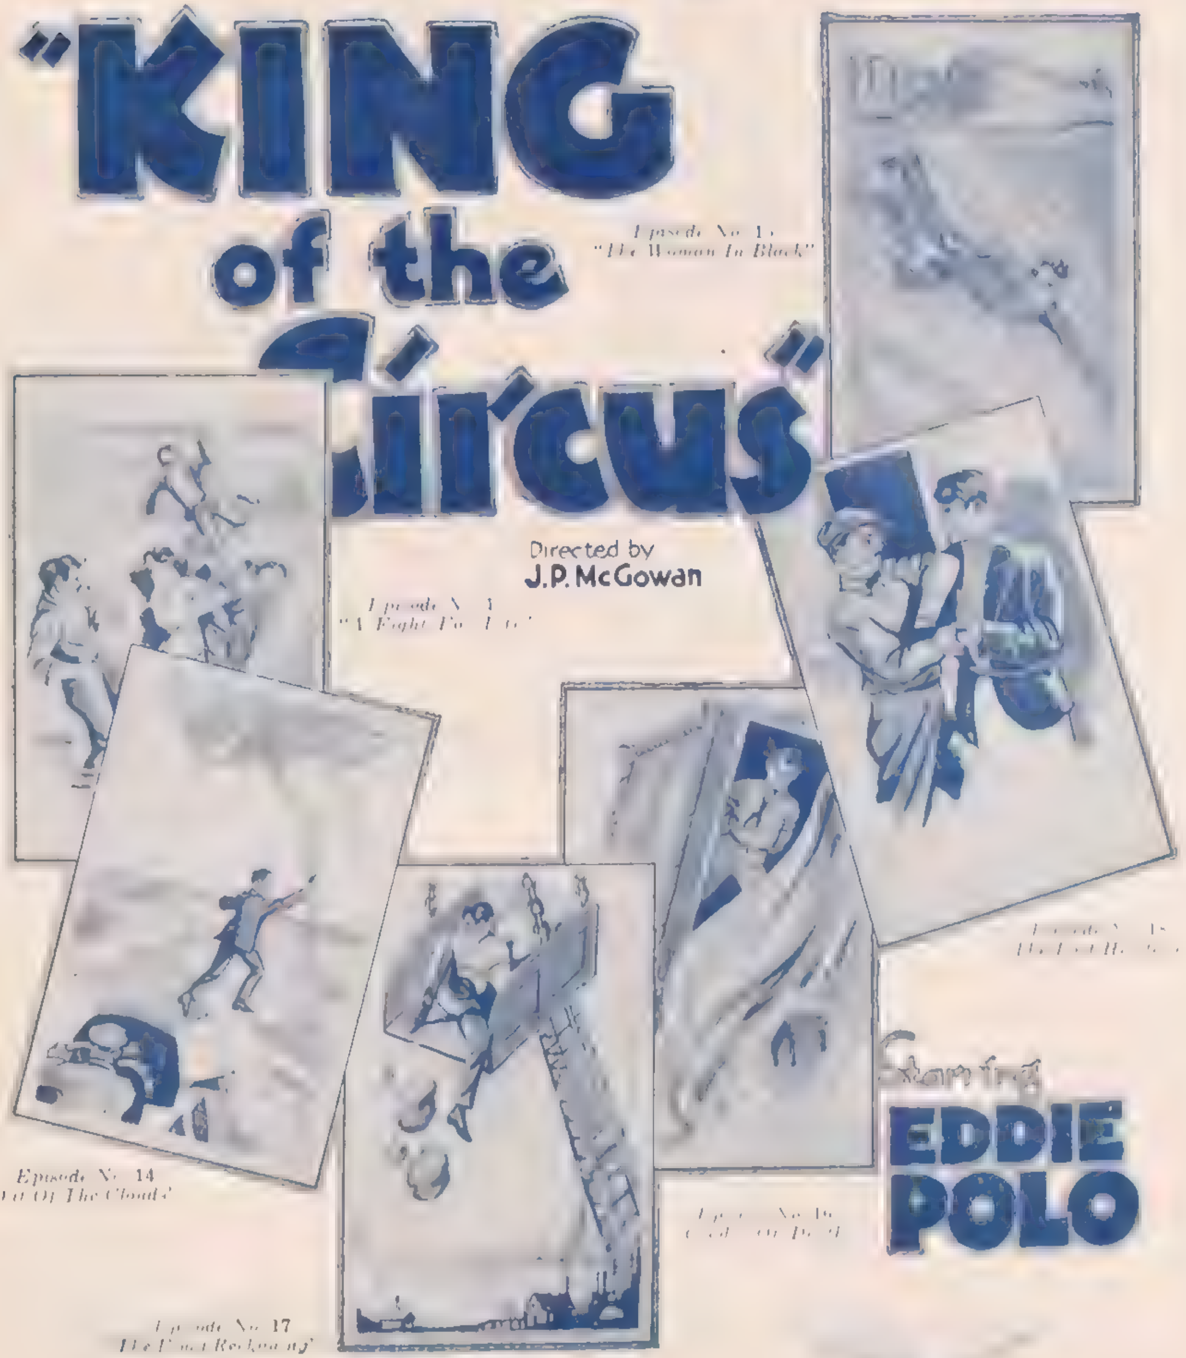
Episode No. 9
[illegible]

Episode No. 8
The Ride of Death'

Episode No. 12
"Deep Waters"

Episode No. 11
"Man and Bea[illegible]"

EPISODE POSTERS 13 to 18



"KING of the Circus"
Directed by
J.P. McGowan
Starring
EDDIE POLO

Episode No. 13
"The Woman In Black"

Episode No. 15
"A Fight For Life"

Episode No. 18
The [illegible]

Episode No. 14
"Out Of The Clouds"

Episode No. 16
[illegible]

Episode No. 17
The Final Reckoning"

"BROKE ALL RECORDS"

"Eddie Polo in the first episode of the 'King of the Circus' broke all records for Friday and Saturday business. This Polo serial is a winner."

COZY THEATRE,
Ogden, Utah.

"GETS THE MONEY"

"A real serial with a consistent story. Gets the money, as they like the circus atmosphere. Eddie is a genuine, honest-to-goodness he-man."

STRAND THEATRE,
Paoli, Ind.

"RECEIPTS ARE BETTER ON MONDAY THAN ON SUNDAY"

"We are on the ninth chapter and running it Mondays. Receipts are better on Monday than on Sunday. Getting better every week. Book it. You will not have to boost it. It will boost itself."

LYRIC THEATRE,
Valley Junction, Ia.

"KING of the CIRCUS"

"Best That Has Ever Run In My House."

---Mgr. Biehler

"I HAVE run practically every serial you have released and I am now running "King of the Circus." I wish to state that of all the serials that I have run — and they were all good — this is the best that has ever run in my house. It has shown itself to be that by the increaased amount of money taken in at the box office. We have had patrons who never would wait for the serial, come each and every week to see Eddie Polo."

Palace Theatre,
Hamburg, N. Y.

Eddie Polo in

Directed by J. P. McGOWAN

"KING of the CIRCUS"

"The Best Serial on the Screen To-day"

"We started Eddie Polo in the "King of the Circus" four weeks ago, and we think it is the best serial on the screen to-day. It is playing to standing room only. Our advice is, 'book it.' "

EMPIRE THEATRE
Aledo, Ill.

"Thrills and Action Aplenty."

--Says Wids

"The circus atmosphere will make a favorable impression upon serial fans. The tent show scenes will undoubtedly hold attention. Thrills and action are furnished the onlooker aplenty."

Starring

Eddie Polo

"KING of the CIRCUS"

Best Serial of Circus Life

EDDIE POLO
KING OF THE CIRCUS
The World's Serial Idol
IN
UNIVERSAL'S GORGEOUS SENSATION
Directed by J.P.McGOWAN
UNIVERSAL SERIAL
POLO
UNIVERSALSERIAL

Crowd at opening episode of "King Of The Circus" at Grand Theatre, Detroit

ANOTHER example of the tremendous nation-wide popularity of Eddie Polo, the Universal serial star, was shown at the opening episode of "King of the Circus" at the Grand Theatre, Detroit, Mich. As an illustration of the interest shown in the announcement of the coming of the new Polo serial, a picture, reproduced on this page, was taken of the crowd gathered for the opening performance.

The fact that Eddie Polo was a former expert acrobat and circus performer gives this serial unusual drawing power because everyone realizes that it is full of thrills and true to the life under the circus top.

At the Grand Theatre, the manager took recognition of the fact that every normal boy has a keen desire to read or see anything telling about circus life, and so booked the picture for a Saturday showing so that the kids could come along with their big brothers and sisters. There was a special matinee arranged for every Saturday afternoon for the children.

Just now Eddie is enjoying a rest after his return from Cuba where many of the chapters of his newest serial, "The Seal of Satan" were filmed. There is a fascinating mystery and much action in this story set amid historic spots in Cuba.

The serials starring Eddie Polo are always received with great interest by the Cuban people, and he is by far the most popular of the American serial players seen in the films there. In connection with this there is an interesting story concerning his hold upon the Cuban film fans.

The first picture that the Cuban people can remember in which he was the star was one in which he took the part of "Roleaux." Since that time no veteran Cuban theatregoer thinks of calling him anything but "Roleaux." All the little Cuban children love to see him in fighting rôles and if he should appear in a picture where the fighting does not take place at the very start, they are very impatient until Eddie looks angry, shakes his fist and "goes to it" as the kids there say.

Best serial seen in Hamburg, N. Y.

Palace Theatre,
Hamburg, N. Y.,
Feb. 22, 1921.

Mr. M. A. Chase,
Manager, Universal Film Exch.,
257 Franklin St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Chase:—I have run practically every serial you have released in your Exchange, and I am running "King Of The Circus" and wish to say that of all serials I have run, which were all good, "King Of The Circus" is the best that has ever run in my house. It has been shown to be that by the increased amount of money taken in at the box-office, and we have had patrons who never would wait for the serial come each and every week to see Eddie Polo in "King Of The Circus."

I want more serials of this kind and will book every one of the above type that you release.

Congratulations and best of luck to the Universal.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) GEORGE J. BIEHLER, Manager.

Card distributed by Victoria Theatre, Harrisburg, Pa.

COME AND SEE EDDIE POLO IN HIS NEW SERIAL

SPECIAL CHILDREN'S TICKET!

This Ticket and 2 Cents War Tax, will Admit Any Child Under 15 years of age to the Victoria Theatre if presented.

BET. 4 AND 6 O'CLOCK

On the afternoon of Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, February 7th, 8th or 9th.

See Eddie Polo in His Best Serial

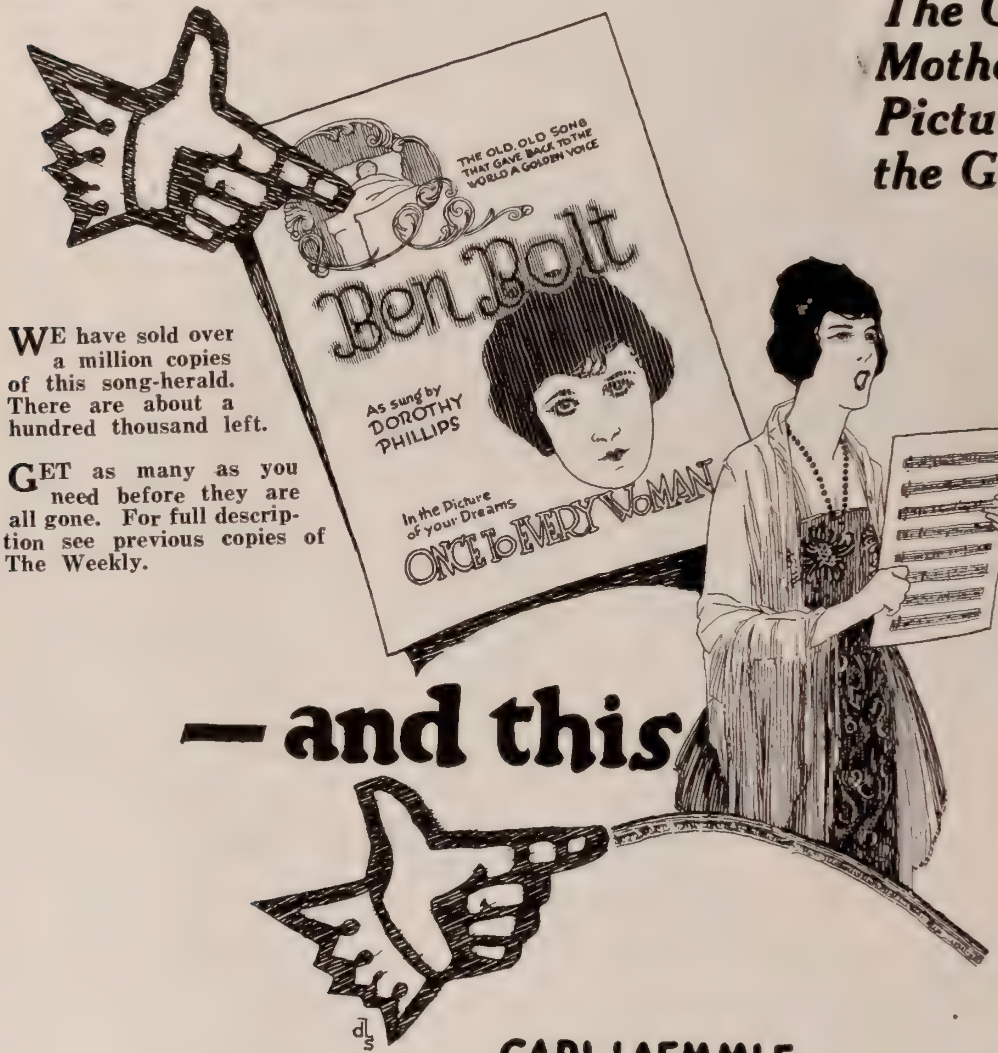
KING OF THE CIRCUS

VICTORIA THEATRE

The Testimonial-proven Way

Do this

The Greatest Mother-Love Picture of the Generation!



THE OLD, OLD SONG THAT GAVE BACK TO THE WORLD A GOLDEN VOICE
Ben Bolt
As sung by DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In the Picture of your Dreams
ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN
ds

WE have sold over a million copies of this song-herald. There are about a hundred thousand left.

GET as many as you need before they are all gone. For full description see previous copies of The Weekly.

—and this

USE the singer in putting this great mother-love picture over. We refer you to the Ascher Bros.' met as fully described in The Weekly of Dec. 11, 1920.

EVERY testimonial received from exhibitors bears out our oft-repeated statement of its remarkable and unfailing success.

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

IN THE UNIVERSAL
-JEWEL PRODUCTION
DIRECTED BY ALLEN HOLUBAR

to Put This Picture Over!

then you'll say this!

East Pittsburg, Pa.

"Thanks for booking "Once to Every Woman" into this theatre. Three capacity audiences laughed, cried and applauded."

SEDLER THEATRE.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.

"The idea of using a singer in connection with this picture as suggested by your office, was carried out, and it added very materially to the entertaining value of the feature.

"Several times during the run of three days we had to hang out the old S. R. O. sign."

PRINCESS THEATRE.

Fort Dodge, Iowa.

"Once to Every Woman" sure was a bear and then some. We played it three days and business constantly improved to the finish. We put on a singer with specially pleasing results."

RIALTO THEATRE.

Mundy, Tex.

"My very hardest customers to please came out and said it was the best picture they ever saw. I put on the songs as you told me and had 100 per cent pleased patrons. If we had more pictures like this one there would be no blue Sunday laws."

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.

Glen Falls.

"We had a singer singing "Ben Bolt" and the songs that we received from you were one of the best advertising stunts that can be pulled for this wonderful picture. We did the most remarkable business we have ever done."

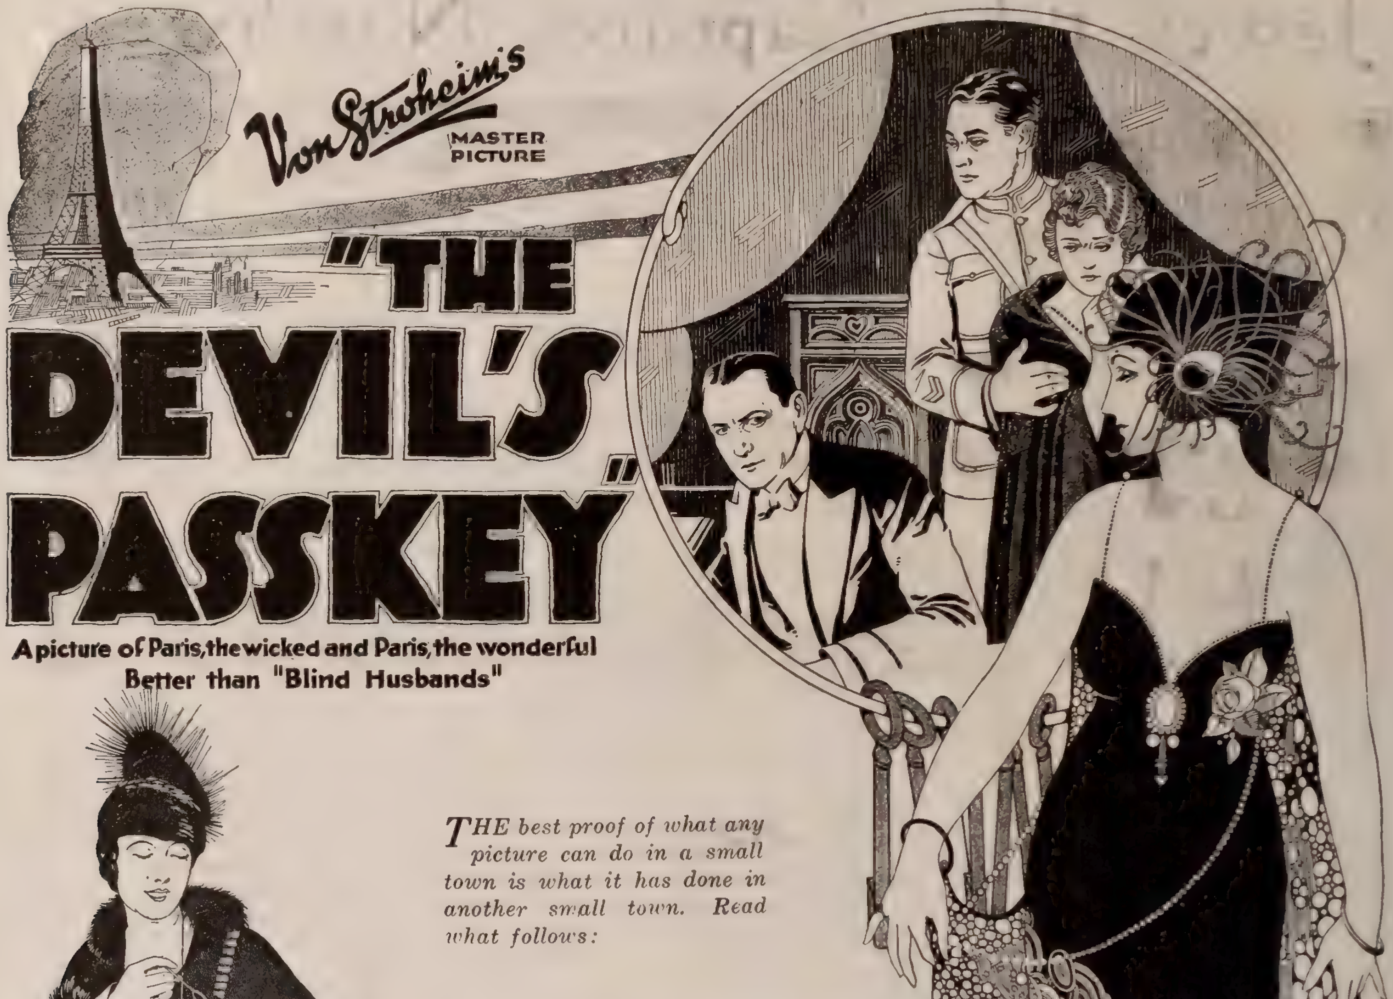
MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Washington, D. C.

"Highly pleased our audiences all last week. The combination of your worthy picture and a soloist who rendered songs during the running of the feature proved to be 100 per cent entertainment value."

MOORE'S THEATRE.

ONCE To EVERY WOMAN



Von Strohcim's MASTER PICTURE

"THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

A picture of Paris, the wicked and Paris, the wonderful
Better than "Blind Husbands"

THE best proof of what any picture can do in a small town is what it has done in another small town. Read what follows:

" 'THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY' proved a knockout—so much so that I extended my run an additional two days. I regard the picture as the most artistic and most interesting production Universal ever released—even better than 'Blind Husbands,' which I also played to capacity audiences."—Thomas Rigler, Manager Park Theatre, Hannibal, Mo.

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

Jewel Film Captures Northwest

THEATER
OUTSIDE
THE LAW
in "OUTSIDE THE LAW"

"Outside The Law," showing at Strand Theatre, Tacoma, Wash., and Rivoli Theatre, Portland, Ore.

ALL previous box-office records have been broken wherever the Universal-Jewel production "Outside The Law" has been shown according to reports being received every day from the field. This feature is rapidly becoming the most exploited Universal picture. Exhibitors, almost without exception, have adopted for their own use the campaign ideas which made such a success of the premiers in New York and Boston.

At Barbee's Loop theatre, where the photoplay had its Boston opening, all attendance records were broken. William S. Barbee, manager of the theatre, continued the show until after midnight, in order to take care of the first day's crowd.

H. M. Rouda, manager of Asher's Merrill Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., wired the Universal office that he had to turn away as many on the opening day as could be accommodated in the theatre. The week's run was described as exceptional, despite unusually strong opposition.

Call Police In Montreal

The police were called to restore order at the Holman theatre when the pisture was shown in Montreal. The theatre filled up in less than an hour and on succeeding days standing room was at a premium. In Kansas City, Sam Harding, manager of the Liberty Theatre, did a tremendous business and said that this was the best melodrama he had ever played.

The Rivoli Theatre, Portland, Ore., established a precedent with "Outside The Law," and for the first time in its history, held a picture over for the second week. Dave Brill, manager of the Portland office of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has reported record breaking showings in five other towns in that territory.

Another theatre which is said to have had exceptional success with the Dean picture, is the Standard Theatre, in Cleveland. In that city, "Outside The Law" had to buck unusual opposition, including "Forbidden Fruit," "The Live Light," "The Country Fair," "The Truth About Husbands," and "Way Down East."

Biggest of the Year

Among other theatres which have reported phenomenal success with the Tod Browning-Priscilla Dean picture are the Bijou Theatre, Racine, Wis., where Manager Owen McKivett lauds the picture as the biggest production of the year; the Ellanay Theatre, El Paso, Tex., where the manager broke records despite increased admission; the Wigwam Theatre, Reno, Nev., which had its biggest week in fourteen years; the Laughlin Theatre, Long Beach, Cal., which turned hundreds away, and the Strand Theatre, Waco, Texas, where other records went by the board.

In preparing Chicago for the introduction to "Outside The Law," a simple but very effective exploitation campaign was put over by Harry Reichenbach. Novel newspaper advertisements and throwaways were used to surprise Chicago in addition to the "You Are Outside The Law" 24-sheet teaser posters and the Priscilla Dean Tam Contest, which has been worked successfully in other cities.

Chicago Ad. Stunts

One of the stunts used in the campaign and which gave newspaper readers a laugh was an ad printed in the Chicago papers announcing the coming of "Outside The Law," and bearing at the bottom a half-completed cryptic inscription signed "Carl Laemmele." Readers were instructed to cut out the ad, soak it for two minutes in cold water, and then hold it to the light and read it.

After the reader had gone to this trouble, the message was not found to be any easier to read, but he had the fact impressed upon his mind that "Outside The Law" would open at the Loop Theatre the following Sunday.

Another stunt, worked by throwsaways, was the printing of thousands of small heralds bearing series of incomplete letters on each side, so arranged, that, upon holding it to the light, the full announcement of "Outside The Law" could easily be read. More than 20,000 of these were distributed to Chicago school children.

The now famous Priscilla Dean Tam stunt was worked through co-operation with the "Herald and Examiner." A capable newspaper woman appeared on the streets dressed as the "Tam Girl." Two column display stories concerning the exploits of the "Tam Girl" were carried daily for more than a week.

Be sure to Use th

DIRECT FROM ITS STUPENDOUS
NEW YORK
PREMIER
WHERE IT PLAYED AT 4 FAMOUS
BROADWAY
THEATRES
SIMULTANEOUSLY
THE GEO. M. COHAN THEATRE
THE ASTOR, THE LYRIC
AND THE LONGACRE
CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
OUTSIDE THE LAW
THE MOST AMAZING AMERICAN MELODRAMA EVER SCREENED
Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
SUPPORTED BY LON CHANEY
DIRECTED BY TOD BROWNING
UNIVERSAL JEWEL PRODUCTION

WE suggest your use of the striking three-sheet Poster shown here, for the reason that the New York showing at four different theatres simultaneously is bound to stimulate interest. It is many a long year since any picture has been big enough and thrilling enough to show at four theatres at once—but "OUTSIDE THE LAW" is the greatest American melodrama ever screened.

PRISCILLA DEAN

LON CHANEY

The Surest, Biggest Success of 1921

s 3-Sheet Poster

For other exploitation methods, Study your Campaign Book

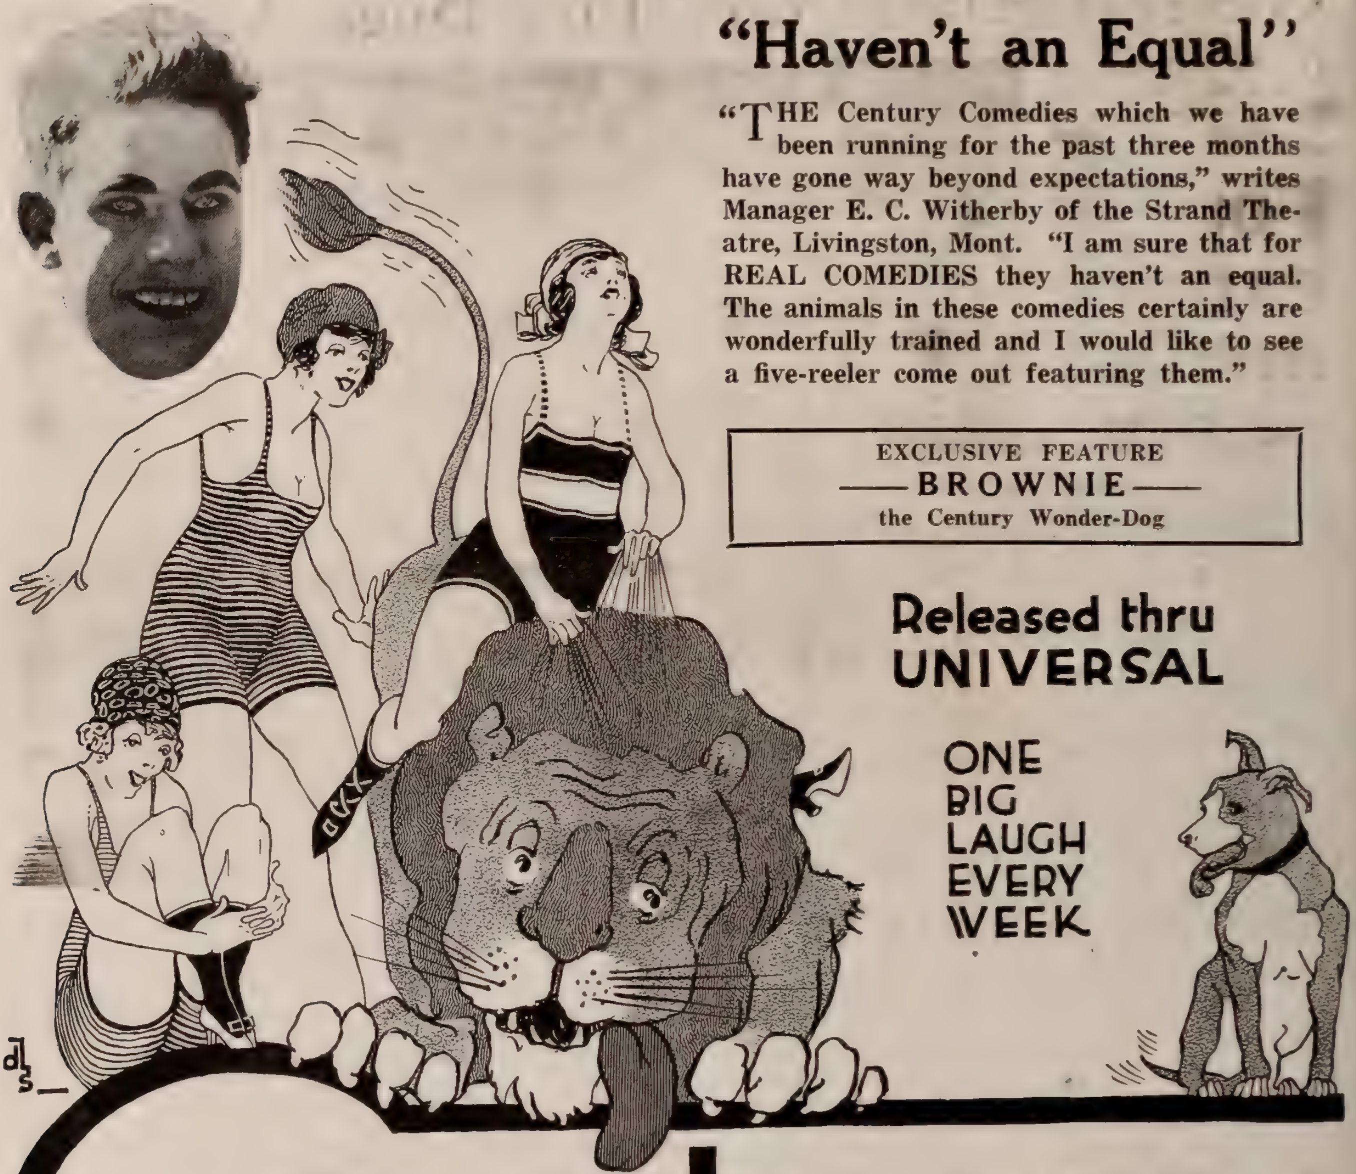
There is so much money being made on "OUTSIDE THE LAW" by exhibitors that you'll have only yourself to blame if you don't make your share. As soon as you have your booking nailed down look up your Campaign Book on this picture (if you've mislaid it, get another from your Universal Exchange) and see the wealth of ideas and advertising material shown therein. After you've learned the best line to work in exploitation methods. — — — — — — —

Find others in your Moving Picture Weekly

In practically every issue of The Moving Picture Weekly since the release of "OUTSIDE THE LAW" at least one good new different method of exploiting this picture has been shown—in every case, something that has brought in the coin by the wagon-load to an exhibitor. Go back through your Moving Picture Weekly File and see which of these proven, practical exploitation plans you can best use. You'll find plans adapted to towns from a milion population down to five hundred. It's all in the Weekly if you'll look for it. In any case — — — — — —

Get help of your Universal Exchange

If you're pressed for time and can't stop to work out methods that you'd like to use, call on your Universal Exchange. They'll give you help that will pull every last dollar out of your town on this picture. Remember—"OUTSIDE THE LAW" is the surest and biggest success of 1921—they'll show you proof of that—and then they'll show you how to make it so in your own theatre. Call on your Universal Exchange without fail in everything connected with "OUTSIDE THE LAW."



"Haven't an Equal"

"THE Century Comedies which we have been running for the past three months have gone way beyond expectations," writes Manager E. C. Witherby of the Strand Theatre, Livingston, Mont. "I am sure that for REAL COMEDIES they haven't an equal. The animals in these comedies certainly are wonderfully trained and I would like to see a five-reeler come out featuring them."

EXCLUSIVE FEATURE
—BROWNIE—
the Century Wonder-Dog

Released thru UNIVERSAL

ONE
BIG LAUGH
EVERY WEEK

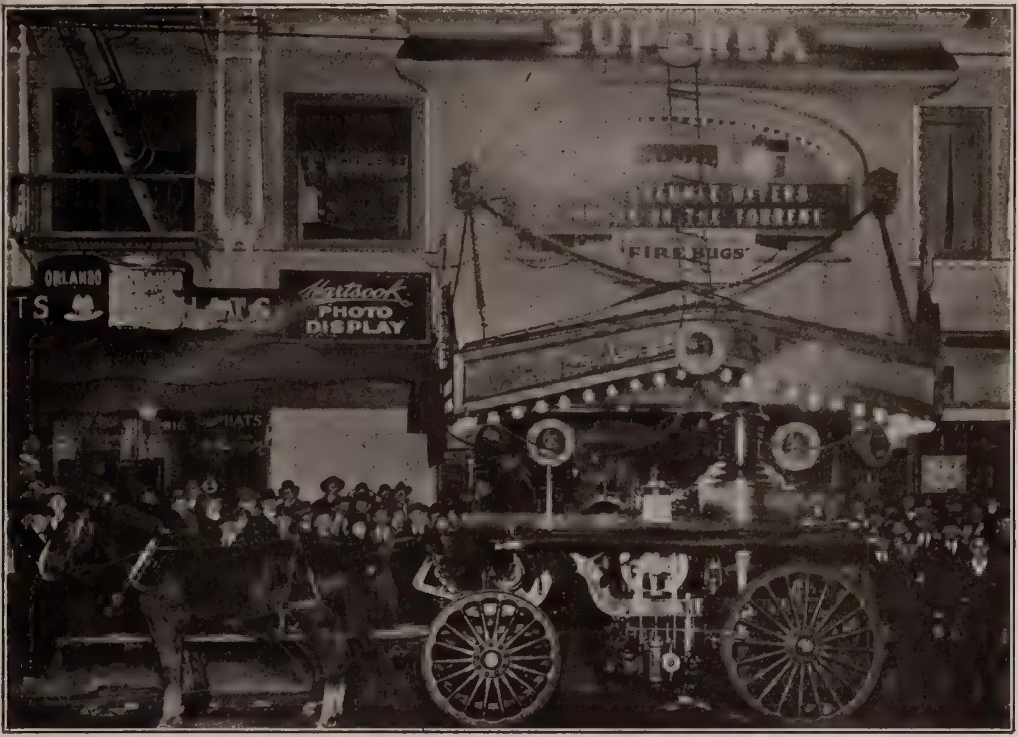
Century Comedies

with
Harry Sweet

General Alarm for "Fire Bugs" Comedy



Los Angeles Fire Department assists Superba Theatre in exploiting the Century comedy "Fire Bugs"

IF sufficient thought mixed with a little enterprise is applied to the exploitation of a Comedy reel it can always be turned into a feature. This fact was recently demonstrated by Manager Hearne, of the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal., in the way in which he handled the Century comedy "Fire Bugs." This comedy furnished the motive for much serious discussion by members of the city fire department on the cause and prevention of fires.

The feature picture on the bill the week of the showing of the Century Comedy was: "The Torrent" with Eva Novak in the leading rôle. The week's bill was advertised as "Fire Prevention Week," and twice each day a fire engine manned by members of the regular fire department drove up before the Superba Theatre.

Chief Scott and his lieutenants then addressed the crowd in front of the playhouse on the proper way to fight different kinds of fires. Later from the stage of the theatre an additional talk along the same lines of fire prevention was delivered and practical demonstrations given. Each patron upon entering the theatre received a card containing a summary of the chief's daily remarks.

The co-operation of the fire department was secured in arranging the lobby displays. The front of the theatre was decorated with fire hose and other equipment borrowed for the occasion.

Nobel Hearne recently became manager of the Superba after serving as assistant manager for more than a year. During that time he had charge of arranging the lobby displays and special features for the programme and his capable handling of this work led to his promotion to the managership.

COMEDIES OF "HEADLINE" QUALITY

CANADIAN UNIVERSAL FILM CO.,
CALGARY, ALBERTA.

EDMONTON, ALBERTA,
MARCH 4TH, 1921.

Gentlemen: On your personal word we booked your two-reel Century comedies and we can safely say that the whole series that we have played has been uniformly good, but the last seven or eight have been more than fillers.

They have reached that stage where we are often in doubt whether we should feature them; for they are, in our opinion, "headliners" that give consistent satisfaction and, what is more to the point, keep the audience in one continuous roar of laughter.

The introduction of the animals, birds, etc., also makes for novelty and the comedy of the cast is invariably clever.

We should be sorry to have to relax on any other comedy series, for they could not maintain that uniform excellence attained by your Century comedies.

REGENT PHOTOPLAY CO., LIMITED,
(Signed) A. M. Lawrence.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"Sundown Slim"
"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only' Jim"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"
"The Magnificent Brue"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"
"The Unknown Wife"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"
"The Smart Sex"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

"The Great Air Robbery"

"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)

"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"No Monkey Business"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"Out O' Luck"
"The Cactus Kid"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Grip Of The Law"
"The Trigger Trail"
"Big Bob"
"The Midnight Raiders"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

Starring

ART ACORD

"The White Horseman"

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Happy Daze"
"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"
"Seeing Is Believing"

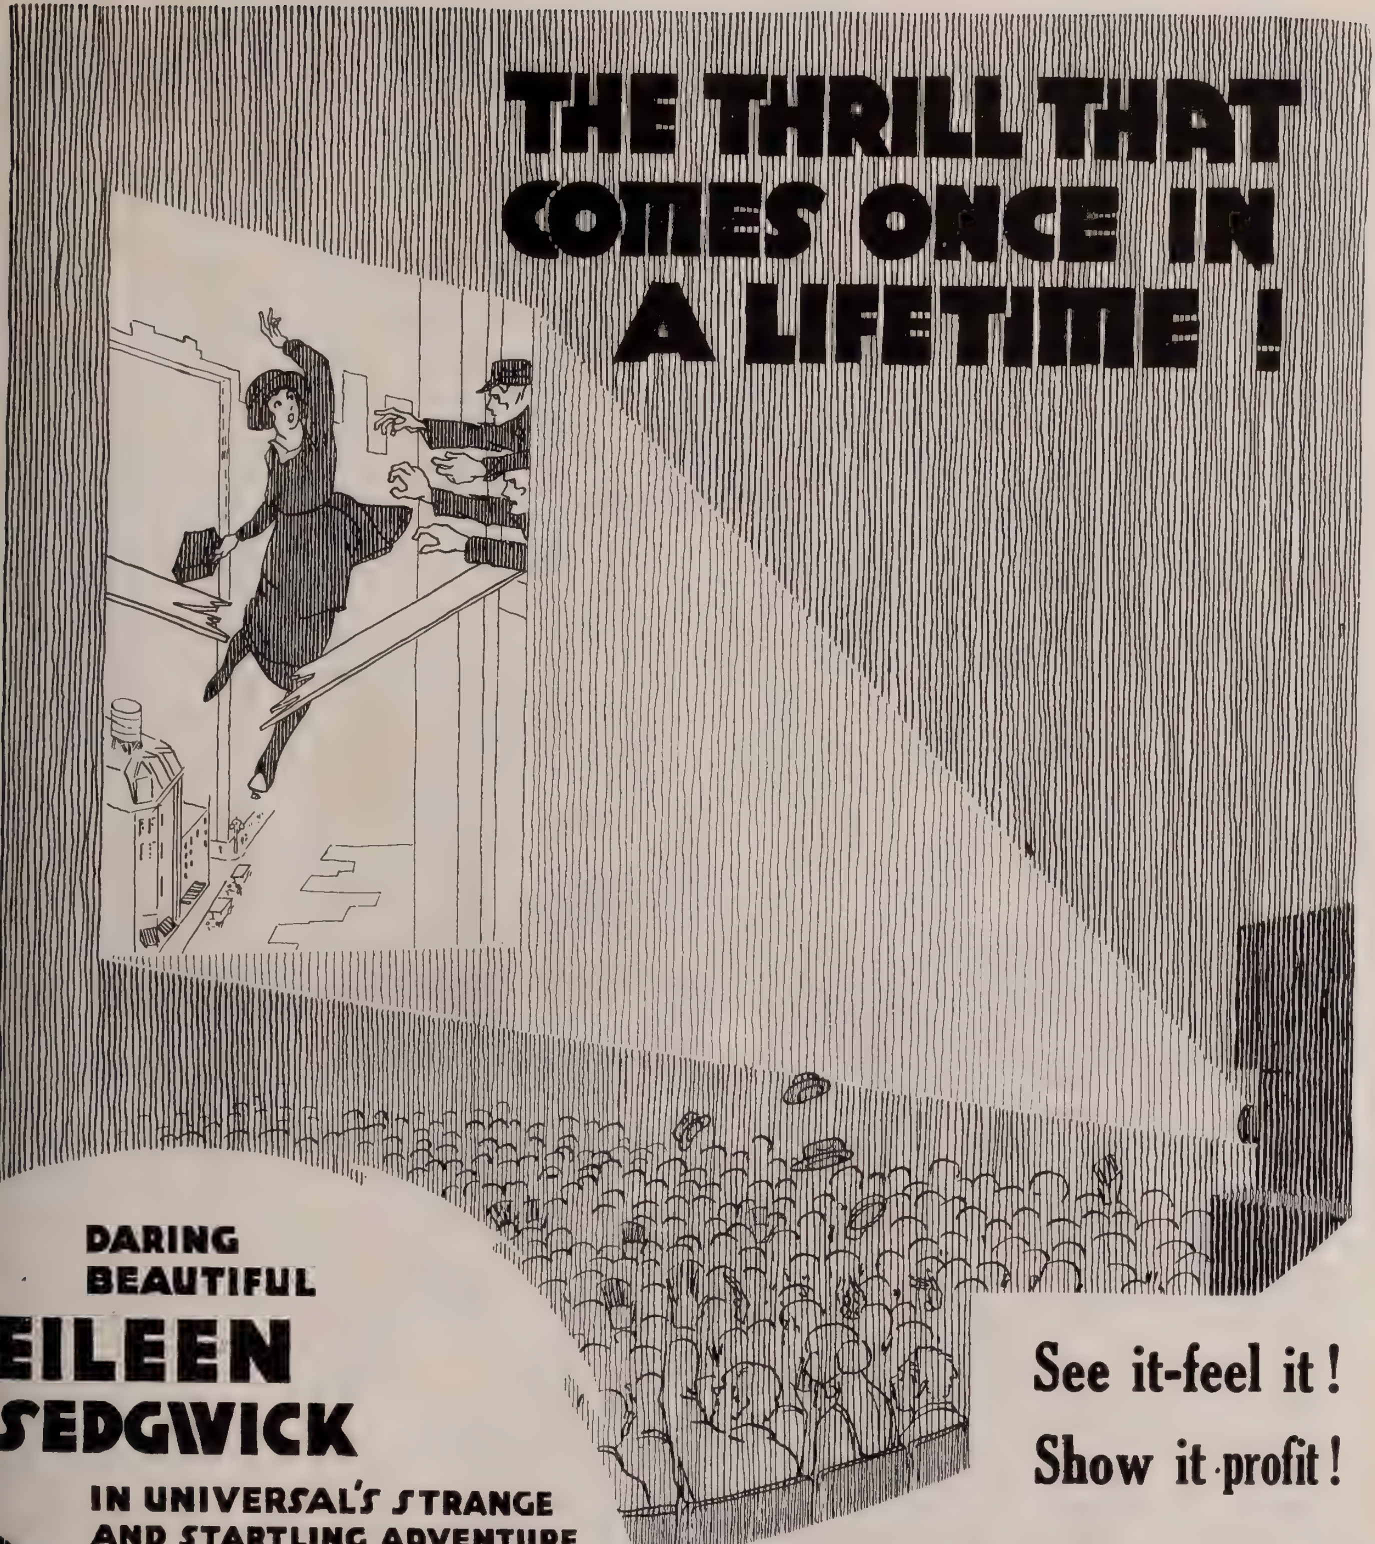
One Reel Star Comedies

"Chicken, Country Style"
"The Spirits of '21"
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Anderson

also

"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk and Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"
"Twin Husbands"
"When Eve Fell"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE-A-WEEK



THE THRILL THAT COMES ONCE IN A LIFETIME!

DARING
BEAUTIFUL

EILEEN SEDGWICK

IN UNIVERSAL'S STRANGE AND STARTLING ADVENTURE SERIAL

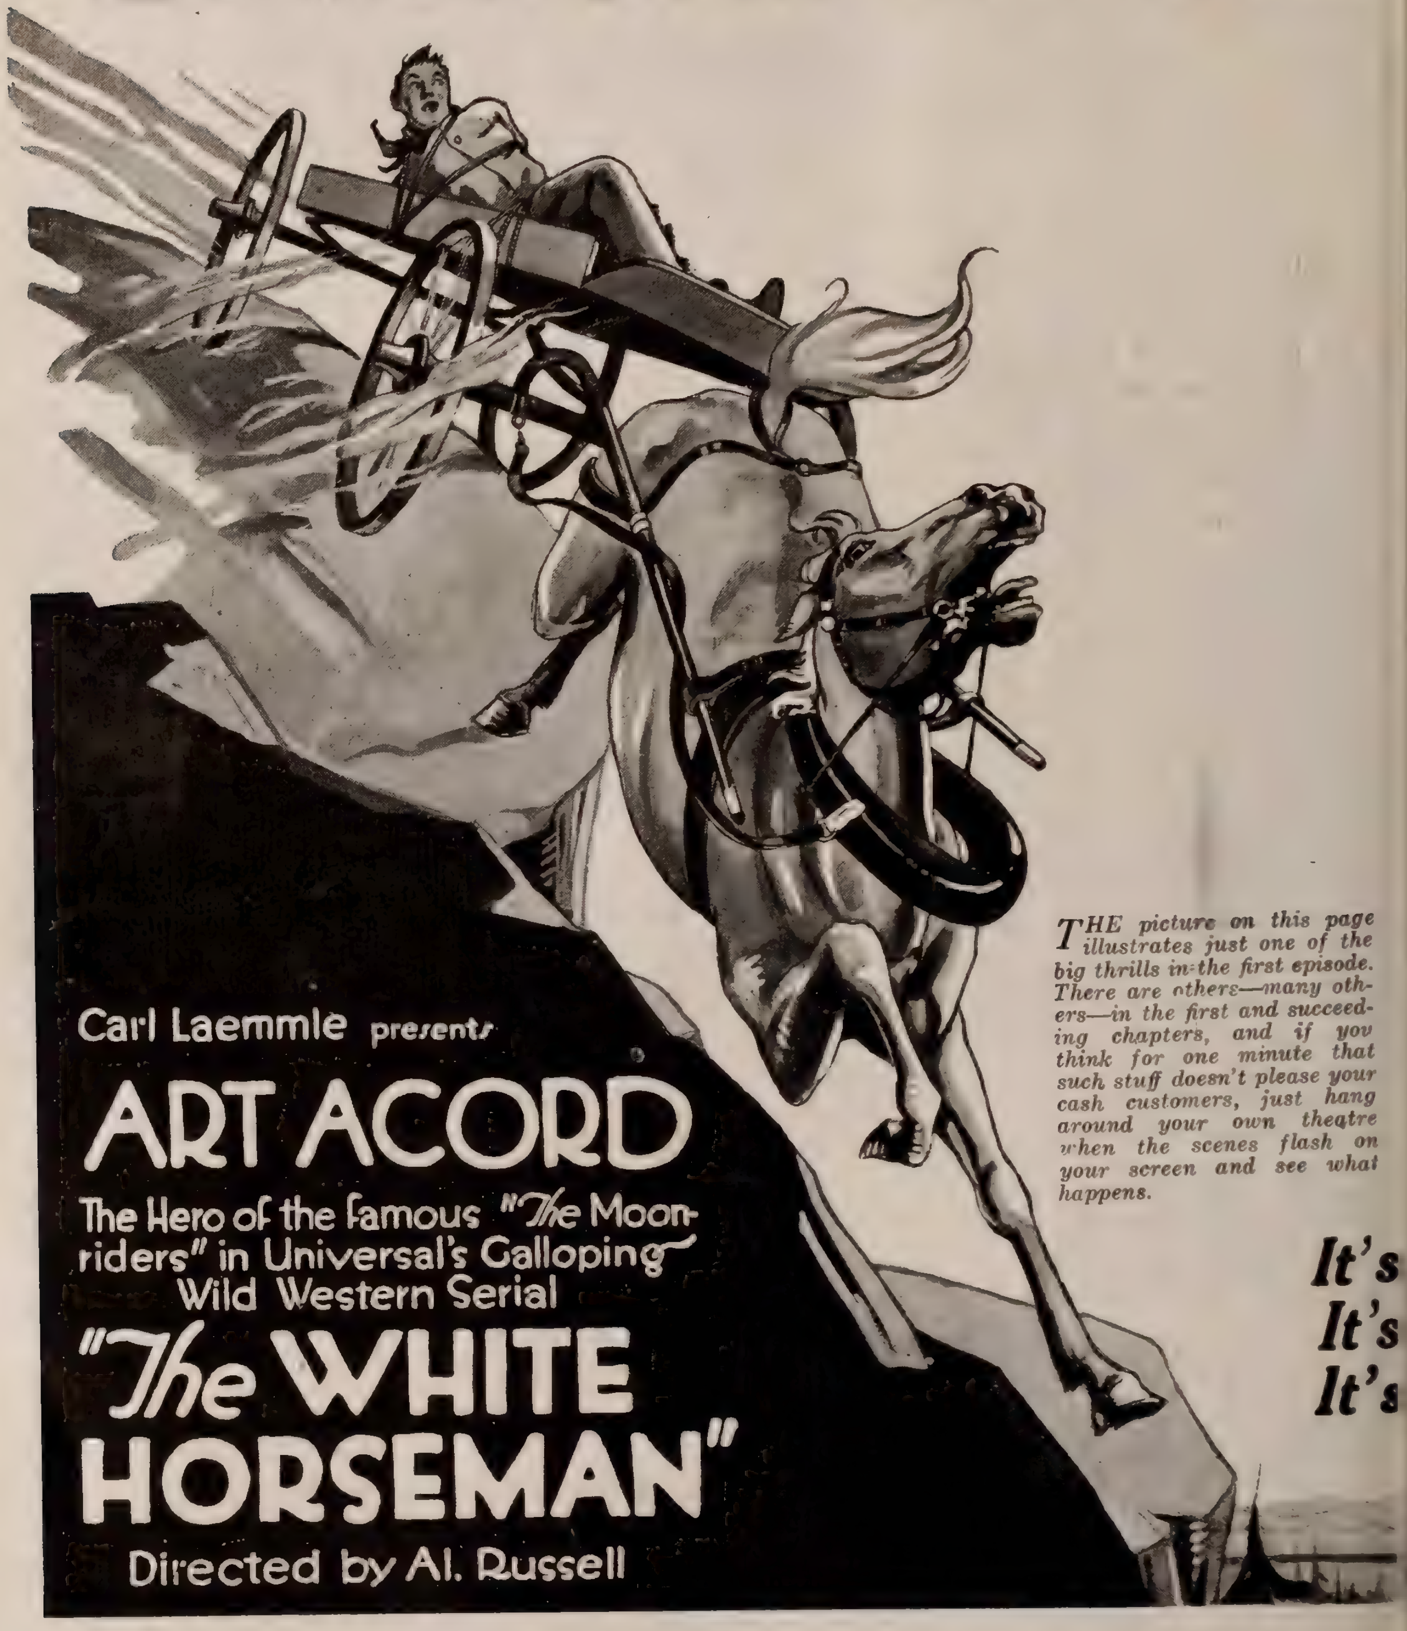
See it-feel it!

Show it-profit!

DIRECTED BY ED. KULL

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Go the limit on this Seria



Carl Laemmle presents

ART ACORD

The Hero of the famous "The Moon-riders" in Universal's Galloping Wild Western Serial

"The WHITE HORSEMAN"

Directed by Al. Russell

THE picture on this page illustrates just one of the big thrills in the first episode. There are others—many others—in the first and succeeding chapters, and if you think for one minute that such stuff doesn't please your cash customers, just hang around your own theatre when the scenes flash on your screen and see what happens.

It's
It's
It's

—It's a Sure Winner!

UNIVERSAL has been making successful serials for quite a number of years, and you can bet that Universal knows what it's talking about when it advises you to go the limit with this newest, fastest, cleanest continued melodrama. Universal knows that "The White Horseman" is going to be your good luck serial, for Universal has put into every one of the eighteen crashing chapters just about everything that makes serials so popular, and has left out everything that anybody, anywhere, could even so much as question. Here's the serial with action, plus sense and minus ruff stuff; mystery plus logic and minus junk, and suspense and love-interest plus power and minus mush. Get acquainted with the receiving teller at your bank—arrange now to ride with "The White Horseman."

asthrilling-lean-

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 12

"In Torture's Grip"

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheeseboro
Benson	Al Smith
Zimba	Al Smith
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Aline	Josephine Scott
Reitman	Lew Short

OVERPOWERED, tied and gagged, Bruce is carried by the gangsters into a nearby deserted hut in the park, while the leader of the three hastens off to get in touch with Benson by phone. Benson orders the gangster to leave two men on guard with Bruce and to report to him with the other gangster, saying he may need him.

Aline accuses Doris of being in league with the South African diamond smugglers, identifies her as the girl to whom $100,000 worth of stones was entrusted to smuggle to London at the time Benson was trailing Aline and her confederate, Reitman. Doris taken by surprise at this false accusation, protests her innocence, but Aline laughs vengefully, saying she has now evened the score with Doris for "squealing" on her to Benson at the time when Doris hurriedly sailed for America.

Benson now sends Aline into another room, and, alone with Doris, shows his crookedness when he offers to fix things so she will not be taken back to Kimberley as a diamond smuggler, if she will split fifty-fifty with him on her diamonds. But Doris scorns him. Seeing he is outbluffed, Benson, in a rage, sets out to torture Doris into revealing the source of the unlimited supply of diamonds.

Zimba, meanwhile, waiting until the gang leader and his man had departed from the park hut, leaving Bruce tied and gagged under guard of the other two men, watches his opportunity and tries to free Bruce. But Bruce succeeds in freeing himself and throws himself into the fray. Bruce and Zimba turn the tables on their foes and force them to confess where Doris is being held. With Zimba as his sole aid, Bruce dashes to his auto, which he finds where he left it when he was lured into ambush by Benson's men, and speeds wildly to the rescue of Doris.

As Benson's torture of Doris goes on, we see Bruce's desperate race to the water-front shack. Doris endures her ordeal bravely, refusing to speak. She swoons just as Bruce and Zimba arrive at the shack. Benson's two men race into the outer room as Bruce and Zimba dash up the steps into the shack, and a fierce fight commences. Bruce, felling his opponent, is about to follow up his advantage when he hears a scream of agony in the next room. Benson has brutally knocked Doris to the floor, senseless, when she steadfastly refused to reveal her secret.

Bruce attempts to enter the room, the door is locked. He backs away to get a flying leap at the door, then literally plunges through it, sprawling on the floor in the room beyond. As he hurriedly leaps to his feet to make for Benson, the detective whips out a gun and covers him, Benson using Doris as a shield. In another adjoining room Aline beats her fists against the locked door, a prisoner. In the outer room Zimba is battling with his foe. Slowly Bruce lifts his hands over his head, with Benson holding the bead on him.

International News

No. 19

Fisher Island, N. Y.—Submarine grounds on treacherous rocks. Crew makes shore safely after the O-7 founders.

Warsaw, Poland. — Impressive scenes on Poland's Memorial Day. General Pilsudski, the president, joins with thousands in solemn street demonstrations. (For Los Angeles only.)

Sub-Title.—All Warsaw joins with General Pilsudski in ceremonies honoring the heroic dead.

San Francisco, Cal.—De Palma in midget car wins thrilling race. Demon rider speeding at rate of 111 miles an hour, leads big field in western classic.

Sub-Title.—De Palma, the winner. (Omit Los Angeles.

Catalina Islands, Cal.—Chicago Cubs open training season. Springtime is sure a tough season for ball players—look at this.

Sub-Titles. — Warming up. Alexander the Great getting in shape for another anti-hit campaign. Johnny Evers, manager, and William Wrigley, owner of the Cubs.

Rome, Italy.—Plane crashes into house. Captain Borla, famous Italian aviator, meets death in flight over fiancee's home.

San Francisco, Cal.—Desert atmosphere for Broadway dancers. California sand dunes furnish inspiration for classic whirlers.

Washington, D. C.—New Cabinet on the job. President Harding's aides assume duties. Secretary of War Weeks busy with army details.

Sub-Titles.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace taking the oath of office. Postmaster General Hays (right) gets some last-minute hints from his predecessor, Mr. Burleson. Josephus Daniels introduces naval officers to the new Secretary of the Navy, Edwin Denby, and Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt. Attorney General Daugherty receives the good wishes of a delegation of home-town folk from Ohio.

Miami, Fla.—Polo experts in spirited tryouts. Snappy riding marks elimination contests for berths on team to meet England's best.

Miraflores Lock, Panama Canal.—Four destroyers at a time go through the Canal. Odd glimpses of the Atlantic Fleet's big and little fighters on the homeward journey.

International News Presents Daring Flight Through Snow-Bound Yosemite.—Photographed from a Walter T. Varney plane, piloted by Lieutenant Harold Coffee.

Sub-Titles.—Flying within 150 feet of the floor of the valley—no landing possible for many hundred miles—and the towering canyon rising 5,000 feet on either side. Skimming the canyon's walls, where a miss of the motor means death. Glimpses of the shimmering Yosemite Falls as the plane glides smoothly by. Circling the famous Half Dome, 5,000 feet high.

"Twin Husbands"

One-Reel Star Comedy

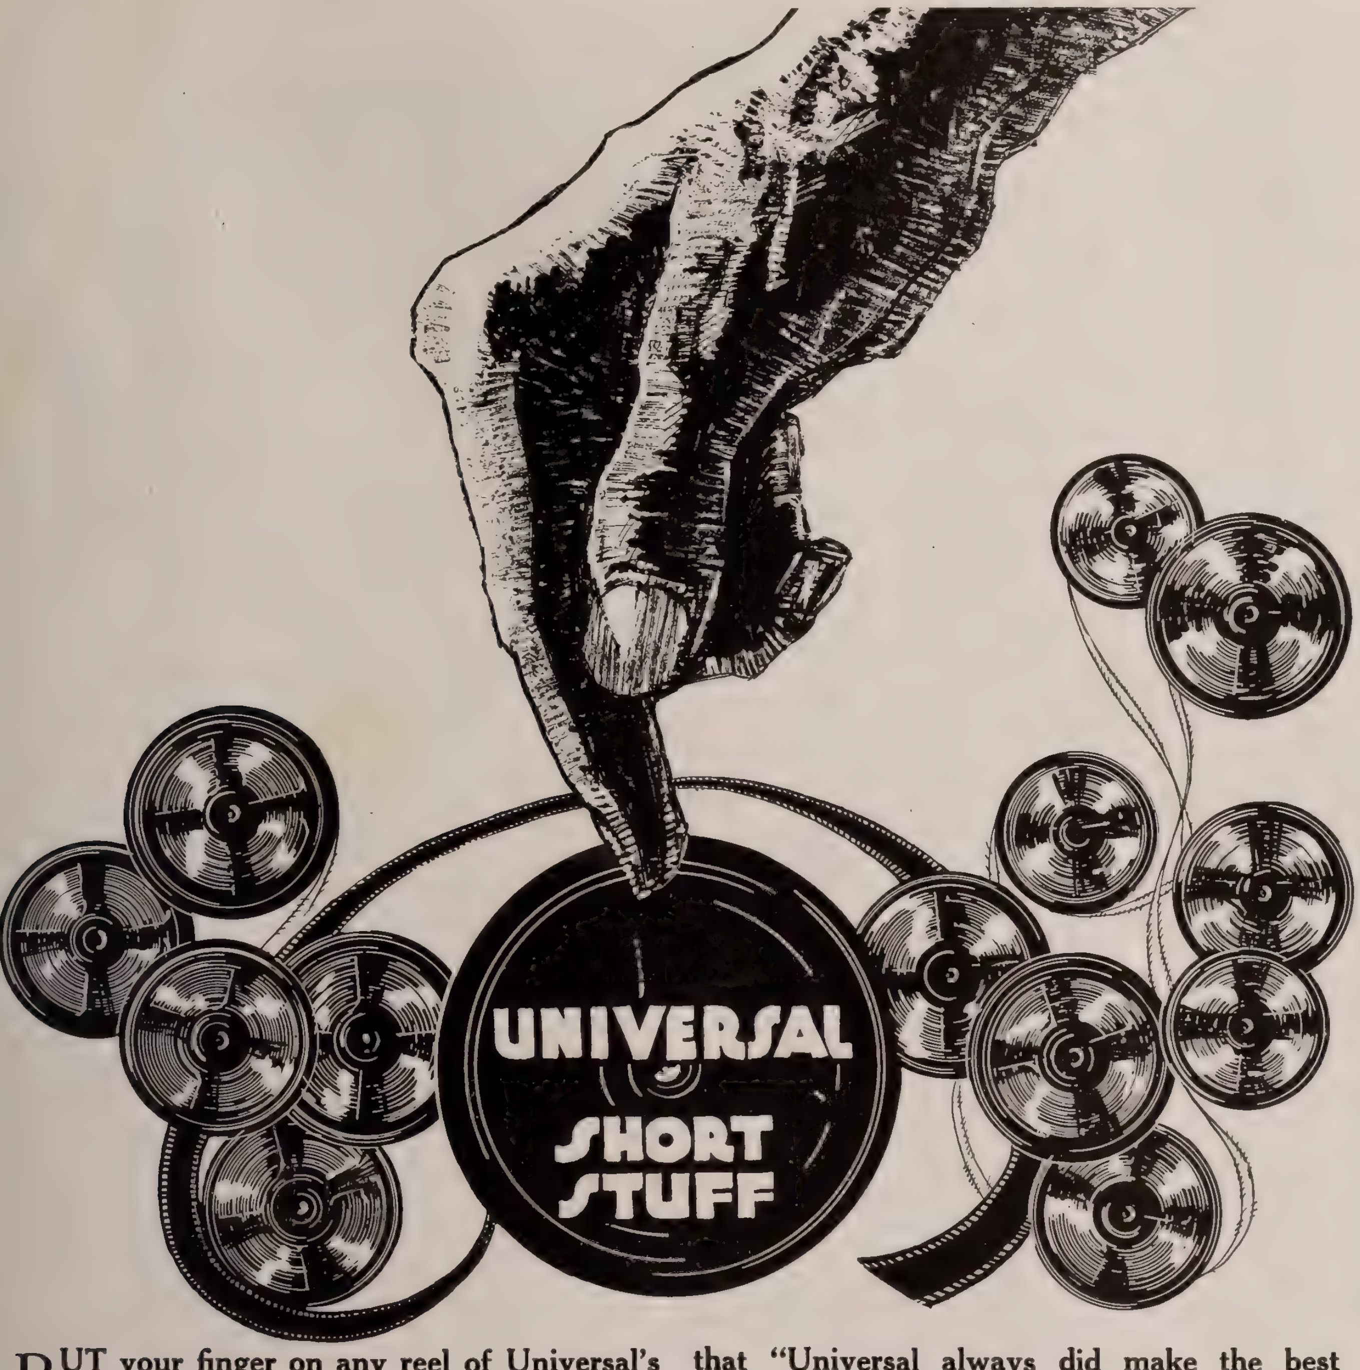
Featuring

DOROTHY WOLBERT

UNDER the terms of her father's will Betty will forfeit a large legacy if she marries before she is of age. Unknown to her guardian, who has control of the distribution of the estate, she is married and is living in a little house in the suburbs. When the guardian arrives at the house one day, Betty tells Dottie, the maid, to keep her husband out of the way until the final papers are signed giving her control of her money.

Her husbands' twin brother arrives in town the same day and when he shows up at the house, Dottie grabs him and tells him to hide in a closet. She has just gotten him locked safely in the closet when she sees the real husband enter the front door. Dottie then has a merry time putting first one in the closet and then turning around only to see the other one trying to enter the room where Betty and the guardian are talking. Dottie does not know that they are twins and thinks that she must be seeing double.

The husband is suspicious of the actions of the maid, and, entering the room, finds his wife in the arms of the other man. Betty signals to her husband to keep quiet and tells her guardian that the newcomer is the maid's husband. He is about to leave when he sees the other twin in the hall and asks Betty for an explanation. She hurries him out on the porch, however, and finally gets him out of the house. Then the discovery is made that the two brothers were the unknowing cause of all the excitement and everyone breathes more easily.



PUT your finger on any reel of Universal's list of short stuff and you point to the best possible reel in its particular field that it's possible for brains plus money to produce. It makes no difference what you're after—Universal has it and has it better than anyone else. That's why exhibitors tell each other that "Universal always did make the best short stuff." The proof is found in our two-reel Century Comedies, two-reel Westerns, two-reel Red Rider Series, one-reel Star Comedies, International News, two-reel Lyons & Moran Comedies, etc. Don't "shop" for your short stuff—book all of it through Universal and be sure of the best.

THE BEST SHORT STUFF IN THE WORLD

"THE WHITE HORSEMAN"

Episode 3

"The Mummy Man"

AS the Spider is about to shove his knife into Ramsey the latter yells that he will tell. To turn attention from himself, he says Jean has the secret and that he doesn't know anything about it.

The Spider is beside himself, for he believes Jean is dead, killed by the descending roof of the cave. He throws the lever and starts the roof back up, but he cannot get into the cave because the door opens inward and is therefore blocked until the roof has risen above it.

In the meantime Allen has discovered the rope by which the Spider closed the trap-door in the roof. Jerking it, Allen discovers that it opens the trap-door. He lifts Jean through it and climbs out himself just as the outer door swings open and the Spider and gang rush in to find the room deserted. Once outside, Allen leads Jean to the horses. They leave on a run. The Spider and his gang are not long in discovering the means of escape and realizing that the fugitives will make for the horses, they set out to head them off. They reach the corral too late, but seeing their prisoners riding down a nearby trail they rejoice, for Allen and Jean are headed for a blind chasm over which no horse has ever jumped. The outlaws mount and follow, certain that they will soon have their prisoners again.

In the cave Ramsey manages to get his bonds cut and escape from his single guard. He mounts his own horse and, pursued by the guard, sets out for the shack on the ranch.

Allen and Jean reach the chasm and leap it in safety. The outlaws are afraid to follow but they know they can take a short cut and catch the pair at Back Wolf Canyon. Allen and Jean reach Black Wolf Canyon first, but when they see the outlaws riding toward them they realize they are bound to be caught eventually. Accordingly, Allen tells Jean to ride to the shack. He hopes to hold them off till help arrives. Jean leaves by the side trail and Allen leads the gang toward the shack.

Ramsey arrives at the shack and is held up by Zona, but knocks the gun from her hand. She rides to the cave for safety with Ramsey following. Before she can get inside and close the chasm he slips in behind her. Ramsey catches Zona fleeing down the dusky corridors and is about to choke her when he is terrified by the appearance of a mummy. Zona seizes her opportunity to escape and locks Ramsey in the cave, where he is attacked by the mummy man.

Allen is fighting off the outlaws at the shack while Jean, racing along the road, falls off her horse when the saddle cinch slips. Upon regaining consciousness she stops at a nearby cabin where she is captured by one of the Spider's gang.

Back at the shack Allen finds himself out of ammunition and climbs out on the gable of the cabin. One of the gang below sees him and shoots him, causing him to fall to the ground, wounded.

At the end of the episode, Ramsey is in the cave, in the clutches of the mummy man; Zona is in the clutches of an outlaw near the entrance to the caves; Jean is struggling with the outlaw in the lonely shack, and Allen lies on the ground outside his own ranch cabin shot by one of the bandits.

"The Midnight Raiders"

CAST

Lightnin' Ferguson	Jack Perrin
Sheriff Tim McGuire	Otto Nelson
Letty McGuire	Louise Lorraine
Jake Levering	Jim Corey

THE Night Riders, a mysterious band of masked men, have been waging a ruthless war on peaceful citizens and creating a reign of terror and dread. Their leader is known as "The Terror." Tim McGuire, the marshal, is not the man he once was, though he thinks he is, and he has been able to do nothing toward breaking up the gang. Letty, his daughter, is loved by both Jake Levering, a ranch owner, and Lightin' Ferguson, McGuire's deputy. A band of indignant citizens interview McGuire and demand that he do something. They suggest that he detail Ferguson on the job. Ferguson deplores this and asks that the old man be given another chance. McGuire, enraged, sends Ferguson to the end of the district after a horse thief, while McGuire goes out to play a lone hand. Letty is worried about him and lets Ferguson know it before he goes. The result is that Ferguson disobeys orders for the first time and follows the marshal to save him from his folly. He reaches him in time to save McGuire from the Terror and his band, who have captured him. Instead of being grateful over the rescue, McGuire discharges Ferguson for disobeying orders and humiliating him by carrying him back. Ferguson is made a Lone Rider by the citizens to break up the band, regardless of the marshal. Ferguson finds the marshal sternly opposed to his love affair, but he manages to see Letty nevertheless.

The riders make a raid on the marshal's home while Ferguson is there, stealing a meeting with Letty. Ferguson pursues them. Letty is abducted by them. Ferguson finds that some of the Riders are behind him and that he is in a trap. The leader of the band outdistances the others. Ferguson notes this, waits for him and attacks him. The rest of the band take Letty to a shack to await their leader. Ferguson and the Terror fight; then apparently the Terror emerges triumphant and rides off. McGuire organizes a posse and rides out.

The Terror comes to the shack where Letty is held. He announces that Ferguson is dead. He is about to brand Letty with a torch when one of the masked men knocks him down and covers the rest with a gun. It is Ferguson. But other men jump him and there is a great fight. McGuire and his posse arrive just in time to effect a rescue. The Terror is shown to be Jake Levering, the rancher. McGuire, brought to his senses by his daughters' peril, admits he was wrong and gives Ferguson his job as well as his daughter.

International News

No. 20

Washington, D. C.—President Harding's assembled Cabinet and its first duty is to pose for the movies on the White House lawn.

Balboa, Canal Zone.—Panama children expert swimmers. Youngsters exhibit remarkable skill before Admiral Rodman and Pacific sailors.

New York City.—Uncle Sam's best girl honored. Miss Pauline Henkel gets Drew Post's Legion medal for war work. (Colonel Galbraith, Legion Chief, makes the award.) (For New York City only.)

Lovell's Island, Mass. — Steamer runs on rocks in dense fog. The City of Columbus loses her bearings and runs aground.

New York City.—Police School turns out crack athletes. Rookey cops give a fine exhibition at graduation review.

Oldtown, Maine.—Indian women win battle for vote. "Governor" Solomon's wife, heap fine orator, leads successful fight for share in Penobscot tribal politics.

Sub-Titles.—Mrs. Solomon's rhetoric convinces her royal husband he'd better give in. And in the voting that follows, the woman's candidate for the important post of ferryman, is victorious. The little Penobscots are learning to be good Americans.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Oil tanks explode. Flames defying firemen's efforts, wreak havoc in big plant.

Allied Armies Seize Three German Cities.—At Marshal Foch's command 25,000 troops occupy Ruhr district.

Carl Laemmle offers

GLADYS WALTON

YOU can easily get pictures that cost more than this, but you'll have a mighty difficult time finding, at any cost, a picture that will please more. For "All Dolled Up" is an exceptionally good picture from the entertainment standpoint. You can be sure of 100% satisfaction on the part of your patrons when you present it.

in the
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"ALL DOLLED UP"

Directed by
ROLLIN STURGEON
Story by JOHN COLTON

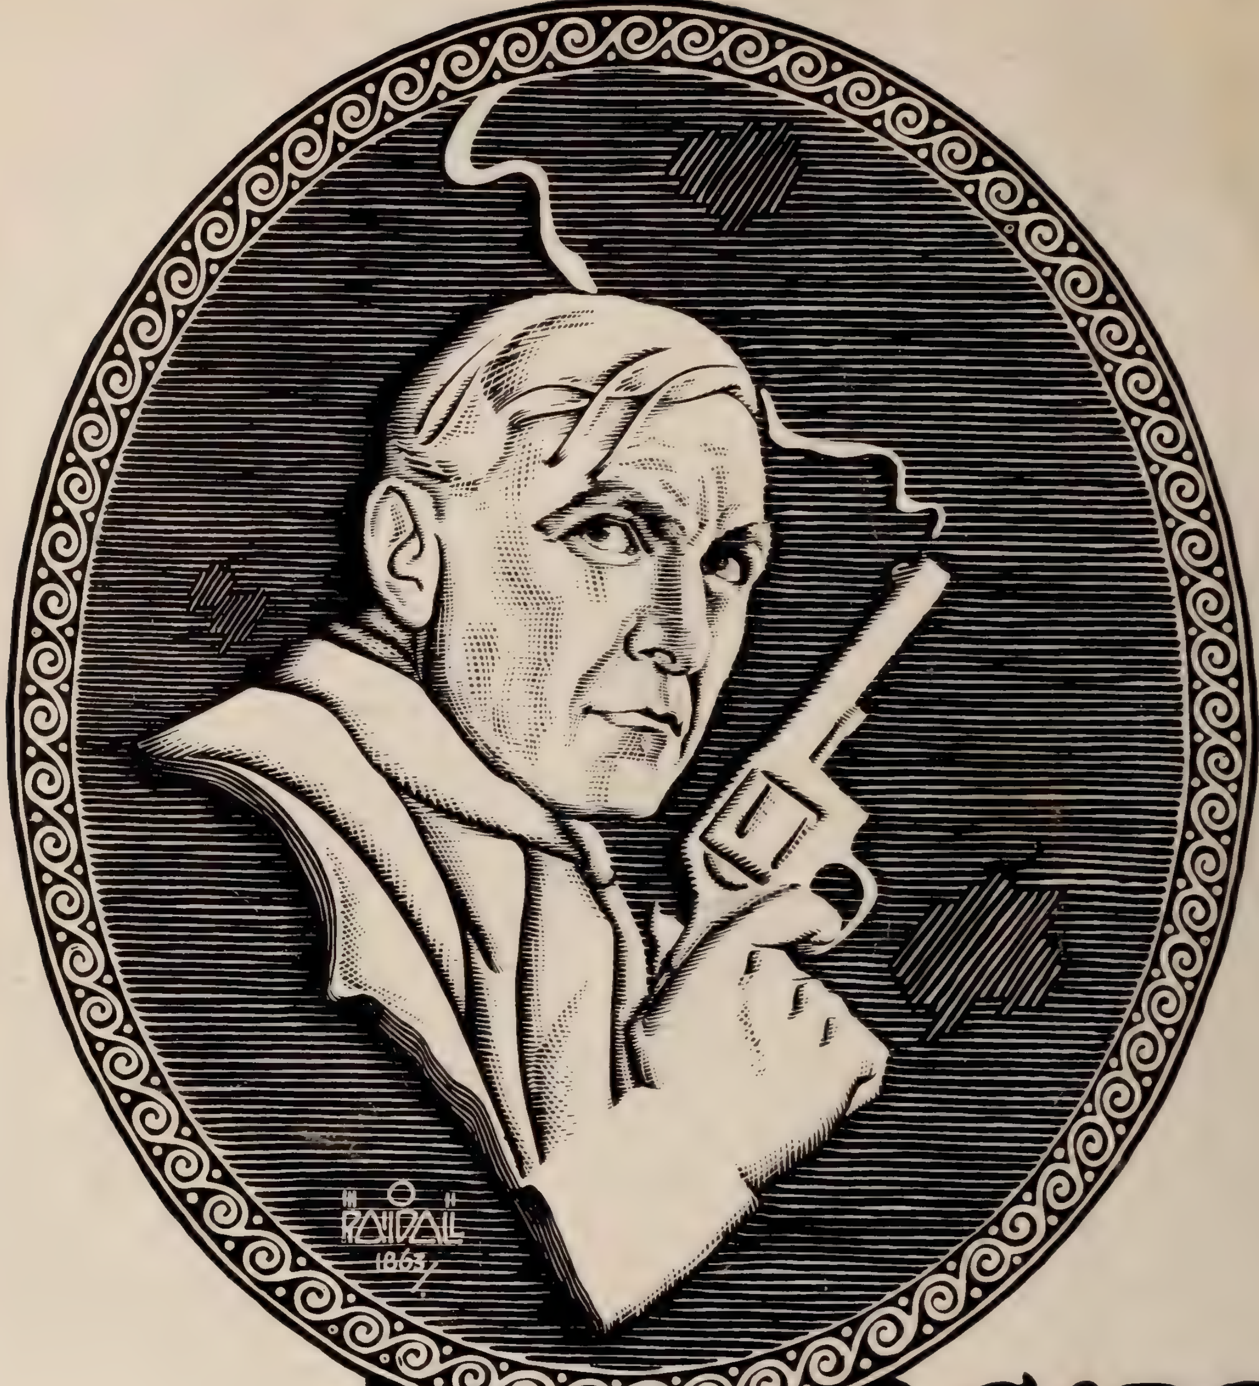
It's one of those
"52 Good Pictures a Year—
and no worry"



HARRY CAREY

A westerner who plays daily to millions yet who never seems to be acting. Appearing only in . . . .

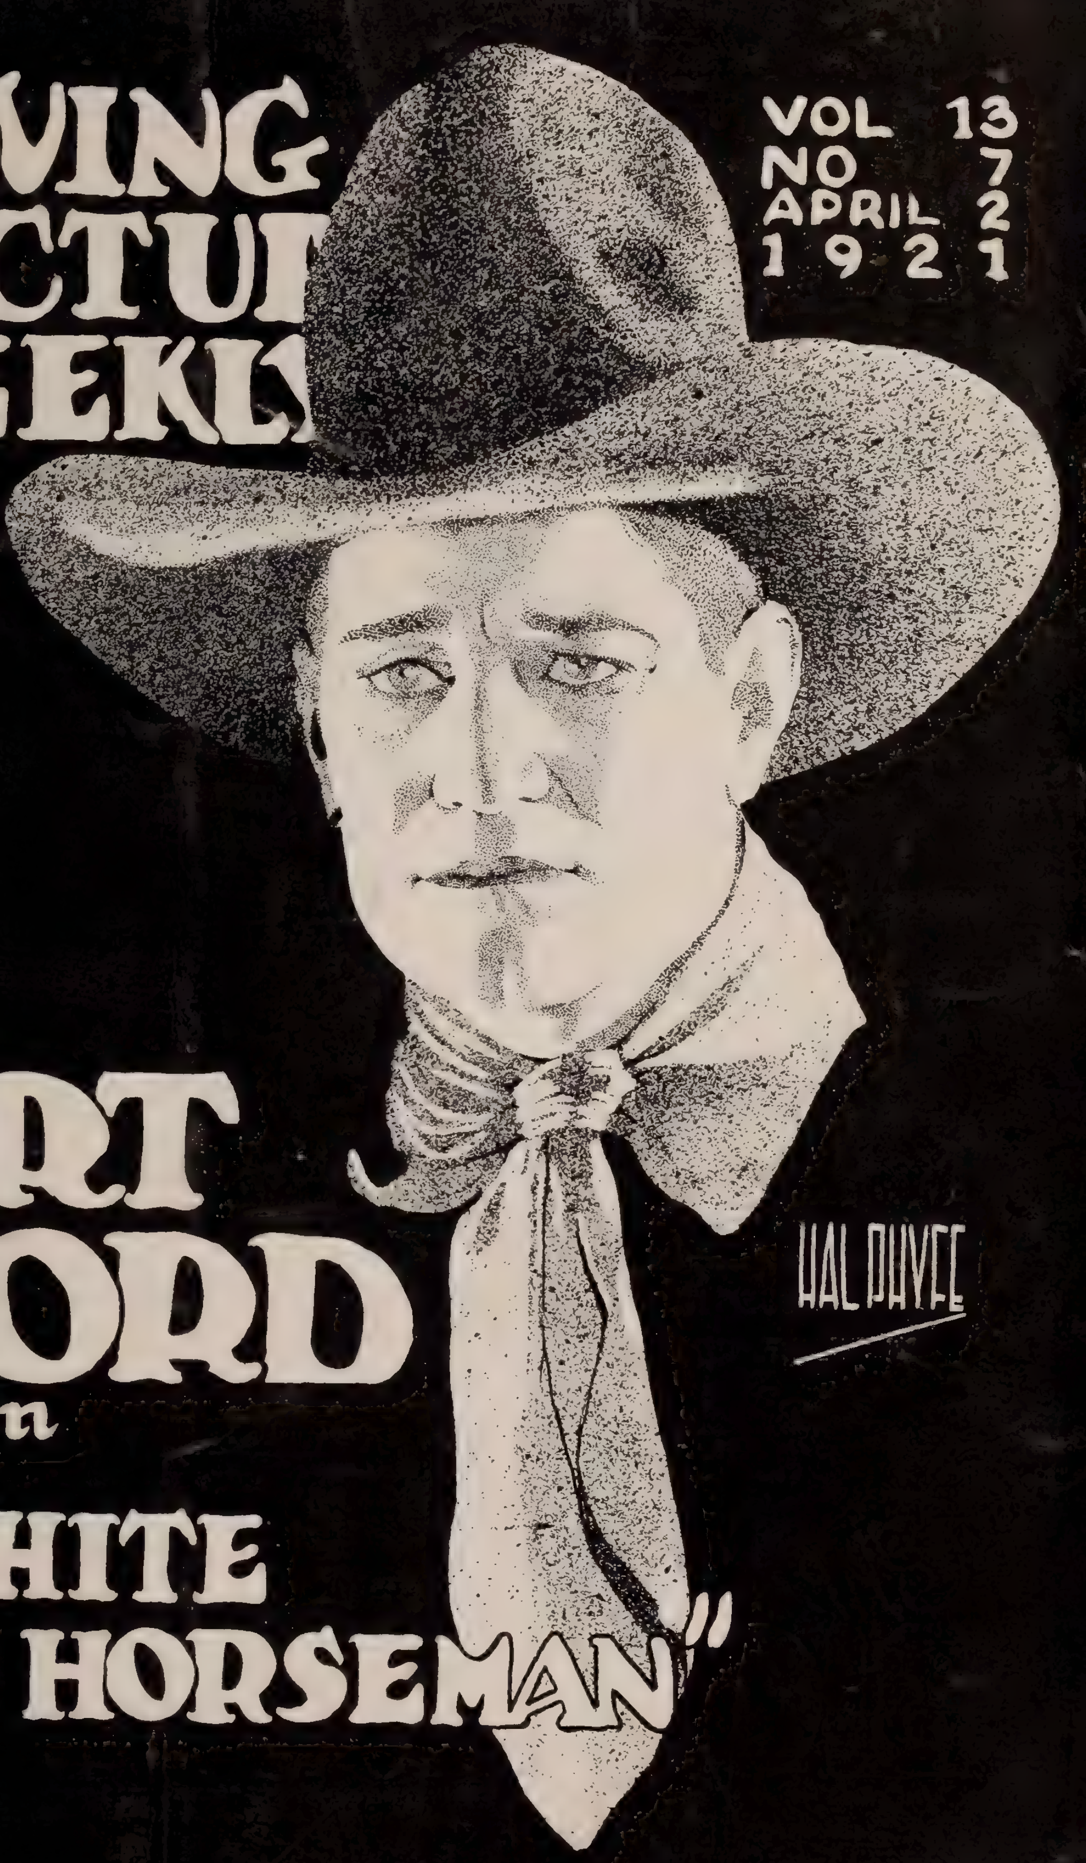
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

The MOVING PICTU WEEKL

VOL 13
NO 7
APRIL 2
1921



ART ACORD

in

"The WHITE HORSEMAN"

Carl Laemmle takes pleasure in announcing that Wonderful boy —

BREEZY EASON

in the most dramatic and appealing boy-picture ever made for grown-ups

Directed by
Reeves Eason

EVERY mother's son in your audiences was once a boy—every mother wants a boy—everybody likes to see a boy in pictures. And here's just exactly that boy picture that you've wanted for young and old. A vigorous, humorous drama of a red-blooded kid in which you can see yourself, as a boy, "ketchin' villuns.". As BREEZY says in his own words: "GEE, but it's excitin' ware me an' Miss Olmsted traps the villuns in their shack, GEE!" See this picture at your Universal Exchange for your own personal amusement and entertainment. Your booking will take care of itself. It's one of your "52 Good Pictures a Year—and No Worry."

"The BIG ADVENTURE"

Universal Special Attraction —

What Do You Want?

THIS is a service magazine. It contains many pages of suggestions and plans for putting over Universal pictures. That is why the magazine is published and sent to you, Mr. Exhibitor.

Now we want to ask a little service from you. The Universal is anxious to know from every exhibitor who uses these press sheets on its Special Attractions whether it contains the right kind and assortment of prepared advertisements. The advertising department is now preparing two single column ads, two double column ads, and a three column advertisement. These are all line drawings and so arranged that the name of the theatre can be put at the top.

Are these ads sufficient for your use?
Do you suggest any change?

Send your answer to E. S. MOFFAT, Advertising Manager, Universal Film Manufacturing Co., 1600 Broadway, N. Y. C.

PICTURED above are two reproductions of the attractive, 11 x 14 lobby cards obtainable at your Universal Exchange.

Carl La

A TYPICAL Human Harry Carey Western that's chock full of action, thrills and laughs from the first flash until the final fade-out. It's the realistic sizzling action-Western of which movie fans can't get enough.

And no wonder! There's just one Harry Carey and he's in Universal Special Attractions exclusively.

THE entire set of eight cards is in the same style, being printed on very fine stock in a dark green tone. In addition, Universal has prepared for you a very beautiful hand-colored card, 22 x 28 in size.

A crac realistic

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACT

Harry Carey in "

mmle

offers

ing - fast

tion play

YOU don't have to be told at this stage of the business what good-looking, actionful Lobby Cards do for your box-office as well as for your lobby. They are the best of curiosity-arousers — the finest of crowd-reminders. When you book "The Freeze Out" get the complete set of these cards. Be alive! take advantage of the service Universal offers you. It means money to you!

HUMAN Harry Carey! What greater tribute can be paid to an actor than to have it repeated time and again that his acting is so fine and true that he does not seem to be acting at all!

ON DIRECTED BY JACK FORD

The Freeze Out''

Service Page for "The Freeze Out"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Freeze Out."

STAR—Harry Carey.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Marked Men," "Overland Red," "Sundown Slim," "Bullet Proof," "West Is West," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Jack Ford.

STORY AND SCENARIO BY—George Hull.

SUPPORTING CAST—Helen Ferguson, Joe Harris, Charles LeMoyne, J. Farrell McDonald, Lydia Yeamans Titus and the Harry Carey Flying Squadron.

TIME—A decade ago.

LOCALE—The West.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—A stranger enters a western town and announces that he is going to open a straight gambling house... Zoe Whipple, the girl, hates him for presuming to injure the community with another dive. Behind closed doors he installs a library and school instead of the gambling hall, winning the love of the girl.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The reputation of Harry Carey for fast action.

2—A fascinating love story, the outcome of which is not sure until the final scenes.

3—One of the most nerve-racking gun fights ever staged.

4—The presence of Helen Ferguson in the leading feminine role.

5—Some of the most beautiful scenery ever recorded by the camera.

6—The spontaneous comedy-relief afforded by the clever characterization of J. Farrell McDonald.

7—The theme of the story; based upon woman's unceasing battle against evil.

8—Interesting views of the inner workings of a gambling dive.

9—The short but effective part of Lydia Yeamans Titus in the supporting cast.

10—The direction of Jack Ford and the fact that Maj. Kenneth Marr, formerly second in command of the Lafayette Escadrille was his assistant in the making of the picture.

CAST

"Ohio" (the Stranger)	Harry Carey
Zoe Whipple	Helen Ferguson
Headlight Whipple	Joe Harris
Denver Red	Charles LeMoyne
Bobtail McGuire,	J. Farrell McDonald
Mrs. McGuire	Lydia Yeamans Titus

THE STORY

IN the town of Broken-Buckle were two chief attractions—the gambling hall for all male residents over the age of sixteen, run by Headlight Whipple, and the little public school for the future generation, conducted by Zoe Whipple, the foster-sister of Headlight. Zoe, with her institution for making men, was a strange contrast to the owner of the school for breaking men, and she loathed all those having anything to do with the gambling hall.

"Ohio," a stranger, was just loping into town when he met a cowboy hitting the trail hard. The puncher told him that he had just shot the dealer in the gambling hall after being robbed in a crooked game. The stranger thought the shooting justified and helped throw the pursuers off the trail.

At the Headlight saloon "Ohio" calmly announced that he was going to start a straight gambling hall. The bunch in the place laughed at him, but Zoe when she heard the news was indignant that another gambling den was to be opened.

The village drunkard is taken into partnership by "Ohio" and together they set to work to clear the land on the drunkard's property for the new house. When they saw that the stranger was serious, the gamblers tried to put him out of the way by burning the half-finished building.

Failing in this they gave whisky to the business partner of "Ohio." Zoe Whipple, seeing the condition of the drunkard and believing that "Ohio" gave him the liquor, uses a horse whip on the stranger. Later when she learns that her foster-brother made the man drink, she tries to apologize for her actions and asks "Ohio" why he let her horsewhip him. She begins to admire the stranger in spite of his business.

Seeing the growing friendship between Zoe and "Ohio," Headlight and Denver Red picked an argument with him. Whipple, though yellow to the core, was forced to accept "Ohio's" challenge to fight. In the pistol duel Whipple shot before the word and fired wild. "Ohio" took his gun away from him and drove him out of town.

On the day set for the opening of the new hall Zoe accepted an invitation to attend the ceremonies. Most of the town was assembled in front of the building, held in check by Bobtail McGuire, when "Ohio" and Zoe arrived.

When the doors were opened the gaping crowd saw not a business-like gambling joint but a completely equipped school and library.

"Ohio" then decided to stay in Broken-Buckle and help Zoe clean up the town.

YOUR THEATRE

He was a gambler and his luck started when he drew the Queen of Hearts. See Harry Carey in "The Freeze," his latest Universal action-drama.

Don't marry a man to reform him; reform him first and then let some other girl marry him. Harry Carey gets reformation in 'The Freeze Out."

She loved him and hated him, she horse-whipped him and kissed him. You will get a new kind of a thrill out of "The Freeze Out" with Harry Carey starring.

Harry Carey
IN
"THE FREEZE OUT"
UNIVERSAL

NO MAIL ORDER SUIT FOR HARRY CAREY

Another misunderstanding! Harry Carey needs all his tact to win the girl in "The Freeze Out," his latest picture

IF you liked Harry Carey's acting in "'If Only' Jim," you will be a life long Carey fan after seeing him in "The Freeze Out," his latest photodrama of the West. This is a typical Carey story, combining his dramatic ability with some of the best screen humor ever filmed. With a strong story and a supporting cast with an enviable reputation in their own right, this latest Carey release fully lives up to the high standards set by his previous pictures.

Harry Carey has revolutionized the costumes worn by players in Western photodramas. Instead of the old-fashioned chappes, the flopping sombrero and the always conspicuous brace of six-shooters, the Ace of the Western drama dressed exactly as he does when he is riding his own ranch in the San Francisquito Canyon in Southern California.

"The Freeze Out" is Carey's idea of a modern Western story and, he says, the modern West is just as romantic as the swach-buckling West of fiction.

In an ordinary blue suit with a single gun tucked into the front of the trousers, Carey believes that a man can be just as formidable as though he encumbered his legs with sheep-skin chappes, girdled his waist with a small arsenal and was constantly interrupted by the necessity of holding on to his enormous sombrero. For a hat Carey wears an ordinary stetson, and the only capitulation to the exaggerated style of the old West is a pair of conservative boots into which he tucks his trousers to keep them from getting tangled up with the stirrups.

"The Freeze Out" was written by George C. Hull from the author's own experience in the modern West and is a vigorous story that gives the popular Harry Carey every chance to get over flashing bits of humor and smashing drama. The supporting cast will be well received, including as it does Helen Ferguson, Joe Harris, Charles Le-Moyne, Lydia Yeamans Titus and J. Farrell McDonald.

WHAT'S AT THE PLAYHOUSE TO-NIGHT?

THERE is a laugh for every dramatic punch in Harry Carey's most recent screen success, "The Freeze Out," which will be the attraction at the .... Theatre next .... Carey's admirers have learned that this star can appeal to the humor as well as the heart of an audience and his latest feature gives him plenty of opportunities to do both.

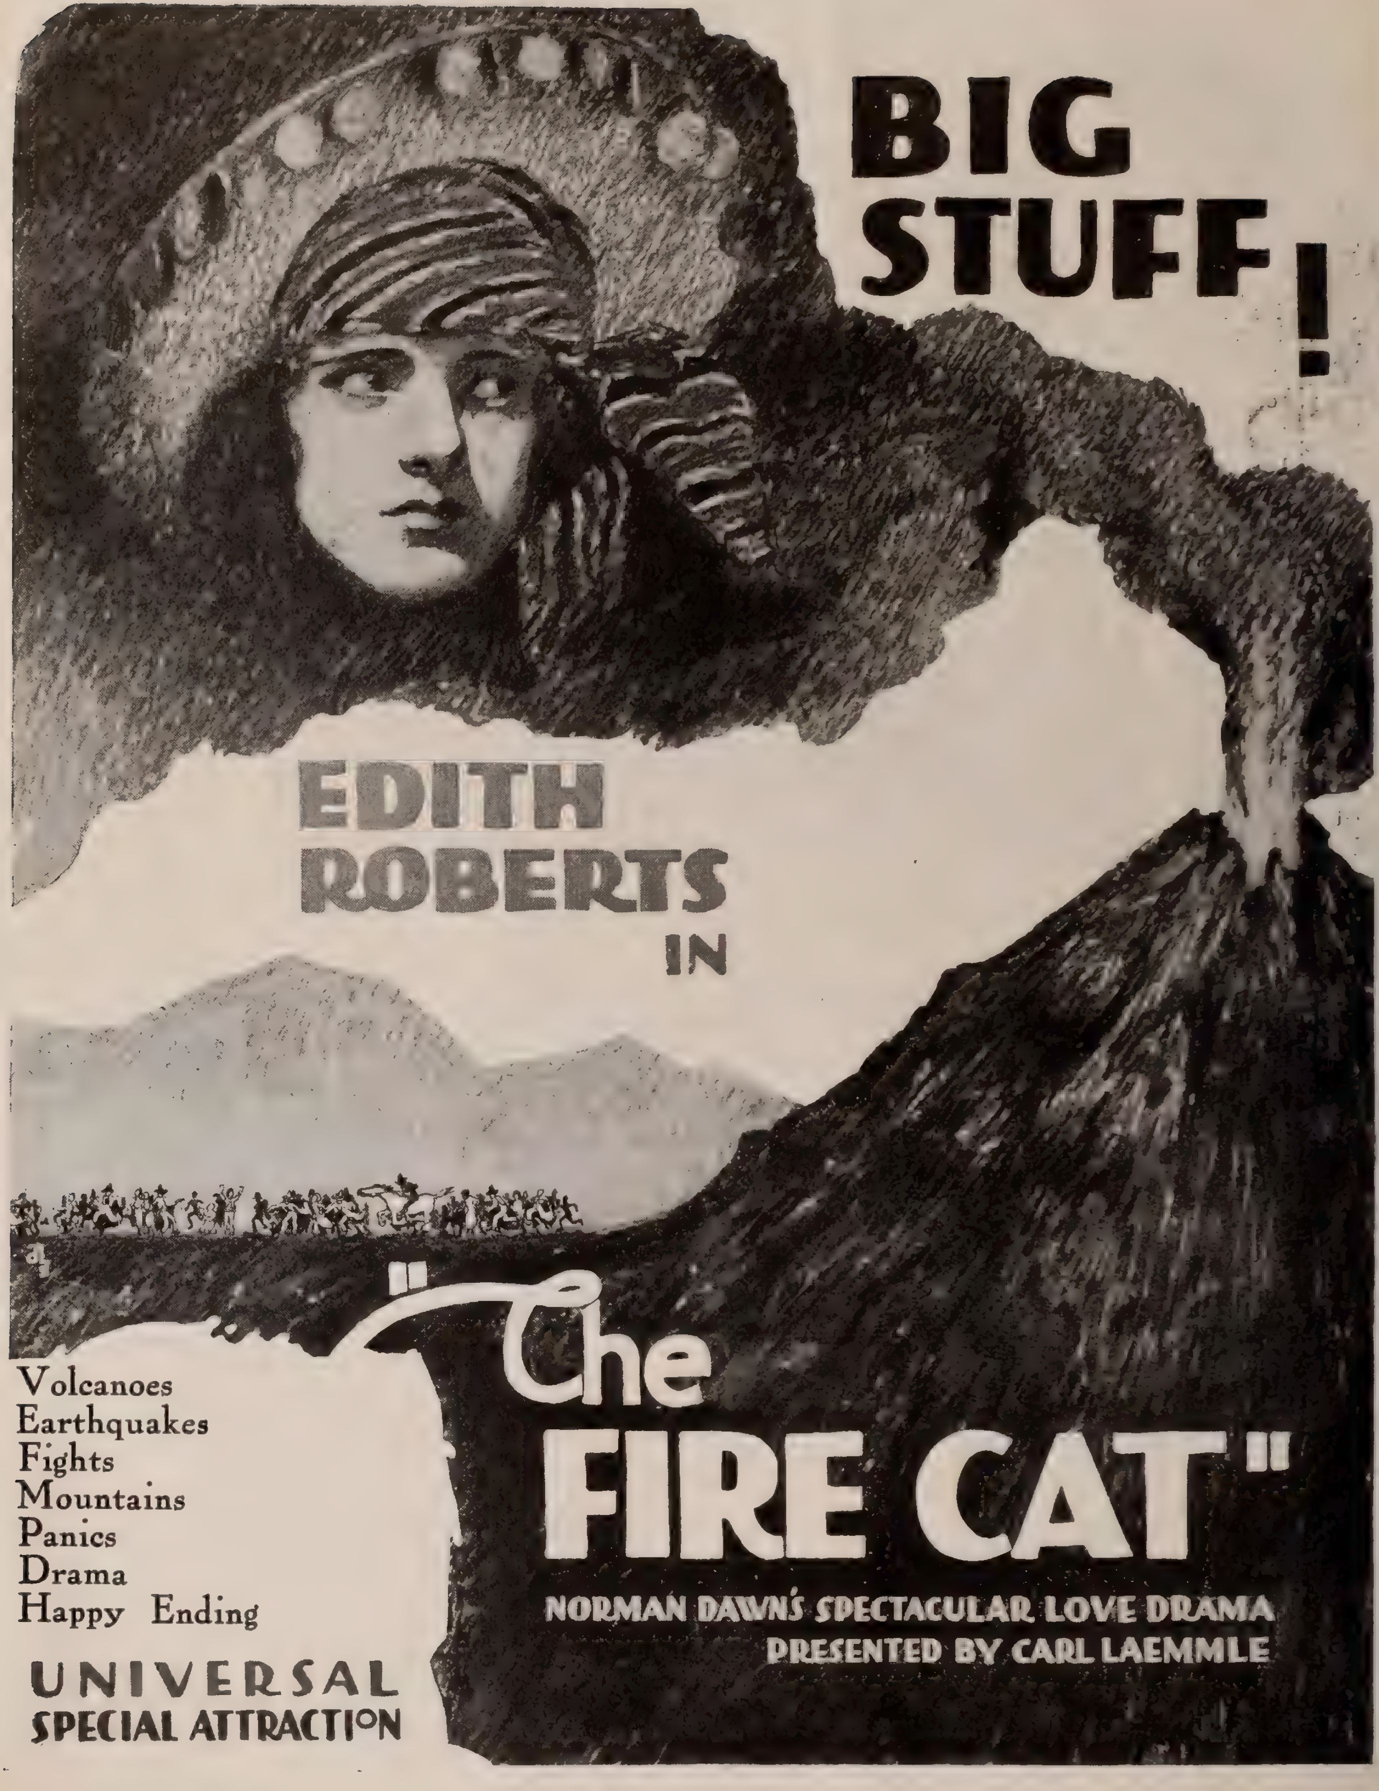
SOME of the most beautiful photography ever put on the screen gives an added appeal to "The Freeze Out," Harry Carey's Universal story, which is now playing to capacity audiences at the .... Theatre. Harry Fowler photographed the production under the direction of Jack Ford. Helen Ferguson, J. Farrell McDonald, Joe Harris, Lydia Yeamans Titus and Charles LeMoyne are among the screen favorites who support the star.

HELEN FERGUSON, who has been seen in many big dramatic roles, will appear in Harry Carey's support in "The Freeze Out," his current Universal screen drama, which will be shown at the .... Theatre on .... The story was produced at Universal City under the direction of Jack Ford and affords Carey one of his most unusual roles.

HISTORIANS who recall the distant age of hard liquor will be able to gain first-hand information of the effect of merry mucilage upon the human form in "The Freeze Out," Harry Carey's latest Universal screen play, with his showing at the .... Theatre. J. Farrell McDonald, the widely-known character actor, appears as the village drunkard and executes the hesitation and the gin-jig with humorous variations.

HARRY CAREY, the star of "The Freeze Out," the Universal action-drama which is now playing at the .... Theatre, was a law student in New York City before he went West to becme a cowboy. His father was a judge of the surrogate court and young Carey upset the plans of his family when he selected a life on the plains rather than the studious existence of an attorney.

If you liked Harry Carey's acting in "'If Only' Jim," you will be a life-long Carey fan after seeing him in "The Freeze Out," his latest photodrama of the West. This is a typical Carey story, combining his dramatic ability with some of the best screen humor ever filmed. With a strong story and a supporting cast with an enviable reputation in their own right, this latest Carey release fully lives up to the high standards used by his previous pictures.



BIG STUFF!

EDITH ROBERTS

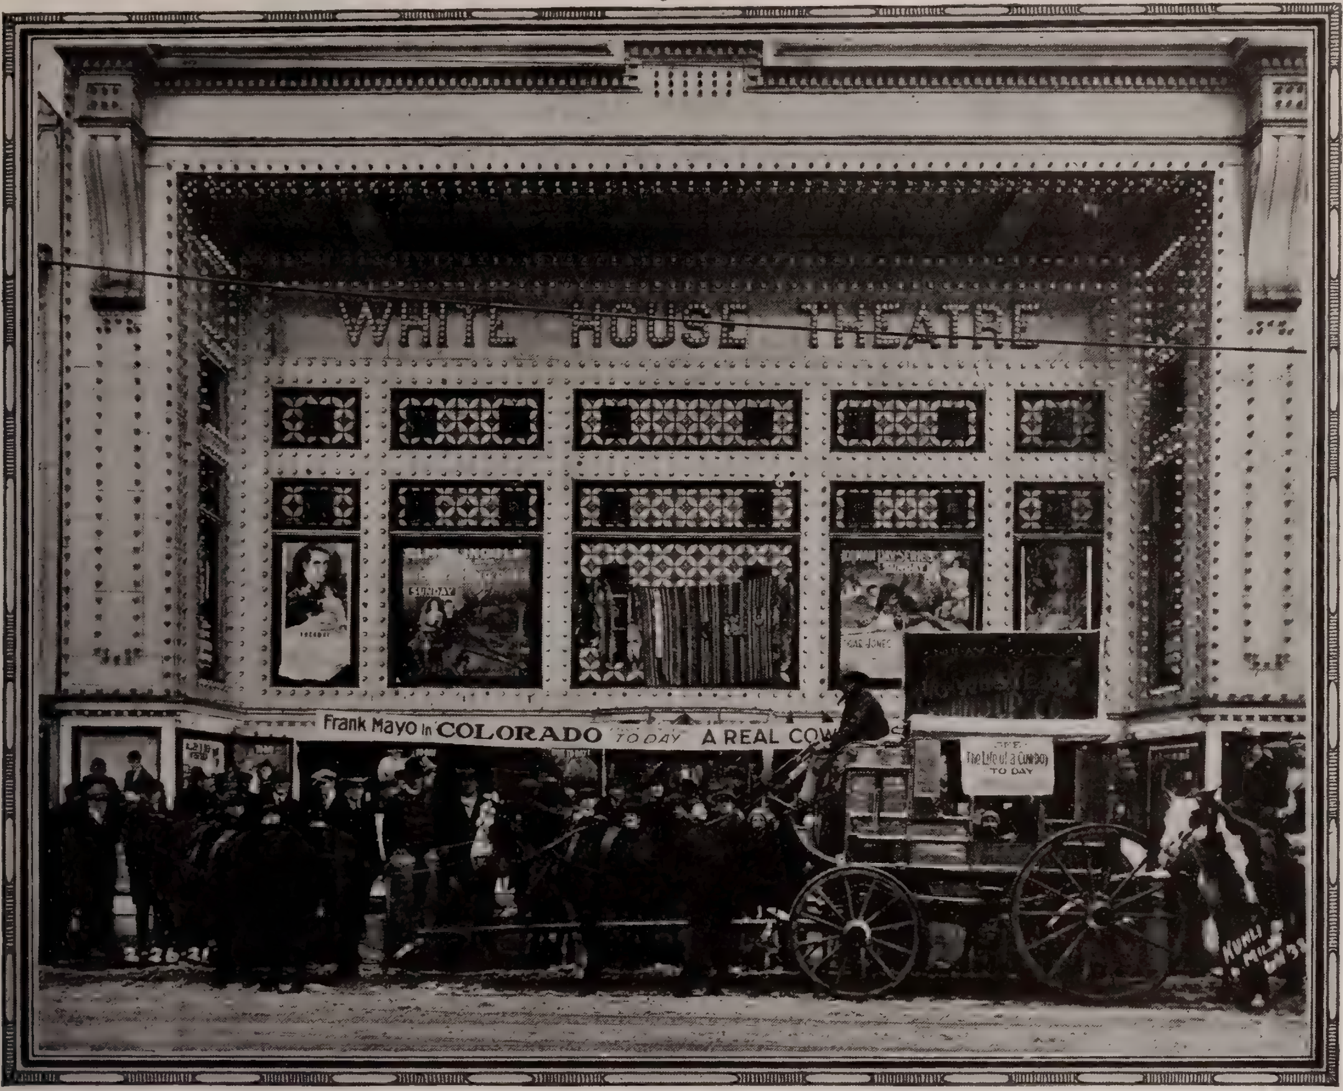
IN

"The FIRE CAT"

NORMAN DAWN'S SPECTACULAR LOVE DRAMA
PRESENTED BY CARL LAEMMLE

Volcanoes
Earthquakes
Fights
Mountains
Panics
Drama
Happy Ending

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTION



WHITE HOUSE THEATRE
SUNDAY
Frank Mayo in COLORADO TODAY A REAL COW
SEE The Life of a Cowboy TO DAY
2-26-21

Ancient stagecoach hauled through the streets of Milwaukee to advertise "Colorado" with Frank Mayo.

Universal Film Co.: The life of a cowboy was splendidly portrayed by Frank Mayo in "COLORADO," shown at our theatre on February 24, 25 and 26. Our patrons were immensely pleased with the picture, and the box-office receipts prove that it is one of the biggest attractions we have played this year, both from that standpoint and judging from the dramatic power of the picture. The unique lobby display attracted the attention of every person passing by, and hundreds even walked out of their way to see it.

O. L. MIESTER,
Manager, Whitehouse Theatre.

Use Big Space Liberally!

Make a real noise when you have a picture like this!

Should a Showgirl Eat

BACK-STAGE show-girl's life real drama in whi nobody from the high flyers just w make this new E ture absorbingl thrilling. It's a romantic as lov
as pretty as la
And there's a that will fill y
to see

We'll give you one guess as to which is

"The Smart

star
Ev

the Stua
at F sm

It's a Universal

EVA NOVAK

She hadn't eaten for two days -he had just lost his allowance for eight years— watch them fall in love in

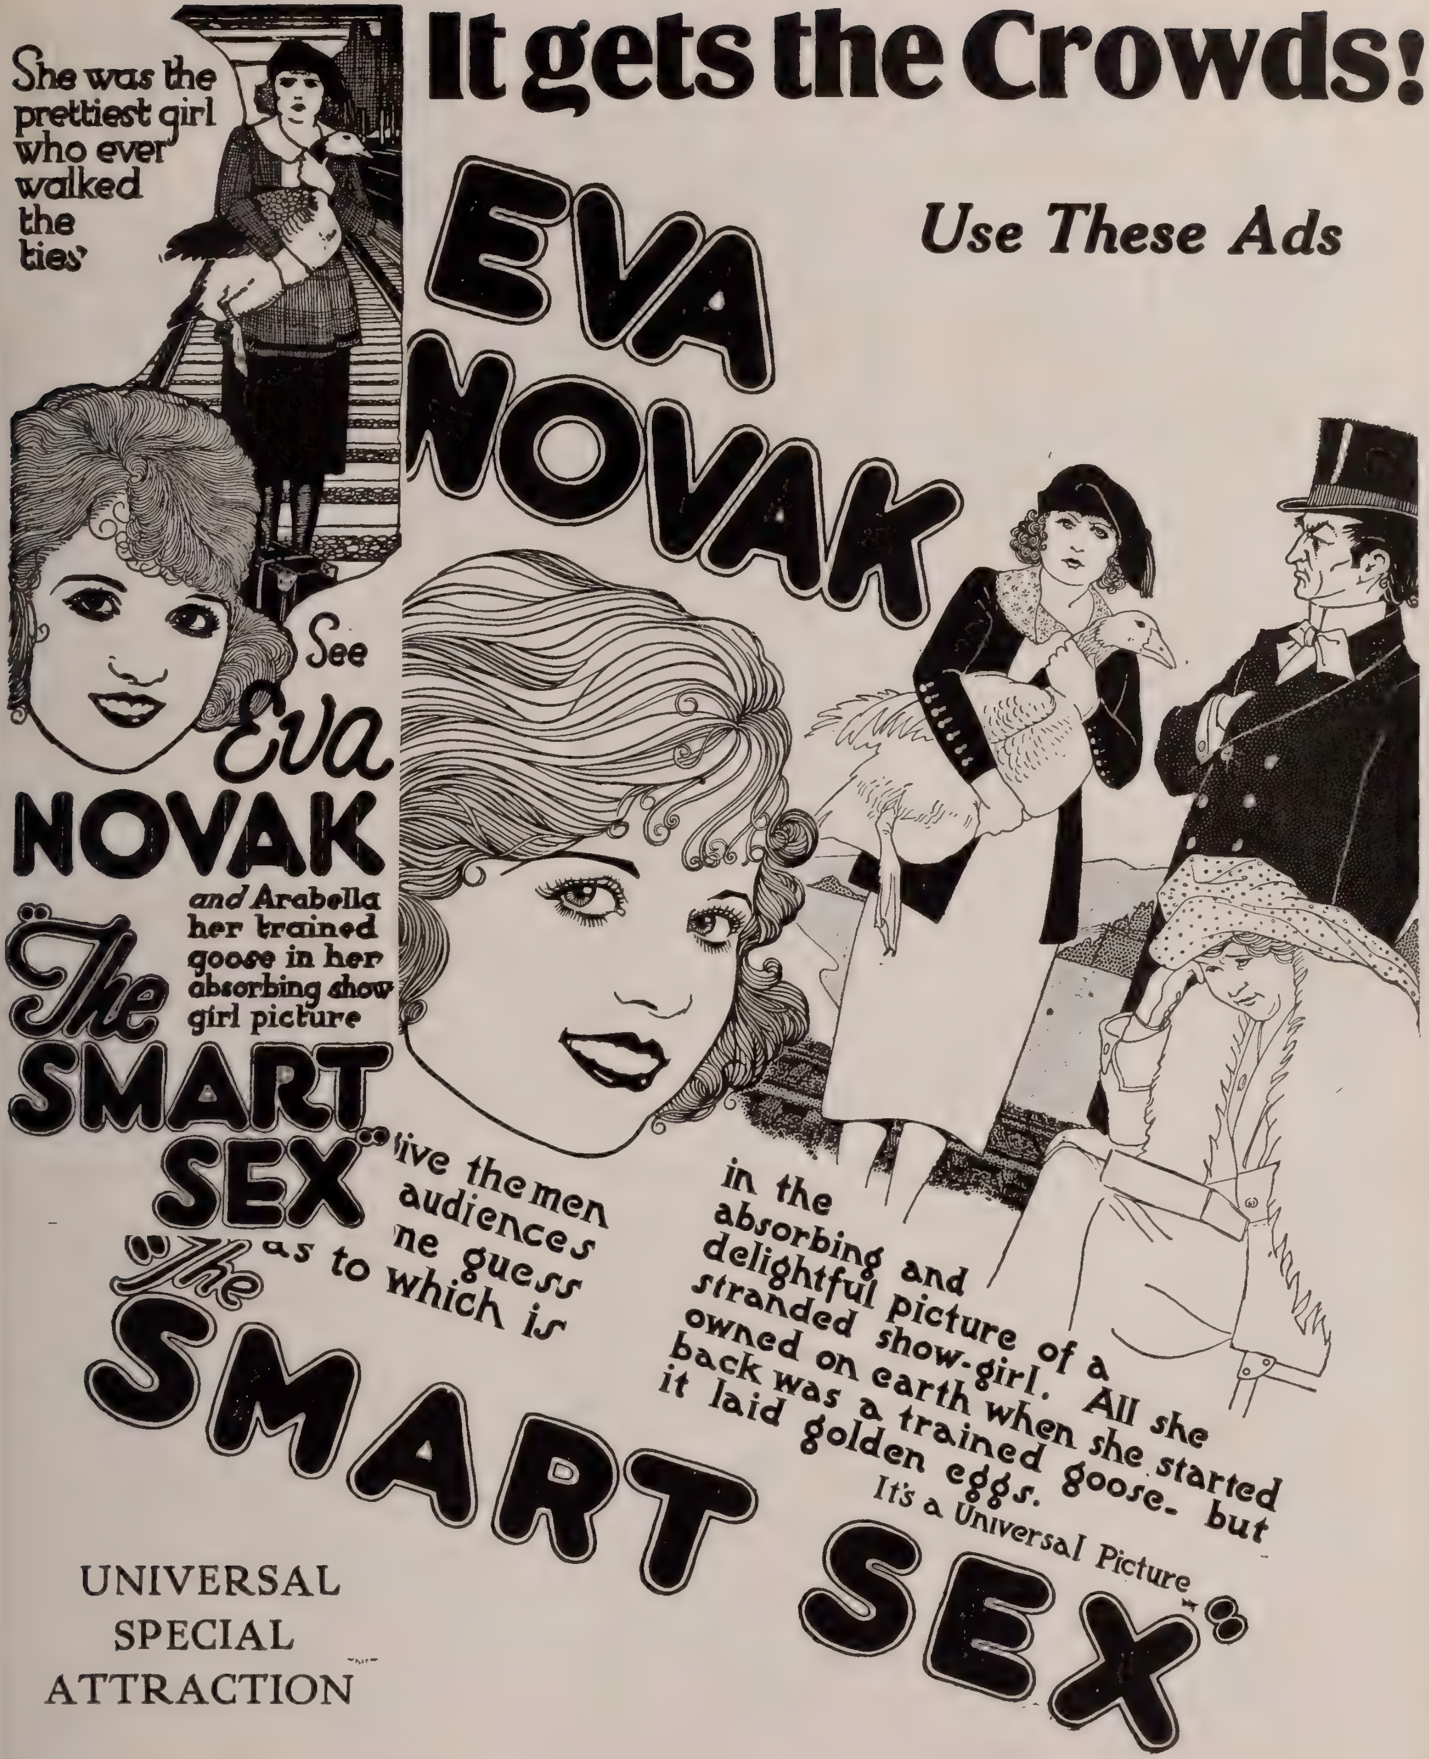
"The SMART SEX"

It's a UNIVERSAL

BACK-STAGE glimpses of a show-girl's life and some very real drama in which a poor little nobody from the chorus puts some high-flyers just where they belong, make this newest EVA NOVAK picture as true as hunger and as romantic as love at first sight. For a good time, see "THE SMART SEX."

It gets the Crowds!

Use These Ads



She was the prettiest girl who ever walked the ties'
See
Eva
NOVAK
and Arabella her trained goose in her absorbing show girl picture
"The SMART SEX"
EVA NOVAK
ive the men audiences ne guess as to which is
"The SMART SEX"
in the absorbing and delightful picture of a stranded show-girl. All she owned on earth when she started back was a trained goose- but it laid golden eggs.
It's a Universal Picture

UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL
ATTRACTION

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol 13 APRIL 2, 1921 No. 7

Co-Operation For Mutual Service

FROM the viewpoint of the reader a magazine has the most value to him if it is sent through the mails so that he receives a flat book and can add it to his file. It would be impractical to send each individual copy wrapped up flat, so, therefore, the best method for rolling and wrapping a magazine for the mails has been adopted by THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY.

When this magazine leaves the mailing room it is rolled as tightly as possible so that when the subscriber receives the magazine, by rolling the book in the opposite direction a perfectly flat book is obtained. This will avoid the annoyance of having a book that curls and rolls in reading. The WEEKLY can then be added to the office file and the appearance of a bound volume maintained.

If the magazine is not being received in this way we should like to hear from the exhibitors so that we can correct the mailing system. Every exhibitor owes it to himself to keep up to date in his industry and to profit by the exploitation campaigns which have proved to be effective in other cities.

This magazine contains much information of practical use to every operator of a moving picture playhouse and the greatest results can only be obtained by the subscriber if the WEEKLY is kept on file for reference. In addition to the information about coming Universal attractions and special features, the successful methods used by exhibitors in other cities are presented in the magazine.

The notice printed on page one contains a special message for exhibitors in every town and we would like to receive an expression of opinion from them. If there is any other service that could be supplied with this book which would help the exhibitor in putting over his pictures write us your suggestion.

Beginning with "All Dolled Up," the Gladys Walton feature just released, Universal press sheets are to be devoted mainly to exploitation ideas and practical advertising suggestions.

Universal now is extending its exploitation activites to include its five-reel feature pictures, made by stars such as Harry Carey, Edith Roberts, Frank Mayo, Gladys Walton, Carmel Myers, Eva Novak and others. The first move in this direction is a change in the form and substance of press sheets.

Heretofore the press sheets for Universal Special Attractions have been in one sheet form, with two or three scene cuts and one or two ad. cuts. A few exploitation suggestions have been included in them.

The new style Universal press sheet for Special Attractions consists of four pages and is filled with scene cuts, ad. cuts, suggested lobby displays and a variety of exploitation cuts, available for teaser ads., throwaways or postcard teasers. The material is said to include an entire advertising and publicity campaign for the picture devised so that it can be varied to fit any size house or any community.

A feature of the suggested and demonstrated lobby displays, prologue ideas and other exploitation novelties, is the fact great stress has been laid upon simple ideas that can be adopted by any exhibitor, no matter how small his house.

BROUGHT INTO FOCUS

Publicity for "The White Horseman" serial 18-19
Announcing new Harry Carey feature... 2-3
Special message to exhibitors........ 1
How to use Ad. Punches for "The Freeze Out" 4
Priscilla Dean Tam stunt in Ohio........ 22-24
Effective Lobby Display for "Once To Every Woman" 14
Letters of praise for Jewel films........ 26
Exploitation of "Colorado" in Milwaukee 7
Address of nearest exchange........ 37

Smithsonian Institution,
United States National Museum,
Washington, D. C., Mar. 16, 1921.

The Universal Film Mfg. Company,
1600 Broadway, New York City.
Gentlemen:

Referring to my letter of January 29 and to your reply of February 1, it gives me great pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of copies of the films of the picture "Shipwrecked Among The Cannibals" therein mentioned. The generosity and courtesy which have been shown in furnishing these films is very much appreciated, and I would assure you of the Museum's sincere thanks for this welcome addition to the national collections.

Very truly yours,
W. de C. RAVENAL,
Administrative Assistant to the Secretary.

Special Publicity Stories for "The Freeze Out"

"ACE" OF WESTERN DRAMA SHOWS FLASHING WIT

HEART interest, suspense and drama are the outstanding features of "' The Freeze Out" which will attract playgoers to the .... Theatre next .... when the Universal production is given its final local showing with Harry Carey in the starring role.

The Ace of the Western drama finds a new type of starring vehicle in "The Freeze Out." Throughout the five reels he has an opportunity to demonstrate his mastery of subtle drama and flashing wit.

George Hull wrote the original story and Jack Ford, who has produced many of the Carey successes, directed the filming.

Heading the supporting cast will be seen Helen Ferguson, the capable dramatic actress who was a feature of "The Mutiny of the Elsinore" and other productions of similar magnitude. There will also be seen such well regarded screen players as Joe Harris, J. Farrell McDonald, Charles LeMoyne, Lydia Yeamans Titus and many others.

The struggle of a girl to reform a crooked community and the co-operation of a big stranger with a cheery smile who rides into camp to open another gambling house, is, in brief, the theme of the story.

Scintilating bits of comedy relieve the tense drama at intervals and give variety to a story which moves swiftly through a series of engrossing and powerful situations.

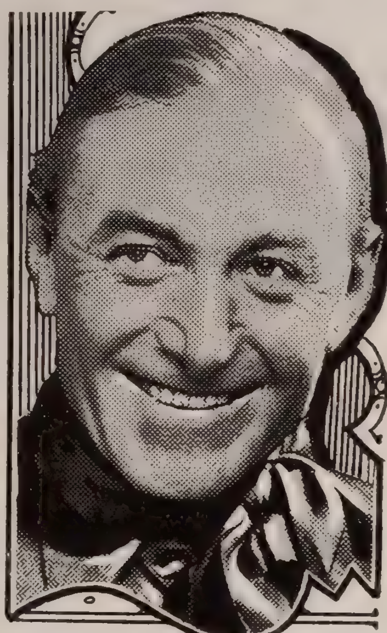
Sparkling photoplay, unusual lighting effects and good direction enhance the dramatic value of the story and will make "The Freeze Out" pleasing to those thousands who regard Harry Carey as the screen's foremost exponent of the out-of-doors.

MINING TOWN ROMANCE PRESENTS CAREY AS STAR

HARRY CAREY takes the kinks out of a crooked town and wins the girl of girls in "The Freeze Out," his latest Universal photodrama of life in the old West.

The picture, in which the star does some of his best dramatic work, is to be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on ....

"The Freeze Out" was produced at Universal City and in the picturesque cattle country nearby, under the direction of Jack Ford, and is heralded as one of the year's most unusual pictures. Instead of force the star uses armed diplomacy to enforce his will upon the lawless community and the effect is even more thrilling that if he had clattered into camp at the head of his famous Flying Squadron.



HARRY CAREY
UNIVERSAL

Helen Ferguson, who will be remembered as the leading woman in "The Mutiny Of The Elsinore" and other successes, plays opposite the star in "The Freeze Out," giving the role the dramatic fire which always characterizes her work and which the role requires.

In addition to the screen presence of Miss Ferguson, playgoers who see "The Freeze Out" will witness the best work of J. Farrell McDonald. The widely-known character actor does a serio-comic role of the village drunkard which will perhaps bring back old memories to those who feel that they could get along nicely without the eighteenth amendment.

Joe Harris, who has been seen in many villainous roles, plays the "heavy" in this picture, while Charles LeMoyne appears as a bad-man only slightly less unscrupulous.

Jack Ford directed "The Freeze Out" from a story by George Hull and the production abounds in beautiful scenery, photographed by Harry Fowler.

HORSEWHIPPING OF STAR GIVES THRILL TO PICTURE

GRINNING, fighting, human Harry Carey entertained hundreds of his admirers last night at .... Theatre where "The Freeze Out," his fast Universal photodrama of the West, began the engagement which has been anticipated ever since he made his recent hit with "'If Only' Jim."

"The Freeze Out" varies in type from the usual Harry Carey picture and gives the star a chance to get over the little subtleties and flashes of humor which have made him the Ace of the Western drama.

The story opens with The Stranger arriving in Broken-Buckle, a wild and lawless little Western town, to open a gambling house. He discovers that the existing palace of chance, "The Headlight," is being operated in accordance with the crooked ideas of Whipple, its proprietor, and decides to drive Whipple out of town. Zoe, the girl who conducts the store, hates all gamblers and Whipple in particular. The news that The Stranger is going to further corrupt the morals of the community is not pleasing to her and she puts every obstable in his path, even to a horse-whipping.

As the story draws toward its climax, however, it seems that the big, good-natured stranger, has thrived on opposition and he is seen putting the finishing touches to his building. When the doors are thrown open the spectators see not a gambling hall but a library and a school room.

Whipple, in the meantime, has been driven from town and the only other excitement is an approaching wedding.

The presentation of "The Freeze Out" is well done by a popular cast, including Helen Ferguson, J. Farrell McDonald, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Joe Harris and Charles LeMoyne.

The story, written by George C. Hull, was produced under the direction of Jack Ford.

NEW MINER'S INSTITUTE PROVES GREAT SURPRISE

HEADLIGHT WHIPPLE has a monopoly in the gambling business at Broken-Buckle, but a stranger arrived and proved an anti-trust law unto himself.

In a few weeks he had repaired Broken-Buckle—that is, as far as it could be repaired, and he was building a rival gambling hall in partnership with the village drunkard.

That is the unique situation that gives "The Freeze Out," Harry Carey's latest Universal photodrama, a snappy start which will please playgoers who attend the opening performance at the .... Theatre on ....

"The Freeze Out" shows Harry Carey in a somewhat different mood. He uses armed diplomacy to accomplish his purposes in the story and does the unexpected things in an unprecedented manner. The result is a photodrama entirely unlike the usual type, but extremely appealing.

The Picture-Singer Idea–A W

"WE used a singer as you suggested and we believe there was not a dry eye in the house during the singing of 'Ben Bolt.' Give us more like it."—Mrs. A. H. Erickson, Regent Theatre, Cedar Falls, Ia.

"WE had a singer sing 'Ben Bolt' and the songs that we received from you were one of the best advertising stunts that can be pulled for this wonderful picture. Turned them away."—Charles E. Greenstone, Majestic Theatre, Albany, N. Y.

"I GOT a large phonograph from a a local dealer with Geraldine Farrar's 'Ben Bolt' record and an operatic record. Success was tremendous. The picture broke all existing Kingsville records."—Henry C. Stearns, Kings Inn Theatre, Kingsville, Tex.

"THE combination of your worthy picture and a soloist who rendered songs during the running of the feature proved 100% entertainment. Production gave the people a great thrill."—Tom Moore, Moore's Theatre Corporation, Washington, D. C.

These Exhibitors Made Big Money With our Proven Presentation Plan ---- You Can Do The Same!

Carl Laemm
Allen H
Universal-Jewel P

DOROTHY PHILLIPS in "

nderful Success Everywhere!

"I PUT on the songs as you told me and had 100% pleased patrons. If we had more pictures like this there would be no Blue Sunday laws."—P. V. Williams, People's Theatre, Mundy, Texas.

"HERE'S one you can't lose on. Used a singer and filled the house. Many remarked 'the best show you ever had'—and we've had some big ones. Used exhibitors' reports for slides. They brought results."—C. H. Thomas, Community Theatre, Galva, Ia.

"CENSORSHIP and Blue Laws would have to go out of business if we could get offerings like this with greater regularity. Exploitation possibilities great. Put it on with a singer and watch 'em break down your doors."—Fred S. Meyer, Palace Theatre, Hamilton, O.

"MANY of our patrons expressed their appreciation and thanked us for showing this picture. We used a singer as suggested and it made a wonderful hit."—W. I. Neagle, Princess Theatre, Oskaloosa, Ia.

resents bar's uction de Luxe

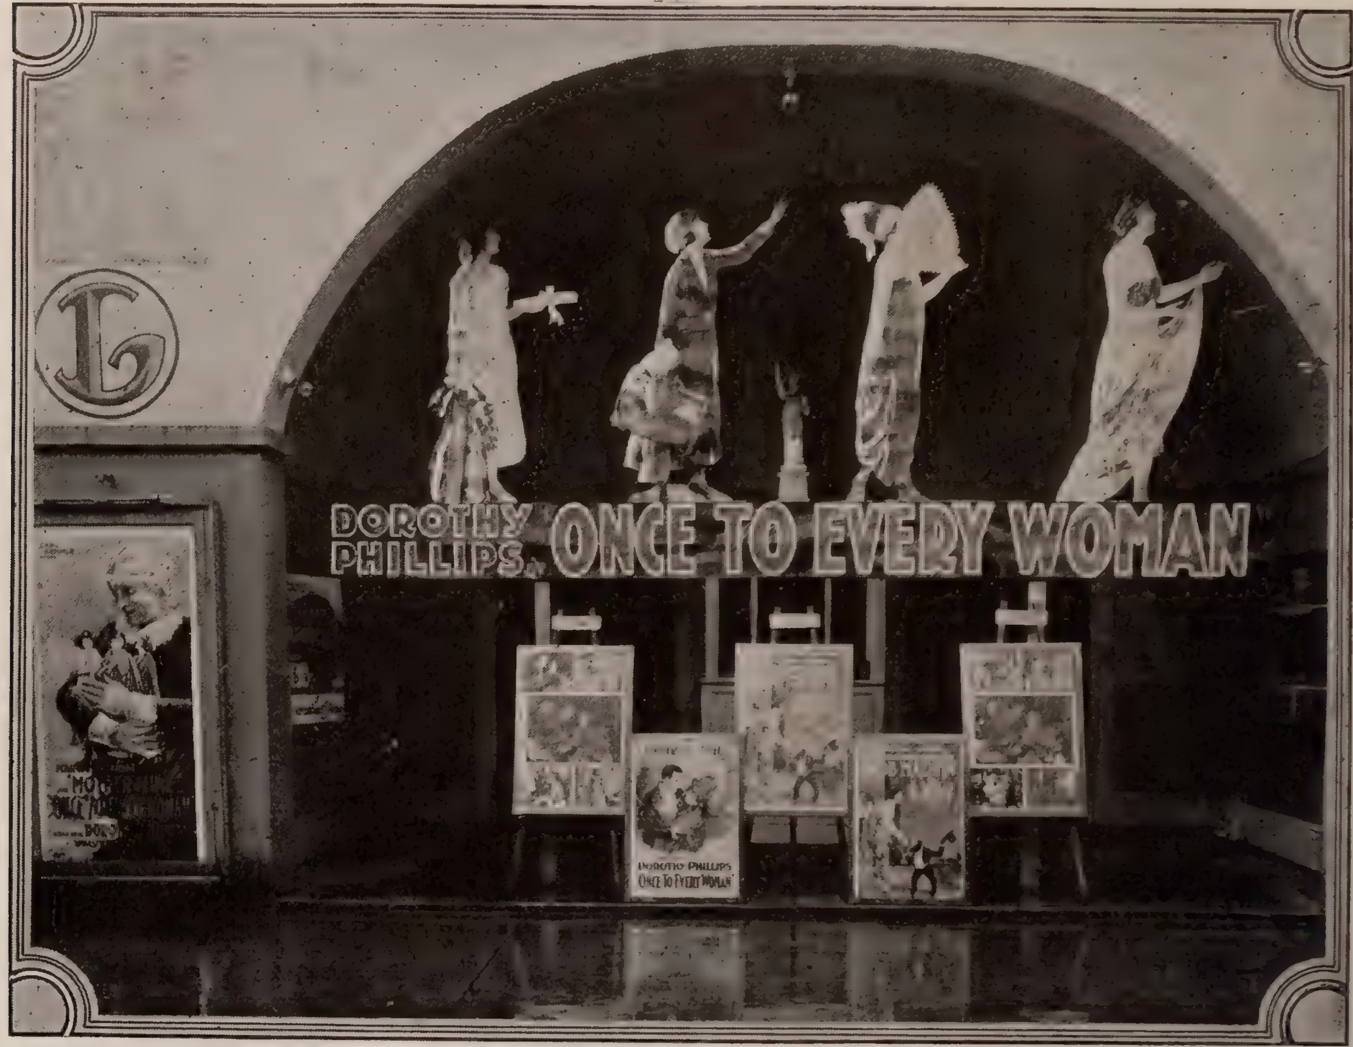
NCE TO EVERY WOMAN"



Cutouts made from 24-sheet poster used to exploit "Once To Every Woman" at Star Theatre, Astoria, Ore.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Davenport, Iowa,
February 1st, 1921.

Mr. E. B. Haines, Manager,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Des Moines, Ia.

Dear Mr. Haines: I am sending you this letter by Special Delivery to advise you that "Once To Every Woman" did a smashing business for us and was talked about all over the Tri-Cities (Davenport, Iowa; Rock Island and Moline, Ill.)

This wonderful picture will get big business for every exhibitor. I am trying to arrange my dates to play a return engagement.

With kindest regards,

Yours very truly,
J. H. BLANCHARD, Managing Director,
Blanchard Amusement Co.,

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

East St. Louis, Ill.,
February 10th, 1921.

Mr. Barney Rosenthal, Manager,
Universal Film Exchange, Inc.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Mr. Rosenthal: It is most gratifying to let you know that "Once To Every Woman" registered the greatest hit of any picture that I ever played in my twelve years' showmans. smashing all former box-office receipts.

It is a rare achievement to do this, for I am not reluctant in stating that we have played the biggest productions. "Once To Every Woman" certainly deserves the highest recommendation, which I cheerfully give, with appreciation.

Sincerely,
(Signed) HARRY REDMON,
Proprietor.

Carl Laemmle
presents

An All Star Cast

in a great Overseas Drama of Secret Diplomacy and the Three Loves of Woman

TSURU AOKI
J. BARNEY SHERRY
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

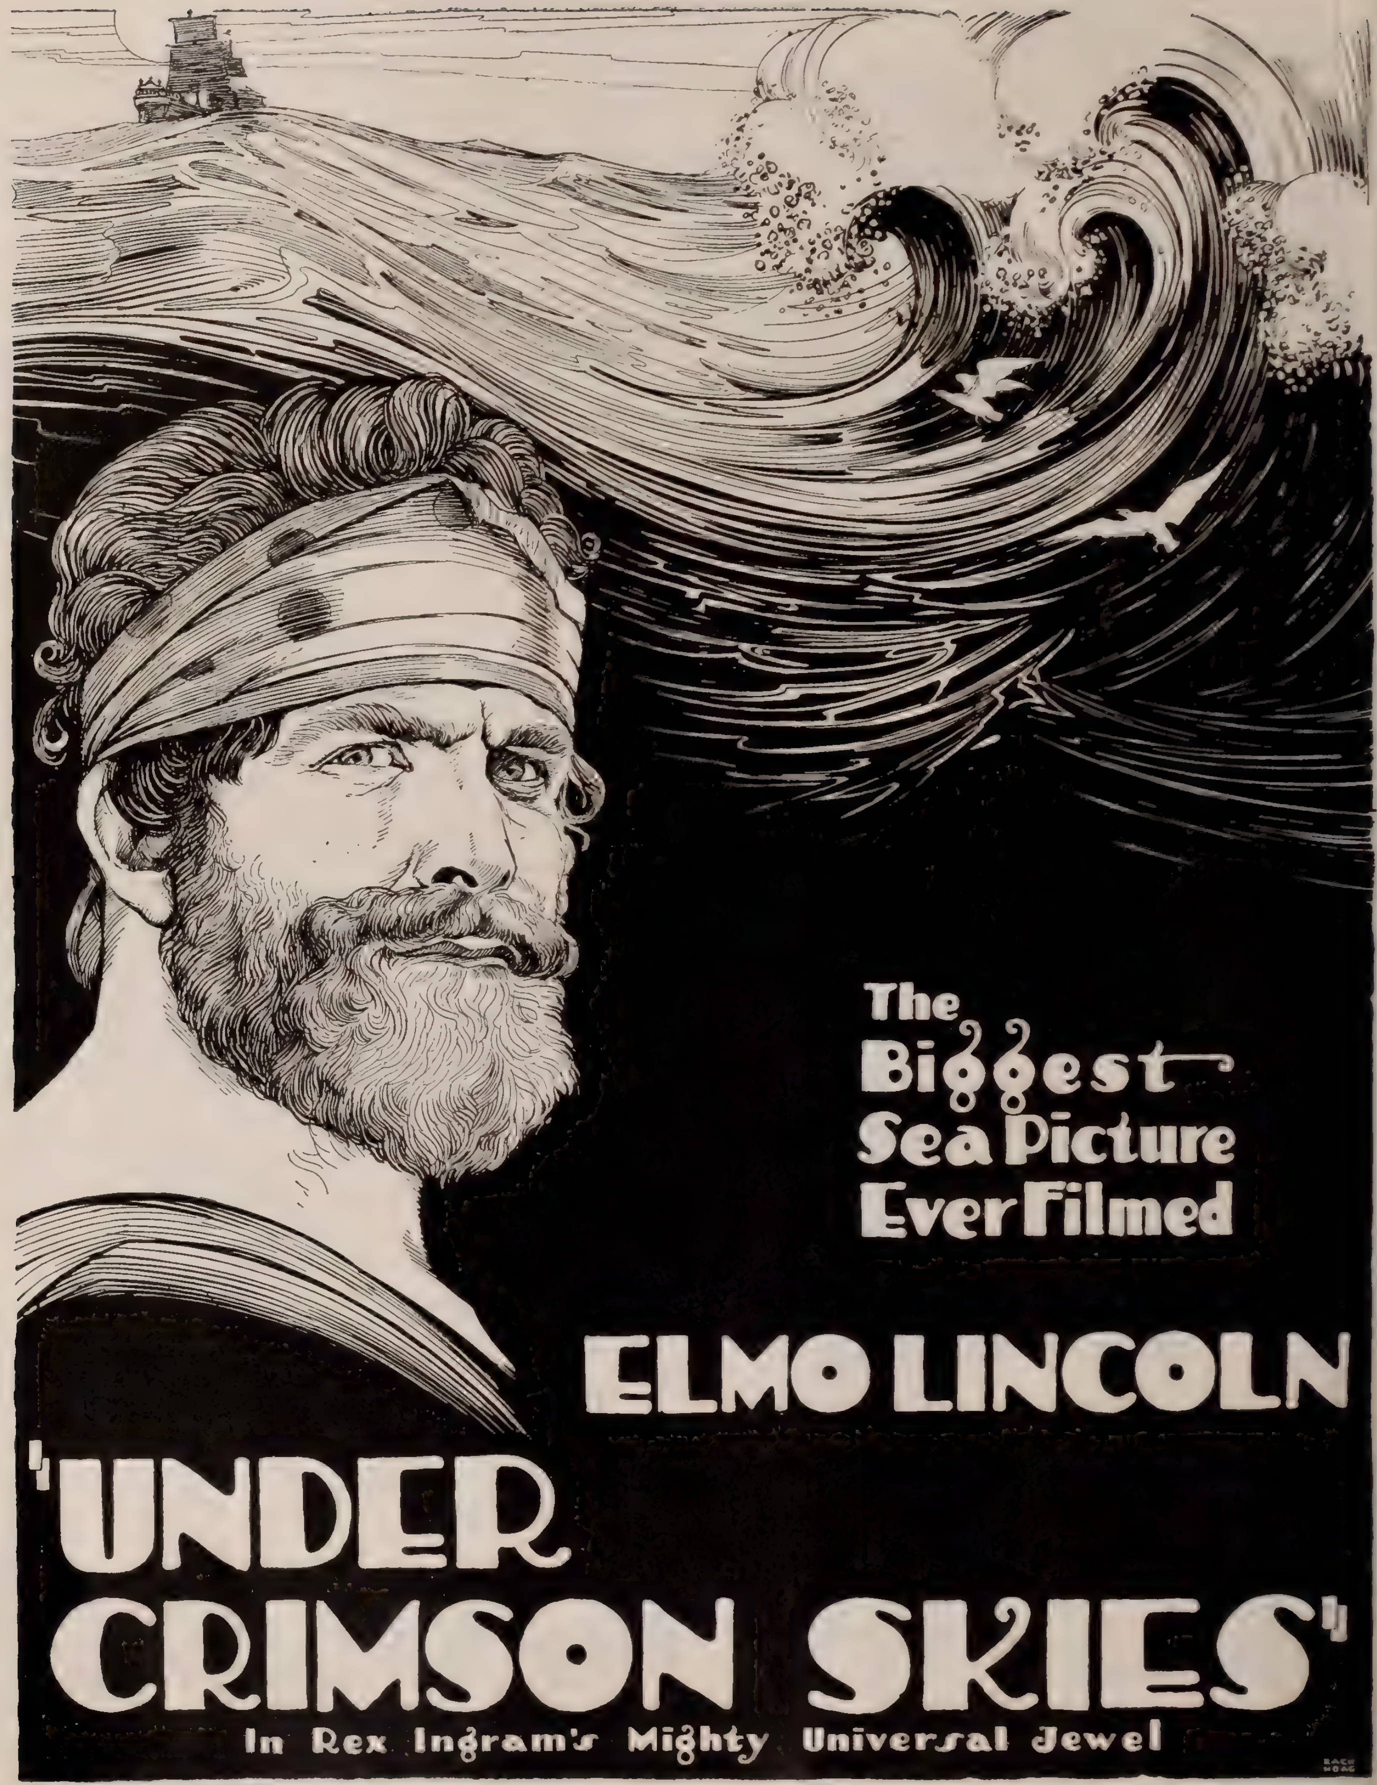
HERE is a great heart-appeal story that could only have been given the world by the camera—a marvelously beautiful tale of the three loves of woman, portrayed by a galaxy of talented players and produced with a lavishness and fidelity in detail which mark it as one of the most notable pictures ever produced. Your patrons are sure to like it. Book it.

featuring
TSURU AOKI
ARTHUR CAREWE
ETHEL SHANNON
STANHOPE WHEATCROFT
J. BARNEY SHERRY
in

"The BREATH of the GODS"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
SUPER-PRODUCTION

Directed by Rollin Sturgeon
From the novel by Sidney McCall



The Biggest Sea Picture Ever Filmed
ELMO LINCOLN
'UNDER CRIMSON SKIES'
In Rex Ingram's Mighty Universal Jewel

When Greek Meets Greek at "The Black Beetle"

Carmel Myers enjoying a rest after serving as a waitress in "The Dangerous Moment," her next picture.

THROUGH the arch of Washington Square in New York City passes each day some of the strangest and most interesting types of humanity ever gathered together in the name of art. Out of the beaten trade paths of the sight-seeing buses and the Western tourists, are the haunts of artists, great and near-great writers and dramatists.

Many false ideas have been spread abroad concerning the life in this quarter and its romances. To show the real Greenwich Village on the screen requires an intimate and thorough knowledge of this Utopia of dreams. This interesting side of New York life has been faithfully reproduced by Universal for the next Carmel Myers picture, "The Dangerous Moment."

The film, which has just been finished and will be released soon, was directed by Marcel de Sano from the story by Douglas Doty, formerly editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine. The plot was taken from the police records of New York City and the story adheres closely to the facts and incidents in the original case.

The basic theme of the story concerns the murder of the son of the proprietress of a little Greek restaurant. A waitress in the restaurant was accused of the crime. She was captured in the studio of a noted artist and proved her innocence after a sequence of highly dramatic events.

The opening scenes were made in a replica of the Bohemian restaurant known in the story at "The Black Beetle," where the murder occurred. It is a wierdly decorated grotto in the heart of Greenwich village where the tables are filled with strange creatures dabbling in art of one form or another.

Gladys Walton Plays Modern Cinderella

THE suggestion of hundreds of playgoers that Gladys Walton be starred in a modern screen version of "A Kentucky Cinderella," the widely read novel by F. Hopkinson Smith, is being followed. Miss Walton is now at work on the story under the direction of Harry Harris and while it will be released as "Desperate Youth," it will be based upon the popular novel and follow the theme in all of the romantically dramatic incidents which have endeared the work to the public.

"Desperate Youth" has its opening scenes in the mountains of Kentucky, where Rosemary's father is working a placer mine with indifferent success. At her father's death Rosemary is sent to her rich aunt in Alabama, who treats her with the sort of cordiality usually accorded a poor relation. But the little Cinderella soon finds her own romance and blossoms forth in a burst of glory.

The most magnificent home in California, built as a replica of a famous Georgia mansion and fitted with the most magnificent Colonial furniture, was leased for four weeks for the Southern scenes, while the mountain scenes will be filmed in the Topenga Canyon.

The cast will include Louis Willoughby, J. Farrell McDonald, Harold Miller, Muriel Godfrey Turner, Hazel Howell, James Blackwell, Mrs. L. V. Harris and many others.

Miss Walton, who was so well liked in "Pink Tights," "Risky Business" and "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," should be especially charming in the role of Rosemary Merridew.

The new screen adaptation of "A Kentucky Cinderella" was made by George C. Hull and A. P. Younger.

Art Acord starting off on his daily film stunts

Noted Spanish Beauty Dies

Beatriz Dominguez
ART ACORD
in The WHITE HORSE-MAN' Universal Serial

BEATRICE DOMINGUEZ, noted as the most beautiful Spanish type actress on the American screen, died recently in the Clara Barton hospital, Los Angeles, Cal., following an operation for appendicitis. The young woman was taken ill during the filming of the fourth episode of "The White Horseman," a new Universal serial.

Although she did not play the principal supporting role to the star, Art Acord, her role was of major importance. Her death will require many changes in the story of "The White Horseman."

Just prior to being engaged for the Acord serial, Miss Dominguez completed a colorful role in "The Horsemen of the Apocalypse," in which she appeared as an Argentine dancer.

It was as a Spanish dancer, both on and off the screen, that she was best known. She first came to the attention of filmdom when she gained fame as La Belle Seville, a featured Spanish dancer at the San Diego Exposition. Shortly afterward she was engaged by Universal.

She has appeared in a number of pictures and will be remembered as the exotic tropical beauty in "Under Crimson Skies," a recent Universal-Jewel production; as the Peruvian cabaret singer and dancer in "The Fire Cat," a recent Edith Roberts picture, and as the fearless Indian girl in "The Moon Raiders," a former Art Acord serial production by Universal.

Miss Dominguez enjoyed great popularity in South and Central American countries. Universal reports that she was one of the most favored actresses on the screen in Mexico. She lived in that country for several years, while her father, a native of Barcelona, Spain, was attached to the Spanish embassy in Mexico City. The Dominguez moved to California during the early day of the anti-Diaz revolutionin Mexico.

The young actress recently was invited by Mexican exhibitors associations to tour that country and make a series of personal appearances. She planned to accept the invitation upon the completion of "The White Horseman."

Miss Dominguez was considered by artists to be the most perfect Castillian type on the stage or screen.

"IF the kids love you, you're made." That was the remark made by a well-known motion picture exhibitor some years ago, and although this exhibitor is now one of the foremost film producers in the world, the truth of his observation remains unchanged.

Art Acord, the cowboy champion, who has appeared in a number of Universal productions, is the idol of the small boy wherever films are shown. Art is not only past master of every art and trick of the corral and range, but he is a natural actor, possesses a world of magnetism, and wherever his pictures are shown it is hard for the school teachers to keep the attention of their charges focused on the work at hand.

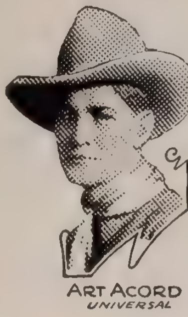
Acord's last serial, produced by Universal and directed by Albert Russell, was entitled "The Moon Riders," and scored a tremendous success wherever it was shown. His next serial is promised to be even more thrilling and mysterious than "The Moon Riders." It is called "The White Horseman," and deals with a lost jewel mine to which there are three claimants. Acord trained for several weeks for the series of daring stunts he is doing, and he declares that he has never been in better trim. Albert Russell, who guided him through the intricacies of his last serial, is at the megaphone in his forthcoming production.

Art began life as a cowboy and rancher, became a member of several wild west shows, and was one of the very first plainsmen to go into pictures.

UNIVERSAL SERIAL STAR TRAINED BY GRIFFITH.

ACORD had just closed a season with the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show in 1911 and came to Los Angeles to spend the winter. He had heard that cowboys were getting good money working before the camera, and as he was king pin of the rough riders, he decided to try his luck in the new game. After appearing in several western pictures he was called to the Boigraph studio by Griffith. The master director was filming a story of the plains and wanted someone to inject a dozen thrills in the picture.

Many Thrills Shown In Art Acord Serial



ART ACORD
UNIVERSAL

IN Episode One: A climb down a cliff side by Dick Ramsey, the heavy man, utilizing a grape vine for this purpose. He is overtaken by an embassy of the White Spider; they cast a lasso, the noose of which catches Ramsey about the feet; the pull from the lasso loosens him from the grape vine and they drag him feet first up the side of the cliff. In this episode, the star, Art Acord, is made prisoner and tied in the bed of a buckboard. The horses run away and the buckboard is overturned and rolls over and over down a ravine with Acord tied inside. Also in Episode One, Jean Ramsey, the girl, while searching in the hills for her father, is made prisoner by a bandit, a member of the gang of the "White Spider" after a sensational fight.

In Episode Two, "The Spider's Web": Art Acord is the owner of a ranch under which is hidden a store of opals and he, with Jean Ramsey, the girl, is made prisoner and taken by the gang of the White Spider to the den of the bandits. When they refuse to reveal the secret of the bracelet which opens the door to the opal cave, they are placed beneath a falling ceiling, consisting of tons of rock, and as the gigantic rock slowly descends, threatening to crush them to death, the episode ends.

In Episode Three, "The Mummy Man": There is a sensational leap for life across a gap between two cliffs high in the air. This leap is made by Art Acord astride a horse and is sensational in every respect. In this episode, "The Mummy Man," an entirely new character in serials makes his appearance.

In Episode Four, "The Death Trap": The stars of the serial are made prisoners in the den of Wong Foo, which is underground in a little settlement near the Mexican border . While Acord and the girl are made prisoners beneath the descending knife, which is of tons weight and with razor-like edge, and descends within a few inches of them, another girl is weighted down and cast through a man-hole into an underground river and we see her descending like a rock to the bottom of the water.

In "The Furnace of Fear," the sixth episode, the leading woman is bound and gagged and left helpless in a burning ranch house, from which she is rescued by Acord at the risk of his life.

In Episode Seven, "A Leap for Life": Acord and the girl clamber sky high to the top of an oil derrick in order to escape the villain. They're about to descend by means of rope and windlass when the heavy loosens the windlass and they are threatened with being dashed to death as they weigh down the descending rope.

SPANISH GYPSIE ACTS FOR SCREEN

ONE of the most interesting old actors now in America is playing the part of an Indian in Art Acord's latest Universal serial, "The White Horseman."

DuCrow is a Spanish gypsy. He is the only surviving member of the DuCrow Family, famous for years in the circuses, hippodromes and music halls of Europe as musicians, dancers and acrobats, and who were brought to America by the late Koster and Bial for the once popular music hall in New York which bore their name. Then for a number of years DuCrow appeared in America, touring with the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers Circuses, doing his own act in vaudeville, and playing Spanish, East Indian and Moorish rôles in a number of dramatic productions.

According to Albert Russell, directing Art Acord in "The White Horseman" at Universal City, DuCrow's features more closely resemble paintings of the ancient Aztec Indians than any face he has ever seen. The actor had once posed for Charles Russell, the California artist, for a character of that type, and as one of the important rôles in "The White Horseman" is that of a descendant of the Aztec tribe, Russel made a successful effort to secure DuCrow's services for the part.

"The White Horseman," which was written by Ford Beebe and Albert Russell, concerns a fabulously rich opal mine in Mexico worked by the ancient Aztecs and subsequently lost. A clue to its location is discovered, and three desperate factions battle for its possession. It is said to be one of the most thrillingly gripping melodramas ever unfolded on the screen.

Iva Nita Forrester, plays one of her best roles opposite Art Acord in his latest serial "The White Horseman."

The White

Sta

Art A

in a galloping Wes new clean thril
Directea

Horseman"
ing cord serial with a
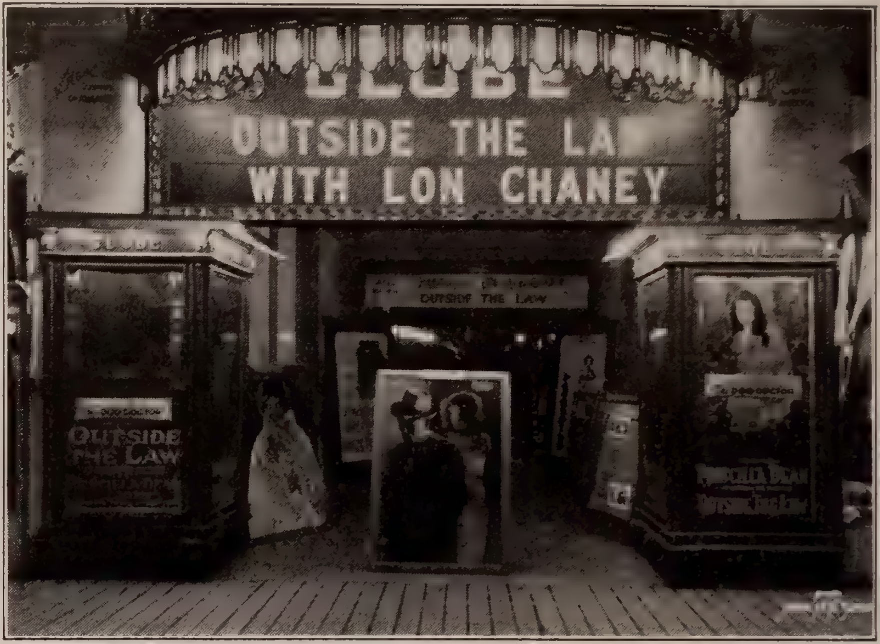
every scene~
Al Russell
Luck Serial

"Dog Doctor" Supports Lon Chaney



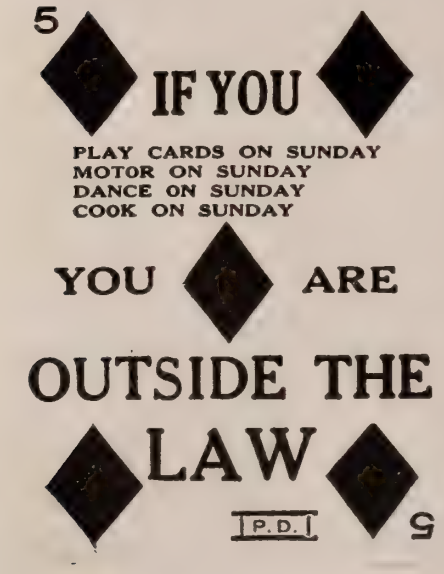
All-Universal program used by Globe Theatre, Atlantic City, N. J.

WHEN E. J. Smith, manager of the Globe Theatre, the largest theatre in Atlantic City, N. J., booked the Universal Jewel "Outside The Law" for the week of February 14th, he looked around for a short reel feature worthy of his super-attraction. On the same bill with the best American melodrama produced this year he selected the "Dog Doctor," the best and funniest Century Comedy released by Universal at that time.

The comedy supported the picture by providing the comedy relief for the program in a lively manner. The house, which seats 2500 patrons and is operated by the Stanley Company of America, was crowded on each of the seven days.

The accompanying picture gives a view of the lobby display used for the picture. It can be seen that the main points of the display were the interest-compelling posters supplied by the Universal exchange to exhibitors showing the Dean picture. The same enthusiasm and volunteer praise was accorded the picture in Atlantic City as in other cities. One of the most effective pieces of advertising on this Jewel photoplay is the series of postal cards containing the best poses ever taken of Priscilla Dean and Lon Chaney. These can be secured from the various Universal exchanges and used in a mailing campaign in advance of the opening date of the picture.

Following Joseph H. Mayer, who conducted highly successful publicity campaigns in Akron, Cleveland and Lorain, O., Lowell Cash, a well-known publicity man, has been dispatched to exploit "Outside The Law," in the Ohio territory. Mayer is now in Baltimore putting on a campaign for the New Theatre. Cash will start with the Alhambra Theatre in Toledo and then go to other cities in Ohio where the picture is to be shown. The exploitation used for this picture has been the wonder of the city wherever the Universal film has been exhibited.



5

IF YOU

PLAY CARDS ON SUNDAY
MOTOR ON SUNDAY
DANCE ON SUNDAY
COOK ON SUNDAY

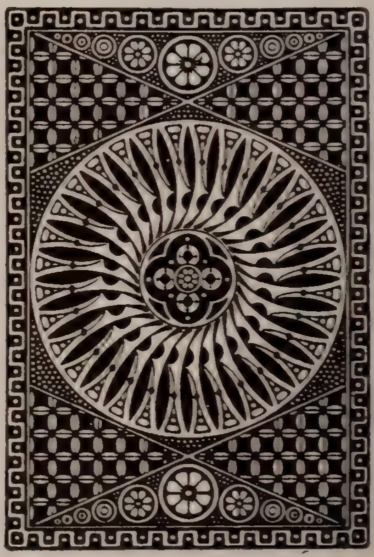
YOU ARE

OUTSIDE THE LAW

P.D.

5

The two pictures shown here represent the front and the reverse side of the teaser cards distributed by the Newark Theatre in Newark, N. J., before the showing of "Outside The Law" at that playhouse. Thousands of these throw-aways were given out before the advertisements announcing the name of the picture were printed and they caused much comment in the interest of the picture.



"SILKY MOLL"

You'll know her by her tricky eyes, dangerous smile and nimble fingers

"A positive knockout! Broke all records including Fairbanks in 'Mark of Zorro' and Mary Pickford. Kept crowd standing from two this afternoon till ten tonight. Best I have ever had in my fifteen years experience in the picture business."

Allen T. Himmons Prop.
Allen Theatre,
Akron, Ohio.

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by Lon Chaney
in the Greatest American
Melodrama ever Screened

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL DE LUXE

With "Silky Moll" in Lorain, Ohio

By Silky Moll

Phew!

Whattamob! Whattamob!

I thought my time had come when you Lorain girls rushed me in front of Allen's shoe store Saturday but when you had me cornered again over in front of Metzger and Robinson's, then—Lordy. I almost wished I were out in the Cimmerian Desert or some other remote spot.

And then when that handsome policeman escorted me from the Opera House where I had sought protection, to the Times-Herald office, I felt like a criminal. I just know some of the people who passed me thought I had done something criminal because I heard one old lady remark:

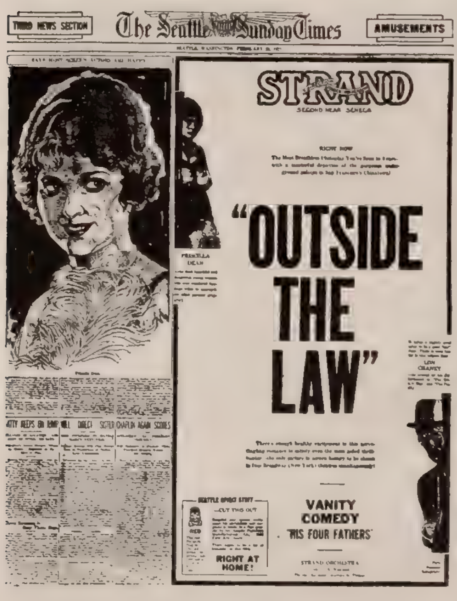
"Isn't that a shame. And she has such an innocent face, too."

But I got back to the Times-Herald safely after my harrowing experience. It's all over now. Really I can't help laughing when I think of some of my experiences.

When I again arrived within the safe confines of the Times-Herald we talked things over and I sure did raise the old Dickens with Joe F. Mayer, for not being provided with more coupons. It's a darn shame I didn't have more. I could have distributed five hundred just as easy as not.

So, that's about all girls. If you enjoyed the thing half as much as I did you'll never have to take laughing gas.

From the Lorain "Times-Herald."



THIRD NEWS SECTION

The Seattle Sunday Times

AMUSEMENTS

STRAND

SECOND NEAR SENECA

RIGHT NOW

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

PRISCILLA DEAN

LON CHANEY

SEATTLE SPORT STUFF

—CUT THIS OUT

RIGHT AT HOME!

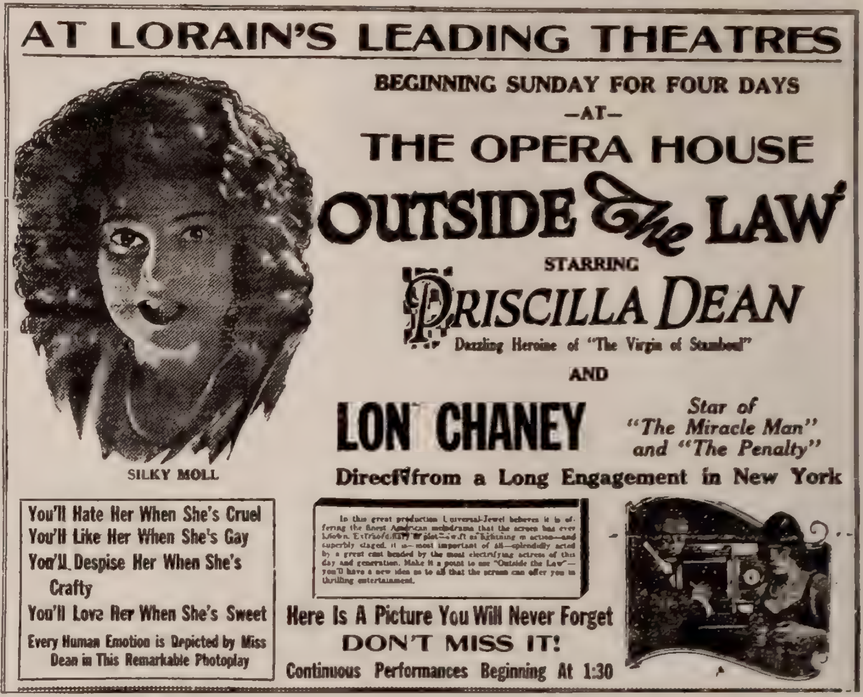
VANITY COMEDY

"HIS FOUR FATHERS"

STRAND ORCHESTRA

ATTY KEEPS ON BUMP WILL | DIRECT | SISTER CHAPLIN AGAIN SCORES

Effective ad. used for Dean film by Strand Theatre, Seattle, Wash.



AT LORAIN'S LEADING THEATRES

BEGINNING SUNDAY FOR FOUR DAYS

—AT—

THE OPERA HOUSE

OUTSIDE The LAW

STARRING

PRISCILLA DEAN

Dazzling Heroine of "The Virgin of Stamboul"

AND

LON CHANEY

Star of "The Miracle Man" and "The Penalty"

Direct from a Long Engagement in New York

SILKY MOLL

You'll Hate Her When She's Cruel
You'll Like Her When She's Gay
You'll Despise Her When She's Crafty
You'll Love Her When She's Sweet

Every Human Emotion is Depicted by Miss Dean in This Remarkable Photoplay

In this great production Universal-Jewel believes it is offering the finest American melodrama that the screen has ever known. Extraordinary in plot—swift as lightning in action—and superbly staged, it is—most important of all—splendidly acted by a great cast headed by the most electrifying actress of this day and generation. Make it a point to see "Outside the Law"—you'll have a new idea as to all that the screen can offer you in thrilling entertainment.

Here Is A Picture You Will Never Forget

DON'T MISS IT!

Continuous Performances Beginning At 1:30

This eight-column ad. packed the Opera House in Lorain, Ohio

MASKED WOMAN ARRESTED ADVERTISING DEAN FILM

IN putting over "Outside The Law" in Hannibal, Mo., Tom Wrigler, manager of the Park Theatre, and Barney Rosenthal, manager of Universal's St. Louis office, worked up a campaign which broke all records for a three day run. By the use of a masked woman who paraded the streets until arrested much newspaper publicity was secured.

A woman, wearing costly furs, paraded around the main streets of the city with a black mask covering her face. By the terms of a city ordinance it is unlawful for any one to appear on the streets of the city masked.

The attention of the police was called to the woman who was doing something "outside the law." During the noon hour on the day preceding the showing of the film, a patrol wagon drew up on the corner of one of the busiest streets and the masked lady was carried off to the city jail.

The fact that this was the first time since 1891 that this city law had caused an arrest drew front page stories in the local papers concerning the event.

When the circus passed up Hannibal this year Manager Wrigler saw an opportunity to cash in on the public interest in the circus with some exploitation for "Outside The Law." For three days before the opening of the picture a ball throwing contest was held on a lot a short distance from the lobby of the theatre.

A gallery similar to those used by circuses was erected with a colored porter serving as the ball dodger. Every passerby was urged to throw the baseballs at the negro who placed his head through a hole in the canvas and dodged the balls. Those skilful enough to hit the man received two passes for any of the evening performances at the Park. During the entire time that the gallery was on the lot only twenty-two passes were issued, so clever was the negro in his dodging.

This created tremendous interest in the picture and resulted in those failing to secure the passes coming around to see the picture anyway.

During the entire exploitation campaign in the Ohio territory more publicity was received from the local papers than for any other picture.

"BLACK MIKE SILVA"
as played by Lon Chaney, the best "bad man" on the screen

"The best picture I ever bought from Universal. You can not beat Lon Chaney as a crook, and the support he gave Priscilla Dean was nothing short of perfect. Give us more like this one --a money-getter for the small-town exhibitor."

W. J. Wood, Mgr.,
Grand Theatre,
East Troy, Wis.

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by Lon Chaney
in the Greatest American
Melodrama ever Screened

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL DE LUXE

Flashes About Jewel Films

William Cutts,
Universal Film Mfg. Co.,
1600 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

In all my ten show years have never had picture draw like "Outside The Law." Played to capacity all day. Hundreds turned away. Picture will positively break house record for week. Universal wins the big money again. Advise all exhibitors to play this sure bet. It has no limit.

S. S. BLACKLY,
Manager Laughlin Theatre.

H. M. Berman,
Universal Film Exchange, Inc.,
1600 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

First day run "Outside The Law," Bijou, finds predictions of critics coming true. If ever we praised a production must say characters in "Outside The Law" elevate picture above all others. Impossible to realize how great picture is unless actually seen. We gladly join you in lauding "Outside The Law" as biggest production of year."

OWEN McKIVETT,
Manager Bijou Theatre.

Beaver Dam, Wis., March 12th, 1921.

Mr. George Levine,
Universal Film Exchange, Milwaukee, Wis.

Dear George:

Let me congratulate both you and Universal for the splendid production with Priscilla Dean, entitled "Outside The Law," which I have just finished playing.

The picture has both thrilled and charmed my audience and is worthy of the many big things you have said of it: at the same time it may interest you to know that the box-office returns have been steadily growing until the last day of the run, which was the largest.

With kind personal regards, I am, Yours very sincerely,

JACK YEO, Director,
Davidson & Odeon Theatres.

Fort Dodge, Iowa,
February 8, 1921.

Mr. Edgar B. Hines, Manager,
Universal Film Exchange,
Des Moines, Iowa.

Say, man, that Super-Jewel feature you won me over to, called "Once To Every Woman," sure proved to be a bear and then some. We played it three days and business constantly improved to the finish. Our patrons complimented us, and we put on the singer as suggested by you with specially pleasing results.

How soon can we have the others you mentioned, "Outside The Law," and "The Devil's Passkey?" If they are as good as "Once To Every Woman" we want 'em quick.

Best wishes from,
Yours very truly,
WILLIAM JOHNSON,
Rialto Theatre.

Huntsville, Ala., March 9th, 1921.

Consolidated Film & Supply Co.,
Atlanta, Georgie.

Gentlemen:

I want to say a word about your wonderful picture, "The Devil's Passkey." It is the best I have ever run. I had more favorable comment than any picture run since being in the exhibiting game covering a period of ten years as a showman.

My box-office receipts on the second day were the best on any picture run, regardless of star or cost of production. Anyone who passes up this master picture is passing up his best bet.

Yours very truly,
C. L. HACKWORTH, Proprietor,
The Grand Theatre.

Edgar B. Haines, Manager,
Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Des Moines, Iowa.

Dear Mr. Haines: Just finished playing your "Big" feature, "Outside The Law," for three days to capacity business. The first picture that ever held up for three days in Boone, and we honestly believe we could run it a week. The people are wild over it; it is not only the talk of the town but for miles around us. The railroad men who run out of here say all you hear between Boone and Clinton is, "Whatever you do, don't miss seeing 'Outside The Law,' at the Princess." The first two days we turned hundreds away, had a lock-out by 7.15 P. M. and a wonderful business on the third day. It is a picture that we believe the longer you run the more you could do, because it gets so much mouth-to-mouth advertising. Give us more like it.

(Signed) BROWN & ANDERSON,
Princess Theatre, Boone, Iowa.

PRISCILLA DEAN

—the most vigorous, dynamic personality in moving pictures

"The public went wild over it. Never in my experience have I heard so many comments about any picture. The greatest melodrama we have ever had. Bring on your next picture; I am waiting for you."

Charles Garfield, Mgr.,
Orpheum Theatre,
Flint, Mich.

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by Lon Chaney
in the Greatest American
Melodrama ever Screened

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL DE LUXE

"I Must Bring This Picture Back"

—Says Orpheum Manager

"POSITIVELY broke all records, and that's putting it mildly with comments I received. I must bring this picture back in order to do justice to the many people that were turned away."

Orpheum Theatre,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

"WONDERFULLY good picture, highly complimented by my patrons."

Electric Theatre,
Pardee, Wis.

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin of Stamboul"

Directed by
TOD BROWNING
Story by
H.H. VAN LOAN
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
PRODUCTION
DE LUXE

TOD BROWNING

the man who has given you the biggest money-getter of 1921

"Just closed the largest week's busines ever done in our Rialto Theatre. It is one of those rare productions that will do big business in any theatre or locality. I trust you will make more like it."

H. T. Moore, Mgr.
Rialto Theatre
Tacoma, Wash.

Carl Laemmle presents

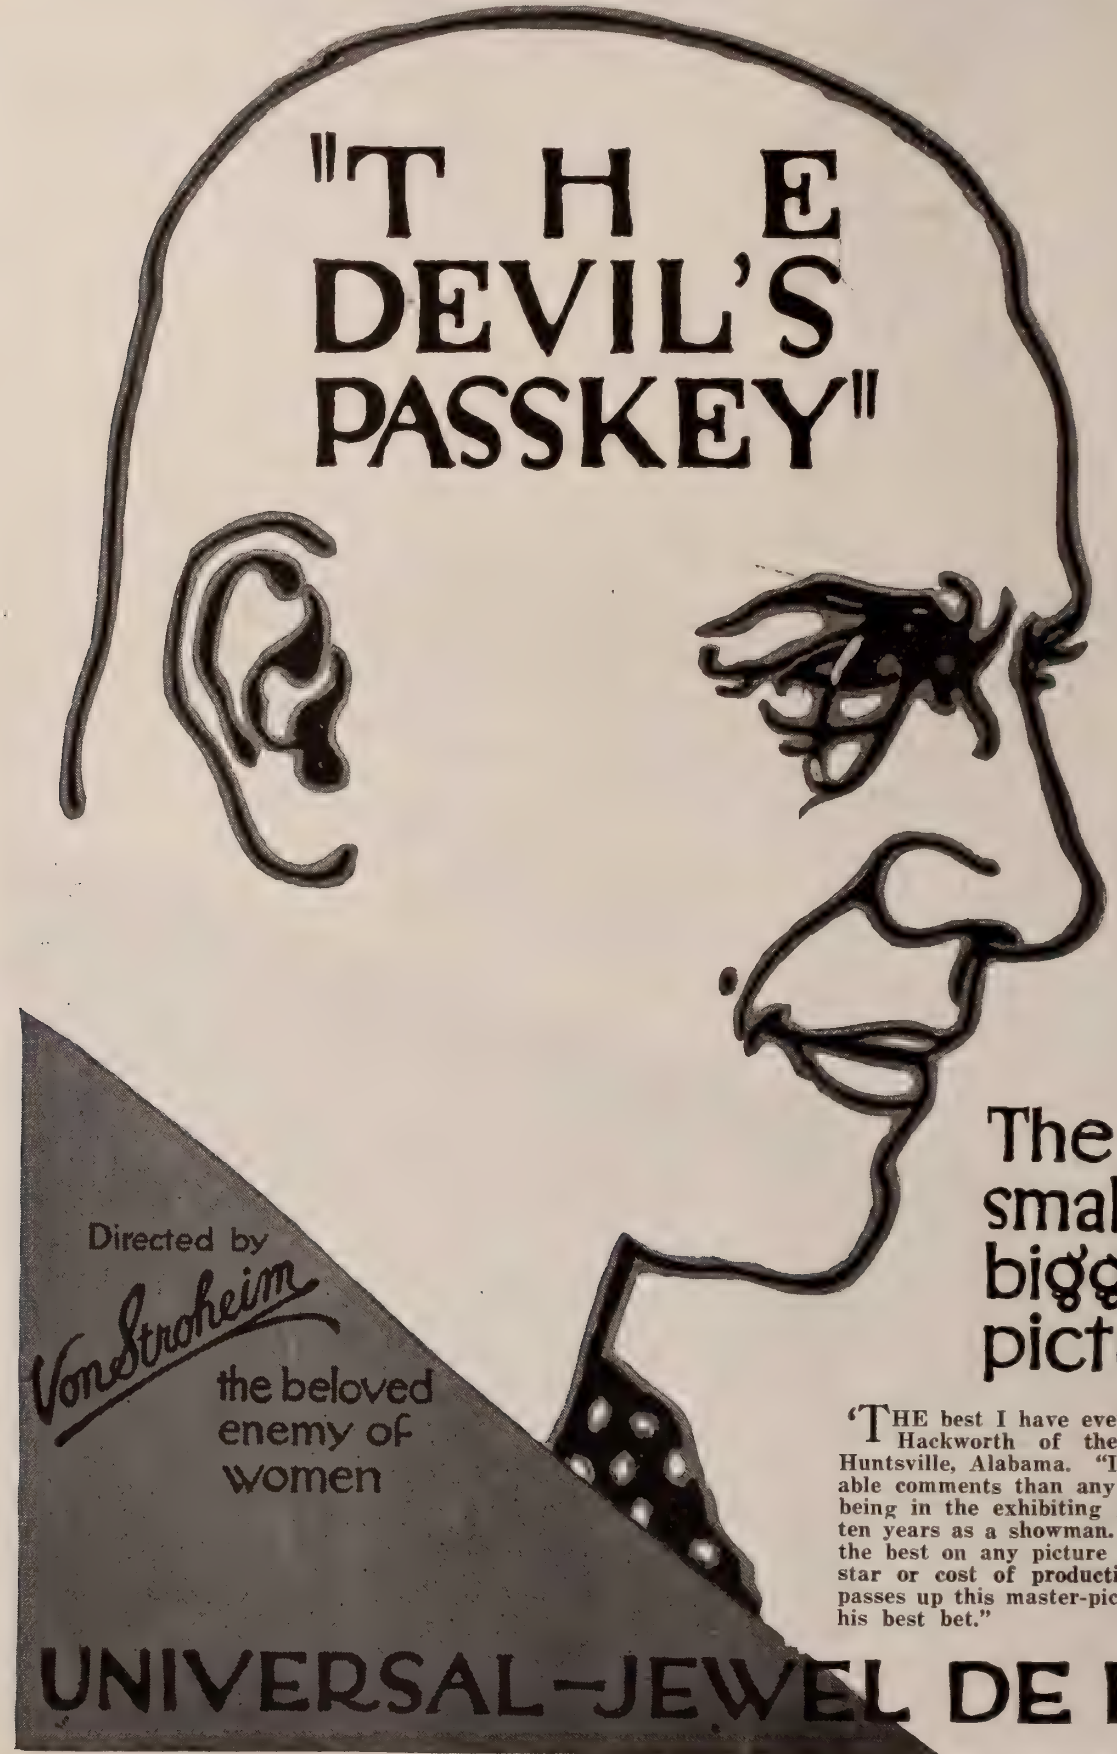
PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported by Lon Chaney in the Greatest American Melodrama ever Screened

Directed by
TOD BROWNING

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL DE LUXE



"THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

Directed by

Von Stroheim

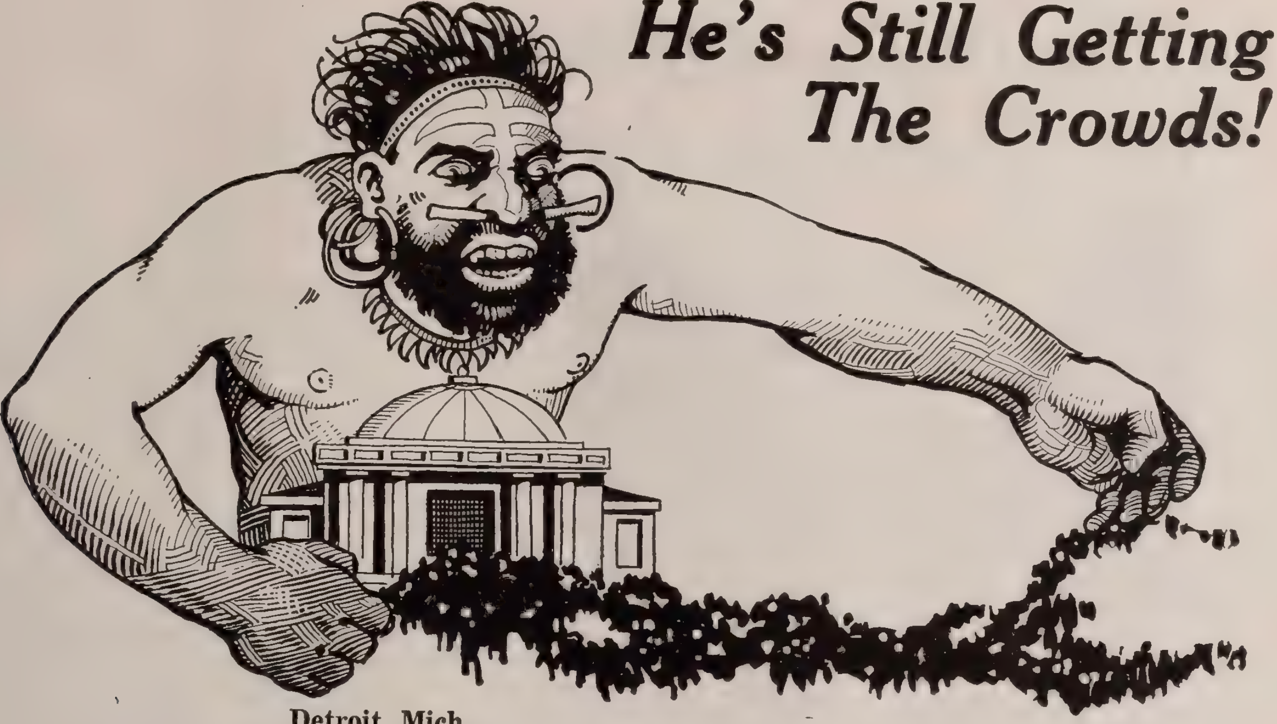
the beloved enemy of women

The small town's biggest picture

"THE best I have ever run," says C. L. Hackworth of the Grand Theatre, Huntsville, Alabama. "It had more favorable comments than any picture run since being in the exhibiting game, a period of ten years as a showman. My receipts were the best on any picture run, regardless of star or cost of production. Anyone who passes up this master-picture is passing up his best bet."

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL DE LUXE

He's Still Getting The Crowds!



Detroit, Mich.
"Very good. A picture that with exploitation will pack the house day after day. Book it."
GRAND THEATRE.
Fresno, Cal.

Fresno, Cal
"Went over tremendously. This is a big, different, and at all times, interesting picture."
LIBERTY STRAND.

Carl Laemmle presents

SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

"Best Performing Animal Ever Seen in Pictures"

Says Wid's

"THE dog," says Wid's, speaking of the Century Comedy, 'The Kid's Pal,' is probably the best performing animal that has ever been seen in pictures, and he makes the picture hugely entertaining. He sets the table, fries an egg, warms the baby's milk, and then serves the kid's meal. This is only one of a long list of stunts that the animal puts over, and which are sure-fire stuff. It should be a very attractive number for any kind of a house."

BROWNIE

—exclusive with

Century

ONE BIG LAUGH
EVERY WEEK

"Sweet Has Unerring Sense Of What Will Register"

Says Wid's

"FEATURING Harry Sweet, 'Tough Luck' is a first-class comedy offering all the way through," says Wid's. "The stuff s almost all new and every stunt n the piece. . . . is very funny. Sweet has an almost unerring sense of what will register, and he never overdoes his gags. Sweet s helped out by a wonderfully rained dog (Brownie) whose anics will also call forth a number of chuckles. This number is a good bet for any house."

Released thru UNIVERSAL

Comedies

HARRY SWEET

"BROKE ALL RECORDS"

"Eddie Polo in the first episode of the 'King Of The Circus' broke all records for Friday and Saturday business. This Polo serial is a winner."
Cozy Theatre, Ogden, Utah.

"GETS THE MONEY"

"A real serial with a consistent story. Gets the money. They like the circus atmosphere. Eddie is a genuine, honest-to-goodness he-man."
Strand Theatre, Paoli, Utah.

DREW NEARLY FIFTY PER CENT. ABOVE CAPACITY

"The opening of the 'King Of The Circus' was a big success. Had a street parade with clowns. My seating capacity is 350 and had over 500 packed in."
Isis Theatre, Fernie, B. C.

Directed by J. P. McGowan

EDDIE POLO in

"KING OF THE CIRCUS"

The Fight In The Clouds

HERE'S a dizzy thrill if ever there was one. Real stuff, too—no studio fake—every inch of this almost unbelievably breath-taking airplane stuff was actually photographed in the air, several thousand feet above the ground, and it all shows up on the screen. Just a sample of the kind of action you get in every episode of the sky-sea-land-underground chapter-play.

Universal's Strange
and Startling
Adventure Serial

Directed by Ed. Kull

Eileen Sedgwick in

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

UNIVERSAL WESTERN
HOOT GIBSON
IN
"The CACTUS KID"
ONE OF THE FAMOUS "TEXAS RANGE" SERIES
DIRECTED BY
HOOT GIBSON

(Above is a reproduction of the Slide available on the first of the series. There is a smashing Sales Slide for each. Use them for full seats.)

Book The New Series of Six Two-reel Westerns Starring

HERE, Mr. Exhibitor, is your chance to load up with six bulls-eye shots—the new "Texas Ranger" Series, a group of six, red-hot, two-reel Westerns starring that smiling whirlwind, Hoot Gibson. Each of these six humdingers is a hurry-up riot of action—a two-reel combination of Star and Story that's going to make your crowds forget the feature. You know just what strides Hoot Gibson has been making with folks who like Westerns. Here's your chance to get some honest-to-goodness stuff with Gibson at his hustling best. Do it—NOW!

HOOT GIBSON

Ask Your Nearest Exchange For Information About Films

Consult With the Managers of Our Exchanges to Book the Pictures Advertised in This Magazine

Albany, N. Y.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 657 Broadway; C. Halligan, Manager.

Atlanta, Ga.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 111 Walton St.; William Oldknow, Manager.

Boston, Mass. — American Feature Film Co., 60 Church St.; Harry Asher, President.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 257 Franklin St.; M. A. Chase, Manager.

Butte, Mont.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 23 So. Montana St.; A. W. Skoog, Manager.

Calgary, Can. — Canadian Universal Film Co., 407 W. Eighth Ave.; G. Kohn, Manager.

Charleston, W. Va.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 707 Dryden St.; J. E. Daly, Manager.

Charlotte, N. C.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 307 W. Trade St.; E. F. Dardine, Manager.

Chicago, Ill.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 220 South State St.; I. Leserman, Manager.

Cincinnati, Ohio—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Broadway and Pioneer Sts.; Cleve Adams, Manager.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Prospect Ave. and Huron; A. A. Schmidt, Manager.

Dallas, Texas.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 1900 Commerce St.; N. E. Depinet, Manager.

Denver, Colo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1422 Welton St.; E. Gerbase, Manager.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 918 Locust St.; E. B. Haines, Manager.

Detroit, Mich.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 63 E. Elizabeth St.; Jos. Friedman, Manager.

El Paso, Texas.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 110 E. Franklin St.; R. McIlheran, Manager.

Ft. Smith, Ark.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 709 Rogers Ave.; C. H. White, Manager.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 113 W. Georgia St.; R. W. Abbett, Manager.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 1015½ W. Bay St.; J. R. Barton, Manager.

Kansas City, Mo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Main and 17th Sts.; J. H. Calvert, Manager.

Los Angeles, Cal. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 822 So. Olive St.; C. Theuerkauf, Manager.

Memphis, Tenn.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 226 Union Ave.; W. E. Sipe, Manager.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 174 Second St.; George Levine, Manager.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 21-25 Third St.; I. Gettelson, Manager.

Montreal, Can.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 12 Mayor St.; D. Leduc, Manager.

New Haven, Conn.—Big U Film Exchange, 126 Meadow St.; M. Joseph, Manager.

New Orleans, La.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 914 Gravier St.; W. Richardson, Manager.

New York, N. Y.—Big U Film Exchange, 1600 Broadway; Charles Rozenzweig, Manager.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 312 W. California St.; S. Benjamin, Manager.

Omaha, Neb. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1304 Farnum St.; H. F. Lefholtz, Manager.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Interstate Films, Inc., 1304 Vine St.; E. J. Smith, V. R. Garrick.

Pittsburg, Pa. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1018 Forbes St.; A. R. Cherry, Manager.

Portland, Me. — American Feature Film Co., 85 Market St.; Harry Asher, President.

Portland, Ore.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 405 Davis St.; D. Brill, Manager.

St. John, N. B., Canada.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 87 Union St.; H. L. Craig, Manager.

St. Louis, Mo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 2116 Locust St.; B. Rosenthal, Manager.

Salt Lake, Utah.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 56 Exchange Pl.; G. Hager, Manager.

San Francisco, Cal.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 221 Golden Gate Ave.; C. A. Nathan, Manager.

Seattle, Wash.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 215 Virginia St.; George Bourke, Manager.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Colonial Theatre Bldg.; S. W. Fitch, Manager.

Spokane, Wash.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 10 South Barnard St.; A. H. McMillan, Manager.

Toronto, Can.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 350 Yonge St.; C. Hague, Manager.

Vancouver, B. C., Can. — Canadian Universal Film Co., 553 Granville St.; L. Jacobs, Manager.

Washington, D. C.—Washington Film Exchange, 307 9th St., N. W.; Jules Levy, Manager.

Winnipeg, Man., Can.—Universal Film Co., 40 Aikens Bldg.; Geo. F. Law, Manager.

When the evangelist's daughter arrives Buck Conlon turns "Hell's Kitchen" into a gospel parlor. See---

"The Knockout Man"

CAST:

Buck Conlon	Jack Perrin
Bull Barrett	Jim Corey
Parson Rhodes	C. W. Herzinger
Molly Rhodes	Louise Lorraine

BUCK CONLON, a two-fisted, rough-and-ready cowboy of the Trinity cattle ranges of California, who would rather fight than eat and never misses a chance to "take on" a scrap whether the odds are against him or not, rides into Covelo, one time "hell's kitchen" of the cow camps, on a day when its cowpuncher population is enjoying a rowdy, free-for-all mix-up in the main street.

Bull Barrett, the bully of the cow camps, is out of the free-for-all fight, but is looking on. Conlon jumps into the scrap for the love of the fihting game.

Things are going pretty, with Buck hitting right and left and generally becoming the center of the fray, when an evangelist drives into town behind a pair of thin horses and seated in an old prairie schooner turned into a gospel wagon. The wagon bears biblical inscriptions.

With him is his pretty daughter Molly who with her father looks with concern on the fighting mob of men. Buck stops the row as the wagon draws opposite the crowd and orders the men to take off their hats with him. All obey except Bull Barrett and Buck sends his sombrero spinning in the dust.

The "gospel wagon" passes on and the fight is resumed. Bull sneaks into the crowd of fighters and hits Buck a blow behind the ear. Buck recovers and fells Bull.

The vision of the evangelist's pretty daughter lingers with Buck and he gets "the boys" to help turn the town hall into a meeting place for "the Parson."

Buck becomes a regular patron of the parson's meetings. The evangelist preaches a sermon ,the text of which is "Whosoever shall smite thee on one cheek turn to him the other also."

Buck takes the old minister's text literally and from the proud, unconquered hero of the cow camps becomes an abject, forlorn, slinking figure whom everybody from Bull Barrett down takes advantage of.

Molly, seeing her one-time hero the scorn of Covelo, first is disappointed and then loses her respect for him.

Not until Bull Barrett and his gang raid the gospel meeting and Bull carries Molly into a saloon does Buck come to himself.

He rescues Molly, knocks out Bull, cleans up his gang and reinstates himself with the girl.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 13

"Weird Walls"

CAST:

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Benson	Al Smith
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Zimba	Al Smith
Aline Earle	Josephine Scott

DORIS is imprisoned in a secret den in Chinatown. Bruce is rushed to the county hospital, where an immediate operation is found necessary to save his life.

In his secret laboratory Doris' grandfather works with Tim at the mysterious discovery, but they are torn with anxiety over Doris, from whom they have not heard.

Zimba, the African half-caste who is devoting his life to Doris' service, discovering that Bruce is in the hospital, rushes to him with the news that Doris is held prisoner somewhere in the Mandarin. At the same time "Shadow" Kelly, an underworld character who has resolved to go straight for the sake of Aline Earle, who lies in the same hospital as Bruce, comes to her with similar news. Bruce, defying the hospital internes, who fear for his life, gets up, quickly clothes himself and leaves with Zimba to rescue Doris.

The Third Degree

At the Mandarin cafe Bruce and Zimba, in disguise, see Benson come in through a secret door behind the cashier's beaded-curtained compartment. Benson has been putting Doris through a brutal "third degree" in an effort to wrest from her, her secret, but Doris is adament and Benson has threatened to carry out his original scheme of torture—this time using the girl instead of Bruce.

After Benson leaves the cafe, Bruce and Zimba, maneuvering into a good position at the cashier's window, where they appear about to pay their checks, suddenly cover the Chinese cashier with guns. Bruce forces his way through the secret door and pursues a Chinese who is dashing to warn Doris' captors. Zimba meanwhile holds at bay the Chinese horde aroused by a signal from the cashier. At a hidden door in the wall of a long hall Bruce closes on the man he is chasing in time to wedge his foot in the crevice and prevent the closing of the secret door. A strange battle is staged, Doris being spirited from room to room through secret panels as Bruce fights his way after her.

Between Two Fires

Zimba meantime has been worsted and overpowered by his foes who pursue Bruce. Bruce is now between two fires. During the fight in one room, when Bruce is striving to get into the compartment beyond, where Doris is struggling with a single Chinese captor, Bruce is precipitated against another secret panel, which flies open, and he sprawls out into a long, narrow hall, at the end of which is a door. Doris meantime drags down some heavy portieres on her captor, but from where he lies he traps her between secret panels that slide forth from the walls of the room as he touches a secret switch, and then, at a further touch of a switch, she is precipitated through a trap door that suddenly opens and falls into the blackness of a pit below.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
" 'If Only' Jim"
"The Freeze Out"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"
"The Magnificent Brue"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"
"The Unknown Wife"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"In Folly's Trail"
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"
"The Smart Sex"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

"The Great Air Robbery"

"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)

"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"No Monkey Business"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Saddle King"
"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"Out O' Luck"
"The Cactus Kid"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Trigger Trail"
"Big Bob"
"The Midnight Raiders"
"The Knockout Man"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

Starring

ART ACORD

"The White Horseman"

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Tee Time"
"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"
"Seeing Is Believing"
"Tough Luck"

One Reel Star Comedies

"The Spirits of '21"
"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Anderson

also

"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk and Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"
"Twin Husbands"
"When Eve Fell"
"Who Kissed Me?"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

"Seeing Is Believing"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring

Florence Lee and Percy Pembroke

AFTER winning the belle of the town with his high silk hat and city manners, Percy immediately tries to win over the family safe. The girl's sweetheart is a correspondence school cameraman and catches the city man in the act of opening the safe and also making love to both the daughter and the mother of the town constable.

When these pictures are shown at a family gathering that evening a near riot is started. Two city detectives arrive in town and locate the city dude. Failing to win the consent of her parents, Percy elopes with the girl one night, but just as he is getting in the flivver the detectives seize him.

At the minister's the driver removes his whiskers and proves to be the girl's sweetheart. Not to disappoint the minister they decide to get married.

"Who Kissed Me"

One-reel Star Comedy

Featuring

DOROTHY WOLBERT

BILLY'S aunt disguises herself and takes the place as maid to his sweetheart. On the day she is hired, Betty announces that they will call on Billy's family. With the aunt in tow Betty arrives at house and is kissed by both the boy and his uncle.

The maid stares at her husband when he is kissing the girl and he thinks she is a "nut." Later, out in the kitchen, the uncle comes upon Betty's maid in the arms of the iceman, who just kissed her.

Billy decides to get married while the aunt is away and sends the maid out for the minister. Discovering that the maid is really his aunt, Billy hides her clothes and they refuse to recognize her in the maid's costume. She tells them that she brought the undertaker instead of the minister and stops the wedding. However, she relents, and, after they enjoy a laugh, gives her consent to the ceremony.

"THE WHITE HORSEMAN"

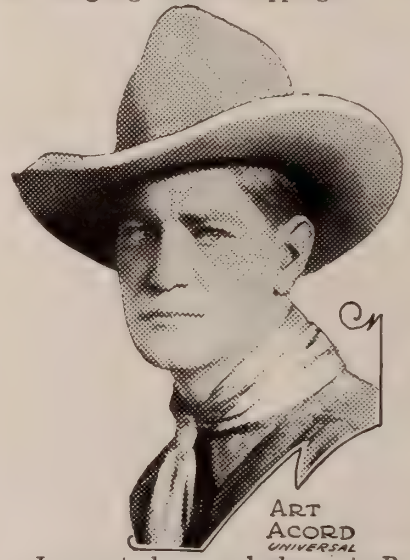
Episode 4

"The Death Trap"

ZONA escapes and closes the cliffs before Ramsey can get out. One of the Spider's gang, who has been trailing Ramsey, seizes her and forces her to re-open the cave, thus freeing Ramsey.

Ramsey knocks out the outlaw and Zona escapes with the bracelet. He mounts his own horse and gives chase.

At the ranch house Allen comes to and, seeing Jean's horse coming to the ranch with the saddle dragging, realizes that she has met with an accident and sets out to follow the trail of the dangling saddle trappings.



Jean gets loose and phones to Red Rock to the sheriff who sets out for the ranch with a posse.

Allen meets Jean and they mount and start for town but are pursued by the Spider and his gang.

The gang gain on Allen and Jean, who throw them off by cleverly contriving to get them locked in a horse barn.

The Indian girl heads for town followed by Ramsey who catches her and is about to force the bracelet from her when Jean and Allen ride upon the scene. Allen interferes with Ramsey's attack on Zona and she tells Jean that Ramsey (her uncle) knows more about her father than he is telling.

Ramsey admits the knowledge but does not tell that he shoved him over the cliff. He agrees to take Jean to the father in Red Rock. Zona escapes and rides to Red Rock to go in hiding. Jean, Allen and Ramsey also go on to town.

The sheriff captures all the Spider's gang except the Spider and one man.

In town, Zona learns of Ramsey's plot to put Jean out of the way. She warns Allen not to let Jean go with Ramsey to Wong Foo's joint, but Allen is powerless to prevent her.

In Foo's den his gang put Jean into a sack, intending to drop her through the floor into an underground stream. Zona switches sacks when they are not looking and they throw the wrong sack into the hole. Allen arrives, frees Jean from the sack, but before he and Jean and Zona can escape the gang return and captures them. They tie a weight to Zona's neck and throw her into the underground stream. They tie Allen and Jean to a table under a heavy knife and the episode ends with one of the gang pulling the lever which brings the knife down slowly upon the victims.

At the jail the Spider has all but effected the escape of his gang when he is discovered by the sheriff and a gun fight is in progress there.

International News

No. 22

New York City.—20,000 march in aid of valiant Ireland. St. Patrick's Day parade a stirring plea for suffering Erin.

New York City.—Spring season opens for ocean travel. Pre-war rush resumed as giant White Star liner Olympic sails for Europe.

New York City.—A cargo of oddities. How'd you like to meet these folks on a dark night, after trying out your home-brew?

Boston, Mass.—"The "iron cow" arrives! Science produces synthetic milk—all you need is, water, oatmeal —and elbow grease.

In the Public Eye.—John W. Davis, retiring ambassador to Britain, returns with Charles M. Schwab, famous ship-builder. (Omit from Boston and Chicago.)

Boston, Mass.—The Mayor of Boston as a "down-and-outer." Mr. Peters, "incognito," tries his hand at charity's wood-pile, to learn how homeless are treated. (Boston only.)

Chicago, Ill.—Stockyard workers in strike meeting. Big demonstrations protest laying off and wage reductions. (Chicago only.)

Palm Dale, Cal. — Bunnies for Easter. Crop this year is big enough for all the lucky youngsters of the land.

New York City.—Transport rammed. The Masawaska limps into port.

COMING!

A great big throbbing story of a girl's tremendous adventure in New York's famous Greenwich Village Artist Colony

"The DANGEROUS MOMENT"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

Directed by
MARCEL DE SANO

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

A Monkey Hero

Here they are!

the cruel flames
the ch-e-e-i-ld
our daring hero

Arrows show course taken by this brave man, leading eventually to his just reward

Carl Laemmle is happy to announce the return from Africa of

Mr. Joseph Martin

Our most popular matinee idol in an Engagement Extraordinary

Directed by Burns &
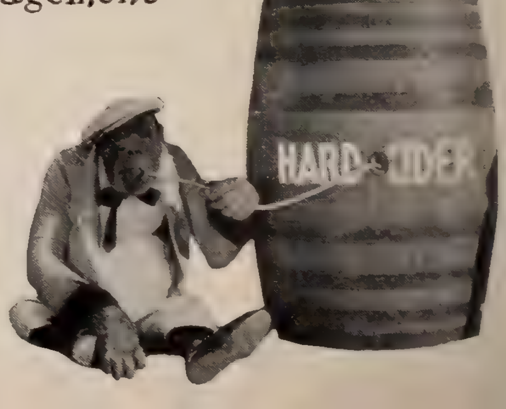
Stecker
2 Reels

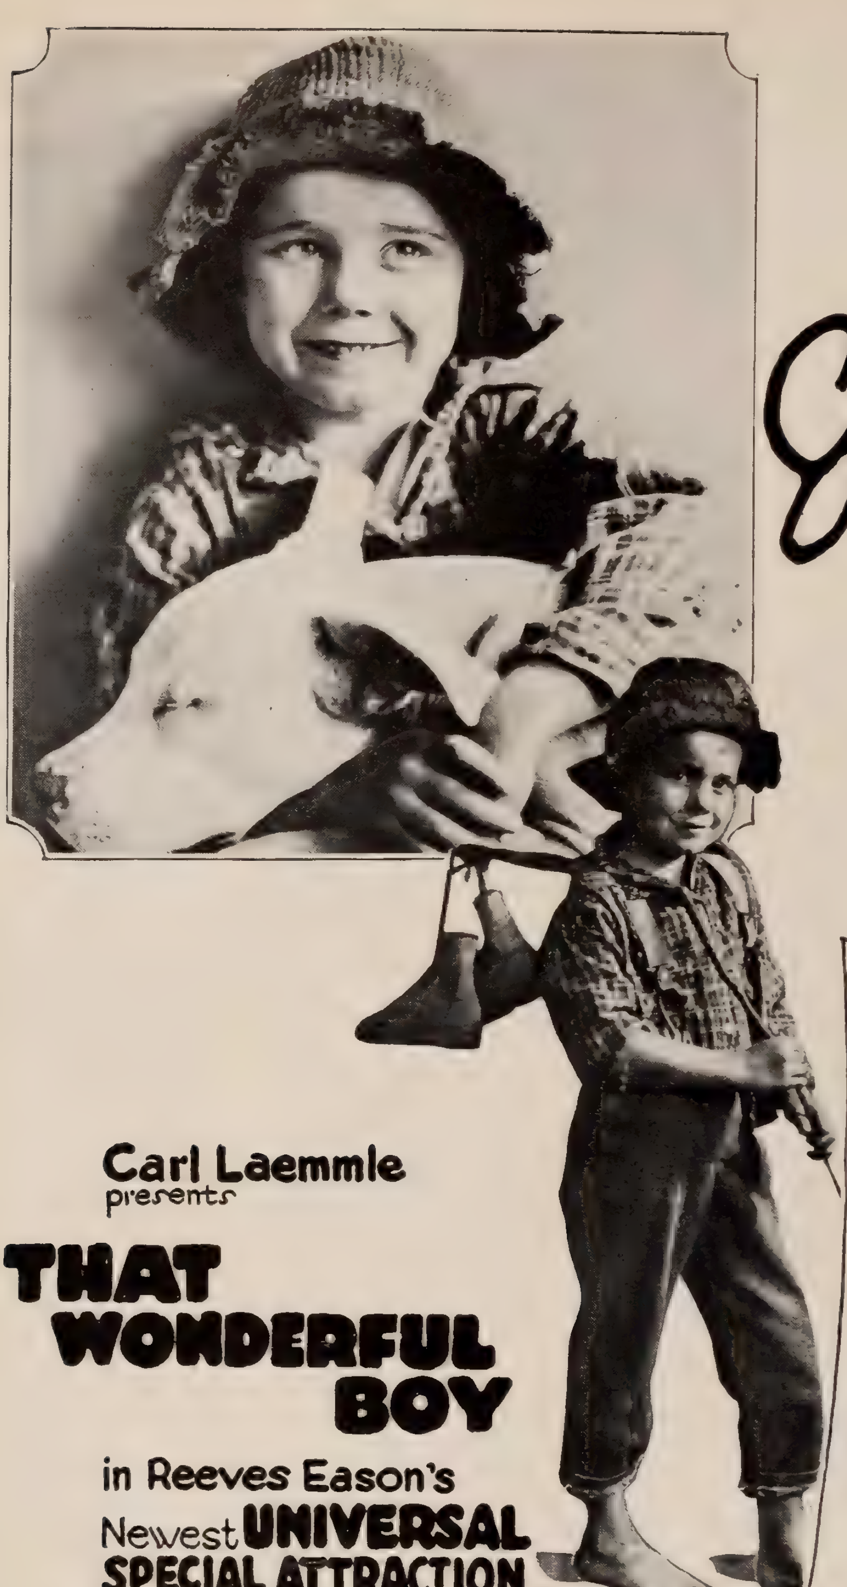
UNIVERSAL
JEWEL



THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

VOL 13 APRIL 9 1921 NO 8

CARMEL MYERS
in
"THE DANGEROUS MOMENT"



Git ready!
I'm on me
way!

Dere Exibitur
Me and me dawg Mickey will be at your house soon wit a new show an' say!
him and me is the hole cheese!
Hoping you are the same Breezy
Eason

Carl Laemmle
presents

THAT WONDERFUL
BOY

in Reeves Eason's
Newest UNIVERSAL
SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"THE BIG ADVENTURE"

The Automatic Censor

(Reproduced from the New York American by special permission)

CONGRESS is to be asked by the Reverend Doctor Wilbur F. Crafts to create an Interstate Motion Picture Commission, whose business it would be to censor the movies.

This Commission, according to Dr. Crafts, would have supervision over every license for motion picture theatres, and would see to it that thirteen "standards" should govern every picture.

These standards would be set so that there should be prohibited such subjects as

Improper sex appeal,
Shocking scenes of perversion, such as drug taking, drunkenness, gambling, etc.,
Depictions of methods which might familiarize the young and innocent with criminal practices,
Disrespect for officers of the law and Government authority,
Scenes of violence and bloodshed,
And ridicule of religious faiths.

Against such a list no one can object. The country is probably unanimous for decency.

But against this method of securing decency and protecting theatregoers from disgusting spectacles, a great many do object.

We already have plenty of laws for the punishment of obscenity and similar offenses. Let them be enforced.

(Continued on page 22.)

One tick o' the clock-yet it changed her whole life

Carl Laemmle
offers

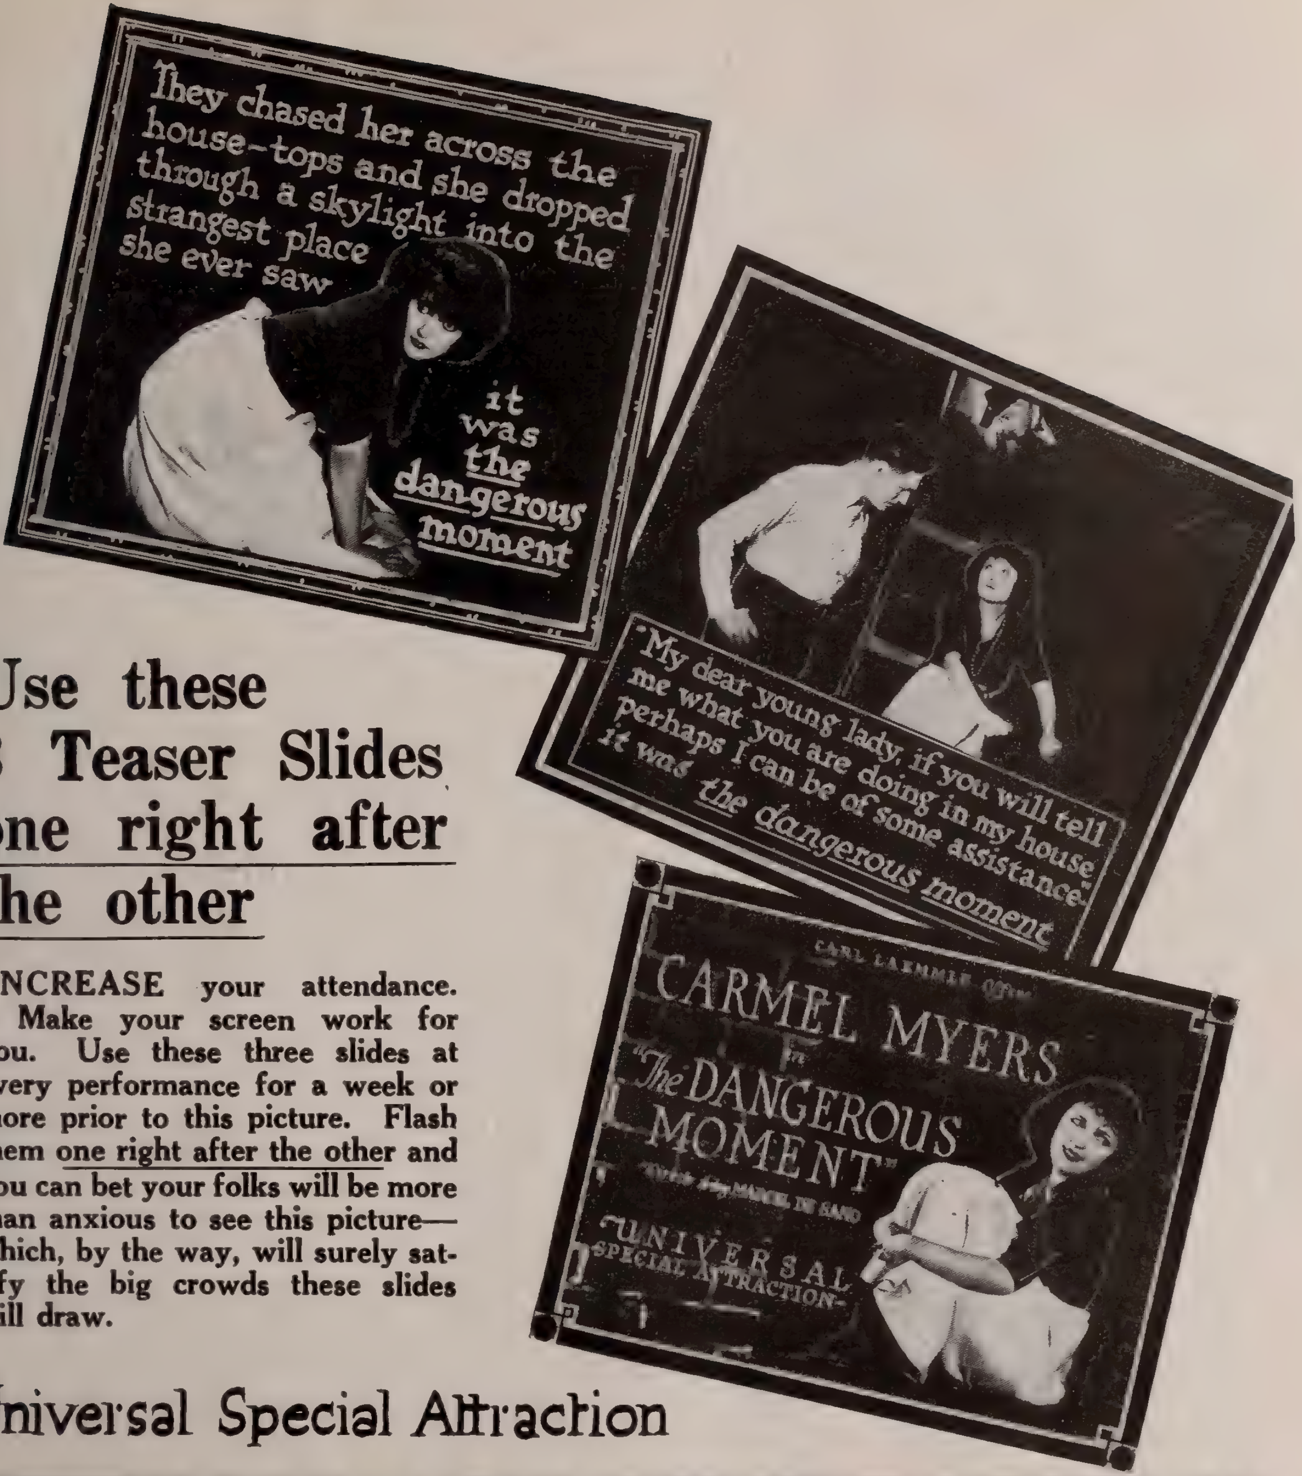
CARMEL MYERS

In a throbbing picture of a girl's life in New York's famous artist colony

one of those
52 good pictures
a year. and no worry

DIRECTED BY
MARCEL de SANO

"The Danger



They chased her across the house-tops and she dropped through a skylight into the strangest place she ever saw

it was the dangerous moment

"My dear young lady, if you will tell me what you are doing in my house perhaps I can be of some assistance."

it was the dangerous moment

CARL LAEMMLE [illegible]

CARMEL MYERS

in

"The DANGEROUS MOMENT"

[illegible] MARCEL DE SANO

UNIVERSAL

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Use these 3 Teaser Slides one right after the other

INCREASE your attendance. Make your screen work for you. Use these three slides at every performance for a week or more prior to this picture. Flash them one right after the other and you can bet your folks will be more than anxious to see this picture—which, by the way, will surely satisfy the big crowds these slides will draw.

Universal Special Attraction

ous Moment"

Service Page for "The Dangerous Moment"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Dangerous Moment."

STAR—Carmel Myers.

PREVIOUS HITS—"In Folly's Trail," "The Gilded Dream," "Beautifully Trimmed," "The Mad Marriage," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Marcel de Sano.

STORY BY—Douglas Doty.

SCENARIO BY—Wallace Clifton.

SUPPORTING CAST — Herbert Heyes, George Rigas, "Smoke" Turner, Lula Warrenton, Bonnie Hill, Fred Becker, Marion Skinner, W. T. Fellows, Billy Fay, etc.

LOCALE—New York—Greenwich Village.

TIME—The present.

PHOTOGRAPHED BY—Bert Glennon.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a pretty moth who is attracted by the flickering lights of Greenwich Village and who is compelled, by circumstances, to serve as a waitress in a Bohemian resort; how, in self defense, she is led to believe she has committed murder; how she is shielded from the law by an artist who holds her blameless and how the romance thus developed reaches a happy climax when her innocence is established.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The beauty, talent and popularity of the star.

2—The vigor and novelty of the story, from the pen of Douglas Doty, magazine editor and writer.

3—The picturesque background of the story, with its intimate views behind the curtain of Greenwich Village.

4—The masterly direction of Marcel de Sano, the brilliant young Frenchman who strikes a new note in screen production.

5—The Black Beetle Cafe, with its jabber and jazz—one of the landmarks of New York's Latin quarter.

6—A brilliant combination of romance, mystery and humor.

7—A score of the most interesting Bohemian types ever shown on a screen.

8—A thrilling flight over the roof tops of New York.

9—One of the most carefully selected casts ever assembled.

10—Remarkable photographic effects by Bert Glennon.

Synopsis of Story
"THE DANGEROUS MOMENT"

IN The Black Beetle, a colorful little cafe in Greenwich Village, worked Sylvia, a waitress by force of circumstances—a girl whose manner made her out of place in the dingy little rendezvous of Bohemians.

Presiding over the cash register was Madame Tarkides, a Greek of the restaurantering type who had two interests in life—the cash register and her son, Movros.

Sylvia flutters around the place, serving liquor in tea-cups and using her ingenuity to keep out of the way of Movros, who is fascinated by her warm pulsating beauty and has on many occasions tried to hold her in his arms.

After the rush of business one night Sylvia enters the office of the cafe to turn in the stubs from her order pad. Movros tries to kiss her. She fights him off and swings a chair to save herself from his passion. The light is shattered. The room snaps into blackness. When the lights go on Movros lies dead with a knife wound in his heart. The girl is gone.

Fleeing over roof-tops, Sylvia drops through a trap door into the studio of George Duray, a Greenwich Village artist, whose fortune seems about to change through his engagement to Marjory Blake, heiress to millions.

Duray's rival for the hand of Marjory is Trent, the district attorney. He doesn't waste any friendship on Duray.

CAST

Sylvia Palprini	Carmel Myers
Mrs. Tarkides	Lulu Warrenton
Movros Tarkihes	George Rigas
Jack Reeve	W. T. Fellows
Collins	Billy Fay
Marjory Blake	Bonnie Hill
George Duray	Herbert Heyes
Henry Trent	Fred C. Becker
Aunt Cynthia Grey	Marion Skinner
Trotsky	"Smoke" Turner

When the frightened girl drops into his studio Duray hears her story and believes her justified in the killing. He attempts to hide her from the police who insist upon searching his studio. The girl hides in a store room adjoining until the police go.

She is posing as a model for him to allay suspicion when Aunt Cynthia, a relative of Duray's arrives.

Led by Trent to the studio the police again search for Sylvia and find her. She is arrested and taken to jail. At the same time Reeves, a gunman, is trying to escape from the detectives who have followed him to a saloon. He makes a thrilling jump across an alley from the top story of a building and hangs by his hands to the cornice. The police shoot him down and he falls to the pavement below. As he dies he confesses that he knifed Movros for his money when he fell under the blows of the chair swung by Sylvia.

The girl is released and returns to Aunt Cynthia at Duray's studio. Marjory breaks her engagement to the young artist and Aunt Cynthia starts planning for the wedding.

Carmel Myers
in "THE DANGEROUS MOMENT"
UNIVERSAL

Theatre Name Here

He wanted her for love; the police wanted her for murder. Who got Sylvia, The Rose of Washington Square? See "The Dangerous Moment."

Love laughs at locksmiths —but not jailers. See Carmel Myers in "The Dangerout Moment" and get sentenced to thirty thrills.

"Sunkist State" Produces Movie Stars

ARTISTIC talent seems to be developed by the California climate, and this golden state has given birth to more famous actors, singers, and artists than any other section of America. The fact that a great majority of cinema stars are Californians may be attributed by some to the fact that most of the motion picture productions are made in that state. That may apply to "extras" and lesser lights, but the stars and other important players are selected chiefly for their talents and personality.

Carmel Myers, most fascinating of the younger screen stars, who is rapidly developing the dramatic gifts of a Bernhardt or a Duse, was born in San Francisco. When quite young the family moved to Southern California and Carmel was educated in the public schools of Los Angeles. During her high school days she was leader of the dramatic class, was editor of the school publication, sang and danced at charity and benefit performances and otherwise gave evidence of unusual talents.

The same California atmosphere which produced David Warfield, Nance O'Neill, David Belasco, Marjorie Rambeau, George Beban, Fay Bainter, Frank Bacon and a hundred other dramatic celebrities brought forth Carmel Myers, who attracted the attention of David Griffith when she was still attending school. Under his careful tuition she developed into a clever actress, and then Universal featured her in a number of successful photodramas.

Interesting pose of Carmel Myers taken during the screening of "The Dangerous Moment."

After playing "straight" parts in her previous pictures the acting of Carmel Myers in a difficult character rôle in "The Dangerous Moment" comes as a delightful surprise. She handles her part of Sylvia, the Greenwich Village waitress, with new skill and talent in each scene.

This is another picture full of action to be added to her successes, with the scene set in a Greenwich Village cafe known as "The Black Beetle." The cafe was built at Universal City from drawings of the original in the possession of the architectural department at the world's film capital.

Those who have been initiated into the inner circle of Bohemia will perhaps be able to identify the little cafe which is featured in "The Dangerous Moment."

The Universal picture shows the cafe exactly as it originally looked when the event of its existence became a matter of police record; but the name was changed.

In "The Dangerous Moment," Miss Myers appears as a waitress in the place. A murder is committed, one of the most sensational crimes in the history of Greenwich Village, and she is accused. Escaping from the police she is sheltered in the studio of a young artist who figures prominently in unravelling the fascinating mystery.

Douglas Doty, who was a frequent visitor in Greenwich Village when he was editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, wrote the story for Miss Myers, and Marcel de Sano, a former Village resident, directed the picture.

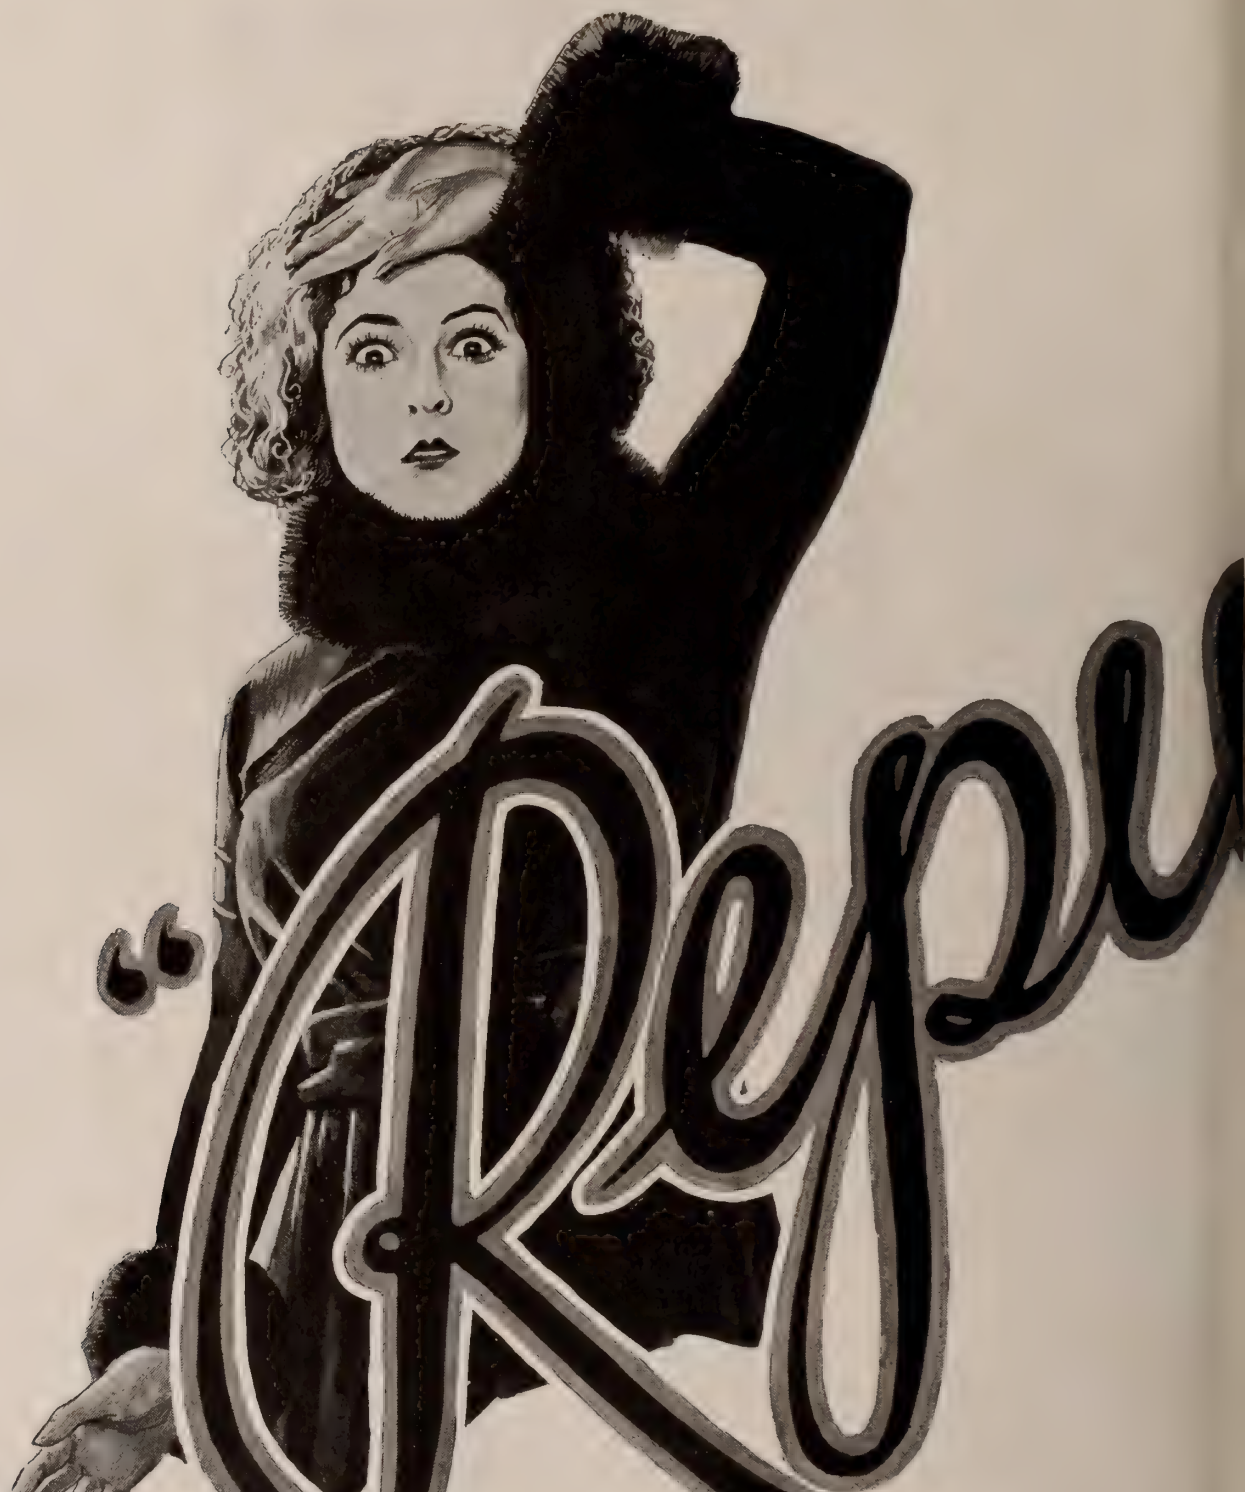
WHAT'S AT THE PLAYHOUSE TO-NIGHT?

EVERYONE loved her; yet no one had ever kissed her. She was sweetly innocent, yet she stayed in an artist's studio for several days while the police searched for her. That is a situation in "The Dangerous Moment," which is now playing at the .... Theatre. The story is a Universal production with Carmel Myers in the starring rôle and blends spice with dynamite.

CARMEL MYERS was never more vivaciously appealing than she is in "The Dangerous Moment," which is now showing at the .... Theatre. At least that is the opinion of those who have seen the delightful play. "The Dangerous Moment" was written for Miss Myers by Douglas Doty, former editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, and filmed under Marcel de Sano's direction at Universal City.

NOT only does Miss Carmel Myers display the finest example of emotional and comedy acting in her latest feature, "The Dangerous Moment," which is occupying the screen at the .... Theatre, but she is ably supported by a brilliant cast including Herbert Heyes, Bonnie Hill, "Smoke" Turner, Lula Warrenton, George Rigas, W. T. Fellows, Billy Fay, Fred C. Becker and Marion Skinner.

Coming Coming Coming Coming Coming Coming Comin



Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soo oming Coming Coming Coming Coming Coming Coming tation”

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

in
Stuart Paton's
Tremendous Drama
of Woman Against Woman

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL-DE-LUXE

on Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon Soon

"THE FIRE CAT"

Norman Dawn's spectacular love drama featuring

Edith Roberts

Presented by
Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Mount Vesuvius Famous Volcano Active Once More

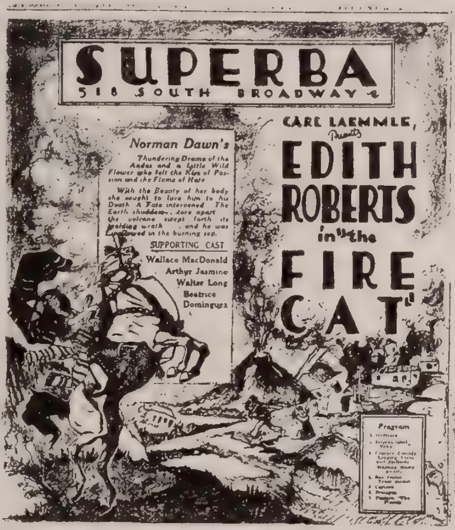
IN presenting pictures of the latest eruption of Mount Vesuvius, Italy's famed volcano, International News scored a news "beat" on its competitors by releasing the films several days ahead of any other news reel organization. The eruption pictures were released through Universal in New York on Tuesday, March 15, and shipped from New York to Universal exchanges on the same day.

These films were taken by Captain Ariel Varges, an International News representative and world-famed as a cameraman. He took the pictures at close range—as close as he could safely venture without having the film in his camera ruined by the intense heat. The scenes taken on top of Mount Vesuvius are the most startling volcanic pictures ever filmed from nature.

The remarkable photograph shown here depicts the spouting flames, lava and gas pouring from the new cone rapidly rising in the old crater of the awakening volcano. The flow of molten lava was spread for many miles on either side of the belching cone.

Awakening giant spouting flames and gas on Mount Vesuvius.

NOTED SCIENTISTS PRAISE "THE FIRE CAT"



SUPERBA
518 SOUTH BROADWAY

CARL LAEMMLE, Presents

Norman Dawn's

Thundering Drama of the Andes and a Little Wild Flower who felt the Kiss of Passion and the Flame of Hate

With the Beauty of her body she sought to lure him to his Death. A Fate intervened. The Earth shuddered, tore apart the volcano swept forth its scalding wrath . . . and he was swallowed in the burning sea.

SUPPORTING CAST

Wallace MacDonald
Arthur Jasmine
Walter Long
Beatrice Dominguez

EDITH ROBERTS in "the FIRE CAT"

Program

One column ad. used by Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal.

FOR fast action with a faithful reproduction of local color no better picture has been filmed than "The Fire Cat" with the versatile Edith Roberts in the leading rôle. The scenic interest alone is enough to hold interest in the film without the dramatic story set in a little village high up in the Andes mountains.

One of the chief merits of the picture is the earthquake scene which can not be surpassed for realism. This has a very important part in advancing the plot of the story and the volcano scenes have proven to be very effective in advertising the picture.

Recently a very high compliment was paid to the accuracy of the scenes showing the volcanic eruption by two of the foremost scientists who are specialists in this field. Chester A. Reeds, Phd., and Edmund Otis Hovey, Phd., both connected with the American Museum of Natural History, after viewing "The Fire Cat," said it was an unusual production.

They were especially interested in the earthquake scenes because Professor Reeds is a recognized authority on seismic eruptions and Professor Hovey is an authority on volcanic disturbances. They were quick to see how carefully and with what great regard for detail the volcano in the mighty Andes in eruption was filmed.

Both members of the Museum praised the picture and also the work of director Dawn, who was born in South America and who wrote the story.

When Steffanson, the Arctic explorer, was stuck in the Arctic regions a few years ago, Edmund Hovey organized a rescue party which went up to dig him out. They went North, in the Summer and wore only their Summer underwear.

Instead of coming back with the explorer in the Fall the rescue party was itself prozen in and it was three years before they could return to civilization.

THOUGH "The Parish Priest" is the feature picture at the Park Theatre this week, Universal's offering, "The Fire Cat," starring Edith Roberts, is a better film in every way, with a stronger story, cast of players and theme.

A year ago, or possibly it was two years ago, Edith Roberts was playing ingenue roles for Universal. Today, with the help of such splendid stories as "The Fire Cat," she is holding her own among the rest of the stars. Starting as a comedienne in Christie comedies, she has developed into rather serious work, but has kept the lightness and vivacity that comedy work teaches.

The scenery in this picture is quite the most colorful and gorgeous we have seen. The mountain settings are striking, the Purisima scenes are quaint and colorful, giving the darkness and Spanish atmosphere, while the eruption of the volcano is given with vividness and impressiveness.

Spanish stories lend themselves to the screen well, in spite of the loss of color we always associate with such surroundings. The characteristic of the people, fiery tempers, vivacity, and at times, indolence. Universal has cast the picture well. Edith Roberts makes a striking Spanish girl and plays the spirit.—By Frieda Davis in the Boston American.

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol 13 APRIL 9, 1921 No. 8

With "Cappy Ricks" on Censorship Seas

Peter B. Kyne, famous novelist and creator of the character of "Cappy Ricks" urges common sense in dealing with censorship

"THE horse sense, the acute grasp of what is right and wrong, and the kindly humor in the telling of it, of old Cappy Ricks functioned yesterday through his mouthpiece, Peter B. Kyne, on the rapidly-growing opposition to the proposed censorship of moving pictures.

Before a largely attended meeting of the San Francisco Center of the Civic League at the St. Francis Hotel, Kyne, the author, playwright and soldier, made it plain to his hearers that the public is by far the best judge of its own morals, and demonstrated the fallacy and impossibility of attempting to legislate morality into the people.

I come as an American citizen who loves justice and liberty; and who, having acquired the habit of doing his own thinking has, due to considerable reflection, anent the growing tendency in this country to censor speech, plays, books, motion pictures, beverages and religious convictions, considered it his plain duty to come here today and tell you that censorship of any kind by legislation is an abridgement of human liberty and common sense.

MOVIE CENSOR IS SUPER-BOOB

Two coyotes lifting their voices to the moon can convince the average city dweller that their numbers are legion. It is thus with the handful of censors who are so busy remaking the world, and it is to them that I shall pay my respects in this address, with particular references to that portion of their activities which threatens to hamper, if not totally destroy, the fourth largest business enterprise in the world. And before the time allotted me has expired I expect to prove to you, ladies and gentlemen, that in very many cases the censor of motion pictures is not only a boob but a super-boob.

When I employ the designation "super-boob" I do not refer to the members of the National Board of Censorship or to those who have a very just cause for disapproving a great many motion picture productions, for I, too, am of that number. I want to see motion pictures improved and made cleaner and sweeter and more artistic.

To my mind one of the most striking examples of the Super-boob—the High Chief Super-boob, in fact, is one Rev. Harry W. Bowlby, national secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who is trying to legislate us out of every normal human privilege on Sunday with the exception of a slow walk to church.

OUT GUNNING FOR REFORMER

The motion picture censor that I am gunning for is just a jump or two behind this man Bowlby; he differs in form, but not in substance; his is the same censorious, unreasoning, bigoted, illogical and unintelligent course of procedure; he lays to his soul the flattering unction that his is constructive, whereas while striving to be constructive according to his weak lights he is destructive of those fundamental principles of equity and fair play upon which our government was founded.

I declare he is not a good citizen, because he wants to tinker with human liberty, freedom of thought and expression; because he is incredibly stupid, though he parades as an intellectual, and intolerant because he would degrade all motion pictures, which are expressions of creative art, down to his own ignoble and mediocre sense of appreciation.

What I plead for, what the motion picture industry pleads for, is not so much the total abolition of decent and sane supervision of the entertainment it has to offer, but decent and sane regulation of the activities of censorship run wild."—From the San Francisco Examiner.

"Renunciation," a gripping story of the old West, by Peter B. Kyne, has been started at Universal City.

"Renunciation" is being filmed as a special feature with an all-star cast under the direction of Jacques Jaccard.

CARMEL MYERS
in
"The Dangerous Moment"

Special Newspaper Publicity Stories

"BLACK BEETLE" MYSTERY THEME OF FEATURE FILM

CARMEL MYERS will be the stellar attraction at the .... Theatre on .... in "The Dangerous Moment," a Universal screen play made under the direction of Marcel de Sano.

Fast action, love interest and spontaneous humor are blended into the theme so cleverly that "The Dangerous Moment" will probably be pronounced by playgoers to be Miss Myers' most entertaining picture.

Douglas Doty, former editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, wrote the original story from personal knowledge of Greenwich Village and Wallace Clifton wrote the screen adaptation. Marcel de Sano, the brilliant young Frenchman who directed the production, is an artist who lived in the famous Bohemian quarter of New York before he became a motion picture director.

The story opens with the star as a waitress in The Black Beetle, a tawdry little cafe frequented by the motley array of denizens of the quarter. In repelling the attentions of the son of the owner of the place she strikes him with a chair. He falls dead. Thinking that she has killed him she seeks refuge in the studio of an artist while the police batter down the doors and throw out a dragnet over all New York for her capture. As the story unfolds, the girl is shown to love the artist who has sheltered her and interesting heart complications arise to strew their path with difficulties. When the end of the plot is reached it develops that a knife, driven home by an unseen hand, killed the man.

REAL BOHEMIAN LIFE SHOWN IN PICTURE

GREENWICH VILLAGE has served as the background for many a recent photodrama, but never has the free and unfettered atmosphere of the Bohemian district adjoining New York's Washington Square been so faithfully transplanted to the celluloid strip as in "The Dangerous Moment," the Universal screen story starring Carmel Myers which had its first local showing at the .... Theatre last night.

The opening scenes show the Black Beetle, a tawdry cafe of the artist's quarter, where Sylvia, played by Carmel Myers, waits on the heterogeneous array of patrons, shouts her orders above the din of the jazz orchestra and occasionally has to defend herself against the unwelcome attentions of Movros, the silk-shirted, pomaded son of the proprietress of the resort. The settings for this part of the story are really an animated page from life as it is lived in that section of New York peopled by long-haired men and short-haired women, and but for the fact that the producers of the picture announce that it was filmed at Universal City one would be led to believe they had really gone to Greenwich Village to secure their scenes.

Carmel Myers

POPULAR STAR SEEN IN CHARACTER ROLE

THE .... Theatre was filled last night with playgoers who knew that Carmel Myers was to be the star, naturally expected a good picture and found a better screen offering than they had hoped for, even with the Universal mark to endorse the work of one of the most popular girls among the younger stars.

Miss Myers appeared in "The Dangerous Moment," her latest photodrama which was filmed under the direction of Marcel de Sano at Universal City.

Perhaps because Mr. de Sano is French and understands the peculiar psychology of Greenwich Village and perhaps because Miss Myers entered so enthusiastically into the spirit of the story, the production is one of the best in which she has ever been seen and will make an indelible impression upon theatregoers as a masterful example of the well balanced photoplay.

The story deals with Sylvia, a waitress in a Greenwich Village cafe. No sooner has the lovely girl won her way into the hearts of those who see her than a murder shadows the Bohemian quarter and suspicion rests directly upon her. She evades the police and seeks refuge in the studio of a young artist. With two big parallel punches the story is converged to a sizzling climax that glows at the white heat of emotion as the denouement is reached.

Douglas Doty wrote the story, de Sano showed fine discretion in the direction and Miss Myers had the splendid support of a sterling cast.

Complete Reviews And Advance Notes

"URGE" FOR ARTISTIC FELT BY ALL CLASSES

THE bizarre and exotic atmosphere of Greenwich Village, New York's Bohemian section, has attracted adventurous souls from all walks of life. Every woman who feels an "urge" towards the unusual or the artistic, tries to find her way to Greenwich Village, where she may mingle with kindred spirits and give her individuality to expand. There are many serious thinkers and workers in the "Village," but there are more shams and parasites, and only the very wise can distinguish the wheat from the chaff.

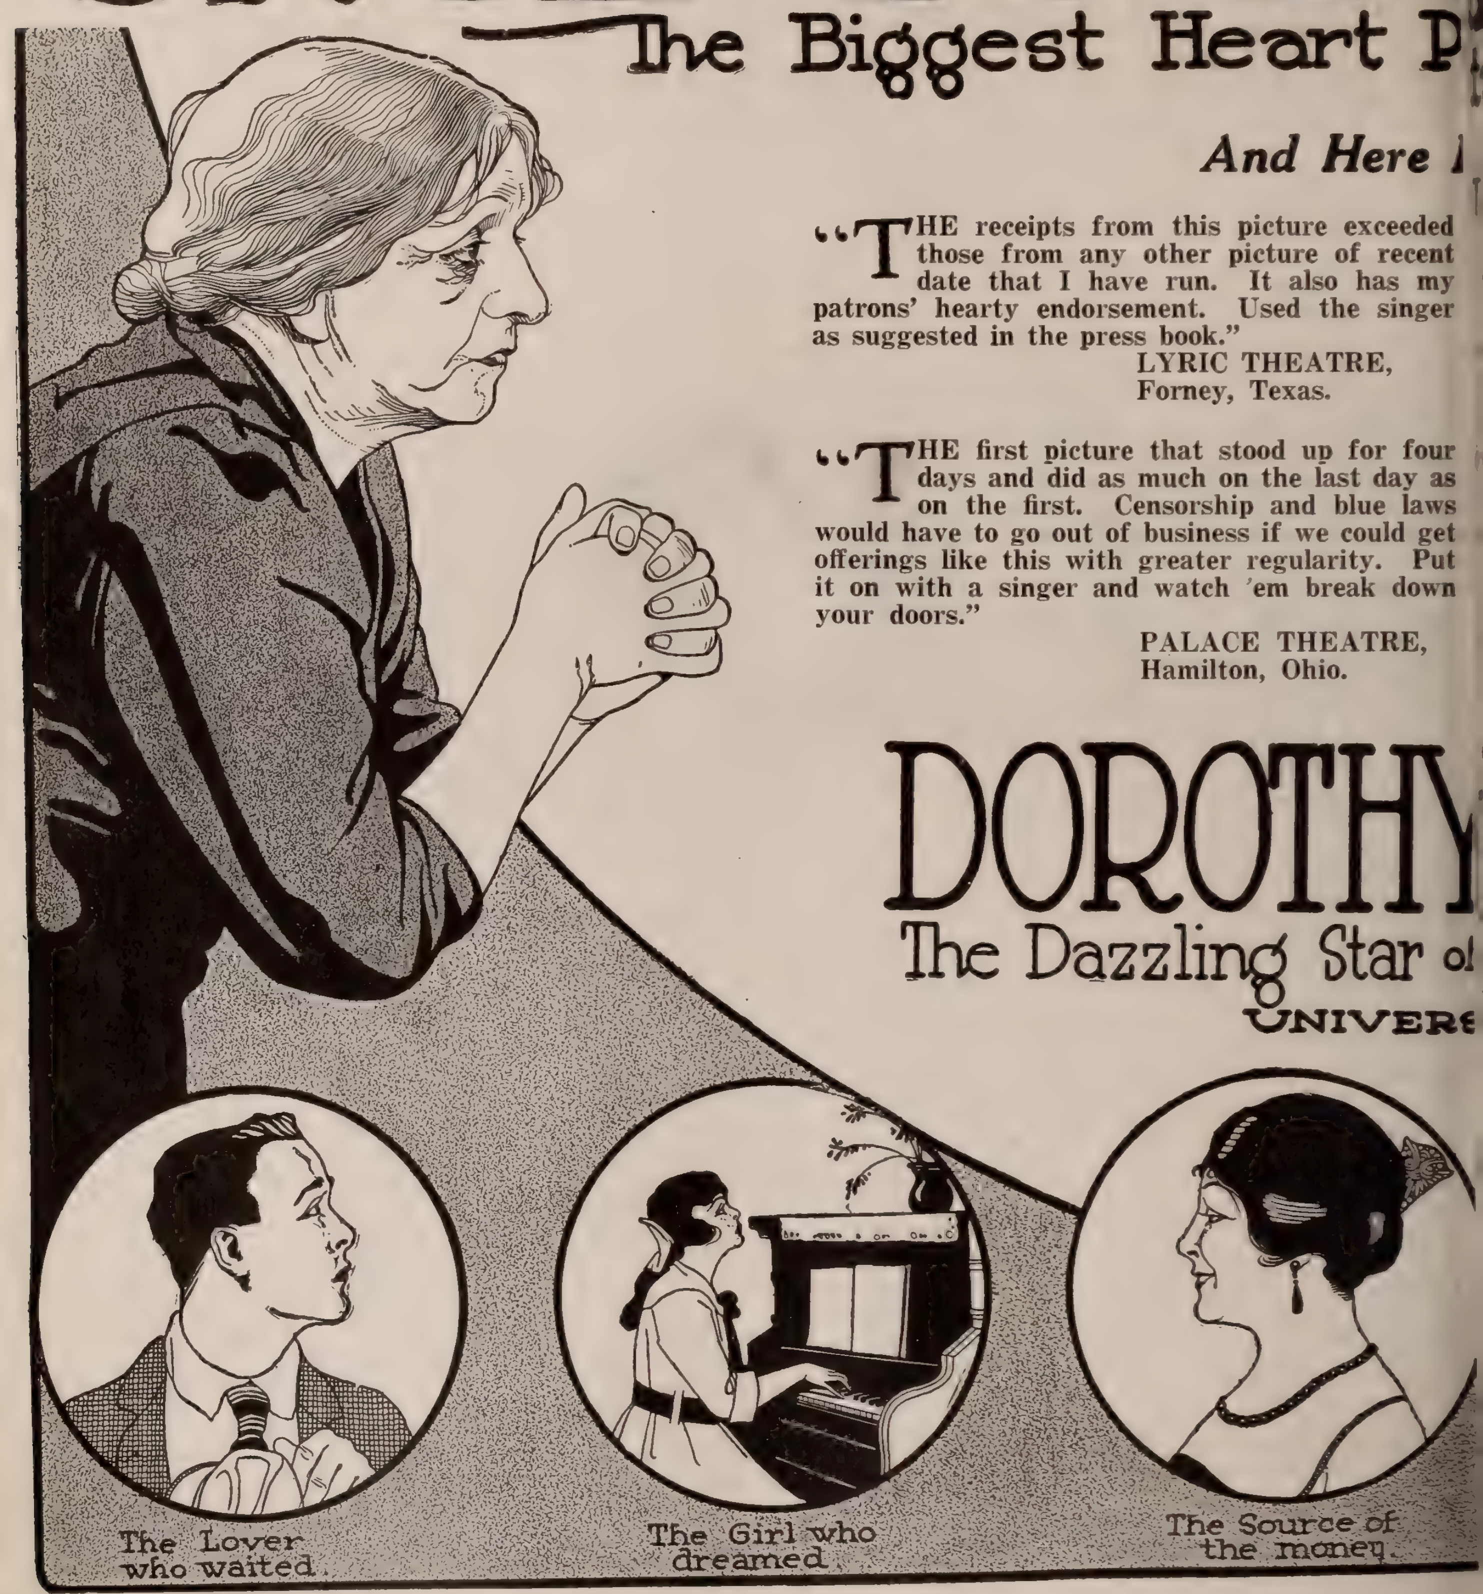
Sylvia was one of those nice girls who was lured to Greenwich Village by a hungry soul; but the struggle was too hard and she soon found herself earning an existence by serving as a waitress in The Black Beetle, one of the unsavory underground cafes of Bohemia. Here she was compelled to protect herself from the advances of Movros, son of the proprietress of the restaurant. In one of these battles for her self respect she swings a chair. The room is plunged in darkness. When the lights are turned on Movros is found dead and Sylvia flees over the roof tops to escape the vengeance of the law.

On this foundation is built "The Dangerous Moment," one of the most engrossing screen stories written in a long time, which has been produced with Carmel Myers in the starring rôle of Sylvia. It is a Universal production, with the story from the pen of Douglas Doty, the direction credited to Marcel de Sano and announced for appearance at the .... Theatre next ....

In Miss Myers' support will be seen Herbert Heyes, George Rigas, "Smoke" Turner, Bonnie Hill, Lula Warrenton, Fred Becker and many others.

"ONCE TO E

The Biggest Heart P



The Lover who waited
The Girl who dreamed
The Source of the money.

And Here

"THE receipts from this picture exceeded those from any other picture of recent date that I have run. It also has my patrons' hearty endorsement. Used the singer as suggested in the press book."

LYRIC THEATRE,
Forney, Texas.

"THE first picture that stood up for four days and did as much on the last day as on the first. Censorship and blue laws would have to go out of business if we could get offerings like this with greater regularity. Put it on with a singer and watch 'em break down your doors."

PALACE THEATRE,
Hamilton, Ohio.

DOROTH

The Dazzling Star o

UNIVER

ERY WOMAN"

ure of the Generation

he Proof:

“IT lived up to every promise you made for it . . . and more. Used the singer and there was not a dry eye in the house. ‘AA’ per-production in every sense of the word.”
REGENT THEATRE,
Cedar Falls, Ia.

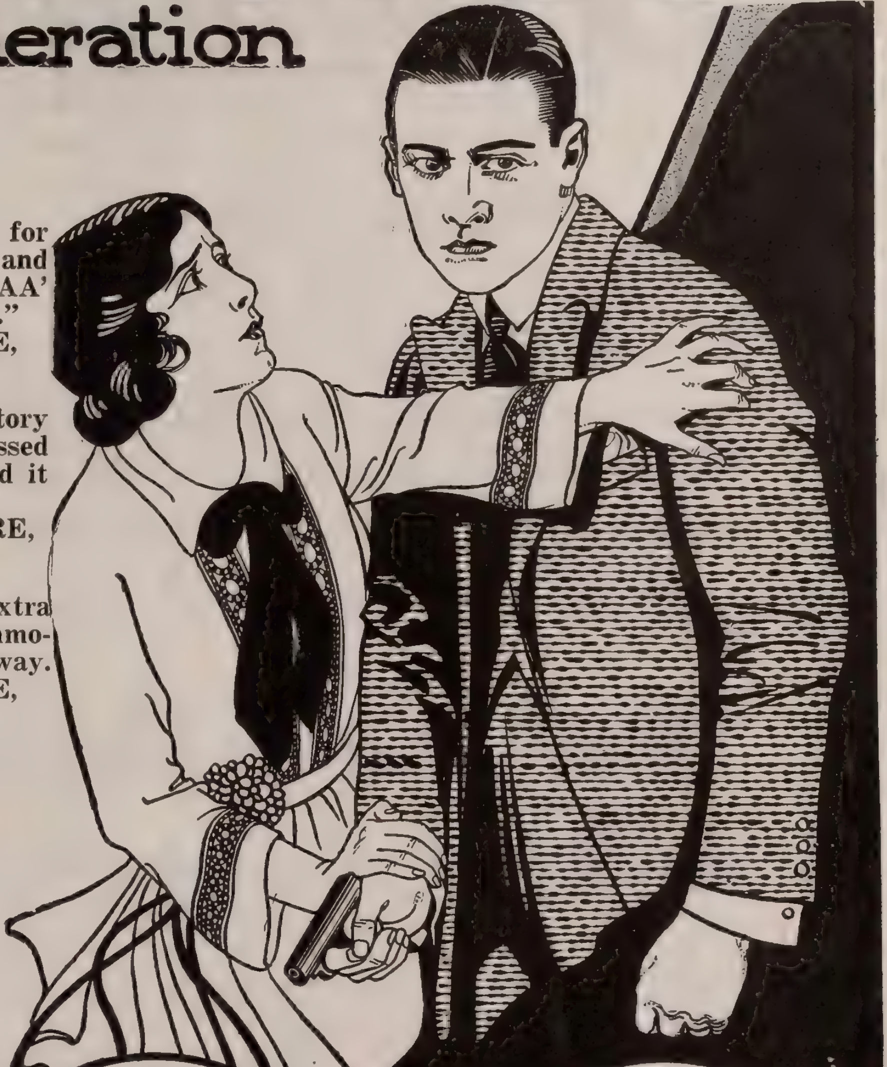
“PLAYED three days to very satisfactory business. Many of our patrons expressed their appreciation. Used a singer and it ade a wonderful hit.”
PRINCESS THEATRE,
Oskaloosa, Iowa.

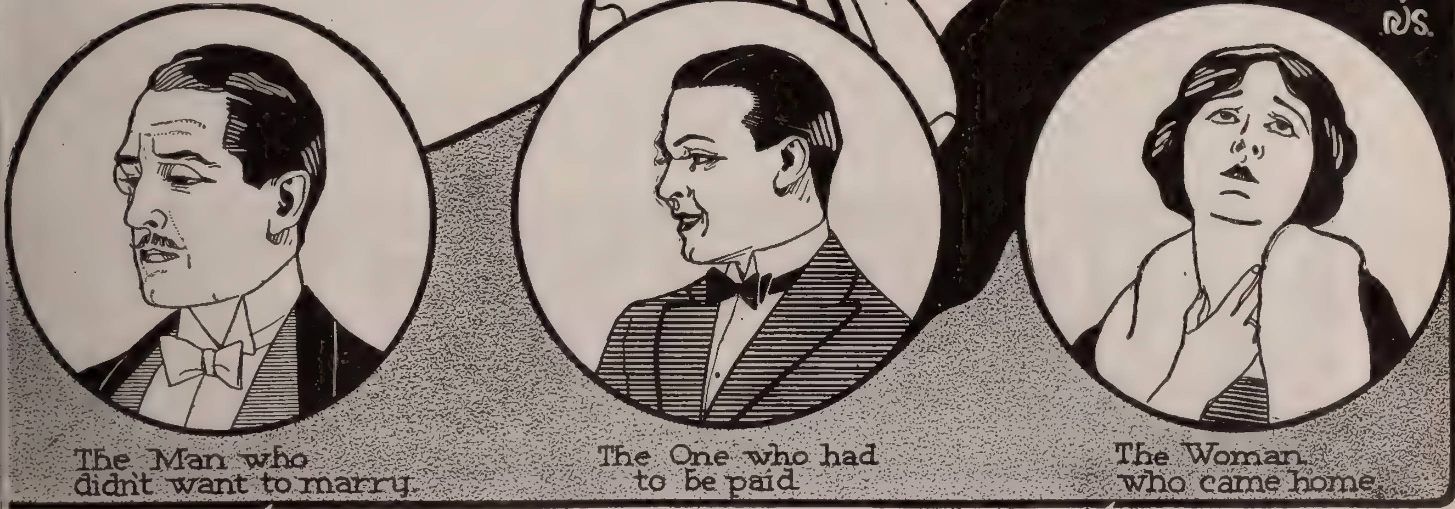
“POSITIVELY broke all records. An extra show at night was necessary to accommodate those who could not be driven away.
STRAND THEATRE,
Easton, Pa.

PHILLIPS

he Heart of Humanity"

JEWEL





The Man who didn't want to marry

The One who had to be paid

The Woman who came home

3 Small Houses

Superba Theatre

Los Angeles, Cal.

Seating Capacity	680
Average Admission Price .	35c
First Week's Receipts .	$9,466.15
Average per Seat per Week	$13.92

Alle

Seating Capaci
Average Admis
First Week's R
Average per Se

You Can Do What Hund

"Smashed all records. Had to send S.O. S. call to police."
HOLMAN THEATRE, Montreal, Can.

"Biggest box-office attraction ever released. Biggest crowds in years. Turned as many away as got in."
ASCHER'S MERRILL THEATRE, Milwaukee.

"Compelled to turn them away. Many returned to see it second time."
CENTRAL, PARK & PREMIER THEATRES, Buffalo.

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported
LON CHANE

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL

veraged $9.73 per Seat!

heatre

Akron, Ohio

. . . . 478

Price . . 25c

s . $3,843.75

r week . $8.04

Standard Theatre

Cleveland, Ohio

Seating Capacity	612
Average Admission Price .	22c
First Week's Receipts .	$4,435.22
Average per Seat per Week .	$7.24

s of Exhibitors Are Doing

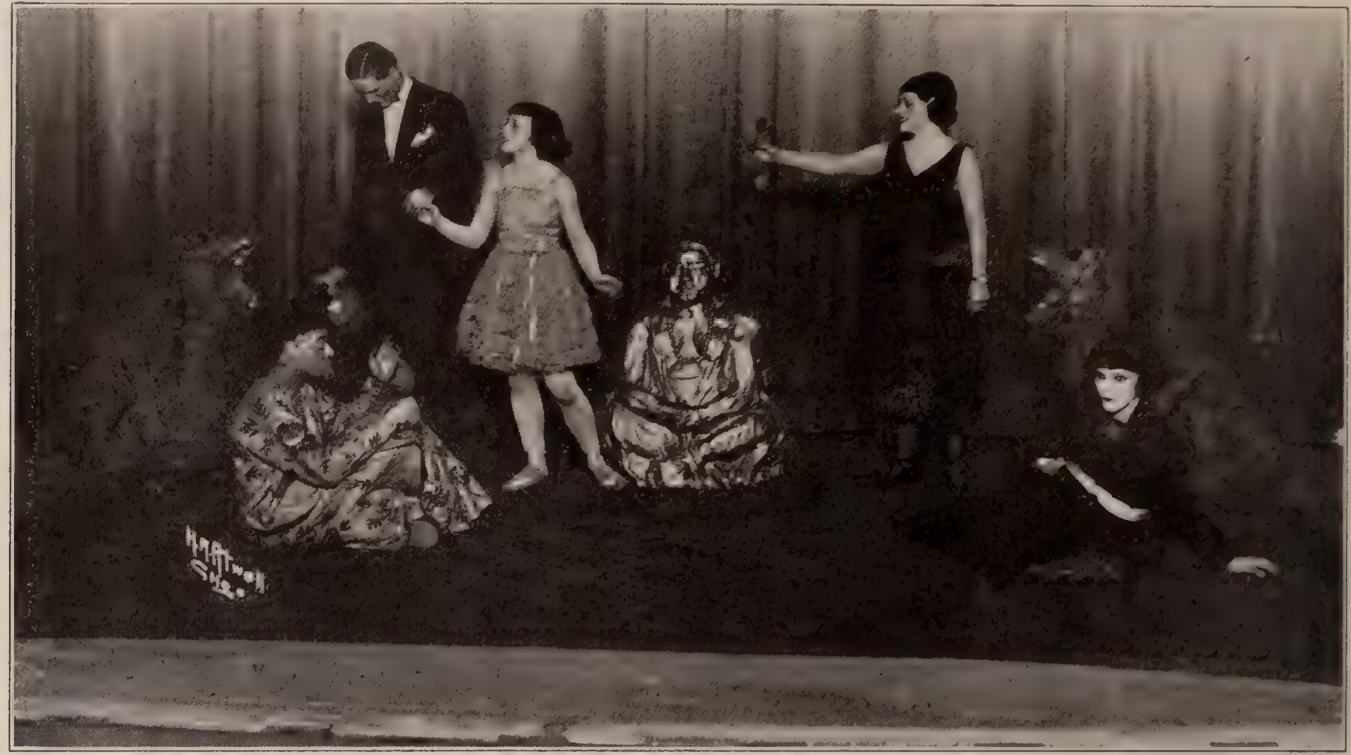
"Marvelous business. Simply could not keep the crowds away."
FLORENCE THEATRE, Pasadena, Cal.

"Crowds blocked traffic. Business will surpass anything ever done in show business in El Paso."
ELLANAY THEATRE, El Paso.

"Greatest crowd ever gathered in front of a theatre in Flint. The public went wild over it. Stood them out in the rain."
ORPHEUM THEATRE, Flint.

OUTSIDE THE LAW"

JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE



Spirit of Buddha sends message, through Chinese philosopher, to players in prologue at Barbee's Loop Theatre, Chicago.

AS a preface to a feature picture a prologue properly conceived and correctly staged forms one of the best and most distinctive introductions to a motion picture audience. Recently this phase of exploitation has been receiving more and more attention, until, in some of the larger houses, the prologues are as well staged as the short dramatic sketches seen on the legitimate stage.

PRISCILLA DEAN

With the Universal Jewel "Outside The Law," many clever prologue ideas have been worked successfully by managers in both large and small houses in every section of the country. One of the best of these ideas was the recent prologue used at Barbee's Loop Theatre in Chicago where the Priscilla Dean film had a sensational two weeks run, breaking all box-office records at that theatre.

The prologue, a photograph of the characters is shown on this page, was prepared by the Hagedorn-Fielding Company of the "windy city." The thought conveyed to the audience through the acting of the characters on the stage was the overcoming of evil through the influence of good.

Good was represented in the old Chinese philosopher, whose influence had brought about the reform of Madden, the master criminal in the story of "Outside The Law." The daughter of the underworld and the Frisco dancer both carried the thought of envy and revenge, while the beautifully gowned woman portrayed the rôle of wealth; the cause in part, of the revengeful, envious feeling on the part of the underworld characters.

The character of the child coming from Buddha represented the spirit of love whose influence had wrought the change in a part of the crook gang playing a leading part in the story told by the photoplay, and also the final union of each of the leading characters in wedlock with the resultant change for the better in the lives of these people.

BIGGEST CIRCUITS BOOK JEWEL PICTURE

The run at the Loop theatre far exceeded the most hopeful expectations of the proprietor, William S. Barbee. In the following letter from Morris Hellman, assistant manager of the Universal Exchange at Chicago, a detailed report is given of the way the picture was received there.

"'Outside The Law' opened as pre-release run at Barbee's Loop Theatre, Chicago, with the most gratifying results from the Chicago public.

It has broken all previous records in the history of the Barbee Theatre by several thousand dollars. The Tom O'Shanter stunt went over like a house afire. It helped us greatly in putting over the picture. The audience was well satisfied with the picture and every Chicago newspaper has given it a big send-off.

LON CHANEY

We have booked it to the biggest circuits in this territory, like Lubliner & Trinz, Ascher Bros., Marks & Goodman and Schoenstadt & Sons theatres, and they never paid so much money for any picture in their lives as they are paying for this.

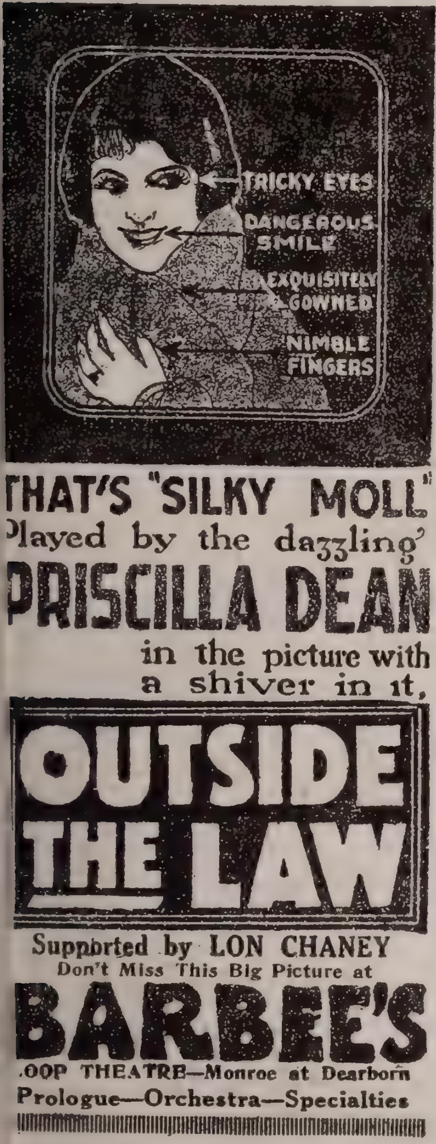
Will positively break all Jewel records in the history of the Chicago office. I am being kept busy doing nothing else but signing up contracts.

Again I want to thank everyone of you for the assistance you have given us in the publicity line on this picture, as it certainly proved to be a winner."

Cleveland, Ohio.

"Outside The Law" broke all records at Standard Theatre, Cleveland, despite the strongest opposition ever known in this city, which consisted of "Forbidden Fruit," "County Fair," "The Love Light," "Without Limit," "Truth About Husbands" and "Way Down East."

THOMAS CARROLL.



TRICKY EYES
DANGEROUS SMILE
EXQUISITELY GOWNED
NIMBLE FINGERS

THAT'S "SILKY MOLL"
Played by the dazzling
PRISCILLA DEAN
in the picture with a shiver in it,
OUTSIDE THE LAW
Supported by LON CHANEY
Don't Miss This Big Picture at BARBEE'S
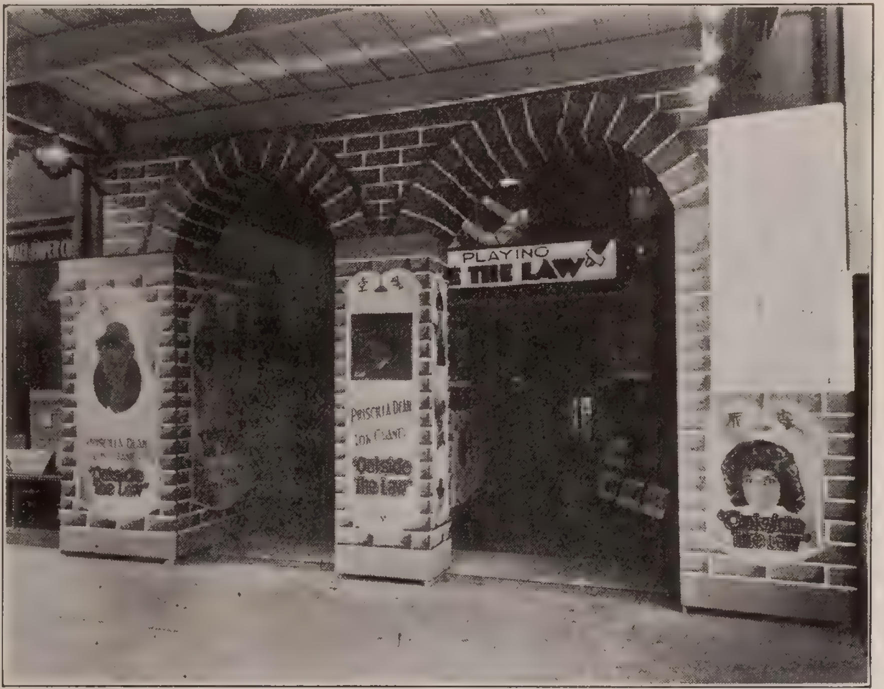
LOOP THEATRE—Monroe at Dearborn
Prologue—Orchestra—Specialties

Barbee's Loop Theatre ad. in the Chicago Tribune.



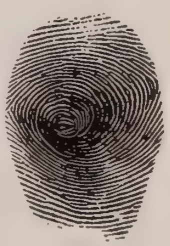
Decorated front of Standard Theatre, Cleveland, showing exploitation used for "Outside The Law."

"Thumb-print Search" Finds Star's Double

MANY exhibitors are using the "thumb -print search" to create interest in "Outside The Law," the big Tod Browning-Priscilla Dean feature, and are gettink wonderful results in return. Universal exchanges can supply all exhibitors with cuts of Priscilla Dean's thumb prints.

This stunt has been worked successfully in many cities, but so far only one case has been reported where a thumb print identical with that of the Universal star has been reported. Although there is a pretty well-defined law that no two persons can have identical fingerprints, a Canadian waman was found whose thumb marks and Miss Dean's are so much alike that experts have not been able to tell them apart. She is Mrs. J. H. Malepart, of No. 202 Peel Street, Montreal, Canada, and was located as the result of the search instituted by the Holman Theatre of that city.

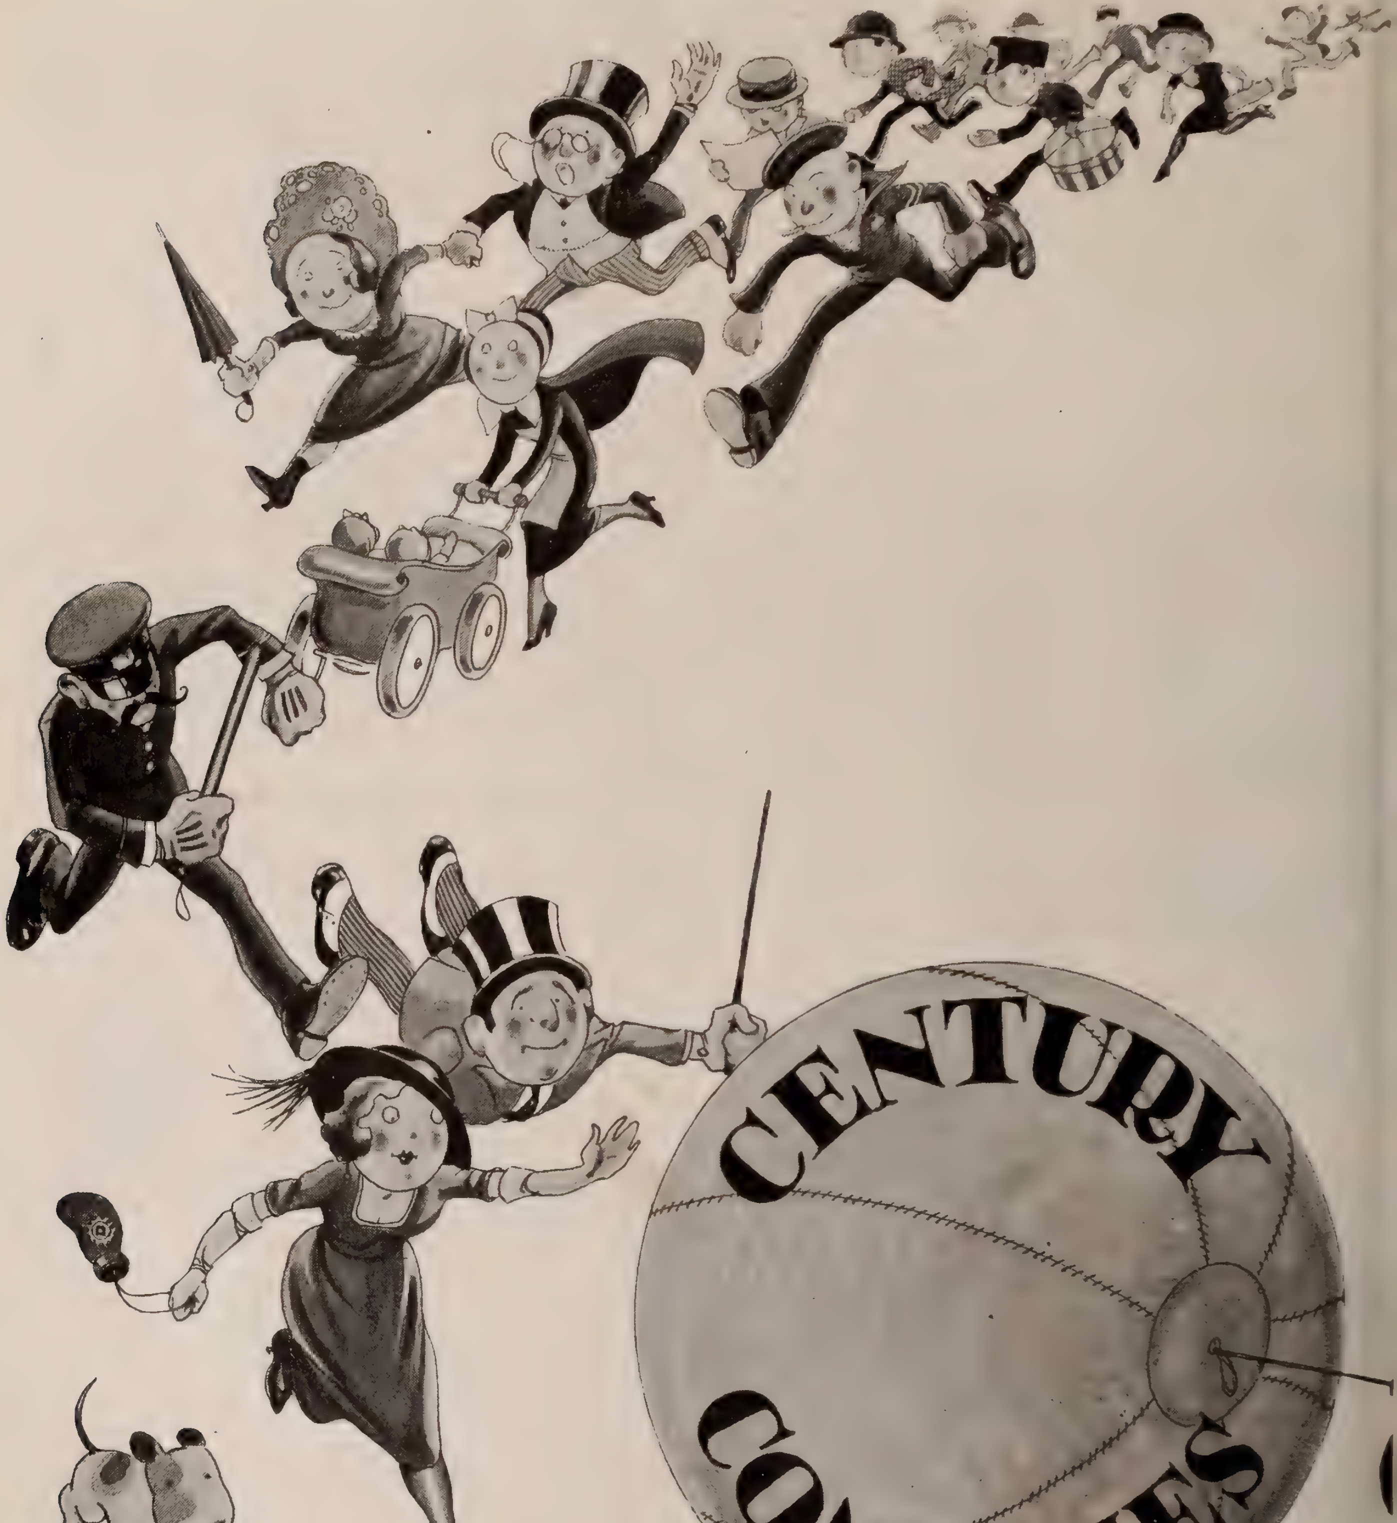
Vancouver Public Takes Interest in Contest



WHEN the management of the Maple Leaf Theatre in Vancouver, B. C., booked "Outside The Law" a tie-up was made with the Vancouver Daily World, and a search instituted for a Vancouver woman with a thumb-print resembling that of Priscilla Dean. Much publicity was received by the theatre.

The paper devoted big spreads to the stunt, on successive days for a week, showing various poses of Miss Dean, reproducing her thumb-print, and describing how to make clear thumb-prints to submit to the Moving Picture Editor of the World.

Many hundreds of thumb-prints were received by the paper, and great interest was aroused in the search and in the forth-coming picture. As a result, "Outside The Law" opened to the biggest business ever experienced in Vancouver, the Maple Leaf reports. On the second night of the week's run, the theatre had to put on an extra show to accommodate the crowds, despite a downpour of rain.



CENTURY
COMEDIES

One Big Laugh every Week

HARRY SWEET

WID'S says: "Sweet has an almost unerring sense of what will register and he never overdoes his gags. The laughs are many and the stuff is the kind that almost anybody can appreciate."

BROWNIE The Wonder Dog

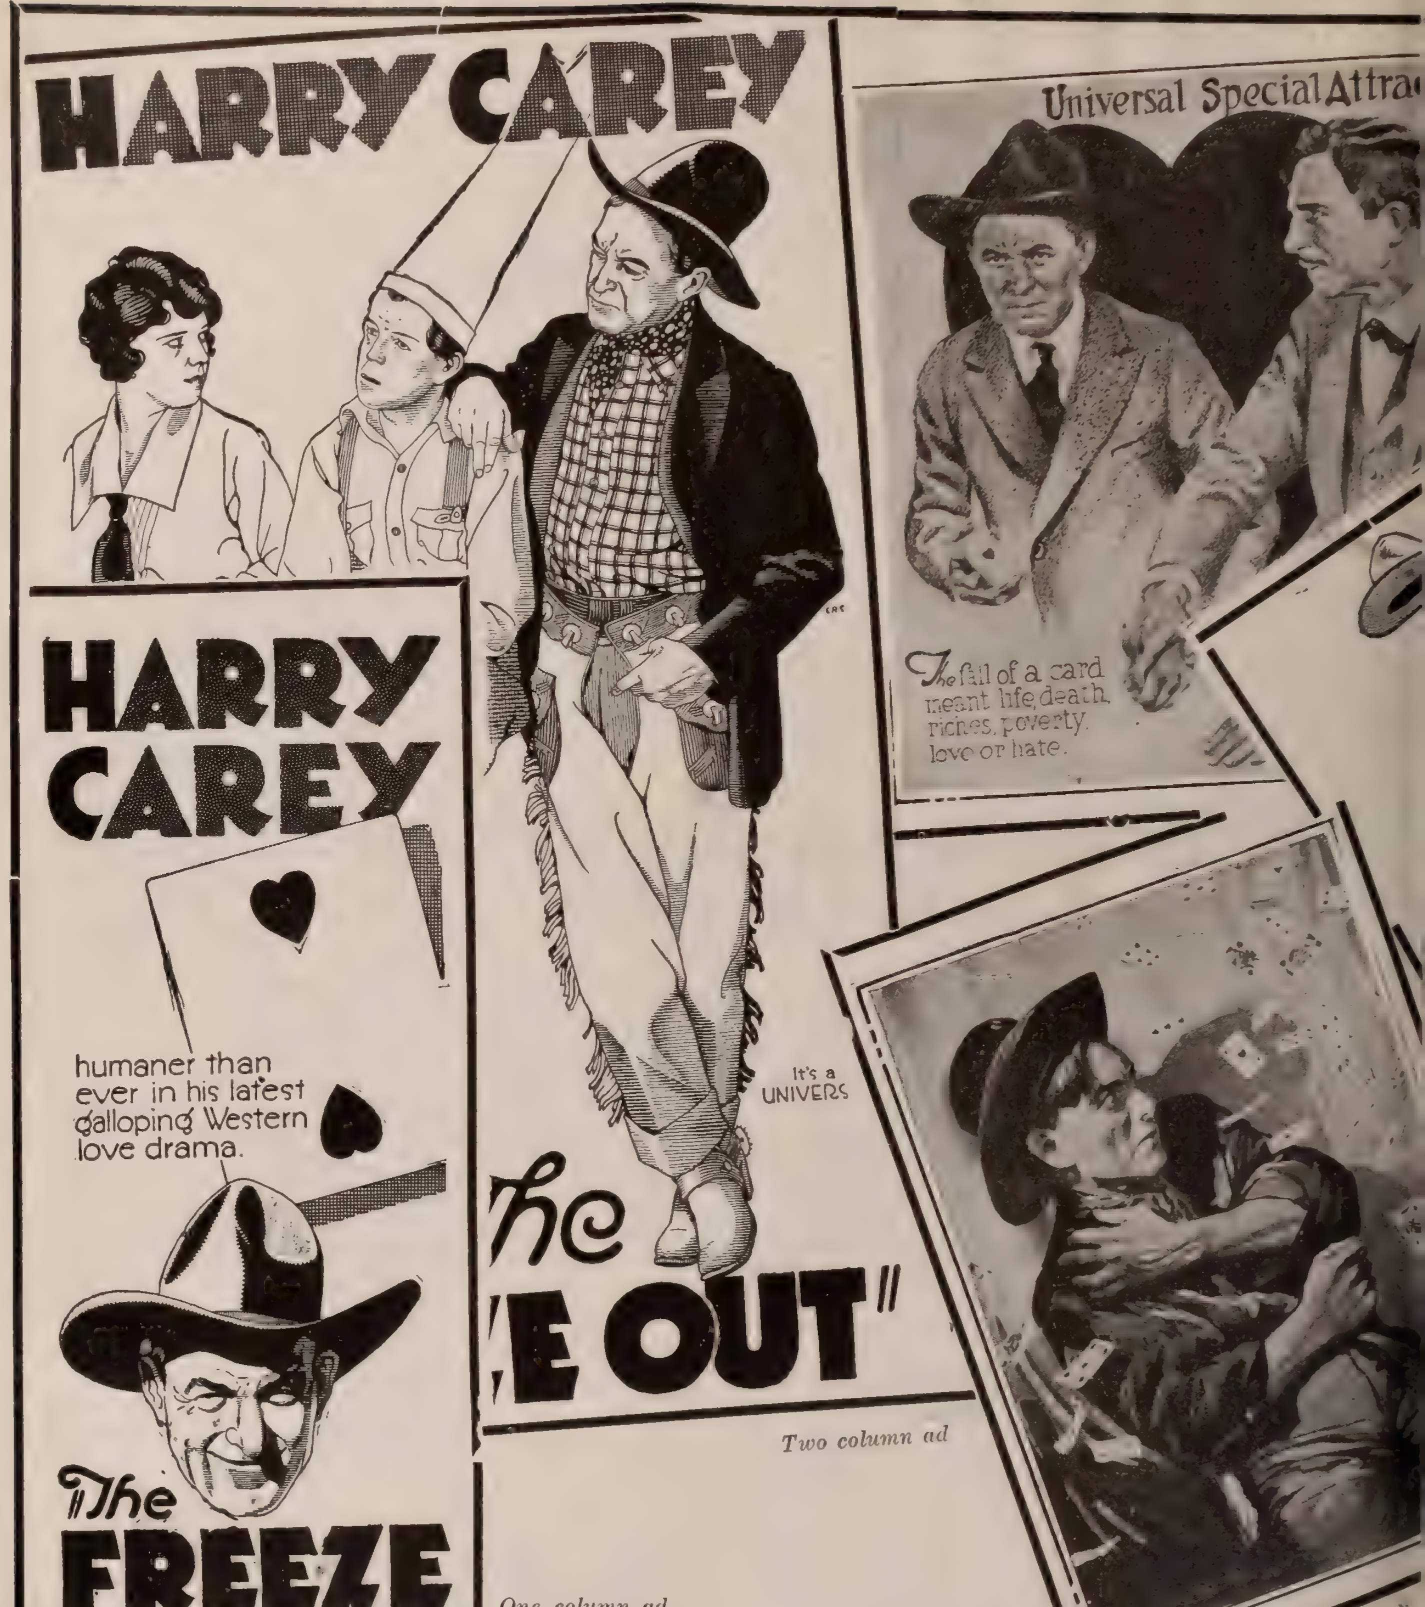
"THE best performing animal ever seen in pictures," say the critics. Show BROWNIE in the "THE DOG DOCTOR," viewable at your Universal Exchange—or "THE KID'S PAL" soon to be released.

The Best One-a-Week Comedies on the Market

"I HAVE used every make of comedies on the market," writes W. H. Stevenson of the Moneta Theatre, Cleveland, "but I find that the CENTURY COMEDY is the most consistently good one-a-week comedy proposition on the screen to-day."

SOME Centuries feature Harry Sweet — some feature BROWNIE, the Century Wonder-dog. In others still, such as "FIRE BUGS" or "TOUGH LUCK" released April 6th, you can have both HARRY SWEET and BROWNIE.

Released thru Universal



HARRY CAREY
The E OUT"
It's a UNIVERS
HARRY CAREY
humaner than ever in his latest galloping Western love drama.
The FREEZE OUT"
Universal Special Attra
The fall of a card meant life, death, riches, poverty, love or hate.

Two column ad

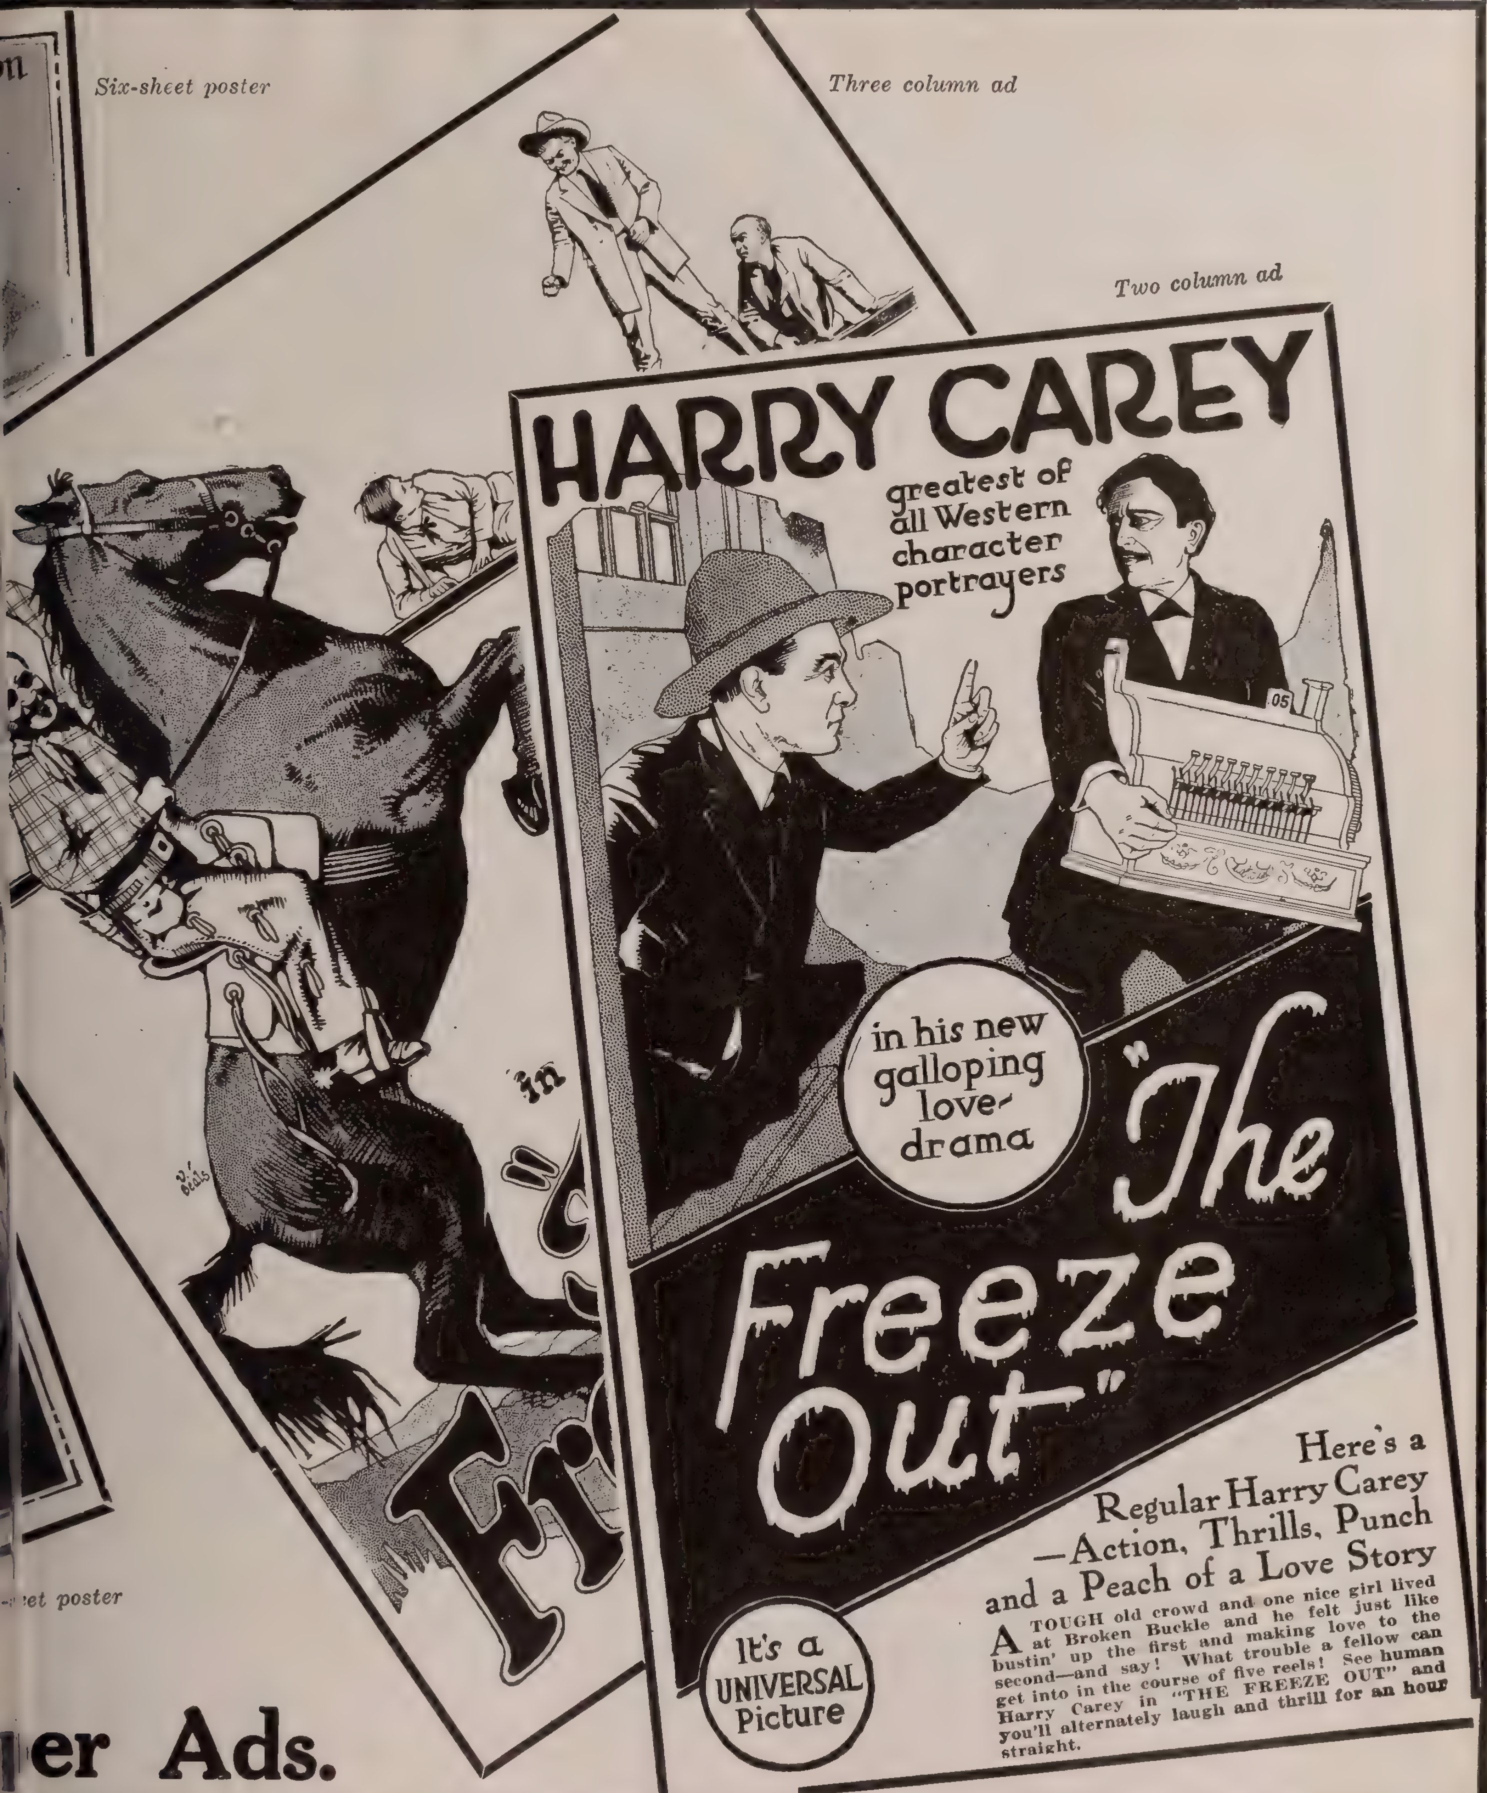
One column ad

Posters and Newspa

Six-sheet poster

Three column ad

Two column ad



HARRY CAREY

greatest of all Western character portrayers in his new galloping love-drama

"The Freeze Out"

Here's a Regular Harry Carey —Action, Thrills, Punch and a Peach of a Love Story

A TOUGH old crowd and one nice girl lived at Broken Buckle and he felt just like bustin' up the first and making love to the second—and say! What trouble a fellow can get into in the course of five reels! See human Harry Carey in "THE FREEZE OUT" and you'll alternately laugh and thrill for an hour straight.

It's a UNIVERSAL Picture

-et poster

er Ads.

THE AUTOMATIC CENSOR

(Continued from Page 1)

To the childlike and simple mind of the reformer it seems so matter-of-course that Government should be always on hand to prevent crime. But it is not, and according to our theory of government it ought not to be.

There is no censorship to say what may be printed in a newspaper or book, what pictures should be exposed in shops, or what speeches people can make in meetings; but if a publication or utterance offensive to the law is made the law punishes.

That is what is meant by the constitutional right to free speech and a free press.

It means that anybody can do as he pleases, but that he will be held responsible for what he does.

In other words, the citizens of the United States are to be treated as grown-ups, and not as children.

And a most particular reason why they do not want to be treated as children is that there is no one, and no set or class of persons, whom we consider qualified to act as Papa and Mama.

Certainly not the Reverend Doctor Crafts nor any other man who thinks he knows just what is good for us.

A Board of Censors made up of angels and archangels might do. But a Board made up of human beings, whose function is to decide upon matters of taste, and to indicate to film producers just what pictures they should show, and just how much stocking should be exposed, and just how many seconds a kiss should last, and just when the vamp throws a soupcon too much come-hither into her eye, that would not do at all.

There is a body of censors who decide that sort of things, and it is the best and most sensible and mot powerful body in the world. It is the Public.

The Public will not stand for uncleanness. For the Public is decent.

All this movement to censor shows by officials and to protect the public comes from those who do not believe in the incorruptible cleanliness of the common people.

It means a distrust of democracy. It is a part of that sentiment of exaggerated ego which often afflicts very good people.

Let the movies alone. They will be kept clean, with the aid of the people who go to see them, just as the vaudeville has cleansed itself, and as the theatres, books, magazines and newpapers of America to-day present a high standard of propriety.

All these agencies are as good as the people want them to be, no worse and no better. They are kept at that level automatically. If they get too good nobody will pay to see or read them. And if they get too bad nobody will.

The Public, the people who pay money to see shows and read publications, is the best of all possible censors.

For it is automatic.

And when it speaks no editor, producer or manager fails to heed.

International News

No. 23

Washington, D. C.—President Harding greets U. S. heroes. Inspects Walter Reed Hospital to see that wounded soldiers are properly cared for.

Sub-Titles.—Mrs. Harding also takes a keen interest in the ex-fighters. "The Government will never be unmindful of you and your condition" is the President's promise.

South Chicago, Ill.—Huge grain elevator wrecked by explosion. $10,000,000 loss in destruction of huge structure.

San Remo, Italy.—Italian King mourns Montenegrin Monarch. Victor-Emanuel, chief figure at funeral of his friend, Nicholas 1. (Omit Chicago.)

Champaign, Ill.—Co-eds in training for baseball season. University of Illinois students hope to give male rivals a run for their money. (Chicago only.)

Chicago, Ill.—The peanut season opens at the zoo. And old Bre'er Bear is in rare form as a catcher—watch him.

New York City.—Studio glimpses of a famous artist at work. Here's Harrison Fisher turning out one of his magazine cover masterpieces.

San Francisco, Cal.—Baby show proves spring has arrived. When proud mothers display their prizes to the public gaze, you may be sure winter's gone.

Sub-Titles.—"Welfare Week" examinations show most of San Francisco's new crop in fine shape.

Calcutta, India.—Duke of Connaught to "pacify" India. Britain's emissary appointed to end unrest, received by natives with royal pomp. (Omit Chicago.)

Sub-Titles.—A golden casket containing an address of welcome is presented to the Duke. Unveiling a statue to his brother, King Edward VII.

San Francisco, Cal.—Chicago Aldermen study San Francisco's transit. Inspect western city's great car system which prospers on a five cent fare. (Chicago only.)

El Dorado, Ark.—Giant gas well afire. Spectacular blaze caused by lightning destroys fuel worth a fortune.

Havana, Cuba.—Havana turf classic an exciting contest. Billy Barton captures Cuban-American handicap.

"REPUTATION"

Priscilla Dean's new Universal-Jewel picture, "Reputation," was originally called "False Colors" and written for Ainslee's magazine by Edwina Levin.

It is the story of a young woman who steals the reputation of her mother, a great actress, while the older woman is a victim of drugs and dissipation.

Priscilla Dean, in playing the part of both the mother and the daughter has one of the most difficult dual roles ever attempted on the screen.

The mental and moral struggle which causes the daughter to give up her falsely bought position and fame, and disappear from the stage, makes one of the strongest climaxes ever filmed.

The Bauble of Reputation! Priscilla Dean, as Laura Figlan, the once famous actress, plays strong dual rôle.

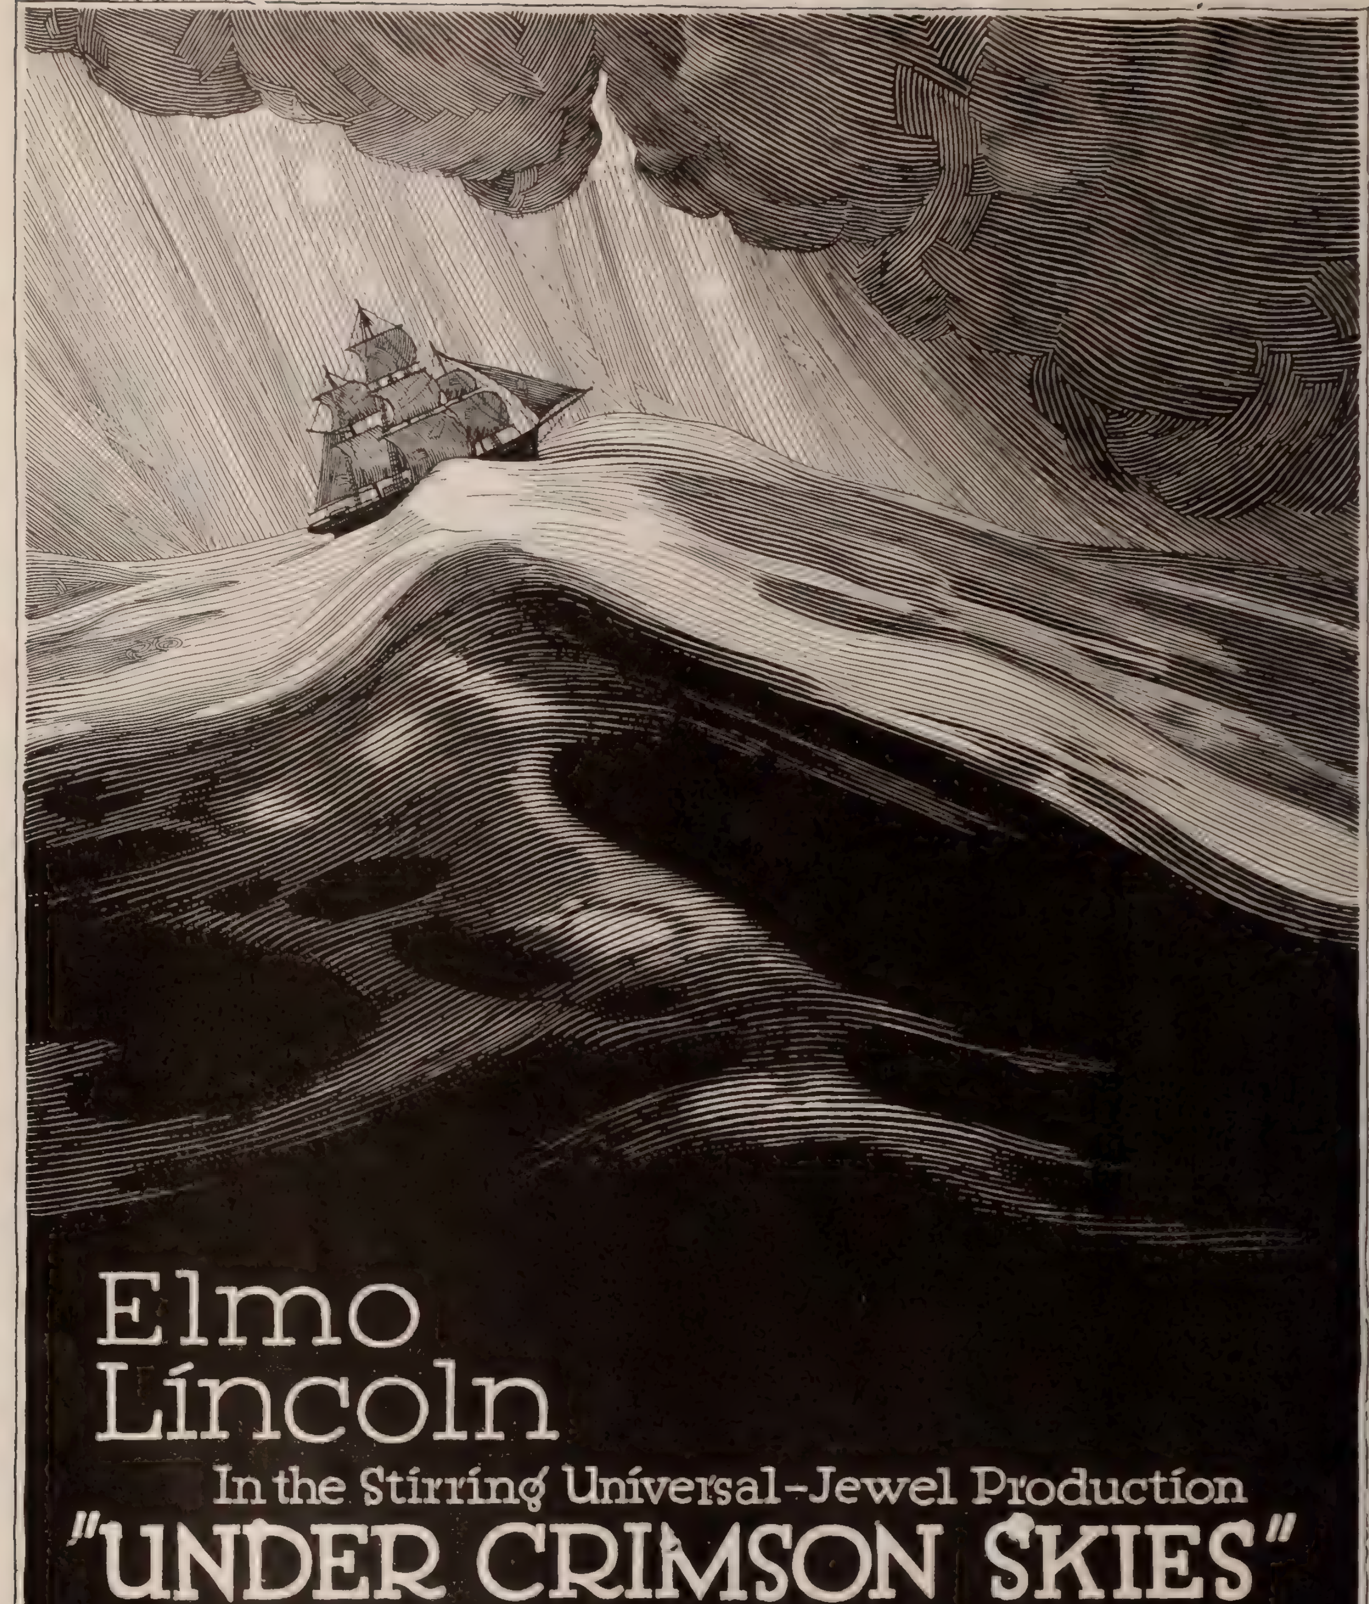
"FOOTLIGHTS"

An elaborate variety of sets and gowns is included in "Reputation." One of the features of the picture is the premiere of a New York theatrical success. This was filmed in the large theatre interior at Universal City, the size of the Metropolitan Opera house in New York.

In the play, Miss Dean wears gowns of the Louis XIV. period of France. This sequence of scenes gives an unusual touch of color to the picture.

The theatre scenes, including the back stage activities, were filmed with unusual accuracy. Miss Levin, who wrote the story, was on the New York stage for several years.

Both Miss Dean and Stuart Paton, the director, are former stage favorites and were able to present this intimate knowledge in the picture.



Elmo Lincoln

In the Stirring Universal-Jewel Production

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by Rex Ingram

Story by J. G. Hawks

TSURU AOKI

ARTHUR CAREWE

ETHEL SHANNON

STANHOPE WHEATCROFT

J·BARNEY SHERRY

Carl Laemmle
offers an

All Star Cast

in a great throbbing drama of secret diplomacy and the three loves of woman

"The Breath of the Gods"

Directed by
Rollin Sturgeon
from the novel by
Sidney McCall

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL

RIGHT now there's one star riding on a wave of popularity that's making thousands of dollars extra profit for exhibitors. That star is Priscilla Dean. Today, in hundreds of theatres, her newest picture, "Outside The Law," is absolutely cleaning up. If you are a small-town exhibitor you can cash in—NOW—on that popularity by booking "The Virgin of Stamboul," one of the greatest money-getters of recent years.

PRISCILLA DEAN

In the Stupendous
Universal-Jewel

"The VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

Directed by Tod Browning

Story by H. H. Van Loan

What Small Town Exhibitors say of Von Stroheims Wonder play

"The DEVILS PASSKEY"

Universal-Jewel

Rigler of Hamilton Extended His Run Additional 2 Days!

"THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY' proved a knockout—so much so that I extended my run an additional two days. I regard it as the most artistic and most interesting picture Universal has ever released. It is even better than 'Blind Husbands,' which I also played to capacity audiences."

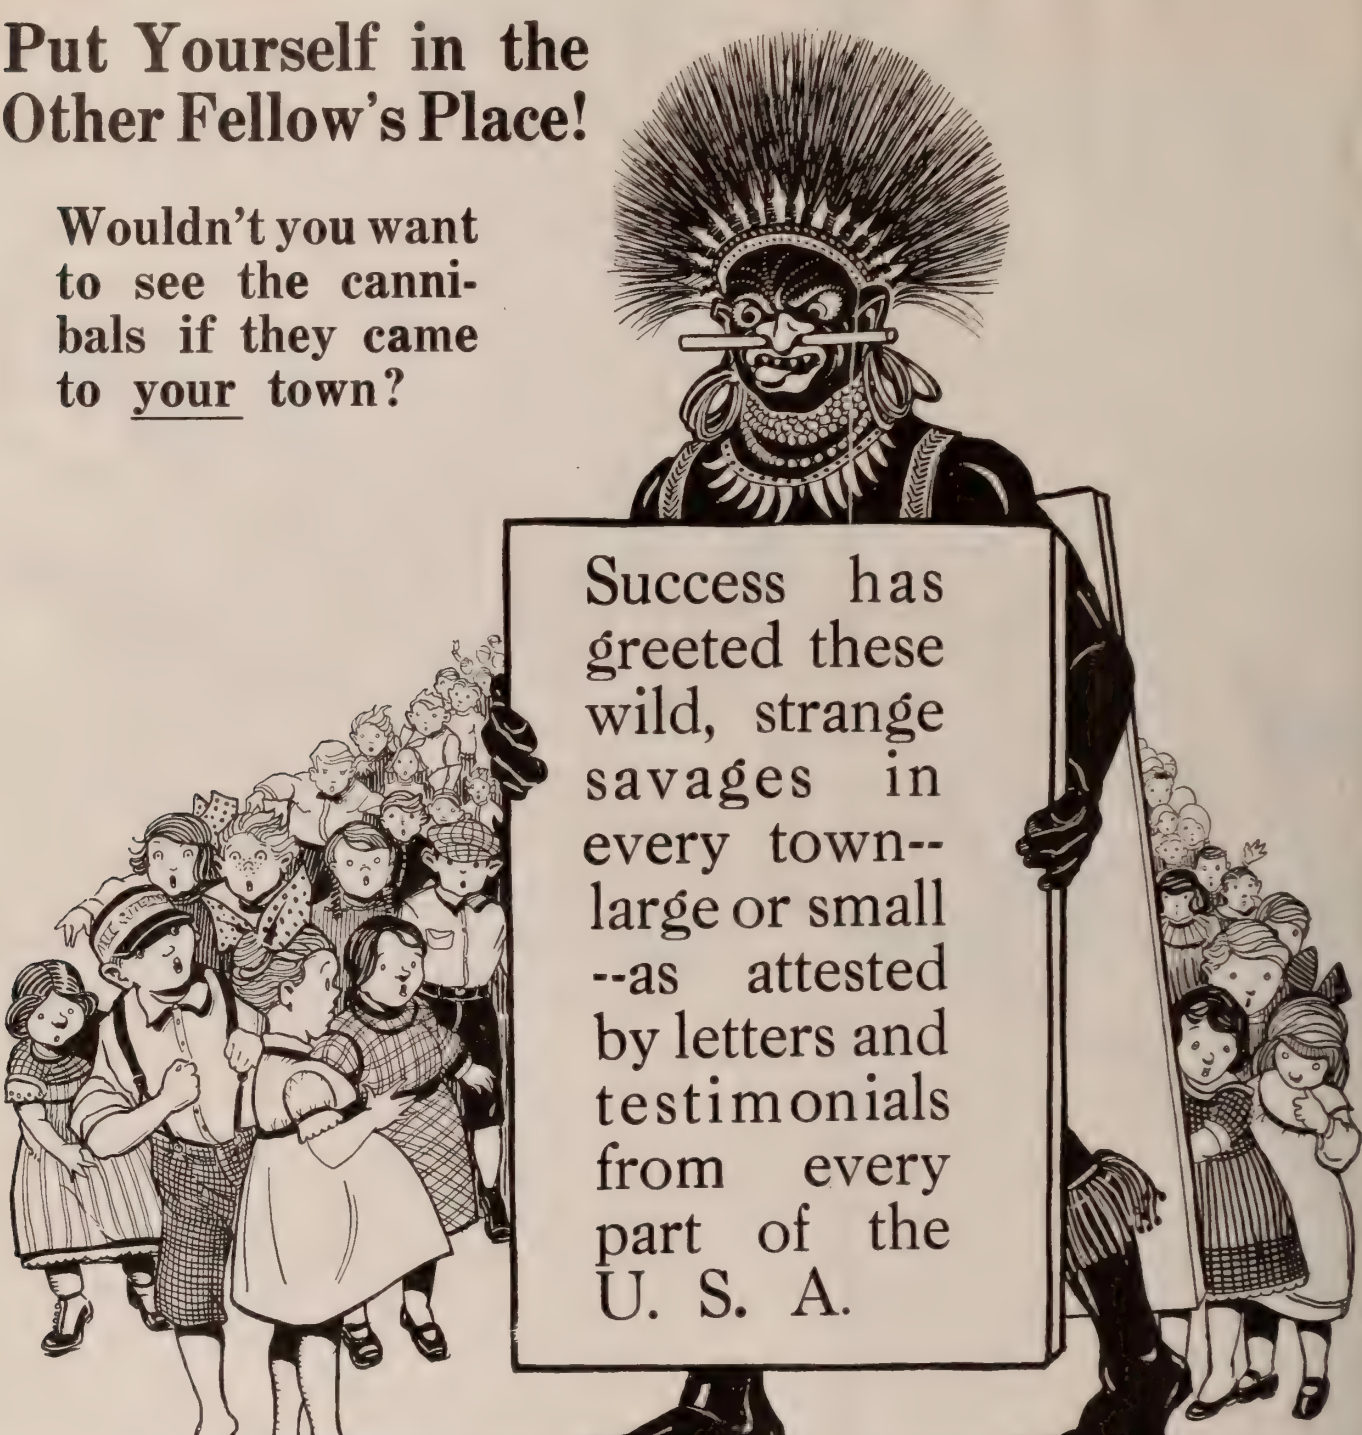
TOM RIGLER, Park Theatre,
Hannibal Missouri.

"THE best I have ever run. I heard more favorable comments on it than on any other picture in ten years. Box office receipts on second day were best on any picture run. Anyone who passes up this master picture is passing up his best bet."

C. L. HACKWORTH, Grand Theatre,
Huntsville, Alabama.

Put Yourself in the Other Fellow's Place!

Wouldn't you want to see the cannibals if they came to your town?



Success has greeted these wild, strange savages in every town--large or small--as attested by letters and testimonials from every part of the U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL - JEWEL

SHIPWRECKED among CANNIBALS

IN PRAISE OF JEWELS

Eligin, Illinois,
March 17th, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Chicago, Illinois.

I am sure you will be interested in knowing that I have broken all box-office records of the Grove Theatre with "Outside The Law." We opened Tuesday, the 15th, usually the poorest day of the week, with capacity business afternoon and night. This with "Behold My Wife" as competition, playing day and date and extensively advertised.

Wednesday attendance exceeded that of Tuesday, and expect daily improvement in box-office returns each day of the five days' run. Patrons all delighted with the picture. Teaser campaign on billboards, and papers, with the postals created great interest throughout the city.

I consider "Outside The Law" the best picture ever brought to Elgin. I want to extend congratulations to Universal on their excellent productions, and to thank you for your valuable co-operation in putting this splendid picture over.

Very truly yours,
C. S. McBRIEN,
Grove Theatre.

Bristol, Colo.,
March 14th, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Denver, Colorado.

I feel that I owe you and my fellow exhibitors this information.

In these days of critics, censorship and knockers, a person hardly knows what to show, and where I have always been complimented on the clear pictures I have shown, I know there are others less fortunate. And for these, I would suggest the following:

Invite all the public school teachers, Sunday school teachers, and above all—ministers, to attend an advance or private showing of "Once To Every Woman," and believe me, you'll have friends and boosters for your place, where before they were anything but that.

To quote the words of one of my patrons (who seldom came unless a wild and woolly was the feature), "I will spend $2 for gas, give $2 for a seat, to see this show again." Some recommendation I call that, don't you?

Very truly yours, G. A. BAUER,
Princess Theatre.

Roland, Iowa,
March 7, 1921.

Universal Film Exchange,
Des Moines, Iowa.

Well, you did it after all. Remember Harry, I used to say, I like to see Universal make a picture that would break my box-office records.

"Outside The Law" broke it all right and it did not have as good a chance as "Male And Female" did which I played a year ago January 1st, as this is my best day of the year. I did not advertise "Outside The Law" as much as "Male And Female" by far. Newspaper ad on "Outside The Law," cost $1.00 and on "Male And Female" $6.00, so you see here is another place I did not give it a chance.

I remember my first Saturday night in the picture game. My box-office receipts were $24.00. Thought that was a land-office business. Now here is "Outside The Law" pulled out as good as $150.00. My next mark is $200.00 and I dare you to sell me a picture that will do it. I'll never forget "Outside The Law." My patrons said they never saw an eight-reel picture go as fast as that one did, and if any small-town exhibitor turns this picture down it will be his own funeral. He can't go wrong. I don't care if he only puts out a one-sheet, the name alone will pull them in.

Three hundred and twenty-five adults and fifteen children saw "Outside The Law." Prices charged were 25c and 50c, tax added. I did not advertise a picture for the children, as I needed the room. "Male And Female" admitted two hundred and sixty-eight adults—no children.

P. S.—Don't blame me for the condition your oil paintings are in. I returned them the same way I received them. You will see where I had them on display in a few days.

I. M. HALVORSON,
Lyric Theatre.

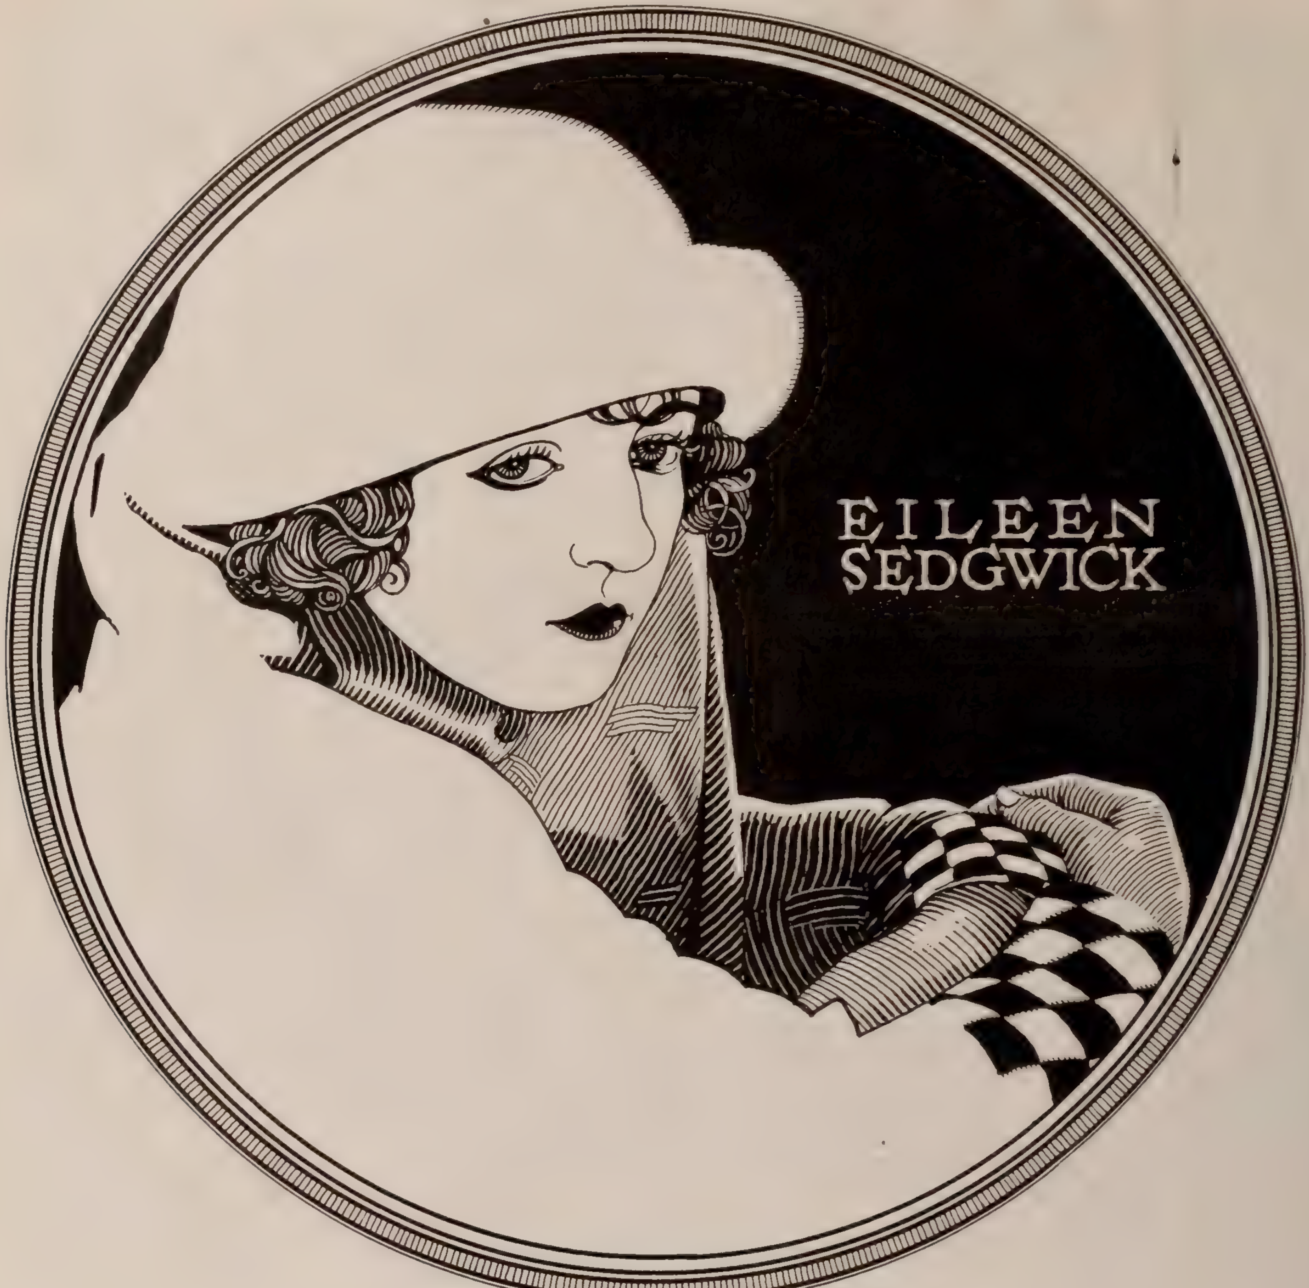
FLASHES BY WIRE

"Once To Every Woman" opened at New Garrick Theatre, Monday. Capacity business. Last night, Tuesday, crowds were in line for nearly a block. Bigger business than they ever expected possible. Opposition—Arbuckle, Lyceum; "Black Beauty," Fominion; Ray at Allen; Hart at Province. Garrick doing only real business in town.

H. M. HERBEL,
Winnipeg, Man.

Just finished first week "Outside The Law" in my Liberty Theatre. That we broke all previous records for attendance is not surprising. This picture sure went over big and pleased everybody. Recommend highly as the most wonderful melodrama and great money maker. I am waiting for your next Priscilla Dean.

SAM HARDING,
Kansas City, Mo.



THERE'S a certain particular appeal about a beautiful and fearless girl serial star that makes her appearances invaluable to exhibitors. And beautiful Eileen Sedgwick has no equal as a feminine serial star. She is a combination of charm and courage such as has helped immeasurably to make "The Diamond Queen" one of the biggest drawing cards of the season. Play it!

The Strangest Serial-Thriller Ever Screened

directed by EDWARD KULL

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Eddie Polo

in

"King of the Circus"

Directed by
J.P. Mc Gowan

THE circus atmosphere in this greatest Polo serial is just one of the features that make it the tremendous hit it is. Speed, thrills and stunts such as only Peerless Eddie Polo can put over give this serial a pulling power that often shades the feature. It means a lot to an exhibitor to have a serial like this, particularly when he knows that it's just as clean as it is fast. When do you start running it?

New "Brownie" Films Funnier Than Ever

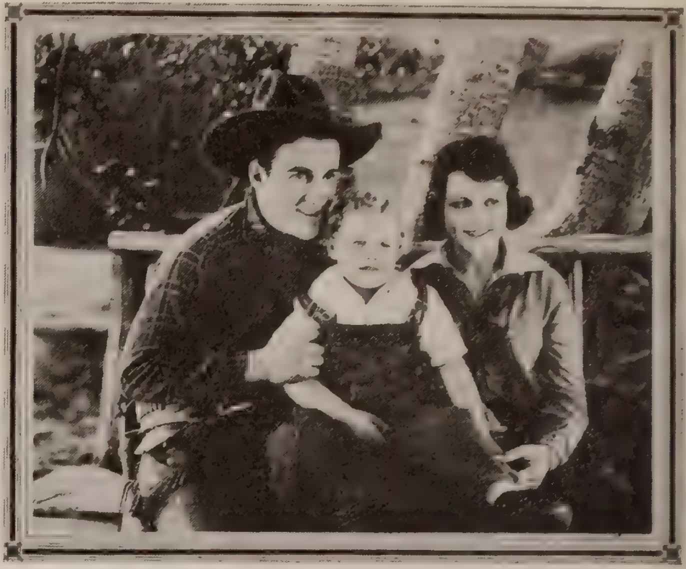
Harry Sweet, rapidly becoming one of the most popular screen comedians, and "Brownie," the Century Wonder Dog, will soon be seen in one of the best fun films ever released. "The Kid's Pal," their latest comedy is now nearing completion at the Hollywood plant of the Century Film Corporation.

Fred Fishback, who directed "Brownie" in his previous pictures, and the cleverest dog in the movies, have extended their contracts with the Century Film Corporation. Fishback, during the two years he has been with the Century company, has made some of that company's most successful comedies. He has been particularly successful in making pictures featuring "Brownie" and the Century Lions.

He recently signed up with Century for two more years. "The Dog doctor," his recent Century fun-film, now being distributed by Universal, is setting a new mark of Century Comedy popularity. The two-reeler featured "Brownie," Harry Sweet and Louise Lorraine.

"Brownie" undoubtedly is the cleverest dog in pictures. For the past two years he has been one of the stars of the Century comedy unit. He also has appeared in other pictures, having been engaged for "A Dog's Life," the popular Chaplin film, "Pink Pajamas," a William Parson production and "Blind Men's Eyes," a Metro picture with Bert Lytell, as well as in several Universal Westerns and serials.

Brownie, the Century Wonder Dog, renews his contract to star with Harry Sweet.



Jack Perrin, youngest star in his Western unit, and Louise Lorraine.

New Western Drama Star Made Name in Serials

Louise Lorraine, one of the most attractive girls to graduate from comedy films into Western dramas, has been definitely signed up to support Jack Perrin, leading man for one of Universal's "Western" units.

Born in San Francisco, nineteen years ago, of French and Spanish parentage, little Miss Lorraine inherits all the fire and temperament which have attracted so much attention to her on the screen. Her olive complexion, dark eyes and jet black hair make an ideal combination for the films.

Louise Lorraine made her first appearance in the films about two years ago in Century Comedies, and after a short time was playing important rôles. When she played the leading ingenue rôle in "The Fighter," directed by Lloyd Carlton, she displayed such ability that she was engaged to play opposite the Herculean Elmo Lincoln.

Edward Laemmle, nephew of the president of the Universal Film Company, Mr. Carl Laemmle, and one of the two cameramen who filmed "Shipwrecked Among Cannibals" in New Guinea, is said to be responsible for getting Miss Lorraine to change from comedy to drama. He is the director for Jack Perrin.

Miss Lorraine's acting in the Elmo Lincoln serials convinced him, Mr. Laemmle said, that she could make good in Western drama. Upon the formation of the Laemmle-Perrin western unit, the young director engaged her as principal female player.

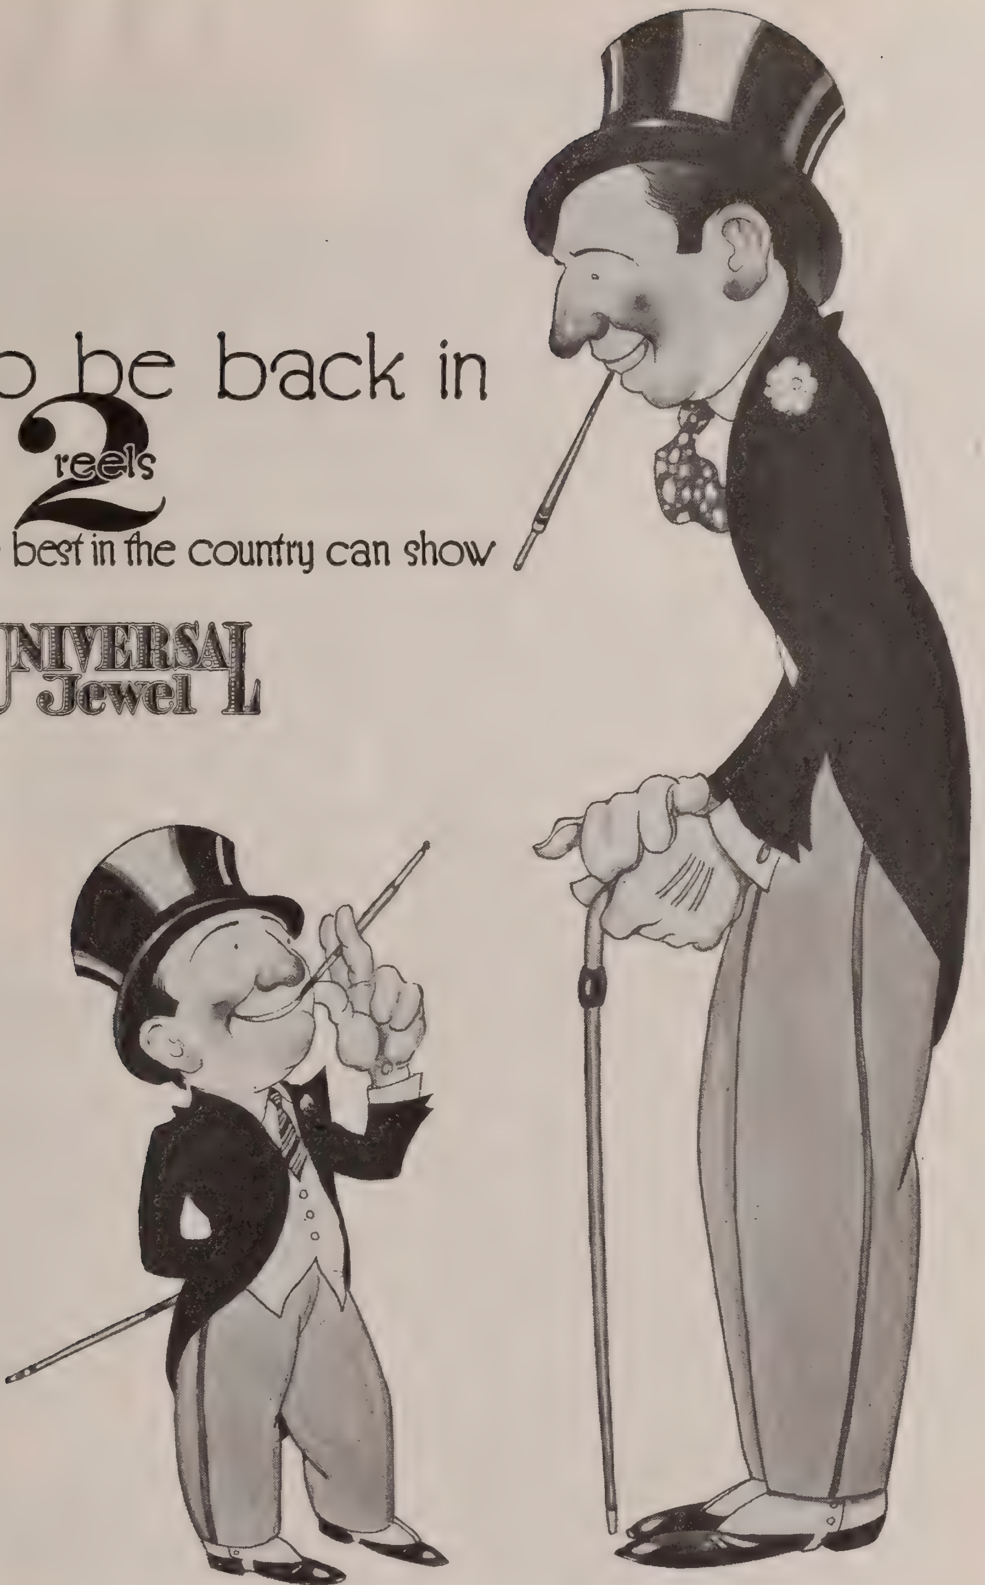
Although born in Michigan, Jack Perrin spent most of his life in Los Angeles and is a graduate of the Manual Arts High School. His ambitions had always been toward a screen career and when the opportunity presented itself of working as an extra on the old Keystone lot, Perrin jumped at the chance. It is a strange coincidence that Kathleen O'Connor and Jeck Perrin, after breaking into the picture game together at the Keystone should be reunited after three years in "The Strange Case of Cavendish."

Soon to be back in

2 reels

the best that the best in the country can show

UNIVERSAL Jewel



LYONS and MORAN

Mountains that Move

All Brand Ne

HERE'S the boy that beat "The Moonriders"—and an exciting job it was. But multiply that by a hundred and you'll get an idea of what Art Acord pulls in this new thriller. Action? We'll say so. Acord's a human buzz saw, and what he can't do with a rope and a horse just simply can't be done. What's more, your folks know it. That's why your cash drawer will look like the Johnstown flood when you show this serial.

Art Acord

in a whooping, wild-western,
burning-hot action serial

"The Whit

Spidermen that Thrill!

! All Sure Fire!

THAT mysterious moving mountain is what's going to get 'em. Can't you hear 'em shout when a whole mountain side opens up and uncovers the secret cave containing millions of dollars in gems? And those Spidermen! WOW! There's nothing that gang wouldn't do to learn the secret. But they have to reckon with Art Acord—and he's the boy that furnishes enough action and thrills for even the most thrill-hungry serialites. This surely is the Good Luck Serial—BOOK IT.

Horseman"

Directed by Al Russell

Ask Your Nearest Exchange For Information About Films

Consult With the Managers of Our Exchanges to Book the Pictures Advertised in This Magazine

Albany, N. Y.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 657 Broadway; C. Halligan, Manager.

Atlanta, Ga.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 111 Walton St.; William Oldknow, Manager.

Boston, Mass. — American Feature Film Co., 60 Church St.; Harry Asher, President.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 257 Franklin St.; M. A. Chase, Manager.

Butte, Mont.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 23 So. Montana St.; A. W. Skoog, Manager.

Calgary, Can. — Canadian Universal Film Co., 407 W. Eighth Ave.; G. Kohn, Manager.

Charleston, W. Va.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 707 Dryden St.; J. E. Daly, Manager.

Charlotte, N. C.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 307 W. Trade St.; E. F. Dardine, Manager.

Chicago, Ill.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 220 South State St.; I. Leserman, Manager.

Cincinnati, Ohio—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Broadway and Pioneer Sts.; Cleve Adams, Manager.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Prospect Ave. and Huron; A. A. Schmidt, Manager.

Dallas, Texas.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 1900 Commerce St.; N. E. Depinet, Manager.

Denver, Colo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1422 Welton St.; E. Gerbase, Manager.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 918 Locust St.; E. B. Haines, Manager.

Detroit, Mich.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 63 E. Elizabeth St.; Jos. Friedman, Manager.

El Paso, Texas.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 110 E. Franklin St.; R. McIlheran, Manager.

Ft. Smith, Ark.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 709 Rogers Ave.; C. H. White, Manager.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 113 W. Georgia St.; R. W. Abbett, Manager.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 1015½ W. Bay St.; J. R. Barton, Manager.

Kansas City, Mo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Main and 17th Sts.; J. H. Calvert, Manager.

Los Angeles, Cal. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 822 So. Olive St.; C. Theuerkauf, Manager.

Memphis, Tenn.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 226 Union Ave.; W. E. Sipe, Manager.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 174 Second St.; George Levine, Manager.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 21-25 Third St.; I. Gettelson, Manager.

Montreal, Can.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 12 Mayor St.; D. Leduc, Manager.

New Haven, Conn.—Big U Film Exchange, 126 Meadow St.; M. Joseph, Manager.

New Orleans, La.—Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 914 Gravier St.; W. Richardson, Manager.

New York, N. Y.—Big U Film Exchange, 1600 Broadway; Charles Rozenzweig, Manager.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 312 W. California St.; S. Benjamin, Manager.

Omaha, Neb. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1304 Farnum St.; H. F. Lefholtz, Manager.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Interstate Films, Inc., 1304 Vine St.; E. J. Smith, V. R. Garrick.

Pittsburg, Pa. — Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 1018 Forbes St.; A. R. Cherry, Manager.

Portland, Me. — American Feature Film Co., 85 Market St.; Harry Asher, President.

Portland, Ore.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 405 Davis St.; D. Brill, Manager.

St. John, N. B., Canada.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 87 Union St.; H. L. Craig, Manager.

St. Louis, Mo.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 2116 Locust St.; B. Rosenthal, Manager.

Salt Lake, Utah.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 56 Exchange Pl.; G. Hager, Manager.

San Francisco, Cal.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 221 Golden Gate Ave.; C. A. Nathan, Manager.

Seattle, Wash.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 215 Virginia St.; George Bourke, Manager.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., Colonial Theatre Bldg.; S. W. Fitch, Manager.

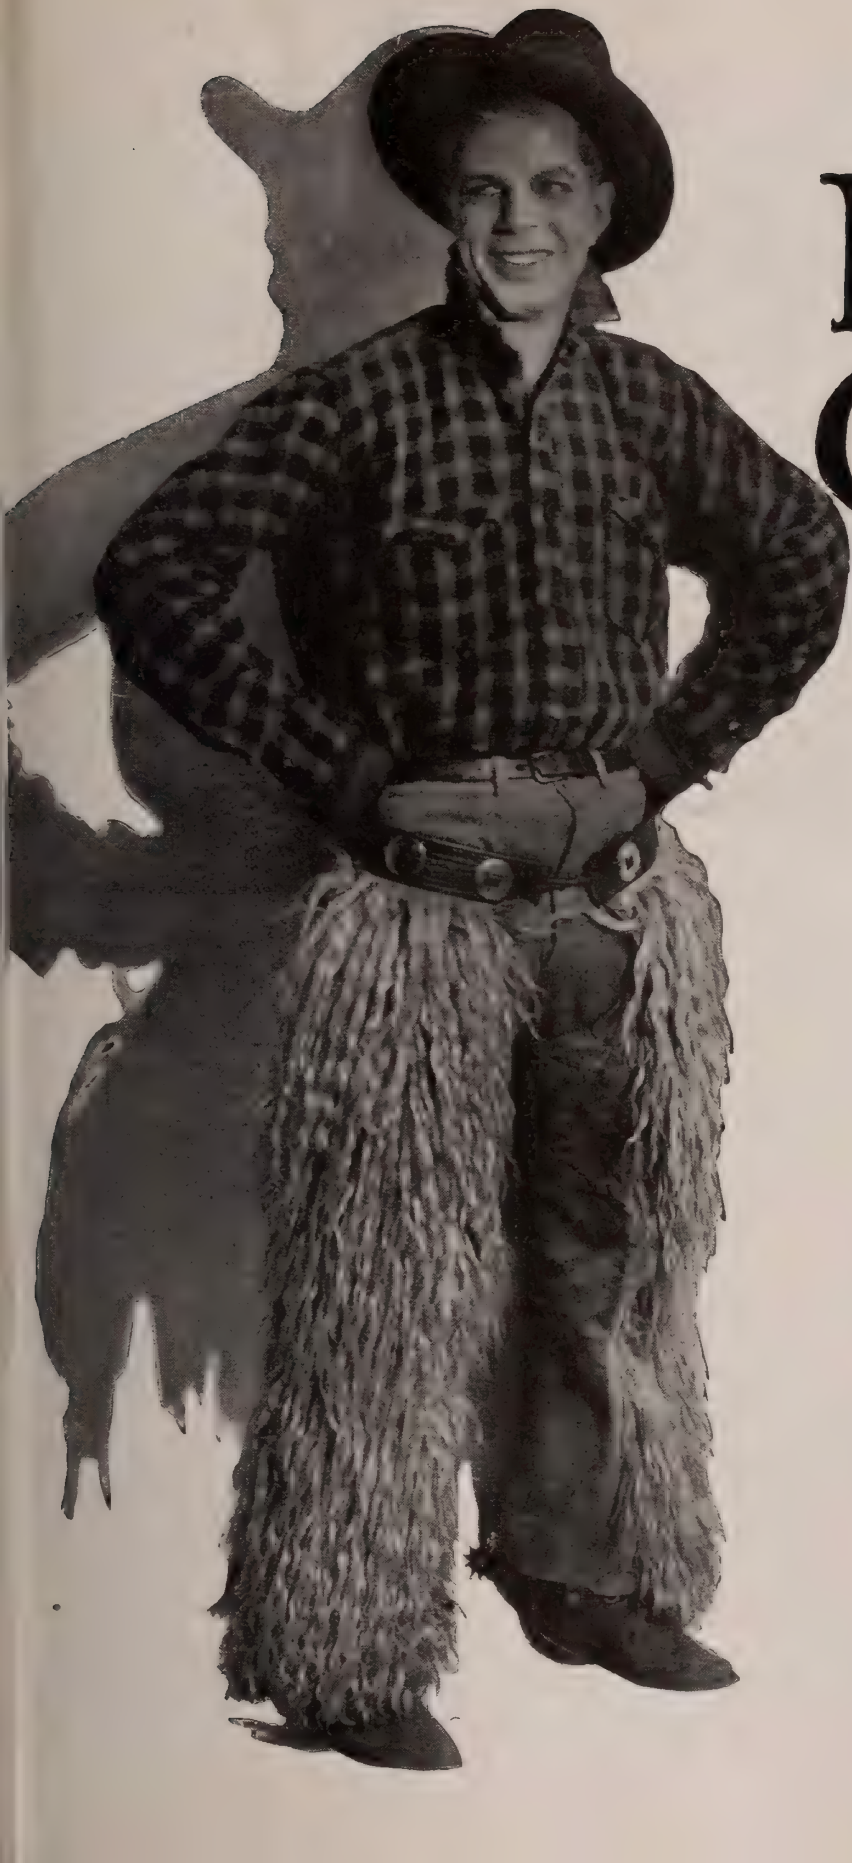
Spokane, Wash.—Universal Film Exchange, Inc., 10 South Barnard St.; A. H. McMillan, Manager.

Toronto, Can.—Canadian Universal Film Co., 350 Yonge St.; C. Hague, Manager.

Vancouver, B. C., Can. — Canadian Universal Film Co., 553 Granville St.; L. Jacobs, Manager.

Washington, D. C.—Washington Film Exchange, 307 9th St., N. W.; Jules Levy, Manager.

Winnipeg, Man., Can.—Universal Film Co., 40 Aikens Bldg.; Geo. F. Law, Manager.



Play Smiling

HOOT GIBSON

in his New

"Texas Ranger"

series

THINGS are getting to the point where they don't care a hoot about the feature if you'll only give 'em Hoot in a Universal two-reel Western.

CURRENT RELEASES

"THE CACTUS KID"

"WHO WAS THE MAN?

No man with "Reggie" on his calling cards could stick to a "bronc" like that. Who was he? See . . . .

"Who Was The Man?"

Two-reel Western Drama

CAST

Reginald	Hoot Gibson
Clem Judson	Charles Newton
Blake	John Judd
Tex	Ben Corbett
Dolly Judson	Marcella Pershing

REGGIE, the son of an Eastern pard of Clem Judson, owner of the Oxo Ranch is given a warm reception by the boys when he arrives at the ranch.

Out on the range Reggie sees Blake in conference with two rustlers and later learns that much stock has been lost. When Blake sees that Dolly likes the tenderfoot he tries desperately for some way to bring Reggie into disfavor. In Reggies clothes Blake finds a letter which would indicate that he is married and has a family.

After Blake tells this to Dolly she rebukes the tenderfoot and sends him away without a chance for an explanation. But he has no time for explanations as he has tracked the rustlers down and located their hiding place.

REGGIE MIXES IT

Reggie follows Blake back to the ranch house as Judson and his men ride out. Dolly is about to consent to marry Blake, so disappointed is she with Reggie, when the Easterner arrives and things start to happen. In a short, fast fight Reggie knocks Blake through a door and locks him in while he carries Dolly off.

Blake and several of his men follow Reggie who gets a lead on them, and locks Dolly in a small cabin and then leads Blake on to the rustlers camp where he is caught by Judson and his men. Reggie returns to Dolly and rides for the minister's house.

He is just about to marry the breathless Dolly when Judson and his men burst into the room. Explanations are quickly made establishing Reggie as a Texas Ranger detailed to clean up the gang of rustlers operating on Judson's property. The letter causing all the trouble was from his married sister and after that Dolly has'nt a word of resistance.

Eileen Sedgwick in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN" A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 14

"The Pit Of Horror"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Benson	Al Smith
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Aline Earle	Josephine Scott

PLUNGING downward, Doris falls into a pool of water in the black pit, and, rising to the surface, sees with horror, gruesome denizens of the pit who have fallen to the last level of addiction to drugs and crime. These creatures advance upon her when a wall door quickly opens, and Doris, who has been cringing against it, falls out into an underground passage. The wall door closes again upon the creatures of the pit and Doris is surprised to find herself gazing up into the eyes of none other than Czenki, the diamond trust's famous expert, garbed as an oriental. Czenki refuses to divulge why he is befriending her until a later day, and helps her to escape from the underground sewer workings through a manhole to the street overhead.

But Doris is seen and recaptured by Benson and his men, who are returning to the den. This time, she is incarcerated in a mysterious Chinese establishment.

PUT TO TORTURE

Benson has already promised Zeidt that if Doris refuses to talk when he returns to her he will put her to torture and make her reveal the source of her diamonds. It is Zeidt's plan to seize Doris' supply and destroy the source. Benson now gets Doris in a corner of the den and asks her if she is ready to talk. Doris refuses.

Outside, in the streets of Chinatown, Aline Earle, now recovered from her desperate illness, is searching for Doris, aided by "Shadow" Kelly. At the same time Bruce is combing Chinatown in an effort to pick up Doris' lost trail.

In the den, Benson villainously tries to force Doris to reveal her secret. When threats and minor abuses fail, he takes forth a hyperdermic needle and vial of some mysterious, deadly, torturesome drug—and starts to administer to her the fiendish torture he had intended for Bruce in the waterfront shack.

"Harem Scarem"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

HARRY SWEET AND THE CENTURY LIONS

THE Rajah's favorite dancer is held a prisoner in her room. She ties a message to a brick which she throws from her window, hitting Harry on the head as he is walking along the street below.

He immediately breaks into the building and goes to her room. She is guarded by several lions to prevent her escape. The guards liberate the lions in order to stop Harry from freeing the dancer.

He manages to escape with the girl into one of the rooms and then releases the other lions. They chase the Rajah around until he is forced to hide in a large chest. Then Harry locks two of the guards up in the cages with the lions and leaves the harem with the favorite dancer of the old Rajah.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

"West Is West"
"Hearts Up!"
" 'If Only' Jim"
"The Freeze Out"

Starring

FRANK MAYO

"The Marriage Pit"
"Honor Bound"
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"
"The Magnificent Brue"

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

"La La Lucille"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"
"The Unknown Wife"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"
"The Dangerous Moment"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"
"The Smart Sex"

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

"Pink Tights"
"Risky Business"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"

WITH A SPECIAL CAST

"Under Northern Lights"
"Two Kinds Of Love"

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"

"The Great Air Robbery"

"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)

"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

"No Monkey Business"
"A Wild Night"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

"The Driftin' Kid"
"Sweet Revenge"
"Kickaroo"
"Out O' Luck"
"The Cactus Kid"
"Who Was The Man?"

Starring

JACK PERRIN

"The Trigger Trail"
"Big Bob"
"The Midnight Raiders"
"The Knockout Man"

Red Rider Series

Featuring

LEONARD CLAPHAM

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

"Elmo, The Fearless"
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

"The Dragon's Net"

Starring

ART ACORD

"The White Horseman"

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Fire Bugs"
"His Fearful Finish"
"Puppy Love"
"Fresh From The Farm"
"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"
"Seeing Is Believing"
ugh Luck"
"Harem-Skarem"

One Reel Star Comedies

"His Lady Friend"
(with Joe Martin)
"My Lady's Ankle"
(with Robert Anderson

also

"Simple and Sweet"
"Milk and Yeggs"
"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"
"Twin Husbands"
"When Eve Fell"
"Who Kissed Me?"
"Movie-Struck"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE-A-WEEK

"Tough Luck"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring

HARRY SWEET

RATHER than walk under a ladder or let a black cat cross his path Harry would walk two miles out of his way. While riding along in his flivver he sees a black cat about to cross in front of the car. He chases the cat and is run over by a limousine in which is a decidedly pretty girl. Harry loses his heart, but she drives off after seeing that he is not hurt.

Walking along the street he meets a man and agrees to deliver a note for the stranger. The doctor who receives the message locks Harry up in a room guarded by iron bars. While there he learns that the girl he saw is the daughter of the doctor.

With the help of "Brownie," the Century Wonder Dog, who trips up the doctor at the right time, they manage to escape and are married.

"Movie Struck"

One-Reel Star Comedy

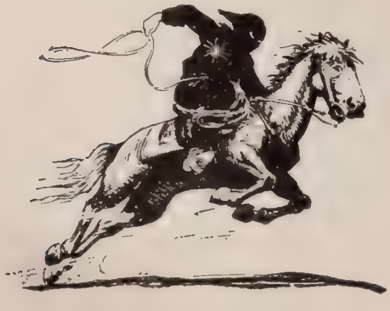
Featuring

BILLY FLETCHER

BETTY, unknown to her husband, attends Professor Van's School of Acting. He discovers this and bribes the professor to let him take his place for a while.

With a makeup he puts his wife through some stunts to see if she can act. He then goes into the next room and after changing clothes comes back through the front door and accuses Betty of loving the professor.

Billy threatens to kill the professor, and is in the next room throwing furniture around, when a cop arrives to find out the trouble. Billy explains things to the officer, who tells the wife the professor is no more. She returns home repentent and obedient to him.



"The White Horseman"

Episode No. 5

"Trails Of Treachery"

CAST

Allen	Art Acord
Ramsey	Duke R. Lee
Zona	Iva Forrester
Spider	Hank Bell

FROM his hiding place in Wong Foo's cellar, Ramsey sees the gang throw Zona, the Indian girl, through the man-hole into the underground stream and realizing that she had the bracelet on her hand, he rushes from hiding and drags her out. Untying her wrists, he is about to take the bracelet off when the mummy man appears through the back entrance.

Iva
Forrester
with
ART ACORD
in
The WHITE
HORSEMAN
Universal
Serial

At Wong Foo's the Spider tries to get the secret from Zona and is met by Allen. Allen is about to overpower the Spider when Foo trips Allen and he falls through the opening into the underground stream. He manages to grab a projecting rock in the wall, however, and works his way back up into the room again.

Allen gets up through the manhole and with the Spider's own guns, lines the men up against the wall while he and the girls escape.

They back out the entrance and are caught by the Spider's men. Breaking loose they stop inside of Foo's store and hold off the gang. The sound of the shooting brings Garcia and his men to the scene and they engage the outlaws in a street fight.

Allen barricades the door against them but he is drawn away from it by one of the Spider's men who slips in throught another window. With only Jean to hold the door closed Foo and the Spider have not much trouble in forcing the entrance.

Ramsey catches Zona and has almost succeeded in getting the bracelet from her wrist.

Jean, in Foo's store, is unable to maintain the barricade and it breaks down. Foo and the Spider grab her while Allen, knocked almost unconscious, is at the mercy of the outlaw whose knife has started down toward his heart.

International News

No. 24.

Pompeii, Italy. — Exploring the Dead City of Pompeii. Exclusive pictures made within the ancient Metropolis buried in 63 A. D. by the Vesuvius Volcano.

Cannes, France.—Gay Riveira's naval battle of flowers. Beautifully decorated craft vie for honors in famous resort's annual carnival.

Boston, Mass.—Boston Zoo starts school for elephants. In the City of Culture, the mammoth pachyderms must know more than how to eat peanuts.

Chicago, Ill.—A sunbeam for the White House. Miss Pearl Harding, second cousin to the President, will be the first young lady of the land.

Dusseldorf, Germany.—Seizure of German cities completed. British tanks dominate streets as Rhine towns are occupied.

Dallas, Texas.—Champion "Indians" play for charity. Cleveland team beats Kansas City Blues in fast exhibition game.

Baltimore, Md.—Cardinal Gibbons dies at age of 86. Intimate pictures of the famous prelate whose noble life was an inspiration for millions.

Camden, N. J.—Uncle Sam's mightiest dreadnaught launched. The Colorado, 33,000 ton craft, gets her first dip in the water.

In The Bengal, India.—Hunting big game in India's jungles. Exclusive pictures of the Duke of Connaught's expedition in the tropic jungles. (The Duke in camp.)

CARL LAEMMLE
is happy to announce the Engagement Extraordinary of that popular matinee Idol

MR. JOSEPH MARTIN

THE WORLD'S HANDSOMEST MONKEY TRAGEDIAN

in a TWO-REEL
Universal-Jewel
Romantic Drama
Specially adapted for him from the French
Directed by
Burns and Stecker

"A MONKEY HERO"

He's going to fascinate your women patrons with his maddening knowledge of their true motives

Coming

Von Stroheim's

Universal
Jewel
Masterpicture

"Foolish Wives"

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY

VOL.13, NO.9
APRIL 16
1921

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
DE LUXE

PRISCILLA DEAN
in "REPUTATION"

Coming!

GLADYS WALTON

the fascinating heroine of "Pink Tights" and "All Dolled Up" in a picture as thrilling as love at first sight

"DESPERATE YOUTH"

DIRECTED BY HARRY B. HARRIS

One of those
52 Good Pictures a Year

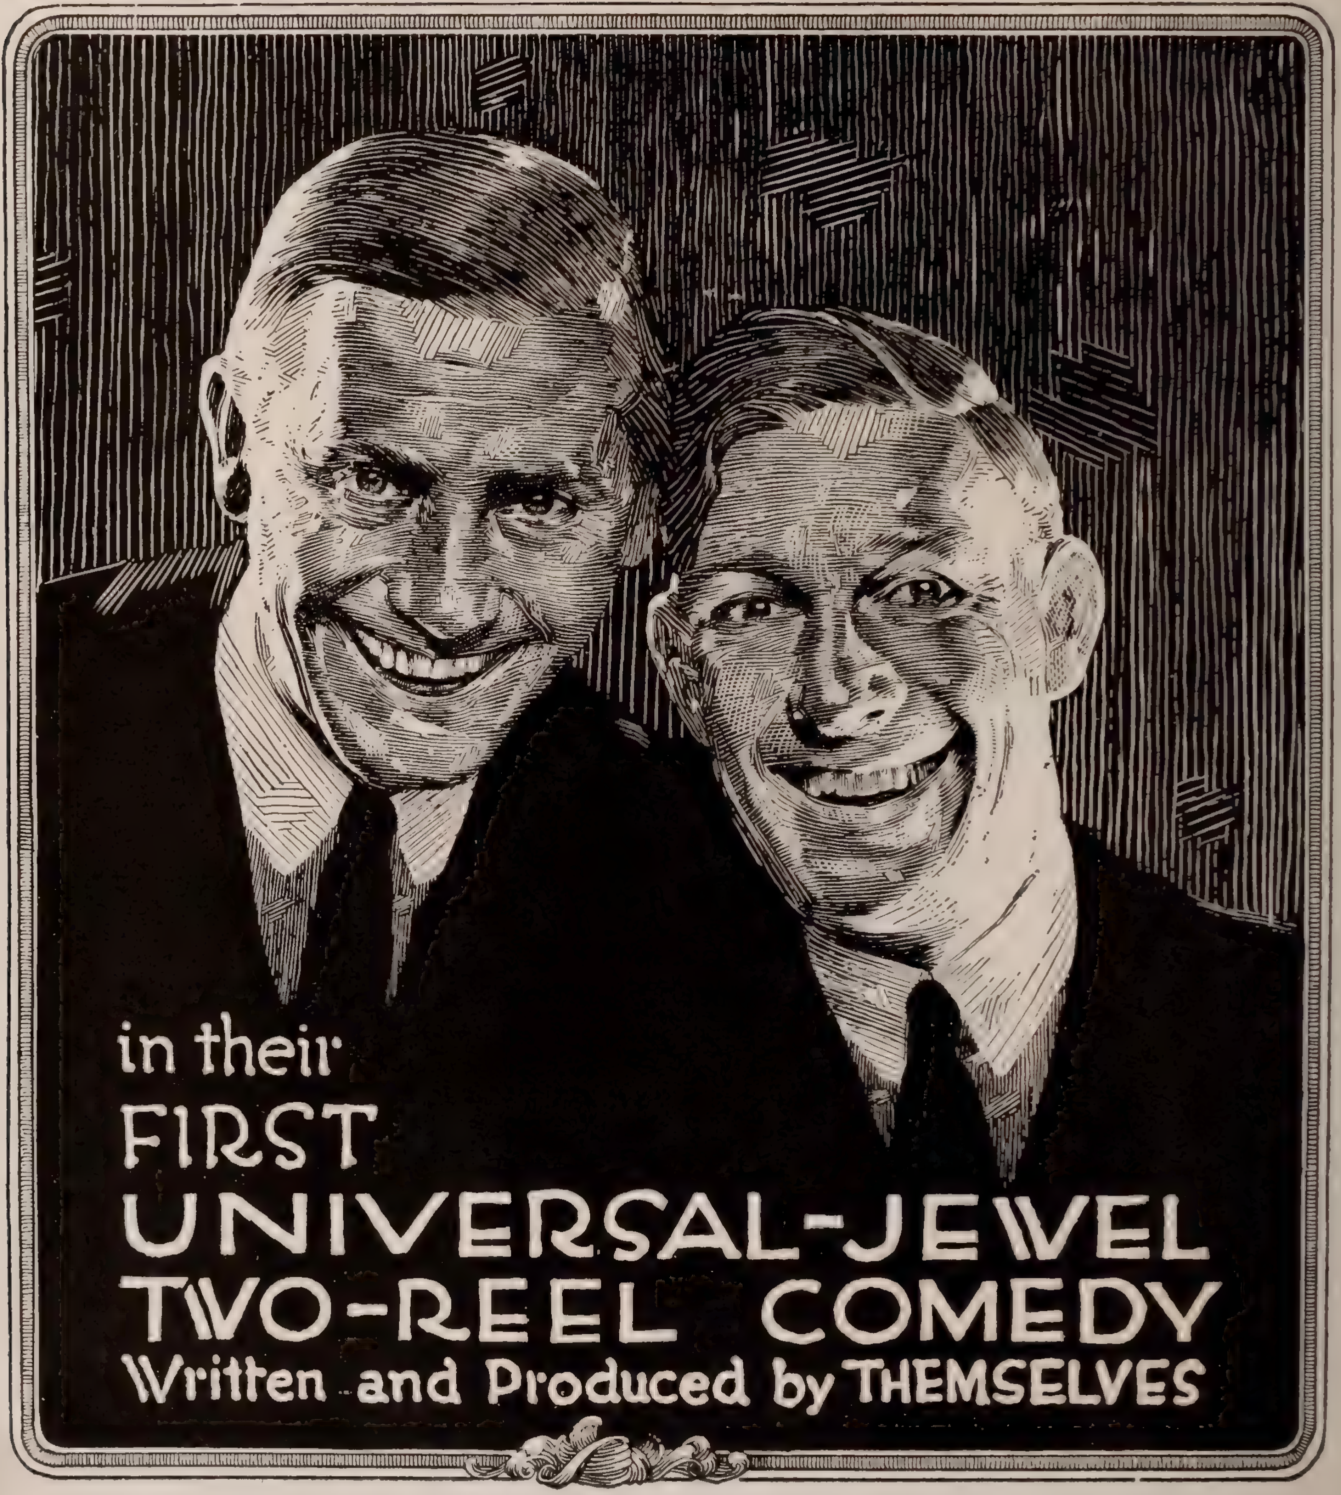
NOTICE

With the whole market starving for something new and clever and hilariously funny in two-reel comedies,

CARL LAEMMLE

announces —

LYONS and MORAN



in their
FIRST
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
TWO-REEL COMEDY
Written and Produced by THEMSELVES

IN

BLUE SUNDAY

Motion Picture News

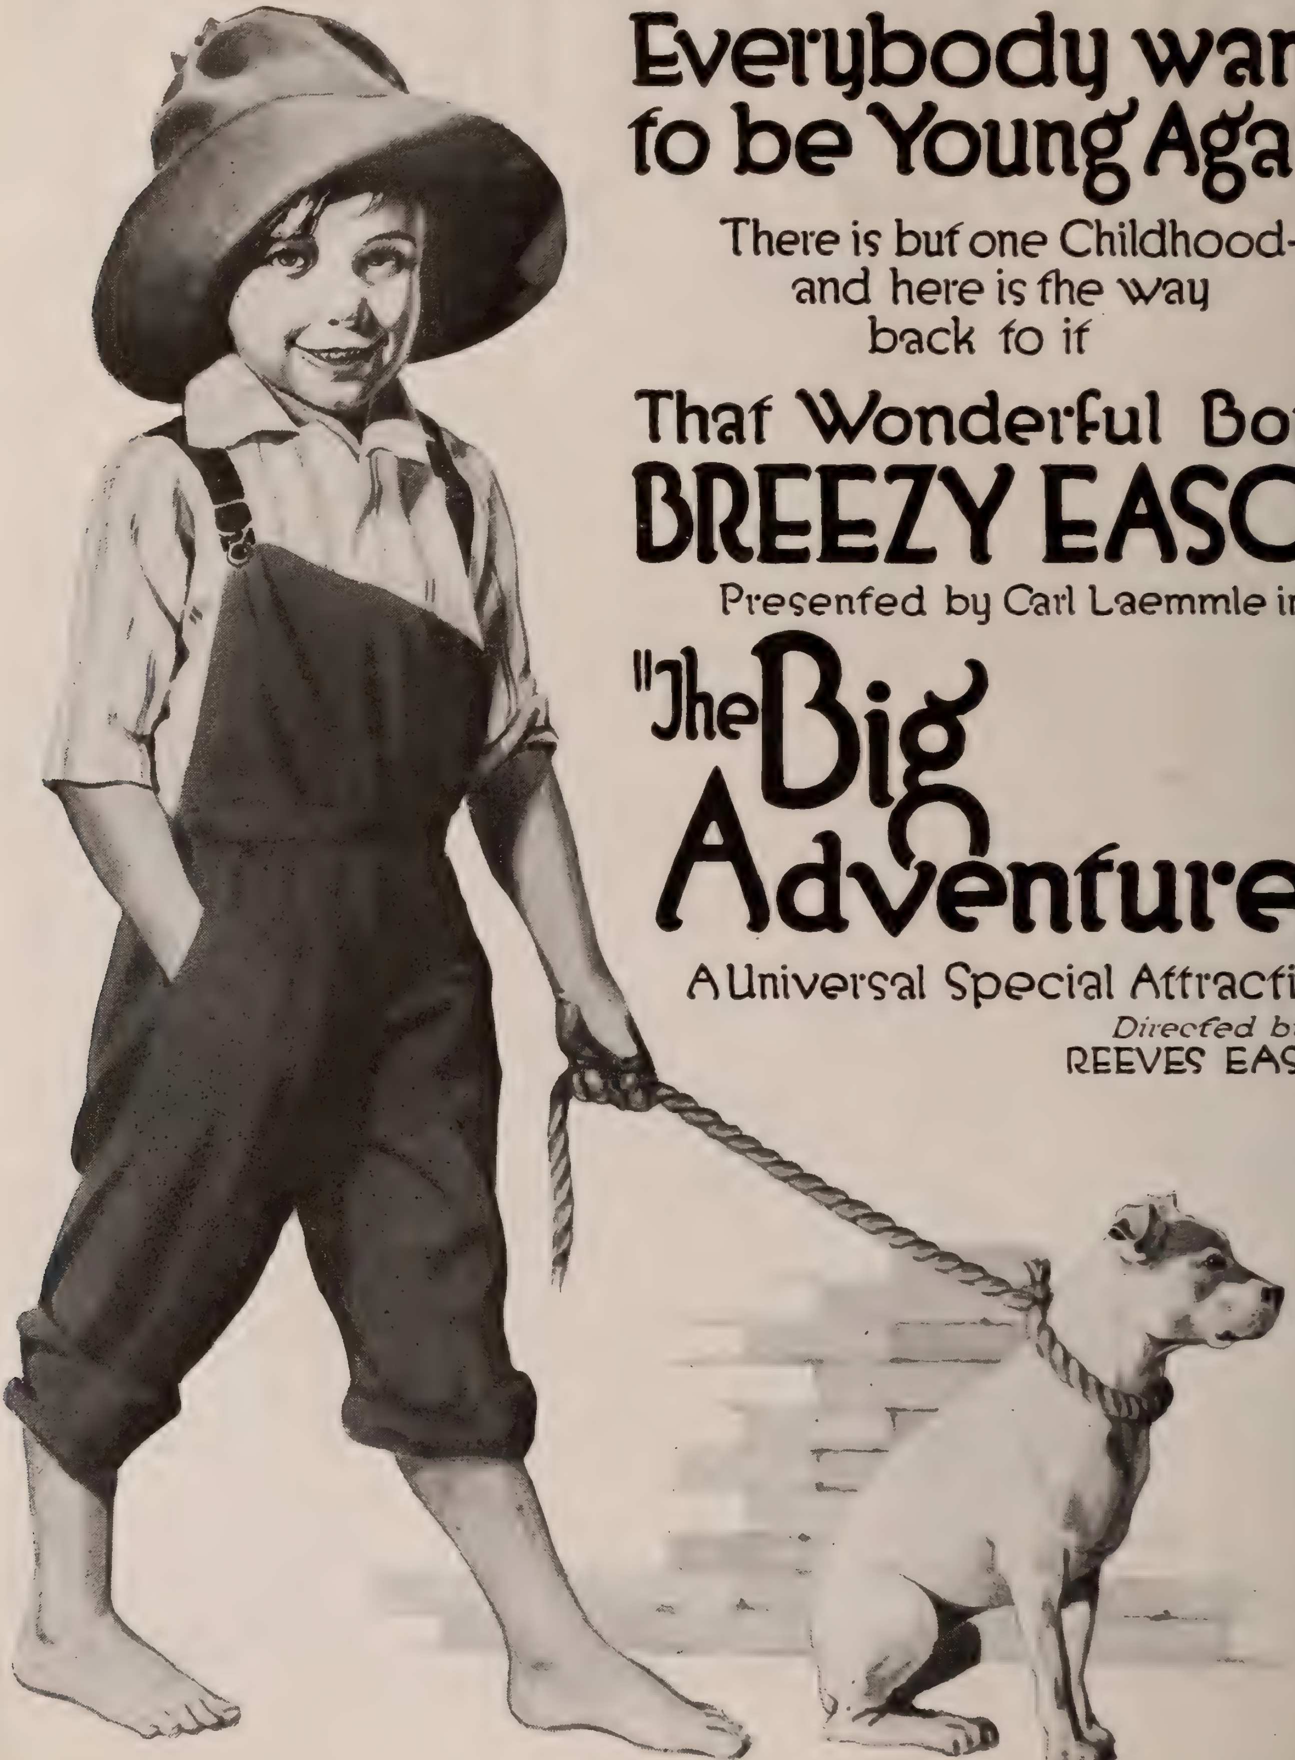
says:

"Universal never produced a better two-reeler than this one, which fairly sparkles with incident and comedy situations. And it isn't the stars who are responsible for all the hilarity, but the story or idea, which attempts to point out what would happen if the blue laws came into effect. The opening scenes show Moran in his home sneaking about and endeavoring, with the aid of mechanical devices, to spend a quiet Sunday. The situations here are very humorous but are not any funnier than the appearance of the set. Don't be afraid to book this one—for it is one of the best comedies of the year."

WID's

says:

"It's a good number for Lyons & Moran—and ought to make a hit. The subject is very pertinent to the present time and the boys have built a gag around almost every conceivable situation in connection with the bluest of blue Sundays. Of course, it's a great exaggeration of any conditions that could ever exist under any blue laws, but it is also very funny. It took quite an imagination to conceive of a state of affairs such as are shown and it will surely be appreciated by anyone who sees the picture."



Everybody wants to be Young Again!

There is but one Childhood—and here is the way back to it

That Wonderful Boy

BREEZY EASON

Presented by Carl Laemmle in

"The Big Adventure"

A Universal Special Attraction

Directed by
REEVES EASON

"WHILE we wuz fishin', Mickey an' me figured out how to ketch the villuns."

"WE tracked 'em an orful long ways. Mickey didn't know you hadda walk so far to be a deteckatif."

DON'T you wish you were young again? What wouldn't you give for just one hour in which to live over again those wonderful "kid days?"

HERE'S the picture that will take you back—a story of your boyhood and mine, with a score of man's size thrills rushing through it, some humor and some love, all woven into a great picture with an absolutely true title; "THE BIG ADVENTURE."

SEE in your next M. P. WEEKLY reproductions of the newspaper ads and posters. They're sure-fire stuff for young and old!

"GEE! but we were tired after the fite with the robbers. I couldn't keep Mickey awake."

Service Page for "The Big Adventure"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Big Adventure."

STAR—Little "Breezy" Eason.

PREVIOUS HITS—"The Cowboy and the Kid," "Two Kinds of Love," the boy in "Pink Tights."

DIRECTED BY—Reeves Eason.

STORY BY—James Edward Hungerford.

SCENARIO BY—George Pyper.

SUPPORTING CAST—Lee Shumway, Gertrude Olmstead, Fred Herzog, Mollie Shafer, etc.

LOCALE—The Slums—the Open Road—On a Farm.

TIME—The Present.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY—Virgil Miller.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—A waif of the city streets runs away from the abuse of his cruel step-father and, with his dog, strikes the open road. He meets with many adventures until he is adopted into the home of a kindly lawyer. The lad repays the man's kindness by opening his heart to a wealth of love, the presence of which he had never before suspected.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The screen presence of little "Breezy Eason, the four-year-old child wonder of the silent drama.
2—The fact that the story was written by James Edward Hungerford and has been widely read by the public.
3—The direction of Reeves Eason, father of the little star, who also directed such Universal successes as "Pink Tights" and "Colorado."
4—The natural work of Mickey, a mongrel pup, who adds a rare zest to the production.
5—The presence in the supporting cast of Gertrude Olmstead, the girl who is training for stardom at Universal City.
6—The thrilling incident of a little kid capturing a gang of bandits.
7—Realistic views of the slums of a great city, contrasting sharply with restful scenes in the country.
8—The interesting point that "Breezy" Eason interprets his own screen rôles and expresses the theme as it presents itself to his little mind.
9—The presence in the cast of Lee Shumway, one of the most finished leading men on the screen.
10—The impressive work of Fred Herzog, whose portrayal of a brutal step-father is reminiscent of Bill Sykes in "Oliver Twist."

CAST

Patches	Reeves Eason, Jr.
Old Whiskers	Fred Herzog
John Wellborn	Lee Shumway
Mrs. Lane	Mollie Shafer
Sally	Gertrude Olmstead

Synopsis of Story
"The Big Adventure"

PATCHES, a little waif of the city streets, had been given his nickname by the other boys on account of his ragged coat. He lives in a tumble-down shack with his brutal step-father, Old Whiskers, who makes a profit off the coal he forces Patches to steal from the railroad yards.

One day Patches revolts against his step-father's cruelty and runs away. On the way he makes friends with a kind-hearted young brakeman, Tim O'Rourke. After leaving the train, he wanders tired and hungry into the camp of a gang of hoboes.

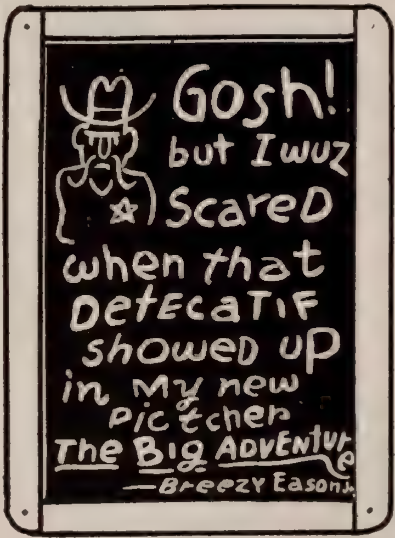
The village constable swoops down on the gang and takes Patches before the local magistrate, Judge Wellborn. Patches tells his story to the Judge who finds a home for him with his sister. In the wholesome environment of the farm the starved little city waif soon blooms with health and happiness. He delights in playing with his dog, Rags, and the other pets of the big farm family. The Judge calls often to see his protege. Patches "gets wise" to the fact that Sally is in love with the Judge and is jealous of a haughty city girl, Eleanor, to whom he is paying attention.

One day Mrs. Lane and Sally go to town, leaving Patches alone. Old Whiskers, who has become a tramp, breaks into the house and brutally forces the terrified Patches to assist him in robbing the place. He then forces Patches to write a not to Mrs. Lane assuming the guilt of the robbery; despite the pleadings of the little fellow Old Whiskers brutally tears him away from the only home he has ever known and takes him aboard a freight train that is just pulling out. Sally, who believes that the Judge does not care for her, decides to run away.

While walking along the road she sees Patches taken to a deserted shack by his father. When she enters to rescue the boy she is captured by the hoboes.

They toss Patches into the back room of the cabin and proceed to draw lots for the possession of the girl. Patches escapes, and returning to the Judge's home, falls exhausted on the floor.

After reviving the boy, the Judge goes to the shack and rescues the girl. On the way back to his sister's he realizes that it's Sally he cares for, and asks her to be his wife. She consents and Patches congratulates them both.



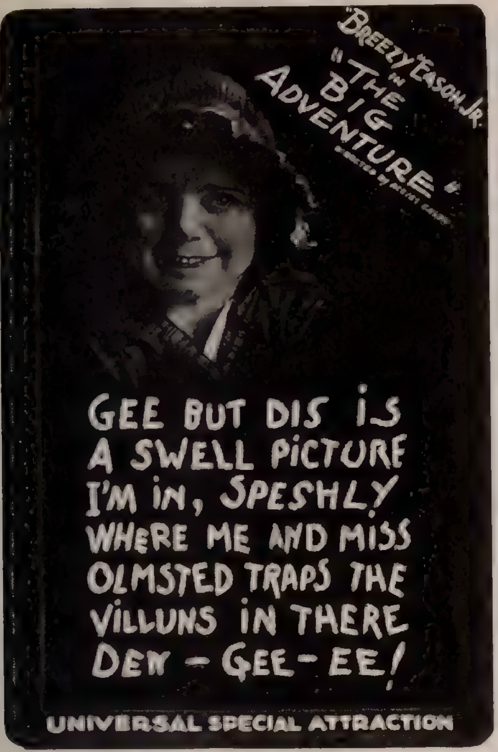
Gosh! but I wuz Scared when that Detecatif showed up in My new Pic tcher The Big Adventure
—Breezy Eason Jr.

Theatre Name Here

The pudgy fist of "Breezy Eason" Packed a wallop. His heart carried a load—but his face wore a toothless grin that will win your heart.

Does a ragged little kid and a faithful dog affect you under the vest? Then see "Breezy" Eason, the wonder-child of the screen in "The Big Adventure." He captures a bandit gang, meddies in a love affair, gets spanked and then kissed.

"Breezy" and "Mickey" Trap the Villuns



"Breezy" Eason, Jr.
in
"The Big Adventure"
GEE BUT DIS IS A SWELL PICTURE I'M IN, SPESHLY WHERE ME AND MISS OLMSTED TRAPS THE VILLUNS IN THERE DEN – GEE – EE!
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

One-sheet poster prepared for "The Big Adventure"

THE dean of kiddie players!

It may be difficult to imagine a dean at the ripe old age of five, but that is the title which has been earned by "Breezy" Eason, the Universal boy star who has been recognized as the foremost child player on the screen through his admirable work in "The Big Adventure."

But then, it is little wonder that "Breezy" should be a cinema star in his own right when it is remembered that his father is a well known motion picture director and his mother was a leading woman in screen dramas up until the time she married.

Not all children inherit the talents of their parents, and seldom is this talent apparent at such an early age; but young Eason was acting before the camera at the age of three, and in the past two years has developed into one of the most natural and appealing players on the screen, regardless of size or age.

"Breezy" has just scored his biggest success in "The Big Adventure," a story written especially for him by James Edward Hungerford, who specializes in juvenile romance, and was scenarized by George Pyper. It was produced at Universal City under the direction of Reeves Eason, Sr., and from all accounts the feature reflects credit on writer, director, the youthful star and everyone else connected with the production.

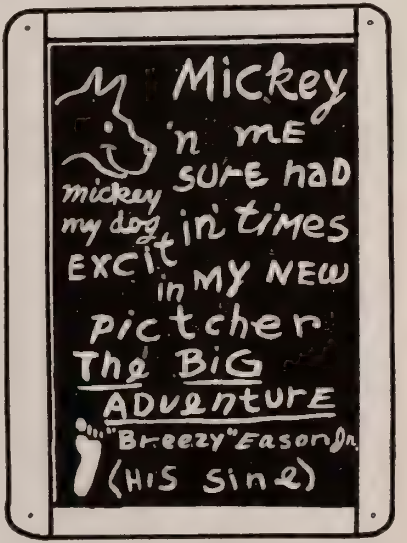
One of the first hits scored by "Breezy" in a Universal feature was about a year and a half ago, when the youngster was three years old. He appeared with the big Western star, Art Acord, in a story called "The Cowboy and the Kid." So many requests from theatregoers for more pictures of the little fellow were received that "Breezy" later appeared in several western stories with Hoot Gibson.

Several months ago, when Universal's big success, "Pink Tights" was flashed on the screen, young Eason, as the tiny country lad, was one of the hits of the feature. Then came his most important rôle in "Two Kinds of Love."

INHERITS SCREEN TALENT

REEVES EASON, the popular Universal director who produced "The Big Adventure," was an actor, on the stage and in the movies, before taking up his megaphone and devoting his talents to the making of pictures. But he has not entirely given up his acting, and once in a while, when the spirit moves him, he plays a part just to keep in form. Such was the case a few months ago when he played the "heavy" in a Universal picture which he himself directed, "Two Kinds of Love."

Eason was born in Mississippi, but the family moved to California before he reached school age. His education was therefore received in the public schools of Monrovia and at Berkeley College. Shortly after leaving school he joined a dramatic stock company in the west, and after gaining considerable stage experience he went into vaudeville with a dramatic sketch of his own construction.



Mickey 'n me sure had excitin times in my new pictcher The Big Adventure mickey my dog
"Breezy" Eason Jr.
(HIS SINE)

Teaser card suitable for use in Herald or throwaway

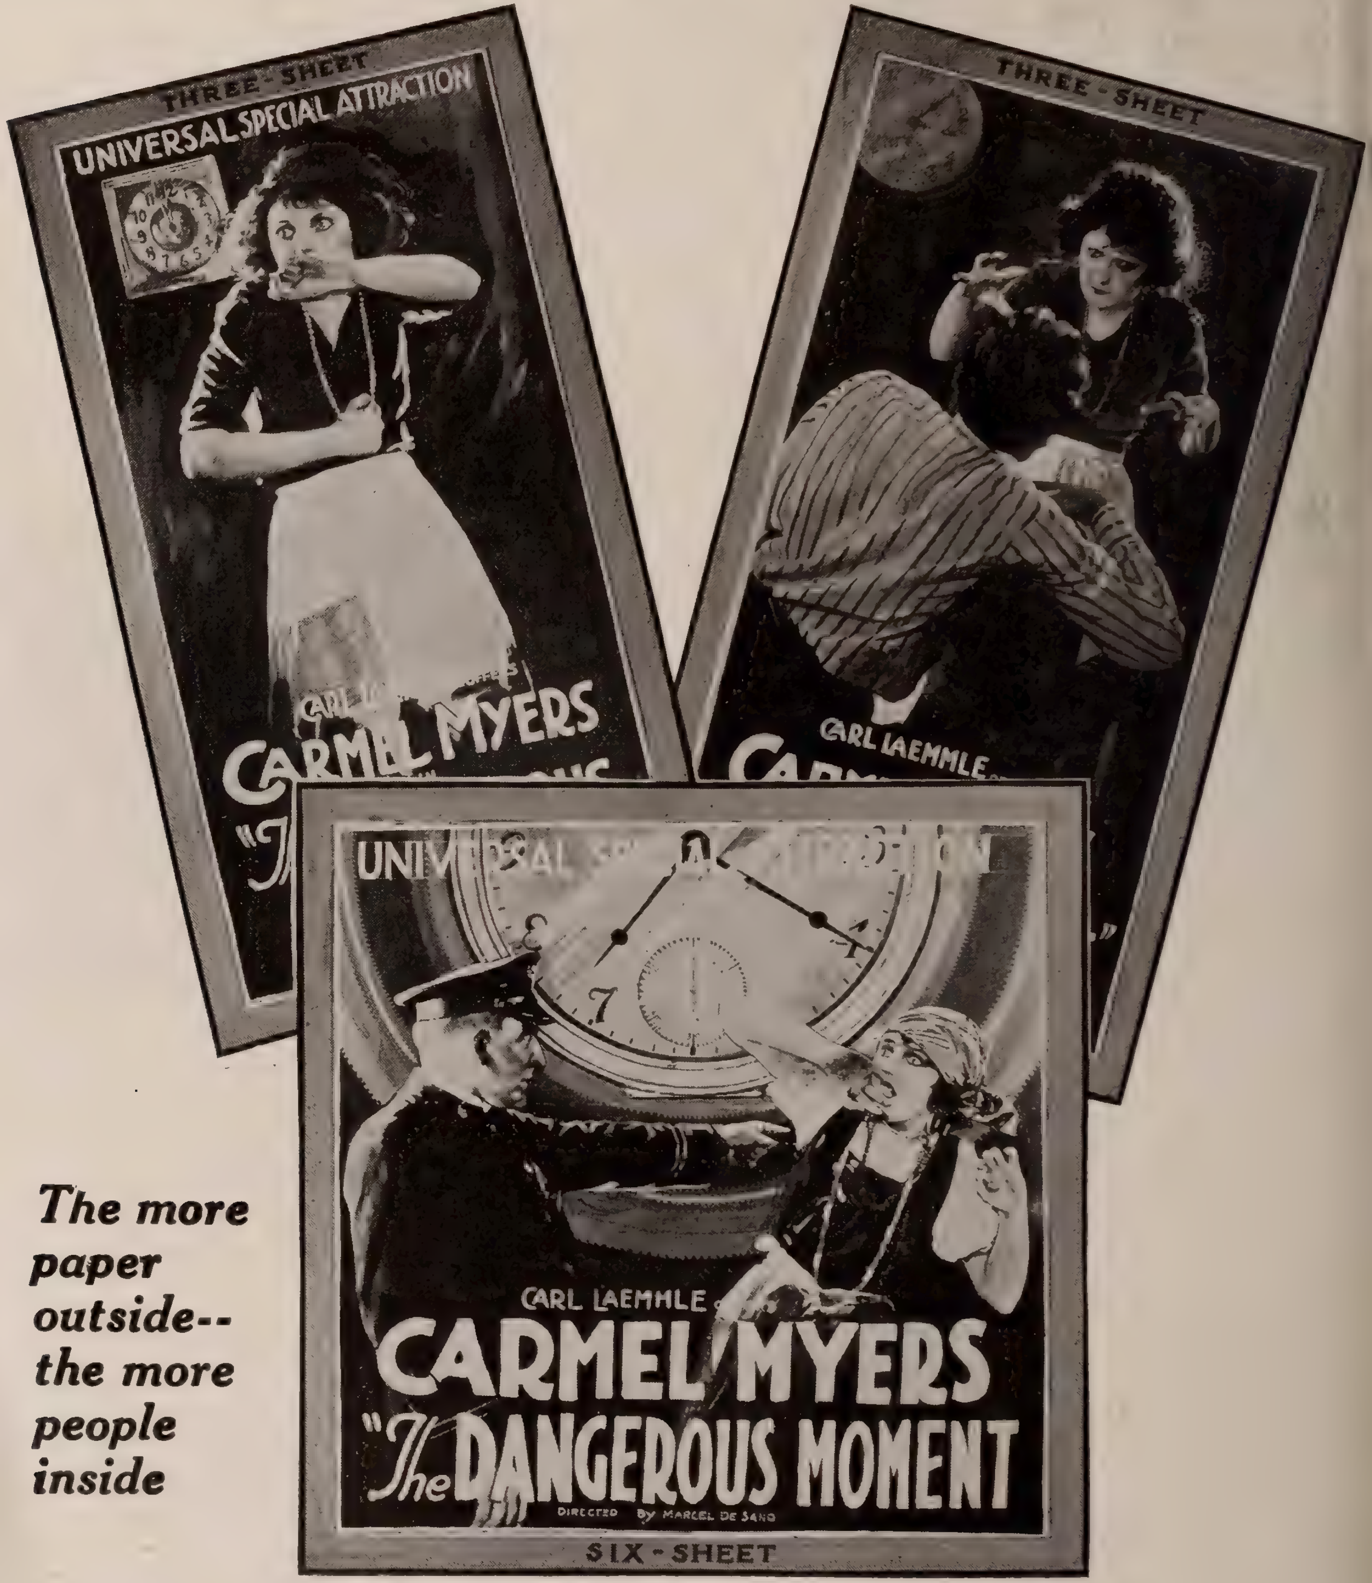
What's at the Playhouse To-night?

FROM the slums of a great city to a pastoral farm community. That is the rapid transition in locale taken in "The Big Adventure," the Universal screen drama which is showing now at the .... Theatre. "Breezy" Eason, the screen wonder-child, plays the title rôle and Reeves Eason, the kiddie's father, directed "The Big Adventure," from the story by James Edward Hungerford, written especially for the youthful star.

WHAT kind of a dog has the most intelligence—a thoroughbred or a mixture? In "The Big Adventure," the Universal photodrama now at the .... Theatre, little "Breezy" Eason, the featured player, is supported by Mickey, his own dog, who is a cross between a bull-dog and a weasel. The weasel part is not very definite on his pedigree but he is a faithful old fellow and adds to the appeal of the picture by his obvious love for his little master.

IN Chicago last summer, the Elks were in convention, and they wanted the prettiest girl in the Middle West to be their queen. From some twenty thousand photographs submitted they selected Gertrude Olmstead, a LaSalle high school girl. Miss Olmstead is now appearing in Universal pictures and has the leading feminine rôle in "The Big Adventure," starring little "Breezy" Eason, now being shown at the .... Theatre.

POSTERS AND ADS

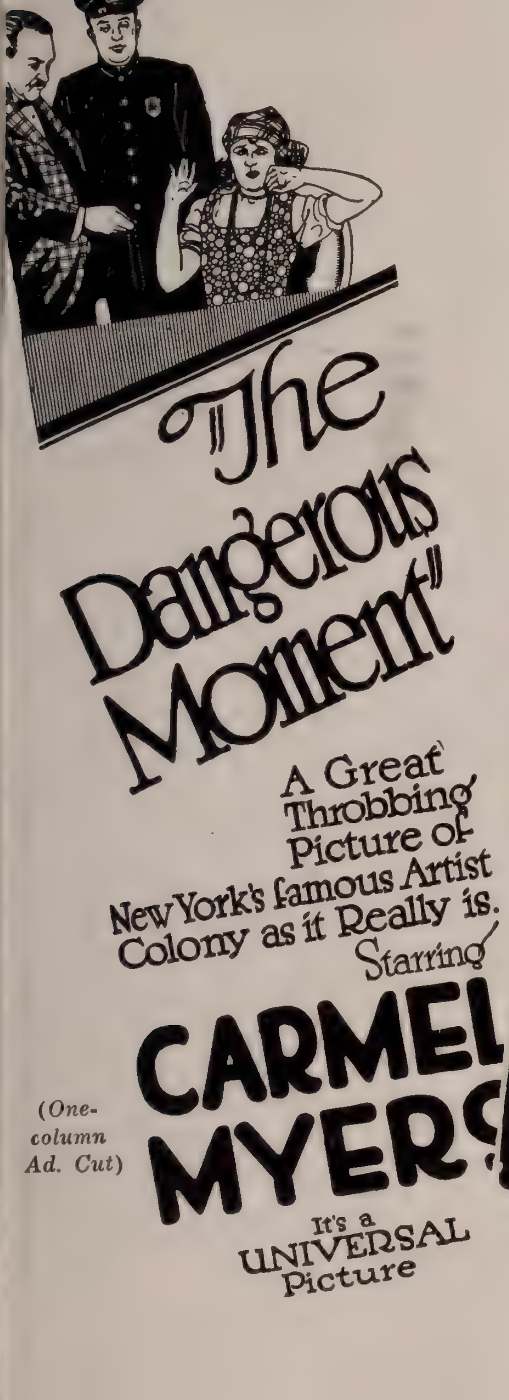


THREE-SHEET
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARMEL MYERS
THREE-SHEET
CARL LAEMMLE
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE
CARMEL MYERS
"The DANGEROUS MOMENT
DIRECTED BY MARCEL DE SANO
SIX-SHEET

The more paper outside-- the more people inside

THAT PULL PROFITS

THE keynote behind every aid furnished with a Universal Special Attraction is to sell seats—and that's just exactly what you can do with every one of these "52 Good Pictures a Year—and no worry," particularly if you plaster your town with paper and use newspaper space liberally. Keep advertising and you'll soon have to build a bigger theatre.



"The Dangerous Moment"

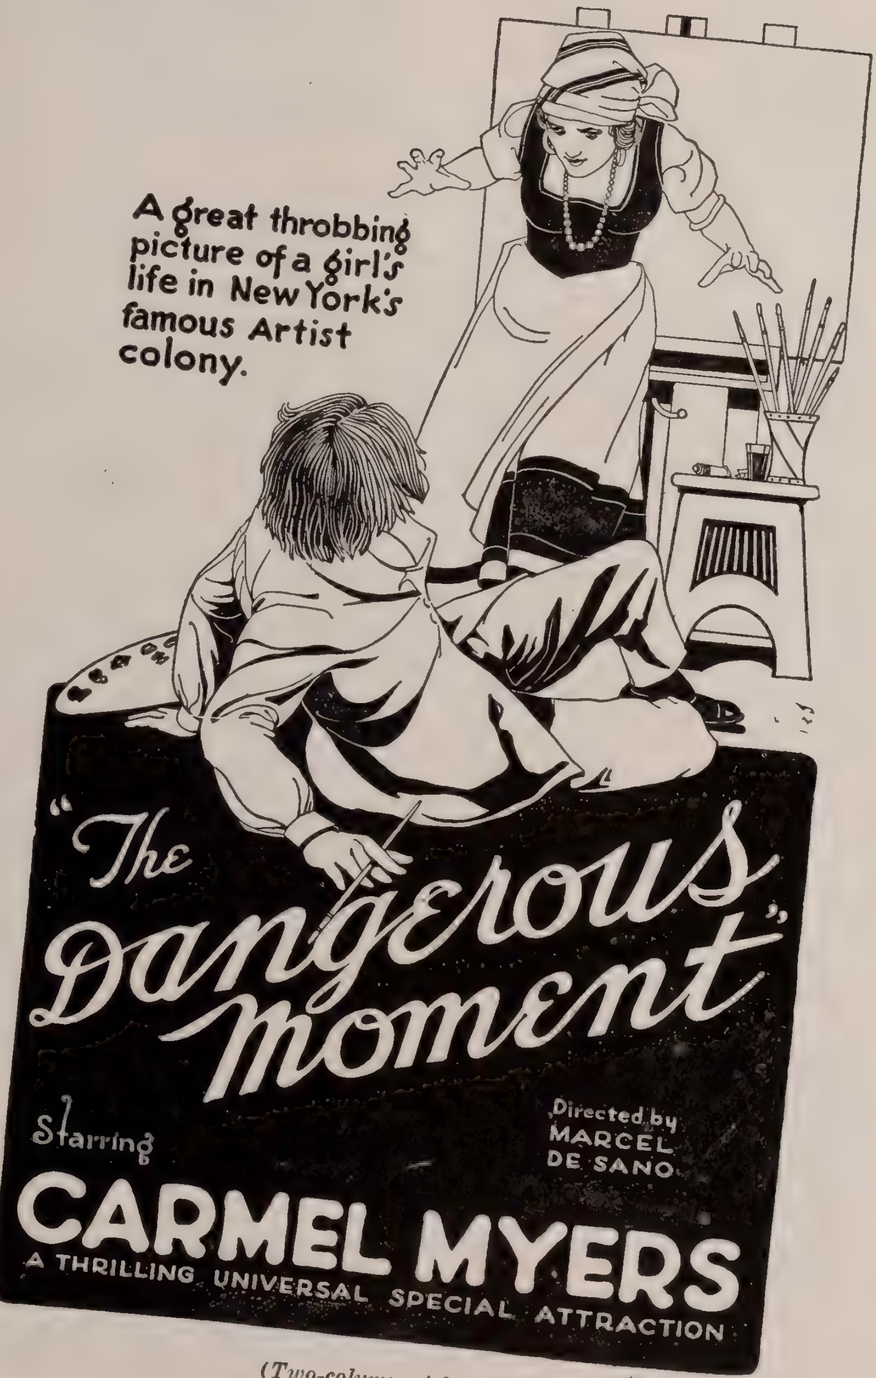
A Great Throbbing Picture of New York's famous Artist Colony as it Really is.

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

It's a UNIVERSAL Picture

(One-column Ad. Cut)



A great throbbing picture of a girl's life in New York's famous Artist colony.

"The Dangerous Moment"

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

Directed by MARCEL DE SANO

A THRILLING UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

(Two-column Ad. Cut)

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol 13 APRIL 16, 1921 No. 9

Better Booking Service For Exhibitors

Closer co-operation with film patrons and elimination of flickering in films decided at Chicago 'conference

BETTER service to the exhibitor showing Universal pictures and an improved booking system has resulted from the important conference of Universal's Traveling Auditors recently held at the Universal Exchange in Chicago. Many plans were discussed to increase the efficiency of the present booking system and thus render the exhibitor a service one hundred per cent. efficient.

The conference which was held under the supervision of J. B. Ohrt, Comptroller for Universal, lasted four days. It was attended by the following auditors in charge of maintaining Universal service in their respective territories; W. K. Lendon, auditor for the eastern district of the United States; G. B. Howe, head of the middle western district; C. H. Griffith, of the far western section; N. Shrin, of the northwestern district and H. Henigson, traveling auditor for Universal's foreign branches.

Under the present booking system being developed as a result of this conference, the booker in each exchange will be enabled to advance his notification of play-date from three to six weeks. This will enable the exhibitors to know, far in advance, just when they will play Universal pictures. It is the opinion of Universal executives that this will result in greater exploitation of Universal features.

CLOSER EXHIBITOR CONTACT

Another of the important questions discussed at the Chicago meeting was the importance given by Universal to the personal relationship between the exchange office booker and the individual exhibitor. This revised booking system gives each booker an opportunity to discuss individual bookings with the exhibitor patrons. This is very important in many cases if complete satisfaction is to be given to the exhibitor and is if there is to be close co-operation between him and the film company.

So efficacious is the new Universal booking system that it advanced billings and programs in one office from three days to three weeks within a few days.

Another important matter tackled by the traveling auditors, was the elimination of flickering in pictures caused by perforated numbers in the film. It was decided to do away with perforated numbers in Universal films. Instead, embossing machines, which impress numbers not apparent in projection, are being tentatively installed in the larger Universal exchanges. If they prove successful, the entire Universal exchange organization will be equipped with them, it is promised.

Steps also were taken at the conference of auditors, to perfect the keeping of a physical inventory of all film and film property in the Universal offices. Universal has arrived at so complete an inventory that the exact whereabouts of every foot of film is on record. This, it is explained, enables the distributing department to supply sudden orders for rare prints, as well as to meet shifting changes in the wholesale booking of current favorites.

Comptroller Ohrt, in advising the assembled auditors, laid great stress upon a close inspection in each Universal branch in respect to fire law observance. Universal is striving to be the leading film company in the observance of all local fire law changes.

EXCHANGES MORE EFFICIENT

Another important step in working for closer co-operation between the exhibitor and the Universal exchanges was the recent tour of Harry Berman, General Manager of the Universal Exchanges to all the branch offices. Mr. Berman returned to his desk on Monday morning after a flying trip to Universal City and a visit with the managers of the exchanges along the coast to coast route.

In discussing the conditions which he noted and the plans for the future Mr. Berman said that reports which the exchange system will make on this years' business will be far and away the best that Universal has ever turned out, and this in spite of the fact that we have been reputed to be passing through an era of unusual hardship for the moving picture exchanges.

Special Publicity Stories for "The Big Adventure"

ADVENTURES OF CITY WAIF LEAD TO STRANGE PLACES

As long as there are fathers and mothers, children and sweethearts in the world, just so long will stories of the type of "The Big Adventure" be popular. "The Big Adventure" is a Universal photoplay just released, featuring the cleverest youngster on the screen, four-year-old "Breezy" Eason, and announced for appearance at the .... Theatre on ....

As the story unfolds "Breezy" is seen as a little city waif, kicked and cuffed by a brutal step-father and happy only in the companionship of his dog, Mickey. He bears up under his own abuse, but when his canine friend is attacked, he takes French leave and starts to explore the world about him. The little fellow and his dog meet with many adventures, some thrilling, others amusing, and all interesting. His association with a gang of hoboes, his incarceration in a small town bastille, his adoption by a kind-hearted lawyer, his rôle as Cupid in a pastoral romance and a chain of other appealing incidents comprise a screen play that holds the interest from opening scene to final fade-out.

Gertrude Olmstead and Lee Shumway share the adult honors in the story, and other important rôles are played by Fred Herzog and Mollie Shafer. The production was directed by the young star's gifted father, Reeves Eason, who guided him in all his earlier screen triumphs.

QUEEN OF THE ELKS PLAYS ORPHAN ROLE

Members of the Lodge of Elks throughout America will be interested to know that Gertrude Olmstead, who was elected the queen of the fraternal order at their convention in Chicago last Summer, is now playing the leading feminine rôle in the Universal photodrama "The Big Adventure," which is to be seen at the .... Theatre on ....

"Breezy" Eason, Jr., in "The Big Adventure," Universal.

A little over a year ago Gertrude Olmstead, sixteen years old and unconscious of her unusual beauty, was attending high school at LaSalle, Illinois. Then the Elks, looking forward to their convention in the Illinois metropolis, delegated a leading newspaper of Chicago to hold a beauty contest to select the best looking young woman in the Middle West, the winner to be crowned Gueen of the Elks. Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, happened to be in Chicago at the time, and to add zest to the contest offered the winner of the contest a contract to appear in pictures at Universal City.

After 20,000 photographs of beautiful young women had been submitted, that of Gertrude Olmstead was selected as the prize winner. She was accordingly made Queen of the Elks and enjoyed the honors bestowed upon her by the antlered herd during their week of festivity in Chicago.

Universal made good its promise and Miss Olmstead and her mother were brought to the film capital of the world. Here Gertrude was put through a course of training for several months, then given small parts. She proved as talented as she is beautiful, and her first leading rôle is that of the young orphan girl in "The Big Adventure," an appealing story of youth in which "Breezy" Eason, the wonder-child of the films, plays the stellar rôle.

"BREEZY EASON" STARS IN UNIVERSAL FILM

Little "Breezy Eason, the four-year-old wonder child of the screen, will be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on .... when "The Big Adventure," his latest Universal photodrama has its first local showing.

In this picture, filmed under the direction of Reeves Eason from the original story by James Edward Hungerford, little "Breezy" appears as a waif of the city streets who leaves a brutal father and goes to the country on a freight train, accompanied only by his faithful dog, Mickey. He captures a gang of bandits, unites lovers and grins his way through five reels of snappy drama to a finish that will strike a particularly happy chord on the heart-strings of those who see it.

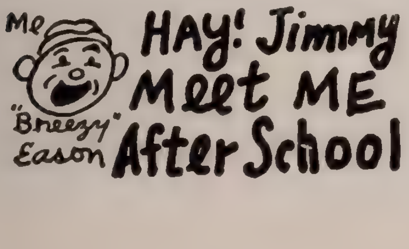
"Breezy" Eason is the son of Reeves Eason, the widely known Universal director, and he made his first important screen appearance in "Pink Tights" with Gladys Walton. His work was so appealing that he was selected by Carl Laemmle for a featured rôle in "Two Kinds of Love." "The Big Adventure," the story which James Edward Hungerford drew with such subtle power of heart interest, was selected as his latest vehicle.

KIDDIE STAR OF SCREEN PLAYS IN BOYHOOD STORY

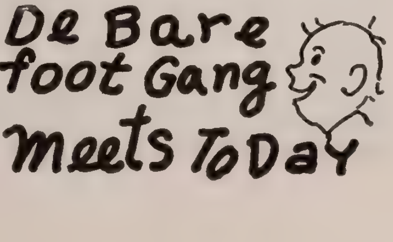
Many a parental heart beat faster at the .... Theatre last night. Many a youngster snuggled close to the arm of father or mother and was thankful for a good home and doting loved ones.

Such was the effect of "The Big Adventure," the story of childhood, which had its first showing here and which served to bring back that wonder-kiddie of the films, "Breezy" Eason, in the title rôle. This youthful actor, not yet five years of age, gives a more intelligent performance of his rôle than would be expected of many players many times his age.

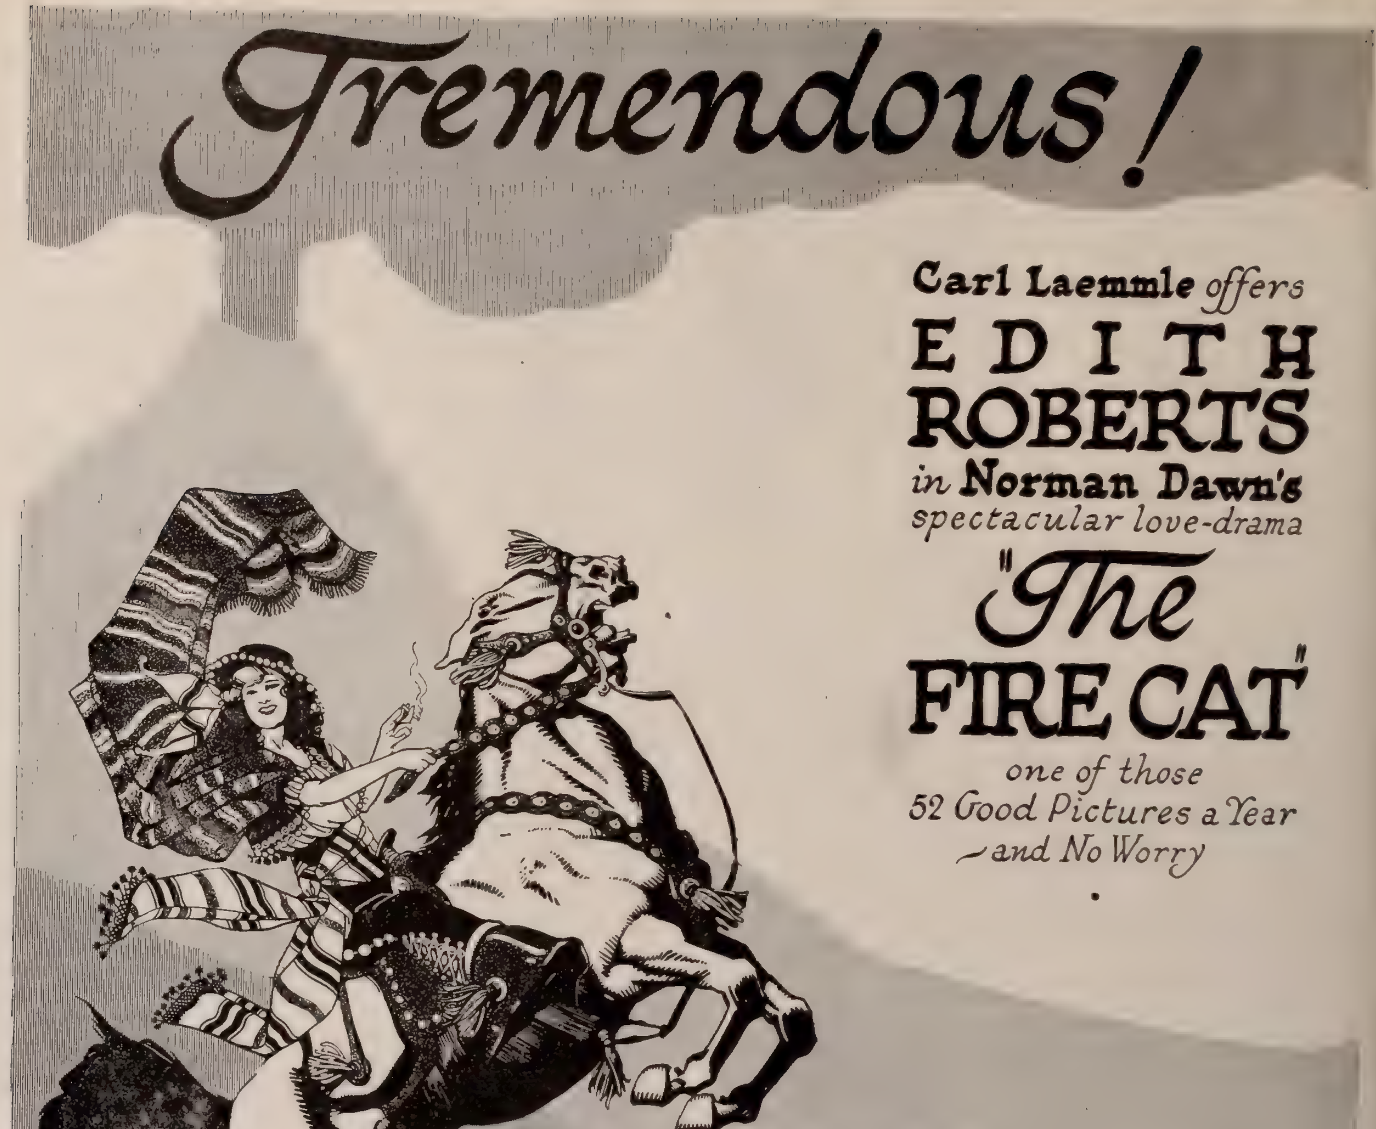
The story of "The Big Adventure," which was written especially for "Breezy" by James Edward Hungerford, shows the transition of an abused street waif from the slums of the city to the open country and the beauties of nature. With his dog, Mickey, as his only friend and companion, he runs away from his brutal step-father, falls in with a gang of tramps, is rescued and adopted into the home of a kindly lawyer, and the little fellow at once starts to repay the kindness by his sunny disposition and by acting the rôle of Cupid. A shattered romance is renewed, a band of outlaws is captured and happiness comes to all concerned as the result of the youngster's ingenious efforts.



Me
"Breezy" Eason
HAY! Jimmy Meet ME After School



De Bare foot Gang meets ToDay



Tremendous!

Carl Laemmle offers

EDITH ROBERTS

in Norman Dawn's
spectacular love-drama

"The FIRE CAT"

one of those
52 Good Pictures a Year
—and No Worry

When you reproduce this pen-and-ink drawing for your newspaper ad, your engraver can take out any of the type matter.

"THE DANGEROUS MOMENT" CONTAINS STRONG CAST

Most Beautiful "Heavy" and Well-known Character-players Support Star

Carmel Myers
IN
"THE DANGEROUS MOMENT"
UNIVERSAL

THE most beautiful "heavy" on the screen and three of the most capable character-players in the films, are to be seen in support of Carmel Myers in her newest photodramatic success, "The Dangerous Moment."

Bonnie Hill is the pulchritudinous member of the cast. Tall and stately, with the patrician bearing of a real artistocrat, with a wealth of golden hair and features that might have been chiseled out of marble, Miss Hill is an eyeful for any spectator. She comes from an old Virginia family, went to New York to study art, attracted the attention of several of the most prominent illustrators, and was finally induced to pose for several covers for Vogue. On a trip to California two years ago she was induced to accept the role of a society girl in support of Nazimova, in "The Brat," and since then she has appeared in a number of photoplays. At Universal she has supported Frank Mayo and Mary MacLaren before appearing with Carmel Myers.

Lula Warrenton, who plays the role of Mrs. Tarkides, Greek restaurant keeper, has the reputation of being one of the most finished character-players on stage or screen. She played Shakespearian roles at the age of seventeen; toured England at the head of her own company when she was in her twenties. She made her debut in the films about five years ago when she wrote the scenario, acted in and directed "A Bird's Christmas Carol" for Universal. Since then she has played with the most prominent stars and directors, her most recent successes, previous to "The Dangerous Moment" being scored with H. B. Warner, Tom Mix and George Loane Tucker.

FINE CHARACTER ACTING

HERBERT HEYES, at present appearing as the leading man with Carmel Myers, is adding another fine portrait to his gallery of screen characterizations.

Bowd M. Turner, better known to his legion of friends on the stage and in motion pictures as "Smoke" Turner, and recognized as one of the most capable character actors on the screen, has the role of Trotzky, a Greenwich Village Bolshevist, in "The Dangerous Moment."

"Smoke" Turner is usually engaged when a director wants a distinct character type, one that will stand out with cameo-like sharpness. In every photodrama in which he has appeared, his parts, no matter how important or how small, have always been portrayed with a skill and individuality that made a lasting impression on the audience.

Turner was born in Cumberland, Maryland, received his education in a state military school and went on the stage before he was twenty. He has been on the screen for nearly five years, playing many important parts, his most recent success being scored in the role of Argensola in "The Four Horsemen Of The Apocalypse."

UPWARD MOVEMENT IN EXCHANGE NEWS

THE past week brought two announcements of important changes along film row. In the words of some poet, "as this old world goes round and round, some go up and some go down." The upward movement in local motion picture news was supplied by the Universal exchange here, and the downward motion, if it may be called that, by the Vitagraph organization in Portland.

David Brill, manager of Universal's branch exchange in Portland, has announced that his organization will move into larger quarters in the near future. Final arrangements are being made to occupy a building to be erected by Dr. J. A. Pettit at Tenth and Couch streets. Ed. Armstrong, western district manager for Universal arrived in Potland Friday from Los Angeles to discuss details of the deal and outline future plans for the office.

A feature of the new Universal home will be a spacious projection room, which will be a miniature theatre for the entertainment of visiting exhibitors. Preview showings of Universal pictures will be held for theatre managers and owners frequently. Increase in business is the reason given for the proposed trek to more roomy quarters, and the expansion is no doubt a form of official recognition of the record made by Brill and his hustling sales force in the few months the new manager has been at the helm of the exchange.

By order of Vitagraph headquarters in New York City, the local Vitagraph exchange closed yesterday and Portland will no longer be a distribution point for pictures of this brand. G. E. Jackson, manager of the exchange, will remain in Portland as a representative of the company, but the territory formerly supplied by the local exchange will hereafter be taken care of from Seattle. The local office handled the distribution of films for Portland, all cities of the state and parts of Idaho.

—By Don Skene in the Portland "Oregonian."

"If we had more pictures like this, there'd be no Sunday Blue Laws." says Exhibitor P. V. Williams

MANAGER P. V. WILLIAMS, of the People's Theatre, Mundy, Texas, writes: "I had a very successful showing of 'Once To Every Woman.' I put on the songs as you told me, and had 100% pleased patrons. This is the first picture that has drawn a larger crowd the second day than the first. I had a few people the second night that had never been in my place before; my very hardest-to-please customers said it was the best picture they had ever seen. If we had more pictures like this there would be no Blue Sunday Laws."

UNIVERSAL Jewel L

The greatest mother love picture of the generation

"Once To Every Woman"

Starring DOROTHY PHILLIPS

First Million Dollar Picture

"Foolish Wives", a Universal-Jewel, Is Now Nearing Completion at Universal City

Marguerite Armstrong, supporting Eric Von Stroheim in "Foolish Wives"

"FOOLISH WIVES," the Universal photodrama upon which Erich Von Stroheim is now working at Universal City will be the first picture ever made costing a million dollars or upon which a year's time has been spent.

Various pictures have been described as "million dollar productions" but the nearest approach to the figure is known to approximate $500,000 and in that instance the producer-star attributed an enormous weekly salary to himself on the books of the concern.

"In "Foolish Wives," however, the actual expenditure of a million dollars will be apparent on the screen.

One of the most elaborate sets is a group of buildings put up at Universal City in exact reproduction of the famous Plaza at Monte Carlo. The set is 400 feet long and 280 feet wide. It includes, besides the buildings, two circular parks, hundreds of palms and semi-tropical plants, 5400 square feet of concrete sidewalks and many hundred square feet of oiled pavements.

One of the buildings and the most imposing, is the structure representing the Plaza side of the Casino, the notorious gambling place. This has been reproduced in exact size with its towers and statuary, and even with its circular flower bed near the main entrance.

On one side of the Casino is the Hotel de Paris, also an imposing structure, with the Monte Carlo tramway line running in front of it. In the hotel scenes von Stroheim actually had the table linen and other napery embroidered with the real hotel's crest and initials.

FAMOUS SUICIDE GARDENS

Near the Hotel de Paris is the Cafe de Paris, with its long first floor and its big plate glass windows, 48 of them, each 12 feet in diameter.

All the details of architecture and londscape gardening were supervised by Victor Andre, a sculptor of Nice, France. Even the Suicide Gardens, the iron fences, the fountains and lamp-posts have been accurately reproduced.

To get the other side of the Casino, which overlooks the Mediterranean, von Stroheim caused the construction of other sets at Point Lobus, Monterey Bay, many miles from Universal City. There were built one large and two smaller sets, the former being the rear view of the Casino, rising on a cliff 100 feet above the Bay. Altogether, this set is 600 feet long.

The Casino is 100 feet long, with a 74 foot tower. The set also includes a large band-stand, promenades, balustrades and terraced walks and promenades.

The sets at Universal City also include an elaborate French villa, with its sunken gardens, terraces and quaint towers, a French village, and an artificial lake, 100 feet wide, made especially for this picture.

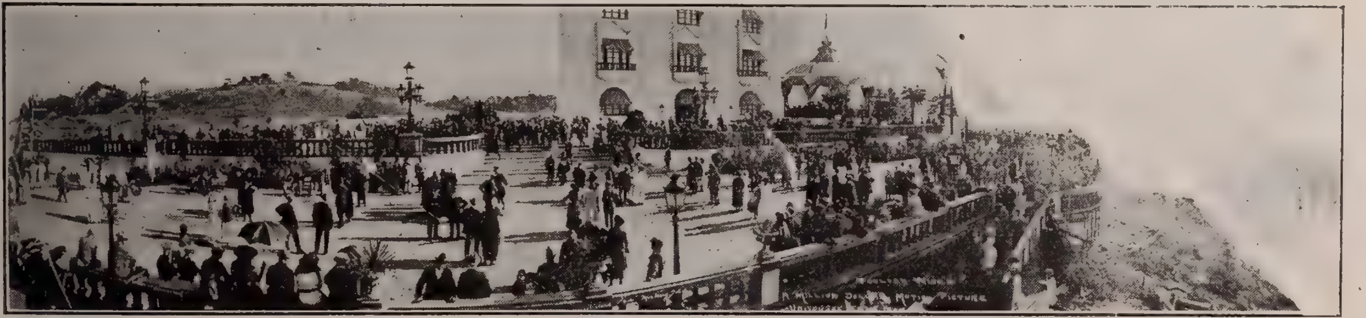
Von Stroheim himself takes the leading rôle in "Foolish Wives," playing the part of Count Sergius Aprazin, an unscrupulous Russian nobleman and adventurer. Supporting him is an all star cast, including Rudolph Christians, Marguerite Armstrong, Maude George, Mae Busch, Cesare Gravina, Dale Fuller and Malveen Polo, the daughter of Eddie Polo, Universal's leading serial star, Christians died from pneumonia several weeks ago. It is said he had completed all his scenes necessary to the picture.

RIVIERA AT IT'S BEST

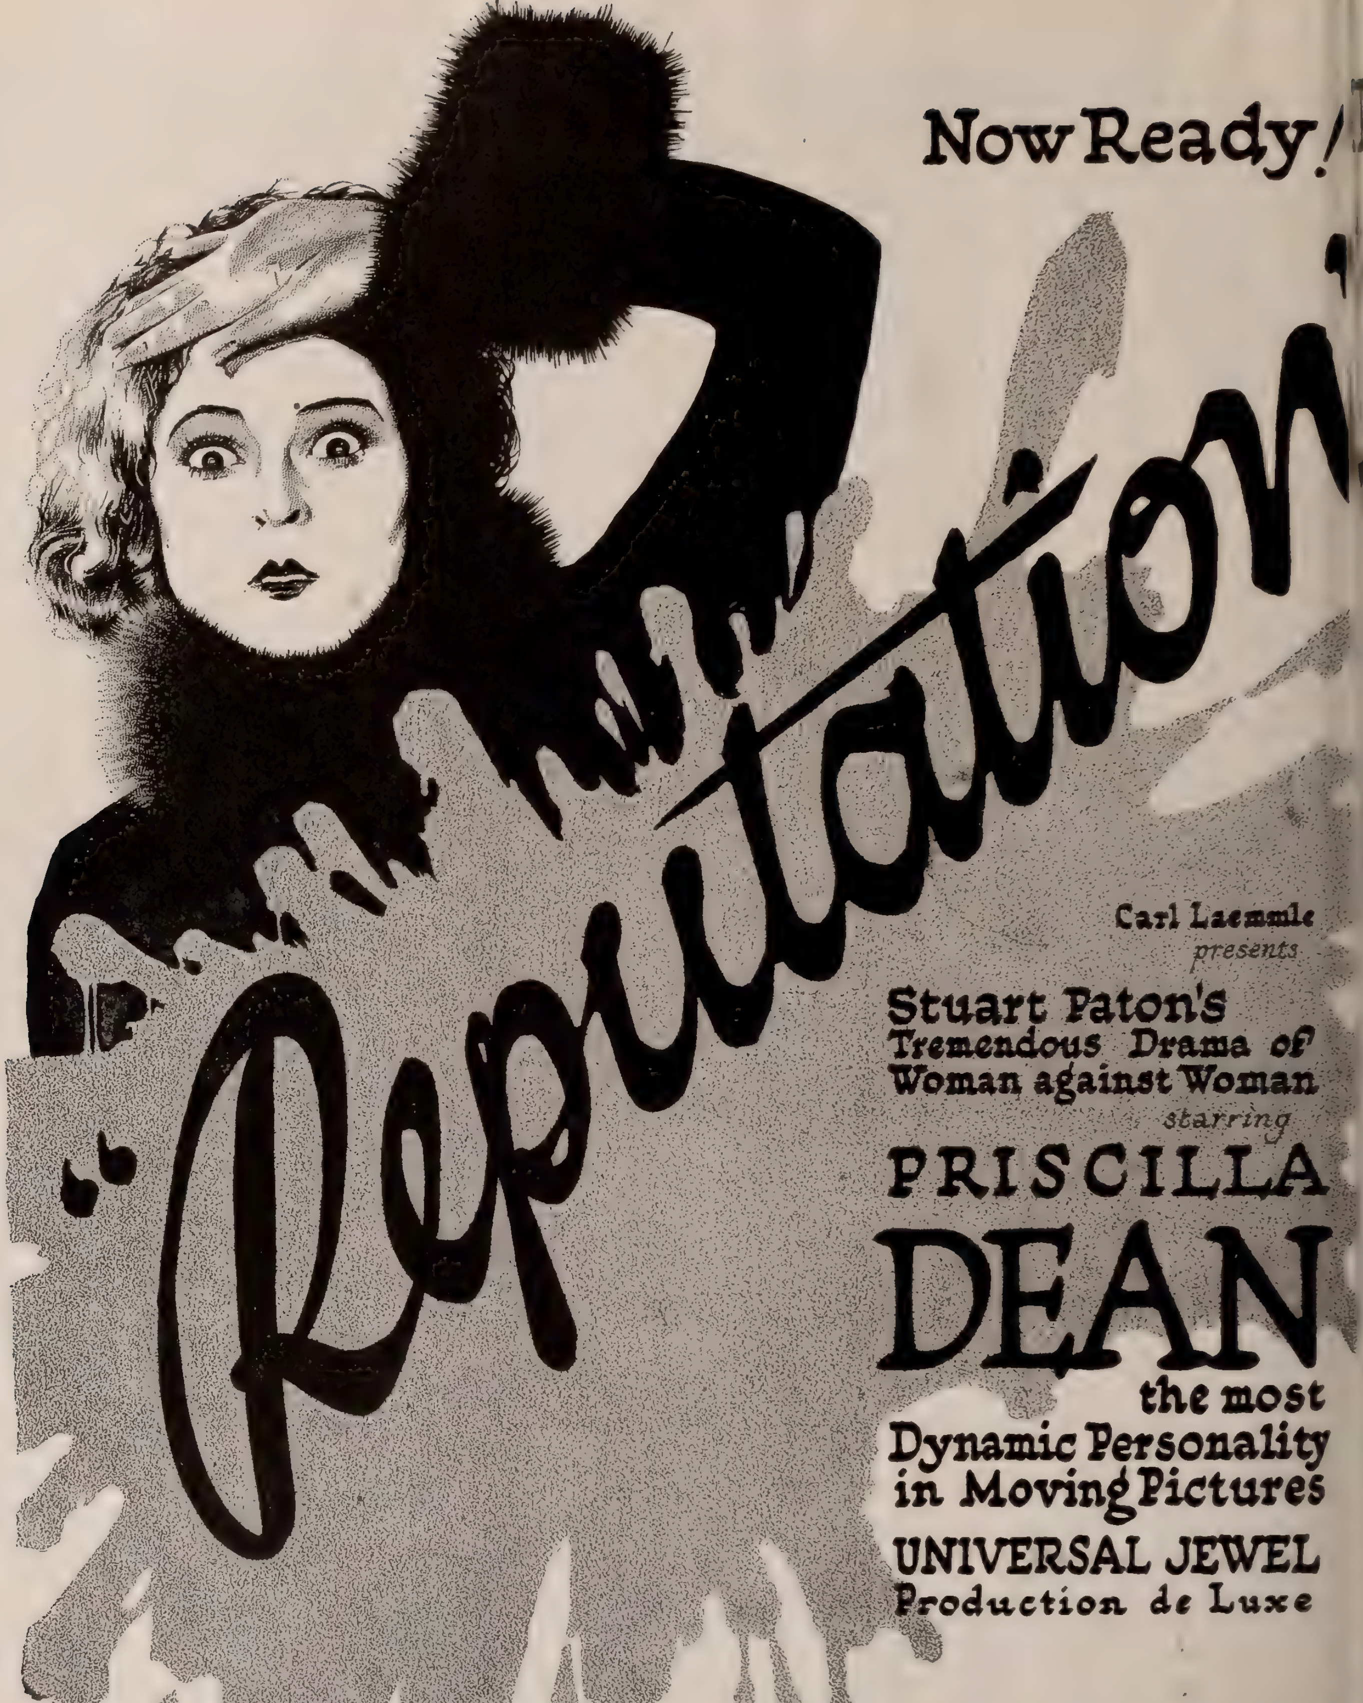
"Foolish Wives," written by von Straheim himself, shows Monte Carlo among the rich set, the Russian Grand Dukes, princess and high class adventurer and adventuresses. It is said to paint the Riviera at its best and at its worst and to give an inside glimpse of the life of the world-famed resort.

To provide the proper atmosphere in the scenes taken at the Monte Carlo Casino a stunt never before employed to any great extent in motion pictures, was successfully used. Real society people—scores of members of San Francisco's "400" acted as "extras" while von Stroheim "shot" the scenes necessary to the photoplay.

Replica of Monte Carlo, built at Monterey, for "Foolish Wives."



Now Ready!



Carl Laemmle
presents

Stuart Paton's
Tremendous Drama of Woman against Woman
starring

PRISCILLA
DEAN

the most Dynamic Personality in Moving Pictures

UNIVERSAL JEWEL
Production de Luxe

READ THIS—

A NEW DEAN picture has come to be just about the biggest piece of good luck that the American exhibitor can expect.

This is simply because every Dean picture is—in a perfectly clean sense of the word—sensational. You remember "The Wildcat Of Paris"—clean, but a sensation in every sense of the word, including the money sense. Then "The Virgin Of Stamboul"—without a scene that needed cutting, but a perfect whirlwind at the box-office. Then, "Outside The Law"—the biggest money-maker of 1921, but without a trace of objectionable sex stuff in it.

And now—a production fully as sensational as any of these but with an even stronger clash of human emotions in it—the tremendous clash of a mother with a past and a daughter with a future—a picture, furthermore, with a title that will reach out across the street and pull in every man and woman who passes your theatre.

Take my advice as the producer of some of the greatest successes you have known in your career as a showman and book this new Dean photodrama for bigger receipts than any picture that this dazzling star of the screen has so far produced.

I've seen it. I KNOW!

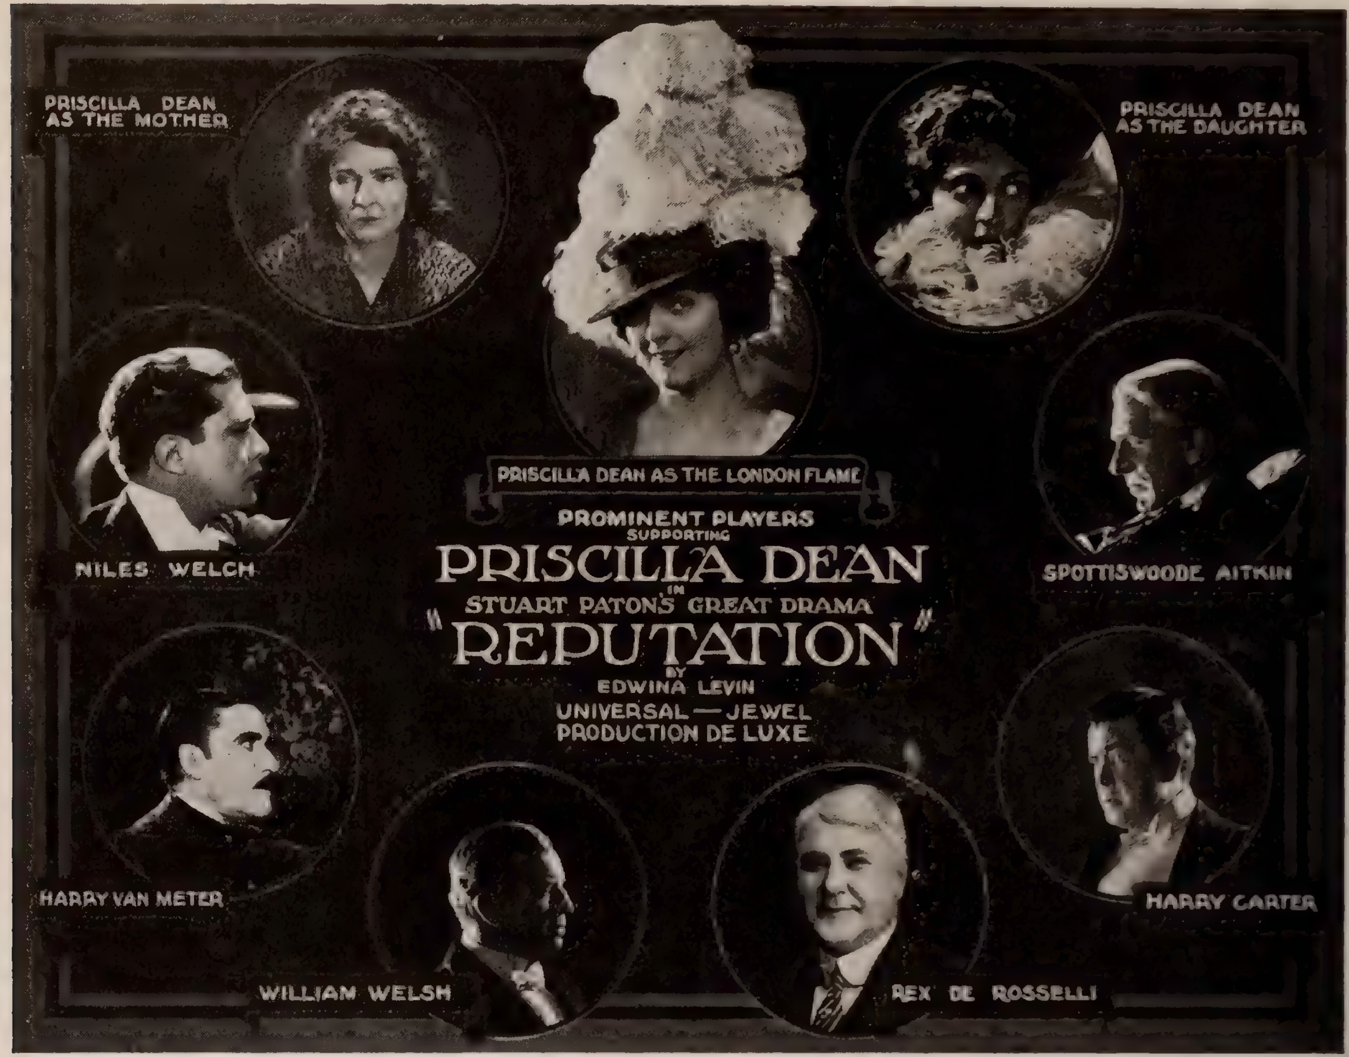
Carl Laemmle

The exploitation of "Outside The Law" was the most successful ever known in pictures. But wait till you see what we're doing for you with "Reputation."

Your big Campaign Folder will be in your hands within a very few days. Watch your mails for it.

Don't be backward in calling on your Universal Exchange for advice in promoting this picture. More helps and better helps than ever before.

The biggest favor you can do yourself this year is to play "Reputation" as all-fired soon as your schedule will permit. If you've just shown "Outside The Law," so much the better. You can't give 'em too much Dean!



PRISCILLA DEAN AS THE MOTHER
PRISCILLA DEAN AS THE DAUGHTER
NILES WELCH
PRISCILLA DEAN AS THE LONDON FLAME
SPOTTISWOODE AITKIN
PROMINENT PLAYERS SUPPORTING
PRISCILLA DEAN
IN STUART PATON'S GREAT DRAMA
"REPUTATION"
BY EDWINA LEVIN
UNIVERSAL—JEWEL
PRODUCTION DE LUXE
HARRY VAN METER
HARRY CARTER
WILLIAM WELSH
REX DE ROSSELLI

Popular Screen Actors Support Priscilla Dean

INCLUDED in the extensive exploitation material to be supplied exhibitors for use with "Reputation," the Universal-Jewel, which promises to be the most successful of the pictures starring Priscilla Dean, there will be a set of stills of the prominent players in the supporting cast.

Because of the popularity and the screen success of the actors supporting Priscilla Dean in her new picture, their portraits have been mounted on the card reproduced on this page, and which can be effectively used in lobby displays or in other forms of advertising. Some of the best known actors on the screen appear in support of Priscilla Dean in "Reputation."

Niles Welch, who plays opposite her as leading man in her rôle of Pauline Stevens, the American actress, is one of the most brilliant of the younger cinema players. He has played the leading male rôles in "Miss George Washington," "Stepping Out," "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," "The Gulf Between," "The Spenders" and many others.

Harry Van Meter, who plays opposite Miss Dean in the early episodes of the story, has appeared with most of the leading screen stars, some of the Universal productions in which he had prominent rôles being "Princess Virtue," "Broadway Love," "Under Crimson Skies" and "The Day She Paid."

Harry Carter, who plays opposite the star in the London part of the story, is an actor with a reputation won both on the stage and on the screen. He has appeared with Mrs. Leslie Carter, Mrs. Fiske, Julia Marlowe and other stage stars, and in the films he has scored individual hits in "The Circus of Life," "Beloved Jim," "The Marriage Life," "Beans," "After His Own Heart," "The Torrent" and in other productions.

Albert Garcia, who is Miss Dean's leading man in the stage episode, is a well known player in dramatic stock, having won particular success in the very rôle he is called upon to depict in the play within a play.

Other splendid work is done by Spottiswoode Aitken, the veteran screen actor, who has the rôle of an old musician; by little Mae Garcia, who plays Priscilla Dean's rôle as a child; William Welsh, popular Universal player, who has the rôle of the theatrical manager; Madge Hunt, who apears as the orphan asylum matron; Rex de Rosselli, as the theatre owner and many others.

Little Matoon Packs 'Em for a 2-day Run!

"AN exceptionally good picture. Very pleasing and entertaining. Packed 'em in for a two-day run."
STRAND THEATRE,
Matoon, Ill.

"BROKE all records. I must bring this picture back in order to do justice to the many that were turned away."
ORPHEUM THEATRE,
Cincinatti, O.

"SPLENDID picture. The audience highly appreciated it. Best results of any picture played this year."
ASHLAND THEATRE,
St. Louis, Mo.

PRISCILLA DEAN

The Little Town's Biggest Picture!

in "The VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

500,000 Universal
Production de Luxe

Directed by
TOD. BROWNING

Story by
H.H. VAN LOAN

The Fastest Booking Pic

J. D. Siegel, manager of the Contract Department, handing to E. H. Goldstein, representing Mr. Carl Laemmle, a batch of 1143 contracts—four days' business—on "Outside The Law."

FOUR days' business—1143 contracts! A record that wiped out every vestige of any ever established by Universal. But not alone has it smashed Universal's record, but everywhere that "Outside The Law" has been shown, it has created new and bigger records, lining the crowds up for hours and causing exhibitors but one regret: that they did not have the foresight to book it for a longer run.

If you are one of the few doubting Thomases, read the next page and be convinced.

PRISCILLA DEAN Supported b
LON CHANEY

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL-

ure of the Past 5 Years!

Smashed 14-Year Record

BROKE all house records since this house opened fourteen years ago.

WIGWAM THEATRE,
Reno, Nev.

Police Had To Keep Order

TREMENDOUS business. Broke all records by over three hundred and fifty dollars. Crowds blocked traffic. Week's business surpasses anything ever done in show business here.

ELLANAY THEATRE,
El Paso, Tex.

Topped Every Record

BROKE all theatre records in Waco.

STRAND THEATRE,
Waco, Texas.

Best Ever Shown

BROKE all box-office records. Opened Tuesday, usually the poorest day in the week, with capacity business day and night. Best ever brought to this city.

GROVE THEATRE,
Elgin, Ill.

Greatest of All

BROKE all records. Gross receipts on first two days over two hundred dollars greater than any other picture played here and we have played the biggest of them.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE,
Hamilton, Ont.

New England Eats It Alive

BEAT the record established by Fairbanks. Patrons praised the picture to the skies.

RICHMOND THEATRE,
North Adams, Mass.

And Moore Knows

JUST closed the largest week's business ever done in our Rialto Theatre. One of those rare productions that will do big business in any theatre or locality.

MOORE'S RIALTO,
Washington, D. C.

Riot in Flint

OPENED here on Sunday to capacity. Almost caused a riot. Greatest picture ever seen in Flint is the public opinion.

ORPHEUM THEATRE,
Flint, Mich.

Universal-Jewel Production

OUTSIDE THE LAW"

-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

PAGE TWO Amusement Section THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL Sunday, March 27, 1921

Priscilla Dean Leads Movie Contest

Star of Photoplay "Virgin of Stamboul" Now First in Annual Popularity Contest

POPULAR UNIVERSAL STAR LEADS MOVIE CONTEST IN MINNEAPOLIS

PRISCILLA DEAN, of "The Virgin of Stamboul" fame, and at present featured in the Universal-Jewel "Outside the Law," holds first place in the sixth annual popularity motion picture contest conducted by the Minneapolis Journal, of Minneapolis, Minn. This is all the more remarkable when it is learned that the Universal star was not even entered in the contest during the first week.

She is best remembered in the Northwest for her work in "The Virgin of Stamboul," although now her latest picture, "Outside The Law," is being shown in the Northwest States. The standing of the film favorites is published every Sunday in the amusement section of the Minneapolis Journal.

Votes for those in the contest have been received from points as far south as Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and from Billings, Mont., and Bismarck, N. D. The first fifty persons sending in the largest list of votes will receive an autographed photograph of the winning actress.

PRISCILLA DEAN.

Priscilla Dean received 1,442 votes in the second week of the contest, which put her in the lead. Her nearest competitors are Anita Stewart with 1,357 votes and Mary Miles Minter with 1,330 votes. Although not among the first leaders in the contest because their names had been entered at the last minute, Edith Roberts and Irene Rich, who are fast becoming popular Universal stars, also received votes.

OTHER UNIVERSAL PLAYERS ALSO WIN PLACES

Edith Roberts' last picture was "The Unknown Wife," in which she scored a tremendous success. At the present time she is at work on her next picture under the direction of Norman Dwan, who directed her work in "The Fire Cat," a wonderful achievement.

Her next picture is a story of the South Seas and is being filmed under the title of "My Lady of the Island."

Irene Rich has been engaged to play opposite Harry Carey, in the Universal star's next production, "Christmas Eve at Pilot Butte." The story is by Courtney Ryley Cooper and recently appeared in the Red Book Magazine. Jack Ford will direct the picture.

Mary MacLaren, a former Universal star, but who is not acting in pictures at present, and Kathleen O'Connor, formerly featured in serials by Universal, also received a number of votes in the contest.

TIMES MYSTERY GIRL AWARDS TAM WINNERS

First run of "Outside The Law" in Toronto at the Regent Theatre.

ONE of the best Priscilla Dean Tam stunts reported in cities where "Outside The Law" has been shown, was the one conducted in St. Louis, Mo., in co-operation with the St. Louis Times. The editor of the Times assigned one of his young women reporters to the story and she appeared at designated places in the shopping district of the city wearing one of the Priscilla Dean Tams.

The following account of some of her experiences is taken from a story in the Times.

The job of Miss Mystery is not as easy as it looks. The mysterious tam o'shantered beauty came to this conclusion after a bitter verbal tilt with an Amazon encountered yesterday on Seventh street and whose temper was fired when she missed winning a tam by one word.

"I'll show you whether I repeated the correct words or not," the irate woman shouted at petite Miss Mystery and the threat caused the "Outside the Law" girl to momentarily lose her poise.

But a stern admonition from the lips of Miss Mystery kept her inner feelings concealed and after thinking it over the unfortunate woman, who had omitted the name of Priscilla and used Miss Dean in accosting the mysterious miss, regained her composure and apologized to the elusive "proxy" of the Universal star.

"You bet I was nervous," laughed Miss Mystery later. "But I can forgive her. She was excited.

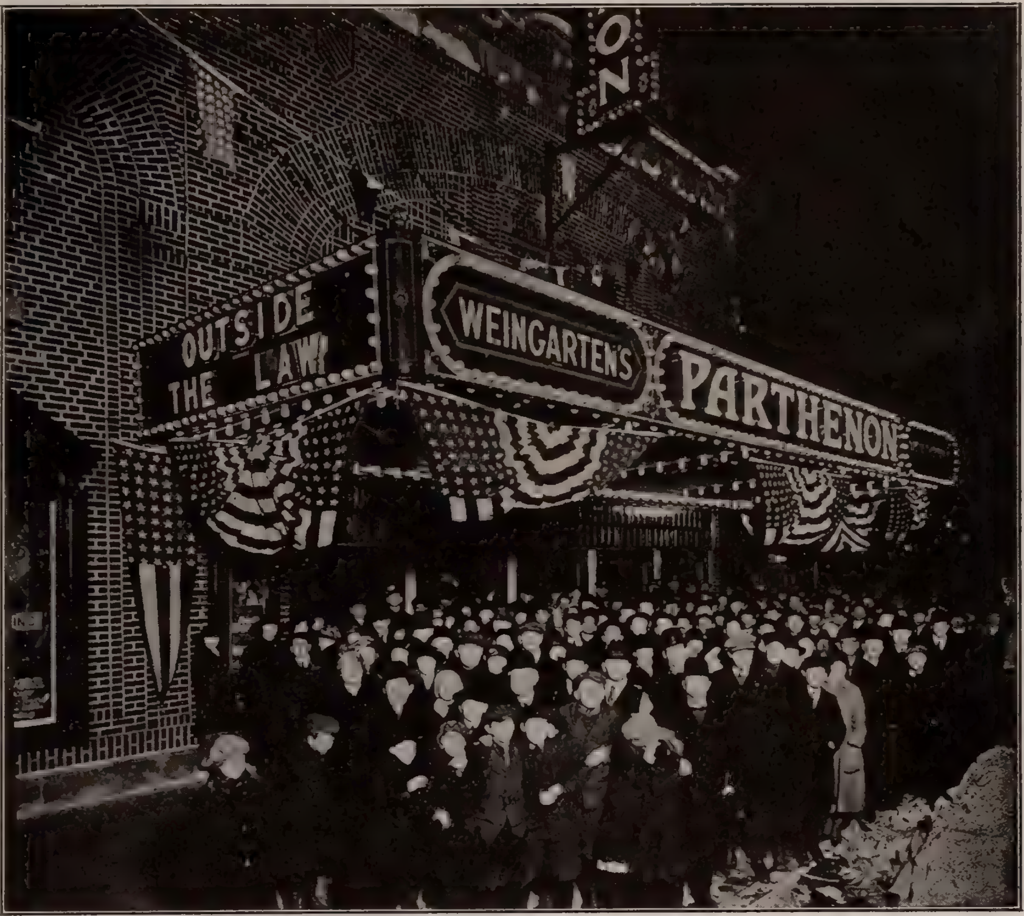
In an effort to avert unpleasantries in the future, Miss Mystery starting today will present persons who miss winning one of the chic tams by misstating the magic words, with a ticket to the Royal Theatre, where the Universal production is showing.

NEW THEATRE OPENS WITH JEWEL FILM

FOR the initial showing at the new $300,000 Parthenon Theatre in the Ridgewood section of Brooklyn, N. Y., the Universal-Jewel, "Outside The Law," starring Priscilla Dean, was selected as the feature photoplay. The theatre is owned by Herman Weingarten and is one of the best and most modern of the newer playhouses in Brooklyn.

The theatre, which is located on the corner of Myrtle and Wyckoff avenues, has a seating capacity of 1600 people, and was opened for the first time to the public on February 26th.

The general decoration scheme of the new playhouse is gold and old rose. There are large rest rooms for the women patrons, writing rooms and smoking rooms for the men, telephone booths and a promenade. A perfect view of the screen may be obtained from any seat in the house.



Crowd at "Outside The Law" Opening of New Parthenon Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Best Melodrama Ever Shown

Cicero, Illinois,
April 1st, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Chicago, Ill.

"OUTSIDE THE LAW" is a knockout.

Don't fail to book it!

Run to capacity business for three days and each succeeding day bigger than the one previous.

Give me more pictures like this and I will be ready to pay well for same.

Yours very truly,

M. A. GOLD,

Annette Theatre.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
San Francisco, California.

I have recently run "OUTSIDE THE LAW" and think it only fair to advise you how well this picture went over. I consider it one of the best melodramas I have ever shown—I have heard nothing but the most favorable comments on this picture ,and am going to repeat it within the next two or three monhs.

Yours very truly,

J. E. SMITH,

Tonopah, Nevada.

The Biggest Sea Picture Ever Filmed

Here's the best spring tonic any theatre could ask for——a great big sea story with a smash and a crash that will carry your patrons right into the middle of the biggest adventure they ever had in their lives. More than that, it's a picture with a proven past that means for your box-office a big future. Ask any man who has played it. Get busy today.

"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

Directed by Rex Ingram
Story by J. G. Hawks

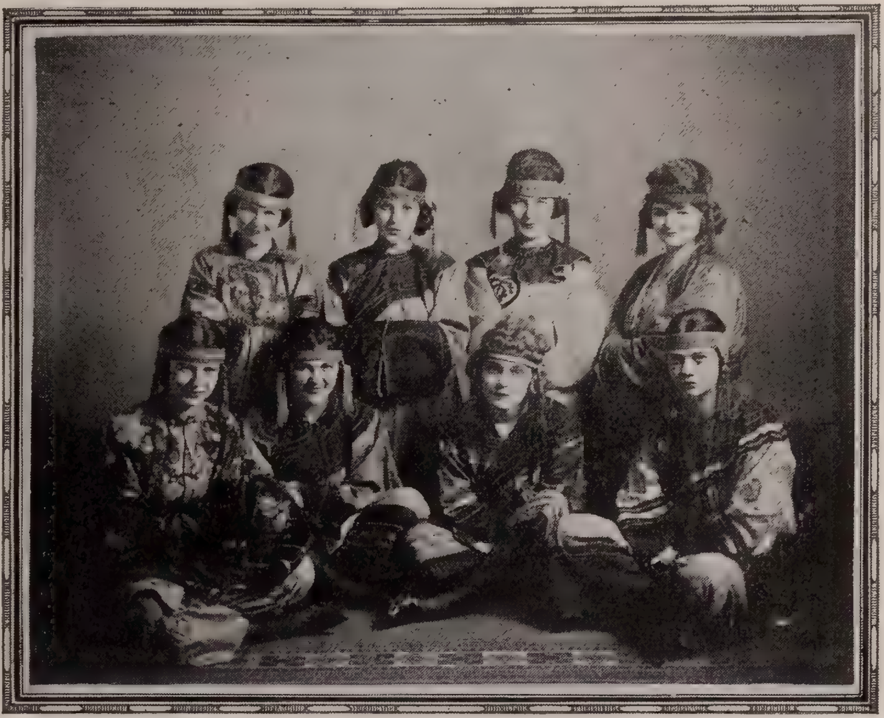
Starring
ELMO
LINCOLN

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
SUPER-PRODUCTION

"Every Jewel a Rare Gem"

ONE of the special stunts used by E. W. Taylor, manager of the Rialto Theatre in Bremerton, Washington, during the showing of "Outside The Law" was to have the ushers dress in special oriental costume. They made an attractive appearance and added another link in the chain of exploitation used to put over the Universal-Jewel film.

This was another house where the great crook melodrama of American life broke all previous records. In the following letter to the Universal Film Exchange in Seattle, Washington, Mr. Taylor tells of his exploitation for the feature-de-luxe, with which he had wonderful success:



"Outside The Law" Ushers at Rialto Theatre, Bremerton, Wash.

Universal Film Exchange, Inc.:

While it's fresh in my mind I just want to say to you that "Outside The Law" is still further proof that Universal-Jewels are rare gems for the motion picture exhibitor.

I did my level best to tell the folks in Bremerton about this splendid attraction by means of special exploitation; a little extra effort in the lobby and appropriate costuming of the ushers—they then in turn 'tried to get in."

You shouldn't have to "go out" and sell this one, because it's the sort of an attraction that the live exhibitor is searching for. With kindest regards, I am, Very truly yours, Osran Amusement Co., E. W. Taylor, Manager.

Novel Auto Tag Stunt

F. R. SMITH, manager of the Bijou Theatre in Fond du Lac, Wis., created no end of comment in that town with an automobile tag stunt he worked in exploiting "Outside the Law."

"During the last year, the police of that place have enforced a strict non-parking ordinance. When they find a car-owner breaking the ordinance, they "tag" the car with a red tag notifying the owner to call at the police station.

Smith had a bunch of red tags made up the same size and color of the police tags. On these tags he printed the following ad:

"You haven't been pinched. But you ought to be, if you pass up the chance to see the greatest American melodrama ever shown on the screen:

"Outside the Law," etc.

"Pin your hair down! Take a deep breath! Then come and be really thrilled."

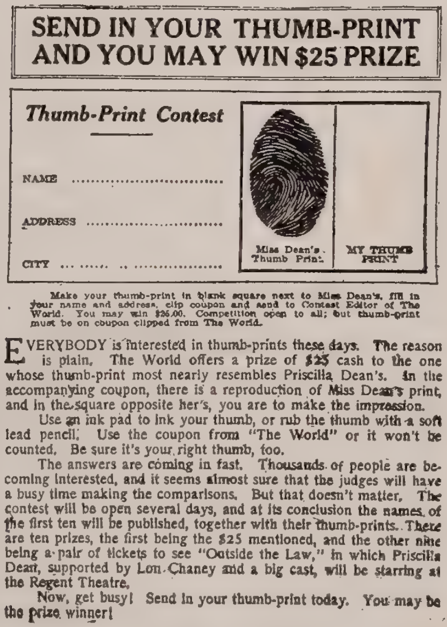
Kansas City, Mo.,
March 15th, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.
Kansas City, Mo.

It gives me great pleasure to recommend "Outside The Law" to any and every exhibitor as being a production of unusual merit. I played this picture seven days to capacity business, and found that my patrons were unusually pleased with it.

It is an unusual picture, has a wonderful cast, the direction is well-nigh perfect, and considered from every angle, it is 100% box-office attraction.

Very sincerely yours,
SAM HARDING,
Liberty Theatre.



SEND IN YOUR THUMB-PRINT AND YOU MAY WIN $25 PRIZE

Thumb-Print Contest

NAME ....

ADDRESS ....

CITY ....

Miss Dean's Thumb Print.
MY THUMB PRINT

Make your thumb-print in blank square next to Miss Dean's, fill in your name and address, clip coupon and send to Contest Editor of The World. You may win $25.00. Competition open to all; but thumb-print must be on coupon clipped from The World.

EVERYBODY is interested in thumb-prints these days. The reason is plain. The World offers a prize of $25 cash to the one whose thumb-print most nearly resembles Priscilla Dean's. In the accompanying coupon, there is a reproduction of Miss Dean's print, and in the square opposite her's, you are to make the impression.

Use an ink pad to ink your thumb, or rub the thumb with a soft lead pencil. Use the coupon from "The World" or it won't be counted. Be sure it's your right thumb, too.

The answers are coming in fast. Thousands of people are becoming interested, and it seems almost sure that the judges will have a busy time making the comparisons. But that doesn't matter. The contest will be open several days, and at its conclusion the names of the first ten will be published, together with their thumb-prints. There are ten prizes, the first being the $25 mentioned, and the other nine being a pair of tickets to see "Outside the Law," in which Priscilla Dean, supported by Lon Chaney and a big cast, will be starring at the Regent Theatre.

Now, get busy! Send in your thumb-print today. You may be the prize winner!

Toronto World announcement of prize contest for thumb-prints.

DAILY NEWS, THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1921.

A WESTERN GUNMAN PROVIDES VARIOUS ANXIOUS MOMENTS

"THE FREEZE OUT."
Produced by Universal.
Presented at outlying theatres.
THE CAST.
The Stranger........Harry Carey
Zoe Whipple......Helen Ferguson
Headlight Whipple ....Joe Harris
Denver Red.....Charles Le Moyne
Bobtail McGuire,
J. Farrell MacDonald
Mrs. McGuire.. Lydia Yeamans Titus

By McELLIOTT.

There are moments of real, almost agonized suspense in Harry Carey's picture. You are conscious of an actual shrinking when Harry, brandishing a formidable pistol aloft, jocularly ascertains the exact location of the villain's black heart by thrusting the tip of his handkerchief above the ridge of his vest pocket—and then aiming at it! Yes, there are real "moments" in "The Freeze Out."

I like Harry Carey as a gunman. I like his homely angularity, the ingenuous manner he toes in—the comic honesty of all his behavior. He cannot be accused of imitating Hart, although this is the sort of story he does best. His movements are not cribbed from William S., nor his expressions. They are all his own. And good.

"The Freeze Out" tells one of those peculiar-to-the-movies tales of how a rough diamond has his corners polished off by a pretty, fiery and earnest maiden. In this case she is Helen Ferguson, who has flaming dark eyes, a combative chin and a sturdy little figure. She burns to reform the town of Broken Buckle, and incidentally her reformation takes in the figures of The Stranger (Harry Carey), who is not such a bad 'un, after all.

It's good western stuff, as western stuff goes. There's enough humor—and enough of the agonized suspense I mentioned in the first paragraph—to make it popular.

INFLUENCE

Bad Man Reformed by Film Heroine

HE WAS A BAD MAN, to all intents, but the heroine reformed him. As Harry Carey plays him in "The Freeze Out" he's a plain, as to looks, but swaggering, as to gait, hero. You like him and the picture.

The motion picture column conducted in the New York Daily News every morning is always interesting and ever original. Miss Mabel McElliott, the reviewer, is invariably quick to appreciate merit on the silver sheet and avoids the stereotyped form of criticism.

If not a daughter of the West she appreciably is a great admirer of action "Westerns," particularly of the type in which Harry Carey plays the swaggering hero.

NEXT HARRY CAREY PICTURE STARTED AT UNIVERSAL CITY

WHAT is regarded as the best story secured by Universal for Harry Carey in a long time has been placed in production at Universal City under the direction of Jack Ford. The story is called "Christmas Eve at Pilot Butte" and attracted considerable attention some time ago when it appeared in the Red Book Magazine. Courtney Ryley Cooper is the author of the original tale. The screen version is the work of E. J. Clawson.

"Christmas Eve at Pilot Butte" is a strong story of life in the raw. It deals with the primitive emotions and the elemental passions and preaches the doctrine that virtue and nobility know neither social station nor geographical limitations.

The rôle of Bart Carson might have been written to Carey's measure, so thoroughly does it suit the popular western star. It is remarkably human in its weaknesses and its heroics and permits of an exhibition of self sacrifice in the concluding reel that is guaranteed to play a tremola on the heartstrings of every person in the audience.

TO POPULARIZE GUN THROUGH STAR'S NAME

A REVIVAL of the old frontier model revolver and its general use is indicated by the fact that the largest manufacturer of fire-arms has asked permission to name the modernized weapon of the old range after Harry Carey.

The Universal star uses a gun of that type in his western photodramas and has done much toward re-establishing the "six-shooter" in the estimation of men who live in the out-of-doors.

The gun, it is pointed out by sportsmen, drives a good sized slug with terrific force, is simple in mechanism, is not injured by rough handling in the open and will eventually supplant the ultra-modern automatic as the shooting iron for men who work in the open country.

The manufacturer has sent a model of the gun to Carey and the star is testing its "hang" in the filming of "The Freeze Out," the big western feature in which he is being directed by Jack Ford at Universal City.

The gun is engraved with the star's name and the makers are frank in saying that through the dedication they hope to make it popular as a side-arm.

A Story of Success

DUPLICATED ALL OVER THE COUNTRY DURING THE PAST FEW MONTHS BY HUNDREDS OF EXHIBITORS

(As telegraphed by Edward J. Weisfeldt, Manager of Saxe's Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, and George L. Levine)

1st Day

"DEVIL'S PASSKEY" opened Alhambra today. Week's exploitation stunts proved great asset. The way Milwaukeeans turned out one would think picture ran only one day. Box-office cashier had to be relieved twice, so steady were receipts. Picture proving big success.

2nd Day

TURNING them away steadily by hundreds. Never heard so many favorable comments passed on any picture as on "Passkey." All who see it recommend it to friends, resulting in bigger crowds from hour to hour. "Passkey" making Alhambra greatest city attraction.

3rd Day

PLAYING third day to capacity business. Finding it impossible to accommodate all. Everyone you meet bound for Alhambra. No picture ever created more talk in town. "Passkey" no doubt biggest box-office attraction released in years. More pictures like this and often.

4th Day

FOURTH day of run "Passkey" shows 100% increase in crowds over three previous days. One continuous line of people in lobby and on sidewalk from first show in morning till evening final. Never before has Milwaukee seen such crowds attempting to gain admission to a theatre.

5th Day

FIFTH day opened door to most successful week for Alhambra. With two circuses in town—Ringling and Sells-Floto—Alhambra still continues to draw biggest crowds. In spite of big attractions in other downtown theatres the five-day period has already broken week's record for attendance.

6th Day

SIXTH day of "Passkey." Still playing to capacity business. Turning hundreds away. Every time manager sees me he says: "Give me more productions like it. Everybody wonderfully pleased."

Carl Laemmle presents, Von Stroheim's Master Picture

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

Universal - Jewel Production De Luxe

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

A REAL NOVELTY in the show business always means real money—and lots of it. And here, indeed, is a real money-getting novelty. Here is an all-absorbing drama so treated and so presented as to make it distinctly unique—its unusually compelling story is interpreted by an All-Star cast which includes such favorites as Tsuru Aoki, Arthur Carewe, J. Barney Sherry, Ethel Shannon, Stanhope Wheatcroft and many others. It's a foregone conclusion that you can make just as much money, proportionately, as any of the other scores of exhibitors who have played it. Arrange a date NOW.

UNIVERSAL-
JEWEL

Carl Laemmle
offers

THE BREATH OF THE GODS

DIRECTED BY ROLLIN STURGEON FROM THE NOVEL by SIDNEY McCALL

momo ug sa gudy bud meaning
"we sure did start something!"
CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
"SHIPWRECKED AMONG CANNIBALS"
UNIVERSAL JEWEL

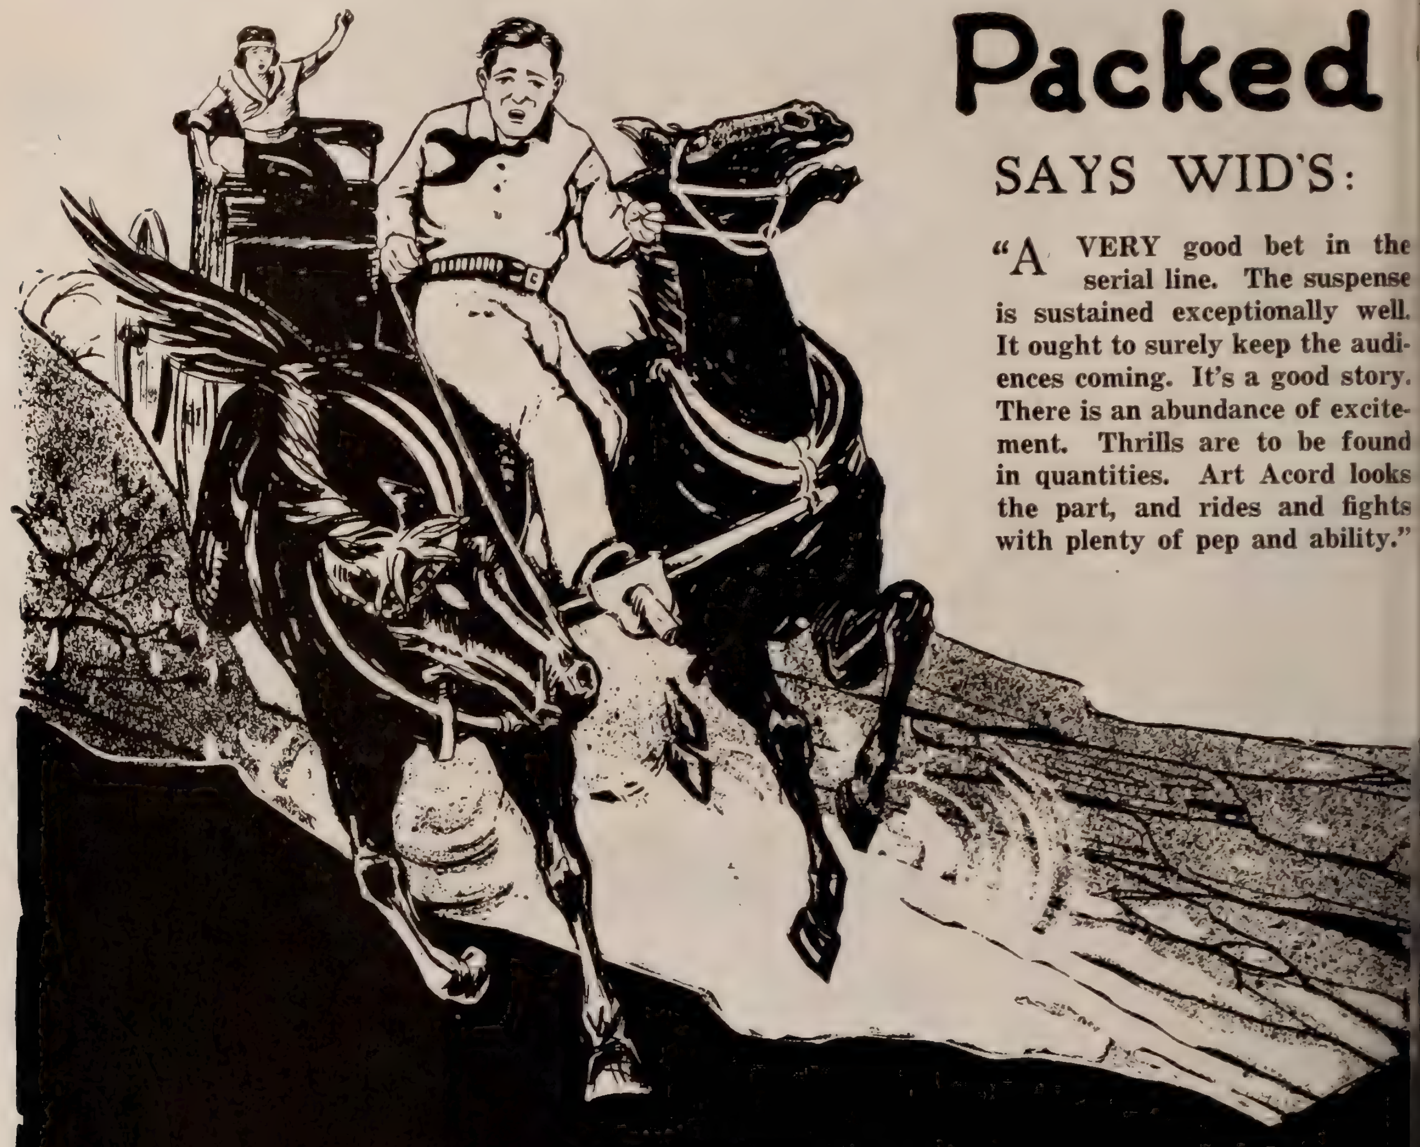
Straight Stuff!

"I'M not going to Bull you—I'm just going to give you my opinion briefly and explicitly on the three-day run of 'Shipwrecked Among Cannibals'. Here it is: IT GOT THE MONEY. Thanks for favors."—Peter Lind, Bijou Theatre, Cairo, Ill.

Packed

SAYS WID'S:

"A VERY good bet in the serial line. The suspense is sustained exceptionally well. It ought to surely keep the audiences coming. It's a good story. There is an abundance of excitement. Thrills are to be found in quantities. Art Acord looks the part, and rides and fights with plenty of pep and ability."



Carl Laemmle presents

ART ACORD

THE COWBOY KING

IN THE SUCCESSFUL SUCCESSOR TO "THE MOON RIDERS"

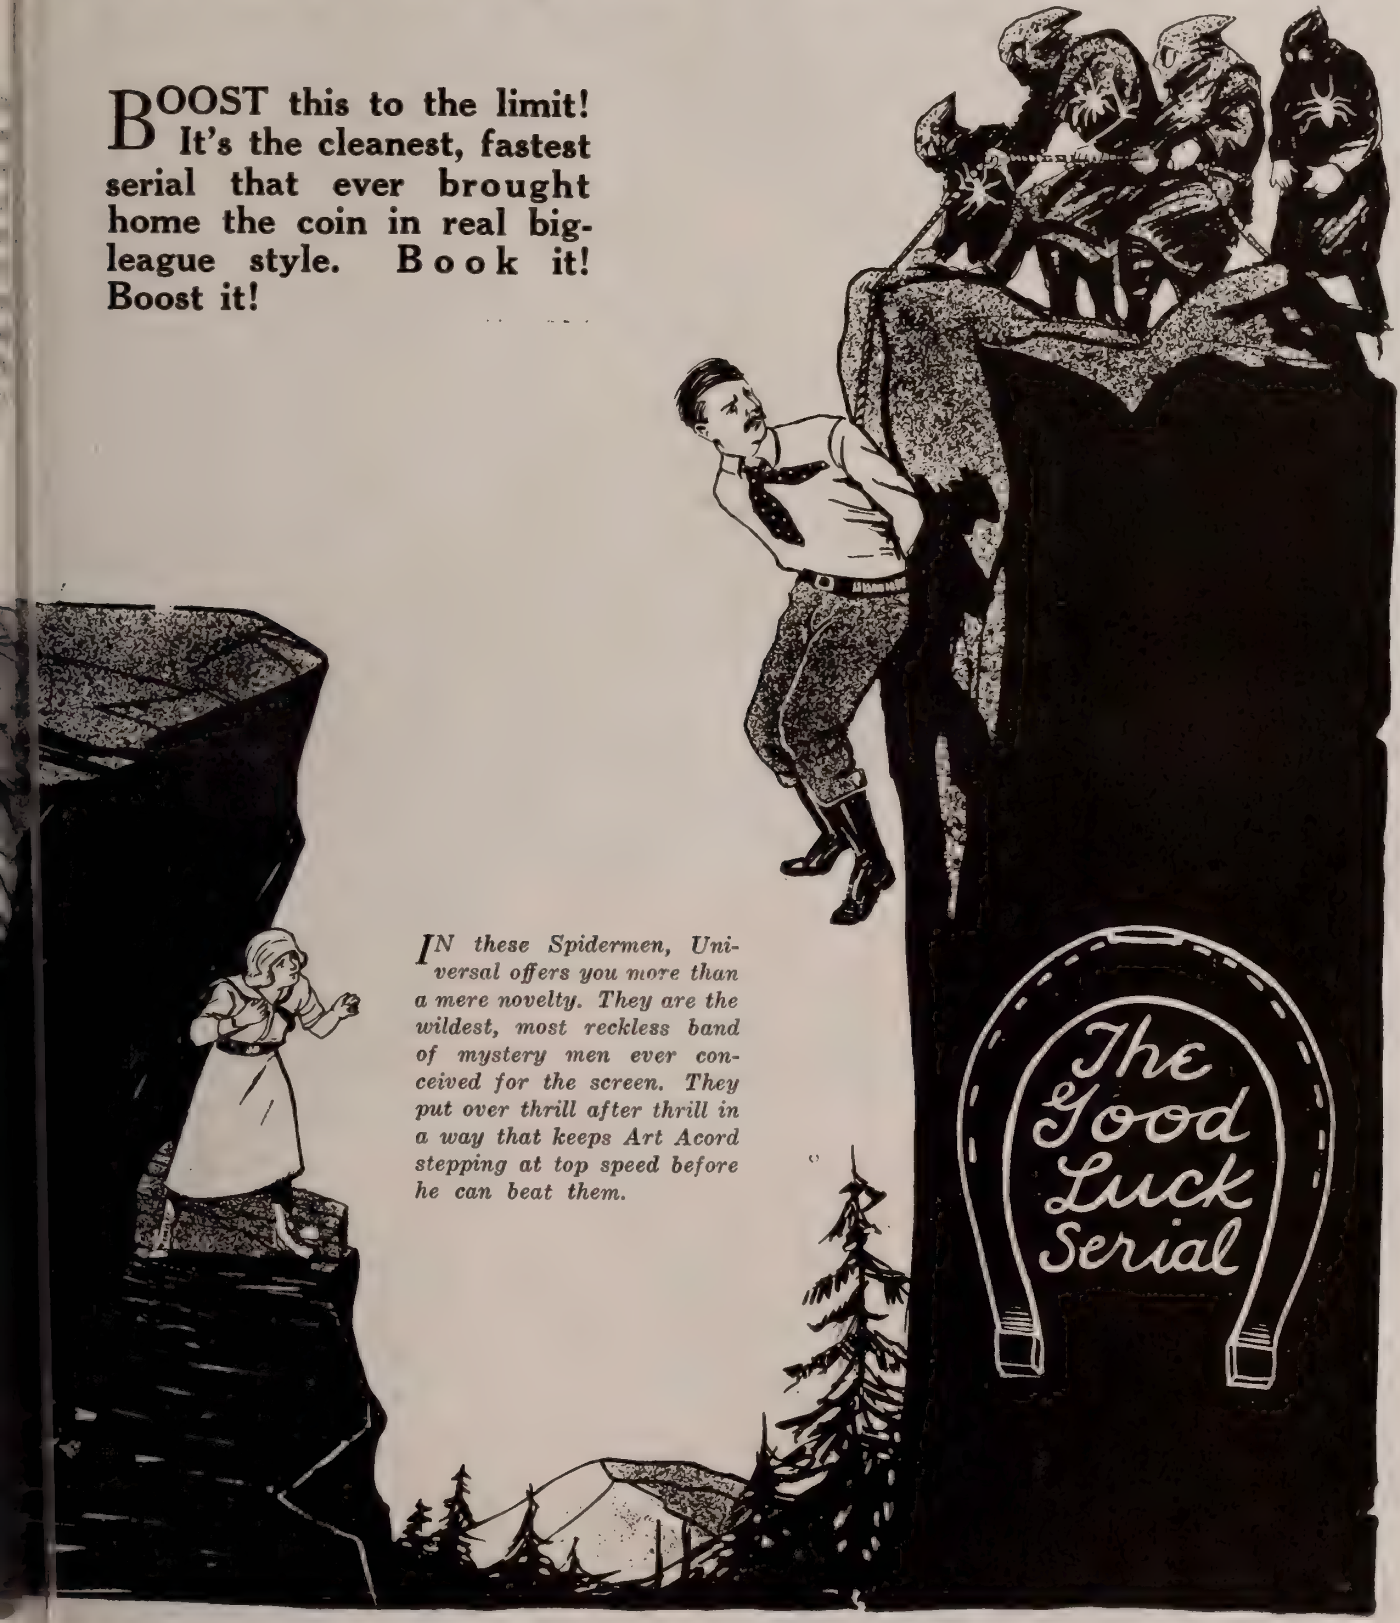
"The WHITE HORSEMAN"

UNIVERSAL'S GALLOPING WESTERN CHAPTER-PLAY.

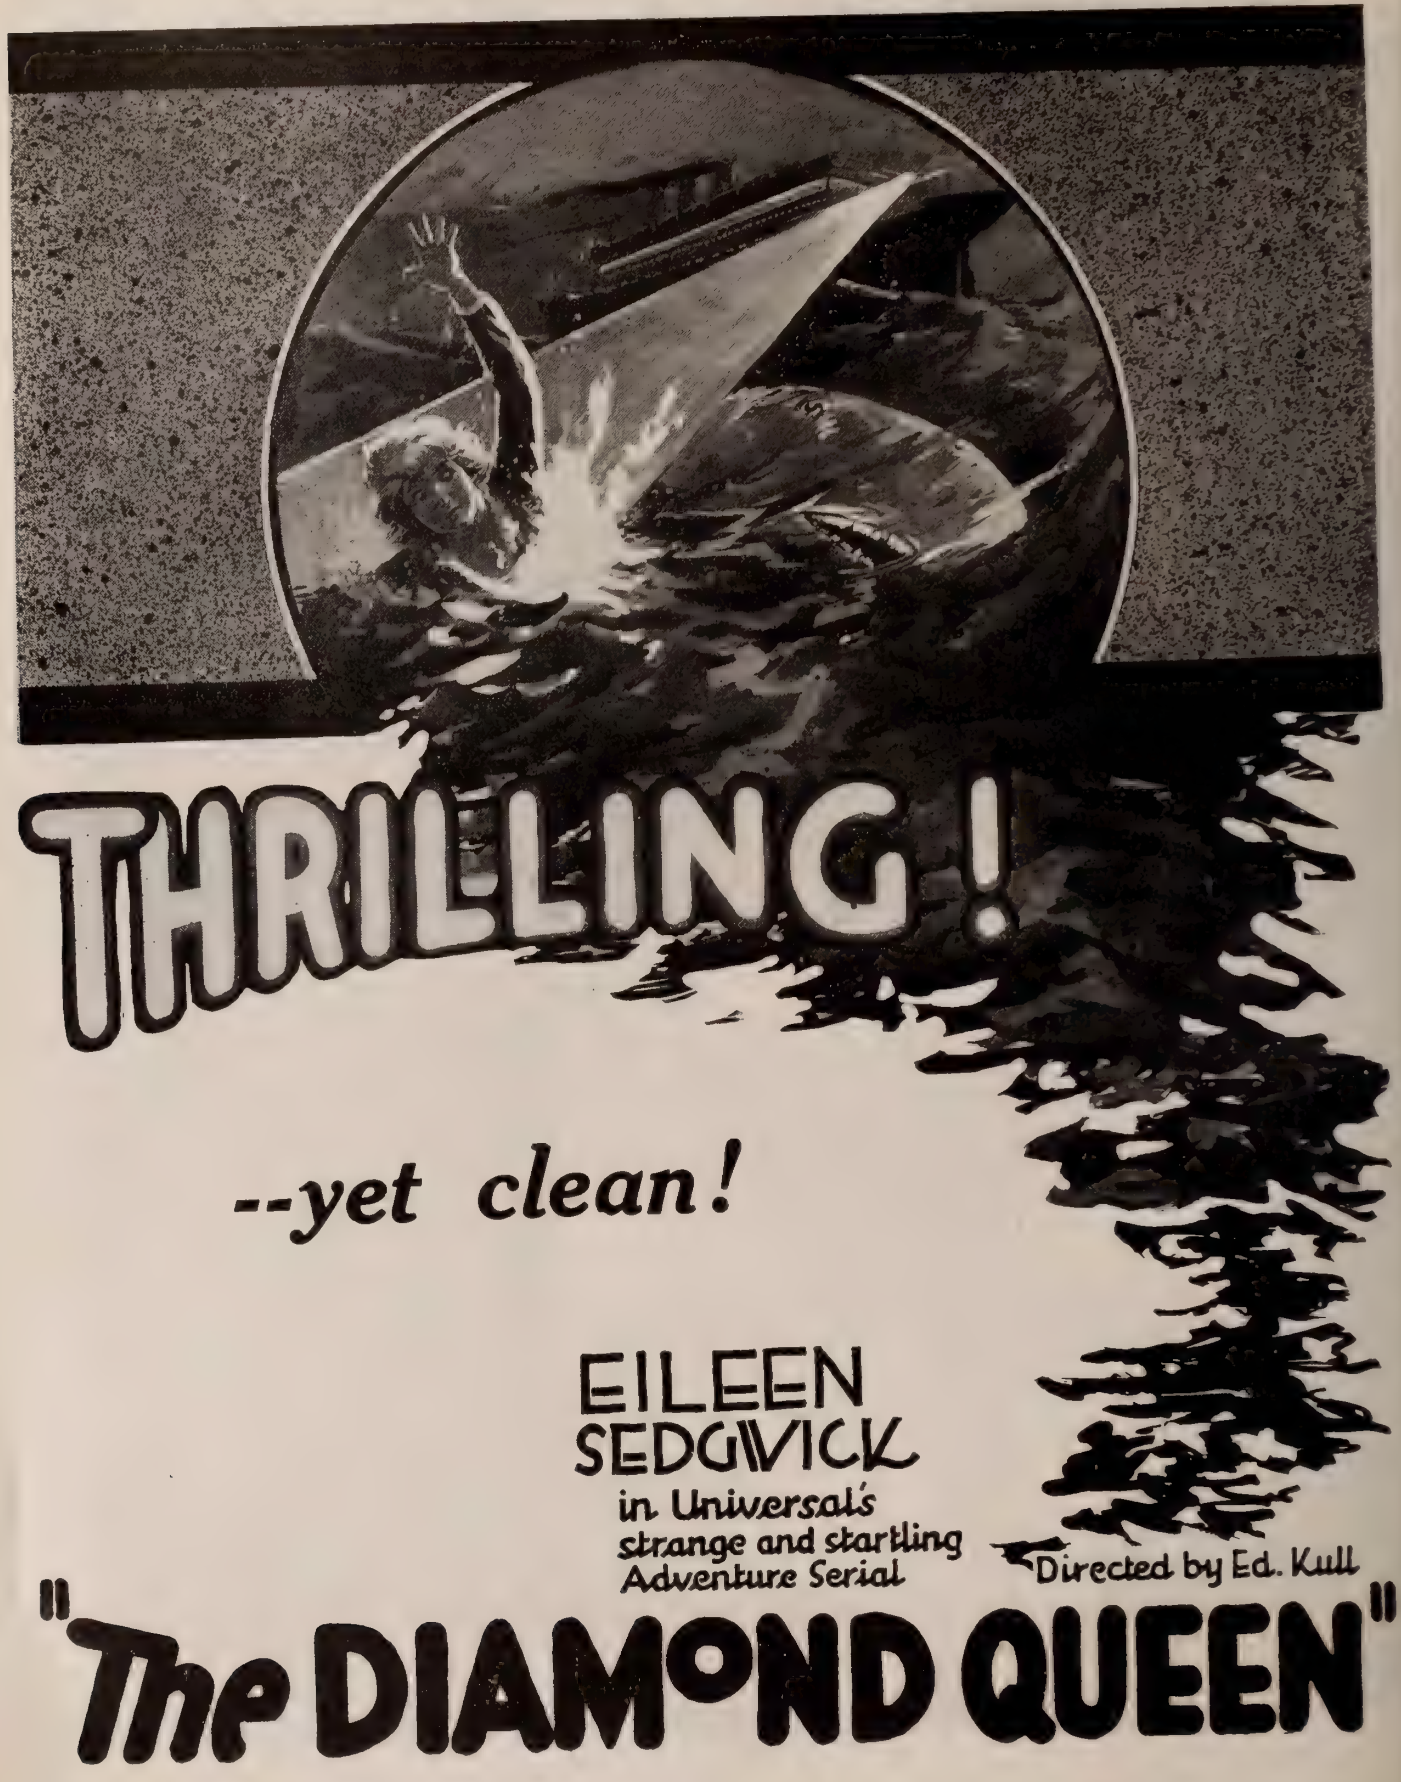
Directed by Al. Russell

full of Triple-Action Thrills

BOOST this to the limit! It's the cleanest, fastest serial that ever brought home the coin in real big-league style. Book it! Boost it!



IN these Spidermen, Universal offers you more than a mere novelty. They are the wildest, most reckless band of mystery men ever conceived for the screen. They put over thrill after thrill in a way that keeps Art Acord stepping at top speed before he can beat them.



THRILLING!

--yet clean!

EILEEN SEDGWICK

in Universal's strange and startling Adventure Serial

Directed by Ed. Kull

"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

DIAMOND
18 9
SHOWING

First Episode of "The Diamond Queen" at Midway Theatre, St. Louis, Mo.

Free Peanuts and Parade For Circus Film Showing

THE way in which J. C. Orner, manager of the Isis Theatre, in Fernie, B. C., recently "stunted" the Universal serial, "King Of The Circus" would have done credit to any theatre.

Orner's theatre only seats 350 persons, but his "circusing" resulted in 500 paid admissions for his first showing of the Eddie Polo serial.

He did the thing up right. Not only did he stage a street parade through Fernie, with music, clowns, and other circus parade requisites, but he also decorated the front of his theatre to represent the main entrance to a circus tent. To cap the climax, he gave ice cream cones and peanuts to all the youngsters present.

Reports on the Polo serial from other sections indicate it is a money getter. S. S. Steck, manager of a chain of theatres in Ogden, Utah, notified Universal the showing of the first episode of "King of the Circus" broke all house records for Friday and Saturday business in the Cozy Theatre of that city.

Next Sedgwick Serial Promises New Thrills

THE Midway Theatre, in St. Louis, Mo., which recently became a strong booster for serials, started its campaign with "The Diamond Queen," starring Eileen Sedgwick. To meet the popular demand for serials full of action built around a thrilling story, the Midway Theatre will run two reels of this serial every week and in the future expects to keep a chapter photoplay running every week.

On the opening day of "The Diamond Queen" a special children's matinee was given and the picture taken of the kids waiting for the opening of the doors of the playhouse is shown here.

Production has started at Universal City on "The Terror Trail," a serial in which Eileen Sedgwick will play the hazardous starring rôle under the direction of Edward Kull.

In no serial production in which she has heretofore been featured has the radiant blonde been required to do the dangerous feats which have been outlined for her in "The Terror Trail." On land and under the sea and in the air, the star will wage a terrific fight against uneven odds to achieve the purpose of the story and to thrill her admirers.

CIRCLES THE GLOBE

The story of "The Terror Trail" was written by John W. Gray and Edward Kull with the supervisory collaboration of William Lord Wright, chief of the serial and short reel feature department at Universal City.

In scope the narrative is cosmopolitan, touching every country on the globe. In theme it concerns a girl who, single handed, undertakes a patriotic service to her country by solving a great international mystery and frustrating the plans of crooked diplomatic agents.

The plot, which comes with smashing swiftness, cannot be told at this time, but it is said to have an international significance which will add to its force.

George Larkin, widely known as a leading man, has been selected to play opposite the star and will head an all-star supporting cast of unusual appeal.

Portland, Ore.,
March 15th, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Portland, Oregon.

Last light I played the last episode of "King Of The Circus." Polo played to wonderful business every Wednesday for eighteen weeks.

Kindly confirm my dates given for "The Diamond Queen," beginning March 23rd, and every Wednesday thereafter, and if "The Diamond Queen" goes over as well as "King Of The Circus" I will buy you the best suit of clothes in town.

Your 100% Universal friend,
SAM SAX, Manager,
Julius Sax Circuit.

The Biggest Star
in the Serial Skies
EDDIE
POLO

fights
mystery kisses shots thrills rescues fires
races leaps airships animals acrobats
parades

heroes villains babies airplanes boats derricks bullets money love adventure cages freaks
parades

UNIVERSAL'S 18 RING SERIAL SENSATION Directed by J. P. M^c^GOWAN

"KING of the CIRCUS"

"Meet Me, Men — I'm the Short Guy With the Strong Pull"

I AM Shorty.

I AM your boss crowd-getter.

I PACK one awful short-stuff wallop.

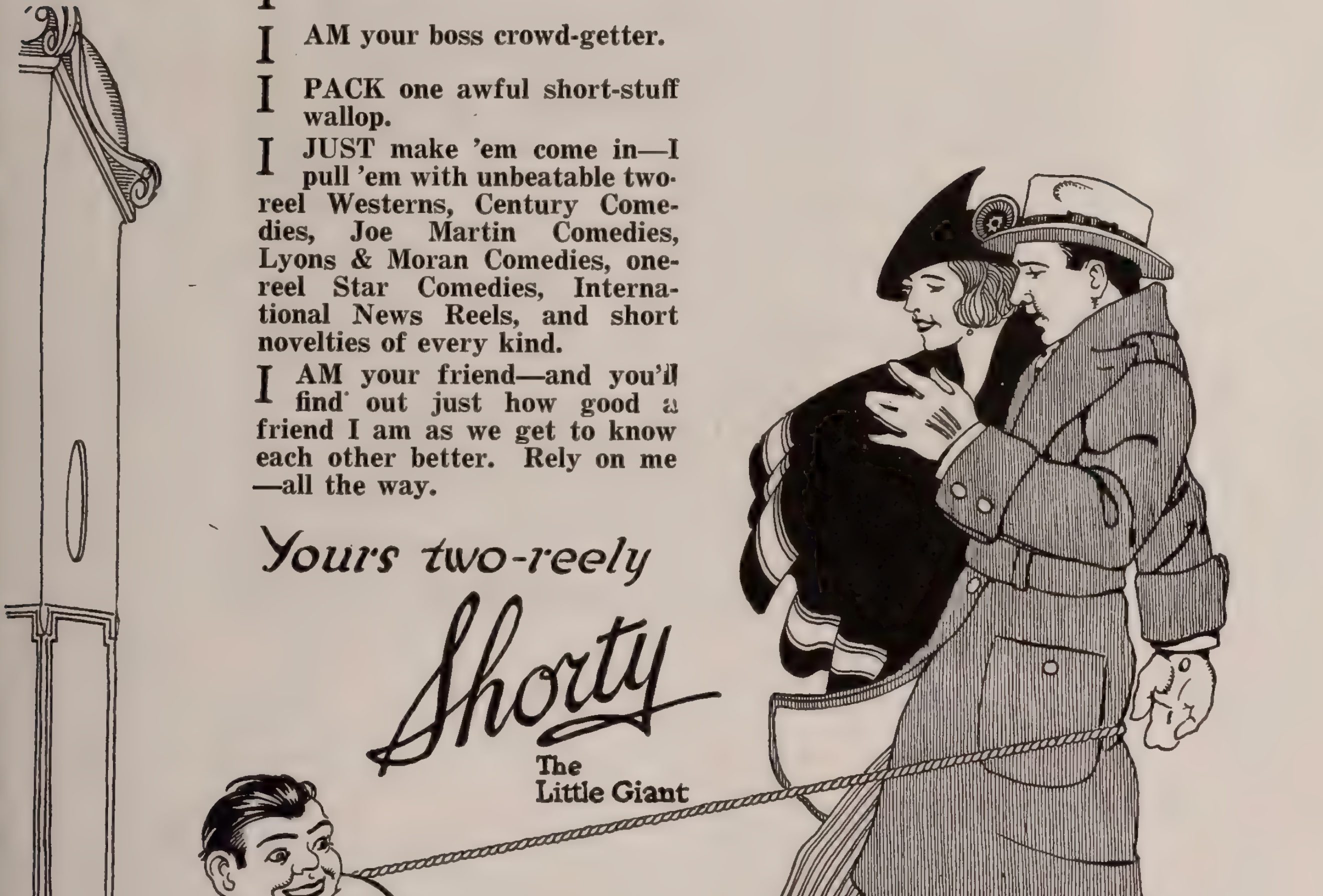
I JUST make 'em come in—I pull 'em with unbeatable two-reel Westerns, Century Comedies, Joe Martin Comedies, Lyons & Moran Comedies, one-reel Star Comedies, International News Reels, and short novelties of every kind.

I AM your friend—and you'll find out just how good a friend I am as we get to know each other better. Rely on me—all the way.

Yours two-reely

Shorty

The Little Giant



Universal Short Stuff

LION COMEDIES MORE POPULAR

Feet don't fail me! Many thrills are received by the Rajah's guards in the Century Comedy, "Harem-Skarem"

INCREASING popularity on the part of theatregoers in all sections of the country is reported for the Century Comedies featuring Harry Sweet, the Century Lions and "Brownie," the Wonder Dog. Letters are being received from exhibitors telling of the laughs their audiences enjoyed while watching these comedies.

The latest comedy featuring the Century Lions released through the Universal exchanges is called "Harem Scarem" and is said to be the best lion comedy ever produced. New and logical stunts are performed by the beasts in this comedy, with humorous angles which combine to make the picture a riot of laughter throughout.

Harry Sweet's latest comedy, "The Country Heir," promises to be the best yet enacted by that clever comedian. It was directed by William Watson and contains a continual sequence of laughs and humor of the highest type.

Sweet, in this picture, is supported by Florence Lee, the blond comedienne, recently seen in many of his two-reelers. The comedy is expected to be released in a few weeks. In the meanwhile another of Sweet's two-reelers has just been released. Its title is "Tough Luck," and it is well up to the comedian's standard.

His next picture, upon which he is now working, is "A Dollar's Worth" and was written by William Watson, the director.

"The Kid's Pal," featuring 'Brownie," the Century Wonder Dog, is nearing completion at the Hollywood studio of the Century Film Corporation, and will shortly be ready to release.

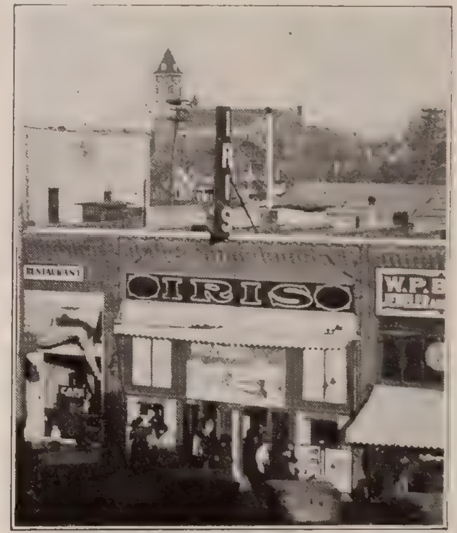
Cleveland Ohio,
Feb. 11, 1921.

Consolidated Film & Supply Co.,
Atlanta, Ga.

I have used every make of comedies on the market, but I find that the Century Comedy is the most consistently good comedy, one-a-week proposition on the screen to-day. It's my best bet.

Yours very truly,

W. H. Stevenson, Mgr.,
Moneta Theatre.



Iris Theatre, Hutchinson, Kansas, home of Universal serials.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Kansas City, Mo.

I congratulate you upon the splendid service you are now giving. Your service is the best it has ever been and it is better than that of any other Kansas City Exchange of which we have knowledge.

Very sincerely,

I. E. Runyan,
Hutchinson, Kan.

Put the Glooms out of business with one big laugh every week

Current Release:

"ON WITH THE SHOW"

PLAY

Harry Sweet

and

Brownie,

The Century Wonder-Dog

In

CENTURY COMEDIES

Released thru UNIVERSAL

"Killed In Self Defense"—the secret cloud over the Sheriff's life. See.......

"The Guilty Trail"

CAST

Art Somers	Jack Perrin
Grace Corliss	Louise Lorraine
John Corliss	C. W. Herzinger
Aaron Rasp	Jim Corey

ART, a cowboy at large, gallops into the town of Oasis to find that a hot political fight is in progress. Aaron Rasp is trying to defeat the election of John Corliss for sheriff. The old town marshal is recognized as a fearless officer and it is for that reason that Rasp and his henchmen want to render him powerless.

Over John Corliss, the marshal, hangs a secret fear. Years before, in another part of the west, he killed a man in self defense. Only Rasp knows that only self defense actuated him to kill and Rasp plans to use his knowledge of the killing to defeat Corliss and wreck his life.

While Corliss is being abused by Rasp in the latter's office, Art meets Grace, his daughter, and falls in love with her. Hearing the story he determines to save Corliss.

Rasp demands that Corliss send his daughter to him as a price for silence. Against Corliss' will the girl goes to the man and saves herself from his advances by sheer strength.

THE SECRET FEAR

Rebuked by the girl, Rasp determines to get even with her through her father. He decides to defeat his political ambitions by making known the face that years before Corliss killed a man. The killing was in self defense as the man had attacked Corliss, and Rasp knew this to be the truth.

He sends a letter to the district attorney of the town in which Corliss formerly lived and from which he fled after the shooting affray. Art overtakes the messenger with the letter, carries through a daring holdup of the stage and returns the incriminating missive to Corliss and the girl.

Together they are able to break the power of Rasp in the town and Corliss is elected sheriff of the county when the annual election is held. In helping Corliss, Art is thrown more and more in the society of the girl and they fall in love. When the celebration of the election of the new sheriff is over, another celebration is held announcing the engagement of Art Somers and Grace Corliss.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode No. 12

"The Kidnapping"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Benson	Al Smith
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zimba	Al Smith
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Aline Earle	Josephine Scott

AS Benson holds the gun on Bruce, using Doris as a shield, Zimba's foes, in the outer room, overcome him and throw him headlong from the top of the stairs. Zimba lies apparently dead. Watching his chance, Bruce leaps upon Benson when the latter's attention is momentarily distracted by Doris's revival. But in the fight, Benson's men reinforce him and Bruce is overpowered. Benson, devining the secret between Bruce and Doris, decides to put Bruce to a fiendish torture before her eyes, figuring that Doris wil reveal her secret of the diamonds rather than see the man she loves suffer.

Reporting to Zeidt, the diamond king, Benson tells him of his scheme, and Zeidt impatiently reminds him that the ninety days given the trust to answer Doris's ultimatum are fast speeding by—that there is no time to lose.

Aline Earle, helps Bruce and Doris to escape from the water front shack and all misunderstandings between them are cleared up. Aline falls sick and is taken to the county hospital where she is visited by Doris and Bruce. Leaving the hospital, they are attacked by Benson and his men who carry Doris off in a car and leave Bruce, stunned lying in the roadway.

In the car in which she is being kidnapped, Doris, gagged with a shawl, hears one man say to another (Benson): "Weston?—yes—but I leaned a bit too heavy on the sap—I'm afraid he's done for!" And back in the street of the accident, a fast-gathering crowd finds Bruce lying where he had dropped, apparently dead.

Life Of Circus Infant Saved By Joe Martin

"A Monkey Hero"

Two-reel Universal-Jewel

Featuring
JOE MARTIN

THE manager of Cheatem's Circus is seen by Joe Martin taking a bag containing $5,000 from the office safe. Before he can get away with the money, however, Joe Martin changes the bags.

When the manager discovers the trick he plans to steal his employer's baby and hold the infant for ransom. While he is riding down the road with the baby on the seat beside him in a buggy, Joe Martin dashes alongside the carriage on the back of a pony and snatches the baby away from the manager. He returns the baby safely to its parents.

Everyone leaves the house to go to the circus and little Jackie starts a fire which quickly spreads through the building. Joe Martin sees the smoke and goes for his animal friends. He sends the watchdog for the owner of the house, and has the elephant haul the fire hose to the house and direct a stream of water into Jackie's room.

Joe Martin climbs up the drainpipe, and, taking the baby in his arms, drops to the back of his elephant ally and saves the life of the infant.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring
HARRY CAREY
“West Is West”
“Hearts Up!”
“ ‘If Only Jim”
“The Freeze Out”

Starring
FRANK MAYO
“The Mariage Pit”
“Honor Bound”
“Tiger True”
“Colorado”
“The Magnificent Brute”

Starring
LYONS-MORAN
“La La Lucille”
“Fixed By George”
“A Shocking Night”

Starring
EDITH ROBERTS
“White Youth”
“The Fire Cat”
“The Unknown Wife”

Starring
CARMEL MYERS
“The Gilded Dream”
“Beautifully Trimmed”
“The Mad Marriage”
“The Dangerous Moment”

Starring
EVA NOVAK
“Wanted At Headquarters”
“The Torrent”
“Society Secrets”
“The Smart Sex”

Starring
GLADYS WALTON
“Pink Tights”
“Risky Business’”
“Rich Girl, Poor Girl”
“All Dolled Up”

Starring
“BREEZY EASON”
“The Big Adventure”

Jewels

Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
“The Virgin Of Stamboul”
“Outside The Law”

“Once To Every Woman”
(with Dorothy Phillips)

“Blind Husbands”
“The Devil’s Passkey”
“Shipwrecked Among Cannibals”
“The Great Air Robbery”
“The Breath Of The Gods”
(with Tsuru Aoki)
“Under Crimson Skies”
(with Elmo Lincoln)

Starring
JOE MARTIN
(Two Reels)
“No Monkey Business”
“A Wild Night”
“A Monkey Hero”

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring
HOOT GIBSON
“The Driftin’ Kid”
“Sweet Rvenge”
“Kickaroo”
“Out O’ Luck”
“The Cactus Kid”
“Who Was The Man?”

Starring
JACK PERRIN
“The Trigger Trail”
“Big Bob”
“The Midnight Raiders”
“The Knockout Man”
“The Guilty Trail”

Serials

Starring
EDDIE POLO
“The Vanishing Dagger”
“King Of The Circus”

Starring
EILEEN SEDGWICK
“The Great Radium Mystery”
“The Diamond Queen”

Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
“Elmo, The Fearless”
“The Flaming Disk”

Starring
MARIE WALCAMP
“The Dragon’s Net”

Starring
ART ACORD
“The White Horseman”

Two Reel Century Comedies

“Fire Bugs”
“Puppy Love”
“Fresh From The Farm”
“Leaping Lions and Jailbirds”
“Vamps and Scamps”
“Her Circus Man”
“The Dog Doctor”
“Seeing Is Believing”
“Tough Luck”
“Harem-Skarem”
“On With The Show”

One Reel Star Comedies

“My Lady’s Ankle”
(With Robert Anderson)
also
“Simple and Sweet”
“Milk and Yeggs”
“Won: One Flivver”
“A Waiting Maid”
“Bring On The Groom”
“Twin Husbands”
“When Eve Fell”
“Who Kissed Me?”
“Movie-Struck”
“Short and Sweet”

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

Long Haired Violinist Wins Heiress For A Day

"Short And Sweet"

One-reel Star Comedy

Featuring
DOROTHY WOLBERT

DOTTIE is the prize chromo or maid-of-all-work in the Bughouse Cafe where Betty Waring, an heiress, is hiding as a cabaret singer and dancer. Billy, a reporter, bets the members of his club that he can locate the missing girl.

One day in the restaurant he recognizes her and falls in love with her at sight. Realizing that if the others know she is the heiress they will pay court to her, he decides on a scheme to fool them.

Taking the four friends to the cafe he tells them that Dottie is the heiress in disguise. They shower attentions and gifts on the astonished maid while Betty and the reporter sneak off and are married. Shutzky, the Bohemian violinist in the restaurant, saves Dottie from dying of a broken heart and wins her affection.

Who Opened The Safe? The Camera Never Lies. See

"On With The Show"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring
Percy Pembroke and Florence Lee

THE Ladies' Aid Society of the country town are holding a fair for the benefit of charity. Percy, the dapper chap from the big city, donates some cash, but the country boy, who is broke, suggests a movie show, as he learned to operate a camera by mail.

They rehearse for the show in the house and the city chap plays all the love roles with the farmer boy's sweetheart. When the combination of the family safe is thrown on the screen the city chap takes note of the numbers and leaves the show.

When he returns, a Pinkerton detective, who has been looking for him, is sitting next to him. He recognizes the picture on the screen, but Percy says that it is his brother who is acting in the films. However, when the man on the screen takes off his disguise the detective recognizes Percy and promptly arrests the city man.

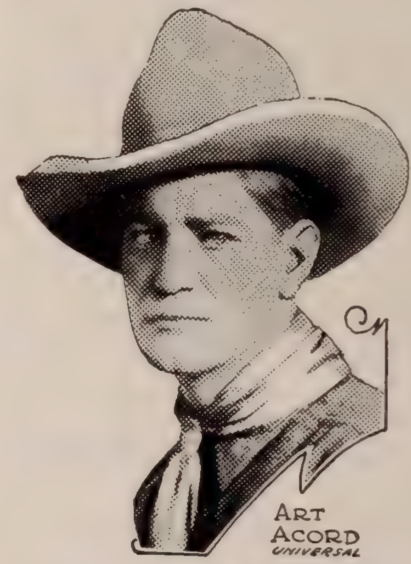
"The White Horseman"

Episode No. 6
"The Furnace of Fear"

CAST

Allen	Art Acord
Jean	Iva Forrester
Spider	Hank Bell
Ramsey	Duke R. Lee
Zona	Beatrice Dominguez

ALLEN, lying on the floor in Wong Foo's store, is about to be stabbed by one of the Black Spider's gang, when the Mummy Man appears and shoots the outlaw and also Foo who has Jean. The Spider escapes by the back door and sees Ramsey trying to force the secret of the bracelet from Zona, the Indian girl, but she has placed it in Jean's pocket.



Ramsey and the Spider join forces and agree to divide the treasure. The Spider in disguise goes to Jean and tells her that her father is at a hotel and wants to see her. Allen goes to the place to investigate and finds Ramsey, who has wrapped cloths about his head and is playing the part of his twin brother, Jean's father.

Allen believes the story he tells him and tells Jean that everything is all right. The Mummy Man who has overheard the conversation tells Zona to go to Jean and warn her not to go to her father. When Jean will not listen to her she steals the bracelet from her, but the theft is seen by the Spider, who decides to double-cross Ramsey and get the treasure for himself.

The Spider and the rest of his gang go to Zona's room where they get the bracelet and make her prisoner. They then return to the den and set fire to it with Jean, Ramsey and Allen tied and helpless inside. Allen burns the bonds from his wrists and frees Jean who frees Ramsey while Allen tries to break out. The Mummy sees the fire from a hill and comes down to try to rescue those inside. Instead of rescuing them, he is captured by the Spider's men.

The episode ends with Zona tied in her room, the Spider's gang are about to remove the Mummy Man's mask while inside the burning shack, the three prisoners stare wide-eyed as one of the burning walls topples and starts to fall upon them.

International News
No. 26

Baltimore, Md.—Thousands at funeral of Cardinal Gibbons. Vast throngs brave rain to pay tribute to the beloved Prince of the Church, famous the world over.

Watkins Glen, N. Y.—A rarely photographed marvel of nature. Spring puts its magic touch on the little known Taughamnock Falls, 55 feet higher than Niagara.

Berkeley, Cal.—A college birthday. University of California celebrates anniversary at the beautiful Hearst Greek Theatre.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard's football squad starts work. Candidates for 1921 team in early spring practice for next fall's hard campaign.

Mare Island, Cal.—Giant guns placed on newest dreadnaught. Twelve death dealers with a range of 25 miles for the huge California.

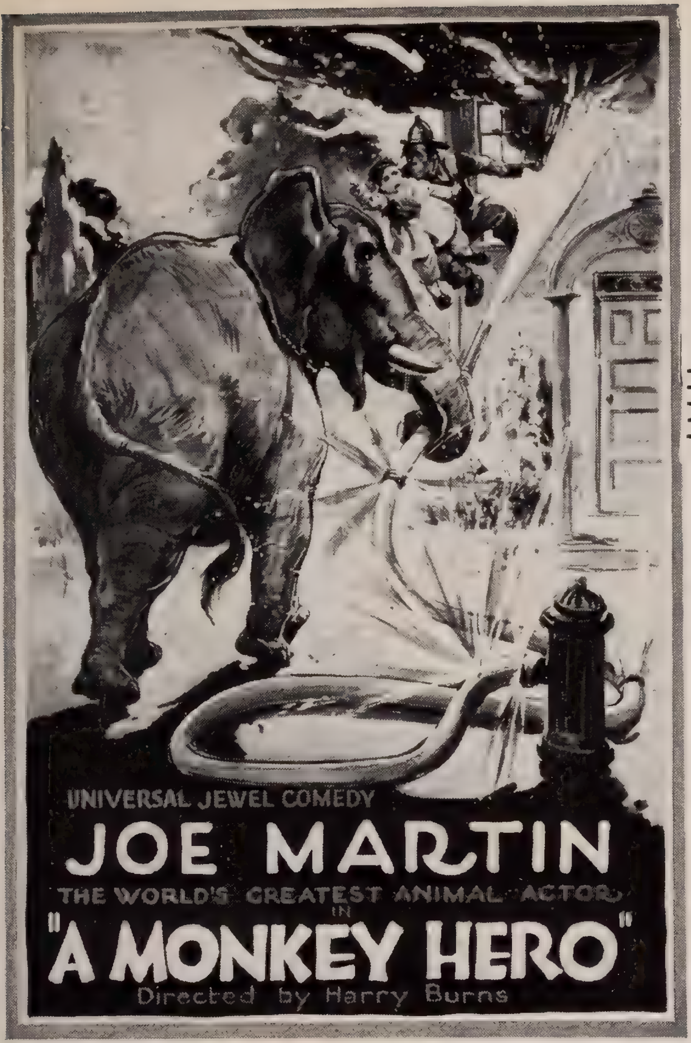
Chicago, Ill. — Chicago homes wrecked by mighty explosion. Many killed and injured as blast spreads ruin in congested tenement district. (Omit from San Francisco and Los Angeles.)

Los Angeles, Cal.—Los Angeles gives jobs to dough-boys. Unemployment relieved as former fighters are put to work improving farms. (For Los Angeles and San Francisco only.)

Langley Field, Va.—Air fleet ready to fight sea giants. Thrilling bombing test makes aviators confident they can prove big battleships obsolete in forthcoming tests.

Sub-Titles.—How the bombs are dropped—Langley Field Commandant, his wife and son—and one of these 1100 pound bombs. Mobilizing for maneouvers. Combat formation. Bombing target practice—watch the deadly missle speed to the outlined battleships on the ground far below. Another shot—look out below!

Campino, Italy.—Uncle Sam buys world's biggest "blimp" airship. The Roma, worth $1,250,000 purchased from Italy at the bargain price of $200,000.



UNIVERSAL JEWEL COMEDY
JOE MARTIN
THE WORLD'S GREATEST ANIMAL ACTOR
IN
"A MONKEY HERO"
Directed by Harry Burns

The paper on this wonder of a Two-reeler consists of a One-sheet and a Three-sheet. See them both at your Universal-Jewel Exchange for beautiful, striking examples of poster art.

Watch this One-Sheet pull in Young and Old

People are certainly wild over animal movies—for there's nothing tame about wild animals on the screen—they make the oldsters into youngsters and they give the youngsters something to dream about for weeks. That's why an ANIMAL PICTURE POSTER like this JOE MARTIN makes 'em comes on the run. Don't think a Two-reel JOE MARTIN COMEDY won't repay you for a lot of paper. A picture that they enjoy is well worth big display, no matter what its length —and there's nothing in the whole world more diverting than one particular UNIVERSAL-JEWEL COMEDY DE LUXE, "A MONKEY HERO."

JOE MARTIN

He knows women – and your women patrons know he knows!

"FASCINATED" is the only way to describe a woman audience that sees a Von Stroheim picture. Fascinated by what he knows about them—and tells. Fascinated by what he almost tells. That's why they hate him and love him—and go in flocks to see his pictures.

"FOOLISH WIVES" will tell your women patrons more about themselves than any picture ever made. And you'll do a bigger business. At the higher prices you'll get, you'll also net more. Wait and watch for the greatest sensation that Carl Laemmle's genius ever gave the industry—the first real million dollar production.

COMING !

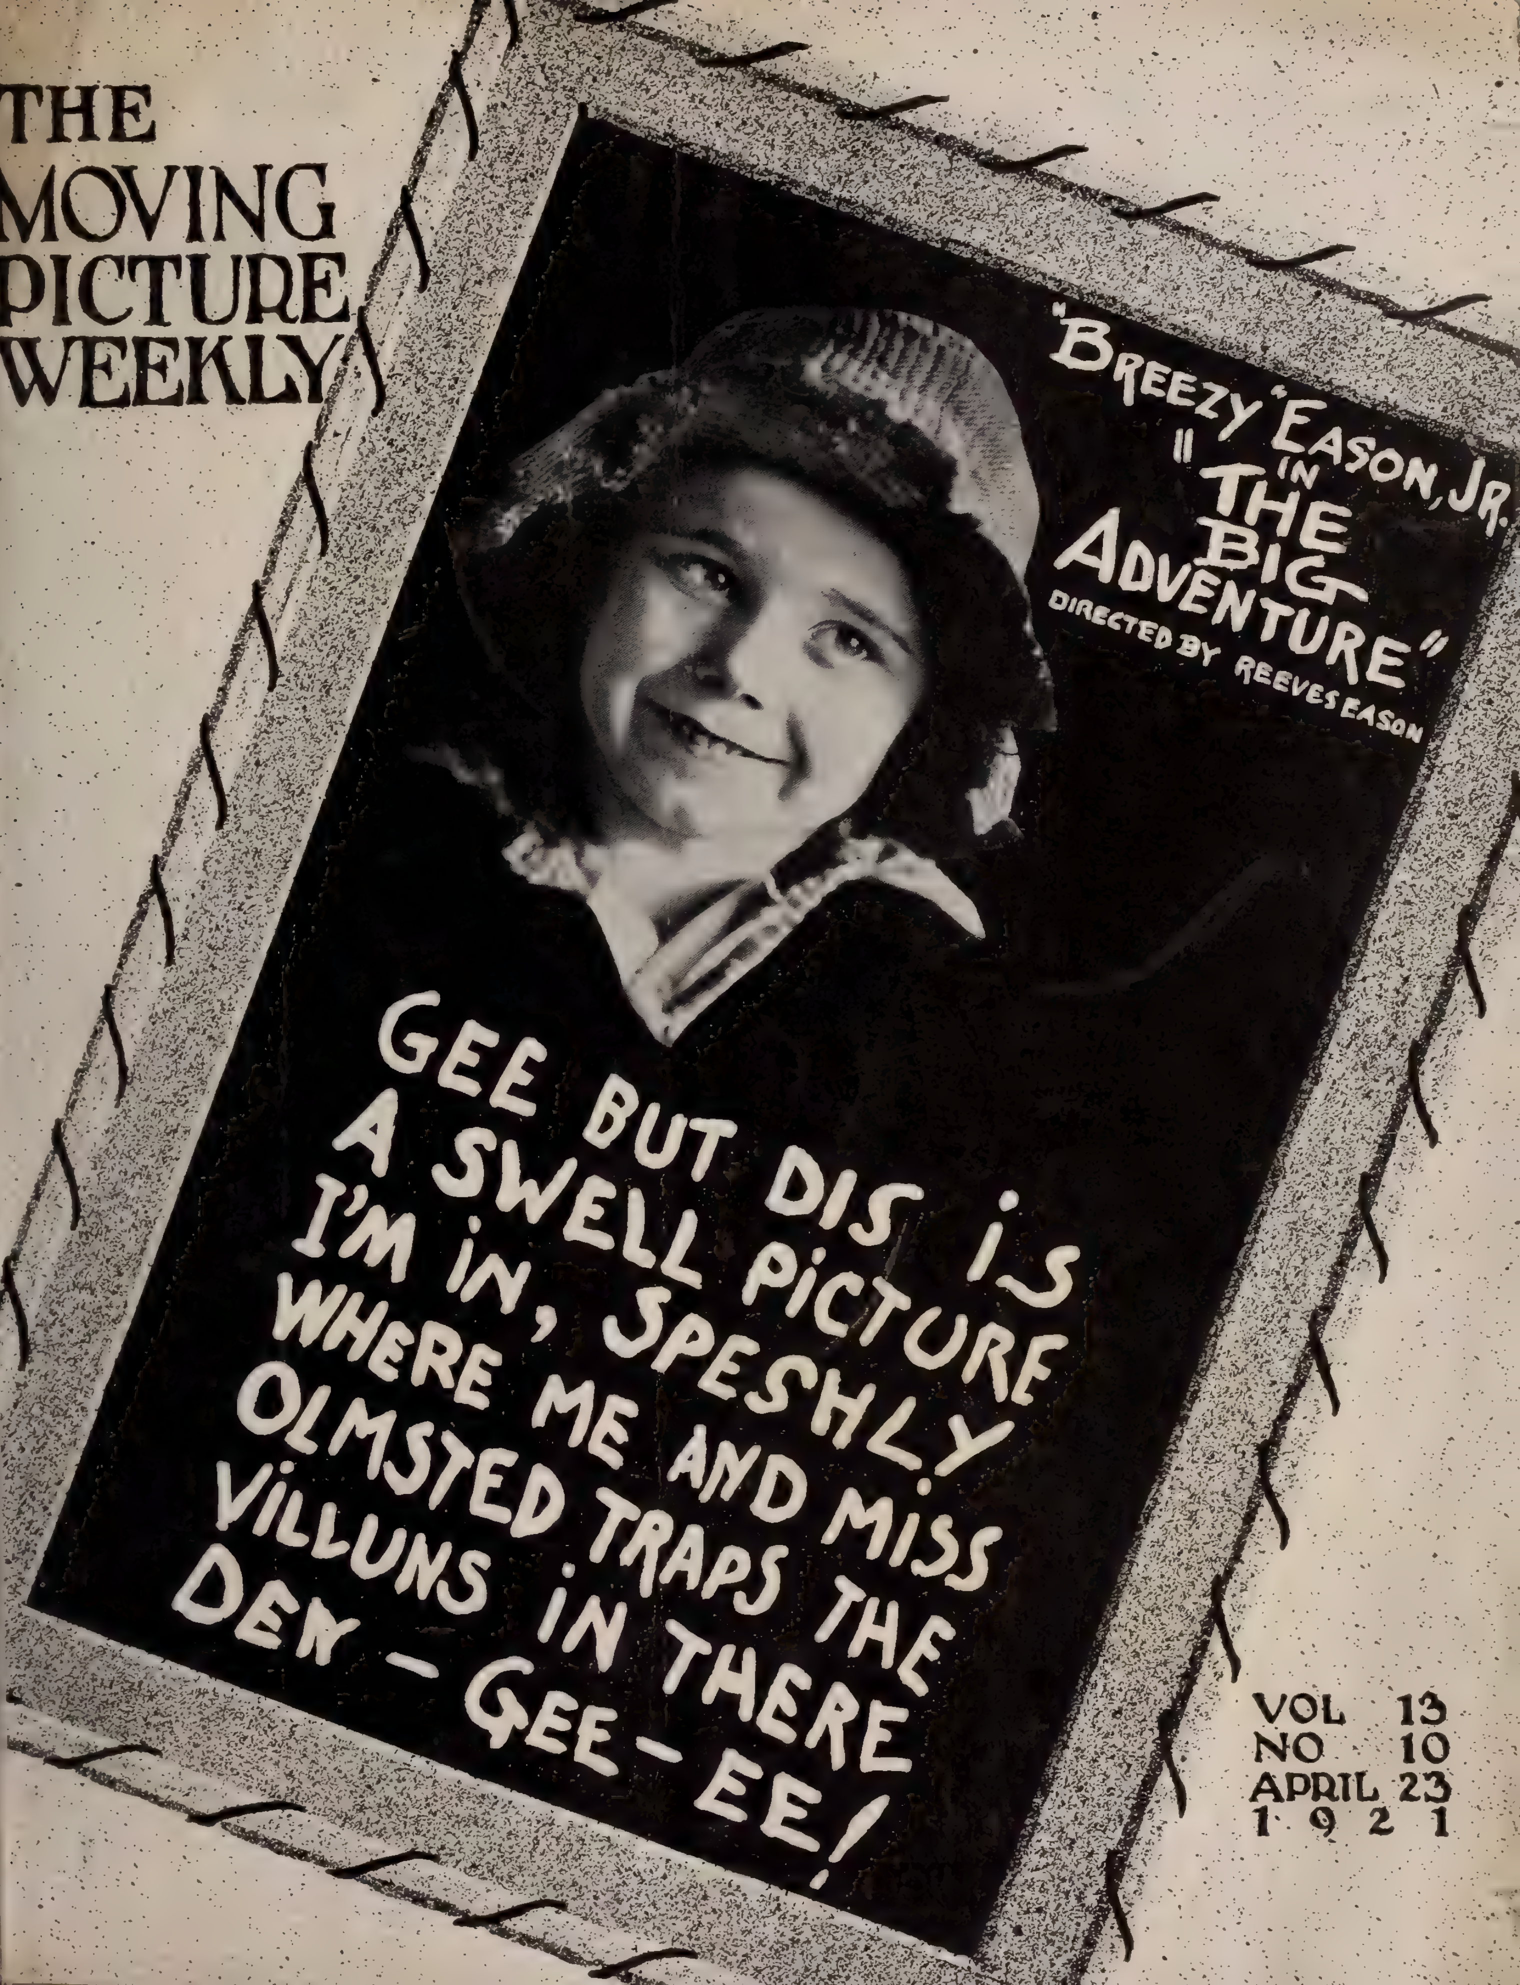
Von Stroheim's
MASTER
PICTURE

THE FIRST REAL
MILLION DOLLAR
PRODUCTION

"FOOLISH WIVES"

UNIVERSAL – JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

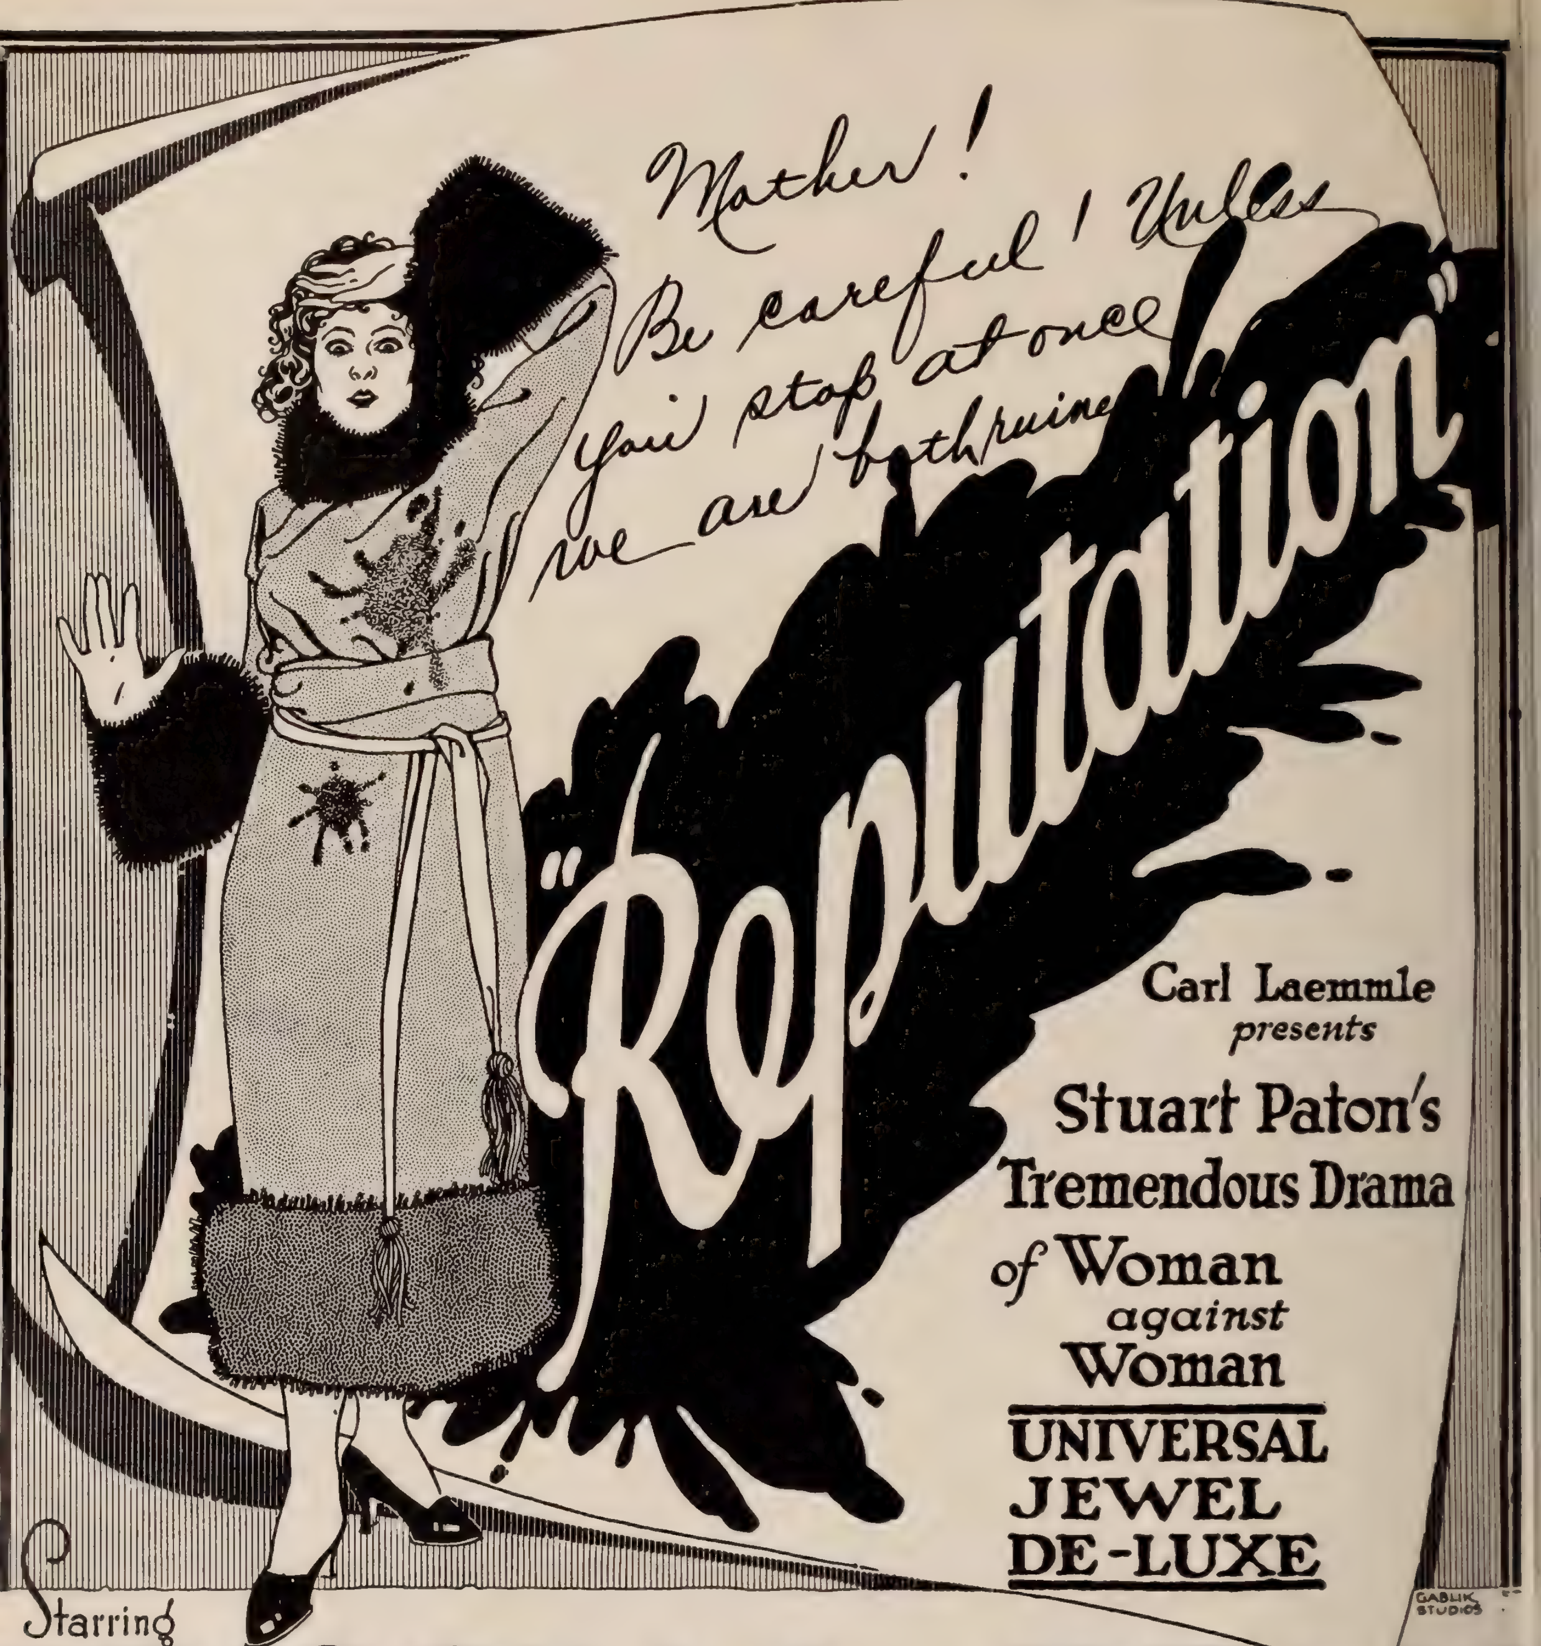
THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY



"BREEZY" EASON, JR.
IN
"THE BIG ADVENTURE"
DIRECTED BY REEVES EASON
GEE BUT DIS IS A SWELL PICTURE I'M IN, SPESHLY WHERE ME AND MISS OLMSTED TRAPS THE VILLUNS IN THERE DEN - GEE-EE!

VOL 13
NO 10
APRIL 23
1921

This is a sample Quarter-page Newspaper Ad of this newest Dean triumph.



Mother!
Be careful! Unless you stop at once
we are both ruined

"Reputation"

Carl Laemmle
presents

Stuart Paton's
Tremendous Drama
of Woman against Woman

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
DE-LUXE

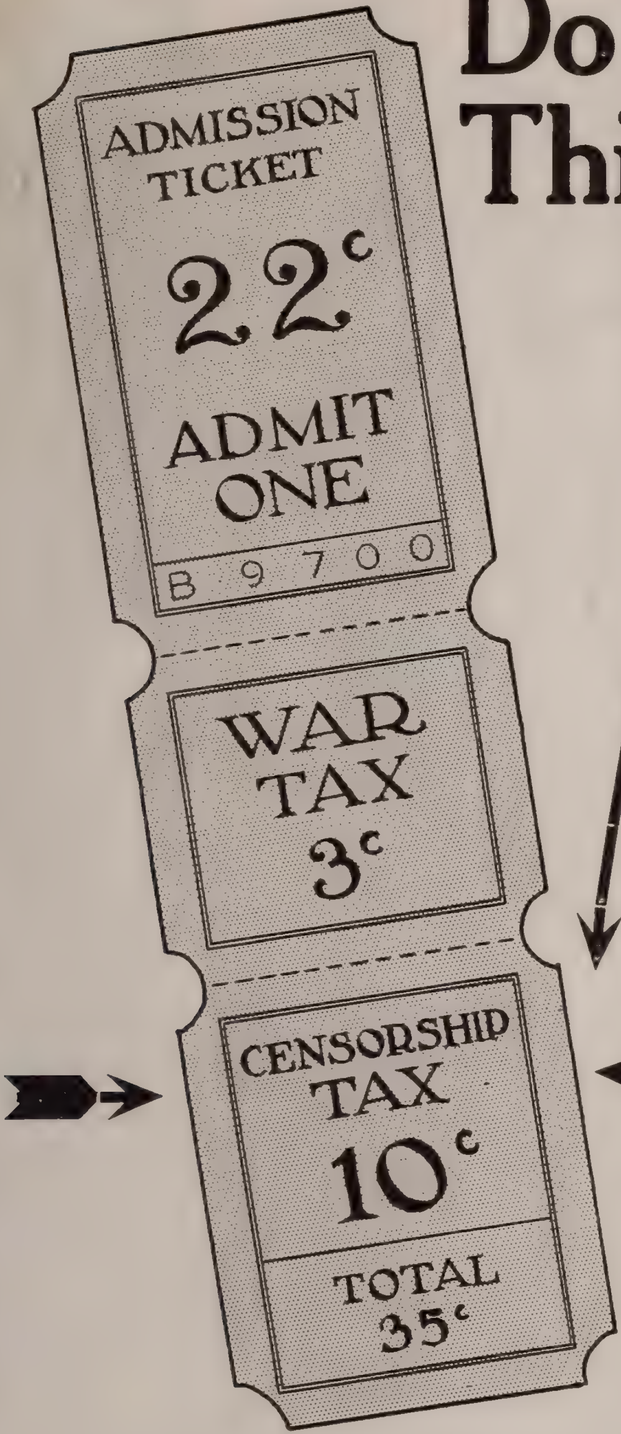
GABLIK STUDIOS

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

THE MOST DYNAMIC PERSONALITY IN MOVING PICTURES

Do You Want This?



ADMISSION TICKET
22c
ADMIT ONE
B 9700
WAR TAX
3c
CENSORSHIP TAX
10c
TOTAL
35c

If the LUSK-CLAYTON BILL becomes a law, that's what we will have in New York State

The tax in that bill will cost the industry $5,000,000. Producers can't pay it; distributors can't pay it; exhibitors can't pay it.

Will the Public Pay It ? ? ?

As thrill

The Famous Story

"DESPERATE YOUTH" is a compelling drama of a budding woman's lone-handed fight for the right to love and to be loved. It is the picturization of a widely-read book by one of America's foremost novelists. All of the dramatic conflict and plot-action and humor that made the book such a big success have been retained on the screen, to which has been added the enhancement of a pictorial beauty and a cleverness of characterization such as no printing press ever could convey. The picture is real entertainment—which to you means real money.

Directed by Harry B. Harris
from F. Hopkinson Smith's novel
"A Kentucky Cinderella"

ng as love at first sight

HERE is an absorbing story pictured in such thrilling and interest-holding fashion as to make this offering highly attractive. Swift changes of scene and situation, coupled with dramatic construction of unusual power and comedy relief of irresistible appeal, add immeasurably to the worth of this colorful drama —a drama which travels in locale from the heart of the gold-hiding hills of the West, where men must fight to live, to the sun-swept plantations of the Blue Grass country, where men and women live and love and hate intensely. Truly, this is a worth-while attraction—Play it!

It's one of those 52
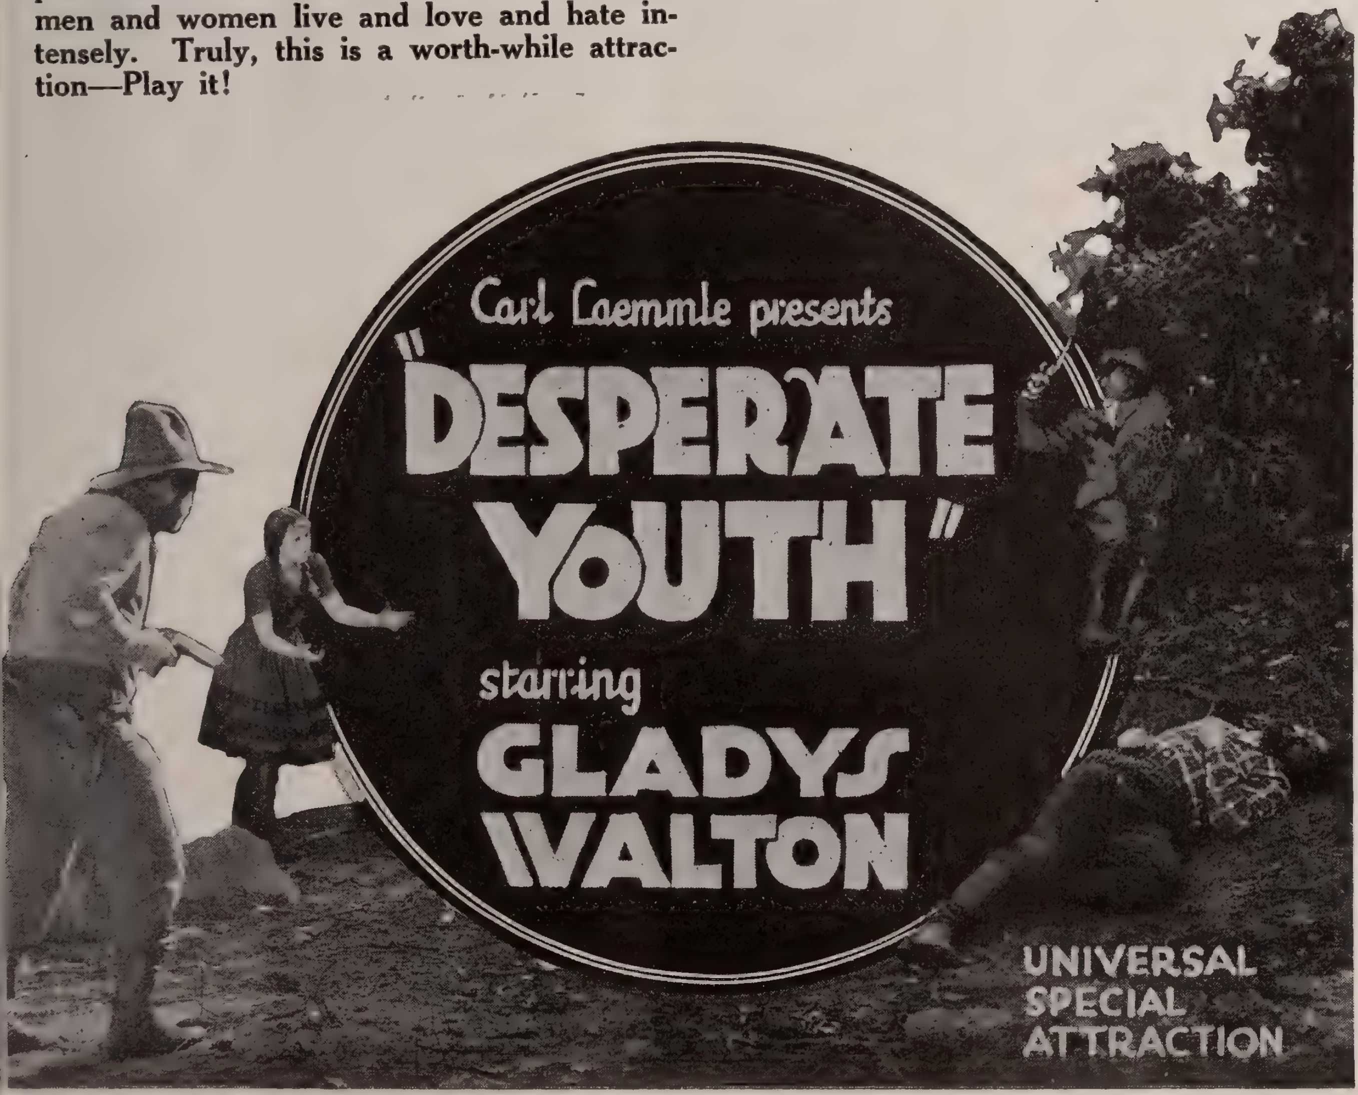
Good Pictures a Year
and no worry



Carl Laemmle presents
"DESPERATE YOUTH"
starring
GLADYS WALTON
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Service Page for "Desperate Youth"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Desperate Youth."

STAR—Gladys Walton.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Pink Tights," "The Secret Gift," "Risky Business," "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," "All Dolled Up," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Harry B. Harris.

STORY BY—F. Hopkinson Smith.

SCENARIO BY—Geo. V. Hull and A. P. Younger.

SUPPORTING CAST—Louis Willoughby, J. Farrell McDonald, Muriel Godfrey Turner, Hazel Howell, Harold Miller, Lucy Harris, James Blackwell, etc.

LOCALE—The Kentucky Mountains—Down in Alabama.

TIME—Thirty Years Ago.

PHOTOGRAPHED BY—Earl Ellis.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a little Kentucky mountain waif who, on the death of her father, is sent to her aristocratic relatives in Alabama, where she assumes the duties of a household Cinderella. And, like her fairy-lore prototype, her beauty and charm finally bring her love and happiness.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The popularity of Gladys Walton, increasing with each picture.

2—The fact that "Desperate Youth" was adapted from F. Hopkinson Smith's classic of popular literature, "A Kentucky Cinderella."

3—The romantic locale, the Kentucky mountains and a magnificent old Alabama plantation.

4—The picturesque costumes of the period; the hoop skirts and poke bonnets contrasting strangely with the fashions of to-day.

5—The work of Harold Miller, the dashingly handsome young leading man, who plays opposite Miss Walton.

6—The presence in the supporting cast of two famous character actors, J. Farrell McDonald and Louis Willoughby.

7—The charm and beauty of Hazel Howell, who was until recently a musical comedy favorite.

8—A rare and effective blending of humor and drama.

9—The fact that the screening lends itself admirably to a revival of the catchy tunes of the old South.

10—The advertising value which is suggested in tie-ups with book stores and the library.

Synopsis of Story
"Desperate Youth"

SPENCER MERRIDEW, nicknamed "Alabama," and Mendocino Bill are partners in a placer claim. Rosemary, Alabama's pretty seventeen-year-old daughter, keeps house for the men. As soon as luck turns his way her father expects to send her back east to her own people where she can fill the place that rightfully belongs to her.

Sam Billings appears at the cabin and plants a notice on the ground stating that he has just taken the land as a homestead. He tells Rosemary that her father and his partner are just squatters and he wants them off the land before sundown.

The girl summons her father and Bill. Alabama is shot by Billene, who is then shot by Mendocino Bill. Complying with her dead father's request, Rosemary is sent to Henry Merridew in Alabama.

Mrs. Merridew and Pauline, her daughter resent Rosemary's coming. They, in Mr. Merridew's absense, treat Rosemary as a servant, even having her meals served in the kitchen, where the servants serve her in state, to the extent of neglecting the occupants of the dining-room. In spite of Mrs. Merridew's treatment, Rosemary's beauty grows.

Mrs. Merridew has decided that Pauline shall marry Dr. Tom Dowling, the wealthiest young man there, and encourages him persistently. He finally determines to propose to Pauline. Aunt Chlorinda being busy, Rosemary answers the bell. It is a case of love at first sight. Mrs. Merridew is furious, and orders Rosemary locked up in the house.

Mr. Merridew is furious upon his return, to learn of the treatment Rosemary has received. He goes to her and treats her as a father. Dowling asks his permission to woo Rosemary, and being granted, loses no time.

Rosemary writes Mendocino Bill she is lonesome, and he soon arrives, but his presence is kept secret from Rosemary. He thoroughly questions Dowling as to his habits, eligibility, etc. The day before the wedding, Rosemary is brokenhearted because she has no wedding clothes. Mrs. Merridew has spent the money for Pauline. Bill goes to Lexington and as a result a large trunk of wonderful clothes arrives for Rosemary. The wedding occurs, and Zoe excitedly points out Bill hiding in the trees. Rosemary is happy to learn Bill has struck it rich.

CAST

Rosemary Merridew	Gladys Walton
"Mendocino Bill"	J. Farrell McDonald
"Alabam" Spencer Merridew	Louis Willoughby
Henry Merridew	Louis Willoughby
Mrs. Merridew	Muriel Godfrey Turner
Pauline Merridew	Hazel Howell
Dr. Tom Dowling	Harold Miller
Aunt Chlorindy	Mrs. L. C. Harris
Sam	Jim Blackwell

Gladys Walton
UNIVERSAL

Theatre Name Here

A Kentucky Cinderella came down from the mountains to reign over the hearts of Alabama's best. See Gladys Walton in her Universal play, "Desperate Youth."

If your heart is a banjo, play yourself a tune: It'll be an old plantation melody that'll haunt your memory as you see "Desperate Youth."

Recruit to Screen Star Ranks Plays Cinderella Role

Gladys
Walton
in
"DESPERATE YOUTH"
ITS A UNIVERSAL

UNIVERSAL has discovered more real screen talent and developed more big film stars than all other motion picture producing companies in America. This is screen history, for a majority of the successful luminaries of the silent drama, from Mary Pickford down, had their first opportunity in a Universal production.

Gladys Walton was discovered by Universal less than a year ago, and now this youthful actress is one of the most popular stars on the screen. A High School girl in Portland, Oregon, two years ago, an ingenue in film comedies a year ago, Gladys Walton has already appeared in a half dozen Universal productions, each of which has sent her higher in the affections of screen fans throughout the land.

With its unequaled facilities and world-wide ramifications, Universal is not content to give the theatre-goers only what talent may be available. It is always in quest for new faces, new charms and new personalities, and has given the screen its first view of many of its reigning favorites.

After giving Gladys Walton several important parts to make sure their judgment was correct, the Universal officials decided she was ripe for stellar honors, and presented her in "Pink Tights." The success of this picture is film history. It was one of the distinct hits of last year. Soon after she was seen in "Risky Business," "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," and "All Dolled Up." each of which made a most favorable impression.

GLADYS WALTON WEARS CORRECT STYLES OF DAY

When Gladys Walton discovered that she was to play the part of a Southern girl of the '70's in her new Universal photodrama, "Desperate Youth," she immediately set about to get the proper costumes for the role.

It is usual for actresses whenever they have a role which dates back to a period prior to modern fashions, to don hoopskirts and crinolines—a style which vanished shortly after the Civil War. There have been at least six distinct changes in feminine garb since then, but one seldom sees any of these fashions which prevailed between the hoop-skirt and the gown of today.

When Gladys Walton visited her aunt in Anniston, Alabama, two years ago, she was shown a closet full of old dresses, worn by that lady at different periods since she was twelve years old. Among them was a complete set of frocks worn by her at the age of seventeen, as well as her wedding gown, worn several years later. They were correct according to the styles of the day, and they are very much different from the stage and screen conception of the fashions of the Seventies.

Miss Walton immediately wired her aunt to send on all the costumes, and these, with very slight alterations, were made to fit the youthful Universal star. And they are extremely becoming—which proves that a good-looking girl looks well in any sort of costume.

"Desperate Youth" is an adaptation of F. Hopkinson Smith's famous romance of the South, "A Kentucky Cinderella."

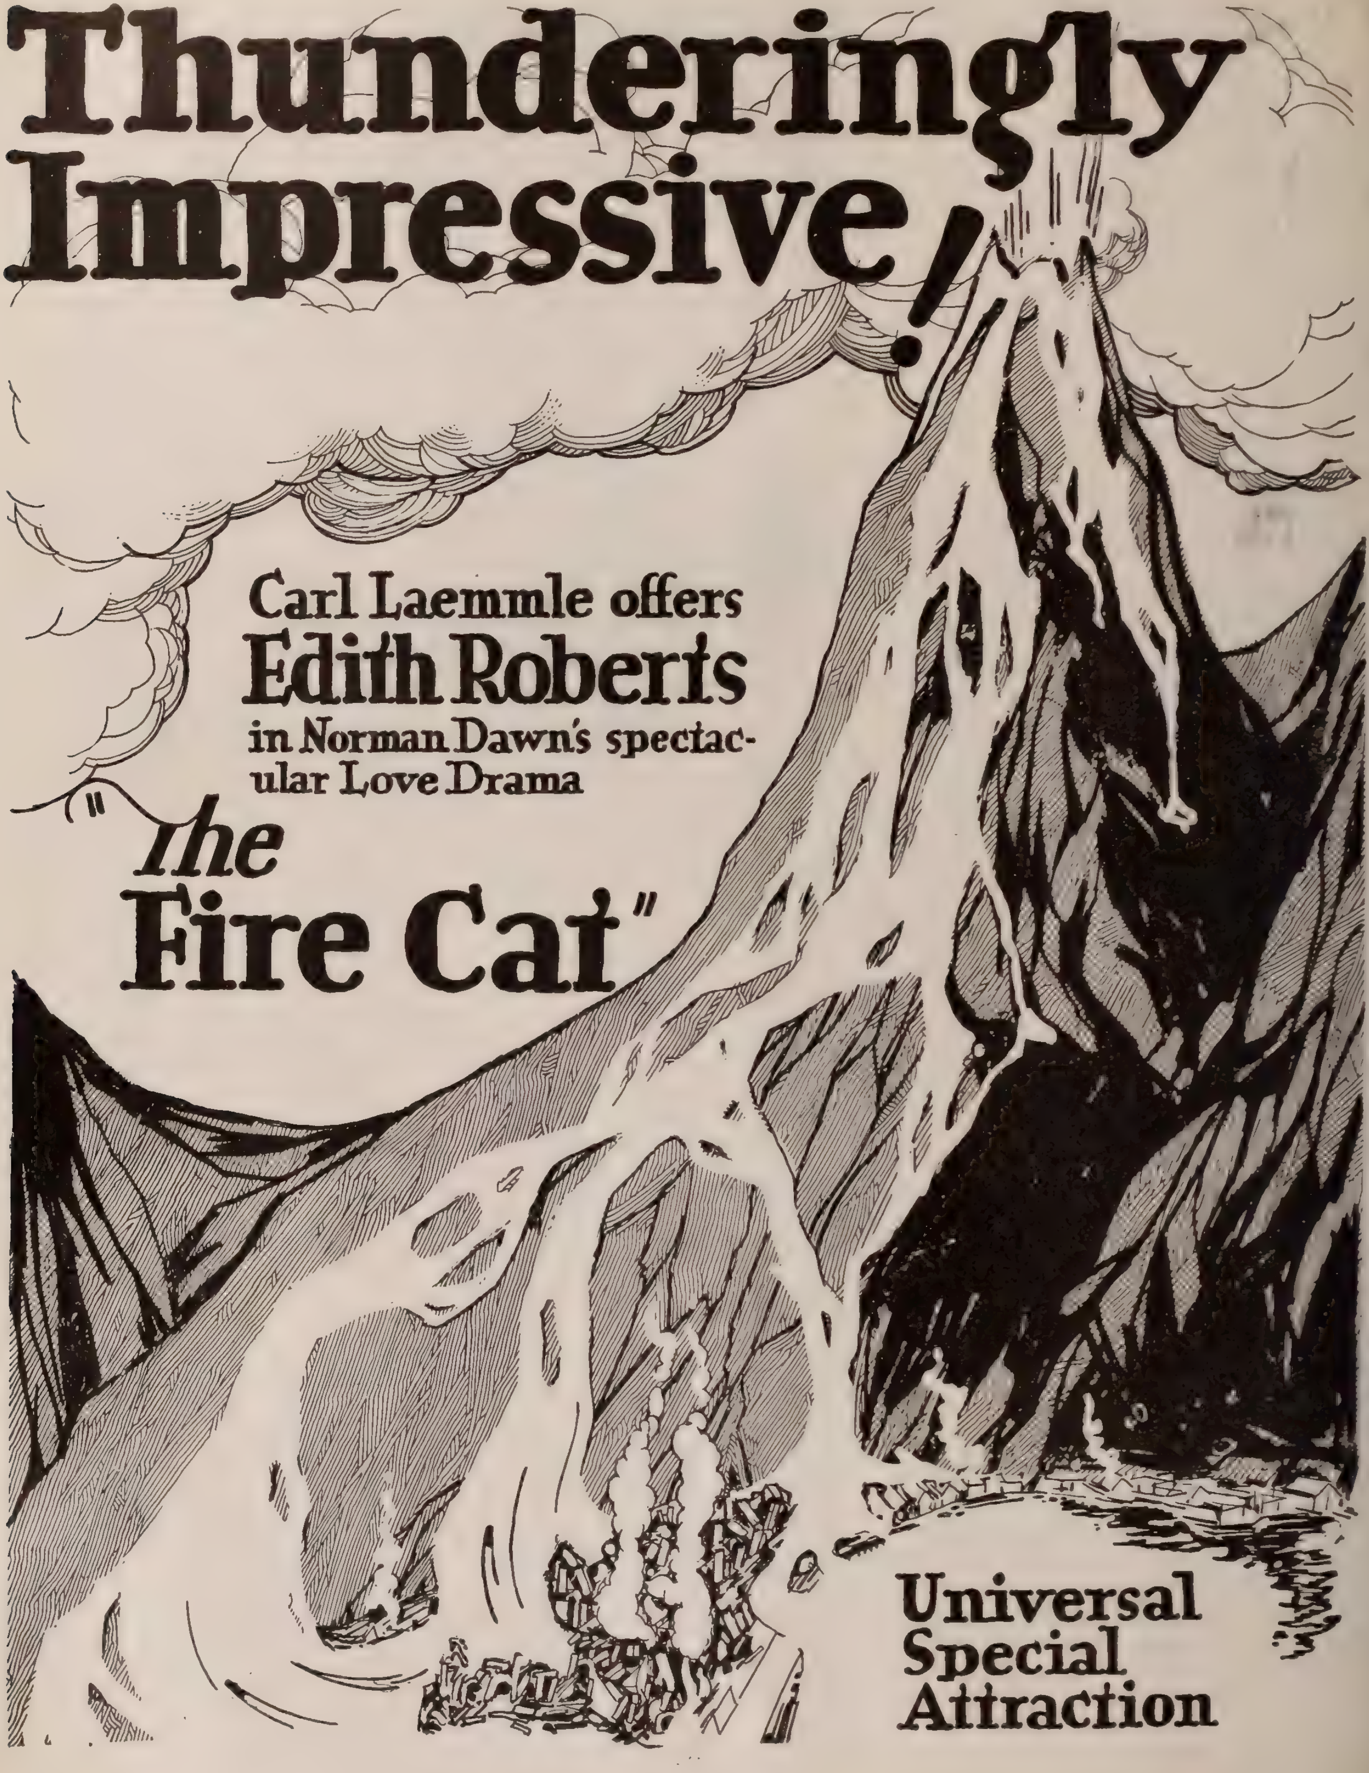
WHAT'S AT THE PLAYHOUSE TONIGHT?

ADDITIONAL copies of F. Hopkinson Smith's novel, "A Kentucky Cinderella" are being ordered by the library and the book stores to meet the demand for the classic among those playgoers who have seen its screen version at the .... Theatre. As "Desperate Youth" the screen version of the famous novel is being presented now with Miss Gladys Walton in the title role.

"DIXIE" is the popular melody around town now, for one of the most romantic stories of the old South is being shown at the .... Theatre and the playhouse is crowded with people whose hearts have ever dwelt below the Mason and Dixon line. The screen story is "Desperate Youth," filmed as a starring vehicle for Gladys Walton from F. Hopkinson Smith's "A Kentucky Cinderella."

THE picturesque costumes of the late '70's, the romantic atmosphere of the old South and the rugged backgrounds of the Kentucky Mountains add to the interest and grip of the story of "Desperate Youth," now being presented at .... Theatre. This Universal feature, starring Gladys Walton, is based on F. Hopkinson Smith's widely-read novel, "A Kentucky Cinderella."

Thunderingly Impressive!



Carl Laemmle offers

Edith Roberts

in Norman Dawn's spectacular Love Drama

"The Fire Cat"

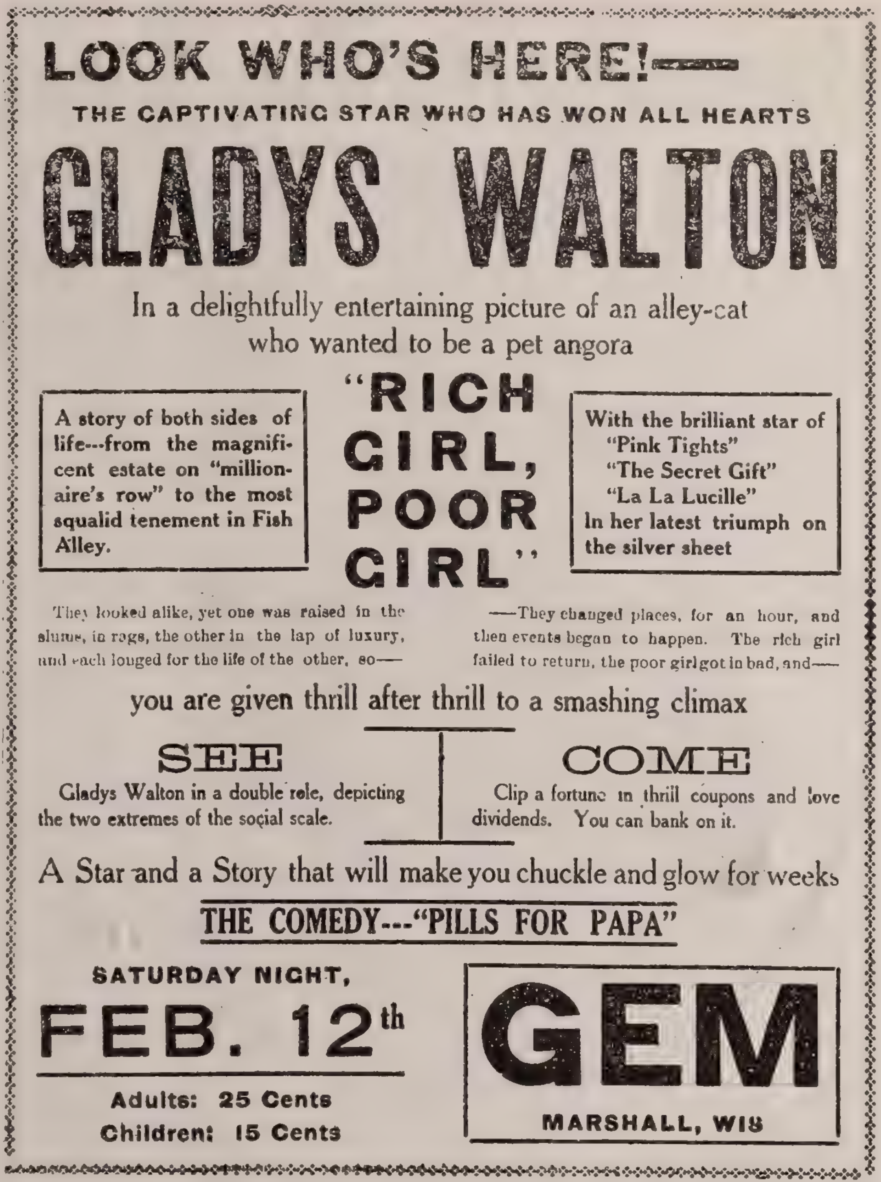
Universal Special Attraction

Prepares Own Ads From Material In This Magazine

YOU don't have to be a big town exhibitor to have forceful and distinct advertising for Universal feature Attractions—in fact some of the best examples of placing a theatre message before the public have been noticed in the smaller town papers. The advertisement reproduced here was written by Charles V. Lake, of the Marshall Record, of Marshall, Wis., entirely from information about "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" contained in the Moving Picture Weekly.

If you do not have time to get the advertising matter for our special attractions available at all exchanges you can make up a very presentable advertisement by using the back files of the Weekly.

In each issue of the Moving Picture Weekly there is publicity and advertising material for use with the current releases and also pictures of successful advertising ideas used by exhibitors in other cities. By a reference to this magazine an advertisement can be prepared for any of the Universal features or shorter pictures.



LOOK WHO'S HERE!—

THE CAPTIVATING STAR WHO HAS WON ALL HEARTS

GLADYS WALTON

In a delightfully entertaining picture of an alley-cat who wanted to be a pet angora

A story of both sides of life---from the magnificent estate on "millionaire's row" to the most squalid tenement in Fish Alley.

"RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL"

With the brilliant star of "Pink Tights" "The Secret Gift" "La La Lucille" In her latest triumph on the silver sheet

They looked alike, yet one was raised in the slums, in rags, the other in the lap of luxury, and each longed for the life of the other, so—— ——They changed places, for an hour, and then events began to happen. The rich girl failed to return, the poor girl got in bad, and—— you are given thrill after thrill to a smashing climax

SEE
Gladys Walton in a double role, depicting the two extremes of the social scale.

COME
Clip a fortune in thrill coupons and love dividends. You can bank on it.

A Star and a Story that will make you chuckle and glow for weeks

THE COMEDY---"PILLS FOR PAPA"

SATURDAY NIGHT,
FEB. 12th
Adults: 25 Cents
Children: 15 Cents

GEM
MARSHALL, WIS

STILL TALKING ABOUT PICTURE

Marshall, Wisconsin,
February 21, 1921.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.,
Universal City, Cal.

To the Publicity Man who is interested:

That's How!

Yes, and we'll bet our bottom dollar along with Universal's that a crowd was never more enthusiastic over a picture and a star than the one at the Gem Theatre on the night "Rich Girl, Poor Girl" was shown. And they are still talking about it.

Miss Walton, having been shown here before, needed no introduction, and her drawing power is far greater than any other star shown here.

Am enclosing clippings of the ad and press note I put up for this feature. The ad consists of bits taken from the "Weekly," and the press note was composed without copy. While they are not artistically printed, they will convey to you our idea of the right way to spread the good news. So, putting two and two together—Miss Walton and the enclosed clippings—you have the answer,—"A Full House." That's How!

Sorry to have taken your time, but the news looked good to the publicity guy, so thought you might like to get a line on it. Hope you do.

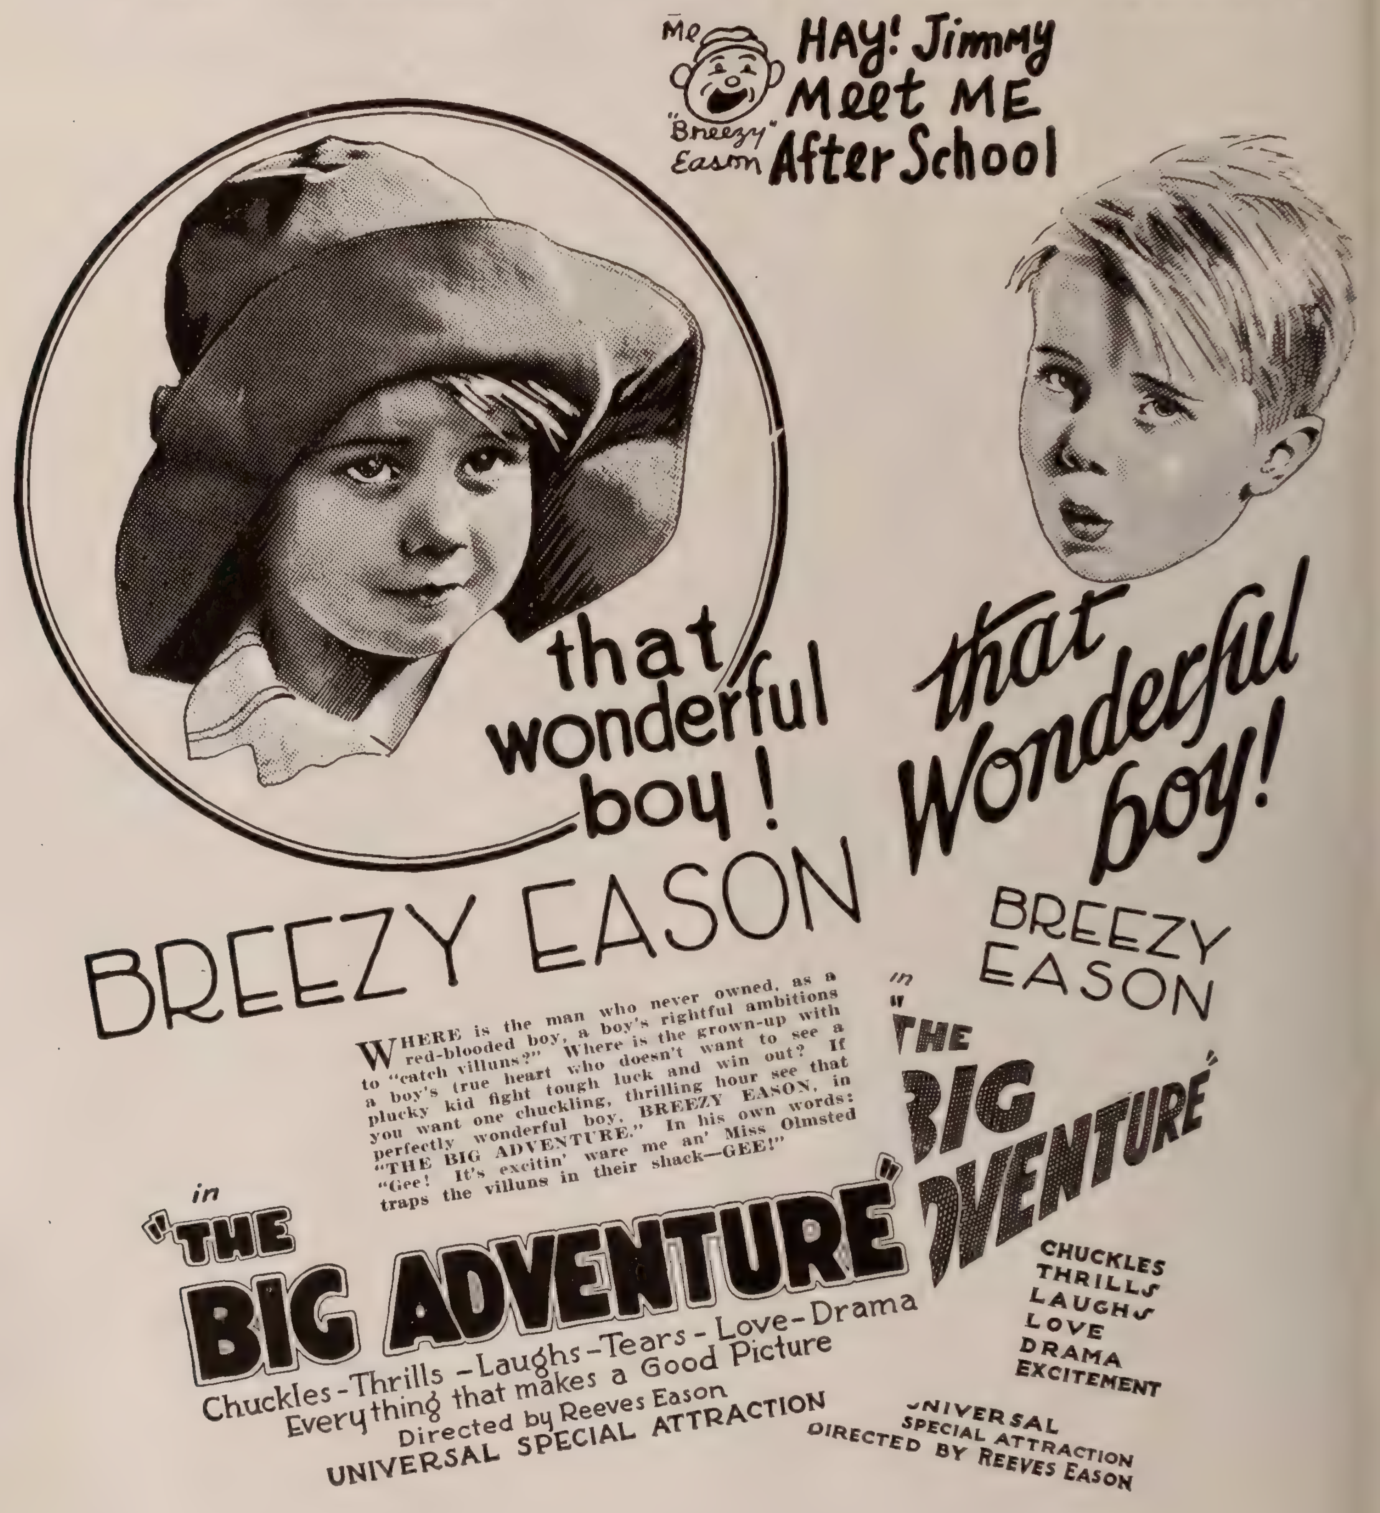
Here's wishing, and best regards to Universal, and those who make it, I am,

Sincerely, the Scribe,

C. V. LAKE.

Use these Ads, Posters, Teaser

The Picture will do the Rest!

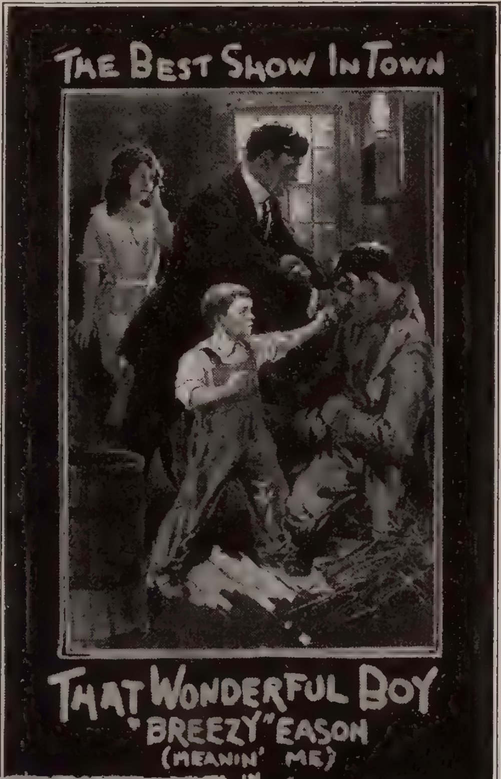


Me
"Breezy" Eason
HAY! Jimmy Meet ME After School
that wonderful boy!
that Wonderful boy!
BREEZY EASON
BREEZY EASON
in "THE BIG ADVENTURE"
in "THE BIG ADVENTURE"
Chuckles - Thrills - Laughs - Tears - Love - Drama
Everything that makes a Good Picture
Directed by Reeves Eason
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CHUCKLES
THRILLS
LAUGHS
LOVE
DRAMA
EXCITEMENT
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
DIRECTED BY REEVES EASON

WHERE is the man who never owned, as a red-blooded boy, a boy's rightful ambitions to "catch villuns?" Where is the grown-up with a boy's true heart who doesn't want to see a plucky kid fight tough luck and win out? If you want one chuckling, thrilling hour see that perfectly wonderful boy, BREEZY EASON, in "THE BIG ADVENTURE." In his own words: "Gee! It's excitin' ware me an' Miss Olmsted traps the villuns in their shack—GEE!"

Slides--They get the Crowds!

Use this three-sheet to pull folks in.



THE BEST SHOW IN TOWN
THAT WONDERFUL BOY
"BREEZY" EASON
(MEANIN' ME)
IN
BIG ENTURE
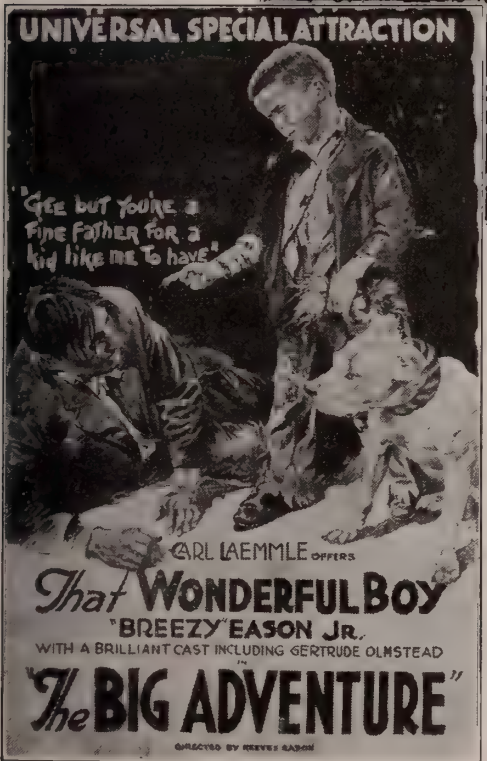
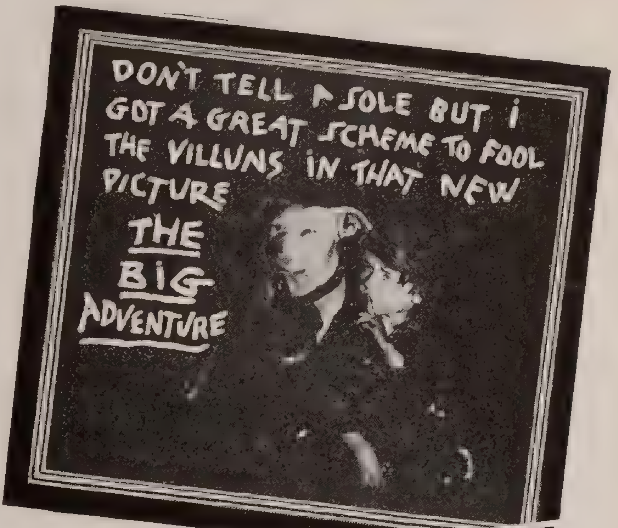
UNIVERSAL

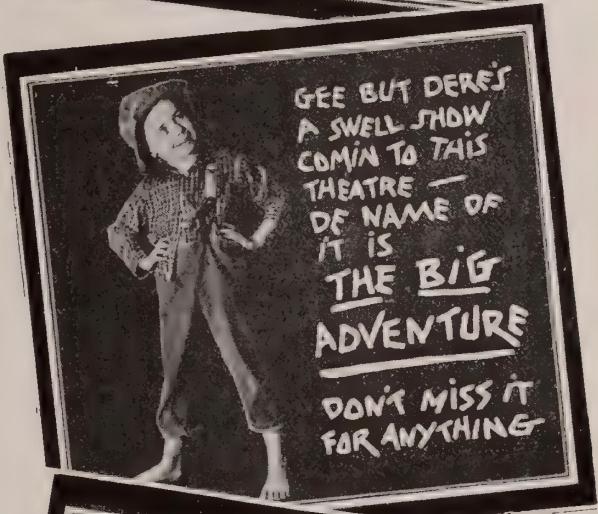
Here is the one-sheet they can't resist.



UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
"Gee but you're a fine father for a kid like me to have"
CARL LAEMMLE OFFERS
That WONDERFUL BOY
"BREEZY" EASON JR.
WITH A BRILLIANT CAST INCLUDING GERTRUDE OLMSTEAD
IN
"The BIG ADVENTURE"
DIRECTED BY REEVES EASON



DON'T TELL A SOLE BUT I GOT A GREAT SCHEME TO FOOL THE VILLUNS IN THAT NEW PICTURE
THE BIG ADVENTURE



GEE BUT DERE'S A SWELL SHOW COMIN TO THIS THEATRE — DE NAME OF IT IS
THE BIG ADVENTURE
DON'T MISS IT FOR ANYTHING

Carl Laemmle
Offers
THAT WONDERFUL BOY
"Breezy Eason, Jr."
With Gertrude Olmstead and L. C. Shumway
in The BIG ADVENTURE
Directed by Reeves Eason
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Don't fail to use the 3 Teaser Slides at every performance for at least a week prior to showing

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol 13 APRIL 23, 1921 No. 10

No More Bad Men Shown In Films

Close-Ups of Cute Kittens Playing with Catnip to take the Place of Red-Blooded Action in Moving Pictures

THE bad men and the bandits of the films must go, say the reformers who would grace the seats of the producer's projection rooms in the capacity of censors for the various individual State boards now being advocated. No more shall we see the Rangers throwing quoits or horseshoes between jobs of rounding up the outlaw gangs for the edification of movie fans.

It is evidently the secret longing of many seeking a chance at placing their individual brand of censorship on the films to see little angels coyly pitching halos from cloud to cloud.

As one reviewer in the Kansas City Post asks: "Abolish crime from the movies? Why not stop the growing of apples because William Tell once shot an apple off his son's head? Isn't it a fact that in all bandit pictures, the police are able to round up the criminals, and the peace and the safety of the community are saved and all that?" To which we can add that right invariably triumphs over lawbreakers in photoplays.

The films would be very dull amusement indeed under the changes advocated by the reformers, and it is doubtful if even those who suggest radical censorship would get any entertainment out of motion pictures.

Every reformer has some pet aversion that he would like to see eradicated from motion pictures. Some of the latest examples of personal prejudices of those who seek to censor the films are presented in the following article by Chandler Richard Laurence in the Toledo Daily Blade, of Toledo, Ohio.

ROUGH BOYS MUST GO

"I have just heard that a rather prominent man has expressed himself in favor of motion picture censorship for a brand new and novel reason.

He thinks that plays like "Go and Get It" and the kind Douglas Fairbanks appears in, encourage boys to take too many chances with their lives—that the spectacle of chaps leaping from roof to roof and climbing over airplanes on the wing may tempt them to endanger their lives by emulation.

Therefore, he would cut from all films the scenes that show red-blooded courage, and leave us the pretty parts where the little children bring together the estranged parents, and the cute close-ups of the dear little kitten playing with a ball of yarn.

A lady of my acquaintance would bar all films showing women extravagantly dressed—especially if they seem to attract men by their costumes—

She thinks it's too much of a temptation to young girls, and especially the young wives of poor young men.

Another objects to any reference to the birth of children on the screen—evidently on the score that it might encourage people to have offspring—

And one, who is a well-known leader in women's club circles, is just dead set against all plays in which women are deserted by their husbands. She says, rather cryptically, "It may give some men ideas."

Each of these people believes his or her pet abomination is a valid reason for the censorship of the screen.

They would, if placed in a position of authority, mutilate photo-films to bring them within the lights of their own restricted outlooks.

WOULD CENSOR LIFE ITSELF

There are probably hundreds of thousands of people in this state who have especial dislikes—and doubtless some hundreds are extremists enough to want to censor not only motion pictures, but stage plays, magazines, newspapers—life itself—to delete from existence the things they, individually, do not care for.

What I am trying to show is that there is no unanimity of opinion as to why there should be state censorship of motion pictures.

And every reason in the world why there should not be.

My readings of arguments before the state legislature of Michigan and other states, and my personal talks with prominent proponents of censorship, lead me to believe that there are three major reasons for their activity:

Intolerance—

Unintelligence—

Political selfishness—

By intolerance I mean a fervid desire to impose upon others the restrictions dictated by one's own personal prejudices and preferences.

By unintelligence I mean the belief that legislation is a panacea for everything in the world—and inability to study a subject in its completeness before rushing out to quagmires where angels fear to tread.

By political selfishness I mean just what is going on everywhere, in every community—the desire of ambitious persons to seize upon any issue, or to create an issue, on which to bid for notoriety and office.

There is a definite desire within the ranks of film producers to restrict plays to the boundaries of decency.

The exhibitor is realizing that clean films are good business."

Special Publicity Stories for "Desperate Youth"

GLADYS WALTON PLAYS KENTUCKY CINDERELLA

"A KENTUCKY CINDERELLA," F. Hopkinson Smith's classic story of the old South, opened last night at the .... Theatre as "Desperate Youth," a Universal photodrama with Gladys Walton in the starring rôle.

In putting the famous story on the screen, Universal undertook a big task, for the public is unusually critical when its favorite is transplanted from the printed page to the playground of light and shadow, but the big Universal organization has well fulfilled the trust imposed in it for "Desperate Youth" leaves nothing to be desired.

As Rosemary, the Kentucky mountain girl, who goes to the Alabama plantation of her aunt to get insulted, educated and eventually married, Gladys Walton is at her best, and each player depicts his or her rôle with remarkable fidelity to the spirit of the story.

Playing opposite the star is Harold Miller, the smiling big fellow who is as human as Harry Carey and as handsome as Jack Perrin, yet with a vigorous personality all his own.

In the character rôles are J. Farrell McDonald, who seems to live his parts, and Louis Willoughby who is a splendid type of the old Southern aristocracy.

Muriel Godfrey Turner, Lucy Harris, Hazel Howell and James Blackwell fill the remaining rôles capably and to the success of the production as a whole.

SPIRIT OF SOUTH SHOWN IN FILM

CLOTHES that infer, rather than prove feminine loveliness, are to be seen in "Desperate Youth," the Universal photodrama of the old South which is now playing at the .... Theatre with Gladys Walton in the name rôle.

The period of the story is shortly after the Civil War and the costumes are in keeping with the styles of that day. Miss Walton is particularly fetching in her poke bonnet, a basque that emphasizes the grace of her form and a ruffled hoop-skirt that leaves geometrical details to the imagination. Over her shoulders she wears a sik shawl, a family heirloom which came to her from her grandmother, a stately old lady from Alabama which, by the way, is the locale of the story.

Harold Miller, the dashingly handsome young leading man, is typical of the Southern gentleman of the old school. He wears the prescribed stovepipe hat, the silk-faced frock coat, the winged collar and the elaborate waistcoat of the period. Altogether he is one of the finest looking young Southern gentlemen who ever cocked a duelling pistol.

"Desperate Youth," considered to be Gladys Walton's greatest screen work, was filmed under the direction of Harry B. Harris at Universal City from "A Kentucky Cinderella," F. Hopkinson Smith's popular story of the South.

Gladys Walton in "DESPERATE YOUTH" ITS A UNIVERSAL

In addition to Miss Walton and Mr. Miller, and all costumed with romantic fidelity to the period, are to be seen such player sas J. Farrell McDonald, Muriel Godfrey Turner, Louis Willoughby, Hazel Howell, Lucy Harris and James Blackwell.

CLOTHES OF CIVIL WAR PERIOD WORN IN UNIVERSAL PICTURE

THE picturesque wildness of the Kentucky mountains and a stately old Alabama mansion furnish the romantic background against which the dramatic action of "Desperate Youth" is to be enacted at the .... Theatre beginning ....

"Desperate Youth" is Gladys Walton's latest Universal starring vehicle, and according to those who have seen its preview, her most appealing rôle.

The story was originally written as "A Kentucky Cinderella," by F. Hopkinson Smith and is regarded as one of America's colloquial classics. In filming it, Harry B. Harris adhered closely to the story theme, but also introducing spontaneous humor and speeding up the tempo of the drama.

The daughter of a Kentucky mountaineer, the little star is sent to Alabama to be educated. How she outshines her ultra-aristocratic cousin and wins the love of everyone around her will be a part of the story which will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of those who see the production.

Harold Miller is handsome and dashing in the rôle of a young Alabama doctor; J. Farrell McDonald gives another striking characterization as the girl's mountaineer father, while Louis Willoughby is equally interesting as his partner, Mendocino Bill. Stately Muriel Godfrey Turner, as the aristocratic dowager, and Hazel Howell, as her haughty and beautiful daughter, add to the picture, while Lucy Harris as the old mammy and James Blackwell as Sam, the man-of-all-work contribute other well-known character rôles. As for Gladys Walton, the rôle of the little mountain girl is said to be by far the most appealing screen portrayal of her career.

FAMOUS AMERICAN STORY MADE INTO PHOTOPLAY

A CLASSIC of colloquial American literature has been given life on the screen in "Desperate Youth," which will be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on .... with Gladys Walton in the starring rôle.

The story was filmed at Universal City from "A Kentucky Cinderella," by F. Hopkinson Smith. Harry B. Harris directed, using a popular cast in the star's support.

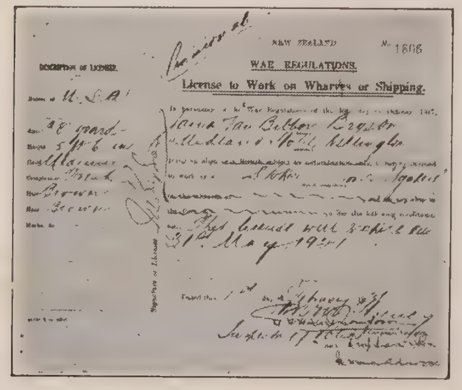
Two old prospectors are seen as the story opens, living and having considerable joy in a shack in the Kentucky Mountains. With them is Rosemary Merridew, daughter of one of them. Her father is killed in a gun-battle and she is sent to her aunt in Alabama, an ultra-fastidious old dame with an exaggerated sense of her own aristocracy and a desire to marry her own daughter off to the richest young man in town. Rosemary rather interferes with the schedule for she is naturally beautiful and gracious and Dr. Tom Dowling, the prospective son-in law, becomes fatuated with her.

Old Bill, the partner of Rosemary's father, arrives just in time to buy the girl an outfit for the wedding.

With delightful humor, good drama and fidelity to the popular story, "Desperate Youth" will serve Miss Walton as one of her best Universal starring vehicles.

Anniversary Month For Universal in Australia

SPECIAL publicity stunts and Universal programs are being held this month in Australia and New Zealand in honor of the second anniversary of the entry of the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., into the film market of the Antipodes. James V. Bryson, Universal's manager in that part of the globe, was sent to Australia by Mr. Carl Laemmle in 1919, and the first Universal office was opened in Sydney, N. S. W.. on April 10th of that year.



NEW ZEALAND No. 1806

WAR REGULATIONS.

License to Work on Wharves or Shipping.

DESCRIPTION OF LICENSEE.

U.S.A.

Stoker

This license will expire the 31st May 1921

Stoker's certificate used by Universal's Australian Manager.

At the present time there are four Universal branch offices in Australia and three in New Zealand situated in the following cities: Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, Wellington, Auckland, N. Z.; Christchurch, N. Z., and the head office at Sydney.

Universal films are now appearing exclusively in New Zealand in the new Greater Crystal Palace Theatre, Christchurch; in Mr. Robt. Cleland's National Theatre, Auckland; in the Octagon Theatre, Dunedin; in the Brittania Theatre, Wellington, and in other down-town theatres in these cities. The theatres above mentioned all are elaborate and rank as the largest in their respective cities. Universal is also well established in every country town in New Zealand.

When Mr. Bryson wanted to return to Australia to plan his First Universal Anniversary programs, he was confronted by a shipping strike that promised to hold him up a couple of weeks.

He found that the only way to get back to Australia in a hurry was to ship in a freighter. The only berth he could find was in the stoke hole, so the Universal manager signed as Stoker aboard the Nghere, a collier of 950 tons register, bound from Wellington to Sydney. During the six days' run to Australia, Bryson stood his watch with the rest of the "black gang" and shoveled coal with the best of them.

Here's Where the Tired Ad Man Works Off His Spring Fever

SPRING FEVER

By THE TIRED AD MAN

In the Spring the young fan's fancy
Lightly turns to thoughts like these:
"Oh, for Romance and Adventure—
Oh, to feel the ocean breeze!

"Take me to the realm of day-dreams,
Waft me o'er blue tropic seas
To the lands of lazy laughter
And the shores of sleepy ease!"

Say, you hard-boiled showmen! Listen:
I can't write this stuff all day.
Can't you hear the ball game calling?
Be a sport and get this lay:

Give this guy his Big Adventure—
Satisfy his longing sighs.
Take him 'cross the broad Pacific—
Show him "Under Crimson Skies."

—B. H. G.

FORMER DIRECTOR RETURNS TO ACT IN HARRY CAREY FILMS

J. Farrell McDonald.

There are many actors who have become motion picture directors, but not many directors who have produced big pictures who have turned back to their first love and become actors once again.

Such a person is J. Farrell McDonald, who plays the role of old "Alabama," Rosemary's father, in "Desperate Youth."

McDonald hails from Waterbury, Conn., and his fond parents had a diplomatic career all planned out for him. To that end he attended Yale and graduated with honors. Being an active young man about the time of the Spanish-Aemican war, he joined the Army and rose to the rank of captain. Upon his discharge he chose the stage as a career.

NEW THEATRE CHAIN OPENS IN BROOKLYN

MR. DAVID ROBBINS, who has been the chief of Universal's home office projection department for the past five years, has resigned to enter the exhibiting field. With a partner, Mr. Samuel Krauss, he has formed the Erie Basin Amusement Company, and has taken over the Oriole Theatre, Henry and Degraw streets, Brooklyn. This is the first of a string of theatres the new company intends to own and operate.

Mr. Robbins is president and general manager of the new company, which has a capital of $50,000. Mr. Krauss is secretary and Mr. M. E. Greenberg, treasurer. All have been in the moving picture game for a number of years. Mr. Robbins, before joining Universal, managed the Star Theatre, 163rd street and Southern Boulevard, the Bronx.

The partners plan many innovations for the Oriole Theatre, which soon is to have its opening under the new management.

As Clean as your Mother's Heart!

MARGARET MANN

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

"WE consider this the cleanest and best picture that we have ever shown. From a box office stand point it more than came up to all our expectations, but the unusual part of it is that it is more than a box office attraction. It gave complete satisfaction to all who saw it. Many said it was the best and cleanest picture they had ever seen."

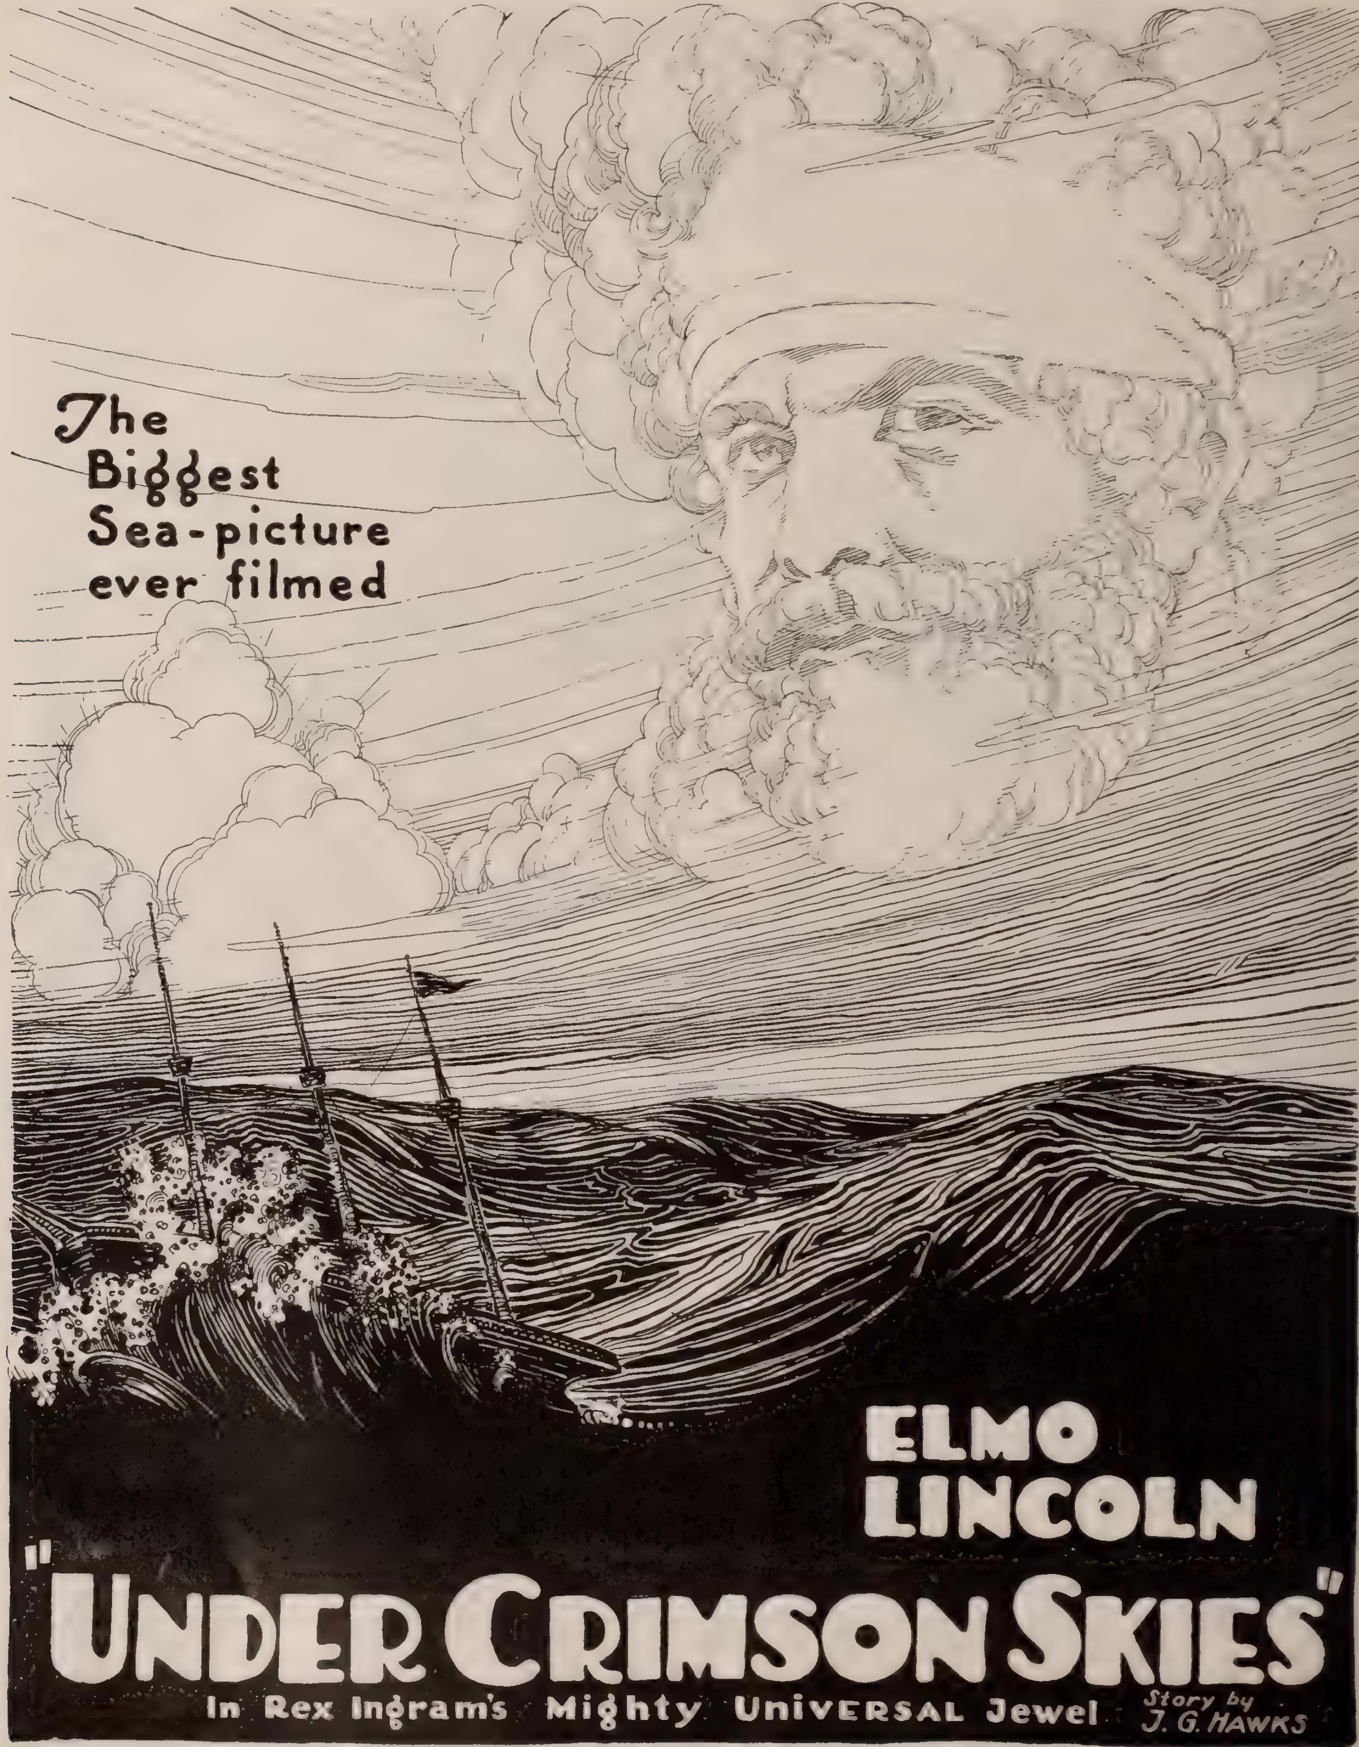
Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, Ohio.

Carl Laemmle offers
Dorothy Phillips in

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
Directed by
ALLEN HOLUBAR

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"



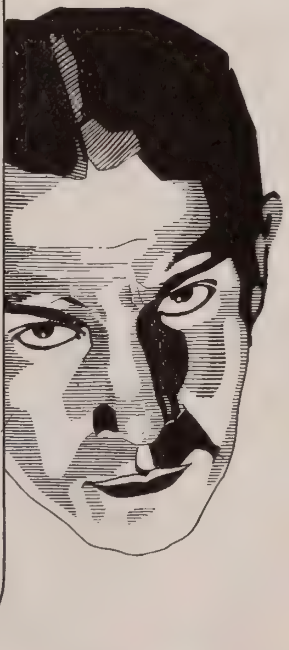
The Biggest Sea-picture ever filmed
ELMO LINCOLN
"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"
In Rex Ingram's Mighty UNIVERSAL Jewel
Story by J. G. HAWKS

Presenting the Small Town's Big Winner---

PHILIP RAND, manager of the Rex Theatre, Salmon, Idaho, writes: "There is no reason why any small town or large city exhibitor should not make money on "The Devil's Passkey'. It is a gem."

AND from another small town—Huntsville, Ala.,—Manager C. L. Hackworth, of the Grand Theatre, writes: " 'The Devil's Passkey' is the best picture I have ever presented. Anyone who passes up this master picture is passing up his best bet."

HANNIBAL, Mo., through Manager Thomas Rigler of the Park Theatre, reports: " 'The Devil's Passkey' proved a knockout—so much so that I extended my run an additional two days."



Carl Laemmle
presents

Von Stroheim's

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
MASTER
PICTURE

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

The Man who hasn't played Priscilla Dean in "The Virgin of Stamboul" has a great big money treat coming to him!

ASK the man who's played it. That's the best proof in the world! He (numbering some ten or eleven thousand exhibitors) has made big money. Do you have to be told that there's a great big money treat in it for you? Or are you the wide-awake showman who books a picture when it has made good all over the country?

Minocqua, Wis.

"Certainly a great picture. Full of action and wonderful scenery."

Victory Theatre

Baker, Mont.

"Best Universal we ever played. Splendid acting. Pleased 90% of our patrons." Lake Theatre.

UNIVERSAL Jewel

"Reputation" is Dramatic Thunderbolt

Priscilla Dean scores her greatest dramatic success in the role of Laura Figlan, the most popular stage star in Europe.

A PROGRESSIVE fashion show is on display in "Reputation," the latest Priscilla Dean Universal-Jewel feature and in which this popular star is said to have scored a success greater than that achieved in "The Virgin Of Stamboul" or "Outside The Law."

In the early scenes of the story, laid in America a little over a decade ago, Miss Dean, in the role of a provincial actress, dresses in the mode of the period. Although the majority of playgoers may have forgotten it, the styles of 1910 were entirely different from what they are today. One need only hark back to the pictures of the original Floradora Sextette, or to Anna Held's first beauty chorus to recollect the floor-sweeping skirts, the high collars, the tight sleeves and the plumed hats of that period.

A few years later the story shifts to London where Miss Dean, in the rôle of Laura Figlan, the most popular stage star in Europe, revels in all the finery of the Parisian modistes' design. At the banquet on the Strand she is arrayed in a jewelled gown that reflects from a thousand angles and at the Oriental party in the Limehouse District she wears another creation of startling design and marvelous texture.

Meanwhile, in the other rôle she assumes in the story, she will appear as a New York girl, wearing the garments popular today, and in the theatre sequence, where a story of the DuBarry period is presented on the stage, a dozen beautiful feminine players will appear in the sumptuous fashion of the Court of Louis XV.

The most interesting feature of "Reputation" is the fact that it permits Priscilla Dean to play a dual role—a mother and daughter—both possessing marked histrionic geniuus, but differing in every other characeristic. The mother is a woman who has violated the social code and sunk to moral depths in inverse ratio to her rise in fame and popularity. The daughter, on the other hand, raised in a country asylum, blooms like a violet in a swamp, and grows up to pure and charming young womanhood. The mother has forgotten the daughter's existence, while the child has never known a mother's gentle caress. Fate brings the two together under circumstances that try their souls and make for big, dramatic situations. Like a seething volcano the story rumbles and flashes until the final eruption provides a thrill without parallel in recent screen offerings.

The story, under the title of "False Colors," first appeared in a magazine as the work of Edwina Levin Lucien Hubbard and Doris Schroeder adapted it to the screen, and it was directed by Stuart Paton.

With the release date approaching, Universal's Exploitation Department states that the campaign on "Reputation" will be even greater than the one being staged on "Outside The Law," which is the costliest and most far reaching ever put behind a Universal picture.

PRISCILLA DEAN was practically born on the stage. The daughter of a well-known dramatic, May Preston Dean, Priscilla appeared with such stage luminaries as Joseph Jefferson and James A. Herne when she could scarcely walk. At the age of ten she was appearing with the Ben Greet Players and had memorized the parts of all the Shakespearian heroines. When she was thirteen she was one of the features of the Follies Bergere, in New York, and a year later she made her debut on the silversheet.

Priscilla Dean has an enviable list of screen successes to her credit, but she has scored her most emphatic hit in her latest photodrama, "Reputation."

The

Carl Laemmle presents
Stuart Paton's Tremendous Drama of Woman against Woman.

"REPUT

Most Dynamic Personality in moving pictures - All yours in a drama that's All Dean!

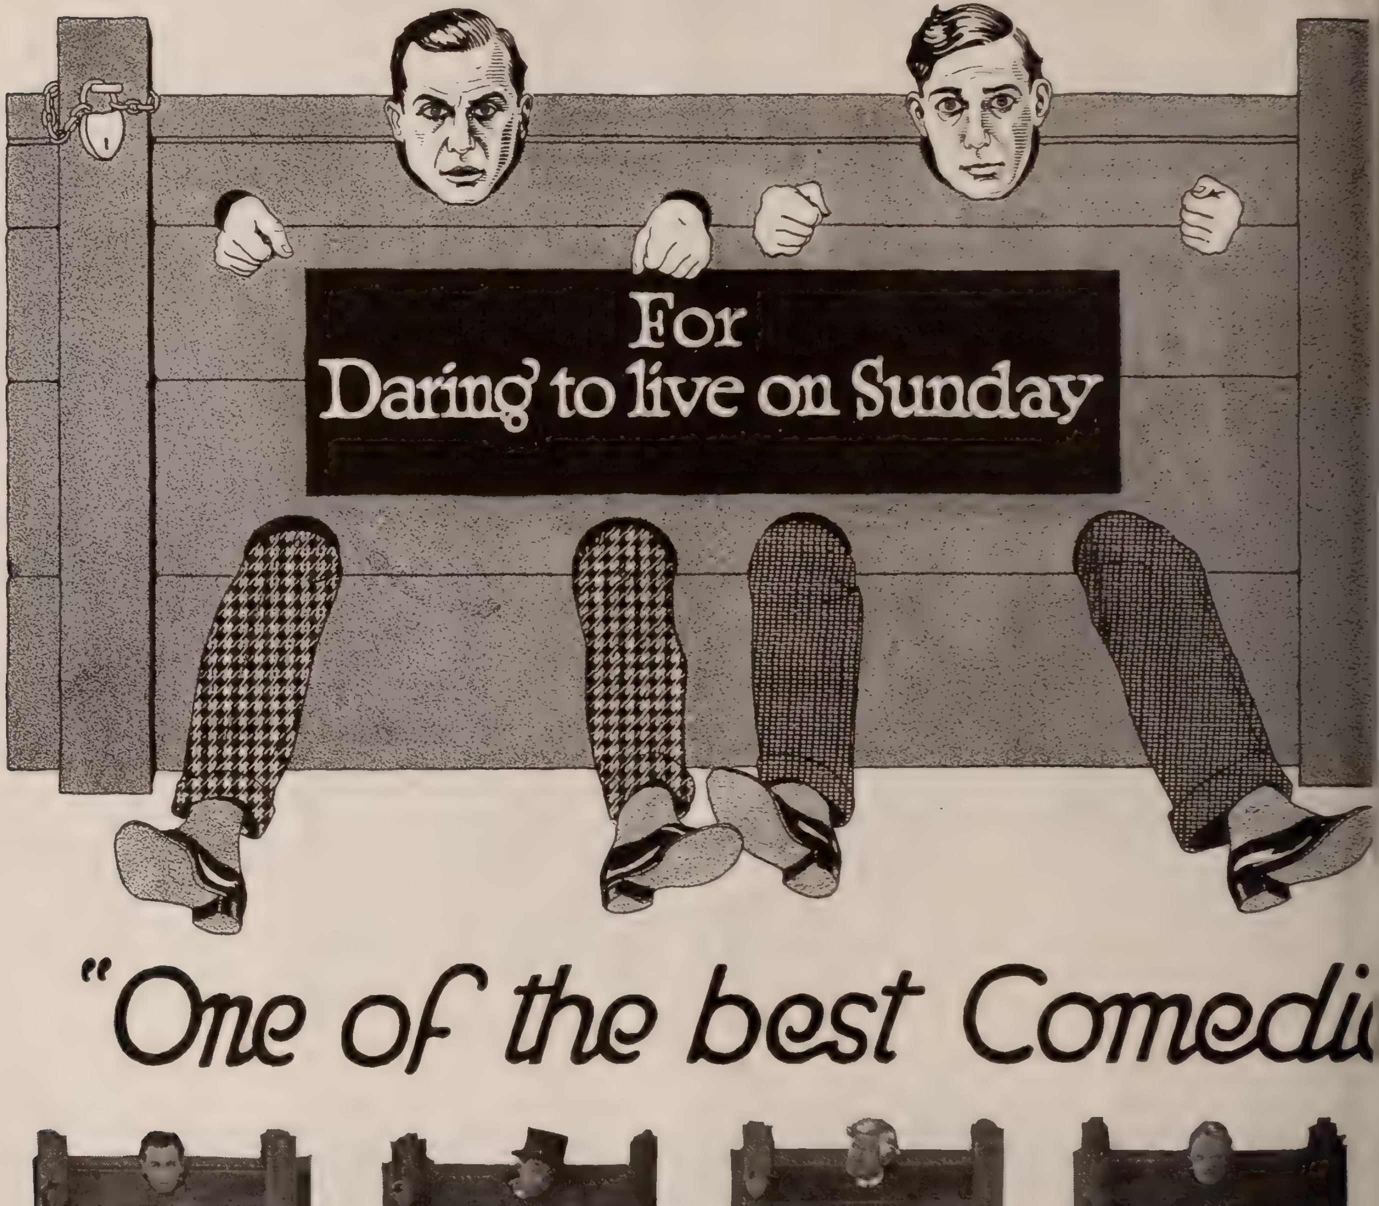
Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

ATION"

Carl Laemmle offers you

Lyons and Moran



For
Daring to live on Sunday

"One of the best Comedi

FOR USING PERFUME

FOR BOOTLEGGING
A WEDDING

FOR SNORING
IN HIS SLEEP

FOR CARRYING MATCHES

in "Blue Sunday"

Read What Wid's Says:

"THE boys have built up a gag around almost every conceivable situation in connection with the bluest of blue Sundays. Of course it's an exaggeration of any conditions that could ever exist under any blue laws, but it is also very funny. It soon commences to produce laughs and there are some big ones throughout the picture.

"IT took quite an imagination to conceive of a state of affairs such as are shown, and it will surely be appreciated by anyone who sees the picture. It's a good number for Lyons and Moran and ought to make a hit."

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
COMEDIES

s of the Year" says M.P. NEWS

FOR CHASING A CHICKEN

FROM THE NEIGHBORS

FOR THROWING A FIT

FOR SMELLING
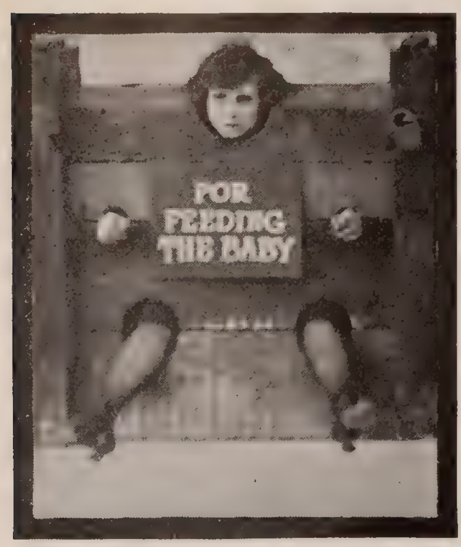
A CORK

"Exploitation Blues"

* * * * * TRY THESE ON YOUR



Use these exploitation ideas to pack your theatre. They are suited to the needs of both large and small houses. Don't fail to "bootleg" your performance.

HERE is a wonderful chance for every showman to cash in on the widespread interest taken in the "Blue Sunday" discussion and make his playhouse the center of attraction for his town.

This Lyons and Moran comedy is being released as a Universal-Jewel because Universal officials firmly believe that it is the very best fun-film ever offered to exhibitors. Emphasize "Blue Sunday" and the ideas contained in the exploitation material here and "bootleg" your performance. This should go over big in any town.

Drape the box office of your theatre with black crepe and have the ticket seller wear a black crepe sash or some distinctive black costume. This "Blue Sunday" costume can also be used for the ticket collector and also for the ushers.

In addition to the lobby display cards furnished by Universal, two forceful stunts are the use of the public stocks and the bristol board cutout shown in another column on this page.

Have the stocks in the lobby tall enough for the average person to put his head through the opening and hire some one to stand in them or else use dummy figures. The stocks can be built of light wood or else made from bristol board.

If you desire to vary the signs the following suggestions can be applied to local institutions:

For Walking on Main Street After Dark.

For Reading the "Times"—(Local paper.)

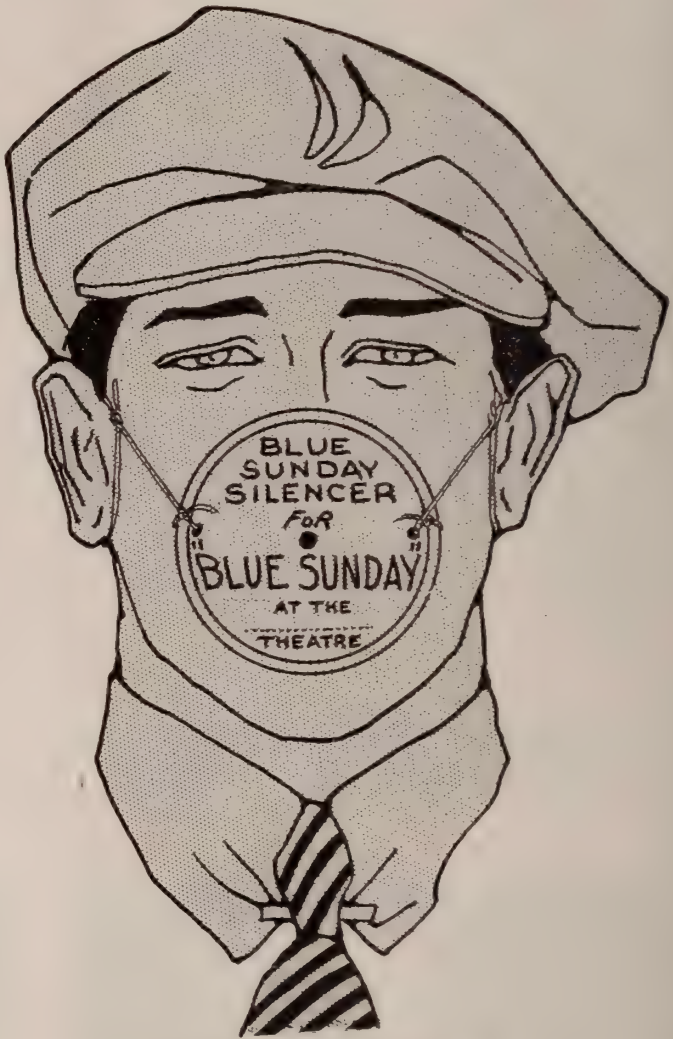
For Strolling in Grant Park.—(Local park.)

WHERE IS YOUR SILENCER?
DO YOU WANT TO BE ARRESTED?

This is the exploitation stunt de-luxe for this de-luxe comedy. Use this "Blue Sunday" silencer idea when you are showing the pictures and the laughter produced by the sight of the patrons of your theatre all wearing these laugh masks will pack your theatre for every day of the showing.

Pieces of a fairly good grade of cardboard cut in the form of a circle about two inches in diameter and of either blue or white stock will serve the purpose for the silencer. If blue cardboard is used have the lettering shown on the accompanying drawing in white letters and if white cardboard is used have the advertising slogan printed in black letters.

Additional slogans such as "No Loud Laughter," "Mumm's The Word," "Don't Smile," can be printed on the reverse side of the card. Two strings should be attached to either side so that they can be looped over the ears and the card worn over the mouth in the form of a silencer. The small hole in the center of the card will permit of talking in a low tone.



Exploitation cut showing use of "Blue Sunday" Silencer

for "Blue Sunday"

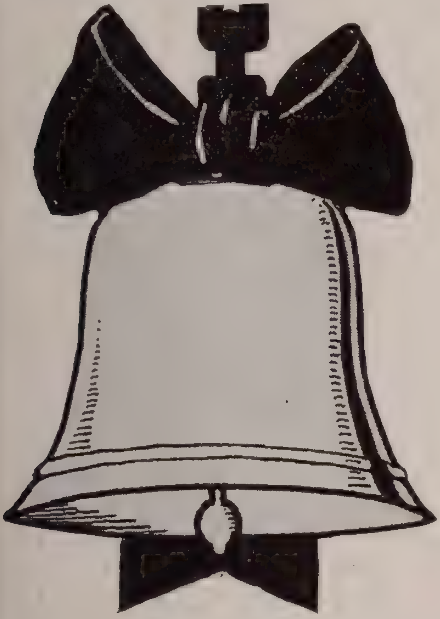
ORGAN, Mr. EXHIBITOR! * * * * *

Bootleg Ticket. Good Only
for "Blue Sunday"
at the .... Theatre
....

"BLUE SUNDAY" CHIMES

Here is a very simple yet effective idea that can be used by the theatre manager in any town as a lobby display to attract the attention of passersby.

In the center of the lobby suspend a fairly large bell of the type used on the old style fire engines, or any medium size bell would answer the purpose. Decorate the bell with a bow of black crepe and pass a streamer of black crepe from the bell to the cashier's window. The bell should be slowly tolled at regular intervals.



"BLUE SUNDAY" PARADE TO WAKE UP TOWN

One of the best means of attracting the attention of the towns-people to the offering at your theatre would be to hold a "Blue Sunday" parade. Have an automobile truck or a wagon trimmed with black crepe operated through the business section of the city.

In the wagon erect one of the upright stocks as shown in the photograph on the top of this page and have a man stand with his head fastened in the stock which can be made of light wood or bristol board. The sign on the stock could read "For Chewing Gum," "For Reading a Paper" or any other of the slogans shown in the exploitation photographs.

Advertising signs and banners on the wagon would connect the sight of the public punishment of the violator of "Blue Sunday" and the performance at your theatre.

If another man can be used on the truck have him dressed in the black clothes and high hat shown in the one sheet poster prepared for the picture.

DON'T JAZZ THE "BLUES"!

As a simple and short prologue for the comedy have your organist or pianist play the "Blue Law Blues," which can be secured from your local music store, first in the rag time style in which the piece was written, then have her transpose the song to another key and have the music played very slowly and solemnly. Then flash the picture "Blue Sunday."

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Blue Sunday."

LENGTH—Two reels.

STARS—Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.

PREVIOUS HITS—"Fixed By George," "La, La, Lucille," "Once A Plumber," and a hundred other shorter comedy hits.

DIRECTED BY—Lyons and Moran.

STORY BY—Lyons and Moran.

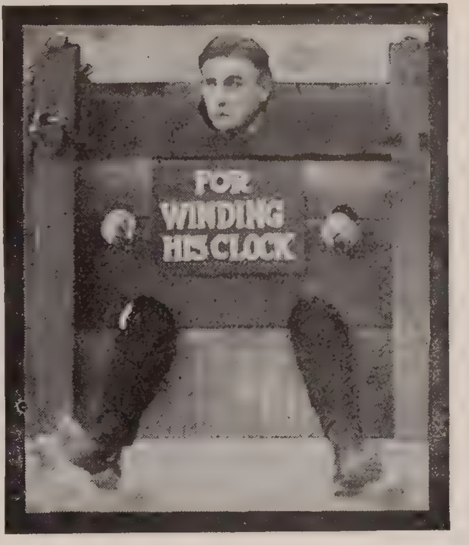
SCENARIO BY—W. Scott Darling.

SUPPORTING CAST—Lillian Hackett, Joe McCreery and George French.

LOCALE—Any American town after the passing of the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution.

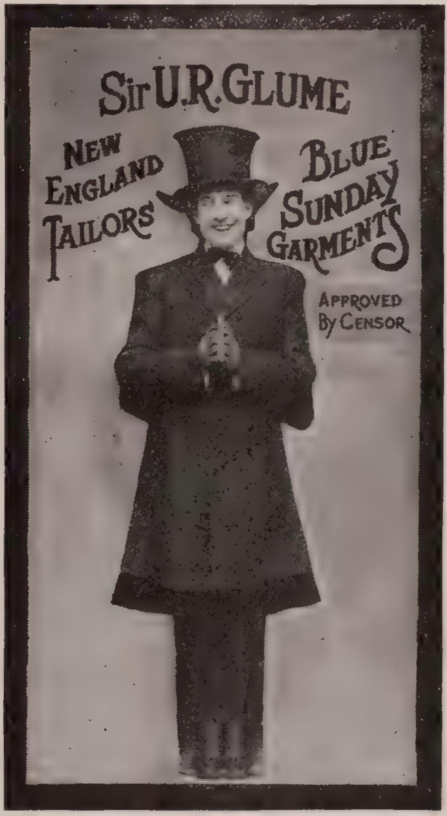
TIME—1925.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—Story of a young bachelor in a Blue Law town who attempts to get married on Sunday to avoid paying the bachelor's tax of eighty per cent of his income; of his efforts to find a minister to "bootleg" the ceremony when the only amusement allowed on that day is hearing the church bells.

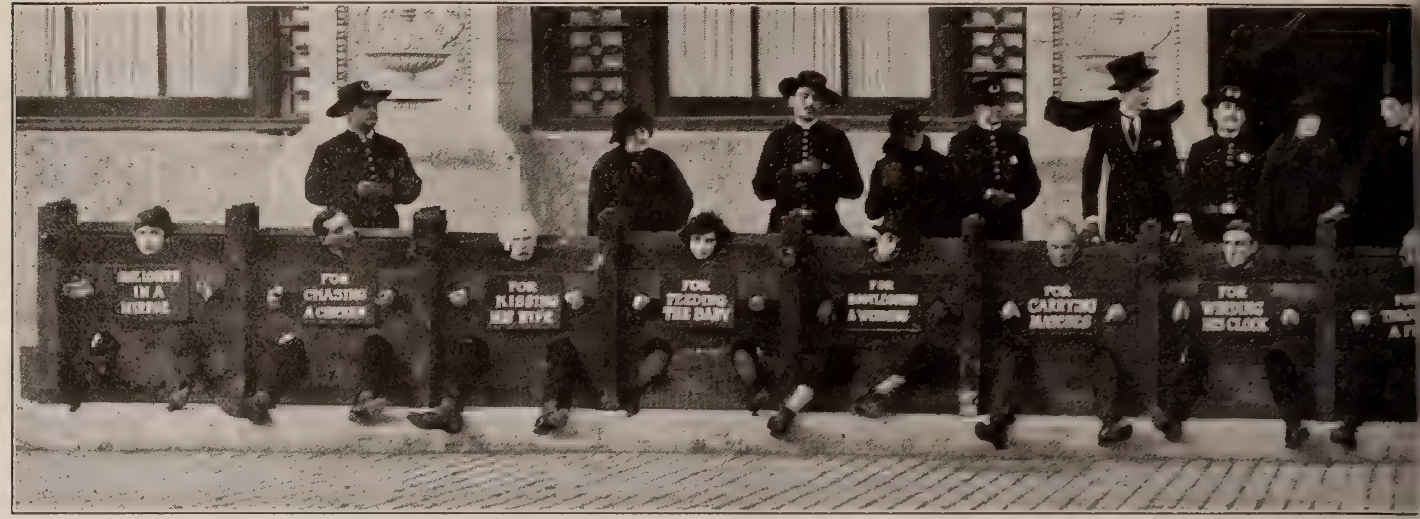


ADVANCE NOTE

Public stocks may be placed in front of the town hall if the events shown in "Blue Sunday" the latest Lyons and Moran comedy which will be shown at the .... Theatre next .... ever come true after the passing of the Twentieth Amendment.



One-sheet poster which can be used for a lobby cut-out.



This photograph gives an impression of how your town will

"BLUE LAW" POLICE AT LOCAL THEATRE

"BLUE SUNDAY," the first of the two-reel comedies to be produced by Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, who will be remembered for their work in "La La Lucille," "Once a Plumber" and "Fixed By George," was shown at the .... Theatre last night and sounds a new note of popular appeal. If their succeeding comedies are as humorous as this travesty on the Blue Laws they will out-rival the popularity of the earlier successes of these two comedy stars.

The theme of the story is particularly timely in view of the widespread agitation for national enforcement of "Blue Sunday." In this picture, which was written and directed by Lyons and Moran, they present a view of what life in the average American town will resemble after the passing of the Twentieth Amendment.

Into the story they have worked a plot revolving around some of their own original situations. Innovations in the form of baby silencers to prevent infants from disturbing the public peace on the Sabbath and separators to keep young people out walking the prescribed four feet apart are also introduced.

One of the features of the picture is the squad of Blue Law policemen garbed in the conventional black, who bring violators of the Blue Sunday ordinances to the public stocks where they are kept before the public gaze until they have atoned for their sins.

Without the aid of slap-stick these two young funmakers have produced a real laughter getting comedy. Lillian Hackett, Joy McCreery and George French as the principals in the "bootleg" wedding capably support the stars.

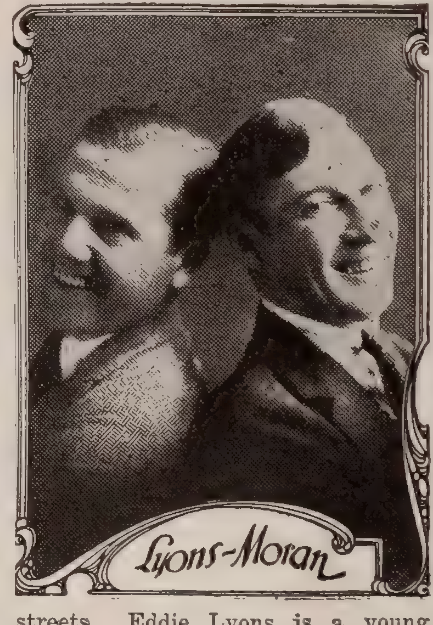
STORY OF "BLUE SUNDAY" SOUNDS WARNING NOTE

AFTER the passing of the Blue Laws, the only business institution allowed to keep open on Sunday was the undertaker and the only wide-open amusements were a slow walk to church and the evening concert of the church bells—until nine o'clock only when everyone had to be off the streets. Eddie Lyons is a young bachelor who decides to get married on a Sunday and avoid paying the bachelor tax of eighty per cent of his income which becomes effective on Monday.

His friend Lee is a married man and is in danger of arrest because he played with his baby on Sunday. In his home he has a tobacco plant and grows his own smokes although his wife thinks the shrub is a geranium plant.

Eddie is forbidden by law to be married on Sunday and asks Lee to help him find a "bootleg" minister. Together they plan a "bootleg" wedding ceremony. All stores, parks, public buildings and theatres are closed in the town; no fires are allowed on Sunday and all taxicabs are locked in their garages over the week-end.

Lee finds a girl for the ceremony and with Eddie they get into a "bootleg" taxi—the undertaker's hearse—and start off to the home of the "bootleg" minister. If they are caught it will mean forty Sundays in the public stocks erected on the sidewalk just outside the town hall. On the way they pass the punishing blocks and see their friends locked in the stocks for such offenses as chewing gum, carrying matches, reading a paper, looking in a mirror, throwing a fit and other similar hineous crimes.



Lyons-Moran

Exhibitor Aids To Be Used In Putting Over "Blue Sunday" Comedy

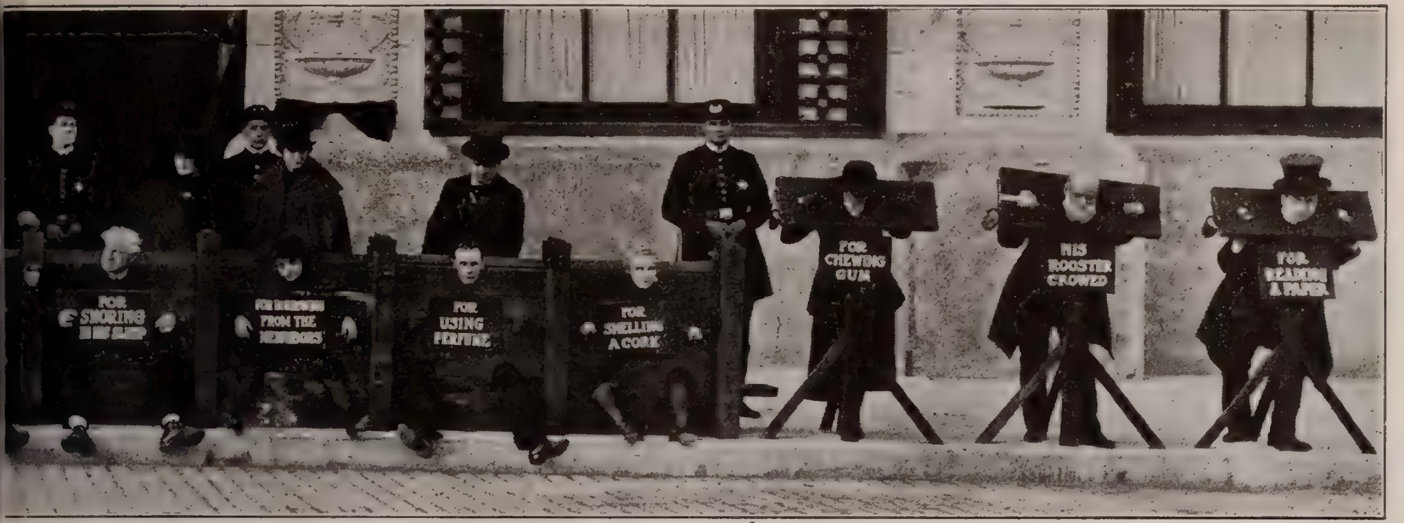
One-sheet poster.

Three-sheet poster.

One announcement slide.

One set of eight gelatine lobby photos, 11x14 inches, including title card.

One 22x28-inch hand-colored display poster.



ok on Sunday morning after the passing of the Blue Laws.

"BOOTLEG" MARRIAGE CEREMONY SHOWN BY COMEDY FILM

EDDIE is a young man who has given much thought to the subject of getting married—that's why he is still single. But, upon learning that the only way to escape paying the bachelor's tax is to take unto himself a wife, he begins to arrange for the ceremony. However he has overlooked the very important fact that by the terms of the Twentieth Amendment no marriages can be performed on Sunday.

The troubles of getting married in a Blue Sunday town are humorously presented by Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran in their fun film "Blue Sunday," which is coming to the .... Theatre on .... This picture is said to give a vision of the future appearance of this town after the passing of the Blue Laws now being advocated so strenuously in many parts of the country.

The stocks in front of the town hall, the Blue Law enforcement squad dressed in somber black, and the undertaker's hearse, which is the only motor vehicle allowed the use of the streets on Sunday, are all shown in this picture. Lyons and Moran, two former musical comedy favorites, have been starred in many comedy photoplays, including "La La Lucille," "Once a Plumber" and "Fixed by George."

This is the first of a series of two-reel comedies to be made by Universal in which the two popular comedy stars will have leading rôles. They will be supported by a cast who make the best of the humorous situations presented in the picture.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran
UNIVERSAL

SONG TIE-UP WITH LOCAL MUSIC STORES

Arrange for a tie-up with the music stores in your vicinity. There are dozens of phonograph records on the market concerning "Blue Law Blues," "Kentucky Blues," "Prohibition Blues" and many others, and a window display of these "Blue" records could be shown with the announcement of the "Blue Sunday" comedy at your theatre.

USE THESE LINES FOR ADVERTISING PUNCHES

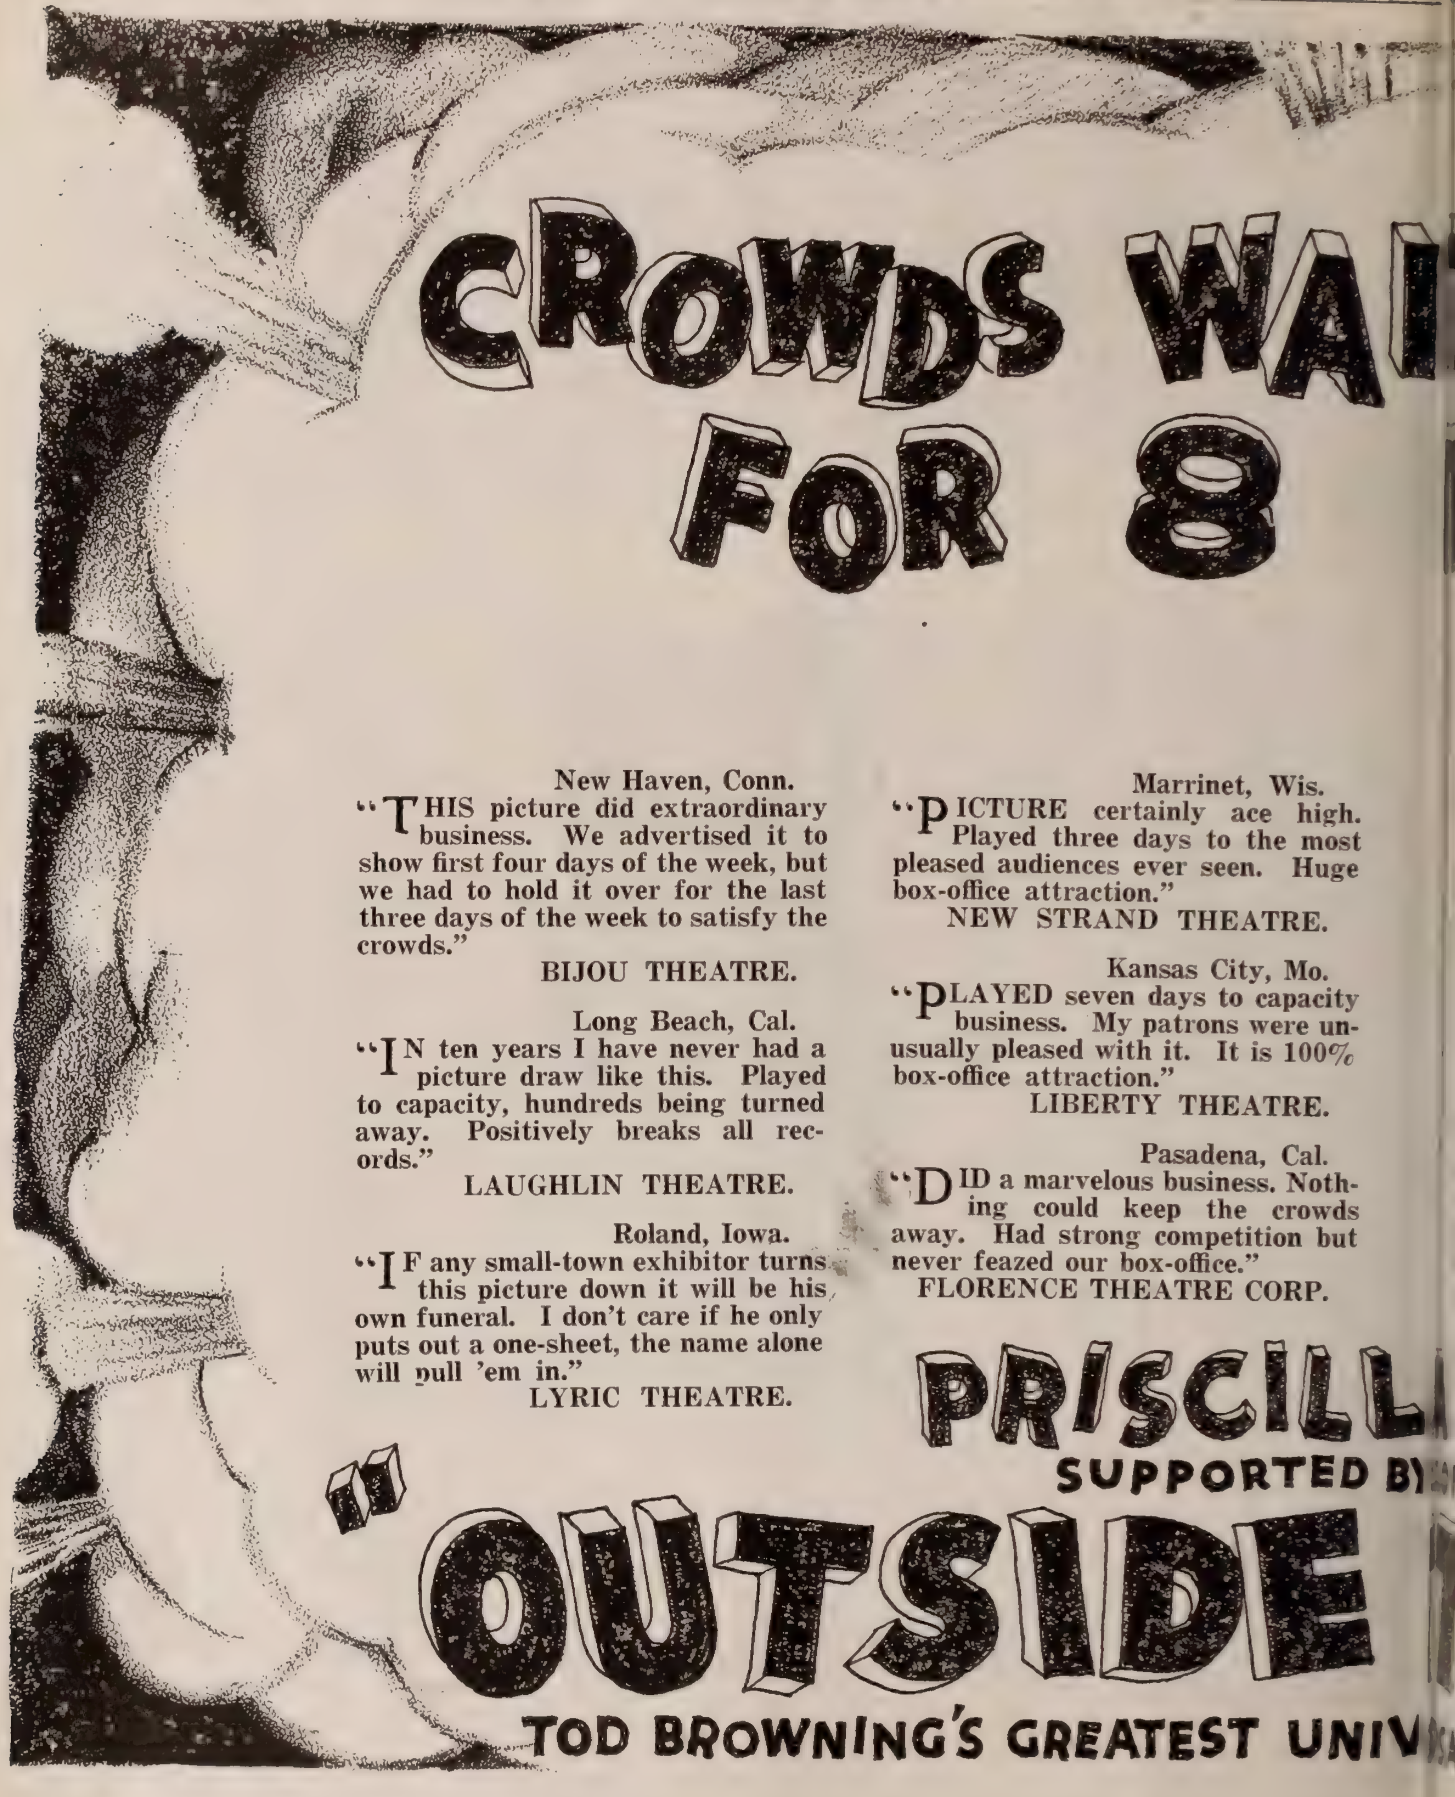
1. The drawing power of the stars who are well known comedy favorites.
2. The success of their five-reel comedy pictures have paved the way for this two-reel fun comedy.
3. The fact that the "Blue Sunday" agitation is receiving the attention of the public in all sections of the country.
4. The comedy was written and directed by the stars themselves.
5. The many ideas contained in the pictures which make good exploitation stunts for both large and small houses.
6. Some of the most humorous and laugh-provoking situations ever filmed are contained in "Blue Sunday."
7. Guarantees your patrons two laughs for every foot of film.
8. An advance picture of what your town may look like in 1925.
9. The posters and exploitation stunts for this comedy have been as carefully prepared as for the longer Universal-Jewels.
10. This picture is in itself a strong enough attraction to be the feature on any theatre program.

LOBBY DISPLAY SIGNS

.... in 1925
Shown Here To-day

No Show To-day
Blue Sunday Ordinance 719
Wait For Monday

Are you wearing your
"Blue Sunday" Silencer?



CROWDS WAI
FOR 8

New Haven, Conn.
"THIS picture did extraordinary business. We advertised it to show first four days of the week, but we had to hold it over for the last three days of the week to satisfy the crowds."
BIJOU THEATRE.

Long Beach, Cal.
"IN ten years I have never had a picture draw like this. Played to capacity, hundreds being turned away. Positively breaks all records."
LAUGHLIN THEATRE.

Roland, Iowa.
"IF any small-town exhibitor turns this picture down it will be his own funeral. I don't care if he only puts out a one-sheet, the name alone will pull 'em in."
LYRIC THEATRE.

Marrinet, Wis.
"PICTURE certainly ace high. Played three days to the most pleased audiences ever seen. Huge box-office attraction."
NEW STRAND THEATRE.

Kansas City, Mo.
"PLAYED seven days to capacity business. My patrons were unusually pleased with it. It is 100% box-office attraction."
LIBERTY THEATRE.

Pasadena, Cal.
"DID a marvelous business. Nothing could keep the crowds away. Had strong competition but never feazed our box-office."
FLORENCE THEATRE CORP.

PRISCILL
SUPPORTED B

"OUTSIDE

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIV

TED IN LINE HOURS

ALLEN THEATRE, AKRON, O.

"'OUTSIDE THE LAW' was a positive knockout. Everybody that saw the picture was tickled to death. It kept the crowd standing from two this afternoon until ten o'clock tonight. We had the greatest crowd that ever came to see a picture at the Allen Theatre. At least fifteen hundred turned away. Broke all records."

ALLEN T. HIMMONS.

Flint, Mich.

"OPENED here on Sunday to capacity. Almost caused a riot. Greatest picture ever seen in Flint is public opinion."

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

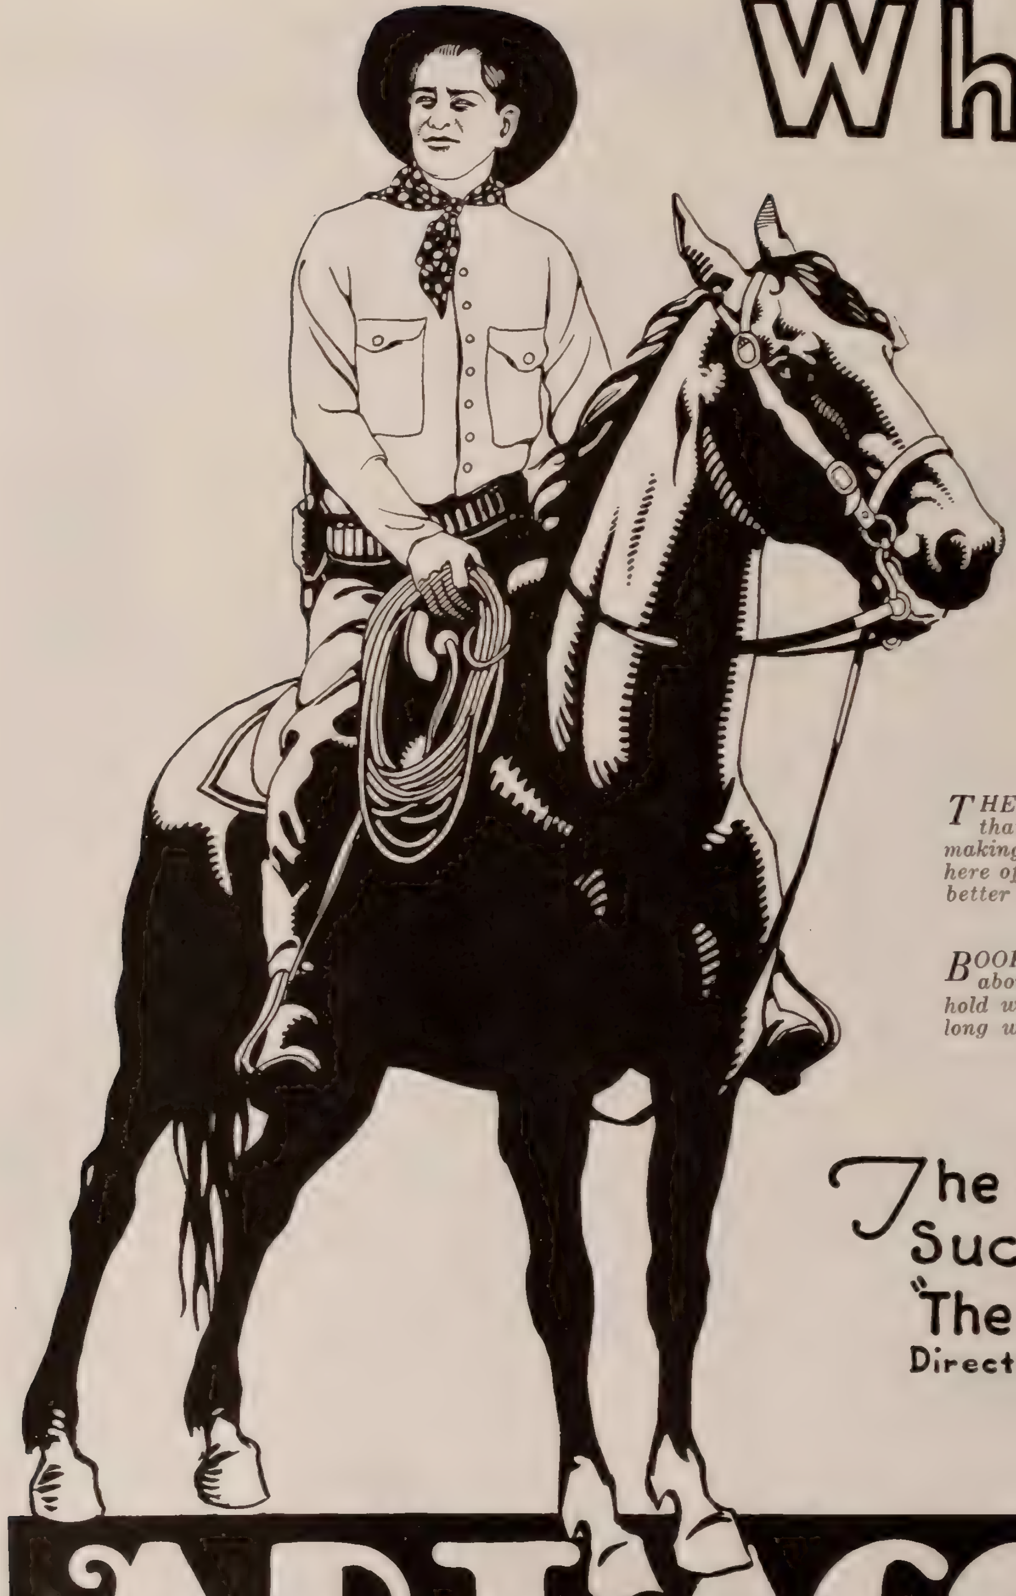
Montreal, Canada.

"SMASHED all records of attendance and receipts. Had to send S. O. S. call to police force. There was a real riot. Women fought with men to get tickets. S. R. O. one hour after opening."

HOLMAN THEATRE.

A DEAN
ON CHANEY
THE LAW"
SAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

Who is



THE same star-director combination that made that wonderful money-making serial, "The Moonriders," are here offered exhibitors in a bigger and better wild Western chapter-play.

BOOK it—then let the world know about it. All that your house can hold will come to see it for eighteen long weeks.

The Successful
Successor to
"The Moonriders"
Directed by Al. Russell.

ART ACORD

the Mummy Man?

WHO IS THE MUMMY MAN? That's what every man, woman and child who see this picture will be asking. That's what they will be asking for eighteen weeks. That's what's going to draw the crowds in ever-increasing numbers week after week. That's what will fill your money till and pack the house.

BUT that's only ONE of the many big, new thrillers that make this one of the cleanest and fastest serials ever released by Universal. That's why we urge you to waste no time in booking it for your first available date.

Trapped! A prisoner of the dread Spidermen who sought the key to the hidden treasure of his race How he outwits them will make you yell yourself hoarse with delight.

All seemed lost! Struck unconscious, he lay there at the mercy of the Spiderman, when suddenly out of the dark recesses of the moving mountain appeared the Mummy Man. See what happened for the thrill of a lifetime.

Cornered! In the distance the sound of the fast approaching Spidermen. Watching them from every nook and corner, the eyes of spies. But Art Acord always has an ace up his sleeve. And when he plays this one—Oh, Boy, how you'll carry on!

The White Horseman”

NOVEL BALLYHOO FOR "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

THE White House Theatre in Milwaukee is finding Universal serials the best kind of business pullers on what would otherwise be the slowest days of the week. The accompaning picture shows the banners and lobby display cards used to announce the start of "The Diamond Queen," starring Eileen Sedgwick.

On the day that the first episode of this serial started, the last two reels of "The Flaming Disk," a Universal serial with Elmo Lincoln in the star rôle, was also shown.

In addition to the posters and banners supplied by the Universal Exchange in Milwaukee for exploiting this picture, O. L. Meister, manager of the White House Theatre used several stunts of his own. Around the box office were draped skins of various animals found in the African jungles which form the locale for part of the serial, and over the box office on a throne sat a woman dressed to impersonate the Queen of the Diamonds.

To the right of the Diamond Queen can be seen the figures of a lion and a monkey, and the men dressed in these skins attracted many passers Street ballyhoo for "The Diamond Queen," staged by the White House Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.

Universal Star Called "Girl Without a Double"

IT has been said that everyone in the world has someone who looks exactly like them, but Eileen Sedgwick, the Universal Serial star, would seem to be the exception that proves the rule.

Eileen Sedgwick is called by theatre-goers "The girl without a double."

Not only have picture producers failed to find a girl whose unique type of beauty parallels that of Miss Sedgwick, but they have been unable to find a girl who will chance the physical risks she takes in the hazardous productions of Universal serials.

EILEEN SEDGWICK
UNIVERSAL

When Miss Sedgwick was starred in "The Great Mystery" it was thought that the height of daring had been reached; but the star surpasses that record in her forthcoming serial, "The Diamond Queen."

Working absolutely without a "double" and not availing herself of "trick" photography to cover up a hesitancy to risk her life, Miss Sedgwick does hair-raising feats of skill and daring throughout the entire eighteen episodes.

Eileen Sedgwick started her dramatic career as the baby member of the famous "Five Sedgwicks," an independent dramatic company, which toured the country and made an enviable reputation for her father, mother, brother and sister Josie.

Eileen, Josie and Edward, the brother, all of whom took up picture work several years tgo, have made a notable success. Eileen is regarded as the foremost serial star of the screen; Edward is a successful director, while Josie has attained popularity as a photoplayer.

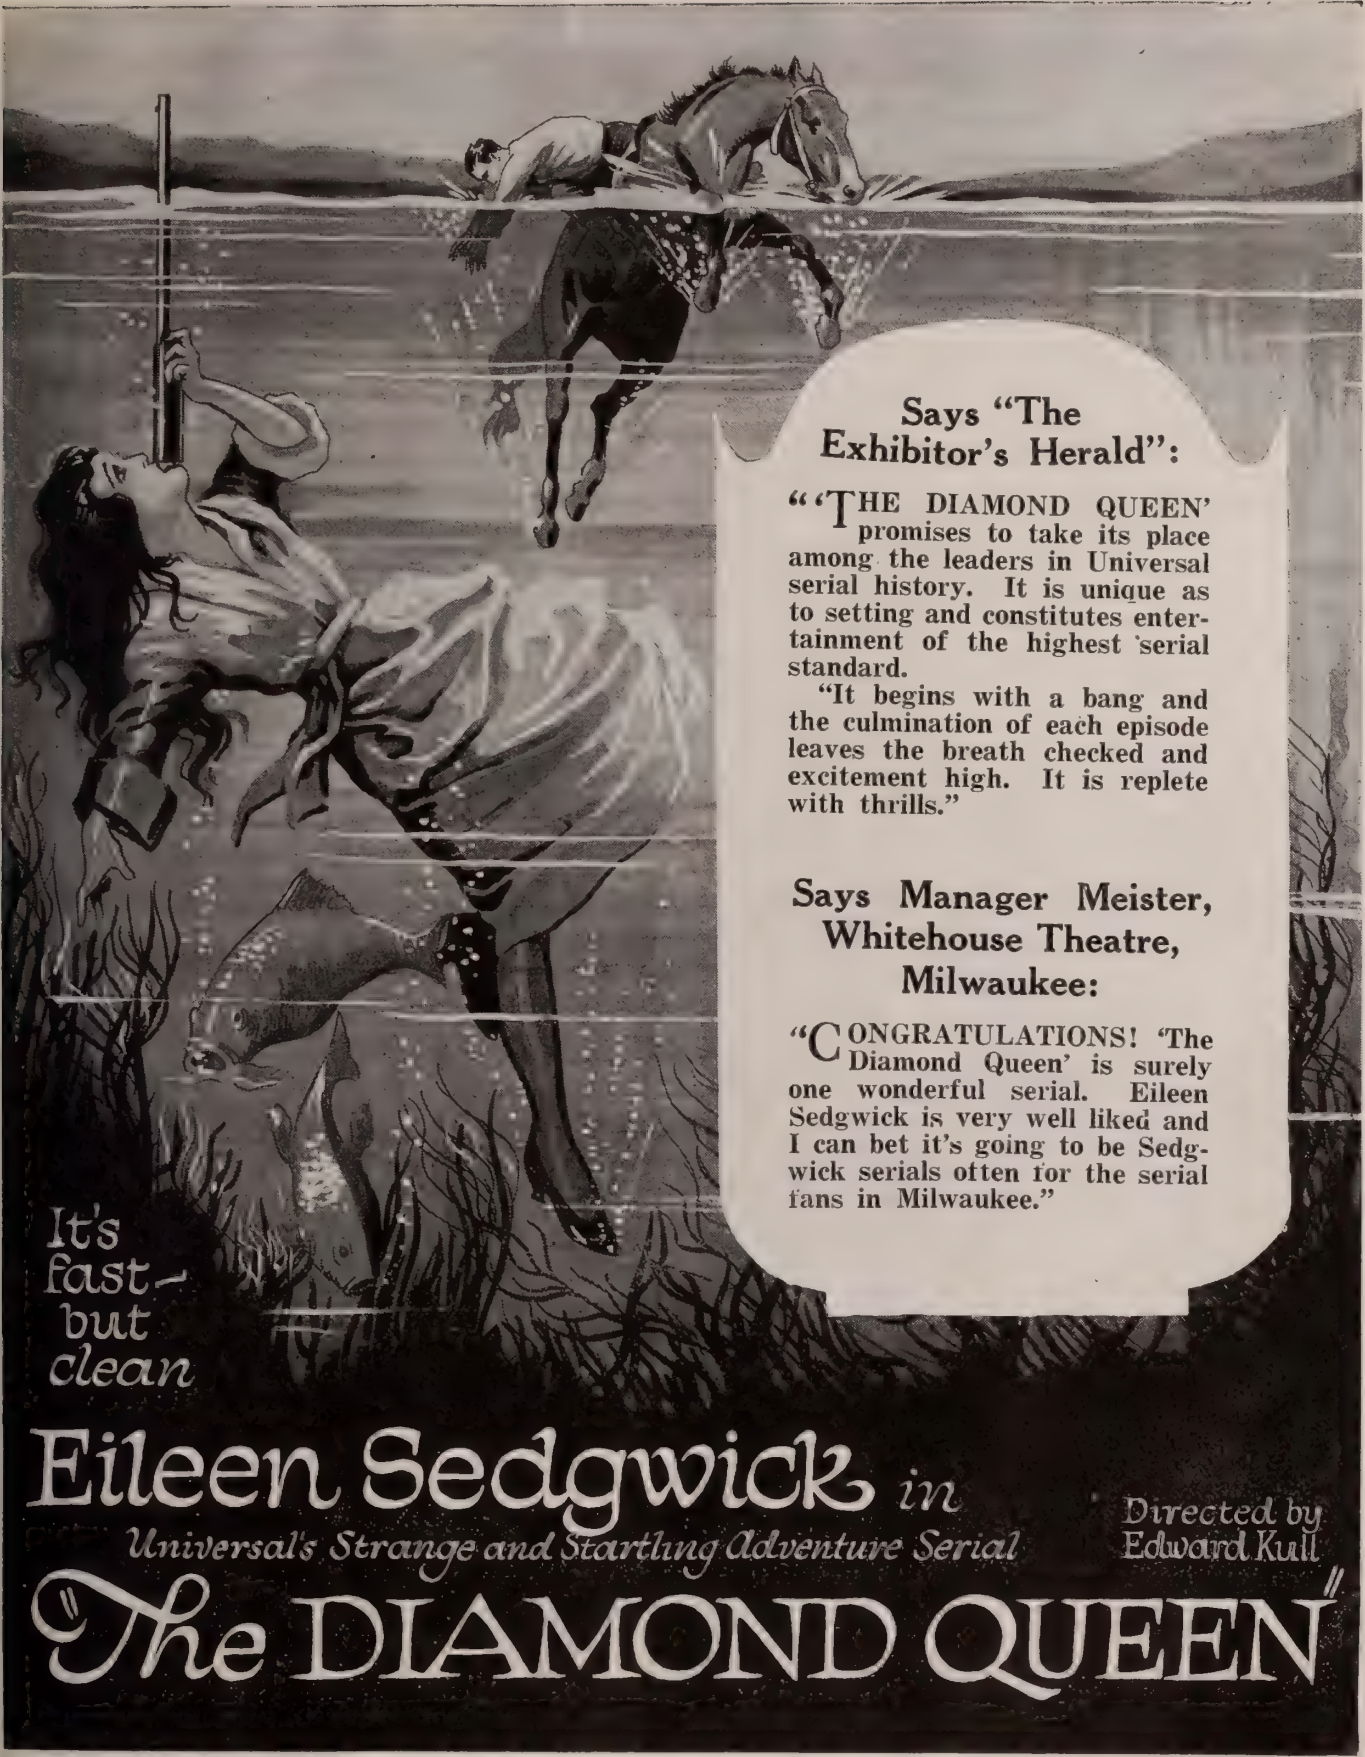
"The Diamond Queen" is a brilliant adaptation, by George F. Pyper and Robert W. Roden, of the popular novel by Jacques Futrelle, "The Diamond Master," and was produced for Universal by Edward Kull.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.,
March 29th, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

CONGRATULATIONS! "THE DIAMOND QUEEN" is surely one wonderful serial. As you know, we played the first episode with the last episode of "The Flaming Disk" on March 27th-28th, and while I thought the results on the Lincoln serial were as big as they could be, I predict still more for the "Diamond Queen." Eileen Sedgwick is very well liked by our patrons, and I can bet it's going to be Eileen Sedgwick serials often, from now on, for the serial fans in Milwaukee—before they will be entirely satisfied. We are more than pleased with the business of the first two days.

Very truly yours,
O. L. MEISTER,
Manager,
WHITEHOUSE THEATRE.



It's fast-but clean
Eileen Sedgwick in
Universal's Strange and Startling Adventure Serial
Directed by Edward Kull
"The DIAMOND QUEEN"

Says "The Exhibitor's Herald":

"'THE DIAMOND QUEEN' promises to take its place among the leaders in Universal serial history. It is unique as to setting and constitutes entertainment of the highest serial standard.

"It begins with a bang and the culmination of each episode leaves the breath checked and excitement high. It is replete with thrills."

Says Manager Meister, Whitehouse Theatre, Milwaukee:

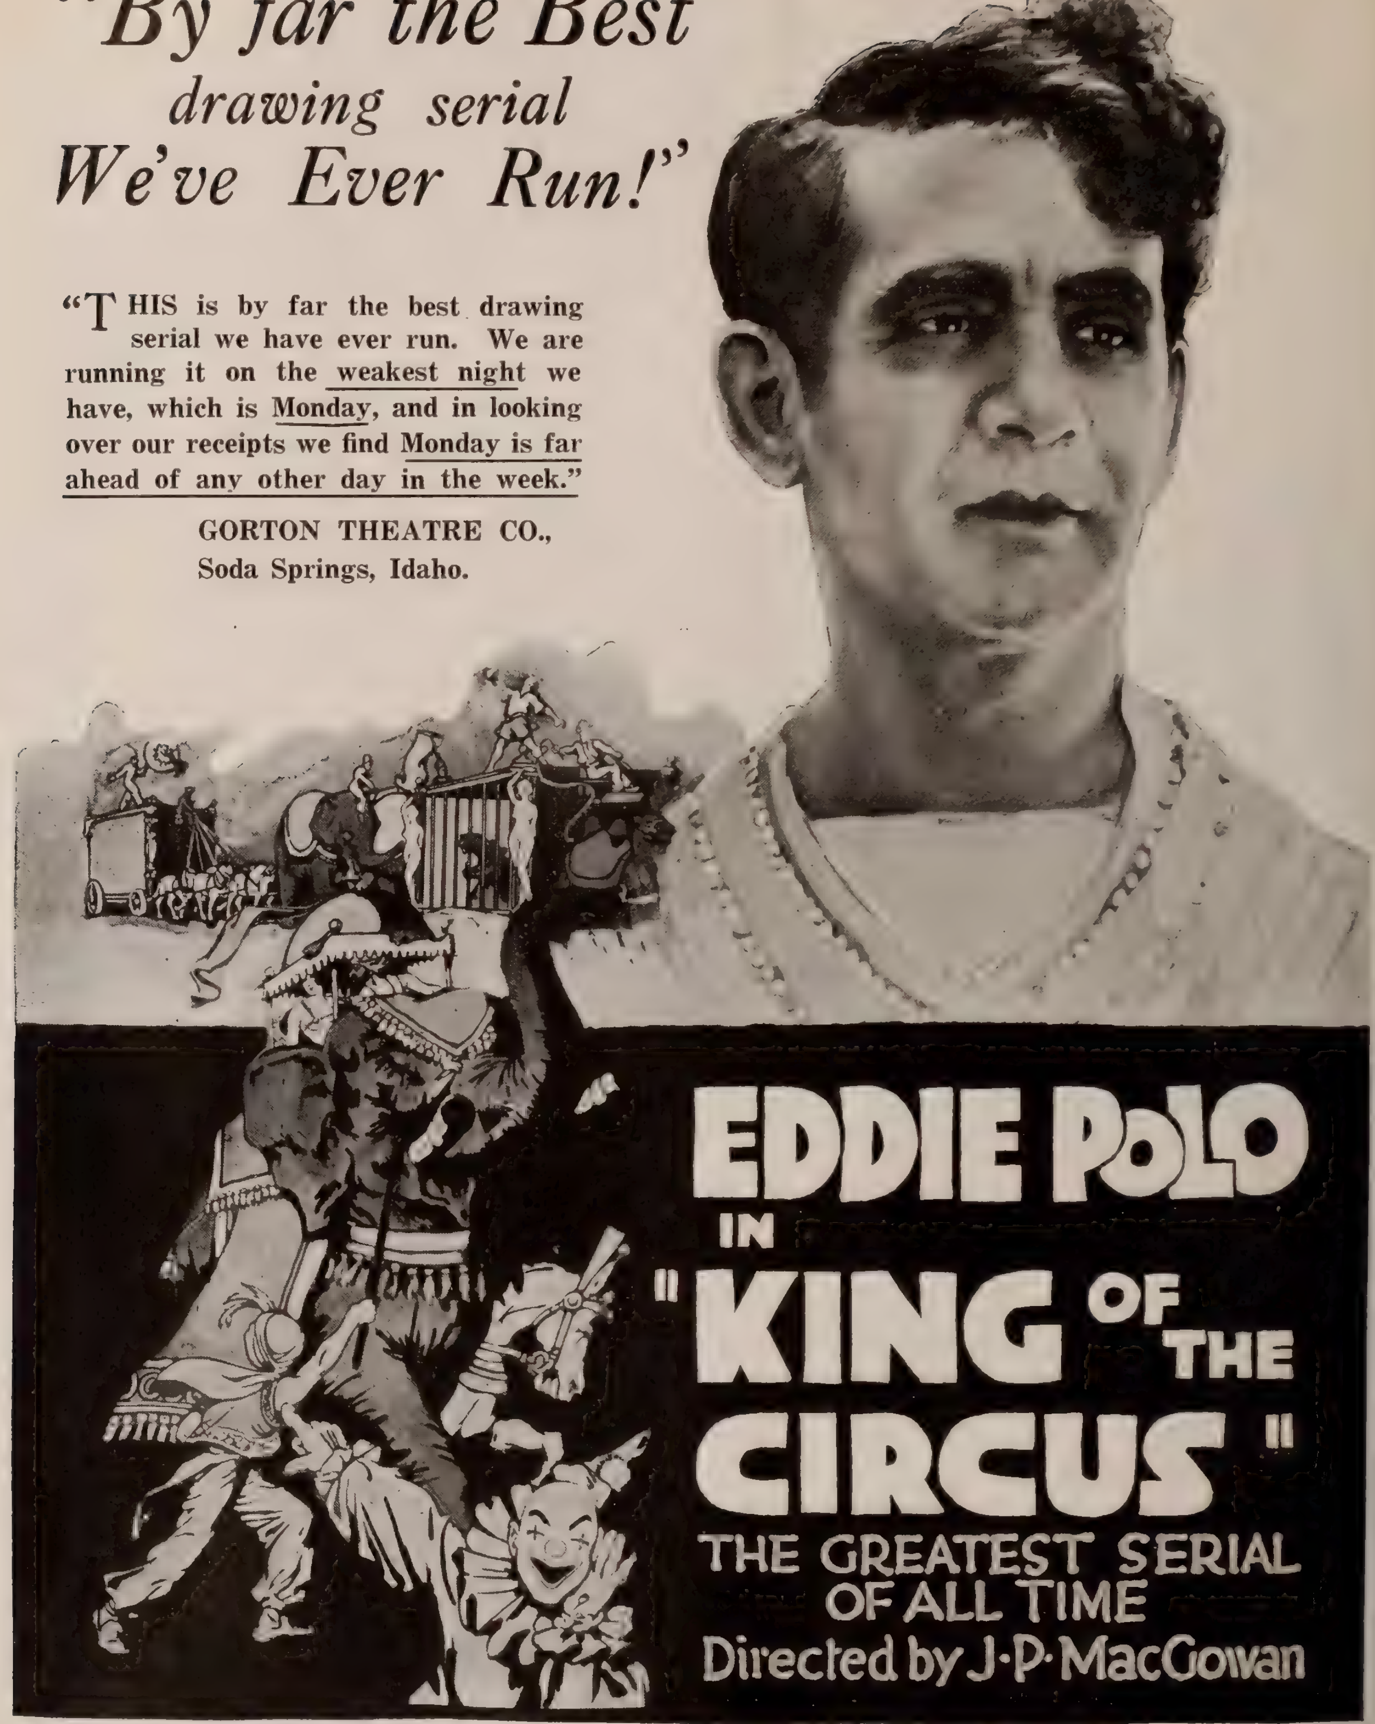
"CONGRATULATIONS! 'The Diamond Queen' is surely one wonderful serial. Eileen Sedgwick is very well liked and I can bet it's going to be Sedgwick serials often for the serial fans in Milwaukee."

A reproduction of an actual scene in this clean stirring serial.

"By far the Best drawing serial We've Ever Run!"

"THIS is by far the best drawing serial we have ever run. We are running it on the weakest night we have, which is Monday, and in looking over our receipts we find Monday is far ahead of any other day in the week."

GORTON THEATRE CO.,
Soda Springs, Idaho.



EDDIE POLO
IN
"KING OF THE CIRCUS"
THE GREATEST SERIAL OF ALL TIME
Directed by J·P·MacGowan

This is a reproduction of the five-color lithograph one-sheet, copies of which you can secure at your Universal Exchange.

Milkman Exploits Jewel Film in Ohio Territory

THE milkman was used to acquaint the residents of many Ohio cities that "Outside The Law," the Universal-Jewel photoplay was coming to town. Lowell Cash, Universal's exploitation man in the Ohio territory arranged for "Outside The Law" advertising matter to go into the homes with the milkman every morning.

The stunt was first worked in Lima, Ohio, where "Outside The Law," Priscilla Dean's new Universal-Jewel was shown at the Lyric Theatre. Cash had a run of hand-bills printed, worded somewhat as follows:

If you do not drink fresh milk daily you are
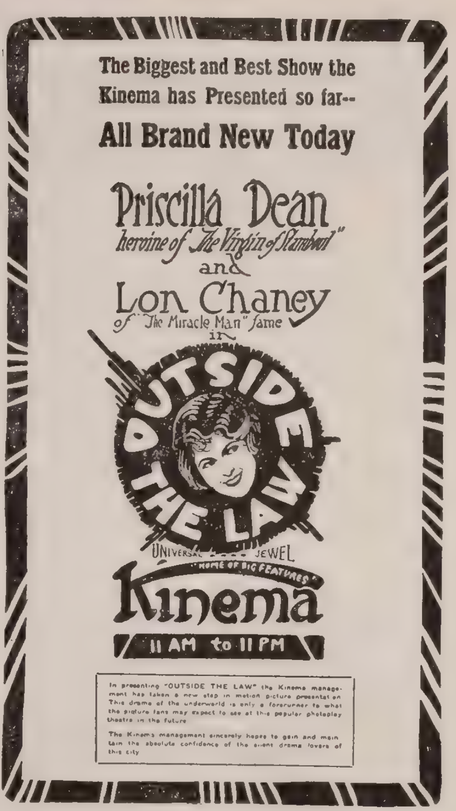
OUTSIDE THE LAW
Of Good Health
For Health—The White Mountain
Dairy Company
For Recreation—See Priscilla Dean
In "Outside The Law" at the
Lyric Theatre

These handbills were distributed by the milkmen on the various routes of the dairy company, and proved an innovation in advertising in the Ohio city. Since then, Cash has duplicated the stunt in Elyria, O., for the American Theatre, and for the Lyric Theatre in Mt. Clemens, Mich., and the Wallace Theatre, Wooster, O.

Reports from the American Theatre indicate the picture went over big in that city, and that it was greatly helped by exploitation. Besides the milk-bottle stunt, the Elyria Chronicle-Telegraph ran the Priscilla Dean tam-o-shanter contest used so successfully in other cities with "Outside The Law." Together with the theatre management, Cash made a drive for window-displays, and obtained many valuable locations, tying up the name of the picture with advertising lines for the various stores.



In presenting "OUTSIDE THE LAW" the Kinema management has taken a new step in motion picture presentation. This drama of the underworld is only a forerunner to what the picture fans may expect to see at this popular photoplay theatre in the future.

The Kinema management sincerely hopes to gain and maintain the absolute confidence of the silent drama lovers of this city.

This ad was used in the Salt Lake City Telegram by the Kinema theatre and proved to be effective in announcing the coming of the Universal-Jewel starring Priscilla Dean.

Priscilla Dean Tam Stunt Put Over by Toledo Paper

PRISCILLA DEAN

THE Priscilla Dean Tam contest was successfully used by the Lima Daily News as a circulation booster in connection with the showing of "Outside The Law" in Lima, Ohio. The Toledo Daily Blade accompanied the showing of the picture at the Alhambra Theatre, Toledo, by an illustrated serial story of the picture, running six days, from copy and mats supplied by the Universal home office.

In addition to running the serial the Blade had a young woman impersonate "Silky Moll" and appear on the streets of that city wearing one of the Priscilla Dean Tams. Each day the reporter ran an account of her experiences with the eager women film fans who were looking for her with the mystic formula ready for instant use. This publicity and the local exploitation stunts caused all theatre records to be broken in those two cities.

Brooklyn, N. Y.
March 3, 1921.

Big U Film Exchange, Inc.,
1600 Broadway, New York.

No doubt you are interested to know how your production "OUTSIDE THE LAW" has gone over. All we can say is, that it opened up with a BANG.

We are glad to report that the opening day, Sunday, February 27th, has positively broken all records at our Stone Theatre notwithstanding the inclement weather.

We also beg to advise that we tried a novelty at our theatre of starting a midnight performance, and while it was doubtful in my mind as to the possibilities of it's being a success, yet to my surprise we had to stop selling tickets at this midnight performance. Today is the fifth day we are playing this picture and it is still going strong. We have two more days to play same and are confident from appearances that the other two days will come up to expectations.

This production has been acknowledged by our patrons as being one of the best seen by them for a long time.

Wishing you success with this production and hoping for a continuance of more like this one, we are

Universally yours,
STONE THEATRE,
Samuel Ruizler, General Manager.

"No other series could maint

"PLAY

FEA

BRO

One Big Laugh Every week
Booked thru Universal

CENTURY

in Century's uniform excellence"

—Regent Photoplay Co., Edmonton, Alta.

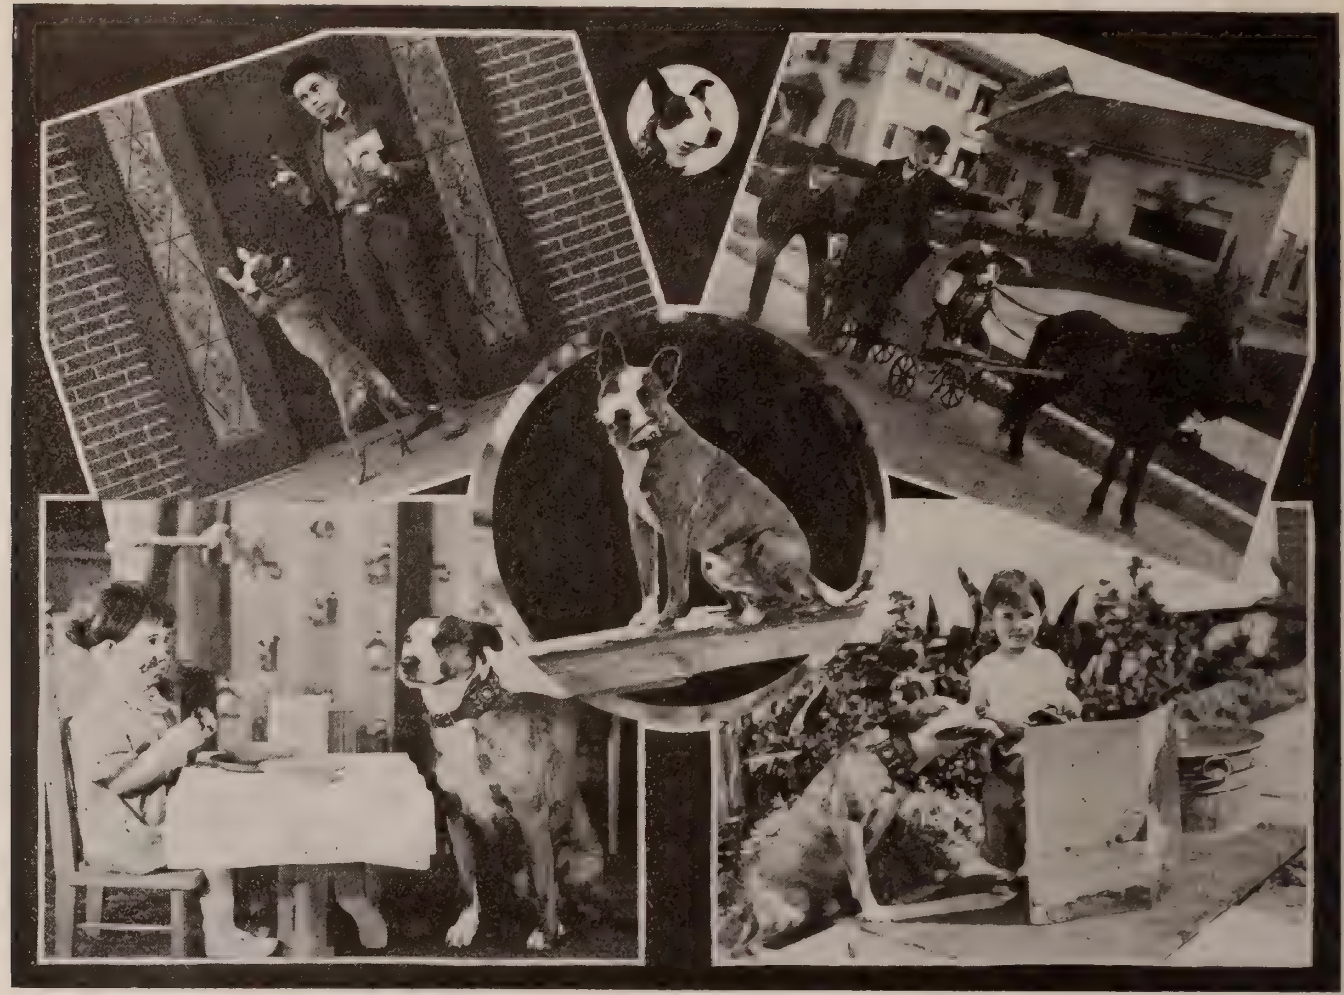
ATES"

RING

NIE

COMEDIES



"Brownie," the Century Wonder Dog, shown with his supporting cast in some of his latest comedy successes.

Most Popular Animal Actor in Films

LEADING a dog's life is not hard at all for "Brownie," the Wonder Dog, who is the highest paid animal player under contract by the Century Film Corporation in Hollywood, Cal. His popularity with all classes of people is due to the fine type of comedies written for the canine screen star. His acting always rings true and there are enough humorous situations in his pictures to please the most critical.

No better comedies were ever filmed than the present two-reelers ready for release through the Universal Film Exchanges, Inc. The photographs shown on this page, grouped around a picture of "Brownie," were taken from his latest fun reels.

The one in the upper left hand corner shows the Wonder Dog helping Harry Sweet find the girl in the case in their film picture, "Tough Luck," and the photograph in the upper right hand corner shows "Brownie" driving the dog ambulance in "The Dog Doctor." Right below this is a reproduction of a scene in "Playmates" and on the opposite side one from "Pal's," two films which are shortly to be released.

These last two pictures are the funniest ever presented to motion picture audiences and there is not one feature in the pictures which will not produce a laugh.

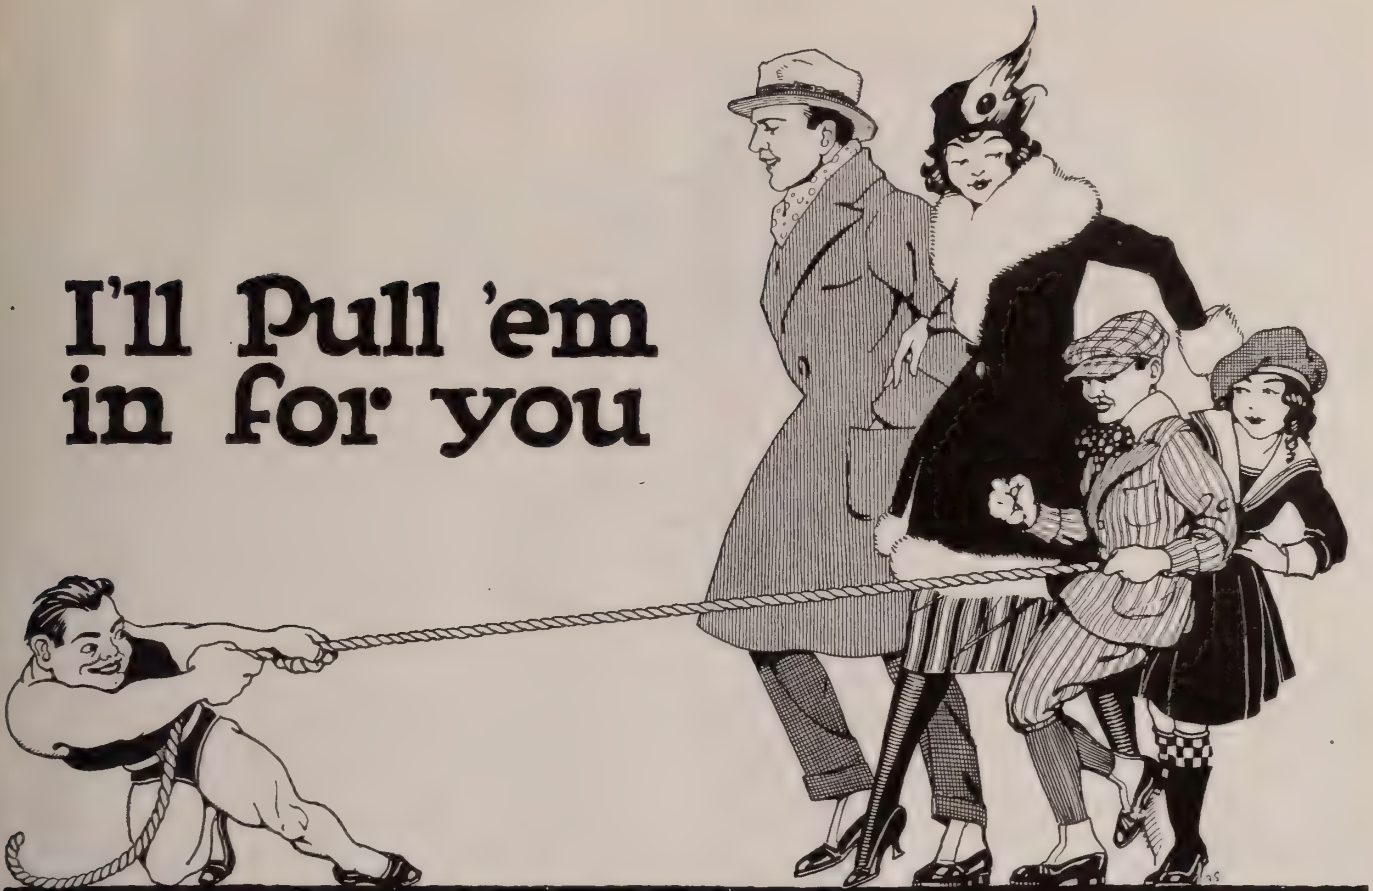
"Brownie," who is a mixture of Bull Terrier and Fox Terrier is now four years old. Through his owner Charles Gee, he has just signed a new contract with the Century Company for two years. He is a real veteran motion picture actor and has never been on the stage except for one occasion when he made a personal appearance at the Rialto theatre in Los Angeles.

In his latest comedies the Wonder Dog is capably supported by a new screen baby, two years old.

The child is called Baby Peggy and has been filmed in a series of ingenious and highly amusing "kid" stunts, which are said to be entirely natural and yet in keeping with the story of the comedy. The picture was directed by Tom Buckingham.

After seeing the first run of "Pals," Mr. Julius Stern, president of the Century Corporation, immediately made arrangements to put Baby Peggy on the Century payroll for future "Brownie" comedies. "Brownie" recently was signed by Century for several years, at a salary figure which would make many human screen players envious.

Baby Peggy is not the same youngster that played with "Brownie" in his previous Century comedy, "The Kid's Pal," which is to be released April 25. "The Kid's Pal" cast included a youngster several years older than Baby Peggy.



I'll Pull 'em in for you

I'M just as important to any theatre as the feature—sometimes even more so. Lots of times folks pass their money over that little ole glass plate in the B. O. just to see me in any one or all of my specialities. Maybe you don't think it modest to brag, but how can you blame me when you know that I'm Century Comedies, Star Comedies, two-reel Westerns, International News, Joe Martin Comedies and a host of lesser length novelties? Yes siree, you can bet I'll pull 'em in for you—and don't you forget it. Just give me a try-out and you'll find that Universal Shorty is your darned good friend.

Yours two-reely,

Shorty

The little Giant

UNIVERSAL
SHORT STUFF

Return trail brings large reward and "Miss Pat" to lone cowpuncher. See—

"Crossed Clues"

Dick	Hoot Gibson
Pat	Marcella Pershing
Her Mother	Dorothy Oliver
Collins (Banker)	William Welsh
Jenkins	John Judd

DICK McGUIRE is a member of the Cross K outfit and is in love with "Miss Pat," the little "boss," daughter of the owner. Pat is wearing Dick's ring, but Dick has yet to interview the "Old Man" regarding his sentiments. This interview causes Dick considerable uneasiness and he contrives to get the opinion of the outfit as to the best method of procedure.

He has the misfortune of mistaking the trimmings on Pat's hat for rabbit's ears and takes a shot at them. Pat is considerably peeved but finally forgives him and accompanies him to the house, waiting outside while he interviews her father.

After the Strays

Dick follows the plan prescribed by one of the punchers, but it miscarries. The "Old Man" leaves no doubt as to his sentiments. "Show me one thousand dollars of yer own an' I'll give you my answer." Dick is confounded. The "Old Man" adds to Dick's discomfort as he adds, "In the meantime, you'd better hike out to the desert an' round up them strays afore they git lost." Dick is crushed and rejoins Pat.

Her father's words have made Pat thoughtful. She tells Dick her father is right—that he will have to show her he can do something besides shooting rabbits before they can marry. She returns his ring and Dick feels his cup of bitterness is brimming over.

While Dick is out on the desert an outlaw holds up the "Old Man" and steals the monthly payroll. Pat discovers her father locked in a closet and starts the outfit after the robber.

Receives Double Reward

The outlaw comes upon Dick in a gully looking for some strays and orders him to throw up his hands. In the fight which follows the outlaw manages to escape.

When Dick learns from the posse of the robbery and the reward offered for the return of the money he is more gloomy than ever and believes fate is against him. But suddenly things begin to brighten as he sees the outlaw, whose escape has been cut off by part of the posse returning in his direction. He catches him with his lasso and as his reward gets the girl with her father's consent and blessing.

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode 15

"In the Dragon's Claw"

CAST:

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Benson	Al Smith
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Zimba	Al Smith
Aline Earle	Josephine Scott

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

REALIZING that Benson will go through mercilessly with the torture unless she talks, Doris begs him for more time to consider and Benson desists, agreeing to give her one last chance for reconsideration.

In his secret, underground laboratory, Prof. Martin Harvey collapses, his nerves shattered by overwork and anxiety over Doris. Tim vainly tries to find trace of Doris. She is still missing.

Bruce, in trying to rescue Doris from the mysterious place where she is held captive, is ambushed and is thrown into the same cell with Zimba, the African half-caste. They see Aline Earle and Kelly through the bars of their window and attract their attention.

Benson is prevented from torturing Doris by the "silent owner" who enters unobserved and fells the detective with his fist. In the richly draped den of the oriental Doris swoons when the man attempts to attack her.

Battle On Roof-top

Aline and Kelly help Bruce and Zimba to escape from the room to the roof of the house where a fierce battle is begun with the Chinese guards of the place—the horde that seeks to prevent them from fighting their way down to rescue Doris. Aline covers the Chinese group on the roof with a gun, telling Bruce and the others to go to Doris—that she (Aline) will be able to take care of herself and get out of the mix all right. Bruce, Zimba and Kelly battle their way step by step down through two floors to the den where the "silent owner," who, now that Doris revives, is about to renew his attempt to attack her when he hears the struggle and looks up to meet the grim eyes of the advancing trio—Bruce, Zimba and Kelly. Seizing a long, wicked knife from the folds of the curtained bed, the "silent owner" suddenly hurls the blade directly at Bruce.

International News

No. 27

Oxford, England.—Queen Mary gets college degree. Her Majesty appears in cap and gown at famous University.

San Francisco, Cal.—Christianity in Chinatown. Almond-eyed children in religious procession show they have abandoned the cities of the Orient.

Valence, France.—President Millerand inspects French towns. Finds many signs of renewed prosperity on tour of provinces. (Omit Chicago.)

Westminster, London.—Chicago girl weds British Naval hero. Miss Gladys High, daughter of well-known banker, becomes bride of Commander Burney.

In the Public Eye.—Professor Albert Einstein, Zionist leader and world-famous scientist pays us a visit. —New York City.

Bowie, Md.—Thrilling races open eastern turf season. Huge crowds welcome riders in highly contested inaugural handicap.

Dusseldorf, Germany.—Allies enforcing Treaty penalties. New pictures of the British and French armies in seized Rhineland provinces.

Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill.—Three dare-devils leap from same plane, 2500 feet in the clouds.

Santiago, Dominican Republic.—Protest parade greets Navy Chief. Santa Domingo natives welcome Secretary Denby but voice long standing complaint.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring

HARRY CAREY

“West Is West”
“Hearts Up!”
“ ‘If Only Jim”
“The Freeze Out”

Starring

FRANK MAYO

“The Mariage Pit”
“Honor Bound”
“Tiger True”
“Colorado”
“The Magnificent Brute”

Starring

LYONS-MORAN

“La La Lucille”
“Fixed By George”
“A Shocking Night”

Starring

EDITH ROBERTS

“White Youth”
“The Fire Cat”
“The Unknown Wife”

Starring

CARMEL MYERS

“The Gilded Dream”
“Beautifully Trimmed”
“The Mad Marriage”
“The Dangerous Moment”

Starring

EVA NOVAK

“Wanted At Headquarters”
“The Torrent”
“Society Secrets”
“The Smart Sex”

Starring

GLADYS WALTON

“Risky Business’”
“Rich Girl, Poor Girl”
“All Dolled Up”
“Desperate Youth”

Starring

“BREEZY EASON”

“The Big Adventure”

Jewels

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

“The Virgin Of Stamboul”
“Outside The Law”

“Once To Every Woman”
(with Dorothy Phillips)

“Blind Husbands”
“The Devil’s Passkey”
“Shipwrecked Among Cannibals”
“The Great Air Robbery”
“The Breath Of The Gods”
(with Tsuru Aoki)
“Under Crimson Skies”
(with Elmo Lincoln)
“Blue Sunday”
(With Lyons and Moran)

Starring

JOE MARTIN

(Two Reels)

“No Monkey Business”
“A Monkey Hero”

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring

HOOT GIBSON

“Sweet Rvenge”
“Kickaroo”
“Out O’ Luck”
“The Cactus Kid”
“Who Was The Man?”
“Crossed Clues”

Starring

JACK PERRIN

“The Trigger Trail”
“Big Bob”
“The Midnight Raiders”
“The Knockout Man”
“The Guilty Trail”

Serials

Starring

EDDIE POLO

“The Vanishing Dagger”
“King Of The Circus”

Starring

EILEEN SEDGWICK

“The Great Radium Mystery”
“The Diamond Queen”

Starring

ELMO LINCOLN

“Elmo, The Fearless”
“The Flaming Disk”

Starring

MARIE WALCAMP

“The Dragon’s Net”

Starring

ART ACORD

“The White Horseman”

Two Reel Century Comedies

“Puppy Love”
“Fresh From The Farm”
“Leaping Lions and Jailbirds”
“Vamps and Scamps”
“Her Circus Man”
“The Dog Doctor”
“Seeing Is Believing”
“Tough Luck”
“Harem-Skarem”
“On With The Show”
“The Kid’s Pal”

One Reel Star Comedies

“Simple and Sweet”
“Milk and Yeggs”
“Won: One Flivver”
“A Waiting Maid”
“Bring On The Groom”
“Twin Husbands”
“When Eve Fell”
“Who Kissed Me?”
“Movie-Struck”
“Short and Sweet”
“Oh, Tessie!”

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

Who was Tessie? And He was such a nice boy!

"Oh, Tessie!"

One-reel Star Comedy

Featuring
BILLY FLETCHER

BILLY was father's choice but he wasn't in the race at all after mother's votes were counted. Mother's idea of the ideal, obedient son-in-law wore horn-rimmed glasses, a worried look and conservative clothes.

Billy and his rival managed to call at the same time on many occasions, and they would let Billy receive the girl's attentions. In fact they did not know the other fellow was on earth until mother changed all this and ordered Billy not to see her daughter again.

Father sees a picture of Tessie, of the Merry Widow company, and, bringing the photograph home puts it in Clarence's pocket. When he puts on his coat the picture drops out onto the floor and mother sends him away. In the meantime Billy runs off with the girl and they are married.

"Brownie" Saves His Pal From Kidnapper

"The Kid's Pal"

Two-Reel Century Comedy

Featuring
"BROWNIE," THE WONDER DOG

"BROWNIE" is the chum and constant companion of the youngest member of the household, who is regarded as likely Presidential timber. In addition to playing with the baby, the Wonder Dog sets the table for him and serves the food.

While "Brownie" is away "The Weasel," who is in the neighborhood in search of wet goods, carries off the baby and hides him in the hay mow. The baby's big sister, who has missed "The Kid," goes in search of him.

She encounters "The Weasel" who chases her into the barn and locks the door. He then goes back to where he hid the baby, but is seen by the dog who rescues his little chum and then by a wonderful feat succeeds in opening the barn door and freeing the girl. After returning the baby safely "Brownie" chases the kidnapper away from the premises.

"The White Horseman"

Episode 7

"A Leap for Life"

CAST:

Allen	Art Acord
Jean	Iva Forrester
Spider	Hank Bell
Zona	Beatrice Dominguez
Ramsey	Duke R. Lee

THE Mummy Man realizes the danger that threatens the three people imprisoned in the Spider's shack and rides there to try to effect their escape. The Spider and his gang see him and capture him. They are about to unmask him when Allen, who has escaped from the burning building carrying Jean in his arms sees them and opens fire on him.

They let go of the Mummy Man to return Allen's fire and he escapes. Allen and Jean ride away from the scene on a couple of the outlaw's horses pursued by the remainder of the gang.

ART ACORD
UNIVERSAL

In the meantime Ramsey is rescued from the burning shack by the Mummy Man. Ramsey goes to Jean's room at the hotel. Zona gets there shortly after to tell Jean of Allen's peril. Ramsey captures her and is trying to force the bracelet from her when Allen escapes from the gang and arrives at the hotel where he supposes Jean is by this time.

Ramsey shoves Zona into a closet and when Allen enters the room disclaims all knowledge of any of the characters.

While they are talking, the Spider, whose men have captured Jean, throws a note in through the window telling Allen that if he wants to save Jean he must bring the bracelet to an abandoned oil well on the edge of town.

Swung From the Derrick

Allen gets to the oil well and succeeds by a ruse in getting Jean out of the pump house where she is held prisoner and up on the derrick. Ramsey arrives and calls the outlaws' attention to it and a fight follows, in which Allen is beaten and he and Jean left swinging in the top of the derrick tied to a rope.

Zona goes to the treasure caves where the Mummy Man appears and accusing her of betraying her friends in trouble, orders her to ride to town for help. She obeys and leads a posse to the oil well. Leaving the posse in the brush she rides to the well alone and showing the outlaws the bracelet, gets them to chase after her so she can lead them into the sheriff's ambush.

Ramsey does not follow but slips inside the pump house and throwing the friction lever on the winch on which is wound the rope that holds Allen and Jean in the top of the derrick drops them down apparently to their death below.

International News

No. 28

Near Afiun, Syria, Asia Minor.—Turks and Greeks battle for Syria. Mustapha Kemal, Nationalist leader, masses cavalry for counter-attack on Constantine's army.

New York City.—Mayor Hylan greets Zionist leaders. Huge throng joins in welcome to noted scientists working for a Jewish Homeland.

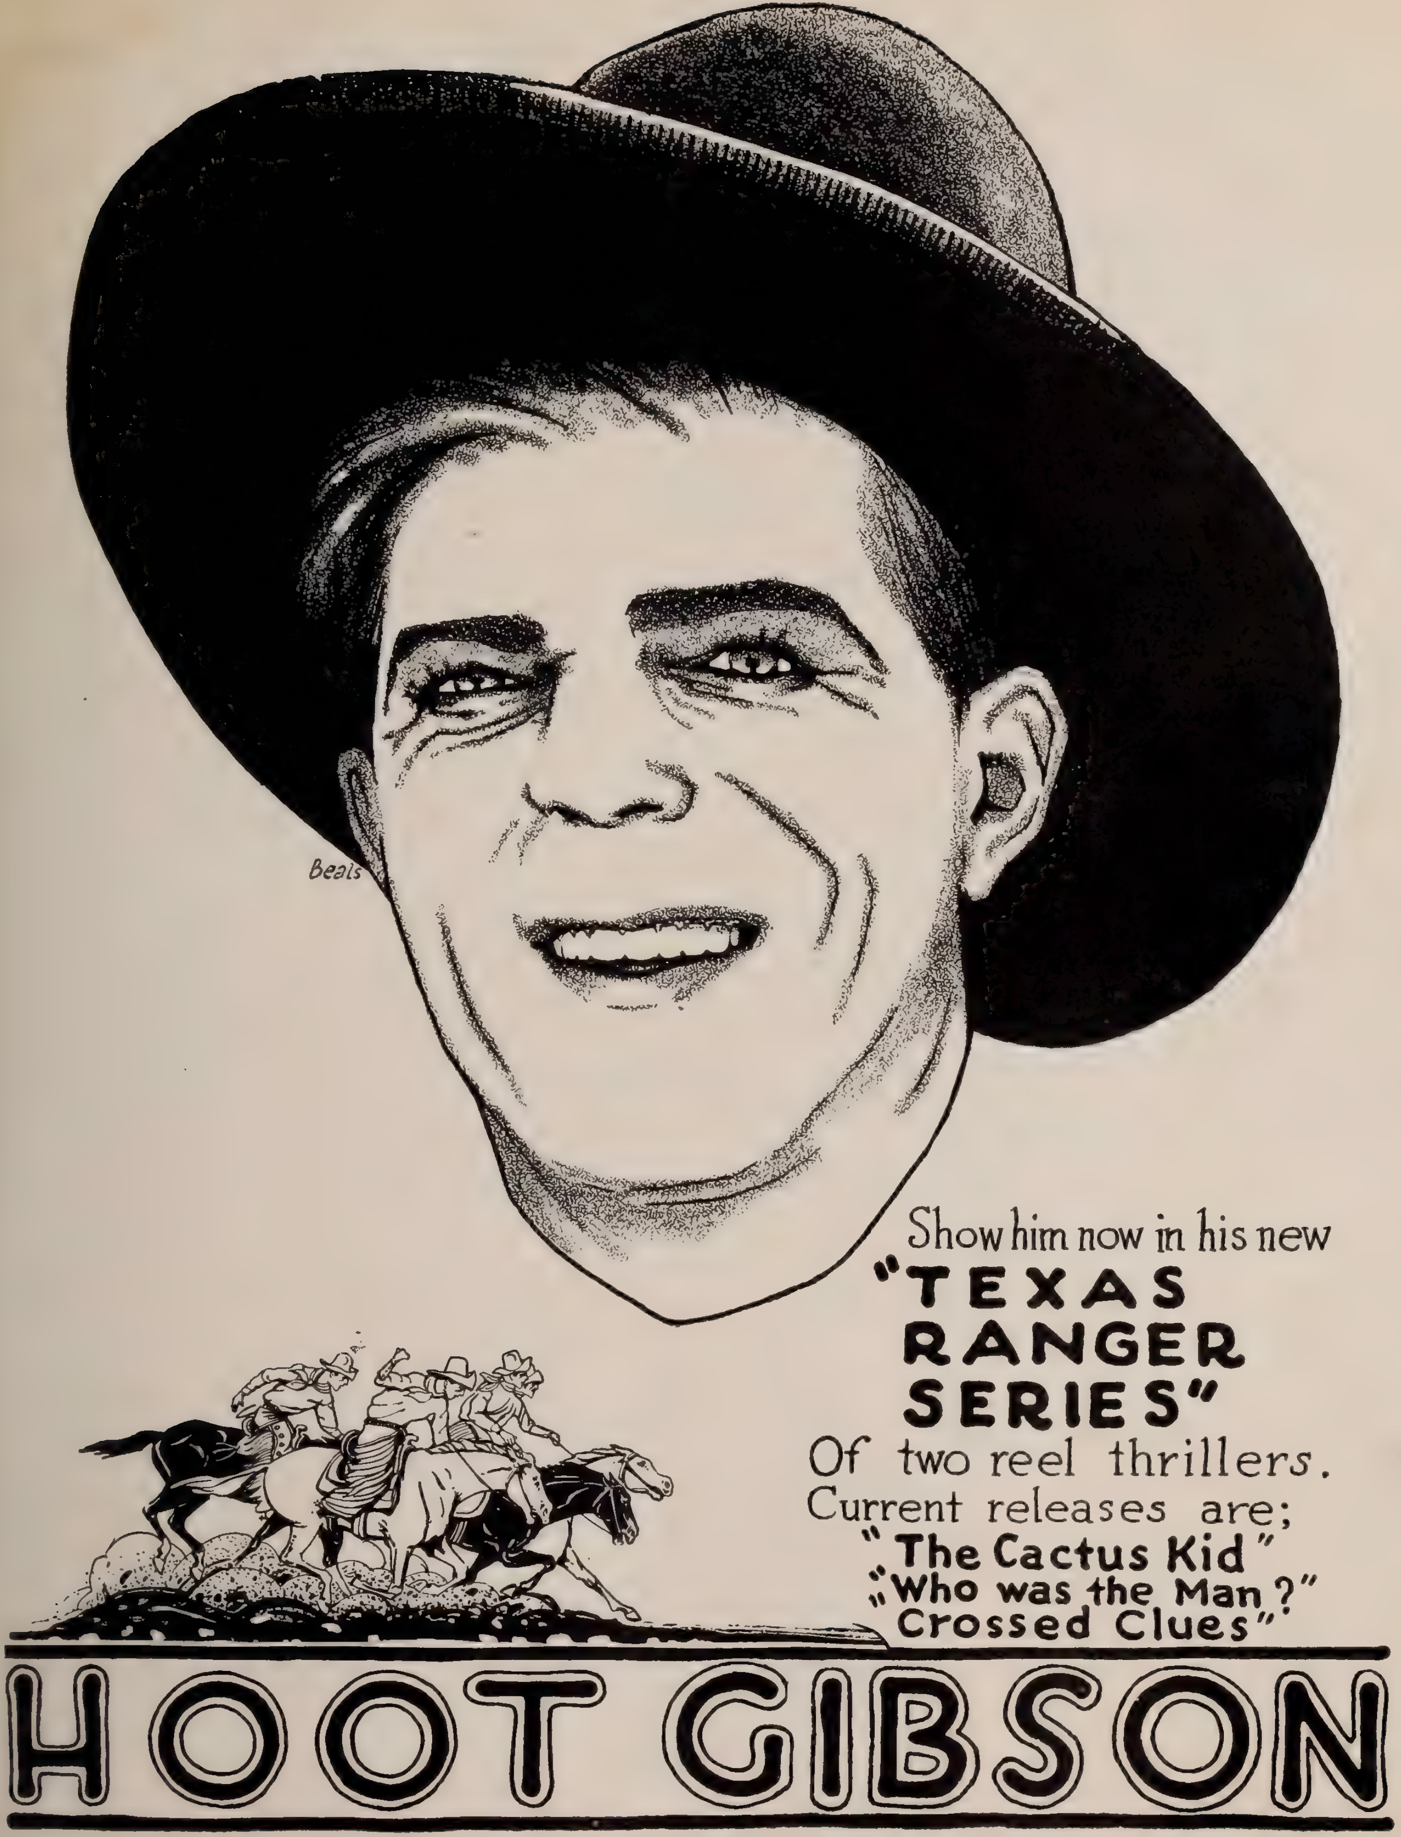
Santa Rost, Cal.—Luther Burbank leads thousands of children in honoring war heroes.

New York City.—College oarsmen in Spring training. Candidates for college crew put through hard workouts as balmy weather arrives.

Albany, N. Y.—Noted men protest film censorship. Delegation at Albany attacks proposed measure as direct assault on freedom.

Sub-title.—D. W. Griffith, famous director, and Rex Beach, noted author (right) meet Charles F. Donohue, Democratic Assembly leader and Senator Clayton R. Lusk. Mr. Beach denounces State film censorship as an expression of bigotry caluclated to multiply the evils it seeks to cure. "It fills me with shame that an American citizen should have to plead again for the right of free speech," says Mr. Griffit.

Aintree, England.—Break-neck riding in grand steeplechase. Thousands see English turf season's greatest event—(Watch 'em flop!)



Show him now in his new

"TEXAS RANGER SERIES"

Of two reel thrillers.

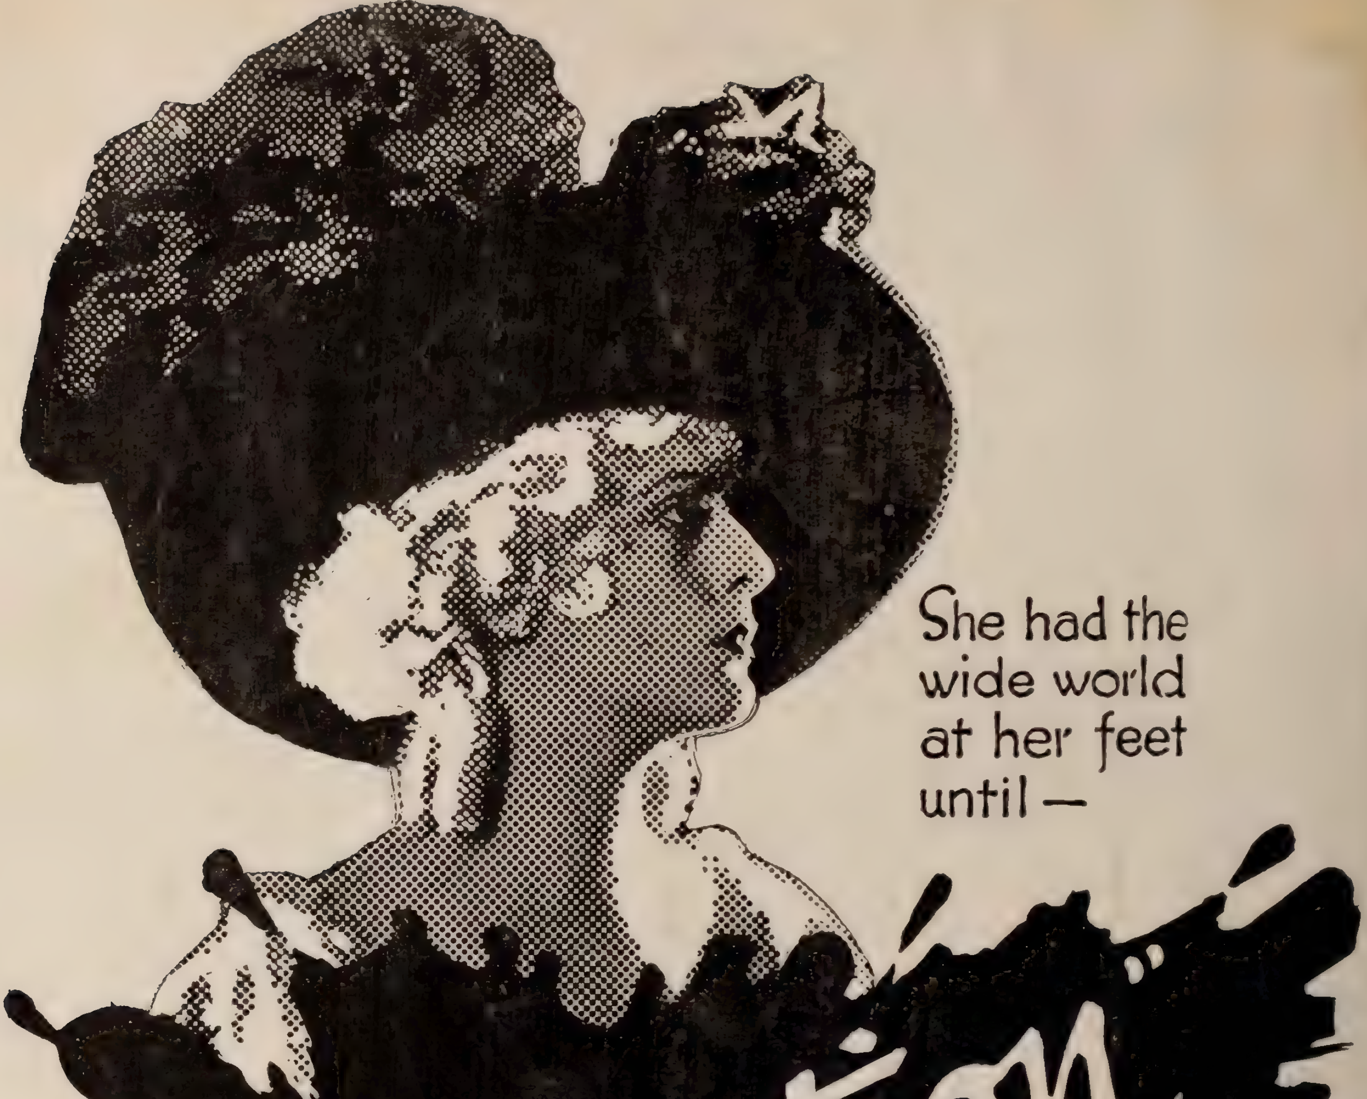
Current releases are;

"The Cactus Kid"

"Who was the Man?"

"Crossed Clues"

HOOT GIBSON

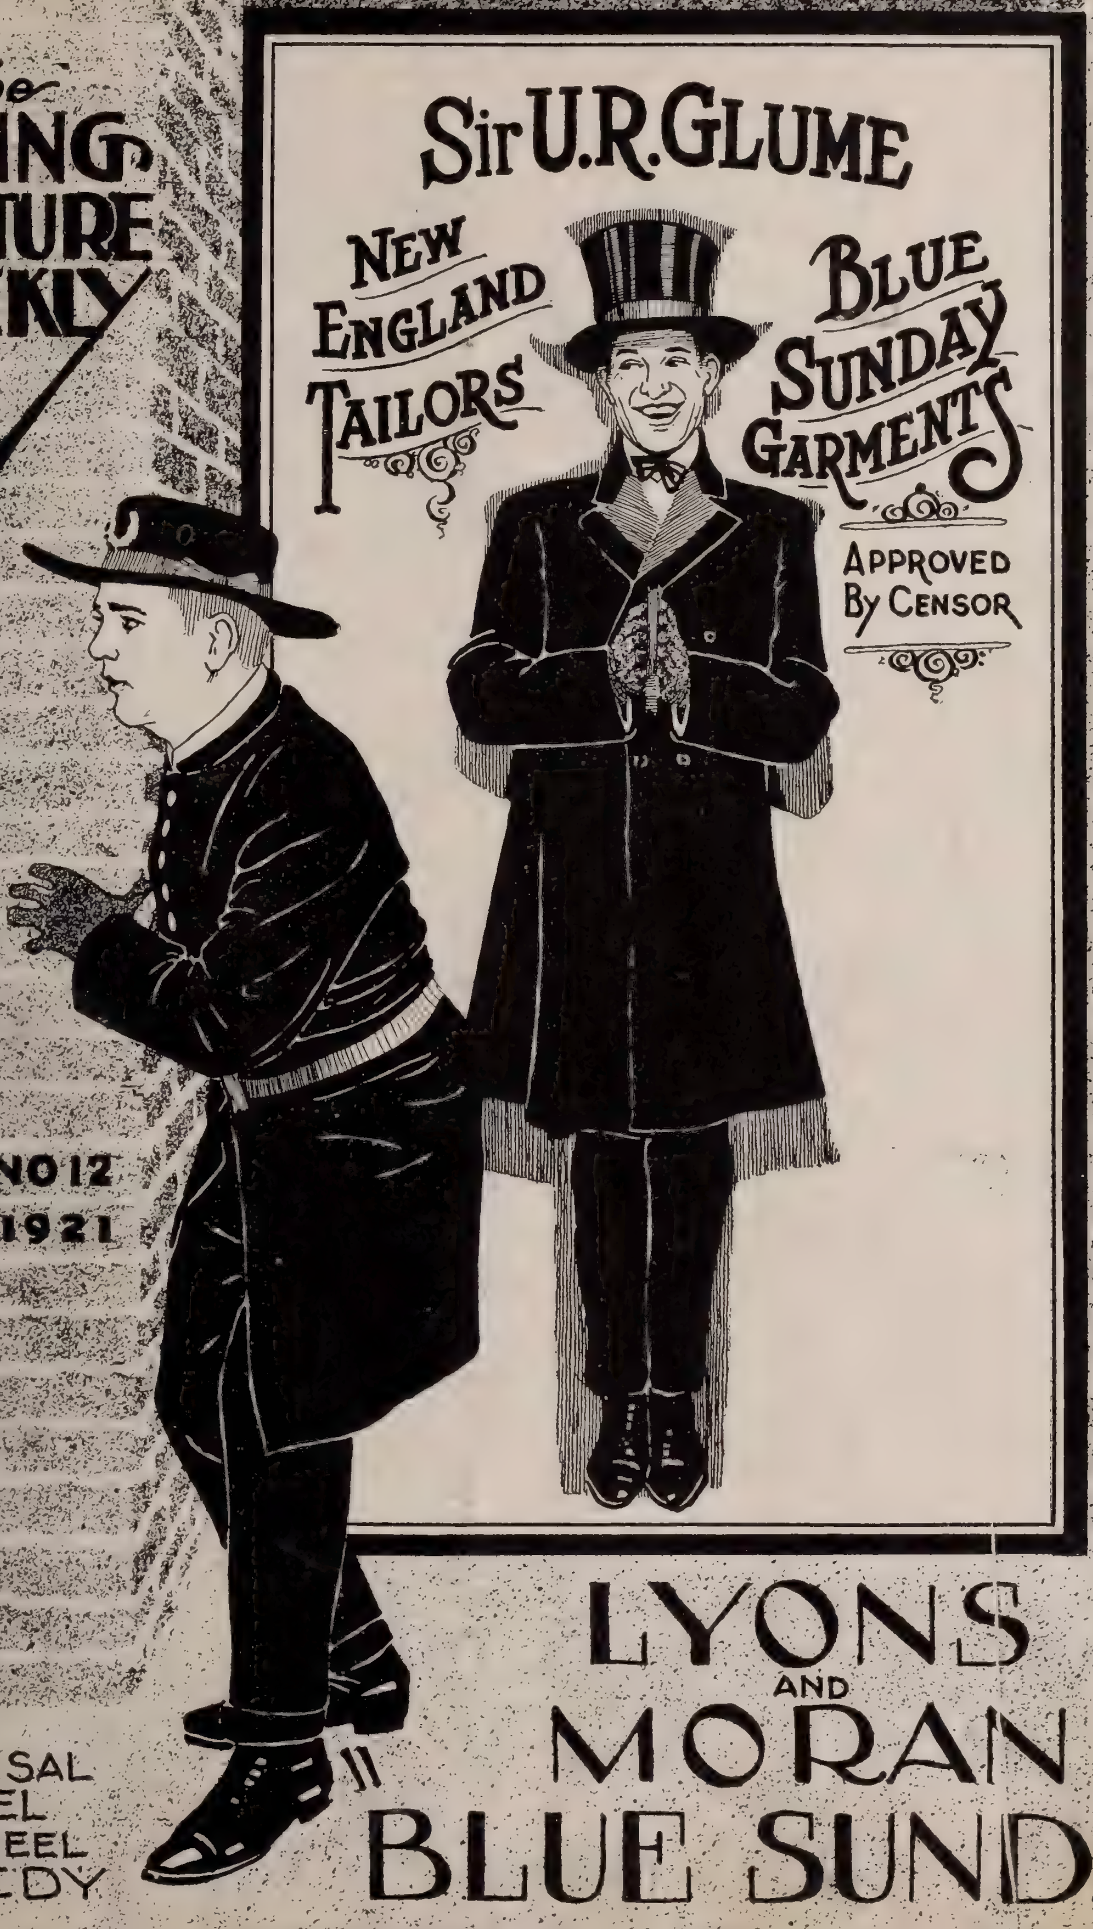


She had the wide world at her feet until—
"Reputation"

The above is an enlargement of the top of one of the two-column news ads for Priscilla Dean's newest Universal-Jewel—made by a new process developed by Universal for better newspaper reproduction. When reduced to two-column size, the dots in the face will blend into a beautiful soft gray.

Your newspaper will reduce this for you to any size desired for pre-showing use as a Teaser. Many others in Campaign Book. Watch your mails for it.

The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY



Sir U.R. GLUME
NEW ENGLAND TAILORS
BLUE SUNDAY GARMENTS
APPROVED BY CENSOR

VOL 13 NO 12
MAY 7 1921

UNIVERSAL
JEWEL
TWO REEL
COMEDY

LYONS AND MORAN in "BLUE SUNDAY"

Coming!

The strange adventures of a beautiful Girl and a Dog with two natures in the frozen silences of the North, where the passions of Men know no Laws

"WOLVES OF THE NORTH"

HERE'S a great combination that's bound to pull the dollars for you—a marvelous outdoor picture of the frozen north with a beautiful woman and a wonderful dog in it. Added is a red-blooded story packed with rousing action amid the strangest of strange scenes, all climaxed by a mighty avalanche that will sweep your people out of their seats. All this is in the Posters and Newspaper Advertisements and you can bank on S. R. O. and a more-than-satisfied audience. It's a long time since we gave you a big, smashing drama of the North and you'll find your patrons will eat it up! Don't forget the name—"WOLVES OF THE NORTH"—soon to be released.

STARRING

EVA NOVAK

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION DIRECTED BY NORMAN DAWN

Voluntary Censorship

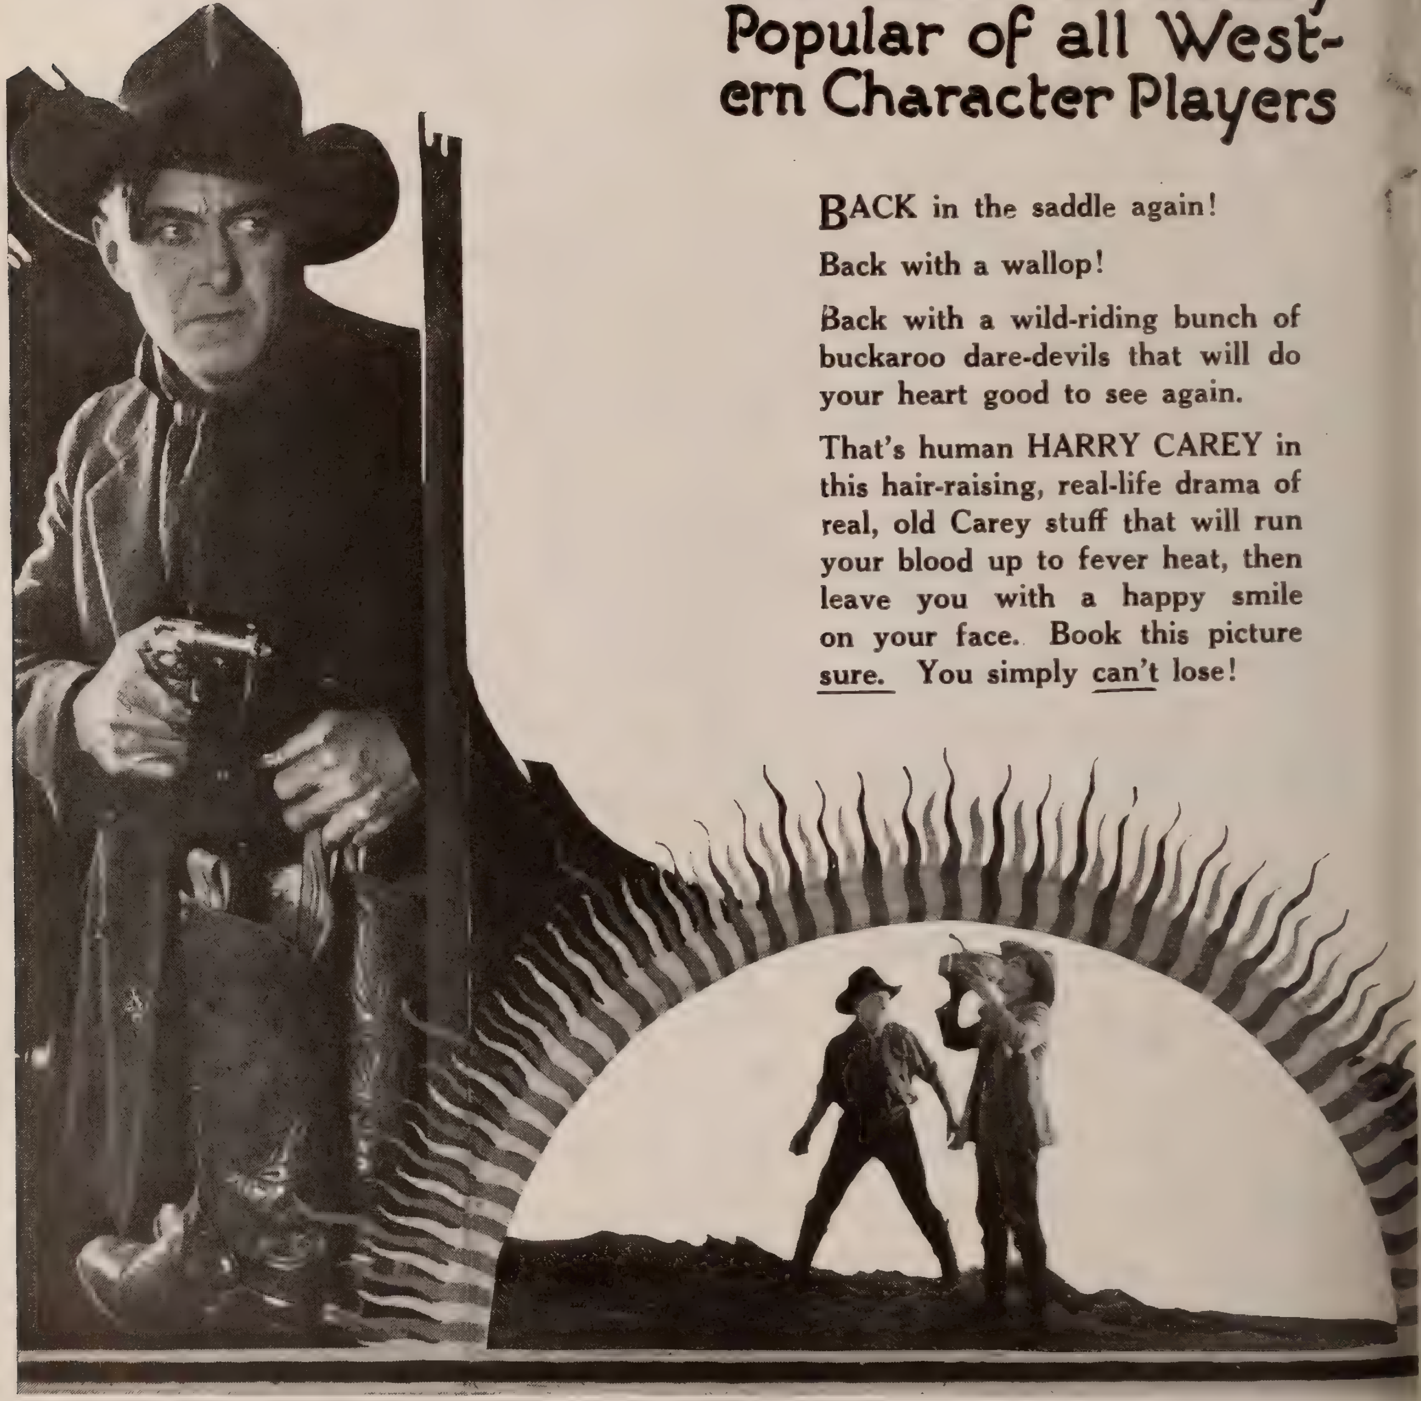
The motion picture interests of New York State have formally asked Governor Miller to veto the Lusk-Clayton bill recently passed by the New York State Legislature appropriating $70,000 a year for the services of a board of motion picture censors. The Industry in addition has submitted a code of practice whereby voluntary censorship would be exercised over all films produced or distributed in this State. The New York EveningMail in the following editorial favors the adoption of this plan.

"CERTAINLY it would seem well worth while to give them this chance of saving the state $70,000 a year. The inadequacy of censorship to perform what is expected of it has been notorious wherever it has been tried. It leads to all sorts of petty persecutions, to the setting up of ridiculous and often inconsistent standards and to colossal opportunities for graft.

"There are no absolute standards by which a censorship can be enforced. The whim of one year's board may be entirely different from those of another year's. In morals as elsewhere it is true that what is one man's meat is another man's poison. No picture that tries to deal with any problem of life in a living way will be sure of production under a censorship."

HARRY CAREY

King of the Gallopers, the Most Universally Popular of all Western Character Players



BACK in the saddle again!

Back with a wallop!

Back with a wild-riding bunch of buckaroo dare-devils that will do your heart good to see again.

That's human HARRY CAREY in this hair-raising, real-life drama of real, old Carey stuff that will run your blood up to fever heat, then leave you with a happy smile on your face. Book this picture sure. You simply can't lose!

n "The WALLOP"

Made by JACK FORD from a great story by EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES

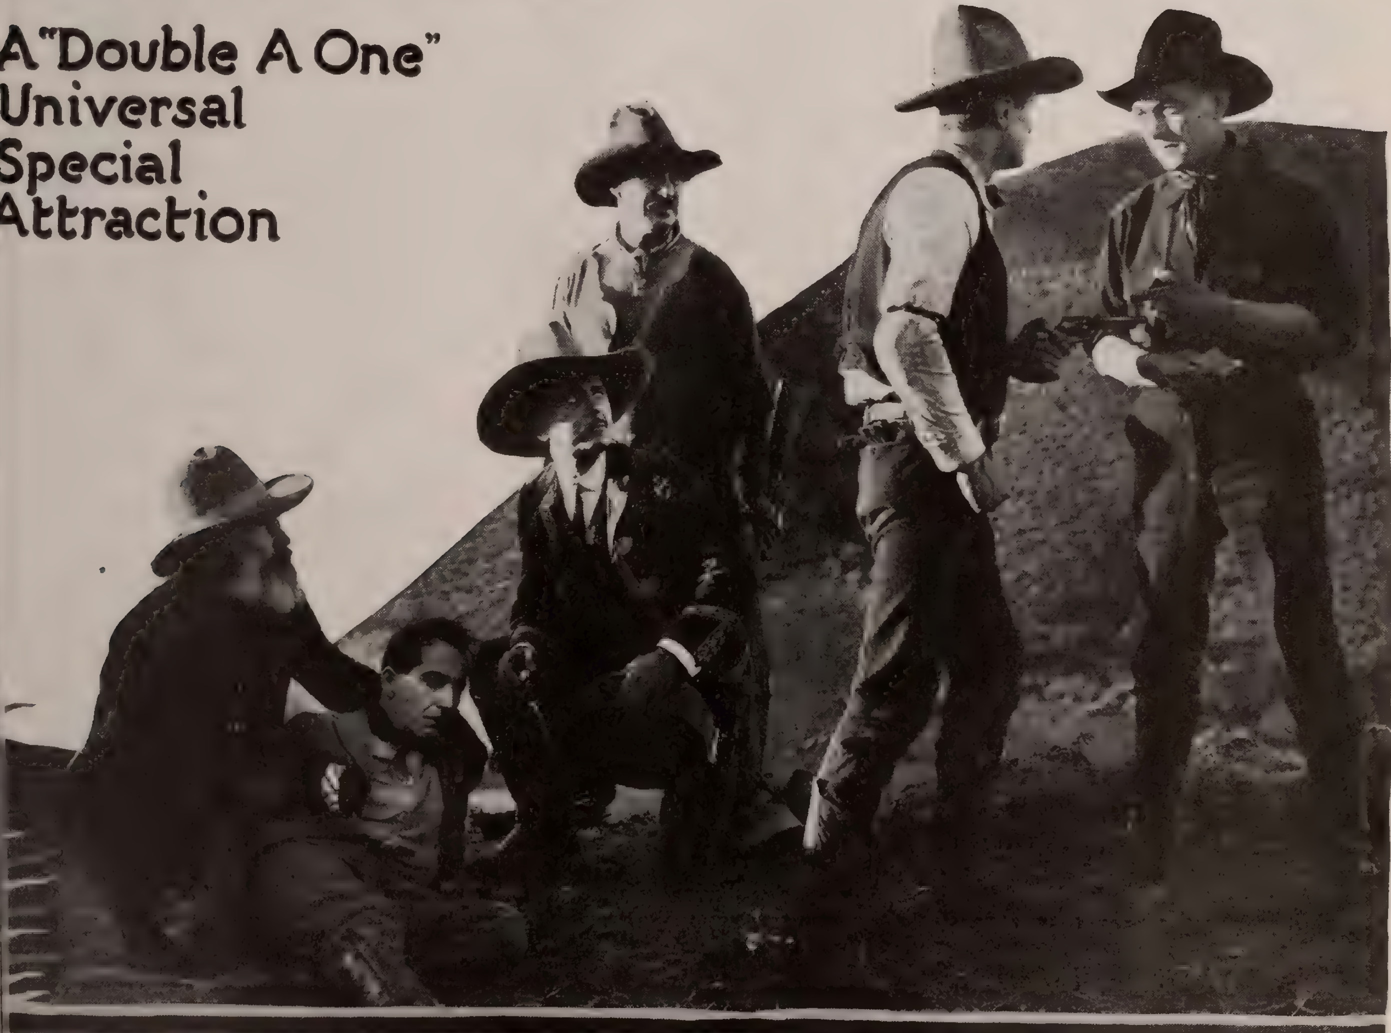
A "Double A One"
Universal
Special
Attraction



Service Page for "The Wallop"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"The Wallop."

STAR—Harry Carey.

PREVIOUS HITS—"A Gun-fighting Gentleman," "Overland Red," "Marked Men," "Bullet-proof," " 'If Only' Jim," etc.

DIRECTED BY—Jack Ford.

STORY BY—Eugene Manlove Rhodes.

SCENARIO BY—George C. Hull.

SUPPORTING CAST—Mignonne Golden, Bill Gettinger, Chas. LeMoyne, Joseph Harris, C. E. Anderson, J. Farrell McDonald, Mark Fenton, Noble Johnson, Otto Myers.

LOCALE—The Southwest.

TIME—A few years ago.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY—Harry Fowler.

THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a rugged adventurer who strikes it rich and returns to the girl he thought had been waiting for him, only to find her promised to another man; of a whirlwind of thrilling incidents in which the life and reputation of his rival are in his keeping, and of a supreme sacrifice of a strong man to bring happiness to one he loves.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—The popularity of Harry Carey.

2—The fact that the story was written by Eugene Manlove Rhodes, the famous novelist.

3—Because the theme of the story is taken from an actual chapter in the wild political history of a modern Western city.

4—The presence in the supporting cast of Mignonne Golden, the young girl who has given the screen a new and refreshing personality.

5—The fast action of the Harry Carey Flying Squadron of range riders.

6—Jack Ford's skillful interpretation of the story as its director.

7—The tendency to get away from the old-fashioned Western picture and to prove that incidents just as exciting can happen in the modern West.

8—An amusing view of an old-time movie shown as a part of the story.

9—The admirable character work of J. Farrell McDonald, Mark Fenton and Joseph Harris.

10—Beautiful photography and a picturesque locale which has not before been registered by the camera.

Synopsis of Story
"THE WALLOP"

JOHN WESLEY PRINGLE, adventurer, returns after five years to find Stella Vorhis ,the girl he left behind him, in love with another man. He agrees to call at her father's ranch at Gadsden and meet the man who has the claim on her heart.

Sheriff Lisner has determined to be re-elected at the Gadsden elections by any means. Chris Foy, his opponent, and one of the best men in the county, and Dick Marr are enemies. The sheriff determines to turn Foy's votes over to his side by arranging for a fight between the two men and thus having Foy do something unlawful. All but Barela, his chief deputy, agree to the sheriff's plan.

The night of Pringle's arrival in Gadsden the sheriff's deputies "plant" a revolver on Foy as he is lounging in the Gadsden Hotel barroom and then arrest him. Pringle enters the room and holds up the sheriff's men, allowing Foy to escape. When Dick Marr enters the hotel he is drunk and the sheriff's men stay with him until he starts home, when they waylay him and shoot him.

At the Vorhis ranch the next morning Pringle learns that Stella loves Foy. A messenger arrives and says that the sheriff is coming for Foy to charge him with the murder of Dick Marr. Foy and Pringle see the frame up and Foy rides for a hiding-place in the hills.

There is a reward of $2,500 offered for the capture of Foy. Pringle goes to the hills and finds Foy's hiding-place.

When the sheriff's posse is attacking the stronghold he overcomes Foy and turns the astonished friend over to the sheriff, claiming the reward. Down on the plains Pringle borrows one of the deputy's guns to shoot a buzzard but orders the men to throw up their hands and allows Foy to escape. He tells him that the capture was a ruse to come down from the mountain top.

Barela comes up and arrests the sheriff for the murder of Marr, as his accomplice made a confession before he died. Major Vorhis and Stella ride up. Stella kisses Pringle and he watches her, smilingly, as she rides down the trail with Foy.

CAST

John Wesley Pringle	Harry Carey
Stella Vorhis	Mignonne Golden
Christopher Foy	Bill Gettinger
Matt Lisner	Chas. Lemoyne
Barela	Joe Harris
Applegate	C. E. Anderson
Neuces River	J. Farrell McDonald
Major Vorhis	Mark Fenton
Espinol	Noble Johnson

Harry Carey, star of "The Wallop."

Theatre Name Here

He returned to claim the girl only to discover she had given her heart to a younger man. What happened? See Harry Carey in his fastest Universal photodrama, "The Wallop."

He came down the long, long trail to claim the girl he'd left behind—and found only memories. See Harry Carey in his latest Universal photodrama, "The Wallop."

Former New York Lawyer Western Star of Screen

HARRY CAREY in "The Wallop" IT'S A UNIVERSAL

HARRY CAREY, who is recognized as the foremost player of Western roles on the screen, was one of the first prominent actors of the stage to visualize the great future of the silent drama and left the dramatic world where he had been a star for several years to accept small parts before the camera.

But the promise of the future was not the only consideration that prompted Carey to desert the footlights. He loved the life of the outodors, and ten years ago most of the photoplays were made in the open. Harry Carey has been a Universal star for the past four years and at the present time has the leading role in "The Wallop," a fast-moving story of the Western plains.

Many people will wonder why a man born in New York and graduated from the Columbia Law School should have such a fondness for the open air life. Carey became enamored of ranch life, when, in his teens, he spent three years in Montana to recuperate from an illness which threatened his life. When he came to New York, tanned and robust, he decided that a method of living which could snatch a man from the grave and bring him back to perfect health must be the sort of life a man was intended to live.

In going into pictures Harry Carey achieved two objects at once. He started on a career which was sure to bring him success, as his histrionic talents were sure to be recognized by the public, and it gave him a chance to forsake the nomadic life of the stage actor and take up a permanent residence on a ranch where he could live the life he had grown to love.

Like all dramatic stars, Harry Carey does not shine by contrast. There is a certain type of movie star who appears to advantage only when he or she is surrounded by actors of inferior ability, thus heightening the dramatic qualities of the leading luminary. But Harry Carey always insists on being surrounded by players of the highest quality, and this is especially true in "The Wallop."

Mignonne Golden, who plays the principal feminine role, has been seen with the popular Western star in former features, and she has always given a good account of herself. She has an especially pleasing role in this story, and plays it delightfully.

What's At The Playhouse To-Night?

HARRY CAREY is at the .... Theatre in one of the best Univedsal photodramas of his screen career. It is called "The Wallop" and is a story from the pen of Eugene Manlove Rhodes. Jack Ford directed the production at Universal City and a popular cast, headed by Mignonne Golden, is seen in the star's support.

THOSE likable characteristics which have given Harry Carey the prefix of "Human" are more than ever in evidence in his latest Universal photodrama, "The Wallop," which is now filling the .... Theatre to capacity. In the role of the adventurer who returns to claim the girl he loves only to find her promised to another, he displays a human touch that strengthens his hold on the public's affection.

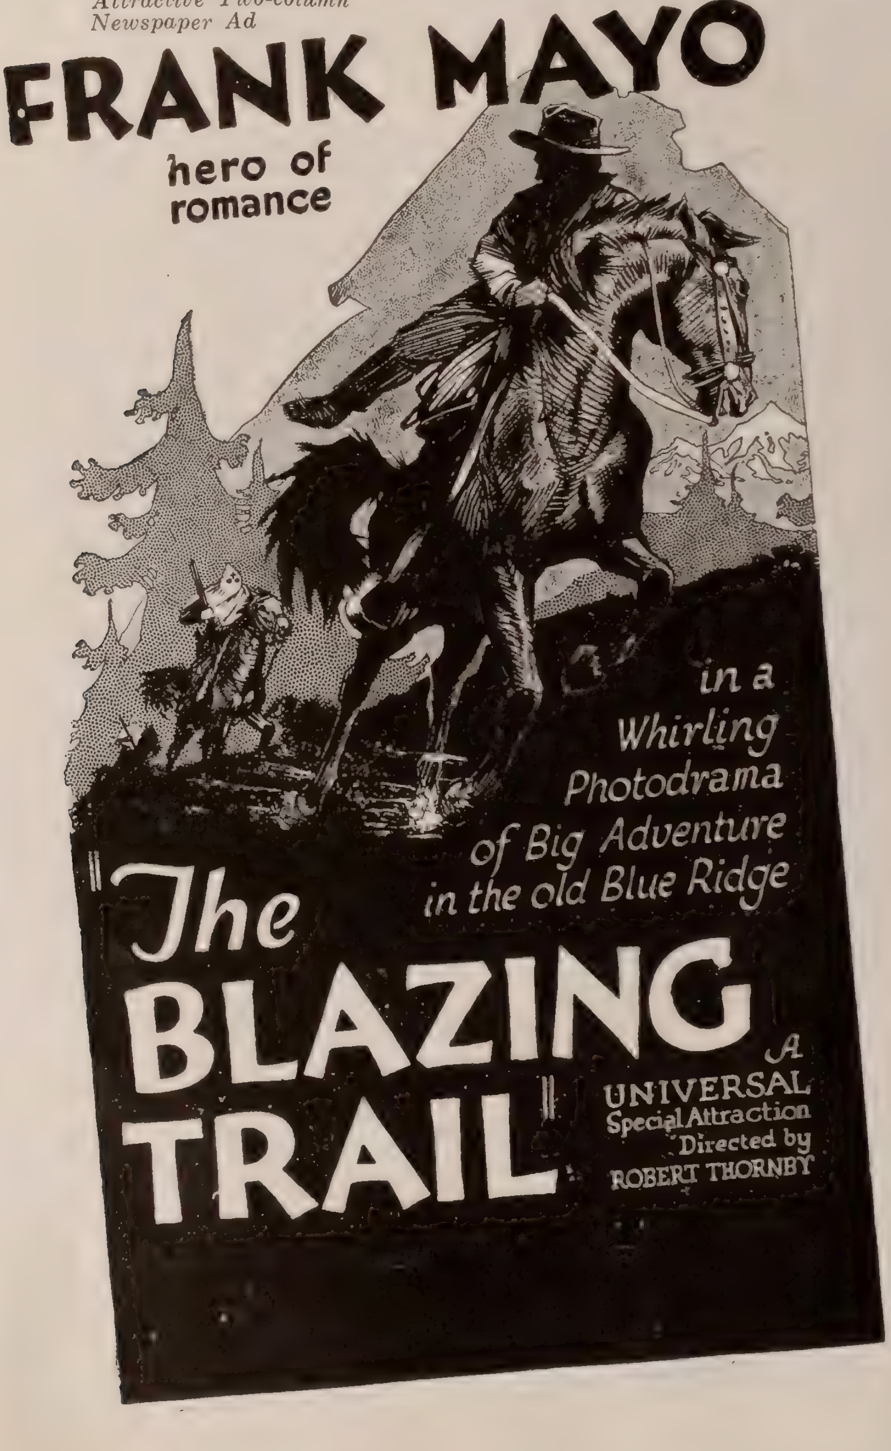
THE Western atmosphere to be found in the current Universal photodrama at the .... Theatre is so true to life that the spectator instinctively feels that it was produced by men who know the locale. Eugene Manlove Rhodes, the author of the story, is an authority on the West. Harry Carey, the star, is equally familiar with frontier life, and Jack Ford, the director, has made a thorough study of the American West.

A THRILLING gun-battle on the towering cliffs of a mountain range, spectacular riding by Harry Carey's flying squadron of cowpunchers, and a two-fisted combat in which the hero fights against uneven odds are a few of the pulse-quickening episodes of "The Wallop," a Western photodrama based on a story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes which will be presented by Harry Carey at the .... Theatre next .... This is a Universal production directed by Jack Ford.

THE political game as it is played in a small Western frontier town differs from the kid glove diplomacy and the Machiaveilian strategy practised in the big city. In the West politics is everyone's personal business and an election results in more casualties than a battle. It is in the heat of such a battle that Harry Carey finds himself, a stranger, in his latest Universal success, "The Wallop," to be shown at the .... Theater on ....

A powerful thriller--a wonderful star --book them! Attractive ads--striking posters--clever teaser slides--use 'em!

Attractive Two-column Newspaper Ad



FRANK MAYO

hero of romance

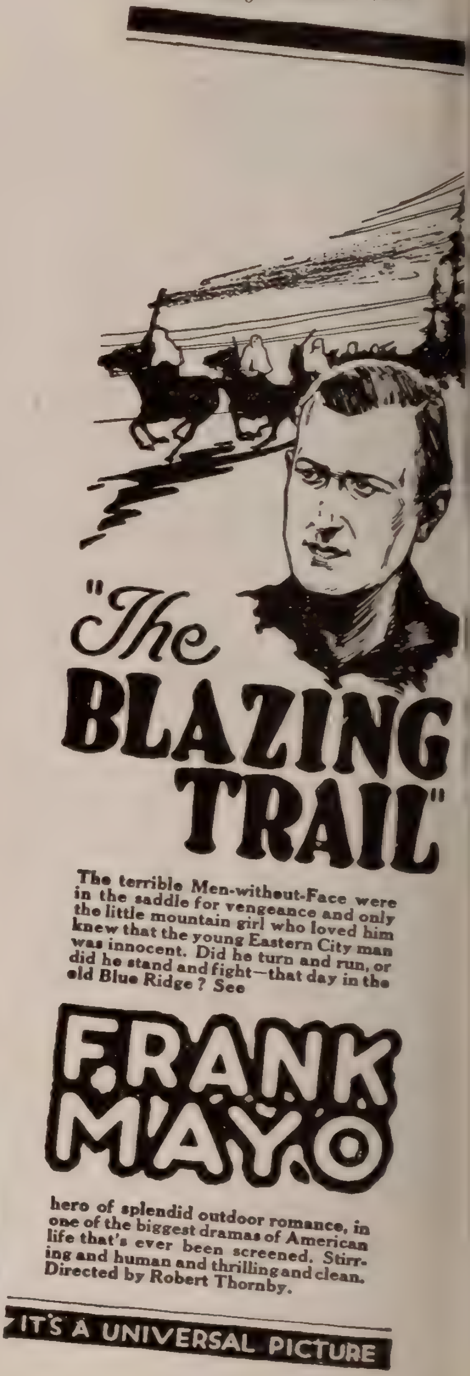
in a Whirling Photodrama of Big Adventure in the old Blue Ridge

"The BLAZING TRAIL"

A UNIVERSAL Special Attraction

Directed by ROBERT THORNBY

One of the Catchy Single-column Ads



"The BLAZING TRAIL"

The terrible Men-without-Face were in the saddle for vengeance and only the little mountain girl who loved him knew that the young Eastern City man was innocent. Did he turn and run, or did he stand and fight—that day in the old Blue Ridge? See hero of splendid outdoor romance, in one of the biggest dramas of American life that's ever been screened. Stirring and human and thrilling and clean. Directed by Robert Thornby.

FRANK MAYO

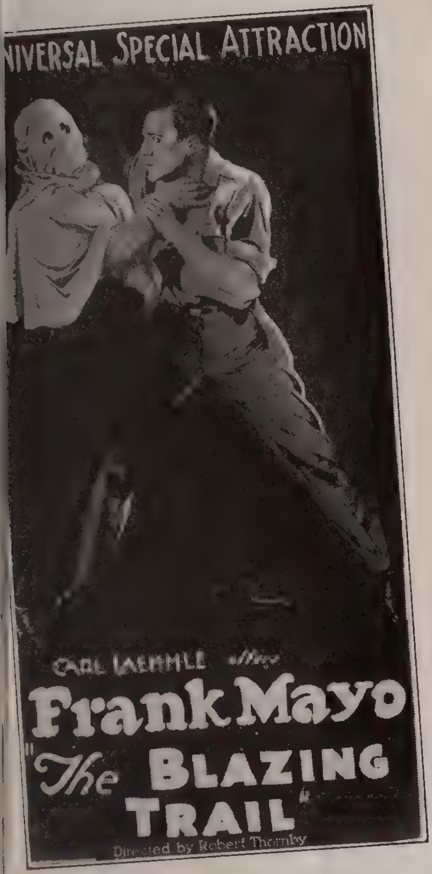
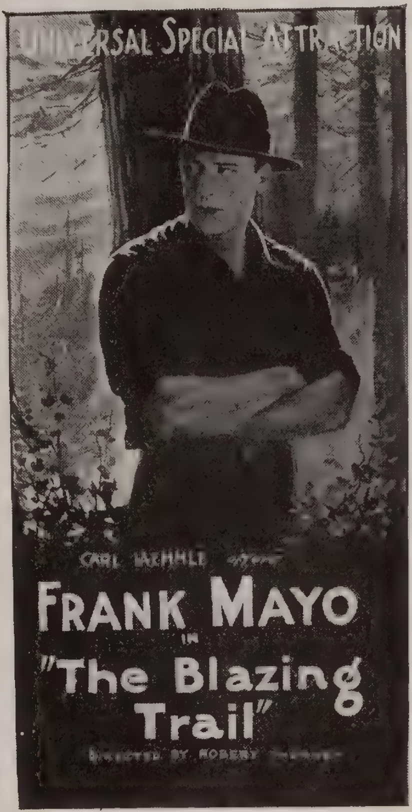
IT'S A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

A Thrilling Three-sheet



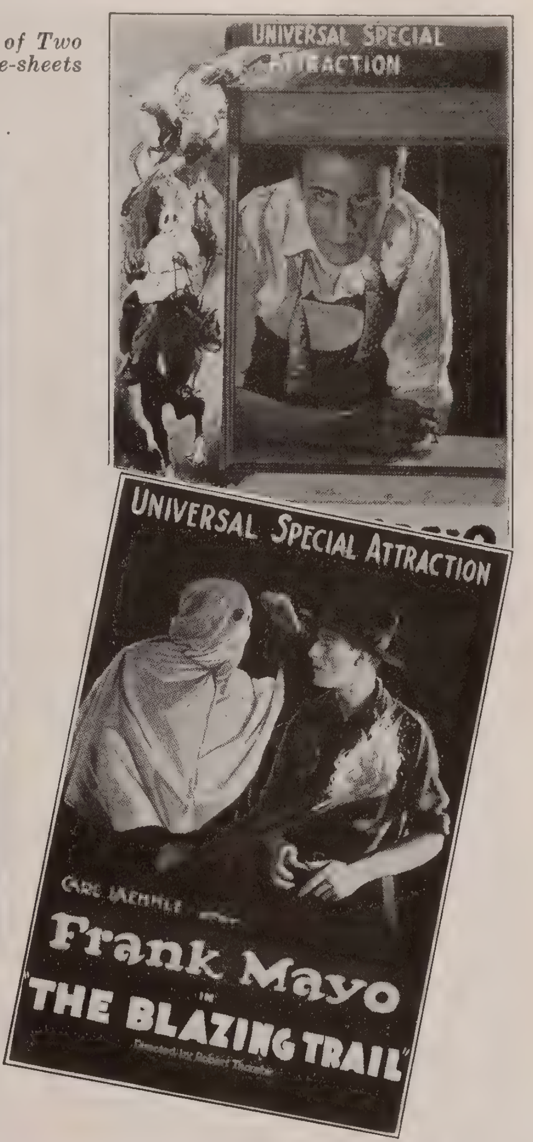
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Frank Mayo
"The BLAZING TRAIL"
Directed by Robert Thornby



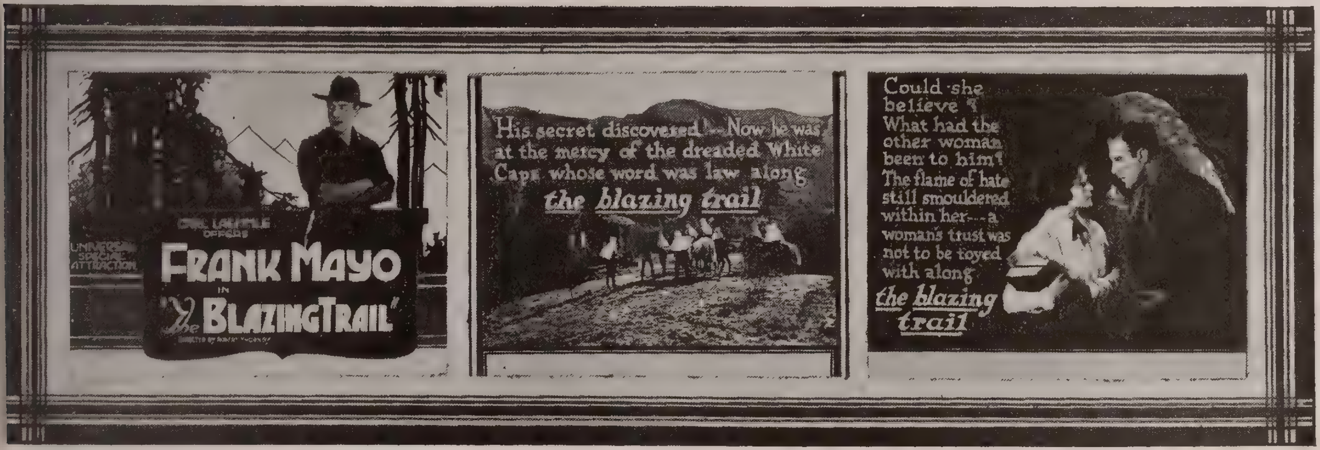
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
FRANK MAYO
IN
"The Blazing Trail"
DIRECTED BY ROBERT THORNBY

Attractive Three-sheet

Reproductions of Two of the One-sheets



UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Frank Mayo
IN
THE BLAZING TRAIL"
Directed by Robert Thornby



CARL LAEMMLE OFFERS
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
FRANK MAYO
IN
"The BLAZING TRAIL"
DIRECTED BY ROBERT THORNBY
His secret discovered—Now he was at the mercy of the dreaded White Cape whose word was law along
the blazing trail
Could she believe? What had the other woman been to him? The flame of hate still smouldered within her—a woman's trust was not to be toyed with along
the blazing trail

The teaser slides supplied for this Universal Special Attraction are made in sequence, as shown above, from left to right. Use them in rotation, several times each performance during the week preceding the showing of "THE BLAZING TRAIL." Crowds can't help but read what you throw on the screen. Use the teasers as part of your campaign and leave the rest to the picture.

EVA NOVAK PLAYS STRONG ROLE IN ALASKAN STORY

EVA NOVAK'S dazzling blonde beauty is to have an effective setting in her next Universal production which will be released as "Wolves of the North." This is a story of snowbound Alaska, written and directed by Norman Dawn.

In this feature picture Miss Novak will appear as an English girl who, with her father, lives in the village of Unalik on the southern coast of Alaska.

For eighteen years no man has entered into her life, her sole companion, aside from her father, being a huge Malamute dog who shields her from all harm. When the story opens two suitors lay siege to the girl's heart. One is David, a youth not much older than the girl, whose evident sincerity is tinged with a certain weakness of character. The other is "Wiki" Jack, a big, masterful mine owner whose code of morals differs from the strict set of ethics established by the girl.

The big test occurs when a new gold strike is reported in the northern wilderness and which attracts the principal characters in the story. Here, under primitive conditions, the girl has an opportunity to judge the real worth of the men, and she makes her choice according to her feminine instinct.

Eva Novak in Alaskan costume and type of dogs used in "Wolves Of The North," her latest Picture.

FURS OF INDIAN PRINCESS WORN BY YOUNG WHITE GIRL

WHEN Arthur R. Thompson, Arctic traveler and writer, was engaged by Universal to act as technical director with Norman Dawn in the production of "Wolves of the North," the producers stipulated that they were to have the privilege of using the explorer's famous collection of furs, sledges, weapons and other trophies of the Alaskan country.

It happened that among the valuable souvenirs brought back by Thompson from one of his recent visits to Alaska was a complete wardrobe formerly belonging to a princess of the Si Komas tribe. The furs are of exquisite quality and though the style does not conform to the latest dictates of Paris or Fifth Avenue they are pronounced to be the very last word in fashions along the Yukon.

Eva Novak, who plays the rôle of an Alaskan girl, is wearing these garments in the picture. They would be rather uncomfortable for wear in Southern California, so Director Dawn took the entire company on location to the Yosemite, and also to Northern Canada.

PRIZE-WINNING WOLF DOGS OF NORTH WOODS USED IN PHOTOPLAY

CLOSE-SET eyes, long pointed muzzle, dripping fangs. A hundred pounds of muscle driven into action by a brain three-quarters wolf, one quarter dog.

That is the type of dog used in this thrilling story of the snow-country.

The story was written by Dawn himself and has a subtle sub-current of psychology in which a wolf-dog symbolizes the composite natures in men. Eva Novak is starring in the story which will be filmed, for the most part, in Canada and the Yosemite.

Because the real Malamute wolf-dog of the north has of late been mongrelized by hap-hazzard breeding, Dawn took a team from the Universal City kennels. The eight dogs which he took come from a famous line of sledge animals. "Blue," the lead-dog, is the son of a pair that worked in the prize winning team in Skagway a few years ago. "Juneau," another one of the team threw the best litter of pups in Alaska in 1916 and "Hell-Heart," the biggest member of the string is considered to be the best straight bred Malamute in the world.

The Malamute is properly three-quarers of wolf and one quarter dog. Some of the animals in the Universal City kennels, however, revert more closely to the wolf. They are immense animals, thickly coated with coarse wolf-fur and will give an accuracy to the pictures which will enhance the dramatic value of the production.

As Clean as your Mother's Heart!

MARGARET MANN

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

"WE consider this the cleanest and best picture that we have ever shown. From a box office stand point it more than came up to all our expectations, but the unusual part of it is that it is more than a box office attraction. It gave complete satisfaction to all who saw it. Many said it was the best and cleanest picture they had ever seen."

Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, Ohio.

Carl Laemmle offers
Dorothy Phillips in

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
Directed by
ALLEN HOLUBAR

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS
Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY
PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 13 MAY 7, 1921 No. 12

Flashes From Universal Studios

Current Productions Range From Stories With Scenes in the North Woods to Pictures With Their Locale in the California Desert

DONEGAL FAIR would look like a Sunday School picnic compared to the mutiny on the high seas which was filmed by Norman Dawn for Edith Roberts' forthcoming photoplay "My Lady of the Island." A schooner was chartered at San Pedro, California, and when outside the three mile limit the mutiny was staged by the toughest crew ever signed in a Pacific port.

* * * * * *

PETER B. KYNE, the creator of the character of "Cappy Ricks," the veteran sea captain of modern fiction, was a recent caller at Universal City where he consulted with Harry Carey and Lucian Hubbard, scenario editor, concerning the first of the stories he has contracted to write for the Western star and which are to be produced as Jewel features.

* * * * * *

THE lumber camps of Oregon will be the locale for the next Priscilla Dean picture "Conflict," which is a stirring story of the North Woods. A large company under the guidance of Stuart Paton will spend six weeks there filming her next Universal-Jewel feature.

* * * * * *

JOSEPHINE HILL, who was formerly featured in Universal Westerns and Ruth Rouce, who played in several Eddie Polo serials, have returned to Universal City to appear in a series of Mounted Police Stories being produced under the direction of Edward Kull.

* * * * * *

CARMEL MYERS has seen very little sunlight for the past ten days, as all the scenes in her latest Universal feature, "The Scarlet Shawl," have been shot at night and she has spent the daylight hours in sleep. The big scenes of the story, which is by Johnston McCully, and directed by Jack Conway, occur during a moonlight fiesta in the early California days, and the director has been taking advantage of the clear nights to photograph the required episodes.

WARD HAYES is filming "Taxi Tangle," a one-reel comedy, at Universal City in which he is using a popular group of laugh-gathering comedians and comediennes headed by Billy Fletcher.

* * * * * *

HOOT GIBSON is galloping through another fast two-reeler at Universal City. It is called "Too Tired Jones," and gives the Western star every opportunity for spectacular rodeo stuff. Lee Kohlmar is directing and Marcella Pershing has the principal feminine rôle.

* * * * * *

EDWARD LAEMMLE is guiding Jack Perrin through "Rim of the Desert," a dramatic short reel western feature with Magda Lane in the leading feminine part. The company is on location on the California desert.

* * * * * *

EDDIE POLO is to begin work immediately on a series of two-reel western photodramas in which he will revive his characterization of "Cyclone Smith." Jacques Jaccard will direct.

* * * * * *

ROLLIN STURGEON will probably begin work at Universal City this week on "Human Hearts," which will be filmed as a special feature with an especially selected cast. The famous stage play of the same name will be the basis of the screen story.

* * * * * *

GLADYS WALTON, Universal's fascinating young star, celebrated her eighteenth birthday the other day by starting work on her sixth stellar rôle, which will doubtless add another agreeable picture to her remarkable gallery of youthful screen portrayals. He latest feature is "What Can You Expect," an interesting study of the growing generation from a recent Saturday Evening Post story by Alice L. Tildesley. Harry B. Harris will wield the megaphone.

Special Newspaper Publicity Stories For "The Wallop"

BIG DRAMATIC MOMENTS IN HARRY CAREY FILM

HARRY CAREY won new friends at the .... Theatre last night and threw another hitch around the hearts of his old admirers when he told one of the biggest screen stories of his career with the vigorous dramatic punch and the unresisting naturalness which have won for him the title, "the humanest star."

The accasion was the premier local showing of "The Wallop," his most recent Universal photodrama, and a production which should prove an invigorating mental tonic to those who are beginning to feel the oppression of the hot-house drama.

With the unfenced West for his stage and the scope of human emotion for his interpreation, Carey gives an excellent performance of the story as it was originally written by Eugene Manlove Rhodes.

As the story opens he is seen returning to the town he left a few years before with the love of a girl in his heart. He comes back to offer her material comforts in addition to love. At their first meeting he discovers that she has given her heart to a younger man. First he makes sure that the young fellow is worthy of her; then he starts out to help him. His efforts precipitate a political feud in the town, start a whole series of gun-battles and result in an amazing climax by which Harry Carey proves, if proof is needed, that he is not only a fearless Western star but one of the foremost emotional actors of the silent drama.

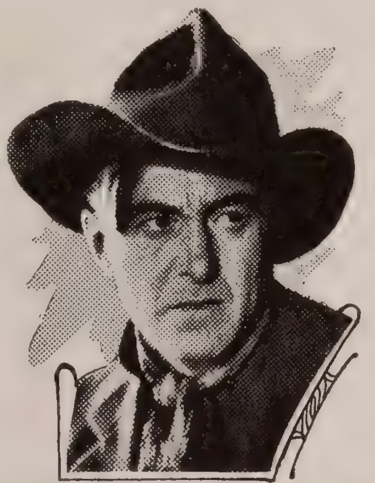
AIDS RIVAL IN LOVE WITH CLEVER RUSE

"THE WALLOP," Eugene Manlove Rhodes' most dramatic story of the old West, will be the principal attraction at the .... Theatre on .... with Harry Carey in the starring role. The famous Western star has done full justice to the story by his masterful interpretation of the big dramatic moments and the production will be regarded by those who witness it as one of the star's best screen efforts.

The story shows a man who returns to the Western country after making his strike in the gold fields. He finds that the girl he loves has given her heart to a younger man and that only with him can she find .happiness Suppressing his own desires, he helps the younger people to accomplish their object and marry.

With spontaneous bits of humor, amazingly thrilling drama and heart interest predominating, Jack Ford directed the story at Universal City from the adaptation by George C. Hull.

Mignonne Golden ,the pretty little girl who played the leading feminine role in other recent Carey successes, will again be seen in his support, as will the famous Harry Carey flying squadron of cowpunchers. In the splendid cast will be seen J. Farrell McDonald, Joe Harris, Charles LeMoyne, C. E. Anderson, Otto Myers, Noble Johnson, Mark Fenton and Bill Gettinger the handsome cowboy soldier who fought with the Wild West division overseas and resumed his work at Universal City directly after he was mustered out.



HARRY CAREY in "THE WALLOP"
IT'S A UNIVERSAL

PHOTOPLAY WITH PUNCH OFFERS MENTAL TONIC

JOHN WESLEY PRINGLE, adventurer and cowpuncher, found little prospect in his job of amassing sufficient of the world's goods to warrant him asking Stella Vorhis to share his life. So he leaves the cow country for the mountains and seeks his fortune in yellow metal. Several years later, having struck it rich, he returns in triumph to Arizona to claim the girl he fondly imagined had been waiting for him.

In the time that has elapsed, however, Stella has all but forgotten Pringle, to whom she was not formally engaged, and bestowed her affections on Christopher Foy, the most worthy young man in the range country.

Pringle realizes his defeat before he has committed himself to Stella, and that night is drawn into a mesh of strange intrigue which virtually places the life and honor of Christopher in his hands. How Pringle braves adventure of the most thrilling sort for the safety of his rival and how he finally sacrifices his own happiness to assure greater joy for the girl he has loved, brings a big, compelling story to an appealing climax.

This is a mere hint of the engrossing romance contained in "The Wallop," the story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes, in which Harry Carey is to be seen at the .... Theatre on ....

CAREY'S FLYING SQUADRON CHAMPIONS OF THE RANGE

IT has been some time since Harry Carey has used his famous and popular Flying Squadron of cowboy roughriders in a picture. The last two stories filmed by the Universal Western star did not call for any spectacular horsemanship, even on the part of Carey himself. But in his latest production, "The Wallop," which is to be seen at the .... Theatre on ...., the Harry Carey fans will see their idol as they like him best—a hard-riding adventurer, surrounded by his corps of broncho-straddlers, and indulging in stunts that would seem fantastic were they not performed in that human, natural fashion typical of Harry Carey.

Carey's Flying Squadron is a movie institution. When the Western actor first began to achieve fame on the screen, some Montana cowboys, who knew him when he was ranching up in that country, drifted down to California and applied to him for help to get in the movies. As these punchers were the real article and a great improvement over the store cowboys, Carey had no trouble placing them with the various units. The story of their achievements soon spread by way of the films ,and other range riders joined the group. Three years ago, when Carey settled on his ranch in the San Francisquito Canyon, he made povisions to house all his cowboys, who agreed to serve him in their original capacity whenever they were not engaged in his pictures.

At Our Expense-Wire the Wire your nearest theatre--or any other theatre in this list--for a frank opinion on "Outside the Law." If, after doing so, you do not book it, we will pay your telegram charges. YOU lose nothing. YOU have ALL to gain.

ARIZONA

Kingman, Long
Phoenix, Columbia
Tuscon, Opera House
Bisbee, Eagle
Miami, Liberty
Prescott, Elks
Flagstaff, Orpheum
Douglas, Grand
Nogales, Nogales
Yuma, Liberty

ARKANSAS

Hot Springs, Royal
Jonesborough, Grand
Osceola, Grand

CONNECTICUT

Meriden, Poli
New Haven, Cannon
Danbury, Taylor O. H.
Waterbury, Doric
New Britain, Fox

COLORADO

Boulder, Curran's O. H.
Holly, Star
Wray, Wray
Colorado Springs, Odeon
Fort Collins, Empress
Pueblo, Palm
Englewood, Englewood
Sterling, Rialto
Durango, Gem
Rapid City, Auditorium

CALIFORNIA

Annheim, Grand
San Diego, Plaza
Pasadena, Florence
Santa Barbara, California
San Pedro, Victoria
San Bernardino, Temple
Bakersfield, Pastime
Stockton, Colonial
Selina, Selma

FLORIDA

Miami, Paramount
Tampa, Victory
Gainesville, Lyric

GEORGIA

Atlanta, Tudor

ILLINOIS

Cairo, Bijou
Galesburg, Colonial
Rock Island, Spencer Sq.
Moline, Savoy
Waukegan, Elite
Champaign, Park
Peoria, Apollo
Danville, Fishcher
Kankakee, Court
Elgin, Grove

IDAHO

Am. Falls, Auditorium
Buhl, Fox
Pocatello, American
Preston, Isis
Idaho Falls, Rex
Jerome, Rialto
Montpelier, Gem
Shelby, Virginia
Salmon, Rex

Every Large City in Ameri

PRISCILLA DEAN Supported b
LON CHANEY

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL

nearest theatre in this List

Could anything be fairer? Know results before you book. Show only "result-certified" successes. It's your safest guarantee---your surest bet. Wire to-day at our expense. Do it now--at once. Don't delay.

INDIANA

Gary, Gary
Petersburg, Lryic
Madison, Riviera
Union City, Victory
Vincennes, Lyric
Wabash, Eagle
Marion, Luna Lite
Fort Wayne, Majestic

IOWA

Oskaloosa, Princess
Ottumwa, Empire
Cedar Rapids, Isis
Waterloo, Plaza
Clinton, Family
Fort Dodge, Strand
Fort Madison, Grand Council Bluffs, Liberty

KANSAS

Excelsior Springs, Casino
Great Bend, Echo
Fort Scott, Liberty
Wichita, Wichita
Eldorado, New Isis
Atchison, Orpheum
Ottawa, Crystal
Emporia, Strand
Beloit, Grand

KENTUCKY

Ashland, Grand
Jenkins, Jenkins
Central City, Nixon
Louisville, Walnut
Henderson, Princess
Hopkinsville, Princess

MASSACHUSETTS

Holyoke, Strand
Pittsfield, Majestic
North Adams, Richmond

MICHIGAN

Flint, Orpheum
Saginaw, Mecca
Bay City, Orpheum
Jackson, Majestic
Port Huron, Majestic
Ann Arbor, Wuerth
Kalamazoo, Majestic
Holland, Colonial
Battle Creek, Dreamland
Mount Clemens, Lyric

MINNESOTA

Willmar, Dreamland
Breckenridge, Grand

MISSOURI

St“ Joseph's, Colonial
Springfield, Electric
Carthage, Delphus
Joplin, Hippo
Vandalia, Mozart

Has Played or Booked It!

OUTSIDE THE LAW"

JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

The ONE Picture You
A Knockout Winner

MONTANA

Butte, Ansonia
Billings, Babcock
Anaconda, Marguerite
Livingston, Strand
Lima, Luna
Laury, Strand

NEBRASKA

Ogalala, Princess
Wahoo, Red
Omaha, Moon
Grand Island, Strand
Kearney, Empress
Arapahoe, Crystal
Ashton, Opera House

NEVADA

Carson City, Grand
Tonopah, Butler
Reno, Wigwam

NEW JERSEY

Hackensack, Lyric
Passaic, Palace
Elizabeth, Elizabeth
Plainfield, Plainfield
Hoboken, Bishop
Asbury Park, Park
Red Bank, Palace
Perth Amboy, Strand
Orange, Bijou

NEW MEXICO

Retou, Auditorium
Dawson, Opera House
Madrid, Amusement Hall
Clayton, Mission
Santa Fe, Paris

NEW YORK

Niagara Falls, Inter
Utica, Alhambra
Ogdensburg, Strand
Ithaca, Strand
Saratoga, Congress
Schenectady, Ba
Rochester, Rialto
Yonkers, Yonkers
Kingston, Orpheum

NORTH CAROLINA

Winston-Salem, Amusu
Fayettesville, Rose
Durham, Paris
Wilson, Wilson
Weldon, Opera House
Raleigh, Alamo

NORTH DAKOTA

Fargo, New Strand
Minot, Orpheum
Grand Forks, Grand
Jamestown, Opera House

OHIO

Dayton, Columbia
Youngstown, Liberty
Akron, Allen
Lima, Lyric
Canton, Opera House
Mansfield, Park
Marion, Orpheum
Findlay, Victory
Sandusky, Star
Toledo, Alhambra

OKLAHOMA

Muskogee, Strand
McAllister, Palace
Oklahoma City, Empire
El Reno, El Reno
Shawnee, Victory
Horning, Electric
Guthrie, Highland
Oilton, Joy
Sapulpa, St. Dennis
Beggs, Liberty

OREGON

Salem, Liberty
Astoria, Liberty
Baker, Baker
Medford, Rialto
Bend, Liberty
Hood River, Liberty
Marshfield, Noble
Klamath Falls, Liberty
Huntington, Lyric

MILLIONS HAVE SEEN IT---MILLION

PRISCILLA DEAN

Supported b
LON CHANEY

TOD BROWNING'S GREATEST UNIVERSAL-

Can't Afford To Miss! From Coast To Coast!

PENNSYLVANIA

Sheffield, Utopian
Johnstown, Nemo
Brownsville, Strand
Jeannette, Princess
McKeesport, Liberty
Connellsville, Sorenson
Oil City, Venango
Beaver Falls, Regent
Reading, Arcade
Easton, Strand

SOUTH CAROLINA

Belleton, Pastime

SOUTH DAKOTA

Ardmore, Caylor
Lead, Ford
Brookings, Ad
Avon, Star
Salem, Star
Yankton, Bess

TEXAS

Austin, Opera House
Waco, Strand
Breckenridge, National Decatur, Majestic
Dallas, Rialto
Waxahatchie, Dixie
Brownsville, Queen
Marshall, Grand
Marlin, Majestic
El Paso, Ellenay
Beaumont, Peoples

UTAH

Smithfield, Realart
Ogden, Utah
Price, Echo
Eureka, Star
Salt Lake City, Kinema
Logan, Lyric
Bingham, American
Provo, Strand
Nephi, Venice

VIRGINA

Roanoke, Rialto
Abingtion, Opera House
Hopewell, Marcell
Newport News, Rialto
Petersburg, Columbia
Coburn, Star
Fredericksburg, Leader
Covington, Strand
Lynchburg, Isis
Portsmouth, Orpheum

WASHINGTON

Vancouver, U. S. A.
Centralia, Grand
Everett, Everett
Aberdeen, Wier
Seattle, Lee
Tacoma, Red
Walla Walla, Liberty
Kelso, Vogue

WEST VIRGINIA

Parkersburg, Strand
Charleseon, Virginian
Huntington,Orpheum
Logan, Middlebury
Wheeling, Colonial
Morgantown, Strand
Martinsburg, Strand
Clarksburg, Odeon

WISCONSIN

Beloit, Red
Racine, Bijou
Portage, Home
Green Bay, Bijou
Fon du Lac, Bijou
Milwaukee, State
Manitowac, Rialto
Kenosha, Burke
Beaver Dam, Davison
Madison, Palace

WYOMING

Casper, Hub
Cheyenne, Amusu
Rawlins, Opera House

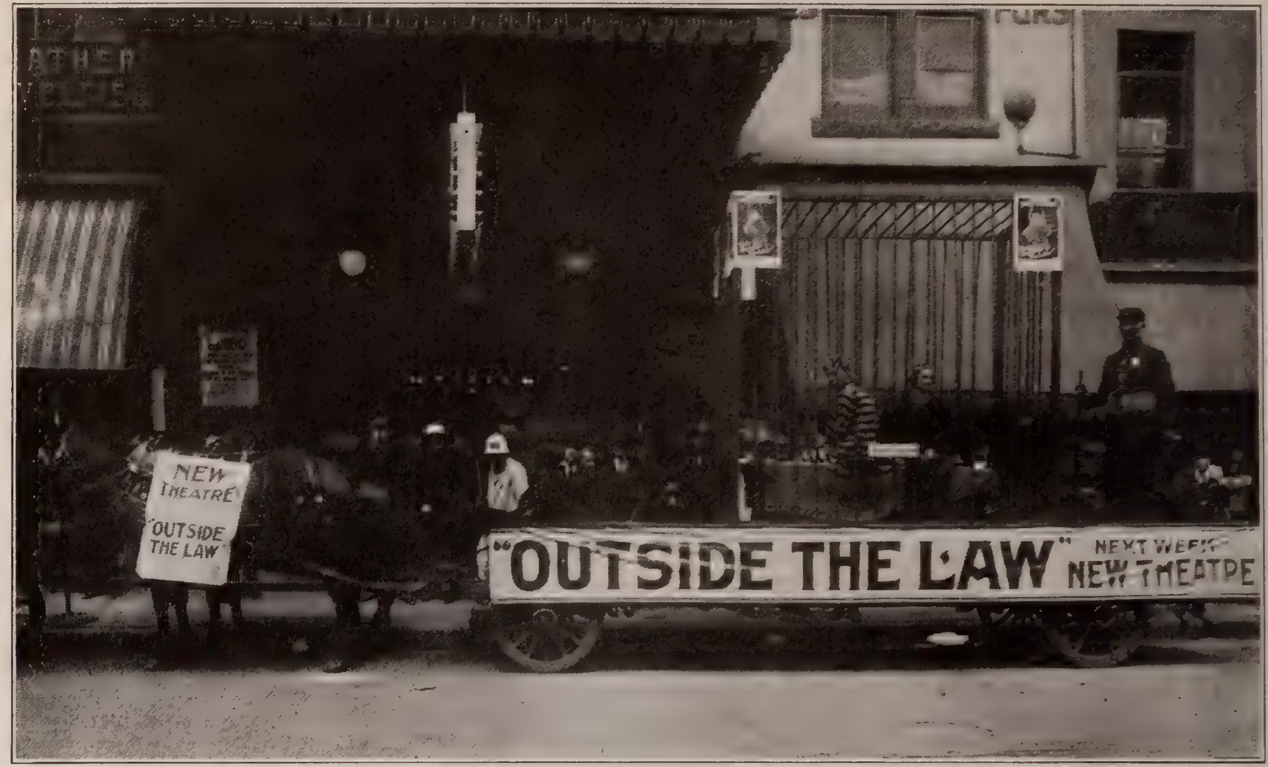
IN THE U. S. A. WILL SEE IT!

"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE



Exploiting Underworld Feature of "Outside The Law" in Baltimore.

First Run of Dean Film in Baltimore

"OUTSIDE THE LAW," the Universal-Jewel photoplay starring Priscilla Dean, had its first showing in Baltimore, Md., on April 11th, at the New Theatre. Special exploitation and advertising stunts were devised by the Universal Exploitation Department for the introduction of the film in that city.

The automobile truck shown in the photograph on this page was hired by the exploitation department and operated through the streets of Baltimore for four days preceding the showing of the picture. The truck was twenty feet in length and carried a banner on the side of the wagon advertising the opening date of the Priscilla Dean film.

The cage which was built on the truck was ten feet long and five feet wide. Inside the cage was a female impersonator dressed in the black prison garb, and a man dressed in convict's clothes with a ball and a chain attached to his foot.

The man standing on the truck outside the cage was dressed in the uniform of a penitentiary guard and held a rifle.

Another stunt used to introduce the Universal-Jewel film into the Baltimore territory was circularizing the automobile owners of that city. Postcards announcing the coming of "Outside The Law" were sent to 15,000 automobile owners whose names were secured from the membership lists of the Maryland Automobile Club.

Five thousand teaser cards were distributed with pictures of Priscilla Dean and the slogans "Catch This Woman," "She's Outside The Law."

Norton, Kansas,
April 11, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Kansas City, Missouri.

We did a wonderful business on your picture "Outside The Law," which we opened our new theatre with. I think it the best picture that Universal has ever made.

H. R. HAMILTON,
Picture Show.

Buffalo, N. Y.
April 22, 1921.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
Buffalo, N. Y.

I ran "Outside The Law" two days and this picture broke all records for a two-day-run picture in this theatre. It held the audience from start to finish. I recommend this picture very highly.

Very truly yours,
H. J. CANER,
Manager, Majestic Theatre.

There's A Mint
in it
For Live Exhibitors

NOW get this and let it sink deep! Here's a summer proposition that's got all the earmarks of one of the finest money-makers that ever came down film way.

Here are nine Universal-Jewels—every single one of them a proven one hundred per cent. box-office attraction — all in this combination offer.

You don't have to book all of them. The larger number you book, the lower the price per picture. Investigate this amazing special combination offer: THERE'S A MINT OF MONEY IN IT FOR LIVE EXHIBITORS!

A Real Clean-Up-Teste

The Greatest of All

Look at this List—

PRISCILLA
DEAN
In
"OUTSIDE THE LAW"

DOROTHY
PHILLIPS
In
"ONCE TO
EVERY WOMAN"

GENTLEMEN:—The most wonderful treasure-chest of fine pictures ever gathered together is now offered to you in a great, big money-making special deal. Here are nine Universal-Jewel Productions—every one of them a gem—glistening with real, honest-to-goodness, profit-earning possibilities!

HERE it is!—the opportunity of a lifetime, the golden chance that comes only too seldom—the one grand invitation to make more money with these nine powerful Universal-Jewels than you've made with any other nine pictures in your entire business career.

HERE are nine pictures that in all probability your folks have never seen. To them these pictures will all be new. With them these remarkable productions will make the same tremendous hit that they have made in thousands of other cities. To you they will bring the same great measure of success and profitable receipts that they have brought to thousands of other exhibitors.

Read and think—think hard and act! For once—only once in a lifetime, does an opportunity like this come to any exhibitor.

SPECIAL UNIVERSAL-JEW

d Successes-Low Prices!

Combination Offers

Think while you Read!

"THE DEVIL'S
PASSKEY"
Von Stroheim

PRISCILLA
DEAN
In
"THE VIRGIN
OF STAMBOUL"

Drama
Comedy
Love
Sensations
Action
Thrills
Mystery
Suspense
Adventure
Travel
Everything

"SHIPWRECKED
AMONG CANNIBALS"

ELMO LINCOLN
In
"UNDER CRIMSON SKIES"

EL COMBINATION OFFER

Clean-up Price for Univ

Hundreds of Thousands in

The Crowning Ev

DOROTHY PHILLIPS
In
"THE RIGHT TO HAPPINESS"

These winners are the cream of the biggest and most successful Universal-Jewel box office attractions. Book all Nine for your most profitable summer

"BLIND HUSBANDS"
Von Stroheim's Wonder Play

These Jewels Contain every known box office attraction value plus records that are the envy of every producer

"THE GREAT AIR ROBBERY"

SPECIAL UNIVERSAL-JEW

ersal's Greatest Successes

Profits for Exhibitors !

ent of the Year !

HERE are nine Universal-Jewels that have pulled capacity houses in hundreds of cities. Thousands of letters testifying to the remarkable drawing powers of these wonderful productions have poured in from exhibitors who ran them for a week or two or even longer, and then requested return dates.

IN short, every one of them was and is a W-I-N-N-E-R!

DON'T forget that for a single moment when you consider this wonderfully attractive special combination offer. The quality — the story — the stars — the direction — the photography — IT'S ALL THERE! EVERYTHING — just as originally produced.

YET UNIVERSAL makes this startling offer and gives you the golden opportunity of a lifetime to clean up in big league fashion during the summer months. Go to your nearest Universal Exchange and take immediate advantage of this deal. Book one, or five, or all nine—YOU'LL CLEAN UP. Think — reason it out — then act! Don't hesitate — to-day's the day.

Everything ready for you at your nearest

Universal Exchange

EL COMBINATION OFFER

Only One Sample of these

Refresh Your Memory

Rare Chance to Play this

Glenrock, Wyo.
Population
220

→

A PACKED house and everybody pleased. "The Right to Happiness" ranks second to none among super-productions—and Dorothy Phillips is star above stars—E. A. Gross, Empress Theatre.

Granada, Colo.
Population
359

→

"THE Right to Happiness" deserves to rank among the masterpieces of the screen world. It has yet to be equalled.—Charles Lennox, Belmont Theatre.

Ault, Colo.
Population
569

→

WENT over great. Truly a big picture and pleased my patrons.—C. W. Hine, Princess Theatre.

SPECIAL UNIVERSAL-JEW

9 Success-Proven Jewels!

Read What Exhibitors Said!

Summer to a Blaze of Profits

JUST one sample of the many amazing successes offered in this remarkable combination offer. Refresh your memory — read what exhibitors said! And remember — IF YOU HAVE NOT PLAYED IT — IT'S NEW! If you're in this business to make money and to please patrons, here's your great golden chance.

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

In the greatest love story ever told -----

"THE RIGHT TO HAPPINESS"

Produced under the direction of Allen Holubar

EL COMBINATION OFFER

Don't Fish In Strange Streams!

MANY an exhibitor, like many an angler, makes a careful cast only to hook a tin can. Fishing in strange streams seldom yields anything worth while. How much better, safer, and surer is it to show during the summer, at low cost, productions that are known, profit-proven successes!

YOU know, and all the world knows, Universal to be the fairest, straightest-dealing moving picture producing organization on the face of the earth.

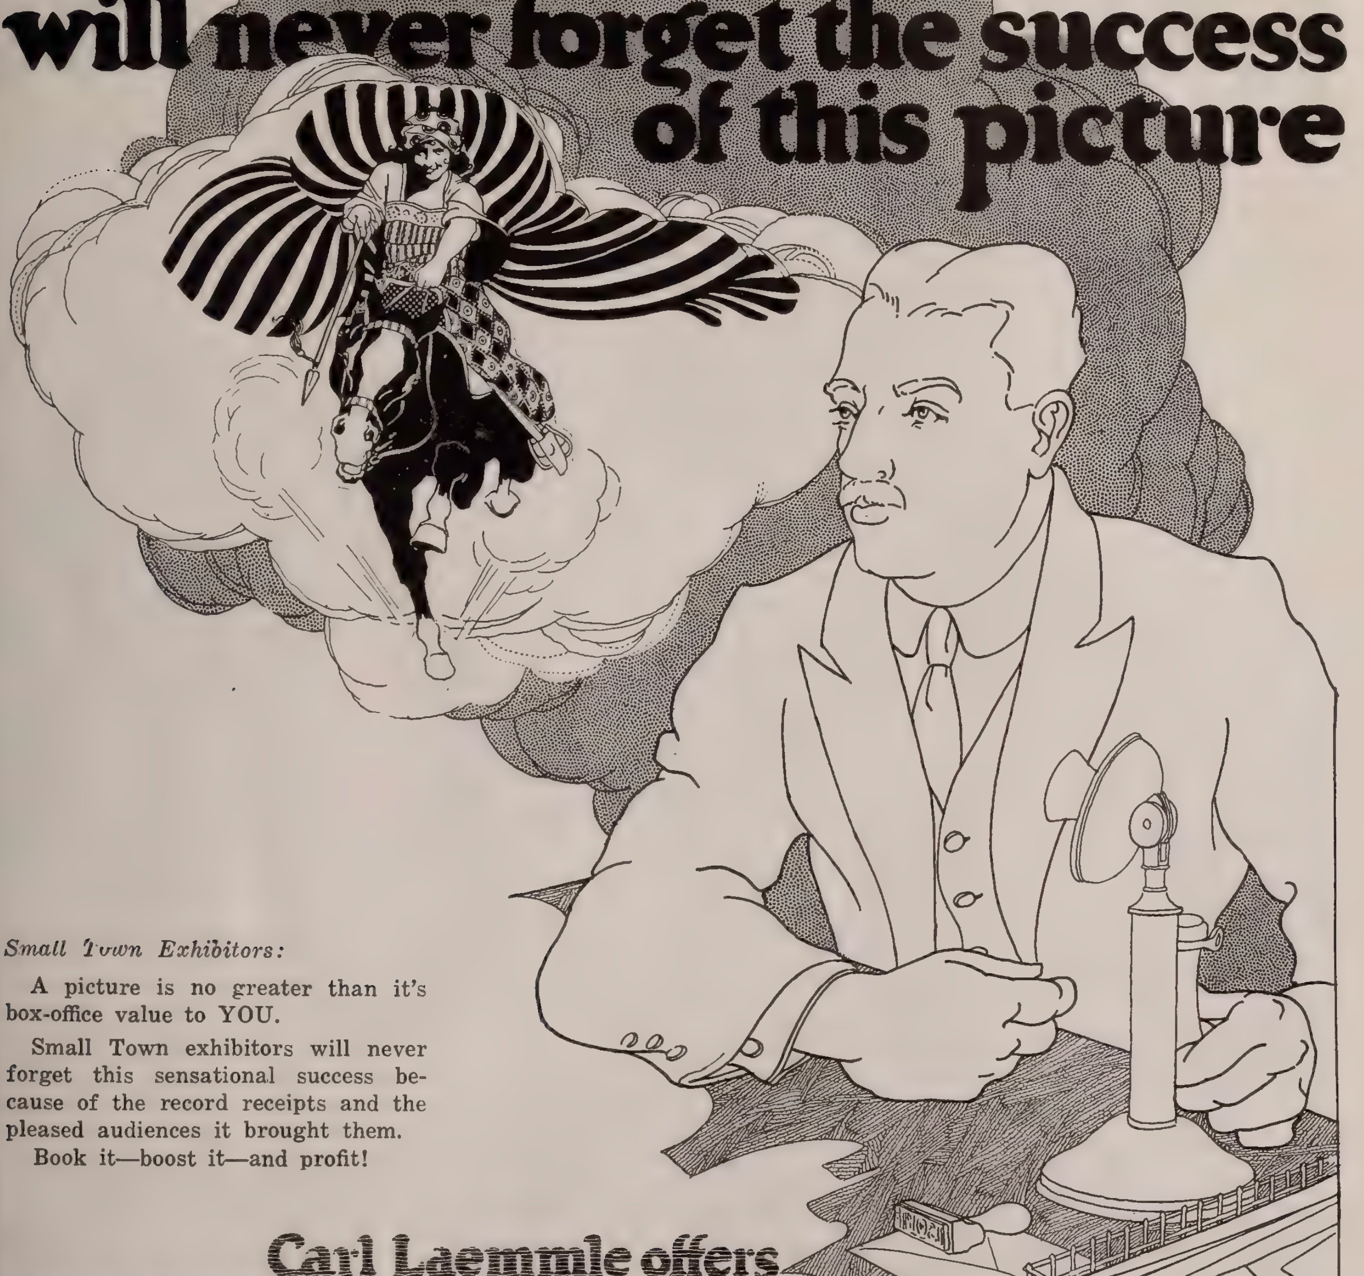
UNIVERSAL is and always will be for the highest and best interests of the exhibitors. Not bunk—not charity—but just plain good business sense. For on the success of exhibitors depends our success.

TAKE advantage of this low-price, big-production offer and—CLEAN UP!

Don't Delay!
To-Day's the Day!

Special Combination Offer

Small Town Exhibitors will never forget the success of this picture



Small Town Exhibitors:

A picture is no greater than it's box-office value to YOU.

Small Town exhibitors will never forget this sensational success because of the record receipts and the pleased audiences it brought them.

Book it—boost it—and profit!

Carl Laemmle offers

PRISCILLA DEAN

in Tod Browning's Universal-Jewel

"The Virgin of Stamboul"

Look! the "Wi

dcat" is Back!

putation

THERE is only one Dean! Only one "Wildcat of the Screen"! Only one actress today on whom you can count absolutely for a ripping, tearing sensation every time she appears. And there's only one theatre in your town that can show this newest Dean wonder first. Make that theatre yours —right now—today—by wire. Your big Campaign Folder should be on your desk while you read this. New promotion ideas, new process ad cuts, new helps of every kind—an always new star. Get busy now.

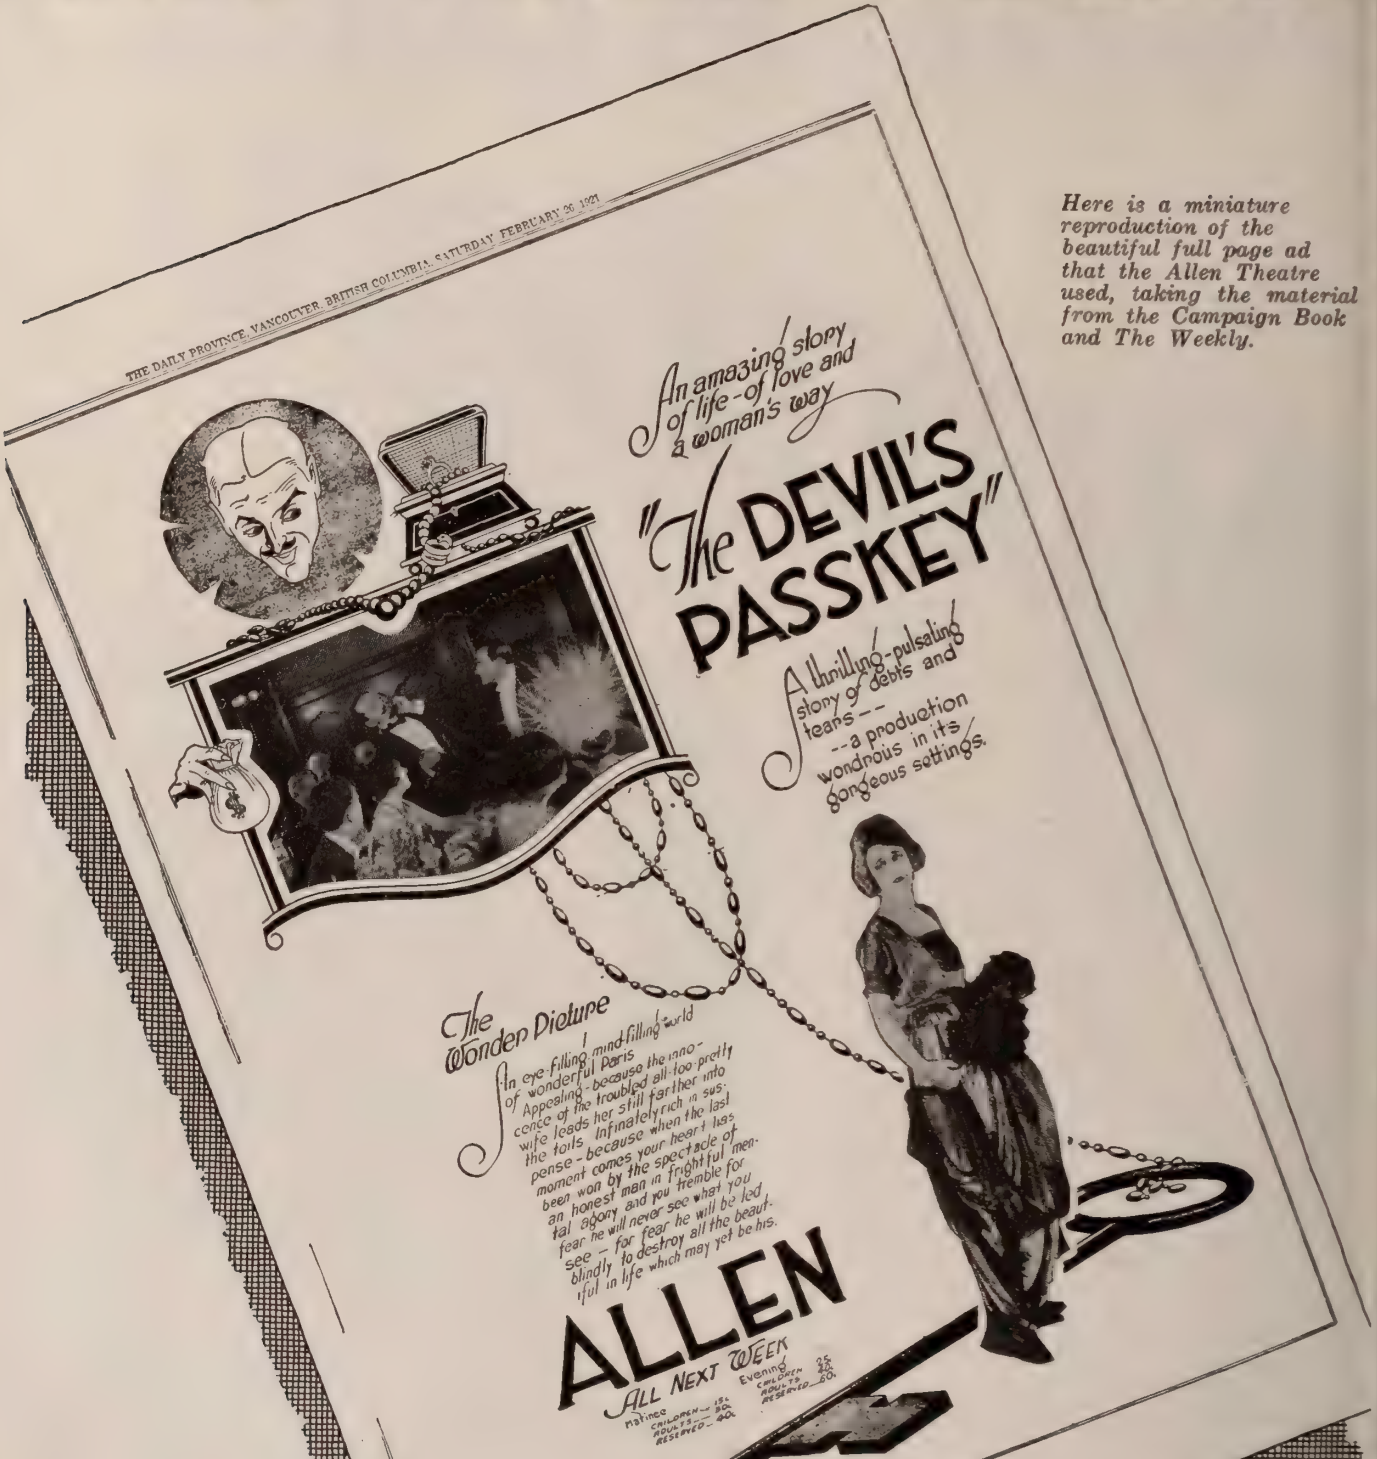
Carl Laemmle presents Stuart Paton's Tremendous Drama of Woman against Woman. A Universal-Jewel Production de Luxe.

Adapted by Lucien Hubbard from Edwina Levin's novel, "False Colors."

Starring

PRISCILLA DEAN

Allen Theatre Backs



THE DAILY PROVINCE, VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 26, 1921

An amazing story of life—of love and a woman's way

"The DEVIL'S PASSKEY"

A thrilling—pulsating story of debts and tears— —a production wondrous in its gorgeous settings.

The Wonder Picture

An eye-filling mind-filling world of wonderful Paris

Appealing—because the innocence of the troubled all-too-pretty wife leads her still farther into the toils. Infinately rich in suspense—because when the last moment comes your heart has been won by the spectacle of an honest man in frightful mental agony and you tremble for fear he will never see what you see—for fear he will be led blindly to destroy all the beautiful in life which may yet be his.

ALLEN

ALL NEXT WEEK

Matinee
CHILDREN—15c
ADULTS—30c
RESERVED—40c

Evening
CHILDREN 25c
ADULTS 40c
RESERVED—60c

Here is a miniature reproduction of the beautiful full page ad that the Allen Theatre used, taking the material from the Campaign Book and The Weekly.

lt Up With Page Ads!

Picture months old-but new to house and patrons-exhibitor puts it over in great style-packs house

Still, the Small Towns
Best Bet!

THE Allen Theatre of Vancouver, B. C., is run by a real, wide-awake showman. When he booked "The Devil's Passkey" he knew that he had a wonderful and extraordinarily successful production. He knew, altho it was some months since it had been released, it had never played his town and therefore would be absolutely new to his patrons.

MORE, as a wise showman, he knew that it should be played up in a big way. This he did by using newspaper space liberally, "lifting" his material from the Campaign Book and The Weekly.

THE results bore out the oft-repeated contention that this is a tremendous drawing card and worth putting over right. Book it and boost it—the picture will do the rest!

Von Stroheim's

Amazing play of life and love and a woman's ways

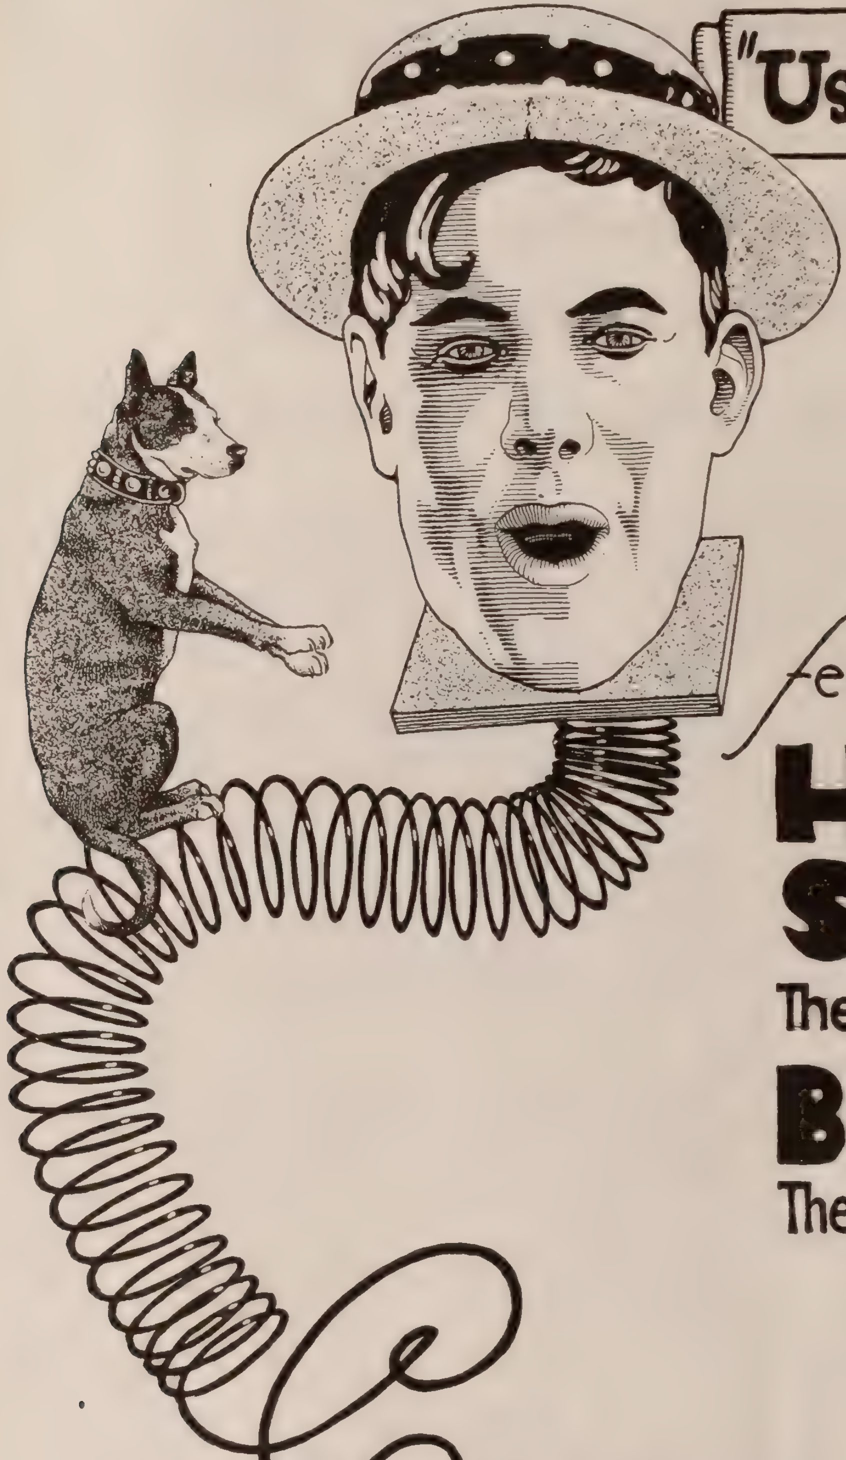
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

"The Devil's Passkey"

"Using Century Co



featuring

HARRY SWEET

The Merry Comic and

BROWNIE

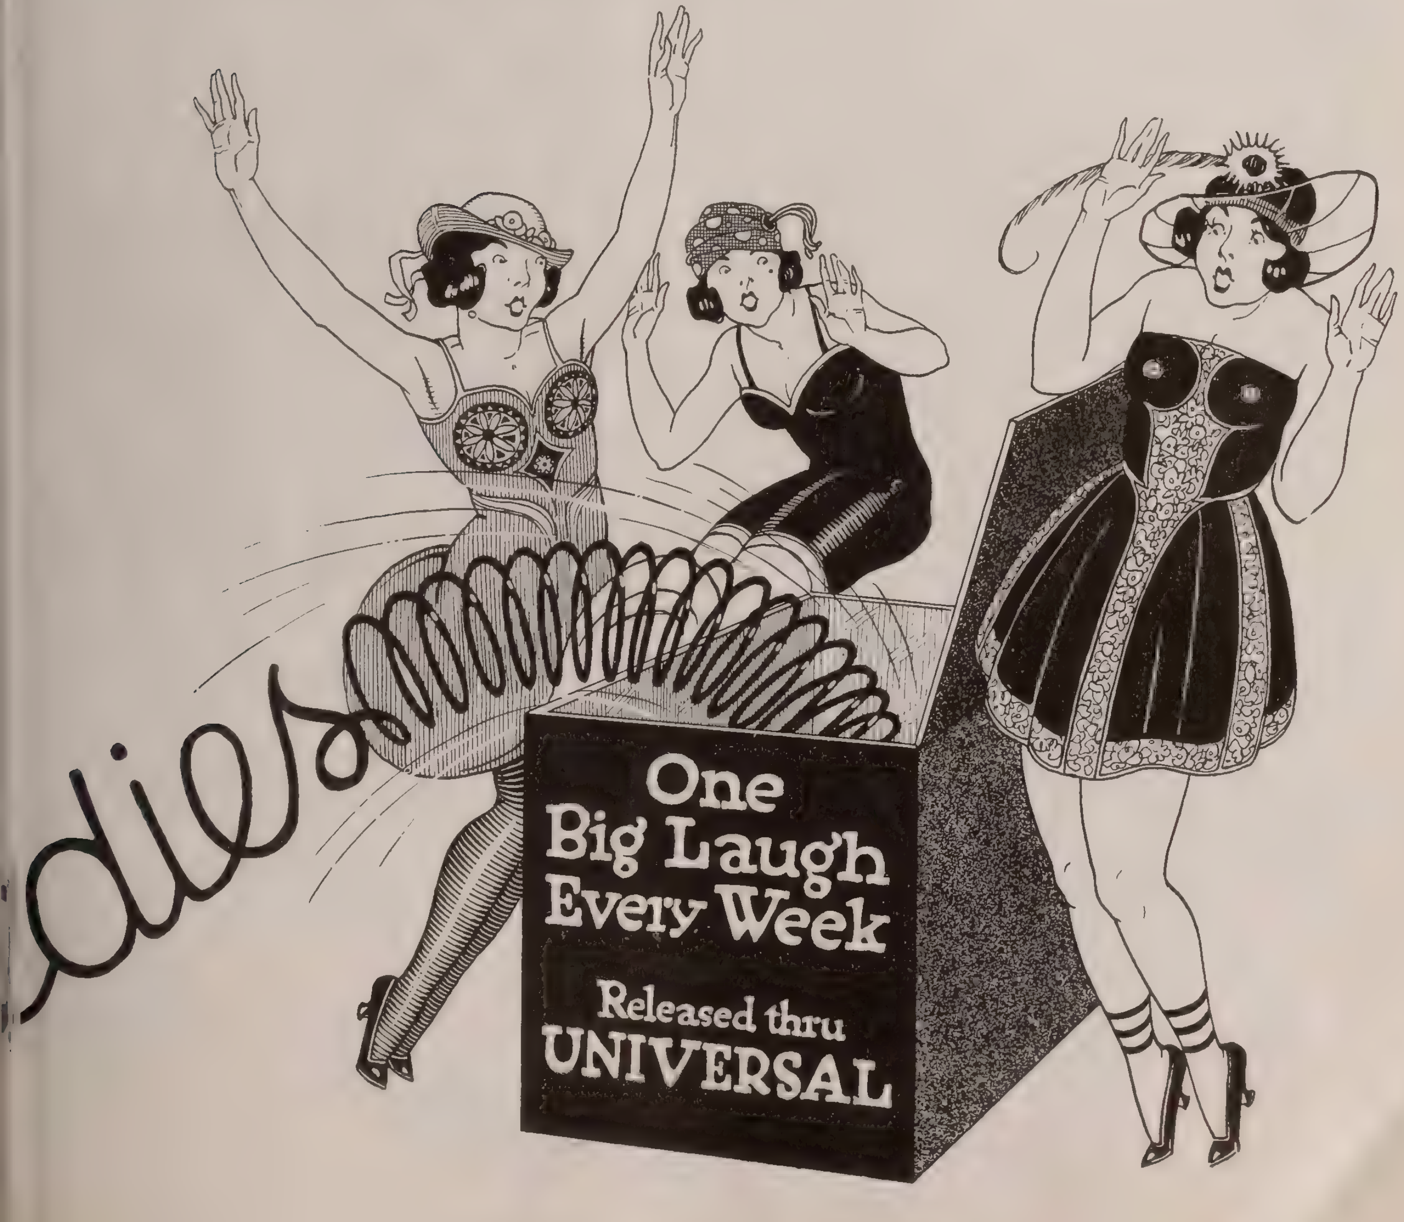
The Century Wonder Dog

Century Com

medies in All our 30 Theatres !"

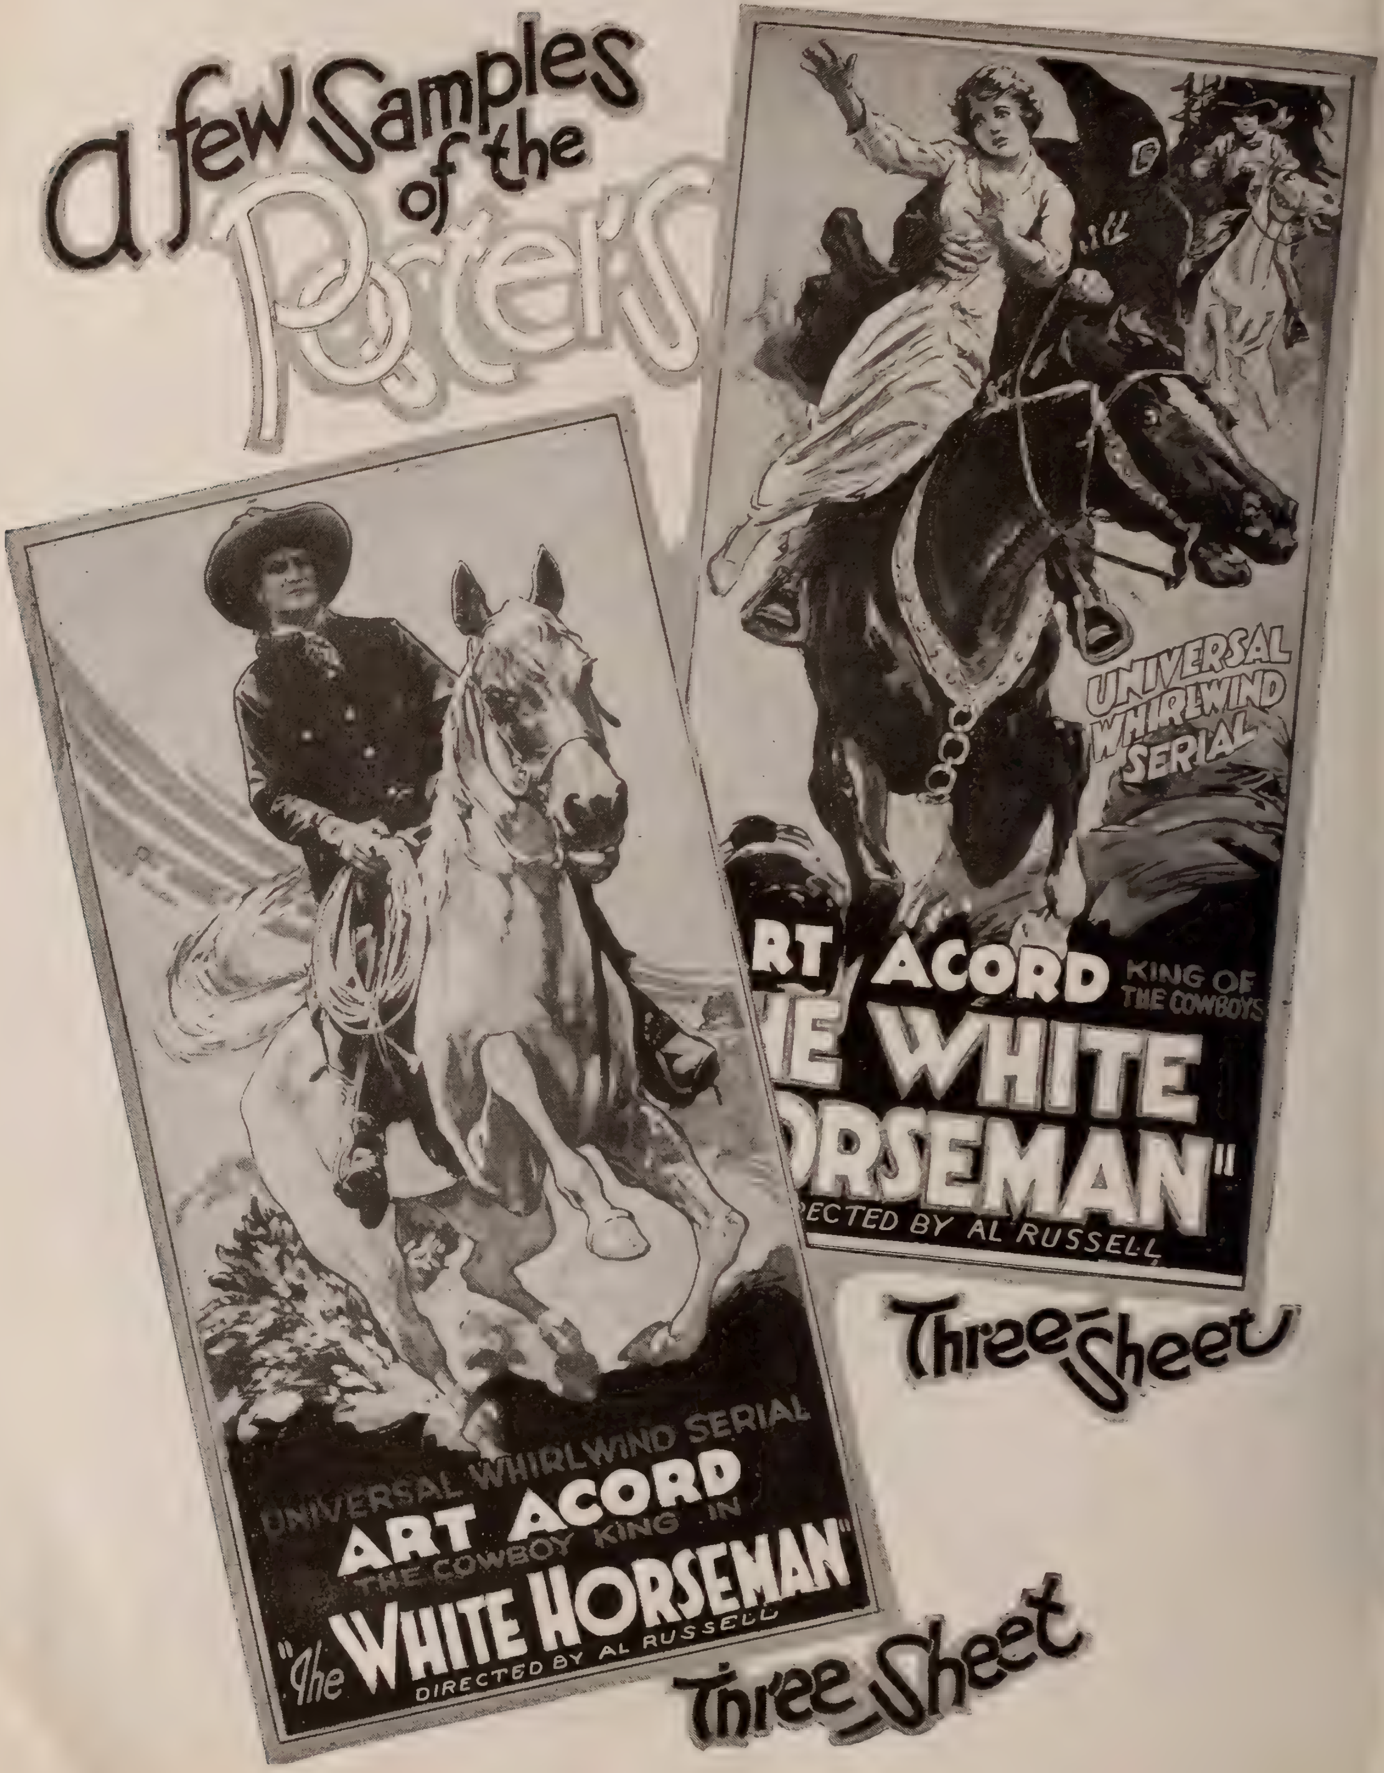
—Gore Bros. and Sol. Lesser

"WE have been using your 'Century Comedies' over our entire circuit of thirty theatres, and we have found them to be so satisfactory and such real, honest-to-goodness comedies, clean and wholesome with a good hearty laugh in each one, that we feel we ought to tell you just how good they are."



dies
One
Big Laugh
Every Week
Released thru
UNIVERSAL

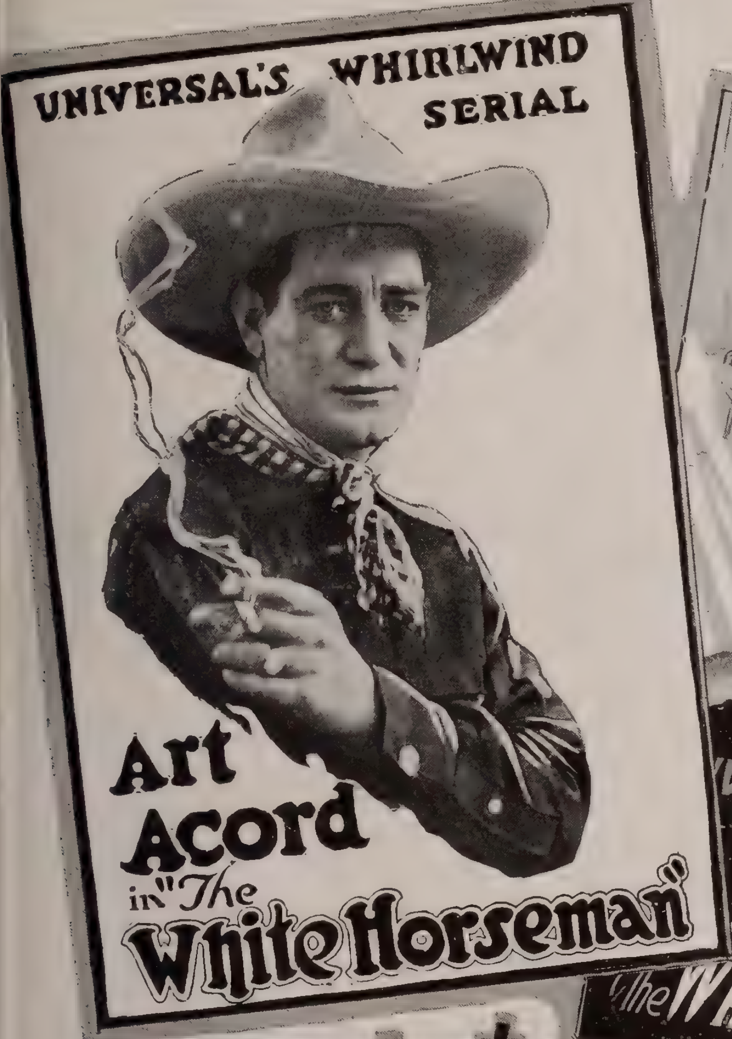
A few Samples of the Posters



UNIVERSAL WHIRLWIND SERIAL
ART ACORD
KING OF THE COWBOYS
"THE WHITE HORSEMAN"
DIRECTED BY AL RUSSELL
UNIVERSAL WHIRLWIND SERIAL
ART ACORD
THE COWBOY KING IN
"The WHITE HORSEMAN"
DIRECTED BY AL RUSSELL

Three-Sheet

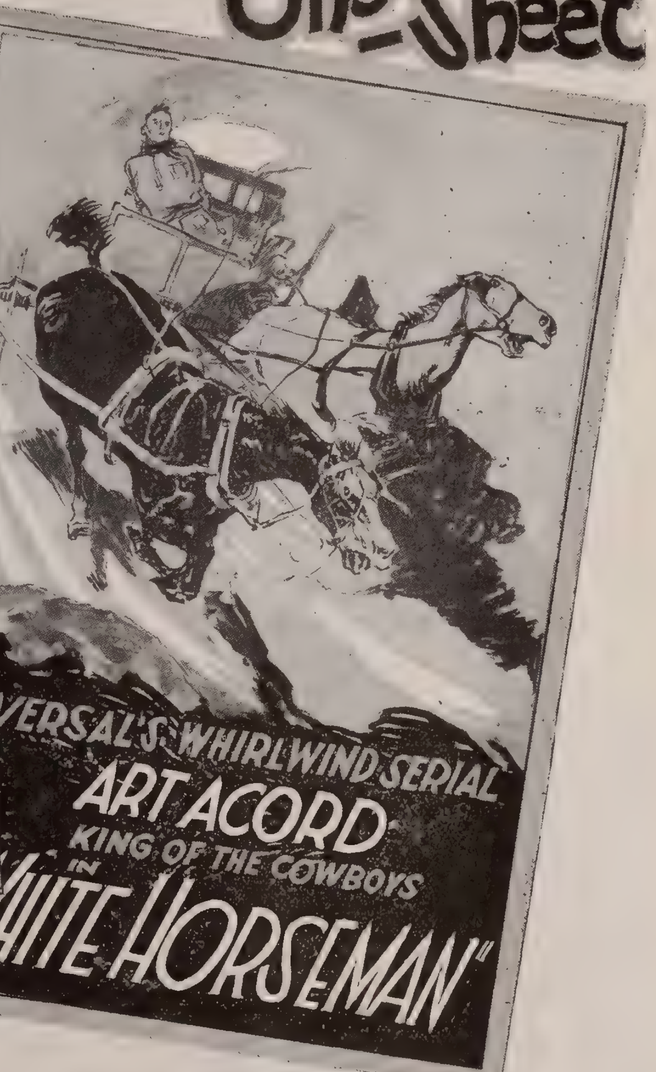
Three-Sheet



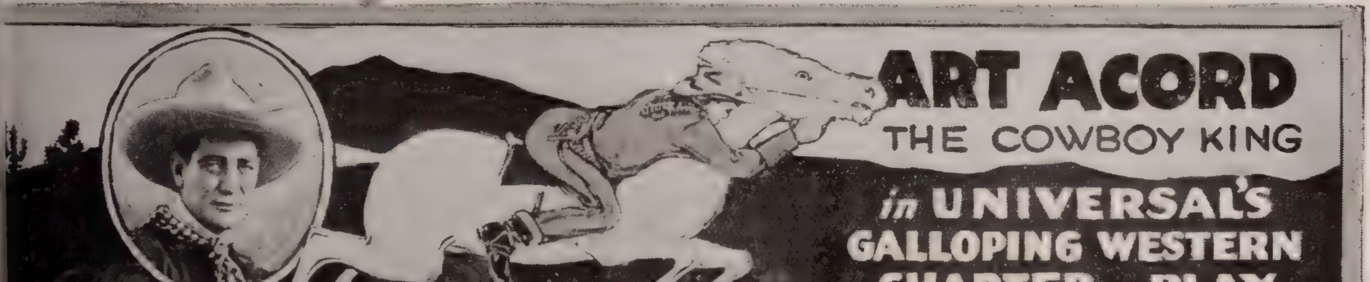
UNIVERSAL'S WHIRLWIND SERIAL
Art Acord
in "The White Horseman"

One-Sheet

One-Sheet

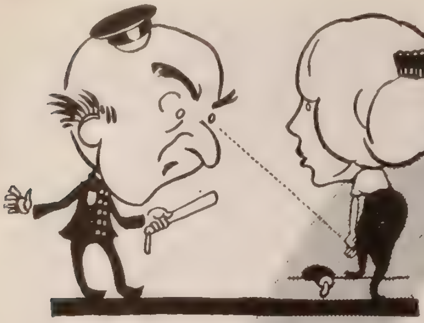


UNIVERSAL'S WHIRLWIND SERIAL
ART ACORD
KING OF THE COWBOYS
IN
"The WHITE HORSEMAN"

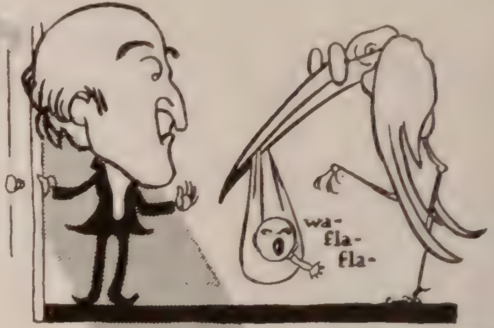


ART ACORD
THE COWBOY KING
in UNIVERSAL'S
GALLOPING WESTERN
CHAPTER PLAY
"The WHITE HORSEMAN"
DIRECTED BY AL. RUSSELL

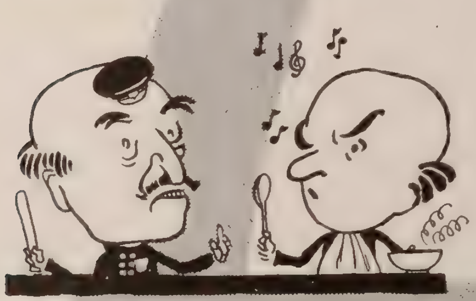
the Banner



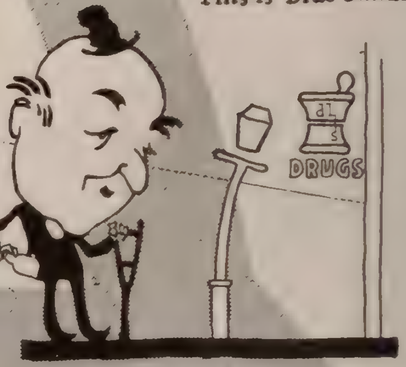
Can't bank to-day!
This is "Blue Sunday"



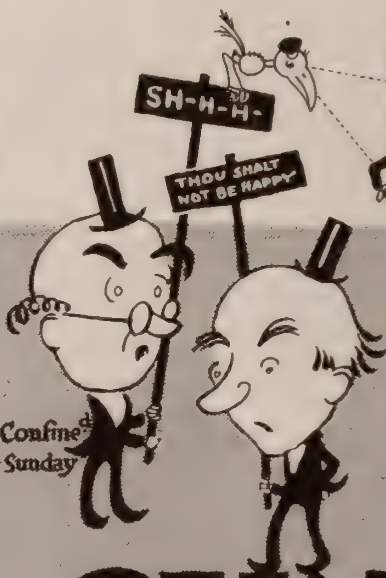
Receiving Dept. Closed!
This is "Blue Sunday"



Can that Music!
This is "Blue Sunday"



No hip ailments!
This is "Blue Sunday"



SH-H-H-
THOU SHALT NOT BE HAPPY

Let Joy be Confined!
This is "Blue Sunday"

"BLUE SUNDAY"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL 2-REEL COMEDY

STARRING

LYONS
AND MORAN

Don't Envy Me!

"Monkey Stuff"
"The Jazz Monkey"
"A Monkey Hero"

"A MONKEY HERO" is right. No real man could play piano with his back turned on whats-behind-me and not be a hero. Rescuing the Kid Wonder from the Burning House in the Second Reel of my new show is a cinch compared to what that Simonlegree Harry Burns makes me do in this scene. Say! Isn't a monkey supposed to have any rights at all?"

Tearfully yours,
JOE MARTIN.

Carl Laemmle presents

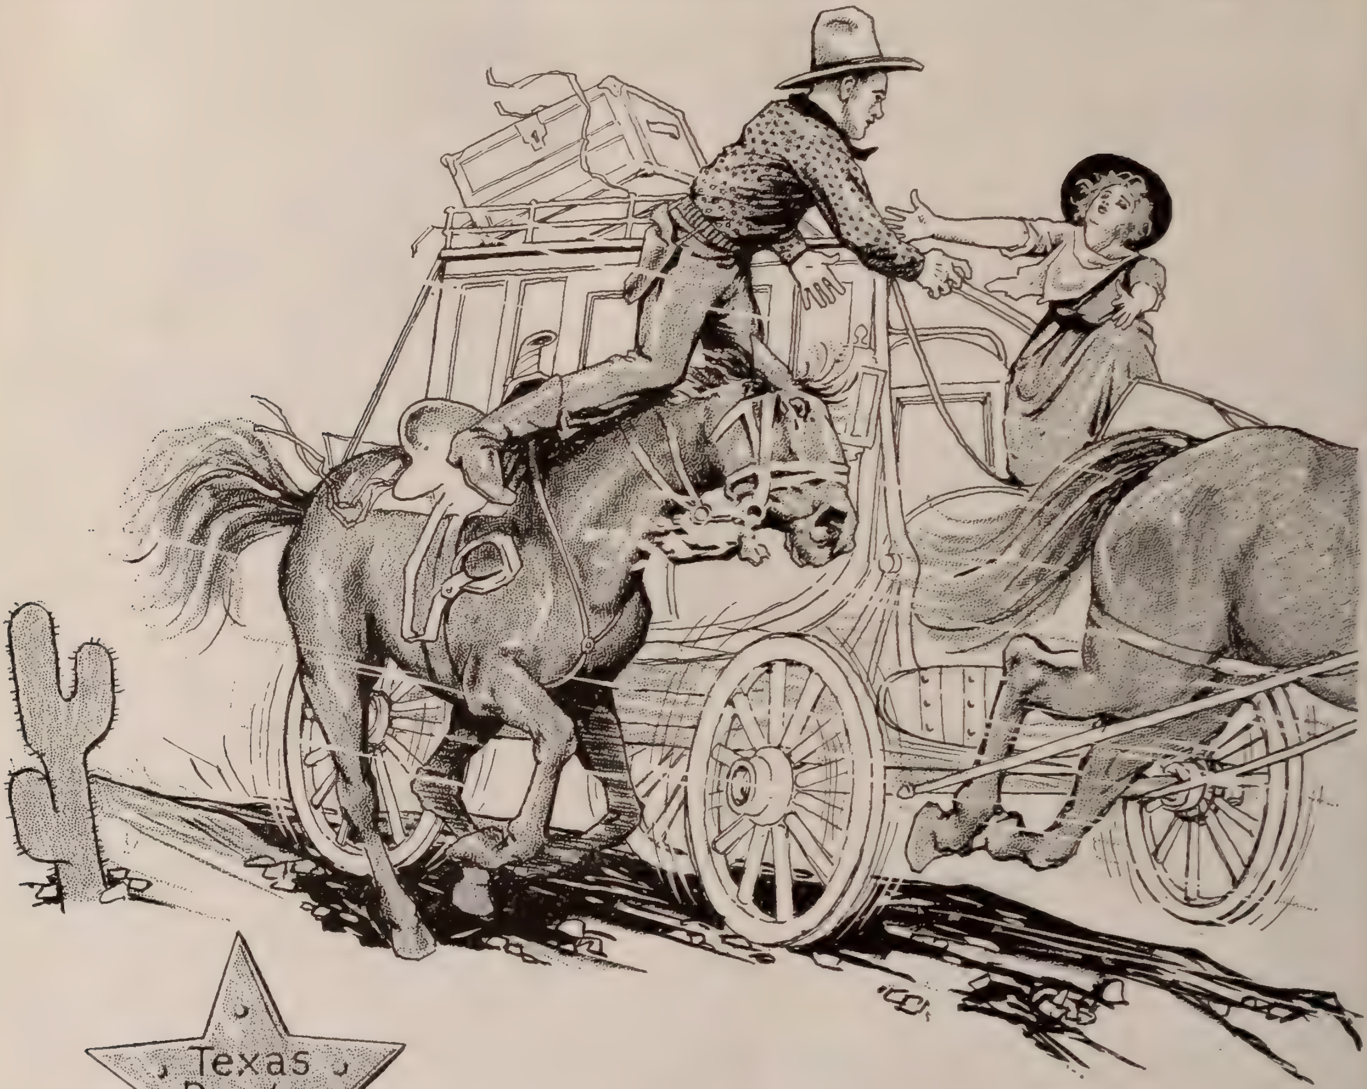
JOE MARTIN

UNIVERSAL - JEWEL COMEDIES.



Texas Ranger Series

THERE'S more real action—more real plot—and more real romance and pep in these Texas Ranger Two-reelers of HOOT GIBSON'S than you'll find in many a five-reel feature put out by competing producers. The reason lies first in the Star and secondly in the fact that Universal has brought the Two-reel Action Western to a state of perfection that nobody else in the business can touch. Sign up for this whole Series right now—today. Three already released—the others coming along fast. Take our word for it—this new TEXAS RANGER SERIES is the real Peruvian doughnuts—one whirl of action from start to finish.

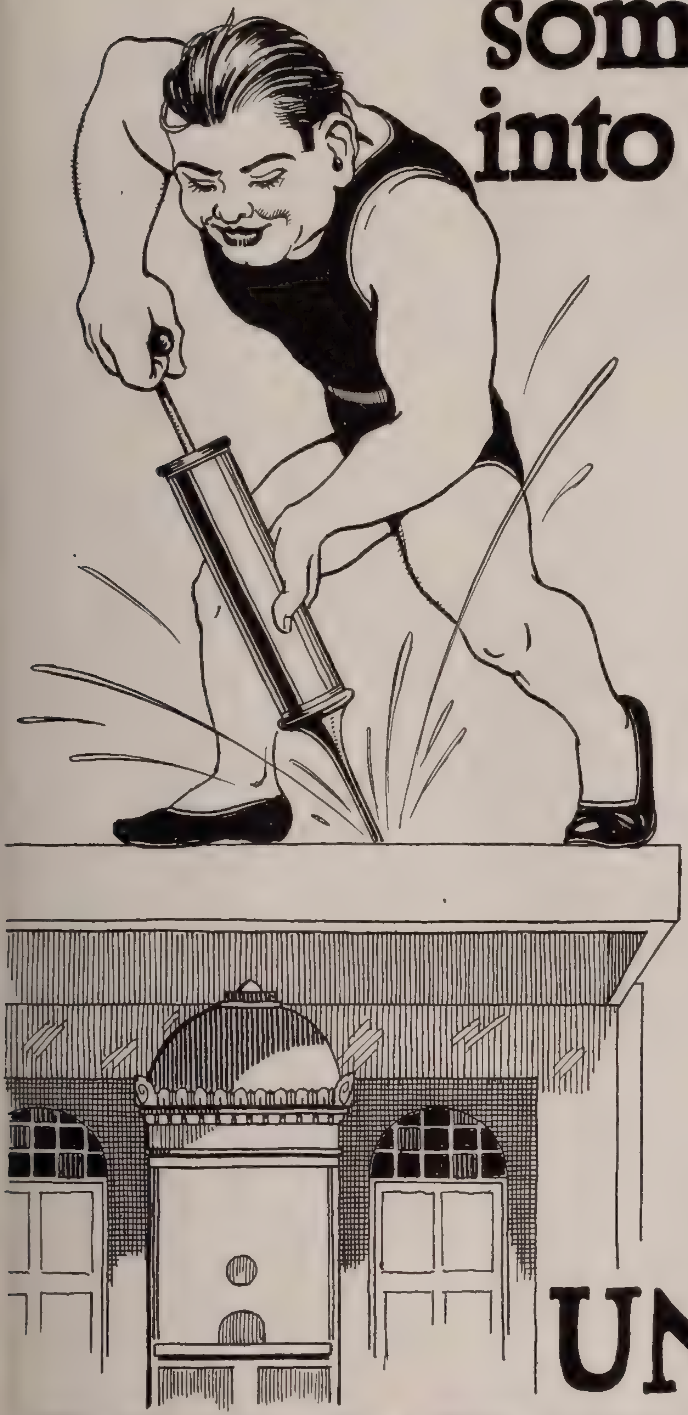
Released.

"The Cactus Kid"
"Who Was The Man"
"Crossed Clues"

Keep Your Eye On

HOOT GIBSON

Let me Shoot some "reel pep" into your House!



WHENEVER a house is found to be doing a poor business, you'll also find—nine times out of ten—that its manager is having hard luck with his short stuff. The reason for this generally is that he spends too much time picking and boosting his features, not realizing that he ought to spend at least an equal amount of time on his short subjects.

Or else, he ought to go to his Universal Exchange and say, simply: "I'll play just what you tell me to play and nothing else. If I win, you win —if I lose, you lose."

Give us a chance at your short stuff business on this basis. Just a chance is all that Universal wants—or needs.

Yours two-reely,

Shorty

The little Giant

UNIVERSAL SHORT STUFF

GENTLEMAN BANDIT SAVES GIRL FROM OUTLAW GANG

"The Outlaw"

CAST

Dandy Dan	Jack Perrin
Ethel Benton	Louise Lorraine
Red Connor	Jim Corey
Buster	Walter Wilkinson
Uncle	Otto Nelson

DANDY DAN is the leader of a band of outlaws who have always managed to elude capture. An unquenchable desire for adventure has led Dan from the straight path of law and order and he finds the means of satisfying his craving in outwitting his pursuers. He meets Ethel Benton, the niece of a wealthy ranch owner, and wins her gratitude when he saves her and her three-year-old brother from possible death in a runaway. Shortly after fate makes him the instrument in saving the life of Buster again, when the youngster has fallen over a cliff in his play and lodged in a projecting bush on the cliffside. Each time he has risked his own life in saving the others. Ethel's admiration and gratitude is unbounded. He hides his true identity from her, but she tells him that "one as noble and brave as you could never be anything but good." Dan is impressed by Ethel's purity and goodness and longs to be what she thinks him.

Plot Against Leader

Red Connor is a member of Dan's band of outlaws who is jealous of his leader and covets the leadership for himself. He discovers Dan's infatuation for Ethel and uses it as an instrument to serve his purpose of deposing Dan. He breeds dissatisfaction among the other outlaws and persuades them to join him in a scheme that will encompass Dan's downfall as leader and also win them a big stake.

Ethel is lured to a deserted shack where the band has been in hiding, thinking Dan has been hurt and is possibly dying. She is made a prisoner.

Learns Dan's Secret

Ethel is horror-stricken when she learns that Dan is the leader of the outlaws, and in the bitterness of her disillusionment turns on Dan and scores him roundly. Dan sees the others are watching for any overt movement on his part and is forced to dissemble to gain time.

Red suspects that Dan is playing a double game when he apparently falls in with the scheme to hold Ethel for ransom. He attacks Ethel to make Dan show his hand. Dan turns on him furiously. Red protests the girl belongs to him since he got her there and appeals to the gang for support. They favor Red. Dan turns on them furiously, tells them they will have to "get" him before they get the girl. Taken by surprise by Dan's action the band start for him. He hurls Red at them, knocking a couple of them down. A wallop on the jaw stops the other man momentarily. Dan grabs Ethel and rushes her out of the door, turning to meet the others as they start for him.

Jack Perrin as "Dandy Dan," the outlaw.

In the fight that follows, Red slips out with one of the men to recapture Ethel. Dan disposes of the other two and starts in pursuit. He shoots the outlaw with Red, but is in turn wounded by Red. Slumped in the saddle, his gun gone, he urges his horse on and overtakes Red. He hurls himself on Red and the two men fall to the ground battling.

Ethel's uncle has become alarmed at her absence and starts a search for her. They arrive on the scene as Red is about to make his getaway from Dan who has become weakened from his wound. Later Dan is shown the way to a new life by Ethel who asks to be allowed to help him forget the past.

NO WEDDING BELLS FOR ZULU CHIEF—

"Zulu Love"

One-reel Star Comedy

Featuring
EDDIE BARRY

FEENEY has been living at his aunt's home while she was traveling in the South Seas. When he learns that she is returning from the Zulu Islands he decides to transform her home into a Zulu Island house. He places spears, arrow heads, shields and skulls on the walls of the house and places the skins of wild animals on the floor. Feeney persuades Eddie, a friend, to dress up as a Zulu chief for the homecoming of his aunt.

When the aunt arrives she has a dusky maid of the South Sea island with her. The girl, who resembles an animated cartoon, immediately falls on Eddie's neck.

The aunt decides to have the couple married and brings a minister to the house. Feeney tells the aunt that the chief is already married, but she says that it is customary for the Zulu chiefs to have three or four wives.

This was too much and Eddie takes off his disguise and flees. The jilted Southern beauty goes outside where she sees the colored gardener and it is a case of love at first sight.

International News

No. 31

Los Angeles, Cal.—Auto classic winner sets furious pace. Jimmy Murphy averages 109 miles an hour in annual speed contest.

In the Public Eye.—General Leonard Wood sails to study conditions in Philippines—Seattle, Wash.

Melissa, Texas.—Trail of ruin in path of Southern tornado. Forerunner of storm which swept a score of States, wrecks many homes. (Omit from Boston and Philadelphia.)

Oakland, Cal.—Western crews in neck-and-neck race. University of California oarsmen best Washington by just five feet.

Norfolk, England.—Mooring mast for air giants proves success. Anchored dirigibles saved from gales which heretofort have wrecked aircraft at rest.

Nice, France.—A flight over Nice. Air views of the famous French resort which is surpassing its pre-war record for gayety.

Near Balikesri, Asia Minor.—Turks in desperate battles in Smyrna. Trench warfare resumed as Greek army halts advance of Mustapha Kemal's troops.

CURRENT RELEASES

Special Attractions

Starring
HARRY CAREY
"Hearts Up!"
"'If Only Jim"
"The Freeze Out"
"The Wallop"

Starring
FRANK MAYO
"Tiger True"
"Colorado"
"The Magnificent Brute"
"The Blazing Trail"

Starring
LYONS-MORAN
"La La Lucille"
"Fixed By George"
"A Shocking Night"

Starring
EDITH ROBERTS
"White Youth"
"The Fire Cat"
"The Unknown Wife"

Starring
CARMEL MYERS
"The Gilded Dream"
"Beautifully Trimmed"
"The Mad Marriage"
"The Dangerous Moment"

Starring
EVA NOVAK
"Wanted At Headquarters"
"The Torrent"
"Society Secrets"
"The Smart Sex"

Starring
GLADYS WALTON
"Risky Business'"
"Rich Girl, Poor Girl"
"All Dolled Up"
"Desperate Youth"

Starring
"BREEZY EASON"
"The Big Adventure"

Jewels

Starring
PRISCILLA DEAN
"The Virgin Of Stamboul"
"Outside The Law"
"Reputation"

"Once To Every Woman"
(with Dorothy Phillips)

"Blind Husbands"
"The Devil's Passkey"
"Shipwrecked Among Cannibals"
"The Great Air Robbery"
"The Breath Of The Gods"
(with Tsuru Aoki)
"Under Crimson Skies"
(with Elmo Lincoln)
"Blue Sunday"
(With Lyons and Moran)

Starring
JOE MARTIN
(Two Reels)
"No Monkey Business"
"A Monkey Hero"

Two Reel Western Dramas

Starring
HOOT GIBSON
"Kickaroo"
"Out O' Luck"
"The Cactus Kid"
"Who Was The Man?"
"Crossed Clues"

Starring
JACK PERRIN
"The Midnight Raiders"
"The Knockout Man"
"The Guilty Trail"
"The Outlaw"

Starring
LON CHANEY"
"The Empty Gun"

Serials

Starring
EDDIE POLO
"The Vanishing Dagger"
"King Of The Circus"

Starring
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The Great Radium Mystery"
"The Diamond Queen"

Starring
ELMO LINCOLN
"The Flaming Disk"

Starring
MARIE WALCAMP
"The Dragon's Net"

Starring
ART ACORD
"The White Horseman"

Two Reel Century Comedies

"Leaping Lions and Jailbirds"
"Vamps and Scamps"
"Her Circus Man"
"The Dog Doctor"
"Seeing Is Believing"
"Tough Luck"
"Harem-Skarem"
"On With The Show"
"The Kid's Pal"
"The Country Heir"
"Dandy Lions"

One Reel Star Comedies

"Won: One Flivver"
"A Waiting Maid"
"Bring On The Groom"
"Twin Husbands"
"When Eve Fell"
"Who Kissed Me?"
"Movie-Struck"
"Short and Sweet"
"Oh, Tessie!"
"The Truck Horse Bandit"
"Zulu Love"

INTERNATIONAL NEWS TWICE - A - WEEK

Thrilling Auto Stunts Shown in Diamond Mystery

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN"

Episode 17

"The Hand of Fate"

CAST

Doris	Eileen Sedgwick
Bruce	George Cheseboro
Benson	Al Smith
Martin Harvey	Alfred Fisher
Aline	Josephine Scott
Zeidt	Frank Clarke
Zimba	Al Smith

BRUCE and Doris escape death when the doomed plane by chance falls into a deep-flowing river, which breaks the fall and quenches the flames. Bruce reaches the river bank with Doris and revives her, but they find that Benson, who had witnessed their miraculous escape, has landed nearby and is again attacking him.

Bruce and Doris attempt a perilous crossing of the river on a fallen tree at the end of a water-fall and rapids. When they are half way across, Benson, aiming at Bruce from the shore, fires his revolver, but the bullet strikes Doris, who falls over the cataract into the whirling rapids below. Bruce plunges into the water to save her and after a desperate struggle succeeds in reaching the opposite shore.

At dawn Bruce and Doris find a conveyance and set out for her home, where they intend to make a fresh start for Martin Harvey's secluded cottage in Coaldale.

Benson's men search Aline's home and find the message taken by the carrier pigeon. Bruce and Doris arrive at her home, find Aline and learn what has happened. Bruce and Doris leap into an auto and speed off in an effort to overtake Benson's men. Far out on the country road they catch up with the crooks, but before Bruce's car passes, Doris cleverly gets onto the rear of the crook's car, while Bruce drives on ahead of the crooks, who do not recognize him or suspect what has happened. Doris then fires a revolver in such a manner that her foes think a tire has blown out, but when they stop to repair it, she slips along the runboard on the opposite side and gets to the driver's seat, starts the car and speeds off, leaving the crooks stranded in the road. Bruce then takes Doris back into his own car, while the car of the crooks is allowed to plunge over the high embankment. The crooks commandeer another car from a passing motorist and take up the chase.

Outside the cottage, Zimba, the African half-caste, has peered through the windows and witnessed the overpowering of Bruce and Doris, who are tied and helpless in a room separate from that in which is the trap door. Zimba decides upon a crude plan as a means to thwart Doris' foes and at the same time free her. He sets off a heavy charge of explosive against the partition between the two rooms on the chance that it will annihilate the crooks, but, being set so that its force will not be directed toward Doris and Bruce, leave them unharmed. The fuse burns down to the powder. The explosion comes. We see Doris and Bruce being buried under falling debris before Zimba can get to them.

Eileen Sedgwick
in "THE DIAMOND QUEEN"
A UNIVERSAL SERIAL

Social Note--A Dandy Time Was Had By All. See—

"Dandy Lions"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring
THE CENTURY LIONS

THE star reporter places a cake of ice before an aeroplane propeller so that he can keep cool at his desk. The wind from the propeller blows the papers from the desks in the office and when the editor arrives the office looks as if it was hit by a cyclone. The inventor is fired and goes across the street where is employed in a restaurant.

The artist owner of the restaurant takeksk a liking to the reporter's wife and gives her a job as a waitress, but fires the husband. The reporter sees a crate of lions at the railroad station and frees the animals.

The lions enter the restaurant and effectively put the establishment out of business.

International News

No. 32

New York City.—Giants in first game before home folks. Crowd of 25,000 see McGraw's men bow to Phillies in initial Polo Grounds appearance. (Omit Chicago.)

Welsh Training Park, Summit, N. J.—Jack Dempsey begins training for big bout. Heavyweight champion of the world starts getting in shape for Carpentier down on the farm.

New York City,—Stage stars rehearse for Equity Benefit. Leon Errol turns Chorus Director for big May 1st show at Metropolitan Opera House. (New York City and State.)

Philadelphia, Pa.—Lifting a 310-ton load. Giant crane at Navy Yard handles its "little brother" like a toy. (Omit New York City and State and Chicago prints.)

Ashland, Boston, Mass. — New American record in great marathon. Scores compete in 25-mile road race.

San Francisco, Cal.—Fishermen's fleet leaves for Alaska. Picturesque craft off for Northern waters for ocean's finny treasures.

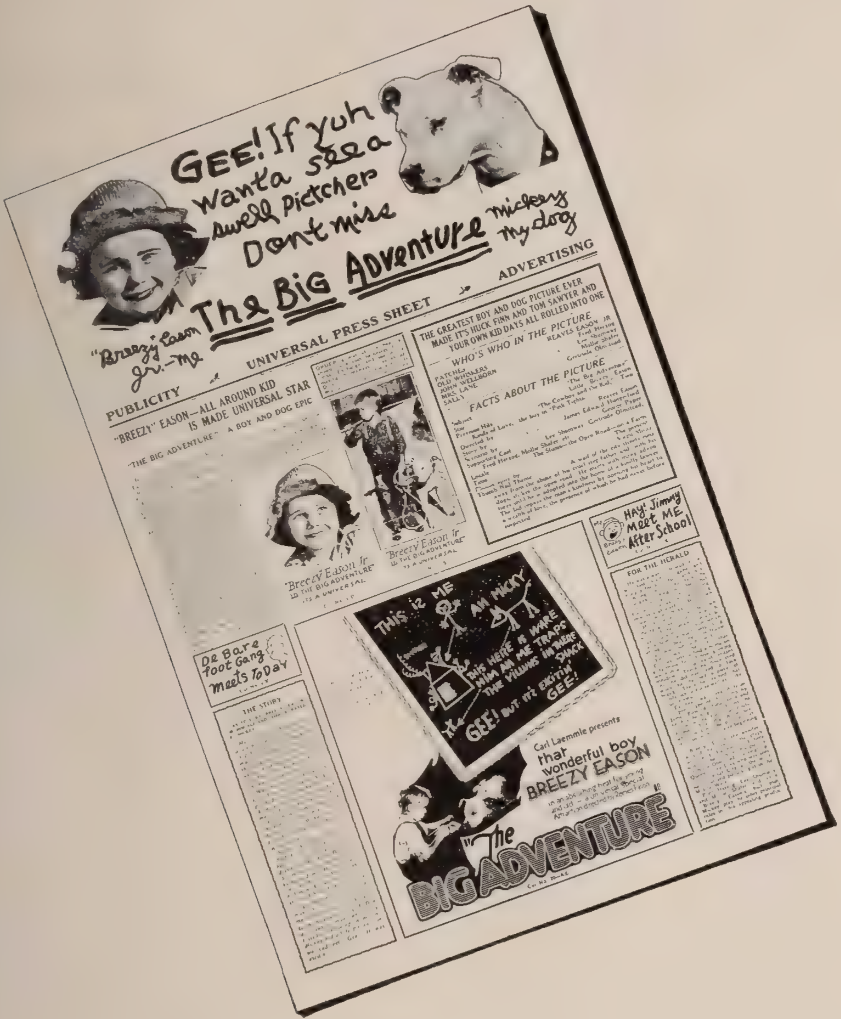
New York City.—Jazz for zoo animals. Fox-trot strains tried out on helpless animals to see what effect is.

Hawthorne Hills, England.—Prince of Wales rides to victory. King and Queen of England see heir to throne display fine horsemanship in steeplechase.

New York City.—President acclaimed at unveiling of statue to South American patriot.

Off San Pedro, Cal.—Pacific fleet in big gun practice. Admiral Rodman sees batteries of twelve 14-inch guns establish new marksmanship records.

One Wonderful Press Sheet!



GEE! If yuh wanta see a swell pitcher Dont miss The Big Adventure

"Breezy" Eason Jr.—Me

Mickey my dog

UNIVERSAL PRESS SHEET

PUBLICITY

ADVERTISING

"BREEZY" EASON—ALL AROUND KID IS MADE UNIVERSAL STAR

"THE BIG ADVENTURE" A BOY AND DOG EPIC

THE GREATEST BOY AND DOG PICTURE EVER MADE IT'S HUCK FINN AND TOM SAWYER AND YOUR OWN KID DAYS ALL ROLLED INTO ONE

WHO'S WHO IN THE PICTURE

FACTS ABOUT THE PICTURE

"Breezy" Eason Jr in THE BIG ADVENTURE ITS A UNIVERSAL

HAY! Jimmy Meet ME After School

FOR THE HERALD

De Bare foot Gang meets ToDay

THE STORY

THIS iz ME

AN MICKY

THIS HERE IS WARE HIM AN ME TRAPS THE VILLUNS IN THERE SHACK

GEE! BUT IT'Z EXITIN' GEE!

Carl Laemmle presents that wonderful boy BREEZY EASON

"The BIG ADVENTURE"

NEWSPAPER ADS

In this wonderful Press Sheet bristling with ideas and aids, you'll find a complete set of striking newspaper ads consisting of two one-column ads, two two-column ads and one three-column ad.

POSTERS

Five beautiful posters lithographed in five colors are at your service. There are two one-sheets, two three-sheets and one six-sheet.

TEASER SLIDES

One of the most original crowd-getting ideas projected in many moons is the set of three teaser slides here fully illustrated.

EXPLOITATION STUNTS

The Press Sheet offers a wealth of material to the wide-awake showman who will spend a little in order to gain much. Every aid is practicable, simple and will cost very little.

PUBLICITY

Advance Notes, Special Advance Stories, Current Notes and ready written Reviews written by men who know what the newspapers want—these are at your disposal in this Press Sheet.

GET YOUR COPY TODAY

Space forbids full mention of the Lobby Display Photos, Herald Ideas, Throwaways, Music Cues, Scene Cuts and numerous other service aids that, if used, will pack your house.

Get a copy of this wonderful Press Sheet today from your Universal Exchange.

That Wonderful Boy "BREEZY" EASON

Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE
in a picture that takes you back through tears and smiles to childhood days

Universal Special Attraction
Directed by Reeves Eason

"The BIG ADVENTURE"

"Traffic In Souls" (Universal)
"The Miracle Man'
"The Birth Of A Nation"
"A Dog's Life"
"Where Are My Children?" (Universal)
"Tarzan Of The Apes"
"The Romance Of Tarzan"
"The Kaiser" (Universal)
"Shoulder Arms"
"My Four Years In Germany"
"Broken Blossoms"
"The Heart Of Humanity" (Universal)
"Civilization"
"A Daughter Of The Gods"
"When The Clouds Roll By"
"Daddy Long Legs"
"Neptune's Daughter" (Universal)
"Mickey"
"Enlighten Thy Daughter"
"Blind Husbands" (Universal)
"Cabiria"
"Quo Vadis"
"The Turn Of The Road"
"The Right To Happiness" (Univeral)
"Eyes Of Youth"
"War Brides"

The 26 Biggest Money-makers ever produced

THIS list was compiled by the Editor of one of the best-known film trade papers in the country. It covers a period of years and comprises those 26 pictures which stand out in the minds of Producers, Exhibitors and Public as the best pictures and the biggest money-makers in the history of the business. This is not a Universal-made list, but a careful survey of the past made by an unbiased judge who knows whereof he speaks.

Of these 26, UNIVERSAL alone has given you SEVEN !

NO better proof of the quality of Universal's productions has ever been offered the theatre-managers of America. Here is the absolute proof-of-the-pudding—the fact that nearly one-quarter of the biggest and best moving pictures that America has ever seen have been given you by a single company — UNIVERSAL — the creation of the outstanding genius of CARL LAEMMLE.

WITH this unparalleled record of financial and artistic success behind it, UNIVERSAL directs your attention to a forthcoming production whose certain triumph is abundantly prophesied by this convincing evidence of superiority. Look for a production (by Von Stroheim) which will set a new mark in profit and artistry for the whole industry to shoot at.

"FOOLISH WIVES"

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL PRODUCTION DE LUXE

The MOVIN E WEEKLY

EVA NOVAK
in
"WOLVES of the NORTH"
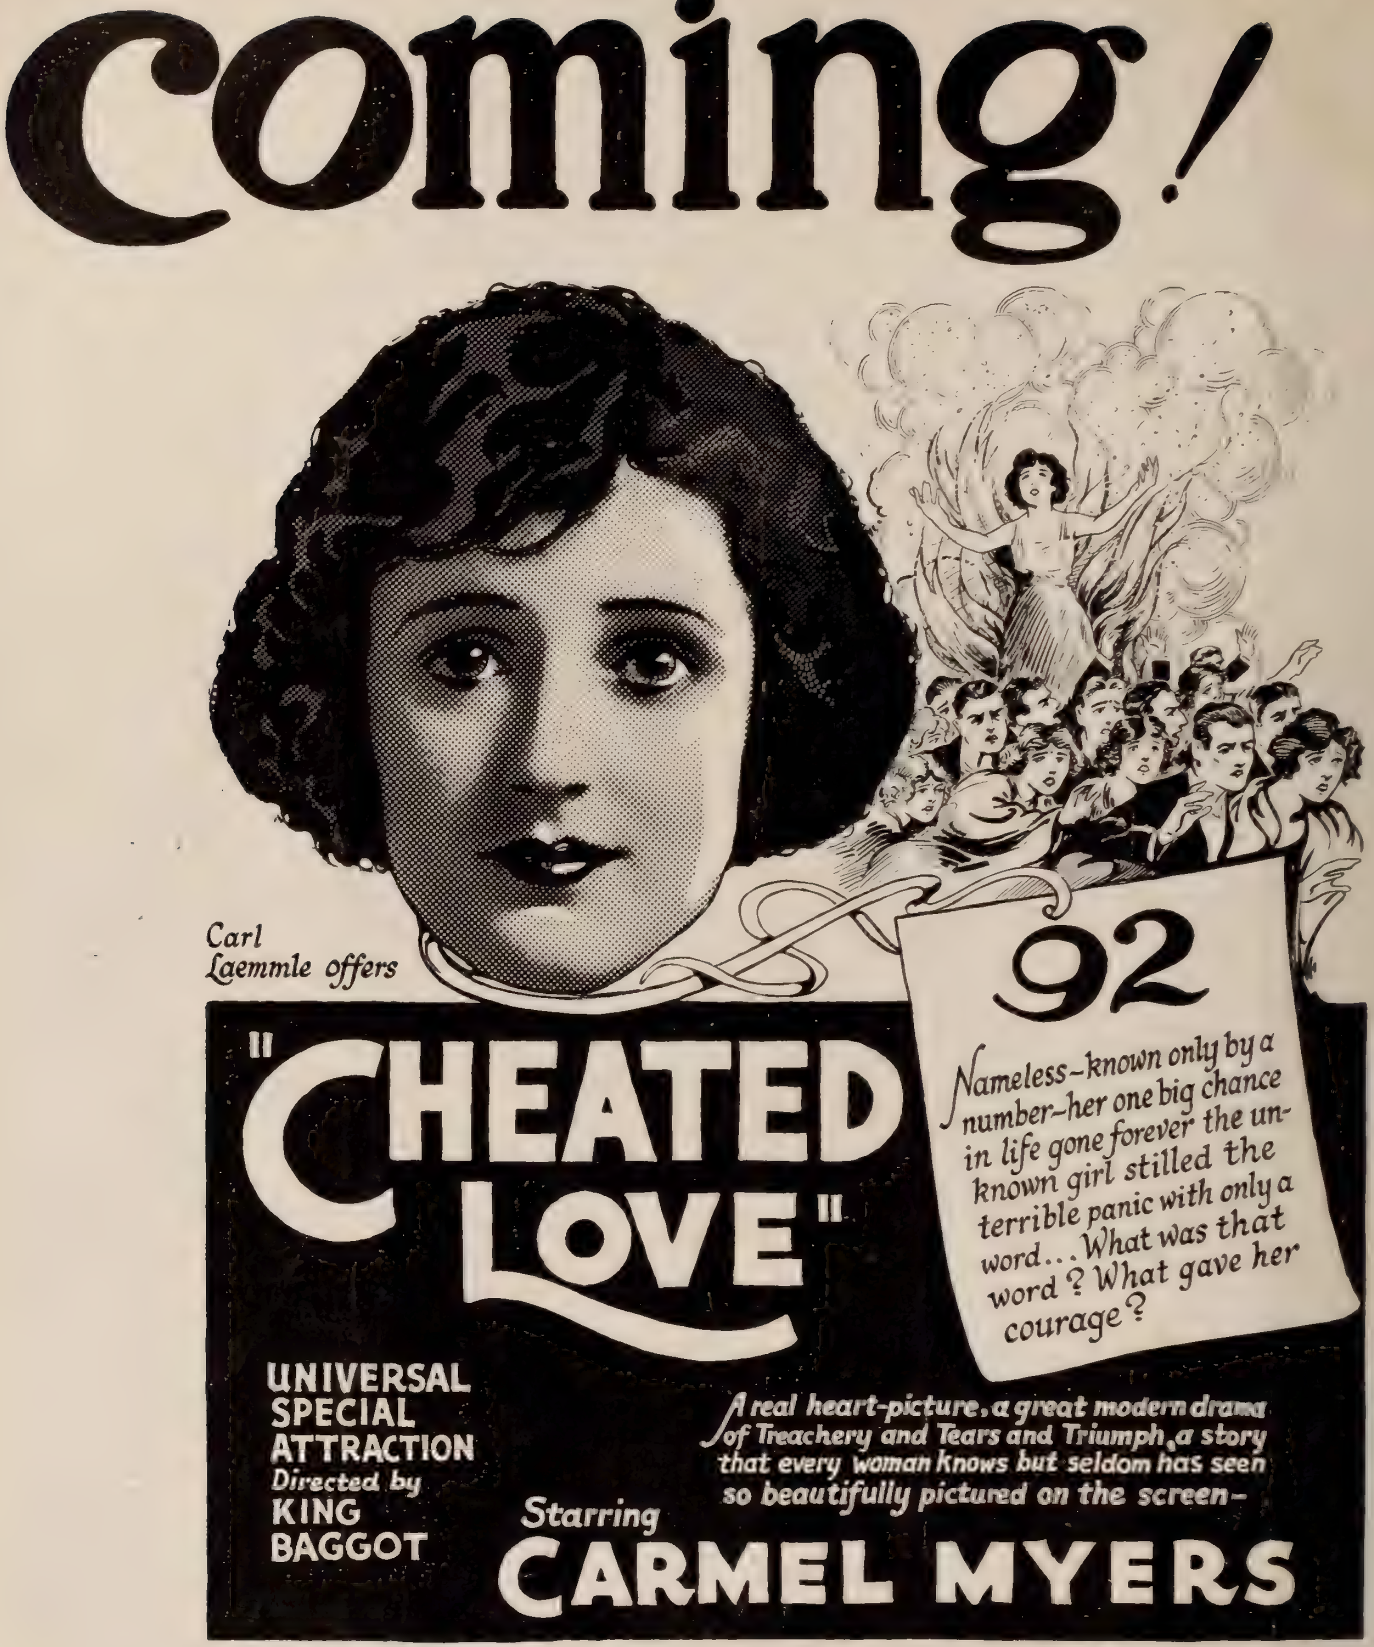
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

VOL 13 NO 13
MAY 14
1 9 2 1



Coming!

Carl Laemmle offers

"CHEATED LOVE"

92

Nameless–known only by a number–her one big chance in life gone forever the unknown girl stilled the terrible panic with only a word... What was that word? What gave her courage?

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
Directed by
KING BAGGOT

A real heart-picture, a great modern drama of Treachery and Tears and Triumph, a story that every woman knows but seldom has seen so beautifully pictured on the screen–

Starring
CARMEL MYERS

ABOVE is an exact-size reproduction of the Three-column ad for this coming production, the head of Carmel Myers being made by the new Universal process for better newspaper reproduction. If you add notice of other attractions, tell your newspaper to add them below the black, with a 6-point rule underneath. Your theatre name, of course, goes at the top, in place of the word "Coming".

ARE YOU INSULTED?

UNIVERSAL has the reputation of having the most efficient exploitation department in the business. We have earned that reputation. We are proud of it. Exploitation "puts over" pictures. It makes the difference between breaking even and making a good profit.

Pictures + Exploitation = profit:

Every Universal feature has many carefully thought-out exploitation ideas, originated by experts and embodied in mats and cuts so that all an exhibitor has to do is to order the cuts or mats and use them in his papers.

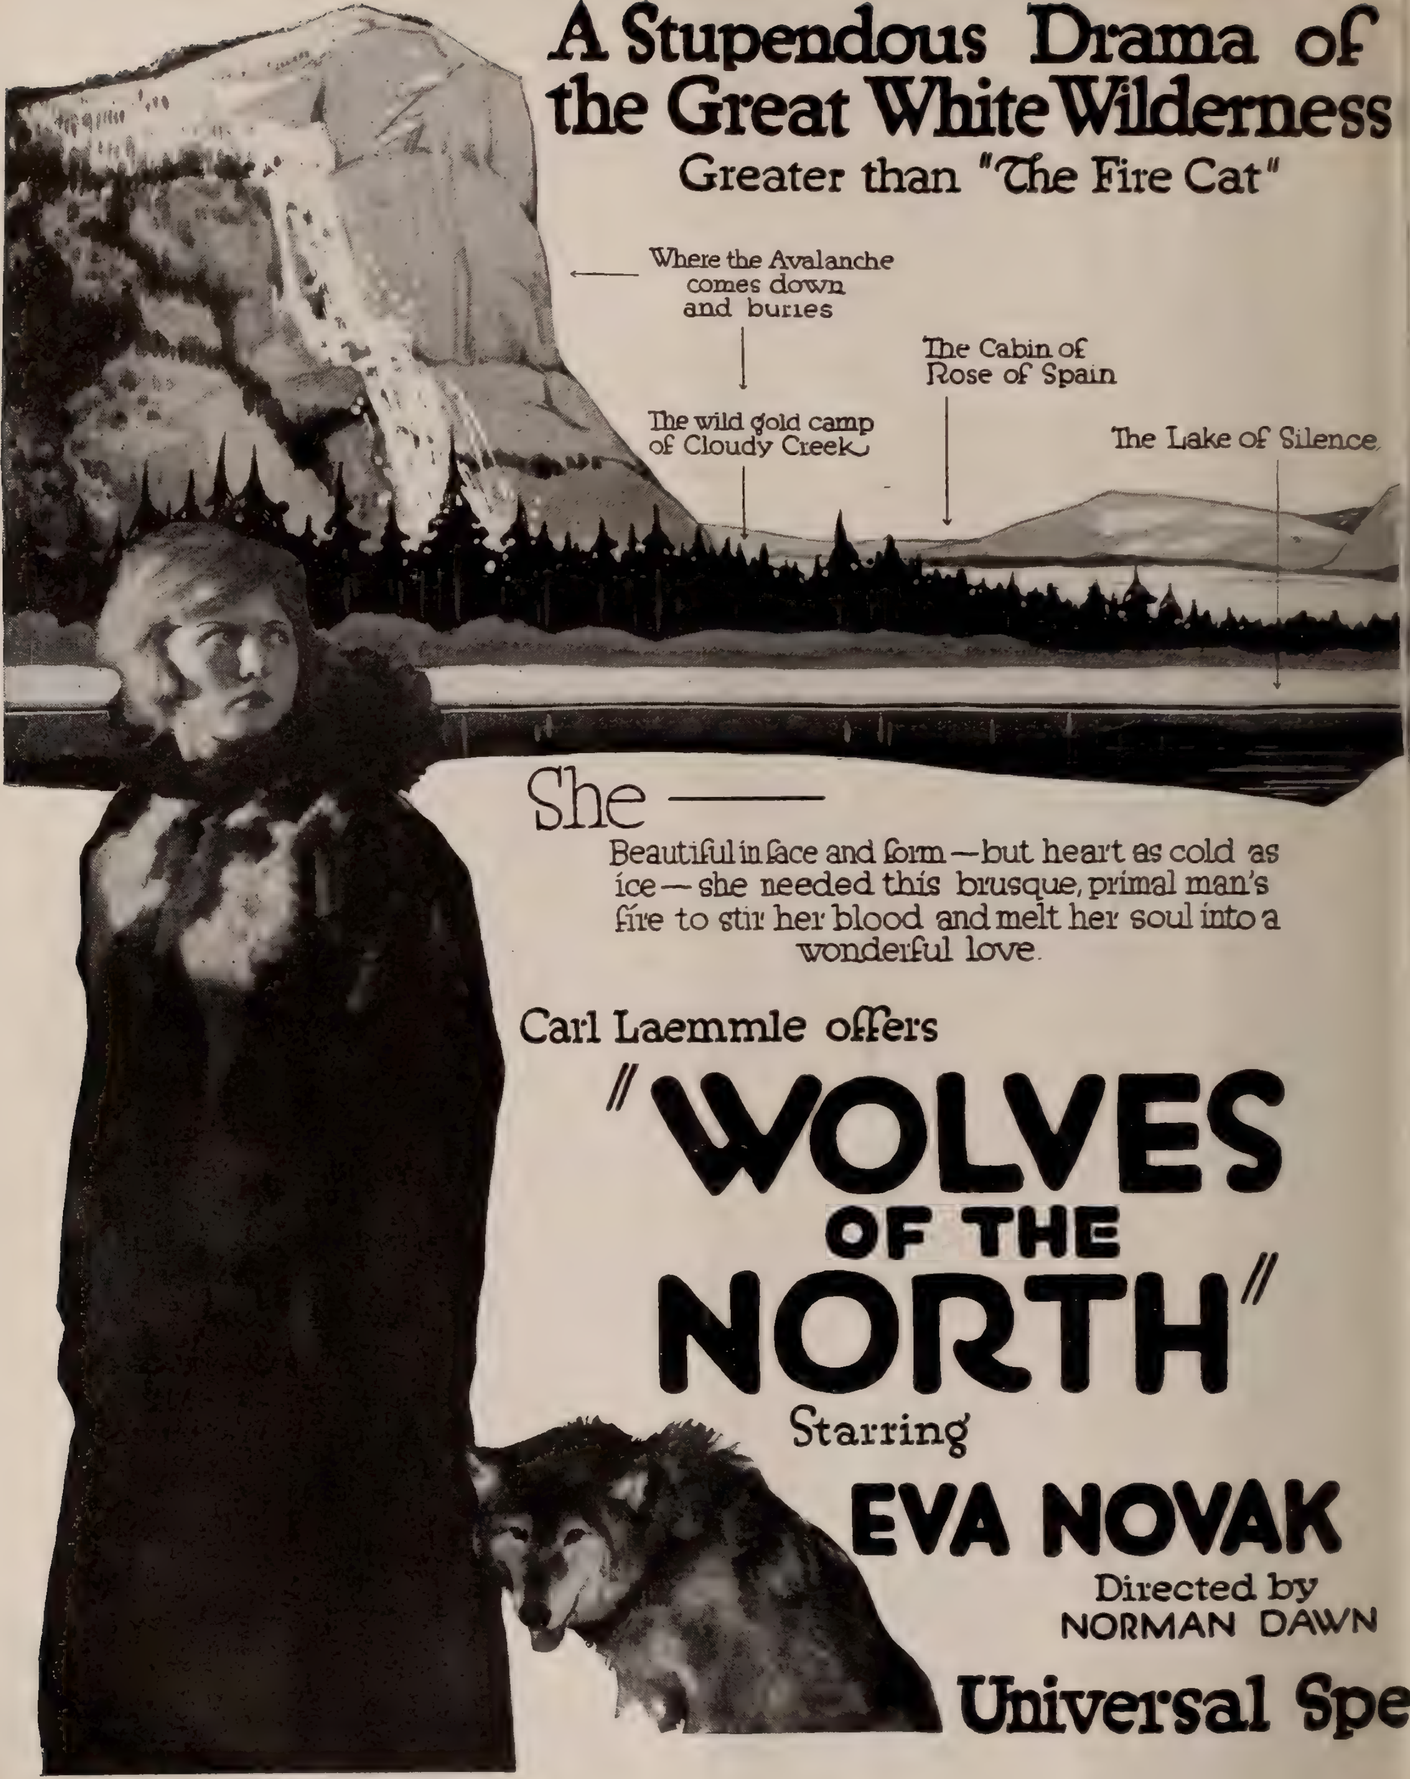
Many do.

But, unfortunately, some exhibitors are not showmen and do not realize that exploitation will pay for itself many times over. Some exhibitors never use any aids at all except the posters and the lobby. Either these men don't appreciate the fine work which the Universal exploitation men have placed at their hand or they pooh-pooh the idea that anybody could think of a good exploitation stunt which had not occurred to them. Which are you, Mr.-I-Don't-Advertise, Unappreciative or Insulted?

Whichever you are, forget your feelings and make money by using the ideas contained in the press books available at all Universal exchanges.

A Stupendous Drama of the Great White Wilderness

Greater than "The Fire Cat"



Where the Avalanche comes down and buries
The Cabin of Rose of Spain
The wild gold camp of Cloudy Creek
The Lake of Silence

She ——

Beautiful in face and form — but heart as cold as ice — she needed this brusque, primal man's fire to stir her blood and melt her soul into a wonderful love.

Carl Laemmle offers

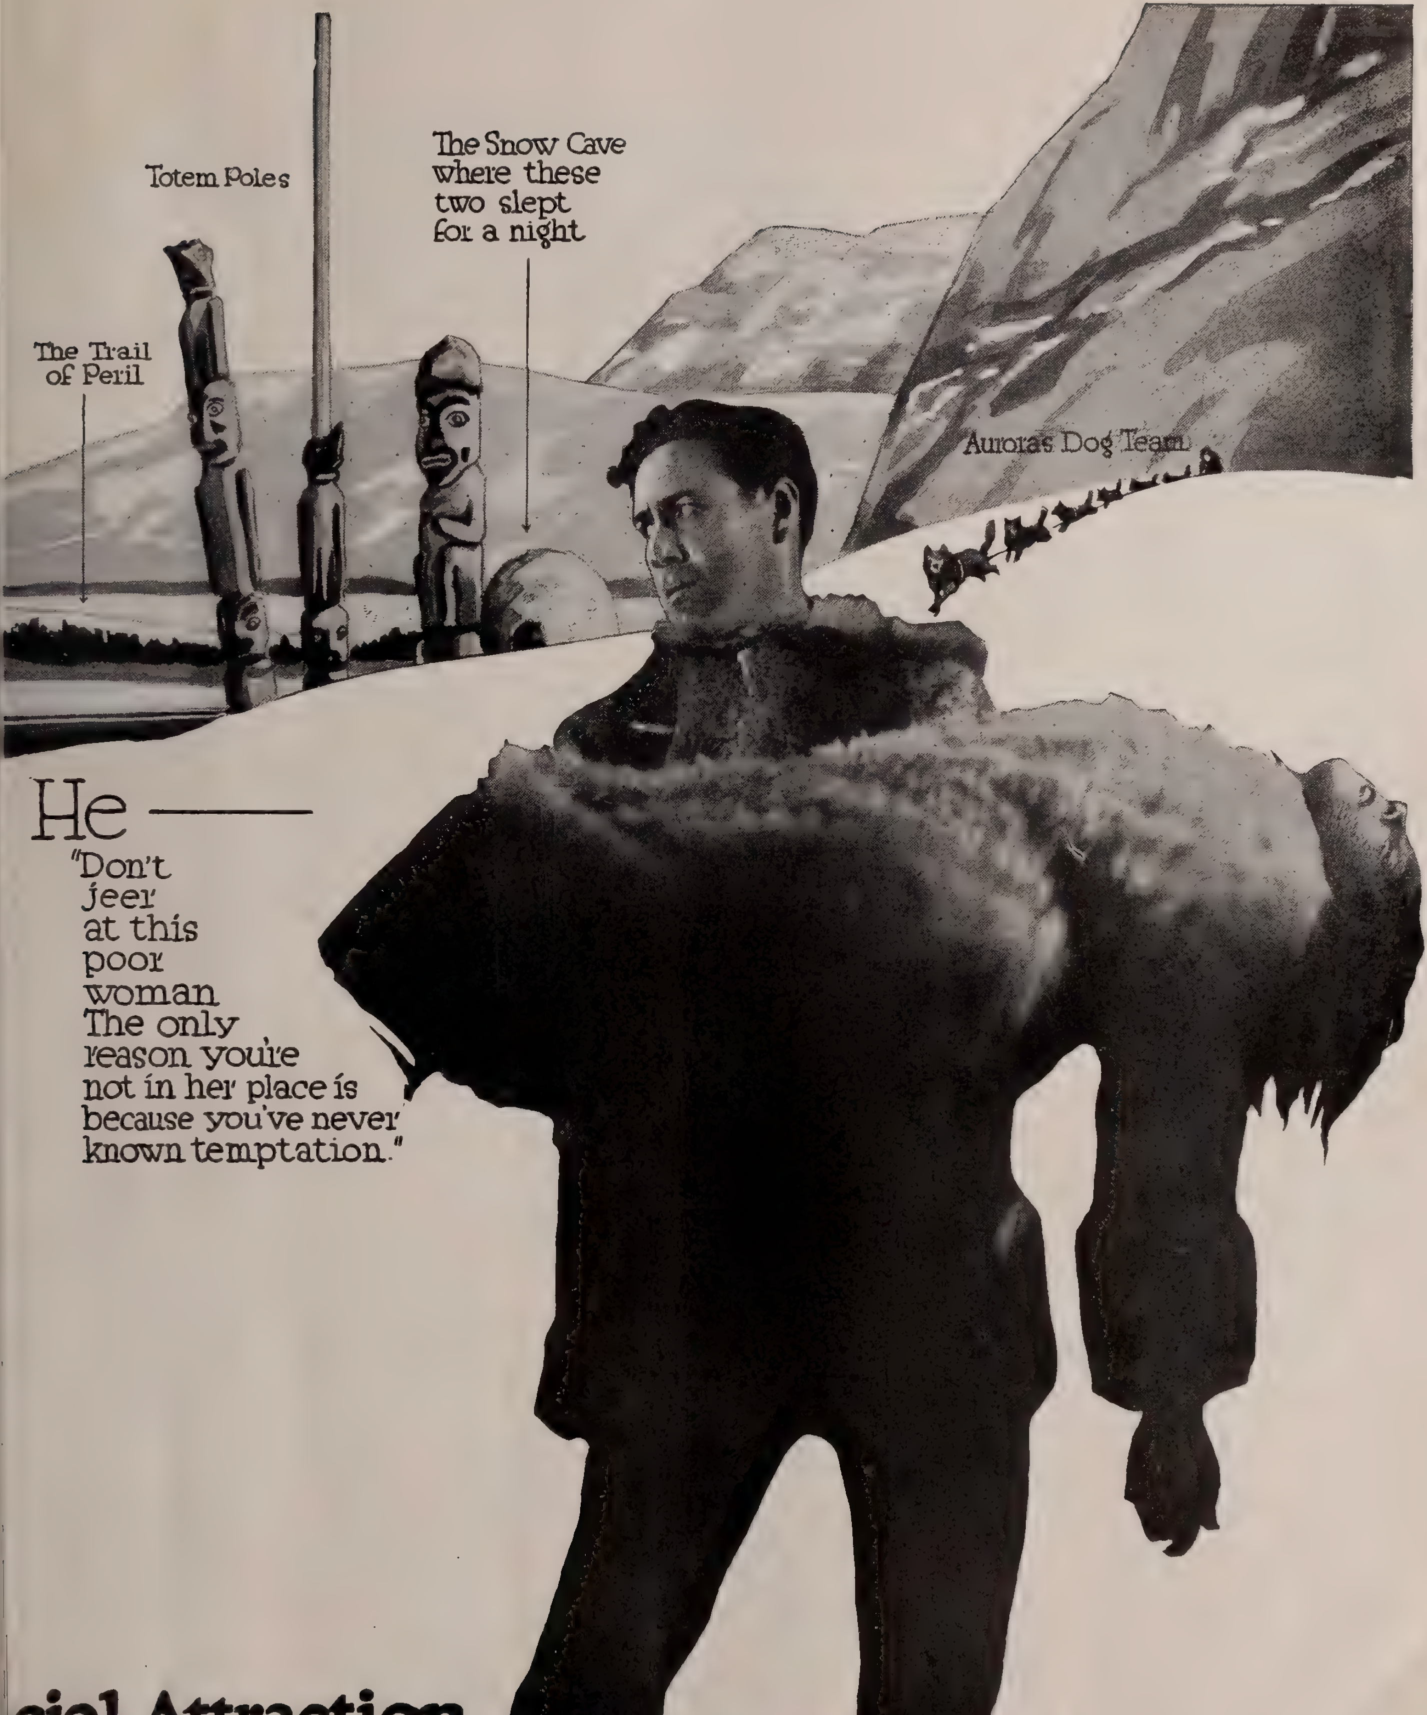
"WOLVES OF THE NORTH"

Starring

EVA NOVAK

Directed by
NORMAN DAWN

Universal Spe



Totem Poles
The Snow Cave where these two slept for a night
The Trail of Peril
Auroras Dog Team

He ——

"Don't jeer at this poor woman The only reason you're not in her place is because you've never known temptation."

cial Attraction

Service page for "Wolves of the North"

AT A GLANCE

SUBJECT—"Wolves Of The North."
STAR—Eva Novak.
PREVIOUS HITS—"Wanted at Headquarters," "The Torrent," "Society Secrets," "The Smart Sex," etc.
DIRECTED BY—Norman Dawn.
STORY BY—Norman Dawn.
SCENARIO BY—Wallace Clifton.
SUPPORTING CAST—Herbert Heyes, Starke Patterson, Percy Challenger, Barbara Tennant, Clyde Tracy, William Eagle-Eye, Millie Impolito.
LOCALE—Alaska.
TIME—The Present.
PHOTOGRAPHY BY—Thos. Rea.
THUMB-NAIL THEME—The story of a young American girl in Alaska who tries to guage a primitive romance by conventional standards; of a big adventure which proves the error of her judgment and permits her to see the real gold beneath the rough veneer of the man she loves.

ADVERTISING PUNCHES

1—"Wolves Of The North" is a magnificent scenic production, showing inspiring vistas of the Arctic zone.
2—It was directed by Norman Dawn, who became known as an action-director when he put "The Fire Cat," "Lasca" and "The Adorable Savage" on the screen.
3—The pleasing screen personality of Eva Novak and her fast-growing popularity.
4—The interesting supporting cast, including two popular young leading men, Herbert Heyes and Starke atterson; two clever character actors, Percy Challenger and Clyde Tracy; a real Indian chief, William Eagle-Eye and Millie Impolito, the spectacular Spanish beauty.
5—The spectacle of an avalanche crushing out the life of a faithless man and of death locking him in an embrace with a woman so that the girl to whom he was pledged could see his unfaithfulness with her own eyes.
6—Amazing "trick" photography by which a gentle dog is transformed into a snarling wolf as if by magic—just one of the clever atmospheric touches in which the story abounds.
7—The startling implication of the story that there is a strain of the wolf in all men.
8—The romantic locale and the picturesque costumes.
9—The speed with which the breath-catching story is unfolded and the high-voltage of the climax.
10—Wild scenes in an Alaskan mining camp during a gold rush.

CAST

"Wiki Jack" Horn	Herbert Heyes
Prof. Emerson Cabot Norris,	Percy Challenger
Aurora Norris	Eva Novak
David Waters	Starke Patterson
Jenfau Jen	Barbara Tennant
Massakee	William Eagle-Eye
Lech	Clyde Tracy
Rose of Spain	Millie Impolito

Synopsis of Story

"WOLVES OF THE NORTH"

IN the village of Unalik, on the southern coast of Alaska lived Aurora Norris with her father who taught the indians at the little mission school. Aurora was eighteen and had developed a rigid code of ethics due to her deep reading.

Two men of the north: David, a youth of her age, careless and self-confident, and Wiki Jack, about thirty-five, a big hard living miner of the North Woods, were rivals for the love of Aurora. The girl liked David but was fascinated by the rough giant and yet he failed to measure up to her code because of his way of living.

Walking through the snow at dusk one day with her great wolf dog, Aurora meets Wiki Jack who takes her in his arms and kisses her several times. When he releases her he is struck with remorse at what he has done. The girl returns to the village and reluctantly tells David.

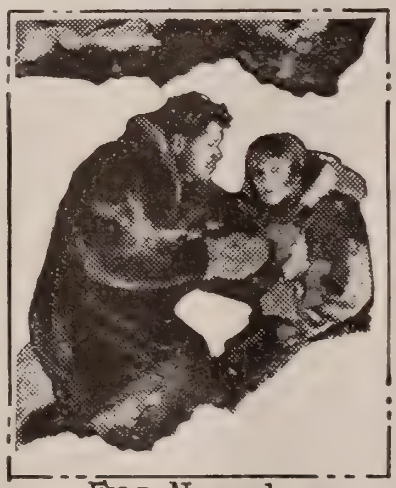
With the unreasoning fury of youth David meets Waki Jack on the trail and strikes the giant. This arouses the brute in the man and he hurls the youth down a steep bank. This incident causes Aurora to become publicly engaged to David to humiliate Jack.

With news of a gold strike further north David left the village and went away while Wiki Jack continued to work at his small mine. Aurora hears that David is married to Rose of Spain, a designing woman of the boom mining camp. She set out for the north to learn the truth for herself, followed by Wiki Jack.

Shortly after her arrival at the camp the mountain above the town hurled down an avalanche of snow and ice crushing out the lives of the inhabitants of the camp. Wiki Jack, who had followed Aurora, saved her life by holding her under a protecting ledge of rock while the avalanche rolled past them.

Together they dig their way to the window of the largest cabin in town and see through the fallen timbers David and the woman who had taken her place, locked by death in an embrace.

Overcome by the sight before her, Aurora turned toward Wiki Jack and for the first time realized how much she needed his protecting arms.



Eva Novak in "Wolves of the North"
UNIVERSAL

Theatre Name Here

The crashing silence of the Arctic lashed her nerves and drove her to seek refuge in the heart of a wolf-man. See Eva Novak in "Wolves Of The North."

There is a law of the Yukon, and ever she makes it plain: Send not your weak and your feeble; send me your strong and your sane. That is the theme of "Wolves Of The North," the Universal action-drama with Eva Novak.

Eva Novak in "Wolves of the North" UNIVERSAL

Reproduce Alaskan Snow Slide For Photoplay

NO screen drama of the far north was ever produced with such remarkable realism as Eva Novak's latest picture "Wolves of the North," which was directed by Norman Dawn. Because of the Universal director's reputation as a producer of highly artistic screen creations, permission was obtained to use several spots in the Yosemite National Park as the background for this photoplay.

While other directors have been given permission to take pictures in the Yosemite, no one has ever before secured such concessions from the government and local officials. By special arrangement with Chief Forest Ranger Townley, who has charge of the Yosemite, the Universal company was able not only to bring the first team of wolf dogs into the park, to add realism to the remarkable Alaskan scenes, but was permitted to stage a snow-slide, in which hundreds of tons of snow, earth and rocks were precipitated down a mountain side. Norman Dawn also obtained permission to build several sets in various parts of the Yosemite.

Eva Novak, who appears at her best in this picture of the snow-clad North Woods has had a rapid rise to fame in the films. Since going to Universal City Miss Novak has appeared in a number of dramatic features, scoring a pronounced success in each and every production.

WHAT'S AT THE PLAYHOUSE TO-NIGHT?

WILLIAM EAGLE-EYE, a full-blooded Indian, plays an important character rôle in Eva Novak's dramatic Universal picture, "Wolves of the North," now the attraction at the popular .... Theatre. Eagle-Eye became a staunch friend of Norman Dawn, the Universal director some months ago and since then has added atmosphere and realism to several Universal screen productions.

THE most beautiful scenic backgrounds ever secured for a picture of the far north are to be seen at the .... Theatre where the Universal photodrama, "Wolves of the North," is being shown. Glaciers and snow slides, ice clad mountains and frozen rivers, wolf packs, malamutes, Arctic Indians and the aurora borealis are all touches which add to the atmosphere of this story of the Alaskan wilderness.

NORMAN DAWN, who wrote and directed "Wolves of the North," the Universal picture which is the center of attraction at the .... Theatre, was a scenic photographer before he became a director. He is the first man who ever carried a motion picture camera to the heights of the Andes; but his vista from that vantage point does not compare, he says, with the scenery which he was able to get in Eva Novak's latest picture.

MILLIE IMPOLITO, considered to be the most perfect type of the fascinating Castilian beauty, plays an interesting character rôle in "Wolves of the North," now at the .... Theatre, Senorita Impolita appears in the cast as "Rose of Spain," a camp follower of the Arctic. She renders excellent support to Eva Novak, the star of the Universal production.

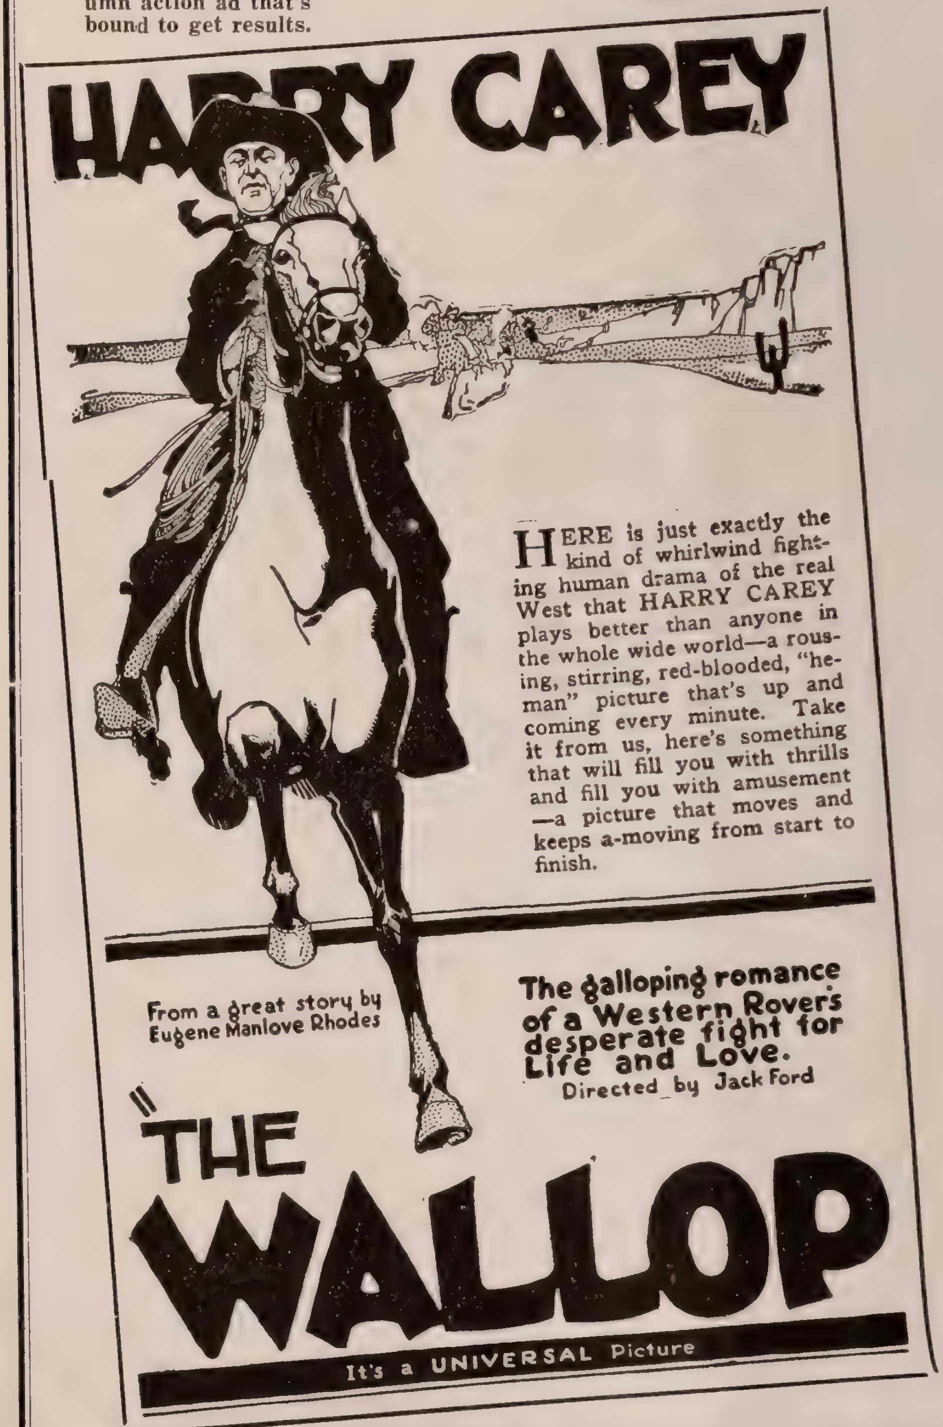
EVA NOVAK, who starred in "Wanted at Headquarters," which was considered to represent the fastest action on the screen last year, has beaten her own record for dramatic speed with "Wolves of the North." The latter photodrama is Miss Novak's latest Universal starring vehicle and is playing to capacity audiences at the .... Theatre.

THIRTY-FIVE Indians from the McKenzie River were utilized by Norman Dawn, directing "Wolves of the North," to add an atmospheric touch to this Universal picture now on view at the .... Theatre. Eva Novak is starring in this feature which, acording to the general opinion, is one of the best Alaskan pictures ever filmed.

THERE is a certain fascination about life in the raw which appeals to every man and woman, and that is why stories of primitive life and emotions are always popular, especially if well written or presented. "Wolves of the North," the Universal feature of the far north, starring Eva Novak, is proving this assertion by attracting huge audiences to the .... Theatre.

Ads That'll Help Put the Wallop

Here's a two-column action ad that's bound to get results.



HARRY CAREY

HERE is just exactly the kind of whirlwind fighting human drama of the real West that HARRY CAREY plays better than anyone in the whole wide world—a rousing, stirring, red-blooded, "he-man" picture that's up and coming every minute. Take it from us, here's something that will fill you with thrills and fill you with amusement—a picture that moves and keeps a-moving from start to finish.

From a great story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes

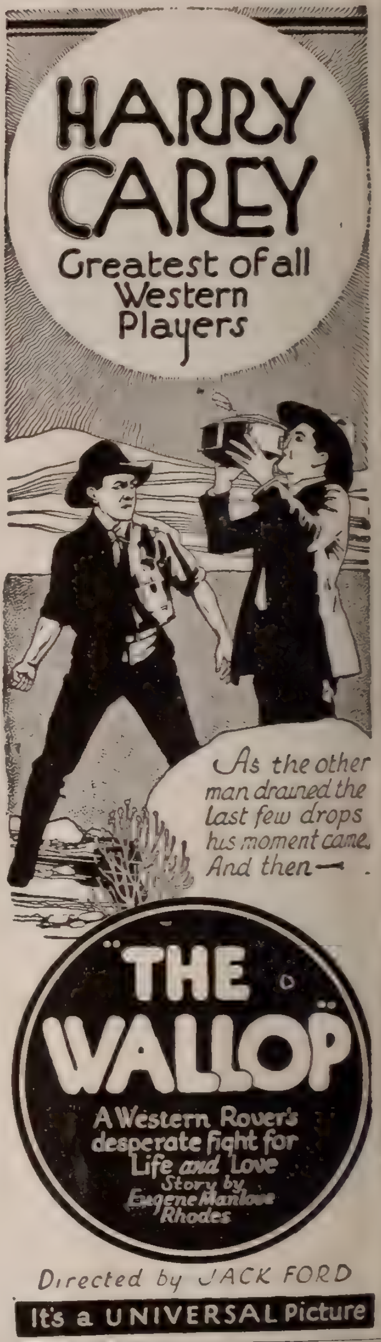
The galloping romance of a Western Rover's desperate fight for Life and Love.

Directed by Jack Ford

"THE WALLOP"

It's a UNIVERSAL Picture

A single-column ad that for power and drama is a pippin.



HARRY CAREY

Greatest of all Western Players

As the other man drained the last few drops his moment came. And then—

"THE WALLOP"

A Western Rover's desperate fight for Life and Love

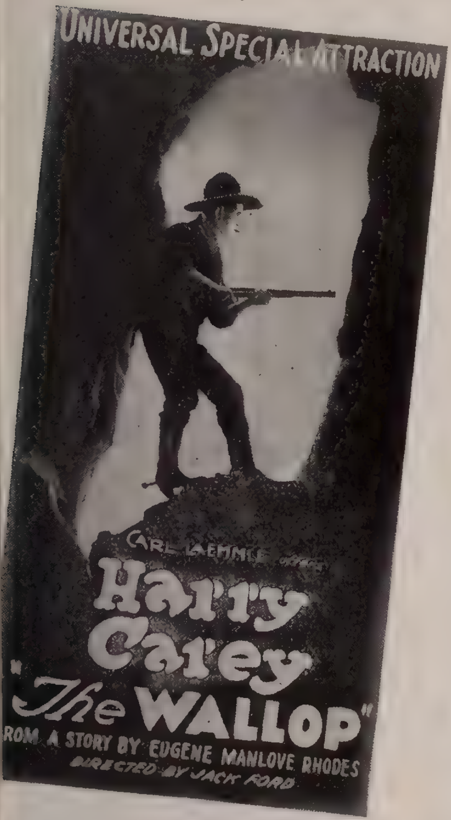
Story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes

Directed by JACK FORD

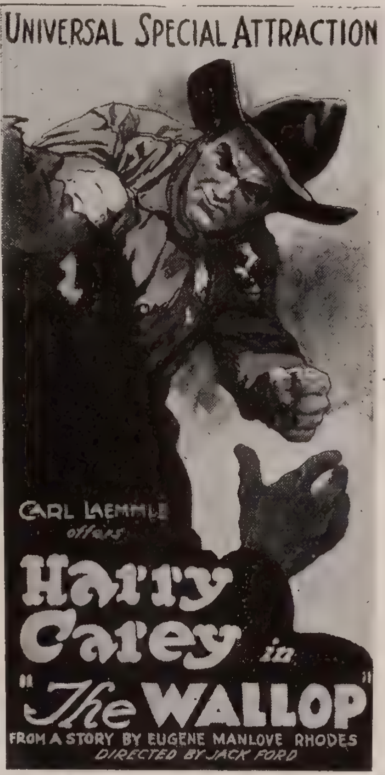
It's a UNIVERSAL Picture

in Your Box Office

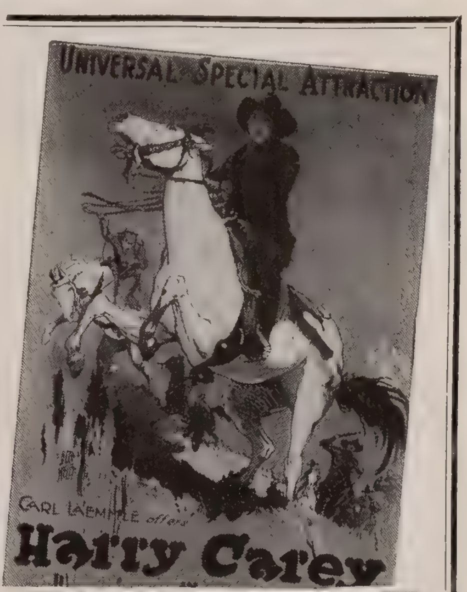
Here are two three-sheets that describe what's what better than any words of ours.



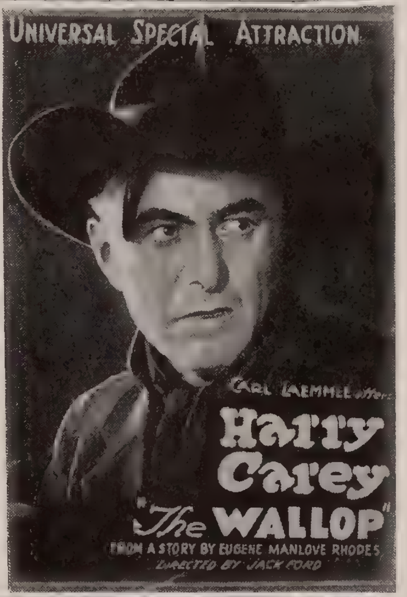
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Harry Carey
"The WALLOP"
FROM A STORY BY EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES
DIRECTED BY JACK FORD



UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Harry Carey in
"The WALLOP"
FROM A STORY BY EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES
DIRECTED BY JACK FORD

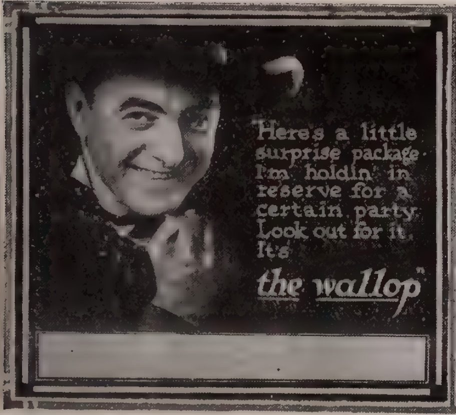


UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Harry Carey

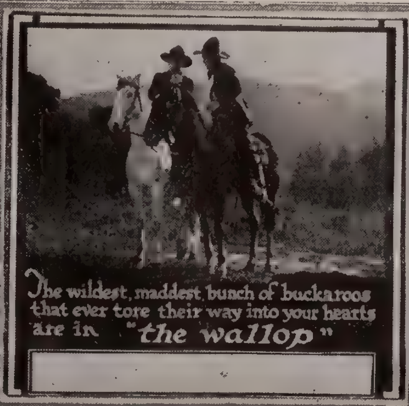


UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
Harry Carey
"The WALLOP"
FROM A STORY BY EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES
DIRECTED BY JACK FORD

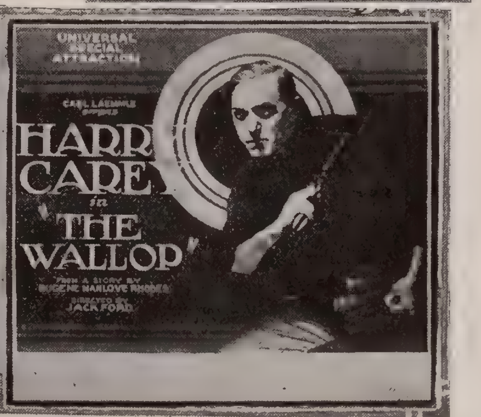
Plaster your town with these striking one-sheets. You'll cash in on them at the box-office.



Here's a little surprise package I'm holdin' in reserve for a certain party. Look out for it. It's
"the wallop"



The wildest, maddest bunch of buckaroos that ever tore their way into your hearts are in "the wallop"



UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION
CARL LAEMMLE offers
HARR CARE
in
"THE WALLOP"
FROM A STORY BY EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES
DIRECTED BY JACK FORD

WHATEVER you do, don't fail to get these three teaser slides. Use them in rotation at every performance for at least a week prior to showing "The Wallop." Folks always read what you flash on your screen. The slides will bring them back.

Human Story of Immigrant

Portrayed by CARMEL MYERS

Carmel Myers when not acting before the camera, wearing a gown of brown canton crepe.

THE SAME RACE from which sprang Sarah Bernhardt, Eleanor Duse, Rachel, Alla Nazimova and Bertha Kalich, gave to the screen Carmel Myers, whose youth, beauty and splendid dramatic talents have been seen to advantage in a series of Universal film dramas.

Nikolas Muray ,the famous painter and sculptor, who recently has made some fine camera studies, claims that Carmel Myers is the most beautiful woman he has ever photographed. The Universal star, he says, has an extraordinary beautiful mouth and eyes.

Carmel Myers was born in San Francisco and is the daughter of Rabbi Isadore Myers, one of the most brilliant scholars in America. Her mother had studied for dramatic roles for the operatic stage, but gave up her professional ambitions when she married. So Miss Myers inherits the brilliant talents of her father and the dramatic instincts of her mother.

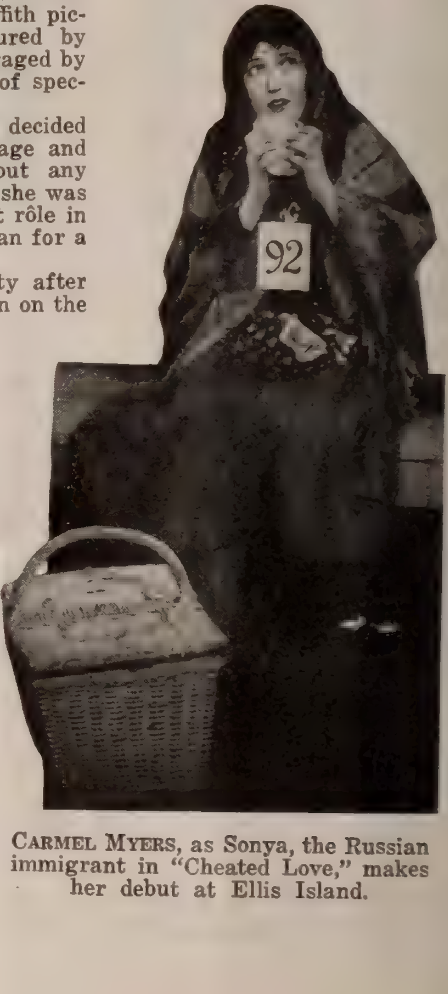
Educated in the schools of Los Angeles, Miss Myers did not show any inclination for the movies as a school girl. It was David Griffith who noticed her large, wistful eyes and the whimsical, half mysterious expression in her smile on one of her visits to his studio, and he advised her parents to let her act, either on the stage or for the screen. When they finally agreed, the great director gave her a part in "Intolerance" in which she proved that his estimate of her ability had been correct. She appeared in several other Griffith pictures, and after being featured by another producer, she was engaged by Universal to star in a series of specially written dramas.

Two years ago Miss Myers decided to try her talents on the stage and went to New York. Without any previous training of this sort she was enabled to secure a prominent rôle in "The Magic Melody," which ran for a year on Broadway.

Returning to Universal City after her stage success, she has been on the screen ever since, and has just scored her biggest success in the rôle of the little ghetto heroine, Sonya Shoneman, in "Cheated Love," a human document directed by King Baggot.

The story concerns a little immigrant girl who arrives from Russia. Her love problems, her self-sacrifice for the man she loves and her triumph over seemingly unsurmountable obstacles have been woven into a romantic story and filmed with thrilling realism for Carmel Myer's latest picture.

Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City, wrote the story in collaboration with Doris Schroeder.



Carmel Myers, as Sonya, the Russian immigrant in "Cheated Love," makes her debut at Ellis Island.

As Clean as your Mother's Heart!

MARGARET MANN

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

"WE consider this the cleanest and best picture that we have ever shown. From a box office stand point it more than came up to all our expectations, but the unusual part of it is that it is more than a box office attraction. It gave complete satisfaction to all who saw it. Many said it was the best and cleanest picture they had ever seen."
Palace Theatre,
Hamilton, Ohio.

Carl Laemmle offers
Dorothy Phillips in

UNIVERSAL-JEWEL
Directed by
ALLEN HOLUBAR

"ONCE TO EVERY WOMAN"

THE MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY
A MAGAZINE FOR MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

Published Weekly by the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY PUB. CO.
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAUL GULICK, Editor.
(Copyright, 1921, Universal Film Mfg. Co. All Right Reserved.)
Vol. 13 MAY 14, 1921 No. 13

STRONG STORIES BOUGHT for SCREEN

Film Rights For Red Book Serial and Several Popular Novels Bought by Universal For Feature Photoplays

DURING the last few months Universal has acquired the screen rights for some of the greatest stories of the year and they are now being put into continuity form. Upon completion they will be released as Special Attractions and several will be made into Universal-Jewel pictures, the highest standard of the Universal output.

"The Conflict," a novel by Clarence Budington Kelland, now running in the Red Book and hailed as one of the best stories of the year, has been bought by Universal as a starring vehicle for Priscilla Dean. Negotiations between the author and John C. Brownell, scenario editor of Universal, regarding the purchase extended over a considerable period.

"As soon as I read the opening installment of "The Conflict" in the Red Book," said Mr. Brownell, "I knew that it was what we call a Priscilla Dean story. I lost no time getting in touch with Mrs. C. C. Wilkening, the author's agent. Upon reading the entire novel, I was more firmly convinced that the story suited Priscilla Dean as it would no other actress on the screen.

Mystery Story of North Woods

"The Kelland novel will be published in book form by Harper Brothers, after it has been completed in the Red Book. It is very likely that the book and the Universal picture will appear about the same time.

"'The Conflict' is a big powerful story of the north woods. It is as gripping a tale as has been written in many months. Its heroine is a blythe, care-free girl, raised with all the luxuries of society, who suddenly becomes the ward of her uncle, a weird, puritanical and miserly lumber magnate of the great North Woods.

"The story, despite its mystery and its gripping drama, is filled with thrills and virile action of the out-of-doors. It also has its humor. It is in its great characterizations and in the slow and remarkable transformation of the heroine, ranging between two extremes of womanhood, that 'The Conflict' is great and merits the best possible screen talent and production. I predict that it will be one of next fall's greatest screen dramas."

Prize Story for Frank Mayo

Among the stories which will be filmed as Special Attractions are "Harbor Road," a novel by Sara Ware Bassett; "The Mascotte of the Three Stars," by J. Allen Dunn, and "The Gossamer Web," by John A. Moroso.

"Harbor Road" has had unusual success as a novel. The Pennsylvania Publishing Company, which put it out, reports that its distribution has been widespread throughout the country. Mrs. Bassett's latest novel, "Flood Tide," has just appeared. It is expected that "Harbor Road" will be used as a starring vehicle for Edith Roberts who is now producing "My Lady of the Island," a stirring tale of the South Seas by Beatrice Grimshaw.

"The Mascotte of the Three Stars" is a strong western story which Universal thinks will make an excellent vehicle for Harry Carey. It recently appeared in Short Stories and is said to be one of Dunn's most popular stories. It probably will be produced as one of Carey's Universal-Jewel productions.

"The Gossamer Web," is a prize story which recently attracted much attention in the Photoplay Magazine. It is scheduled to be produced with Frank Mayo in its starring rôle. It is the story of a man, sentenced to prison unjustly, who sees, in news reel moving pictures shown in prison, "shots" of his wife with the man who ruined him. This precipitates an amazing series of complications which give unusual zest to the story and make for suspense and a powerful climax.

Humorist Writes for Moran

Lee Moran, Universal's leading comedian, will hereafter have vehicles worthy of his skill, promises Universal. Arrangements have just been made with H. C. Witwer, one of America's foremost humorists, to supply Lee Moran with comedy stories for screen production, paying the record price for short length features.

Witwer is one of the four highest paid writers of humorous stories in America. His pen creations are always featured in the Saturday Evening Post, in Collier's, in the American and other prominent magazines, while his books have been read by millions. As a war correspondent he wrote about the funny sides of the world war, and his contributions to the American newspapers helped to relieve some of the sorrow and suffering of the nation.

A score of editions of his story, "From Baseball to Boches," have already been bought up, while many short stories have added to his reputation as a humorist. His character, Ed Harmon, has become a national figure. His most recent work, "The Leather Pushers," is said to be the most popular feature Colliers has offered in a long time.

Publicity Stories for "Wolves of the North"

STRAIN OF WOLF PRESENT IN ALL MEN, SAY SCIENTISTS

THAT there is a strain of the wolf in all men is implied in "Wolves of the North," Eva Novak's fascinatingly dramatic screen story of the Alaskan wilds which is to be shown at the .... Theatre on ....

Norman Dawn, the Universal director, wrote the story and produced it in the far north and the result is considered to be one of the most daringly dramatic interpretations of human emotion ever screened.

As the story opens the blonde beauty is seen as a school teacher in a desolate arctic outpost. Two men want her enough to marry her. One is a sensitive boy; the other a bearded brute with a bad reputation and a good heart.

Just which of them gets the girl is never clear until the story rushes toward its climax.

Supporting Eva Novak in her starring rôle will be seen Herbert Heyes, Starke Patterson, Percy Challenger, Barbara Tennant, William Eagle-Eye, Clyde Tracy and Millie Impolito.

"Wolves of the North" will stand out as one of the most artistically presented screen stories of the decade. In addition to being a master of drama, Norman Dawn is a scenic photographer of note and he has embellished his forceful theme with some of the most magnificently inspiring scenery ever recorded by the camera.

MOUNTAIN AVALANCHE USED IN UNIVERSAL FILM

EVA NOVAK, the beautiful girl who won her first conspicuous screen success in "Wanted at Headquarters," charmed a packed house at the .... Theatre last night in her latest Universal photodrama, "Wolves of the North."

The story was written and directed by Norman Dawn and produced in the far north with a splendid cast of popular players.

As Aurora, a school teacher in a desolate Alaskan settlement, the girl finds herself equally sought by two men. One of them is a big fellow with a reputation for evil while the other is a stripling against whom the only indictment is weakness.

The girl pledges her heart to the boy. He goes to another camp further north while she waits for him to return. Then come rumors of his unfaithfulness and she goes north to see with her own eyes. An avalanche has killed David but the girl finds sufficient proof of his weakness to turn to "Wiki Jack."

The climax is perhaps the most dramatic that has ever been screened; but if there was no story, the picture would stand upon its own merits as a magnificent scenic record of the grandeur of the Arctic circle.

Norman Dawn has sustained his reputation as a dramaturgist. He has painted his story in broad strokes of light and shadow with the attention to photographic values which is a memory of the days, before he became a director when he carried a camera to the heights of the Andes to record a vista of enchanting beauty and was elected a member of the Royal Photographic Society. "Wolves of the North" is a credit to Universal as its producer and another triumph for Miss Novak. The supporting cast cannot escape mention for clever work. Herbert Heyes and Starke Patterson, the leading men were excellent, while Percy Challenger, Barbara Tennant, William Eagle-Eye, Clyde Tracy and Millie Impolito added to the appeal of the story by sincere interpretation of their rôles.

Eva Novak
UNIVERSAL

SPELL OF THE NORTH SHOWN IN PHOTOPLAY

EVA NOVAK, the young girl who won instantaneous fame through her dramatic work in "Wanted at Headquarters," is coming to the .... Theatre on .... in "Wolves of the North," her most recent photodrama in which she does her best work.

The story was written and directed in the far north by Norman Dawn, the Universal director, and is a daring narrative of the struggle of two men for one woman in the land where primitive passions rule nad a man takes his mate according to his strength and valor.

DOES YOUR HUSBAND BELONG IN POODLE CLASS OF MEN?

SCIENCE has recently drawn parallels between men and dogs, comparing men of various temperaments to dogs of various breeds with interesting results.

What kind of a man is your husband, according to the newest scientific analysis?

If he is a snappy, fussy, nosy little fellow, he comes under the heading of "poodle-man." If he is small, a game fighter, wiry and willing to tackle anything that fights, he is of the more desirable "Terrier-man" type. Perhaps he is a big fellow, slow on the get-away with a strong sense of loyalty to his home and faithful to his ideals. Then he is of the "mastiff-man" category and well worth while.

In "Wolves of the North," the sensational Universal photodrama which is now running at the .... Theatre, wolf-men are depicted and there is a strong implication made that all men partake, to a degree, of the characterictics of the wolf.

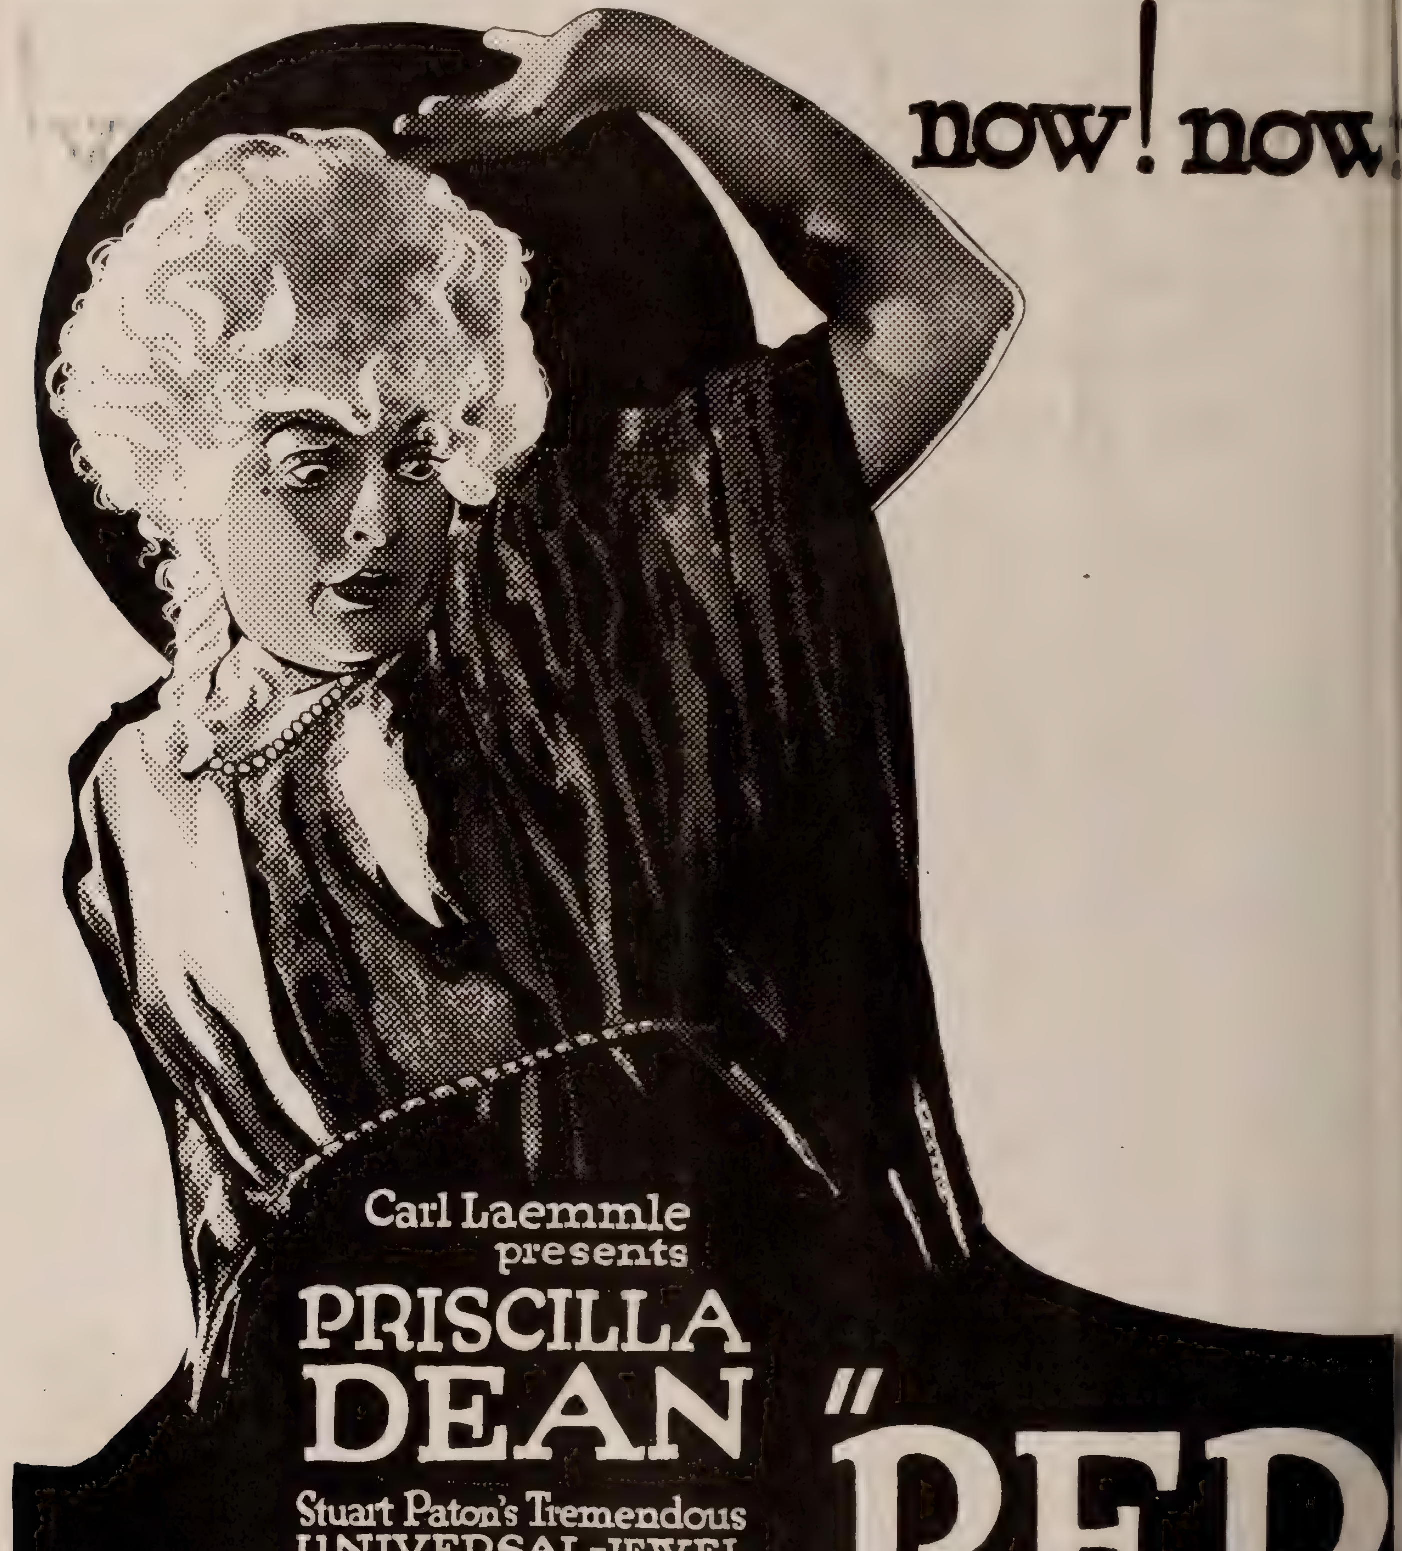
The story was written around that idea by Norman Dawn, who also directed it, with Eva Novak in the starring rôle.

Dawn, who is a master of the camera art, has added to his idea by clever photography by which he quickly transforms a gentle dog into a snarling wolf as the emotion of the story requires that interpretation, and the alliance between wolves and men is subtlely drawn.

In no picture of recent years has nature played such a dramatic rôle. The action was recorded by the camera while an arctic gale lashed towering pines into a frenzy and the earth was blanketed with a trackless immensity of snow.

The spell of the north! Its roaring silences and its forbidding warning to weaklings not to tresspass its borders, is suggested in the brilliant photography by which some of the most awe-inspiring scenery of the polar-arc was recorded by the cameras.

A cast of unusual ability will be seen in the supporting rôles. Opposite Miss Novak plays Herbert Heyes. The second masculine lead is interpreted by Starke Patterson while Percy Challenger, William Eagle-Eye and Clyde Tracy all have rôles well suited to their vigorous personalities. The feminine side of the cast abounds in beauty. Barbara Tennant, who will be seen as a woman of the northern mining camps, is a great screen favorite, while Millie Impolito, a spectacular Spanish beauty, plays a rôle that has sufficient fire to melt the snow of the locale.



now! now

Carl Laemmle
presents

PRISCILLA DEAN

"REP

Stuart Paton's Tremendous
UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

Adapted by Lucien Hubbard
From Edwina Levin's novel
"FALSE COLORS"

ow! now! now! now! now!

The Most Magnificent Actress on America's Screen

BEYOND a shadow of doubt, PRISCILLA DEAN proves herself in this picture the greatest attraction on the American screen. Greatest in that dynamic personality which pulls people up to your box-office—unequalled in that electrifying action which fills them with thrills—incomparable (and this by no means overlooks Lillian Gish) in those moments of pathos which bring tears to the eyes.

Universal will go on record on this page as stating to all the world that, as the drama of "REPUTATION" mounts to its amazing climax the acting of PRISCILLA DEAN—who, three years ago was hardly known to trade or fan — soars up to heights of expression which have no recorded equal in vigor, heart-appeal and astounding reality.

Make ready for congratulations when you show this production. Simply stand in your lobby. Your audiences, as they come out, will do the rest.

UTATION"

Carl Laemmle presents

Priscilla Dean

UNIVERSAL

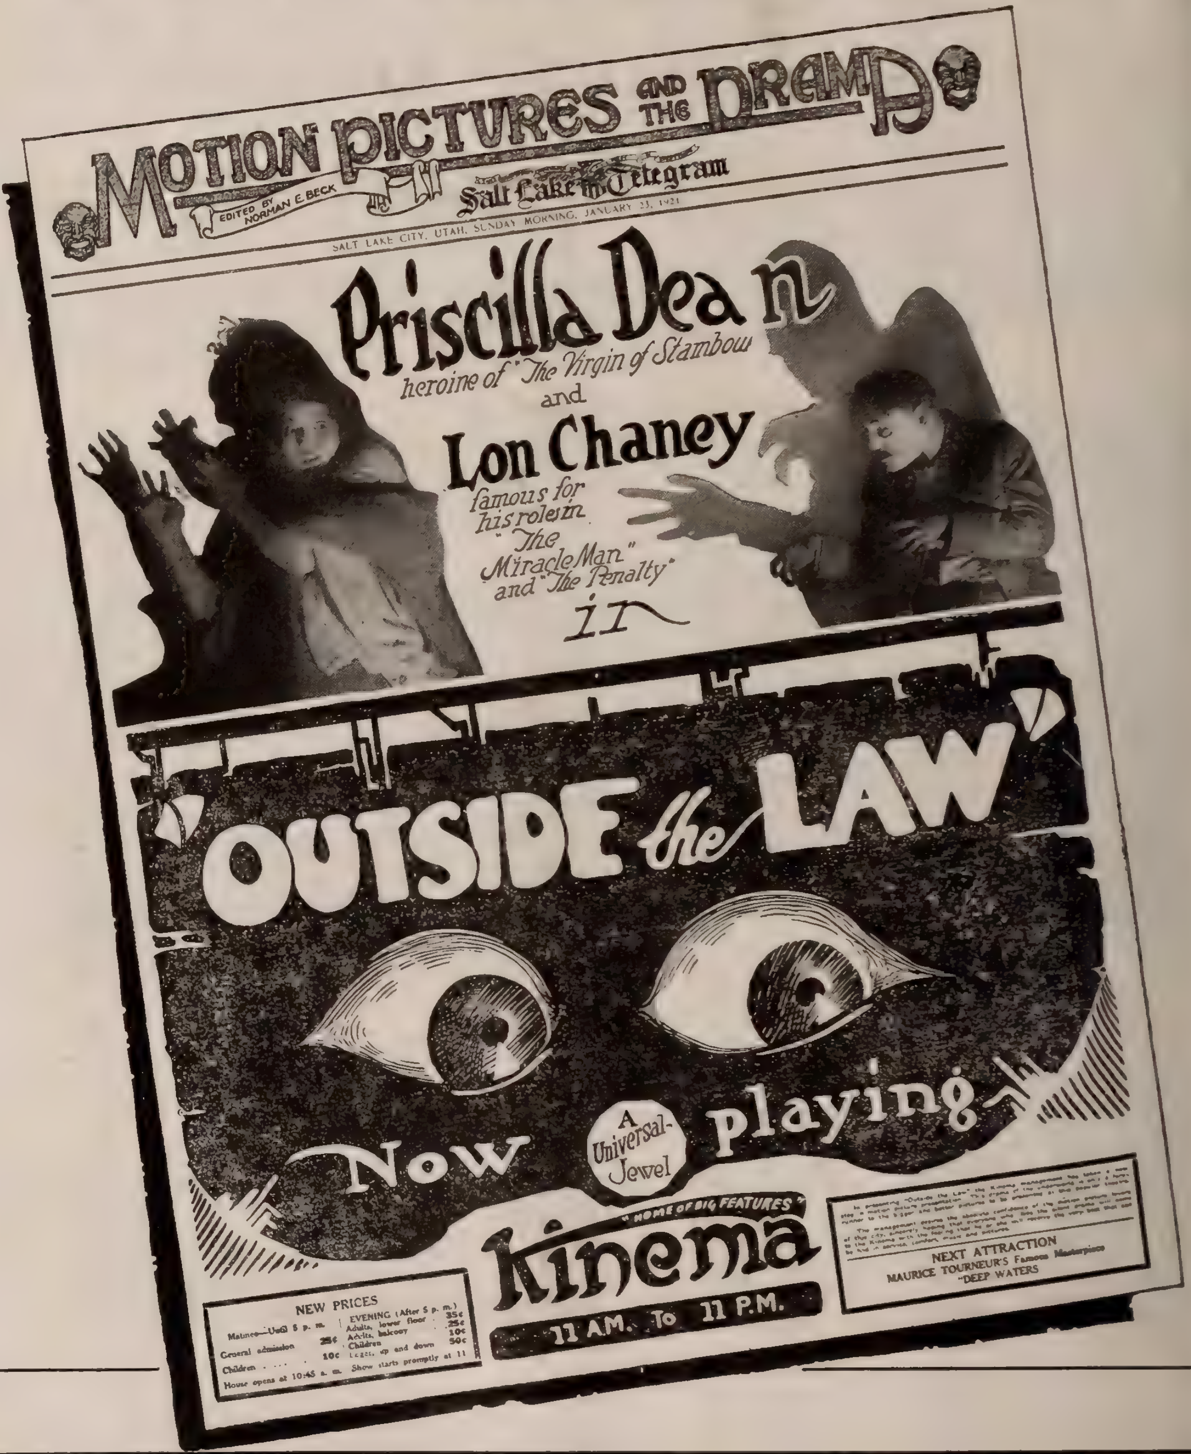
Directed by Stuart Paton

in "Reputation"

JEWEL deLUXE

Adapted by Lucien Hubbard
from Edwina Levin's Novel "False Colors"

How the Kinema T



MOTION PICTURES AND THE DRAMA

EDITED BY NORMAN E. BECK

Salt Lake Telegram

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 23, 1921

Priscilla Dean
heroine of "The Virgin of Stamboul"
and
Lon Chaney famous for his roles in "The Miracle Man" and "The Penalty"
in

"OUTSIDE the LAW"

Now playing

A Universal-Jewel

"HOME OF BIG FEATURES"
Kinema
11 A.M. To 11 P.M.

NEW PRICES

Matinee—Until 5 p. m.
General admission 25¢
Children . . . . 10¢

EVENING (After 5 p. m.)
Adults, lower floor . 35¢
Adults, balcony . 25¢
Children 10¢
Loges, up and down 50¢

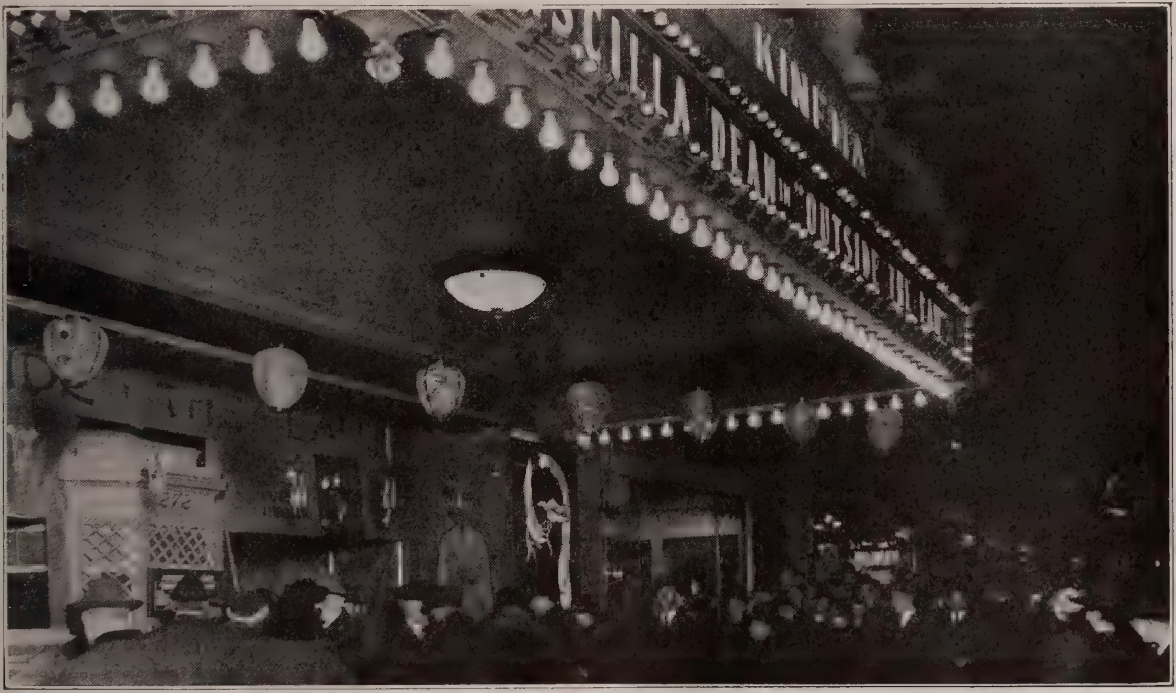
House opens at 10:45 a. m. Show starts promptly at 11

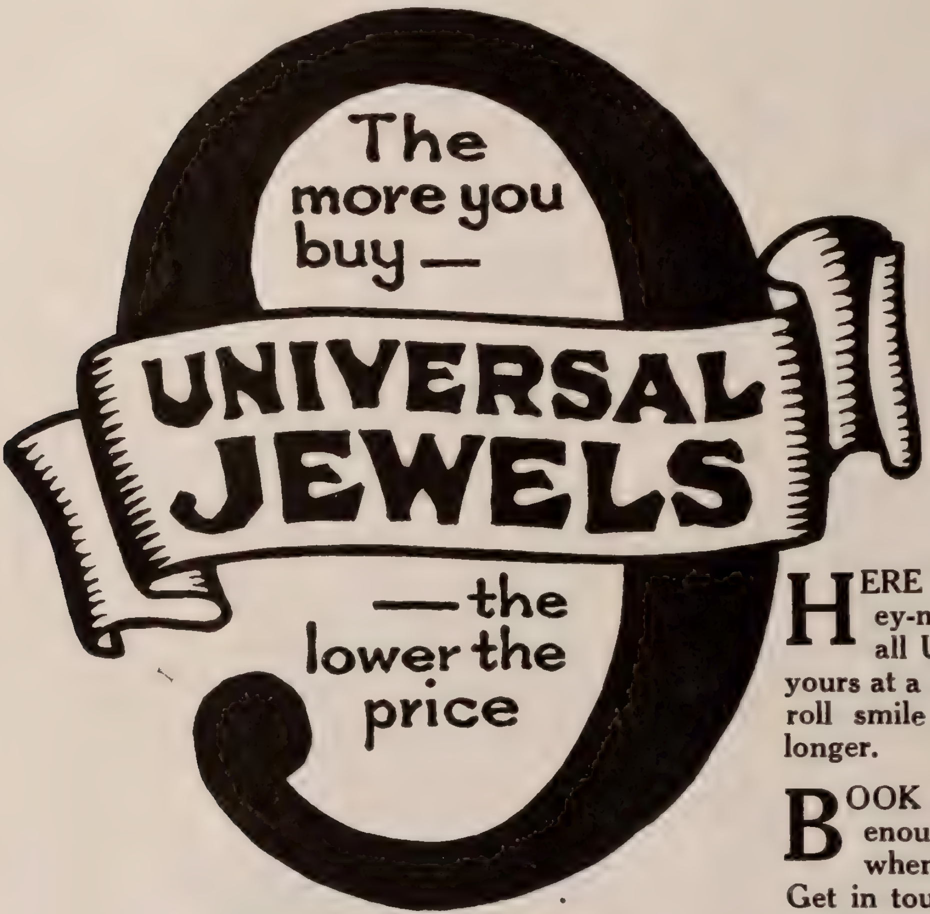
NEXT ATTRACTION
MAURICE TOURNEUR'S Famous Masterpiece
"DEEP WATERS

eatre made a great money-maker out of a great production

WHEN the Kinema Theatre of Salt Lake City booked this Universal-Jewel Production they knew that they had a tremendous drawing card. The only thing necessary to put it over big and right was to get behind it. This they did by using the publicity, exploitation and advertising features outlined in The Campaign Book and The Weekly. It broke not alone all house records but all records for any house in the history of Salt Lake City.

Here's the Proof!





FOR A

Book th

